San Jose schedules 'Otonofest' Sunday

Delicious food and food family fun will be the order of the day at the first "Otonofest" to be held Sunday from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. at San Jose Catholic Church at 13th and Brevard in Hereford.

Otono is the Spanish word for autumn. Events began Saturday evening with a masquerade dance for the family.

Sunday's events will feature Mexican food, and other favorites like funnel cakes, candy apples, tamales, menudo, gorditas, Father Darryl Birkenfeld's German Sausage plate (made with the secret Nazareth recipe), hamburgers and other foods.

Game booths will include a spook house, sucker pull, glass toss, bobbing for apples, volleyball and a pumpkin carving booth.

Unique Otonofest events will include a greased-pig-catching contest and a tug-of-war competition. The Country Store and the Otonofest t-shirt stand will round out the booths at the festival. Local bands will be performing during the afternoon.

All Otonofest booths will use tickets which can be purchased at banks throughout the festival area. All proceeds from the festival will go to retiring debt at San Jose Church. The public is invited to join in the festivities.

Foster kids need help for holidays

Imagine Christmas without children. Makes for an empty holiday, doesn't it?

Imagine children without a Christmas. That's a tragedy.

Without the help and support of area residents, foster children in Deaf Smith, Palmer, Oldham and Castro counties would likely face just such a prospect.

The time is here for the Golden Spread Foster Parents Association to solicit donations to fund a Christmas celebration for local foster children. While state funds are supplied to assist with foster children's daily needs, there is no allocation for the added expense of Christmas.

Anyone interested in giving can make donations directly to a special account at Hereford State Bank or to any member of the association. If someone should want additional information, they can call Dee Hernandez at 364-8527 or Charlene Connally 364-3936. Donations can also be mailed to P.O. Box 2062, in care of Dee Hernandez.

"A lot of them (foster children), it's the only Christmas they have," said Charlene Connally, a member of the foster parents organization.

Although much of the money used to purchase Christmas gifts buys practical items such as clothing, the foster parents are well aware of a child's need to be a child.

"Children would like to have some toys, too, you know," Mrs. Connally said.

The foster parents organization hopes to receive donations sufficient to allocate $75 to $100 per child for about 20 foster children in the four-county area. The money will be also used to fund a Christmas party--including Santa--for all foster children in the area.

During the party, Santa presents each child with one gift. The children will also celebrate Christmas in each of their individual foster homes.

Christmas funds are not the only need expressed by representatives of the 25 members of the parents' group.

"There's always a need for more foster homes," Mrs. Connally said.

Anyone interested in becoming a foster parent or in providing support for existing foster homes is invited to attend any of the association's monthly meetings. The group meets at the Community Center on the third Tuesday of each month.

One does not need to be a foster parent in order to be affiliated with the group.

"You can be an associate member and not actually keep kids," said Terry Connally, the association's president.

Individuals are able to provide support for the foster care program without becoming a foster parent.

"We could sure use some weekend babysitters," one woman said.

Homecoming events slated

Booths are to be set up today for the annual Homecoming Carnival as a week of whirlwind activities begins at Hereford High School.

Work has already started for Friday's parade, and everything will climax when the Herd hosts Randall at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Stadium.

The carnival will be held Monday from 6-9 p.m. at the Bull Barn in Hereford. The carnival will feature an assortment of games and fun, and is open to the public.

Monday will also be Kiddie/Nerd Day at HHS.

Parade entries are due by 4 p.m. on Tuesday, which is 1960's day. Wednesday will be dress up day, and Thursday will be "Mourn Randall" day.

Friday will be Maroon and White day, with the homecoming queen to be crowned at the pep rally, the homecoming parade, and that night's football game against Randall at Whiteface Field.

The freshman class will host an enchilada supper from 5-7 p.m. on Friday at the HHS cafeteria. Tickets will be available from class members or at the door for $4 for adults and $3 for children.

WENDY CONNALLY was crowned Homecoming Queen in 1988, and her successor will be crowned at the pep rally Friday at HHS. Miss Connally, now a student at Southwest Texas State University, is also the reigning Miss Hereford.

Special arrangements are being made for ticket for Friday's game. High school students may purchase up to two tickets, and junior high students will be limited to one ticket. The tickets should be purchased as early in the week as possible. All remaining tickets will be sold at the gate on Friday.

Holly: sweet success for all

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

An estimated $30 million is expected as gross income to area farmers for this year's sugar beet crop, according to Deaf Smith county farmer Bill Cleavinger, president of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association and the American Sugarbeet Growers Association.

That's just to the growers. A figure roughly equal to that $30 million is expected as gross income for Holly Sugar in Hereford, a subsidiary of Imperial Holly Corporation.

A $60 million shot in the arm for the local economy is not something to be ignored.

While many residents are aware of those benefits, it may be a mystery as to what happens to a sugar beet from the time it's hauled from field to factory until they eventually pour the finished product into a cup of coffee, or cook a cake or batch of brownies.

Everyone in Hereford has seen a sugar beet at some time or another. It may be on top of a loaded truck or as a squashed mass of pulp lying in the middle of a highway. A "road killed" sugar beet is not a pretty sight.

To live in Hereford and not notice sugar beets is a virtual impossibility.

Even those visually impaired are treated to the smell of cooking beets as the Imperial Holly plant west of town processes beets to sugar.

When a beet crop is ready to harvest, it first has the green growth and the upper portion (crown) of the beet itself removed by a topper while it is still in the field.

A beet digger follows, removing the root from the ground and loading it onto trucks.

The trucks then take the beets either to the yard at the Holly plant or to one of eight receiving stations operated by Holly throughout the area.

A sample is taken from each truck load of beets and it is tested for sugar content.

"We get paid on what they can extract sugar from," Cleavinger said.

The higher the sugar content, the higher the price a farmer is paid for his beets.

(See HOLLY, Page 3A)

Ready, set, dump

Workers monitor progress at one of a number of "pilers" which transfer sugar beets from harvest trucks to mountains of beets stored in the yard at the Holly Sugar plant west of Hereford.

Victim wants tighter leash law

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

One of the at least 20 persons bitten by a dog in Hereford this year feels it's time that dog owners take more responsibility in caring for their pets.

The person asked to remain unidentified because of a fear of retaliation or harassing telephone calls.

"If there is a dog at your residence, once a day you feed and water it, you call it by name, you have control over it, then you own a dog. You are responsible for that dog just as parents are responsible for their children," the bite victim said.

"You need to get their rabies shots, and keep them in a fenced yard or tied up. This doesn't mean just until the dog catcher or police come. At night, don't turn them loose to roam.

"You are identified with that dog by the neighbors, the utility companies, the children walking to school, the paper carriers and people taking their evening walks. We say the dog lives at such-and-such address. It's your dog to run or need to be responsible for it."

This person has compiled a list of the reported dog bites in Hereford since Jan. 1. They are scattered throughout the city. In most cases, the persons responsible for the dog were not following the requirements of the leash law, which has been in effect since 1973.

The leash law says it is unlawful for the owner of any dog to run or be at large unless the dog is "at all times restrained by rope, chain, leash or other means of control sufficient to reasonably control the act and conduct" of the dog.

The ordinance allows the animal control officer to take custody of dogs running at large, whether or not they have rabies or identification tags. Most dogs are kept at least 72 hours, but they may be kept 10 days or more for rabies quarantine.

If the owner or responsible person can't be found, then the city

"If once a day you feed it and water it, you call it by name, you have control over it, then you own a dog." The bite victim feels these folks are just as responsible for the pet's behavior as they are for the behavior of their children.

bears the expense for care of the animal while it is impounded.

The annual rabies shot costs $11, according to a local veterinarian, which includes costs for tags and certificate. The only way for the city to recover the expenses is from collection of an impoundment fee and a part of the money paid for the annual rabies shot.

The cost for the victim of a dog bite can be even greater.

A trip to the emergency room at Deaf Smith General hospital for one victim cost $41.50 for use of the facility, the cost for a tetanus shot, and an evaluation of the wound by a doctor. In this victim's case, there was relief after the dog had been through the 10-day waiting period for rabies evaluation. The dog was not rabid. If the dog had been rabid, there would have been a series of costly, painful shots.

This victim feels that it may be time for an even stiffer dog law.

"Some cities have a law against dogs being allowed to have puppies except for commercial breeding purposes. We could look at this," the victim said. "A female dog can have a litter of 8-10 puppies every six months, adding to a town's overpopulation.

"When the puppies are soft and furry every child wants one. As soon as they are older, these dogs are sometimes left to take care of themselves, meaning hit by a car, starved, mistreated. The dog catcher soon has more to do."

Ambivalent attitudes towards the bicycle makes future questionable, but most remember first bike

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Here they come, thousands at a time steering quietly down the streets of Amsterdam and Beijing, or a file of humped silhouettes etched against the mountain-ocean sunset of California.

Here they come, bicycles and their riders, caught by the dawn's early light or the headlight's glare, pumping legs, determined faces, wheeling to work, wheeling home, or just determined to stay fit.

Bicycles. There are 800 million in all, 88 million in the United States, 300 million in China, a very personal, pollution-free mode of transportation.

The question is: Are they relics of another century, or are they the wave of the future?

The competition is the automobile, 400 million in the world. No one in his right mind would say it's an even fight.

But the Worldwatch Institute in Washington, a think tank, recently published Worldwatch Paper 90 by Marcia D. Lowe with the title "The Bicycle. Vehicle For A Small Planet."

The message is that bicycles consume less energy per passenger mile than any other form of transportation, including walking. A cyclist can cover 3 1/2 miles on the calories in an ear of corn, 10 miles on the 350 calories in a bowl of rice. The average American car covers 10 miles on about half a gallon of gasoline, or 18,600 calories.

Bicyclists do not produce smog or acid rain. They do not endanger the ozone layer and few cyclists are pulled over for DWI. They do produce sweat, however.

Marcia Lowe writes that 33 states included bicycle promotion measures in their plans to comply with the Clean Air Act of 1970. Los Angeles would make major employers reduce the ratio of commuting cars to employees. Other Western cities would make employers provide bicycle parking and shower facilities.

BASKET SELLER PEDALS THROUGH BEIJING
...Bicycles are primary mode of transportation

All of this comes 90 years after the bicycle craze crested in America. In 1899, with automobiles not yet on the road, and public transportation in the form of trolleys and electric trains just an infant enterprise, the United States was selling over a million bicycles a year. In a nation of barely 76 million, those were impressive figures.

So ubiquitous were those "safety" bikes that they altered American fashions. Knickerbockers kept pants legs out of the way of chain drives, long Norfolk jackets caught the mud, and women began to wear shorter skirts and, heaven forbid, bloomers, so they could ride their bikes. Whole families would go out for weekend bicycle outings.

Fred Zahradnik of the magazine Bicycling points out that the bicycle was a vehicle for technology as well as people. The Wright Brothers were bicycle makers, as were hundreds of other tinkerers of the late 1800s. Orville and Wilbur experimented with lightweight tubing that eventually made their aircraft design possible. Glen Curtis worked on bicycles and applied motors to them before he concentrated on aircraft engine design.

If one looks into the past, he may find some hints to the bicycle's future.

In its heyday, the bike was personalized, individual transportation. "It didn't have the upkeep of a horse or the expense of a carriage," Zahradnik says. "If the roads got bad, you could pick it up and carry it. It was one of the fastest, easiest, simplest forms of transportation."

And it built roads. It was the complaints of bicyclists in Washington and state capitals that led to the first modern surge of road-building. It paved the way for the automobile.

But, oddly, it wasn't the car that led to the fall of the bicycle. It was public transportation, steam-powered locomotives and the electric trolley, which were felled in turn by the car.

In the late 1800s, a good bike cost about $100, which was expensive in days when the average income was $8 a week. Today some are as cheap as $100 or as expensive as $3,000. The United States makes about 5 million bikes a year and imports another 5 million.

Americans, however, remain in love with their cars.

In China, where one person in every 74,000 owns an automobile, one in four owns a bike. In one study in the northern industrial city of Tianjin, monitors counted 50,000 bicycles passing one intersection in an hour.

Bicycle ownership does not mean bicycle use. Forty-one million American bikes are owned by children.

In Britain, one out of every four persons owns a bike, yet only one out of every 33 transport trips are made by bike.

Writes Worldwatch Institute's Lowe:

"The United States has seven times as many bicycles per person as India, but because one out of every two Americans owns an automobile - compared with one out of 500 Indians - bicycles play a much more modest role in the U.S. transportation system."

The Chinese phenomenon began when The Last Emperor, Pu Yi, began pedaling around the Forbidden City in the early 1900s. Today, China's annual bike sales exceed 40 million.

"The rest of the developing world lags far behind in bicycle transportation," says the Worldwatch report. "In much of Africa and even more widely in Latin America, the prestige and power of auto ownership has made governments ignore pedal power and led citizens to scorn the bicycle as a vehicle for the poor."

Oddly, the cost of fuel for Latin American and African cars contributes to their national debt and their trade deficits. There are exceptions. In Bogota, the capital of Colombia, the city's largest bakery replaced most of its trucks with 900 delivery trikes to supply 60,000 neighborhood shops.

