Council accepts property donation

A donation of five lots at the corner of 13th and Ave. F was accepted by the Hereford City Commission at Monday night's meeting.

The property, totalling a little over an acre, has been donated by Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Tyler. Several condemned houses located on the property will be razed by the city.

At the suggestion of City Attorney Earnest Langley, commissioners decided not to designate a specific use for the property. A number of possible uses for the property were discussed, including using the site for a water well, making the property into a park, or selling the property to generate money for the city.

City commissioners decided to postpone the consideration of appointments to the Golf Course Advisory Board until April 16.

"An out of town golfer recently looked out from the tee box on the 17th hole and said, 'This is the most challenging hole in the Texas Panhandle area.'" Bill Allen told the city commission.

Bonna Duke, city secretary, was appointed as the City of Hereford's Records Management Officer. Under new state laws, cities are required to designate a records management officer.

The city staff was authorized to prepare specifications for a new computer. The computer the city presently uses is inadequate for its needs.

Learning about the weather

Fourth graders at Shirley School in Hereford learned about severe weather from Steve McCauley, seated, during a program at the school on Monday. McCauley is a meteorologist for KVII-TV in Amarillo. He showed how tornadoes are formed in some storms and not in others, and safety tips for children and their parents.

Mexico cattle imports could help area lots

AMARILLO (AP) - A federal program allowing Mexican cattle to be fed in the United States and slaughtered in Mexico should beef up the Texas cattle industry, officials say.

"It's exactly what both countries have been advocating in the U.S.-Mexico trade pact for the last several months," says Leon Miller, president of Alta Verde Industries, one of the nation's 20 largest cattle operating industries.

"It is a maquiladora in reverse," he said.

Maquiladoras, or twin plants, allows U.S. manufacturers to reduce costs by producing goods in Mexico.

Ravaged by drought and interest rates as high as 65 percent, Mexican government officials proposed the idea of feeding cattle in the United States at a Texas Cattle Feeders Association meeting last November.

Animal health regulations released Friday by the Department of Agriculture were the final hurdle for commencement of the "in-bond" feeding program, which is being supervised by the U.S. Customs Service.

"I expect Mexican cattlemen to begin sending head of cattle across the border in the next few weeks," Ross Wilson, TCFA government affairs director, said Monday.

Alta Verde, based in Eagle Pass, has the capacity to house 65,000 head of cattle, but currently is feeding only 20,000 head.

"We expect to increase our capacity by 50 percent," Miller said. "That will be quite a shot in the arm for us and it has to be good business for our Mexican counterparts."

Up to 50,000 head of Mexican cattle regularly may graze in American feed lots under the pact, according to one estimate, although Wilson said it is too early to tell.

"It's a new program so it's really difficult to measure what degree it will operate," he said.

Agriculture officials said the feeding will increase demand for U.S. grains.

Export duties normally tacked onto the head of cattle are waived because they are returning to Mexico, Wilson said.

Legislature begins Round II on schools

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Senate planned to take up its $1.2 billion school finance reform bill once again Tuesday, disregarding Gov. Bill Clements' repeated threats to veto new state taxes for public education next school year.

Those threats were criticized by some senators as they returned for another special session on court-ordered school funding reform Monday, and ignored by some House members who discussed paying for changes with a state lottery and temporary sales tax increase.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, a leader of the Senate's education subcommittee, challenged Clements to present a school funding plan.

"If the governor keeps insisting that we can meet court mandates and do right by the children of Texas within anticipated revenue ... he has an obligation to this Legislature and to the people of this state to sit down and list what he considers as fat," Parker said.

The subcommittee approved 11-3 a bill to put $1.2 billion more into public schools in 1990-91. It is the same measure the Senate passed in the special session that ended Wednesday, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he hopes it will be approved again.

The House bill's price tag is likely to start at $450 million, said Speaker Gib Lewis. Differences between House and Senate measures can be worked out in a conference committee.

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Waco, also was among senators criticizing Clements, saying, "It's time for the governor to show some leadership."

But Clements' press secretary, Rossanna Salazar, said the governor supports a school funding formula, and reforms aimed at making educators more accountable for the job they do, proposed by a task force he created.

While Clements has not specified cuts in other budget areas that would be needed to keep his no-new-taxes pledge and still add education funding, she said, his staff has been actively working on that issue.

Lawmakers are struggling to meet a Texas Supreme Court ruling that the school funding system is unconstitutional because of disparities in funding available to property-rich and -poor school districts.

The court gave lawmakers until May 1 to change the system, which relies on a combination of local property taxes, state aid and some federal funds. But Clements said he will keep lawmakers in special session until they pass a bill spending no more than $300 million in new education money in 1990-91, which he said could be accomplished without a state tax increase.

The House, where any state tax bill must originate, will look at shifting state funds to pay for school finance reform, Lewis said. But he held out little hope such a strategy could avert a tax increase.

The House Ways and Means Committee will consider tax proposals this week, and it plans a meeting next week with the State Affairs Committee to examine a Texas lottery.

