Vance: No U.S. Troops in Sinai

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told Congress Thursday the United States has "no intention whatsoever" of stationing U.S. military forces in the Sinai desert as part of its commitment to consider aiding Israel if Egypt violates the newly signed

Vance also gave assurances that any action the United States takes to comply with its memorandum of understanding with Israel will be taken only after consultation with Congress and "in accordance with constitutional processes and all applicable law." "I want to make very clear this agreement does not imply that we expect there are going to be violations of the treaty on either side," Vance told the House Appropriations Committee's foreign operations subcommittee.

"I do not want to leave any implication that in signing this agreement we believe any party would violate the treaty," he

Carter Adopts Get-Tough Policies To Enforce Voluntary Guidelines.

WASHINGTON (AP) . The Carter administration is trying to rescue its foundering anti-inflation program by shoring up its voluntary price guidelines

The Council on Wage and Price Stability asked the nation's 1,300 largest corporations Thursday to begin reporting price data ona quarterly basis. The council also singled out five industries, where prices have risen most rapidly, for closer monitoring. And it moved to close a "loophole" that had allowed many businesses to pass their higher costs on to consumers.

The three-pronged action-along with tough, anti-inflation statements from President Carter and wage-price council chairman Alfred E. Kahn - came at a time the government is particularly sensitive about price increases.

The voluntary guidelines instituted last

Q-- How many times in the last 50 years has Texas voted for a Republican

A--You might interpret this record as indicating that Texas is a winner, because every time Texas has supported a Republican for president in the last 50 years he has been elected. The list includes Herbert Hoover in 1928, Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956, and Richard M. Nixon in 1968 and 1972.

October call for workers to hold wage increases to 7 percent or less this year. Corporations are asked to keep price increases a half a percentage point below those in 1976-77.

To date, however, the program has been most successful on the wage side. While some unions have settled new contracts within the guidelines, prices have risen at double the rate the Carter administration projected for the year. And corporate profits increased 26.4 percent in the fourth quarter of 1978 compared to the same quarter of 1977. Kahn, the president's chief anti-inflation adviser, warned members of the National Association of Manufacturers that too many businesses were letting prices rise above the guidelines. Changes in those guidelines, announced by wage-price council Director Barry Bosworth, will require the nation's businesses to report significantly more price information to the government.

Schlesinger Accused Of Exaggerating Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration deliberately and grossly exaggerated the effect of the Iranian oil cutoff on the United States, a new congressional study contends.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger was expected to be questioned today on allegations that oil imports actually increased in February despite administration claims of a 500,000 barrel-a-day shortage reflecting the Iranian cutoff.

An aide, Jim Bishop, said Schlesinger was prepared to deny the study's conclusions in his testimony before the House energy and power subcommittee.

Bishop said the information obtained by the committee is suspect and disputed the increase in imports claimed by the report. "I can assure you this will be clarified," he said.

The study by the subcommittee staff asserts: "U.S. imports during the month of February surged by 1 million barrels per day."

The report said it based its conclusions on oil export-import information recently compiled by the Paris-based International Energy Agency.

Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., subcommittee member, charged that Schlesinger's agency kept the alleged increase in imports secret "because it was embarrassing to administration policy."

The staff report did not dispute the reality of the three-month Iranian production halt. But it claimed the cutoff had a minimal impact on U.S. supplies at least in February.

"Claims of a shortfall have been used to justify hardships for the American consumer in the form of higher prices as well as a reduction of gasoline supplies," the report said.

Meanwhile, in another development Thursday, State Department officials told a news briefing that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was offered U.S. assurances in the event Israel violated the treaty but turned them down.

The officials, who did not wish to be quoted by name, said Sadat was approached in December and again in January but said he did not need any additional guarantees.

Vance later told the congressional committee the same thing.

In response to questions from Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., Vance said the agreement means only that the United States will consider a variety of options to deal with a treaty violation.

He said the agreement is by no means a treaty in itself, and that it does not apply to any other country.

"It relates only to threats of the peace that might be caused by violations of the treaty of peace," he said. "It is limited by its terms."

Vance replied with a simple "no," when asked if there are any other agreements connected with the treaty that have not yet been made public.

The United States has agreed to supply³ Israel with oil for a 15-year period should Israel's supplies of imported oil be cut

Vance said that if Israel should request oil from the United States at a time when U.S. imported oil also was embargoed the United States would supply Israel's needs from its own domestic reserves.

