On-site sewage new ballgame with inspection

City Editor

For many years bore holes and cesspools have been an inexpensive answer to sewage treatment at rural sites. New federal, state and local mandates now forbid the construction of these low cost, potentially highrisk on-site sewage facilities.

Jim McMorries, newly appointed septic tank inspector for Deaf Smith County, estimates that 97 percent of the on-site sewage facilities in the county today are bore holes. ## Committee hopes to pass bill

AUSTIN (AP) - Leaders of a House-Senate conference committee working on an overhaul of the workers' compensation system say the panel will pass a bill today but that measure's fate in the full House and Senate remains up in the air.

"It's just sort of wait and see." Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday. "It's kind of like watching water boil."

The current special session ends Dec. 13, but Clements said he will call lawmakers back into an immediate special legislative session if the current one fails to produce "meaningful"

Clements blamed the legislative impasse on trial lawyers, who represent injured workers in disputed compensation cases.

"So, this Christmas, the role of Scrooge may be played by the trial lawyers themselves," Clements said, adding that he will make lawmakers work until Easter if that's what it takes to get a bill.

Clements wants a business-backed reform proposal supported by himself, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Texas Trial Lawyers Association president Mike Perrin shot back at Clements, saying, "The bill that he and his cronics are trying to peddle to the Texas Legislature is a cruel joke."

Perrin said the business-supported reform bill would increase the workers' comp bureaucracy and insurance premiums.

'When they get around to casting the role of Scrooge, Gov. Clements and the big business boys have the inside track on an academy award," Perrin said.

Right to die considered by court

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court addresses wrenching ethical, medical and legal questions as it studies a Missouri couple's request to end life-sustaining treatment for their permanently unconscious daughter.

Preparing for its first "right-todie" decision, the court today was to hear arguments over the asserted right of Nancy Cruzan's parents to precipitate her death. Ms. Cruzan, 32, has been in what doctors call a persistent vegetative state for almost seven years. Her parents, Joe and Joyce Cruzan, are asking the court to let them order removal of a surgically implanted tube providing her with food and water.

The Missouri Supreme Court ruled doctors may not remove the tube.

Ms. Cruzan suffered severe brain damage in a Jan. 11, 1983, car crash. She lies in a hospital bed, her body rigid, her hands and feet constricted and bent into claw shapes. Doctors say she cannot experience thoughts or emotions, and that her condition is irreversible.

But Ms. Cruzan can breathe on her own and has periods when her eyes are open and move randomly.

The surgically implanted tube could keep her alive for 30 years or more, doctors say. Without it, she would soon die of starvation or dehydration.

Joe Cruzan, a sheet-metal worker, allowed doctors to implant the tube four weeks after his daughter's accident. He said he was told he could have it removed after a year if there were no improvement in her condition.

The right-to-die issue captured national headlines in 1976 when the New Jersey Supreme Court allowed the family of Karen Ann Quinlan to order removal of a respirator helping her breathe. Ms. Quinlan, in a similar coma-like state, continued to be fed through a tube and lived for nine more

Some conservatives have expressed unhappiness over the summit, saying that Bush gave the Soviets economic concessions without securing a commitment to keep Moscow-made weapons out of Central America.

At the summit, Bush endorsed giving Moscow observer status at the world's leading economic regulatory body and proposed June as a target date for completing a trade agreement granting the Soviet Union mostfavored-nation status, which would result in an easing of trade barriers.

Lady Whitefaces, Herd JV gain wins

Hereford Whiteface varsity and JV basketball teams gained a split in District 1-4A action at Dumas on Tuesday as the Lady Whitefaces pulled off a 44-42 win and the Herd JV took a 41-31 decision.

The Herd varsity suffered its sixth loss of the season to open district play, 82-59, while the Lady Whiteface JV Stacy White scored the winning basket with less than 15 seconds left in the game to give Hereford its first lead.

Dumas steadily built up a fivepoint lead through the first three quarters of play before Hereford mounted its comeback.

They pressed us most of the first half," Coach Dickie Faught said, "and we had some trouble with it at first. Then Brienna (Townsend) began handling it and we started coming back with our press."

