Hereford Jubilee gets underway

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Hereford's annual Town & Country Jubilee celebration gets underway with a Road Rally this afternoon (Sunday) at the Community Center, continuing with events Thursday through Saturday, and ending with the final All Girl Rodeo performance on Sunday, Aug. 13.

In addition to the Road Rally, other new events in the growing celebration include a Cowboy Poetry Roundup, a Fajita Cookoff, a farmers' market, a Women's Open Barrel Race and a Team Roping event, a diaper derby, and a "meller drama."

The Road Rally starts from the Community Center parking lot at 2 p.m. and should be completed by 5 p.m. An awards ceremony for the top finishers is set at 6:30 p.m. The rally is not a race for speed, according to chairman Ricky Lloyd. Two-person teams will drive through a specified course with a series of questions to be answered. Cars are penalized for going too fast or too slow. Checkpoints will be along the course for judges to record times.

The next Jubilee event occurs Thursday evening with the Hereford Riders Club Roping Event. It will be held at the arena in Veterans Park beginning at 8 p.m.

Numerous events are on Friday's program, and a complete schedule of Jubilee events accompanies this article. Events include the Jubilee of Arts, Cowboy Poetry Readings, Fajita Cookoff, a style show, and the first performance of the All Girl Rodeo.

The big Jubilee Parade and the festivities and food at Jubilee Junction in Dameron Park highlight Saturday's activities. The parade will start at the high school parking lot, proceed down Ave. F to Park Avenue, go west to Main, south down Main and turn east on 2nd Street. The parade starts at 10:30 a.m.

Jubilee Junction will feature a barbecue lunch by the Kiwanis Club and all kinds of food and game booths sponsored by various organizations. The YMCA's Greg Black Memorial 10K and a 2-Mile run and 2-Mile Walk are to be held Saturday, along with the farmers' market at Sixth and Main, and the Jubilee of Arts. A full program of live entertainment is set in the park Saturday.

A Women's Open Barrel Race is scheduled Saturday at 10 a.m., and another open event on team roping is set for 1 p.m.

Special events may make 'All Girl Rodeo' best ever

More than 100 cowgirls from coast-to-coast will be featured here Aug. 11, 12 and 13 at the Fourteenth Annual All Girl Rodeo which is being staged in conjunction with Hereford's Town and Country Jubilee festivities.

The weekend event is being sponsored by the Hall of Fame Rodeo Association that has taken a leading role in bringing some of the top rodeo performers to the Texas Panhandle during the past decade.

Bob Barrett, president of the association, said this year's All Girl Rodeo is expected to be one of the best ever, with a number of special events scheduled for a grand opening on Friday evening, Aug. 11, at The Barn Arena, formerly the Cowboy Country Club.

A Cowboy Poetry Roundup, headed by Jake Holster of Amarillo, will open the western festivities at 5:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11, when tales of the Old West will be told in song and verse. This special production will be staged in the open arena as guests gather for the night-time rodeo performance.

Holster, who has been a life-time writer of cowboy poetry, has been involved in a number of regional and national cowboy poetry round-ups. Other poets and singers scheduled to appear will include Buck Ramsey of Amarillo, Sheryl and Buster McLauri of the JA Ranch in the Palo Duro Canyon, Melvin Whipple of Hereford, Jerry Nine of Laverne, Okla. and Betty Solt of Roswell, N.M.

In addition to the Cowboy Poetry Roundup, the first nighters will be given the opportunity to dine on real food—beef—from the real West in a Fajita Cookoff at the Barn Arena.

Susan Barrett, treasure of the Hall of Fame Rodeo Association, said a style show will also be conducted Friday evening prior to the first rodeo performance which will begin at 7 p.m. Rodeo performances are also set for 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 12, and at 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 13.

"We're expecting at least 120 entries from California to Florida," said Mrs. Barrett. "This cowgirl representation will include some of the finest riders and ropers in the profession." (see RODEO, Page 2)

Local farmer experiments with new crop--marigolds

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

It's a flower lover's dream... rows and rows of huge, fragrant marigolds. What's more, it's growing right here in Deaf Smith County.

Kerry Struve, operations manager for Kemin Industries, Inc., is overseeing a project for the commercial production of marigolds. They won't be found at the local florist. The finished product from Struve's marigolds will be well hidden in the dairy case of the grocery store.

The marigolds will be used to color the yolks in chicken eggs and the skin on broilers. The coloring is more than a superficial shading. An additive is placed in chicken feed and the pigmentation becomes a part of the animal's natural metabolism.

"We (Kemin Industries) have about 40 percent of the world market of natural pigments," Struve said.

Kemin uses the organic coloring in marigold petals to create their natural pigments. The petals from the mature marigolds are harvested, dried and bagged as a meal. The meal is used to make a color extract. The concentrated pigment (a liquid syrup) is mixed with a "carrier," either liquid or dry, and then mixed with chicken feed.

Most of the marigolds currently used in the process are grown in Mexico and Peru. Hand labor is used in much of the marigold cultivation and harvest in those countries.

"We're trying to develop a domestic production area where we don't have to depend on a Third World country to supply our raw ingredients," Struve said.

At present, three different test plots are growing in Deaf Smith County as Kemin, through Struve, experiments with the new crop. Although Kemin has cash leased the land where the marigolds are currently growing, Struve hopes to eventually contract with farmers for marigold production.

The development of a domestic production area is expected within the next three to five years, Struve said. The Kemin operations manager has been seriously involved in establishing a domestic marigold crop for approximately five years.

One of the many obstacles which are being overcome in order to grow marigolds here is the development of a hybrid flower which is best suited to Kemin needs.

"These ones are designed to be a small, compact plant," Struve said.

Although the hybrid grows a beautiful flower, it would be of little benefit for a passing gardener to glean seeds from the field. The hybrid is sterile.

Not only does the plant grow a large, well-colored flower head, but it is a suitable height for mechanized harvest.

Injunction denied, weed district voting proceeds Saturday

An election to determine if a Deaf Smith County Noxious Weed District is to be established was held Saturday after a district judge in Amarillo denied a request to stop the balloting. (Voting results were not known at presstime Saturday.)

J.W. McMorries of Hereford had filed a suit asking for an injunction to stop the election until constitutionality could be determined.

"I was unsuccessful in getting a court order but, if the proposed district is established, I fully intend to carry this through the court system so that all the people's voices are heard, not just a few," McMorries declared Friday evening. A request to seal the ballots until the suit was resolved was also denied.

If the vote Saturday does not approve formation of the district, McMorries said his question "will be moot."

David Clyde, attorney for McMorries, said District Judge Don Emerson conducted a hearing on the suit Friday afternoon. The hearing was held in Amarillo's 320th Judicial District court. Hereford District Judge Wesley Gully was out of town.

"Basically, the judge ruled that he lacked jurisdiction or the power to stop the election," said Clyde. He added that the court was "reluctant to grant relief because my client will still have avenues to pursue if the district is established."

McMorries, in bringing the suit, had said he was not "for" or "against" the district. He believed it was unconstitutional because city voters who own rural land in the county could not vote. The City of Hereford is not in the district boundaries.

"If the majority of the people want the district, that's fine—but I want all people affected by the new tax to have their say," said McMorries.

Sen. Bivins helps launch fund drive

Texas State Senator Teel Bivins served as featured speaker during a luncheon at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center on Friday. A fund drive for a $500,000 center expansion project officially kicked off during the luncheon.

"Your leaders have chosen to do it (the expansion project) the fiscally responsible way," Sen. Bivins said to a large gathering of the senior center's membership.

Bivins was commenting on the decision to raise the funds necessary to complete the major expansion before the project is actually begun. The senator stated that he would like to take that lesson in money management back to his fellow legislators in Austin.

The fund drive for the expansion was off to a running start even before it had officially begun. Shirley Garrison, president of the Hereford Senior Center's Board of Directors, reported that a balance of $67,670 had been donated to the project. This was before volunteers began officially soliciting funds.

Police make five arrests

Hereford City Police made five arrests, issued two citations and investigated several complaints Friday and Saturday morning. Three men were charged with public intoxication and another with driving while intoxicated. A 20-year-old woman was arrested for issuing a bad check.

Vandalism was reported in the 800 block of S. 25 Mile Avenue where a man said some one put spray paint on his car and his brother's vehicle. They were able to remove the paint with thinner. Gibson's reported a juvenile shop lifter, who was taken home by an officer. A man in the 100 block of Ave. G reported a tool box was stolen. Officers checked a report of a youth being hit by a B-B pellet in the 400 block of Ave. J. Another youth admitted firing the shot but said he was aiming at a bird and the pellet bounced off a tree and struck the youngster. No charges were filed.

One woman filed trespass charges against an ex-husband, and another reported she was assaulted by a man she knows, but didn't press charges. Officers are investigating a report that a juvenile was offered some pills by two other juveniles, who told him he could get a "good high." A man reported that someone in a red sports car threw something at him and broke his windshield. Charges are pending.

The fire department answered calls to a local motel where a smoke alarm went off; a pallet fire at a local plant, two grass fires outside of town, and an accident at Summerfield.

Popping petals

Kerry Struve operates a former bean harvester heavily modified for the harvesting of marigolds. These flowers are from one of three test plots being grown in Deaf Smith County by Kemin Industries, Inc.

MARIGOLDS

marigold field is another innovation in the flower production. The machine is a converted bean harvester.

"It's not much of a bean harvester anymore," Struve said.

The machine has been heavily altered so that it will pluck the large flower heads from the plant. The machine was customized by a man in Walla Walla, Wash. who was already building machines for use in Mexico.

Development of a harvester is not the only innovation required in Struve's project. Marigold production is completely new to this area, and there is no existing data on irrigation, fertilizer needs, etc.

"It's just learn as you go and teach yourself," Struve said.

At present, Struve is harvesting three rows at a time at specified intervals to determine when to obtain the best yield.

The crop should be planted around mid-April through the first of May. Struve expects the first harvest to be about mid-August. Six weeks later, a farmer should be able to harvest the same field a second time. If weather permits, a third harvest may be possible.

Struve anticipates that Deaf Smith County marigold fields (irrigated only) should produce around ten to 15 tons of flowers per acre each season. He estimates that the flowers should sell $50 to $60 per ton.

Although the domestic marigold project is a new development for Kemin, the company is not new to Deaf Smith County. Kemin Southwest is already well established in supplying area feed yards with such items as grain conditioners and mold inhibitors.

RODEO

The rodeo is Women's Professional Rodeo Association approved and will include bull riding, bareback bronc riding, team roping, tie-down calf roping, breakaway roping and barrel racing. Rodeo stock contractors are Bill Hext and John Walden.

Joan Wells, world champion trick roper, from Lincoln, Neb. will be exhibiting her skills at all three rodeo performances. Also appearing during the event will be Miss Rodeo Texas, Bobby Kay Tate of Austin.

This year's edition of the All Girl Rodeo is being dedicated to Fern Sawyer of Nogal, N.M., a lifelong New Mexico rancher and a one-time professional rodeo performer. Ms. Sawyer began rodeoing at the age of 15 and was the first woman to win the cutting horse competition at the Fort Worth Stock Show--that was in 1945. She was inducted into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame at Hereford in 1976.

Mrs. Barrett said that a number of door prizes will be given during the rodeo performances which will be interspersed with various specialty events. The prizes, donated by local merchants, will include original western oil paintings and western apparel.

Other special guests will include Betty Gayle Cooper of Durant, Okla., All Woman's Rodeo director of the Pro Woman's Rodeo Association.

Iran says it refused U.S. note; Algeria reports 'talk' progress

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iran said today that it refused to receive a note from the United States on "events in Lebanon" amid reports that Algeria has assumed a leading role in efforts to free Western hostages.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency quoted an unidentified foreign ministry official in Tehran as saying, "The U.S. administration sent a message to Iran's foreign ministry last week through a third country. Since the content had nothing to do with Iran, the message was not accepted."