He said Israeli needs amount to only one percent of U.S. domestic consumption, and that supplying the needed oil would not be burdensome.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) - Low-level radiation was still beaming from 250,000 gallons of highly radioactive water inside a disabled nuclear power plant today, and experts said the water might have to be buried in lead or evaporated.

Federal authorities, however, said the radiation was contained inside the Three Mile Island nuclear plant's 280-acre perimeter and no longer was a threat to neighbors of the power plant.

"Based on what we've been able to see so far, the danger is over for the people

HARRISBURG, Pa. [AP] - Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh urged today that hundreds of thousands of people in a 10-mile radius around the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant stay indoors at least throughout the morning following a new release of radioactive gas from the facility.

Thornburgh said at midmorning s decision on evacuation was imminent. More than 950,000 people live in the four counties - York, Dauphin, Lancaster and Cumberland.

The radiation still being detected was evaporating off the floor of the auxiliary building. Plant officials said the radiation inside the reactor dome was 100 times the Plant engineers wrestled with the two most likely ways to clean up the nuclear-charged water, sealed inside the reactor dome and ankle-keep inside another building where water is normally cooled.

One method to deal with the problem would be to solidify the waste material with cement, formaldehyde or more complex chemicals, and bury it in lead-lined cannisters. Another would involve evaporating radioactive gases from the water and storing the gases in holding tanks at the plant. The gases would lose radioactivity in two months and could safely be released into the air, said Richard Klingaman, chief of generation engineer-

The cleansed water would then be flushed into the Susquehanna River. More than 400,000 gallons of contaminated waste water stored in holding tanks was being pumped into the

Annexation Request Approved

Managing Editor Hereford City Attorney Earnest Langley today received a letter from the U.S. Department of Justice stating that the proposed annexation of 41 acres west of Main St. and south of Austin Rd. had been approved.

It was the second time this week governmental entities in Hereford received good news from the Justice Department. The at-large system adopted earlier this year by the Hereford Independent School District was approved Tuesday.

The Justice Department's Voting Rights Office has the authority to determine whether election changes might be discriminatory to minorities. Since annexations could dilute voting strengths of certain ethnic groups, they fall under the office's jurisdiction.

The Hereford office of Texas Rural Legal Aid opposed the annexation and wrote to the Justice Department in an attempt to have the City of Hereford's request rejected.

TRLA contended that the proposed subdivision is in close proximity to several expensive homes and that it would also contain structures unaffordable by Mexican-Americans.

TRLA also charged that the city was unresponsive to the needs of Mexican-Americans and had refused to annex the San Jose labor camp despitepetitions from camp residents.

The Justice Department, after it received the TRLA charges, wrote to Langley concerning the city's refusal to annex the labor camp. Langley stated in a subsequent letter that most of the Mexican-American residents of San Jose did not want to be annexed because of the expense involved in compliance with city health and building codes.

Williams Guilty Of Assault

CANYON--A 251st District Court jury found Richard Williams of Hereford guilty of aggravated assault in connection with the 1977 beating death of Larry Glover of Milo Center.

The punishment phase of the trial was scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. today. Williams could be sentenced from two to 10 years in prison.

The eight-man, four-woman jury deliberated, often hotly, for four hours before reaching the guilty verdict. Spectators said several loud arguments occurred from inside the jury room, located next to the district courtroom.

Deaf Smith County Criminal District At . Roland Saul had asked jurors to find Williams guilty of murder. Judge Wesley Gulley of Hereford submitted aggravated assault as an alternative.

"That's the reason you put in to the jury--for them to decide if there was a crime committed. I asked for murder; they gave-him aggravated assault. That's their decision, not mine," Saul said prior to testimony this morning.

Williams had been found guilty of murder last November in 222nd District

Group Reconsiders Housing Subsidy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - A rural housing advocate told Congress today his group is having "second thoughts" about part of a subsidy program aimed at helping poor families afford better homes.

David Raphael, acting executive director of Rural America, said his criticism involves a law passed last year that enables the Farmers Home Administration - an Agriculture Department agency - to make subsidized housing loans to low-income rural families.

The law provides that a family does not have to spend more than 25 percent of its income for housing financed by the agency, with the government making up the difference.

But Congress also specified that borrowers have to repay all or part of the subsidy when they sell or transfer their houses.

