Spring blizzard hits Texas Panhandle

By The Associated Press

A surprise blizzard left hundreds stranded in the Texas Panhandle and howling, high winds created problems in the Dallas-Fort Worth area where air traffic was delayed because of a wind shear alert.

The wind, gusting to as high as 60 and 70 mph at times, may have also been a factor in a mishap in which an American Eagle commuter airplane's landing gear collapsed while it was attempting to take off Monday night from Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. No one was injured.

In the northeastern Panhandle, motorists, students and others who were stranded in a deep-freeze found warmth and refuge at area schools, community centers, courthouses and churches.

Most of them spent the night huddled in hallways or gymnasiums under donated blankets as the surprise blizzard that blew into the Panhandle Monday morning refused to loosen its icy grip.

Up to 500 cars were stranded Monday night about 75 miles east of Amarillo, on a 17-mile stretch of Interstate 40, between the towns of Lela and McLean, said Sue Gallagher, a dispatcher with the Shamrock Police Department.

"They haven't moved for hours. Trucks, cars, everything," Gallagher said Monday night.

Pampa, about 60 miles northeast of Amarillo, was hit by about 1 1/2 feet of snow on Monday, and the accumulation caused the roof of a drug store in a shopping mall to collide.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan of Pampa called the spring blizzard "the worst I've ever seen, and I've been here 71 years."

Pampa students who live in rural areas found refuge at the Pampa Middle School while stranded motorists in the area were taken to the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Pampa school Assistant Superintendent James Steele said Monday night that rural Pampa students were kept at the middle school until four-wheel-drive vehicles could take them to the homes of friends or relatives in Pampa.

Coach Richard Dunham said that about 7 p.m. Monday, 19 students and 17 teachers still were stranded at the school waiting for rides.

Dunham added that the school fed the stranded people hamburgers, jelly, hot apple cobbler and pickles at about 4:30 p.m.

M.K. Brown Auditorium building superintendent Morgan Edwards said about 20 people found refuge in the auditorium's lobby, where the Pampa Red Cross had supplied food and blankets.

At Panhandle in Carson County, more than 50 people — including 20 Spearman High School drama students hoping to attend a one-act play contest — were stranded at the Carson County Courthouse.

Carson County Judge J. Bob Roselius spent part of Monday night at the Tower Truck Stop in Groom, trying to find shelters for motorists stranded on I-40.

A truck stop employee said Monday evening that the snow still was blowing hard and people were concerned with getting off the interstate.

"The Baptist church has opened its doors, but we don't have any way to get them down there because the roads are that bad," said truckstop cashier Helen Wincomplek.

Shelters in Canadian and Miami and other areas east of Gray County housed stranded motorists despite a loss of electricity and interruption of water service in those towns.

At Canadian rural students spent the night at local YMCA.

"There is no way we can get them home tonight," said a dispatcher with the Hemphill County Sheriff's Department. "The roads are so treacherous even though crews have been working on them since noon."

The roof of Revco Discount Drugs collapsed about 11 a.m. Monday. One person suffered minor injuries, and three other people were believed at first to have been trapped in the debris. They had escaped, however.

Peggy Smith, a clerk at a Safeway grocery adjacent to the drug store, said she heard what sounded like a clap of thunder, and the floor started shaking.

"My first thought was an earthquake," she said. "I was right next to it."

The stores in the mall were evacuated and closed for the rest of the day while volunteer workers began sifting through the drug store debris in search of anyone who might have been trapped.

Winds of more than 40 mph were reported in Pampa at the height of the storm. The snow stopped falling about 8 p.m., with the temperature at 28 degrees.

The Pampa unit of the Texas Army National Guard was mobilized at Jordan's request to assist law enforcement officers.

Winds gusted as high as 70 mph in North Texas Monday afternoon as a high pressure ridge south of the Dallas-Fort Worth area clashed with a low pressure ridge to the north.

"It picked up the dust in West Texas," meteorologist Al Moller said. "It's spring in Texas. This kind of thing happens now and then."

Not Yet

Although the blizzard had stopped, vehicles had to wait in line for state trooper approval to travel east on U.S. 60 Monday afternoon. The highway to Canyon was closed east of Hereford due to snow until mid-afternoon.

County accepts paving bid, resolution on TSTI campus

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

A possible Texas State Technical Institute extension campus, a paving contract, biddable items and a budget workshop occupied much of the agenda for the county commissioner's court yesterday.

In opening moments of the regular session commissioners accepted the lowest of six paving bids for street improvements in the labor camp and on Dairy and Campbell Roads. Bill McMorris, chief engineering contractor, recommended the acceptance of the bid and the amendment of the original contract to include some areas which were previously considered as alternates.

Applan Corporation of Hereford walked away with the bid of $270,265.23. The high bidder was Caprock Highway Construction Company of Lubbock with a $492,426.35.

Commissioner Rose commented, "Upon completion of this project there will be pavement in front of every house in the labor camp with the exception of one."