IRNA, monitored in Cyprus, said the official was responding to reports that President Bush had appealed to Iran to prevent the killing of Western hostages in Lebanon. IRNA gave no further details.

The Washington Post and several Beirut radio stations reported today that Bush had specifically asked Algeria to intercede after a pro-

Iranian group said it killed American hostage Lt. Col. William R. Higgins and another group threatened to kill hostage Joseph Cicippio.

Meanwhile, Marrack Goulding, head of the U.N. peacekeeping operations, flew to Beirut by helicopter from south Lebanon for a third day of talks with Lebanese leaders and then left for Syria. Goulding is trying to resolve the fate of Higgins and push efforts to set the hostages free.

Before leaving for Syria, Goulding told reporters that Algeria "is playing an extra part in trying to resolve the hostage problem as Algeria has done in previous cases."

He said he had not yet "obtained concrete proof that Col. Higgins is dead and I pray he is not dead."

Jury fines former Hi-Plains official

A federal jury in Amarillo this week assessed $1,250,000 in actual damages and the same amount in punitive damages against T.L. Welker, chairman of the board of directors of Hi-Plains Savings & Loan Association in Hereford from April 1983 to March 1985, according to court records.

The civil suit by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. against Welker and other defendants came after a determination that Hi-Plains was insolvent and FSLIC was appointed as receiver for the thrift in November 1985.

FSLIC sought to recover damages from former directors and offices of Hi-Plains for losses resulting from a series of transactions by Hi-Plains in and around Austin. These transactions were called the SunWest transactions because they involved a group of companies known as the SunWest Group.

Losses resulting from transactions at issue exceeded $14 million, according to FSLIC. Directors of Hi-Plains were accused of engaging in "imprudent lending and acquisition practices to the detriment of Hi-Plains, its depositors and FSLIC."

Among the contested issues, according to court records, were whether the collapse of the real estate market was the main cause of the drop in value of the SunWest property, and when knowledge was obtained by Welker and his wife that Hi-Plains employees allegedly were not doing their jobs correctly.

The jury found that Welker violated a cease and desist order in connection with transactions at issue. According to court files, Welker and other directors of Hi-Plains agreed in June 1983 to a cease and desist order, by which they agreed that Hi-Plains would not grant any loan exceeding $250,000 or buy any loans and investments exceeding $150,000, except under certain conditions.

The jury also found that T.L. Welker, Dale Welker and Paul Moore were negligent, breached fiduciary duties and violated federal regulations in connection with some transactions at issue. But the jury also found that the negligent, breaches and violations of regulations did not directly cause any loss to Hi-Plains and therefore did not assess damages for them.

T.L. and his wife, Dale, a director of Hi-Plains, acquired all Hi-Plains stock on July 27, 1983, and elected as members of the board of directors relatives or associates of the Welkers, court records said. Moore was a director and president of Hi-Plains.

Settlements had been reached with some prior defendants and cases dismissed against others without settlements.

After FSLIC was appointed as receiver, the thrift was reorganized and acquired by Consolidated Federal Savings Bank.

Congress approves big spending bills

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Democratic-controlled House, ignoring threats of a possible veto, overwhelmingly approved a $286.5 billion military spending bill Friday that would slash billions of dollars from President Bush's strategic weapons programs.

After deliberating less than an hour, the House voted 312-105 to adopt appropriations legislation that would cut $1.8 billion from Star Wars, strictly curtail production of the B-2 bomber and eliminate all funds for the Midgetman nuclear missile, the advanced tactical fighter and cruise missile.

In a rush to complete its work before a monthlong recess, Congress also took up a compromise $159 billion savings and loan bailout plan, legislation on financial liability for oil spills, aid to farmers hit by the drought and a temporary $70 billion extension to the $2.8 trillion federal debt limit.

While Congress pushed for speedy action on a series of bills, Bush complained to Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, about Senate delays on 120 of his appointments.

"The president wanted to register his deep concern that these were being held up for artificial reasons not related to the candidates themselves," presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters at the White House.

The "artificial reasons," according to administration officials and Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., are party politics.

Among the nominations the Senate has not yet acted on are Bush's selection of Donald Gregg, who has been linked to the Iran-Contra affair, as ambassador to South Korea and several nominees to the scandal-plagued Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Away from the legislative action and White House complaints, the House ethics committee said it had decided to investigate three lawmakers accused of sexual improprieties.

The committee voted in secret session Thursday to conduct preliminary inquiries into the conduct of Reps. Gus Savage, D-Ill.; Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-Ohio, and Jim Bates, D-Calif.

Sen. David Durenberger, D-Minn., disclosed that the Senate ethics committee has completed a preliminary inquiry of his previously disclosed book contract that an opponent claimed was a device to circumvent limits on fee income. The senator said the committee had decided to proceed with its investigation.

The last major legislative battle before the recess concerned the thrift bailout.

A tenuous compromise with the Bush administration, agreed to late Thursday night, was threatened as key House Democrats announced opposition. In particular, they objected to financing provisions that would keep much of the cost of the bailout outside the official federal budget figures and, they said, add substantially to the overall expense to be borne by taxpayers.

With savings and loan losses mounting at a rate of $20 million or more a day, Bush wrote to the lawmakers, "Final passage remains critical to the stability and solvency of the financial system."

The landmark bill would close or merge hundreds of insolvent savings institutions.

Setting the stage for the difficult task of deciding the S&L bailout, the House moved quickly on the defense appropriations bill that largely conformed to the military authorization plan passed by the chamber last week.

In fact, the vote for the appropriations plan, 312-105, amounted to a stronger statement than the 261-162 approval of the authorization bill.

Brief submitted by TCTA

The Texas Classroom Teachers Association (TCTA) today filed a legal brief with Attorney General Jim Mattox in response to a recent opinion request by Commissioner of Education William Kirby. The controversy stems from recent legislation passed during the regular term of the 71st Legislative session which amends the teacher career ladder.

The legislation, known as H.B. 2566, amends the teacher career ladder to make the criteria for level three placement more difficult. In addition to other changes, the bill also provides for the use of current year appraisals for placement on career ladder levels. TCTA opposed the proposal in House and Senate committee hearings.

According to the enrolled version of the bill, signed by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and Speaker of the House, implementation of the new level three criteria and use of current year appraisals for level three placement are delayed until September, 1990. The opinion request by Commissioner Kirby is a response to a letter sent to him by the Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House, and the authors of the bill, Senator Carl Parker and Representative Ernestine Glossbrenner, asserting that the delay was a clerical error and the disputed provision of the bill is to be given immediate effect.

The State Board of Education, which considered the issue at its July meeting, voted to request at Attorney General's opinion to guide the board in determining how the bill should be implemented. According to the Texas Education Agencies figures, approximately 30,000 teachers may be affected by the change in level three criteria.

TCTA President Joan Brindley said, "One of the primary problems with the career ladder is the constantly changing criteria. Every time a significant number of teachers gets close to the 'brass ring', it gets moved further away. There are thousands of extremely skilled teachers who expected to be placed on level three this year based on the last three to five years of appraisals and criteria established by H.B. 72. They are now being told, based on a letter from four people, that not only are they not being placed on level three, but must now re-qualify under stricter standards. That is simply not fair."

Among other points, the TCTA brief makes reference to the Enrolled Bill doctrine, a line of cases indicating that the final enrolled bill is considered to be determinative. Brindley concluded by stating, "Fortunately for Texas, the 'letter of the law' doesn't mean that four state officials, no matter how distinguished, can legislate by correspondence."

The Texas Classroom Teachers Association is an independent statewide teacher association representing over 25,000 teachers.

Summer cookouts bring about the purchase of beef and sausage patties. Of special concern is the use of partially cooked beef patties. These patties may be contaminated with salmonella or a strain of E.coli bacteria that causes bloody diarrhea.

While the risk of contracting salmonellosis of E.coli from pre-cooked meat patties is small it is important that pre-cooked patties are not ready to eat.

Information received from the United States Department of Agriculture cautions consumers to use proper handling and heating to finish the cooking process. Patties should be kept refrigerated or frozen before use and should be used within three or four days of refrigerator storage to prevent growth of harmful bacteria.

To cook, consumers should:

-Heat all meat patties until they are hot, steaming and juices run clear. The center of the patty should be greyish brown with no evidence of pink color. To be thoroughly heated, patties must reach an internal temperature of at least 160 degrees Fahrenheit.

-Follow package directions carefully. Note how hot the pan, oven or grill should be before you start cooking the patties. Be sure to cook for the required amount of time, and cover the pan or patties if the instructions say to do so.

-For microwave cooking, it's especially important to follow package directions. Note the microwave wattage specified in the instructions. If your microwave is less powerful, you will need to cook longer or at a higher setting. Use a rotation device or turn the food to ensure even cooking. If the instructions say to let the patties stand before serving, be sure to do so, because foods continue to cook after microwaving.

Special precautions are necessary when serving meat patties to people who are particularly vulnerable to bacterial infections. These high-risk groups include the very young, the elderly, pregnant women, the seriously ill and those with otherwise weakened immune systems.

Details are as follows:

A Road Rally is an event consisting of an automobile, a driver, and a navigator. The objective of the event is for the navigator to guide the driver through a predetermined road course with the aid of a specific set of directions. Included in the directions will be a series of questions to be answered by the team. Such questions may ask the team to count the number of mailboxes between two given points, or to look for a particular sign along the road. Intermittently through-out the course, checkpoints will be set up where officials will keep record of each team's elapsed time. Penalty points for going to fast or to slow will be subtracted as well as points awarded for correct answers and accurate times. Note:

This is not a race for speed.

Each car needs a working speedometer and odometer, a licensed driver, and a navigator old enough to read, count and see over the dash. A limit of only two people will be allowed in each vehicle.

Starting time 1:00 pm at the Community Center. There will be registration and a briefing inside the center and the first car is scheduled to leave out at 2:00 pm. Each car thereafter will leave in one minute intervals.

The course will take approximately 2 1/2 to 3 hours to complete and winners will be announced and prizes awarded at the Community Center after the rally.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says hardening of the heart ages people more quickly than hardening of the arteries.

"Why did you fire the secretary you had?"
"She couldn't spell—kept asking me how to spell every other word when you took dictation."
"And you couldn't stand the interruptions?"
"It wasn't that. I just didn't have time to look up all those words."

Like a lot of bosses, I can't seem to get out of the office enough. There just never seems to be enough time to take care of all the little problems. I hate to admit that I'm not efficient in planning my time, so now come some statistics that I can use as excuses.

The average boss wastes almost four work weeks a year because things are misplaced, misfiled, mislabeled—or just missing.

The average boss spends three 40-hour work weeks a year on wasteful or unnecessary business telephone calls.

The average boss spends six weeks a year in wasteful or unnecessary meetings.

The average boss spends four weeks a year reading or writing wasteful or unnecessary office memos.

So, that's where a third of my time has been going!

You've heard the good news—oat bran can lower breaded cholesterol in your blood stream. Just eat a bowl of oatmeal in the morning or an oat muffin a day, and your cholesterol numbers are bound to drop.

Even some kind of beans do the trick, the studies say. A burrito a day might lower the numbers. But now for the bad news.

Oat bran and beans create an uncomfortable social problem for users. If oat bran cereal sales doubled last year, so did the production of methane and hydrogen gas in the nation's stomach. A medical specialist says this new diet is guaranteed to turn you into an operating gas well and probably when you least want it.

Dr. Michael Levitt is a Minneapolis gastroenterologist whose specialty is gas. High fiber diets, especially diets high in soluble fiber, are likely to create more gas, he says. The results can be uncomfortable.

"So far, we haven't been able to isolate why some people produce more gas and are more uncomfortable," says Dr. Levitt. "We just haven't been able to differentiate these things, which is unfortunate because it's a fairly important question."

The doctor says it might be that some intestines are just more cranky than others. Some people can have a lot of discomfort and feel bloated and distended. To say nothing of those whose main discomfort is the looks on their coworkers' faces. They may be feeling better but enjoying it less.

