

Tax reform provision would cost county

O.G. NIEMAN

The House version of the tax reform bill has a new reporting requirement that could cost the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District an additional $20,000 to $25,000 the first year, it was reported this week by Fred Fox, chief appraiser.

Fox said a last-minute provision inserted into HR-3836 requires state and local governments to file 1099 forms for payments of real and personal property taxes "on a taxpayer-by-taxpayer basis." The Senate is now working on the bill. If the new provision was approved and signed into law, the first return to individuals would be required at the end of Jan. 1, 1988, and to the IRS by the end of February 1988.

Even after the first year, such a rule would add an estimated $12,000 to $15,000 to appraisal office expenses, claims Fox. He said the postage alone on such reporting would amount to $6,000 a year, and this does not include the cost of sending the volumes of statements to the IRS.

"Can you imagine how many boxes it would take for Houston and Harris County to send the forms to the IRS?" asked Fox. He said Harris County has 380 taxing entities, where the local office has only five.

Fox said the additional expense would include the forms, envelopes, labor, postage and entering the program into computers. He said the rule is aimed at improving taxpayer compliance, but he thought the cost and burden of paperwork across the nation would negate any additional revenue picked up from taxpayers who may not be complying.

Through reporting requirement

Recent changes in the tax laws had already increased the requirements for filing forms 1099 for individuals and businesses. There are several different types of 1099 forms, and they are intended to provide the Internal Revenue Service with a means to determine that recipients of certain payments are reporting these payments on their tax returns. Reportable payments include interest, dividends, rents and payments made by trades or businesses for services.

A form 1099 is required to be filed for recipients of interest, dividends and patronage dividends, if the total amount received in a calendar year by the recipient exceeds $10. A form 1099 is required for all other reportable payments only if the total amount received in a calendar year exceeds $600.

Fox said the new provision which includes state and local governments under the 1099 filing regulation recently came to light when the House version of the tax reform bill

Beef, beans, cobbler on chili supper menu

One hundred pounds of beans, over 500 pounds of beef, and a variety of entertainment are in the recipe for the Chuck Wagon Chili Supper scheduled for Saturday.

Tickets for the family event are on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office and the Deaf Smith General Hospital gift shop at $4 for adults and $2 for children under $2. Betty Volkman, Mary Hendrickson, Nancy George, and Donna Hendrickson are in charge of ticket sales and Gladys Cavness is keeping the books.

Grant Hanna's chili committee was rounding up pots and pans today in order to have the meal ready to serve by 5 p.m. Saturday and some of the entertainment slated was practicing at the Bull Barn. Cobbler coordinators Leona Sowell and Patty Hill have organized volunteer bakers so that the desserts will be in the Bull Barn kitchen by 4:30 p.m. Saturday. Serving will continue until 7 p.m. and the non-stop entertainment will stretch until 8 p.m. with a "Six Flags" theme.

Peaches Reinauer's committee from the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, Inez Witherspoon and Audine Dettman have planned table decorations and the Pilot Club will be selling the items.

Official Sesquicentennial souvenirs will be sold at a table manned by county museum patrons Juanita Phillips, Edwina Thomas, Judy Detten and Johnnie Turrentine.

A large food committee has prepared the menu. The Mexican American Chamber of Commerce has drafted Rinaldo and Jo Garcia to cook the beans and a committee of Mary Zinser, Jane Gulley, Marie Goheen and Clara Trowbridge are gathering cornbread, crackers and tortillas.

Keywanettes will wait tables and the Lions Club and Key Club will comprise the cleanup crew. Scott Turner and Jim Ward of the Whiteface Kiwanis are to run the kitchen.

Ruth Knox has coordinated all the entertainment and scheduled Eddie Derr to be master of ceremonies.

The entertainment schedule includes:

5 p.m. - The Hereford Bluegrass Band, led by Jack Nunley, will play about nine numbers.

5:30 p.m. - The Sagebrush Four consisting of Phil Collard, Diana Gerk, Kim Moore, and John Sublett, will perform and also direct a singalong.

8:40 p.m. - St. Joseph Singers, directed by Raul Guerrero, will perform.