In Europe, the Netherlands and Denmark have taken steps to make their roads more friendly for cyclists with the result that bicycles are used for 20 percent to 30 percent of all urban trips and up to half in some towns.

In the Netherlands, a recent system of taxes increased the cost of buying and driving a car by half. An electronic system will monitor speedometers and excessive drivers will be taxed accordingly. At the same time, public transit is being given an extra $5.7 billion a year.

In Denmark, officials claim that gasoline prices are the highest in Europe, thanks to aggressive taxing.

And, says the Worldwatch report, "the Danish Ministry of Transport describes the 186 percent sales tax on new cars - compared with 47 percent in the Netherlands and 5 percent in the United States - as paying for three cars and getting only one."

A British study showed that if only 10 percent of car trips of less than 10 miles were made by bicycle it would cut the country's fuel consumption by 14 million barrels of oil a year, 2 percent of annual consumption.

The ironies abound. Third World governments concentrate on building roads for cars in their rural areas despite the fact that their rural citizens do not have cars or trucks. Worldwatch quotes transportation expert Wilfred Owen as saying, "Many miles of roads in poor countries prove more useful for drying beans and peppers than for moving traffic."

And even though bicycle rickshaws are a transportation mainstay in many Asian countries, and a means of raising the income and status of poor people, some local governments say they are unsafe or inhumane. A more likely motive, says Worldwatch, is that the quaint rickshaws make cities look poor or backward.

So it comes to pass that in Dhaka in Bangladesh, the government threatened to phase out rickshaws, even though they employ 140,000 people and account for more than half of the city's passenger miles.

And in Jakarta, the capital of Indonesia, some 100,000 rickshaws have been confiscated in the past five years and dumped into the sea.

Japan, which makes cars for most of the world, leans heavily on bicycles and commuter railroads. When railway terminals began to suffer from bicycle pollution, the government set aside bike parking lots of which there are now 8,600 with a capacity of 2.4 million bikes. In urban downtowns where land prices are over $7,000 a square foot, they have built bike parking towers.

In California, the university towns of Davis and Palo Alto vie for cycling honors. Davis boasts that a quarter of all trips made by its 44,000 citizens are made by bike. Bike trailers are a common sight for

Local Roundup

Coat drive Sunday, Monday

A coat drive is being sponsored today at Monday by the Hereford Keywanettes.

Anyone who would like to contribute coats may bring them to the Bull Barn from 2-5 p.m. Sunday or 6-9 p.m. Monday. The coats will be given to citizens needing winter clothing.

TEAMS test scheduled

Junior students at Hereford High School will be taking the Texas Assessment of Minimal Skills Test (TEAMS) tests Wednesday and Thursday at the HHS cafeteria.

The tests will be given from 9-11 a.m. each day. Students need to bring two, No. 2 pencils to take the tests. Parents are urged to make a special effort to have their student present and prepared to do their best on the test.

Students must pass both parts of the test to graduate from high school.

Police arrest two

Two persons were arrested Friday by Hereford police, including a man, 21, for failure to dim headlights and on outstanding warrants; and a man, 24, for giving false identification to peace officers.

Police are investigating three assaults, including sexual assault of a child in the 400 block of Bradley; an incest report; and a domestic violence assault in the 600 block of Ave. J.

Other reports include robbery of a convenience store at Lake at U.S. Highway 385; theft of beer from two stores; juveniles fighting in the 100 block of Ave. H; unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in the 900 block of McKinley; $300 damage to vehicle windows in the 1200 block of East First; theft of $261.46 worth of services in the 500 block of East First; and theft of items from a house in the 600 block of Ave. F.

Police issued eight citations and investigated a minor accident. Hereford volunteer firemen responded to a dumpster fire and a grass fire.

Halloween carnival set

Entries for booths are being taken through Friday for the annual Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers Halloween Carnival to be held Oct. 31 from 5-8 p.m. at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

Organizations that would like to have booths at the carnival should call 364-3739 or the CLUE LINE at 364-2583. Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford will have the concession stand and no other food or drinks may be sold at the carnival.

Free drawings for prizes will be held throughout the evening, and prizes will also be given for most original costumes.

Tickets will be sold at the door for 25 cents each and only these tickets may be used at the booths. Organizations will receive 80 percent of the proceeds, with other proceeds benefiting Crimestoppers.

County meets Monday

Deaf Smith County commissioners will meet Monday at 9 a.m. at the courthouse in Hereford.

Items on the agenda include discussion of a change in the personnel policy; purchase of equipment for the maintenance department; permission to cross a county road in Precinct 3 with an irrigation line; discussion of a resolution; and appointment of an alternate judge in Precinct 2.

Absentee voting underway

Absentee voting is underway at the county clerk's office in the courthouse in Hereford for the Nov. 7 general election.

A variety of constitutional amendments are on the ballot. All persons wishing to vote absentee may do so; there is no longer a need for a "reason" to cast an absentee ballot.

Nieman to head '90 spelling bee

AMARILLO--Public, private and parochial students are invited to participate in the Regional National Spelling Bee co-sponsored by the Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas State University.

The date of the 1990 Regional Bee will be April 7 and the site is the campus of WTSU in Canyon.

Each director in the four-state area, including the Panhandle of Texas, parts of Kansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, will coordinate his county contest.

Serving as director for Deaf Smith County will be O.G. Nieman, publisher of The Hereford Brand.

The age limit is 16 and a participant must not be in a grade higher than the eighth by the end of the current school year.

There are two levels of competition: The Junior Bee is for students in the fifth and sixth grades; the Senior Bee is for students in the eighth and lower grades. Only senior winners will compete in regional.

The district sponsors will entertain each county Junior Champion and each county Senior Champion at a spellers' luncheon prior to the regional competition on April 7. Special bee medallions will be given each county finalist.

JSEC seminar set for Friday

Employers will have an opportunity to learn more about workers' compensation and unemployment insurance laws when the Hereford Job Service Employers Committee (JSEC) sponsors a seminar here Oct. 26.

Lewis McDaniel, chairman of the JSEC committee, said the seminar, being held in cooperation with the Texas Employment Commission, will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Community Center on Oct. 26. Registration fee will be $5 a person.

Featured speakers for the seminar will be Randall Mardis, TEC appeals referee; and Claudia Edwards, area manager of the Texas Industrial Accident Board.

Mardis will explain how to prepare for an appeals hearing when there is a question on unemployment benefits, and how to use better record keeping and better management techniques to effect tax savings.

Edwards will explain how to work within the framework of the workers' comp law as it is now written. She will explain what happens when a workmen's comp claim is filed and outline the responsibilities of employers.

On their way!!

Sugar beets are seen beginning the complicated journey from the field to the sugar bowl. Farmers throughout the area are currently in the midst of the 1989 sugar beet harvest.

HOLLY

There is also a provision to subtract a certain amount of the weight of a load according to how much dirt and debris is found in the sample.

"That's the main point of dissension in our negotiations," Cleavinger said teasingly.

Despite potential discussions about sugar content, Cleavinger states that an excellent relationship currently exists between growers and Holly.

Dennis Printz, agricultural manager for Holly, described the atmosphere between farmers and processors as being a "good relationship."

"We're proud of that and want to keep it that way," Printz said.

After the beets are received at the processing plant, they are washed and sliced into cossetts or "noodles."

From there they go through a diffusion process which dissolves the sugar from the pulpy material of the beet and into a water solution.

Following the removal of the sugar, the pulp is removed, dried and formed into a by-product: cattle feed.

This feed is very popular with the dairy industry because of the increase in milk fat which feeding the pulp can encourage.

Printz estimates that 98 percent of the pulp feed is utilized by dairies.

While the pulp goes one direction, the sugar making process continues.

The raw beet juice, containing the dissolved sugar, begins a purification process which includes carbonation, filtration and evaporation.

The great clouds of steam which can be seen rising above the Holly plant are a part of this process of evaporating the moisture from the sugar solution.

At one stage, the crystalized sugar is spun in a centrifuge, creating another byproduct, molasses.

This is also used as a cattle feed.

"It (the molasses) tastes terrible. It's definitely not for human consumption," Printz said.

The finished sugar is stored in massive silos at the plant and packaged throughout the year as the market demands.

For each of the different sizes of packages sold by Holly (two pound bags to 100 pound bags) a special, mechanized manufacturing line is used.

While human hands are needed to place stacks of sacks into the feeders and human eyes are needed to watch for imperfections, most of the packaging is performed by machine.

Finally, the finished product comes to rest in a warehouse that is a sugar lover's dream.

Row after row of bags of sugar are stacked in piles nearly ceiling high.

Capable and confident drivers scurry about the warehouse in skid loaders which are constantly replenishing stacks from production or out-loading pallets of sugar for shipment.

ACTIVISM ON WANE

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Few doctors are following in the footsteps of physicians who crusaded for social causes in the early 20th century, according to a University of Rochester historian and expert in the history of medicine.

"One reason why physicians are no longer as public-spirited as they once were is that society has become less political," says Theodore Brown. "As political energy has declined, so too has social activism by doctors."

Americans also cling to the belief that science and technology can solve all our problems, he adds. "We have lost much of our former will to work directly for social and political ends."

YOUR EYES

PROTECTING YOUR EYES

About 35,000 eye injuries occur annually in the United States while people are at play, either through accidents or overexposure to sun.

Baseball is the most "eye dangerous" sport for children between the ages of 5 and 14. A 12-year old has the power to pitch a ball as fast as 70 miles per hour. Basketball causes the most eye injuries in older teens and young adults. With adults, many serious eye injuries occur playing racquetball and squash. The small, hard ball used in these games can travel twice as fast as a baseball.

After a day of skiing, sailing or mountain climbing, overexposure to sunlight has been known to cause temporary loss of vision; that's what is known as snow blindness.

After Kareem Abdul-Jabbar suffered an injury some time ago, he started using goggles made of polycarbonate, a plastic that is highly impact-resistant. He has been a role model for many youngsters. For outdoor sports, polycarbonate lenses can be especially coated to filter out ultraviolet rays.

Red Ribbon Week

This is National Red Ribbon Week, and The Brand is proud to join newspapers across the country by displaying our own red banner on the front page of Section B to show our support for Drug-Free Youth.

This is the fourth year for the national program. It began in 1985 when Federal Agent Enrique Camarena was murdered by drug traffickers. Since then, the National Federation of Parents has led an effort to establish local and state programs to fight the horrible scourge on our society.

Drugs are undercutting the very fiber of our future—our youth. As young people drop out of school, they also drop out of the workforce of good marriages, of churches, of civic clubs, and on and on. In other words, we all lose when they lose.

A familiar advertising slogan is "You can pay me now, or pay me later." When we don't invest time, efforts and funds into combatting drugs now, we all will pay for it later when those youth are in prisons, on drug-reduction programs, and are murdering, raping and stealing from the rest of us.

If there ever was a time when we all need to work together to solve one single problem, it is now. If there ever was a place which needs the attention of every single citizen to pool their collective energies and resources, it is here.

So what can YOU do about it? Call Lupe Chavez at the sheriff's office, 364-2311, and volunteer to help. There are dozens of ways each individual can become involved. Don't sit on the sidelines and watch our youth literally die and decay. We're trying to do something about this problem, and we need your help. To paraphrase another familiar slogan: "A youth is a terrible thing to waste."

I parked in Putt Powell's parking spot last Saturday.

I had to attend a Panhandle Press Association board meeting last Saturday. The PPA is one of those groups we have so that we can win more plaques to put on the wall. Some people kid us in the newspaper business because we have so many groups designed to give more plaques to more of us. I think that if more people gave away more plaques there would be more happy workers.

Anyway, the meeting was held at the Amarillo Globe-News offices. I had to park in one private lot or the other. I almost turned and parked across the street when I saw the sign. Putt Powell. I had to park there.

I feel honored to have parked in a spot belonging to a man who has been writing for the Globe-News since back when my grandmother was a teenager. I ran into one of Putt's co-workers while I was getting ready to leave. I told him of my dastardly deed. We tried to find a camera but couldn't.

I am told that Putt didn't take kindly to a similar occurrence several years ago. A young Turk at the Globe-News had parked in Putt's place. Putt found out who the vehicle belonged to and confronted the young writer.

He asked him if he was kin to the Whittenburgs, who owned the paper at the time.

No, the man wasn't kin to the Whittenburgs.

Putt instructed the young man that if he wasn't kin to the Whittenburgs he could extract his car from Putt's spot.

I'm glad he didn't catch me.

San Francisco is recovering from Tuesday's earthquake. Our sympathies go out to those who lost loved ones, and to those who must now literally pick up the pieces and start over.

When the quake hit Los Angeles back in 1971, it created quite a commotion among certain folks known by me for all of my life who were returning from my great-grandfather's funeral in Oregon.

My Uncle Jack thought the best plan of attack on the way back would be to go down the coast to LA, then go east to Phoenix and points beyond.

Do you know what they have on each side and in the middle of those freeways in the San Bernardino area?