Under a plan by Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, the state would increase the sales tax one-half cent to 6.5 cents per dollar. If voters later approved a constitutional amendment establishing a state lottery, the state sales tax would revert to 6 cents per dollar.

Wilson said the lottery would generate $400 million to $500 million annually.

Answer the '90 Census, if you can

If you haven't received a 1990 census form, join the crowd.

Only about half of Hereford residents have received a census form, according to unofficial guesstimates. Many callers to the Brand and to the U.S. Post Office in Hereford have expressed dismay, displeasure or both because they have not received a form.

If you want to let someone with the Census Bureau know you haven't received a form, you can call toll-free 1-800-999-1990. Let them know your name and address.

If you still don't receive a form, an enumerator will probably visit you sometime during May.

Persons who did receive a census form should have completed the form and returned it. If you haven't returned it, you still may fill it out and drop it in the mail.

By the way, there's no worry about "breaking the law" if you didn't get a form. However, you must either fill out a form or answer questions posed by an enumerator for the 1990 census.

Hereford firm stays busy with recycling

While groups are looking at strategic plans for recycling wastes in Hereford, it is not new in Hereford. Hereford Iron and Metal, located on North Progressive Rd., has been purchasing recyclable materials for over 20 years.

Among the materials that Hereford Iron and Metal purchases are: brass, copper, radiators, aluminum cans, aluminum pipe, aluminum screen doors, batteries, scrap iron, loose tin, old refrigerators and stoves, and old cars.

Most materials purchased by Hereford Iron and Metal are sold for scrap metal. However, car parts are resold in addition to crushing old car bodies. Crushed car bodies are sold for the scrap metal.

Aluminum cans are sorted and crushed with a special machine. In order to help contribute to the community, Hereford Iron and Metal buys community organizations which bring in aluminum cans two cents per pound over its standard rates.

Champion cutting horse

Commandicate, owned by Ron Crist of Hereford, took the reserve champion title in the Bonanza Cutting Horse competition in Abilene Sunday with Bill Freeman in the saddle. The $19,500 prize pushed Commandicate's earnings to $110,000 since December.

Mattox, Richards continue fighting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Democratic gubernatorial runoff began with talk of a peace treaty. But it didn't take long for any truce plans to go up in smoke.

Not only won't state Treasurer Ann Richards and Attorney General Jim Mattox agree to end their bitter personal attacks, they disagree on who broke the truce and can't agree on whether they will debate before the April 10 runoff.

Mattox flatly accused Ms. Richards of using illegal drugs 10 years ago, but offered no evidence. Ms. Richards passed a drug test and challenged Mattox to do the same.

Ms. Richards said there are tough questions that Mattox is ducking - such as how he could borrow $1.4 million if he really earned only his $75,000 government salary. He claimed the treasurer was hiding out, afraid to debate him.

Their attacks have grown more bruising as election day nears.

The ugly tone followed a rough-and-tumble primary in which Ms. Richards narrowly edged Mattox. Ms. Richards won 39 percent of the primary vote, besting Mattox's 37 percent.

They dashed the comeback hopes of former Gov. Mark White, who was so upset that he met with Republican nominee Clayton Williams. Williams hasn't won White's endorsement, but beams, "He hasn't turned me down."

Peace talks between the Mattox and Richards campaigns began shortly after the March 13 vote. They went well enough that Texas Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle briefly voiced optimism. "I really think that the runoff primary is going to be a positive campaign," he said.

Each side disagrees about the breakdown.

Downplaying the campaign's tone, Democratic leaders say either Ms. Richards or Mattox will make a better candidate than Williams in November. Ed Martin, the party's executive director, insists the campaign's tone won't have any long-lasting effects.

"Frankly, it was disappointing that we had very positive negotiations with both campaign managers, and in the midst of it, apparently, that potential deal was shattered," Martin said.

"A truce was definitely in the works. The attorney general did not keep up his half of the bargain. It's nearly impossible for him to act dignified," said Monte Williams, Ms. Richards' press secretary.

Culpepper serving as new president

BY KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

Although Marilyn Culpepper has been an active member of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division for over 15 years serving on various committees, this is her first year to hold an office.

As the new president of the Women's Division, Culpepper hopes to increase membership in the organization and help members become actively involved on the numerous committees. "I believe motivation is the key to keeping enthusiasm going," she explained. "Once the enthusiasm starts, it is like a flower. With nourishment, members can work in unison for the betterment of the community. The Women's Division will help the community grow into a beautiful flower."

Culpepper will preside at the next Women's Division meeting planned for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 5, in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. All members are encouraged to attend and invite guests. There will be no charge.

General membership meetings are held in January, April, July, and October and the executive council of the organization meets on the first Tuesday of each month.

Serving with Culpepper are Ruth Newsom, first vice president; Kyla McDowell, second vice president; Nell Rhoton, secretary; and Donna West, parliamentarian. Directors are Judy Barrett, Jackie Murphey and West.