The Demonettes pulled out to a 12-9 lead after the first period on the strength of six points by Keva Raper. The Herd played Dumas even in the second quarter (15-15) as five Hereford players put points on the Dumas enjoyed its biggest lead in the third quarter, scoring eight points while Shantel Cornelius put in all six Hereford points.

Hereford turned up the press to start the final eight minutes and cut the margin to two with just over four minutes remaining.

Faught said the difference in the game came at the free-throw line.

"Dumas had two more field goals than we did," he said, "but we were 12 of 15 at the line (80 percent)."

Johnson said linebacker Jessie Small deliberately went out of his way to hurt Zendejas. Johnson said he would have confronted Ryan on the field after that game but Ryan "hustled his fat rear end to the dressing room."

Ware paces All-America selections

By RICK WARNER AP Football Writer

Last week, they were rivals. Now Houston quarterback Andre Ware and Indiana running back Anthony Thompson are teammates.

Ware, who edged Thompson in voting for the Heisman Trophy, joined him Tuesday on The Associated Press 1989 All-America college football

Ware broke 13 NCAA records and tied two others as the top gun in Houston's run-and-shoot offense. He capped a remarkable season last Saturday by setting season records for most completions (365) and passing yards (4,699). His 46 touchdown sses were one short of Jim McMahon's NCAA mark.

As Ware established passing standards, Thompson ran off with some marks of his own. The tailback set NCAA career marks for touchdowns and points, led the nation in rushing with 1,793 yards and broke the single-game rushing record with 377 against Wisconsin.

Ware and Thompson were unlikely candidates for stardom. Ware had virtually no preseason publicity and, because Houston was on probation, wasn't seen on television. Thompson played for a losing team at a school better known for basketball.

Yet they emerged as the top stars on an AP offensive team that includes Outland Trophy finalist Michael Tanks of Florida State and a trio of recordsetting receivers - Clarkston Hines of Duke, Emmanuel Hazard of Houston and Terance Mathis of New Mexico.

The defense features Butkus Award winner Percy Snow of Michigan State, Ryan of Southern California. The Butkus honors the top linebacker in the country; the Outland and Lombardi awards are for linemen.

Fourth-ranked Notre Dame is the only school with three players on the team - Zorich, defensive back Todd Lyght and return specialist Raghib "Rocket" Ismail. Top-ranked Colorado, No. 5 Florida State, No. 12 Southern Cal, No. 13 Houston and No. 22 Michigan State each placed two players on the team.

Joining Ware and Thompson in the backfield is Florida running back Emmitt Smith. Alongside Tanks on the offensive line are guards Eric Still of Tennessee and Joe Garten of Colorado and tackles Bob Kula of Michigan State and Jim Mabry of Arkansas. Jason Hanson of Washington State is

The All-America team has 12 seniors, 11 juniors and two sophomores, Ismail and Hanson. The juniors are Ware, Smith, Hazard, Garten, Zorich, Gardner, McCants, Lyght, Welborne, Carrier and Rouen.

The 6-3 guard made the All-Chris Zorich of Notre Dame and Tim was ranked third nationally in rushing. He holds 58 school records and is the No. 5 rusher in Southeastern Conference history.

Hines caught 61 passes for 1,149 yards and set an NCAA record with 38 career touchdown catches as Duke won a share of its first Atlantic Coast Conference championship since 1965. He ended his career as the ACC leader in catches and receiving yardage.

Mathis and Hazard, both 5-foot-9 and about 170 pounds, are the smallest players on the team, but each has big numbers. Mathis, who doubled as a kick returner, set NCAA records for career catches (263) and receiving yards (4,254) and moved up to third in all-purpose career yardage with 6,691. Hazard, Ware's favorite target, set season records with 142 receptions and 22 touchdowns.

Florida State line coach Wayne McDuffie called Tanks the best center he's seen in 15 years. "He has eaten up every nose guard we've faced," McDuffie said. "No one has gotten past him for a sack."

Kula, who switched to tackle after three years at guard, replaced All-American Tony Mandarich as the anchor of a Michigan State offensive line that paved the way for the Big Ten's second-best rushing attack.

Arkansas averaged 314 yards per game on the ground behind the blocking of Mabry and his offensive linemates. A four-year letterman, Mabry helped lead the Razorbacks to their second straight Southwest Conference title this season.

