

U.S. strategic arms buildup has dual goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Up and down the corridors of the Pentagon, men and women are busy planning for the war they hope will never come.

In the 27 months of the Reagan presidency, the United States has embarked on the biggest peacetime military buildup in its history.

The program, heavy with new missiles, submarines and bombers for the nuclear force, would cost $1.5 trillion over five years. It has a dual goal: meeting what is seen as a dangerous Soviet military challenge, and giving the United States "leverage" to use on the Soviet Union at the arms-control bargaining table.

Some U.S. strategists contend their counterparts in Moscow believe the Soviet Union can fight and win a nuclear war.

"People just don't understand, from a strategic-targeting point of view, how very powerful their land-based missile force is," said Ronald F. Lehman, a deputy assistant defense secretary who is among those chiefly responsible for U.S. strategic policy.

In two decades of military growth, the Soviets drew even with the United States, and some say passed it, in strategic nuclear power.

The newest, "fourth-generation" Soviet intercontinental ballistic missiles are about as accurate as the best the Americans have — the Minuteman III. And the huge Soviet SS-18's 10 warheads are packed with five times the Minuteman's nuclear devastation — at least five megatons, the equivalent of 5 million tons of TNT.

But to the Kremlin, U.S. capabilities may be just as intimidating.

The Soviets stack most of the chips on land-based missiles. The United States has a versatile, balanced arsenal, a "triad" of land-based ICBMs, submarine-launched missiles and long-range bombers.

The U.S. Air Force has 1,051 intercontinental missiles, with up to 2,151 warheads, in silos across mid-America, and 316 B-52 bombers, with 2,570 warheads. The Navy has 34 submarines equipped with missiles holding 4,960 warheads.

On the Soviet side, the Strategic Rocket Forces field 1,398 land-based missiles capable of delivering 5,678 warheads. The Soviet air force has 145 aged bombers with only 290 warheads, and the navy has 84 missile subs with 2,813 warheads.

"On balance," President Reagan concluded last year, "the Soviet Union does have a definite margin of superiority."

Many specialists say "superiority" is a meaningless word when each side has enough warheads to annihilate the other several times over.

But strategists are concerned about one frailty in the U.S. armor: the potential for a Soviet "first strike."

"The Soviet Union has enough missiles, with enough warheads, with enough yield, with enough accuracy, to destroy our Minuteman missiles in their silos," was how Lehman summed it up in an interview.

The theory is that the Soviets' preponderance in land-based missiles, with up to 10 warheads each, gives them a unique edge:

In a pre-emptive attack, using barely one-third of the warheads from their SS-18s and other missiles, they could knock out 90 percent or more of U.S. land-based ICBMs in their relatively weak silos.

Deprived of their strongest weapons, U.S. leaders then would be unable to mount an effective counter-strike against Soviet military targets. They would have to choose between retaliating with less accurate submarine missiles against Soviet cities, or surrendering. Retaliation would bring a further attack destroying U.S. cities. Surrender would halt the lethal escalation after the first step.

Many analysts say the Soviet leadership would never risk a first strike. But the theoretical potential remains, and the Reagan administration is grappling with the quandary in two ways, at the negotiating table and in the military budget.

In the Geneva negotiations, the opening U.S. proposal would slash the Soviet advantage in land-based missiles. It would cut both sides' missile-launched warheads by about one-third to 5,000, and for setting a limit of 2,500 on the number of land-based warheads.

A key reason the U.S. Senate did not ratify the last U.S.-Soviet arms limitation pact — the SALT II treaty of 1979 — was that it did little

Israelis prepared to disregard troop agreement

JERUSALEM (AP) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir warned today that Israel will disregard its troop-withdrawal agreement with Lebanon and "act as it sees fit" if Syria and the PLO refuse to pull their soldiers out of Lebanon.

Shamir told Parliament the agreement would be signed "in the coming days" by both Israel and Lebanon. But if Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization refuse to withdraw their forces, he said, "the agreement will be considered suspended. Israel will be free to act as it sees fit and according to its interests."

Shamir spoke to Parliament to blunt criticism of the accord, worked out by Secretary of State George P. Shultz in two weeks of shuttle diplomacy. A vote on the pact is expected in Parliament next week.

Opposition Labor Party

leader Shimon Peres charged that the government had bungled both last year's invasion of Lebanon and the troop-withdrawal negotiations. Peres said his party would not support an agreement that "perpetuates illusions and ignores reality."

Although the clauses of the pact have been widely publicized, Shamir's speech contained the first official version of them.

He said the agreement began by declaring "the end of the state of war" and recognition by each country of the other's territorial integrity. It bans hostile propaganda and exploitation of either country's territory for terrorist actions. He said leaves no room for formal negotiations on trade and border crossings six months after Israel's withdrawal, but in the meantime the border traffic, which began shortly after Israel's invasion last June, will continue, Shamir said.

Shamir said Syria's "extreme statements" denouncing the agreement "have no factual basis."

On Tuesday, Shultz called on Moscow to urge the withdrawal of its Syrian allies from Lebanon, but Western diplomats in Damascus said Syria is apt to demand major concessions before obliging.

Syria has not detailed its conditions for pulling out of Lebanon, but the diplomats said Damascus probably would demand guarantees against possible Israeli attacks in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

Appleton retreat speaker

Former Outland Trophy winner and All-America football player from The University of Texas Scott Appleton will be the featured speaker at the First Christian Church's Annual Men's Retreat this Saturday and Sunday. Also on tap for the event is Hereford's own singing evangelist Johnny Ray Watson.

Appleton will also speak at the church's regular morning worship services Sunday, at 10:50 a.m.

The 41 year-old former Texas Longhorn was an All-State griddler at Brady in 1959-60, and won his All-America honors at UT in 1963, the year he won the Outland Trophy, signifying him as the nation's outstanding lineman.

After playing for the National Champion Longhorns in 1963, he later played professional football for the Houston Oilers, San Diego Chargers, and Oakland Raiders. He is currently the South Texas Representative for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Appleton has a story to tell in his fall from the top as the nation's top collegiate lineman and a sure-bet prospect to a battle with alcohol, which eventually cost him his job, his home, and his family.

Broken and desperate, Appleton turned to a physician for help with his drinking problems, and the doctor had him contact Jimmy Allen, pastor of the First Baptist Church of San Antonio.

Number of students up from 1982

Enrollment in Hereford public schools was reported at 4,727 Monday, an increase of 33 students over the same date a year ago.

A breakdown revealed 488 students in kindergarten and special education, 2,185 in elementary schools, 1,122 in junior high, and 932 in high school.

Alkman had 370 in grades 1-4 and 136 in 4 and 5-year-old kindergarten; Bluebonnet had 362 and 11 in kindergarten; Northwest had 414 and 30 in kindergarten; Shirley had 309 and 44 in kindergarten and special ed; Tierra Blanca had 325 and 139 in kindergarten and special ed; West Central had 405 and 33 in kindergarten.

Much thought went into hiring of HISD assistant for curriculum

The Hereford School Board's decision Monday night to appoint an assistant superintendent for curriculum apparently came after much thought and consideration on the future course of the district's learning system.

Sallie Strain, board president, said the school district has made much progress in the past few years, "but I don't think we're doing our students nor our taxpayers justice if we don't have someone directly responsible for the curriculum."

Supt. Harrell Holder pointed out that the assistant superintendent's post had totally disappeared in 1976 when Jim Holmes left the system. "When I was hired, the board and I discussed the possibility of hiring a curriculum director and the board seemed committed to the idea."

Holder said the district had two assistants at that time, both on the business side and it seemed logical to him to wait for attrition. Upon the death of Bill Phillips, longtime business manager, the position was not filled and central office staff members absorbed the responsibilities.

Holder said a curriculum director is needed in view of developing educational concepts. "The Texas Assessment of Basic Skills tests are helping us locate strengths and weaknesses in our teaching. The National Commission on Excellence in Education has issued a harsh criticism of schools and is expected to come forward with recommendations for improving educational opportunities for students. This issue cannot be successfully dealt with without a dedicated effort by the school and community."

Walch, high school principal for the past two years, will assume the assistant superintendent's post July 1. Holder said he is talking to people in the system about replacing Walch at high school.

Walch is a native of Fredricksburg. He attended Schreiner College and graduated cum laude from St. Edward's University in Austin in 1970. He earned his master's degree at Western Texas State University.

In the barbershop, a teacher described the excitement at school when classes were dismissed for vacation. "There was foot stomping, wall banging and all sorts of rejoicing," he said.