Culpepper explained that the Women's Division's objectives are to coordinate the plans of the organization with the plans of the general membership of the Chamber of Commerce; to increase the goodwill and fellowship and to actively participate in the promotion of the agricultural, commercial, industrial, civic and educational development and community interest; to enlist the talents of training of the civic-minded women for use in the betterment of the community; and to further the effectiveness of the women's activities in this area.

"There are 15 active Women's Division committees a member can choose to serve on," Culpepper said. "They include animal action, beautification, beauty spot of the month, blood bank, Christmas lighting contest, Christmas tree ceremony, decorations, finance and budget, Town and Country Jubilee, Little Miss Hereford, Miss Hereford, membership, public affairs and publicity, welcome, and Woman of the Year."

"Any woman who is a resident of Deaf Smith County can become a Women's Division member by contacting a current member or by calling the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office," Culpepper stated.

"At the present time, Kyla McDowell is serving as chairman of the annual membership drive for the organization. This year, any member that enlists the most new members will have the opportunity to become "Queen for a Day." The honoree will be presented a free meal, a manicure and will be generally spoiled during her one-day reign," the new president said.

Culpepper is also an active member of the Avenue Baptist Church; is a substitute teacher; sells real estate with Don Tardy Real Estate Co., and assists her husband, Jim, with the family business, Hereford Wrecking and Parts Co.

The couple has a son, Jason, who is a junior at Texas Tech University; a daughter, Stacy, a sophomore at Hereford High School; and a three-year-old foster daughter, Sabrina.

A student once wrote: "It is bad manners to break your bread and roll in your soup."

Woman's Health

With two out of every three American women expected to be in the work force during the 1990s, exercise, which boosts energy, improves fitness, and relieves stress, promises to play an increasingly important role in helping women live tension-free, well-balanced lives.

Unfortunately, however, many working women do not gain the benefits of physical fitness because, between the demands of work and chores at home, time for recreation is often scarce. Women have begun to realize, that with all of these commitments, they have to plan for exercise.

Becoming and staying physically fit requires an active regular program of exercise. Ideally, you should set aside at least a half hour three times a week for physical activity.

1. Work with your doctor or a fitness trainer to devise a program that you will enjoy and that will not aggravate any medical problems you have. It is wise to have a physical exam by a doctor if you've never exercised before. Your doctor may recommend a cardiovascular stress test if you are over age 35, your family has a history of premature heart disease, or you are overweight.

2. Choose an activity you already enjoy or would like to try.

Avoid picking an exercise that uses the same skills you use at work.

3. Work toward specific fitness goals, for example, improved skill in tennis, dancing, or baseball; increased muscular strength through weight lifting; or better endurance through swimming or running.

4. Begin exercising gradually and work up slowly to your desired level of fitness.

5. Use equipment suited to your size and weight.

6. Warm-up for 5-10 minutes before exercising and end with a 5-10 minute cool-down period.

7. Heed your body's warning signals. Don't push to the point of pain and exhaustion. If you feel sick or dizzy stop.

Don't be discouraged when you first begin a new physical activity. You probably will feel awkward and out-of-shape. But with practice and dedication, you'll notice the activity will get easier, you'll feel and look better, and you'll probably even be having fun.

Herd dumps Demons, 7-0

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports editor

The Hereford Whitefaces put up all the runs in the fourth inning Monday to take their second District 1-4A win of the season, 7-0, over the Dumas Demons at Whiteface Field.

The Whitefaces avoided costly errors that had plagued them all season long, instead turning three double plays to hold the Demons scoreless.

Herd coach T.R. Sartor said the game meant more than a much-needed win for the team.

"We showed a lot of improvement, especially with our defense," Sartor said. "And hit the ball real well. We finally hit some line drives that weren't right at somebody."

Starter Chad Brummett (2-2) went the distance on the mound to record the Herd's first shutout in more than two years. The junior righthander gave the pitching staff its fourth straight complete game, leaving the other Herd moundsmen well-rested as the team enters a stretch of four games in six days.

"This gives us a little more room to work with as far as our pitching's concerned," Sartor said. "We didn't have to use up two or three guys today that we'll need later on this week."

Brummett scattered five hits and gave up only four walks while striking out four in picking up his second complete-game win in a row.

Brummett helped his own cause with a two-run homer during the Herd's fourth-inning outburst.

The season's first game in daylight-saving time didn't really need the extra hour of sunshine with the first three-and-a-half innings being played in just over an hour.

The Herd survived an early Dumas threat in the first inning after the Demons placed runners on second and third with one out. Saul Garcia led off the game with a single to center and Samuel Strayhorn followed Augustine Mata's fielder's choice with another single to put the Demons in business. But Brummett got Dave Venhaus on strikes and Jess Watkins grounded out to first to retire the side with no damage done.

