Primary elections scheduled for Saturday

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

With a record number of absentee votes cast, a big turnout of voters is anticipated in Deaf Smith County Saturday when polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. for the party primary elections.

A hotly-contested sheriff's race, along with two crowded county commissioner races, has drawn strong interest on the local level. A total of 730 absentee votes—680 in person and 50 by mail—had been received this morning. There could still be about 15 more mail-in ballots, according to County Clerk David Ruland. "We are anticipating a large turnout and gearing up for the voting boxes," said Ruland. "There should be no long waiting lines," he added. This was a problem in the recent city-school-hospital elections.

The clerk said he believed that to be the most absentee votes ever cast in any election in Deaf Smith County. The total could grow slightly because of mail ballots.

And, besides the record number of absentee votes, there are more registered voters for this election than there were in the county's wet-dry election. Ruland estimated that about 1,000 more voters are registered now.

Polls open 7a.m. to 7p.m.

The wet-dry election drew 5,100 voters, or about 58 percent of the potential voters. Local officials think the primary totals could be around 7,000.

Polling places for the Democratic primary will be in 12 precinct voting boxes around the county. These were listed in Thursday's Brand. The Republican Party primary election will be conducted in one voting box, located at La Plata Junior High School.

While both party ballots will include congressional district and statewide races, most of the political interest in the county has focused on the sheriff's race and the two county commissioner races.

In the sheriff's race, Joe Brown—appointed to the post last August—will face the challenge of former chief deputy Dean Butcher and former city policeman Paul Ramirez. Since there are no Republican opponents, election in the primary will be tantamount to election in the general election. Should no candidate receive a majority, the primary runoff election would be held June 2.

Election as a Demo nominee for County Commissioner, Precinct 1, is also tantamount to election. Incumbent Bill Bradley faces the challenge of five other candidates in this race—Don Cherry, Nancy Hill, W.L. "Bussy" Kaul, Tex Rhodes and Larry Ulibarri.

In the Precinct 3 Commissioner's race, five candidates are seeking to succeed Bruce Coleman, who chose not to seek reelection. However, the Demo winner will have a Republican opponent in the general election—Bill Allen, who is the lone GOP candidate for that post. The Demo candidates are Larry Bain, Ron Crist, Lynn Jones, Troy Don Moore and George Zetzsche.

Also on the local ballot is a contested County Constable's race. The candidates are Mark Campbell and Leroy Johnson Jr.

Drawing high interest for district and statewide races on the ballots are the U.S. Senator and U.S. representative races, and the State Representative race for Deaf Smith and Randall counties.

The county has two candidates in the District 86, state representative race—Justin McBride in the Demo primary and Garth Thomas on the GOP primary. McBride faces Amarillo challenger Charles Crow, while Thomas has two opponents—Roger Ponce and John Smithee.

Ruland pointed out that election laws allow persons without voter registration cards to participate in the election if they sign an affidavit vowing they have made application, are 18 years of age or over and are a U.S. citizen. Persons who sign such an affidavit and are not qualified could be convicted of a felony.

Onslaught of nuclear waste sessions ends

Examining Displays

John Simpson, who lives in Tulia and farms southwest of the Swisher County seat, looks over some material being shown by the U.S. Department of Energy. The federal department was conducting an information exchange Thursday in Tulia to describe the search for a high-level nuclear waste repository.

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Requested boycotts by two area groups contributed to a turnout of only about 30 Thursday at a U.S. Department of Energy "public information exchange" in Tulia.

Of those who did attend, several were there at the request of DOE to help explain the department's search for a high-level nuclear waste repository. Another handful were from the media, leaving perhaps 20 others.

Both People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER) and Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping (STAND) had asked no area citizens go to the exchanges.

Linda McClain, DOE project manager for the Texas exploration activities, said she was initially disappointed at the small crowd. However, she explained, "People seemed to be listening a little more carefully" than they have tended to do in larger groups.

Following introductory speeches by McClain and two other panelists was a question-answer session. Then all those attending were allowed to individually confront panelists and others there to explain the search process. This method of exchange, McClain said, proved "infinitely more productive" than large group sessions.

Thursday's session, though having the same basic format, produced less tension than an exchange Tuesday night in Vega. Catcalls, sarcasm and other forms of verbal attack were consistently used against DOE representatives in the smaller Oldham County seat, placed near a candidate site.

Last week, the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office conducted two hearings regarding proposed reduction of the considered sites in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties to nine square miles apiece. The hearings were held in Hereford and Tulia, county seats for the two involved areas.

The other recent repository-related gathering was a Friday hearing in Canyon. Seven members of the House-Senate Joint Study Committee on Hazardous Waste Disposal listened to testimony similar to that given at the two TNWPO hearings.

McClain said the next DOE hearings and exchanges should come late this summer, when environmental assessments of the nine remaining site candidates are to be released. Aside from the two Panhandle possibilities, there are two locations each being considered in Utah and Mississippi along with one apiece in Louisiana, Nevada and Washington.

The field is to be narrowed to three next year for detailed site characterization studies. A final location is not expected to be selected until early in the 1990s. Storage facility operations are to commence in 1998.

Those environmental assessments are derived from guidelines DOE is now trying to have approved by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Though Energy Department and NRC officials were supposed to meet Thursday to discuss the guidelines, no information concerning the gathering was known at presstime.

The first presentation Thursday was given by Jim Fiore, acting director of the DOE Program Management Division. One of the repository project's missions, he maintained, is to "achieve public confidence through a consultation and cooperation process that encourages widespread state, Indian tribe and public participation in the planning, decision and licensing process."

He stressed several other groups are "looking over our shoulder" to make certain DOE is being careful in its dump site selection process. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Congress, state governments and NRC are among the watchdogs, Fiore said.

"The point is we're under the scrutiny of a number of steps," he stated.

None of the nine candidate sites have yet been singled out for further consideration nor to receive the repository, Fiore said. Despite what some citizens seem to feel, he continued, a final selection will definitely not be made until 1990. "Between now and then, we will listen; that's the reason I'm here."

Questioning began with one woman wondering why storage canisters were to last only 300 to 1,000 years. The repository, she pointed out, is to protect the environment from its enclosed waste

Local Roundup Republican slate planned

Deaf Smith County Republicans are to meet for precinct conventions at 8 p.m. Saturday following the primary elections for county and state candidates.

The convention is supposed to be held at the La Plata Junior High School gymnasium, which is where Republicans will vote on Saturday.

County Clerk David Ruland said, according to a notice posted at the courthouse by the party, the Republican county convention will begin at 9 a.m. on May 19. That gathering will take place in the district courtroom of the courthouse.

Local Republicans will be allowed to send six delegates to the state convention June 15 and 16 in Ft. Worth. Six alternates are also to be chosen. The figures are a percentage of the 2,382 votes cast for the Republican candidate in the last gubernatorial election.

Delegates to the state convention do not go "instructed," which means they do not commit themselves to a presidential candidate. Delegates to the national Republican Convention, Aug. 20 through 22 in Dallas, will be asked to indicate a presidential preference.

Saul's request granted

Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul has been granted his request for a special prosecutor in a case stemming from grand jury indictments of his former assistant and law partner.

District Clerk Lola Faye Veazy on Thursday learned that Lubbock attorney Travis Ware has been appointed by District Judge Pat Boone Jr. as special prosecutor of the perjury and misconduct case against Hereford attorney Jerry Smith.

Smith was indicted on March 31 following a marathon session of an extended Deaf Smith County Grand Jury, which investigated the criminal district attorney's office under the supervision of Assistant State Attorney General Linda Walden.

Both charges were based on Smith's alleged private representation of clients while still under the employ of the district attorney. Activities on the part of Saul were also probed but the jury returned no indictments against him.

