Herd Vs. Lobos: Crucial Tilt In I-AAA Tuesday

District I-AAA baseball fans, coaches and players had their eyes pointed toward Dumas Saturday afternoon.

There, the Demons and the Levelland Lobos were to clash at 2 p.m. in a crucial conference game. At home, the Demons will be trying to make it two victories over the Lobos. Dumas has a 2-1 record while Levelland is 0-2. Hereford, idle this weekend, is tied with the Demons at 2-1.

Levelland figures in two vital games to decide the district champion. In addition to Saturday's tilt, they will be at home Tuesday at 4 p.m. for a game with the Hereford squad.

In the three-team loop, the results can come out three different ways. If Dumas loses to Levelland and Hereford wins, then the Whitefaces would repeat as district champions. If Dumas wins and Hereford...

Around Town

It was nice to see cars and trucks rolling along U. S. Highway 60 Friday night without any detours. The street was closed so long that most residents just automatically go around it. But the construction people really deserve a pat on the back for getting finished so quickly. Had they stretched it out for the full, estimated time, it would have tied the town in knots for wheat harvest and vegetable work.

Deaf Smith County Commission is scheduled to meet in regular session Monday at 10 a.m.

A special fund has been started at the First National Bank for Tam Soebese, daughter of Highway Patrol Sergeant and Mrs. Roger Soebese. Tam was severely burned six weeks ago and is expected to be hospitalized for the rest of this year. Anyone who would like to contribute may do so at the bank.

Some national trends are in store for those who attend Mrs. Earl Plank's one-man art show Sunday, May 7. Her paintings will be on display from 2-6 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center and the public is invited to attend. Mrs. Plank has divided her work into three major divisions: western, modernistic and floral. Poems about the paintings add another special touch of individuality.

The Panhandle area is being asked to support a project to build a summer theatre in Palo Duro Canyon. Paul Green, a Pulitzer Prize winning author, has agreed to write an historical play for theatre if an estimated $150,000 can be raised. Green is a former professor at the University of North Carolina and has written 19 of what he calls "shrine dramas." If the theatre is built, it would be operated for ten weeks during each summer.

Oasis Shrine Club and the Hereford Sky Divers will co-sponsor a sport parachute jumping demonstration at the Hereford Airport on Sunday. Jumps are to start at 2 p.m. There will be no charge for admittance to the airport.

Chamber of Commerce directors will face a busy agenda when they meet at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Western Wheel Inn. Included are recommendations on a solicitation control policy, proposed resolution and policy regarding the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District, discussion on the proposed crippled children's home and discussion of a proposed Latin American study committee.

All Deaf Smith County farmers are urged to attend a regional meeting in Amarillo on Wednesday, May 10, to discuss future farm legislation. The meeting is to start at 10 a.m. in the Herring Hotel. Among the speakers will be Harold West, president of Texas Farm Bureau.

Bud To Blossom Garden Club will present its annual flower show on Friday, May 12. The show will be presented from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center. Theme for the show this year will be "A Garden Clubber's Calendar."

Hereford classroom teachers will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 8, in the high school cafeteria.

Reinauer Wins Declamation As Gentry Is Third

A junior at Hereford High School, Jimmy Reinauer, 17, Friday morning won first place in senior boys declamation at Texas University Interscholastic League state contest in Austin.

James Gentry, 18, senior at Hereford High, Friday afternoon placed third in state extemporaneous speech contests. Reinauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reinauer.

Joe Reinauer, Route 4, Hereford, won a medal for himself and a large plaque for his school by winning first place with his speech, which was a cutting of World War II speeches by Sir Winston Churchill. Had Reinauer been a senior, he also would have been awarded a scholarship.

Gentry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gentry of Dawn, won a third place medal for his extemporaneous speech, which was a discussion on changes in Democratic Party policy in the new administration. Both students qualified for state contests at the University of Texas by placing first in regional contests in Odessa and district contests at Levelland. They represented Area I in the state UIL contests, held Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Austin. They were accompanied on their trip to Austin by Burney McClurkan, instructor in speech and drama at Hereford High.

Audience Split On Herbicide Law

Fifty area residents, who heard pros and cons on an optional state herbicide control act in Hereford Thursday night, seemed split in their opinions on what the regulations would mean for Deaf Smith County farmers.

After hearing advantages and disadvantages of the control law, some indicated approval of such regulations, some expressed opposition to it while others felt a control law in only certain portions of the county would be feasible.

No final action was taken after the residents discussed the proposed program. It was decided to hold another meeting in 69th District Courtroom May 18, beginning at 8 p.m.

In the meantime, County Judge Don Zimmerman will consult Texas Commissioner of Agriculture John White to get further information on the program.

Explaining the act Thursday night was Gene Cupp of Lubbock, district supervisor of the Horticulture and Plant Quarantine Division, Texas Department of Agriculture.

During his 45 minute talk, Cupp said that if the optional law is adopted by a county, the entire county usually falls under provisions of the act — not just a portion of the county.

Cupp further explained that it is easier for the county to adopt the law than it is "to get out from under it." He urged that county farmers give the program careful consideration before any action is taken.

Basically, the optional law provides for the licensing of applicators of certain types of herbicides and sets up regulations for their use.

A group of county cotton and vegetable farmers recently asked the County Commissioner to consider the law, since they said that herbicide application sometimes damaged their crops.

"Soil Stewardship Week is an important time for people, both rural and urban, for it is a time for emphasizing the importance of soil in the lives of people everywhere," Lesly said.

"It is not a reminder to the farmer and rancher alone, but a reminder to everyone who would put a spade in the soil." "All people have an interest in the use of our natural resources, particularly this soil," according to Don F. Newman of the Soil Conservation Service. "Most people want to leave the land in better shape when they leave it than it was when they secured it. After all, we are really just stewards of the land and what we leave behind us we leave to those who come after us."

The SCD also has a movie entitled "The Earth Is The Lord's" which is available upon request.

Soil Stewardship Week, May 7-14

Deaf Smith County residents will observe Soil Stewardship Week May 7-14, it has been announced by Luther Lesly, chairman of the Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District board of supervisors.

The SCD each year sets aside a special week to remind county residents of the importance of soil in the lives of everyone. Posters on this theme have been placed in the windows of local businesses, and Soil Stewardship materials have been distributed to Hereford churches.

The SCD also has a movie entitled "The Earth Is The Lord's" which is available upon request.

HIGHWAY 60 WAS OPENED Friday and motorists lost no time in trying it out from end to end. The streak of headlights and taillights formed a symbolic pattern of continuous flow on both sides of the concrete median dividers and turn lanes shortly after the road was opened. (Staff Photo by H. A. Tuck)

US Highway 60 In Hereford Opened For Traffic Friday

A wider, smoother U. S. Highway 60 in Hereford was officially opened for traffic on Friday afternoon. Also opened up was a wider South Main from First Street south to the Tierra Blanca Creek bridge.

Work was completed in near-record time for such a project, primarily because of few bad weather shut-downs.

Resident engineer L. J. Clark said some clean-up and repair work remained to be done, but the highway itself was finished and ready to handle through traffic.

Cost of the initial project, including South Main, was $437,572 for 2.6 miles of work. Contractor on the job was Ivan Dement, Inc., of Amarillo.

Contract was let Nov. 10 by the Texas Highway Department. Work got started about Jan. 1. The project started at the east Hereford city limits (Benefield's corner) and ended at the intersection of U. S. Highways 60 and 385.

The highway within the city, also known as First Street, was widened to provide four lanes of continuous traffic, plus median dividers and turn lanes. The median dividers are concrete, formed like long, shallow 'S's, so that left-turning traffic does not interfere with traffic going straight.

Within the city, the highway was widened to 62 feet from the west end of the project to Lawton and to 84 feet from Lawton east to the city limits. Part of the highway will include "no parking" restrictions to insure a smooth traffic flow.

Hot mix topping finished the project, which also included underground storm sewer drainage. Part of the east end is channeled onto Santa Fe Railroad right-of-way for open ditch drainage.

In connection with the project, new flasher warning lights and crossing are included at the railroad intersection on South Main.

A slight change in traffic flow was provided at Park and U. S. 60. Going east on Park, traffic will turn south to enter the highway at a right angle. West bound traffic will have a brief one-way drive turning onto Park Avenue.

New traffic lights have been installed at the corners of U. S. 60 and Main Street. New street lights will be mounted in the center on the street on the median dividers. Crews now are putting up control signs and painting traffic dividers for better visibility. Traffic lane markers also will be painted on the highway.

City of Hereford paid $60,000 on the project while property owners along the road have been assessed about $23,800.

With the city portion completed well ahead of the estimated one-year time, the Ivan Dement workers now will concentrate on expanding U. S. 60 east from Hereford to Amarillo.

A contractor's representative said this week that paving on the south half of the proposed four-lane road will start very soon. Then all traffic will be diverted to this side while the present highway is torn out and rebuilt to provide two more lanes.

When completed, U. S. Highway 60 will be four lanes from U. S. 385 in Hereford east to Canyon and on into Amarillo. The Randall County portion of the four lane road is completed, but part of it will be repaved this summer.

The contractor also stated that paving of the "Four Mile Lake" area north of Hereford will be done soon. The company has a contract to raise the highway above high water level. The road was under as much as six feet of water last fall after heavy rains. It has been raised about ten feet.

Fast Action Saves School Industrial Arts Building

Fast action of Hereford Volunteer Fire Department early Friday morning saved the Hereford High School industrial arts building from extensive damage or possible destruction.

A fire which broke out around a gas floor furnace caused only relatively minor damage to the wooden frame, stucco building. The building and contents are worth an estimated $20,000.

Loss was estimated at about $2400 by Hereford Fire Marshal Clay Angelo. Had flames reached other portions of the building and power equipment in the woodshop, loss would have been considerably more, firemen said.

The fire was reported at 6 a.m. by Arthur Brock, school custodian, and Bob Wilson, who is in charge of the school bus barn. A resident who lives near the industrial arts building reported the fire to Brock and Wilson.

Twenty-eight volunteer firemen fought stubborn flames for more than an hour. Much of the fire was underneath the wood floor of the three-room building.

The floor furnace is located on the east side of the woodshop. After most of the smoke was cleared from the structure, firemen were able to extinguish flames underneath the floor. A few hours later, firemen stopped the spread of a fire which destroyed a wooden frame storage shed south of the Highway 60-U. S. 385 intersection. Grass around the shed also was burned, but the firemen kept the fire contained to a small area.

Set Pony League Tryout Schedule

Try-outs for Hereford's Pony League baseball program will start Monday, May 8. League president Earl Stagner said the try-outs would be held at 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday at the Alkman Elementary School playground.

Player auction for the 13 and 14 year old boys will be held on Friday, May 12, and the announcement of team rosters will be held on Saturday at 5 p.m. at the Pony League field. Participants will be limited to those boys who will be 13 before Aug. 1 and not more than 14 by Aug. 1.

Registration blanks have been passed out in school. Stagner said they can be turned in at the school or brought to the first practice, but emphasized that they must be signed by the boy's parents.

Each of the four Pony League teams will have 15 players. Coaches for the teams include: Indians, Johnny Haney and Bill Howard; White Sox, Dwayne Baize and J. C. Mays; Tigers, Don McNeese and Bob Wilson; and Red Sox, Raymond Lueb.

First game of the season is scheduled for Monday, May 29. Stagner said. Each team will play a 12-game round robin.

Besides Stagner, officers and officials in the league include: B. F. Cain, purchasing agent and vice president; Joel Hodges, secretary; treasurer; Gwynne Owen, player agent; Dean Herring, chief scorekeeper; and L. J. Clark, umpire-in-chief.

VOLUNTEER FIREMAN George Jowell helps extinguish flames under the floor of the high school industrial arts building Friday morning. Jowell is standing in a hole which was burned through the floor at the location of a gas floor furnace, where the fire started. Damage was estimated at about $2400 by Hereford Fire Marshal Clay Angelo. (Staff Photo)

Highway Opens Paraguay's Rich Chaco

BY BRIAN BELL
Asuncion, Paraguay (AP) — In the Oregon-sized Chaco section of Paraguay, wild Indians still roam. Ostriches run in 50-bird flocks. Jaguars and wolves patrol the jungle. Foxes as big as collie dogs abound.

The Chaco covers 61 per cent of Paraguay but only 80,000 people or 5 per cent of the population live in its wilds. However, its millions of unexploited acres hold untold riches in timber, minerals and agriculture.

Forty per cent of Paraguay's cattle are raised in the Chaco only to toughen and lose weight on drives hundreds of miles across prairies, through jungles and raging waters to reach the market at Asuncion.

At last an unlikely combination of the Paraguayan government, United States technicians, cattle ranchers and the Mennonite church are working to build a 290-mile road opening up the territory. Once it has breached the Chaco, feeder roads are expected to connect the main highway with the entire section unloosing its riches.