"Real wild, eh?" asked the barber. "Yeah," said the teacher, "and that was only in the teacher's lounge."

Hereford's School Board may have taken a giant step forward in the local education system Monday night. At least, that's the opinion of Sallie Strain, board president, and other trustees.

The board authorized a new position of assistant superintendent for curriculum, then named high school principal John Walch to assume the post. Mrs. Strain says the action evolved from the board's study on evaluation of administrators—a move mandated by the Legislature.

"I have seen the need for a curriculum director since being elected to the board seven years ago," stated Mrs. Strain. "After all, 80 percent of our budget has to do with instruction, and it is logical that someone should be in charge of developing and improving that area."

What the trustees apparently have in mind is the installation of a learning system—one that determines a student's strong and weak points and strives to enhance the one and improve the latter.

The secret to the success of the program, of course, lies in the acceptance and support of the teachers.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery go to Juanita Hershey, who sustained a broken hip Saturday. Much to our dismay, the accident occurred when Mrs. Hershey came to The Brand office to renew her subscription. The fall didn't faze Mrs. Hershey—she wrote out a check for her renewal while sitting on the floor waiting for the ambulance!

Horace and Juanita were recognized as Pioneers of the Year in 1981. He came to Hereford in 1910 and later graduated from Hereford High School and then Texas Tech. Mrs. Hershey came here in 1929.

The Hersheys have always been very supportive of the newspaper. When asked how long they had been subscribers of The Brand, Horace replied: "I don't remember when we didn't take The Brand!"

Senate nearing budget showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-led Senate is nearing a showdown on budget plans settling whether taxes should rise significantly next year and curbing the pace of President Reagan's proposed defense buildup.

After nearly two weeks of intensive maneuvering, the budget fight was close to a resolution today.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., was reportedly set to test rival Republican budget plans, one reluctantly supported by Reagan and another which would permit a $300 cap on this year's 10 percent income tax cut.

At issue in the budget fight is whether the sharply-rising federal deficits must be met with increased taxes, or whether the economic recovery should be allowed to continue without any additional federal revenues, despite the deficits expected to approach $200 billion for

Parents urged to prepare for senior prom

Parents of Hereford High School seniors who would like to help prepare the Community Center for the senior prom are invited to come during scheduled work times, from 3 to 11 p.m. Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday, or 8:30 a.m. until finished on Saturday.

The senior prom is scheduled Saturday evening at the Community Center.

Liver patient dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Thirteen-month-old Brandon Hall, the world's youngest double liver transplant recipient, died today of cardiac arrest, a hospital spokesman said.

Brandon died at 3:30 a.m. with his mother at his side, said John Donica, a spokesman for Le Bonheur Children's Medical Center.

The child's mother, Billie Hall of Walnut, Miss., told hospital officials afterward she wanted "to thank the news media and the American people for their support and prayers," Donica said. "She knew Brandon would not have received two livers without their help."

Mrs. Hall has donated her son's cornea to an eye bank in Memphis, Donica said. Plans for funeral services were pending, and Mrs. Hall asked that in lieu of flowers, memorial donations be made to the Children's Liver Research Fund at LeBonheur.

Brandon, who would have been 14 months old Thursday, had been on a respirator for nearly a month and since May 2 doctors had been saying his chances for survival were slim.

Born without bile ducts and his liver unable to filter poisons from his body, the boy underwent his first transplant April 13-14 at the University of Tennessee's William F. Bowld Hospital. A clogged artery caused the first donor organ to fail and surgeons performed a second liver transplant April 22.

Between those two operations, the 18-pound boy had surgery to stop internal bleeding.

The child's heart stopped twice during the first transplant, a 12-hour procedure, and doctors said his lungs were irreversibly damaged.

His second donor liver functioned normally but Brandon experienced continuing lung problems that made his breathing labored and prevented enough oxygen from reaching his blood.

Brandon first gained nationwide attention when he and his mother appeared before a House subcommittee in Washington, D.C., on April 13. Mrs. Hall testified about the plight of people needing organ transplants.

She and her son left the hearing for a commercial flight back to Memphis, and Brandon underwent his first transplant 18 hours after his visit to Washington.

Mrs. Hall, 38, is separated from her husband and unemployed.

Residents of her hometown, about 75 miles from Memphis, raised $90,000 for Brandon's medical bills, which could total $300,000.

'God Bless America' composer turns 95

NEW YORK (AP) — Irving Berlin, composer of such enduring tunes as "God Bless America" and "White Christmas," marked his 95th birthday today.

His daughters, grandchildren and friends were to celebrate the day at the Algonquin Hotel.

Berlin sends all of the proceeds of "God Bless America," a song made famous by singer Kate Smith, and songs from the World War II movie "This is the Army," to the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of America.

He donated $10 million made from "This is the Army" to the Army Relief Fund.

Hal David, president of the American Society of Composers and Publishers, said Berlin, composer of more than 100 songs, is synonymous with American music throughout the world.

Berlin was born in Russia in 1888 and came to the United States with his parents, Moses and Leah Baline, in 1893.

He spends most of his time at his estate in the Catskills and his Bickman Place home.

Midland radio stations offer 'Topsy Taxi' rides

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — If you're too drunk drive but still want one for the road, two radio stations here are offering to pay the taxi fare home.

It's called the Topsy Taxi program.

George M. Bakke, president and general manager of KMND and KNFM radio stations, said Tuesday the program was designed by station personnel to encourage drunken drivers to stay off Midland and Odessa highways.

"In no way are we taking a position, pro or con, to drinking," Bakke said, adding was a "fact of social life."

Topsy Taxi, he said, came about because of the station's concern about increased instances of driving while intoxicated in both Ector and Midland counties.

He said posters will be displayed in area nightclubs announcing the program and urging bar patrons to call the stations to arrange for the free taxi ride home.

The station will spend $500 providing 80 to 100 rides a month and said he hoped bar owners will help pick up the tab once the service is established, Bakke said.

Bakke cited Texas Department of Public Safety statistics indicating that drunken driving caused 21 traffic deaths last year in both Ector and Midland counties.

Taxpayers pay nearly $1 million in 1983 to prosecute the estimated 1,350 DWI arrests made in the two counties, Bakke said.

Police, FBI have no clue in baby kidnapping

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A suburban Fort Worth couple say a woman masquerading as a nurse talked them into letting her show off their 7-week-old daughter and then made off with the infant.

Police and FBI agents launched a search for the baby, Cherie Ann Marshall, after the woman kidnapped her from John Peter Smith Hospital hospital about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, authorities said.

The parents gave the infant to the woman after she told them she wanted to show their daughter "to the other nurses on the floor," hospital spokeswoman Sally Blaydes said.

"They assumed she was a nurse," Ms. Blaydes said, adding that the suspect was not an employee of the hospital.

"We expect to be working on it for some time," said Police Lt. L.A. Sager. "We have some leads, but not much."

The baby was taken to the hospital about 8:30 a.m. for a routine examination, Ms. Blaydes said.

"They brought Cherie for a routine six-week check-up and they had seen a doctor and had gone back to the waiting area," Ms. Blaydes said.

She said that while the parents, Andrew, 23 and Penny, 21, of Forest Hills, were waiting, a woman wearing all white and "looking like a nurse" began to befriended the couple.

Afterwards, the parents took the baby back into the doctor's office for an immunization shot. They came out at about 11:30 a.m. and routinely waited to see if Cherie had an allergic reaction to the shot. The woman came up to them again, Ms. Blaydes said.

"She asked them if she could show the baby to the other nurses on the floor — that's another reason they assumed she was nurse," Ms. Blaydes said.

Inmate accused of trying to hire killing of brother

HOUSTON (AP) — A jail inmate offered to pay $2,000 for the nitroglycerin poisoning of his brother, a fellow inmate in the Harris County Jail, authorities allege.

Edward LeBlanc, 28, was indicted Tuesday on charges that he tried to buy the killing of his 35-year-old brother, Gary LeBlanc, the killing allegedly was to have been carried out Thursday, prosecutor Kay Burkhalter said.

No bond was set on the murder solicitation charge, which carries a sentence of up to 99 years or life in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Both brothers are jailed on capital murder charges stemming from the November 1980 slaying of Robert Howard, a Brown & Root Inc. employee, Ms. Burkhalter said.

Gary LeBlanc, a Channelview electrician, cooperated with investigators in that slaying, she said. He was allegedly hired by Edward, a transmission repairman, to carry out that killing. The brothers were arrested in March.

West Dallas residents concerned about children's contamination

DALLAS (AP) — People on Delhi Street have become accustomed to the poverty stretching across the eight-block area of public housing in the West Dallas neighborhood.