Ware was in the district attorney's office in Lubbock for more than three years, serving as chief felony prosecutor under then District Attorney John T. Montford.

Costa Rica targeted for military aid

By OLDEMAR RAMIREZ
Associated Press Writer

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The United States announced it is sending military equipment to bolster Costa Rica's tiny defense force, which clashed with Nicaraguan soldiers at a border village near the Pacific coast.

No one was reported injured in Thursday's firefight, the latest of at least a dozen between the Nicaraguan army and Costa Rican civil guards during the past two years. The clashes have been spurred by border-area fighting between Costa Rica-based Nicaraguan rebels and troops of Nicaragua's leftist government.

In El Salvador, moderate presidential candidate Jose

To bolster its defense force

Napoleon Duarte said Thursday that if he wins Sunday's runoff election, he will create a commission dedicated to wiping out right-wing death squads.

The runoff pits Duarte, a Christian Democrat, against Roberto d'Aubuisson, 40, candidate of the ultra-right Republican Nationalist Alliance.

D'Aubuisson has been accused of having ties with death squads but the allegations have not been proven. The squads are said by human rights groups to be responsible for most of the 43,000 civilian deaths in the 4½-year civil war against leftist guerrillas.

In Costa Rica, U.S. Ambassador Curtin Winsor met with President Luis Alberto Monge and later told reporters Washington is sending Costa Rica jeeps, trucks, some patrol boats, two helicopters and light weapons and ammunition.

He said 30 jeeps were due soon at Limon, Costa Rica's main port, but gave no details.

"The United States is ready to help Costa Rica with whatever it needs," Winsor said. "If Costa Rica were to need something extraordinary in the event of an invasion, the United States will be ready to cooperate."

Costa Rica is the only Central American nation without a standing army.

Thursday's fight occurred about 90 miles south of the Nicaraguan capital of Managua in the village of Penas Blancas, which straddles both countries.

Angel Enmundo Solano, the Costa Rican minister of public security, said the shots first came from Nicaraguan territory while Sandinista soldiers were fighting rebels in the area. Rocket shells fell on Costa Rican territory and the nation's civil guardsmen returned fire, Solano said.

Costa Rica sent a strong protest to Nicaragua about an air raid Sunday that wounded two people in the Costa Rican border town of San Isidro Pocosol.

Reporter to testify against worker

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An all-Hispanic jury today is scheduled to hear a newspaper reporter testify for the government in the trial of a church worker accused of conspiring to transport two Salvadoran illegal aliens.

Stacey Lynn Merkt, 29, of Colorado Spring, Colo., is the only one of three Americans arrested by border patrol agents before dawn Feb. 17 in rural South Texas who will stand trial on conspiracy charges.

The others — Dallas Times Herald reporter Jack Fischer and Sister Dianne Muhlkamp of Fort Wayne, Ind. — are expected to be called by the prosecution, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Guerra.

Fischer, who was writing an article about the national sanctuary movement at the time of his arrest, has been subpoenaed to testify Friday, Guerra said.

Caucus system called discriminatory

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Texas' caucus system discriminates against Democratic federal employees because a law prohibits them from becoming involved in partisan politics, say two veteran El Paso Democrats who want the process changed.

"There's no point in trying to justify and defend it (the caucus system)," said El Paso County Democratic Party Chairman Tom Diamond. "We need to change it."

Diamond estimated that 30,000 federal employees in El Paso, where Ft. Bliss and Biggs Army Air Field are stationed, will be denied full participation in the caucus system because of the Hatch Act, a law passed more than 40 years ago, which forbids federal employees from taking an active role in politics.

Marvin Nicchio, a custodial worker at Beaumont Army Medical Center and a long-time El Paso Democrat, said he is contemplating a class action lawsuit because the caucus "denies me the right to vote for the president of the United States."

Arraignment set in slavery death

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Three members of a Hill Country ranch family and three of the hitchhikers the ranchers allegedly lured to the ranch will be arraigned today on charges that they tortured a drifter to death.

Prosecutors say charred remains found on the Ellebracht family's 13,000-acre ranch near Mountain Home were the bones of Anthony Bates, 21, of Huntsville, Ala.

Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton says Bates died March 13 after being tortured with a cattle prod at the ranch.

Charged in Bates' death are Walter Ellebracht Sr., 51, his son Walter Ellebracht Jr., 31, and his daughter-in-law Joyce Ellebracht, 29.

The Ellebrachts were arrested last month and charged with aggravated kidnapping.

Severe weather wrecking Southland

Violent spring storms that lashed the South with 79 tornadoes, leaving six people dead and hundreds of homes wrecked, spread northward today while keeping Dixie locked in the "heart of the most severe weather season."

Heavy rain was falling today from Louisiana to Pennsylvania, raising the fear of flooding in areas already waterlogged by wave after wave of storms. The rains were expected to pour down all day.

In Georgia and Alabama, people picked up the pieces after the two states were battered by 37 of the 43 tornadoes reported Thursday by the National Weather Service.

Twisters also touched down Thursday in Mississippi, Louisiana, North and South Carolina, the National Weather Service said. Five people were killed Thursday in Alabama, and one died Wednesday night in Arkansas.

In all, 79 tornadoes cut a path of destruction from Texas to the Carolinas on Wednesday and Thursday, said Hugh Crowther at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

Unemployment steady for third month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment in April remained frozen at 7.8 percent — its third month at that level — as the number of new jobs virtually accommodated a heavy springtime demand for work, the government said today.

Not since September-November 1980 has unemployment held steady for three months running.

Economists in and out of government have said for months that the steadily declining unemployment rates of the last year or so could level off as the pace of the expanding economy slows.

Still, many analysts expect the civilian rate to fall below 7.4 percent, the rate President Reagan inherited from Jimmy Carter in 1981, by year's end.

In April, the Labor Department said today, total civilian employment rose by 260,000 to 104.4 million, a record. But roughly 333,000 jobless Americans re-entered the labor force in search of work, offsetting the gains.

Polish leader arrives in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Polish Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski arrived today for a visit that is expected to include receipt of a Soviet medal and talks with Kremlin leaders on the political unrest which surfaced again in Poland this week.

Thousands of supporters of the outlawed Solidarity labor union demonstrated in Polish cities Tuesday and Thursday in defiance of Jaruzelski's Communist regime.

Pope visits leper colony

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Pope John Paul II took a helicopter ride to an island leper colony today, praising the staff and telling the 3,000 patients that their "unspeakable anguish" brought them closer to Jesus.

Earlier today, at the site of a bloody anti-government rebellion four years ago, the pope told Koreans to strive to resist hatred. On Thursday, the pope coughed and blinked back tears as he breathed tear gas fumes wafting from a nearby university in Seoul where police clashed with students demanding democratic reforms.

Candidates drumming up Texas support

Walter Mondale picked up a key endorsement in his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination and the Rev. Jesse Jackson courted the Hispanic vote while Gary Hart's Texas campaign manager predicted victory in Saturday's Democratic precinct caucuses.

In Austin, Mondale nabbed the endorsement Thursday of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, one of the politicians mentioned most often as a possible vice presidential candidate on a Mondale ticket.

Bentsen flew to the Texas capital from Washington to appear at a Mondale fundraiser and described the former vice president as "a good friend of mine, the next president of the United States."

Referring to Mondale's earlier defeats at the hands of Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, Bentsen said, "We like a leader who can take a hit and not quit."

Bentsen's endorsement came just two days before Texas Democrats hold caucuses to begin the process of choosing 169 national convention delegates.

Texas will have the third largest delegation at the Democratic National Convention in July.

Mondale used a campaign stop in Houston Thursday night to jab at Hart for leaving the state to campaign elsewhere.