Still is the heavyweight of the team

SEC academic team for the fourth straight year and was the catalyst of an offensive line that, in Coach Johnny Majors' opinion, was "as good as any we've had."

Garten was the iron man of olorado's offense, playing more downs than any other player on the undefeated team that is second nationally in rushing with 372 yards per game.

Ismail was a triple threat as a receiver, runner and kick returner, averaging 17 yards every time he touched the ball. He returned two kickoffs for touchdowns against Michigan and ran back a punt for a score against Air Force, giving him five returns for scores in his two seasons.

Hanson made 21 of 27 field goal attempts, missing only once inside 45 yards, and extended his point-after streak to 81 before having one blocked in the final game of the season. Five of his field goals were 50 yards or longer, including a 58-yarder that was the longest in the nation this season.

Zorich, who spearheaded a Notre Dame defense that gave up only 15 points a game, made a big impression on Stanford center Chuck Gillingham. "He was a good player last year and I think he's gotten 100 percent better," Gillingham said after Notre Dame beat Stanford 27-17. "He's got arms as big as my thighs."

Gardner was a major reason Illinois led the Big Ten in total defense. He had nine sacks, three fumble recoveries and tackled runners behind the line 19 times.

Ryan anchored a line that led the nation in rushing defense, holding opponents to 62 yards per game. The four-year starter had 96 tackles, including 19 sacks, forced three fumbles and recovered another.

Mark, a graduate student in advertising, did some excellent promotional work for Miami's topated defense. Fast for a lineman (4.7 in the 40), and versatile enough to play tackle or end, he led the team with 15{ sacks, raising his career total to 34[.

Michigan State coach George Perles, former defensive coordinator of the Pittsburgh Steelers, has compared Snow with former Steelers' great Jack Lambert. Snow needs just two tackles in the Aloha Bowl to break his own single-season school record of 164. He also intercepted three passes and blocked two field goals.

McCants, a rare combination of size and speed, is 6-5, 256 and runs a 4.5 40. He came up with a big effort in Alabama's biggest game of the year, making 18 tackles in the Tide's 30-20 loss to Auburn. "He is one of the best football players I have ever seen," Kentucky coach Jerry Claiborne said.
"He looks like an elephant and runs like a deer."

Francis had one of the finest defensive seasons in Southwest Conference history. He made 129 tackles, intercepted four passes, recovered three fumbles and blocked eight kicks, tying the NCAA singleseason record. He also scored 10 interception return.

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz calls Lyght "the most talented defensive back I've ever been around." Lyght has lived up to the billing this season with eight interceptions, including two in a season-opening victory over Carrier had seven interceptions along with 97 tackles, three fumble recoveries and nine pass deflections. Welborne picked off only two passes, but had three sacks and tackled runners for losses seven times.

Butler stepped in for departed All-American Deion Sanders at Florida State and there wasn't any dropoff. He made 93 tackles and picked off seven passes, including one that set up an early touchdown in the Seminoles' 24-10 win over Miami.

Rouen led the nation in punting with a 45.9-yard average. It is the fourth time in the last five years that a Colorado punter has made the AP team. Barry Helton did it in 1985-86 and Keith English in 1988.

The players were selected by AP sports editor Darrell Christian, college football writer Rick Warner and regional AP sports writers. The team will be featured on Bob Hope's annual Christmas show, Dec. 16 from 10-11 p.m. EST on NBC.

HOUSTON (AP) - Lorenzo White would like a chance to prove he can run in the Astrodome as well as he runs in the snow of Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

White ignored the slippery conditions Sunday by rushing for a career high 115 yards on 23 carries in the Oilers' 23-16 victory over Pittsburgh.

White scored the game-winning touchdown with 21 seconds left in the game on a 1-yard dive, set up by his own 14-yard run in the slip-and-slide conditions in Pittsburgh.

Oilers coach Jerry Glanville said White runs so well on slippery turf because he doesn't try to make as many cuts as he does on a dry field.

"On a dry field, we get mad at him because he keeps cutting and cutting and all of a sudden you don't have any yards gained, you have losses, Glanville said.

