BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A U.S. Marine died after being caught in a hail of sniper fire today at Beirut's international airport and another Marine peacekeeper suffered gunshot wounds in both legs, Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said.

The fatality was the fifth suffered by the Marines since the latest round of violence in Lebanon began Aug. 28. Forty more Marines in the international peacekeeping force have been wounded in grenade attacks and bombardments.

Later in the day, Jordan said, two Marine positions came under additional fire and the Marines shot back.

Jordan said the dead Marine was hit by sniper fire in the chest and possibly the head. But Jordan said it could not be immediately determined whether the head injury was a gunshot wound or occurred when his jeep overturned as it came under small arms fire.

Jordan said he did not know which of the injuries the man died from.

The Marine, whose name was withheld until his family was notified, died in a helicopter that was evacuating him from the Marine base at the airport to a hospital aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Iwo Jima off the Beirut coast, Jordan said.

Jordan said the jeep was hit at 10:42 a.m. local time (4:42 a.m. EDT) by sniper fire from the northeastern corner of the road between the Shiite Muslim militia strongholds of Hay el-Salam and Bourj el-Barajneh on Beirut's southern outskirts.

The other marine was wounded 37 minutes earlier in another jeep that came under sniper fire from the same direction, Jordan said. He was evacuated by helicopter to the Iwo Jima and was in "guarded" condition, according to Jordan.

Jordan said a Marine staff sergeant was riding in the jeep with the Marine who was killed. The sergeant was hurled out of the vehicle by the impact of the accident and was unharmed, Jordan added.

He said that Charlie Company, a unit of the 1,600-man Marine contingent, stationed at the northern end of the airport perimeter road, and the Marines' helicopter base both came under fire from rocket-propelled grenades and small arms.

"We have returned small arms fire," Jordan said. "I can still hear some small arms fire now."

Another Marine guard of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut's suburb Elm Mreisseh corridor suffered a slight shrapnel wound Thursday night when a hand grenade was tossed at the main Marine security checkpoint in front of the Duraford building where embassy offices are located.

South Korea's state-run news agency claimed in a report monitored in Tokyo that at least 10 South Korean soldiers entered the demilitarized zone dividing the countries at about midnight Thursday and fired.

It called the alleged action "a premeditated military provocation for leading the situation to the brink of war."

The news agency said in its report that North Korea immediately placed a telephone call to South Korea protesting the "armed attack."

South Korean military authorities had no immediate comment on the charge.

The United Nations Command in Seoul said the alleged incident was "being investigated," but declined further comment.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea's Cabinet resigned today in response to the Burma bomb attack, while North Korea — blamed by Seoul for the bombing — claimed South Korean soldiers unleashed heavy gunfire in an incursion across the demilitarized zone.

North Korea said at least 10 soldiers from the South crossed into the northern side of the DMZ during the night and fired 500 rounds of ammunition in what it said was a provocation aimed at raising tensions to "the brink of war."

The developments came one day after a mass funeral in Seoul, attended by more than 1 million mourners, for four Cabinet ministers and 13 other South Koreans killed in the bombing Sunday in Rangoon, Burma. The attack also killed four Burmese and wounded more than 40 people.

The 18 surviving Cabinet members tendered their resignations at a 30-minute emergency meeting today, a government announcement said. It was not immediately known whether any or all of the resignations would be accepted by President Chun Doo-hwan, who is working to fill the gaping holes left by the bombing in the government's senior ranks.

Also submitting his resignation was Seoul's mayor, Kim Sung-hae.

Park Chan-lang, minister of government administration, announced the Cabinet resignations, saying they were offered to give the president a free hand in naming new ministers.

It is traditional in many Asian societies for top-ranking officials to assume moral responsibility in a crisis, even if the crisis is brought on by occurrences out of their control.

South Korean Prime Minister Kim Sang-hyup said the government intends to seek "as strong countermeasures as possible against the North Korean barbarity in Rangoon."

Environmentalists oppose Clark

Appointment renews Interior uproar

By TERENCE HUNT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's surprise selection of National Security Adviser William P. Clark to take over the Interior Department from James Watt left environmentalists fuming and triggered a new guessing game about who will get Clark's foreign policy job.

Clark, 51, a longtime Reagan confidant and one of the most powerful men in the administration, had not been on anyone's list to succeed Watt — anyone except Reagan.

His appointment, subject to confirmation by the Senate, will keep the Interior Department under the stewardship of a staunch conservative. Critics complained Clark's lack of background on environmental issues would allow Watt's deputies to keep his controversial policies intact, with Clark simply a caretaker.

Speculation as to Clark's successor immediately centered on Middle East envoy Robert C. McFarlane, who is Clark's deputy, and United Nations Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick.

For several days, Reagan secretly considered Clark, not even letting his inner circle of advisers in on the idea. He finally told top aides what he had in mind about midday Thursday, just hours before actually deciding Clark was the right man for the job.

Clark did not volunteer for the job, said White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes. "The important thing is the president asked him to do it," Speakes added. "Clark was needed somewhere else."

Reagan broke the news publicly at the conclusion of remarks to a gathering of women leaders of Christian organizations.

Describing Clark as a troubleshooter and result-oriented professional, Reagan said, "He is a God-fearing Westerner, fourth generation rancher, and a person I trust. I think he will be a great secretary of the Interior."

Environmentalists made clear they were no happier with Clark than they had been with Watt.

"It is a preposterous appointment and an insult to the American environment," said William Tuma, executive director of the Wilderness Society. "It is the third time that President Reagan has appointed Mr. Clark to a job for which he has no apparent qualifications.... The appointment apparently is being made as a sop to the extreme right wing of the Republican Party."

Geoff Webb, with Friends of the Earth, said, "He knows about as much about endangered species as he does about Angola."

Carl Pope, political director for The Sierra Club, said, "We're dumbfounded."

For his part, Clark said, "I am pleased and honored that the president has expressed his confidence in me by this nomination, and look forward to continuing my service to him and this administration."

"As an American who believes in our great country, I pledge that if confirmed I will do all that I can to preserve and enhance our natural heritage," Clark added.

At the White House, Clark saw Reagan each morning and briefed him on overnight developments around the world. Clark's role grew increasingly larger as he took on responsibility for shaping arms negotiating strategy and policies for Central America, and sent his deputy, McFarlane, to Lebanon as a replacement for Philip Habib.

Inevitably, there were rumors that Secretary of State George P. Shultz felt overshadowed by Clark and was unhappy.

Speakes said Clark would remain in his national security post until confirmed as Interior. Asked if Clark endorses Watt's policies, Speakes said, "I would judge he supports the president's environmental policies."

In taking the new job, Clark is leaving a White House post that kept others such as Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski in the global spotlight. However, Clark, who had barely a year's experience in national security matters, kept a low profile during his two years in the White House.

McFarlane, 45, is a former Marine lieutenant colonel who worked without fanfare at the formidable task of helping solve the Arab-Israeli conflict. He was unable to get Syria to withdraw its troops from Lebanon, but apparently played a key role in lessening tensions and, in recent days, by arranging reconciliation talks in Beirut.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, 55, is a diplomat of a different cut. The outspoken voice of the United States before the United Nations, she is a conservative intellectual and both the first woman and the first Democrat

To replace Clark

Pair of candidates eyed

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Clark's shift to the Interior Department opens one of the most sensitive jobs in the government — head of the super-secret National Security Council — and speculation on his successor centered on Middle East envoy Robert C. McFarlane and U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick.

The two are as different as night and day.

Former Marine Lt. Col. McFarlane, 45, is a faceless public servant who shuttles easily between the council, where he is Clark's deputy, and his office in the State Department, without creating waves.

In the Middle East, he operates quietly — without the splash of Henry Kissinger, Sol Linowitz and some other American diplomats who also have tried to find a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, 56 next month, is by contrast one of the best-known officials in President Reagan's administration — an outspoken advocate of administration policies at the United Nations and on the speaker's circuit.

Her attempt to draw a distinction between authoritarian and totalitarian regimes, finding the former group not so objectionable, got her into hot water with liberals. The fact that she is a Democrat, the highest-ranked member of the party to serve the Republican president, did not ease their criticism of her.

She travels in a blase of bodyguards, on flights between New York and Washington and even when making shopping trips to crowded department stores.

A White House official said Secretary of State George P. Shultz would participate in the selection of Clark's successor and that whoever Reagan chooses would be someone with whom Shultz can work smoothly.

The official, who declined to be identified, said Clark was moving to the Interior Department to help the president and not because of any differences with Shultz.

By coincidence or design, both McFarlane and Mrs. Kirkpatrick were in Washington and at the White House on Thursday, the day Reagan announced he was appointing Clark to succeed James Watt.

McFarlane returned from the Middle East on Wednesday night and had lunch with Clark and Shultz. Mrs. Kirkpatrick met with Reagan in the morning to discuss the first leg of the Kissinger Commission trip to Central America.

After some work at her State Department office, Mrs. Kirkpatrick went home with what her executive assistant, Jackie Tillman, called "a very bad cold."

Urged to appoint a well-known figure such as Kissinger or Linowitz as special U.S. emissary to the Middle East, the president in July tapped McFarlane. He replaced Philip C.

We commented on the complaints being raised by teachers on the new reading program the other day, adding that we hadn't heard any positive statements from any teachers.

Now we have. A third-grade teacher called Thursday afternoon to say she felt very positive about the reading program. "It is taking more time, but I believe it will be worth it for the students. I think most teachers are dedicated enough to see it through," she said.