"This morning, Gary Hart, pulled out of Texas," Mondale told supporters Thursday night. "He pulled out of the state ... I believe that's the wrong way to treat this good state."

Hart left Texas on Thursday to campaign in Louisiana and Ohio.

But Hart's top Texas operative predicted Thursday that Hart will upset Mondale in the Texas precinct caucuses.

"The Hart campaign in Texas is better organized than in any other caucus state. We have placed virtually our entire emphasis on organization from the very beginning. We have done things right," U.S. Rep. Martin Frost said.

Frost, Hart's Texas co-chairman, said the campaign will have contacted by telephone or mail more than 500,000 Texas Democrats before the 6,634 caucuses begin at 7:15 p.m. Saturday.

The precinct caucuses begin the process that will choose 169 of the 200 Texas delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

He called for extending workmen's compensation protection in Texas to farm workers, securing collective bargaining rights for farm workers, and stepping up disaster relief for migrant laborers left unemployed by the freeze.

Later in the day, Jackson made three appearances in San Antonio, the last of which was a spirited church revival at the Friendship Baptist Church.

Jackson urged religious leaders to open their churches to the sanctuary movement, which has been providing shelter to Central American refugees in South Texas.

He also said he plans to meet in Central America with the Contadora group, representatives of four Latin American governments who met on Contadora Island last year to outline a 21-point peace plan for the region. He also plans to meet with leaders in Nicaragua, he said.

In other Texas political news Thursday:

Gov. Mark White said he has talked with Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale's staff, "but not about" the possibility of him being a vice presidential candidate with Mondale, as some national news reports have hinted.

White also said he will remain uncommitted in the presidential race through the Saturday precinct caucuses, and probably through the Democratic National Convention in July.

"I doubt it, but I might," he replied when asked whether he would make a presidential endorsement before the convention.

— Republican senate candidate Rob Mosbacher received a $5,000 contribution from the Senate Majority Fund. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., announced the move in a statement released by Mosbacher's campaign.

"I have been impressed by the issue-oriented race that Rob Mosbacher has conducted in the primary, and his strong effort to retain this Senate seat on the Republican side of the aisle," Baker said.

"We expect to win," Frost said. He noted that Texas Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle, a Mondale supporter, this week has been saying an upset of Mondale is possible.

Earlier Thursday, Mondale told a gathering of farmers at a ranch near Waco that if Reagan administration policies continue "we're close to a point when what we've known as family farms will be gone."

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower induced Mondale and said of local farmers "there's a world of hurt out there."

Mondale said farmers were faced with "perhaps the most severe threat since Herbert Hoover."

He said that as president he would improve administration of farm programs and offer a loan level "geared to the price of production."

Jackson delivered a sermon in San Antonio after marching with farm workers through a barren citrus grove in the Rio Grande Valley on Thursday.

He said amnesty should be granted to all illegal aliens now living in the United States and contended that the rich agricultural area of far South Texas "has turned from magic to tragic" because of Reagan administration policies.

"You picked the fruit that made America strong. Now you must enjoy the fruits of your labor," Jackson said at a rally in San Juan, a town whose citrus groves were virtually destroyed in last winter's record-setting freeze.

For Texas Hispanic vote

Jackson makes final push

By SCOTT McCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, making an 11th-hour dash across Texas to gain support among Hispanics before Saturday's Democratic presidential caucuses, embraced several South Texas issues and said he hopes to visit Central America before the end of the month.

The Democratic presidential hopeful, delivering a fiery sermon in San Antonio and marching with farm workers through a barren citrus grove in the Rio Grande Valley on Thursday, said amnesty should be granted to all illegal aliens now living in the United States.

"You picked the fruit that made America strong. Now you must enjoy the fruits of your labor," Jackson said at a rally in San Juan, a town whose citrus groves were virtually destroyed in last winter's record-setting freeze.

"The valley under Reagan has turned from magic to tragic," Jackson told about 200 farm workers.

He called for extending workmen's compensation protection in Texas to farm workers, securing collective bargaining rights for farm workers, and stepping up disaster relief for migrant laborers left unemployed by the freeze.

Jackson drew a friendly reception from the Hispanic audience, although one grower began yelling at him after Jackson asserted that some farmworkers earned less than $2 an hour.

"I don't pay less than $2 an hour. Where'd you get your facts, Jesse Jackson?" said the heckler, who was escorted away from the rally.

Later in the day, Jackson made three appearances in San Antonio, the last of which was a spirited church revival at the Friendship Baptist Church.

Jackson urged religious leaders to open their churches to the sanctuary movement, which has been providing shelter to Central American refugees in South Texas.

"The Reagan administration is creating the continuous flow of refugees," Jackson charged. "They try to create the illusion that Salvadoran refugees are coming for economic reasons, when they are really fleeing for their lives."

He said he plans to meet in Central America with the Contadora group, representatives of four Latin American governments who met on Contadora Island last year to outline a 21-point peace plan for the region. He also plans to meet with leaders in Nicaragua, he said.

Jackson continued his attack on Texas' dual balloting system, which requires voters to go to polls during regular voting hours and cast one ballot, then return Saturday evening to party caucuses to help select the 169 delegates available.

"Come alive May 5. Vote twice to make it nice," Jackson said repeatedly with crowds echoing his verse.

"The system in Texas is the most difficult, the most treacherous of all," he told a mostly black audience earlier Thursday in the East Texas town of Tyler.

Jackson traveled across the state in a nine-seat Lear jet after his regular campaign plane was grounded in Dallas by both Federal Aviation Administration officials and the candidate himself.

The plane encountered rough weather Wednesday while traveling from Washington to Dallas, and Jackson said he decided it was "too hazardous" to fly again in the aircraft. After the plane landed in Dallas Wednesday, Jackson knelt down on the tarmac, bowed and pretended to kiss the ground.

Ready To Ride

Employees of the First National and Hereford State banks, and their children, ride for Cystic Fibrosis again this year after bringing in over $2,000 for the cause last year. Bicyclists will take off at 9 a.m. Saturday from Veterans Park and ride maximum of 20 miles. Last year, a total of $8,700 was raised from the bike-a-thon, the best figure per capita of any city in Texas.

Now that primary is over

New Hampshire has blues

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Nobody has sent for the doctor, but the symptoms are plain. New Hampshire has a case of post-primary depression.

"It's like the day after Labor Day at a seashore resort," said Barry MacMichael. "Everybody's left. Nothing's going on. It's bleak."

"I was talking to someone just the other day," said Jeanne Shaheen, "and we said, gee, we need a project, maybe find some state candidate we can work for. The letdown is real."

"It's like being taken out of New York City and put down in the middle of Utah," said Shaun Kelley.

Having lifted the Democratic presidential candidates of Gary Hart and Jesse Jackson, having struck fear into the soul of Walter Mondale, having sent five other candidates packing — remember Cranston, Hollings, Askew, Glenn, McGovern? — and having little to do since then but watch snow melt and wait for spring, it is little wonder some in New Hampshire are experiencing withdrawal pains.

Barry MacMichael of Concord cares about issues. She spoke to each candidate, personally, at least twice. So did most of her friends.

"We knew the impact the New Hampshire primary has. We took our votes seriously. We discussed. We were very intense, every day, for a year.

"Then it all ended, so abruptly. Suddenly my phone calls dropped by two-thirds. My husband and I were depressed for two months.

"Other than the primary, there aren't many things of national importance that happen in New Hampshire."

Jeanne Shaheen is an activist, too. In fact, she was Hart's campaign manager, as she had been for Jimmy Carter four years earlier. When it's time for politics, politics gets her full attention.

"It's a letdown, all right," she said, "but maybe less for me than for some others. At least we had the exhilaration of winning, and that lasts a while.