As a means of meeting requirements entailed with grant monies being used to fund the paving project, Commissioners passed a resolution in favor of fair housing practices in Deaf Smith County and an affirmative action resolution in regard to using businesses and employees located within the area to be utilized in completing the project.

Mike Carr, executive director of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce presented preliminary proposals for an extension of TSTI campus to be located in Hereford. Carr introduced TSTI representative, Dr. Erie Johnson, and told the commissioners the proposed extension would help in meeting vocational training for many local residents who cannot afford to commute to the Amarillo campus.

TSTI is a statewide technical school with campuses in Amarillo, Waco, Sweetwater, and Harlingen. The school is looking at the feasibility of a Hereford extension at the request of the chamber.

Carr explained, "It is our chief belief that the availability of a local vocational branch of TSTI would upgrade skills of residents and provide alternatives to high school dropouts." It is also believed the school would help in providing displaced agriculture workers training in skills which would help make them more employable.

Johnson stated that the primary purpose of the school is training people in marketable skills. He said the extension would help in meeting vocational training for many local residents who cannot afford to commute to the Amarillo campus.

The annual Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant will be staged Saturday night in the HHS Auditorium with 18 young women vying for the coveted title. Approximately $4,500 in prizes and scholarships will be offered by local merchants and area colleges. The Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce sponsors the event, which has a theme of "Miami Vice" this year.

The following message was presented to the Hereford Lions Club last week by Raymond White and it is quite clever. We'd like to share it with our readers:

"ALL I EVER REALLY NEEDED TO KNOW I LEARNED IN KINDERGARTEN"

Most of what I really need to know about how to live, and what to do, and how to be, I learned in kindergarten. Wisdom was not at the top of the graduate school mountain but there in the sandbox at nursery school.

These are the things I learned: Share everything. Play fair. Don't hit people. Put things back where you found them. Clean up your own mess. Don't take things that aren't yours. Say you're sorry when you hurt somebody. Wash your hands before you eat. Flush. Warm cookies and cold milk are good for you. Live a balanced life. Learn some and think some and draw and paint and sing and dance and play and work every day some.

Take a nap every afternoon. When you go out into the world, watch for traffic, hold hands and stick together. Be aware of wonder. Remember the little seed in the plastic cup. The roots go down and the plant goes up and nobody really knows how or why, but we are all like that.

Goldfish and hamsters and white mice and even the little seed in the plastic cup - they all die. So do we.

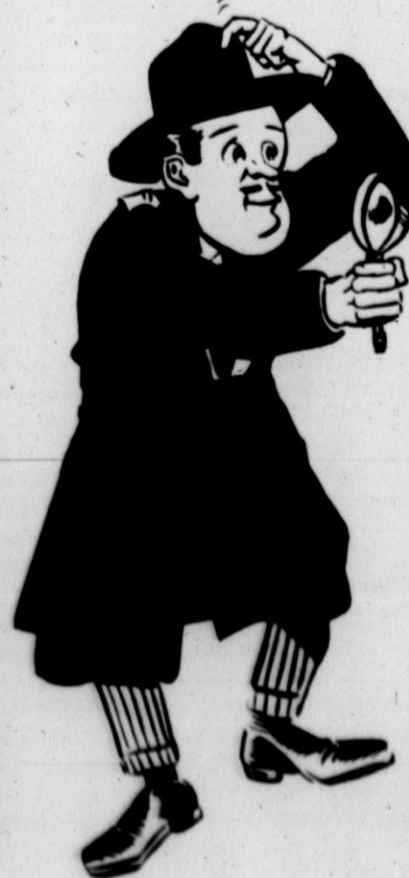

And then remember the book about Dick and Jane and the first word you learned, the biggest word of all: LOOK. Everything you need to know is in there somewhere. The Golden Rule and love and basic sanitation. Ecology and politics and sane living.

Think of what a better world it would be if we all - the whole world - had cookies and milk about 3 o'clock every afternoon and then lay down with our blankets for a nap. Or if we had a basic policy in our nation and other nations to always put things back where we found them and cleaned up our own messes. And it is still true, no matter how old you are, when you go out into the world, it is best to hold hands and stick together.

Get right forms, inspect for errors during tax deadline dash

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

On your mark, get set, go! It's time once again for the annual April 15 Indy, that last minute mad dash to beat the midnight deadline for filing Federal Income Tax Returns. Internal Revenue Service employees have noticed a trend in filing practices. There are two types of taxpayers: those who file a return early in the year, as soon as they receive all the information and forms they need, and then there are those who thrill to the adrenaline rush of an annual last minute race to the post office.

IRS trend watchers note that it is the second group, the procrastinators, who have the most mistakes on their returns. They advise that preparing the return over a two or three-week period will lessen the chances for mistakes by creating a more relaxed working environment for completing the forms.

Taking the time to prepare an income tax return ahead of the deadline will provide ample opportunity to reread figures and to collect complete data needed to compute credits and taxes. Reviewing the form over a period of time may also provide the taxpayer with discoveries of credits or deductions for which they might qualify and might have otherwise missed.