CAUTION: HIGH PRESSURE NATURAL GAS LINE. That's what every sign in sight said when the earth started playing tilt-a-whirl with the interstate. There was no around-and-around, but there was up-and-down-and-up-and-down for what seemed like hours. The car would go down, and the signs saying CAUTION: HIGH PRESSURE NATURAL GAS LINE would go up. Then everything would reverse itself.

My Uncle Jack shot a u-turn right in the middle of everything, cut across where one of those HIGH PRESSURE NATURAL GAS LINES used to be, and went back to LA. He couldn't go further east. You might have seen the picture of the pickup flattened by the overpass. It was right in front of the car.

An earthquake is a scary thing. While I was a kid in the Casa Grande Valley in Arizona, we never had a big earthquake, but we had several shocks that would knock down all the mementos and pictures off the walls.

It's something you never want to go through, unless you pay $15 for privilege at some amusement park.

The United Way campaign has much for which to be thankful. Many new first-time pledges have been recorded and quite a number of contributors have increased their pledges, both from company and individual gifts.

We sincerely thank those who have contributed, and the many more who will be joining us in this most worthwhile campaign to help fund 12 agencies in our United Way. YOU can make a difference in the work of these agencies, which are led locally by Betty Henson, Alva Lee Peeler, Mike Moon, Lola Faye Veazey, Margie Daniels, Nita Lee, Weldon Knabe and Shelly Moss. Other directors, who have local representatives, are Jean Wood, Betty Brown, Richard Balke and Beau Sill.

After the allocations from United Way are made, these directors will determine what work and programs can be funded for 1990. Remember that drugs and alcohol, teenage pregnancy, school dropouts and mental stress have

THE END OF THE STORY

Paul Harvey has a radio show called "The Rest Of The Story." I am concerned about the end of the story.

I have had a struggle with the media. On the one hand I have thought they needed some kind of restraints, while on the other hand I have not wanted to hinder the freedom of speech.

Maybe a new sense of responsibility and accountability is needed. We seem to go from one crisis to another and never finish a story. The media can stir up anything they please and never follow up nor clean up the aftermath.

In news stories we go from tragedy to tragedy. The hurricane is news until the earthquake hits, then we hear no more about the hurricane.

In issue stories we are given the same treatment. Big headlines and much talk followed by big headlines on a new story and the first one is forgotten. There is no one responsible for the aftermath nor the follow-up. The fat lady in Dallas can blast Hereford, Texas and get all kinds of play without having even to mention the place again unless she wants another target for her spleen.

Last year a guy made a small fortune selling a book that proved the second coming was going to happen in September. When it did not happen did anyone call his hand? He just said he made a mistake in calculations and wrote another book that said the coming would happen this year. Another September has passed but no second coming. The guy has shrugged and gone to the bank. Folks ought not to be allowed to get by with such things.

There ought to be a law that says, "Those who stir the pot must serve the soup." If someone makes news, by golly, they need to be responsible for that news until the story is over, done and told. Teller beware. Publicity seeker, be careful. If you live by the glare you may find yourself embarrassed by what the glare reveals. That is responsible journalism.

I can think of a few stories in Hereford, Texas that need to be finished. Seems to me I remember something about Satan and murder.

Catastrophic plan a catastrophe

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - In the shorthand of government, the whole business is called, quite simply, "catastrophic." That turned out to be a good choice of word.

The Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 has itself proven to be a political catastrophe. The program is a problem for the members of Congress who approved it and now are in the process of undoing their unpopular handiwork; for the administration that first supported it and then fell silent; even for senior citizens' lobbyists who endorsed the plan without anticipating the backlash.

Now Congress is trying to figure out how and what to try to salvage out of catastrophic, the insurance program elderly Americans - at least those who know how to get a message to Washington - apparently did not want and clearly did not want to finance.

While the White House at one point said the program should be preserved, President Bush is offering no further advice. "We are letting the congressional process hash this out," Bush said Friday.

The president said if Congress produced something he deemed unsatisfactory, he would not hesitate to step in. The administration isn't saying what might prompt it to take action, or even a position, on a program Bush endorsed as a candidate.

After the House voted outright repeal, Secretary of Health and Human Services Louis Sullivan endorsed a Senate measure that would have preserved major features of the law and reduced the controversial surtax on older Americans that was to have financed it.

He did so in a letter to the Senate Finance Committee, but the administration quickly and curiously declared that Sullivan was speaking only for himself.

Budget Director Richard G. Darman sent up a letter of his own. "Nothing in this letter should be construed as an expression for or opposition to one catastrophic illness substantive amendment as opposed to another," Darman decreed.

The catastrophic coverage act was supposed to provide insurance to pay for costly hospital and doctor care, to put a cap on out-of-pocket medical costs. It also offered new benefits for prescription drug costs. The benefits were to be phased in gradually.

But the tax to pay for those benefits, which already is in place, produced the backlash. It is a surtax of $22.50 for every $150 in federal income taxes paid by the elderly. That spared low-income retirees, imposing the surtax on about 40 percent of the people eligible for the insurance. The maximum tax is $800 a person, and about 6 percent of the elderly faced that top levy.

Congress, which had expected gratitude and support, reaped outrage from the people paying the tax, many of them already paying for their own catastrophic health insurance. Even people who were paying little or no surtax came to believe that they'd be assessed, and joined the opposition. The protection would have been most valuable to lower-income retired people, the least organized and least vocal of the nation's seniors.

President Reagan proposed the program in the first place, but what he recommended in 1987 was a relatively modest plan to protect the elderly against huge medical bills, with an estimated price tag of $2 billion a year.

Congress added benefits, and costs. When the final measure was enacted 16 months ago, the five-year cost was estimated at $32 billion. The estimate now is up to $48 billion.

The Reagan plan was supposed to be financed with a flat, $4 monthly premium charge. To pay for the expanded program, Congress devised the 15 percent income tax surcharge that stirred the senior rebellion.

Even the most powerful of the senior lobbies, the American Association of Retired Persons, got tangled in the issue after agreeing to go along with the financing system. The AARP now says, somewhat defensively, that it strongly supports the benefits but never advocated the surtax system. The association wants broader financing, including an increase in the tobacco tax. That's not likely.

What is likely is that Congress

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says find your aim in life before you run out of ammo.

A father is a man who expects his son to be as good a man as he meant to be.

"I'm not against capital punishment," said the disgruntled taxpayer. "There are a lot of people in the Capitol who should be punished."

This area, generally the counties of Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro, are often referred to as the "Golden Triangle" of the Panhandle. Besides boasting a large portion of the fed cattle in the area, the three counties are also rich in various crops such as wheat, corn, milo and sugar beets and vegetables.

We had heard the term "Golden Triangle" used over the years to describe the three counties, but we didn't know who coined the phrase. Now we discover it may have been the late Ray Cowser, former mayor of Hereford and a longtime attorney in Castro and Deaf Smith counties.

We ran across a Brand editorial, dated July 30, 1961, which noted Cowser's use of the term. He even proposed the idea of abolishing county lines and making the area into one county. Here, in part, is the 1961 editorial:

"Hereford's mayor, Ray Cowser, outlined a fabulous dream of progress when he spoke before the Rotary Club this week and, for good measure, threw in a tailor-made title, 'The Golden Triangle,' as the name for his modern-day Utopia.

"His idea, in a nutshell, was based upon the fact that Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties are literally the garden spot of the nation, plus the fact that we have barely touched the potential which the area has to offer.

"Cowser cited an area of 3,200 square miles, populated by 31,693 people--and he pointed to an estimated income of $62.6 million, making the territory one of the highest per-capita income areas in the world today. He further noted that practically all of the area income springs from the soil, since the 'triangle' has limited industrial activities.

"All in all, it seems to us that Mayor Cowser was striking a far more important keynote than many people realize. As he said, present surpluses are bound to dwindle as the nation's population continues to expand--and this is the time when our area should truly come into its own. Without doubt, the same land in use today could support 10 times as many people as it now accommodates, and production would move forward at an even greater ratio than 10-to-1 with more intensive farming methods.

"Let us remember, too, that the one factor which sets the United States above other world nations is the fact that it does have productive land and industrious people who produce bountiful crops. Successful farm production, without question, is the one feature about which private enterprise can boast the longest and loudest. Russia and the other Iron Curtain countries are conclusive proof that farming and communism will never be happily wedded.

"The idea of abolishing county lines, also advanced by the mayor, is one of excellent theory, but highly questionable. It would work if the people would let it; but there would be a tremendous job of organization, taxation, government and general operations. Mayor Cowser's dream, on the other hand, pretty well describes the Rio Grand Valley of 20 years ago--and we would be more inclined to expect our territory to expand along the same general lines."

Cowser was a visionary. The population figures for the three counties may not have changed that much, but the estimated income total has made a huge jump. The Golden Triangle is a vital part of the Panhandle and the state and nation.

will be far more wary of such programs, and especially of such financing systems, in the future. And what's certain is that costs the program would have covered will be paid in other ways - out of pocket, in higher premiums for private health insurance, and in taxes, local state and federal.

In signing the bill he counted a major domestic achievement, Reagan nonetheless offered a warning, and it proved too true. He said that without diligent cost controls, the program could be too expensive to afford.

"This could be more than a budget problem," Reagan said. "It could be a tragedy. The program, after all, is to be paid for by the elderly themselves. So we must control the costs of these new benefits or we'll harm the very people we are trying to help."

Potato puts on the Ritz for Japanese

WASHINGTON (AP) - The lowly spud never had it so good.

A bunch of potatoes from Idaho, California, Washington state, Michigan and faraway Chile was gussied up and served at a gourmet, seven-course luncheon Thursday by the Watergate's renowned French chef, Jean-Louis Palladin.

They were shredded, diced, pureed, baked, fried, simmered, glazed and dunked in rich cream sauces by Jean-Louis and his staff. Then they were escorted out of the kitchen by tuxedo-clad waiters under the bright glare of camera lights, to the oohs and aahs of a half-dozen diners.

The all-potato menu was prepared for the benefit of a Japanese television crew that is touring the United States filming a half-hour history of the potato chip, which was supposed to have been invented in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., in 1853.

To give the visiting Japanese an idea of the potato's versatility, Jean-Louis was asked to prepare a dream lunch featuring nothing but potato dishes. He happily obliged. "I was raised all my life with potatoes," he said.

Jean-Louis began with tiny potato pancakes containing smoked salmon and topped with caviar, followed by a cream soup of purple Chilean potatoes with Idaho potato dumplings and purple potato chips. Next came Icelandic langoustines wrapped in fried, shredded potatoes in a ginger sauce.

His piece de resistance, especially created for the lunch, was a rizzotto of finely diced white rose potatoes from California and poached Maine scallops in squid ink, covered with shavings of parmesan cheese and fresh white truffles that cost $720 a pound.

After cannelloni of Idaho potatoes stuffed with wild mushrooms and goose liver pate in a tomato sauce, and breasts of wild Virginia doves with pureed Red Yukon potatoes from Michigan and red wine gravy, the dessert was a sweet potato sorbet with tiny potato pastries.

Tani Kei, the host of the TV show, sighed contentedly as he finished with an espresso.

A popular entertainer in Japan who took his stage name from America's Danny Kaye, Tani Kei said his favorite potato dishes back home are less fancy and more robust. He likes his potatoes boiled, baked or simmered with chunks of beef, soy sauce, sugar and sweet rice wine.

Maki Fujiyoshi, director of the potato chip special that will be broadcast on Japan's NTV network next January, said potatoes carry unpleasant reminders of wartime hardships among older Japanese. He explained that Japanese civilians were forced to eat potatoes during World War II to make sure their troops had enough rice.

But Fujiyoshi said the post-war generation of Japanese are crazy about potatoes, especially French fries and chips.

lugging groceries or children.

Palo Alto pays its employees 7 cents a mile for all business travel by bike. It sponsors a city wide "leave your car at home day," has a bicycle squad in its police force and holds a traffic school for children who break bicycle laws.

Some employers in the city of 56,000 have joined the fray. One offers bike commuters $1 a day for every day they ride to work. Xerox provides free towel service in the shower room.

It's been 173 years since the first bike appeared in 1816. A lot has changed. Bikes have evolved from a crude contraption called the hobbyhorse, which was propelled by the rider's feet on the ground, to the enlarged front wheel which covered more ground per each revolution of the rider's pedals, to chain drives and the safety bicycle, to today's one-piece lightweight frames.

Bicycles gave the world ball bearings and pneumatic tires.

In the late 1800s, bicycle racers were some of the highest paid athletes in the country, garnering winnings of between $20,000 to $40,000 a year.

"They were like today's superstars," says Bicycling's Fred

Zahradnik. "They traveled the world to race."

Thousands flocked to see the six-day bike races on board tracks or concrete. At the turn of the century there were some 200 race tracks in the United States alone.

One racer was Charles (Mile-a-Minute) Murphy. On June 30, 1899, he pumped up to 60 mph on a board track making use of the suction behind a fast locomotive.

Another, Zahradnik says, was Major Taylor, "one of the first great black athletes to emerge in the United States in the late 1800s. He was often turned down by hotels on his world racing circuit."