Dr. Levitt says the options are limited, because not enough good studies have been made to document solutions. Some people think soaking beans in bicarbonate of soda before cooking may make the starch in them easier to digest. Some folks have turned to ingesting charcoal tablets, but the doctor says no effect has been shown in studies.

In case you're wondering, Dr. Levitt measures the amount of gas produced by analyzing his patients' breath. Fortunately for him, and for science, that is a good indication of the amount of methane and hydrogen escaping from the other end of the subject.

Gramm has plenty of cash on hand

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republican Sen. Phil Gramm has more than $3.7 million in the bank for his 1990 re-election campaign while his only announced challenger, Democratic state Sen. Hugh Parmer, had $175,043 in his campaign treasury on June 30.

"Unless we see a dramatic change in the fortunes of the opposition here, Gramm ought to coast," said Norman Ornstein, resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute.

Ornstein said both of Texas senators, Gramm and Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, "have the ability to raise awesome sums of money," which has an "enormous chilling effect for any serious or significant opposition."

Parmer, in a statement released Tuesday, said that even though he started from scratch in March, he has met all his fund-raising goals.

"Phil Gramm will obviously outspend us, but his Gramm-standing and our fund-raising will be enough to overcome his attempts to buy the election," Parmer said.

Countered Gramm spokesman Larry Neal of Parmer's efforts: "It doesn't sound like a very successful fund-raising operation."

In campaign spending reports filed with the Federal Election Commission, Gramm said he raised just over $2 million and spent $684,410 in the first six months of 1989. The first-term senator listed no debts and cash on hand totaling $3,725,060.

Parmer said he has raised $218,316 and spent $158,465 during the reporting period, and has borrowed $64,900 from Landmark Bank of Fort Worth for his campaign. Parmer also transferred $50,100 from his state Senate account into his U.S. Senate campaign fund.

According to Gramm's 428-page filing with the FEC, the senator raised $138,275 from political action committees and almost $1.9 million from individual contributors. Parmer raised $7,000 from PACs and $211,316 from individuals.

Gramm's spending included more than $300,000 for direct-mail with one company alone, $17,187 for a "survey" by Houston pollster Tarrance and Associates Inc., and $5,000 for consulting with Ailes Communications, the firm owned by Roger Ailes, who was President Bush's media consultant during the 1988 presidential campaign.

Gramm's fund-raisers ranged from spending $1,815 at Stacy's Deli in Nacogdoches to events at the Waldorf Astoria on Park Avenue in New York and a $10,609 fund raiser at Loews L'Enfant Plaza in Washington.

Gramm also reported settling a dispute with the FEC stemming from his 1984 campaign with a $30,000 payment to the U.S. Treasury, and gave $8,980 in unrefundable campaign contributions to various charities as part of the settlement agreement.

Those charities included his wife's family's church, Waiialua United Church of Christ in Waiialua, Hawaii, and the Georgetown Day School, which at least one of his two sons attends, said Neal. Each received $2,000.

Neal said Gramm has not yet set a fund-raising goal for his 1990 campaign. In 1984, Gramm spent $9.4 million in his race against Democrat Lloyd Doggett, who spent approximately $6 million.

Parmer said he has raised $23,644 more in contributions during the Jan. 1 through June 30 reporting period than Doggett did in 1983.

Ornstein said he expects Gramm will have some vigorous opposition, but doesn't see prominent Texans "falling over themselves to run against him."

But Ornstein predicts Gramm will have a tougher race in 1990 than Bentsen had in 1988 with Republican challenger Beau Boutler of Amarillo.

Democrats, Ornstein said, "hate Gramm" a lot more than the Republicans dislike Bentsen, and even some Republican leaders would like to see Gramm "cut down a little."

"Some Republicans kind of resent the fact he has become such a dominant figure, especially because his tenure in the party is so slender," Ornstein said.

Brand provides NIE program

The Hereford Brand will be stepping up its efforts to help Hereford school children in their education next school year by providing the News-Currents Newspapers in Education program.

The Brand conducted a nine-week trial program at the end of the 1988-89 school year, and the program has proven successful.

The program was used at Northwest, West Central and Bluebonnet schools.

The program includes customized, up-to-date filmstrips that include newsmakers and events to help study current events; a look at historical events; news places and maps that help geography skills; and words gleaned from the news that help build vocabulary. Discussion guides help teachers generate thinking and discussing by students, and review quizzes and newspaper activity guide help students learn more from the newspaper.

The guides and filmstrips are designed for use at several grade levels.

The program also includes a nine-time-a-year in-depth look at certain subjects. The program also generates "The Quiz" that appears on Page Two in the Brand each Sunday.

"Many of the teachers and administrators enjoyed using the program during the limited time we had last school year," said Managing Editor John Brooks. "Some of the schools plan to use this program instead of the Weekly Reader or other long-standing traditional programs."
"We are delighted that we are able to provide this program for our school children and look forward to other programs we could use to help our children."

Letter policy

The Hereford Brand welcomes letters to the editor on subjects of interest to our readers. Letters are more likely to be printed if they are timely, address current community concerns and express the thoughts in a clear and brief manner.

Letters should be no more than 300 words, and the editor reserves the right to edit to meet space requirements, clarity or to avoid obscenity, libel or invasion of privacy. LOOKING FOR A NAVIGATOR

They are having a thing called a road rally this weekend. As I understand it the idea is to have a car, a driver, and a navigator to follow a course laid out with specific instructions. The idea is not speed but precision and finding your way by following the instructions.

Well, I have a car and the idea of a road rally sounds like fun, so I thought I would enter. The problem is who can I get to navigate. Who do I know that can read instructions? Most of my friends believe in the idea of "when all else fails, read the directions!"

I thought I might ask Clint Formby to be my navigator. Old Clint seems to know where every weed in the county lives so maybe he could direct my path. I listened to the "Old Philosopher" the other morning. He told of getting into three white cars in front of the post office before he found his car.

I have helped him look for his car several times. Most of the time he left his car at the office and walked to town, and then could not remember that he walked. If Clint had been my navigator we probably would have ended up in Umbarger on foot.

I thought of my wife. The nearest we have ever come to divorce has been when she was navigating and I was driving.

We spent three days in Washington, D.C. trying to figure out the angle streets laid out by some crazy Frenchman. We got lost every night trying to find our motel. Most nights we found the motel before we found the street we were suppose to be on.

One night we drove up to the motel from the opposite direction entirely. We circled Arlington Cemetery so many times I think I know who is in the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. By the time we got to the motel we were so mad the rest of the night was cool, to say the least.

I think they should force every engaged couple to go to Washington for a few days of driving around. If they can stand each other after that the marriage will never fail.

The road rally is this weekend. The question is not who will win. The question is how many former friends will no longer speak to each other, and how many marriages will be on the rocks.

Panhandle lake now on the rise

By LYNDA WALDRIP
Amarillo Globe-News

McLEAN, Texas (AP) - Sitting in the breaks surrounded by cottonwood trees, one can enjoy the sites, listen to a red-headed woodpecker or race along a motorcycle trail on the McClellan National Grasslands.

And nent rains in the Panhandle have revitalized this small lake, three miles north of Interstate 40 between Groom and McLean, which was in danger of drying up only a couple of months ago. Now the lake, which covers 405 acres when full, is only six feet below the spillway, the most water its held in about four years.

The lake has always had water problems, but more so the past several years with the increase in farm pond dams in the watershed.

"It's always strictly an act of God whether we get water or not. It's strictly runoff," said Buck Williams, game warden in Gray and Roberts counties. "The watershed is pretty big. Basically, and this is a personal opinion, for years farmers could have dams built for a small cost. That's the main problem right there. You get enough of those little dams and you've backed up a lot of water. It was the worst I'd ever seen it until we got this rain."

Williams said the recent rains should be enough to keep the water level up to a satisfactory level for two years, assuming it rains no more.

"This was the worst I'd ever seen it in my 25 years here until we got this rain," he said. "The water level was down to five feet between the point and the dam. In 1982-83, the water level between the spillway and the point was 26 feet."

McClellan was built in 1938 as a Works Progress Administration project and the spillway was moved to the middle of the dam in 1964. The Grasslands, owned by the U.S. Forest Service and leased to a concessionaire, covers 1,449 acres.

John Roberts of Amarillo is the concessionaire, but subleases the facility to Glenn and Burl Sain.

There are 12 individually marked areas with several picnic tables in each area. It also offers camping, fishing, boating, skiing, horseback riding trails and 450 acres of off-road vehicle trails.

Permits are $2 per person per day and there are group rates for organizations. In addition, costs include $2 for mobile homes or travel trailers per night, $1 for horses and $1 for motorcycles.

In the permit office is a store that sells bait, fishing tackle, food and picnic supplies. There are 20 restroom facilities scattered around the lake, but no showers are available - yet - Glenn Sain said. Work is being done to get approval from the Forest Service to put in an RV park with hookups, showers and a little restaurant.

The lake itself offers largemouth bass, hybrid stripers, crappie and blue and channel catfish.

Joe Kraai, fisheries biologist with Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, said they stock hybrid stripers every year, except the past two years because of the lack of water. They will begin stocking hybrids again next spring, as well as continue stocking catfish.

"There ought to be pretty good survival of bass and crappie. There is plenty of cover for protecting the young," he said.

Williams said that the average number of fish caught each hour per fisherman in McClellan exceeds any lake within 200 miles. One thing is certain, there are plenty of fish to be caught and, even if the fish aren't biting, there are plenty of other things to enjoy.

Footing the bill

The good old American taxpayer is called upon again to dig down and pay for a problem he did not cause, a problem that made others rich but which the taxpayer is expected to finance.

There is a growing demand for Uncle Sam to bail out the Latin American countries which owe some $420 billion, or 60 percent of their total annual output. Latin America, it is reported, remains trapped by debt, stagnation and instability. The U.S. has lost $18 billion in exports to the nations of Brazil, Mexico, Argentina and other Latin America nations. Unless they solve their debt problems, they can't buy any more of our goods.

The huge debt is said to have an effect upon democracy in Latin America. Military coup attempts in Argentina and Venezuela have threatened to topple their governments. Opposition forces are hard at work and threaten, if they take control of the government, to cancel all foreign debt.

Some members of Congress are afraid tht because these Latin American countries owe so much in the United States that this is causing resentment toward us. Debtors often resent their creditors and this is what is happening in Latin America.

Because of all this debt, the quality of life in Latin America is deteriorating. Poverty is making life miserable. The governments can't pay off their debts. They are in a terrible mess. What is the solution?

Why, the American taxpayers can step forward and cancel these debts. American banks holding Latin American notes are asked to write down these notes about 50 percent. These countries could then borrow from the World Bank and resume spending. The banks would be repaid by government funds.

Everybody would then be happy, except the taxpayer footing the bill.

U.S. in holding pattern on hostage crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration is in a "holding pattern" as it pins its hopes on continued diplomatic efforts to resolve the crisis involving hostages held by Moslem extremists, an official said.

The administration on Friday voiced optimism, tinged with caution, at the promise of Iran's new president, Hashemi Rafsanjani, to help find a solution to the hostage situation.

President Bush said he would explore the overture "to the fullest."

"I don't want to raise hopes beyond fulfillment, but there's reason to be somewhat encouraged," Bush said about Rafsanjani's comments.

Still, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the United States is "always skeptical of what we hear from Iran," while State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler sounded a slightly more positive reaction.

"Based on the excerpts we have seen, President Rafsanjani's remarks appear to be moderate and are therefore encouraging," she said. "We have reason to believe that Iran is genuinely engaged and no reason to believe that its engagement is not focused in a positive direction."

The United States, which does not have direct relations with Iran, was using Switzerland as an intermediary to seek help from Iran, generally believed to wield influence with the Shiite kidnappers, officials said.

The president also called the head of the Geneva-based International Red Cross, Cornelio Sommaruga, on Friday to voice support for the agency's involvement in trying to free the hostages, said Fitzwater.