The road is being built by the Paraguayan government. Paraguayan draftees and officers of the Paraguayan Engineer Command are doing most of the heavy work. But 20 Mennonite youths anxious to open up Filadelfia and their other colonies in the Chaco for commerce are laboring alongside the soldiers.

The United States Operations mission here has supplied technical direction. The U. S. Army Mission in Paraguay is training an engineer construction battalion to build and maintain the road. The United States is also supplying much of the heavy equipment needed to build the highway.

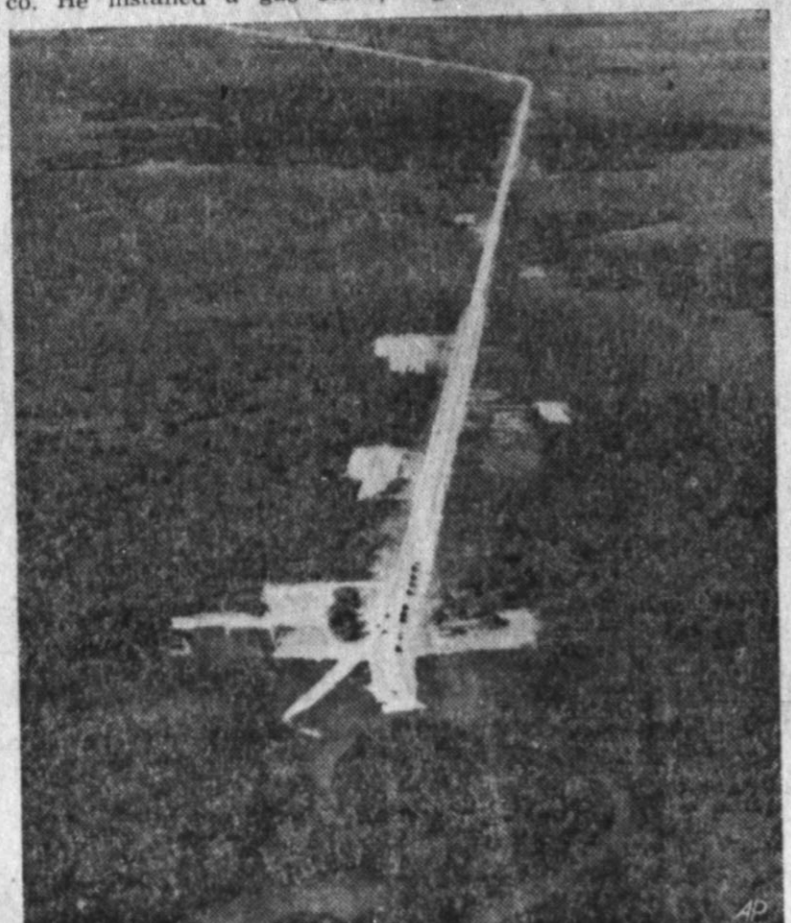

Paraguayan ranchers along the route, eager to have an access road to the market at Asuncion, are providing fuel, lubricants and supplies.

The road now stretches more than 72 miles into the Chaco and is expected to be completed within 2½ years.

Plans were made for the Installation Dinner. A motion was made to vote by secret ballot the outstanding club member since there was a three-way tie. Mrs. Cecil Morrison was voted in by secret ballot to become a member in September.

All the games among the three have been close, and usually decided at the last moment. In the league opener, Hereford rallied to win a 6-4 ball game. Hereford made it two straight with a 5-4 decision in eight innings over Levelland.

Dumas broke open a 2-2 tie in the seventh to win 4-2 over Levelland, then used a three-run homer in the seventh to knock off Hereford.

In Tuesday's game, Levelland is expected to start David Schmidley or Jimmy Harris on the mound.

Hereford coach Cuby Kitchens probably won't give the nod to his starting pitcher until Tuesday afternoon. It could be Jim Collier, Mickey Stevens or Drew Kershen. Hereford's probable starting line-up includes Wesley Poarch, catcher; Charlie Burrus, first base; Greg Combs, second base; Edwin Thomas or Ken Loerwald, third base; Jim Collier or John Willoughby, shortstop; Charlie Thomas, left field; Ronnie Botkin, center field; and Dan McDowell, right field.

Pencils Sharpen Interior Design

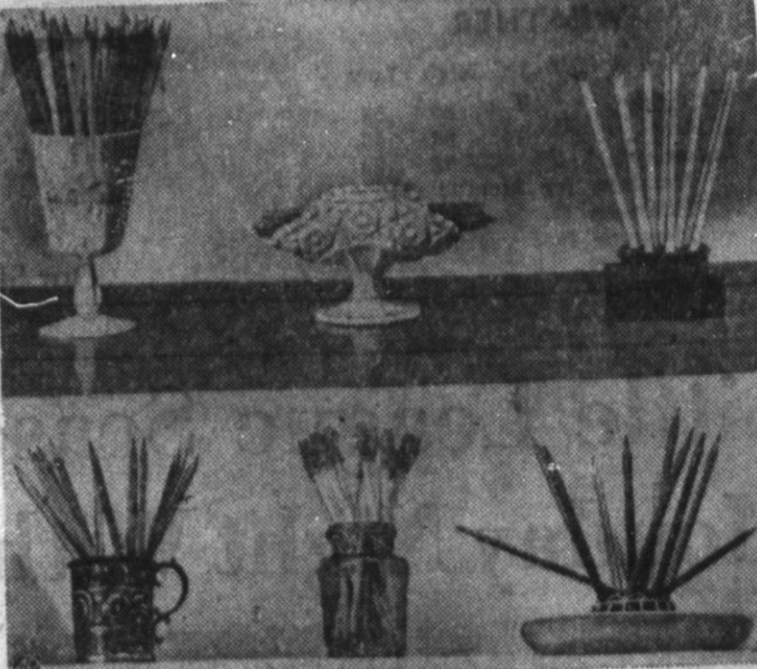

Pencil Holders
Pencils have come into their own as a smart decoration in any household. Arrayed and displayed like flower arrangements (left), they bring color accents to desk tops, bedside tables and telephone stands. Place multi-colored pencils in a milk glass goblet or candy dish; put lacquered white pencils in a conventional holder made of a tuft of brush on a block of walnut; or arrange a cluster of pencils in a silver mug, a transparent jar of Mexican glass or a cut flower holder on a handmade pottery plate for startling designs.

Versatile Notebook
Left handed people can write as easily as right handed ones in a new space saving notebook that does away with the conventional side lines. This washable vinyl plastic notebook has two posts at the top to hold paper and a magnetic lock which snaps shut with a touch of the hand.

Folded half-way back, the binder stands up for transcribing notes. A three-fold hinge enable the notebook cover to be folded back for a flat writing surface, taking up half the room of the old style binder.

Bright Book Covers
The latest thing in school book covers is aluminum foil gift wrap designed for the studious teen-ager. Easy to clean and ink and water repellent, the covering comes in a variety of designs, including one called "Explosion" which has "caution, handle with care," "censored," "stand back," "this end up," "special handling" and "do not crush" written on it.

I would have plenty of inside dope on the flight, but I got tied up and didn't make it to the barber shop. Sorry.

Tucked away in a corner of the same paper, carrying the missile headlines Saturday morning was a little item which reported Russia to be some 40 to 50 years behind the U. S. in agricultural development and farm production. It said that much of the limited Soviet farm equipment is used for display purposes, rather than farming. It is also a known fact that a vast percentage of the world's communists go to bed hungry each night. I wonder, so me-times, if the world's sense of values is not a bit warped?

Ezra Norton and Newt Harding are two consistent early risers. They usually hit town around 6 a.m. Next to Clay Ridgeway, they probably get more worms than any two early birds I know. I also notice that Ernest Wade is doing an early morning desk stint at Hotel Jim Hill these days.

Meanwhile, if you have been along the route of U. S. 60 through town, you are bound to agree that it is one of the nicest highway strips in the country. Business firms along the route took a real beating the past few months, but most of them are now in shape to reap the tourist harvest. According to a recent break-down, the tourist dollar in Texas is spent as follows:

- 20 cents in retail stores,
- 28 cents for food,
- 8 cents on recreation,
- 3 cents on tires, auto parts and repairs,
- 19 cents for gasoline and oil, and
- 22 cents for lodging.

Most of us are usually on the reverse end of the deal, but statistics show that the average 1960 tourist in Texas spent $8.91 a day along the route. As one Southern governor puts it, "The out-of-state tourist brings more cash profit than a bale of cotton, and he's a danged sight easier to pick!"

A decade or so back, bicycle riding became the rage for many women. Now, it seems that the men are taking up the fad. Dr. Clarence Hicks was one of the first I noticed; now I see Bob Fillpot and Bill Bradley occasionally astride bikes. They say one thing a man never forgets is how to ride a bicycle—but don't attempt the "No hands" business until you at least get the feel of the thing.

The definition of expert continues to change. According to the newest version, he is the fellow you call in at the last minute to share the blame.

Last Sunday, I mentioned something about Hoot and Earl Pouch. Now they have done it again. I hear that they have a contract to build a scenic car lift across Palo Duro Canyon. Pete Cowart, former Hereford C-C manager, now runs the park and seems to have worked out the arrangement with the local firm. Anyway, you take it, the lift is quite a project. If I get things right, it will start in the vicinity of the miniature train rides, popularly known as "Sad Monkey, Texas."

Down through the years, countless poetry and prose have been written about "Spring," but one phase has been completely overlooked. This phase concerns the severing of friendships. During the winter months literally scores of my acquaintances, who own boats and motors drop around regularly and talk about how we are going fishing. Come spring, and warm weather—and I never see them any more.

Without question, the greatest forward stride made in the parts in recent years is the new stamp vending machine installed this week in the post office. It makes change, dispenses stamps and does everything but say, "Thank You." This is all right, because neither do the clerks who sell stamps at the windows—and there is no use getting people spoiled. If the post office department keeps on mechanizing, it is going to catch up with the soft drink industry, and maybe get out of the red. Most-ly, though, the machine provides a long-needed service, brought about by the shorter work week. Next thing you know they will be selling compact cars through vending machines. Charlie Seeds says they would be doing it now—except they can't figure out how to handle the trade-ins.

The guy who said "talk is cheap" probably never told a baby-sitter to help herself if she got hungry.

TALKING CROW
SALT LAKE CITY — Joe the Crow rules the roost in the Ralph Aelle home.

He talks, whistles and barks when the neighbor's dog barks at him. When he wants attention, he calls "Ralph," for his 15-year-old owner or "Mom." The only time such behavior doesn't draw raves is in the predawn hours.

In the two years Ralph has had the 3-year-old bird, he has found Joe pretty smart. "He will hide anything he can get his beak on," Ralph says. Joe never learned to fly, so most of the time he stays outside in the yard, unneared.

HELD ON WEDNESDAY

Teachers Attend Seminar For Alcohol Education

The Hereford High School cafeteria was the scene Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 for 145 teachers attending a Seminar on Alcohol Education sponsored by Deaf Smith County Council on Alcoholism.

Bill Hardwick, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Council on alcoholism, said, "The purpose of the seminar was to stimulate interest in the organization of a committee on education concerning alcohol and alcoholism, whose purpose would be to outline a tailor-made program to be used in the school systems in this community."

Hardwick introduced the guest speaker, Frank Campbell, Executive Director of the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, which is a Department of State funded by tax money and receives appropriation from the Texas legislature on which to operate.

Campbell stated: "In Texas alone there are 200,000 plus alcoholics, persons with a hidden illness. More than 50% that undergo the treatment for alcoholism are high school or college graduates. As a major public health problem it ranks with heart and cancer diseases. For every alcoholic it is estimated another 4 persons are directly affected."

He asked the question: "What shall we do?" In our schools information and facts must be furnished with a positive approach taken. This will be no simple task because it involves attitudes as well as facts. It is desirable that this information be given in the most straightforward manner.

One of the concerns of many teen-agers (young adults) is the status of their popularity. Many today are asking the question, "If I don't drink, will I still be popular?" A film shown by Herb Boardman, Field Representative of the Texas Commission on alcoholism in this region, produced by Raymond McCarthy, Education Director of the National Council of Alcoholics, entitled, "Teaching Teen-Agers About Alcohol" was shown to the group.

In this film the answer to the above question was covered in a thorough and interesting way.

Campbell then further stated the four purposes of the commission on the treatment. They were: 1. Alcohol Rehabilitation and Treatment, 2. Public Education, 3. Prevention and mental Hospitals, 4. Collection, clearing and dissemination of factual information.

A statement made by Dr. William C. Menninger of the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan., should be taken to heart and studied seriously: "A national emergency would be declared — if alcoholism were a communicable disease."