White had 31 carries and played in 11 games last season. Rozier, Alonzo Highsmith and Pinkett got most of the rushes and White was left out.

White has 99 carries, second highest on the team, this season for 340 yards for a 3.4 yards per carry average. Highsmith leads the team with 464 yards on 113 carries and Pinkett has 382 yards on 85 carries.

In an effort to conserve every piece of scrap material left over from the stadium bags, Mrs. Black pieced together some quilted nylon vests for her sons to wear to school activities and to FFA stock shows. As it turned out, their sons, Greg and Carey, became walking showcases for a new line of garment-every kid in the showring wanted a vest like the Black boys wore.

Mrs. Black turned out about a half dozen of the colorful vests on for her children's closest friends. And then came the regional stock shows in such places as Amarillo and Lubbock...wherever the vests went orders for more came back to traveling from school to school across the Southwest, showing his wife's hand-stitched vests. His big selling point was that the vests could be custom-made to fit school colors and decked with school emblems and mascot drawings. The vests became the hit of the 1970s in schools and organizations across the High Plains and eventually into the Midwest.

"At one time, I think I knew every ag teacher in Oklahoma," said Black, as he recalled their expansion into the surrounding states in the early 1970s. "The FFA boys soon found that they could make extra orders then sell the vests around town to raise money for their club activities. One of our largest marketing centers was a central Oklahoma town by the name of Clinton-it was a real powerhouse in the Oklahoma livestock showrings back then, I believe it still is."

By the mid-1970s, anyone who was anyone in Southwest livestock youth shows wore a Hereford-made vest which became something of a status symbol along the sandpacked arena trails. The washable, durable garments were also enjoyed by the household budget-makers-the vests were sold wholesale to the youngsters at $5.50 each.

and a prayer." The Black's first product was a bulky-looking body cover which he called a stadium bag. This resembled the lower half of an ordinary sleeping bag that zipped down the side of quilted nylon material. When zipped over the lower half of one's body, the stadium bag offered excellent protection during fall and winter sporting events, such as Texas football games.

"We made a sample or two, then found a market and went for it," said Black. "We decided right then and there that if we were ever going to do anything on our own, we had to get on with it."

Black had already been endoctrined into direct sales while with the dress factory where he had been employed mostly in local and regional marketing. Thus, the lateral move brought on new responsibili-ties of setting up a manufacturing plant and developing inroads to fabric factories and wholesale distributors.

Their first garment factory was nothing more than their household garage and an old Singer sewing machine. Bankers hesitated when Black offered bolts of cloth and old sewing machines for collateral. About all he and Ruth had to offer was a firm handshake and a positive attitude in gathering capital for their homespun factory.

But despite cool receptions at the money counters, Black moved against almost unsurmountable odds in his quest for a family factory. "I was on the road day and night seeking markets while Ruth stayed home taking care of our three children and keeping the garage going," said Black, who frequently smiled while speaking of the lean times."

After finding a market, the Blacks would purchase the piece goods (fabric) for a single order then send it out to sewing operation on a contract basis. "They (factories) would sew up the garments, ship them back to our residence where we would box and package the times for direct delivery," said

"After that first ball season in 1969, it dawned upon us that when the ball games were over, our stadium bag business was over until beyond their Hereford garage and orders were jobbed out to various sewing factories across the country. However, Black stayed on the road selling and his wife and family ed the packaging and shipping of the finished product from Here-

"Our factory does not mean that we're anything extra but I think it does show that if you've got enough guts and fortitude, and a little bit of luck, you can still make a success in America," said Black. "I heard recently that a big businessman in the East said success was about 2 percent luck and the other 98 percent nothing but hard work."

The Blacks were invited to set up marketing booths at the National Rodeo Finals in Las Vegas this week, but declined the offer to take care of holiday orders earmarked for Christmas gifts.

The disk-driven computers are programmed to handle any type of embroidery work--from a rose garden to a livestock showring. Various breeds of animals, such as purebred horses and cattle, are among the favorites of the Southwest. Floppy disks actually tells the embroidering machines what stitch to make and where to make it...a high-tech, high-speed version of the thimble and hand-held hoops of earlier times. With just the touch of a keyboard, thread colors may be switched on a given image--a spotted pony or a flexen-mane sorrel...a Holstein calf or Hampshire hog. The disks may be used repeatedly and are filed for future production in the factory computer disk

Silk screen logos, prints and emblems are also placed in a permanent filing system which now includes styles from hundreds of schools, businesses and organizations across the country.