"It seems to us patently unfair to ask low-income people to repay their subsidies when middle and upper-income people receive millions every year in tax advantages linked to their homeownership," Raphael said.

His remarks were prepared for a House subcommittee on Housing and Community Development.

Shah Leaves Morocco

For Bahamas

RABAT, Morocco (AP) - Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran left Rabat in a private plane this morning for the Bahamas, the Moroccan national news agency reported.

The shah had been in exile in Morocco since Jan. 22. He left Iran on Jan. 16 after a year-long revolution directed by Shiite Moslem leader Ayatollah Ruhollah

U.S. officials in Washington said Thursday the shah would soon leave Morocco for another place of refuge. They said although he had not been barred from coming to the United States he had been strongly urged not to go there for security and other reasons.

The Moroccan government of King Hassan II is known to have been uncomfortable with the presence of the shah and Empress Farah.

His departure followed increasing demonstrations by leftist students and labor unions campaigning for the shah's

"One shah in Morocco is enough," was one of the slogans scrawled on university walls in Rabat and Casablanca, reflecting the leftists' frequently voiced claim of a parallel between the discredited Iran monarchy and King Hassan's less autocratic regime.

Census To Change Representation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Come the 1980 census one year from this Arpil, the federal government will start counting people. The result will launch a congressional sweepstakes.

Some states, like New York, Ohio and Illinois, will be the losers.

The reason is that they have lost population since the 1979 census was taken. As a result, they are likely to be electing fewer representatives in the November 1982 congressional election.

New York and Ohio will each lose two congressmen and Illinois will lose four, advance census estimates show. If the government's 1978 will be a more conservative trend," said Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., chairman of the House subcommittee on census and population. "For instance, most of the southwestern states have voted for a constitutional convention and for a balanced budget.

"Urban America will lose if the Northeast continues to lose population. Cities in general cannot gain if Americans move to suburban settings."

Another result might be that since many blacks and Hispanics live in the South and Southwest, Garcia said, they will have a chance at more representation in the House if their numbers are counted more accurately than they have been.

Winners and losers may change after the 1980 census because no matter how precise the formula for projecting trends and estimating population, no one can predict the future, particularly where fertility is concerned.

During the 1970s, the nation grew at a slower rate than it did inthe 1960s, mainly because women were choosing to have fewer children. Starsinic said. He believes the economy plays a major role in this choice.

The large number of people born during the post-World War II baby boom are now in prime child-raising years. If they follow past trends, the women will have three or four children each, Starsinic said.

"But they're finding their economic situation is not rosy," he said. "This is not the land of plenty they expected. They're not earning as much as they expected; they can't support children as they expected.

"So they've had to lower their aspirations or lower the number of children they have. My impression is that they have chosen to have fewer children."

wrestling with the Palestinian problem. As Egyptian President Anwar Sadat reminded reporters here Tuesday, that is the crux and core of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Solving it would make the 16 months of tedious treaty negotiations between the two countries seem like child's play by comparison. Jordan is still boycotting the talks. So are the Palestinians.

Without their participation, any autonomy plan worked out by Egypt and Israel would be on shaky ground. The Palestinians are the people who would live under the plan. Jordan once controlled most of the land involved.

Then there is the monumental task of devising a plan within the one year set as a goal for completing the negotiations.

Sadat-wants the plan to set the stage for Palestinian statehood.

Autonomy is just the "first step on the road to self-determination and statehood," he declared at the White House dinner.

Ann Landers

Ignored Grandmother

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My grandchildren are eight and thirteen years of age. They live out of state. They never write to me to tell me how they are and what they are doing. When I ask their mother what they would like for a birthday or Christmas, I get a list -- not so much as a "Hello" or "How are you?"

'I love these children and don't want to write them off. But, I'm sorry to say the only connection I seem to have with them is at THURSDAY -- Hamburgers, gift-giving time. Needless to say, they never send me anything. Actually, all I want is an occasional letter. I simply cannot understand this kind of selfishness. Please tell me how to deal with this, hurtful problem. - Ignored Grandmother

DEAR GRANNY: The children are not to blame. This is the way they were brought up.

If you lived closer, you might be able to establish some sort of relationship. Living out of the state makes it difficult. Do your best when you are together and perhaps when they are older you -can become a part of their lives.