Bike makers have constantly changed designs to appeal to young riders. With the balloon tire came Schwinn's Streamliner. There was the Donald Duck bike by Shelby, sporting a Donald Duck hood ornament and a quack-quack horn. There was the Huffy Radiobike which had a radio in the tank on the crossbars. In the late 1950s there was Bowden Spacelander and a drag racer called the Schwinn Orangecrate.

But now engineers are setting out to improve designs for practical reasons. Bicycle trailers and three- and four-wheel designs are increasing the load-carrying capacity.

The Oxtrike, designed at Oxford University, has a platform and gears capable of moving heavy cargo. In India, designers are working on a multipurpose bike that can double as a non-transportation motor for threshing rice paddies, shelling peanuts or pumping water.

It may indeed be that the wheels of the past will power the future.

SINGING IN THE SUNSHINE

NEW YORK (AP) - Umbrellas, which have been around for centuries, began as a protection against the sun rather than rain.

In ancient Egypt and Assyria, slaves held sunshades or ornate parasols over their masters. In the Greek and Roman empires, only women carried umbrellas as men thought them effeminate.

In England, the umbrella's usefulness during heavy rainfalls was recognized by both sexes during the early 1700s. They have been widely used there ever since.

Carl Ellis Adds Security and Strength to First National

Over the past few weeks, we at First National Bank have been doing some bragging on our Board of Directors, and the business and community knowledge they bring to our bank. The strength of First National is also evident in the years of financial experience offered to our Board through people like Carl W. Ellis. Mr. Ellis serves as Vice Chairman of our Board of Directors as well as Chairman of the Board at First National Bank of Perryton. You might say that he was born into banking: The family has owned the Perryton bank since 1930; and Mr. Ellis has almost twenty years in banking himself.

He and his wife, Julie, have four children: Amy and Kevin, Brian and Courtney. They are members of the First Christian Church in Perryton.

At First National we believe that it takes strong business and community ties supported by a solid banking foundation to offer all of the financial services our customers deserve. And with board members like Carl W. Ellis, our foundation is twenty years strong and rock solid. It's just one more way we back up our motto that First National offers...

HHS teams survive no-pass, no-play

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

With the end of the first six-week grading period and the handing out of report cards, Hereford High School athletics showed minimal losses to Texas' no-pass, no-play rule.

According to HHS Principal Terry Russell, only three varsity athletes and about 20 students total participating in five sports will be ineligible to compete for the next six weeks.

Russell said the eligibility rule, legislated by House Bill 72 four years ago, has proven to be an incentive to students to keep their grades up.

"I suspect, overall, it's probably helped," Russell said. "I'm sure there have been isolated incidents - as a matter of fact I know there have been, and I know there will be - where it's been pretty detrimental to a specific student."

"But all in all, particularly at the varsity level, we have not experienced very many suspensions at all."

Russell added that the lack of suspensions extended to all extracurricular activities, not just athletics.

"I don't have any statistics," he said, "but I would say that the failure rate of kids not involved in any extracurricular activity, whether it's athletics or band or agriculture, is probably quite a bit greater than for the ones that are involved in at least one activity."

Among the losses reported, 19 were from the football program, including seven freshmen, one sophomore and 11 junior varsity players. Other losses included one each from boys basketball and tennis while the cross country, volleyball and girls basketball teams reported no members ruled ineligible.

Head football coach Don Cumpton said losses from his program, which has more than 250 players, were the lowest ever except for the junior varsity.

"That's a lot less freshmen and sophomores than we've ever lost," he said "but it's the most JV players we've ever lost. And we never have lost more than one or two varsity players."

Head volleyball coach Brenda Reeh said none of the nearly 60 players in her sport were in danger of losing eligibility.

"In fact, most of the grades were not even close," Reeh said. "So we were real pleased with that."

All coaches said they had encountered little trouble with losing players in the past.

"All our kids usually make pretty good grades," said head girls basketball coach Dickie Faught. "We talk about it with them and we expect them to pass. They understand the consequences if they don't and we accept it fully. There's not any problem there. They know school's got to come first."

"About four years ago we had a kid or two (fail)," Reeh said, "but in the past two or three years it hasn't been a problem for us."

"At first (when the rule was enacted), I thought I'd have trouble with (losing players)," Jimmy Thomas, head boys basketball coach, said. "I was real concerned, but the kids adjusted."

"They'll do pretty much whatever it takes to play if they want to play bad enough. Usually, the kids know (if they're failing) and they can do something about it."

While HHS coaches all agreed there is never a good time to lose players to poor grades, it was noted that the end of the school year's first grading period affects various sports differently.

"At this point in our season it would be really devastating to lose a kid, or two or three kids," Reeh said. "Volleyball is, in a way, at a good time because you can start out before school starts and get most of your season done before six-weeks grading period. But then, if you do lose somebody, it can hurt you."

"If I had to lose them," Thomas said, "I'd rather do it now. If they're out the third six weeks (when basketball season is in full swing), it's a killer."

Faught said that it has been his experience that most athletes who did fail were able to regain their eligibility the following six weeks.

"Any that did fail, we stayed on them pretty hard to get their grades up," he said. "They could still work out with the team until whenever school let out and most of the time got back and passed."

"And then there's some that are just chronic, they're going to do it all the time. It kind of depends on the kid."

Russell added that as students progress through their school careers, the rate of failures drops dramatically.

"I don't think there's any question about that," he said. "Of course, as kids get older they get more mature and they accept the responsibility they need to be accepting. I think that has more to do with it than the attitude that 'Well, it's not varsity so it really doesn't matter.'"

"As they get older," Russell added, "they grow up and know what it's about. They realize the importance of making the grades other than just retaining eligibility."

Russell said a major reason for the success rate enjoyed by Hereford students is the willingness of faculty members to provide students with help outside the classroom.

"Our teachers just do a heckuva job," he said. "They come early and stay late to give students - not only athletes but anybody - any additional help needed."

"I know of lots of instances where we've had people come up here and meet kids at 6:30 or 7 o'clock at night for extra help because the students couldn't come immediately after school because of athletics. And there are other instances where kids that are in a work program needed some extra help but they went to work and couldn't get back up here till 5 or 6 o'clock and teachers would meet them then. Our teachers are very, very dedicated to helping the kids."

Russell said an example of that dedication is a study hall conducted by coaches at the fieldhouse.

"Every Tuesday evening the coaches stay up there to work with the kids," he said.

"We are very fortunate to have coaches teaching in every core subject. If a kid is having trouble in geometry, Coach (Craig) Yenzler, who teaches math, can help them out."

P'view pounds frosh

The Hereford freshman Maroon Whitefaces suffered their second defeat of the season Friday, 33-0, at the hands of the Plainview Red team in a game played at the South Field.

Plainview controlled the ball for most of the game and rolled up 356 total yards for the game while limiting Hereford to 147.

Plainview opened the game by taking the opening kickoff 58 yards in 17 plays to the Hereford 1-yard line before the Herd defense held and forced a fumble.

Taking over at their own 4, the Herd quickly left the shadow of the end zone on a 32-yard run by Pety Colvin. A 30-yard pass from Chad Sandoval to Greg Coplen on the next play put the Maroon on the Plainview 31.

Hereford eventually reached the 5-yard line, but a booted handoff on a reverse lost eight yards and Sandoval misfired on two passes to turn the ball over on downs.

Plainview gave the ball up when quarterback Max Simpson fumbled at the 11, but the Herd could gain only five yards and lost the ball on downs again.

Plainview then went 90 yards in seven plays for the game's first score. Halfback Kevin Polk, who had 83 yards rushing on the drive, got the first of his three touchdowns on a 58-yard run off a reverse.

Hereford took the kickoff with less than a minute to go in the first half at its own 37, but Sandoval was stripped of the ball as he kept on an option and Plainview recovered at the Herd 40.

Polk go 11 yards on the first play to set up Simpson's 26-yard scoring pass to wingback Jeff Gonzales to give the Bulldogs a 13-0 halftime lead.

Hereford opened the second half with an 11-yard run by Colvin, but the Herd tailback lost the handle on the ball on the next play and Plainview took over 40 yards from the goal line.

It took the visitors just three plays to cover the distance with Polk getting his second score from 33 yards out. Simpson's conversion pass put Plainview up 21-0.

The teams exchanged punts on their next possessions before the Herd mounted a drive.

Moving 47 yards in six plays, including a 25-yard run by Colvin, Hereford had a first down at the Plainview 31. But two runs for minus yardage and a pair of incomplete passes gave the ball back to the Bulldogs.

Plainview reached the Herd 10-yard line in seven plays as fullback Jeff Smiley picked up 48 yards on the drive. On third-and-two from the 10, Smiley was stopped at the line of scrimmage and stripped of the ball by the Herd defense.

Hereford picked up a first down on and interference call, but two incompletions and a sack combined to give Plainview the ball on downs at the Herd 21.

Simpson kept on an option for 15 yards to set up Polk's final score on a three-yard run.

The Bulldog's last touchdown was set up when they recovered an onside kick at the Herd 47. It took the Plainview reserves 11 plays to put the ball in the end zone.

Polk was the game's leading rusher with 139 yards on 11 carries while Smiley added 122 yard on 24 attempts. Colvin led the Herd with 109 yards on 19 tries.

Simpson completed his only two passes for 29 yards and a touchdown for Plainview while Sandoval was two of 12 for 29 yards and had one intercepted.

Hoops refs needed

The Hereford Independent School District is seeking officials for sub-varsity boys and girls games for the 1989-90 season.

Two officials will be needed per game. Certification is not required, but game officials should be familiar with the rules of the game. Officials will be paid on a per game basis.

Anyone interested in calling games should contact head boys basketball Jimmy Thomas at 364-7425 or head girls basketball coach Dickie Faught at 364-6810. Both coaches may be reached 364-8229.

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Dan Cook popped a piece salt water taffy in his mouth, locked up his computer and stood to leave the press box several hours after David McWilliams had been carried on his players' shoulders off the field and a goalpost torn down.

"I've been covering the Oklahoma-Texas game since 1956 and it's the most exciting one I've seen," said the veteran columnist of the San Antonio Express-News. "This one wins the prize."

Cook and his press box colleagues and some 75,000 fans witnessed a memorable Red River rivalry scum between the Sooners and Longhorns.

The schools have met 84 times, but underdog Texas' improbable, beat-the-clock, fourth-quarter 66-yard touchdown drive, engineered by a redshirt freshman quarterback, had historical heroics that could match any of the other 83.

Peter Gardere's 25-yard touchdown pass with 93 ticks left on the clock left both spectators and press-boxers searching for words to describe the 28-24 upset of the 15th-ranked Sooners by an 18-point underdog.

This game was certainly one to be treasured. Texas hadn't beaten Oklahoma since 1983, and with an all-freshmen backfield, certainly appeared to have no chance. Now, 300,000 Texas fans will say they were there on the day McWilliams pulled off the big ambush.

Cook's words and a recent release of the 30th anniversary issue of Dave Campbell's Texas Football Magazine had me turning the clock back to other great games in Southwest Conference to which I had been an eye witness.

For me to rank this game in the top five would take some memory rejuvenation.

For example, I was a student in the stands at the famed 1956 "hurricane game" when Texas A&M held off Texas Christian 7-6 in a showdown between the Frogs' Jim Swink and the Aggies' John David Crow. Swink to this day says he scored twice, but officials couldn't see him because of the slashing rain blown by the hurricane-force winds that sent umbrellas sailing out of the stadium like balloons. There's a great story in Texas Football Magazine about the encounter.

I also was in the stands at the Cotton Bowl for the 1949 Southern Methodist meeting with Notre Dame, a 27-20 loss by the Mustangs to Leon Hart and the national champions. A four-touchdown underdog, SMU had Kyle Rote in the backfield, but 1948 Heisman Trophy winner Doak Walker was out with an injury. Still, SMU almost pulled off the upset of the century.

Those two games stay in the top five.

Then, of course, there was "The Big Shootout" in 1969, as Darrell Royal called it, between Arkansas and Texas for the national title. President Nixon anointed the winner, which turned out to be the Longhorns, 15-14. The pressure on both teams was tremendous and the drama just as thick. I also remember mashing yellowjackets in the press box with the bottom of a Dr. Pepper bottle.

That's three.

The 1970 Cotton Bowl, when Texas put Notre Dame away 21-17 to clinch the national championship in all the polls, was an exciting game. Remember the ill Freddie Steinmark standing on crutches on the Texas sideline? And Cotton Speyer's incredible catch of a James Street pass to set up the winning score?

That's four.
How about the 1979 Cotton Bowl when Notre Dame overcame a 34-14 deficit to defeat Houston 35-34 on a Joe Montana touchdown pass with no time showing on the clock? It ranks as the greatest comeback in the bowl's history.
That's five.
OK, let's rank the 1989 Texas-Oklahoma game as the sixth best in SWC history that I've witnessed in person.

Now list your personal top six. Let the arguments begin.

Paris suffers loss No. 2

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

James Cameron, in his 21st year of coaching but in his first year at Sulphur Springs, violated what some regard as a cardinal rule in his team's district football contest against defending state 4A champion Paris.

He took points off the board. But the tactic produced a 22-21 upset over the No. 7-ranked Wildcats, so no one in Sulphur Springs is complaining.