Efforts by the Red Cross were alluded to by Rafsanjani when he said he would help the United States find solutions.

Bush spoke of a "very extraordinarily broad exercise of diplomacy here in the last couple of days" during which aides said he has appealed to dozens of world leaders for help.

The diplomatic efforts are continuing, Fitzwater said.

Another administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said "It's in a holding pattern," while the administration watches for its diplomatic overtures to produce results. No new messages went to Iran on Friday, the official said.

During a photo session, Bush was asked about the massing of U.S. naval strength in the Mediterranean Sea and the Indian Ocean as a possible indicator he had decided to retaliate militarily if another U.S. hostage was killed.

"If I had made such a decision, I expect this would be the last place I'd be talking about it," Bush said.

But Fitzwater denied Bush had selected specific Lebanese targets to hit if kidnapers had carried out a threat to kill American hostage Joseph Cicippio.

"I will say he did not make final decisions," Fitzwater said. "It does not help the United States government or the United States to be discussing military tactics ... to be flexing our muscles in public."

YOUR EYES

THE FIRST TWELVE MONTHS

Your baby's vision is blurred at birth. That blurriness clears up during the first few months of life, but complete visual development takes many years.

As a parent, you can motivate your baby's visual development soon after birth. In the early months, change the location of the baby's crib every few weeks, so that the baby gets new things to look at. Hang a mobile over the crib, one that will stimulate the baby to reach out and touch its colorful parts.

At about four months, give the baby assorted, safe toys of different sizes and textures. "Peek-a-boo, I see you" remains a good seeing game for infants.

All babies should be allowed to crawl, explore and touch as much as possible. This helps develop hand/eye coordination long before they begin to walk.

Your baby will begin to judge distances, hold things and throw objects somewhere between 8 and 12 months. Encourage this by rolling a ball to your baby and letting the little one crawl after it. At about a year, introduce toys or plastic containers that can be stacked or taken apart.

What seems like child's play is really the best way to develop a baby's visual skills.

Six plead innocent to conspiracy, fraud

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - Connie Arvidson said she became so obsessed in her quest for coupons that she would sift through trash bins behind nightclubs in the middle of the night.

The avocation netted the Florida housewife more than $40,000 last year, but this summer it brought federal charges that she knowingly distributed counterfeit coupons.

Mrs. Arvidson, of Boca Raton, Fla., was one of six people who pleaded innocent Thursday to federal conspiracy and mail fraud charges in connection with a $2 million counterfeit coupon scam.

Four others indicted by a federal grand jury agreed to plead guilty in their home states and did not appear at Thursday's proceedings before Senior U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward, officials said.

James Floyd Richards of San Antonio; David George Rackmill of Stamford; David Keith Rees of Center Point; Peggy Joyce Bunce of Deerfield Beach, Fla.; and Margaret McBrayer Goodman of Kingsport, Tenn., also pleaded innocent.

All were released on personal recognizance bonds.

The defendants face a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine on each count.

But Mrs. Arvidson said Thursday she has been wrongly implicated.

"They were good coupons," she told the Abilene Reporter-News. "There was nothing wrong with them as far as I was concerned."

ROME, Ga. (AP) - Stand Watie, born near here in 1806, was the only Indian brigadier general in the Confederate Army.

In 1838, Watie had become a tribal leader of the Cherokee Indians. When they allied with the Confederacy in 1861, Watie joined the Confederate Army. He led a volunteer regiment called the Cherokee Mounted Rifles and was one of the last Confederate officers to surrender.

Watie farmed in Oklahoma after the war. He died in 1871.

When she was arrested, "I was shocked," she said. "I didn't believe it, I still can't."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven S. Sucusy said evidence gathered during a four-month investigation will show that Mrs. Arvidson knowingly bought and distributed tens of thousands of dollars worth of fake coupons.

In the alleged scheme, coupons for food and other products from 47 major consumer product companies allegedly were printed and distributed nationwide from Texas.

The 24-count indictment, handed down June 22, said that beginning in June 1988, Rackmill advertised the coupons in a circular mailed to hundreds of people after buying the fake coupons from Rees, who had them printed by Richards.

The three allegedly counterfeited 603,000 copies of 90 coupons issued by the 47 manufacturers. The other defendants allegedly purchased the coupons from Rackmill through the mail, according to the indictment.

U.S. Postal Inspector Sam Prose, who worked undercover in the case and offered Rees coupons for Crisco shortening, said the coupon purchasers participated in the conspiracy by using the coupons to obtain large amounts of the products, then sold them at flea markets.

The coupons were similar to those offered by manufacturers to customers in exchange for proof-of-purchase seals and were valued between $1 and $10.89.

Mrs. Arvidson, who had made her living collecting coupons for seven years, said she "never dreamed" there was anything wrong with the coupons she got from Rackmill.

But the indictment alleges that Arvidson conspired with James Patrick Caprose of Newcastle, Pa., to obtain more than 10,000 counterfeit coupons. Caprose was one of the four defendants who agreed to plead guilty.

Arvidson said the publisher of the magazine, and not her, should be in court.

"They're the ones who printed the ads," she said. "They should be held responsible."

Also agreeing to plead guilty were Evelyn Christine Peoples of Humphrey, Ark.; Carol Jean Juell of Fullerton, Calif.; and Yvonne Suits of Cambridge, Minn.

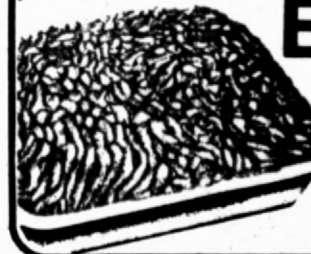

No date has been set for trial, but Woodward told the defendants their trials would be conducted in Dallas.

Rural church celebrates 100th birthday

By ROY A. JONES II
Abilene Reporter-News
NEINDA, Texas (AP) - Every year throughout Texas, several dozen rural churches disband, reluctant victims of time and a shifting population.

Amid that discouraging trend, Neinda Baptist Church stands out as a survivor. Located in northwestern Jones County, the struggling church's building rises from a cotton field like a shimmering vision, a white frame monument to faith and endurance. With the exception of a handful of scattered residences and boarded-up buildings, the church is all that's left of the Neinda community, located six miles south of Hamlin on Farm Road 126.

Of the several hundred members who have worshipped there over the years, only 25 are left.

Those hardy individuals know they have, in the words of 91-year-old deacon John R. Brown, "a tough row to hoe." But they aren't about to disband.

On a recent Sunday, the tiny church marked its 100th anniversary.

The Rev. Frank Codington, who has been pastor of the church for nearly a third of its history, reflected the attitude of the congregation when he added with a broad smile, "We're also going to celebrate the beginning of our second hundred years!"

Capacity is about 200 people, and that's what the church attracted regularly when the present building was completed in 1904, church records show. In fact, Brown said, "Revival meetings, or 'protracted meetings' as we called them then, had to be held in a 'brush arbor' erected near the church building."

The celebration began on a Saturday evening with a concert featuring present and former members. On Sunday, the morning anniversary service was followed by a catered lunch.

The service featured a "roll call of the saints" by Mrs. Donald Young, and moments of reflection by several longtime members.

What now is Neinda Baptist Church was organized on Sunday, July 21, 1889, at the Boyd School House, which stood only a short distance from the present site.

It was first called "The Baptist Church of Christ at Plum Creek."

Geneva Neal, a member since 1951, and Sue Codington, the pastor's wife and former school teacher at Noodle, compiled a history of the church. Mrs. Neal's late husband, Homer, was a deacon in the church for nearly 40 years.

"Initially, church services were held every third Sunday in the community building where the Methodists and the Masonic Lodge met," Mrs. Codington said.

In 1903, one of the 13 charter members, George Washington Body, and his wife, Henrietta, donated the acre of land on which the church building was erected. The lumber was hauled from Abilene by wagon.

When the building was completed, the name was changed to First Baptist Church of Neinda. Brown said he's always heard Neinda was an Indian word meaning "far away."

During the early years, Neal pointed out, "It was not uncommon to dismiss members for any number of reasons which seem peculiar to us today."

Church records show dismissal for such reasons as "lack of church attendance," "participating in ball games on Sunday," and "traveling to neighboring towns on the Lord's Day," she said.

Brown, who was ordained a deacon in 1955, rarely missed a service until he moved to a Hamlin nursing home last December. He's still alert, but wasn't physically able to attend the anniversary celebration.

"I'll sure be there in spirit," he said several days before.

His eyes lit up when he recalled the "protracted meetings" in the brush arbor near his old home place.

"The men would come to church in their overalls, straight out of the fields," he said. "We didn't have time to go home and clean up. We used kerosene torches for lights."

Once, he recalled, men put straw on the muddy floor of the brush arbor.

"Trouble was, the straw was working alive with crickets."

When the insects crawled up the men's pants leg, it was annoying, but not as bad as when they would crawl up under the ladies skirts, he said.

"Some of the women would holler out and disrupt the services."

Brown said he was told that during the first protracted meetings at the brush arbor, "The boys from Boys Chapel, and probably some from Neinda, would slip out to the wagons and take a sleeping baby out of one wagon and put it in someone else's wagon, and change all the babies in the wagons."

"When the families got to their homes and carried the babies into the house, they would find out that they had the wrong baby. There were no telephones and sometimes it took several hours to return the baby they had and try to locate their own."

Longtime members hope there always will be a Neinda Baptist Church, but they recognize, realistically, that they just don't have the numbers to offer the youth programs which eventually cause some families to move to larger, city churches.

"Right now we just have two kids, and they're the children of the organist. They come all the way from Rochester," Mrs. Neal said. "But the bright side is, those kids get an awful lot of individual attention!"

Brown said, "I think they may have to go back to just (holding services) once or twice a month someday, but I don't think it's gonna close. I pray it won't."

"It's sad, what's happening to little churches like this," Codington said. "Fewer and fewer people are going to rural churches because we just can't have much of a program for youth. I'm afraid that when the older folks all die off, that'll be about it."

"But God promised us that where two or three are gathered in his name, he'll be there in the midst of us. If the Lord wills, we'll keep on gathering here and worshipping him just as long as we possibly can."

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) - The U.S. Customs Service sees gold in an auction of one of 20 platinum records presented for David Bowie's album "Let's Dance."

Leroy Elfrank, a Customs official in Lawton, said Tuesday the record, encased in frame and glass, was found as workers took inventory of the items to be auctioned Aug. 10 in Jersey City, N.J.

Elfrank said he doesn't know why Customs had the record or to whom it belonged. The record could have been seized or abandoned or perhaps was unreturnable because of a lost mailing label, Elfrank said.

He said his office took several measures to track the authenticity of the item, including talking to record companies and Bowie's management firm.

He said the company, Isolar, told him 20 platinum records were made and that it didn't know the owner. Isolar, however, wanted it.

"We told them they could come to the auction and buy it back.

Still swinging: Local golfer refuses to let illness knock him off course

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

In 1987 local golfer Don T. Martin accomplished two of the game's rarest feats within a week. After four years of trying, he shot his age, carrying a 73 at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. Six days later he scored his first hole-in-one.

In 1988 Martin made those achievements pale in comparison by beating cancer for the second time in nine years.

"I had a melanoma removed from my chest in 1979," Martin said, "and had chemotherapy treatments for two years."

"Then they found prostate cancer. I had three operations and 36 radiation treatments for that last year."

He attributed his recovery to his religious faith and the support of his wife of 50 years, Betty, and their family.

"I've always been a religious man," he said, "and my faith in God me through this. Together we've been able to work things out."

The Rev. Steve McElroy of the First United Methodist Church, where the Martins are members, said the couple showed great courage throughout the ordeal.

"They went through a lot of pain,

Martin came to Hereford in 1946 from Dalhart as principal at Hereford High School. The Stamford native had served as a math teacher and coach in public schools at Spur, Matador and Ranger earlier.

It was at Matador that Martin met and married Betty Jo Simpson.

Matador was also where he began playing golf seriously.