In addition to direct sales and people-to-people selling, the Blacks also have a direct mailing market that includes every ag teacher in the U.S., form the junior high level to the university systems. "We've shipped to every state in the nation and to many foreign countries," said Black, who noted that in many cases, one sale leads to another.

Black said they have no plans to change their present jacket styles, waist-length nylons with snaps--"We don't like to change horses in the middle of the stream...we've going to stay with the horse that brought us here and hope he'll take us home."

The stadium bags and quilted vests carried H&R Manufacturing through the decade of the 1970s and in 1981, they expanded to the custom-made jackets. They had already purchased adequate sewing and cutting equipment for their 1973 when they arranged for their children to form a leasing company called "Lease A Stitch."

To this day, the Black children still own the equipment which is used by H&R Manufacturing Co. "Our company leases the sewing machines from Lease A Stitch," said Black, who pointed out that "H&R" stood for Herschel and Ruth.

Black chuckled a bit when he For the past 15 years, the Blacks told how they came by the company have maintained marketing booths name: "We were down in Dallas name: "We were down in Dallas showing our stadium bags to a national rep for JC Penney when he unexpectedly asked what was the work and silk screen.

We take our embroidery maat Ruth and she looked back at me and I sort of blurted out...H&R Manufacturing Co. We had never discussed a company name...we just wanted to sell stadium bags." The While relating how the company expanded step by step, Black noted that one of the largest single marketing developments came in the Midwest when the Land of the Lakes Cooperative, headquartered at Fort Dodge, Iowa, endorsed the H&R garments for its far-flung retail outlets that stretched across some six states and encompassed more than 600 stores in as many communities.

"That deal in Fort Dodge was one of our biggest single licks," said Black, who pointed out that even this market was actually developed through their own jackets. "Someone up in lowa saw one of . the jackets at stock show at the American Royal in Kansas City and just sort of found us by word-of-mouth."

Though their son, Carey, has developed the silk screening division to a fine degree, he is also involved in total management--from selecting proper FAX communications to the oldest sewing machine in the plant. Carey and his wife, Cindy, have two children, Laci and Tanner.

The Blacks daughter, Tonja (Mrs. Steve Horrell), is employed in the Hereford School system. The Blacks also had a second son, Greg, who died in a tragic roadside accident near Hereford. His two children, Eric and Erin, live in Herschel and Ruth Black speak of all their factory force on a firstname basis, with coffee breaks and noon lunches filled with laughter and jokes just a few feet away at the Corner Soda Shoppe.

Cindy Castillo, Sara Montana and Barbara Flores are experts at the sewing machines, with Emma Guevara and Daniel Garcia in Silk screening and cutting. Melida Pacheco and Sharon Ebell handle the controls at the computerized embroidery machines while Mitze Johnson is in embroidered work and high-tech digitizing. Maricella Ramirez runs the cap machine.

Just as the Blacks developed their markets step-by-step, they expanded operations step-byrented building in the 200 block of W. Third where they set up sewing operations and did their shipping from a building at Second and Main during the early 1970s.

When in 1978 the city of Hereford purchased the entire block that contained the Black operation, H&R Manufacturing purchased its present site and built the factory building that now stands in the 200 block of Ross.

One of the old landmark buildings that went under the wrecking ball with expansion of city facilities was the old Savoy Hotel...but it's not all gone. Being lovers of fron-tier relics, the Blacks salvaged some of the splintered boards of the earlyday hotel from the dump yards. The wordwork now grace the frontage of Black's personal office.

Economists foresee economic slowdown short of recession

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. year economy will continue to weaken next year but avoid a recession and any substantial change in unemployment, the nation's top business economists predicted today.

The National Association of Business Economists said a survey of its members found 62 percent to fall, with rates on three-month three years.