The Demons put another runner on third in the second when Troy Wilburn, who started on the mound for Dumas and took the loss, led off with a single. With one out Justin Garrett rolled a ground ball to short, but Max Mungia's throw went right through second baseman Cody Page for an error. Page recovered in time to fire the ball back to Mungia, nailing Garrett as he tried for second. Brummett then struck out Ruben Saenz to leave the Demons 90 feet short again.

Brummett found himself in a jam again in the third inning as walks to Mata and Venhaus sandwiched around third baseman Tab Hathaway's throwing error loaded the bags with one down. First baseman Brett Confer came to the rescue when he snared Watkins' line drive and turned to tag out Venhaus for the unassisted twin killing.

Hereford finally got to Wilburn in the fourth after the Demon righthander had held the Herd to just three baserunners on two hits in the first three innings.

Max Mungia laid down a perfect bunt as the Herd pulled a squeeze play to bring Chris Brummett in with the second run.

With two out designated hitter Jim Anima drew a walk to set up right fielder Jim Andrews' two-RBI double to left and center fielder Matt Bromlow kept things going with a single to score Andrews.

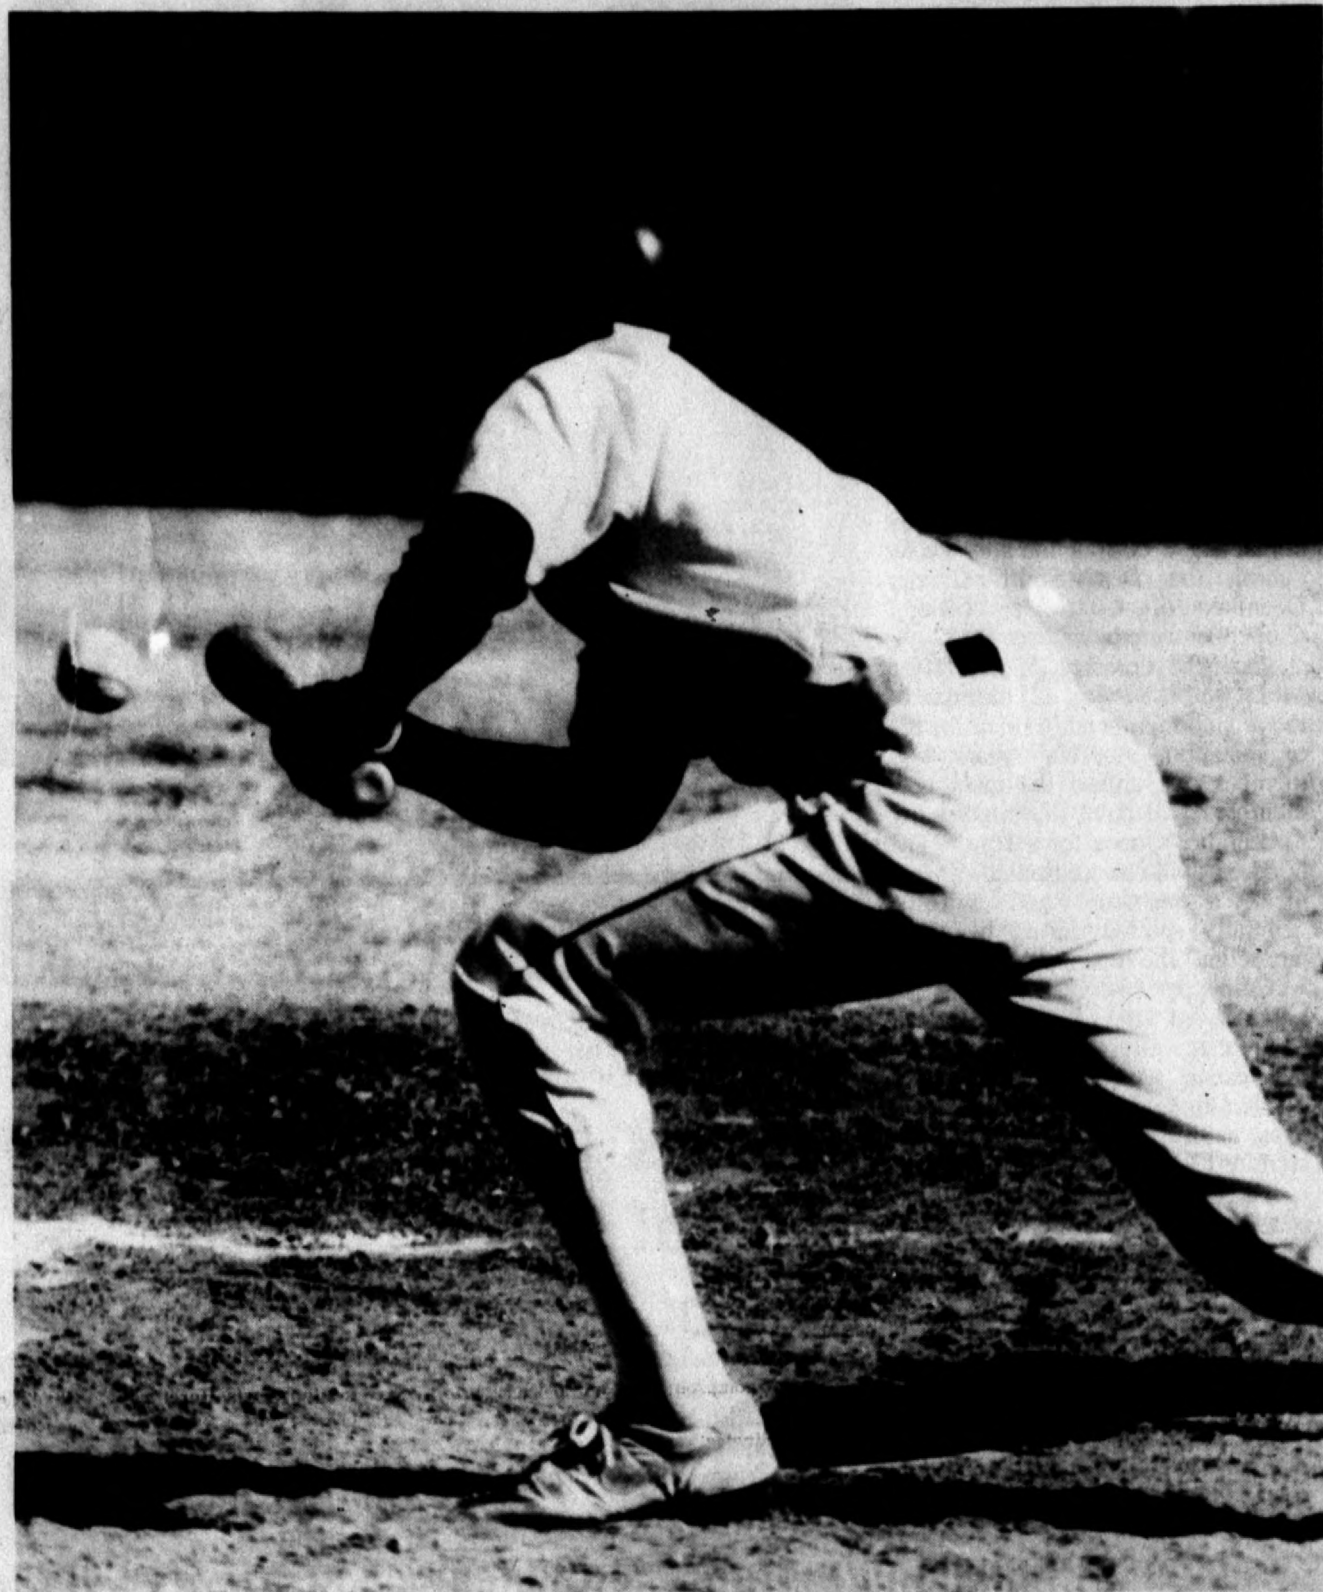

Chad Brummett then demonstrated to his little brother that there are easier ways to score than a suicide squeeze when he parked one over the left field fence for a leisurely trot around the bases.

Brummett allowed only four more base runners over the final three innings with three walks and Wilburn's ground-rule double. The Herd turned double plays in the fifth, when Mata and Strayhorn walked back-to-back, and seventh innings to stay out of trouble.