Kids No Trouble If Grandma Has Aid

BY VIVIAN BROWN
Grandma is usually delighted to take over the grandchildren and give the young people a honeymoon weekend. However, she probably has forgotten how much work it is, if she hasn't done it since her own children were little. The event should be made easier for Grandma so she can keep her good health in the process and perhaps offer to take on the task again.

A mother who anticipates using Grandma as baby sitter will give her everything she will need, including menus and a schedule for naps. Junior's equipment is likely to fall into three major categories: mealtime needs, a "beauty kit," and clothing.

Here's a packing list and schedule for a typical baby at the creeping-toddling stage: In the mealtime bag, pack enough food for all his meals. Grandma will probably provide some fresh food, such as milk and eggs, but save her a shopping trip and cookery work by including several small packages of baby cereal, jars of strained or junior fruit, vegetables and meat, some of the new protein dinners in beef, lamb or chicken flavor, and several cans of juice. Include baby's spoons, his baby food warmer, bottles, nipples and cup. If he is still on formula, make up a two-day supply and carry it in a thermos bag. Since Grandma may have to make up a new batch before the visit is over, it is wise to include specific instructions plus all the equipment: sterilizer, bottle brush, measuring cup, etc. The mealtime bag should also contain his bibs.

Put all his grooming aids in the "beauty kit." These will include talcum powder, cotton balls and cleaning tissues, baby oil, baby lotion or other preparations, his vitamins, comb and brush, towel, washcloth, soap. Any special medicine, salve for possible rashes or other ailments also should be included.

Baby's clothing needs will depend on the weather and his activities, but sturdy everyday clothes will be less trouble for Grandma than Sunday-best garments. Be sure to pack enough clothes since Grandma will be too busy to do a lot of laundry. Take plenty of diapers, but include a box of disposable diapers for alternate use. Be sure to include a letter giving his schedule and special information on medicines, vitamins and other special equipment new to Grandma. Even though products and methods of baby care are changing, babies themselves do not change. Grandma will have a wonderful time reliving the days before her own children grew up and will find baby care easier today than it was a generation earlier.

Cockney Role Nets Highest London Wage

By Milton Marmor
LONDON (AP) — A motherly character actress known for her cockney portrayals surprisingly is the highest paid actress on the London West End stage. Her name is Kathleen Harrison and the play she stars in is something called "Watch It, Sailor!" a light comedy that has become one of London's biggest successes.

The play is presented by Toby Rowland, an American-born theater producer living here. Rowland, from Montana, recently became a British subject. Rowland's success in a sort of play that doesn't worry about the carriage or egghead trade in a strange way is indicative of what happens in the British theater. For several years he has been producing serious, high-minded plays. Most of them flopped. But, he realized that the London theater has always supported cockney shows that appeal to the "coaches' clientele," bus loads of theater lovers from the provinces who laugh loudly at simple, hearty humor.

So, Rowland decided that if the theater-going public liked broad comedy he'd give them something to laugh at. He produced "Watch It, Sailor!" a sequel to a former success called "Sailor Beware." For some odd reason, no other theater man had appeared to be interested in "Watch It, Sailor!" which had been touring the provinces. Rowland grabbed it up and that's that. Now the show is topping $16,800 in weekly receipts — and Kathleen Harrison gets 10 percent of the take along with her three figure (in pounds) salary. That yields her a few thousand dollars a week.

Fifty-seven general officers of the Union Army in the Civil War were born in Ohio. The list includes Ulysses S. Grant and William T. Sherman.

Beauty At Home

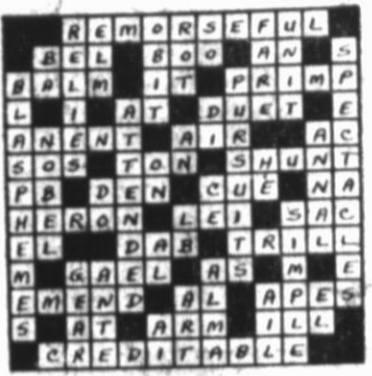

Q. Will you please recommend a good "weight-gainer" cocktail I can mix myself? A. Several times a day (between meals), mix one fresh egg yolk with a glass of orange juice, add a tablespoon of honey, beat until foamy, then down the hatch. It's tasty, and it's pound-producing. Q. How can I safely and quickly bleach the rather dark fuzz on my upper lip? A. Try some repeated applications of lemon juice.

CREDIT RECORD:
second to none!

Supplying plenty of low cost electricity to rural Americans is just one of our big jobs. Another equally important function, we believe, is paying our own way in the nation's economy. We think we've done this mighty well, and here's why:

Even though we serve widely scattered consumers, America's Rural Electric Systems — 1,000 strong, across the land — have already paid over $1 billion in principal and interest on their $3 1/2 billion in REA loans.

Best of all, every penny of this billion dollars — paid into the U. S. Treasury — came from the light bills of the consumer-owners of these rural electrics! This, we submit, is a credit record second to none — another reason why we say that rural electrification is good for all Americans!

Herd Vs. Lobos: Crucial Tilt In I-AAA Tuesday

District 1-AAA baseball fans, coaches and players had their eyes pointed toward Dumas Saturday afternoon.

There, the Demons and the Levelland Lobos were to clash at 2 p.m. in a crucial conference game. At home, the Demons will be trying to make it two victories over the Lobos. Dumas has a 2-1 record while Levelland is 0-2. Hereford, idle this weekend, is tied with the Demons at 2-1.

Levelland figures in two vital games to decide the district champion. In addition to Saturday's tilt, they will be at home Tuesday at 4 p.m. for a game with the Hereford squad.

In the three-team loop, the results can come out three different ways. If Dumas loses to Levelland and Hereford wins, then the Whitefaces would repeat as district champions.

Around Town

It was nice to see cars and trucks rolling along U. S. Highway 60 Friday night without any detours. The street was closed so long that most residents just automatically go around it.

Deaf Smith County Commission is scheduled to meet in regular session Monday at 10 a.m.

A special fund has been started at the First National Bank for Tam Sosebee, daughter of Highway Patrol Sergeant and Mrs. Roger Sosebee. Tam was severely burned six weeks ago and is expected to be hospitalized for the rest of this year.

Some unusual treats are in store for those who attend Mrs. Earl Plank's one-man art show Sunday, May 7. Her paintings will be on display from 2-6 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

The Panhandle area is being asked to support a project to build a summer theatre in Palo Duro Canyon. Paul Green, a Pulitzer Prize winning author, has agreed to write an historical play for theatre if an estimated $150,000 can be raised.

Oasis Shrine Club and the Hereford Sky Divers will co-sponsor a sport parachute jumping demonstration at the Hereford Airport on Sunday. Jumps are to start at 2 p.m. There will be no charge for admittance to the airport.

Chamber of Commerce directors will face a busy agenda when they meet at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Western Wheel Inn. Included are recommendations on a solicitation control policy, proposed resolution and policy regarding the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

All Deaf Smith County farmers are urged to attend a regional meeting in Amarillo on Wednesday, May 10, to discuss future farm legislation. The meeting is to start at 10 a.m. in the Herring Hotel.

Bud To Blossom Garden Club will present its annual flower show on Friday, May 12. The show will be presented from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

Hereford classroom teachers will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 8, in the high school cafeteria.

Reinauer Wins Declamation As Gentry Is Third

A junior at Hereford High School, Jimmy Reinauer, 17, Friday morning won first place in senior boys declamation at Texas University Interscholastic League state contests in Austin.

James Gentry, 18, a senior at Hereford High, Friday afternoon placed third in state extemporaneous speech contests.

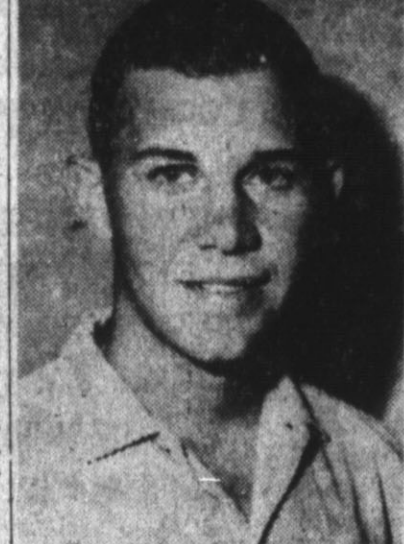

Reinauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. ...

Jimmy Reinauer

Joe Reinauer, Route 4, Hereford, won a medal for himself and a large plaque for his school by winning first place with his speech, which was a cutting of World War II speeches by Sir Winston Churchill.

Had Reinauer been a senior, he also would have been awarded a scholarship.

James Gentry

Gentry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gentry of Dawn, won a third place medal for his extemporaneous speech, which was a discussion on changes in Democratic Party policy in the new administration.

Both students qualified for state contests at the University of Texas by placing first in regional contests in Odessa and district contests at Levelland.

They were accompanied on their trip to Austin by Burney McClurkin, instructor in speech and drama at Hereford High.

Audience Split On Herbicide Law

Fifty area residents were divided pros and cons on an optional state herbicide control act in Hereford Thursday night.

In the meantime, County Judge Don Zimmerman will consult Texas Commissioner of Agriculture John White to get further information on the program.

Explaining the act Thursday night was Gene Cupp of Lubbock, district supervisor of the Horticulture and Plant Quarantine Division, Texas Department of Agriculture.

During his 45 minute talk, Cupp said that if the optional law is adopted by a county, the entire county usually falls under provisions of the act — not just a portion of the county.

Cupp further explained that it is easier for the county to adopt the law than it is to get out from under it. He urged that county farmers give the program careful consideration before any action is taken.

Basically, the optional law provides for the licensing of applicators of certain types of herbicides and sets up regulations for their use.

A group of county cotton and vegetable farmers recently asked the County Commissioner to consider the law, since they said that herbicide application sometimes damaged their crops.

Soil Stewardship Week, May 7-14

Deaf Smith County residents will observe Soil Stewardship Week May 7-14, it has been announced by Luther Lesly, chairman of the Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District board of supervisors.

The SCD each year sets aside a special week to remind county residents of the importance of soil in the lives of everyone. Posters on this theme have been placed in the windows of local businesses, and Soil Stewardship materials have been distributed to Hereford churches.

The SCD also has a movie entitled "The Earth Is The Lord's" which is available upon request.

"Soil Stewardship Week is an important time for people, both rural and urban, for it is a time for emphasizing the importance of soil in the lives of people everywhere," Lesly said.

"It is not a reminder to the farmer and rancher alone, but a reminder to everyone who would put a spade in the soil."

"All people have an interest in the use of our natural resources, particularly this soil," according to Don F. Newman of the Soil Conservation Service.

"Most people want to leave the land in better shape when they leave it than it was when they secured it. After all, we are really just stewards of the land and what we leave behind us we leave to those who come after us."

HIGHWAY 60 WAS OPENED Friday and motorists lost no time in trying it out from end to end. The streak of headlights and taillights formed a symbolic pattern of continuous flow on both sides of the concrete median.

US Highway 60 In Hereford Opened For Traffic Friday

A wider, smoother U. S. Highway 60 in Hereford was officially opened for traffic on Friday afternoon. Also opened up was a wider South Main from First Street south to the Tierra Blanca Creek bridge.

Work was completed in near-record time for such a project, primarily because of few bad weather shut-downs.

Resident engineer L. J. Clark said some clean-up and repair work remained to be done, but the highway itself was finished and ready to handle through traffic.

Cost of the total project, including South Main, was $437,572 for 2.6 miles of work. Contractor on the job was Ivan Dement, Inc., of Amarillo.

Contract was let Nov. 10 by the Texas Highway Department. Work got started about Jan. 1. The project started at the east Hereford city limits (Benefield's corner) and ended at the intersection of U. S. Highways 60 and 385.

The highway within the city, also known as First Street, was widened to provide four lanes of continuous traffic, plus median dividers and turn lanes. The median dividers are concrete, formed like long, shallow S's, so that left-turning traffic does not interfere with traffic going straight.

Within the city, the highway was widened to 62 feet from the west end of the project to Lawton and to 84 feet from Lawton east to the city limits. Part of the highway will include "no parking" restrictions to insure a smooth traffic flow.

Hot mix topping finish ed the project, which also included underground storm sewer drainage. Part of the east end is channeled onto Santa Fe Railroad right-of-way for open ditch drainage.

In connection with the project, new flasher warning lights and crossing are included at the railroad intersection on South Main.

A slight change in traffic flow was provided at Park and U. S. 60. Going east on Park, traffic will turn south to enter the highway at a right angle. West bound traffic will have a brief one-way drive turning onto Park Avenue.

New traffic lights have been installed at the corners of U. S. 60 and Main Street. New street lights will be mounted in the center on the street on the median dividers. Crews now are putting up control signs and painting traffic dividers for better visibility. Traffic lane markers also will be painted on the highway.

City of Hereford paid $60,000 on the project while property owners along the road have been assessed about $23,800.

With the city portion completed well ahead of the estimated one-year time, the Ivan Dement workers now will concentrate on expanding U. S. 60 east from Hereford to ...