The teacher said she could understand some gripes about implementation of the program, because it has been a difficult task — especially for first and second-year teachers. However, she pointed out, "The Andrews school system did this about three years ago and spent an incredible amount of time and money training the teachers before it was implemented."

She concluded that the testing and evaluation would be beneficial to students, and she praised the Hereford system for being progressive in its curriculum.

Watt calls successor 'Prince of a fellow'

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt, visiting a religious retreat, broke a public silence to pronounce designated successor William P. Clark a "prince of a fellow" and "a fantastically nice guy."

"Couldn't be a better appointment, in my judgment," Watt said Thursday on learning of President Reagan's nomination of his national security adviser to the environmental post.

Watt, venturing off a friend's ranch north of Los Angeles for the first time since announcing his resignation Sunday, flew Thursday with his wife, Lellani, to the headquarters of Campus Crusade for Christ in the San Bernardino Mountains.

The secretary had requested privacy while at the retreat, but summoned reporters for a two-minute press conference to react to the news of Clark's nomination.

Asked his plans, Watt laughed and said, "I'm glad you asked that question. I'm going to be looking for work. Anybody that can help us, I'd appreciate a good word."

But to a question on whether he had second thoughts about his career in Reagan's cabinet, he changed the subject by saying, "We're here to see Dr. Bright and I enjoyed the day."

Bill Bright founded Campus Crusade, an international evangelical group. Reporters had been barred from the campus grounds because Watt asked "that his privacy be respected." Crusade spokesman George Jones said.

Mayor wants legal drinking age raised

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Mayor Jonathan Rogers says he will propose an ordinance to raise the legal drinking age to 21 within the city limits, despite criticism that he has overstepped his legal bounds in making the move.

The city attorney says the issue is legally a matter for the state and not municipalities. Rogers said he believes the ordinance he will propose will be found unconstitutional. But he said the ordinance will be on next Tuesday's council agenda and he expects it will be approved.

Even if the ordinance is found unconstitutional, "it will set an example for the rest of the state" and will help break the grip of the liquor lobby on the Texas legislature, he said.

Rogers hopes other Texas cities will follow suit.

He said 28 states have set the legal drinking age at 21. Similar legislation is pending in six other states.

In 1973, the legislature lowered the drinking age from 21 to 18. Last session, it raised it to 19.

South Texas Hospital wing to reopen

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White today said a renovated, 40-bed wing of the South Texas Hospital in Harlingen will be opened as soon as a staff is hired.

"There is a crisis in the (Lower Rio Grande) valley," White said. "The crisis is not the making of the people of the valley, but rather it is the result of a crippling recession and peso devaluation."

"Far too many people are going without basic health care because they can't afford it," White added.

The Texas Department of Health has appropriated $800,000 to allow the hospital, formerly the Harlingen State Chest Hospital, to run the 40-bed wing for two years.

Embattled cabinet minister resigns amid sex scandal

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Trade Secretary Cecil Parkinson, one of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's closest aides, resigned today because of his controversial love affair with his ex-secretary, who is expecting his baby in January.

His resignation came only hours before Mrs. Thatcher's major policy speech to the final session of the Conservative Party's annual conference here.

A statement issued by Mrs. Thatcher's 10 Downing St. office in London said, "The Right Hon. Cecil Parkinson has tendered his resignation as secretary of state for trade and industry and the prime minister has accepted it with regret."

Super organized

Businessman explains success

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most observable traits of those complex people who start businesses is their ability to be "super organized," says Joe Mancuso, an entrepreneur himself.

Organization, he says, is the key to the entrepreneur's success, the principle on which all entrepreneurial ventures are based. "Without it," he claims, "no other principles matter."

Mancuso, founder-president of the Center for Entrepreneurial Management, studies his subjects with the same curiosity with which biologists examine microorganisms. And sometimes his findings are as fascinating.

Entrepreneurs, he maintains, aren't big risk takers, an observation that many will dispute, if only because the vast majority of new enterprises fail within five years, many of them within a few months.

In support of his contention, Mancuso offers the evidence of a recent questionnaire sent to 2,500 center members in which they were asked to imagine themselves at a race track, faced with one of four choices.

The choices: "The daily double — a chance to make a killing; a 10-to-1 shot; a 3-to-1 shot; the 2-to-1 favorite."

Although 45 percent of respondents selected the first or second choices, the 3-to-1 shot by itself attracted 40 percent of the replies, leading Mancuso to the observation that entrepreneurs set realistic, achievable goals.

"While they do take risks," he says, "these are usually calculated risks. They know their limits, but are willing to bet on their skills."

He observes also that they tend to avoid risks in areas beyond their expertise. "They seldom buy lottery tickets or bet on spectator sports, but they aren't reluctant to gamble on games involving their own skill...."

They would, for example, like to play tennis with a top professional, but they wouldn't bet a penny on winning. No less than 78 percent said so. And given the choice of rolling dice with a 1-in-3 chance of winning, or working on a problem with a 1-in-3 chance of solving it, 92 percent chose the latter.

They have great faith in themselves. Whereas many people contend they would be in business if they could raise the money, Mancuso's survey suggests that entrepreneurs don't let money stand in the way.

Asked to name "the only ingredient both necessary and sufficient for starting a business," only 3 percent said money. Forty-four percent said customers, 28 percent named motivation and hard work, and 25 percent checked the "idea or product" category.

Former sheriff, others plead innocent

HOUSTON (AP) — A former sheriff, his son and three other men have pleaded innocent to charges alleging they conspired to arrest drivers without cause to steal their bail money.

James C. "Humpty" Parker, former sheriff of San Jacinto County; his son, Gary; former deputy Robert Rice; and two bail bondsmen, Herbert Atwood and James L. Browder, pleaded innocent to the conspiracy charge in federal court Thursday.

The elder Parker, already convicted of torturing jail inmates to gain confessions, and his son also pleaded innocent to six other charges alleging they altered arrest documents and submitted the false records to federal agents investigating allegations of misconduct.

The seven-count indictment was handed down Oct. 4.

The Parkers face as much as 70 years in prison and maximum fines of $16,000 each if convicted.

The other three men could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $10,000 each.

The charges accuse the five of conspiring to violate the civil rights of motorists by operating a "matijana trap" along U.S. Highway 59 about 50 miles northeast of Houston.

U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley

set a Nov. 25 trial date in federal court in Houston although attorneys indicated the trial, expected to last at least eight weeks, probably would not begin until sometime next year. The five are free on personal recognizance bonds.

Gary Parker's attorney, Roy Beene, accused the government of sending an FBI agent and a Texas Ranger to his client's home at 3 a.m. Thursday to interrogate Parker.

"This is your last chance. We're going to bail you," Beene quoted Parker's early morning visitors as saying. Parker, questioned by Botley, said he did not get the names of the men who identified themselves as an FBI agent and a Ranger.

"We know nothing," Assistant U.S. Attorney Scott Woodward said. "We were given a name (of the man who called himself an FBI agent) and we don't know the name."

The indictment alleges deputies sought out cars driven by "hippies" or blacks, searched for cars bearing certain Louisiana license plates and bumper stickers for a Houston rock radio station.

Woodward said deputies used an excuse such as a license plate light being burned out to stop motorists and then conducted illegal searches. The operation allegedly ran from 1978 to 1982.

According to the government case, the motorists would be taken to jail and charged "bond" money that was not reported to county officials.

The indictment said that, without probable cause, the officers searched vehicles and occupants, sometimes conducting strip searches of men and women, and then damaged or altered the vehicles to justify the stops.

Bond money was divided and drugs, guns or other property seized from vehicles were kept or sold, the indictment said.

Illegal aliens found trapped in railroad car

ROBSTOWN, Texas (AP) — A U.S. Border Patrol official says that 14 Mexicans narrowly escaped death when they were rescued from an enclosed railroad tank car, used to haul animal fat, in which they had hitched a ride from the border.

Three women were treated for oxygen deprivation after they were found nearly unconscious Thursday following a two-day ride from Laredo, where they had been led after their trip across the Texas-Mexico border, a U.S. Border Patrol official said.

"It's entirely possible that all of these people could have perished if they hadn't attracted someone's attention," said L.D. Pearson, Border Patrol agent-in-charge in Corpus Christi.

The Mexicans' pounding on the sick sides of the car attracted railway workers during a train stop in Robstown, near Corpus Christi. The sick walls had prevented the illegal aliens from escaping through the tank's hatch.

"Three females out of the group of 14 were semi-aphysiated — incoherent," Pearson said. "One woman had a possible broken ankle."

Pearson said the woman injured her ankle when she failed in an attempt to climb to the hatch.

"There was only a tiny crack in the hatch through which air could get into the car," Robstown Constable Johnny Calderon said.

Pearson said the three women were taken to Riverside Hospital where they were treated and released to the Border Patrol.

He said the women and the men were taken last night to Laredo where they were being returned to Mexico.

"They were smuggled across the Rio Grande two miles from the port of entry at Laredo by a smuggler who charged them 1,000 pesos each," said Pearson.

short time later the Soviet Union, in Moscow, admitted for the first time that one of its warplanes had fired on the jet.

She called it a "shocking disregard for human life and international norms."

"It probably made a big pop, but that was at the end of the diverter pipes," Stoy said. "The equipment worked the way it should have."

The explosion occurred at about 8 p.m. and a fire followed, he said.

