Roosevelt And MacDonald Continue Conference

Broad Plan Being Made For Nations

Administration Inflation Bill Given To Congress Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the third successive day, heads of the American and British governments sat down together for a prolonged informal discussion of the course they hope will place the world in security of stabilized currency.

Before the day ended, President Roosevelt and Premier MacDonald hoped to have before them a report of economic experts who have been working out details of a broad plan discussed by the two.

MacDonald breakfasted with Senator Borah. The latter said the premier was optimistic and believed an agreement could be reached that would make a world economic conference a success.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Described as capable of transferring two hundred billion dollars from the creditor to the debtor class, the administration's inflation program started its way through congress Monday.

WASHINGTON By Paul Mallon
Mileage
No one will ever know which Senators took their unearned mileage and which ones were conscientious enough to decline it.

Year before last (the fiscal year 1930-31) the Senate adopted the praiseworthy custom of printing in the report of its secretary a list of the mileage advances made to each senator.

Without any announcement being made about it that custom has been abandoned.

The information would be doubly valuable this year because the two sessions of Congress ran together. Many congressmen obviously collected mileage to and from home at 20 cents a mile without moving out of their chairs here.

Action Made As Allowable Is Increased

750,000 Barrels Per Day Fixed In Order Issued Sunday

HOUSTON (AP)—The Texas Company responded Monday to the railroad commission's order permitting production of 750,000 barrels daily in the East Texas field by posting a price of ten cents per barrel for crude from that field.

KILGORE (AP)—East Texas oil field, closed since April 6, reopened at 7 a. m. Monday under the largest allowable ever issued by the railroad commission.

AUSTIN—The production allowable of the East Texas oil field was fixed by the Texas Railroad Commission at 15 per cent of the average hourly potential of each well. The commission estimated the field could produce between 700,000 and 750,000 barrels daily under that arrangement.

Tests conducted by the commission over a period of several days, involving 300 key wells which were allowed to flow to capacity for two hours, revealed that the potential of the field is 126,000,000 barrels daily.

It was estimated that the average per well production daily under the new order would range from 40 barrels to 150 barrels. The commission the top limit allowable is fixed at 400,000 barrels daily. The per well allowable ranging from 30 to 35 barrels daily.

New Order Is Temporary
The field was closed April 6 to permit the commission to take the potential tests.

Orders of the commission governing production have been declared void by United States district courts heretofore whenever they were attacked.

The commission issued a list of statements with the new order as follows:
"The federal court has repeatedly said the commission in the production of its orders must look to an 'eye single' to the purpose of our conservation statutes and the powers granted to the commission by law. We have done that."

The Question of Stabilization

In reporting the movements of foreign exchange it is the general practice of financial writers to give the impression that there is a kind of battle going on to maintain the value of the dollar in terms of other currencies.

depreciation. Let us suppose for the sake of argument that in view of the rigidity of our own domestic structure, the rigidity of fixed charges and of wages rates, the United States determined that it would reduce the gold content of the dollar 30 per cent.

The conclusion is that the gold value of a currency must be determined by a judgment as to what is the best domestic equilibrium of prices and fixed charges.

This, it should be noted, is not a new-fangled heresy, but the conclusion implied in the findings of the experts who prepared the agenda of the World Economic Conference.

That being the case, it is greatly to be hoped that the Administration will make no immediate commitments to return to the international gold standard unless these commitments are preceded by measures to raise the American price level in order to reestablish our own internal equilibrium.

Postscript: The current discussions about the gold standard are very contrary to so many long-established American ideas of finance that they naturally cause many persons to feel anxious.

CHAPTER XLII

These were five persons in the bedroom with its low, modernistic furnishings in orange and ivory and black. All of the lights in the room were burning. Drawers of the dressing table had been pulled out and left open. A dress lay discarded across a chair and a hat had been tossed on the bed.

Betty Carlyle was the center of the group. She wore a bold-colored negligee that caught and held the light and she would have looked very beautiful except for the anger in her face.