A contractor's representative said this week that paving on the south half of the proposed four-lane road will start very soon. Then all traffic will be diverted to this side while the present highway is torn out and rebuilt to provide two more lanes.

When completed, U. S. Highway 60 will be four lanes from U. S. 385 in Hereford east to Canyon and on into Amarillo. The Randall County portion of the four lane road is completed, but part of it will be repaved this summer.

The contractor also stated that paving of the "Four Mile Lake" area south of Hereford will be done soon. The company has a contract to raise the highway above high water level. The road was under as much as six feet of water last fall after heavy rains. It has been raised about ten feet.

Fast Action Saves School Industrial Arts Building

Fast action of Hereford Volunteer Fire Department early Friday morning saved the Hereford High School industrial arts building from extensive damage or possible destruction.

A fire which broke out around a gas floor furnace caused only relatively minor damage to the wooden frame, stucco building. The building and contents are worth an estimated $20,000.

Loss was estimated at about $2400 by Hereford Fire Marshal Clay Angelo. Had flames reached other portions of the building and power equipment in the woodshop, loss would have been considerably more, firemen said.

The fire was reported at 6 a.m. by Arthur Brock, school custodian, and Bob Wilson, who is in charge of the school bus barn. A resident who lives near the industrial arts building reported the fire to Brock and Wilson.

Twenty-eight volunteer firemen fought stubborn flames for more than an hour. Much of the fire was underneath the wood floor of the three-room building.

The floor furnace is located on the east side of the woodshop. After most of the smoke was cleared from the structure, firemen were able to extinguish flames underneath the floor.

A few hours later, firemen stopped the spread of a fire which destroyed a wood end frame storage shed south of the Highway 60-U. S. 385 intersection. Grass around the shed also was burned, but the firemen kept the fire contained to a small area.

Set Pony League Tryout Schedule

Try-outs for Hereford's Pony League baseball program will start Monday, May 8. League president Earl Stagner said the try-outs would be held at 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday at the Alkman Elementary School playground.

Player auction for the 13 and 14 year old boys will be held on Friday, May 12, and the announcement of team rosters will be held on Saturday at 5 p.m. at the Pony League field. Participants will be limited to those boys who will be 13 before Aug. 1 and not more than 14 by Aug. 1.

Registration blanks have been passed out in school. Stagner said they can be turned in at the school or brought to the first practice, but emphasized that they must be signed by the boy's parents.

Each of the four Pony League teams will have 15 players. Coaches for the teams include: Indians, Johnny Haney and Bill Howard; White Sox, Dwayne Bdzic and J. C. Mays; Tigers, Don McNeese and Bob Wilson; and Red Sox, Raymond Lueb.

First game of the season is scheduled for Monday, May 29. Stagner said. Each team will play a 12-game round robin.

Besides Stagner, officers and officials in the league include: B. F. Cain, purchasing agent and vice president; Joel Hodges, secretary; treasurer; Gwynne Owen, player agent; Dean Herring, chief scorekeeper; and L. J. Clark, umpire-in-chief.

VOLUNTEER FIREMAN George Jowell helps extinguish flames under the floor of the high school industrial arts building Friday morning. Jowell is standing in a hole which was burned through the floor at the location of a gas floor furnace, where the fire started. Damage was estimated at about $2400 by Hereford Fire Marshal Clay Angelo. [Staff Photo]

Highway Opens Paraguay's Rich Chaco

BY BRIAN BELL
Asuncion, Paraguay (AP) — In the Oregon-sized Chaco section of Paraguay, wild Indians still roam. Ostriches run in 50-bird flocks. Jaguars and wolves patrol the jungle. Foxes as big as collie dogs abound.

The Chaco covers 61 per cent of Paraguay but only 80,000 people or 5 per cent of the population live in its wilds. However, its millions of unexploited acres hold untold riches in timber, minerals and agriculture.

Forty per cent of Paraguay's cattle are raised in the Chaco only to toughen and lose weight on drives hundreds of miles across prairies, through jungles and raging waters to reach the market at Asuncion.

At last an unlikely combination of the Paraguayan government, United States technicians, cattle ranchers and the Mennonite church are working to build a 290-mile road opening up the territory. Once it has breached the Chaco, feeder roads are expected to connect the main highway with the entire section unlocking its riches.

The road is being built by the Paraguayan government. Paraguayan draftees and officers of the Paraguayan Engineer Command are doing most of the heavy work. But 20 Mennonite youths anxious to open up Filadelfia and their other colonies in the Chaco for commerce are laboring alongside the soldiers.

The United States Operations mission here has supplied technical direction. The U. S. Army Mission in Paraguay is training an engineer construction battalion to build and maintain the road. The United States is also supplying much of the heavy equipment needed to build the highway.

Paraguayan ranchers along the route, eager to have an access road to the market at Asuncion, are providing fuel, lubricants and supplies.

The road now stretches more than 72 miles into the Chaco and is expected to be completed within 2½ years.

Three foot anteaters lumber out of the road crew's way. Sometimes a soldier brings down a mountain lion or a jaguar that strolls into range. Some trading has been done with the wild Indians that emerge, then disappear into the brush. Co. E. P. Tyner, head of the army mission, equipped his station wagon for trips to the Chaco. He installed a gas stove, extra fuel containers, a bed and a good locker. There they spend the night when inspecting the road.

As the road slowly inches through the rugged territory, hopes for the future of the previously dormant Chaco rise. "It's going to make another Texas out of the Chaco," one rancher says, and no one dares argue the point.

AERIAL VIEW . . . shows penetration of the 290-mile highway into the Chaco. Note patches of dense jungle and water the highway must cross in order to open up the rich area for development.

LOOKING AHEAD . . . members of the road gang take a rest break during the building of a bridge over one of the numerous rivers in the Chaco highway's path.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — In the women's lounge off the lobby of a Des Moines hotel stands a perfume-dispensing machine, which, for a dime, will spray any one of four popular scents. The other day the machine went on the blink and up went a sign saying: "Out of order." An unidentified girl had a better idea. With lipstick she scratched out the words and revised them to say: "Out of odor."

Pencils Sharpen Interior Design

Pencil Holders
Pencils have come into their own as a smart decoration in any household. Arranged and displayed like flower arrangements (left), they bring color accents to desk tops, bedside tables and telephone stands. Place multi-colored pencils in a milk glass goblet or candy dish; put lacquered white pencils in a conventional holder made of a tuft of brush on a block of walnut; or arrange a cluster of pencils in a silver mug, a transparent jar of Mexican glass or a cut flower holder on a handmade pottery plate for startling designs.

Bright Book Covers
The latest thing in school book covers is aluminum foil gift wrap designed for the studious teen-ager. Easy to clean and ink and water repellent, the covering comes in a variety of designs, including one called "Explosion" which has "caution, handle with care," "censored," "stand back," "this end up," "special handling" and "do not crush" written on it.

Feeding The Family Theme For Program

Mrs. Argen Draper gave the program on "The Care and Feeding of Your Family" at the recent meeting of the Young Mothers Study Club which met in the home of Mrs. Marshall Wilson. Mrs. Draper gave a very helpful program.

Plans were made for the Installation Dinner. A motion was made to vote by secret ballot the outstanding club member since there was a three-way tie. Mrs. Cecil Morrison was voted in by secret ballot to become a member in September.

Mrs. Raymond Dement and Mrs. Argen Draper were visitors. Members present were Mesdames Glendon Sanders, Weldon Roberson, Don Newman, Joe Lindsey, Howard Hunter, Bobby Shelton, James Arney, Wilda Thames, Jerome Duderstadt, A. W. Self, Charles Springer, Dallas Phillips, Homer Rudd and Ed Rinn.

(Continued from page 1) loses, then the Demons take the crown. And if Levelland wins both games, the district would be in a three-way tie. All the games among the three have been close, and usually decided at the last moment. In the league opener, Hereford rallied to win a 6-4 ball game. Hereford made it two straight with a 5-4 decision in eight innings over Levelland.

Dumas broke open a 2-2 tie in the seventh to win 4-2 over Levelland, then used a three-run homer in the seventh to knock off Hereford.

In Tuesday's game, Levelland is expected to start David Schmidley or Jimmy Harris on the mound.

Hereford coach Cuby Kitchens probably won't give the nod to his starting pitcher until Tuesday afternoon. It could be Jim Collier, Mickey Stevens or Drew Kersten. Hereford's probable starting line-up includes Wesley Poarch, catcher; Charlie Burrus, first base; Greg Combs, second base; Edwin Thomas or Ken Loerwald, third base; Jim Collier or John Willoughby, shortstop; Charles Thomas, left field; Ronnie Betkin, center field; and Dan McDowell, right field.

It's slick and new and pretty. Put speed limit's still 30!

TOY GUNWOMAN
HUGO, Okla. (AP) — Two men accosted Mrs. Idell Hallman as she drove along a highway. They crowded her car off the road and tried to rob her. She pulled a huge pistol and they fled. The gun was a toy she was taking to a nephew.

Why not plan now to be in Levelland at 4 p.m. Tuesday to boost the Whitefaces in their final scheduled district baseball game? With a 9-5 record, the boys have played good ball this season and deserve your support.

Little League's will have their season opening ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Monday, complete with band, introduction of players and Mayor Ray Cowser throwing out the first ball.

Streu's HARDWARE

BY JIMMIE GILLETINE
The dictionaries are filled with words we seldom hear, but since Friday the term, "Astro naut," has come into its own. One thing for sure, I'll bet the long wait before take-off was more grueling than the 15-minute ride. This space race business seems to have become a sort of International Olympics with a heavy emphasis on propaganda. Unlike Russia, the U. S. did advertise its up-coming shot, then took the nation along for the 5,100-MPH cruise via television. It was a calculated risk, but it paid off in a big way. However, I still shudder each time I think about what the Reds would have said if experiment had flopped.

I would have plenty of inside dope on the flight, but I got tied up and didn't make it to the barber shop. Sorry.

Tucked away in a corner of the same paper, carrying the missile headlines Saturday morning was a little item which reported Russia to be some 40 to 50 years behind the U. S. in agricultural development and farm production. It said that much of the limited Soviet farm equipment is used for display purposes, rather than farming. It is also a known fact that a vast percentage of the world's communists go to bed hungry each night. I wonder, so many times, if the world's sense of values is not a bit warped?

Ezra Norton and Newt Harding are two consistent early risers. They usually hit town around 6 a.m. Next to Clay Ridgeway, they probably get more worms than any two early birds I know. I also notice that Ernest Wade is doing an early morning desk stint at Hotel Jim Hill these days.

Meanwhile, if you have been along the route of U. S. 60 through town, you are bound to agree that it is one of the nicest highway strips in the country. Business firms along the route took a real beating the past few months, but most of them are now in shape to reap the tourist harvest. According to a recent break-down, the tourist dollar in Texas is spent as follows:

- 20 cents in retail stores,
- 28 cents for food,
- 8 cents on recreation,
- 3 cents on tires, auto parts and repairs,
- 19 cents for gasoline and oil, and
- 22 cents for lodging.

Most of us are usually on the reverse end of the deal, but statistics show that the average 1960 tourist in Texas spent $8.91 a day along the route. As one Southern governor puts it, "The out-of-state tourist brings more cash profit than a bale of cotton, and he's a danged sight easier to pick!"

A decade or so back, bicycle riding became the rage for many women. Now, it seems that the men are taking up the fad. Dr. Clarence Hicks was one of the first I noticed; now I see Bob Fillpot and Bill Bradley occasionally astride bikes. They say one thing a man never forgets is how to ride a bicycle—but don't attempt the "No hands" business until you at least get the feel of the thing.

The definition of expert continues to change. According to the newest version, he is the fellow you call in at the last minute to share the blame.

Last Sunday, I mentioned something about Hoot and Earl Poarch. Now they have done it again. I hear that they have a contract to build a scenic car lift across Palo Duro Canyon. Pete Cowart, former Hereford C-C manager, now runs the park and seems to have worked out the arrangement with the local firm. Anyway, you take it, the lift is quite a project. If I get things right, it will start in the vicinity of the miniature train rides, popularly known as "Sad Monkey, Texas."

Down through the years, countless poetry and prose have been written about "Spring," but one phase has been completely overlooked. This phase concerns the severing of friendships. During the winter months literally scores of my acquaintances, who own boats and motors drop around regularly and talk about how we are going fishing. Come spring, and warm weather—and I never see them any more.

Without question, the greatest forward stride made in the past few years is the new stamp vending machine installed this week in the post office. It makes change, dispenses stamps and does everything but say, "Thank You." This is all right, because neither do the clerks who sell stamps at the windows—and there is no use getting people spoiled. If the post office department keeps on mechanizing, it is going to catch up with the soft drink industry, and maybe get out of the red. Mostly, though, the machine provides a long-needed service, brought about by the shorter work week. Next thing you know, they will be selling compact cars through vending machines. Charlie Seeds says they would be doing it now—except they can't figure out how to handle the trade-ins.