"I don't know exactly how long the thing fired. Not very long," he said. Stoy said the flow of gas stopped as suddenly as it had begun.

By midnight, Stoy said, there were "three minor fires" on the platform. He said the rig would be reboarded at daylight by crewmembers of Boots & Coots Inc., an oil well firefighting firm.

"Both rigs are still standing," Stoy said. "We appear to have no substantial damage."

He said the blowout came from "dry" gas, which caused no pollution.

In turning again to Clark, Reagan draws on a relationship that goes back 16 years, when Reagan first ran for governor as California and Clark went to Sacramento as the new governor's chief of staff. Later, Reagan named Clark to three judicial posts, ranging from the state Superior Court to the California Supreme Court, despite complaints he had flunked out of Stanford University and Loyola University Law School and had failed his bar examination the first time.

After being summoned to Washington in 1981 to serve as undersecretary of state to Alexander M. Haig, Clark embarrassed himself with his lack of knowledge about world affairs. Yet, he continued to have Reagan's confidence, and in early 1982 was brought to the White House to replace Richard V. Allen as national security adviser.

Ann Landers Large crates dangerous

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you are fair, you will print my letter. It is in response to "Annoyed with John Q," whose views about shipping dogs in planes are totally off the wall.

As a breeder who shows and ships champion dogs every week, I feel that I am better qualified to decide the size of the crates my dogs fly in.

The major complaint by "Annoyed" was that the crates are too small. I have had dogs almost break their legs in crates that were too large. (The airline personnel thought they knew more about the subject than I did.) There are good reasons for putting animals in crates that may seem small to observers but are actually a sensible size. The movement of animals in flight must be limited or they will be injured from getting bounced around.

I once had a "best in show" pug die in flight because a plane was delayed for two hours and the dog failed to get proper ventilation. I also lost a beautiful bitch that was shipped from New York to Los Angeles — or was supposed to be. Something went wrong and the poor thing was put on a plane to Florida, where she sat for three days without food, water or exercise.

I could give you several other examples of how the airlines goofed up with animals, but I'm sure you get the drift.—An Angry Breeder in San Bernardino

DEAR A.G.: Here's your letter — and it makes sense to me. Thanks for contributing to my education as well as that of millions of others.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem I've never seen in print before. Please run it in your column.

My oldest brother, Ted, belongs to a union. He only gets work when the union calls him at night. This means nobody can use the phone between 7 and 9:30 p.m. So, when someone calls my mother or me, we have to cut them off immediately — which is very embarrassing. Dad doesn't care because nobody ever calls him.

I have a boyfriend who sometimes calls long-distance and it really gets my hackles up when I have to tell him, "I can't talk now. I will have to call you back after 9:30." It also can be expensive.

Ted earns good money and Mom and I think he should get a phone of his own. What do you think?—A Reader Who Needs Your Help (Hackensack, N.J.)

DEAR HACK: It looks like a stand-off, with your dad and Ted on one side and your mom and you on the other. Unfortunately, I don't have a vote. If I did, I'd vote with you and your mom. Ted would have to get a pone of his own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girlfriend is 5 feet 4 inches and weighs 240 pounds. Three months ago she found out she was pregnant. Her doctor has made her cut out junk food, go on a sensible diet and do exercises. She has lost 30 pounds in three months. Will this hurt the baby? She says the baby is getting all the nourishment it needs and all she is doing is burning more calories. Is she right?—Worried in Jamestown, N.D.

DEAR N.D.: Obviously your friend has a competent doctor. You and I should keep our noses out of it.

Bledsoe presents china painting demonstration

Jolene Bledsoe presented a demonstration of china painting to members of the Hereford Fine Arts Association when the organization met in her home Tuesday evening.

The meeting was called to order by President June Owens and minutes of the last meeting were read by Loyce Brown, secretary. There was a brief discussion of the salad supper held in September and it was deemed successful.

Ms. Bledsoe began her program with a general display of materials needed for china painting including colors in powder form, mixing oil, palette knife, grinding glass, turpentine to clean brushes, tile palette, china silk and cotton.

The basic design may be applied to the object with the use of a graphite pencil, tracing or freehand sketching, she noted. If pencil or tracing guide lines are used these will burn off when the object is fired in the kiln.

Ms. Bledsoe suggested letting the object dry or firing it after the design is placed on it before putting on background colors so as not to destroy the pattern. After applying background colors and pouncing, the object is fired at least two more times.

Most china painted objects require a minimum of three firings, the last of which is usually in gold tones, she stated.

Ms. Bledsoe said that it has been some time since she did

Candy making subject of Wednesday program

Martha Schueler gave a program on candy making when members of the Bippus Extension Homemakers Club met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Junior Clark.

During the business meeting, pecan sales were discussed and it was announced that the Halloween party will be held at 6 p.m. Oct. 21 at the Bippus Community House.

Members attending were Mmes. Jimmy Bradley, Jerry Homfeld, J.V. Perrin, C.F. Homfeld, Dan Hall, John Martin, and Clark. Children present were Mathew Martin, china painting as a hobby. Her interest today is in oil painting.

After the demonstration, she urged the members to browse through her studio of arts. On display was a ceramic stagecoach with four horses, decorated with 3903 hand-molded flowers and frills, all of which were china or gold painted. This project took 20 months to complete and was entered in the California Hobby Show in 1953, where Ms. Bledsoe was awarded an Oscar for Outstanding Creation of Show.

In 1954 she again entered the California Hobby Show. Her entry was called "3-D in Ceramics" and was a dimensional picture of two horses with Indians riding them, all hand-molded from ceramic clay. She was awarded a blue ribbon for first place in state in hand-modeling.

Hostesses for the evening were Norma Hendon and Louella Cowsert. A beautiful fall arrangement lined with nuts, jelly beans and goodies centered the table and homemade cookies and hot spiced apple cider were served to the guests.

In attendance were Jean Lyles, Linda Minchew, Mildred Guina, Mary Lou Aguirre, Vinita Wear, Melba Dillard, Charles Lyles, Suzy Wall, Mildred Fuhrmann, Mmes. Owens, Brown, Hendon and Cowsert; and one guest, Barbara Allen.

Danny and Michael Hall, Joy Clark, and Roy Homfeld.

The next meeting will be at 2 p.m. Nov. 9 in the home of Mrs. Jerry Homfeld.

Lisa Snyder chosen as pom pom dancer

Lisa Snyder, who reigned as 1982 Miss Hereford, has been selected as a pom pom dancer at Texas Tech University, where she is a sophomore business major.

A panel of 20 judges chose ten girls from a large number who performed three dance routines and were interviewed on the Tech campus. The pom pom dancers perform at all Tech football and basketball rallies and at all the basketball games. They also dance and serve as hostesses at other special university events.

Miss Snyder is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Snyder, former Hereford residents who currently reside in McAllen. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority at Texas Tech.

Final cake decorating class scheduled Monday

President Alice Koenig presided over the business meeting of Sweet 'n' Fancy Cake Decorating Club Thursday morning at the Community Center.

Members discussed the cake decorating classes currently being conducted by the club. It was noted that the last class will be Monday at the Community Center.

Also discussed was a program on cake decorating to be given at the Stanton Junior High homemaking class on Monday and Tuesday. Susana Gonzalez is in charge of the arrangements.

A program on sugar molding was presented by Elida Baldez.

Two visitors, Johnnie and Bulie Battey, were welcomed.

Other members attending were Teresa Paetzold, Becky Fry, Ms. Gonzalez, Hope Torres, Rosa Tijerina, and Betty Henson.

Nuclear waste program presented to study club

Torya Kleusners, introduced by Ruth Worble, was guest speaker at the Lone Star Study Club meeting held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Jessie Mae Dodson, with Lucile Naylor serving as co-hostess.

Ms. Kleusners spoke on nuclear waste sites and their effects on the environment. She stated that nuclear waste is the deadly by-product of nuclear power generation.

She explained that it is invisible, odorless and tasteless and cannot be felt or heard, yet, it is the most dangerous substance known to man. It not only contaminates soil and water but people.

The hazard of radioactivity disappears only through a natural decay process that can take hundreds or thousands of years, she said. There is enough waste now to cover a four-lane highway coast to coast and what to do with it is a decision that must be made by both state and federal agencies. DOE does not have the answers, she said.

Ms. Kleusners showed some slides entitled, "Don't Waste America," that presented questions, concerning the land, future and the future of the children. She concluded by saying that it is essential that everyone get involved, that the problem will not simply go away.

During the business session with President Ruby Stevenson presiding, thank you notes were read and members were reminded of the Friends of the Library Book Sale scheduled Saturday at Sugarland Mall.

Refreshments were served to visitor Betty Powell and members Carmen Angel, Opal Bookout, Evadne Cox, Onella Davidson, Bertha Dettmann, Margaret Ann Durham. Also, Wilma Goettach, Nadine Hill, Ursula Jacobson, Bibby Morgan, Verna Sowell, Grace Timmer, Zoe Williams, Ella Higgins, Alice Thompson, Mildred Elliott, Emma Sult, and Mmes. Naylor, Stevenson, Worble and Kleusners.

Almost A Miracle

At one stage in Thursday night's varsity volleyball match, host Hereford High School led Amarillo High School 14-18, as shown above. That fact is noteworthy considering the Sandies entered the match 27-0 while HHS was just 4-19. The Whitefaces failed to capitalize on three game points, however, and went on to lose the match 17-15, 15-1.