But the forecasters' optimism was tempered by considerable concern about the short-term outlook: Nearly 20 percent of the respondents said a recession will occur either by the end of the year or during the first three months of 1990, ending an unprecedented peacetime economic expansion that began its eighth year this month. Nevertheless, the new report was considerably more optimistic than last May's survey, which found 63 percent of the economists expecting a recession next year. Four months later, 37 percent of the economists still forecast recession in 1990.

The survey also showed an easing of inflation fears, with predictions that the consumer price index will fall from 4.8 percent forecast for 1989 to 4.2 percent next year.

At the same time, the economists expect interest rates would continue Treasury bills dropping from 8.1 percent in 1989 to 7.1 percent in 1990. For 30-year Treasury bonds, the expected estimate is 7.8 percent next year, compared with 8.4 percent this

The NABE report also suggested changes in the expected composition of the GNP in 1990.

Armstrong says story 'misquoted' him on OU

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - A man who claims the University of Oklahoma was still breaking NCAA rules after going on probation late last year says he was misquoted in a newspaper account of his story.

Meanwhile, the university president insists Sooner alumni can "rest assured" that the football program is operating within NCAA regulations.

Otha Armstrong III, 24, claimed in a copyright story in Tuesday's Dallas Morning News that he served as a middleman to pick up cash payments that a Tulsa booster sent by Western Union to former Oklahoma quarterbacks Charles Thompson and Jamelle Holieway.

Armstrong also said freshman running back Dewell Brewer received illegal benefits and at least one unofficial paid visit to Norman before he signed a letter of intent with the university in February.

However, Armstrong told The Daily Oklahoman for a story in today's editions that he was misquoted by the Dallas newspaper.

The News said Armstrong said he picked up the last money transfer in early 1989, after the football program had been placed on probation.

"I picked up none in 1989," he told The Oklahoman.

Armstrong said he relayed money from June 1988 to late in the football

Sports Editor Chris Worthington said the Morning News stands by its

"Our tape-recorded telephone conversation with Otha Armstrong backs the facts as we reported them." Worthington told The Oklahoman.

The Dallas newspaper said NCAA investigators are looking into Armstrong's allegations. David Berst, NCAA enforcement director, said Tuesday his office would have no comment.

The NCAA imposed a three-year probation on the Oklahoma football program in December 1988 for recruiting and rules violations. Oklahoma was banned from postseason play for two seasons and from live television appearances this past season.

A team becomes eligible for the socalled "death penalty" if the NCAA finds a major rules violation within five years of such penalties.

"To suggest that we are facing the 'death penalty' is simply not true,' university president Richard Van Horn said in a statement Tuesday.

Armstrong, a longtime friend of Thompson, is serving a five-year sentence for breaking into former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer's home and stealing 25 championship rings and other items.

In a telephone interview Tuesday with The Associated Press, Armstrong said his only involvement was picking up money at a Western Union office and delivering it to Thompson. Asked how much money was involved, Armstrong said: "Hundreds. Let's just leave it at hundreds right now."

Armstrong said Thompson asked him several times to go to a Western Union outlet and sign for wire transfers from the booster. Once he obtained the money, he gave it to Thompson, who gave a portion to Holieway, Armstrong

"All that stuff was stealthily done because the NCAA was investigating them at the time when I first started picking up the money," Armstrong told the Morning News.

But Armstrong said he did not know if any Oklahoma coaches were aware of the cash payments from the unnamed Tulsa booster.

"I would be stepping out of bounds if I said they did," Armstrong told The AP. "But I don't know, I really don't know at all."

Thompson is serving a two-year federal prison term at Big Spring, Texas, after pleading guilty to a charge of conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

Armstrong, Thompson and Brewer all are from Lawton, Okla. Armstrong told the Morning News that two visits Brewer made to the school were paid for by the football program. NCAA rules allow a university to pay for only one visit.

Thompson received money from a coach and paid for a hotel for Brewer's second stay, which occurred about a week before Feb. 8, the national signing day, Armstrong told the Dallas

But he told The AP Tuesday that "I didn't see coaches give him anything."

Van Horn said Armstrong's allegations "were called to the attention of the NCAA months ago, and the NCAA and OU jointly have looked into the charges."

