Reagan in position to secure Contra funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is in a good position to secure release of $40 million in military aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels after weak House approval of a plan to freeze the money for six months.

The House voted 230-196 to block release of the aid until the administration accounts for payments diverted from secret arms sales to Iran, official U.S. aid, and other funds said to have flowed secretly to the Nicaraguan insurgents.

But the tally fell far short of the two-thirds majority needed to sustain a virtually certain presidential veto. Even Democratic leaders predicted the $40 million would shortly be released.

With a certification Reagan made to Congress last week, release of the previously approved $40 million is automatic March 20 if the president prevails.

One key House Republican, Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., asserted the GOP would have won outright had the vote been on a straightforward effort to kill the aid money entirely.

White House spokesman Roland Popiduk told reporters: "There's still the Senate vote and there's also the option of the veto. We're confident that we'll get the $40 million as the process plays itself out."

House Democrats had hoped for a strong vote for the aid freeze to "send a signal" that the $105 million Reagan requested for the Contras for the next fiscal year is in serious trouble and that the time has come for a new U.S. Central American policy that puts emphasis on diplomacy, not military action.

That may still be the case. But Republicans said the 34-vote margin by which the freeze proposal passed the House was too weak to carry such a message.

In Miami, recently resigned Contra leader Arturo Cruz said his departure from the movement did not prompt the House vote.

"The writing was on the wall," he said, noting the certainty of a presidential veto.

The struggle now shifts to the Senate where a vote is set for next week on a resolution to disapprove the aid, originally approved by Congress last year as part of a $100 million assistance package. All but the $40 million has already been dispersed.

Meanwhile, the Senate was voting today on a resolution, with strong bipartisan support, endorsing the peace initiative offered last month by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias.

The plan has been hailed by some in Congress as a sign of hope that a negotiated solution can be found to Central America's troubles without further bloodshed.

Limited immunity discussed for Poindexter, North

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators and the independent counsel probing the Iran-Contra affair are discussing a plan for John M. Poindexter and Oliver L. North to be granted limited immunity for their testimony before Congress by the end of May.

Both committees and the independent counsel are really searching for the same thing, which is the truth," independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh said after meeting Wednesday with members of the Senate select committee probing the sale of arms to Iran and alleged diversion of funds to Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Walsh wants Congress to wait at least 90 days before granting immunity to Poindexter, a Navy rear admiral who quit as President Reagan's national security adviser, and North, a lieutenant colonel fired from the White House staff for his role in the apparent diversion of money.

However, leaders of the two congressional committees probing the Iran-Contra matter have argued that the public is demanding a quick airing of the facts in the case.

But to accommodate Walsh's effort to build a criminal case, public hearings on the Iran-Contra affair would not begin until the middle of May, three weeks later than first planned, said Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, the chairman of the Senate select committee.

This would allow Walsh more time to deal with witnesses before the committee interviews them under any immunity that might be granted. There might be additional time to deal with Poindexter and North since they would not necessarily be the lead-off witnesses.

"I am convinced that the House and Senate committees together with the independent counsel will come forth with an agreement that will meet the requirements and the mandate of both of us," Inouye said after the meeting with Walsh.

But neither Walsh nor the senators gave details of their discussions of immunity and there was no indication any final agreement had been worked out.

With dipping dollar

Slow change in trade picture seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economists believe they are seeing signs that the long fall in the value of the dollar is improving the country's trade fortunes, but they caution that the turnaround will not be quick.

The government reported Wednesday that the U.S. merchandise trade deficit swelled to $38.4 billion from October through December, an all-time high which helped push the trade deficit for the entire year to $147.7 billion, 18.7 percent higher than the previous annual record set in 1985.

But amid the gloomy numbers, economists detected some encouraging signs.

For one thing, while imports rose 3 percent to $95.7 billion during the final three months of the year, the increase was accounted for entirely by higher prices. The actual volume of imports fell by 1 percent.

And American exports posted a respectable 2.8 percent increase, to $57.3 billion, their fourth consecutive quarterly improvement and their biggest gain of the year.

These figures, economists believe, show that the Reagan administration strategy of driving down the value of the dollar to improve U.S. trade is beginning to pay off.

The rise in import prices, reflecting the weaker dollar, is aimed at curbing Americans' appetite for foreign goods. While the rise in exports shows that American goods are becoming more competitive on world markets, economists said. The trouble is that this strategy translates into higher deficits in the beginning because import prices rise faster than demand for foreign goods falls.