But residents are increasingly confused and worried about reports that their children have high-levels of lead contamination.

The Dallas Times Herald reported Tuesday that 10 of the 15 preschool children identified in a recent Environmental Protection Agency study suffering from lead toxicity live on Delhi street, on the southwest corner of the West Dallas project.

The lead emissions are drifting from the nearby smelting at the RSR Corp. smelter plant.

Residents say they have known for years their children are sick more often than normal, but add they have received little attention outside the neighborhood and don't know what to do about it.

"It seems serious, but I don't know if it's dangerous enough to where everybody should move or not," said

Joyce Brown, the mother of two affected children on Delhi Street. "I just don't know."

The Times Herald reported that no other Dallas street where blood tests for lead have been conducted came near Delhi Street in the number of children found to have potentially harmful levels of lead.

Dallas health officials had not plotted blood tests by address until asked to do so by the newspaper.

Dallas Housing Authority officials, who have begun relocating residents living across from the smelter, said they were not aware of the high concentration of affected children.

"The relationship between soil and blood levels is long-established. This (the number of affected children on Delhi Street) just confirms the problem I've thought existed all along," said Dr. Ruben Meyer, a professor of pediatrics at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

The most recent soil tests on Delhi Street indicate the lead contamination there exceeds the 1,000 parts per million considered safe by the EPA.

Since the EPA test results starting coming in last summer, city health officials have mailed three letters to the parents of children with elevated blood lead levels since the EPA results starting coming in. The letters advised them to seek medical treatment.

However, residents say they are confused by both the letters and test results, saying they've been given little help in understanding the health risk.

Only half the children with elevated lead levels have shown up for follow-up treatment, according to doctors at Southwestern Medical School where the parents were told to take their children.

Despite the low turnout, health officials are making no further efforts to locate the affected children, the Times Herald reported.

Ector County assessor indicted for embezzlement

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Ector County Tax Assessor-Collector Curtis Winn says he doesn't understand why he has been indicted in the alleged embezzlement of thousands of dollars in automobile license fees from his office.

One of three sealed indictments handed down by an Ector County grand jury Tuesday charges the long-time county official with one count of misapplication of more than $10,000 in fiduciary funds.

District Attorney Mike Holmes, who has estimated that as much as $50,000 in fees may have been taken from the tax office, said the grand jury had been investigating Winn's office for than two months.

"I do not understand the indictment," Winn said in a telephone interview Tuesday night. "The charges against me are not true. I've got nothing more to say at this point except that I will defend myself."

Winn said March 31 that he discovered one of his employees was embezzling state fees for motor vehicle registration renewal stickers issued in his office, and predicted Tuesday that the other indictments would name two of his workers.

Those indictments had not yet been unsealed Tuesday night, Holmes said.

Winn, who has been tax collector since 1961, surrendered at the Ector County Jail Tuesday afternoon and was released on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

The second-degree felony he faces carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Holmes also filed a civil lawsuit asking for Winn's temporary suspension. A hearing is set for Friday on the action.

The grand jury had been meeting to investigate the embezzlement charges "off and on for about 70 days," Holmes said. He declined to discuss the case further.

The state comptroller's office, which has audited the tax office's motor vehicle division books, also began a routine audit last week of property tax records in Winn's office, a spokesman for the agency said.

Bob Bain, a special assistant at the comptroller's office in Austin, said investigators "were already there," and that Winn's office was picked for an audit "more or less at random."

Amendment offers housing loans for veterans

AUSTIN, Tex. — Texas veterans will now have the opportunity to purchase a home through the Veterans Housing Assistance Program if it is approved by voters as a constitutional amendment in November, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced. The legislature completed action Tuesday on a measure which will provide a loan of up to $20,000 for eligible Texas veterans to purchase a house.

"The Texas Legislature, Governor Mark White, Lieutenant Governor Billy Hobby and Speaker of the House Gib Lewis have shown the veterans and the people of this state that we need a modern housing program which will not cost the taxpayers of this state one cent," Mauro stated.

The proposed constitutional amendment will allow for the sale of $500 million in bonds for the Texas Veterans Housing Assistance Program and from the establishment of the Texas Veterans Housing Assistance Program. "Existing lending institutions will administer the housing program so we will not have to create another state agency or bureaucracy."

"As I stated during the campaign and continue to state while in office, we don't need to do the veterans a favor, just repay one," Mauro concluded.

Budget

Specifically, the five moderates would allow defense spending to go up 6 percent next year, compared with 7.5 percent urged by Republican leaders and tacitly accepted by Reagan, whose original Pentagon budget called for a 10 percent increase.

Baker hopes the defeat of the moderates' plan will force all or most of the 54 Senate Republicans to loyally fall in line behind a high-deficit, nominal taxes alternative plan proposed by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

Under that proposal, drafted by five Republican holdouts, an additional $14 billion in new taxes would be raised next year, and defense spending would increase below what the president insists is necessary for national security.

There are also fundamental disagreements over how fast U.S. strategic weapons programs must rise to offset a continuing Soviet buildup.

Sources who spoke on condition they not be identified said Baker would gamble that the partial repeal of the tax cut would fail.

Under that proposal, drafted by five Republican holdouts, an additional $14 billion in new taxes would be raised next year, and defense spending would increase below what the president insists is necessary for national security.

Jogging congressman dashes away from would-be mugger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas congressman was accosted by a knife-wielding mugger in Washington's fashionable Foggy Bottom area, but said Tuesday that he escaped by shoving a shopping bag at the man and fleeing, in his jogging shoes, into the street.

"I just thought I had a pretty good chance of getting away from there," said Democratic Rep. Bill Patman, 56, an ex-Marine who keeps fit by jogging several times a week.

Patman became the latest in a series of congressmen who have been threatened, assaulted or robbed over the years, in a city where the crime rate is a source of constant concern.

"I just thought really (that) those things were exaggerated," said Patman, who is from Ganado, a community of about 1,600 in southeast Texas. "But you get a different perspective when even one individual pulls a knife on you."

Patman said the incident occurred shortly before midnight on Saturday, April 30, as he returned home after working late at his office on Capitol Hill.

He took a subway to Foggy Bottom and began walking the several blocks to his apartment, when he noticed a man following about five feet behind.

The man wore a white knit shirt and by every appearance was "a clean-cut, nice-looking kid," Patman said. Patman let him pass, then crossed the street. Suddenly, at the end of the block, "he was there again," Patman said.

"Then he was at my side, or was right behind me, and said, 'Mister, I've got a blade,' Patman said. Patman turned and saw the knife.

"He had it with the blade down, as I recall," Patman said. "I could see the blade very clearly. It looked like it was pretty sharp."

Patman recalled the man saying, "Now mister, I don't want to kill you, but it's your life. And it might mean a life sentence to me, but it's your life and I want you to calm down."

Patman, who had been jogging that afternoon and still wore his jogging shoes, carried a plastic shopping bag filled with newspapers and papers from the office. He pulled the bag up between them as they continued to talk.

Finally, Patman decided to make a break for it.

"And so I just pushed the newspapers and things I had toward him, turned and sprinted between two of these parked cars and got into the street," Patman said. There Patman encountered a motorist who had stopped to investigate, and the mugger fled into the subway station.

Patman said police were still looking for his assailant. Meanwhile, Patman said he's making some changes in his lifestyle as a result of the incident — changes that he deeply resents.

"I'm not really going to feel good about staying down here

JOHN BILBREY
PLAINVIEW — Services for The Rev. John Thomas Bilbrey, 85, of Plainview will be at 3 p.m. today in Date Street Baptist Church in Plainview with the Rev. A.C. Hamilton of Finney Baptist Church and the Rev. Bruce Keller of Northside Baptist Church officiating.

Burial will be in Plainview Cemetery by Wood-Dunning Funeral Home.

Mr. Bilbrey died Monday. He was born in Callahan County and was reared in Kent and Dickens County. He moved to Plainview in 1944 from Bledsoe.

He attended Wayland Baptist College and was a pastor in Hereford, Floydada, Rails, and Crosbyton, retiring in 1956. He returned to Plainview in 1962. He was a member of Date Street Baptist Church.

He married Mary Lee Tisdale in 1918 in Crosby County. She died in 1980.

Survivors include three daughters, a sister, eight grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren, and a great-great-grandchild.

Nuke

about the Soviet numerical edge in land-based warheads.

While the diplomats work on a "build-down," the Pentagon planners press ahead with the buildup — the new intercontinental B-1 bomber, new nuclear-powered aircraft carriers and two new-generation missiles, the land-based MX and the submarine-launched Trident II.