"Maybe it's just as well it's over. I have a family, and I just couldn't do something so all-consuming for much longer than a year. Oh, yes, I'll be ready to do it again next time."

And there's the little white house at 33 Washington Street in Concord.

"We poured many a cup of coffee in this living room," Mary Louise Hancock said, savoring the memory. "Any candidate who needed a place to be heard came here."

Miss Hancock, who became known as Concord's unofficial coffee giver, has been around, as she put it, "long enough to know every Democrat in town."

for at least 10,000 years.

McClain responded the canisters were only the primary insulation. Surrounding rock, which in Texas would be salt formations, would be counted on to contain the nuclear garbage for a majority of the dump's life.

Another woman expressed anger DOE had not provided a complete map of the Ogallala aquifer. McClain had agreed to do so at a planning meeting last month. The only such map presented Thursday showed the aquifer only as it rests in Texas, though seven other states also contain parts of the water source.

Concerns the facility's underground operations might collapse, as local water wells sometimes do, were answered by panelist Paul Archer. He explained careful storage space would be created at depths nine or 10 times greater than those used for water wells. Consequently, he said, the surrounding rock would be adequately stable.

Archer is the lead project manager for the Permian Basin geologic studies at ONWI. Those initials stand for Office of Nuclear Waste Isolation, headquartered in Columbus, Ohio.

The other panelist, engineer Jim Gould, joined Archer as two of five experts who explained the Panhandle site reduction recommendations in two large technical report volumes. Gould is lead project manager for repository subsurface design for ONWI. Hired by DOE to help coordinate the dump site project, ONWI is a branch of the Battelle Memorial Institute.

All four panelists claimed they would "definitely" be willing to live within two miles of the proposed high-level nuclear waste repository.

Police make two arrests

Hereford Police made one arrest for driving while intoxicated and one for driving while license suspended on Thursday.

They also investigated reports of a stolen bicycle, a domestic disturbance and criminal mischief involving a broken window.

Orators give program for Xi Epsilon Alpha

Hereford High School Orators, Cord Cochran, Kelly Stokesberry and Kelly Burris, presented a program of prose for Xi Epsilon Alpha Tuesday evening in the Reddy Room.

During the business session, members heard a request from Boy Scout Troop No. 52 for financial aid. Their priority need is for a net tent. Discussion was also held on a possible donation to the Hereford Satellite Center for help in sending participants to the State Olympics in Austin.

Members voted to contribute equal amounts to each organization. The group also decided to donate a bouquet of yellow silk roses and a vase to CRY Council for rituals.

Discussion was held on voting for the project to be funded by state convention. Projects for review include the Children's Dialysis Unit, Baylor Hospital; Texas Cranial-Facial Center; Ronald McDonald House; Blake Williamson, Dumas; Dan Vickers; and Girlstown. Request was made to vote in favor of Blake Williamson.

New officers are to be installed at a salad supper on May 15, the last meeting of the club year.

In attendance were Jody Blackwell, Illajeane Brinkman, Lynda Brown, Nan Gauthreaux, Opal Glenn, Ronna Howell, Rose Marie Robinson, Brenda Thomas, Oleta Tisdale, Sharon Bodner, and two guests, Susan Shaw and Janis White.

Straight Talk by a Concerned Citizen

Ron Crist has once again demonstrated that prejudice and misinformation are alive and well in Deaf Smith County ("Straight Talk, Today's Issue - TRLA", Pd. Pol. Adv., Hereford Brand, Friday, April 27). Mr. Crist would have been somewhat more accurate had he stated what he really means - "(Anglo) citizens have a big problem..."

The gist of Mr. Crist's "stand on this issue" is that TRLA has made demands to "change policy in our school system, city & county that we have lived by & been satisfied with in the past years" and that it is a weakness to make any changes. This analysis is faulty in several respects.

First, Mr. Crist apparently fails to understand that it is not TRLA making demands but rather Mexican-American citizens demanding that they be treated equally and be afforded the same rights and opportunities as Anglo citizens. Mr. Crist's statements are indicative of an attitude that Mexican-Americans are not capable of thinking for themselves and deciding that enough is enough and that the time is long overdue that Mexican-Americans be included in the decision making processes of Deaf Smith County.

Second, it is abundantly clear that Mr. Crist excludes the Mexican-American community from his definition of Deaf Smith county citizens; he may be satisfied with school, city and county policies in past years but the Mexican-American community - long ignored in the making of policy-clearly is not.

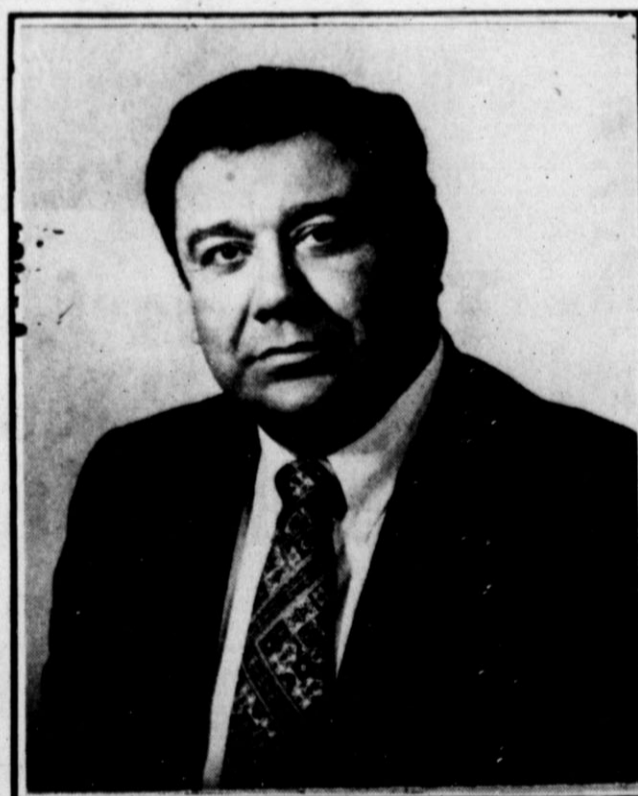

Mr. Crist is telling us that he will not listen to legitimate complaints brought to the County by a large portion of this community. While Mr. Crist is determined to "fight to the bitter end... whatever this costs," it will be our tax dollars which he will call on to continue the oppression of the Mexican-American community in Deaf Smith County.

I call on Ron Crist, and all those who long for the old way of life when Mexican-Americans were expected to leave town at the end of the harvest, to recognize that this community includes more than a select group of Anglos and realize that until Mexican-Americans are included in the decision making process, the Mexican-American community will have no choice but to seek redress in our judicial system of the grave injustices rampant in our community.

Members meet for closing luncheon

Summerfield Study Club closed the club year with a noon luncheon at Something Special on Thursday. Mrs. Jerry Don Lance presided in the absence of Mrs. Clayton Sanders, president.

Mrs. Ray Johnson installed the following new officers: Mrs. Jerry Lance, president; Mrs. L.B. Lookingbill, vice-president; Mrs. J.R. Euler, treasurer; Mrs. Thurman Atchley, recording secretary; Mrs. Mack Noland, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Clayton Sanders, parliamentarian; and Mrs. George DeLozier, historian.

The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Mrs. Euler and Mrs. Lookingbill led the pledge to the Texas flag. The invocation was given by Mrs. DeLozier. Mrs. Johnson gave a memorial in memory of Mrs. L.H. Lookingbill Sr.

Mrs. Euler presented the program, "H. Ross Perot: Computer Commando" from the Saturday Evening Post. "Spurred on by a high-riding love of country, this self-made Texas millionaire sticks to his guns, whether he's rescuing prisoners from an Iranian jail or a shaky firm from a Wall Street slump," she stated.