Errors made on previously filed tax returns can be corrected by filing an amendment. Form 1040X is the amended form, if additional money is owed the form should be filed with payment prior to the April 15 deadline. The form can also be used to claim additional money in the form of refund. Form 1040X must be filed within three years from the date of the original return or within two years from the time the tax was paid, whichever is later.

Taxpayers may find it easier to round off cents to the nearest dollar. This practice eliminates many mathematical errors and is acceptable if all dollar amounts throughout the form are rounded off. According to the IRS amounts under .50 cents should be dropped and amounts from .50 cents to .99 cents should be increased to the next higher dollar amount.

Another common error is to forget to enclose W-2 slips and other schedules with the tax return. The IRS will hold the return until the taxpayer has been contacted and has provided the needed forms.

The W-2 form is provided, by law, from employers. Taxpayers who have not received a W-2 form from an employer need to contact the employer on the IRS so that a form

State

Tougher open meetings law

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate committee has approved a bill designed to strengthen the state's Open Meetings Act by closing loopholes in the law designed to guarantee the public's access to most government proceedings.

Voting 9-1, the Senate State Affairs Committee on Monday sent the measure to the full Senate for a vote. Sen. Don Henderson, R-Houston, was the only vote against the bill.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, said the legislation would eliminate problems in the current law which have allowed some government business to be done in secret, in private "executive sessions," for example.

"Through the years ... many governmental boards have made good faith efforts to comply with the Open Meetings Act," Caperton said. "Unfortunately, there have been some who continue to use those executive sessions to conduct the public's business behind closed doors."

Texas has had an open meetings law on the books since 1967, but supporters of the law say it also has serious weaknesses which allow some public officials to circumvent it.

Bills to put more teeth in the law passed the Legislature in 1977, 1979 and 1981, but were vetoed then by Govs. Dolph Briscoe and Bill Clements. Bills also passed the Senate in 1983 and 1985 but failed to win approval from the House.

Testifying in favor of the tougher bill was Jeff Bruce, managing editor of the Austin American-Statesman and an official of Texas Media, a coalition of Texas news organizations formed to work for freedom of information issues.

According to a memo Bruce prepared for the committee, "Government, particularly at the local level, is too often being conducted in illegal secret meetings."

"The inadequacies of the (current) act make prosecution impossible, and, thus, government is escaping public scrutiny and accountability for its actions," he wrote.

The bill would make several changes in the current law.

To head off abuse of closed meetings, the measure would require keeping of certified minutes of closed meetings and make any action taken by a governmental body in violation of the open meetings law voidable.

The bill would limit the times when a governmental body could call an "emergency meeting."

National

Entertainers son missing in jet

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Ground and air searchers combed the snowy, 11,500-foot San Geronio Mountain without finding Dean Paul Martin, son of the entertainer, and another crewman of a missing National Guard jet.

Martin, 35, a California Air National Guard captain who was piloting the F-4C Phantom, and the fighter's weapons officer, Capt. Ramon Ortiz, 39, of Las Vegas, Nev., disappeared Saturday over the San Bernardino Mountains.

Search aircraft found two other fliers unharmed shortly after their small plane crashed Monday morning, but the F-4 was not sighted. Weather deteriorated during the day and the search was suspended at nightfall with six three-man teams camped on the rugged peak, said National Guard Maj. Steve Mensik.

The search was to resume at daybreak, weather permitting. San Geronio Mountain was where a private jet carrying Frank Sinatra's 82-year-old mother, Natalie "Dolly" Sinatra, crashed in January 1977 en route to Las Vegas in a blinding snowstorm. It took several days to find her body.

Court finds death comment case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court heard arguments challenging the firing of a newly hired Houston deputy constable for telling co-workers she wanted President Reagan killed.

The high court's nine justices on Monday also heard arguments on the constitutionality of a Houston ordinance making it illegal to interrupt a police officer in the course of his duty.

In the first case, Ardeth McPherson claimed her free-speech rights were violated when she was fired for saying she wished Reagan had been killed in an assassination attempt in Washington by John W. Hinckley Jr. in 1981.

Ms. McPherson was on duty in Constable Walter H. Rankin's office March 30, 1981, the day Reagan was shot and wounded by Hinckley. While listening to radio reports about the incident, Ms. McPherson told a co-worker, "I hope if they go for him again they get him."

The remark was reported to Rankin, who called Ms. McPherson into his office and fired her after asking her if she meant it. Ms. McPherson sued him and Harris County.

Residents flee from chemical fire

NANTICOKE, Pa. (AP) — About 18,000 residents fled their homes as a precaution this morning as a chemical fire spread a cloud of toxic chemicals over the area, authorities said.

No injuries were reported. The fire broke out about 1 a.m. outside Nanticoke at Spencer Metal Processing, which uses acids and alkalis in metal plating. It was nearly extinguished within five hours, said Jim Siracuse, executive director of emergency management in Luzerne County.

The chemicals included sulfuric and nitric acids, which cause respiratory problems, he said.