The MX, on the drawing board for a decade, will be the world's deadliest ICBM — 10 warheads carrying the equivalent of the SS-18's megatonnage but with twice the accuracy. The Trident II will be accurate enough to make it the first "silobusting" submarine missile, capable of dead-eye strikes against enemy missile bases.

Such technological leaps have outstripped the traditional nuclear strategy of "MAD" — "mutual assured destruction," the stalemate supposedly achieved by each superpower's knowledge that attacking the other would invite reciprocal catastrophe.

Today's accurate nuclear

"bullets" allow strategists to instead contemplate wars waged through "counterforce" strikes against military targets and "decapitation" of command centers, with relatively limited damage to society at large.

The chess game that results — of intricate moves and counter-moves, revolutionary new weapons systems and their counter-systems — deepens the uncertainties of the nuclear standoff.

The MX illustrates the dilemmas.

At first, 200 of the missiles were to be based in some kind of mobile or other innovative system that would make the MX a "survivable" replacement for the vulnerable Minuteman. But Congress was unconvinced by proposed basing plans, and now the Reagan administration favors simply placing 100 MXs in Minuteman silos, still susceptible to a first strike.

Critics complain this would make the MX itself useful only in a first strike against the Soviets — to be fired off before they fired first. Matchups of deadly but perishable weapons could force the superpowers to put their missile launch crews on hair-trigger alert, hyper-sensitive in times of international crisis.

In the same way, Reagan's "vision of the future" speech March 23, calling for development of an advanced antimissile defense, shows how technology can swiftly upset global balances. Deploying such a system would open a new track in the arms race, a defensive competition that arms controllers have long sought to suppress.

In Washington, Reagan's Democratic opponents accuse him of a wrong-headed approach to arms control, or of the ulterior motive of seeking untrammelled military superiority.

Says Paul C. Warnke, chief arms negotiator in the Carter administration, "The prevailing view in the (Reagan) administration is that our security is advanced by continuing the nuclear arms competition, rather than by stopping it."

To Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a supporter of the nuclear "freeze" movement, Reagan's professed policy of building up arms in order to later to reduce them is "voodoo arms control."

The president shows little patience for those who advocate freezing the superpowers' nuclear arsenals at current levels.

"A freeze now would be a very dangerous fraud," he said in March. "...The reality is that we must find peace through strength."

"The real issue is, how do you maintain the deterrent over the years?" Lehman asked. "I'm constantly thinking 10 years down the road. That's what you have to do in this business, you have to be thinking, 'Where will this all take us?'"

At the moment, it is taking the United States and its newest class of weapons to the heart of Europe. And the climax will come not in years, but in months.

ble studies, which Appleton hated at first. "It was something I wasn't interested in, but he was persistent and I was desperate," Appleton said. "I was so desperate that I'd try anything whether I liked it or not. I felt the world had given up on me."

After a few months of Bible study, and "a lot of people praying for me," Appleton was "totally set free from alcohol addiction."

He later worked with a mission in San Antonio, which is a restaurant run by the church, and proceeds from which provide meals for 50 transients per day at another mission.

The ex-pro grinner now spends more and more time traveling for speaking engagements.

"I'm doing more and more preaching, although I dislike the word because it doesn't seem very natural to me," he said. "I testify to the reality of Christ and His experience in my life."

Understandably, Appleton still follows football, but is "not a big fan."

"I liked Houston until Bum Phillips left, and I liked the 49ers last year," he said.

The public is invited to come hear Appleton and Watson at the First Christian Church service Sunday.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Congratulations are in order for Gov. Mark White, Sen. Ted Lyon of Rockwall and Rep. Fred Agnich for their successful efforts in passage of the Texas Wildlife Conservation Act of 1983.

Not to be forgotten is Texans for Wildlife Conservation, whose members include the more than 800 sportsmen's clubs in Texas. The group was formed to promote passage of the act, which would not have been possible without their devotion and sacrifice of time and energy.

The act gives the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department statewide authority for wildlife management and eliminates locally specialized wildlife laws previously in effect in 116 Texas counties. The Texas Wildlife Conservation Act at last enables the Parks and Wildlife Department to manage our state's wildlife resources on a scientific basis statewide.

In my opinion, it is the most far reaching wildlife conservation legislation ever passed in the state.

Generations to come of outdoor enthusiasts and sportsmen truly owe Governor White, Senator Lyon, Representative Agnich and Texans for Wildlife Conservation a debt of thanks.

Sincerely,

To Lead Newcomers

Hereford Newcomers Club held election of officers for the coming year when the group met at the E.B. Black House on Tuesday. From left are Tracey Duncan, second vice-president; Darlene McKinney, secretary; Marcie Ginn, president; Sheila Williams, reporter; Kim Brackett, advisor; and Joanne Bone, treasurer. Not pictured is Sharla Nasta, first vice-president.

Newcomers enjoy salad luncheon on Tuesday

A salad luncheon at the E.B. Black House was enjoyed by Hereford Newcomers Club at noon Tuesday.

Officers for the coming year were elected. They include Marcie Ginn, president; Sharla Nasta, first vice-president; Tracey Duncan, second vice-president; Sheila Williams, reporter; Joanne Bone, treasurer; Darlene McKinney, secretary; and Kim Brackett, advisor.

Installation of officers will be held in August. The traveling gift was won by Jan Barnes. The group enjoyed visiting and shared plans for the summer following the meal and election.

Good Timers dance Friday

J.D. Ole of Amarillo was the caller at the Good Timers Square Dance Club meeting held Friday at the Community Center.

President Sonny Evers made several announcements of future dances. The next club dance was scheduled May 20 with Ronnie Woods of Amarillo as caller.

Gid and Juanita Brownnd served refreshments to those present.

L'Allegra members elect officers

Election of officers was held when members of L'Allegra Study Club met recently in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library.

The 1983-84 slate of officers includes president, Betty Martin; vice-president, Janice Carr; recording secretary, Jody Skiles; corresponding secretary, Kitty Gault; treasurer, Susan Perrin.

Others, assistant treasurer, Carolyn Hays; historian, Kay

Lynn Caviness; and parliamentarian, Karen Payne.

Also, during the business meeting, presided over by club president, Karen Payne, it was announced that plans are in the making for the club's participation in the annual Town and Country Jubilee.

Mrs. Rita Welch of Dimmitt provided an entertaining program and demonstration using hats following the business session. She stated that hats are a piece of magic; each hat has its own personality. She named her hats, Sally Super, Peggy Perky, Tammy Timid, Tilly Too Tired and Gertie Glitter. Hostesses, Ms. Skiles and Ms. Carr, served homemade lemon empanados and fresh fruit with juice and coffee to 21 members present.

The first sidewalk in the U.S. was laid in 1657 on a New York thoroughfare called Stone Street.

Carla Hollinger chosen as Mother of the Year

Members of Young Mothers Study Club held their last regular meeting Monday at the Hereford State Bank.

Following a salad supper, past Mother of the Year, Dee Dee Coker, presented the new Mother of the Year, Carla Hollinger, with an engraved gold necklace.

Past President Lisa Blakeley was presented an appreciation gift for her service. New officers were installed including Kathy Boyd, president; Georgia Auckerman, vice-president; Becky Stovall, secretary; and Tracy Coker, treasurer.

Members present were Doris Artho, Pam Wagner, Jo Lynn Schilling, Rochelle Hutchinson, Alice Lockmiller, Janie Poland, Charla Schlabs, Karla Vasek, Tracy Coker, Dee Dee Coker, and Mmes. Boyd, Hollinger, Blakely, and Stovall.

One guest, Lynette Leasure, was in attendance.

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Howell of Bovina announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jacqueline Hale, to Patrick William Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reed of Odessa.

The couple will exchange wedding vows in a private ceremony in the home of the bride's parents on Saturday, May 21. A reception will be held from 2:30-3:30 p.m. at 908 Ave. H. for all friends of the families. No invitations will be sent locally.

Miss Howell, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hale of Hereford and Moss Howell of Sweetwater, is a student at Texas Tech University. The prospective bridegroom is a student at Odessa Junior College and is employed at Sears.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Matlock of Lovington, N.M., and Mrs. Doris Cagle of Hereford announce the recent marriage of their children, Leslye and Gil. Vows were exchanged in Big Spring, where the couple is at home after the wedding. Cagle is employed by Tele-Dyne Corp.

Annual festival scheduled

The Nazareth Annual German Festival has been scheduled from 3-9 p.m. June 25 at the Nazareth School. Cost of booths is $15.