6 p.m. - The Sagebrush Four returns to the stage.

6:10 p.m. - Bluegrass music again.

6:30 p.m. - More of the Sagebrush Four.

6:45 p.m. - Historical skits concerning "Six Flags Over Texas" will begin with Troop 282 of the Scout Brownies depicting the first Indians.

7 p.m. - Fr. Pat Walsh of St. Anthony's will narrate a piece on Texas' Spanish influence.

7:10 - Camp Fire will present the French portion of the history, narrated by Dempsey Alexander.

7:20 p.m. - Sister Caroline will present the Mexican portion.

7:30 p.m. - Bob Wear will use songs to depict the Republic of Texas.

7:50 p.m. - Ron Cook's program will concern Texas in the USA.

8 p.m. - Charles Threewit will consider Texas' next 150 years.

Argen Draper and Garth Thomas, chairmen of the Deaf Smith County Sesquicentennial Committee, have spearheaded the chili supper.

Chili Chiefs

Grant Hanna and Hawk Kreig are causing a stir in the kitchen. The stir is chili. Hanna's secret recipe for Saturday's Chuck Wagon Chili Supper includes over 500 pounds of cooked beef for the megameal which will kickoff the county's Texas Sesquicentennial celebration. Serving will be 5-7 p.m. Saturday in the Bull Barn. Adults may eat for $4 and children will be served for $2. Advance tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce office and the Deaf Smith General Hospital gift shop. Volunteers have cooked cobbler and cornbread made from meal and flour donated by Arrowhead Mills.

Brand sponsoring Sesquicentennial essay contest

As an observance of the Sesquicentennial Celebration of the establishment of the Republic of Texas, The Hereford Brand is sponsoring an essay contest for the third through the twelfth grade students in the Hereford and Walcott schools. This will involve each of the nine campuses of the Hereford Independent School District, Community School, St. Anthony's School and Walcott School.

The contest, which asks students to tell in 200 words or less "What Being A Texan Means To Me," has been sanctioned by the Deaf Smith County Sesquicentennial Committee.

The contest has five entry levels, with winners to be chosen from each category from third and fourth grades, fifth and sixth grades, seventh and eighth grades, ninth and tenth grades and eleventh and twelfth grades.

First place essays from each category will be published in The Hereford Brand. First and second place winners will receive Sesquicentennial souvenirs and all entrants will receive certificates.

Individual entry forms will appear in The Hereford Brand and are to be attached to the cover sheet of each essay.

Sports, beauties featured on March C of C calendar

Committee plans for the Super Sports Weekends, a candidates' forum and the Miss Hereford Pageant were discussed when Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce directors held a regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon.

The Super Sports Weekends gets underway Saturday with the C of C

Tennis Tourney. A girls' track meet is scheduled for March 8, and a boys' track meet follows on March 15. James Self is chairman of the sports committee, which hosts the events in cooperation with Hereford High School.

Mike Carr, executive vice president, also reported the legislative committee, headed by Jeryl Baker, is planning a public forum for candidates prior to the May primary. Lanette Leasure, president of the Women's Division, reported plans were being completed for the annual Miss Hereford Pageant March 8.

Bill Harris, president, reported the chamber will host an informational trip to Carlsbad March 20-21 to visit the Waste Isolation Pilot Project site. The C of C will invite 20 people, board members and community leaders, to make the trip. The Battelle Corporation will reimburse the chamber for trip expenses, it was reported by Carr.

In other business, Carr reported that Valley View Energy officials had visited here recently and are making plans to start construction on the 197 million generating plant east of the city. "We may see some activity on the site within a few weeks," said Carr.

The chamber manager said the company is expected to make some public announcements on the project in the next few weeks. The plant, which will use manure to fire boilers to generate electricity, is expected to employ about 300 to 400 people during an 18-month construction period. Carr said the chamber is contacting local companies which could possibly provide goods or services for the project.

Carr told the board members that the chamber office had received 27 inquiries in recent weeks from families planning to move to Hereford. He said some of them are associated with two new supermarkets here and some will be on the Valley View construction project, "but we were not given specifics in all inquiries."