In KC drug scandal

One more guilty plea expected

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Several indictments and at least one more guilty plea are expected in a federal cocaine investigation in which two members of the Kansas City

Royals have pleaded guilty, sources told The Associated Press. Outfielder Willie Wilson, the American League batting champion in 1982, and first baseman Willie Aikens each pleaded guilty Thursday to a federal misdemeanor charge of attempted cocaine possession.

Sources close to the investigation said another guilty plea was expected today in the case, and as many as 12 people may be named in federal indictments when a federal grand jury meets next week in Kansas City, Kan.

Although the names of Royals players Jerry Martin and U.L. Washington and former Royals pitcher Vida Blue have been mentioned in connection with the drug probe, federal officials have declined to say whether they are involved.

Wilson and Aikens were released Thursday on $5,000 personal recognizance bonds. Sentencing was set for Nov. 17.

The charges carry maximum penalties of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine. However, Assistant U.S. Attorney Amanda Meers said she would not rule out the possibility that both players would be placed on immediate probation.

The players also could face disciplinary action by the American League or baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"Plea bargaining doesn't change the facts. When we have the facts, we will make our decision," Kuhn told the Kansas City Times Thursday night.

John Schuerholz, the Royals' general manager, said the club "was saddened by the entire situation."

Wilson, an All-Star outfielder, arrived at the courthouse Thursday with his wife and two attorneys a few minutes after the U.S. attorney's office charged him and Aikens with attempting to possess cocaine.

When asked if he had anything to say, Aikens remarked: "You gotta be kidding, man."

The guilty pleas stemmed from an investigation that began last spring in Dodge City, Kan., and led to the wiretapping of a suburban Kansas City residence.

Schmidt points out different pitching styles

By WILL GRUMSLEY AP Special Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fireball against finesse, bise against tricky breaking stuff — that's what baseball's World Series has boiled down to after two games.

Can the National League's intimidators overwhelm the American League's traditional junk ball tensors when the Philadelphia Phillies and the Baltimore Orioles, tied at one victory apiece, renew their rivalry at Veterans Stadium tonight?

"There's definitely a difference in the pitching philosophies of the two leagues," argues Mike Schmidt, the Phillies' slugger third baseman whose 40 home runs this season led all of baseball.

"I don't know the reason for it. Maybe it has something to do with the artificial surface as opposed to natural grass. Maybe there are other reasons."

"No question about it, you see more breaking ball pitchers in the American League and more fast ball pitchers in the National."

A two-time Most Valuable Player in the NL, Schmidt may be talking from sheer frustration. In the first two games, he has gone hitless against Scott McGregor and rookie Mike Boddicker.

McGregor, a left-hander and 18-game winner, is a slider, changeup specialist whose best fast ball has been timed at a modest 82 mph. Boddicker called a clone of McGregor, completely baffled the hard-hitting Phillies Wednesday night with a mixed bag of variously paced spinning balls which victims have grudgingly labeled "garbage."

"That guy served up pitches to me that I have never even seen before," said Schmidt. "He had at least four different pitches, all thrown the same way, but at different speeds."

"I tried my best to adjust. I'd give it my best lick and watch the ball dribble into somebody's glove in the infield."

Schmidt got an "arm" from a trio of famous teammates — Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Tony Perez — on his insistence that the American League plays an different game than the National — particularly in the pitching department, where short series are usually won.

"The National League for years has been more aggressive," said the 42-year-old Rose, playing in his sixth World Series. "They open with heat and when they get a lead in the count they don't waste a breaking pitch, they try to blow one right past you. Not the American League. They seem to pitch backwards. They work you around with breaking stuff and wait until they get behind in the count before resorting to speed."

"It's a matter of patience," said Perez, 41, who spent three years with the Boston Red Sox in the midst of his long predominantly National League career.

"All you have to do is look at the box scores. American League games are always longer. That's because the American League pitchers — unlike those in our league — pitch around hitters, not worrying if the count goes to 3-2 or 3-1. In the National League, it's a bam, bam, bam. Get the guy as quickly as you can with your knockout pitch."

"In 1981 when Ted Simmons went from the Cardinals to the Milwaukee Brewers, he had a terrible time adjusting. He was swinging at balls that bounced in front of the plate. He had a bad year." Simmons hit .216.

Morgan, a veteran of 10 All-Star games, agreed it was a difference in aggressiveness and patience.

"You can't categorize either one," said Manager Joe Altobelli of the Orioles. "The American League has its (Rich) 'Goose' Gossages and Tommy John, but certainly more hard ball throwers than breaking ballers."

Others agree with Schmidt that the variance may be attributable to the field surfaces. The American League has 10 natural grass surfaces out of 14, while it's 6-6 between grass and artificial coverings in the National.

"It could trace back to the umpires," suggested Jim Palmer, long-time ace of the Orioles' staff. "You know for years American League umpires used those big balloon outside protectors. Because they couldn't see over them very well, the theory was that the league enjoyed a higher and bigger strike zone, favorable to breaking ball pitchers.

"Personally, I think this whole issue has been raised almost solely on the success of Boddicker. The guy has been really phenomenal. He has such a wide variety of pitches which he can throw at varying speeds. On top of that, he has unbelievable control."

"He's the best newcomer I've seen in 19 years."

Tilt labeled 'headliner'

The Hereford-Plainview game is one of the "headliner" battles listed in the Harris Rating System this week for schoolboy teams, and Harris picks Hereford by four points.

Plainview moved up to 28th in the Class 5A rankings after trouncing Coronado last week. Plainview has a 168 "power rating," while Hereford is listed 37th with a 166 rate. Although the point spread shows Plainview in front, Harris picks an "upset" in the big district clash in selecting the Herd by four.

Palo Duro moved up in the ratings, now holding a 164 power rating, just two points behind Hereford. Amarillo dropped to 87th place with a 159 rating.

Odessa Ferrin continues to hold the No. 1 spot in Class 5A, while Willowridge leads in 4A, Deeringfield in 3A, Hamlin in 2A and Wink in A. Littlefield is rated No. 2 in 3A.

In Texas showdown

Holtz recognizes need to throw

By HARRY KING Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz makes a good case for throwing the football against Texas. First, the Texas defense. Second, the Razorbacks' troubles running the football. "I don't think there's any doubt we're going to have to throw the ball a tremendous amount of times," Holtz said. "I don't like to do it that way but I don't see any other alternative. "We'll run some, but I think it's obvious. Oklahoma, the third leading rusher in the country, an excellent offensive line, a Heisman candidate in Marcus Dupree ... not being naive, if Oklahoma could not run with Marcus Dupree, I don't see how Arkansas can. "Auburn, with an excellent offensive line, and two great backs, Lionel James and Bo Jackson, could not run on them. Auburn has run on everybody before the game and since the game but nobody has been able to run on Texas. I don't think many people will." Oklahoma, in a 28-16 loss to Texas last week, failed to make a first down on 11 of its 14 possessions and managed only 114 yards total offense in the first three quarters. On Saturday, in Little Rock, second-ranked Texas plays once-beaten Arkansas. "In all my years of coaching, this is the best defensive team I've seen," Holtz said. "There is some discrepancy about who is the best in Texas, the Cowboys or the Longhorns." The Razorbacks made 165 rushing yards on 49 attempts in a 17-14 victory over Tulsa, 156 yards on 55 attempts in a 17-0 victory over New Mexico and 56 yards on 38 attempts in a 13-10 loss to Mississippi. Arkansas did not have a running back top 31 yards against New Mexico or Mississippi. After the loss, the Razorbacks made 241 yards on 51 running plays in a 38-21 victory over Texas Christian University. The Razorbacks were idle last week. Texas Coach Fred Akers said Arkansas had improved its running game. "In their last ball game, they showed a great deal of improvement and I'm sure that having two weeks to prepare for us, they should be even more improved from the TCU game in the running game. "There's another little part to that. Their passing attack is dangerous. When you have the receivers that Arkansas has and a quarterback like Brad Taylor who can bust things open on any play, that's strong help for your running game." Taylor, Akers said, is as good as any quarterback Texas has seen. Taylor has completed 49 of 88 passes for 783 yards and suffered only one interception. He is the Southwest Conference total offense leader, averaging 202 yards per game.

Texas is first in the league in total defense and passing defense and No. 2 in rushing defense. "There aren't many answers," Holtz said. "You say, well, you can hit the swing or the short but they don't give it to you. They jump on you. You don't have time to get open against man coverage. They have great coverage, great pressure and you can't run so they crank it up and come after you." The kickoff for the regionally televised contest is 11:38 a.m.

All U.S. golfers to play

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer
PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — The four American players left on the sidelines in the opening action of the Ryder Cup matches will play before the biennial competition comes to an end Sunday, non-playing captain Jack Nicklaus said. "All will play. It's just a matter of when. Where possible, we'll try to give them all equal playing time," Nicklaus said Thursday when he and European captain Tony Jacklin jointly announced the pairings for today's opening matches. The line-up for the morning foursomes, in which each 2-man team plays alternate shots on the same ball, was: Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw of the United States vs. Scots Bernard Gallacher and Sandy Lyle;

Lanny Wadkins and Craig Stadler of the United States vs. Nick Faldo of England and Bernhard Langer of the West Germany; Tom Kite and Calvin Peete of the United States vs. Seve Ballesteros of Spain and Paul Way of England; Ray Floyd and Bob Gilder of the United States vs. Jose-Maria Canizares of Spain and Sam Torrance of Scotland. Four four-ball matches, in which scoring is based on the best ball of each two-man team, also were scheduled for this afternoon. "I won't decide on those pairings until sometime Friday," Nicklaus said. He stopped short of saying the four Americans left out of morning play — Fuzzy Zoeller, Gil Morgan, Jay Haas and Curtis Strange — would compete in the afternoon four-ball competition. "We'll just have to wait and see," he said. Saturday's play also has four foursomes and four four-ball matches. The competition ends

Sunday with 12 singles matches. One point is awarded in each match. The United States holds a record of 20 victories, three losses and a tie in the competition that dates back to 1927 when Samuel Ryder, a wealthy British seed merchant, put up a silver trophy for competition between leading professionals from each side of the Atlantic. The last European victory came in 1967. They have never won when the matches were played in the United States. "I have no intention of being the first American captain to lose in this country," Nicklaus said. He said he paired Watson, the five-time British Open champ and ace of the American team, and Crenshaw because "they are similar players."