"We're not sure the total effects of the chemicals," Siracuse said. "That's why the evacuation was undertaken, as a precaution."

Kevin O'Brien, the county's emergency coordinator, said authorities evacuated roughly 230 people from several hospitals and nursing homes, then began going door to door waking up residents in Nanticoke and Newport Township.

International

Dollar lowest against yen

TOKYO (AP) — The U.S. dollar opened Tuesday in Tokyo below 150 yen for the first time since modern exchange rates were established in the late 1940s.

The opening rate of 149.78 yen per dollar on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange market was down from Monday's close of 150.73 yen. In New York on Monday, the dollar also dipped briefly below 150 yen, to 149.97, but then rose a fraction to close at 150.00-10.

In Tokyo the dollar's fall continued during the morning, slipping to 148.4 yen at one point. It closed the morning at 149 yen.

During the first two hours of trading, $3.77 billion changed hands, Kyodo News Service said.

Kyodo quoted Hajime Tamura, minister of international trade and industry, as telling reporters that Japanese industry "will face serious prospects if momentum toward a further appreciation of the yen continues."

Tamura urged strong intervention in the market by Japan's central bank, Kyodo said. And bankers said the government's central bank did intervene for the first time in more than a month to halt the decline.

will be provided in time to file. The W-2 form is important because it lists the wages paid, the income tax withheld, social security tax withheld and other vital information needed for figuring taxes.

Each year there are areas on the tax return forms where large numbers of taxpayers make incorrect entries. Sometimes the wrong entries are made because of taxpayers selecting the incorrect figure from a tax table, some of the errors are due to changes in the form which are not clearly understood.

The largest percentage of errors are made on Form 1040, the long form used to itemize deductions. The problem areas on the 1040 form have been compiled by the IRS into 10 areas which taxpayers should double check.

The first area with a large percentage of errors is the item of medical deductions. This item is listed on Schedule A which is then attached to the 1040 form. Because of changes in limitations the IRS recommends taxpayers follow the directions on Schedule A closely when computing medical deductions.

Because of the number of pages and figures involved the IRS says that figures taken from the Tax Tables are often incorrect. Double check the figure for your filing status to make sure you have the correct numbers. These numbers are then entered on line 38 of the 1040 form and the box for Tax Table is checked.

Another area of confusion is Unemployment Compensation. A worksheet on page 10 of the tax instruction booklet will help this computation. Final entries for this area are entered on lines 20a and b on the long form.

Child Care Credit and Disabled Dependent Care Expenses are frequently misfigured. Double check these figures and follow the directions closely.

One of the most common errors is made in figuring the Balance Due Refund and the amount of taxes owed. If your total tax, line 55, is larger than your total payments, line 63, enter the difference on line 67. This is the amount of additional taxes you owe. If the number entered on line 55 is smaller than that on line 63 enter the difference on line 64, this is the amount of taxes you over paid and is the amount you are entitled to have refunded.

Many working parents with adjusted gross incomes less than $11,000 a year fail to claim the Earned Income Credit for which they qualify allowing them to pay less taxes. See page 16 of the instruction booklet to determine if you qualify for Earned Income Credit. Others who do not meet the qualifying criteria for the Earned Income Credit mistakenly file a return reflecting adjustments due to the credit. Make sure you are qualified there are certain criteria concerning income and dependants which must be met.

You must complete a Schedule D if you have over $400 in dividend income. Enter your dividends on line 9a; your exclusions on line 9b and subtract the difference on 9c. If you miscalculate the dividend income you income computation on line 23, total income, will be in error. Double check these figures.

One of the most difficult forms for taxpayers to complete is Schedule G, Income Averaging. To complete this form you need copies of your tax returns for the preceding three years. Read and follow the instructions carefully, though this form requires some concentration, it is worth the time as it can save you a considerable amount on your tax bill.

Carefully prepared, legible tax returns can be proposed faster and a quick check for accuracy can help in a quick response to your tax return. A brief checklist courtesy of the IRS, before you seal your tax envelope follows:

- Have you attached all your Forms?
 - Have you attached all the supporting schedules to your Form 1040?
 - Is your name and social security number on each schedule?
 - Is your arithmetic correct?
 - Are all of your entries on the proper lines?
 - If you rounded your numbers, did you round consistently?
 - Is your handwriting legible?
 - When you used the Tax Table, did you follow the line across to the corrected column for your filing status?
 - Did you sign and date your return? If a joint return did both spouses sign?
 - Have you retained a copy of your return for your records?
- The IRS says that timing is everything when filing a tax return. If you begin to prepare your return now you will be relaxed and less likely to make errors.

Ann Landers

Polysurgical addiction

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am concerned about my mother. She is 55 years old and since Dad died, 12 years ago, she has had two face lifts, her nose done over three times, a breast reduction operation, liposuction on her thighs, a bunionectomy, a facial dermabrasion, an appendectomy and surgeries for ulcers which two gastrointestinal specialists said could be treated by diet.

She has had back problems for the last three months and is looking for a doctor who will perform surgery "to fix it once and for all." Our family physician tried to talk her out of it but failed. She is determined.