"I didn't really start playing till I was 25," he said. "I had played some growing up and in college at East Texas State."

"I guess I had some ability and played pretty good. I won the city championship here in 1952 and was second two other years."

Martin left education in 1955 to enter the insurance business, but returned four years later to Stanton Junior High.

"The math teacher there died during the school year," he said, "and they called me up and asked if I would finish out the year. So I spent a few months teaching and selling insurance full-time."

"I wound up staying and became principal after a few years."

Martin then served as coordinator special education programs for schools in Hereford, Vega, Adrian and Boys Ranch until he retired in 1978. He still does insurance work, specializing in crop and hail insurance.

"I never could sit still," Martin said of his active schedule. "I'm doing something all the time."

In 1983, at age 69, Martin began trying to shoot his age. It was a goal that proved to be elusive.

"I shot at 70 when I was 69, a 71 when I was 70 and a 73 when I was 73," he said.

"Of course I wasn't able to play last year because of my health, but after I got back in shape I started playing again and shot a 74 this year."

Martin still plays about three rounds a week at Pitman, and is now trying to get his score back down to par.

"I shot par or better all those times I was trying to shoot my age," he said. "Now I can shoot my age but I'm a couple of strokes over par."

"I guess age is catching up with me. I used to be able to hit my drive across the creek (on the 535-yard No. 7) without any trouble. Now everything has to be just right for me to clear it."

Martin has played countless rounds on the local layout and was one of the first to tee up when the then nine-hole course.

a lot of uncertainty, and they faced it," McElroy said. "They faced it with a lot of faith and a lot of strength."

"I only wish more Christians could face their problems with the faith they (the Martins) have shown."

Martin said he was determined to beat the disease and began exercising as soon as he got home after his third operation.

"I began walking to build myself back up. The first day I got too far from the house and was too tired to get back."

He added that he hoped other cancer victims would be inspired to keep fighting.

"If any good could come of this, if this would be any incentive to people who have cancer, I never gave up. I was determined to get well."

Earl Stagner, a long-time friend and golfing partner of Martin's, echoed that sentiment.

"I've known Don a long time," Stagner said. "We both moved here in 1946 and played many, many rounds of golf."

"He's fought that (cancer) pretty hard. He's a very, very competitive person. He plays golf that way, he plays bridge that way and he plays life that way. He's never given up at anything."

"There was a sand-green course up at Dalhart and one over at Canyon, but this one had grass."

Martin added that the addition of the back nine made Pitman more challenging.

"That back side is really demanding," he said. "It's a long ways around on it."

Martin recently gave an illustration of how much he enjoys the game he has played for two-thirds of his life after a quick nine holes.

Begging off to go help his wife get ready to host out-of-town visitors, he added, "But if you insist, I think we can get in a full 18."

Stieb oh so close to perfect game

By The Associated Press

The third time still wasn't the charm for Dave Stieb.

Toronto's 32-year-old right-hander, who lost two no-hit bids with two out in the ninth inning last September, returned to his heart-breaking habit Friday night. And this time, he blew a perfect game, as well.

"This one was nothing compared to those two," Stieb said after retiring the first 26 batters before giving up a double to Roberto Kelly and a single to Steve Sax in the Blue Jays' 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Last Sept. 24, Cleveland's Julio Franco got a bad-hop single. On Sept. 30, Baltimore's Jim Traber hit a soft single. Stieb consoled himself with becoming one of the few pitchers to throw consecutive one-hitters.

"I was pretty down after losing the first one, and for it to happen in my very next start, well, that was devastating," he said. "So I guess when you have this kind of thing happen as often as I have, you kind of get used to it and it doesn't hurt quite so much.

In other American League games, it was Texas 6, Baltimore 4; California 6, Milwaukee 2; Oakland 5, Seattle 3; Cleveland 4, Boston 3; Minnesota 5, Kansas City 1; and Chicago 5, Detroit 4.

Rangers 6, Orioles 4
Julio Franco hit a three-run homer and Charlie Hough posted his first victory since June 18 as Texas dealt Baltimore its 14th loss in 16 games.

Hough, just off the disabled list, went 7-2-3 innings and yielded four hits, including Craig Worthington's two-run homer. Jeff Russell pitched the final 1-3 innings for his 23rd save.

Angels 6, Brewers 2

Chili Davis hit two-run homers in the top of the first and third innings and Wally Joyner also homered as California rocked veteran Jerry Reuss in his debut with Milwaukee.

Chuck Finley, 13-7, allowed three hits in five innings and Willie Fraser finished for his first save.

Athletics 5, Mariners 3
Oakland's Dave Stewart became the AL's first 16-game winner.

Stewart allowed eight hits before he was relieved by Dennis Eckersley after a leadoff homer to Jeffrey Leonard in the bottom of the ninth.

Indians 4, Red Sox 3

Joey Belle and Brook Jacoby hit consecutive second-inning homers and Jacoby went 4-for-4.

Bud Black, 9-8, gave up three runs and five hits in 6 1-3 innings. Doug Jones pitched a perfect ninth for his 26th save, tops in the AL.

Twins 5, Royals 1
Gene Larkin's three-run homer and Allan Anderson's eight-hit pitching led Minnesota.

The Twins were up 2-1 going into the bottom of the fourth when Greg Gagne and Al Newman singled off Kansas City starter Luis Aquino, 6-5, with one out. After Randy Bush flied out, Larkin hit Aquino's first pitch for his third home run of the season.

White Sox 5, Tigers 4
Doubles by Carlton Fisk and Ozzie Guillen keyed a two-run rally in the bottom of the ninth.

Detroit had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the ninth on Mike Heath's leadoff home run off Shawn Hillegas. Ken Patterson, who faced only one batter, improved to 5-1.

Giants Will way by Astros again

By KEN RAPPOORT

AP Sports Writer

Where there's a Will there's a way for the San Francisco Giants - especially where the Houston Astros are concerned.

For the second time in eight days, Will Clark broke a seventh-inning tie with a home run, leading the Giants to a 4-2 victory over the Astros on Friday night in the opener of their key National League West series.

Last Friday, Clark also homered to break a 2-2 tie and lead the first-place Giants to a 3-2 victory over their closest pursuers. Coincidentally, Don Robinson was the winning pitcher in both games - Friday night pitching a three-hitter as the Giants took a two-game lead over the Astros.

"I'm not worried about how far it went - just where it went," said Clark, reflecting on his upper-deck blast at Candlestick Park. "As long as it got over that little green fence out there."

Clark seems to own Astro pitching. His first major-league homer was against Nolan Ryan at the Astrodome. He hit one last season off Houston's Dave Meads that landed in the upper deck at Candlestick Park and won a crucial game. He's hitting .424 this year against the Astros and .335 lifetime.

"For the four years I've been in the majors, the Astros have basically the same pitching staff," Clark said. "I know them a little better than, say, the Braves or the Reds, who are always bringing pitchers up and down. So at least I know a little bit about (Astros pitchers) when I come up to the plate."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was New York 11, Montreal 5; Chicago 3, Pittsburgh 2; Cincinnati 5, Atlanta 4; St. Louis 6, Philadelphia 3, and Los Angeles 6, San Diego 3.

Mets 11, Expos 5
Howard Johnson hit a three-run homer to highlight a four-run first. Johnson also had a single, triple, three runs scored and two stolen bases.

Ag recorder help to farmers

By DAWN BUTZ
Amarillo News-Globe
AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Mary Borchardt, a Texas Agricultural Statistics Service field enumerator, spends her days with farmers, gathering the information needed to estimate production figures for the Texas Panhandle.

"Everybody in every business benefits from current information about their industry," Ms. Borchardt said. "Good or bad, at least you're not in the dark about it."

Ms. Borchardt gathers agricultural information on livestock and crop production through telephone interviews, field sampling both before and following harvest, and personal interviews.

Producers are picked at random by computers to give an unbiased, representative sample of the area, she said, often making her job a challenge because once she finds the operator, he has to be willing to talk.

"A lot of farmers feel that their business is confidential information," she said. "It's not always easy to find someone who is cooperative and will help. But in order to do this job you have to find them."

This year Ms. Borchardt, after just 21 years in the business, was awarded a Certificate of Merit for her outstanding performance as a field enumerator. She was cited for her low rate of farmer refusals.

"It's really hard to say why I have so few farmers refuse to help me," she said. "A lot of it's just luck. Sometimes I get a list and everyone will talk to me. Other times, they've had bad experiences or think the reports the government puts out will hurt them."

Ms. Borchardt said some farmers think the reports negatively affect the prices of their commodities. And many don't use the information provided by the sampling and therefore can't see the importance in it.

"I'd think it would give them information on how many acres of a crop to plant," she said. "And if there's one crop already being planted heavily, they might want to go with an alternative crop that would still have a fairly good payback."

Texas Agricultural Statistics Service is a service agency, Ms. Borchardt said, providing information to anyone free of charge. Reports are published and can be sent directly to individuals if they request them.

In December, and January, Ms. Borchardt spends much of her time conducting telephone surveys.

"In December I contacted 76 farmers in nine days," she said. "That's hard to do. It's hard to find farmers, except at night. We're talking big telephone bills."

Personal interviews are conducted with farmers and ranchers whose property was randomly chosen by computer. Ms. Borchardt said in those cases she's given an aerial photograph and must find the current operator to question him about his operation.

When producers can't be reached through telephone interviews, they are often assigned to Ms. Borchardt for tracking down.

"When they can't find someone, they send us out," she said. "Those people are picked by computer so we have to find them to be able to get objective, unbiased data."

Ms. Borchardt also takes field samples to gather current information for estimates of statewide production. She currently takes samples on wheat and cotton crops, and beginning in 1990, will start doing milo fields.

To gather a sample, Ms. Borchardt marks off a small plot from the field, and begins counting plants monthly from the time they emerge until harvest. And heads are clipped and sent to a central research lab in Illinois for further data.

After harvest, a "gleaning sample" is taken to determine harvest loss. An area similar to the first plot is marked off and grains and heads are gathered from the ground and counted.

"I know a lot of people think, 'what good is it going to do to go out and pick up a bunch of little grains,'" she said. "But if there's that much in a little patch, it will probably be about the same through the whole field."

"They take that information and come up with harvest loss per acre... It's just an estimate."

Ms. Borchardt said she enjoys her work as a field enumerator, primarily because of the people she has the opportunity to meet.

"It's not the same thing over and over. It's almost like a different world every day."

Profits rise, but fewer gain

WASHINGTON (AP) - Average farm profits showed a modest increase last year despite the drought but fewer farms posted profits, according to a new study by the Department of Agriculture.

"Farmers depending on crop sales as a major source of farm income who incurred expenses for production and later were left with complete crop failure or severely reduced yields had lower profits or greater losses," the report said.

"Livestock producers within drought-plagued areas also were hurt, mostly by higher feed costs," according to the report issued this week. "At the opposite extreme, producers managing to harvest crops or having large inventories benefited from higher market prices."

According to the USDA study, the average net farm income increased by about $350, to $21,300, last year, marking a 1.5 percent increase over 1987.

"Average net farm income (profits) rose in 1988, despite the drought," the report said. "However, the share of farms with negative income increased slightly from that of 1987."

The USDA credited higher earnings from crop and livestock sales for raising gross farm income "despite lower direct government payments, more loan redemptions from the Commodity Credit Corp., and fewer net additions to crop and livestock inventories."

Average expenses also rose, but not enough to override the expansion in gross farm income.

Fewer farms were profitable in 1988 than 1987, the report said, noting that three out of four farms represented in the Farm Costs and Returns Survey were profitable last year.

"More than half of all farms (53 percent) had positive net cash farm income in 1988, which was identical to that of 1986 but down 4 percentage points from that of 1987," the report said.

Cash income in 1988 averaged $17,400, up $500 from 1987.

Net farm income measures the longer term earnings of a farm business and is the difference between gross farm income and total expenses. Over time, this income measure shows the farm's ability to survive as a viable business.