The win raised Cameron's career coaching record to 153-64-8. He was at Kilgore the past seven years and previously coached at Rockwall High School and at Howard Payne and Angelo State.

All the No. 1-ranked teams won Friday. Converse Judson (5A) beat San Marcos 41-13, West Orange-Stark (4A) crushed Little Cypress-Mauriceville 42-7, Southlake Carroll (3A) defeated Gainesville (No. 4 in 3A) 35-13, Groveton (2A) routed Centerville 75-0, and Munday (1A) powdered Modley County 63-14.

Other than Paris and Gainesville, the only ranked teams in the Associated Press Top 10 Poll who lost were Plano East, No. 3 in 5A, which was surprised 39-20 by Richardson Pearce; Reagan County,

No. 10 in 2A, lost to Winters, 10-9; and Era, No. 9 in 1A, lost a squeaker to Valley View, 14-13. Skidmore-Tynan, ranked eighth in 1A, was tied by Runge, 10-10.

Paris took a 7-0 lead over Sulphur Springs in the first quarter on Jeffrey Haskins' 1-yard run, but Sulphur Springs tied the game with 31 seconds left in the first half on a 2-yard run by Reggie Roland.

However, Roddy Wortham, one of the star linebackers off Paris' state championship team of a year ago, ran the ensuing kickoff back 89 yards for a 14-7 lead with 17 seconds left in the half.

When Mike Hightower ran 64 yards on a reverse in the first two minutes of the third quarter to put Paris ahead, 21-7, things looked gloomy for Sulphur Springs.

Then, Sulphur Springs sophomore Chris Wright scored on a 21-yard run with 6:45 left in the third quarter, cutting Paris' lead to 21-13 and setting the stage for the crucial play.

Cameron had quarterback Billy Watkins, a converted soccer player, kick the extra point, making the score 21-14. But wait! Paris was off sides! Some coaches feel you should never take points off the board. But Cameron decided the 1 1/2-yard penalty to the 1 1/2-yard line made a 2-point conversion try worthwhile.

Roland cracked over right tackle on the try, making the gamble pay off, cutting the lead to 21-15.

Watkins scored midway through the fourth quarter on a 1-yard sneak and followed with a point-after kick for the 22-21 Sulphur Springs victory.

"The way the defenses were playing, I didn't feel there would be that many more scoring opportunities for either team," Cameron said after the game. "I felt that one point at that time might be critical."

Sulphur Springs improved its record to 4-3 for the season and 2-0 in district play, while Paris fell to 5-2 and 1-1. Sulphur Springs' losses came by a total of eight points. Highland Park won 27-26 when Sulphur Springs failed on a late two-point gamble; Terrell beat Sulphur Springs 17-13, and McKinney won by 17-14.

Plano East beat crosstown rival Plano easily a week ago and was expected to sail easily through district play, but the Panthers were without quarterback Chad Dou-sharm, who broke a wrist in last week's game.

John Livingstone's pinpoint passing lifted Pearce to a stunning 39-6 lead, and two late touchdowns by Plano East merely made the final margin more respectable.

Livingstone completed 13 of 18 passes in the first half for 182 yards and finished with 18-of-25 for 238 yards in the game. He connected with wide receiver Elimu Jackson nine times in the first half for 149 yards. Jackson finished with 12 receptions for 163 yards and one touchdown.

You are very special to all of us that love you,

Pheasant hunt set for Buffalo Wildlife Refuge

The U.S. Department of the Interior Fish and Wildlife Service has announced it will hold five days of ring-necked pheasant hunting at Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge at Umbarger.

The hunt, which is by special permit only, is scheduled for Dec. 9, 11, 13, 15 and 17 from 9 a.m. to sunset each day on approximately 2,000 acres of refuge land.

To enter the drawing for permits, hunters must send their name, address and daytime telephone number to Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge, P.O. Box 228, Umbarger, Texas 79091. Entries for the permit drawing close Nov. 17 with the drawing to take place Nov. 20. Only one entry per name will be accepted.

Permits will be allotted by computer on Nov. 20. Hunters will be notified by mail whether or not they have been selected for a permit, which allows the permit holder and one guest to participate.

Permits are good only for the day noted and are not transferable. There is no choice of hunt days.

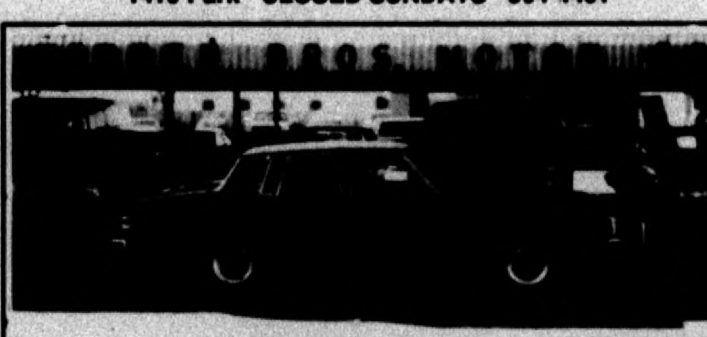

Permits may be picked up at the refuge headquarters the day of the hunt. Permits of no-show hunters will be issued at 1 p.m. each day of the hunt on a first-come, first served basis.

All Texas state hunting regulations will apply for the hunt and hunters must have a valid Texas hunting license in addition to the special permit. Special refuge regulations will also be enforced.

For more information, contact refuge headquarters at (806) 499-3382 or P.O. Box 228, Umbarger, Texas 79091.

World Series Sweeps
 By John Brooks
 There have been 4-0 sweeps of the World Series 11 times in history. The Oakland A's lead the 1989 World Series 2-0 going into Tuesday's game.
 Other sweeps:
 1914: The Boston "Miracle Braves" defeated the Philadelphia Athletics and their famous "$100,000" infield in 1914.
 1927: Murderers' Row of the New York Yankees dumped the Pittsburgh Pirates.
 1928: The Yankees, over the St. Louis Cardinals.
 1932: The Yankees beat the Chicago Cubs. This is the series where Babe Ruth either did or didn't call a home run off Charlie Root.
 1938: The Yankees over the Cubs again.
 1939: The Yankees sweep the Cincinnati Reds. This is the series where Red's Hall of Fame catcher Ernie Lombardi took a little nap, allowing the Yankees to win.
 1950: The Yankees' sixth and final sweep, over the Whiz Kids (and star reliever Jim Konstanty, who wasn't a kid) of Philadelphia.
 1954: Willie Mays made THE CATCH off Vic Wertz as the Giants swept the Cleveland Indians. It was Cleveland's last playoff appearance.
 1963: Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale help lead the LA Dodgers over the Yankees.
 1966: Sandy and Don's last World Series, but the Baltimore Orioles used rising pitching stars Dave McNally and Jim Palmer to sweep the Dodgers.
 1976: A year after winning (over Boston in seven) perhaps the best World Series ever that included that sixth game that has to be the best game ever in the World Series, The Big Red Machine of Cincinnati rumbled over the Yankees.

Soviet buys spur meat market

WASHINGTON (AP) - Moscow's longstanding commitment to put more meat on family tables is the compelling reason behind the Soviet Union's huge orders of U.S. corn, says one of the Agriculture Department's top Kremlin watchers.

"The No. 1 factor is that the Soviets need to increase the output of livestock products. That is, meat. They can't do it alone, they've got to import (feed grains)," said Christian Foster of the department's Economic Research Service. "Then, it's the other factors that determine where they're going to import it from."

During the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, the Soviet Union bought a record 21.7 million metric tons of U.S. grain with an estimated value of almost $3 billion. That included a record 16.3 million tons of corn and about 5.4 million tons of wheat.

Since Oct. 1, the Soviets have bought more than 5 million tons of corn, including 1.2 million tons announced Thursday, plus some soybeans and soybean meal.

Foster lists four "other factors" that also are influencing Moscow's decision to buy grain from the United States.

These include a reduced Soviet harvest of "coarse" grains such as corn and barley in 1988, along with smaller forage crops. Also, world supplies of coarse grains were tight because of last year's drought, and prices favored corn over wheat and barley.

Foster also cites "improved political ties" between Moscow and the United States under Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

But Foster said Wednesday in a telephone interview that the improved political climate ranks "quite small relative to the other factors" that led Moscow to buy so much U.S. grain.

Economics is important, too, he said. But the Soviets opted for U.S.

corn, with prices competitive with barley from Canada and the European Economic Community. Additionally, in the 1989 fiscal year, Moscow bought a significant amount of U.S. grain sorghum for the time, another important livestock feed grain.

Overall, he said, the U.S. share of the total coarse grain market rose to about 70 percent last fiscal year from around 50 percent in 1988. Mostly, that was at the expense of the 12-nation EEC, which is geographically much closer to the huge Soviet market.

"If they're buying grain, economically there must be more reasons (than price)," Foster said. "You would think the (EEC) would be cheaper because of logistics."

Many U.S. export advocates, including recent secretaries of agriculture, have touted the giant output potential of the American grain farmer and the reliability of the United States as a supplier.

The experts have noted for years that the longstanding commitment by Moscow leaders to boost the livestock sector has been the underlying reason for importing grain to make up harvest shortfalls.

"It always was a high priority," Foster said. "But it's at its highest priority ever right now, I would say. Because Gorbachev, to maintain support - and the opposition is there - needs to show some immediate, short-term improvement ... in consumption patterns, meat products and so forth."

Foster said Gorbachev has had so many problems with consumer goods and food products that "he just has to regain support if his reform program is going to make it anywhere."

On the matter of world trade, Foster thinks Moscow "without a doubt" would like to be part of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and is currently extending a few feelers.

Before Gorbachev, Soviet leaders thought "the whole thing was an imperialist whatever," he said. "Since then, they've made it clear that they're interested but have pushed it really."

Windbreak time again

Windbreak trees, like the ones on the left, offer protection to this home and help give shelter and cover. Orders for windbreak seedlings are now being taken at the SCS office at 315 W. Third in Hereford.

TBSWCD takes '90 tree orders

Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District is now taking orders for windbreak tree seedlings. The 1989-90 tree program is a repeat of the past several years where the trees are ordered from the Texas Forest Service and the Colorado State Forest Service.

Persons interested will have a choice of more than 30 varieties of shrubs, hardwoods and evergreen trees. These trees, if used as a windbreak in two or more rows, will give cover to wildlife, and shelter homes, cattle and roads from wind and snow.

Applications will be taken until mid-March 1990. Ordering early will ensure getting the species you want. The seedlings will arrive the last week of March 1990 and can be picked up at the SCS office.

If interested, call the SCS at 364-6995 or go by 315 W. Third.

Sunday's Home of the Week

FEATURE HOMES

© By W.D. FARMER, A.L.B.D.
A spacious open foyer leads to either the great room or the formal dining room. Today's informal living precludes the necessity of the living room, therefore, this space is included in an enormous great room suitable for formal or informal affairs, but the formal dining room is included for those special dinners.

The kitchen and breakfast area are shown in a wing front to back. The U-shape kitchen includes a convenient arrangement and ample cabinets for food preparation and is directly adjacent to the formal dining room. A permanent open rail stair is included from the breakfast area, allowing rear access to the game room and/or second floor bedrooms. The laundry is a complete laundry room and provides adequate space for those laundry room appliances, along with overhead cabinets for storage.

The master bedroom suite extends the full depth of the plan and a large walk-in closet is provided. The bath area is shown with two lavatories, separate stall shower and a garden tub. A half bath is adjacent for convenient daytime use.

There are either two bedrooms and a game room or three bedrooms and a game room available for the second floor. The three bedroom arrangement is shown with two full baths, the two bedroom arrangement utilizing a compartment bath directly accessible from either. The private vanity areas are a plus, and the extra roomy closets and the game room expand the convenience of the second floor.

The country exterior is embellished with wood rail front porch, three dormers, horizontal siding exterior finish and a gable roof design.

The plan is Number 3122. It includes 2,885 or 3,153 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Enhance wardrobe with fresher complexion

The good news about fashion dictates this fall, is there are no fashion dictates!
 Skirts can be long or short, pant suits can alternate with skirts and jackets and frankly feminine looks co-exist with contemporary, tailored styles. Anything goes, as long as you know how to create your most flattering look.
 Putting together an attractive personal style, however, also means getting the most out of your overall physical appearance. If, for example, your complexion is dull, you will not look your best, no matter what you wear.
 "After all, people still look at your face first, before your clothes," say the fashion and beauty experts at E.E. Dickinson Witch Hazel Company. "A healthy, clean skin does wonders for any fashion, regardless of the style or season. And keeping your skin fresh and glowing is easier than you think. To begin with, you must clean your skin thoroughly every day, the Dickinson experts advise. "Basically, all your skin needs to keep it clean and healthy is a simple three-step skin care program: Cleansing, freshening and moisturizing."
 "And the younger you are when you start, the easier it will be for you to keep your skin looking good later on," they state.
 The following are Dickinson's suggestions for an effective skin care program that can start you on your way right now toward a glowing fall complexion.
 -Never go to bed with makeup on. No matter how late it is, or how tired you are, make sure you take it off! Makeup left on overnight can create skin problems that may be difficult to deal with later on.
 -The first step is to remove that makeup either with soap and water or cleansing cream if your skin is very dry. This will help loosen and wash away superficial dirt and bacteria.
 -Next, use a non-drying astringent to complete the cleansing process. Wipe your freshly washed face thoroughly with a pad, then look at it. Isn't it surprising how much dirt is left on the pad!
 Discard the pad and repeat the process with fresh pads until one comes away clean. This step is probably the most important part of your cleansing routine, since it is what makes the difference between "not-so-clean" and "really clean."
 -After cleansing, apply a moisturizing lotion to the dry areas of your skin. If your skin is very dry, use a cream instead. Make sure, however, that it will be absorbed easily and provide a smooth surface for makeup application.