"But I tell you I've looked," she exclaimed. "Everywhere. The necklace isn't here and someone's stolen it. I know it was in my jewel case."

"When did you see it last?" Mrs. Curtis asked.

Betty stamped a foot impatiently. "Why do you keep asking the same questions?" she demanded. "I told you I haven't seen it for a week. It was in the case where I always keep it. I haven't been wearing the necklace—just my bracelets."

"And the bracelets?"

"They're still here. That's one of the queer things about it. Some one must have come into the apartment while I was away and taken the necklace."

Rolf Carlyle moved toward a table and flicked the ashes from his cigarette into a tray. "You know I've told you you shouldn't keep all that stuff here in the house," he said. "It isn't safe. Why, with your rings and those two bracelets and the other things you wear, there must be a couple of thousands dollars' worth of jewels in this room."

"More than that," Mrs. Curtis said. "The necklace cost $800."

A bell sounded sharply and Marie, the maid, who had been standing in the background, turned to answer it. Marie's eyes were red as though she had been weeping.

"That's the police, I suppose," Betty said.

"We might have been murdered in our beds for all that," Rolf grumbled as the four trailed into the living room—Betty followed by Rolf and Mrs. Curtis and lastly Janet.

A policeman and a smaller man in a brown suit stood in the doorway. The man in brown stepped forward.

"Mrs. Carlyle?" he asked.

"I'm Mrs. Carlyle," Betty told him. "You're from the police, aren't you?"

"Yes," Mrs. Carlyle, "McKewan's my name and this is Patrolman Scott. I understand there's been a robbery here?"

"Someone has stolen my pearl necklace," Betty told him. "I didn't miss it until this evening when I was dressing. The necklace was in my jewel case where

"I always keep it—"

"Suppose you tell us just what happened," he detective interrupted smoothly. "How did you happen to notice the necklace was missing? What time was it then?"

"It was about three-quarters of an hour ago," Betty said. "Maybe a little less. My husband and I were going out and I was dressing. I was sitting at my dressing table and I pulled out the second drawer—that's where I keep the jewel case. The case was there but something about it made me look at it. It didn't seem to be the way I always keep it. Not quite the same position I mean. I took the case out and opened it—and then I saw the necklace was gone."

"This was a valuable necklace?"

"Mrs. Curtis answered "It cost $800," she said. "I gave it to my daughter two years ago."

Rolf spoke for the first time. "That's one of the things I always tell you about it. There were two expensive bracelets and some other jewelry in the box. Nothing was touched except the necklace."

"Can we see the room?"

They returned to the bedroom. McKewan paused for an instant to survey the room, then followed Betty to the dressing table.

"Was it like this?" he asked.

"Were all these drawers open?"

"No, I did that after I found the necklace was gone. I wanted to see if I could possibly have put it anywhere else. But I hadn't. It's not here!"

Patrolman Scott crossed the room and looked out the window. There was a sheer drop to the ground six stories below. "Whoever took the necklace must have come through the door," he said. "And gone out the same way."

"Miss take a look at the other rooms," McKewan suggested. "See if you find anything."

"Now, Mrs. Carlyle," McKewan went on, "you say you've made a thorough search, but are you sure you didn't just misplace the necklace? Couldn't you have dropped them into another box or possibly another drawer?"

"I didn't!" Betty denied vigorously. "I know very well that I didn't—and you can look for yourself. They've been stolen!"

A complete and careful search failed to reveal the pearls. McKewan admitted that she had not seen the necklace for several days—possibly a week. It was kept inside its own box in the jewel case. She hadn't worn the pearls for a long while but she was sure she had looked at them not more than seven or eight days ago. Less than that, she thought.

Patrolman Scott returned and reported there was nothing out of the way in any of the other rooms. And no mode of entry to the apartment except from the corridor. McKewan shook his head. "It's not a professional job," he said, "at least bracelets wouldn't be here. Who's been around who knows you had that necklace and could have taken it? How about servants?"