Star back through at Oklahoma

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Marcus Dupree, whose promise prompted University of Oklahoma coaches to change their vaunted wishbone offense to fit his powerful running style, says he is finished as a Sooner, according to a published report. The Memphis Commercial-Appeal quoted the sophomore running back as saying Thursday that he "definitely" is not returning to Oklahoma following his disappearance this week. The interview, reported in a copyright story in the newspaper's Friday edition, began to resolve an issue that was previously reported on through Mississippi friends and Oklahoma teammates, especially Spencer Tillman, who had spoken with the sophomore sensation. Dupree also told the newspaper he will decide "in a day or so" about his future plans, which he says means "trying to get in another school somewhere." The University of Southern Mississippi, Dupree said by telephone from Hattiesburg, Miss., is a good possibility. Once officials located him Wednesday night, it was uncertain whether Dupree would go back to Oklahoma, where he has been suspended from the team by an exasperated Coach Barry Switzer. Dupree described the past few days, when his disappearance and wavering made national headlines, as "some of the worst times in my life." Now, he said, he is determined to stay in his home state.

"I'm not going back; I'm not," Dupree said. "I don't feel comfortable at Oklahoma. "The things I thought were important — playing on television, winning the Heisman Trophy, playing at a school with Oklahoma's tradition — aren't so important to me anymore." Dupree, who has not been seen by a member of the Oklahoma program since Saturday's 28-16 loss to Texas, was dropped from the team by Switzer Wednesday for failing to return to campus.

Against Sooners

Anderson may return for OSU

By KEN RAFFOFOFF AP Sports Writer
One key running back will be missing and another one possibly returning when 15th-ranked Oklahoma meets Oklahoma State in college football Saturday. While the celebrated Marcus Dupree has skipped the Sooners, Ernest Anderson is expected to be back with the Cowboys for the 78th renewal of the venerable intrastate rivalry at Stillwater. "Anderson has been practicing all week," says Oklahoma State Coach Jimmy Johnson of his star tailback. "I think there's a good chance he'll see action Saturday." While Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer has had to deal with the absence of Dupree, who was dropped from the team Wednesday after missing practice the first three days of the week, Johnson has been without the services of Anderson for a month. The senior, who led the nation with 1,877 yards rushing last year, pulled a groin muscle in the Cowboys' first game and has not played since. "Our offense has been hurt with the loss of Ernest," Johnson said. "We're awfully glad to have him on the comeback." Anderson's absence has been at least partially offset by the performance of junior Shawn Jones, who is averaging 124.8 yards rushing a game for the 4-1 Cowboys, whose only loss was a tough 14-10 decision last week to top-ranked Nebraska. Oklahoma, meanwhile, enters the game with a 3-2 record and a host of problems, among them the fact that Dupree won't be carrying the ball against Oklahoma State. Oklahoma has sputtered offensively in recent weeks and managed fewer than 200 yards in last week's 28-16 loss to Texas. Dupree, who gained 905 yards as a freshman, managed only 50 on 14 carries against the Longhorns and was apparently distressed about his performance.

Coming off a tough victory over Oklahoma State, top-ranked Nebraska will play at Missouri. In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 2 Texas plays Arkansas at Little Rock; No. 3 North Carolina takes on North Carolina State; Virginia Tech visits No. 4 West Virginia; No. 5 Auburn travels to Georgia Tech; sixth-ranked Ohio State takes on No. 19 Illinois; No. 8 Georgia plays at Vanderbilt; No. 9 Arizona entertains Oregon and 10th-ranked Miami (Fla.) visits Mississippi State. Elsewhere, it's Tennessee vs. No. 11 Alabama at Birmingham; Northwestern at No. 13 Michigan; Purdue at No. 14 Iowa; No. 16 Maryland at Wake Forest; Stanford at 17th-ranked Washington; No. 18 Arizona State at Southern California and New Mexico at No. 20 Brigham Young.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Lame duck U.S. Sen. John Tower last week gave his studied answer to critics, some angry, who have wondered what he planned to do with the $1.6 million he recently raised for re-election.

Tower said he will use the funds to finance a Republican Party voter registration drive and to boost conservative candidates in '84 campaigns. His answer so far has angered only Democrats, and has breathed new hopes into the GOP.

His basic outline calls for voter registration of GOP and conservative independents in Texas, for a portion of money to be given to the national Senate Republican campaign, and for a portion to be transferred to selected candidates inside and out of Texas.

One new question now going around in GOP circles is how much of that money will go to the candidate who will replace Tower on the ballot.

Tower has said he will not endorse any candidate until after the GOP primary in May.

Republicans were crestfallen when Tower announced he was quitting, but his continued aid to the '84 election cause has them somewhat optimistic they can replace him with another of their own, particularly by utilizing the voter registration tool wielded so effectively heretofore by Democrats.

Texas Economy

As always, the general state of the Texas economy may be the biggest factor in '84, and things aren't looking so great in some places.

The drought has devastated parts of West Texas ranching and agriculture and a major Midland bank is in serious trouble because of the oil and gas business decline.

Last week a major survey revealed business failures in Houston may hit record levels this year, because of the energy business decline. Bankruptcies in Dallas have leveled moderately because of a more diversified economy; hardest hit there were energy, manufacturing, construction and real estate.

Hightower Firings

Texas' populist Agriculture Commissioner, Jim "Whole Hog" Hightower caught some unsavory press flack last week after disgruntled fired employees turned their guns on him.

Hightower has been "airing out" the department to implement his new program, which means letting some old hands go to make room for his new hands.

Some old hands resented losing their jobs, especially at the hands of a woman consultant who has reportedly recommended many of the personnel changes. Hightower has defended the personnel changes as a legitimate part of government changing hands.

Gunslingers

The growing political power of the Hispanic bloc has been touted for months and the man portrayed as most likely to benefit is San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros.

Now Cisneros is engaged in a legal shootout with the man who has probably drawn the most negative press of '83: South Texas multimillionaire Clinton Manges.

Manges is spearheading the USFL San Antonio football team, the Gunslingers, and is in the process of renovating Alamo Stadium there under a city lease.

The San Antonio city council, headed by Cisneros, has moved to stop the use of the stadium after it was found to be prohibited under an old lease agreement. They want the new lease declared invalid.

"Snakes", Referendum

The legal saber rattling has increased and the words have been thrown across the table, Cisneros even calling the USFL franchise backers "a bunch of snakes."

For his part, Manges has challenged Cisneros to take a lie detector test, and circulated a petition to overturn the 1939 deed restriction.

Manges claims he has about 42,000 signatures, more than enough needed to force a city ballot vote on the issue.

The two-pronged battle, one in the courtroom and one at the ballot box, even though a local issue to Bexar County, could well decide whether Cisneros will rise or not to eventually become the first Hispanic statewide official, as has been predicted.

Conspiracy Charge

A staff attorney for Texas Atty. Gen. Jim Mattox last week pleaded guilty to a conspiracy charge related to mail fraud. The lawyer was indicted last year and has since been on Mattox's chief of staff services payroll for $32,000 a year.

A spokesman said Mattox knew of the indictment and did not use the employee to do legal work for the state.

The man pleaded guilty to conspiracy to defraud the IRS, which said he and two others manufactured false and fraudulent tax deductions for themselves and others through a consulting business in the Bahama Islands.

Backers, foes line up over selection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists are angry and Western conservatives delighted. Neither see policy changing with President Reagan's surprise choice of William R. Clark to succeed James Watt as interior secretary.

Clark howls he is unqualified for the job were expressions of hope — and fear — that Clark might succeed where the combative Watt failed in forging a consensus for developing the nation's public lands.

Almost elated by Reagan's announcement Wednesday that he was moving the 51-year-old Clark from the hotseat of world affairs as national security adviser to a domestic post where the greatest heat was generated by his predecessor's penchant for putting his foot in his mouth.

"We're dumbfounded," said Carl Ripe, political director of the Sierra Club in San Francisco. "Mr. Clark has no visible record on environmental issues."

William Butler, a vice president of the National Audubon Society, said he was "thunderstruck" by the nomination.

"He is a God-fearing Westerner, a fourth-generation rancher, a person I trust and I think he will be a great secretary of the interior," Reagan said in making the announcement.

Watt, who resigned last Sunday after losing the support of several members of his own party in the Senate, said Reagan could not have made a better choice.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said Clark's ability to calm choppy waters made him an attractive choice to replace Watt, who had created sharp divisions within his own party with his policies.

A similar view was voiced by the National Wildlife Federation, the nation's largest conservation group, and one of the few environmental organizations to not immediately denounce the appointment.