October Is National Co-op Month

Building A Stronger America!

Here in Hereford, and all across our great nation, cooperatives are working for you.

There are 40,000 cooperatives in our country, owned and operated by 60,000,000 Americans just like you.

They provide a tremendous array of goods and services--farm marketing, farm supplies, food and fiber processing, commodity storage, electric service, telephone service, farm credit, credit unions, food, housing, insurance, health care and day care.

The cooperative way of doing business has proven to be both an efficient and economical way to provide services and goods. That's why co-ops come in every size and kind, and are found in the city, the suburbs and rural America.

Cooperatives are popular because they are meeting people's needs, often when other methods could not. A cooperative is people working together to achieve common goals, meet common needs, and benefit their community. Cooperatives have scored marks for quality goods and services for more than half a century in America.

Co-op people point with pride to what their cooperatives have achieved for their members, friends, neighbors and communities. They're proud of their track record.

Co-ops are true American success stories.

National Red Ribbon Week
October 22 - 29, 1989
MY CHOICE... DRUG-FREE.

Drug Awareness Week underway

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

Hereford will join communities across the country in noting National Drug Awareness Week, Oct. 23-27.

Activities at Hereford High School and Hereford Junior High, and with various church organizations are slated throughout much of the week. Local events will kick off today (Sunday) with young people from St. Anthony's Catholic Church tying symbolic red ribbons on trees in Dameron Park.

Red ribbons will be used as a visual reminder of support for the nationwide program to prevent drug abuse. The ribbons in Dameron Park will be maintained throughout the by members of PALS (Peers As Leaders), an organization dedicated to curtailing drug abuse.

"Drug Awareness Togetherness," sponsored by the San Jose Knights of Columbus and the Hereford Youth Ministerial Alliance, will be the final event in the week's activities. That presentation will be held Oct. 29, in the Community Center.

The program will start with refreshments at 6 p.m. Scheduled presentations include two films and speeches by Roy Rector, a Hereford policeman who works with the D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance) Program, and Royce Riggan, youth minister at the Community Church. Films to be featured during the evening are "Get it Straight" and "The Courage to be Me."

In addition to these weekend events, special programs are scheduled for Monday at Hereford High School and at Hereford Junior High. A multi-media presentation titled "Stars" will be presented at 9 and 10 a.m. at the high school auditorium and at 1:15 and 2:15 p.m. in the junior high gymnasium. Parents are encouraged to attend any of the four programs.

During these assemblies, information will be presented about PALS. PALS is a continuation of the drug education program which begins in intermediate school with the DARE program.

While DARE is an official educational course conducted through the schools by the Hereford Police Department, PALS is purely an organization of students. When a student joins PALS, he or she signs an agreement stating that they will remain drug-free throughout the school year. Parents are asked to sign this agreement along with their children.

Anyone needing additional information about PALS can contact Connie Gilbert at the HJH or Dianne Rowton at HHS.

Red Ribbon Week, held in conjunction with Drug Awareness Week, is part of a national campaign sponsored by the National Federation of Parents with President and Mrs. George Bush serving as official chairpersons.

Red ribbons, symbolizing an individual's commitment to being drug free, will be sold (50 cents each) by PALS members throughout the week.

Pals of PALS

Mixed in the crowd of PALS (Peers As Leaders) members are three local officials who are included in those endorsing the drug abuse prevention public awareness program conducted during Drug Awareness Week, Oct. 23-27. District Attorney Roland Saul, Deaf Smith County Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine and Juvenile Peace Officer Lupe Chavez are all being pinned with red ribbons by PALS members. The red ribbon's symbolize a commitment to remain drug free.

92-year-old ready to rock 'n' roll Oct. 24

"It's an easy job and a lot of fun," Helen Stark says of her past participation in the annual Rock 'n' Roll Jamboree to benefit the American Heart Association.

Mrs. Stark will be one of the rockers, maybe the oldest one, at the 1989 event set to begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 24, in the Lamar Room at King's Manor Methodist Home. This will be the third time she has helped raise money for the AHA by manning her own favorite rocking chair.

She hopes to bring in more funds than the substantial contribution made last year and is very pleased that money is being pledged already, based on her entry. The public is invited to visit the Jamboree at any time during the day and make pledges in support of the rock 'n' rollers.

Mrs. Stark may not be the oldest participant, she says, but her 92 years will place her near the top of the list. She plans to enjoy the program that will be presented during the Jamboree and admits that she just may slip in a short nap, as she did last year!

Entertainers on the program will include the Young At Heart Choir and the Golden Line Dancers from Hereford Senior Citizens, as well as other musicians of the city.

A resident at King's Manor the past two years, Mrs. Stark has lived in Hereford about 10 times that long. She and her husband, the late Ross Stark, moved here from O'Donnell after the death of her father, William McGehee, in 1966, to make their home with her mother, Katie McGehee.

Mrs. Stark comes from a long-lived family: William McGehee died at the age of 93 and Katie McGehee at 102.

TIFFANY LEGATE, BLAKE CONFER

Wedding date set

Tiffany Jo LeGate and William Blake Anthony Confer, both of Lubbock, plan to be united in marriage Dec. 16 in First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom LeGate of 129 Nueces and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Confer of Route 1, Hereford.

Miss LeGate, a graduate of Hereford High School, is a junior merchandising major at Texas Tech University. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta Sorority.

Confer, also a HHS graduate, is presently a junior agriculture/economics major at Texas Tech University. He works part-time for Merrick Pet Food.

The couple attends Trinity Fellowship in Lubbock.

The United States exploded its first atomic bomb over the desert in Mogordo, N.M., on July 16, 1945.

Dyslexia program active in Hereford School District

Dyslexia was the topic Marline Watson spoke on at La Afflatus Study Club's meeting held at the home of Pet Ott Tuesday.

Interest came to the Hereford Independent School District from a mother who discovered her son had trouble understanding words. Watson stated that very intelligent children may not be able to read, but after attending classes are capable of meeting situations as they come. Watson is among those who teaches alphabetic phonics in the Hereford Independent School District.

The program was originated by Dr. Lucious Waits and Dr. Aylette Cox. They were successful in getting the program into the schools.

The club will meet Nov. 7 in the home of Lydia Hopson. Mary Robinson will give the program on Pegasus in Hereford schools.

Members voted to renew a membership to Friends of The Library. Co-hostess was Opal Elliston.

Those attending were President Mary Williamson, Etoile Manning, Aileen Montgomery, Lola Jewell, Bea Hutson, Alberta Higgins, Della Stagner, Ott, Elliston, Watson, and Emily Suggs.

Every school's crystal ball clouds up on occasion. Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., dropped novelist Stephen Crane after he flunked freshman English. "Lafayette has turned out some very good men," Crane said. "They turned me out."

Thank You

It is so very difficult to properly express my thanks to each of you who have shown me so much kindness during my recent illness. I would, however, like to extend my deep gratitude for all your thoughts, cards, phone calls and other expressions of concern. I don't know when I've felt more pampered. Thanks again for your kindness.

HEREFORD COMMUNITY CONCERT ASSOCIATION

"Big-Time Entertainment Here At Home"

The Patron Program

Each year the members of our Association pool their membership fees into a fund to bring outstanding music and dance to our city. This size of the fund determines the number and type of concerts we can afford. The costs of the various concerts range from about $2,000 up to fees far in excess of our budget - $20,000 and more. Some years ago we launched a "Patron Plan" - asking friends of finer things for Hereford to contribute annually to a special fund to add to our membership fees, to enable us to have more and finer concerts. Each year brings additional interest in our Patron Program. This year our contributions are more than $5,000. You will benefit from this now and in the future. Please join the officers and directors of the Association in expressing your appreciation to our patrons for 1989-1990.

MRS. KEVIN FOSTER
...nee Rosie Waller

Waller, Foster wed in Hereford Oct. 14

Rose Marie Waller became the bride of Kevin Thomas Foster during a back yard ceremony Oct. 14 at the home of Charles and Linda Minchew.

The marriage was officiated by Church of Christ minister, Tom Harguess of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Domenica Waller of Saudi Arabia and the late Oliver Waller. The bridegroom is the son of Leroy Foster of Hereford.

The bride was given away by her maternal grandfather, Salvator Pistorio of Silver Springs, Md., and her uncle, Charles Minchew.

The back yard was decorated with a white wrought iron arch accented with greenery and flanked by ivy plants.

Dena Stafford of Gaithersburg, Md. served her cousin as maid of honor.

The ceremony was preceded by a tape recording of "Wedding March" and "You Light Up My Life".

The bride was attired in a tea-length ivory satin dress trimmed with Venice lace with long tapered sleeves and self-fabric bow in back. Silk spray and pearls highlighted the double pouf teardrop headband. She carried a silk ivory bouquet of rubium lilies and roses with peach accents. She wore teardrop pearl earrings borrowed from her aunt.

Her attendant wore a peach satin dress fashioned with a rounded collar and drop waist. She carried a bouquet of peach rubium lilies and ivory roses.

A reception was held at the fellowship room of Central Church of Christ.

The bride's cake was served by her cousin, Dana Minchew, and the groom's cake was served by Kim Foster, his sister. Punch was poured by the bride's cousin, Brenda Minchew, and coffee was served by Kay Paetzold, sister of the groom.

The bride's table decorations were highlighted with a three-tier traditional white cake topped with doves centered in a heart and a cascade of peach roses. Also, accenting the table were candelabra and peach colored punch.

A German chocolate cake and pewter candlesticks with peach tapers highlighted the groom's table.

The couple left for a wedding trip to various points of interest. They will be making their home in Hereford.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1986 and LaPlata Beauty School in 1988. She is employed at Perfect Touch.

The groom is a 1982 graduate from HHS and is employed with Brandon and Clark Electric.

Out of town guests were grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Pistorio of Silver Springs, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Waymon Gordon of Sudan, Texas; Antoinette Pistorio of Canton, Mi; and Mrs. Agatha Pope; Dena Stafford of Gaithersburg, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Troy Waller of Amarillo and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Minchew of Dimmitt, Texas.

Connally nominated

Wendy Connally of Hereford was among 18 Southwest Texas State University coeds that have been nominated for western homecoming queen honors.

Connally, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Butch Connally of 503 E. Fifth St., is a freshman elementary education major. She was nominated by Falls Hall.

The queen will be crowned during an intermission in the SWT Rodeo Association's Nancy Groff Memorial Scholarship dance Nov. 2 at Cuauhtemoc Hall in San Marcos. The western dance is a traditional part of SWT's annual homecoming celebration.

Colonists founded "Queens College" in Charlotte, N.C., in 1771. But King George III revoked its charter because he thought it was too "revolutionary." Not to be denied, the people of Charlotte established the current Queens College in

Applicants being sought for recruit training school

Major V. J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety in Lubbock has announced that the D.P.S. is seeking applicants for a recruit training school scheduled to begin March 27, 1990. He stated, "We are seeking qualified men and women who are interested in becoming DPS Troopers."

Applicants will be accepted through January 19, 1990 at the Lubbock, Amarillo and Wichita Falls offices. Entrance examinations will be given beginning at 8 a.m. each Wednesday at the Amarillo and Wichita Falls offices and at 8 a.m. each Tuesday and Thursday at the Lubbock office. Tests will take all day to complete.

Approximately 140 men and women will be selected to begin training in the exciting career of law enforcement. Beginning monthly salary is $1,622 while attending the 22 week academy, $1,865 a month upon graduation and $2,362.50 a month after completion of twelve months probation.

Applicants must be 20 to 35 years old, of good moral character, in excellent physical condition and a U.S. citizen. Sixty semester hours of college or equivalent military or police experience are required. Graduates of the DPS Academy will be assigned either to the Highway Patrol or Drivers License Service. After two years of service, DPS Troopers are afforded the opportunity to advance in the Criminal Law Enforcement division, which includes Narcotics Service, Criminal Intelligence Service and Motor Vehicle Theft Service. After four years of service, they can compete for the position of Sergeant in the Traffic Law Enforcement division.

Major Cawthon said, "If you are interested in a career with the Texas Department of Public Safety, contact your local DPS Trooper or go by any DPS facility and pick up an application."

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Parents should pay attention to their children's crushes and find opportunities to talk with them about what they find appealing in other people, says a University of Rochester clinical psychologist.

"Many parents don't take puppy love seriously and don't express an interest in what their children find attractive," says Dr. Pieter Leroux.