Economists said this is what occurred in the October-December quarter, and they predicted that declines in the volume of imports will be offset by import price increases for most of this year.

"We think the trade situation has hit its trough and won't be getting any worse, but the turnaround is not imminent," said Doug Handler, chief forecaster for Wharton Economics of Philadelphia. "It will probably be the end of this year or the beginning of next year before we begin to see concrete improvements."

That prediction, which is supported by other private economists, is bad news for the Reagan administration, which is counting on a declining trade deficit to dampen cries for protectionist legislation in Congress.

The figures released Wednesday confirmed parallel figures issued on a monthly basis that showed an even higher deficit. The new totals are lower because they reflect trade on a "balance of payments" basis, omitting such factors as military sales and the cost of shipping and insurance.

Voters in Deaf Smith County recently approved a bond election designed to help a cash flow problem at Deaf Smith General Hospital. A look at "exchange" newspapers we receive from area towns reveals that all are having problems with their hospitals.

Declining patient loads, lowered payments by Medicare, new rules and regulations on fees charged, and other factors have seriously impaired the cash flow to the institutions. Some of the towns have county-owned hospitals and some are in a hospital district, but all suffer from a lack of cash from paying patients.

The health industry has gone through big changes. Several years back, the advent of hospital insurance ushered in a new era for both doctors and hospitals. With most patients under a hospitalization plan, doctors and hospitals were free to charge more and do more and feel confident about getting paid.

Medicare came along and it amounted to a blank check for hospitals and they took advantage of it. The result was soaring costs to both insurance companies and the federal government. And, as usual, the pendulum had to swing back the other way.

Medicare and Medicaid launched cost containment measures as did the insurance companies. The cost containment is working, partly because there are now new doctors entering the field in sufficient numbers to create competition of a sort. Many doctors and medical groups are convinced that independent office practice on the part of doctors is not likely to continue much longer.

But the cost containment by Medicare and by the insurance companies have brought on a revolution that is hurting hospitals everywhere, especially those in rural areas. Under the new rules, a big metro hospital gets to charge more under

Smuggled artifacts returned

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Booty seized from an organized smuggling ring — including artifacts from a 1,000-year-old Mexican Indian community — have been returned to Mexico, U.S. Customs officials say.

Painted pottery pieces, an ax-head and a grinding stone that were seized by U.S. Customs agents last July at the Columbus, N.M., port of entry were returned this week, said Mike Mack, acting district director for Customs' El Paso office, said Wednesday.

The artifacts were being smuggled into the United States by an organized smuggling ring that sells the pieces to collectors, Mack said.

The items were returned under a treaty between the two nations that allows for the return of stolen archaeological or cultural items.

Enrique Buj Flores, Mexican consul in El Paso, said most of the pottery pieces dated back to the Paquime Indians, a community of peaceful traders that flourished from A.D. 900 to 1100.

The Paquime ruins are near Casas Grandes, Mexico, about 200 miles southwest of El Paso.

Texas prisons are closed once again

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas prison system, deluged by more than 700 new inmates over two days, is closed today because the population has once again exceeded the 95 percent capacity limit.

The shutdown is part of a familiar routine that has kept the nation's third-largest corrections system closed five days a week.

Population at the 26-unit Texas Department of Corrections was 38,420 as of midnight Tuesday, putting the system 10 inmates over the 95-percent cap, spokesman David Nunnelee said Wednesday.

About 28 inmates were released on parole Wednesday, while more 232 were admitted, officials said.

Tuesday, when the prisons reopened for new admissions after the most recent five-day shutdown, 542 inmates were transferred from county jails and only 92 were paroled.

"It looks like we'll be closed through the week and we'll have weekend releases again," Nunnelee said.

Anti-hazing bill clears Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate, alarmed by a growing trend of "Ramboism" on Texas' college campuses, has passed a bill that bans hazing and provides stiff penalties for violations.

"I don't know what it is, whether it is a cycle of 'Ramboism,' machismo or whatever, we have to change it now," Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos said Wednesday before his bill won Senate approval.

In the past nine years, 40 young people have died in hazing incidents in the United States, but the Texas hazing law has not been changed since 1937, he said.

He said his bill "redefines hazing — tightens up the definition — cuts out the loopholes, and increases the penalties from a slap on the hand" to fines and jail time.