Attending the board meeting were Harris, Carr, Mrs. Leasure, James Arney, Lajean Henry, Fred Rivera, Terry Bromlow, John Hays, Allen Parson, Doug Manning and Rex Easterwood.

Opposition leader credits Reagan

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - An ex-senator who led U.S.-based opposition to Ferdinand E. Marcos returned home today from 14 years in exile and credited President Reagan with the "final touch" that toppled the Philippine ruler.

But former Sen. Raul Manglapus said that despite his gratitude for the U.S. role in ending Marcos' 20-year reign and bringing Corason Aquino to power, he found it "lamentable that it took such a long time for them to do it."

Later, Mrs. Aquino and Manglapus hugged as he visited her at her headquarters. Manglapus handed her a box of yellow chrysanthemums, and Mrs. Aquino said, "I'm so glad to welcome you back."

Mrs. Aquino's government, now 3 days old, continued to free political prisoners jailed under Marcos and to take control of government offices.

Government business still was being run from a private building owned by Mrs. Aquino's family.

A spokeswoman for Task Force Detainees, a private human rights group, said 16 prisoners had been released from military detention by this morning, including 10 in Manila and three in both Iloilo and Davao.

The government, which ordered 39 prisoners set free on Thursday, said hundreds would probably be released by next week. Officials say the process has been slowed by medical clearances, and because releases must be approved by several people in different locations.

Officials have said more than 500 people were being detained on politically related charges when Marcos fled the country.

Scores of people greeted Manglapus as he landed at Manila International Airport. The former president of the U.S.-based Movement for Free Philippines left his Asian island nation the day before Marcos decreed martial law in 1972 and had led anti-Marcos forces in the United States.

Marcos had accused Manglapus, a former foreign secretary and constitutional law professor, of subversion and of allegedly giving long-distance support to terrorists.

"It was the people of the Philippines, people power, that pushed the dictatorship to the brink," said

Manglapus, referring to the anti-Marcos military and civilian rebellion. "But it was the final Reagan touch that pushed him over."

Reagan, who originally said both Marcos' and Mrs. Aquino's supporters might have cheated in the fraud-marred Feb. 7 election, later blamed the irregularities on pro-Marcos forces.

On Monday, the White House urged Marcos to relinquish power, saying it would be "futile" to try to retain power by violence.

Caucus slated Monday

AUSTIN (AP) - In an unusual move, the Texas Senate will caucus Monday to consider the state's financial problems and to set an example of austerity by cutting its own budget, Senate leaders said.

In letters to the state's 31 senators released Thursday, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Sen. Chet Brooks sought suggestions for dealing with a budget shortfall that Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated at $1.3 billion.

Brooks, D-Pasadena and the dean of the Senate, called the informal caucus to consider an updated fiscal report by the comptroller's office.

By law, the Senate cannot convene formally unless the Legislature is summoned into a special session by the governor. Under longstanding rules and customs, the upper chamber has convened as a caucus, although usually only at the start and end of regular sessions.

Gov. Mark White, who is seeking his second term, has refused to call a special session to address the anticipated budget shortfall, which state revenue experts blame on slumping oil and gas prices and subsequent loss of related state taxes.

"I believe the Senate would appreciate your ideas and suggestions concerning ways to deal with the budget problems," Brooks wrote his colleagues.

He said the caucus move "shows what sort of crisis we have."

"We've done this before, but very rarely," Brooks said.

Brooks said the senators plan to caucus privately at first to discuss personal matters, then meet publicly to discuss the fiscal crunch.

"None of us want to have a special session," Brooks said.

Gas hose starts blaze

The Hereford Fire Department responded to a house fire at 315 Ave. E Thursday. Apparently the occupants were using a rubber hose as a gas line. The hose slipped off the connection and set the bedroom on fire. Damage was limited to a bedroom.

Firefighters also responded to a grass fire northwest of Hereford. There was no damage done in the blaze.

Up With People slated

Up With People, the organization which performed in the Orange Bowl halftime, is to perform in Hereford on March 23, at 3 p.m. in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Volunteers will be needed to house approximately 100 of the young people. Persons interested in keeping a pair of the performers may call the Chamber of Commerce for details.