The 8x10 booths will contain a table and chairs. The building will be open at noon for those who will be participating in the bazaar.

Anyone interested in participating may contact Lucille Drerup at (806) 945-2562 or Rose Mary Wilhelm at (806) 945-2583.

A German sausage meal will be served in the late afternoon and the festival will end with a dance that evening.

Officers elected

Members of St. Anthony's Women's Organization met recently to elect new officers for 1983-84.

Elected as president was Virginia Artho; first vice-president, Valeria Artho; second vice-president, Elaine McNutt; secretary, Nancy Caperton; treasurer, Regina Warren; reporter, Opal Blakely, and parliamentarian, Chris Artho.

The yearly reports were given by the chairmen of each unit.

Hearing on aging slated in Dimmitt

Members of the Panhandle Area Agency on Aging Advisory Council will conduct a hearing concerning the needs of the elderly in Dimmitt on Wednesday, May 25. The hearing will be held in the Castro County Senior Citizens Center from 1:30 until 3:30 p.m.

Edward Freeman, chairman for the hearing, said the Council "wants to hear from anyone who has an opinion about the needs and problems of elderly citizens. Of course, that means we want to hear

Organization holds covered dish supper

Patriarchs Militant and Ladies Auxiliary met Friday night for a covered dish supper.

Following the meal, Ada Hollabaugh presided over the business meeting. New rituals were distributed and visit to the sick were counted.

George, a major of Patriarchs Militant, and Carolyn Campbell of Amarillo were in attendance.

Others present were Susie Curtsinger, Anna Conklin, Wilma Wise, Bessie Lawrence, Lydia Hopson, Ruth Rogers, Helen Bishop, Ben Conklin, Charlie Wise, Gene Bishop, and Guy Lawrence.

from senior citizens, too." He commented that "this is the first year Advisory Council members have conducted public hearings for the Area Agency on Aging. I am pleased to be a part of this important process."

The Council members will be accepting both written and oral testimony from the general public, service providers, elected officials and staffs of care facilities. Deadline for written opinions to be received in the Amarillo offices of the PAAA (P.O. Box 9257, Amarillo, 79105) is May 20.

The hearings are scheduled for Dumas, Borger, Dimmitt, Clarendon, and Amarillo, May 23, 24, 25, 27 and 31, respectively. In all but Dumas, they'll be conducted in the senior citizens centers.

After the hearings are completed, the staff of the Panhandle Area Agency on Aging will review all the presentations, both oral and written, in order to plan for the use of state and federal money earmarked for senior citizens programs in the Panhandle area in 1984.

"This hearing will be a very important event for us. We're looking forward to a big turnout," Mr. Freeman said. "It's a chance for those who are concerned about the elderly to have a direct influence on planning in this region."

Residents' daughter named president of Collegiate 4-H

LUBBOCK — Questioning Carla L. West on her interests is the same as asking for a glowing monologue on the attributes of 4-H.

An agricultural economics junior at Texas Tech University, West has spent nine years in 4-H at the junior, senior and now at the collegiate level.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill G. West of Route 4, Hereford, West isn't just interested in the organization—she's dedicated. President of the Texas Tech 4-H chapter, she has been named the first state president of Collegiate 4-H.

"I've spent nine years of my life in 4-H and it's taught me so much. 'Now,' West said, 'I'll have the chance to give something back.'"

Vice-president of the Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences Student Council, West said her 4-H experience, with exposure to many different types of people, has helped develop her personality.

"It also allows a person to achieve something, to work toward a goal and receive positive reinforcement for that work," West said.

A 1974 clothing project was West's first experience with 4-H. She later stitched her way to the state dress review. In 1978 her record book took first in state competition, allowing her to advance to the national contest in Chicago, Ill. She has also achieved a first place status in the 4-H food show.

Dr. William F. Bennett, agricultural sciences associate dean for resident instruction, said, "It's very pleasing to us that one of our students could achieve statewide recognition for her past and current 4-H work."

West's leadership roles in 4-H have included chairing clinics, judging local food shows and dress review and serving on the District 1 4-H Council as vice chairman and member of the Texas 4-H Council.

This year she will journey around the state promoting Collegiate 4-H at Texas colleges and universities. Organizing state officer retreats will be another duty. The role of Collegiate 4-H, as West sees it, is in its service to local junior and senior clubs. "Sometimes children and teen-agers are more receptive to what a college student, rather than an adult, has to say. I guess it's because we haven't quite reached that authority figure status but yet we're old enough to know something."

For "knowing something" the former home economics major was named a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, a home economics scholastic honorary. She is also an Agri-Techsan and member of the campus Agricultural Economics Association.

John M. Dillingham, Texas Tech agricultural education faculty member and 4-H adviser, said membership in the campus Collegiate 4-H has more than doubled since West became president of the local club.

"She really set a fire under us all," Dillingham said. "This year we held a showmanship clinic for District 2 and more than 200 children showed up. She also was the driving force behind a Halloween mixer which allowed the Campus' Collegiate FFA, Agricultural Communications and 4-H members to get to know each other and what each group is about."

Ann Landers

Facts about smoking

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This morning, as usual, I was awakened by my husband's cough that sounds as if it starts in his ankles. He has been smoking cigarettes (two or three packs a day) since he was 15. His teeth are yellow. His clothes are full of holes and last year he set the bed on fire.

I need to know the answer to some questions. Please check with your experts. Maybe he will listen to them. He sure doesn't listen to me.

- (1) Has it been proven scientifically that cigarettes cause lung cancer?
- (2) Are any cigarettes safe to smoke? If so, which ones?
- (3) Is marijuana safer to smoke than tobacco?
- (4) Do nonsmokers ever get lung cancer?
- (5) What kind of people smoke?

- (6) Is the number of smokers in the U.S. growing?
- (7) How many smokers would like to quit?
- (8) Do any succeed?
- (9) Once a person stops smoking, can he take a cigarette occasionally?
- (10) Are children of smokers affected?—Married To A Chimney

DEAR MARRIED: As a board member of the National Cancer Institute as well as the American Cancer Society, I have access to the most recent facts and figures. The answers to your questions came from those sources.

- (1) Yes, cigarettes cause lung cancer. They are the major cause of cancer in the U.S.
- (2) No cigarette is safe to smoke.
- (3) Marijuana contains more tar than tobacco. Pot smokers inhale deeply. It is considered by experts more carcinogenic than tobacco.

(4) Yes, nonsmokers can get lung cancer, but it is comparatively rare.

(5) The best-educated and most successful segment of society has the fewest smokers. The quit rate has been highest among doctors, dentists and teachers.

(6) The number of smokers is decreasing, especially among adult males.

(7) Surveys show that 85 percent of those who smoke would like to quit.

(8) Every year nearly 2 million Americans do stop smoking. (Sometimes it takes a heart attack.)

(9) Smokers, like drinkers, cannot safely take one cigarette occasionally without the risk of getting hooked again.

(10) Children of smokers have twice as much pneumonia and bronchitis. They also have more tonsil and adenoid operations than children of nonsmokers.

DEAR ANN: I think it was my husband who wrote and complained about me undressing in the closet. I would like to remind him that on our honeymoon 30 years ago he told me my legs were too short and my ankles were too thick.

Ten years later he said my rear end was flat, my elbows were knobby and my neck wasn't long enough. Another five years and my skin was saggy, my belly protruded. If that's not enough to put a woman in the closet, what is?—San Diego.

DEAR S.D.: So now he knows. And I'll bet you feel better after unloading. Thanks for writing.

The Hot Dog Vendor

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs. He sold very good hot dogs. He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried: "Buy a hot dog, Mister?" And people bought. He increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He finally got his son home from college to help him out. But then something happened. His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression. The foreign situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse." Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know." So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight. "You're right, son" the father said to the boy. "We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

Tech golf day planned

The annual Red Raider Day in Hereford has been scheduled for Tuesday, May 17, it was announced today by local RR Club representative Dave Hopper.

A contingent of Texas Tech coaches and officials, as well as Lubbock RR Club members, will be special guests for the day. Tech coaches will speak at a dinner event Tuesday evening at Hereford Country Club.

The day starts with a golf tournament at 1:30 p.m. The format will be a Florida scramble with one Tech or Lubbock guest included in each foursome. Entry fee is $30, which includes green and cart fees and a social hour and dinner beginning at 6 p.m.

Hopper urged all interested golfers to sign up at the golf shop by Saturday. Persons wishing to attend the evening function only will be charged $12.50 each. Women are welcome.