Barrientos, D-Austin, said he began thinking about the hazing issue two years ago after a Texas A&M University student died after doing callisthenics. Last year a University of Texas student died of alcohol poisoning.

Teens decide to kill themselves

BERGENFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Four teens who agreed to kill themselves together had been preoccupied with thoughts of suicide, a friend said, and the mother of one victim said teen-agers in this small town are "dying one after another."

The suicide of two sisters and two 19-year-old men follow four young Bergenfield residents' deaths since last summer, authorities said, and as word of Wednesday's deaths spread through the New York City suburb, Mayor Charles O'Dowd urged other youngsters considering suicide to seek help.

Officials also called psychologists to the high school from which three of the four had dropped out and the fourth had been suspended.

"We're very concerned that there is a possibility of a contagion effect," said James Cooney, director of the Bergen Regional Counseling Center.

The bodies were found early Wednesday in a locked car with its engine running inside a garage, Bergen County Prosecutor Larry McClure said. Near the bodies was a note on a brown paper bag signed by the victims saying they wanted a common wake and burial.

Diamonds are found in meteorites

NEW YORK (AP) — Trillions of diamonds so tiny that 20,000 equal the width of a hair have been found in meteorites, and scientists say they may give clues to the chemistry of stars and suggest ways to make tiny industrial gemstones.

"If you look up at the Milky Way, you may actually be seeing some light that is scattered by diamonds," said Roy Lewis, senior research associate at the University of Chicago.

Lewis and his colleagues have found trillions of the tiny diamonds in four meteorites, and they say the diamonds may have formed in the atmosphere of a dying star before the solar system was born 4.5 billion years ago.

The diamonds could be among the oldest things on Earth, Lewis said.

They may yield clues about the chemistry of stars, and learning how they formed could suggest better ways of manufacturing tiny diamonds for industrial purposes, he said. But "in terms of something to put on your wife's finger, they're of absolutely no value at all," he said.

Airlines aim to avoid flight delays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The airlines, pressured by government concern that flight delays will worsen this summer, gather next week to rearrange schedules in and out of two of the country's busiest airports.

The Transportation Department on Wednesday directed the scheduling changes at the airports in Chicago and Atlanta and said it would decide next week whether similar scheduling shifts will be needed at five other busy airports as well.

The airlines have grudgingly agreed to re-examine their summer flight schedules, which go into effect in June, amid warnings from the Transportation Department that if no action is taken the government may force schedule changes.

Most of the changes at the airports will be aimed at spreading flights so they are not bunched around the most popular flying times, a widespread airline practice that the Federal Aviation Administration has blamed for many of the non-weather related flight delays.

Survey says

Americans long in tooth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's tooth count is rising as more Americans keep their teeth through middle age, but decay and gum disease remain widespread despite regular visits to the dentist, a federal survey says today.

"The news is encouraging," said Dr. Harald Loe, director of the National Institute of Dental Research. "Americans are keeping their own teeth longer."

In the most comprehensive study of its kind, nearly 21,000 adults aged 18 to 103 were examined for the year-long, $3.2 million National Survey of Adult Dental Health which ended last March.

The adult survey results, combined with those of a similar 1980 national study of school children, reveals a dramatic drop in the rate of tooth decay over the previous decade for the majority of the population, Loe said in an interview.

"This is solid evidence that the dental health of the country is improving," he said. "We are doing something right, but we can still do better."

Detailed examinations conducted at 800 business locations and 200

senior centers located throughout the continental United States showed toothlessness has been nearly eliminated in middle-aged adults.

Only 4 percent of employed adults surveyed were missing all their teeth, and half had lost at most only one tooth, said the report released in Chicago at the annual meeting of the International Association for Dental Research.

The percentage of toothless adults under age 65 represents a significant drop in tooth loss compared with a 1971-74 survey, when the number was almost twice as high.

However, the survey found, toothlessness remains a major problem among Americans over age 65. About 42 percent of the surveyed seniors were missing all of their 28 permanent teeth while only 2 percent retained the full number.

The majority of all adults showed signs of periodontal, or gum, disease. This condition causes a range of symptoms from inflammation of the gums to destruction of the tooth roots and their attachment to the underlying bone.

Dentists, probing the gums of participants for signs of bleeding, which can be an early indicator of gum problems, and looking for areas of attachment-tissue loss around teeth found that both the prevalence and symptoms of periodontal disease increased with age.