JAIME NEEPER, LAWRENCE BRORMAN

CANDY CREEL, MARK LUCHSINGER

Nuptials planned

Jaime Leigh Neeper of 623 Star and Lawrence Conrad Brorman of Route 1, Hereford, have set Dec. 29 as their wedding date. The couple plans to exchange nuptials in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Grace Y. Neeper of Parker, Ariz. and the late Wayne Truitt Neeper Sr. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Margaret Brorman of 117

Northwest Drive and the late Joe Brorman.

Miss Neeper is employed by the United States Department of Agriculture-Soil Conservation Service as a soil conservationist. She graduated from the University of Arizona with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture.

Brorman is engaged in farming northeast of Hereford.

Hints from Heloise

PERM HELP

Dear Heloise: Whenever I'd use a home permanent, I'd have trouble with the solution dripping. I tried petroleum jelly and cotton, but it still dripped. Then I found a better method. I put on a headband — the terry cloth kind that you wear for sports or exercising — and tuck the cotton inside it. The headband keeps the cotton in place and there's very little dripping. — Carolyn Hunter, Waterloo, Neb.

BREAD BOX

Dear Heloise: My brand-new wooden bread box taints our bread with a terrible flavor and odor. Airing hasn't helped any. What else can I do? — Joni Earls, Columbus, Ohio

Most of the bread boxes that have an odor problem are made of pine, which has a resin in the wood that gives off the strong smell. If this is the case, it may be impossible to get rid of the odor.

You can try putting charcoal in the box for a few days and see if it will absorb the odor. You might also want to try an air-tight plastic container that would fit inside your bread box to actually hold the bread, with the wooden box just being decorative.

If you can't get rid of the odor, try to find another use for the bread box. They're really attractive in the kitchen and can be used to store things that the odor wouldn't be a problem for, such as coupons, stationery or even small appliances like your hand mixer. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 706000, San Antonio, TX 78279 or fax it to 512-HELLOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Extension News

BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent

There's no such thing as a "perfect" parent, and trying to fit unrealistic expectation may mean you no longer enjoy what can be a fulfilling role.

Here are some ideas for avoiding the perfect parent trap:

Honestly assess your goals. Do you expect too much of yourself? No one is perfect at everything — including parenting.

Be willing to accept children's help. Even young children can put away toys, help set the table or make their beds. It may not be done to standards, but remember there are steps to learning all tasks. Encouragement will motivate the child to improve.

Recognize that you are not instantly equipped with parenting skills. Most jobs require a training period. Parenting is no exception.

but the training usually is done on the job. Just about the time you learn a skill, the children grow and change, requiring you to learn new skills.

Develop a sense of humor. Perfectionists tend to take themselves and their children too seriously. Recognize that children are messy, active, become tired and sometimes make mistakes.

Learn to accept what can't be changed. Each day has 24 hours and only so much can be accomplished in that time. Parents may try so hard to get everything done that they don't feel good about what they are doing.

Learn to relax and find some time away from the children. It's important for parents to sometimes make changes to cope with the daily demands of parenthood. Relaxation will allow you to tackle your parental responsibilities with renewed enthusiasm.

Enjoy your children. Their growth and development can be one of your greatest pleasures.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Date loaf recipes distributed

Members of the Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Pet Ott with Coreen Odum demonstrating date loaf.

Odum passed out recipes for date loaf and demonstrated how to prepare it. She also brought date loaf candy she had prepared earlier in the microwave.

Co-hostess Clara Trowbridge gave the opening exercise "Rays of Hope" and President Audrey Rusher conducted the business meeting.

The T.E.H.A. prayer was given and pledges to the United States and Texas flag were repeated. Argen Draper volunteered to act as secretary.

Roll call was answered to "my largest flop in making candy".

The next meeting will be Nov. 2, 2:30 p.m., in the home of Draper.

Members present were Draper, Virgie Duncan, Marcie Ginn, Camelia Jones, Ethel Logan, Ott, Rusher, Throwbridge, Mary Stubbsfield, and Dorothy Lundry.

High honors awarded

High honors have been awarded to two Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers. Jennifer Hicks and Wendy Peabody were Texas winners of the 1989 State Record Book Judging.

JENNIFER HICKS

WENDY PEABODY

Hicks is the 14-year-old daughter of Mark and Susan Hicks and Peabody is the 15-year-old daughter of Darliss and Ted Peabody.

Of 40 areas in which 4-H'ers from throughout the state participated, these youths were winners in their respective categories of Food and Nutrition and Family Life Education.

An additional honor has been awarded to Hicks at the national level of competition. Her achievements in the area of food and nutrition gained her recognition as one of six national winners. A scholarship will be presented to her by General Foods, Inc. Texas leads the 1989 Congress delegation in national winners.

Both Hicks and Peabody will travel to Nation 4-H Congress in December. National 4-H Congress is a six-day event keyed to the recognition and continued educational development of the nation's most outstanding 4-H youth. Approximately 1,700 4-H members from the states will participate in Congress activities.

Congress is designed to recognize the delegates for outstanding achievements and an opportunity to exchange ideas with representatives from the private sector. Workshops and forums offer 4-H members and adults the opportunity to discuss current concerns of youth preparing to enter the adult world and become future leaders. Convening in Chicago provides opportunities for educational field trips and an opportunity to view commerce and industry firsthand.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

HEATHER GEE, SHANE SMITH

January wedding slated

Heather Elizabeth Gee of Hereford and Shane Landon Smith of Amarillo have set Jan. 6, 1990, as their wedding date. They will be united in marriage in Trinity Fellowship Chapel of Amarillo.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Warren and Billie Jo Gee of Route 4, Hereford, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Jerry and Donna Smith of Clovis, N.M.

Miss Gee, a junior nursing student at West Texas State University, graduated from Hereford High School in 1986. She is employed for Dr. Dennis L. Canon of Canyon and Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Smith, a 1984 graduate of First Baptist High School of Lubbock, graduated magna cum laude in 1988 from WTSU with a B.B.A. degree in marketing. He is the account manager at Corporate Systems in Amarillo.

Walk-a-thon scheduled

A Benefit Walk-a-thon for Holly King will be held from 2-4 p.m. today, Sunday, at Sugarland Mall.

The event is being sponsored by the Caring and Sharing Groups from St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Prizes, donated from several Hereford merchants, will be given to those who collect the most money.

A concession stand will be set-up during the afternoon and a bake sale is planned in conjunction with the walk-a-thon.

DENVER (AP) - Comedian Pat Paulsen's estranged wife has agreed to seek no alimony or marital property from him, lawyers for the couple say, but a palimony suit is still pending.

Abundant Life

SELF-PITY IS SELF-DEFEAT BOB WEAR

Self-pity weakens and can destroy our moral fiber. It is repulsive to all who see its manifestations and adds to the difficulties and sorrow from whence it issues. Self-pity does not help improve any situation and usually becomes a barrier to improvement and correction. We must learn how to accept our mistakes and failures without feeling sorry for ourselves. Of course, we must be understanding, kind and fair with ourselves, but never sorry for ourselves.

It is impossible to confine self-pity to some isolated facet of one's life, because this dissipating influence is pervasive and spreads to other parts of the life pattern. Our concern about ourselves and our justified self-consideration must never be permitted to degenerate to the level of self-pity.

Excessive self-centeredness contributes to self-pity. It is right and wise to be conscious of self and give self the proper consideration but to be self-centered is too much of self. When there is too much of self, the living experience becomes distorted, our difficulties are exaggerated and we become susceptible to a debilitating degree of self-pity.

Unjustified expectations will eventually lead to self-pity, because the disappointments generated by poorly formed expectations will produce strong feelings of sorrow for one's self. We must be certain that expectations are sensible; that they are realistic; and that they are justified.

If we think too much about what we do not have, what we can not do, and what cannot be; we will soon be feeling sorry for ourselves. We must be sincerely thankful for what we do have, and rejoice honestly in what we are able to accomplish; even while we are trying to improve ourselves and our situation.

Self-pity produces powerful negative forces which will cause self-defeat.

ATLANTA (AP) - Arista Records plans to record Whitney Houston and other big-name artists at a new recording studio that company officials hope will make Atlanta "the Motown of the South."

The studio will be part of a new label, LaFace, and will be run by Antonio Reid and Kenny Edmonds, Arista President Clive Davis said Thursday.

The pair, who have written or produced songs for artists such as Paula Abdul, Bobby Brown and Sheena Easton, recently moved to Atlanta from Los Angeles, Davis said.

In a memo to Arista employees in New York this week, Davis said Reid and Edmonds "will produce a limited number of outside projects

Here's another necessity for your apartment.

If you are living in an apartment or duplex, this may be the first opportunity you've had to experience the terrific benefits of having natural gas in your home. You will find that for heating your home during cold weather, for hot water, or for cooking, nothing beats natural gas for convenience, economy, and efficiency.

With cooler temperatures just around the corner, here are a few reminders from your friends at Energas Company on the safe and responsible use of natural gas where you live.

Your furnace needs an annual check-up.

Your natural gas furnace has been sitting quietly all summer, waiting for the time it's really needed. And like anything that's been idle a while, your furnace needs a checkup before it starts back to work. You may want to check with your landlord or apartment manager about arranging for an annual inspection by a qualified professional heating contractor. Once it's been inspected, your furnace should require very little attention the rest of the winter.

A closet isn't always a closet.

Your water heater or furnace is probably in a closet all by itself. And that's the way it should stay. As tempting as it may be, don't use the space around a water heater or furnace for storage. Even if these major appliances sit in the open, the space around them should be kept clear to insure adequate air circulation.

If you smell gas.

We hope that you will never have to deal with a gas leak. If you do smell gas, day or night, exit the building then call your local Energas office immediately. Do not flip light switches or use any other electrical equipment. Do not light a match or a candle. Do not try to find the leak yourself.

For more information.

REBECCA WALLS

The Fourth Durango by Ross Thomas is a small isolated beach city in Southern California. This small community of 9,861 has magnificent weather. There is no industry to speak of so the citizens find it difficult to pay their bills and purchase food. To help the economy of this small struggling community, the beautiful ingenious young mayor, B.D. Huckins, and chief of Police Sid Fork, go into the hide out business by selling sanctuary to those who have former friends and associates trying to kill them.

The newest Durango customer is the brilliant Jack Adair, an ex-chief justice of a state supreme court, who has just completed a term in a federal penitentiary for tax evasion. Kelly Vines, Adair's son-in-law, is the one conducting the negotiations with the mayor for sanctuary in Durango. Adair nervously awaits the decision. During the negotiation period a priest arrives in Durango and the killings begin. Who is this priest? Who is doing all the killing? Is anyone safe? Don't miss this spine-tingling, rapid fire, first rate thriller.

Army Blue by Lucian K. Truscott IV, the author of Dress Gray, takes place in 1969, the height of the Vietnam War. Lieutenant Matthew Nelson Blue IV is being held in a military prison in Saigon, charged with cowardice and desertion in the face of the enemy. The lieutenant knows about a scandal so severe that the public outcry could bring the war to a halt. The charges are a frame designed by his superiors to keep him quiet and out of action. The scandal which Lieutenant Blue has uncovered threatens to bring down the whole military establishment in Vietnam.

In an effort to save his son, Colonel Blue III and his father, a retired World War II General, lay aside their differences and travel halfway across the world to come to the aid of the young lieutenant. The Byzantine web of politics and self-interest is unlike any war either officer has fought. As the conflicts and allegiances of a great American military family are laid bare, Vietnam is revealed as never before. Lieutenant Blue's court martial forms the riveting and shocking conclusion.

President Richard M. Nixon announced in a nationally broadcast address July 15, 1971, that he would visit the People's Republic of China to seek a "normalization of relations."

The Heart of the Continent by Nancy Cato, author of All the Rivers Run, is the story of a mother and daughter whose courage and spirit of adventure in the early part of the century, bring them both tragedy and triumph. The daughter of a wealthy landowner Alix MacFarlane is expected to sit quietly at home until a "good" marriage can be arranged. Having other ideas about her life Alix defies her mother's social ambition and begins her nurse's training. At the conclusion of nurses training, Alix further defies her mother by going to work in an isolated outback settlement, where she must come to grips with the harsh conditions and learn to understand the wilderness.

Jim Manning is the rancher Alix meets, marries and follows to the arid "channel country" of Northern Australia. There Alix finds a clinic for Aborigines. A strange twist of fate leaves Alix a widow and mother of baby girl, Caro, which forces her to move back to Queensland, the land of her heritage. Caro ultimately fulfills Alix's dream of bringing medical care to the haunted, secretive country by becoming a pilot and nurse in the newly formed flying doctor service on the eve of World War II.

I would like to thank all of you for your support and help during the Friends of the Library book sale. It was a great success. If you were unable to attend the sale we still have a few titles to choose from and we will be leaving the books out for a few more weeks. So now is your chance to come look and see if there is something left you would like to have.

Preschool story time will be Thursday, 10 a.m., at the Deaf Smith County Library. All preschool children are invited to come for a story and film. The address is 211 E. 4th. For more information call 364-1206.