"There's only my maid," Betty told him.

Marie, who had been standing by the door, alternately sniffing and wiping her eyes, turned toward Betty. "I didn't do it!" she cried. "Oh, Mrs. Carlyle, you know I didn't do it! Fifteen years I've been working in some of the finest homes in Lancaster and nobody ever accused me of taking anything before! I was the only one who could have taken it."

"Be you can't!" Janet exclaimed. "Alarm and fright were written on her face now. 'You can't really mean you think that!'"

"Betty, please—!" It was Mrs. Curtis who cut in.

McKewan's glance took in all three women. "I think," he said, "we'd like to ask Miss Hill a few questions. In private, if you don't mind."

A moment later he faced the girl. Patrolman Scott sat on the bench before the dressing table and swung one leg. All the others had gone.

"Now then," said McKewan, "open up! What did you do with these pearls?"

And Millions More

"On top of that," said Wagstaff, "I believe the general revenue fund will be in good enough shape soon for a transfer of another large sum to the available school fund—perhaps up to three or four million dollars. I believe the auditor's estimate of a $13.50 per capita apportionment is certain, without any new taxes, and I think it likely the total will be larger.

"The state pays for about one-third of the education of a pupil in the public school. The other two-thirds comes from local sources. A good many teachers are trying to get the legislature to impose more taxes in order to bolster up the school fund are doing so because they fear local sources of revenue will be short and they want the state to carry the main load.

"A lot of public school teachers are being misled," Wagstaff said.

BATTERY AND BODY REPAIRING

J. L. Webb Motor Co. 11th & Runnels Phone 848

State Superintendent's office about three weeks ago told me, after studying their records, that in their opinion the deficit in the per capita at the end of this present fiscal year would be $4 or $5 and possibly $6. They differed, therefore, with the State Auditor in this estimate. If they are correct, the possible per capita for next year, after making the deductions necessary to be made from your own figures, would be somewhere at $7, or $8 or $9.

There is, of course, the undisputed fact that the Legislature is attempting to make the taxes on cigarettes, gasoline and oil yield more money. But none of these bills have yet become laws and in a thing as vital as the school system of the State it would be folly to count the chickens before the egg hatched.

I am calling these things to your attention in order that you may understand the basis upon which the State Teachers Association has figured all this time this year that the per capita for next year will hardly exceed $5, unless additional revenue is provided. The State Teachers Association has no disposition whatever to attempt to force the provision of this revenue by any particular plan or scheme.

ACTION

In all cases give proper effect to actual differences in the productive capacity of different parts of the field and the various wells therein" the order said.

"Accordingly as a part of the method of effecting the distribution of the slowable and for the purpose of and with the intent to make the distribution fair and equitable, it is provided and the commission hereby declares such to be its intent and desire, that the supervisor in charge of the said field, upon written application made by the owner or operator or manager of any well or wells or the duly authorized agent of either may grant exception or exceptions to the order where such is necessary to do equity and prevent arbitrary or unreasonable discrimination as between different wells in the field."

You might disclose the culprits by asking every Senator if he took the money. The trouble with that method is that even those who declined the mileage will not talk. They fear it would put their brothers in a bad light. In returning their checks some of the senators urged that their good deed be not disclosed.

The only fair deduction from this set of facts is that if you suspect more than 75 per cent of them you will be about right.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

Roosevelt

The President's honeymoon period is just about over so far as New York is concerned. Most Wall Streeters are still willing to follow his lead because they don't know what else to do but disaffection and uneasiness are spreading. The zest inspired by the Bank Act and the Economy Bill has worn off.

Privacy

The banks of a certain large city the central states figured out a way to beat publicity of R. F. C. loans. They are working it with the obvious connivance of R. F. C. officials who never favored publicity anyway.