The win moves the Herd to 2-3 in 1-4A competition and 3-9 overall. Dumas falls to 3-3 in league play and 4-6 on the season.

The Herd returns to the regular schedule today with a 4:30 p.m. game at Frenship before making up another postponement at 4 p.m. Thursday when the Randall Raiders visit Whiteface Field.

Just put the bat on the ball

Max Mungia of the Hereford Whitefaces lays down a sacrifice bunt during Monday's 7-0 win over Dumas at Whiteface Field. While Mungia took care of business at his end, courtesy runner Chris Brummett sped home with the Herd's second run on a perfectly-executed suicide squeeze.

Herd netters second at Berger tourney

The Hereford Whiteface tennis team returned from spring break without missing a beat as three entries reached the championship match Saturday of the Bulldog Invitational at Berger to claim second place in the team standings.

The Herd was led by the girls' doubles team of Misty Reed and Gina Alley, who took the title with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Pampa's Heather Gikas and Allison Thompson. The Pampa pair had defeated Reed and Alley en route to winning the championship at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational held here two weeks ago.

Kristie Allison reached the finals in girls' singles before falling to Wilson Pate of Tascosa 6-2, 6-3, while the boys' doubles team of Eric Cortez and Torey Sellers was beaten for the title by Brad Butler and Kemi Thomas of Perryton 6-3, 7-6.

The Perryton duo handed the Herd's other boys' doubles entry, Randy Robbins and Jeff Eades, a 6-0, 6-1 loss in the first round. Robbins and Eades rebounded to win out, claiming eighth place with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 win over Joe Welborn and Semoer Mohan of Pampa.