"From the little we know, Mr. Clark has a reputation as a consensus builder," said Jay Hair, a vice president of the federation.

"William Clark's only qualification for this position is blind loyalty to Ronald Reagan," said Geoff Webb of Friends of the Earth. "Clark doesn't know any more about national parks or endangered species than he did about Angola or Zimbabwe."

Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., chairman of the House Interior subcommittee on mining and forest management, said the nomination "proves that to be Ronald Reagan's secretary of interior, you don't have to know anything about the stewardship of our precious natural resources." "You just have to be willing to serve as a handmaiden to big business, the oil companies and the others who want to destroy our public lands for short-term profit," Weaver said.

But Rep. Manuel Lujan, R-N.M., who had been rumored to be one of the top candidates for Watt's job, said Clark is "an able and capable administrator" and "I look forward to working with him."

And Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., who bowed out of consideration for interior secretary earlier Thursday, said he was delighted with the selection.

Today In History

Today is Friday, Oct. 14, the 267th day of 1983. There are 78 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 14, 1912, former President Theodore Roosevelt, campaigning for the presidency on the Bull Moose ticket, was shot in the chest by a New York City saloonkeeper in Milwaukee.

The incident did not keep Roosevelt from going ahead with a scheduled campaign speech.

On this date:

In 1890, the 34th President of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, was born in Denison, Texas.

One year ago: President Reagan said the time had come "to cripple the power of the mob in America," and he announced a plan to combat the distribution of narcotics by organized crime.

Today's birthdays: Actress Lillian Gish is 87. Actor Roger Moore is 56.

Inflation forecast: Cool through fall, early winter

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation, though rising from the very low levels of earlier in the year, should remain modest in coming months and on into next year, economists say.

The newest figures, covering prices at the wholesale level in September, were due out today from the Labor Department. And analysts were saying in advance that an increase of one-half percent or less — about the same as August's 0.4 percent — was likely.

Food prices are expected to keep rising for some time, at least partly because of lingering effects of this summer's drought. And car prices also were expected to push September's Producer Price Index up.

Still, wholesale prices have been basically flat for the first eight months of this year — actually declining in January and March — and the eventual increase for all of 1982 seems sure to be the lowest since the 2.2 percent of 1970 and perhaps since even lower figures in the 1960s. Last year's figure was 3.7 percent.

State Trooper Boyd eulogized as hero

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — State Trooper Russell Lynn Boyd, slain in a bizarre shooting spree that left four others dead, returned to his hometown to be eulogized as a hero before 350 law enforcement officers from seven states and Texas Gov. Mark White.

Boyd was described Thursday as a man who had faced the dangers of his occupation willingly.

"I think Russell accepted these duties and the dangers as if they were great privileges," the Rev. George Gray told more than a thousand people at Boyd's funeral here.

"He died a hero's death, just as surely as those brave men in battle who have fallen in foreign countries, trying to protect this and all free nations," Gray said.

He said Boyd had wanted to be a DFS trooper since he was a young man.

"He made us proud of him," Gray said, adding that Boyd was a "man (who) died doing what he wanted to do. Not all men in this life can do what they want to do."

Ralph Boyd said his son entered law enforcement because "he wanted to help people," but "knew what kind of life it would be" and the hardships involved.

The elder Boyd was a Texas highway patrolman himself for 10 years, until he quit his job in 1966 to take a more lucrative position as a helicopter pilot. He said his son wanted to follow in his footsteps.

Ralph Boyd was preparing a church Bible lesson Tuesday night when he learned his 25-year-old son, assigned to Hempstead near Houston, had been killed in the line of duty.

"His partner called me about 7 o'clock. He said, 'Mr. Boyd, I have some bad news for you,'" Boyd told The Dallas Morning News. "I knew that my son had been shot."

The younger Boyd was gunned down when he stopped a suspect on a traffic violation about six miles north of Hempstead, authorities said. Officers said they believe Eliseo Hernandez Moreno, 24, killed Boyd and four other people and wounded another during a five-hour crime spree across Southeast Texas.

Moreno remains jailed without bond on a capital murder charge.

The younger Boyd married his high school sweetheart. He graduated from the DFS academy in Austin in October 1982.

He received two letters of commendation for his work in the field during his first year of duty, and was considered "above average," the elder Boyd said.

Sgt. C.B. Culp, a trooper in the DFS office in Fort Worth who oversaw Boyd's training, characterized Boyd as the model officer.

"He was just the kind of guy we're always looking for," said Culp. "He was raised pretty strict, and he cared about people ... You run across guys like him every now and then, and when you do, you hate to lose them."

The elder Boyd said of his son's death, "You know it can happen, but you always think it happens to the other person."

The 48-year-old Boyd said his son, a 1976 graduate of Weatherford High School, "was brought up in law enforcement, so he knew what kind of life it can be."

"He knew about the obscene telephone calls, about handling the disorderly, and all the things that go with the job. He also knew about his rewards," he said.

Boyd said his son knew a DFS trooper's salary was skimpy but joined "because he wanted to help people."

"He loved his work, that's the saddest part of it," said Boyd.

Nuclear weapons not welcomed

By BRUCE M. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Anti-war groups plan a prayer vigil tonight to protest the expected arrival of a train believed carrying nuclear weapons materials for the Charleston Naval Weapons Station.

The shipment, which left the Department of Energy's Pantex Plant in Amarillo, Texas, late Tuesday was expected to arrive here about 11 p.m., the groups said.

The Pantex Plant is the final assembly point for nuclear weapons and also handles classified non-nuclear components of such weapons.

The train has attracted other demonstrators along its route through Oklahoma, Kansas and Tennessee.

Ben McCarty, the public information officer for the Albuquerque Operations Office of the Department of Energy, said Thursday "we have a safe, secure rail car shipment moving through the Southeast. We cannot identify the specific cargo of any one shipment and at this point we cannot give its ultimate destination."

"We have had other protests, but this is the first time that we have noticed people carrying signs, standing along railroad tracks in the Southeast," he said.

"It's the first time anybody's known about it," said Jim Douglas, the cofounder of the Ground Zero Center for Non-violent Action, of Pueblo, Wash. "If they let us know about it, they'd have people protesting more often, which is what a democracy is all about."

He described the train as a heavily-armed, all-white train with the designation ATMX, adding "ATM stands for the old Atomic Energy Commission and the X means the cars are not owned by any particular railroad but instead are owned by the government."

The group monitored the train on its trip back to Texas and has been keeping tabs on it ever since, he said.

During a court case after two demonstrators were arrested along the train route in Denver in March, Douglas said that the group secured government and Burlington and Northern Railroad documents and learned the train's route to Charleston.

He said his organization calls peace groups and church groups along the route who go to the tracks and hold their quiet protests.

"The problem is with what's in the train, not with the vigils. The problem is also with the government making these shipments secretly and not making notification to state agencies through which the trains pass," he said.

Douglas said his group believed the train was carrying "either Trident-I nuclear warheads to be backfitted on Poseidon submarines which is the main nuclear weapon shipment for (Charleston) or it could have Pounding II or Cruise warheads."

Meanwhile, Lt. Cmdr. Steve

Clawson of the Charleston Naval Base said no one at the base had been placed on alert.

"The DOE arranges the trains, the schedules and the timing. If there's some type of potential problem, we would be contacted," he said.

In Plano

Six teens dead in six months

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

PLANO, Texas (AP) — The streets of Plano are smooth and wide, the homes new and well-appointed, the people tanned and confident. The schools produce national scholars, the churches draw hundreds on Sunday mornings, the football team collects championship trophies.

Plano promotes itself as "a warm and sunny paradise." The people are nice, too. Everyone says so.

The kids' suicides began in February.

Six teen-agers are dead, and this Dallas suburb of 93,000, still an infant growing into Texas-sized boots, is angry over the national attention it has gotten and afraid it's being blamed for the drastic action of a few.

Six weeks after the latest suicide, Plano worries that more suicides will follow.

A family therapist is getting more calls from parents who think they see signs of depression in their children. More people from Plano are calling a crisis line in Dallas, reaching out to strangers. And, from the first suicide in February to the sixth in August, police have recorded 15 suicide attempts among youngsters.

Plano wants to know: what happened in paradise?

Strong, steady growth has brought Plano more than its share of new kids, trying to distinguish themselves in a community built by success. As sophomore Jana Dillon sees it: "Unless you want to be put down, you need to succeed at something."

The people who live here are successful or they wouldn't be here. From the polo and soccer teams to the poker and bridge clubs, "everyone is striving for excellence," said one housewife.

That striving, that emphasis on success makes it "tough for the community to understand why we have some unhappy kids," said Johnnie Spies, guidance counselor at Plano Senior High School. "We have many more happy ones than unhappy ones."

Six kids were unhappy or they'd be alive.

Bruce Carrio, 16, was guilt-stricken over the death of a friend in a drag-racing accident. Glenn Currey, 18, was feeling the pressure of school and a time-consuming romance. Henri Dariot, 14, was upset over Bruce's suicide.

Steven John Gundlach and Mary Bridget Jacobs, both 17, were depressed because their parents had asked them to stop seeing so much of each other. Scott Difiglia, 17, was distraught over breaking up with his girlfriend.

Why? Why were they upset enough to choose death? Why Plano?

The people of Plano are searching for answers. They have considered their success, their growth, their lifestyle, their competitive spirit, their sheltered children and their mobility — half the people in town have been here for less than five years.