The guy who said "talk is cheap" probably never told a baby-sitter to help herself if she got hungry.

TALKING CROW
SALT LAKE CITY — Joe the Crow rules the roost in the Ralph Aielle home.

He talks, whistles and barks when the neighbor's dog barks at him. When he wants attention, he calls "Ralph," for his 15-year-old owner or "Mom." The only time such behavior doesn't draw raves is in the predawn hours.

In the two years Ralph has had the 3-year-old bird, he has found Joe pretty smart.

"He will hide anything he can get his beak on," Ralph says. Joe never learned to fly, so most of the time he stays outside in the yard, uncaged.

HELD ON WEDNESDAY

Teachers Attend Seminar For Alcohol Education

The Hereford High School cafeteria was the scene Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 for 145 teachers attending a Seminar on Alcohol Education sponsored by Deaf Smith County Council on Alcoholism.

Bill Hardwick, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Council on alcoholism, said, "The purpose of the seminar was to stimulate interest in the organization of a committee on education concerning alcohol and alcoholism, whose purpose would be to outline a tailor-made program to be used in the school systems in this community."

Hardwick introduced the guest speaker, Frank Campbell, Executive Director of the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, which is a Department of State funded by tax money and receives appropriation from the Texas legislature on which to operate.

Campbell stated: "In Texas alone there are 200,000 plus alcoholics, persons with a hidden illness. More than 50% that undergo the treatment for alcoholism are high school or college graduates. As a major public health problem it ranks with heart and cancer diseases. For every alcoholic it is estimated another 4 persons are directly affected."

He asked the question: "What shall we do?" In our schools information and facts must be furnished with a positive approach taken. This will be no simple task because it involves attitudes as well as facts. It is desirable that this information be given in the most straightforward manner.

One of the concerns of many teen-agers (young adults) is the status of their popularity. Many today are asking the question, "If I don't drink, will I still be popular?" A film, shown by Herb Boardman, Field Representative of the Texas Commission on alcoholism in this region, produced by Raymond McCarthy, Education Director of the National Council of Alcoholics, entitled, "Teaching Teen-Agers About Alcohol" was shown to the group.

In this film the answer to the above question was covered in a thorough and interesting way.

Campbell then further stated the four purposes of the commission on the treatment. They were: 1. Alcoholic Rehabilitation and Treatment, 2. Public Education, 3. Prevention, 4. Collection, clearing and dissemination of factual information.

A statement made by Dr. William C. Menninger of the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan., should be taken to heart and studied seriously: "A national emergency would be declared — if alcoholism were a communicable disease."

Mrs. Smithers told guests how to prepare Onions Creole and French fried onion rings. She also stressed the fact that since the onion is one of Deaf Smith County's major products, one should learn to store them. The best place for preserving onions is in a cool dry

Plan, Start Early Careers In Science

BY VIVIAN BROWN
Newsfeatures Writer

Girls who are interested in a scientific career, especially in electronics, should begin early to plan their life.

That's the advice of Dr. Edith Gulton of Metuchen, N. J., inventor and experimenter on electronic devices.

She thinks women have qualities that help them in the world of science.

"Women have the special ability of being able to simplify processes. They can look at a problem and see the essential truth quickly."

But science is for keeps, she points out.

A costly education and training by an employer shouldn't be abandoned when a girl marries and has a family. She must be prepared to stick with her new world and the progress of our times, says Dr. Gulton.

She managed to combine her own career with that of her husband, and is now a proud grandmother.

A good way to test your potential is to get a summer job that will acquaint you with the two possibilities, she says. Or perhaps you are in an area where part-time after-school

If the key for opening sardine cans and other similar containers is not at hand, you can make one from a large nail. Bend the nail at right angles in the center, cut off the point, and slot the end for grabbing the tin tag on the edge of the can. You can perform the operation on the nail easily with a fine hacksaw blade while the nail is gripped firmly in a vise.

Discoloring

When fruits for salads or dessert are prepared in advance of serving, they can be prevented from discoloring if sprinkled generously with lemon juice. Lemon juice accents the flavor too.

Black Felt

Black felt can be cleaned by using a half-cup of cold tea mixed with a teaspoonful of ammonia.

Petty Car Cash

You can keep a supply of coins readily available in your car for such uses as parking meters, bridge tolls, and small curb purchases, if you will cement a slotted plastic coin holder to the inside of the glove compartment door. You can purchase such a coin holder at a variety store, or remove one from a discarded coin purse or wallet.

Pie Crust

Try adding just a bit of sugar to each cup of flour used in making pie crust. It will improve both the flavor and texture of the crust.

Red Ink Spots

Red ink stains can be removed from white materials by using ammonia and water.

Furniture Legs

If you have some furniture pieces with short, plain, round legs, you can add an attractive touch to these legs with a thread "ferrule" at their bottoms. Thread, such as used on fishing rods, is ideal for this purpose and comes in many colors. Wind it tightly and closely from the bottom of the leg up about an inch or so, then coat it with clear shellac or lacquer.

The Chafing Dish

If a chafing dish is used, be sure always to place it on a tray before lighting the flame. A slight draft often causes the flames to flare out and catch the unprotected table cloth or doily underneath.

of laughter as he related his first meeting with the Earl Plank family, with whom he is staying this year.

"I had a hard time getting used to Daddy's (Earl Plank) Texas 'brawl,'" he told the group.

He also said that he had written Mrs. Plank, asking her if he would need a gun. He gave the impression of a sorely disillusioned boy when he finally realized that this state is not as wild and woolly as the motion pictures depict.

Following the dinner speech, a short business meeting was held. Approximately 41 women were present at the affair.

Geraniums...

pagation is by seeds, cuttings, slips or potted plants, selection of your materials is important. For earlier blossoms and hardy plants, it is suggested that the potted plants be selected for planting.

How To Plant: When transplanting from the pot, care should be taken that the plant is not broken and the roots not disturbed too much. Have soil well-prepared and ready for your plants and plant them either in early morning or late evening. If the plants seem tender, it would be wise to protect them from sun and wind until the plant becomes well established.

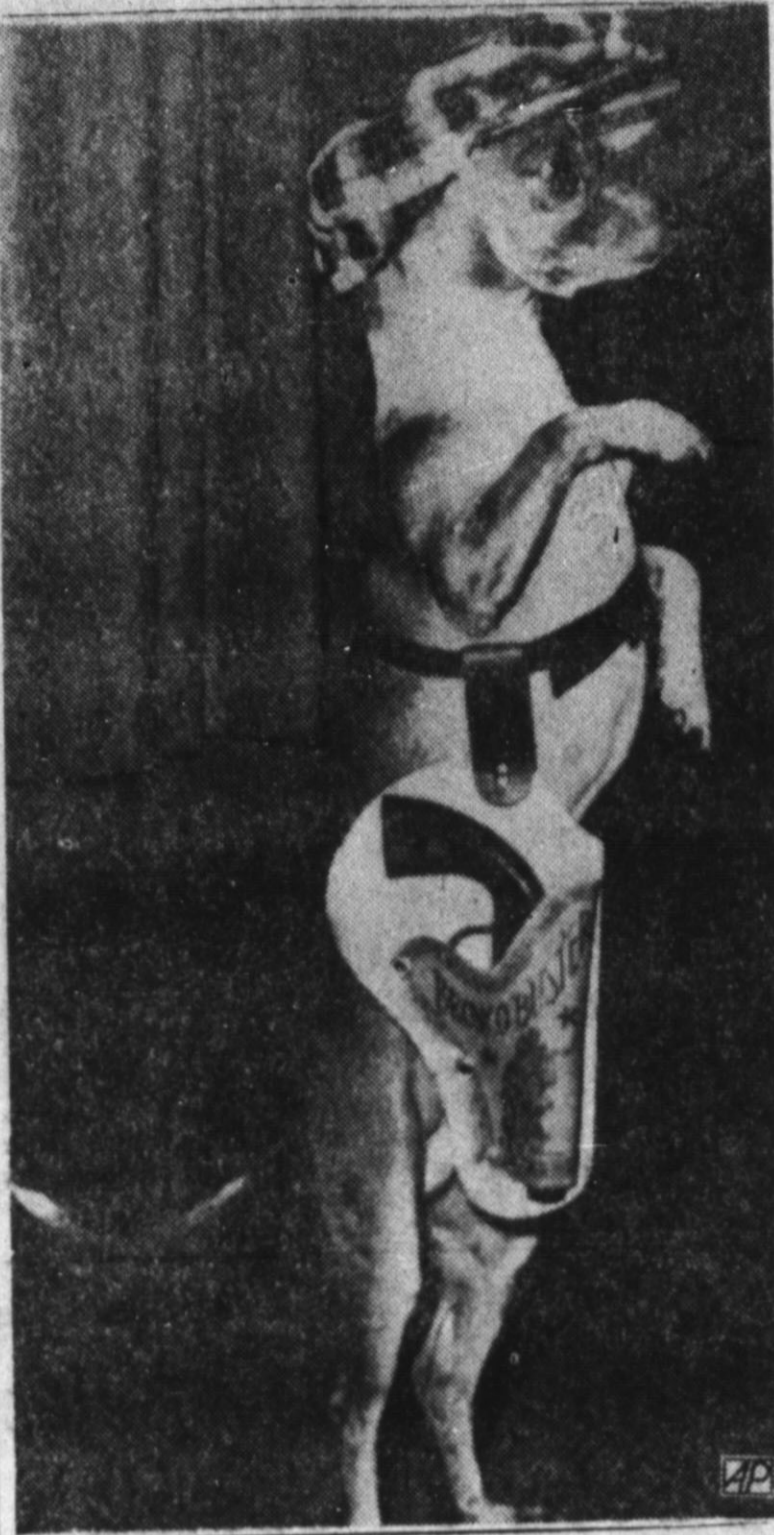

Cultivation: Geraniums do not require a great deal of care. Pull any weeds that may come up around them and in cultivating the soil around the plant break the top crust carefully and do not cultivate too deep. If they seem slow in growth, a feeding of plant food will stimulate the growth and give you a healthier plant.

Care: The red geranium should bloom from early June (if planted now) until frost. After it blossoms, cut the bloom stalks off and pinch away any leaves that may be browned or dried. The blossoms of the geranium are very good for arrangements and foliage useage. If the geraniums are grown in window boxes or other containers outside, the soil mixture should be a 1-1-1 mixture. That is, one part garden soil, one part cured barnyard manure and one part humus (peet moss). Mix well and fill the container in which the planting is to be made. It is a real pleasure to care for such a planting.

Diseases And Pests: Blackleg is a disease common to the geranium, especially young plants. Its signs are a blackening and rotting of the stems. Withhold water and spray with a recommended spray. Small light brown or red spots on the leaves indicate the presence of cercospora leaf spot, while a soft gray mold of the leaves or blooms is generally called botrytis blight. Small water soaked dots, which later will turn brown, finally cause the leaf tissue between the spots to die. All can be checked somewhat by free airing of plants, more sunlight and less water, and by picking off and destroying the affected leaves or are red spider, white fly, mealy worms.

There are a few bothersome insects. Aphids are common, as bugs and cyclamen mite. All can be easily be controlled by an insect spray. Recommended is Black Leaf 40.

"Love your flowers. By some subtle sense, the dear things always detect their friends and for them will live longer and bloom more freely than they troubled with feminine infatuations, smother him in onions and garlic and treble your charms.

Once Over...

"Need him; Need his dough and be sure to save some of his dough for the little dumplings."

"Don't spoil him by over indulgence, but serve him daily on a platter of strength and courage, garnished with clean shirts and trousers!"

It's a good idea to clip this recipe and file it with the rest of your "favorite dishes." It probably will become your favorite.

It's no easy job being a wife and mother. Certainly just getting married doesn't turn the world into a Utopia, for hard work and sacrifice go hand in hand with love and marriage.

And with the arrival of children, other problems arise. It's a full time job just keeping ahead of the diapers. (Or at least it was for me, I used to have nightmares of being buried alive in mountains of soft fluffy diapers.)

Then there is the problem of teaching your child the grown-up rules of society . . . things that just aren't done in public (or in private, for that matter) and trying to explain to them that you don't call your school teacher and "old bag." (Especially to her face.)

Sometimes I think it's possible for one to go around in a daze for weeks, months and even years. The other day I passed by a mirror, and calling an abrupt halt, I looked up and took a long hard look at myself.

No longer do I have dark black hair . . . it has lightened considerably and strands of gray make it appear even lighter. A fine pattern of lines surrounding my eyes (caused, of course, from laughing so much) give me the appearance of squinting through a smoky haze (which I usually am.) And let's face it . . . the schoolgirl figure has long since departed for parts unknown. (But after a backward view in the mirror, the destination is discovered.)