Hopper emphasized that the event is open to all interested persons. "Naturally, we'd like all Tech exes to attend, but anyone interested in Tech athletics is invited."

He reported that Athletic Director John Conley, head football coach Jerry Moore and basketball coach Gerald Myers have all indicated they plan to attend Hereford's Red Raider Day. A number of other coaches and Raider officials will also be on hand.

The event had originally been scheduled for May 24, but the local committee did not want to compete with the Hereford Whitefaces' spring football game. Some Tech coaches were also going to be at a SWC meeting that day, said Hopper.

Taylor invited to play in Greenbelt Bowl

Brian Taylor, Hereford High's outstanding male athlete this year, has been selected to play in the annual Greenbelt Bowl football game Aug. 5 in Childress.

Taylor was an all-district (3-5A) selection at split end and a starter in three sports (football, basketball, and baseball) for the Whitefaces as a senior.

He also was Hereford's outstanding baseball player, winning the media award at the recent all-sports banquet.

The fleet wide receiver caught 20 passes for 503 yards and seven touchdowns last season as the Whitefaces logged an 8-2 record.

While Taylor has not signed a football letter of intent yet, he presently is considering offers from McMurry College and Cisco Junior College.

According to head track coach Danny Haney, only Alfred Ball has signed a letter of intent to play football. Ball, the Whitefaces' leading rusher last year and a regional track qualifier in the 300 intermediate hurdles, has signed with Cisco JC.

Spurs trip Lakers, 122-113

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs went quickly, and quietly, in last year's National Basketball Association Western Conference championship series. That won't be the case this year.

George Gervin scored 22 of his game-high 32 points in the second half and Artis Gilmore and Mike Mitchell came through with powerful performances Tuesday night as the Spurs whipped the defending NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers 122-113.

The Spurs, who were beaten by the Lakers in four straight games in the Western Conference final a year ago, are even with Los Angeles 1-1 in the current best-of-seven series.

And what's more, the Spurs have taken the home-court advantage away from the Lakers. Three of the remaining five games of the series, if that many are required, will be played in San Antonio.

"They came in here and accomplished what they wanted to do," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley, referring to the fact that the Spurs got a split in the two games at the Forum. "Now we have to go to San Antonio and accomplish what we want to do, which is to win one or both of the games."

going to be easy. This is going to be a tough series, it's going to go six or seven games."

The third and fourth games of the series will be played Friday night and Sunday afternoon, respectively, in San Antonio.

Gervin was sensational in the second half despite picking up his fourth foul after just 3:27 of the third quarter. It seemed to inspire him as he scored 16 points in the period, making all seven of his field goal attempts and adding a pair of free throws.

Gervin also had to contend with foul problems throughout the series opener on Sunday, which the Lakers won 119-107.

"The ball felt like a baseball tonight when I got it going," said Gervin. "The key was the overall effort of the team, not my scoring."

"We have to go home and play. We are in a position to take control."

Gilmore, limited to seven points and six rebounds while playing only 32 minutes in the opener, was a different player in the second game. Free of the foul difficulties that plagued him throughout the first game, the 7-foot-2 San Antonio center scored 27 points, grabbed 20 rebounds and blocked five shots Tuesday night.

"Obviously, I thought the most important thing was to stay out of trouble," said Gilmore, who fouled out with 5:18 left in the first game. "I was able to get position tonight. That was the big difference."

Will forgo NBA draft

Akeem opts for UH

HOUSTON (AP) — Akeem Olajuwon, the backbone of the University of Houston's slam dunk, says he'll forgo the National Basketball Association draft and play college basketball at least one more season because he doesn't want to disappoint his parents.

Olajuwon, a 7-foot center from Nigeria, and Cougar forward Clyde Drexler have kept reporters and fans in suspense about their futures since the Cougars bowed to North Carolina State in the NCAA championship game. UH officials scheduled a news conference Thursday afternoon. But Olajuwon decided not to wait and told Houston newspapers in stories published today that he plans to stay in school.

"I can announce it right now," Olajuwon told the Houston Chronicle. "It was a very hard decision. But my parents want me to stay in school. And they were the main part in my decision."

"When I say I'm staying in school, that means I'm not going to enter the NBA draft this year," he said.

Olajuwon, a sophomore, averaged 20 points and 13 rebounds in five NCAA playoff games and earned the Most Valuable Player title in the Final Four.

Drexler, a 6-foot-7 junior, has remained silent about his plans. The deadline for declaring NBA hardship status is midnight Saturday.

In an interview Tuesday with Houston radio station KIKK, Drexler said it would be in Olajuwon's best interests to return to college.

"He needs the maturity, I think. Another year in college would really help him as a person," Drexler said.

Kids Inc. fundraisers to start this Saturday

Kids, Inc., fundraisers, designed to help raise operating funds for this year, will begin Saturday.

The Babe Ruth League boys will sell glass cleaner, beginning Saturday. The cost will be $2.50 per can, or $27 per case (which figures out to $2.25 per can).

The other programs (boys' minor and major league and all girls activities) will sell hand soap, also beginning Saturday. The cost for a 16 oz. pump bottle will be $3.75, and it will come in different fragrances.

Cheeks, Toney make 76ers great

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Even though both are all-stars, Andrew Toney and Maurice Cheeks take back seats on the Philadelphia 76ers.

Moses Malone and Julius Erving received most of the applause, most of the attention and most of the credit for the team's 65-victory season and five straight victories so far in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

But while the 1961 Yankees had superstars Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, they also had Elston Howard and Bobby Richardson to help make a great team a memorable one. And while the Green Bay dynasty teams had Bart Starr and Paul Hornung, they also had Jim Taylor and Willie Davis, who got less acclaim, but may have meant as much to the Packers' success.

So it is on the 76ers, where Erving and Malone have Cheeks and Toney to share the scoring burden and keep other teams from packing inside.

Cheeks, 5-foot-11 and shoelace scrawny, went to college at inappropriately named West Texas State, which is several hundred miles north of North Texas State. One picture dust-blown football fields at West Texas State, not all-star guards like Cheeks, but it was the only school to offer him a scholarship out of high school in Chicago.

Toney, 6-foot-3 with an arrow-straight jump before shooting, is a Birmingham, Ala., native who went to school at Southwestern Louisiana, another football hotbed. Pro football quarterbacks Bert Jones, Joe Ferguson and Terry Bradshaw all came from that general area.

But Cheeks and Toney are perfect complements in the backcourt, living stereotypes for the basketball terms "point guard" and "shooting guard."

"Maurice can score and Toney can pass, but we are best when Maurice is handling the ball," 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham says. "Whatever the defense gives him is what he is going to take. He doesn't look to create offense for himself. He's our leader. He's more concerned with everyone else fitting in right."

He averaged 12.5 points and 6.9 assists in the regular season, but he has upped those figures to 19.2 and 7.4 in the postseason.

Toney a 19.7 scorer this season, his first as a starter after a spectacular performance in last year's playoffs, missed one of the 76ers-Knicks playoff games and limped through the other three, averaging just nine points.

UIL expects suit over tennis vote

AUSTIN (AP) — The University Interscholastic League has bounced three entrants from this weekend's state tennis tournament after questioning the logic of an unusual bracketing system used in Region I.

UIL Executive Director Bailey Marshall said Tuesday that he expected the disqualified players to file suit.

The UIL state executive committee decided Tuesday that the team of Taylor Fyfe and Blake O'Brien of Amarillo will replace Darren Blum and Robert Rutledge of Lubbock Coronado in Class 5A doubles.

In Class 5A singles, Chad Myrick of Amarillo High will replace Brad Bailey of Lubbock Monterey. In Class 2A singles, Robert Geilhausen of Haskell will replace Shannon Livingston of Marfa.

The panel based its ruling on the premise that the Region I format deviated from its traditional tournament procedure. In the past, the Region I tournament used a common single-elimination format, allowing the regional champion and the runnerup to advance to the state tournament.

But this year, region tennis coaches voted to allow certain once-defeated teams to play the runnerup of the championship match for the No. 2 spot in state competition.

In all three cases, the UIL disqualified the once-beaten athletes and replaced them with the runnersup of the championship matches.