Net cash farm income measures the short-term cash earnings of a business and does not account for capital consumed in the production process. It shows whether the farm is covering all cash costs, such as interest, income taxes and principal payments.

The report said fewer farms had relatively high levels of debt compared with assets, with 48 percent showing no outstanding liabilities at the end of 1988. That figure was 39.5 percent in 1984.

The first ship to cross the North Pole beneath the ice was the Nautilus on August 3, 1958.

Farmers warned of illegal pesticides

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower warned Texas producers this is the "worst year" for the illegal sale of fraudulent pesticides.

"We've got people trying to pass off diesel oil under the name of a commonly used pesticide," Hightower said Wednesday.

"We've got people selling so-called defoliant to cotton farmers that will take more than just the leaves off the plants - they'll take the boll and all," he said.

The agriculture department usually receives complaints about bogus pesticides during planting season, but this year the scam is continuing, Hightower said. "This is the worst year we've seen."

In a typical situation reported to the agriculture department, a farmer will receive a telephone call from an out-of-state salesperson offering pesticides that are supposedly able to perform equally to other commonly used products, but at a reduced price.

Most of the telephone solicitations for bogus pesticides are being received by West Texas and High Plains farmers because that is where the cotton harvest will soon begin, Hightower said.

The counterfeit products often bear the names of biggest selling pesticides, he said.

"We urge farmers to buy from established dealers - from people they know who have been doing business in their area long enough to have a track record. And we urge farmers to be suspicious of anyone selling pesticides over the phone."

Hightower said calls to Texas farmers this year have come from Florida and Rhode Island. In past years, most calls have come from New York, he said.

He urged persons who have received telephone solicitations for pesticide sales or who have information about possibly illegal sales of farm chemicals to contact the nearest agriculture department district office.

Here's the answer

Q. - Your answer to the adjustment of the tension on a window shade was very good. But I would like you to know that when I was a little girl, more than 55 years ago, my mother took an old silverware fork. She removed the shade and rolled it up tight. She then inserted the flat prong on the top of the shade on the roller into the tines of the fork, then wound it up slowly about five times to tighten the spring. Too much winding makes it spring back.

Insert the shade back into the brackets and pull it down. I have used this method many times in the past and it always works.

A. - Many thanks. Our readers thank you, too.

Officers installed

Members of the American Legion and its Auxiliary Unit 192 met Tuesday evening in the Legion Hall for a salad dinner before retiring to their respective meeting rooms.

During the Auxiliary's business session, Pet Ott, past president, installed unit officers for 1989-90. Troyce Hanna will serve as president; Betty Jo Carlson, second vice president; Clara Trowbridge, secretary-treasurer; Alice Gilleland, historian-reporter; Ella Caudle, sergeant-at-arms; Cozy Mae Shelley, chaplain; and Ruth King and Lela Kemerer, members-at-large.

Betty Jo Carlson was presented a pin for 100 percent membership of the American Legion Auxiliary for last year.

It was announced that an executive board meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 15 at the Legion Hall. It will be a work day for the Auxiliary yearbook and all executive members are encouraged to attend.

Guests were presented to the Auxiliary. They included Mary Watts and Jo Ann Boldin and her daughter, Diana, who is the granddaughter of Betty Jo Carlson. Also, Sara and Savannah Wright, granddaughters of Beverly and Jimmie Jesko, were welcomed as guests.

Serving as hostess for the dinner was Ella Caudle who was assisted by Auxiliary members.

The next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 5 at the Legion Hall.

Members present were Virginia Adams, Ruth King, Troyce Hanna, Clara Trowbridge, Alice Gilleland, Pet Ott, Willie Vinton, Artie Frost, Beverly Jesko, Ella Caudle, Viola Wagner, Argen Draper, Margie Daniels, Irene Berger, Betty Jo Carlson, Mildred Lafever and Ethel Logan.

Teachers attend conference

Five local teachers were one of some 600 participants who attended the annual Leadership Conference of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association July 28-29 in Austin. Those from Hereford included Judy Bullard, Catherine Cortez, Sara Lawson, Wanda Nall and Nancy Sanchez.

TCTA State President Joan Brindley of Temple presided.

TCTA is a professional teachers' association with a membership exceeding 25,000 classroom teachers in over 75 percent of the school districts in Texas. Of the four teachers' organizations in the state, TCTA is the only one that is a non-union professional association and that does not accept administrator members so that it can more effectively represent teachers. TCTA headquarters are in the historic John Bremond House in Austin.

Monte Hasie, chairman of the State Board of Education, was the featured speaker at the conference. He addressed newly enacted legislation from the perspective of the SBOE, directing particular attention to the needs and concerns of teachers.

Teachers also attended informative programs on a variety of topics, featuring a comprehensive summary of the 71st Legislative Session that focused on the impact of new legislation on the teaching profession. Other topics included legal issues at the local level and effective working relationships with local school boards.

Birthday cards were signed and sent to those having birthdays that day: Grady Wilson of Sturgis, S.D., Mrs. Nannette Little Reeves of Shamrock, and Ann Kershen and Clay Angelo, both of Hereford.

Jewel Hargrave registered guests and June Rudd supervised the serving of the dinner with Weldon Stephen giving the blessing.

Achievers 4-H Club tours Textile Research Center

The Achievers 4-H Club of Deaf Smith County toured the Texas Tech Textile and Research Center Tuesday. Methods of weaving, dying, adding finishes and testing for strength and durability of cotton and wool were areas of emphasis of the tour which was conducted by Dick Crill, cotton specialist for the center.

Tours continued during the day with 4-H'ers visiting the Tech campus on an organized walking tour. Mary Reeves of the home economics faculty included career areas available to the youth with home economic labs being part of the tour.

The 4-H'ers also toured the Ranching and Heritage Center with a

I, J.F.K. by Robert Mayer heads the list of new books this week. This novel is written in first person as though John F. Kennedy is telling the true story of the Kennedy years. Among the vivid characters you will find are Lyndon Johnson, Martin Luther King Jr., J. Edgar Hoover, Sam Giancana, Judy Campbell, Richard Nixon, Lee Harvey Oswald, and many others. J.F.K. will reveal who killed Marilyn Monroe, Jimmy Hoffa and finally himself. This 20th century saga combines history, myth, wit and farce. The Kennedy reality will never seem the same, but will glow anew with laughter and tears once you have read I, J.F.K.

No Way Home by Patricia J. MacDonald is the story of a mother's search for justice after the brutal slaying of her teenage daughter. The killing of Michele Burdette stuns the people of the peaceful southern town. When a suspect is identified everyone believes it's over. Everyone but Lillie. Lillie wants to believe it but something isn't right. As Lillie begins to unearth the terrible secrets that surround her daughter's death there is no turning back. Driven by grief, Lillie exposes a tangle of lies that threaten both her sanity and safety and challenges everything she believes in.

Night Launch by Senator Jack Garn and Stephen Paul Cohen begins in the early 1990s, history is being made with the first joint East-West mission in space. The international shuttle crew is comprised of Conrad Williams, the brilliant Black American commander; Aelila Zakharov, the lovely Soviet woman cosmonaut; Joe "Cowboy" Wells, the Texas pilot; and Alex Vonberger, a payload specialist from East Germany. On day four of the space mission, an emergency situation develops and ground control loses contact. When communication is restored the crew has been taken hostage and an unknown terrorist is demanding the release of political prisoners. Will the end of this space mission spark the beginning of World War III or can a rescue mission be successful?

King of the Night: The Life of Johnny Carson by Lawrence Leamer tells the full story of the life of the least personally known celebrity in America. The story follows Carson from his boyhood and adolescence in the small towns of Iowa and Nebraska, through his college and service years, through his first jobs on radio and local television in Los Angeles to his rise to the top. Here Johnny plays practical jokes on his friends, makes fun of Frank Sinatra in public and flees a gun-toting pursuer during one of his nights of drunken revelry. You are also told the story behind Ed McMahon and Doc Severinsen compromises made to retain their places next to Johnny and of the abrupt firing of Al Stark, the producer of the "Tonight Show."

Bette Midler by Ace Collins is another biography available this week. By sheer abundance of talent, raw energy and an undying thirst for new professional experiences, Bette Midler has emerged as one of America's most dynamic performers at work today. Going beyond the mere show biz gossip you find a portrait of a person as complex as she is talented. Bette is one of the few women to have won an Emmy, A Tony and a Grammy. When describing her look, Bette came close when she called herself "The Last of the Trashy Ladies." Bette Midler is the compelling portrait of a woman who has fought for everything she has gained, but refused to stop at any obstacle along the way.

Bake Show yields winners

Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers participated in the 1989 Bake Show Friday, July 29, at the Hereford Community Center.

The Bake Show culminated training in the study of wheat products and their use in human foods. A Bake Show workshop tour was held July 13 by Pat Trotter at the Frito-Lay Plant. 4-H'ers learned about the corn receiving process, careers available in cereal science and milling production. 4-H'ers compared the wheat industry to the corn industry and gained an understanding of the part agriculture plays in our area.

4-H'ers prepared products using whole wheat as the base for yeast and quick breads.

Jill Dutton, 4-H council representative led the Bake Show awards program where pledges were led by Rusty Dutton and Brent Carlson. Breads program objectives were presented by Jami Parker, Lori Urbanczyk, Jay Wilson and Stephanie Wilson. Jennifer Hicks gave a synopsis of the activities. Michael Carlson and Cody Powell presented Patty Hill and Judy Barrett with judges' gifts from 4-H members. These 4-H'ers also expressed appreciation to Arrowhead Mills for providing whole wheat flour to the participants and to Ford and Westway Extension Clubs and 4-H Parent Leaders Association for the financial support of the activity.

Appreciation was expressed to Shirley Carlson for organizing and implementing the Bake Show and to the parents of the 4-H'ers for providing the luncheon and for their leadership and guidance in the project.

Lee Harder presented the luncheon prayer and Karon Harder invited guests to the luncheon and tasting bee of the baked products. Assisting with the day preparations were Cody Powell and Justin Betzen.

Presenting the Bake Show awards was Shirley Carlson. Senior food winner was Jennifer Hicks with Cody Powell serving as food alternate. Senior project winner was Jennifer Hicks with Jill Dutton serving as alternate. Cody Powell was presented a blue ribbon for his entry of Cinnamon Pecan Swirl Loaf.

Junior food winner was Lori Urbanczyk with Justin Betzen being awarded alternate food winner. Top project winner was Karon Harder with Lori Urbanczyk being awarded alternate.

Rookie of the Bake Show Award went to Brent Carlson. Other junior winners receiving blue ribbons were Rusty Dutton, Jami Parker, Jay Wilson, Stephanie Wilson and Michael Carlson.

Food entry winners and project winners will be competing at the District I Better Bake Show on Sept. 16.

Additional copies of the recipes featuring whole wheat flour in the bake show are available from the county extension office.

Things they never told you about a heat pump.

Fact #14 and #15

A heat pump will not cool your home as well as a high-efficiency air conditioner.

A heat pump will not warm your home as well as a natural gas furnace.

Kellee Lloyd featured artist for August

The feature artist for August at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center is Kellee Lloyd of Eaton, Colo.

Raised in northwestern South Dakota, Kellee Lloyd has always enjoyed nature, animals, the sport of rodeo and her western heritage. She attended South Dakota State University where she attained an associate degree in animal science. She is a self-taught artist who strives to recapture the excitement and beauty she finds in nature on canvas.

Lloyd uses oils and brushes to create lasting images on canvases and to express her feelings artistically. While her primary focus is western art, she is an extremely versatile artist.

The artist teaches art at the Greely Senior Citizens' Center and has taught several mini courses and workshops.

Living in Eaton, Colo., Lloyd is a wife and mother of three daughters. With the love and support of her family, friends and the inspiration of her grandmother, Lloyd has taken her natural God-given talent and combined it with her love and knowledge of her subject matter to create her paintings. She is married to a former Hereford resident, Billy Lloyd, who is the son of Robert and Elsie Lloyd of Route 4, Hereford, and grandson of Eunice West of 307 Sunset Drive.