But I'm not lamenting the passing of the years. Like most women, my life has been full and productive; each day that passes whizzes by so quickly I hardly notice it's gone.

My son, who only yesterday was a roly-poly ball of chuckles almost as long as mine. (He also has a collection of choice four-letter words that would appall a seasoned sailor.)

My two daughters already show the shy grace of young girlhood and have quickly picked up flirtatious ways to get around any man, especially their father.

And in spite of the many problems that confront any married couple today, I believe honestly that I married the best man in five counties. (Or fifty states . . . take your choice.)

And what's more, I still get that same sweet thrill when I see him that I did eight years ago . . . so there must be something to this "love and marriage" stuff that the poets are always talking about.

Oh, sure, I get disgusted and down in the dumps just like the rest of you. During the brief lapses, I threaten to pack my bags and head for the big city to make my fortune. Which is a big laugh . . . for what in the world would I do with myself? These short pipedreams quickly dissolve into the air . . . for I know exactly where belong. And besides . . . how could I make a fortune? . . . I would have just gone off and left one.

BUTTON COLLECTION

BLOOMFIELD, N. J. (AP)—Herbert C. Walton says there is nothing more typically American than election campaign buttons.
He chronicles American history with his collection of more than 6,000 campaign badges and buttons. Catch words from just about every known political party dating back to the days of Ulysses S. Grant and slogans proclaiming "We Want Beer" and "Repeal Income Tax" appear in the collection.

PATIO PARTY: The amateur chef is surrounded by he-man table gear. The oval bamboo-wrapped flatwear is inexpensive table wear. The Nordic fish net and striped milk glass platters, coffee mugs and bibs offer gaiety to the lobster roast.

PTA Council Has Regular Session

Deaf Smith County Council of Parent-Teachers Association met in regular session recently in the board room of the Hereford High School cafeteria. Glenn Allred, president, presided.

Berk Kautfold, English teacher at Stanton Junior High School, explained the necessities and goals of teaching special education. The five goals discussed were: developing a healthy physique; guidance to aid in obtaining a healthier and happier life; aiding in finding a place in society; participating in life; and to learn the concepts and skills of basic subjects.

Officers were elected for the coming year. Mrs. Chester Wiggins was elected to serve as president. Other officers are Mrs. Albert Maxwell, Mrs. J. W. Thomas, Mrs. John Kelly, Mrs. Joe Reinauer, Mrs. W. S. Dameron and Mrs. Glenn Allred. Installation will be May 9 at 4 p.m. in the Hereford High School cafeteria.

ble for use on the lawn, patio or on an enclosed porch.

The old style sawbuck table, oblong or round, is still in favor with men chefs. Dress it up in rugged style and you have your outdoor party made. What is more, you'll get that man back to the culinary routine, and he'll enjoy it whether it is indoors, outdoors or in-between.

The White House has 150 rooms, including a solarium, barbershop, doctor's and dentist's offices, a movie theater, swimming pool, and a bomb shelter.

Male Chef Likes He Man Props

BY VIVIAN BROWN

You can lead a man to the barbecue pit, but can you make him cook? Ah, that is the question. But you can girl, if you'll just tackle the problem head-on with a whole new set of props.

Invade the stores for a run-down on inexpensive wares that can fire the amateur chef into instant action. A man likes rugged equipment, not dainty implements and table ware that appeals to the afternoon bridge set.

When it comes to barbecue grills, let him choose his own. Some men prefer hibachis (Japanese grills with wooden bases and handles) that may be brought to the table. Other men like grills that are built into stone walls or set on top of a stone wall. (These require only cinder block enclosure and a grid across the top.) Posh-type grills with every imaginable accessory are available for well-heeled patio cooks.

The cooking and serving instruments should be king-sized. Long handled forks, spatulas and knife sharpeners are the order of the day, with the stainless steel variety going to five-foot lengths with the additions of extensions, ideal for handling enormous steaks, roast meat on the spit, and in the face of large flames.

For a Lobster Roast

When a shore dinner is the order of the day, the great enamel ware pot decorated with lobsters and clams will put man in the anxious-to-cook mood. These may be found with or without decorations and at a variety of prices. It takes the entire dinner — lobsters, corn, clams, chicken, and what have you — with a container below and spout from which to pour the juice.

Stainless steel ware — platters, pepper shakers, salt and pepper mills — are useful and good for outdoor service. Even the trusty old bottle opener is available in stainless steel wrapped in bamboo and in the shape of a fish. Bamboo wrapped flatware is highly popular for outdoor table service and has definite man-appeal.

Inexpensive glassware such as handsome oval milk glass platters and coffee mugs keep the al fresco pattern humming with the male touch. Ditto Nordic net table cloths and striped bibs for the shore dinner tribe.

Bread baskets wear slipcovers. Newer types are glamorous — one in the shape of a sauce pan with basket weave handle is pink covered with gold trim and zipper. Another is long, ideal for French or Italian bread, its pink linen cover with a full-length zipper.

Some Imported Items

There are imported items for fancier settings.

One set of Italian serving dishes is glass but in brilliant orange, red, blue, green, brown, maroon. Japanese compote dishes are papier mache, orange lacquered with gold lacquered bowls. There is handsome stone-ware from Sweden with floral motif, Danish mosaic ash trays. Outdoor candle light is supplied by tall Dutch vase-like containers decorated simply with variegated colored flowers.

One outdoor coffee table is unique. The metal base is about the width, length and design of the old sewing machine covered with a lush green metal vine and gay red cherries. The top is glass. This is a good ta-

YOUNG MASTER

CHICAGO (AP) — Education comes easy for Mitchell J. Sweig, who at 20, has received a master's degree from the University of Chicago.

He took a scholarship test in 1954 when he was a high school sophomore. He was a winner, but the test was open only to those who had finished two years of high school.

The university withheld the award until he had completed the requirement. He entered the university in February, 1955, and received his bachelor's degree in June, 1959.

Now he begins his doctorate work in October.

Education In Alaska Faces Problems

BY WARD T. SIMS

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Size, climate and isolation combine to give Alaska some educational headaches either unheard of or long-forgotten in the South.

They are the problems of a big, sparsely settled land where winter shows its fiercest side and hamlets and villages are the rule rather than the exception.

In 1950, Alaska's school population was 10,997. This year it pushed past 42,000.

And most of the students are scattered over 586,400 square miles of largely uninhabited land, from the timberlands of the southeast to the barren tundra of the Arctic coast.

To care for them, the 28 incorporated cities and towns of Alaska maintain their own systems, just like those in their sister states to the south.

In addition, the state itself supports 112 elementary schools, most of them with one or two teachers located in remote native villages.

And the U. S. Bureau of Indian Affairs operates 82 schools, including one huge high school for native youngsters at Mt. Edgecumbe, near Sitka.

Mt. Edgecumbe draws some 670 students each year from areas where high school education is not available or whose parents are financially unable to send them to public high schools away from their own villages.

The BIA also operates Wrangell Institute, an elementary school for native children who are the products of broken homes, or orphans or who come from remote villages where there are no schools.

Students at both Wrangell Institute and Mt. Edgecumbe are gathered and dispersed each year by a massive airlift.

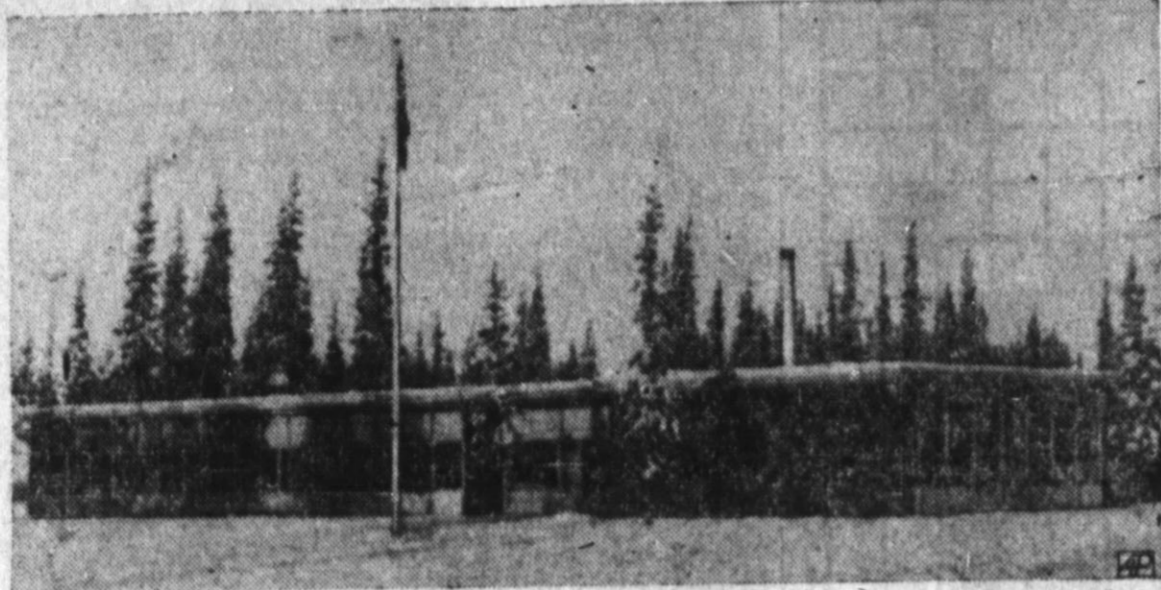

First and foremost among transportation.

While the trend in the South 49 is toward consolidation, in Alaska the reverse is true.

"We can't haul our children to schools in consolidated districts because, in most places, transportation simply just isn't available," says Dr. Theo J. Norby, the soft-spoken ex-Californian who is Alaska's commissioner of education.

"That accounts for the great number of schools in the state, compared to the number of students. Most of our schools are tiny by South 49 standards, with 10, 12 or 14 students and one or two teachers."

Each winter in the interior

isolation, have a distinctly modern appearance. school authorities wrestle with the problem of heating school buses in temperatures which often range down to 40 degrees below zero. When the mercury drops below that point the kids get a holiday.

Winter also aggravates the school supply problem.

In those areas north of the Aleutians served by sea transportation, everything must be shipped in during the summer, before the Bering Sea and the Arctic Ocean ice up.

Despite the expense, the state is required to establish a school in any village where there are 10 or more children of school age, and the village wants a school.

The state requires that villagers provide adequate classroom space and suitable housing for the teacher. The state rents the space and provides teacher and necessary school supplies.

If it appears the community is going to be permanent — many native fishing villages grow and die like mushrooms — the state will build a permanent school.

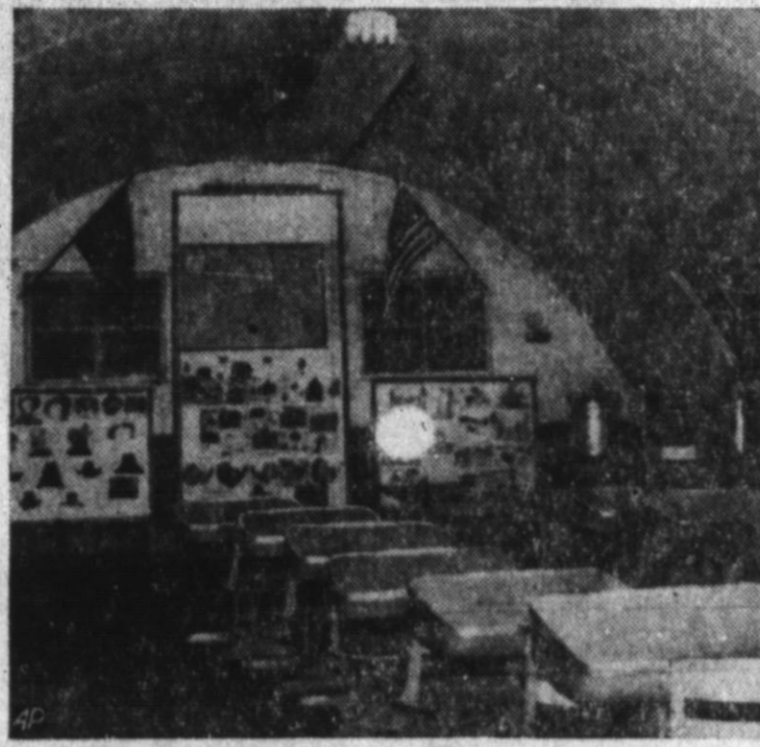

In areas where families with school age children are completely isolated and day-to-day transportation is out of the question, the state buys correspondence courses for the youngsters.

Generally, most state schools are modern buildings of wood frame, concrete block or pumice block construction. Some nonpermanent schools are operated in log cabins, converted homes or Quonset huts, but are few and far between.

Teachers are recruited from every state in the union. The 1,900 teachers employed last year represented all 50 states and Canada.