The committee also heard presentations from San Antonio and Corpus Christi regarding the proposed site of the 1984 UIL Region IV competition for golf, tennis, track and literary events.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DOCTOR, HEAL YOURSELF!
Jesus said, "Probably you will quote Me that proverb, 'Physician, heal yourself'--meaning, 'Why don't you do miracles here in your home town like those you did in Capernaum?'
"But I solemnly declare to you that no prophet is accepted in his own home town!
"For example, remember how Elijah the prophet used a miracle to help the widow of Zarephath--a foreigner from the land of Sidon. There were many Jewish widows needing help in those days of famine, for there had been no rain for three and one-half years, and hunger stalked the land; yet Elijah was not sent to them.
"Or think of the prophet Elisha, who healed Naaman, a Syrian, rather than the many Jewish lepers needing help."
These remarks stung them to fury; and jumping up, they mobbed Him and took Him to the edge of the hill on which the city was built, to push Him over the cliff.
But He walked away through the crowd and left them.
Then He returned to Capernaum, a city in Galilee, and preached there in the synagogue every Saturday.
Here, too, the people were amazed at the things He said. For He spoke as one who knew the truth, instead of merely quoting the opinions of others as His authority.
Luke 4:23-32

1982 POLL
At the start of the new year, it's time to officially take note of your opinions about the music of 1982.
The appealing thing about the annual Rock On poll is always its diversity. Nominees varied in style and approach from Dan Fogelberg to David Lee Roth, from the Clash to Air Supply.
All your thoughtful entries were greatly appreciated, even if they did wear out a calculator battery.
The three readers picked from a hat to receive gift albums were: Kim Fitzgerald of Stuarts Draft, Va., Chris Vaughn of Carlsbad, N.M. and James McDonald of Lancaster, Calif.

FOOD PRICES Good and Bad News

SOURCE: Department of Agriculture

NEA/Morris Cecil

Consumers get the bad news at checkout counters that food prices are still edging up. But it could be worse. The rate of increase has been slowing dramatically. The 4 percent increase registered in 1982 was half the 1981 rise. Good weather producing bumper crops was a major reason. The prolonged recession, which cut into purchasing power and reduced demand, also contributed.

To President Reagan

Iowans bring spreader, outhouse, underwear

WASHINGTON (AP) — While House security would not let two Iowa farmers stop and deliver some donated undergarments to President Reagan, but they drove by anyway with their vintage Farmall tractor, outhouse and manure spreader.

"We waved, and I didn't see Mr. Reagan out there waving back," said Pete Brent, 44, of Menlo.

Brent and Tony Bos, 47, of Tracy, then drove to the Agriculture Department on Monday, where they held an open-air news conference across the street from the administration building, which includes the office of Agriculture Secretary John R. Block — who was out of the city.

"Tony and I have lost our farms, and the government keeps putting out these figures and press releases that say there's no problem," Brent said.

The two Iowans said they want Reagan and Congress to "address the problem of an economic depression ... not a recession" by putting into effect some kind of moratorium on debts owed to the Farmers Home Administration, making millions more dollars available for emergency loans, and boosting minimum price supports.

There is a credit bill awaiting action in Congress which supporters say would help ease the FmHA credit pinch but stop short of an across-the-board moratorium.

Brent said they collected undergarments on their 20 mph tractor trip which began April 6 and took them along back roads through Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland. Financing came from contributions along the way, along with food and lodging.

couldn't go in the White House together, we'd just mail them," Brent said.

"If you want to know how many shorts ... you'll have to check with the mail room in the White House."

Soviet grain may exceed 200 million tons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union may produce about 200 million metric tons of grain from this year's harvests, the most since 1978, says the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

But officials cautioned that the forecast was preliminary and could vary substantially as the season progresses. Last year, according to USDA estimates, Soviet grain output was 180 million metric tons, the fourth short crop in a row since the record harvest of 237.4 million tons in 1978.

World grain output, the report said, is expected to total in range of about 1.6 billion to 1.69 billion metric tons.

THE HEREFORD BRAND FARM NEWS

Agricultural exports continue to show stubborn decline

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agricultural exports continue to show a stubborn decline from year-earlier levels, a major hitch in the Reagan administration's plan for recovery in the nation's farm economy.

In March, the export value of farm commodities was $3.2 billion, down 14 percent from the same month a year earlier, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The actual volume of export shipments also declined to 13.5 million metric tons, down 8 percent from a year earlier.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

Looking at the situation over the first six months of the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, the report said exports were valued at $18.1 billion, down 17 percent from the same period in 1981-82.

The actual volume of shipments — 79 million metric tons — was down 7 percent from a year earlier. Department economists estimate that total U.S. farm exports this fiscal year will be about $36.5 billion, down 7 percent from $39.1 billion in 1981-82.

Officials blame large world crop supplies, a depressed global economy, a strong U.S. dollar and competition from major exporters for the reduction.

Until it declined last year, the U.S. farm export value had increased for 12 consecutive years, peaking at a record $43.8 billion in 1980-81. Exports have been a mainstay in administration strategy for putting American farmers on a free-market footing — with a minimum of federal interference and help.

But with two record harvests in succession, the administration was forced to take drastic action to reduce surpluses. Thus, a payment-in-kind program was devised, under which farmers have signed up to take 83 million acres of cropland from production this year.

The latest export report said that the decline in value during March was due mostly to lower prices for wheat and soybeans, compared to March 1982. Corn prices, however, gained in March.

Over the first half of the year, the report said, wheat exports were valued at $3.1 billion, a 23 percent drop from the same six months in 1981-82. Actual volume of shipments, at 19.1 million metric tons, was down 17 percent.

Corn exports in the first six months of the fiscal year totaled 25.8 million tons, down 1 percent. The value was $2.8 billion, down 13 percent.

Soybean shipments in the first half were put at 14.6 million metric tons, up 1 percent from a year earlier. Their value, at $3.3 billion, was down 10 percent, however.

The value of agricultural imports for the first half of this fiscal year was reported at $8.1 billion, up 5 percent from the same period in 1981-82.

"Imports of clover seed totaling $10.3 million posted nearly a tenfold jump in value from March 1982.

Wheat will boom despite cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a sharp cutback in 1983 crop acreages, American farmers are going to harvest a whopper of a wheat crop.

But for the first time farmers will plant more soybeans than corn — which will be the smallest acreage in more than a century.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that this year's production of winter wheat is estimated at 1.89 billion bushels, down 10 percent from last year but still one of the biggest crops on record.

Officials said the reduction is due mainly to the Reagan administration's acreage-cutback program aimed at reducing huge supplies of grain which have weighed heavily on market prices and farm income for the past several years.

Department economists say the cutbacks in grain crops this year will have only "minimal" effects on consumer food prices but indicate that if livestock feed costs rise there could be some impact in 1984.

Last year's winter wheat crop yielded a record 2.11 billion bushels, pushing total wheat production in 1982 to 2.8 billion bushels, the third record harvest in a row.

Even with a 10 percent smaller harvest, winter wheat production in 1983 would be the fourth largest on record.

The report also included updated figures showing how much land farmers intend to plant to other major crops for the 1983 harvest, including: Corn, 58.8 million acres, down 28.2 percent from last year; sorghum, 12 million acres, down 25.6 percent; rice, 2.17 million acres, down 33.9 percent; cotton, 8.13 million acres, down 28.3 percent; and soybeans, 65.8 million acres, down 8.8 percent.

Department officials said the 1983 corn acreage will be the smallest since 1977 and that for the first time on record more acres will be planted to soybeans than to corn.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said he didn't think there were "any really major surprises" in the report except that it may have indicated a larger acreage of feed grains this year than some people had expected.

Soil Stewardship Week observed through Sunday

The Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District is joining the nationwide celebration of Soil Stewardship Week through Sunday. The observance theme is "Living Waters."

Soil Stewardship Week got its roots from France over 1500 years ago. In and around the City of Vienne bad weather, fires, and earthquakes had brought widespread hunger. The Bishop of Vienne called for prayer and penance on the three days preceding Ascension Day to ask for God's help.

The tradition continued, in one form or another. In 1929 the U.S. launched the first Rural Life Sunday. Mr. A.B. Kennedy, editor of the Farm and Ranch Magazine, started a yearly tradition of printing materials for use during this observance. In 1955, due to the widespread observance,

Wheat comment needed by June

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is asking for public comments to help put together the 1984 wheat program, including the possibility of another payment-in-kind feature to cut back on production.

Deputy Secretary Richard E. Lyng said Friday that the statutory deadline for announcing the 1984 program is Aug. 15 but that details will be ready "well in advance of that date to allow farmers additional time to make program decisions."

Lyng said comments should be sent by June 6 to: Director, Analysis Division, USDA-ASCS, Room 3741-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

the National Association of Conservation Districts took over the sponsorship. Today the observance is for one week, starting with the fifth Sunday after Easter.