Reaction on Gerber jars overstated

DALLAS (AP) — Grocers who remove Gerber baby food from shelves following discoveries of glass particles in the jars are overreacting, a federal official says.

"I think the level of concern is unusual, particularly with the little bitty particles," said Don Heaton, regional director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. "Nobody is going to advocate it, but it's not unusual to find particles in a jar."

The FDA's office is investigating possible contamination after 50 glass particles were found in a jar of Gerber strained peas from a jar to 4-month-old Preston Davis of Dallas.

After the boy began vomiting and spitting blood two hours after eating the peas, his mother called paramedics, who discovered the glass.

A 9-month-old girl was treated at a hospital Wednesday for minor throat cuts after eating Gerber's strained bananas with tapioca.

Tom Thumb stores pulled strained peas and beef dinner off the shelves at 58 stores in Dallas, Fort Worth and East Texas and officials at 60 Kroger stores in Dallas, Fort Worth and Shreveport removed all Gerber products until FDA tests are completed.

"We took it all out because of the confusion about the product," said Byron Crain, Kroger's director of merchandising. "We don't know what the situation is ... It's the most confusing thing I've ever seen in the last 10 years."

Heaton said the FDA has received three other complaints from consumers in Dallas. Test results are not yet known, he said.

Doctors who treated the Davis child said they found no evidence of cuts or other damage caused by eating the contaminated food.

According to the FDA, tests conducted on the strained peas mixture showed about 50 pieces of glass from 1 to 5 millimeters long — about one-sixteenth inch to one-fifth inch.

Shultz urges Contra guerilla support

WASHINGTON (AP) — A table-thumping George P. Shultz warned Congress that if it fails to approve President Reagan's request for $100 million in aid for Nicaragua's Contra guerrillas, "the situation will fall apart in a hurry."

"We should help them, and we should help them in all ways to make them effective," the secretary of state told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Thursday.

His testimony marked the start of what the administration acknowledges will be an uphill battle to win congressional approval for $30 million in economic aid and $70 million for other — likely military — assistance over two years. The House last year voted down military aid but approved $27 million in economic assistance.

House leaders predict they can block it again.

If Congress "turns us down," Shultz said, "it will be difficult for them to keep going. Obviously we will try to help them keep going in any way we are permitted to."

Shultz appeared tense throughout the 3½-hour session as he faced frequently hostile questioning from senators who said the five-year Contra effort had been a failure and wanted to know what the administration would do if the $100 million didn't work.

Shultz pounded the table angrily when Sen. Dan Evans, R-Wash., joked that suspending aid might strengthen the Contra ranks — citing a State Department chart showing that rebel strength was highest while Congress forced the administration to slow down and eventually halt aid for several months in 1984.

JAMA declares war on tobacco

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds had it, and the rumor mongers surmised it was something worse. Olympic skier Tracy Nelson may have gotten it from bumpy trips downhill. And some musicians may get it from playing the clarinet.

It's called temporomandibular joint syndrome — TMJ for short — and is believed to afflict 10 million Americans, many of whom have learned to accept headaches and pain in their jaws because doctors and dentists have had trouble understanding and diagnosing the disorder.

"It's embarrassing for them (doctors and dentists) not to know what is causing a problem and what you don't understand you tend to sweep under the rug," said Dr. Richard W. Katzberg, a radiologist at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Using a magnetic resonance imager, the latest breakthrough in medical scanning devices, and a copper coil attachment that acts as a magnifier, Katzberg has developed a diagnosis technique he believes will solve the mystery of TMJ once and for all.

For many Americans, who can only open their mouths half way or who hear a clicking sound when they move their jaws or who get persistent headaches, the new technique may eventually mean relief.

Katzberg's method is detailed in the January issue of Radiology, the journal of the Radiological Society of North America.

Radiologist pioneering diagnosis

CHICAGO (AP) — The cover illustration is a grim Van Gogh painting of a skeleton smoking a cigarette, and the contents of today's Journal of the American Medical Association's special anti-smoking issue are just as graphic.