The Hall of Fame is located at 515 Ave. B. and is open to the public from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A special reception for Lloyd will be held from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 8, at the Hall of Fame. Everyone is invited to see the work of this Colorado artist.

Lending a hand

Angeline Reinart helps Wade McNutt make an Indian headdress similar to the ones that will be made at the Kids Korral at Jubilee Junction which opens Saturday, Aug. 12, at Dameron Park following the annual Town 'n' Country parade. Other free activities to be featured for children at the booth will include making necklaces and puppets and digging for prizes. The children's crafts booth is sponsored by St. Anthony's School.

Jubilee to feature many artists

There will be 47 booths displaying a variety of artwork at this year's Jubilee of Arts, according to the 1989 chairman, Bobbie Wilson.

DEAR READERS: Remember the man who dreamed he was walking down Wilshire Boulevard naked and went into a fashionable restaurant for dinner? No one noticed his nudity. The hostess' only comment was that she couldn't seat him without a necktie. She offered him one.

The man said he was having trouble with his sweetheart and wondered if I could interpret his dream. I told him that interpreting dreams was out of my line, but I would ask my readers if they could help.

Well, I had no idea how many "experts" there were out there. I was zonked by more than 11,000 interpreters. Take a look over my shoulder.

From Toledo: In dream study, each word is significant. Wilshire means "the will to do." Clothes are code symbols for ideas. This man is open to new thoughts. The hostess is the archangel or divine teacher. She could be very helpful. He should return with his clothes on and get to know her better.--R.F.

From Los Angeles: The guy is clearly a closet exhibitionist who is living out his subconscious desires in the dream. I'd have called the police.--J.D.

Falls City, Ore.: The person who dreams he is naked in public is either leading an adulterous life or planning to. The man is spiritually naked and needs to return to Jesus.--W.T.

Carmel, Ind.: I taught classes in dream interpretation for 20 years, so your correspondent's dream is no mystery to me. Walking down Wilshire Boulevard nude means nothing more than walking down the road of life. The man's desire to have dinner means he needs nourishment for both his body and spirit. Accepting the tie offered by the hostess indicates that he is all too willing to conform to society's expectations.--Joe W.

New York: Wilshire Boulevard is a street where people from both sexes cruise around looking for excitement. The man who wrote needs to straighten himself out before he gets into serious trouble.--S.L.

Racine, Wis.: The tie is a phallic symbol. The hostess is the man's girlfriend. She is telling him that he doesn't have enough manhood for her. He needs a new girl.--D.P.

Des Moines: The key to the dream is the necktie. It is a symbol of a noose. When the hostess offers him one he accepts it without question. This means the man is stupid. You sure do hear from a lot of weirdos, Ann.--L.G.

Miami: When a person dreams that he (or she) is wearing rags or torn underwear it means the person is trying to go back to the Garden of Eden. That man wants a second chance to live a better life. The hostess in the dream is the serpent. He should beware of the serpent in his life. It's probably his girlfriend.--L.P.

Atlanta: People dream about things they want to do, but haven't the nerve to do them during waking hours. A man who wants to walk naked on Wilshire Boulevard should be reported to the authorities. He could be a sex maniac.--D.K.

Hagar places in pageant

Donda Lin Hagar received special recognition during the "Fairest of the Fair" pageant held July 11 in Baraboo, Wis.

She was named second runner-up in the pageant and was chosen as Miss Congeniality. Contestants were judged on poise, personality, personal appearance, speaking ability, and photogenic qualities.

Miss Hagar is the daughter of Paul and Linda Hagar of Baraboo. She is the granddaughter of Paul and Mary Kay Hagar and the great-granddaughter of Mrs. Paul (Peg) Hoff, all of Hereford.

Rebecca Capner of Baraboo won the contest and acted as fair hostess. First runner-up was Trina Ankenbrandt. Capner will compete in state pageant competition in January in Milwaukee, Wis.

Chicago: All dreams have clues. The clue in this man's dream is going into a restaurant nude. He is so hungry for spiritual nourishment that he is willing to risk ridicule and shame to get it. He sounds like a fallen-away Catholic.--A.T.

Colorado Springs: Going into the restaurant naked is the key. The man had no wallet, which means he could not pay for the meal. He is a freeloader or a con artist. I hope his girlfriend reads this.--S.L.P.

People Who Own 'Em Love 'Em.

Maybe that's why the number of people who own 'em is growing so fast.

A healthy smile can stay beautiful for a lifetime

By the year 2020, an estimated one-fourth of the nation—more than 50 million Americans—will be at least 65.

Advances in every area of health care—including dentistry—have enabled Americans to live longer and be healthier than ever before.

The dental profession seeks to combat the myths and false assumptions that have kept older Americans from seeking needed dental care.

Tooth loss is not inevitable. People lose their teeth to disease, injury and neglect. Teeth are meant to last a lifetime and, with proper oral hygiene and regular dental visits, they can.

One of the major oral health problems today is the range of periodontal diseases that afflict the gums and other structures that support the teeth.

Periodontal diseases are responsible for about 70 percent of all adult tooth loss. Affecting at least three out of four people over the age of 35, these diseases often progress slowly and painlessly over a long period of time. So seniors are definitely at risk.

Periodontal diseases are caused by plaque, a sticky, colorless film that forms constantly on the teeth.

The bacteria in plaque produce acids that can irritate the gums and, over a period of time, seriously damage the structures that support the teeth.

There are several warning signs that may indicate presence of periodontal diseases:

- Gums that bleed easily;
- Red, swollen or tender gums;
- Gums that have pulled away from the teeth;
- Pus exuding between the teeth and gums when the gums are pressed;
- Persistent bad breath or bad taste;
- Permanent teeth that are loose or separating;
- Changes in the way your teeth fit together when you bite;
- Changes in the fit of dentures or other dental appliances;

If you have any of these symptoms, see your dentist immediately. The sooner periodontal diseases are diagnosed, the better the chance for successful treatment.

Tooth decay affects people of all ages—including seniors. The nature of the problem, however, changes in later years.

Most children's cavities occur on the biting surfaces of the back teeth, where food and bacteria easily collect. But, for people over 50, two out of every three cavities occur around the edges of old fillings.

Root caries are another type of tooth decay common in older adults. As gums recede, tooth roots become exposed and susceptible to decay. About 70 percent of people over age 60 have root caries, which should be treated by a dentist.

Xerostomia, or dry mouth, a condition of reduced saliva production and severe oral dryness, often contributes to tooth decay in older adults.

Saliva lubricates the mouth, washes food away from the teeth and neutralizes acids that can cause decay.

Xerostomia is a side effect of more than 200 frequently prescribed drugs. If you think you may have xerostomia, consult your dentist, who may recommend use of artificial saliva and a fluoride mouthrinse.

What should seniors do to maintain oral health? It's not difficult. There are just a few steps to take:

- Brush thoroughly at least once a day, after meals whenever possible.
- Floss thoroughly once a day.
- Eat a balanced diet and limit snacks between meals, especially sticky foods that cling to the teeth.
- At least once a day, use a fluoride toothpaste approved by the American Dental Association.

Fluoride toothpaste is recommended for all ages, not just children. Adults should also use fluoride toothpaste routinely to help reduce both tooth root and tooth crown decay.

-Visit your dentist regularly.

Millions of Americans wear dentures, but their need for dental care does not stop. The mouth is a living, constantly changing organ, so dentures that fit well at first may need professional adjustment later.

Only a dentist can assure the proper fit of dentures and the continuing health of mouth tissues.

For a free brochure on periodontal disease, send brochure request with a stamped, self-addressed, business size envelope to: The American Dental Association, Division of Communications, Suite 2038, 211 East Chicago Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Pretty tasty stuff

Ice cream crepes are being tasted by Ryan Leasure, son of Ray and Marilyn Leasure, and Kylee Veazey, daughter of Mike and Nena Veazey. The culinary delicacy will be prepared by members of the Toujours Amis Study Club and will be served at the annual Jubilee of Arts. The event, held in conjunction with the Town 'n' Country Jubilee, is set from noon to 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 12, at the Community Center. Besides crepes, club members will also be selling donuts and sandwiches at the Jubilee of Arts. Proceeds from the club's fundraiser are used each year for various community services.

New principal named

Mrs. Neal (Ann) Lueb has been chosen principal of St. Anthony's School. She has taught first grade at the school for the past six years.

Lueb named principal at St. Anthony's School

Ann Lueb has been hired as principal of St. Anthony's School by their administrative board.

Mrs. Lueb attended St. Mary's Catholic School in Groom and graduated in 1965 from Groom High School, where she was ranked second in her class. In 1969, she earned a bachelor of science degree in elementary education with a minor in speech from West Texas State University.

She is a life member of Texas State Teacher's Association, an associate member of the Texas Classroom Teacher's Association, and an associate member of the National Catholic Educational Association.