I hope-so, dear. DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to "Nothing Ahead, Plenty Behind" was the best ever. I, too, spent 24 years in a shell of fat, seeking a magic cure and eating myself sick, then crying because I'd done it again. One day I "saw myself" when Lopened a door and faced a full-length mirror unprepared. I joined Weight Watchers where I learned I was not abnormal, crazy ALONE.

The first and most important step is to realize there is only one person in the world to whom your weight and size really matter and that is YOU! If you are unhappy because of it --YOU are the only one who can something about the problem. After losing 78 pounds and enjoying three years of normal weight and three years of experience as a Weight Watcher lecturer, I can honestly say I've never seen a person who could not lose weight on a sensible, controlled food program. Please tell your readers not to be ashamed to admit to THEMSELVES that they need help. These are weight-control groups everywhere and the group therapy is an important aspect of losing excess pounds.

But most important is to being caring enough to help yourself. Believe me, it's worth it! At age 40 I am a happy woman and no longer hiding under the bed eating peanuts! --M.L.G., Omaha

DEAR OMAHA: Thanks for letting us know how it is with someone who has made it. Other excellent self-help groups for weight loss are The Diet Work Shop, Overeaters Anonymous and Tops. Look in your phone book if you're interested.

DEAR ANN: I have an aunt who is very nosy. She has always irritated me by asking none-of-your business type questions. The woman thrives on gossip and loves to be in the

I've been married less than a year and every time I see this aunt, she greets me with, "Are you pregnnt yet?" I learned just last month that I am pregnant, but we don't want to announce it for at least another two months -- or as long as I can keep it a

I dread seeing my aunt because I know she'll ask me the question -- as always -- and I am a lousy liar. Any suggestions on how to answer? - Drawstraing

DEAR DOLLY: Tell your nosy aunt that when you are ready to make the announcement, she will be among the first to know. You will have told her no lie and this response is operative for as long as you want to use it.

NEW YORK (NEA) -They're no match, the New York pimp and the female runaway.

Police say he spots her faster than they can, in or around Port Authority Bus Terminal off New York's seedy Times Square.

He sidles up to the white girl, 12 to 17, from all kinds of families in New England, Florida, California, and says, "Hi, can I buy you a cup of coffee?"

If she moves off, he stops her with, "What's the matter, you prejudiced because I'm black?" (White pimps work out of high-rise luxury buildings, police say.)

One way or another, he breaks the ice. Then he buys her a meal and gets her a room in a fleabag hotel.

And for three or four days, he's what she wants him to be. He's Daddy because she doesn't get on with hers or never had one; or he's Goodtime Charlie because Mom and Dad said movies and music were sinful. And so

But then comes the payoff. "Look, kid, I owe these four guys a favor and you're it."

And willingly or not, she is. The gang rape starts her sexual break-in period which often includes beatings and drugs, and then she's on the street turning between five and 10 tricks a night, for $20 or $30 each, which she turns back to him.

Chances are she's one of the "prosties" who "stroll" Madison Avenue and 32nd Street come dark, when the business area is otherwise deserted. She looks like any working girl, only older than her age because, "they age faster on the street," police

Her one good chance is being picked up soon by the plainclothes Runaway Unit of New York's Police Department: six officers

"If we can get a girl who's

But if going home means re-entering an old nightmare, he says, "We won't send her back to that environment. We'll contact social services in her city to start investigation there, but she won't be sent home until we know if, say, she is being abused there.

Sometimes the parents don't even want her back. Mostly they do, like the ones driving from Pennsylvania tonight to pick up their 17-year-old daughter who sits smoking in the Runaway Unit's downtown offices. Blonde, tall, chunky, she looks like a young country girl. Too young, which is why someone at the decrepit Brooklyn Hotel she was living in called the police.

'I was just tired of every thing, that's why I left," she begins. "My parents are really religious and when I was younger I couldn't drink or smoke or wear short skirts. And my mother and I fight a lot. It's always been a competition for my father's affection.'

So one night three months ago — for the 26th time in the past few years - she took off with a guy who offered to bring her here. "I only had $10 but he had money. I didn't know he was a pimp when I first met him - I was really ripped! — but I knew when I left with him."

He promised her glamor and travel and, "He said we'd be a gentleman and a streets. "I was nervous my first night out," she says. "My pimp put me on Lexington and 25th Street at midnight and my first trick was a young white guy in a VW from California, he said. About 26. He seemed scared," she laughs, "and I felt I had control. I made $75 for two tricks that night."

The pimp got the money but she got two new outfits and a plate of filet mignon.