She continued by saying Perot is leading the fight to improve academics and reduce sports in the Texas educational system.

"The blue-ribbon committee chaired by this Dallas businessman postponed some reforms and scaled back its reform package from $2.4 billion to $987 million. The legislature will be asked to vote on the plan in a special session this summer," she concluded.

Mrs. Johnson spoke on the select committee of public education appointed by Gov. Mark White.

Welcomed as guests were Mrs. Joe Don Noland and Mrs. Liz Wilson. Members present were Mmes. Atchley, DeLozier, Euler, Johnson, Lance, Lookingbill, J.B. Noland and Mack Noland.

Ann Landers Dealing with teens

DEAR READERS: A clipping came to me with no indication of its origin. The last three words were "Don Fay, Avon." If there is such a person and such a place I would like to give them credit.

The subject--Runaway Teens. Here is a version that has been sharply edited in the interest of space:

Too many well-meaning members of a community are willing to take in a teen when their own child brings him home and says, "His parents kicked him out and he doesn't have a place to stay. Can we let him stay here?" Chances are if you say "yes," you will be sorry unless you follow a few guidelines.

1. Set the rules before you give him permission to stay. Discuss them. Make changes that are mutually agreeable. Write them down and get him to sign them. He should have a copy as well as you. Each rule should spell out the consequences if it is broken. The rules must be enforced with no exception. The first time you backslide you will lose control of the situation.

2. Call the parents. Tell them you have their child and would like to talk with them. When you hear their side you will probably learn the teen was thrown out because of anti-social behavior, or he chose to leave rather than obey the rules set down by his parents.

3. Your goal should be to send the teen back home. This is where he belongs, and where he must learn to face the responsibilities rather than run away from them.

4. Make the teen work. Don't treat him as a guest. He must clean his room, help with the laundry, do dishes, mow the lawn. The more you can find for him to do the better.

5. Make him live up to your standards. If you go to church, insist that he go, too. If he is of a different religion insist that he go to his own place of worship.

6. Don't mix sexes. If your son wants to bring his girlfriend home to live because she is having trouble at home, and they tell you it will be an innocent arrangement, think again. Don't let them con you.

7. Set a curfew and enforce it.

8. Limit freedom and don't compromise. Your judgment is better than theirs. Hang tough. You'll be glad you did. And so will they.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print one more letter about giving kids B.B. guns under the mistaken impression that they are toys.

We live in Massapequa, N.Y., not Texas. Several kids in our neighborhood like to shoot small animals with these guns. Our cat had to have nine inches of her intestines removed because of a B.B. shot.

When we give our children guns we promote violence.—Steamed In N.Y.

DEAR N.Y.: I'm with you. Thanks for the reinforcement.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents," give no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation.

For each booklet, send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

OU cheerleading squad includes local students

NORMAN, Okla.—University of Oklahoma cheerleaders, including Charles C. McDowell and Glen K. Phipps of Hereford, and pompon squad members will travel for the first time as one "super squad" to Knoxville, Tenn., this summer to attend the National Cheerleading Association camp.

The two spirit groups, which are being combined into one "group" under the direction of Jan Lane Warner, will compete for one of the top 20 spots at the NCA camp in hopes of attending the finals competition next January in Dallas.

The combined squad will make its debut during the 1984 football season, but because of space limitations on the football field, fans will have to wait until basketball season for the "really new and different routines," explained Warner, executive director of the OU Tip-In-Club.

Warner, who has been sponsor for the pompon squad for nine years, is the new sponsor of the cheerleading squad. "We want to bring a sense of oneness to the campus spirit groups," he said. "I'm really pleased with the squads and their enthusiasm for working into the spirit of OU."

Spastic colon or not?

DEAR DR. LAMB—I started running about two years ago and now run about 25 miles every week. Six months after I began running I started having pains in my lower abdomen, which my doctor diagnosed as a spastic colon. The problem seems to come and go every other month.

I'd like to know if there's something I can do to prevent or eliminate the problem and if my running has anything to do with it.

DEAR READER—Running often increases the motility of the intestines. That's why many runners complain of diarrhea.

But many people who aren't runners do have spastic colon problems. Your infrequent attacks suggest it's not just related to your running, since you run regularly.

You may need more bulk and bran in your diet. Natural whole grain cereals such as oatmeal are fine. Some people prefer to use a bulk former since bran may increase gas, which can cause abdominal distention.

You may find that part of your problem is related to specific foods. Milk intolerance can cause the symptoms of a spastic colon. Pay close attention to your symptoms in relation to what you eat.

Give up coffee, tea and colas if you use them before you give up running. See if certain spices or foods such as onions may be a factor.

You can get more help from the Health Letter 16-4, Spastic Colon, Irregularity and Constipation, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Ojeda outduels Morris, 1-0, in pitchers battle

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers are in their first "slump" of the season — if you call a two-game losing streak a slump — and Jack Morris knows why.

"It's guys like (Bobby) Ojeda who can mess us up," said Morris, who hurled a five-hitter but served up a home run to Dwight Evans in the eighth inning that enabled the Boston Red Sox to nip the Tigers 1-0 Thursday behind Ojeda's six-hit, 10-strikeout pitching for his first major-league shutout.

"I've seen it over the years, guys like him — and (Chicago's) LaMarr Hoyt — who have good off-speed stuff and can get it over the black like he did today. Guys that bring it (throw fastballs) constantly are going to get hit by this team."

It was only Detroit's fourth setback in 23 games and the first time the Tigers have dropped two games in a row.

In the only other American League games, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Kansas City Royals 6-5 in 10 innings and the Seattle Mariners trimmed the Minnesota Twins 6-2.

Evans, who belted a two-run homer in Boston's 5-4 triumph Wednesday night, led off the eighth inning by lining Morris' first pitch into the lower left-field seats for his third homer. That was enough to make Morris a loser after winning his first five decisions.

"Everybody was pumped up when we came into Detroit and we all wanted to win," Ojeda said. "This is fun. We needed this kind of series. This is probably my greatest game. At the very least it was one of my top two because I finished it. It was nice to beat a hot team, and Jack's an outstanding pitcher. Guys were coming in and saying that's a great forkball he's got."

On the home run, Evans said he was "looking for a slider, because that's what he warmed up with. But he threw me a fastball, a little bit up. It's funny, because in Fenway (Park) that would have been a single."

Brewers 6, Royals 5

Kansas City relief ace Dan Quisenberry stymies most teams, but not Milwaukee. He has a career 3-5 record and an earned run average of over 6.00 against the Brewers after Mark Brouhard's two-run single capped a three-run rally in the bottom of the 10th inning.

The Royals had taken a 5-3 lead in the top of the 10th when Pete Ladd walked

Frank White and Steve Balboni with the bases loaded. But Rick Manning led off the bottom of the inning with a double and Quisenberry walked Dion James. One out later, pinch hitter Roy Howell singled to score Manning and send Gantner to third and Howell took second when right fielder Lynn Jones' throw got past third baseman Greg Pryor. Jim Sundberg grounded out.

My Granddad says he will jew-down, what every that means.

Brothers jockey in Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Eddie Maple was supposed to ride the top horse in Saturday's Kentucky Derby. Instead, it will be his younger brother, Sam, on one of the favorites.

When Devil's Bag was withdrawn earlier this week, Eddie wound up on longshot At The Threshold.

Sam, who has had no previous Derby mounts, will ride Taylor's Special, the Blue Grass Stakes winner who is the third choice in the early line for the richest-ever Derby, worth $712,400 with $537,400 going to the winner. The last brothers to ride in the Derby were Chris and Gregg McCarron in 1976.

Taylor's Special has won three straight, including the Louisiana Derby and the Blue Grass, and four of his last five.