Soviets

Our officials have no confidential information about the trial of the British citizens by the Soviets. They are unable to form any clear opinion as to who framed whom or why.

Wallace

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace visited New York last week and business men who talked to him were agreeably surprised to find he doesn't wear horns.

Tammany

The resignation of Mulrooney as Police Commissioner and Bolan's appointment to replace him strengthen the Roosevelt-Lehman-Flynn New York political setup at Boas Curry's expense. Mulrooney was not actually forced out but Tammany pressure had been making him uncomfortable for months.

Securities

The biggest lobbying against Mr. Roosevelt's Truth-in-Securities Bill has NOT been done by the Stock Market but by a certain large public utilities company. It has spread anonymous letters around the country attacking the measure. Some of these letters have come into the possession of Senators. They may be divulged shortly.

Bonds

The Federal Reserve is quietly embarking on a new open market policy. You will shortly notice its purchases of government bonds are increasing. That will be done to open the way for flotation of the new public works loan issue.

Coolidge

A few days before Mr. Coolidge died, Will Woodin testified before

The Coolidge Railroad Commission, Mr. Coolidge did not know him and cut him off so sharply that Woodin retired hurt. His friend Al Smith, also a member of the Commission asked him outside why he had not pressed Mr. Coolidge for an opportunity to be heard. Woodin replied: "It seemed to me Mr. Coolidge was not well and I thought I had better not say anything."

France

There was no reaction here on the inside or out about the French trial balloon on a lump sum payment. The last administration favored some such idea but the new one has never whispered its views. The reason is that it has approached the problem from an economic angle and has not really considered the technical details of payment.

Orient

The official trans-Pacific underground says the Japs are preparing to create a buffer zone in North China. Their idea is to grab a strip of territory to protect Manchuria against raids. That territory will probably include everything up to the vertexes of Peking and Tientsin if it goes not go inside.

Notes

Felix Frankfurter did not take the solicitor generally because his wife strongly advised against it. She thought his scheduled lectures at Oxford should be given. He felt he would not shine in an administrative office.

His sagacity probably will be rewarded later by appointment to a federal judgeship, which is what he wants. The manager of the House restaurant refused to pose with four wet Congressmen when beer was first served there.

BAPTIST HOMEMAKERS

The Homemakers of the First Baptist Sunday School will meet at the church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for a business meeting.

Sweetwater Team

Three Lives May Be Lost In Blizzard

DENVER, (AP)—Toll of human life for the Rockies spring blizzard may be three. Foreman of a ranch west of Colorado Springs has not been seen since he left the ranch Tuesday night. A man at Colorado Springs and another at Laramie, Wyo., are missing since last Monday.

West Side Sunbeams Hear Bible Stories

The Sunbeam class of the West Side Baptist church met at the church Friday at four o'clock, April 20. Bible stories and one chapter of Acts were read.

Miss Schubert Honored At Nice Birthday Party

Revival At 1st Christian Continuing

Additions In First Week Beyond Optimistic Expectations

As the revival at the First Christian church enters the second week the members and friends of the church are loud in their praise of the great impetus that has been gained in so short a time. Many more additions have been had to the church than was anticipated during the first week by the most optimistic.

Ackerly Hits Payne Plenty

Tigers Taken For Ride In Sunday Fracas Score, Ten To Five

Pap Payne may be Maestro to local sandlotters, but he's just plain "cousin" to Ackerly sluggers. While he yielded only one more hit than Evans, his mound enemy, he was touched for a sum of three triples, one double and seven times base hits. Ackerly jumped on him with both feet in the first inning, scoring six runs, more than enough to win. Final score was 10-5 with Tigers satisfied to get the five.

Mayday Fete To Be Given By Child Study Members

In keeping with the spirit of the times the Child Study Club will return to an old-fashioned form of entertainment and sponsor the traditional May Fete on May Day at the City Park. The exact location will be announced later.