"I have expensive taste."
All told, she says, she's made about $10,000, but it's all been spent, mostly by the pimp. Still, she was lucky with him and the others she says she's had. None of them ever used her ear as an ashtray or cut off a breast, common brutalities, police

So she stayed with him not out of fear — the reason the runaway doesn't run away again - but because, she "We all need love whether we get it in return or not, and I had my man." That he had other women doesn't apply.

Then, suddenly, she says,
"I'm just damned glad to be going home. I don't know how long I'll be there, but I'm going to sleep for at least a week."

The truth is, the street

"It's a very lonely life," she says. "You can't trust anybody. You're always afraid you'll get in trouble with your man, always tired, always scared you'll end up in the joint. You're just afraid to breathe. And you never get to go anywhere.

"So you put a smile on your face and sing a song and say there'll be better days. You're always looking into the future so much you miss the present and forget the past."

In the corridor outside,

Officer Spangler says, 'She's a nice girl. It's a shame to see a wasted life like that. Originally, when we get them in here, they're reluctant to go home. But once they see the out, it's a way of saving face. And if I can save one of these kids, feel I've accomplished something."

Then he shakes his head and adds, "But every night, there's a tragedy."

Mideast Tie Not New

The founding family of Israel

at length settled in Egypt,

where Jacob died, as did Joseph

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

That "ancient alliance" between Egypt and Israel that was cited this week in ceremonies sealing the modern peace treaty between them goes back into early biblical times.

In one case, an unusual tie between Egypt and the family of the ancient Jewish patriarch Jacob saved it from famine.

Another subsequent pact of friendship and trade was established between Israel's famed King Solomon and Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Solomon also had a pact with the Queen of Sheba in Arabia.

At the ceremonies in Washington, D.C., Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin recalled the ancient alliance with Egypt, adding that the new treaty means restored "cooperation and friendship."

In the First Book of Kings 3:1, the olden pact of about 3,000 years ago is noted at the start of Solomon's reign: "Solomon made a marriage alliance with Paraoh King of Egypt; he took Pharaoh's daughter, and brought her into the city of David." Jerusalem.

The alliance is mentioned several times in the biblical accounts of that period, including extensive trade between the two countries.

The name of Pharaoh's daughter, who became one of Solomon's wives, is unspecified, but she is cited in 1st Kings 11:1 among the "many foreign women" that he loved.

The king of Egypt also presented her with a handsome dowery from the spoils of warfare, as noted in 1st Kings 9:16.

During the alliance, Solomon imported horses and chariots from Egypt, as mentioned in 2nd Chronicles 1:16-17. He also exchanged lavish gifts with the Queen of Sheba after she visited him from Arabia, as noted in 1st Kings 10. Greatly impressed, she told him:

"Blessed be the Lord your God, who has delighted in you and set you on the throne of Israel." An even era earlier of solidarity existed between Egypt and the family of the ancient father of Israel, Jacob. It was Jacob's son, Joseph, who was sold by jealous brothers to some passing traders who took him to Egypt where he rose to become the trusted chamberlain of the Egyptian king. Through Joseph's influence, his father and his brothers carry them through a devastat-

WE MAKE MISTAKES

BY BOB WEAR

WE DO MAKE MISTAKES. All of us know that this is a true statement; but how many of us are willing to admit our mistakes, and, when possible, make correction? Do we do this, or do we try to justify them; or cover up; or even take the White. position that we did not make a mistake?

NOTHING IS GAINED, in the long run, by covering up or refusing to admit a mistake. In fact, we just compound our error by adding one to another. It is important, however, to also know that we gain nothing by berating or being severe with ourselves; when we do err.

ADMITTING AND COR-RECTING a mistake, when it can be corrected, is constructive action. It is intended to be, and can be a very helpful part of the learning process; and can also be helpful in gaining the confidence of, and earning the respect of others. This action will help strengthen the structure of our personal integrity which is essential to a well-organized personality.

ONE OF THE WORST MISTAKES we make about our mistakes is in the way we let them haunt us. Of course, a mistake is a mistake; but it must never become one's whole life. We must see it for what it is, correct it if we can, learn whatever lesson it has for us; and then put it in its place in our graveyard of mistakes. It must never be resurrected. "WHEN YOU MAKE A MISTAKE, don't look back at it long. Take the reason of the thing into your mind, and then look forward. Mistakes are lessons of wisdom. The past cannot be changed. The future is yet in your power." - H.