Suicide note evidence in murder case

PAMPA, Texas (AP) — An Oklahoma man wept softly as a suicide note he wrote 22 years ago before he shot his wife and turned the gun on himself was read aloud on the first day of his murder trial.

Prosecutors called 10 witnesses before resting their case against Albert Eugene Branscum, 56, who was indicted in the October 1964 shooting death of his wife, Glenna Branscum. The couple had separated and was in the process of getting a divorce when the slaying occurred.

Branscum has never been tried for the incident because he was left a "mental vegetable" by two shots he fired into his head, authorities said. He was judged incapable of standing trial and was committed to a hospital.

The case was reopened after a relative of Mrs. Branscum's questioned the case's status and authorities discovered Branscum had walked away from the hospital 20 years ago and had been operating a salvage yard in Konawa, Okla., since then.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan testified that a suicide note submitted as evidence had been given to him by a relative of Branscum's. In the note, Branscum expressed love for his wife and asked that the two be buried side by side.

Convention shows off dogs

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — Drug-sniffing canines are showing off their valuable snouts this week at the National Narcotic Detector Dog Association convention.

Frog, a yellow labrador from Iberia Parish in Louisiana, and his two dog partners last year helped authorities seize $250 million in drugs and another $10 million in vehicles and airplanes used to transport narcotics.

Frog is just one of 92 drug-sniffing dogs in Georgetown for the convention. Also attending are 110 law enforcement officers who are discussing how laws affect narcotic dogs and using dogs in schools.

Frog, for example, helped Iberia Parish virtually erase narcotics possession cases in its area schools, said owner Lt. Bobby Derise, president of the association.

"We started off in 1980," Derise said of the drug-sniffing program in Iberia Parish schools. At that time, the department's dogs were finding drugs in schools almost daily, but last year, there were only five instances when dogs found drugs in schools, he said.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Nell Thames of Austin; two sons, Lt. David Blake Thames of Ft. Hood and Todd Andrew Thames of College Station; one granddaughter; a brother, Truett Thames of Hereford; and a cousin, Mrs. Dale Scott, also of Hereford.

Girlstown director speaks

Marshal Cooper, executive director of Girlstown, U.S.A., was guest speaker for the Hereford Lions Club regular weekly luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Community Center.

Cooper, who is also a past district governor of Lions and current vice president of the Texas Lions Camp, spoke on the merging of Girlstown with Boys Ranch. The two boards recently came to an agreement on the merger and legal and accounting methods are now being accomplished. The merger is expected to be completed by April 25, according to Cooper.

"We don't know what changes will be made, but we hope that our personnel and operations will remain fairly intact," said Cooper. He added that there was a possibility of closing the Austin campus and "concentrate on doing a better job at our other campuses."

Cooper also said he hoped that Lions would continue their support of Girlstown. "In the past, we used the contributions just to survive. Now, maybe we can use the funds for special projects for the girls."

Club President Temple Abney reported that the club raised about $2,400 on the auction and about $1,100 on the pancake supper last week. Four Lions were honored for selling more than 50 tickets for the project. They were W.H. Andrews, Cawthon Bryant, Herman Lopez and Larry Alley.

In a drawing from the four names, Andrews won a VCR which has been offered as the top prize. Andrews sold 200 tickets.

BULL

Medicare fees than the rural hospitals.

Modern medicine with its marvelous machines and techniques and knowledge has succeeded in prolonging lives and helping us stay healthier. But it costs lots of money and somebody has to pay. The question, now, is how much are local taxpayers willing to pay to subsidize the local hospital.

Last fall, the local hospital district increased the tax rate from 9.733 cents to 12.425 cents per $100 valuation. The board adopted a budget of $6.9 million for this year with tax revenues estimated at $595,000—only 8.5 percent of the budget.

The amount taxpayers put into county hospitals varies around the area, but we note that Andrews County has budgeted $1.7 million for its hospital this year. Last year, the amount soared to $2.3 million, but the new hospital board scaled back operations in order to reduce the tax burden.

Whether we have a hospital district or a county-owned hospital, the taxpayers are still the ones who have to subsidize operations. State law provides that a county spend at least 10 percent of its general revenue levy for mandatory services to eligible county residents before it can receive state assistance.

Just as the ag and oil industries are in the midst of a revolution, so is the health care industry. Hospitals and patients are struggling to survive. Taking a look around us, it appears we are holding our own in Deaf Smith County.