William F. Lucas' colt is listed as the third early choice at 7-2 behind the filly entry of Althea and Life's Magic, 5-2, and Swale, 3-1 in the field of 3-year-olds limited to the top 20 money-winners.

The complete field in post position order with morning-line odds: 1, Althea, 5-2; 2, Raja's Shark, 20-1; 3, Bear Hunt, 20-1; 4, So Vague, 5; Life's Magic, 5-2; 6, Fight

Over, 20-1; 7, Fali Time, 12-1; 8, Bedouin, 12-1; 9, Rexson's Hope, 12-1; 10, Taylor's Special, 7-2; 11, Silent King, 15-1; 12, Vanlandingham, 10-1; 13, Secret Prince, 12-1; 14, At The Threshold, 20-1; 15, Swale, 3-1; 16, Majestic Shore, 12-1; Biloxi Indian, 12-1; Pine Circle, 10-1; Coax Me Chad, 12-1, and Gate Dancer, 15-1.

Sam Maple rode Taylor's Special in the Louisiana Derby but was replaced by Pat Day for last week's Blue Grass. Day elected to ride Vanlandingham in the Derby, and it wasn't until Thursday that trainer Bill Mott decided to go back to Maple.

"I think he has a big chance to win the race, and since I have ridden him before, I think that would give me a little edge," Maple said.

He is one of six who have ridden the colt this year.

Crenshaw says La Costa play easier

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — The rough isn't nearly so severe as it often is. The greens are good. The winds were relatively gentle. As a result, said Masters champion Ben Crenshaw, the La Costa Country Club course is playing easier than usual.

Then he took a look at the scoreboard, and the 64 posted by David Graham, matching the tournament record.

"But the golf course just doesn't play that easy," said Crenshaw.

"That's a great round, a great, great round."

Graham did not make a bogey on the 6,911-yard layout, one-putted 11 times, tied the record set in 1970 by Frank Beard with a 5-iron shot to one foot on the last hole, spiced his effort with a 25-foot putt for eagle-3 on the second and played the front in 30. It gave him a 3-stroke lead going into today's second round of the elite, winners-only Tournament of Champions.

"I think you're going to see some very low scores this year," said Graham, an Australian now living in Dallas and a former winner of the U.S. Open and PGA titles.

"And that is because of the absence of the rough we've had in years past.

"It used to be so deep it was a lost ball if you hit it in there. Now, it's not all that difficult.

"It may be because of the presence of the seniors," he said.

For the first time, the T of C has a seniors bracket, a separate tournament being played on the same course and from the same tees by the over-50 winners from the past two seasons.

The Newspaper BIBLE

The crowd watched, and the Jewish leaders laughed and scoffed. "He was so good at helping others," they said, "let's see him save himself if he is really God's Chosen One, the Messiah."

The soldiers mocked Him, too, by offering Him a drink—of sour wine. And they called to Him, "If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!"

A signboard was nailed to the cross above Him with these words: "THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS."

One of the criminals hanging beside Him scoffed, "So you're the Messiah, are you? Prove it by saving yourself—and us, too, while you're at it!"

But the other criminal protested, "Don't you even fear God when you are dying? We deserve to die for our evil deeds, but this man hasn't done one thing wrong." Then he said, "Jesus, remember me when You come into Your Kingdom." And Jesus replied, "Today you will be with Me in Paradise. This is a solemn promise."

By now it was noon, and darkness fell across the whole land for three hours, until 3 o'clock. The light from the sun was gone—and suddenly the thick veil hanging in the Temple split apart.

Then Jesus shouted, "Father, I commit My spirit to You," and with those words He died.

When the captain of the Roman military unit handling the executions saw what had happened, he was stricken with awe before God and said, "Surely this man was innocent."

Campaign Comments

I know many of the voters have not made a decision as to their choice for Democrat County Commissioner Precinct 3. I urge you to cast your vote responsibly, after an analysis of what each candidate has to offer. This is too important an election and too important a position to vote socially. It is crucial that you examine each candidate's platform and objectives. If he doesn't have a platform and viable objectives, I don't believe he has demonstrated any real comprehension of, or competency for, the duties and responsibilities of the office of county commissioner. I have often stated in this campaign that being county commissioner is not a caretaker position. It will require leadership and dedication. I serve no special interest groups, and I will be free to respond in the best interest of the voters. My concern in my candidacy for commissioner is that we have sound leadership and that the economy be revitalized through industrial growth. I will work as your commissioner to achieve these goals. I will be the peoples' commissioner. I ask for your support in the May 5th Democratic primary. VOTE FOR JONES.

Help me to work for a growing and prosperous Hereford and Deaf Smith County. Together, We CAN have, "PROGRESS THROUGH SOUND LEADERSHIP".

Six Texans spent nearly $8 million during campaigns

By GUY DARST Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The six Texans vying for the Senate seat of retiring Sen. John G. Tower have spent nearly $8 million on their campaigns.

Five passed the $1 million spending mark in the battle to succeed Tower, a Republican veteran of 23 years in the Senate.

The six contestants had raised almost $8 million for their campaigns by the end of March. Several of the Democrats and Republican Rob Mosbacher had amassed large debts, according to campaign finance records filed with the Federal Election Commission.

In contests for Texas seats in the House, 11 incumbents without primary opponents had collected more than $1.2 million by March 31.

The figures come from a computer analysis of all campaign finance reports filed with the FEC. The information from two separate reports — the first covering all of 1983 and the second covering the first three months of 1984 — was put on computer by PAC Researchers Inc. and tabulated for The Associated Press.

Texas is holding primary elections Saturday and caucuses Saturday night to help select 169 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

The biggest fund-raiser in the Senate race was Democratic Austin Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin, who had $1,824,306 in contributions, far more than his Democratic rivals, former Rep. Robert Krueger and Rep. Kent Hance. Krueger, who narrowly lost to Tower in 1978, had collected $1,276,907 and Hance $1,034,823 as of March 31, the last reporting date before Saturday's primary.

Rep. Phil Gramm, who left the Democratic party for the Republican side of the aisle after sponsoring President Reagan's 1981 tax and budget cuts, had gathered almost as much money as Doggett — $1,785,370.

Republican Rep. Ron Paul had raised $1,306,640 in his fight against Gramm and Mosbacher. Paul showed spending of $1,274,175 and $32,460 in the bill.

Gramm spent $1,696,521 and listed $446,460 in cash on hand.

Mosbacher, a wealthy Houston businessman who has never run for office before, had spent $1,455,071 and had $111,140 cash on hand, according to his campaign organization. He reported contributions of $620,600 and loans of $1.15 million, said his campaign manager, Jacques Irby.

Mosbacher, the only Republican listing any campaign debts, owed more than the three Democrats' combined debt of $1,088,604.

Doggett had spent $1,370,118 and listed cash on hand at $540,624, with debts of only $13,343. Hance had spent the least of the six, $729,419, and his cash on hand, $1,111,491, was the most. Hance listed debts of $506,761.

Krueger had spent $1,420,724 and showed $429,869 cash on hand. His debts were $568,500.

The top fund-raiser in races for House seats was Rep. John Bryant of Dallas, who had raised $468,050 and faced no opposition in the primary.

The runner-up in House contributions was another Democratic incumbent from Dallas, Rep. Martin Frost, who is managing Sen. Gary Hart's presidential campaign in Texas and who had raised $377,462 for his own re-election drive.

One of Frost's Republican opponents, Jack Bower, reported contributions of $3,912 and the second, Bob Burke, had not filed a report by the April 15 deadline.

Overall, 31 Democratic candidates, including 19 incumbents, had raised $3,852,739 in races for House seats, including $1,123,893 from political action committees. They had spent $2,878,517, had $1,965,533 on hand and listed debts of $1,848,385.