Why would a person want an operation? Please explain what is going on with my mother. I am baffled. No name or city, please. Just sign me — Distressed in the West

DEAR DISTRESSED: Your mother has a polysurgical addiction. This means she has a compulsive need to be operated on.

According to Dr. Mary Ruth Wright from the Baylor College of Medicine, surgery addicts are people who are filled with guilt and anxiety that goes back to unresolved problems in childhood. They get a psychological lift from operations, feeling certain that their troubles will somehow be "cut out" with the surgery.

Surgery addicts resist therapy. They have a sick need to undergo surgery and know from experience that if they look hard and long enough they will find a doctor who will operate.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been arguing about something for several weeks. We need the opinion of an unbiased outsider.

Our son Chris is 17. He wants to work in a shopping mall after school and on weekends. Several of his friends are employed there. They make $5.15 an hour.

We are upper middle-class people. Chris gets an allowance and does not need to work. I am opposed to his taking this job because his grades are just fair and if he works they will be worse.

His father says Chris needs the discipline that a job will provide, plus it will teach him how to handle money. He keeps reminding me that he worked at various jobs after school starting when he was 14 and it prepared him for a successful career. What do you say, Ann?—At Loggerheads in San Mateo

DEAR SAN MATEO: There's a great deal of validity to what your husband says, but a teen-ager's principal job should be SCHOOL. If he is doing no better than "fair" it would be foolish to let him work in the shopping mall.

Too often school work suffers when mediocre students take on part-time employment, and frequently the paycheck goes for motorbikes, secondhand cars, record albums, leather jackets, drugs and alcohol.

In many homes, it is essential that the teen-agers work to help buy food and clothing or save for college. But in the case of Chris, tell him to forget

Landscape competition scheduled

Kim Poarch's Amarillo Art Gallery will host its first national landscape competition in July and August.

Artists are invited to submit entries for this competition.

The event will be judged by Ray Vinella of Taos, who is a nationally-known impressionist painter of southwest landscapes.

Cash prizes will be awarded. For more information on the competition, call 355-5757 or write to Amarillo Art Gallery, 2803 Hobbs, Amarillo, Texas 79109. Entry deadline is April 29.

The chances of a sextuplet birth in the world today are 3 billion-to-one.

Confidential to Point and Counterpoint in Pottersville: I can understand a husband and wife marching to a different drummer, but you two aren't even in the same parade. Get joint counseling and work hard at making a go of the marriage. Your children's comments made a lot of sense to me. Listen to them. "From the mouths of babes—"

Rose Ann Smith to go to Great Britain

Rose Ann Smith of Hereford has been notified by the National Hospice Education Institute that she has been selected to attend the Hospice Seminar in Great Britain this summer.

Smith is a family nurse practitioner and is presently the education and quality assurance coordinator at Deaf Smith General Hospital. She is also the chairman of the steering committee trying to organize Hospice in Hereford.

Forty persons throughout the nation have been accepted to attend the two-week Hospice Seminar. The group will be an inter-disciplinary team composed of nurses, doctors, psychologists and members of the clergy. The seminar will survey many facets of hospice care for terminally ill patients and their families.

The faculty are leading members of Britain's health and caring professions and includes Dame Cicely Saunders, M.D., the founder of the contemporary hospice at St. Christopher's in London, which is the first modern day hospice.

New Zealand, composed of the large North Island and South Island and several small island groups, has an area of 103,736 square miles, about the size of the state of Colorado. Abel Janszoon Tasman, a Dutch navigator, was the first European visitor in 1642. Capt. James Cook explored the coasts in 1769 and 1770. The British moved in in 1840 with an organized settlement.

POLLY'S POINTERS Don't try to cook in the dishwasher

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I recently heard about cooking a foil-wrapped chicken in a dishwasher. Do you know how it's done? — MAGGIE

DEAR MAGGIE — According to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, using your dishwasher for cooking is not safe or efficient. Here is what they have to say on the subject.

The temperatures reached inside dishwashers are not high enough to ensure that food is safely cooked for human consumption. The internal temperature of a dishwasher may reach 140 degrees under optimal conditions (and not always that high). If you want to cook poultry to a temperature of 165 degrees (the recommendation for a perfectly and safely cooked bird), the temperature of the water in the dishwasher would have to reach at least 165 degrees or more.

Holding food for prolonged periods at temperatures between 40 degrees and 130 degrees encourages bacteria growth. Some cycles of the dishwasher—especially if the food takes more than one cycle to "cook"—will provide the warm, moist environment at these dangerous temperatures that encourage this bacteria growth.

Food placed in a dishwasher may become contaminated. If the wrapping is the least bit permeable, water may seep into the food, carrying with it detergent residue or any bacteria that may have grown since the dishwasher was last used. The force of the spray may bounce or move the food, causing a puncture or tear in the wrapping to admit this contamination.

The force of the spray could dislodge the food package and toss it onto the heating element, which could possibly cause a fire.

Using a dishwasher for cooking is a waste of water and energy.