A platform will be erected for the performers, who will be both professional and amateur. The program will include the crowning of the May queen, who with her attendants will be bedecked in the conventional costumes. There will be a court jester. A series of spring dances will be performed for the approval of the queen and her court. Committees will be announced later. Mrs. R. W. Henry as president of the Child Study Club will be general chairman. The plans are to make the May fete, the first of its kind to be held in the city, a city-wide affair. The receipts will go to the juvenile department of the Public Library.

Mrs. Houston Cowden and her mother, Mrs. W. A. Bird, are expected home today from Fort Worth.

Wooten's No. 2 Edwards Drilling In West End Of Field

Nest T. Lawson and associates are plugging to abandon their No. 2-B Edwards, east offset to H. O. Wooten's (formerly Llano Oil & Development Co.) No. 1 Edwards, the farthest western producer in the Edwards pool in Glasscock county. It missed the pay between 2,100 and 2,200 feet and below that horizon struck several water strata. There was water below 2,975 feet, to which point a 14-inch casing was underreamed, and increased at 3,025 feet and to the total depth 3,100.

Location is 330 feet out of the southwest corner of section 16, block 33, township 2 south, T&P Ry. survey. The nearest producer to the east, Tribal Oil Co.'s No. 2 Edwards, is three locations distant. Wooten No. 1 Edwards, which Lawson and others' No. 2-B Edwards offset on the east, in February became the sixth producer in the west extension to the Phillips-Coffee pool. It topped the pay at 2,185 feet and was completed at 2,189 feet, rating 574 barrels daily on a proration pumping test.

Wooten No. 2 Edwards, the second location west of Wooten No. 1 Edwards, was spudded April 14 and had drilled to 140 feet. It is 330 feet from the south line and 1,550 feet from the east line of section 17, block 33, township 2 south, T&P Ry. Co. survey.

R. T. Helms' No. 1 Hilger, 330 feet out of the northeast corner of section 18, block 34, township 2 south, T&P Ry. Co. survey, had drilled to 645 feet in water sand. Humble No. 1 Nat Washer, 330 feet out of the northeast corner of section 20, block 33, township 2 south, T&P survey, was straightening hole, which was 1,365 feet deep.

ROOSEVELT AND ADVISERS IN INFLATION PROGRAM

Legislation to give President Roosevelt unprecedented discretionary authority to control the currency and monetary standards of the country was drafted at a conference attended by treasury advisers and democratic congressional leaders. Among those who aided the President in shaping the program were Senator Key Pittman (left), William H. Woodin (center), secretary of the treasury, Senator Elmer Thomas (right) and Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state, who is shown below with President Roosevelt. (Associated Press Photos)

Grandson Of Man Who Started '49 Rush Believes In Inflation He Says As Reno Folks Take Drinks On Him

By JAMES "CRUIZ" United Press Staff Correspondent RENO, Nev. (UP)—James W. Marshall, grandson and namesake of the discoverer of gold at Coloma, Calif., in 1848, believes in inflation.

He inflated poverty stricken Reno, once queen of the divorce mills, by $5,000 recently. And Reno hasn't seen a $1,000 bill since the boom divorce days of 1930. Marshall came to town with $10,000 in cash and gold dust. He started hobos and bar flies of the bank club by presenting them with $100 bills and sprinkling pretzels of beer-drinking divorcees with genuine gold dust.

The grandson of the man whose casual discovery of a "sparkling substance which might be gold" at Sutter's Fort resulted in that mighty cavalcade which came west in 1849 in search of gold, had turned discoverer himself.

Near Yerington, Nev., he discovered, so he claimed, a new gold field.

Marshall was said to have had at least $10,000 in gold dust and currency in his pockets when he arrived here after a 124-mile ride from Yerington.

He registered at the Golden hotel, obtained Lloyd Davis, bell hop, as his "treasurer" and proceeded to the bank club, a gambling establishment.

He lost $1,000 in one throw at craps. When the clicking ball of the roulette wheel click-clacked and stopped he had lost another $1,000.