Higher education must improve

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas must improve its higher education system or risk falling behind in increasingly intense technological competition between states, educators have told state senators.

"A continuous flow of educated scientists and engineers is essential to the state's future," Norman Hackerman, former president of the University of Texas and of Rice University, told the Senate Education Committee Wednesday.

Abundant Life

THE HUMAN SPIRIT
By Bob Wear

Much that is happening today seems calculated to break or destroy the 'human spirit'. There is much that can cause discouragement, downgrading, degrading, much to frighten and otherwise devitalize mankind. Of course, the greatest possible efforts must be made to prevent all of these happenings. We must maintain our courage, our willingness to work, our readiness to sacrifice, our diligence in putting first things first, our recognition of and adherence to wholesome and upgrading moral standards, and our sensible concern for each other.

The need for maintaining the 'human spirit' in good order is obvious. We must not permit the overwhelming technological accumulations to depress us. The ease of living which seems to be so much the aim of many people is damaging us, too. In fact, history teaches us that easy-living causes degeneracy. The feeling of personal insignificance, which is another real possibility of technological pile-up, can weaken us, but we must not permit this to happen.

Materialism, the social and political climate in which we live, does much to stifle the 'human spirit'. We should not allow this to happen, and this means that we must not allow 'materialism' to distort our sense of values. There is a proper place for material things, and we must keep them in place. 'Man shall not live by bread alone.' Material things make good servants, but destructive masters.

The god or gods we worship will affect our spirit. The objects of our devotion can and will make a difference, too. Wholesome self-control or lack of it will have much to do with preserving the 'human spirit'. The wholesome control of self is essential to a strong, vibrant spirit. Whereas, self-abandonment will completely corrupt the spirit.

We must know and constantly remember who we are. We are made in the image of God. With this, and all that it means, as the foundation; the 'human spirit' can survive, and saving the worthwhile things of life depends upon the survival of the human spirit.

Ann Landers

Rebellious daughter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a single mom with a big problem. It's my 11-year-old daughter, "Wilma" and I fight constantly about everything and anything. Usually it's her friends, her hair and her clothes. I have always considered myself reasonable but if you say I am over-protective (this is my daughter's complaint) I will listen to you and try to change.

The most recent battle (not yet resolved) is over a rock concert. We live in Biloxi, Miss., and all the kids think about is music. They walk around with head-sets on around the clock and I swear most of them are deaf from hearing that racket 15 hours a day. Wilma wants to meet some friends at the mall and go to a rock concert. I offered to go along but she says her friends would laugh at her.

I don't believe 11-year-olds (boys or girls) should go to night events on their own. Am I being unreasonable? I love my daughter very much and am concerned about her safety.

I've suggested counseling but she doesn't want to go. She says, "You can drag me there but you can't make me talk." I will listen to anything you have to say. —At Wit's End in Miss.

DEAR WIT'S: Welcome to the club. Another mother of a hostile, rebellious child who resents being told what to do.

No 11-year-old should be permitted to go unchaperoned to a rock concert or anywhere else at night. Tell her the answer is NO. As for the hair and clothes, let her do her thing—short of a purple Mohawk. If she gets too far out the school will crack down on her.

Friends are another matter. Keep your eye open for anything that seems out of the way — cigarettes, alcohol and pot. Older acquaintances usually blaze the trail for such experimentation. If you see any signs, lower the boom in no uncertain terms. Don't back off. Children want a firm hand. Discipline is a sign of love and deep down they welcome it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: While shopping in town, I found a man's billfold on the sidewalk in front of a store. I turned it into the store manager immediately. He said he would hold the billfold until the man came back for it. Or he would try to get ahold of the man and ask him to come in and pick it up.

The billfold's owner lived quite a distance away, so I thought it best to take the billfold back to the store. It stands to reason that he would probably backtrack to the places he last remembered using it.

My husband disagreed with me. He claimed I should have immediately counted the money because if some money was missing when the man got his billfold back, I could vouch for how much was in it when I picked it up. This would protect me if the store manager decided to help himself.

My husband then said the best thing to do with a found billfold is turn it into the police department. I would like to know, Ann Landers, what would you have done? —An Honest, Confused Lady in N.Y.