Finally, appliances should only be used for their intended purposes. They are not tested to operate safely for unintended uses, such as using a dishwasher to cook food.

In other words, stay away from schemes such as cooking a chicken in your dishwasher. It's unsafe, unwise and inefficient! — POLLY

DR. GOTT Management of heart problem

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — This spring I developed ventricular tachycardia and had three cardiac arrests in the hospital. I'm now taking medicine to prevent this. When I try to explain my condition to people, I just get a blank stare. Maybe you can do a better job!

DEAR READER — I'll try. Under certain circumstances, the muscle cells that make up the wall of the major heart chamber (left ventricle) generate electrical impulses that interfere with or override the heart's natural pacemaker (sinus node).

The ventricular impulses usually are rapid (tachycardia). If this maverick rhythm is not controlled, heart damage may result or the ventricular tachycardia may develop into a heart-rhythm disturbance called ventricular fibrillation, which can be fatal.

This seems to be what happened in your case, since you had cardiac arrest — a term that is used to describe both ventricular fibrillation and cardiac asystole (heart stoppage).

One of the most remarkable advances in scientific medicine has been the development of drugs that inhibit the ventricular muscle's tendency to form electrical charges. By using these medications, doctors can prevent competing ventricular impulses and thereby save the lives of many patients who, years ago, would have been helpless and at great risk.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I told my doctor that I have severe premenstrual syndrome, and I asked for a referral to a PMS clinic. He said that I was just depressed, and he wants me to go to a woman psychiatrist. I have a hard time functioning from the time of ovulation through menstruation, but no drugs seem to help. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER — I suggest that you follow your instincts and go to a physician or a clinic that specializes in premenstrual syndrome. You can always see the psychiatrist if, later on, the specialists conclude that your symptoms are caused by something other than PMS.

DIVERTICULAR DISEASE is a common problem, and Dr. Gott's new Health Report tells how it can be treated and managed. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

St. Valentine's Day

St. Valentine's Day is the festival of a martyr who was beheaded in Rome under the rule of Emperor Claudius. However, association of this day with lovers has nothing to do with the saint. It probably had its origin in an old belief that on this day birds begin to choose their mates.

Medina pitches 2-hitter against Borger

Whitefaces win 1-4A opener, 7-1

The pitching masterpieces continued for the Hereford Whitefaces Saturday when Bobby Medina limited Borger to two hits in a 7-1 Herd victory.

The game was the District 1-4A opener for both teams. Hereford, 9-3 for the season, plays at Lubbock Dunbar today at 6:30 p.m., and plays at home on Saturday against Canyon at 1 p.m.

Medina, in winning his third game of the season, did not walk any Borger batters, and recorded three strikeouts. Borger's run off Medina was unearned, with a batter reaching base on an error and scoring on a double in the third inning.

The Whitefaces, who had 12 hits in the game, moved out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Keith Herrera led off with a single and stole second base.

After Robby Collier walked, Kyle Streun hit an RBI double and Keith Anderson hit an RBI single.

In the top of the fourth inning, three singles resulted in a Whiteface run. Michael Phibbs had the first single of the inning, then Herrera, and then Collier with the RBI hit.

In the fifth inning, two hits and two Borger errors led to three more runs for Hereford and a 6-1 lead. James Hernandez doubled and scored on a single by Phibbs. Paul Maes and Phibbs later scored on errors.

The last Herd run came in the seventh inning. Maes and Phibbs both singled, and Collier hit a double to drive home Maes.

Updated team pitching statistics, according to Hereford Coach T.R. Sartor, show Bobby Medina and Keith Anderson continuing to lower their earned run averages.

Medina's earned run average, after giving up no earned runs against Borger, stands at 0.63. Anderson, who pitched a complete game in the Herd's 17-3 win over Caprock last Friday, has an earned run average of 1.38. Only one of Caprock's runs against Anderson was earned.

Anderson has 25 strikeouts in 20 and one-third innings pitched, and Medina had 19 strikeouts in 22 and one-third innings pitched. Anderson has three victories, as does Medina.

Both of them are not giving up many walks. Medina has an outstanding record of only one walk, and Anderson is also outstanding with just six walks in all his innings pitched.

Keith Herrera is now the leading Herd batter, according to the stats, with a .455 average — 15 hits in 33 at-bats. Kyle Streun is second with a .440 average, 11-for-25.

Other leading hitters for the Whitefaces include: Robby Collier, .370, 13-for-25; Medina, .370, 10-for-27; James Hernandez, .357, five-for-14; Michael Phibbs, .348, eight-for-23; and Rodney McCracken, .320, eight-for-25.

Collier is the RBI leader with 10. Herrera, Keith Anderson, and Paul Maes each have seven runs batted in, and McCracken has six.

Herrera is the stolen base leader with six. Anderson, Collier, and McCracken each have three doubles to lead in that category.

HHS junior varsity wins baseball doubleheader

Hereford High School's junior varsity baseball team upped its season record to 5-1 last Saturday with a doubleheader sweep of Pampa.