THE FEAR OF MAKING A MISTAKE prevents some of us from trying to do the things that should be done; oftentimes worthwhile things that we want to do, and might be able to do, if we would just try. If we let this fear live in our mind, we will never get much done. Certainly. we will make some mistakes; but we will also have some successes. If we apply ourselves diligently in taying to do the good things that need to be done, the mistakes we may make will never be as big as the mistakes of not trying.

MAKING MISTAKES IS part of being human. If we made no mistakes about anything, we would not belong in this world; we would be a miserable misfit. Even so, we must continue our best efforts to keep our "miscues" to a minimum. We do have great capacity for learning to think and act with wisdom and skill. We can grow. we can improve.

WE WILL NEVER ELIMI-NATE mistakes, but we can learn to handle them. Learning how to deal with them is essential to satisfactory and happy living. This is one skill all of us can develop, if we continue later. The long account of that relationship with Egypt is told in

Joseph Cox To Isom and Elizabeth Cox

I send this letter that is out of Joseph Cox Ancestors and Descendents Genealogy Book that was put together by Stanley Cox and Gary Sutton in 1955 and revised in 1975. Truly a treasured book in our house.

The main purpose of this letter is to let people know just how far the farmer has come since the 1850's. Which I hate to admit is not to terribly far as compared to the rest of the country and what they get for their labors. This was a good price in those days but we are still getting the same price for our product today but with a multitude of increase in the price of production. So don't tell me that if the farmer would be a better manager of his money that he would not be in such bad shape. It would be wonderful if the price of land was still 50 cents an acre and a horse was

What happened to the farmer? He is still alive in this world but he is still getting the same amount of money for his product? The Joseph Cox family were also Mormon descendents, so to the man in Canyon that said that the Mormons had the right idea when it came to farming "What' happened?". Where did the farmer go wrong? I do believe that the American farmer stayed down on the farm to long before he went to Washington to really see where all of his farming was really being done. In one book that I'read it said that the American Revolution was fought between crops. For those that don't remember America was once TOTALLY a farm oriented country.

Boxing Promoters Nix federal Control

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two of the nation's top boxing promoters. Doug King and Bob Arum, disagree over the need for federal supervision of the fight game.

The flamboyant King told a House labor standards subcommittee Thursday that boxing has made great strides in the direction of public support and interest and "will continue to do so without the necessity of federal intervention."

Agreeing that boxing had faults. King told committee Chairman Edward V. Beard. D-R.I., who has introduced a bill to create a three-member federal boxing commission in the Labor Department, that he

"I can conceive of virtually no aspect of American life less demanding of federal government control of regulation than that of prizefighting," he said.

King said state boxing commissions, of which there are some 32, "more than adequately perform the functions which the federal boxing board ... would perform.'

"I am sure this bill has merit, yet at this time, when apparently the federal government is in a program of economy and deregulation of numerous businesses and enterprises, why would they create another bureaucracy and more regulation which really is not necessary?" he asked.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Pete Rose got a cool reception from some former Cincinnati teammates and from Reds' fans when he faced his old team as a Philadelphia Phillie for the first time Thursday.

New Cincinnati Manager John McNamara made a point of seeking out Rose before the game-to exchange a few words. but when Rose came to bat he was greeted with nearly as many boos as cheers.

Rose engaged in baseball small talk with some of the Reds around the batting cage.

"How ya doin' at the track?" one of them asked Rose, who goes to the races often.

'The same as you," Rose said. "We all get the same dogs. All the ballplayers go down the tubes by the end of the month."

The dog track in St. Petersburg is popular among the players because they're working most afternoons while the horses are running at Florida Downs.

Rose insisted that playing against the Reds was like any other game, but admitted to having mixed feelings about Cincinnati, where he was raised, starred for 16 years and still lives.

"I'll always be a Cincinnati Reds fan," he said. "Every memento I have on my mantle is from the Cincinnati Reds."

What about the fans, some of whom turned on him when he left the Reds?

One Ump Signs Contract

CHICAGO (AP) - Paul Prvor of the National League has become the first veteran umpire to sign a contract for the 1979 season and may be the only regular working when the major league season begins next Wednesday.

Pryor agreed to a two-year contract this week, joining rookie American League umpire Ted Hendry, who had signed his contract before the current dispute began. Hendry reported for spring training this week in Arizona after receiving clearance from the umpires association.