The teacher at Anaktuvuk Pass, high in the Endicott Mountains above the Arctic Circle, who bought a new house for $200 this summer before the opening of school for her 28 Eskimo students, is Miss Anna Bertel from Grand Rapids, Ohio. She has been teaching in Alaska for six years; doesn't mind that her home is made of sod.

And there are Mr. and Mrs.

QUONSET HUTS, decked out with modern desks and teaching equipment, often serve as temporary schools in Alaska. This school, handling 18 pupils, is at Two Rivers.

OTHER SCHOOLS resemble something left over from the Gold Rush days. This one, at Kobuk, houses only 10 pupils.

STITCH WORRIES
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When 16-year-old Linda Levitt does acrobatics with other water skiers, her grandmother worries.

The grandmother, Mrs. Mildred Swincher, knows Linda is an excellent athlete but she is primarily concerned about her swimming suits.

Linda is only 4-feet-11 and weighs 85 pounds, and it's hard to find swim suits that fit her. Mrs. Swincher makes most of them herself.

"Linda's always the top one on the pyramids because she's so light," says Mrs. Swincher. "And all that climbing is hard on suits. I kind of hold my breath sometimes, hoping the stitches will hold."

Linda doesn't share her concern, explaining: "I've never even had a strap break."

Next Generation Takes Look At Federal Aids

Federal aid to education became a national issue in the November election and, today, it still provides one of the most controversial topics among the voters of the United States.

With these facts in mind, we were intensely interested in observing the results of a poll conducted recently in Hereford High School. Eight students were interviewed with the following results: one clear-cut approval, two approvals with specific reservation, and five definite answers against federal aid or intervention in our public schools.

Reasons listed by the students reflected extensive thought and considerable research on the subject. Whether these opinions have been derived from environment and influence of parents, none of us know but, after carefully reading them, we would be inclined to believe that the majority came as individual conclusions based upon experience, study and observations.

Because of their age, not one of these youngsters were eligible to vote in the last election. All of them are just right, however, to pick up the check for any extensive federal aid program which our government may see fit to inaugurate. Worse still, as the adult men and women of tomorrow, they will find themselves saddled with a national network from which it could be extremely difficult to shake loose.

As Americans, each of us is proud of his heritage, but that heritage is becoming more and more complex, sometimes bunglesome. The present generation is faced with stiff tax penalties because it inherited a federal farm program, a federal retirement plan, and a world-wide program. Add to our present tax burden, other federal taxes for handling of education, medicine, and additional unemployment, and the burden becomes still heavier.

We do not blame the youngsters for taking a close look at things. It is difficult to get along in the complex world of 1961 - - and compete with other nations. The burden of paying off expenses involved by ones fathers, grandfathers and great-grandfathers certainly will not ease the situation.

Music Includes Many Properties

"Music hath charms to sooth the savage beast," according to an oft-expressed saying. But it also has many other properties.

And all of them will be brought out during May 7-13, which is designated as National Music Week.

Four active clubs, plus our junior high and high schools, are particularly involved in this nation-wide observance. The Hereford Music Club, Harmony Music Club, Dawn Music Club and Dawn Musettes are devoted throughout the year to a better understanding and appreciation of music. Although they are particularly interested in the classics, semi-classics and sacred themes, they are not unaware of the power of other music.

A stirring martial air by Sousa can cause a listener's foot to tap, the impressive chords of a college Alma Mater can bring tears and a recollection of happy memories. The tinkling notes from a music box brings back the delightful moments of childhood. And everyone is aware of the majestic, impressive mood of the Wedding March or the awesome sense of God that comes with the soaring notes of "The Lord's Prayer".

Even the solid, heavy beat of a rock 'n roll tune or the smooth, liquid flow of a Glenn Miller arrangement can be enjoyable.

Regardless of language, culture, or color, every nation has its own type of musical expression. An understanding and appreciation of music different from ours can bring divergent peoples closer together. Music often is the most readily understood language.

It is a language of feelings, expressing joy, hope, sadness, unity, devotion and worship.

Musical understanding and appreciation can form a foundation of lasting satisfaction and enjoyment. Even if you can't play an instrument or sing or key, you can listen and grasp the feelings which are expressed.

Music is in the spotlight this week. But it can and should be an everyday thing. Music changes, but it never grows old. It is always a part of us. It is as a fondly-remembered hymn, as new as a child chanting a simple melody, as young as a boy learning to whistle, as lovely as a mother crooning to her child, as eternal as a mockingbird's trill.

The POWER of FAITH by Howard Bradie

Mother's Day rests upon an historical foundation of faith: The Old and New Testaments say, "Honour thy father and thy mother." The pagan festival of the "Mother of the Gods" was transformed by Christianity into the celebration honoring the "Mother Church," during which the faithful returned with gifts to the church where they were baptized. Then as young men and women left home to become apprentices and servants, "Mothering Sunday" in Mid-Lent, was set apart for them to visit their parents with tokens of their love.

"Mother's Day" was first celebrated in America in Sunday schools and churches in Philadelphia in 1908. The idea came from Anna Jarvis, when she arranged a memorial service for her mother in a Virginia town. Congress passed the bill for the day in 1914. "Whereas the American mother is doing so much for the home, the moral uplift, and religion, hence so much for good government and humanity..."

DEADLINE SET ON GRAIN PROGRAM

Final date for feed grain farmers to sign up in the new feed grain program is May 31, according to Doyle Thomas, ASC office manager. Notices of basic acreages, rates and other pertinent information are being prepared and will be placed in the mail sometime this week. "We hope to be able to start taking application by next week," he said. "There has been some changes from the previous information put out," he related. "One of them is a provision that the acreage reduction can be taken off either corn or grain sorghum where a farm has a base on both. A farmer who has only grain sorghum base may reduce his acres and plant corn instead. The same holds true for a farmer with a corn base. He may plant grain sorghum instead of corn. A farmer may place irrigated acreage in the program and he will not violate his agreement if he waters part of his dryland acreage. However, if this is done, the payments will be reduced back to the dryland rate. Acreage designated under the agreement may not be grazed after May 31. This acreage can be summer fallowed or used for conservation practices.

LANGUAGE LAB PLANNED

A move which will enable Levelland to teach language arts by the most modern methods available was taken Friday night by the public school board. The board awarded a contract to RCA for a modern 20-station language laboratory, which will be installed in one of three new classrooms above the new cafeteria wing on a bid of $7,002.20. Trustees did not accept the lowest bid, but acting superintendent O. R. Watkins explained that it was felt the RCA bid represented a better buy for the school and the program it is seeking to launch. Half the cost of the laboratory — $3,501.10 — will be borne by the federal governments under the National Defense Education act.

PLAN TRY OUTS FOR LEAGUES

With both leagues looking for boys to fill two new teams, the American and National Little League began tryouts for the 1961 season on Monday, May 8. Jake Conaldson, president of the National League, and Kenneth Byrne, head of the American League, announced this week that application forms will be made available at school and boys wishing to participate in little league should fill the forms out and have them signed by parents. Since the two leagues have been formed they were comprised of four teams, but this year two teams will be added to each league. This means that at least 30 boys must be chosen in addition to the fill-ins for the other teams.

Open Meetings Create Unity

Charges and counter-charges have been rife during the past week as numerous citizens discussed the resignation of a Hereford police officer. In addition to the points in question also appears an unofficial action, reportedly developing from an unofficial meeting.

Frankly, The Brand feels that the taxpayers and citizens of the community are entitled to benefit of open meetings as a constitutional American right. Furthermore, we firmly believe that the situation, had it been handled in such manner, would have created less, if any, criticism of the action. We say this because rumors, which usually develop from "cold tea" sessions, generally leak out and exaggerate themselves to the point that they generate the exact opposite result from that intended by their sponsors.

In the open meeting which followed, it was pointed out that the five duly elected officials had been unanimous in their opinion, and it was noted that the officer was briefed in detail concerning the action and its reasons. These conditions appear to never before have been fully credited or duly discussed by the public.

Without question, our commissioners are indirectly held responsible and directly judged by actions of the employees of the city. The position is parallel to that of a school board member and, on occasions, can become truly embarrassing. To say the least, these men serve with scant pay, and usually without due recognition. In addition, we believe them to be working sincerely in behalf of the improvement and welfare of the community.

Most of us can remember Pearl Harbor, and along with the confusion and indecision that existed during the weeks which followed. Finally, we learned the facts - - namely that our fleet was lost, and that we faced the most serious danger in our nation's history. This was the point where the American people rolled up their sleeves and went to work; they volunteered into the armed services, they formed lines to get into defense plants, and they sent bond purchase soaring to new highs. When they had the facts, the American people accomplished the impossible, which is now a matter of history.

At this stage, we agree with at least one commissioner when he says that the local situation has been accorded far more talk and gossip than it deserves. Certainly, there have been numerous other resignations, even outright dismissals, which were handled in the orthodox manner, and which have gone without particular notice or undue public discussion.

Tongue Can Be One's Friend Or His Enemy

BY MRS. R. L. CRISWELL

The tongue is the most unruly member of the human body. It can get one into more trouble than one can get out of. Its control is one of the hardest chores known to man and woman, for all of us are under the rule of this tyrant that can make us one of the happiest or the most miserable of people. The Bible tells us: "But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison," James 3-8. It is spoken five times in the book of James alone, and 39 times in other parts of the Bible such as "like a sharp razor, cannot be tamed, should be bridled, kept from evil, is very powerful, shows the heart; deceitful, flattering, lying, mischievous, scourging, singing, talebearing," and one could go on and on. Here is a poem that gives one something to think about. "The boneless tongue, so small and weak.

Can crush and kill," declared the Greek. "The tongue destroys a greater horde,"

The Turk asserts, "Than does the sword.

The Persian proverb wisely saith: "A lengthy tongue—an early death,"

Or sometimes takes this form: "Don't let your tongue cut off your head."

"The tongue can speak a word whose speed,"

Say the Chinese, "Outstrips the steed."

While Arab sages impart, "The tongue's great storehouse is the heart,"

From Hebrew wit the maxim sprung,

"Though feet should slip, ne'er let the tongue."

The sacred writer crowns the whole,

"Who keeps his tongue doth keep his soul."

One might say it was more truth than poetry, huh? I am sure it is.

A few instances - funny how it takes about 20 minutes to introduce the man who needs no introduction.

"Couldn't you and the boy next door settle your differences by a peaceful discussion," asked the father.

"Oh no, he was sure he could whip me, and I was sure I could whip him; so there was only one way to find out."

Coed - "Is it natural to shrink from kissing?"

Prof. - "If it was, my dear, most of you girls would be nothing but skin and bones."

Local Residents See World's Largest Train

Friday afternoon, between 4 and 6:30 p. m. the business section of Hereford presented quite a deserted appearance, word having passed down the line that one of the Santa Fe's monster locomotive engines was to pass the city between 4 and 5. The big crowd at the depot was almost as restless and excited as a crowd of small children just before the circus parade. Owing to several delays the big engine did not draw up to the water tank before 6:30 but those who waited were well repaid for their patience. It was the largest locomotive in the world, converted from two decades by the Atchinson, Topeka and Santa Fe. The boiler is of the rigid type and is equipped with the Jacobs-Shupert fire-box, arranged for burning oil, a feed-water heater, superheater and reheater.

25 YEARS AGO

The Hereford area will celebrate Centennial Day here tomorrow. Hundreds of visitors from a radius of 50 miles are expected to be here for the day of interesting events and displays that will occupy their time from 9:30 in the morning until tomorrow night. Hereford citizens, behind the mammoth event almost to the man, are prepared to join in the welcome of the visitors and show them the biggest show of this nature ever staged here. Some of them have spent many hours working on the different events. They have announced that every phase of the celebration is ready to click on schedule and there will be no hitches. It is a celebration for everyone in the entire territory, but the old settlers of this section of the Panhandle will be guests of honor. It is to commemorate them as well as the 100 years of Texas freedom from Mexico that the event is to be of an historical nature dealing mainly with the early days and development of this area. Every event will be a feature for it will cover a distinct phase of the celebration. In addition to the regular program, there will be numerous attraction down town. Heading this list will be displays of old-time souvenirs and relics. Numerous items of interest have been secured, from guns of a period a century past, to pictures, old handwork and furniture.

The BOOTLEG — Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm discusses the advantages of farming this week, at least we think that's what he's doing.

Dear editor:

Every once in a while somebody asks me why I keep on farming if it's as hard as I let on and the chances of breaking even are as slim as I claim, but that's because they don't understand all of the advantages.

It's true farming out in the open under the uncertainties of the weather is a hazardous undertaking, about like trying to run a drygoods store without a roof or a bank without a vault, and it's true that insects are as smart as men and while man is staying up all night in a laboratory developing an insecticide that's bound to work, it turns out the insects stayed up the night before developing an immunity to it. As I've found out long ago, every time man comes out with a new insecticide, the insects come out with a new insect.