Articles in the journal's third anti-tobacco issue in 18 months call for a ban on advertising of all tobacco products; say smokeless tobacco users risk oral cancer; cite a higher survival rate for heart patients who quit smoking; and contend a higher cigarette tax would encourage millions to stop smoking.

"It is obvious that up to this point we have all failed dismally in trying to defeat tobacco," one editorial said.

"What other conclusion could one possibly reach when one looks at the 1,000 tobacco-associated deaths each day in our country alone?" it said.

"The use of (tobacco products) we regard as the greatest current public health problem of our society."

Riots are latest in Mubarak setbacks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Riots that erupted this week in Cairo marked the latest in a series of blows to the prestige of President Hosni Mubarak, one of the most pro-Western leaders in the volatile Arab world.

American diplomats in Cairo praise Mubarak for keeping Egypt on the pro-Western course set by his late predecessor Anwar Sadat, for maintaining relations with Israel, and for cooling sectarian tensions which marked the final days of Sadat's rule.

Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres described the Egyptian leader as "the guarantee for continuation of the peace strategy in the Middle East."

But among many of his 48 million people, Mubarak still suffers from an image of indecision, lacking the personal magnetism of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser, or the flair and showmanship of Sadat.

Career changes needed

LUBBOCK — The U.S. will continue to fall behind other nations in technology unless something is done to curb the shortage of Americans choosing careers as researchers and educators in the sciences.

Texas Tech University Mathematics Department Chairperson John T. White is concerned about the continually declining number of Americans choosing to pursue graduate education in mathematics, physics, chemistry and engineering.

The situation, he said, is putting America further and further behind in the high technology race and hampering education of future scientists.

"Americans are not meeting the country's need for scientists—both in industry and in education," White said. America is already behind in high technology. To measure that, all you have to do is look at where the new innovations are coming from in electronics and automobiles."

Since 1973, doctoral degrees awarded in mathematics in the United States have dropped from 1,042 to 750 in 1985. The 1973 degrees were awarded to 78 percent Americans while in 1985 only 55 percent of math doctorates were awarded to Americans.

Of foreigners who earn doctorates in the sciences, about half return to their home countries, White said.

The figures are similar or worse for chemistry, physics and engineering.

White believes the problem began in the late 1960s when the federal government began withdrawing support for scientific research — after about 10 years of heavy support in response to Russia's launch of Sputnik.

"Several years ago it was difficult to get a job with a doctorate in mathematics or physics," Dr. White said. "The word gets out and people don't choose degrees in those areas. The cycle is in motion even though there is a shortage of scientists now."

In research, particularly government research, the number of foreigners in science is putting America at a disadvantage. Many research projects require security clearance which is difficult to obtain for foreigners. Often the result is that the best scientists are overlooked because they can't get approved.

At the university level, the problem is salaries.

"A person with a bachelor's degree in mathematics, engineering, physics or chemistry can make more in industry than someone with a doctorate can make in academics," White said. "Salaries are out of line across the country. Right now, a beginning professor must be hired at more money than one who has taught for several years because of the shortage of people available for the jobs."

As the percentage of foreigners working on advanced degrees increases, there is a corresponding increase in the number of foreign students being used to teach undergraduate mathematics and science courses.

"Large state universities are getting lots of complaints from students saying they can't understand their instructors. It's going to get much worse," White said. "Currently most of the faculty at U.S. institutions are Americans, but that's going to change because Americans aren't getting degrees so they can fill the positions."

"We've got to go after the talent. At the same time, universities aren't insensitive to complaints from students and parents. The instructor must be able to communicate."

To address the problem, Texas Tech and a number of other universities have initiated programs to help foreign teaching assistants communicate better. The Texas Tech program involves intensive English as well as education in how to conduct a class and American culture. Assistants must be proficient in communication before they are allowed to teach.

However, the problem of inadequate science education begins long before students get to college. Public schools are experiencing their own shortage of teachers in mathematics and science. As a result, many youngsters are poorly educated from the start because unqualified teachers are filling the void.