That leaves 50 umpires still on the sidelines and they were scheduled to meet here today with attorney Richie Phillips for an update on their situation.

Following a federal court judge's ruling this week that he could not order the umpires back to work; the two leagues advised the officials that they would have until today to sign their contracts. If they fail to sign by today, they were advised that they would be "You're never going to make replaced and could be rehired only when staff openings were available.

At issue are the salaries and working conditions of the umpires, who are asking for increases from a current minimum of $17,500 to $23,500 and a current maximum of just over $40,000 to $60,000.

'Last year, six umpires earned less than $20,000, 12 were below $25,000, 20 below

$30,000, 11 below $40,000 and three over $40,000," Phillips said. The only umpires making more than $40,000 are veterans Doug Harvey, Bill Haller and Ed

Phillips compared that with National Basketball Association referees, whom he also represents. A 10-year veteran major league umpire earns $32,500 a year, or $200 for each of 162 games within a 180-day season. A 10-year NBA official gets $45,000 a year, or $550 for each of 81 games within a 210-day season.

Baseball has arranged to replace the regulars with minor league, collegiate, high school and sandlot umpires if the work stoppage stretches into the regular season.

Losing loose skin

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 17-year-old male and I recently lost a great amount of weight by going on a diet and improving my exercise. I lost between 40 and 50 pounds. However, this great weight loss has left an excessive amount of flab on my abdomen. Please do not suggest sit-ups. I do them three times a day and it does not help. Can you suggest anything?

DEAR READER — I am really surprised at how often this question is raised. What to do depends upon what you mean by flab. Also since I don't know how overweight you were to begin with, it's difficult for me to know whether you have still more fat to to lose. You should be able to tell by feeling how much fat there is underneath your skin - if any.

Loose skin may never fully contract. That's why people shouldn't get fat in the first place, even if they're very young. If you stretch the skin too much, it will only snap back so far.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding the Big Middle, even though I suspect you have accomplished a lot of what this issue advises. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I am going to advise sit-ups and leg lifts for you. Many people don't realize that sit-ups do not tone up all of the abdomen. They are primarily for the upper ab-, dominal muscles, those above the navel. They have very little effect on the muscles below the navel. These must be tightened up with leg lift type exercises. I'd like to add that anyone with back problems should not try doing leg lift exercises without his doctor's approv-

The

Sit-ups, voluntary contraction of abdominal muscles, leg lifts and eliminating fat under the skin and fat inside the abdomen are the keys to tightening up the waist area: If you still have a lot of loose skin a year after undergoing a fat control program then if you want to get rid of it, you'll have to consider surgical removal.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I was reading your column about transplanting an ovum from one woman into another woman's uterus. This set me to thinking. We don't have any children because I had a hysterectomy when I was very young. My ovaries were left intact, so apparently I still ovulate but, of course, since I don't have a uterus I don't have menstrual periods

Now I understand there isn't such a thing as uterus transplants yet, but what I'd like to know is if I'm producing normal ova, could one of those be fertilized and developed in some other woman's uterus? That way my husband and I could have a child that has our

DEAR READER Theoretically, that would be possible and things very similar to that have been done in animal reproduction. At this particular writing, this hasn't been done in human beings, but most of the basic elements needed to do such a procedure have been worked out.

So, I can't tell you that you could have such a thing done now, but I do think it's entirely possible for a woman in your situation to have that done at some date in the future, if she chooses to do so. Of course, that would entail finding another woman who was willing to ge through the pregnancy for your child.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a problem that I'd like some help with. I've been on a diet and lost about 20 pounds in a year. I'm happy about that but when I lost weight, I also lost my menstrual period. At first I didn't worry and kept right on with the diet and taking water pills. Then I started to worry. I'm only 16 and I've had a period regularly for about a year. Could I still get pregnant?

I've been to doctors and they all say that it will come back soon if I stop worrying about it. I really can't stop worrying. I'm still trying to correct answer. When a girl give me an honest opinion.

It is true that severe dieting or fad diets which don't give you a balanced diet can cause you to have such a problem. Years ago a study in men at the University of Minnesota showed that when they were on a 1600-calorie balanced diet and lost a lot of weight, they lost their normal interest in sex as well as undergoing a lot of other changes. If you abuse your body, you should not expect it to function normal-

I am all for losing weight, if you need to, but I like to see people do this in a sensible way that's not dangerous to their health

You shouldn't stay on this diet or any other diet that's too restrictive for too long. I think six weeks is about maximum. Then you should be on a maintenance diet that would allow your body to recover and replenish all its needs.