Annual bazaar set Nov. 10

First United Methodist Church has scheduled its annual bazaar from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10, at the church. A variety of booths will feature handmade crafts suitable for gifts and there will also be food booths selling candy, casseroles and other baked goods. During the day-long event, a western-style lunch will be served at the church from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and there will also be a snack and coffee booth. A trash-and-treasures sale will be held in the former Stark home adjoining the church fellowship hall. Discussing preparations for the bazaar are Irving Willoughby, Bartley Dowell, Sue Sims and Dee Anne Trotter.

Rehearsing for concert

The public is invited to take a nostalgic journey through the popular music of the 1920s, 30s and 40s during the Hereford Chamber Singers' concert, "A Sentimental Journey", set for 3 p.m. today, Sunday, in the Hereford High School auditorium. Tickets are priced at $4 per person and will be available at the door. Rehearsing the song, "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby", with Peaches Reinauer are Lanny Cook, Joe D. Rogers and Max Borden. The Hereford Chamber Singers currently have 48 active members after eight new members were added this fall.

The average potato yield is 10,000 pounds to the acre. The same acre will yield only 1,000 pounds of wheat.

KIM WILLIAMSON, DANNY SCHWERTNER

Couple to wed

Kim Williamson of Carlsbad, N.M. and Danny Schwertner of Hereford plan to wed Nov. 18 in Carlsbad Victory Baptist Church in Carlsbad, N.M.

The bride-elect is the daughter of John and JoAnn Williamson of Carlsbad and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Travis and Alleen Schwertner of Lubbock.

Miss Williamson is a 1986 graduate of Carlsbad High School and has been employed at McIlroy Chiropractic Center in Lubbock.

Schwertner graduated from Lubbock Coronado High School in 1983. He received a bachelor of science degree in 1988 from West Texas State University and is employed for the Hereford Police Department.

1989-90 officers

Members of the Business Professionals of America met recently to elect 1989-90 officers. On top row, from left, are Christie Savage, historian; Tracy Flood, reporter; Julie Cherry, vice president; and Elizabeth Cortez, secretary. Others include, front row, from left, Martha Garcia, parliamentarian; Tonya Deckard, president; and Mary Cortez, treasurer.

Christmas Festival Dec. 2-3

The public is invited to attend the annual Christmas Crafts Festival Dec. 2-3 at Sugarland Mall.

Set-up time will be held from 7-10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 2. The festival will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Dec. 2 and from noon until 5 p.m. Dec. 3.

All items must be handmade; no commercial booths will be allowed; no mass produced items, kits or imported items will be allowed; and no food items may be sold except in designated food booths. Prints may be sold.

Booth space will be approximately 9 x 12 ft. Rental fee for a single booth will be $40. There will be no commission on sales.

No refunds will be given after Nov. 15 unless booth space can be resold. Booth rental is on a first come basis.

All tables, chairs, easels, etc. must be furnished by the artist. Each exhibitor will be responsible for collection of sales tax on merchandise sold as well as payment to the state comptroller.

Each artist will be responsible for his booth and the property therein. More than one artist may share a booth. Exhibitors are not permitted to have small children with them during festival hours.

For further information, call Euman Lyles at 364-1127 or write to: 1989 Christmas Crafts Festival, P.O. Box 862, Hereford, Texas 79045.

Senator Barry Goldwater's 1964 election slogan was AuH2O—the chemical symbols for gold and water.

Driver, vehicle should be in best possible condition

The Texas Department of Public Safety reminds motorists that the winter season is upon us, and it's time, once again, to get both the driver and the vehicle in the best possible condition for this most grueling driving season.

Major V. J. Cawthon, Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, Region 5, said, "Winter driving can be very hazardous. Driver's are faced with many dangerous obstacles: nights are longer, freezing temperatures, snow, sleet, and ice covered roads, all creating handicaps for the driver."

The most important safety tip for winter drivings is to "slow down". On ice covered roads, only drive when it is necessary and realize that it's going to take you at least twice as long to cover that same distance as when the road was dry and clear of ice. So, remember to set more time aside for driving under winter conditions.

When temperatures drop below the freezing point, drivers must guard against reduced visibility caused by frosted windows and windshields. Allow your car's engine to warm up and for the defroster to become effective before driving. Be sure your windows and headlights are clear and free of any obstructions, like mud or snow. Do all this in advance, before you hit the road.

Major Cawthon stated, "During adverse weather conditions, allow yourself plenty of travel time and try not to make your vehicle a wristwatch and the highway a magic time machine by trying to make up for lost time on the streets and highways."

The Texas Department of Public Safety reminds you that the hazards of winter driving can be reduced. It's in your hands, the defensive driver, to make for a safe winter.

Rioting against the Civil War military draft erupted in New York City July 13, 1863. The violence resulted in the deaths of about 1,000 people over the next three days.

Deadline near for wool-sewing contest

Preparations for the District I "Make It Yourself With Wool Contest" are now underway.

The contest, in which entrants select, make and model a wool garment of their choice, is sponsored by the American Sheep and Goat Raisers Association. Fabrics used for the contest must be at least 60 percent wool or mohair.

The four divisions are pre-teen, under age 14; junior, ages 14-17; senior, ages 18-24; and adult, over 24.

Junior and senior winners at the state level will win a trip to the national finals of the "Make It Yourself With Wool Contest" January 13-15 in Phoenix, Arizona. Nine district contests will be held throughout Texas. The winners from each district will go on to the state competition Dec. 2 in San Angelo on the Angelo State University Campus.

The District I Contest will begin at 9 a.m. Nov. 18 in the J. Lindsey Nunn Building at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview.

Entry blanks may be obtained by calling Colleen Chadwick, County Extension Agent - Home Economics, at 293-8481, ext. 269, or by writing her at Box 680, Plainview, Texas 79073-0680. Entry blanks are also available from home economics teachers, local County Extension Agent Beverly Harder at 364-3573 and from Sew'n'Tell in Hereford.

Entries are due at the Hale County Extension office by Nov. 3. No late entries will be accepted.

Prizes to be awarded at all levels of competition include Pendleton wool, savings bond, sewing machines, handwoven wool rugs, and trips at the state and national level, Chadwick said.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Singer-actress Leslie Uggams says the portrayal of blacks on television has changed little since she starred in her own variety show in 1970.

Uggams said she would love to be in a series such as ABC-TV's "Life Goes On," which stars Patti Lupone as the mother of a family that includes a child with Down's syndrome. But dramatic series about black families are not being made, said Uggams.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I admire the way you take your lumps and admit it when you have given clunker advice, but please don't back off when your right.

I refer to the letter about two Milwaukee teenagers who were caught in the act by the girl's parents. Readers who thought the couple was behaving responsibly because they were using two kinds of birth control need to look at the total picture. Responsible behavior is saying "NO" to self-indulgence and abstaining from high school sex. It's crazy to think 16-year-olds can handle a sexual relationship. Look around and you will see large numbers of adults who are doing a lousy job of it. -- Parents of Three (Chicago) Teens

DEAR PARENTS: Thanks for your support. I received several thousand letters from readers who share your views. Surprisingly, about 70 percent were teenagers. Read on:

FROM TORONTO: I'm a 16-year-old girl who didn't think your advice to teenagers who were having sex was either "square" or "unrealistic." I thought it was right on. I have a steady who is very good looking, very smart and very tempting, but we have established some guidelines so we won't get into trouble. We both believe that if two people really care about each other, they will not risk one another's health, reputation and future for a few minutes of forbidden pleasure.

FROM ANCHORAGE: I'm a 17-year-old who thinks your "old-fashioned, square" advice is great. I wish I had paid attention to it when I was 15. I thought I was in love with a guy who promised he would stick by me no matter what. Well, I got pregnant when I was 15. He had the nerve to say the kid wasn't his and dropped me like a hot potato. Thank God my folks stood by me. I'm back in school now, determined to get my diploma, but you just don't fit in when you have a baby at home. I feel so old for my years, like I missed my youth. What I wouldn't give to relive those days when I was footloose and fancy free.

LOS ANGELES: I'm a 16-year-old virgin who intends to stay away from sex until I am ready for marriage. When a guy puts the hard-shell on me, I know he is not thinking of my welfare, only his own animal urges.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.: Unfortunately, it's not trendy to have moral values these days. People are afraid of being called "square" so they abandon their principles and run with the herd. But millions of people are behind you, Ann. Hold your ground. Keep your standards high. Don't cave in to the pleasure seekers. Deep down the teenagers know you are right and they respect you.

MADISON, WIS.: I'm 20 now but when I was 16, I was having sex with three different guys. They all hated condoms so I let them get away with the withdrawal method. Of course I got pregnant. Suddenly I had no friends. I learned too late that the girls who say "no" are the big winners. Stick to your guns, Annie.

PHILADELPHIA: I teach in an urban high school and use your columns in my classes. My students respect you and look to you for solid values since many of them aren't learning much at home. Now that there is AIDS, we must rethink all our behavioral patterns. What use to be considered "safe sex" isn't so safe any more. Condoms have a 10 percent failure rate. IUDs and diaphragms offer no protection whatever against the deadly virus. The only sure thing is total abstinence. This is what I am teaching my students, and I am delighted that you have backed me up. God bless you.

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers' Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $4.45.)

Decorate on tight budget

Decorating a home costs so much these days. If only a decorator would explain to the do-it-yourselfer where it is safe to cut corners and where it isn't.

With this in mind, we asked decorating authority Mary Gilliatt for some hints on how to economize and still create an attractive home.

"It's very important that the framework of a room be right," says Gilliatt, whose books include "Decorating on the Cheap." By framework, she means walls, floor, ceiling and windows.

Walls, she says, are among a room's most noticeable points, so start with good paint. Cheap paint will flake off and you'll have to redo the job, so you won't save in the long run.

"People tend to paint the room white when they don't have much to spend," Gilliatt says, "but terra cotta (or another dark color) will look more elegant, especially if you have white woodwork."

One of the more expensive paint jobs these days involves applying a faux finish, such as glazing, trompe l'oeil or ragging. Gilliatt says to get the look without the expense, hang one of the newer faux finish wall-coverings and then apply a coat of semi-gloss polyurethane with roller or brush. This will make it look more like an expensive painted finish and will be easier to clean.

Another idea for walls is to use borders to finish off the room. Choose a narrow border for just above the baseboard. Use borders to imitate a dado or chair rail - which adds architectural character. A real dado or chair rail can be added with ready-made molding. Paint walls above the line and apply wallcovering below it.

Saving money by cutting corners on quality is false economy, according to Gilliatt, especially where comfort is concerned. She counts mattresses and chairs and carpeting used in high traffic areas among furnishings that will repay you for choosing good quality.

"Put the good carpet where it will get the hardest use - in hallways and foyers," she says, but in a bedroom, where there's much less wear, choose a lesser quality if necessary. Also, shop the sales.

You can also save by choosing a less expensive floor covering such as matting or rag rugs, by leaving the floors bare or by painting them.

When shopping for dining room furniture, you can save money on a table, which is usually covered with a cloth anyway, but reward yourself and your guests with comfortable chairs, says Gilliatt.

With window treatments, remember that draperies should be lined to look good - an expensive proposition no matter the type of fabric. So if you want to save money, use a less expensive treatment such as matchstick blinds or miniblinds. To lend these basic window coverings some distinction, spray paint a design on the matchsticks or paint them an unusual color to coordinate with your room.

Those with woodworking skills, or who have access to someone with the skills, can frame windows with 2-by-4 lumber and build a window seat for a custom look that's inexpensive.

Some Gilliatt quick tips to make any room look better:

- Place interesting house plants in the room.

- Buy several inexpensive uprights and place them behind the plants and furniture. "This will make any room look enormously more expensive," she says.

- Disguise or minimize threadbare sofas and chairs with a piece of old fabric, such as a shawl, draped across the seat back.

- Paint a floor in a checkerboard pattern using two of your favorite colors already in the room.

- Paint furniture you find in second-hand stores bright colors. You can use a mix of colors on the same piece or paint side chairs each a different color.

- Choose a neutral (Gilliatt prefers white) and make the entire room different shades of that color.

Gilliatt recently decorated a bedroom in white "on practically no money" by covering the bed with a white cotton spread and the pillows in old cases and by draping cheesecloth over the canopy. There is a cream color rug and a white chaise with a cream wool throw.

"The different whites," says Gilliatt, "make the room look sumptuous."

Stagecoaches began to run over colonial roads during the time of George Washington.

KAREN JONES, CARL WATSON

The Scots did not invent the bagpipe. It is actually a very ancient instrument, which was introduced into the British Isles by the Romans.

Engagement announced

Karen Jo Jones and Carl Watson, both of Amarillo, will marry Nov. 10 in Angel Fire Baptist Church in Angel Fire, N.M.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Paul and Martha Jones of Route 5, Hereford, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Faylon and Nancy Watson of Clarendon.

Miss Jones attended Hereford High School and is currently employed at Tascosa National Bank in Amarillo.

Watson graduated from Clarendon High School and is also employed at Tascosa National Bank in Amarillo.

More than 2.5 million couples marry each year in the United States.