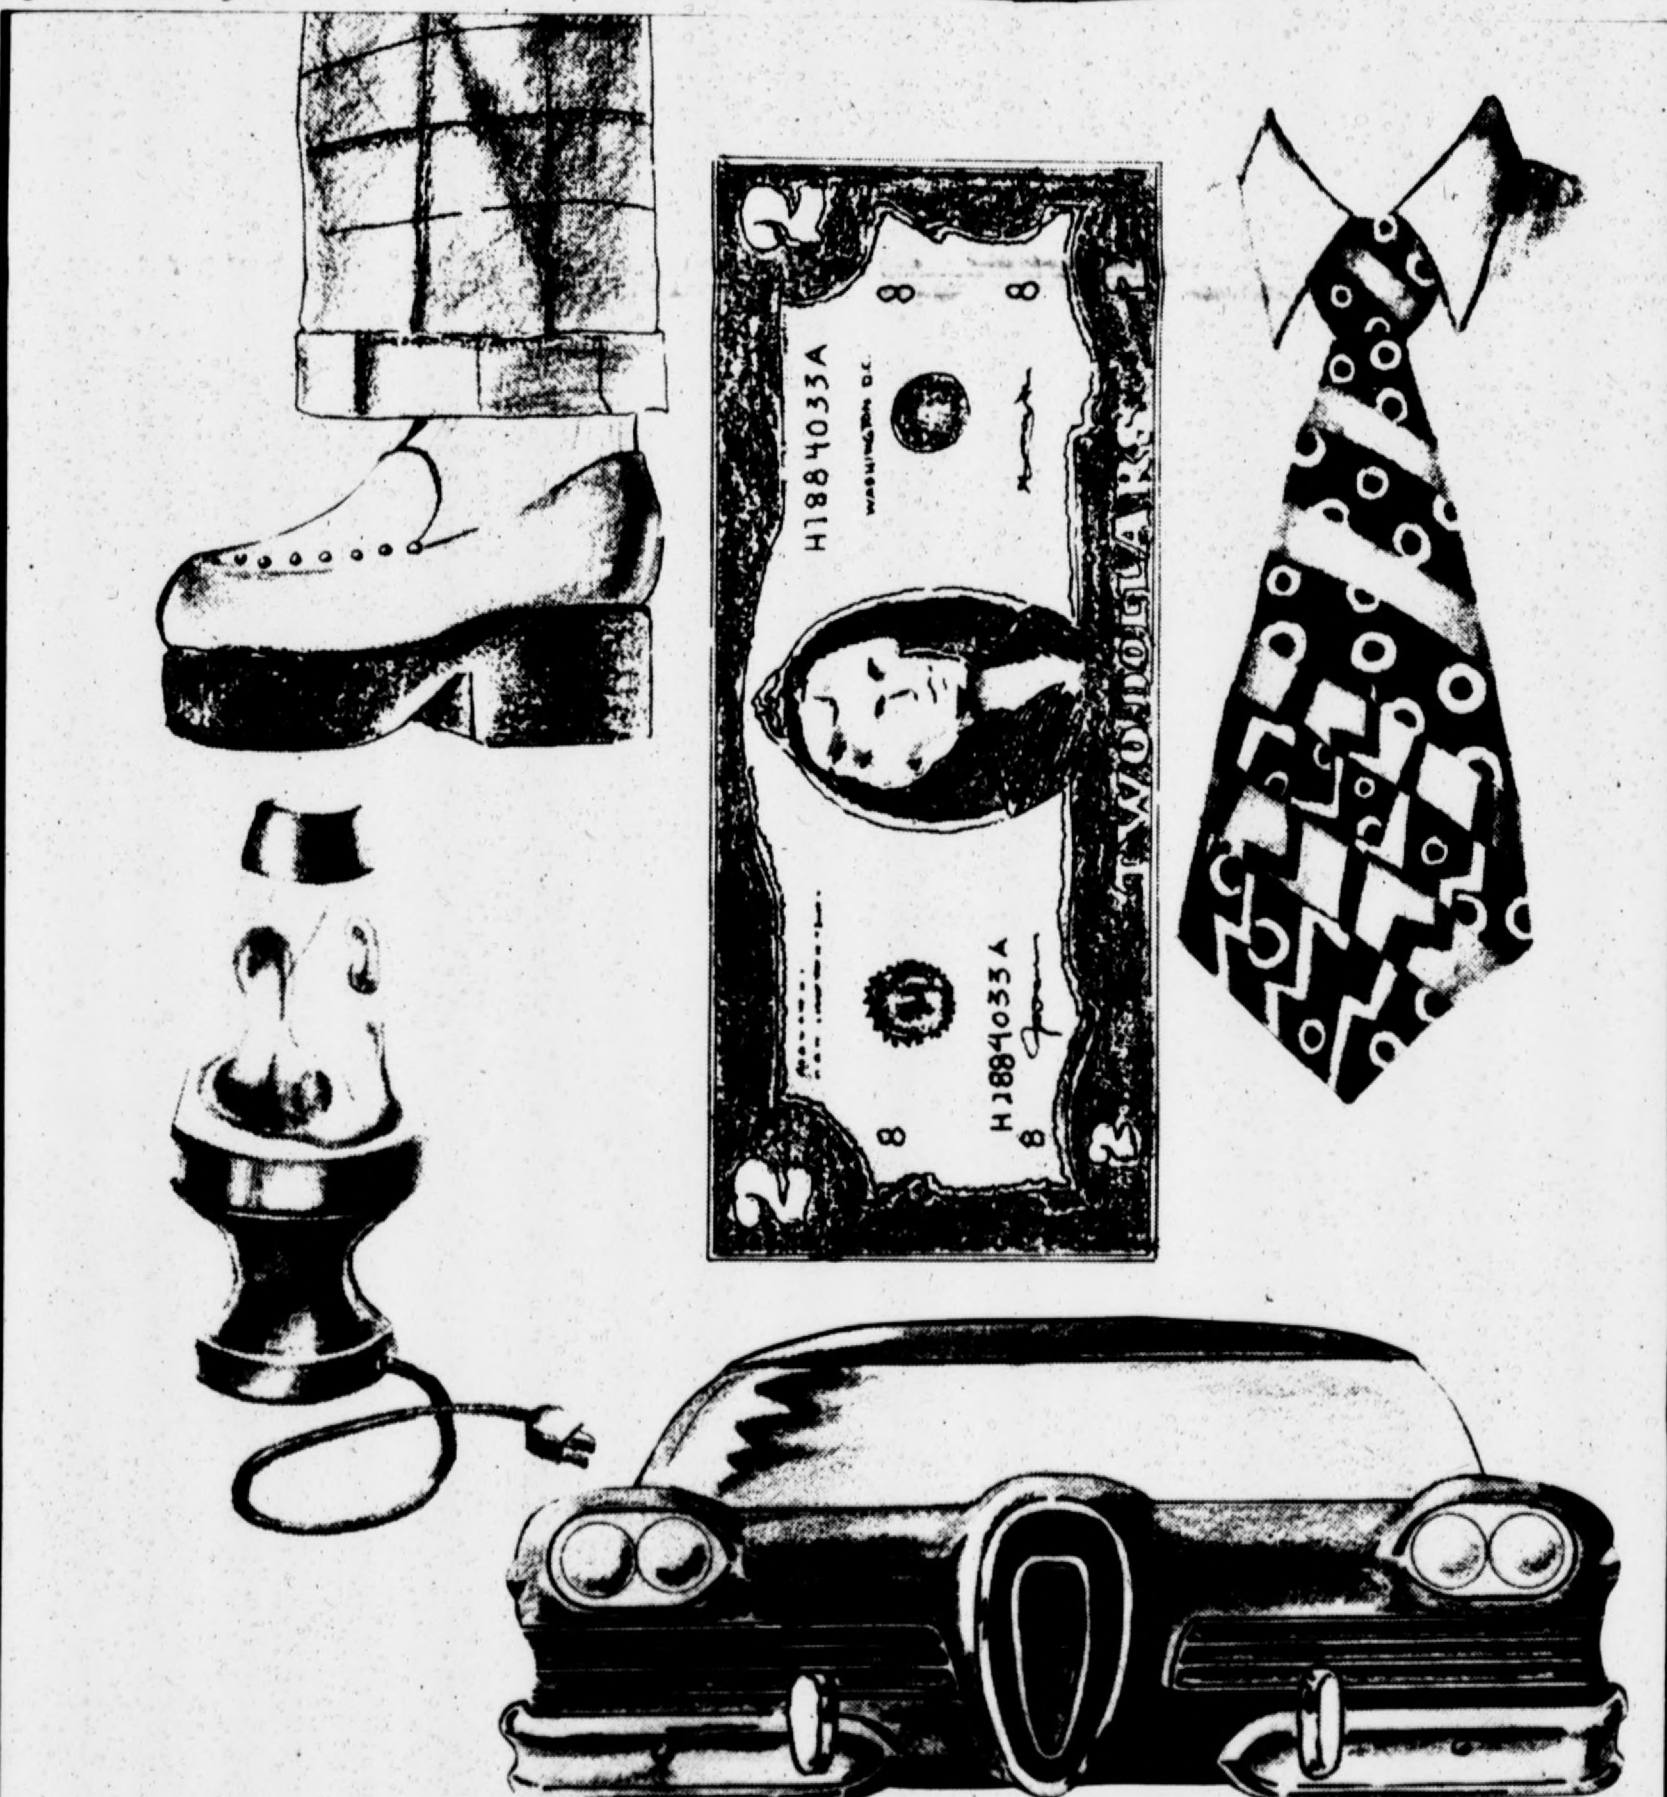

She is currently enrolled in graduate school at WTSU seeking mid-management certification in administration. From 1969-75 she taught for the Hereford Independent School District and for the past six years she has taught first grade at St. Anthony's.

The 40-year-old was nominated as Outstanding Catholic Educator by Today's Catholic Teacher. While at WTSU, she was a member of two honor societies.

Mrs. Lueb is the wife of Neal Lueb and the mother of four children who range in age from 9-17: Julie, Justin, Jeremy, and Jason. She has been active in the Boy Scouts for the past 10 years.

At St. Anthony's Church, Mrs. Lueb has served as a C.C.D. teacher, a Marriage Preparation teacher with her husband, a Women's Organization member and officer, a minister of music and a Eucharistic minister.

"I believe in the dignity and uniqueness of each child and that each child should be educated to his or her utmost potential," she said. "A Christian education also reaches the spiritual dimension of each child and I believe totally in the importance of God in the lives of the children."

They all seemed like good ideas at the time.

Sure, there's a lot of nostalgia in some of these items. But the solid basics always work.

It's true in home appliances, too. Your natural gas furnace may not be the latest fad, but it has steadily and dependably kept your family warm and comfortable all these years.

Fads and gadgets may come and go. But some ideas, like natural gas heating, just can't be improved on.

Go West, young woman, for great adventure

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

We were looking for driftwood. Instead, we found a sea lion... an injured, sad-eyed sea lion.

It was early in the morning. Most of the sane world still slept and a heavy mist rose over the seashore as the cool night air met the tentative rays of the morning sun. It was our first morning by the sea, and we couldn't stay away any longer. We rolled out of the tent and headed for the beach. How were we to know that our second day in California would bring us face the face with a sea mammal?

You may have noticed--though probably not--a four week absence of my byline from the Brand during June and July. I was away on a long-planned trek through the western and northern United States with an old college chum, Linda Marple from Wichita Falls.

We found the sea lion on a beach near Crescent City, Calif. Of course, flat-landers that we are, we called it a seal when we located a sheriff's car to report our find--a fact which appeared to create some amusement for the native residents. I've had a similar reaction when hearing a tourist to Texas call a prairie dog a ground squirrel. Guess I can't complain.

The sea lion was still lying on the beach--nursing bruises and scrapes where it had apparently been bashed on the rocks--when we finally had to leave. Rescue personnel from the Parks and Wildlife Department were on the way, or so they said. I'll always wonder about that sea lion.

Our find on the beach was just one adventure on a journey which is rapidly becoming known to my family and co-workers as the trip. We stood in awe, surrounded by the silent giants in Jedediah Smith Redwoods State Park in California; we watched mid-summer snow skiing on Mt. Hood in Oregon; and we viewed more waterfalls than I knew existed in the entire world along the Columbia River Valley.

Sad eyes

This injured sea lion was found on the beach near Crescent City, Calif. by Brand staff writer Kay Peck while she was there on vacation recently. No, the beast was not run over. It crawled onto some tire tracks in the sand after it had beached itself. Workers from the California Parks and Wildlife Dept. were summoned to aid the creature.

Most of all, we saw, hiked, tasted, smelled and generally experienced Glacier National Park in Montana. Our first day in the park a grizzly bear popped out of the woods and crossed the road to give us an exciting "howdy" at the very start of our visit.

Glacier is one of those points on the earth designed to keep men humble. It took highway workers decades to conquer the mountains in the building of Logan Pass, the only road to cross the park.

There was a moment or two when I questioned if I would succeed in conquering the steep, narrow road. It is not wise for one to glance over the edge when driving up a mountain where nature did not intend for an automobile to be. We survived, and, what's more, we saw mountain goats.

Other than a "drop dead" look from the nanny goat, the mother and kid seemed unperturbed at the gaggle of tourists who halted--many times on the narrow road--at the goats' appearance. More cameras suddenly appeared than could be found in a photography shop.

About the only time I feared for my life during the entire journey was at the summit of Logan Pass. The danger was not bears. It wasn't landslides. It wasn't even my own camp cooking.

The danger came from a group of juvenile--albeit large ones--males who chose to ignore the signs asking visitors to stay on the boardwalk and off the delicate tundra.

My traveling companion, a biology teacher, is ecology minded and did not hesitate to remind the youths of their infraction. After a few calls of, "Oh yeah!" and, "Who'll make me!" they seemed to gather for the attack.

In the end, my fear was for nothing. I grossly underestimated the power of a teacher's glare.

That confrontation was not the only memorable experience of the day. It was the Fourth of July, and we had a snowball fight. That is an experience that I don't ever expect to repeat in my life. There'll be other Independence Days and more snowball fights, but not on the same day.

Snow is present throughout the year in the higher elevations of the Livingston and Lewis Mountain Ranges in Glacier. This is a case of stating the obvious. Glaciers would not be present if there was a complete snow melt each summer. If there were no glaciers, Glacier would not be called Glacier.

It would be impossible to tell even a portion of my reaction to the wonders of Glacier in the space restrictions of a newspaper feature. That's not to mention the surviving beauty of Yellowstone National Park (yes, we went there, too) mixed in with the charred remains of last year's fires. I figure I collected at least four years worth of stories on my four week journey.

If you see me on the street, and there's a glazed look in my eye, don't worry. You'll know that I'm mentally pulling a brook trout from the clear waters of Swiftcurrent Lake or panting up the steep trail to Avalanche Basin.

As you may have guessed, I enjoyed my vacation. If you're jealous... tough!!!