The Herd picked up two more consolation bracket titles as Brenna Reinauer, who lost 6-0, 7-6 in the first round to Perryton's Christi Freeman, knocked off Perryton's Alyssa Faulkner 6-0, 6-0. The girls' doubles team of Lori Sanders and Robyn Sublett also recovered from a first-round loss, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 to Tara VanDoren and Reagan Metcalf of Canyon, to win the consolation bracket with a 6-4, 6-2 decision over Berger's Stephanie Gilliam and Angela Green.

In boys' singles action, Jamie Kapka topped Bret Hathcock of Tascosa 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 in the opening round, but had a rough time the rest of the way, eventually losing the seventh-place match to Caprock's Craig Needham 6-3, 6-4.

Greg Coplen dropped a 3-6, 7-5, 7-6 battle to Fitz Moles of Berger in the first round before coming back to down Hathcock in the 11th-place match.

The Herd netters will host the Amarillo Sandies at 4 p.m. today at Whiteface Courts in a makeup of a dual match that has been postponed twice. The Herd will return to tournament action Friday and Saturday at the Amarillo Relays.

Girls' golf 2nd in 1-4A; Grijalva ups medal lead

Naomi Grijalva of the Hereford Lady Whiteface golf team strengthened her lead in the District 1-4A medalist race while the Hereford girls' A team moved into second place in the team standings Saturday at the second round of district play at Dumas Country Club.

Grijalva carded a round of 87, the only sub-90 turned in so far in district competition, for a two-round total of 177 and a nine-stroke lead over Pampa's Brandy Chase, who was also second after the first round.

Kristen Largin of Pampa made up four strokes on Levelland's Leslie Mathis to pull into a tie for third at 188. Kellie Reed of Berger at 191 and Kelley Harris of Pampa at 195 were the only others within 30 strokes of the lead as the district tournament reached the halfway point.

In the team standings, Pampa A, with Chase on its roster this time after she shot 91 on the B team in the first round, scored a 382 for the day, 24 strokes better than its first-round score. The 788 total gives the Lady Harvesters a 50-stroke advantage over the Lady Whitefaces, who mirrored their first-round effort with a 419 for a midway score of 838. Other Hereford scores for the day Paula Britten at 106, Krystal Sims at 108, Jennifer Prater at 118 and Cecelia Albracht at 119.

Dusty Saul, competing singly after the Lady Whiteface B team withdrew, carded a 113 to leave her 20th in the medalist standings at 231. Illness and scheduling conflicts kept the Herd from fielding the necessary four golfers for the second team.

Pampa B, without Chase, dropped from second to fourth with a round of 457 to move to 873, being passed by Hereford and Berger. The Lady Bulldogs charged hard in the second round, lopping off 46 strokes from the first to 406 for a 858 total.

The Lady Whitefaces will take a week off from district competition to play in the Amarillo Relays on Friday and Saturday.

Poster contest winners

"Beef is Great in the Lone Star State" was the theme for a poster and essay contest held recently by the Hereford Cattle Women. Winners, from left, are Robert Brorman, Aaron Patridge, and Sarah Wagner. Not pictured is D.J. Wagner. Robert Brorman's poster was selected to be sent to the state competition. Prizes of dinner certificates were donated to winners by Sirloin Stockade, K-Bob's, and Bob's Hickory Pit. Kip Smith and Andrew McElroy received honorable mentions.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from "A Screw Loose in Iowa," the woman who was addicted to "Richard," hit me between the eyes: My story is about cross-addiction.

I was completely addicted to "Linda," and she was totally hooked on me. Our addiction, however, was entirely sexual. The sexual fantasies we shared were a real trip.

In our three years together, we discussed marriage several times. We decided, however, that if we stay together for any length of time, we would probably end up killing each other, either during one of our intense sexual romps or in some insane argument. So we separated. We did our best to stay apart, but for the ensuing 18 months we continued to "find" each other for sex.

We were approaching the mid-40s when we had this relationship. (Who says you're too old?) I have not seen Linda in six years, but I continue to have vivid dreams about her. She was the best sexual partner I've ever had.

I'm still addicted to her, and she's probably still addicted to me. I guess it's like when you stop smoking. You never really get rid of the urge for cigarettes. The reason I'm writing is to let you know that I conquered my addiction cold turkey by sheer will. I knew it was bad for me and that it had the seeds of disaster. If I did it, so can others. -- Los Angeles

DEAR L.A.: Congratulations on your victory, but unfortunately, not everyone has your inner resources. For those who can't do it alone, I recommend a therapist or an appropriate support group.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Good heavens, women, how could you chastise the lady from Illinois married to an arrogant jerk who holds the family purse strings and leaves his wife and children without an extra dime? You said to her, "...you come in for your share of the blame for allowing him to get away with such outrageous behavior." What was she supposed to do? Kill the guy?

Lots of us marry not Sir Lancelot but a part of his horse. Should we be punished with poverty and self-recrimination? I, for one, would have taken a crack at the woman's parents who refused to help their daughter and urged her to stay with the bum. No woman should remain in a rotten marriage for social or economic reasons. Come on, Ann. Can't you see that this woman is being oppressed by a society that does not regard full-time Momhood as valuable?