Twenty-one Republicans had raised $1,308,888, with $207,810 from political action committees. They had spent $977,644, had $1,207,095 in cash and were $250,469 in debt.

19th District
Gary Condra, D, contributions $10,667, spending $24,418, cash $2,895, debt $16,638; Delvin Jones, D, contributions $6,164, spending $40,443, cash $5,273, debt $33,580; Thomas Richards, D, contributions $45,939, spending $127,785, cash $12,761, debt $82,600; John Selby, D, contributions $92,578, spending $38,794, cash $41,634, debt $5,569; Larry Combest, R, contributions $49,817, spending $53,294, cash $6,522, debt $10,187; Ron Fleming, R, contributions $23,771, spending $36,068, cash $5,153, debt $15,000.

12th District
Jack Hightower, D-I, contributions $118,172, spending $60,911, cash $76,525, no debt; Beau Boulter, R, contributions $47,320, spending $34,223, cash $14,096, debt $2,104.

Fuqua Industries held annual meeting recently

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Fuqua Industries, which earned more than $40 million last year, held its annual meeting last Saturday morning, April 28, in Atlanta. It was over in less than five minutes.

That's the way J.B. Fuqua works: Quickly and efficiently, and with a no-nonsense impatience with anything he believes does not enhance the fortunes of his company and its shareholders.

Why waste time on a ritual of little significance? "It's a facade. It doesn't serve any purpose. It isn't democratic," said J.B., who built the company into a diversified giant in less than 20 years.

A decade ago J.B. tried to do without an annual meeting, arguing that if it were to be a true representation of shareholders there wouldn't be enough trains, planes and Atlanta hotel rooms for them.

The New York Stock Exchange disagreed, so J.B. has held them ever since, though he says "the serious investor seldom shows up." And with good reason, he adds. "Management is forbidden to put out information unavailable to the general public, so they know that nothing (new) will be heard."

J.B. Fuqua, 65, remains an entrepreneur, his instincts honed to important matters by his experiences in a long string of private companies he developed after leaving the family's Virginia farm.

By the time he developed Fuqua Industries as a public corporation in 1965 his financial and mental independence were well established. He proved his innovative ideas time after time. He continues to do so.

By 1979 it had sales of $2 billion, a year when, said J.B., "I began to think about the '80s and I decided that if I believed in stockholder equity I had better get at it." He sold off much of it.

Monuments to himself meant nothing, he said. Stockholder equity meant everything.

Last year Fuqua Industries, four groups — photofinishing, lawn and garden equipment, sporting goods, seat manufacturing — was down to sales of $732.4 million. Net income, however, had risen 113 percent over the previous year, per share earnings 83 percent, stockholders' equity 80 percent and stock price 73 percent.

"We do not confuse size with strength," J.B. wrote in the report.

Some people mistake Fuqua's independent judgments as arrogance, but that notion tends to be dispelled by his repeated remarks that "I've been very fortunate," and even, "I say that in great humility."

His listing as one of the highest paid executives in America, with a 1983 income from Fuqua Industries of $1.5 million, didn't tell the whole story, he said.

"Under the contract I earned $2.1 million. I gave up $600,000 because I decided it looked better if I didn't take more than that out of the company."

His basic salary, he said, was $500,000, with a bonus tied to return on shareholder equity or stock price.

Officials say deaths, arrests are up

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Illegal aliens are increasingly depending on smugglers to reach their Texas destination, and officials say that as a result, more are arrested and more are killed on the rugged border terrain.

Authorities say at least 11 aliens, who each paid smugglers or "coyotes" a down payment on about $500 or $600 to be brought into the United States, have been killed in South Texas in the last three months.

Two Mexicans were killed Wednesday night when a Border Patrol agent chasing a car hit the vehicle from the rear. The two who died were in a group of 16 in an automobile, one of two vehicles involved in the fatal chase. The incident occurred on a dirt road 15 miles east of Hebbronville.

The two killed were riding in the trunk of a Chevrolet sedan. Three others were injured, including Border Patrol agent Robert Handy, who was in satisfactory condition at Hebbronville's Brooks County Hospital.

The two injured aliens remained hospitalized in critical condition at Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi.

Reagan faces protests on Irish visit

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

GALWAY, Ireland (AP) — President Ronald Reagan, his trip to China behind him, faces a barrage of protests over his nuclear and Central American policies when he visits Ireland in June.

The protest campaign, led by an alliance of Roman Catholic church groups and left-wing organizations, threatens to cast a shadow over his pilgrimage to the Tipperary village where his ancestors lived and died.

The protesters have already included such prominent Irishmen as Sean McBride, 80-year-old winner of the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize, and Conor Cruise O'Brien, former U.N. envoy in the Congo during the 1961 crisis.

Legislators, senators, academics and churchmen have also joined the anti-Reagan chorus. Deputy Premier Dick Spring, leader of the Labor Party, says he will petition Reagan to halt aid to right-wing regimes in Central America.

McBride, a former assistant secretary-general of the United Nations, urged the Irish to oppose Reagan's June 1-4 visit because, he said, the administration's foreign policy is based on the use or threat of force.

As the protests build, it appears that Reagan's election-year trip to the Emerald Isle won't be a rerun of John F. Kennedy's triumphant, trouble-free visit in 1963.

Many of the groups opposed to the president's visit to the non-aligned republic have joined to form a Ronald Reagan Reception Committee, which will coordinate the protests.

Spokeswoman Marnie Holborrow told The Associated Press: "We plan to harass him wherever he sets foot in Ireland. There's a groundswell of opposition to Reagan and we hope we can tap it."

The small Marxist Workers' Party called for "massive peaceful and orderly demonstrations" against the visit despite a warning from the government's chief whip, Sean Barrett, that protests could deter vital U.S. investments.

Irish newspapers daily carry letters protesting the visit. One man, Patrick

Digan of Athlone commented:

"The killings in Central America are being done with Reagan's bullets and guns; the assassins are paid in American dollars.

"Reagan is coming here looking for the Irish vote. Why should we welcome him. I'm 83 years old and too feeble to appear in public events any more. Otherwise I'd be among the first to march in protest against this visit."

U.S. House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill said during a visit to Ireland last week he would be "embarrassed and ashamed" if Reagan wasn't warmly welcomed.

He said he understood the strong feelings here about U.S. policies, "but nothing must be done to endanger the president, the leader of the greatest democracy the world has ever known."

Reagan is scheduled to land at Shannon airport June 1, stay at the Ashford Castle hotel owned by Irish millionaire John Mulcahy, and visit Galway June 3.

Later that day he will spend nearly two hours in Ballyporeen, the farming village from where his great-grandfather, Michael O'Regan, emigrated to flee Ireland's great potato famine in 1858.

Reagan will visit Dublin, where he will address both houses of the Oireachtas, or Parliament, June 4 before flying to London for an economic summit June 7.

The protests by the normally easygoing Irish are likely to prove an embarrassment to Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald. He seeks Reagan's support for his initiative to end 15 years of sectarian violence in British-ruled Northern Ireland and unite it with the Irish republic.

When FitzGerald visited Washington in March, he received a warm welcome and Reagan lavishly praised his peace efforts.

"Reagan's welcome in Ireland will probably fall somewhere between the ecstatic reception Kennedy was given in 1963 and the demonstrations that greeted Richard Nixon in 1970," said a government official who declined to be identified. Nixon came to Ireland during the Vietnam War.

Reagan's Central America policy and support for President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines have come under increasing attack from the Roman Catholic Church here.

"We are against American intervention in these areas and the bolstering of regimes which do not acknowledge human rights," said Bishop Eamon Casey of Galway.

Much of the church's opposition to U.S. policy is based on reports from hundreds of Irish missionaries who work among Central America's poor and are critical of the Washington-backed regimes.