WORRY DOESN'T HELP By Bob Wear

Worry, to some degree, is wellknown to most of us and we will probably continue to 'worry'. It seems that there is always something about which to 'worry'. It is difficult to draw the line between reasonable wise concern and worry. This 'wise concern' can be helpful but when it becomes worry we have let it go too far. executive vice president of the American Fur Industry.

The fewer seams there are, the more durable the garment. So look for a coat made of full pelts and be wary of skins interspersed with leather strips.

Harry Voziou, a New York furrier, says if you're looking for long wear, consider beaver, raccoon or mink. Pelts should run vertically n the garment. Check the texture

NEW YORK (AP) - Whether it's of the skins for a silky nap and look a sumptuous sable, sporty shearling, for uniform color and good workmanship both inside and outside.

The International Fabricare requires special attention when Institute of Silver Spring, Md., advises checking the quality of fur To protect your investment, shop used beneath the cuffs and under at a reputable retailer or dealer and the collar and lapels. Inferior skins, look for quality in material and or skins of a different animal, often construction. Make sure the lining is are used in such places.

This season's coats are full, and ragian sleeve and shawl collar also are smart bets, according to Voziou.

Keep your fur away from direct cosmetics. Hang your coat in a heat and harsh light at home and well-ventilated closet on a padded consider professional cleaning and hanger, never by its neck. Dryclean storage in the off-season. If the fur it whenever it is soiled and before gets wet, shake it gently, place it on storing. Never store a coat in a a hanger and let it dry at room temperature.

LEATHER AND SUEDE

Shearlings are warm, natural and A good fur is made entirely by less expensive than furs and are hand, according to Sandy Blye, enjoying a renewed interest among the fashion-conscious consumer. They require the same degree of care in buying and wear as other suede and leather coats.

Leather is the outside of the animal skin with all of the hair removed. Suede is the inside of the animal hide which has been mechanically treated and buffed to raise the nap and give the surface a velvety look and feel. Shearling, then, is a skin worn inside out.

A process called tanning preserves the hide. It also stretches the hide. So when buying, avoid a snug fit because some shrinkage can be expected during wear and cleaning.

Choose light and pastel colors for your leather or suede coat. They are less likely to fade in cleaning. Black can be particularly vulnerable to color loss in cleaning.

To remove surface soil from suede brush frequently with a soft brush. Leather can be wiped with a soft, damp cloth between professional cleanings.

FAKE FUR

Imitation furs, fake furs, fun furs. Whatever they're called, they're in fashion. They're lightweight, warm and relatively inexpensive. They look great, and when stenciled to resemble exotic animal skins, offer a kicky alternative to the real thing. They also require a lot of care to keep them looking their best. Fake fur gets its look from long, dense pile fabrics, either natural or manmade. The fibers are backed with a knitted or woven fabric. Abrasion can cause matting and tufting of fake fur. Therefore, the International Fabricare Institute says, the wearer should not use shoulder bags, and keep rubbing at the neckline, wrists and pockets to a minimum.

When it's time to dryclean, be sure the fabric care label is intact.

Now, for that reliable wool coat, the staple of the winter wardrobe. When shopping, look for quality. Is there an inner lining for extra warmth? In styles with plaids or patterns, do they match at all seams, pockets, lapels? Are the buttonholes bound with self-fabric or stitched? Are the buttons sewn on securely? And remember, a tightly woven fabric will wear better than a loose

COMPUTER DISPENSES VITAMIN INFORMATION

DETROIT (AP) - Shoppers at a national discount department store chain are receiving vitamin supplements, but they are not being taken internally.

Shoppers going to the pharmacy sections of the stores can obtain background information on a wide variety of vitamins, minerals and multivitamins on an interactive computerized "adviser," reports Intermark Corp., developer-producer of the units.

Pharmaceutical officials say the interactive units solve the problem of providing accurate information to people in the store. Previously there was reliance on literature and largetype posters or charts where vitamin products were stocked, but shoppers didn't bother to read the displays.

Since they do, however, like to operate computers and computer-like devices the move was made to electronic "advisers," units only 4 inches high and 14 inches wide, mounted on shelves at eye level or slightly below for the average female shopper.

Canisters, like the one shown, have been placed at various locations throughout town to receive contributions.