"When people have a bad learning experience, they get turned off. They get left behind and the next class is twice as hard," he said. "Usually it's because the teacher is not comfortable with the subject. Many people are scientifically illiterate because of bad experiences."

Individuals who, as young children, have had experiences in mathematics and science and come to think they cannot understand the subjects are generally not going to pursue the fields, White said.

"I don't know what the answers are, but there is a severe problem and I'm not sure the American public is aware of it. The bottom line is that if we want mathematicians and scientists, we're going to have to provide some financial incentives.

"Our country has a history of rewarding management—in industry, government and academics. You can be the best mathematician, engineer or scientist and, as a rule, you aren't going to make much money unless you take on management responsibilities."

White predicts the end result of America's decline in science and technology will be a lower standard of living.

was passed.

Fox is contacting U.S. representatives and senators to complain about the new reporting provision, and he hopes citizens will join the protest since it will affect their taxes. He is hopeful the Senate version of the bill will omit such a rule.

Seminary enrollment up

NEW YORK (AP) — Enrollment in the nation's Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox seminaries has edged downward slightly for the first time in more than a decade but the count of women still is rising.

Of the overall drop, the Association of Theological Schools said "the broad American cultural influence...has been less than supportive of those opting to prepared for ordained ministry."

But the ranks of women studying theology kept growing anyhow.

They now make up 25.8 percent of the 56,377 ministerial students in this country and Canada, compared to only 10.2 percent in 1972. However, their increase slowed a bit this term.

While their numbers increased to 14,572, up 430 or 3 percent, that compares to a 5.1 percent increase the year before, and even bigger gains before that, particularly booming through the 1970's.

Nevertheless, their continuing steady growth was termed "especially significant in the light of the overall decline in enrollment," says the Rev. William Baumgaertner of Vandalia, Ohio, associate director of the association.

He adds:

"The presence of women on the theological academic scene as well as in church ministry is continuing to grow in significance, despite the limitations on ordination in several denominations."

Enrollment of blacks, Hispanics and Pacific-Asian Americans also was up substantially.

However, the report of trends in enrollment in 196 U.S. and Canadian seminaries said the total was down — overall by only a tiny fraction of a percent due to gains in Canada, but down a full percent in the United States.

It was the first time the overall count had dropped since start of the gathering of the data in 1969. While the total in Canada rose 6.9 percent to 3,583, it fell in this country from 53,114 to 52,794.

While noting that demographic factors have predicted gradually diminishing enrollments for higher education, but report suggests that modern cultural influences also have discouraged ministerial careers.

In that situation, a growing proportion of theology students are older persons, sometimes called "delayed vocations," starting ministerial training after already being in other fields.

The report says:

"Theological schools across the country are experiencing a steady increase in the number of candidates who are starting theological studies at a more advanced age when the responsibilities of family or of employment will not permit full-time involvement in study."

Many of them already have become involved in "some form of ministerial service" and want to improve their educational credentials for it, the report says, adding:

"Schools have not been able to increase financial aid rapidly enough to meet these new needs... especially since graduate-level education calls for a high level of freedom for reflection and research."

Enrollment of black seminarians increased 4.4 percent, bounding back to a significant gain after sagging growth last year, the 3,046 of them now making up 5.4 percent of theological students.

Hispanic students increased even more, by a sizeable 10.6 percent to a total of 1,454, making up 2.6 percent of theology students.

Pacific-Asian American students increased 5.8 percent to a total of 1,195, and now are 2.1 percent of the total.

Millions find ways to attain dream house

Rupert and Gillian Ingram owned a rambling, 90-year-old farmhouse near the Massachusetts coast and loved its spaciousness, its white pine floors and its pervasive smell of woodsmoke and apples.

But their fuel bills were enormous, and upkeep was a headache. When their two girls grew up and moved out, the Ingrams, then in their 50s, decided they needed a house that better suited their needs.

They built their new home at the edge of a salt marsh, and they built it underground. Nestled into a hillside, it has 16 inches of sod on the roof.

But this is no rabbit hole. The rooms, though small, are open and airy, and the south wall is faced in glass. The waving marsh grass stretches for miles, and the majestic view gives the feeling of space the Ingrams craved.