DEAR H. AND C.: I would have gone to the nearest phone and called the owner of the billfold and told him I found it and that he should come pick it up. If he was not at home, I would keep calling until I made the contact.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Woody Hayes directed 205 Buckeye wins

Ex Ohio State coach dies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Hayes, who became one of the most successful coaches in college football history, guiding the Ohio State University team to 205 wins and two national championships, died today at the age of 74.

Russell Spillman, vice president for student affairs, quoted OSU Athletic Director Rick Bay as saying that Hayes, who had been in ill health during recent years, died at his home about 6 a.m.

Hayes' wife, Anne, discovered her husband dead this morning, said Scott Mueller, a spokesman for the university.

Hayes' coaching career ended in 1978, a few hours after the Buckeyes lost the Gator Bowl to Clemson.

In front of a national television audience, Hayes struck Charlie Bauman, a Clemson nose guard who had intercepted an Ohio State pass late in the game. Hayes refused to apologize, and was fired.

Hayes had coached the Ohio State team longer than anyone in the school's history, turning around its reputation as the "Graveyard of Coaches."

Hayes compiled a record of 238-72-10 in 33 seasons at Denison University (1946-48), Miami of Ohio (1949-50) and Ohio State (1951-78). Only Paul "Bear" Bryant (323), Amos Alonzo Stagg (314) and Glenn "Pop" Warner (313) won more major college football games.

As successful as Hayes was, he was almost as controversial, mostly because of a temper that he admitted he never learned to control.

But Hayes, a strict disciplinarian, believed in loyalty.

"I gave the university about everything I had," he said. "I'll never take it out on this university. It means too much to me."

 Hayes' behavior often overshadowed his accomplishments on the field.

He was twice placed on probation by the Big Ten Conference — in 1956 for making personal loans to his players and in 1977 for a sideline altercation with an ABC-TV cameraman during a game at Michigan.

Hayes produced two Hesman Trophy winners, Howard "Hopalong" Cassidy in 1955 and Archie Griffin in 1974 and 1975, and 58 All-Americans. His teams won a league-record six consecutive Big Ten titles from 1972 through 1977.

He also developed many coaches who went on to head coaching success: rival and friend Glenn "Bo" Schembechler at Michigan, current Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce, Notre Dame's Lou Holtz, Dave McClain at Wisconsin, Indiana's Bill Mallory and Bill Arnsparger at Louisiana State.

He was a close friend of two former presidents, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, and sometimes campaigned for them.

Thompson wins bass club's first 1987 tourney

Dick Thompson placed first in the Hereford Bass Club's first tournament of the 1987 last week.

The tournament was held Saturday and Sunday at Oak Creek Lake, near Blackwell, Texas.

Kenny Ruland placed second in the tournament, and Don Parr finished in third place.

Ruland caught the big bass of the tournament, two pounds, four ounces.

The Hereford Bass Club will hold its next tournament on March 28-29 at Baylor Lake, near Childress.

The next club meeting is scheduled on Tuesday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. at West Texas Rural Telephone.

Jerry Walker said anyone interested in joining the club is invited to attend the meeting. Walker may be contacted by calling 364-3331.

130-117 over Seattle

Mavericks get 40th victory

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks' 130-117 victory Wednesday over the Seattle SuperSonics put them at the 40-win mark quicker than any other time in their seven-year history and also kept them from losing three in a row for the first time this season.

With the win, the Mavericks swept their five-game series with Seattle. "Different match-ups work against different teams," Dallas guard Rolando Blackman said. "Against Seattle, all of our post-up plays really work and we were able to hit some easy shots off the screens. Everything was just working for us tonight."

Mark Aguirre scored 26 points, Blackman 22 and Derek Harper 20 for the Mavericks, who overcame an early first-quarter Seattle lead and registered their seventh straight win at home.

Seattle had won eight of its last 10 games and three straight, but couldn't snap its season-long problem with Dallas.

Xavier McDaniel, Tom Chambers and former Maverick Dale Ellis all had 21 points for the Sonics, who were outbounded 45-40.

Seattle coach Bernie Bickerstaff said, "Dallas always catches us right. We really came out in a transition game and it caught up with us. We just ran our legs off."

Seattle was extended to two overtimes before beating the Rockets Tuesday night in Houston.

"Our effort was good and that's important considering the double overtime game and the travel," Bickerstaff said. "Dallas is just a better basketball team that we are. Derek Harper does not allow us anything. He totally disrupts our offense. I don't think (point guard Nate) McMillan has ever had any type of game here. And the ones who back him up can't seem to do much better."