A lot of girls have menstrual difficulties from exressive tad dieting the worst are the low carbohydrate or no carbohy drate diets that people use Since you've only lost 20 pounds in a year, you're losing less than half a pound a week and that's a good sensible approach. I wish everyone would be as sensible. If you learn to eat a good balanced diet with a plan you can use the rest of your life, you may be able to avoid obesity for a lifetime. The other pitfall I'd like to caution you against is some young women overdo dieting. It becomes an obsession with them to the point that they develop anorexia nervosa. This is basically a psychological reaction often related to basic emotional disturbances and an inability to properly assess one's own body image.

A lot of these young girls still think they are fat even after they are as thin as a fugitive from a concentration camp. This is quite serious and parents should guard against this tendency, particularly in young women. It can also occur in boys but it more often occurs in young girls.

The U.S. Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles in 1919 and, although there was another vote four months later, the post-war policy of isolationism was assured.

Bellies were not well established at 50.25 for 12-14 lbs. and 50.00 for 11-16 lbs. Picnics sold at 52.00-52.25 for 4-8 lbs.

VIEWPOINT

Racism is no artifact

Louis Harris tells us that the number of white Americans who think poorly of black Americans has declined precipitously since 1963. At the same time, government data tells us that black Americans are still disadvantaged and in some ways worse off in 1979 than in years past—when racist attitudes were more commonly (and openly) reported than today.

The gap between what white people believe and the way black people live can be demonstrated in numerous areas. In education, for instance, young blacks are more likely than whites of the same age group to lack a high school diploma or a college degree, and are likely to make less money than whites with less education.

Sixty percent of blacks in colleges attend two-year community colleges or vocational and technical institutions. Half of the remaining blacks in colleges attend the historically black colleges, which still produce half of all blacks in America who receive a BA degree There has been both a percentage and numerical decline in the number of black medical school students, even before Alan Bakke's success In 1977 there was only one Black Ph D in metallurgy and in nuclear engineering. No black received a doctorate in agriculture, mining or systems engineering.

The percentage of blacks completing college increased from 4 percent male and 6 percent female in 1960 to 11 percent for black men and women in 1976. But 34 percent ct white men and 22 percent of white women finished college

College-educated black men earn 85 percent of the income of equally educated white men-In employment, blacks are more likely to be unemployed, have less per capita household income and a ... greater chance of being in poverty There are twice as many black people unemployed now as was true in 1969. The number of black men unemployed tripled between 1967 and 1977. One of every four blacworkers in the United States is out of work. From 1976 to 1977, the unemployment rate for black teenagers increased from 37 percent to 40 percent In health, only 1.07 percent of physicians in the United States are black. The ratio of white physicians to white people is 1 to 700. Among blacks, the figure is 1 to 3,000. Of 150,000 dentists in the United States, only 3,000 are black Black mothers die in childbirth three times as often ac white mothers

black children as among white ones For most white Americans, racial discrimination and overt prejudice are artifacts of the past, an uncomfortable era in our history, a stain on the American conscience removed by the civil rights laws and the anti-poverty

Nutritional deficiencies are found twice as often among programs of the 1960s For nearly every black American, racism and prejudice are as real as the sun rising every morning, heat in summer and cold in winter.

Perhaps the white respondents to Louis Harris' poll have learned less how to love their neighbors and more that open hatred has become unfashionable. Public prejudice might recede, but its private results are still felt

We might commission another poll of the secret beliefs of white Americans to discover why their perception fits so poorly with black reality.

LACK OF FAITH MAKES FOOLS IN APRIL OR ANY MONTH

prii fool's Day of uncertain origin is a definite delight for the younger generation, when the unwary had better resist the vanishing purse on the sidewalk and beware of other childhood jokes and pranks. However, we are terriging lesgullible when we attempt to delude ourselves - any time into believing that we are completely self-sufficient, able to solve all our own problems and in no need of any spiritual guidance. This totally materialistic view of the world we live in leaves far too many questions unanswered to present any true picture of it, and in any case, we all exhaust our earthly remedies sooner or later and have to call upon a higher source of help, always available at the Church of our choice. On that day we stop fooling purselves