"I know it's unusual. But I cannot point to any one thing that went wrong," said Ted Dickey, community leader, funeral director and former justice of the peace.

Parents are meeting formally to talk about adolescent problems. Classes on stress are being offered to ninth and 10th graders. Three dozen parents are trained to help with a 24-hour phone crisis line that opens in Plano Dec. 1; 15 volunteered after the August suicides.

"It makes you want to really listen to your children, and help them find a place in the community," said Ann Stokes, mother of two teen-agers and a crisis line volunteer.

Plano resembles many suburban communities in America, molded by young executives transferred to high-salaried jobs in large nearby cities. New families arrive every day, and the senior high school has 140 new students from 35 states and eight foreign countries.

"A kid goes home at 4 o'clock in Syracuse and the old man says, 'Pack your grip, son, we're going to the end of the world — Plano, Texas.' He ends up in our community grieving," Dickey said.

But this is hardly the end of the world. Shopping malls beckon from a dozen street corners. The crime rate is lower than that of any Texas town half its size. Hundreds of new $160,000 homes — with wet bars, game rooms and solariums — line up neatly in neighborhoods enclosed by 6-foot-tall brick walls.

A decade ago, Plano was a settlement of genteel ranches and 3,000 people. Now with almost 100,000 people, it is growing at the rate of 10,000 a year and expects to be as big as Fort Worth in two decades.

The senior high school has 2,300 students, all juniors and seniors, and boasts the biggest graduating class in the state. It won the district football title last year for the sixth time in seven years.

Plano's "Standard of Excellence," a motto written in red on the cover of the 1983 yearbook, is evident in the classroom and 60 school clubs. Seventy percent of the graduates go to college. There were 15 National Merit Scholarship finalists among last year's seniors.

The kids play with their home computers, drive to clubs in Dallas or while away free afternoons at shopping mall video arcades. The engineers, accountants and sales managers of Plano's adult population gather to watch kids play soccer or baseball, then retire to their backyards for a swim and charcoal-broiled steaks.

Backyard barbecues, the performance of the football team, and weekend tennis games used to be the most popular community topics.

One Saturday night in February, that changed.

Bruce Carrio, a curly haired blond, was racing his 1972 Buick against another friend's 1973 Chevy. Bill Ramsey, Bruce's best friend, was the signalman. "Just some kids out messing around," police Sgt. J.C. Randall said later. But the Corvette spun out of control and struck Ramsey.

Bruce and his parents cried together over Ramsey's death. A day after the funeral, Lucy Carrio returned home to find her son lying on the back seat of his car, a crucifix in his hand.

The motor was on and the garage door was down. The last song played on the car's cassette player was "Good-bye Cruel World," by Pink Floyd.

"In two days' time," said Bruce's father, Louis, "he went from a happy child to a dead child. We knew Bruce was upset, but the possibility of suicide? It never entered our minds."

Perhaps the combination, grief and guilt, was too much. Being a teen-ager, "he couldn't know it would get better, that the pain he was feeling would ease," Carrio said.

Handsome, sandy-haired Glenn Currey didn't know Bruce Carrio. But he had heard about the suicide. Everyone had.

"When one child does it," Glenn's father, Bob, said later, "it sparks an idea in another." On March 1, Pat Currey found her son in the front seat of his blue 1966 Mustang parked in the family garage. The radio was blaring. The air was thick with exhaust.

Glenn had been taking advanced classes at school, had a job and a girlfriend. But as graduation approached, he had decided to break up with the girl.

"You could really tell he was in love with her. But he knew he had a responsibility to do well in school, had to keep his job, and I think he felt that something had to go," Currey said.

"He put a lot of pressure on himself to make things go the right way. I think he just felt this was a way out."

On April 18, it happened again. Henri Dariot, a 9th-grader at another Plano school, shot himself in the head with a .22-caliber Winchester.

Newspaper clippings about the deaths of Ramsey and Carrio were found pinned to Henri's bulletin board. They had been his friends. There was also a pencil drawing, a stick figure with the handwritten legend: "The Ghost of Death."

The six counselors at Plano Senior High saw a hundred kids after the suicides, some upset about Ramsey's death, others about the suicides.

"At that point, no one discussed the possibility that we would have more suicides," said Mrs. Spies, the head guidance counselor.

But in August, more teen-agers died. Again, there were three.

The night of Aug. 16, Steven John Gundlach and Mary Bridget Jacobs drove to the highest point of a new housing development, pulled their car into the garage of an unfinished house, shut the door and took out a notebook.

To his parents, Steven wrote: "I couldn't go on living without Bridget so we're both leaving together so we'll always be happy. Love, Steven."

To her parents, Bridget wrote: "I love you and this is what I wanted, to die with Steven. Sorry I disappointed you. Love always, Bridget."

Donald Gundlach said and his wife had recently told Steven that they thought he and Bridget were getting "too deeply involved. We were trying to slow it down, not stop it," he said.

A week later, Scott Difiglia, a May high school graduate, called his ex-girlfriend. Their romance had broken up several months earlier, and she had recently begun dating someone else.

Scott said he was going to kill himself and leave a gift for her. She rushed to the house but arrived too late, finding him in a pool of blood in the bedroom, a .22-caliber rifle at his side.

In his truck was an envelope containing $200 and a note to his girlfriend, saying it wasn't her fault. To his parents, he wrote: "I can't go on living with the pain."

Plano is not the first community to discover the contagious nature of teen-age suicide. In North Salem, N.Y., a small town in New York's Westchester County, two youngsters killed themselves this spring. And in the Kettle Moraine school district, in suburb of Milwaukee, there were three suicides last year.

Some people think the kids in Plano simply aren't accustomed to dealing with pain, be it the end of a romance, the death of a friend, or just being the new kid on the block.

Dealing with new kids is one of the schools' tougher tasks. Larry Guinn, an associate principal, formed SWAT, Students Working Together, a group that helps kids with adjustment problems. This year he added five students to the 15-member team, and plans to set up a similar team of parents.

Scott Difiglia's funeral mirrored what Plano is and wants to be. His favorite cap, the one with the logo "Skyline Graphite," was placed on his oak casket. One friend put a tin of snuff beside the cap.

The funeral procession, led by the ministers in a white Mercedes, wound through North Dallas, past the signs of success, the signs of a jewel on the prairie, the signs of a reason to live: construction sites, shopping malls, glittering office buildings, and sprawling one-story corporate parks.

"Let us continue to look at sunsets and all those other beautiful things in the world and be glad we're alive," the Rev. Leon Duesman had told the mourners.

"Let us be people who don't give up."

In Plano, six kids already have.

Oklahoma became a state in 1906 with the merging of the former Indian Territory and the Oklahoma Territory.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Fig fancier's dream

DEAR POLLY — I have just purchased two everbearing fig trees. I do not have any recipes for storing them (freeze, dry, etc.) Can you or your readers tell me how to preserve figs for later use? — LOVES FIGS IN FLORIDA

DEAR L.F.I.F. — The easiest method is freezing. To prepare them for freezing, wash the figs and remove the stems. You may peel or not as you like. Then simply fill freezer containers, leaving one-half inch headroom for expansion, seal and freeze. If you like sweetened figs, you may pack them in a light sugar syrup with a little lemon juice or ascorbic acid added to prevent darkening.

The figs also can be canned or dried. Check your library for up-to-date books on canning and drying fruits and vegetables. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To protect fancy frosting on a cake or the meringue on your pies place toothpicks at the corners and, if necessary, one or two in the center of the cake. Then cover with waxed paper or plastic wrap. The toothpicks leave almost no marks when you pull them out. — L.J.

DEAR POLLY — If you have children old enough to wash their own hair but young enough to use too much shampoo, pour the shampoo into an empty liquid soap dispenser — the pump type. One pump and they have enough shampoo without wasting it. — D.H.

DEAR POLLY — When you remove paraffin from glasses of jelly, wash it well, then store it in a covered coffee can or other container. Remelt it and use it again when needed. — EUNICE

DEAR POLLY — I save the cardboard rollers from toilet tissue and store small scraps of yarn in them. The yarn can also be wound around the roller. These store easily in a drawer and the colors can be seen at a glance. — LUCILLE

DEAR POLLY — I lost the formula that appeared in the newspaper for making window cleaner. It really worked and I am in need of a new supply instead of having to buy the store's expensive kind. Can you please help me? I'm sure it would be a great help to your other readers. — DAVID

DEAR DAVID — OK, one more time. This glass and window cleaner is easy to make and does a super job. For wiping, use ordinary newspaper or paper towels. Mix two tablespoons cornstarch, one-half cup household ammonia, one-half cup white vinegar and one gallon warm water. Pour into a clean empty spray bottle for maximum convenience.

DEAR POLLY — To save money and add a refreshing line of beverages, I mix one part fruit-flavored soft drink mix with one part soda pop and serve the mixture over ice. Using compatible but different flavors will give you an endless variety. For example, cherry soft drink mix with a cola beverage, apple with lemon-lime soda, etc. — PATTY

DEAR POLLY — I use plastic ketchup and mustard squeeze bottles to hold my vinegar and oil for salad dressing. This saves unnecessary mixing. — CHERYL

Jones speaks at TOPS Fun Night on Tuesday

Deane Jones, executive director of Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Hereford, was guest speaker for TOPS Fun Night Tuesday at the Community Center. TOPS Chapters 576, 941, and 1011 were represented.

Ms. Jones told the group that Big Brothers-Big Sisters was first started in 1903, with a chapter beginning in Hereford in 1974. The organization works with children from single parent families.