The underground home has another benefit. In their farmhouse, their annual gas bill could reach $1,700. In their earth-sheltered, sun-warmed house near Newbury, Mass., the bill is zero.

What the Ingrams did, moving from the old homestead to a smaller, more easily managed home — is a housing trend of the 1980s as costs increase and the population ages.

But other shifts in American society are changing the American home as well. Only 4 percent of U.S. families now match the traditional nuclear pattern of working father, non-working mother and two kids. Single adults are pooling their resources to buy houses together rather than be confined forever to apartments.

More families have two wage earners, and some of them work at home. Growing numbers of baby boomers, already settled into comfortable surroundings, are now starting families and looking for ways to stretch their space.

Police respond to theft, assault

City police made arrests for fleeing and traffic violations Thursday, heard a beer theft report from a convenience store, and an assault case.

The theft of a pit bulldog and of tires also was reported.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We (the Jacksons) are really tired of the way we are being treated and we want to get things straight with the people of Hereford. We did not neglect our animals as reported by the police. We are always taking in strays, feeding them and finding them good homes.

I helped the animal welfare people in Colorado and Philadelphia, and when my family moved here my pets had been to the vet even before we left Colorado. If this was so, about us not taking care of them, then why does a stray dog we have now eat with the chickens? Does this make sense?

Also, concerning the chickens—everyone else has them in the city, so why pick on us? I spray ours every other day because chickens can get mites. I don't sell eggs. I only get four a day as it is and those I feed to the children. So, until Hereford cleans all the city from chickens, ducks, rabbits, geese and other farm pets, leave me alone.

Bonnie Jackson

I would like to thank the Hereford Police Department for their protection. Now that you are following me, I know my bike won't be taken or I won't be hit by a car. The only people that treated us like people have been Mike Carr and the children's Sunday School teachers.

Since all this bull about my dogs, the problem has upset my children and they have trouble sleeping and my little girl chews on her clothes. I don't drink, smoke, take drugs, or leave my children or animals alone. I clean my home, feed my children and their pets and everything a good parent should do. Just give us our pets back and leave us alone.

As far as this newspaper goes, I don't think they were fair. They didn't get the whole facts. If they did, they would have found food on the ground left from the night before and water in the buckets. We want our pets back. If we were good enough to keep a stray dog here since Christmas, why are they holding our own dogs. This isn't fair.

WTSU women's basketball regular season to end

The regular season finale of the 1985-86 season is Saturday for the West Texas State University women's basketball team, which Stacy High of Hereford plays for.

The Lady Buffs play at the WT Fieldhouse at 5 p.m. Saturday against Oral Roberts. West Texas State has a 10-game winning streak going, equaling a school record.

WTSU will be seeking revenge, since the Lady Buffs lost to Oral Roberts 88-73 on Jan. 25 in Tulsa. The Lady Buffs have a 23-4 record for the season.

Stacy High of Hereford is averaging 2.9 points per game for WTSU, while shooting 44 percent from the field and 75 percent from the free throw line.

West Texas State, during its 10-game winning streak, has put together a defensive effort in which opponents have shot less than 40 percent from the field.

The winning streak began on Jan. 29 when the Lady Buffs defeated Eastern New Mexico University 90-40.

Team leaders for WTSU are Mabelle Whitehead in scoring (17.5 per game), field goal shooting (56 percent), rebounding (6.2 per game) and blocked shots (30); Vanessa Wells in free throw shooting (79 percent); Von Tucker in steals (53 for the season); and Angela Seay in assists (6.1 average).

Paavo Nurmi, the legendary "Flying Finn," not only set 22 world records during his career, he won nine Olympic Gold Medals and three silvers.

Abdul Jabbar goes to different court

DALLAS (AP) — It was a different sort of court for Los Angeles Lakers star Kareem Abdul Jabbar.

Jabbar was in a Dallas courtroom Thursday, only a few blocks from the Reunion Arena basketball court where he had helped his teammates whip the Dallas Mavericks Wednesday night.

Jabbar stayed behind when the team left Dallas to attend a court session for a man accused of stealing the former UCLA basketball star's $1,500 Cartier watch and pawning it for $25.