Moreover, a lot of people distrust a farmer. If he gets ahead, he's responsible for the high cost of living; if he fails, he's incompetent.

I could go on, but by this time you're probably wondering, what are the advantages of farming?

Well, I won't have room this week to list all the advantages, not to mention time to think them up, or the imagination to manufacture them, but there is one advantage that occurred to me the other day and I've been basking in it ever since.

It's this: the farmers will never be filed on by the United States government for price-fixing.

You're not going to catch us inviting the wrath of Attorney General Bobby Kennedy by getting together and deciding how much we ought to charge for what we produce. We've out-smarted all the lawyers in the government, and in all the history of agriculture since man first found out if you put a seed in the ground it'd sprout to the present day when we can produce more than the country can handle, no farmer has ever been guilty of deciding what the price of what he has produced should be. We haul it to town and ask somebody. Lots of times we don't get near enough, but we sure stay out of court.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

'Deaf' Smith Says

TO: The Spirit of General Sam Houston FROM: The Spirit of Erasmus 'Deaf' Smith SUBJECT: The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District

Sam, this report concerns a matter of great importance to this part of our state. This area was still known as part of the "great American desert" when you and I were on this mortal earth. It was undeveloped and completely controlled by the Indians until sometime after both of us had passed into this spirit world.

With the development of efficient and economical well drilling and pumping equipment this area was discovered to be resting on a vast lake of water. With that discovery and the development of irrigation the agricultural economy rapidly changed from cattle range country to tilled irrigated prosperous farming. A little over ten years ago some far-sighted people realized that this water source was not inexhaustible and that unless we took some steps to control its use that other agencies would do so.

Lois Christman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Christman, 114 Ave. A, Hereford, is one of 34 Howard Payne College students named to the HPC honor roll for the first nine weeks of the spring semester with 36 honor points. Miss Christman, a freshman, is an elementary education major at the Brownwood College. A student must make the equivalent of two A's and three B's to earn 36 honor points.

NEW OFFICERS

Two Hereford students have been elected officers of one of Oklahoma State University's social fraternities. They are Jo Ann Fowlkes, Alpha Delta Pi president, and Carol Ann Newell, Alpha Delta Pi treasurer.

signed, one of which was to prevent and control the waste of underground water.

The district was given the authority for spacing wells in order to minimize the drawdown of the water table. Research has been a major activity of the District with continuing work being done to discover practical and economical ways of recharging our underground source.

Another activity, and a strenuous one, has been the legislative effort to prevent the enactment of laws which would be detrimental to the best interests of this area in the use of water. In each session of the State legislature there have been efforts to take control of the underground water from the land owner and give policing powers, and taxing powers, to the State.

Currently a court case is attempting to establish the right of the land owner to claim a depletion allowance on his water resources.

But over-riding the really greater importance of this research, educational and legislative work has been the specter of the nuisance and waste involved in the tail water problem. The District has had to make the choice between dissipating the funds available to it in the litigation necessary to obtain the court injunctions with which to stop this problem or to ignore the problem and concentrate on the long range research that they hope will solve some of the problems of a constantly declining water table.

They have also decided that they could not wear two hats—one as a policeman using the power of the courts to force compliance on the tail water problem while under another hat asking that farmer for his cooperation in trying new methods developed from research.

Sam, the danger now is that people will let the tail water nuisance become so important that action will be taken to destroy the effectiveness of the District. The economic survival of Deaf Smith County is dependent upon our underground water. While a nuisance and a waste, the tail water problem is not going to be the difference.

Research can find the all important eventual answer to our water supply. Education is the answer to the tail water problem. Sam, I just believe that the people in my county are the best and that they are and will work to solve any local problems themselves. Voluntary local cooperation is always preferable to police power whether exercised by local authority or by the State or Federal government.

That's my report on the water situation, Sam.

Beauty At Home

Q. What is a good "homemade" formula for a skin tonic and bleach?
A. One very fine tonic for the complexion can be made by mixing lemon juice and milk, rubbing this into the face and throat every night before retiring.
Q. How can I make a better job of applying my lipstick?
A. If a light coating of powder is put on the lips before applying the lipstick, the color will go on more smoothly, and will remain on longer.
Q. What makeup or dressing technique will help to make a girl's legs appear slimmer than they really are?
A. During the barelegged summer days, try shadowing the legs lightly with some dark foundation cream — and during the winter, wear the dark-

REMEMBER WHEN?

This day had been a long time coming... and at last it was here. Horace his Giants from New York transferred his Dodgers from

Over 23,000 rabid baseball

It turned out to be a great debut for the Giants. Behind
Ruben Gomez, who twirled a six-hit shutout, the Giants clobbered Don Drysdale and the Los Angeles Dodgers

Refreshment For Hot Weather

By Cecily Brownstone
POURCH PARTIES coming up! What's for refreshment? At these afternoon affairs, weight-watchers and other folk usually appreciate iced tea. We find one of the newer products, instant tea, convenient and pleasant tasting in this cold drink. It's a blend of teas (including orange pekoe) with nothing else added and that's all to the good.

You can use cold tap water with this tea and add ice. Exact proportions? Try 1 1/2 teaspoons instant tea to 1 cup water. To fancy up things, serve lemon with whole cloves inserted in each slice.

And do offer finely-granulated sugar to those who like their tea sweetened. Even if you don't keep this variety of sugar in the house all year round, it's worth having on your shelves in the summer because it dissolves readily in cold beverages.

For a nibble with iced tea, serve these devastatingly rich trifles:

Praline Puffs

Ingredients: 1 package (1 lb. and 1 ounce) pound-cake mix, 1/4 pound butter, 1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar, 2 egg whites, salt, 1/2 cup finely granulated sugar, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 c.p. coarsely chopped pecans.

Method: Make up pound cake according to package directions for baking in a 9-inch loaf pan. Cut 12 slices from the cake, each 1/2-inch thick. (Remaining cake may be served plain.) Cut 2 rounds from each slice with a 2-inch cookie cutter. (Raggle-taggle ends may be used in another dessert.) Cream butter and brown sugar; spread cake rounds with mixture but not to edges. Beat egg whites with a dash of salt until they hold floppy peaks. Gradually beat in sugar, then vanilla, until they hold stiff straight peaks; fold in pecans. Pipe meringue on rounds, spreading smoothly to edges to cover sugar mixture.

Bake, placed slightly apart, on foil-lined cookie sheet, in extremely hot (500 degrees) oven 5 minutes, until meringue gets brown; turn off oven but do not remove for 5 minutes. Allow to cool somewhat before removing from foil. Serve warm or cold. Makes 24.

For publicity's sake, Ben agrees to attend the International Film Festival with Maria and Vatos. He leaves his family behind, just after they have arrived.

After finally admitting their love, Ben and Maria part in Cannes. Ben flies to Hollywood in an effort to sign the big name that would assure success of the film, Maria follows and their affair begins.

The lovers separate, then come together again.

Ben wanders from place to place, trying to get his film underway, trying to sign actors, trying to arrange financial backing.

But he is also trying to reconcile his own mixed emotions. Love for his children, worry about his wife, longing for Maria... all are mixed together.

The Fault of the Apple shows deft handling of a difficult subject. Frederic Wakeman, author of The Hucksters, again with this book, now available at the Deaf Smith County library.

ATTEND CONFERENCE

Mrs. Ivan Block, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Veigel and the Rev. Gilbert Davis Jr. attended a conference on church architecture in San Antonio May 3-6. They are part of the building committee of the First Christian Church of Hereford.

OFF THE Shelf

BY H. A. TUCK
 A strange, intriguing novel is The Fault of the Apple by Frederic Wakeman.

Benjamin Bryden was a successful author: His books sold well and several of them had been bought for Hollywood's movies.

But as he worked over his typewriter in the Bryden's home in Florida, he wondered about his career. He hadn't sold anything in a couple of years and was running out of ideas. He had a fine family: his wife Louise, teen-age daughter Cathy, and ten-year-old son Billy.

Ben's movie agent wired that the Brydens could expect a visit from George Vatos, a noted art film director from a tiny European country.

Vatos wanted to buy the film rights to one of Ben's earlier books, The Fault of the Apple. Agent Steve Warden came to help swing Ben to an interesting deal. Vatos would direct the film if Ben would be the producer and scriptwriter. As Warden explained it, Ben stood to make $300,000 or more on an investment of about $25,000.

Vatos wanted actress Maria Ezlo to play the lead, with box office hit Anthony Hyde opposite. Maria was a fine stage actress and had played in Vatos' latest production.

Ben flies to Vatos' homeland to meet Maria, who is happily married to her director and costar Alex Orff.

From the first day, they are in love, but neither Ben or Maria will admit it. Ben throws himself into the task of writing a screen play, while Marie studies English, continues acting and rehearsal.

Windbreak Trees Now Available

The Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District is again making Arizona Cypress trees available for windbreak plantings. Its has been announced by Luther Lesly of Hereford, chairman of the board of supervisors.

Every year the SCD arranges with nurseries to make the trees available at a special price for windbreaks.

"Windbreaks can play an important role in most farmsteads," Lesly said. "Besides beautifying a farm the windbreaks will protect from wind erosion and help reduce heating costs during the winter."

Lesly said all residents interested in securing trees for windbreaks should make application at the Soil Conservation Service office or the County Agent's office. The sooner applications are received, the sooner the trees will be delivered, Lesly added.

This year, cost will be 25 cents per tree for four to six inch trees and $1 per tree for 12 to 18 inch trees.

SO MUCH THAT CAN'T BE COPIED

Bucket seats alone do not a sport car make. Even when they're as cozy as ours are. You also want (and darned well need, if you're after a fun-type car) things like efficiently eager steering. Steering like you get with Corvaire's rear-engine design.

You want traction that keeps your car firmly attached to the road all the time — around corners, through mudholes, everywhere. You want superlatively balanced braking. You want an amiably smooth, supple ride — like Corvaire's full independent suspension gives you.

As you might have guessed, you simply can't get these happy advantages in any other U.S. car. Only Corvaire. Anything that gives you less is just another social climber.

GOLFING COUPLE... Mr. and Mrs. Ed Furgol.

ADVICE TO GOLFING WIVES:

Don't Let Husband Teach You

BY VIVIAN BROWN
 Newsfeatures Writer

If your husband offers to teach you to play golf, don't take him up on it. He could be your biggest handicap.

His kind offer could break up your happy home or at least put a damper on it. That's the advice of golf pro Ed Furgol, who explains:

"If he does attempt to teach you golf, the lessons could put so much restraint on your game that you will not be a good golfer anyway. Every lesson could end in anger and tears."

Women have known for years that they shouldn't let their husbands teach them to drive cars, Ed points out, but many times they'll let their husbands teach them golf because they feel it is one way to become a part of his golfing adventures.

"When you play golf, you must concentrate. You can't do it with an impatient teacher," he says.

Ed, who was 1954 U. S. Open winner, enjoys teaching women the game. Says he:

"I'd like to see a woman on the executive body of the U. S. Golf Assn. I don't know why they don't plug for it. Their associations around the country should get together for presentation. Women are sticklers for rules, once they know a game, and it would be beneficial to have them on a committee."

If you're going out for golf this season, Ed offers these suggestions:

1. Choose a golf professional instead of your husband as a teacher.

2. Dress comfortably so you can make proper use of the club facilities. (Many women get all dressed up like ballet dancers to go to a golf course.) when you take lessons. If you are self-conscious because someone is watching you, it'll put restrictions on your physical ability. You must walk before you can run. The golf swing is a functional movement, but it often embarrasses women.

4. If your teacher doesn't make the game enjoyable, find a new instructor, one who puts you in the right frame of mind.

5. Ask questions if one occurs to you. No matter how trivial it seems, it may settle a doubt that will let you hit the ball well instead of poorly.

Ed would rather teach women than men. Today's man golfer is a bundle of nerves, he says.

"If the man is successful in some field of endeavor, he feels he doesn't need you, even though he has sought your help. He can't resist thinking of you as an employee. A woman isn't that way. She likes to think her teacher is superior to her," he explains.

Ed is rougher on men when he is teaching them "because they expect it" but always talks softly to women.

Women hit from the top but otherwise are likely to have a smoother ball than men as a rule, he points out, but just about every woman makes the mistake of turning too much with her hips. There is little danger she'll be a better player than her husband, no matter how proficient she becomes, because most women don't have that kind of power behind the swing, he says. It is better too, that they don't compete in men's tournaments.

DRINK LURES BEAR

COLUMBUS, S. C. — Nervous police officers lured a black bear back to his cage on a highway with two bottles of soft drink and a quart of milk.

The bear had escaped from its cage in front of a motel, entered a chicken house and was calmly de-feathering a hen when police arrived.

The offer of a soda and milk chaser was complacently accepted and the bear was again caged.