Hereford scored 9-7 and 14-13 victories in the games played at the HHS baseball field.

Game one saw Pampa take a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning. Hereford cut that lead to 2-1 in the bottom of the first when Roger McCracken hit an RBI triple.

The Whitefaces moved into the lead, 4-2, in the bottom of the second inning. Kyle Andrews began the inning with a triple, and scored on a single by Joe Lopez.

J.T. Heaton walked, and Glenn Parker singled. Heaton scored on a bases-loaded walk, and Parker scored on a wild pitch.

After three innings of play, Hereford held a 6-3 lead. In the third for Hereford, Brad Pittman reached base on an error. The next three Hereford batters walked, resulting in Pittman scoring. Lopez also scored in the third inning, on an error.

Pampa scored two runs in the top of the fourth inning to cut Hereford's lead to 6-5. Pittman reached base on an error again in the bottom of the fourth. He stole second and scored when Lopez hit a double, and Hereford's lead stood at 7-5.

Pampa again moved to within one run of Hereford, 7-6, in the top of the fifth inning. But a two-run double by Roger McCracken in the bottom of that inning made Hereford's lead 9-6. McCracken batted in Shane Kapka, who had singled, and Derrell Page, who had reached base on an error.

Jason Scott pitched a complete game for Hereford, striking out 10 Pampa batters, walking six, and giving up four hits.

Game two saw both teams put together big first innings. Pampa had a 6-0 lead when the top of the first ended.

In the bottom of the first, Scott reached base on an error, and Page batted him in with a double. McCracken hit an RBI single, and later in the inning, McCracken and Todd Collier each scored on errors.

Scott doubled and scored on Page's single in the bottom of the second when Hereford cut Pampa's lead to 6-5.

The Whitefaces then blasted Pampa for five runs in the bottom of the third. Lopez singled and scored on a double by Kapka, and then Raymond Romo and Fidel Ceballos both walked.

Scott stroked a two-run double, and Andrews drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

Pampa scored a pair of runs in the top of the fourth, and Hereford came back with one run in the bottom of that inning for an 11-8 lead over the Harvesters. Collier walked, Edward Martinez singled, and Kapka hit an RBI single.

Pampa scored one run in the fifth inning, and Hereford scored two runs. Page and McCracken both singled for the Whitefaces in that inning, with Page scoring on a single by Collier and McCracken scoring on a double by Kapka.

In the top of the sixth inning, Pampa scored four runs to tie the game at 13-13. The game-winning run was scored in the bottom of the sixth by Hereford's Jeff Farr, who reached base on an error and scored on a wild pitch.

Ceballos pitched the first five innings for Hereford, striking out six, walking two, and allowing two hits. Romo pitched the last two innings, allowing four hits and walking two batters.

Software wizards produce masterpieces of fantasy

AUSTIN (AP) — Doctors told computer-game creator Al Evans after he was seriously hurt in a 1963 car crash that he would never be able to live an independent life.

"I got blown up pretty bad," he said. "Competent authorities told me I would never be able to dress myself. Now I play guitar and race motorcycles better than any of those guys. And I have a prettier wife than any of them do. There's nothing I can't accomplish if I put my mind to it."

Evans' masterpiece, "Captain Magneto," is an interactive adventure in the disappearance of several spacehips.

"Captain Magneto" reflects the way I look at life," he said. "It is the only game I know where you need to make friends to win. You don't kill everything you meet."

There are still plenty of computer users willing to pay $10 to $60 for a chance to use their PC for something more entertaining than word processing and spreadsheets. Don Reisinger, director of marketing at Atari, says 7.5 million computer games were sold in the United States in 1986, amounting to $100 million in sales (software only).

But Evans distributes his creation through a volunteer payment system called "shareware." After acquiring the game from a commercial database or local computer bulletin board, players are supposed to send $20 to Evans' company, Power Tools.

"I suspect that many copy it and don't pay," he said. "But I want my work to be widely available at a low price. I dislike dealing with publishing companies, lawyers, agents, advertising and all things other than designing Captain Magneto's next adventure."

Evans views computing differently from many of his colleagues. "I'm an old computer liber," he said. "If a program doesn't help people, it isn't worth the disk it's copied on."

Evans, 40, doesn't live by software games alone. He also develops business software and solves knotty computer problems for companies and government agencies. "I bill myself as a wizard and charge clients accordingly," he said.

Austin nurtures game developers. "It's full of PhDs working in 7-Elevens and seekers, people who care about more than the visible world," Evans said.

Julio Barrada, president of software company Computer Systems, started the Austin Area Certified Developers Association to serve Central Texas' small but productive programming community.

"People usually write games to learn about computers," Barrada said. "Few stick with it because the money is bad. Unless you create a classic, the game only lasts five months. It's tough to put one on the market. It costs about $75,000 to launch a good piece of software properly. It's scary to think of how much good software never goes to market because of start-up costs."

Richard Garriot solved that problem by starting his own software publishing company, Origin Systems, with older brother Robert and programmer Chuck "Chuckles" Bueche.