The first thing that Illinois Mom should do is network with single mothers. She ought to start a book review group, a garden club or baby-sitting service where time, not money, is exchanged. Women can help each other by getting together and letting their hair down. I did it. We call ourselves the Ladies' Simcoe Street Credit Union, because all we owe each other is an open mind and a cup of tea. That lady from Illinois doesn't have to go it alone if her husband refuses to shape up. Please let her know. -- K.M., London, Ontario.

DEAR LONDON: What a sensible letter! I thank you for providing more help than I did.

Gem of the Day: Those who complain about the way the ball bounces are usually the ones who dropped it. (Sent in by James Evered, Denton, Texas.)

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.45.)

Hints given for homemakers

If your grandmother used Borax around the house, you are not alone. It's one of those old-fashioned products that became a household name years ago. And today, it's becoming a reborn star as Americans search for natural products with multiple uses.

Borax is a naturally occurring mineral composed of boron, sodium, oxygen and water. It first appeared in history some 4,000 years ago. Homemakers have found dozens of uses for this magic crystal--from killing cockroaches and spiders to preserving food and fertilizing soil. The company makes no claims for its use in such ways, since it would be too costly to conduct tests. But homemakers hail those uses in newspaper columns around the country.

It's said that early miners ate a teaspoon of Borax a day to aid digestion, and some folks claimed it could cure epilepsy. Modern science has provided better solutions to cure such maladies. But Borax still has a place in the homes of today.

Borax controls odors in your cat litter box: mix 6 parts cat litter with 1 part Borax. Dispose in garbage, not garden. To clean delicate hand washables: dissolve 1/4 cup Borax and 2 tablespoons detergent. Soak for 10 minutes. Be sure to read labels on all garments. To keep tub and tile clean: sprinkle Borax on damp sponge. Wipe clean and then rinse thoroughly. Safe for all fiberglass and plastic surfaces. Borax may also be used as a diaper soak, laundry conditioner, toilet bowl cleaner, and flower preserver.

Scientists who can break a second down to a thousandth of a trillionth of a part (a femtosecond) say the possibilities for splitting a second are virtually infinite, National Geographic says.

Lady Whitefaces second at Lubbock Invitational

The Hereford Lady Whiteface track and field team returned from spring vacation with a bang Saturday, placing second behind Tascosa in Division 2 of the Lubbock Invitational.

The meet, unlike most which divide schools by classification, consisted of three separate seven-team divisions of Class 4A and 5A squads mixed together.

While District 1-4A goes Dunbar and Frenship competed in other divisions, the Lady Whitefaces went head-to-head big schools Tascosa, Midland and Monterey as well as 4A teams from Estacado, Levelland and Snyder.

Hereford totaled 108 1/2 points and won two of three relay races, but Tascosa had enough depth to win the division with 120 points.

The Lady Whitefaces scored in 12 of the 16 events and had at least one athlete record a personal- or season-best effort in every event.

"This was a good meet for us," Lady Whiteface coach Martha Emerson said. "Daphne (Roddy) had her toughest competition yet in the 200 and the 1,600 relay improved by more than five seconds."

"Every girl competed," Emerson added, "they didn't just run, jump or throw."

Roddy continued her undefeated streak in the 200-meter dash despite the tough competition with a clocking of 25.38, just .01 seconds of her best time. The senior blazed to a 25.1 in the preliminaries.

Roddy was also a big part on the mile relay time being lowered. After missing the event for a month because of leg problems, Roddy anchored the unit, which included Minerva Salazar, Teresa Castillo and Jill West, to a sparkling 4:07.81, more than eight seconds ahead of second-place Levelland.

The same foursome also teamed to win the 800 relay in 1:46.85, just off their best time of the year.

The sprint relay squad of Brandy Dunn, Rachel Alaniz, Chandra Brown and Mandi Jones picked up two points for sixth place, finishing in 54.82.

Lisa Zepeda, Jill Dutton and Veronica Hernandez loaded up in the longer races to provide more scoring. Zepeda finished third in the 400 at 62.56 with Denise Davila sixth in 66.85.

In the 800, Zepeda was fourth in 2:29.98 (her best ever) while Salazar was sixth in 2:37.41.

In the 1,600 Dutton was fifth in 6:04.44 and Hernandez sixth at 6:07.14. The duo also placed in the 3,200 behind Castillo, who was second in 12:38.85. Dutton placed fourth in 12:59.88 with Hernandez sixth at 13:13.93.

In the field events Shantel Cornelius returned after missing three weeks because of arthroscopic knee surgery to better her early season effort in the discus by 23 feet. Cornelius hurled the platter 111-7 for second place while Cande Robbins was third at 111-4.

Among the other points scored for the Herd, West came up with 12 with second place in the long jump at 15 feet, 10 1/2 inches (her best of the year) and third in the triple jump at 33-3 3/4. Robin White gained a half-point when she tied for sixth in the high jump at 4-8.