Best Loser from Chapter 576 was Debbie Tardy, with a loss of 24 pounds. Runner-up Thelma Cherry lost 13 1/2 pounds.

Chapter 576 sponsors the Pre-teen and Teen TOPS Clubs. Best Loser was Sandra Daughtery, with a loss of 9 1/2 pounds, runner-up was Jana Cherry with a 9 1/4-pound loss, and Shalma ROse, who lost 8 1/2 pounds, was in third place. Robin Sturgess in the Pre-teens lost 2 pounds. Average loss per member was 4.6 pounds.

Camelia Jones of Chapter 941 lost 1 pound, KOPS recognized were Georgia Andrews, Annie Lou Dobbins, Christine Larson, and Mildred Lewis. Christine Jones graduated into KOPS.

From Chapter 1011 Rusty Stengel lost 4 pounds and Mary Brorman was runner-up with a loss of 2 1/4 pounds. KOPS included Hope Loerwald and Dora Berend.

Refreshments were served by Chapter 1011.

Boyer says quality improved

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A former U.S. commissioner of education says the nation's public schools are not as bad as some reports say, but recommends a return to emphasis on basic skills instead of a rush to teach high technology.

But Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, told educators here Thursday that the epitaph for the nation's schools should not yet be written because some students are getting the best scholastic training in the world. Twenty to 30 percent of the schools are in bad shape. The rest would get a grade of B-minus to C-minus.

The Carnegie Foundation, in a recent report, recommended strengthening teachers' roles through rewards for good work, improving working conditions and revising core curricula.

He said the change described by the National Commission on Educational Excellence as the "rising tide of mediocrity" actually occurred from the early 1960s until four or five years ago.

Boyer said people then discovered problems in the schools and began developing plans to reverse the situation.

"The decline in public education that began during the early 1960s was not a decline in the schools so much as a nation trying to determine its priorities after a period when it had been traumatized from coast to coast," Boyer said.

"In recent years the clear signals have been that we are serious about the quality of our schools," he said at the first Texas A&M University System Symposium.

Boyer said the current intense interest in public education — mostly at the state level — is encouraging, but that there will be no results without increasing interest among teachers, parents and communities.

A blue-ribbon panel in Texas headed by Dallas computer company owner H. Ross Perot is examining public school education. Perot has already suggested that Texas schools devote too much time and energy to extra-curricular activities such as athletics.

"In the last four or five years, we've seen a rising tide of school improvement," said Boyer. "The national commission may have misjudged the tides a little bit. There have been clear signals this nation has once again become serious about quality and standards in public schools."

Boyer recommended some changes in the makeup of the nation's high schools.

He said the Carnegie Foundation report suggests increasing the number of required courses, with a heavy emphasis on language, language arts and writing.

"Language is the basic of basics. Unless you use language you can't engage in any other learning," Boyer said.

He said all students should master the art of oral and written communication with only a "special group" of students receiving training in high technology areas.

Boyer, former chancellor of State University of New York, said computers in such a curriculum should not play so strong a role.

"I am deeply troubled by the rush to buy computers. Public school officials should purchase computers only after they answer the question 'What do I want this machine to do,'" said Boyer.

Newspapers win reversal

HOUSTON (AP) — Two newspapers won a federal appeals court reversal of a gag order imposed in Continental Airline's bankruptcy proceedings, apparently clearing the way for both company officials and union representatives to discuss the troubled airline's financial details.

The Wall Street Journal successfully petitioned the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans Thursday and won a reversal of U.S. Bankruptcy Judge R.F. Whelton's gag order.

The Houston Chronicle joined the Journal's efforts and asked U.S. District Judge John Singleton to overturn Whelton's ban on discussion of fiscal data. A hearing was scheduled today on the Chronicle's request.

"They stayed the bankruptcy's judges order, pending further order by the district court or this court," 5th Circuit clerk Richard Windhorst said late Thursday night.

Also Thursday, a representative to a union board for striking Continental pilots was ousted by the union membership one day after the company charged union negotiators with dragging their feet in talks on a new contract.

The pilots struck Continental Oct. 1 after the airline slashed salaries in half after reorganizing in bankruptcy court.

Larry Baxter was removed from the job and replaced by Dennis Higgins, union spokesman Esperison Martinez said.

Martinez gave no reason for the switch, but said members of the striking Air Line Pilots Association would hold a news conference this afternoon.

"You will see greater initiatives from the pilots in finding ways to get back to the bargaining table and get back to work," Martinez said. He declined to answer further questions.

Continental filed a $50 million suit against the pilots union Wednesday, charging in federal court that the labor group is attempting to fix prices by refusing to cooperate with airlines whose fares do not meet its approval.

The airline's suit also accused the union of failing to bargain in good faith.

Pilots and airline representatives negotiated for three days last week but ended meetings saying they had made no progress in settling the strike.

Continental's suit contends pilots delayed or postponed meetings and failed to offer a counterproposal to airline management.

Continental filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code Sept. 24, asking for protection from creditors. Domestic flights were halted for two days. When the airline resumed business, it served only 25 of the 78 U.S. cities to which it had previously flown.

Local Senior Citizens kazoo band provides entertainment

The kazoo band from Hereford Senior Citizens entertained members of the Dawn Music Club Tuesday afternoon at the Dawn Community Center. Members of the group were introduced by Margie Daniels.

Mrs. Carl Wimberley and Mrs. Edgar Sowell were hostesses for the evening.

A piano duet, "All American Medley" by Mrs. John Stribling and Mrs. Gerald Parker, and a piano solo consisting of "I Know My Redeemer Liveth" and "Sleep Holy Child" by John Peterson, performed by Mrs. Orval Gally, were also featured on the program.

Mrs. Wimberley, president, presided at the business meeting, during which plans were finalized for those attending the District I, Texas Federation of Music Clubs Convention, in Gruver on Saturday.

Refreshments of punch and cake were served to guests Stella Henshey, Edith Shefford, Nell Pittman, Verdie Bousou, Hattie Gallagher, Pauline House, Lola Sims, Georgia Andrews, Ruby Sparkman, Ruth Robbins, and Ellen Warrick, all of Hereford; Beatrice Cox Peterson from California; and Mary Alice Frye and Alene Beaven of Dawn.

Also to members Jennie Galley, Susie Curbinger, Hazel Stewart, Helen Caraway, Lula McCabe, Nelma Sowell, Becky

Caraway and Aaron, Ruby Wimberley, and Corene Smith.

The next meeting will be Nov. 7 at the Community Center. Members are urged to bring gift items for patients at the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo to select as Christmas gifts for their families.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Relief for swelling

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the last few years my husband and I have taken trips overseas. During the last three trips I have experienced considerable swelling in my ankles and lower legs. I have tried in-place exercises during flight, getting up as often as possible and taking walks between flights and I still have the problem.

I am 60 years old and weigh 140 pounds and am 5-foot-7. At home I use a jogging trampoline regularly and do other exercises. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR DR. LAMB — Swelling is accumulation of fluid in the tissues and outside the circulation. There are many causes but the mechanisms that induce the swelling are the same.

Whenever there is an increase in pressure inside the capillaries — the small vessels that form the network of connections between the arteries and veins — fluid tends to seep out into the tissues and is not readily sucked back into circulation.

Normally fluid which contains nutrients and oxygen does leave the circulatory system to bathe the tissues but it is sucked back into the circulation at the venous side.

When you are sitting you put pressure on the back of the thighs and this can compress the veins making matters worse. That may be part of your problem.

Increasing the pressure in the tissues decreases the accumulation of fluid outside the circulation. That is why compression is used.

I approve of your present measures but if you continue to have the problem you might consider wearing some form of pressure stocking during flights or when you must sit. The more you compress the foot, ankle and lower leg the less likely there will be any swelling there. Of course if you could elevate your feet it would help but that is usually not possible.

I am sending you The Health Letter 11-4, Swelling: Causes and Management, which explains in greater detail how swelling occurs and what to do about it. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What happens to people who stop exercising? I mean if exercise is good for you and protects you from having heart attacks, will you still get any benefits from the exercise you did if you stop?

DEAR READER — It is just like going off your diet. You start rapidly losing all the benefits you obtained. A study reported at the last scientific sessions of the American Heart Association showed that within three weeks after a person stops running the blood loses its ability to clear fatty-cholesterol particles.

Exercise increases the small fatty-cholesterol particles called "good" cholesterol that seem to help clear the blood. But you need to keep it up regularly to get the best results. Off and on exercising just won't do it for you.

I do think that after you've developed a good capacity to exercise it is easier to regain it than if you had not exercised at all.

People who stop exercising but who keep eating the same way did when they exercised tend to gain body fat. That also tends to raise the "bad" cholesterol and the blood pressure.

FAITH MAKES GOOD NEIGHBORS OF GREAT NATIONS

The boundary line dividing two countries can become a barricade of mutual hostility; but in the case of Canada and the United States it has always served as a bridge of friendship between two peoples with such trust, respect and understanding as to make the celebration of Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week quite unnecessary. Nowhere along the three thousand-mile borderline that spans our continent have security measures ever been needed, and the citizens on both sides may enter and leave each other's land whenever they wish. This is a fine example of the spirit of brotherhood that has been taught by every religious faith, in every land. Wherever you live, you will learn this by attending the Church of your choice.

A living proof to all the world of faith in brotherhood.

—Guy Willis Bisland

"Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

—Romans 13:9, 10