Born in Cambridge, England, Garriott was nicknamed "Lord British" at his Houston high school. The name computer appears on all copies of his games. The son of astronaut Owen Garriott and a professional artist, he claims he got his creative impulses from Mom and technical abilities from Dad.

He wears around his neck a bronze snake that he made when he was 11. "People at computer and software conventions don't recognize my face, but they recognize my snake," he said. "It is a recurring symbol in Origin Systems games."

The company mainstay, a fantasy role-playing game called "Ultima," started as a high school project in Houston. Garriott rewrote "Ultima" 28 times before graduating, and then rewrote it again before marketing it.

The latest version, "Ultima IV," took two years to create, features hundreds of characters capable of dialogue and takes 200 hours to play.

Garriott dropped out of the electrical engineering program at UT after learning basic circuitry and machine language. "They don't teach the programming you need to produce entertainment software in college," he said.

has grown at more than 100 percent a year since 1982. Current annual sales are about $5 million. Twenty employees work at the company's New Hampshire headquarters. Eight programmers under Garriott's leadership develop software in Austin.

The corporate culture is zany. During happy hour — which can happen any time — programmers grab Rabasers, wooden guns that shoot lengths of surgical tubing and hunt one another in the atrium of the office building they occupy.

"Creativity follows creative swings," Garriott said. "We work a few hours, then shoot each other with Rabasers to relax."

"I envision the ultimate computer game," said the 25-year-old millionaire. "It will incorporate all five senses. The player won't be able to discern it from reality. It's a long way off, but that's where we're headed."

Todd Porter, a computer research associate at Southwest Texas State and programmer for Origin Systems, is designing a fantasy role-playing game called "Legend." He hopes it will surpass best-selling "Ultima."

Porter wants "Legend" to portray a universe so appealing that players will feel proud to own a piece of property in it. "Success in the real world is difficult and fleeting," he said. In a fantasy world, you control everything. That's OK. We all wrap ourselves in imaginary cloaks at one time or another to escape."

Porter, who once wanted to become a minister, believes faith and computer science are compatible. "We will eventually create computers that think better than man," he said. "That doesn't mean we'll replace God. Look at how many circuits we have to wire together to do what God did with a few brain cells."

Darin Adler went to work for Chicago software company ICOM Simulations when he was 18. For four years, he worked in Chicago in the summers and on a computer science degree at UT during the fall and spring.

Working in cooperation with others, Adler created the award-winning "Deja Vu: A Nightmare Comes True" (a different product than Computer Systemics' model) in 1985. "It's a 1940s detective story, which appeals to an older crowd," he said.

Tennis star Ivan Lendl has played in the last five U.S. Open finals matches, losing the first three and winning the last two.

Giving hope to prison inmates a goal of personal ministry

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — When Virginia Whitten isn't traveling with her husband's ministry group, she's spending hours corresponding with prison inmates.

The letters she receives often bring tears to her eyes, she says. She receives approximately 400 cards and letters annually.

"We answer every letter. There are some that take much more in-depth correspondence," Mrs. Whitten said.

She travels with her husband's group, Joe Whitten and His Children, which tours seven-and-a-half months of the year. Those travels last year took them to 52 prisons, 40 churches and five civic organizations.

"Joe and I want to help the inmates make a decision to change their lives," she says, adding that she has an additional goal of her personal ministry: "I want to give them hope."

Mrs. Whitten says she believes inmates identify with a story she likes to share with them — her own confinement in a psychiatric hospital. She talks about being flawed and how she has been judged by society — a reality for people who live behind prison walls.

"The inmates quickly realize that I am 'for real' ... they can spot a phony immediately and would laugh me off the stage," she says.

One inmate from an Army prison at Fort Riley, Kan., wrote her:

"All my life I hid my emotions, I did not want to let people know how I felt ... For the first time in my life, I cried and was not ashamed of it. I didn't care who saw me, or what they thought ... The combination of His Children and Virginia's love and caring (through her story), now enabled me to walk with my head held high because I know that there is someone who does care and loves me, a person who doesn't care what I've done."

Mrs. Whitten says she feels a special mission to mentally ill and mentally retarded inmates.

"TDC (Texas Department of Corrections) is in a state of emergency and is really doing all it can right now to help alleviate its problems — no psychiatrists, no psychologists and overcrowding."

Her formula for helping such inmates includes understanding and God, as well as good psychiatric care and when needed, medication.

"The mentally ill should be in a special prison where they can get help. And some of these mentally ill inmates should never be released — but some, with help and understanding, could later function well in society," she says.

Her husband says he has become more attuned to the inmates' individual personalities in the course of his ministry.

"I have become more aware that to classify a person as just an 'inmate' really disregards their individuality. We find ourselves ministering not only to the hardcore, but to the habitual, the incompetent, the mentally ill, the victims of a bad environment, and even those who are innocent, or who have been convicted on technicalities," Whitten said.

William Howard Taft was elected the 27th president of the United States in 1908. He defeated William Jennings Bryan.