This year's theme reminds us of the importance of water and our need to do our part in the conservation of this precious resource. We all learned from science class that nature has a way of supplying us with an endless supply of water through the hydrologic cycle. By this mysterious and complex process, the water we contaminate with our wastes and silt, always comes back to us as fresh rainfall. The "Living Water" we receive can repeat its sequence many endless times without losing any of the qualities that make it essential to all life.

Our agriculture area is part of the "bread basket" of the world. We receive our ground water from the Ogallala Aquifer, one of the largest underground water sources in the world by volume. The problem lies in the fact that the geological process that formed the aquifer also cut us off from underground supplies that would have kept our aquifer recharged.

We rely totally on the 20-inch average rainfall we receive each year to recharge our supply. Hydrologists tell us that the aquifer has been dropping at a rate of about three feet a year. The average annual rainfall on the Great Plains is not likely to change much in the next few years. This brings us to the only simple solution, and that is conservation minded and cut our wastes as much as possible.

Many farmers and ranchers in the area have been practicing conservation techniques that conserve most of the rainfall we receive and help to increase

The Sperry New Holland Model 114 pivot-tongue windrower can take on the toughest, thickest, most down and tangled crops you may ever have and slice through them plug-free! Incredible? You bet! Think of the performance the "114" will give in normal crop conditions! The dual-drive, twin-sickle design minimizes header vibration, cuts easier. The floating auger gives the header greater capacity per horsepower than fixed augers. And the performance of the exclusive chevron-designed intermeshing rubber conditioning rolls have proven superiority for over 15 years. If you're shopping for a pivot-tongue windrower, don't get serious until you stop by and let us show you what the "114" can do!

COTULLA, Texas (AP) — The old vaquero, his body arched and sitting a bit off-balance, clings to the young horse that probably was spooked by a rattlesnake.

The bronze vaquero has no name and he's only the figurement of sculptor Charles W. Warden's abundant artistic imagination.

But the old man is as real as you or I to Warden, by profession a senior journeyman at the U.S. Border Patrol station in this small community some 65 miles north of Laredo.

"He represents the King Ranch-type horseman of the late 1800s," explains the lanky Warden.

Holding the bronze sculpture in his hands,

'A Fine Romance' is new project

NEW YORK (AP) — In the pilot for "A Fine Romance," two lovable losers feel it's better to spend Saturday night together than alone.

"We are all we've got," says Laura, played by Julie Kavner from "Rhoda."

"Worth a try?" asks Mike (Leo Burmester) half-heartedly.

"Yeah, it's worth a try," answers Laura, equally uncertain.

CBS is wondering the same thing, deciding whether to start a longer relationship with "A Fine Romance," one of 23 new projects the network is considering for its fall schedule. The decision comes Thursday, when CBS announces the 1983-84 prime-time season.

If this were a 23-horse field, "A Fine Romance" would be a respectable longshot. It's a classy sitcom with genuine warm and funny moments, flowing from the identifiable situation of two wallflowers looking for happiness.

But it doesn't demand to be in the lineup, as does two programs that CBS guaranteed would go to series before a line was written: "Aftermath," starring three members of the war-liberated "M-A-S-H" troupe, and "The Four Seasons," the continuation of Alan Alda's film about friendship.

Nor does it have big-name appeal, as did programs, without pilots, that NBC placed on its schedule two years ago just because the network had contracts with Rock Hudson and James Arness.

But, besides a quality first episode and the promise of more to come, "A Fine Romance" also has in its favor enthusiastic New York programmers. "We have to be internal advocates for the show," says Josh Kane, vice president of CBS' New York program development office.

Of the 74 projects commissioned by the three networks, only "A Fine Romance" was produced in New York.

This week, CBS' programming executives from Los Angeles and New York have been here hammering out next season's lineup.

Border patrolman sculpts tributes

Warden points to the old saddle, the leggings and sombrero and the heavy-footed cross-bred horse typical of Texas.

Long fascinated with the history of the King Ranch and the hardy vaqueros, the majority of whom came from Mexico, Warden's current work in progress is a tribute to that legend.

The old-timer's wrinkled but gentle face was fashioned from Warden's memories of the undocumented aliens that came through here years ago.

"He is gentler and almost courtly, very different from the younger men who came through here now," he remarks.

Warden, 47, began working on "El Vaquero" in November. He admits it's been slow going, but expects to complete the sculpture by mid-April so that he can send it to the Mesa Art Foundry in Center Point for casting.

Warden has had no formal training and he admits with a grin that his first sculpture nine years ago was fashioned from playdough he purchased at the five-and-dime.

Some of his methods are as unorthodox as he is. He's been known to use anything he finds around the house, like a yellow golf tee and piece of screen, as sculpting tools.

The 17-year veteran of the Border Patrol might never have taken up sculpture had he not grown allergic to the turpentine used to clean his art brushes.

Last year, he decided to "stop goofing off" and try to become a "real sculptor," he said.

A keen observer, he does extensive research into what will eventually become a sculpture.

Research on the Northern Plains Indians led to "The Buffalo Dancers." Other pieces depict a Crow warrior, a coyote and even a steer entitled "Corriente."

His bronzes, limited to editions of 20 each, have fetched prices ranging from $380 to $3,500. He hasn't sold many in Texas and finds Oklahomans appreciate his works more.

Most of his work is sold by word-of-mouth.

"Friends will tell someone and that person will tell someone else. I'm very grateful to them," Warden says.

"It takes time to build a reputation in art circles. Sometimes you have to create to suit a particular audience, but I never think about future sales — only what appeals to me."

He's still annoyed at a conversation he had with a New Mexico gallery owner he was trying to convince to sell his works.

The gallery owner admitted Warden's bronzes were first-rate, but said he still was an unknown.

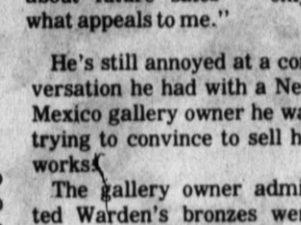

"I'd much rather sell lousy art by a name artist than good art from an unknown," the owner told Warden.

Warden said he has not yet developed a style that will allow people to say "that's a Warden" like they can about a Russell or Remington.

"The quality of my work may change," he says. "After all, I'm still in the learning process."

Hypnotizing smokers

DEAR DR. LAMB — This may seem like a silly question but it is very important to me and many others. We are senior citizens. We are all heavy smokers of many years. We have tried to quit many times but have failed.

A friend of ours told us that she stopped smoking years ago through hypnosis. She said all desire left her immediately and there was never a craving for a cigarette again. This hypnotist advertises in our local papers. We are interested but afraid.

If we decide to after getting your opinion, we will see a hypnotist recommended by our doctor and have it done only under professional supervision. We must quit smoking. We must quit.

DEAR READER — Bless your hearts. I think most people who smoke know that it is bad for their health. The problem for most is being able to quit. Not only does smoking have social and psychological implications but nicotine in tobacco is an addictive drug. You and your friends are drug addicts.

This is not an exaggeration. The role of nicotine in the nervous system is well documented, as are its addictive characteristics.

Hypnotism will help some people stop smoking. It depends a lot on how much the person really wants to stop smoking in the first place. It will not totally remove the desire to smoke, and it will not mean that a person will not have to use will power to stop smoking. Quitting is still an effort.

The one thing you must do is to stop smoking entirely. Tapering off and smoking now and then will not work for most people. The addiction problem is simply kept active by the occasional puff or by tapering off. It takes about two weeks for a person's nervous system to rid itself of nicotine. It never will if you are tapering off. I have discussed the methods recommended to stop smoking in The Health Letter 19-6. The Tobacco Problem, which I am sending for you and your friends to read. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You can contact your county unit of the American Cancer Society. They can tell you what programs are available in your community to help you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had a pterygium for about a year. During this time it has grown from the cornea onto the iris. The first doctor advised surgery in the near future. He said if it continues to grow it would affect my vision. I went to another ophthalmologist and he advised against surgery for now. He said if it grew too much surgery could be done then. Now I am confused. What really causes a pterygium? Do you think surgery is necessary?

DEAR READER — A pterygium is really a fold of conjunctiva and it develops in people who are exposed to chronic conjunctival irritation such as from sun and wind. It is more common in the tropics. It can advance to cover the pupil of the eye and affect vision.

But in the United States they are usually slow-growing and, if slow enough, surgery can be avoided unless you want it done for cosmetic purposes. In other climates, after surgery, the problem recurs, but in the United States it usually responds well to almost any surgical procedure used to remove it. Whether you require surgery or not depends a great deal on its rate of growth and characteristics.