Dallas overcame a 21-20 Seattle lead midway through the first period to outscore the Sonics 26-15 en route to a 46-point first quarter. It was the Mavericks' biggest quarter of the season and the most points ever scored in the first period in club history.

Dallas led 73-58 at halftime, and increased the margin to 20 points, 99-79, late in the third period. The Mavericks' biggest lead was 24, 123-99, with 3:04 left in the game.

Detlef Schrempf, who came off the bench to score 18 for the Mavericks, said the Mavericks were apprehensive about the game because of having won all four previous games against Seattle this season.

"They played real good defense early, but our offense was working well," Schrempf said. "They didn't double team us as much as most teams do. We got the ball in the paint pretty easily and were able to make the easy shots."

The Sonics' Clemon Johnson suffered a broken nose early in the game and was taken to a hospital for X-rays. He later returned to the arena but did not play.

Sam Perkins, who scored 17 points for Dallas, also was taken to a hospital for X-rays. He went down in a collision with Chambers late in the third quarter and suffered an injured cheekbone.

Spurs' Mitchell voluntarily begins rehabilitation

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mike Mitchell, the San Antonio Spurs' leading scorer for the past two seasons, has voluntarily checked himself into a drug treatment facility, club officials announced.

"The league office notified me today," team president Angelo Drossos said Wednesday night. "They said he turned himself in for substance abuse, but they did not specify the drug."

Mitchell, 31, left Wednesday afternoon for Van Nuys, Calif., site of the NBA-sanctioned substance abuse center, Spurs general manager Bob Bass said.

"Nobody had any inkling of this," Drossos said. "I'm shocked and surprised. There were no warning signs. I thought the game before last (a 15-point effort against Golden State) he had had a good game."

Spurs coach Bob Weiss also expressed disbelief.

"I had no indication at all. It was a real surprise, a shock to me," he said.

The 6-7, 215-pound small forward, a nine-year veteran in the NBA, missed practice Wednesday morning, but team trainer John Andersen assumed Mitchell had overslept. The practice started at 11 a.m.

"I called at 11 and he doesn't answer. I called at 11:15 and I assumed I'd woken him up," Andersen said. "I'm just shocked and surprised about this."

Mitchell apparently turned himself in to the NBA Players Association.

By coming forward, Mitchell avoided the league's mandatory lifetime banishment. A player can turn himself in twice without fear of a ban. The third time, he is out of the league.

The High Jump Is A Tongue-Biting Experience

Stanton. They competed in the seventh grade high jump. Smith finished in an eight-way tie for fourth place, at four feet, six inches. (Brand photos by Gary Christensen)

Investigation reveals much advise useless, misleading

Where do you look for sound advice about your health? Many people turn to their local health food store. Is advice from a health food store reliable? Several investigations into the reliability of advice given in health food stores have drawn similar conclusions: Customers cannot rely on the accuracy or safety of health and nutrition advice received in health food stores.

During an investigation of 105 health food stores, the American Council on Science and Health detailed cases in which stores' advice had been misleading, useless, and dangerous. When provided with symptoms that could describe a potentially serious medical condition, 68 percent of the health food stores failed to recommend seeing a physician, and 63 percent recommended remedies without ever seeing the person whose symptoms were being described.

Another similar survey of health food stores concluded that one-fourth of health food store personnel responses to health related questions were clearly wrong and potentially harmful. Panel members evaluating this survey included dietitians, physicians, and university professors. The panel members were concerned with the large number of health food stores that recommended remedies. Such recommendations were considered dangerous since attempting self treatment would delay seeking medical help for the serious medical conditions that were being described.

Unreliable advice may not be the only drawback to health food stores. According to Registered and Licensed Dietitian Gene Erb of Amarillo, Texas.

Many health food store nutrition products are either unnecessary or substantially higher priced than comparable products in a supermarket. A United States Department of Agriculture survey found food items in health food stores to be 99 percent higher in price than comparable foods from a supermarket.

What general conclusions can be drawn about health food stores? Consumers can not rely on the accuracy or safety of health and nutrition advice received in health food stores. Many health food store personnel are sincere and have the best of intentions. Unfortunately, many of these same store personnel are also grossly misinformed.

In addition, you may pay a premium price for their products, many of which are unneeded. The good news is that some health food stores do recommend seeking professional advice.

If you have questions about nutrition, a registered or licensed dietitian can assist you.