Conor Cruise O'Brien, former senator and Post and Telegraphs minister, wrote in his weekly column in The Irish Times that by welcoming Reagan, "we shall be helping to ensure that Central America gets more of the same."

Much of the protest centers on Galway on Ireland's rugged Atlantic coast. Kennedy was mobbed by cheering supporters when he visited Galway and was made a Freeman—a Medieval honor—when he visited the 500-year-old city June 29, 1963.

Irish Times political columnist Dick Walsh observed: "Ronald Reagan's visit to the home of his ancestors raises as many questions about how we see ourselves as it does about our view of his foreign policy...

"If we are to claim the rights of a modern independent state, dedicated to peace and civil liberties, we must also have the courage to ensure that friendly as well as hostile governments know where we stand. They might not like it; they cannot dismiss our authority to pursue our own policies."

South of the Border

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Air pollution in the Mexico City area increased by 200 percent in the last decade, due largely to rapid industrialization and the tremendous influx of automobiles, a university study says.

"The government has to apply specific projects and strengthen existing ones to limit industrialization, have a balanced planning of new construction and to rehabilitate and create green areas," said researcher Christian Marsomme of the Metropolitan Autonomous University at Atzacapotzalco.

The study, by the Autonomous University and the National University of Mexico, says Mexico City now has more air and ground pollution than New York and Los Angeles.

"An ecological balance is not going to spring forth by planting one million little trees which will die within two years from the city's air," said Marsomme, referring to recent government efforts to start a "green campaign."

The study figures there is one tree for every five city blocks in the urban areas.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United Nations and Turner Broadcasting System are collaborating on a documentary film about Mexico, to be shown here at the U.N. International Conference on Population.

The film, about Mexico's population, resources and environment, will be shown at the conference Aug. 6 and later televised in the U.S. and Mexico, film makers told the daily English language newspaper The News.

"We are trying to show the reality of Mexico," said cameraman Rafael Ortiz Guzman.

"We want to show the several sides of Mexico that most people are unaware of," he said. "When most people think of Mexico, they think of debt and the country drowning."

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (AP) — U.S. truckers who hope to transport their loads into Mexico have been told the government has no plans to change its policy, which says all freight hauling will be done by Mexican citizens, a trucking official said in this Sonora state capital.

Hector Arvizu, Federal Truck Freight national director, said "the spirit" of Mexico's transport laws considers truck freight a strategic national service, which eliminates the possibility of admitting foreign operations in the field.

On bribery charges

Judge refuses to dismiss indictment

AUSTIN (AP) — State District Judge Mace B. Thurman has refused to dismiss commercial bribery charges against Attorney General Jim Mattox but says he will consider the matter again May 11.

Six defense motions to quash the indictment were denied by Thurman on Thursday, leaving nine similar motions still under consideration.

Defense attorneys said they want to offer additional legal arguments in written form before Thurman rules.

"We hope by the time more legal briefs are submitted the judge will grant some of the other motions," Mattox said afterwards.

"If we don't win this in the trial courts we will appeal to appellate courts and win there," Mattox said.

Roy Minton, Mattox's main attorney, said that if all 15 motions to quash the indictment are denied by Thurman, he will try to have an appellate court rule on the indictment.

Mattox was accused last September by a Travis County grand jury with committing commercial bribery, a felony, by threatening to block state-required approval of public bonds submitted by the Houston law firm of Fulbright & Jaworski.

The indictment alleges the threat was made to a member of the firm, Wiley Caldwell, in an attempt to keep the firm from trying to question Mattox's sister, Janice, a Dallas attorney, in a lawsuit involving the state and Mobil Oil Corp.

He was re-indicted twice because state's attorneys said they found inadequacies in the earlier charges.

No trial date has been set.

Thurman denied motions Thursday to void the latest indictment on grounds the state failed to allege any benefit Mattox would gain by such a threat, failed to say exactly when Mattox made the threat by telephone, failed to show that Mattox's actions were illegal, and was an "un-constitutional application" of state law.

"This indictment is a tortured construction of facts," Minton argued. "This section usually is used in kickback schemes involving sales or services. It has never been used as it is used here."

Phil Nelson of the Travis County district attorney's office said much of the indictment was based on law used in the successful bribery prosecution against Houston state district judge Garth Bates.

"There is a difference between offering a bribe and a little gentle persuasion by the attorney general," Minton said.

Defense motions still to be ruled on, after both sides submit briefs, include claims the state law is "so broad, and so vague as to be unconstitutional" and the indictment is vague and ambiguous.

Another motion to quash says Mattox was improperly charged under a state law of general application. That motion states Mattox should have been instead indicted under a law especially applying to misconduct of public officials, which is only a misdemeanor.

After the court session, Mattox said there was no official misconduct and that he would make no effort for a plea bargain under which the charge would be changed from a felony to a misdemeanor.

GALLE GLASS

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Emile Galle was born in France in 1846 and spent most of the 58 years of his life creating works of art in glass.

A selection of Galle's transformations of nature into glass will be seen at the special exhibition "Emile Galle: Dreams Into Glass," at the Corning Museum of Glass April 28-Oct. 21.

The museum says the 40 works in the show "represent Galle's outstanding achievements as a symbolist artist in glass." Nearly all of the objects in the show were made during Galle's last 15 years.

364-4638 Veteran's Memorial Park

Larrymore Studios originated the Buck and Wing letters as a form of advertising many years ago. In reality Buck and Wing is a style of tap dancing.

Dear Wing,

What do you have planned for the summer? I'm gonna get with it in my karate. With the big tournament coming up here in Hereford June 23, it will take care of my plans until the tournament is over. I plan to compete in sparing and katas. Hope I win a big trophy.

I've about decided to take some tap dancing to improve my foot work. Mr. L. says he has taught boxers, and athletes of all types. Why don't we get in the class he plans for men & women - that would be fun - sure would beat jogging out in those nats, flies, & mosquitos - that's for the birds.

There is no doubt that adults can learn tap dancing - proof is on this year's program.

Your Lover Boy,
Buck

Dear Buck,

What a good idea - taking tap dancing for exercise and fun. I still plan to continue my exercise workouts - they are so inexpensive it would be folly to stop and get out of shape.

I saw some of the cutest little girls visiting a class in the Larrymore Studio. They will start in the summer class. I'm so happy that the studio will be open all summer - teaching tap, jazz, ballet, and acrobatic dancing to all ages. Ballroom cotillions will be organized throughout the summer.

In the Larrymore Studio the students really learn to dance.

Keep Smiling,
Wing

THE BIRDS GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)
- A sharp drop in the number of birds roosting under Connecticut's Manus River Bridge may have been an early warning of the structure's collapse, according to the Audubon Society.
The bridge collapsed in early 1983. The Audubon Society, which records annual Christmas bird counts, says that as many as 120,000 starlings roosted under the bridge through 1978. However, it says the number fell to 12,000 in 1979 and only six in 1980.
The Society suggests that an increase in vibrations from the structure may have prompted the birds to leave.

One of the most precious rights inherent in our God-given heritage of freedom is the election of our officers whose job it will be to guide our destinies for another prescribed period of our history; taking into account our social and economic problems within as well as the turbulent world developments without. We must decide the entire direction in which we will move, and this requires a great deal of study, reflection and the willingness to listen impartially to both sides, to inform ourselves of the issues involved & to divest ourselves of all prejudice and preconceived ideas. Your attendance at the Church of your choice can be of great help at this crucial moment of decision; giving you the wisdom, patience and impartiality that are so essential for the task.

"The Lord...shall bless thee in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."
— Deuteronomy 28:8

O Lord! that lends me life,

Lend me a heart

replete with thankfulness!
