Slicker Works Firm Here

One of the oldest "con games" going was worked on the firm of Cunningham and Philips recently. A lady phoned to a clerk to send a package of medicine to 203 Gregg street, and a boy was sent with the package. An automobile with a man and two women in it was at the curb at the address given, and when he got near they asked him if he was the boy from the drug store, and when he informed them that he was, they inquired if he had any change. He had none so they told him to go back and get change for a five dollar bill.

He did so and when he handed the money over the man told him to take the medicine into the house while he counted the change And as the boy turned to go to the house the man started his automo bile and hiked out.

This is only one of the many "skin games" which will be pulled in our city with so many crooks drifting in.

A LIMITED PARKING RULE

Ever so often somebusiness man commends us for advocating limited parking in the business district; contending that it is needed as a convenience to his patrons and a protection to the business men; but none of the business men seem to have the backbone to make a men seem to have the backbone to make a move to have limited parking provided. It is certainly sure that if folks are prevented from driving up to a store to load their purchases int otheir car they must carry them a block or two to where their car has been parked. This sort of thing is going to become old in time and people are going to seek other places to do their trading. Suburban stores will secure much of the trade which is being driven from Main street stores by this practice of allowing cars to park on the Main streets—24 hours a day and 365 days out of every year. Queer the business men haven't the gumption to have the rule

We need to have traffic stop signs at Second and Third streets on Main before a reckless driver runs down a pedestrian or two. Watch the drivers speed up to make a solid line of cars so the pedestrians must bive the right-of-way to the automobiles. The pedestrian has no rights whatever judging from the actions of ninety percent of the automobile drivers. Then to, we might get rid of the Main streets "warts," the folks who drive up one side and down the other, back and forth, back and forth, from First, to Fourth street for hours at a time. It appears they consider themselves attractive nery and desire to give the natives a selves attractive reat. If they had to stop their cars at street intersections at Second, and Third treet each time they paraded Main some of the thrill might be eliminated and they would seek other streets for their promenade. It ould be much better to have stop signs on se north and south traffic than on the east and west. Anyway, the man, woman and shild who must navigate these crossings in he business section need greater safeguards than are now accorded.

If you are planning to set out some shade trees around your home this fall, decide to plant fruit trees. You will solve the shade problem and in addition be rewarded with uscious fruit from your own trees....

Somehow we just can be as enthustiastic to have Big Spring become a big city over hight. We know any sudden growth is going to bring the undesirables, to bring conditions like Borger, Wink, and other towns had to call in the Rangers to help correct. A sure but steady growth is far preferrable from every standpoint. Big Spring is certainly growing just as fast as is reasonably good for any city to grow. As it is we can supply one-tenth the rent houses that are needed to accommodate our incoming population. How could we hope to handle a doubling of our population when we try to force a sudden growth we are going to encourage a shack-town growth and we certainly cannot desire that.

We make a motion that the City Federa-tion take up with the State Park Board the Park or redeeding it to the Federation so hey can carry out its improvement.

We are going to be overrun with city slick-ers from here and henceforth. We can no longer follow our old-time policy of trusting everybody until we found out they couldn't be trusted.

We need to have a few old-time revivals on civic affairs and turn our energy to boosting our city. If we could get some folks as excited over the welfare of our city as they get over the success or defeat of a particular political candidate we could certainly make progress. A good politician usually makes a poor city builder.

Before we get too many irons in the fire, se ought to settle our water question. We can to settle it right, and for years to come. we can asscure a water supply adequate for city of 40,000 people, the other civic improvements will follow. Other cities have to the mataks of building their cities have

They are beginning to drop into Bly Spring to make investments. Folks from other points have had a tip that big things are due to break in Big Spring mighty soon and most of the visitors desire to buy before prices skyrocket.

The streets in our city could certainly stand quite a bit of repairs. You certainly have to be a rough-rider if you ever get off the paved streets or the sections of our highways which have the topping in good

CONSIDERATION IS NEEDED BADLY

Something should be done about the drivers who persist in driving the "loop" on Main street "star-gazing" as they go along and turning when the come to the end of First to Fourth streets. A driver has all that he can attend to if he will keep his eyes on the road, let along sitting there and looking about over the city—you should have some respect for the pedestrian—they have just as much right to the crossings of the streets as you do in the driving up and down them "warting" others to death who have business on the streets, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

MORE BUNCOMBE

Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, the Assistant United States Attorney General who is "in charge of prohibition enforcement," delivered a radio broadcast address for the League of Women Voters. Her subject, strangely enough, was prohibition, and among things she had this to say:

"Theodore Roosevelt once stated that a party plank must be regarded as a contract with the American people by the party which adopts it. The Republican party has always so regarded it. We do so again this year on the subject of prohibition. The Republica party pledges itself and its nominees to the vigorous enforcement of this provision of the platform. It pledges its nominees to the observance of the law. That is a new contract. It is a pledge against hypocrisy."

As a matter of fact, if there is anything more hypocritical in pational politics at this moment than the attitude and record of the Republican party in the matter of prohibition we should like to know where to find it. Here is a Republican Administration which has been content for eight years to spend the admittedly inadequate sum of $30,000,000 or year on enforcement, a Republican Administration which has not dared to risk the cost of a real effort at enforcement and a Reof a real effort at enforcement and a Republican Administration which has not dared to risk the cost of a real effort at enforcement and a Republican Administration whose present chief enforcement officer testified when he took office one year ago, "There are many incompetent and crooked men in the service. Briberry is rampent." ery is rampant."

This is the "vigorous" enforcement Mrs. Willebrandt is talking about and both wets and drys know that it is humbug.

Hazel Jerden Honoree at Birthday Picnic at New Wells

One of the happiest affairs of last week was the birthday picnic given Hazel Jerden at the Wells last Friday August 10 1928, taking with them all kinds of goowhich they declared was too bean one made a wish for Hazel, as the her many, many more happy birthdays. Hazel seemed just happy to be alive, and a part of it all. When saked to return thanks, her face pling, happy laughter not heard again until she sald: "Amen quick." This luck of seri was not forgiven her until after the cake had been out.

Many beautiful gifts were given the happy young hostess. Those present declared that they wished than just once a year regularly. Those going on this happily planned affair were: Roy Harris, Lonise Hill, Joe Dodson, Hazel Jerden, Fred Mason and Grace Franklin. Reported.