State District Judge Thomas Thorpe Thursday accepted Wenduel Stanley's plea of guilty on a felony theft charge and sentenced him to two years probation. Stanley was a ballboy for the Mavericks at the time Jabbar's watch was stolen last Oct. 30.

J. Patrick Gallagher, the prosecutor who handled the case, said Jabbar had not been required to stay in Dallas for the proceedings, but said he would because "people like us have to use the system if the system is going to work."

Jabbar's testimony could have been required had the defendant chosen not to plead guilty.

Mays wants to put fun back into game

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Back in baseball after a seven-year absence, Hall of Famer Willie Mays, the "Say, Hey Kid" says he wants to help put the fun back into the game for the San Francisco Giants.

He also says he's satisfied being the San Francisco Giants' roving spring training instructor and managing is not in his future.

"No, I don't want that job. You get fired very quickly. Everytime you look around, you see a new manager," Mays said Thursday. "I don't think I can be a good manager anyway. I can't sit there and watch for nine innings."

"But I can teach. I've always done that."

The 54-year-old Mays, barred from baseball in 1979 for accepting a job with a gambling casino, was hired last Wednesday as a special assistant to Giants President and General Manager Al Rosen.

"Willie Mays, in my opinion, was the greatest player who ever played the game and he had more fun than anybody else," Rosen said. "He's a special player, a special person. There's an infectious nature about him that rubs off. We're hoping our players will pick up on that just by being around him and seeing the way he approaches baseball."

Mays brought his No. 24 out of retirement, grabbed a bat and joked with reporters about trying to hit some batting practice home runs in the weeks to come "as soon as I lose a couple of pounds and harden up these businessman's hands."

Mays, who had 660 home runs, 3,283 hits, 338 stolen bases and a .302 batting average in a 22-year major league career before retiring in 1973, said he jumped at the chance to return to the Giants.

"I was in this uniform more than any other, and when you wear it for 18 to 20 years, you got to have some kind of feeling," he said. "Whatever they want me to do here, I'll try to do — help the outfielders, help the hitters, whatever."

San Francisco finished at the bottom of the National League's Western Division last year, losing a club-record 100 games.

Placed Fifth In State Tournament

included a banquet in which the speakers were Dr. William D. Hillis, executive vice president of Baylor University, and Burton Lawless, a former member of the Dallas Cowboys football team who was the honorary tournament director. Janie Maldonado, director of the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center, notes that the basketball team will be practicing year round, and adds, "If anyone is interested in coaching Special Olympics in track and field, swimming, bowling, or basketball, they can contact the center at 364-5861."

Sports briefs

By The Associated Press

BASEBALL
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Beneficial Commercial Corp. of New Jersey said that it has decided not to buy Three Rivers Stadium, creating another snag in the city's plans to keep its professional baseball team in Pittsburgh.

The city announced a plan Nov. 1 to purchase the Pirates by selling the stadium, and it wanted the sale completed by Dec. 31. The stadium money is to be pooled with $26 million in money from private sources, including U.S. Steel Corp., Westinghouse Electric Corp., Ryan Homes Inc. and Carnegie-Mellon University.

The public-private coalition is buying the team from the John Galbreath family and Warner Communications. The Galbreaths have owned the Pirates since 1946.

FOOTBALL
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Oakland's attempt to buy the NFL's Raiders and move the team back from Los Angeles suffered a severe blow when the state Supreme Court rejected the city's appeal to reinstate its suit.

The court's denial of a hearing leaves the city with one last possibility, an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Oakland has been trying to use its power of eminent domain, the same authority a government body has to condemn land for a highway, to acquire the Raiders and bring them back from Los Angeles, where they moved in 1962 after 19 years in Oakland.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The NFL players union would agree to stiffer penalties for drug offenders, including a one-year suspension for third-time offenders, player union chief Gene Upshaw said.

The union, however, remains adamantly opposed to mandatory drug testing, Upshaw said.

Upshaw said that players would support a drug program in which first-time offenders receive full or partial pay while rehabilitating and then would get their positions back on the roster.