In the JV division, Hereford scored 51 points for sixth place in the team standings.

Rene Banner, Claudia Ramirez and Christie Burkhardt had the best individual finishes, placing second in the 3,200, the discus and the shot put, respectively.

All three relay teams placed sixth in their races.

The Lady Whitefaces will run at Dumas this week in a final tune-up before the District 1-4A meet.

Emerson said Dumas will provide her team with a strong test headed into the seasons' final weeks.

In boys' track and field action, the Hereford Whiteface varsity ran into some of the stiffest competition in the state at the San Angelo Relays.

Shot putter Benny Gonzales and pole vaulter Brad Mason provided all the Herd scoring in the two-day meet with Gonzales winning his event at 54-6 1/2 while Mason cleared 13-0, his best vault of the year, for third place.

Herd golfers finish in middle of Amarillo Relays fields

The Hereford Whiteface golf team finished in the middle of the consolation pack Saturday at the Amarillo Relays after just missing Friday's cut.

The Herd finished the first round, which was played at Amarillo Country Club, in eighth place behind Randall. With the field being cut to only the top six teams, the Herd moved to Amarillo Public Golf Course for a one-round competition against the 12 other teams failing to qualify.

Hereford finished sixth on Saturday at 366, two shots behind Dumas and 45 back of consolation winner Levelland.

The Herd was paced by Anthony Gale's 89 while Jayson Mines and Mikel Walsler both shot 91. Robert Jones added a 95 for the Herd with Keith Kelso shooting 98.

In the B team division, also played at Amarillo Public, Hereford survived the cut in fourth place, and stayed there Saturday.

The Herd totaled 694 for the two days to finish 44 strokes behind Amarillo High.

Kevin Kelso led the way for Hereford, carding a two-day 169 to finish in the top 10 of the medalist standings.

Kelso was followed by Cory Newton at 172, Clay Cantrell at 175, David McCarter at 179 and David Bone at 184.

The Herd linksters finished their tournament schedule with the Amarillo Relays and will turn to four rounds of District 1-4A play over the next two weeks.

District action gets a belated start Friday with the makeup of the first round at Lubbock's Elm Grove Country Club. The Herd will continue with the second 1-4A round Saturday at Levelland Country Club's nine-hole layout.

Lewis wins at Channing

The Tri-State High School Rodeo Association doubled up over the weekend after weather forced the postponement of last week's event at Stratford being moved to Sunday while Channing played host for the scheduled Saturday date.

Hereford's Regina Lewis, who took All-Around Cowgirl honors at the season-opening rodeo March 17 at Happy, made it two in a row Saturday by placing in the money in all four events.

Lovan-Weaver win Pitman Lowball/Scramble crown

H.P. Lovan and Tommy Weaver teamed to win Championship Flight of the Pitman Lowball/Scramble Tournament held Saturday and Sunday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The pair carded a 68 in Saturday's lowball portion of the competition and a 67 in Sunday's scramble for a four-stroke win over three other twosomes. The teams of Rick Roden and Dave Hutson, Brett Jordan and John Robertson and Carey Jackson and Terry Widick split the second- and third-place payoff as all finished at 139.

In the First Flight, Robert Saine and Bill Sweny took the top prize by beating Jeff O'Rand and Miles Goforth on a scorecard playoff after both teams tied at 146. The teams of Bryan McKee and Richard James, George Ochs and Raymond Schroeder and Shorty Roark and Charlie Skinner tied for third in the flight at 147.

Skinner earned special recognition Sunday when he carded second career hole-in-one. Skinner aced the par-3 140-yard third hole with a 7-iron as Roark witnessed.

Chip Guseman and Gary McCulloch won the Second Flight at 140 with Vic Turner and Wendell Burdine second four strokes back. Third place in the flight was another three-way

Lewis won the goat tying in 8.346 second as well as placing third in barrels (19.007) and pole bending (26.438). Lewis added an eighth-place finish in breakaway roping at 28.094 to total 21 points for the day.

Other Hereford competitors Saturday included Samantha Winters, who was seventh in goat tying (10.862) and breakaway (16.580), and Burt Noland, who was second in ribbon roping (11.892) and third in calf roping (14.350). Mickey Gomez paired with Jerry Don Thompson of Channing for second in team roping at 8.760.

In Sunday's action at Stratford, Noland won the team roping with River Road's Twister Cain with a time of 5.202, and finished third in ribbon roping at 9.613.

Lewis added to her season all-around point total with a second-place finish in goat tying (11.787) and a fifth in breakaway (12.854).

The TSHSRA circuit will have a double load again this week as Booker hosts separate events Saturday and Sunday.

and Scott Sheffy won with a 150 followed by Bill Brown and Larry Jimenez at 155 and Carlos Mendez and Jesse Hernandez third at 156.

The 1990 Wednesday Scramble season will get underway April 25 at Pitman.

Head Pro Brent Warner said entries for the first scramble will open April 18. For more information, contact Warner at 364-2782.