Then he walked to the bar and shouted: "Listen folks. Stop, everybody. This is Jim Marshall speaking. Come over and let's have a drink—it's on me."

Ragged men came in out of the street. News boys and transients spread the word of "free drinks" to the floaters down on commercial row, by the railroad yards. Dealers, bartenders off shift, gamblers dozing in chairs in the back of the club waiting for their "stock to turn" harkened to the man with gold to spend.

They crowded to the bar and crushed the orchids on the mink coats of divorcees as the drinks

Put Ex-Texas Leaguers Now In Majors On One Team And You Could Win In Any Man's Loop

Plenty Of Color, Too, With Shires, Dizzy Dean, Schoolboy Rowe And Others Who Have 'Gone Up'

By TED MALOY

United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS (UP)—Take the former Texas League players from the majors, build them into one team and you would have a club that would go places in any man's circuit.

It would be a colorful aggregation. Youngsters mostly, with "wall" enough to give the best of the clubs a race for their money.

It would be a hand-picked with Art (Whitman) Shires, Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, Ervin (Pete) Fox, Joseph M. Medwick, Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and a score of others to select from. With them gone, the big leagues would be shorn of much of the new life that promises to sustain sportsmanship and increase gate receipts.

Choose a pitcher from Rowe, Dean, Ray Benge or Victor Franklin; Frank Reber for catcher; pick a first baseman from Shires, Henry Greenberg or Irving Burns, flip between Tony Piet and Berle James for second baseman, use Art Scharsin or Frank (Pinky) Higgins at third, place James J. Lacy at shortstop and form an outfield from Fox, Medwick, Dubs Garna, Homer Peel and Joe G. Moore.

All were powers in Texas league clubs and apparently are making good in the majors.

"Schoolboy" Rowe won his first major league game this spring for the Detroit Tigers by blanking the Chicago White Sox in a six-hit game. He fanned the hard-hitting, capricious Al Simmons who tried all the tricks in the book to rattle the 21-year-old pitcher. He left Beaumont last year with a record of winning 19 games and losing only seven. He batted .286, which represented 70 bases on 23 times at bat, and hit 10 home runs.

Shires in St. Louis Cardinals, who has added his gate-drawing powers to the St. Louis Cardinals, once performed his antics for Waco. More than once he appeared on his first base sack bed—"happy days."

Davis, his bell hop "treasurer" led him to his hotel. No gold discovery had been reported at Yerington today.

wearing a straw hat, a red necktie or a pair of colored glasses. More frequently he electrified grandstands with a bloodcurdling Indian war whoop.

When Shires and the Boston Braves exchanged Shanghai salutes this spring it was just another move in his young life. For he has played for the White Sox, the St. Louis Browns and Milwaukee.

The Cardinals also have "Dizzy" Dean. They found him playing with the army team at San Antonio. He has consistently burned up the big leagues as effectively the day he pitched his first game for Houston in the Texas League and struck out 12 men.

Fox broke an ankle about a month before the season closed but coasted to first place with an average of .377.

Greenberg, home run king of the Texas league last year, is with the Detroit Tigers. He hit 39 four-baggers for Beaumont last season in accumulating 344 bases, accounting for 131 runs batted in and crossing the plate 133 times himself.

Joe Moore, playing with the New York Giants, apparently has made sufficient impression. He went up from San Antonio.

The Philadelphia Athletics evidently may use Pinky Higgins, former Dallas player at third this season. His showing as a free agent last year with Portland, winner of the Pacific coast championship, was impressive.

Fraser, the right handed pitcher-se from Enterprise played Texas League ball in 1929 to give Dallas the championship. He is with the White Sox.

Regular keystone position with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the place won by Piet, formerly with Waco. Levey and Burns both went to the Browns after the 1932 season with Wichita Falls as short stop and first baseman respectively.

The St. Louis Americans are keeping Scharsin, flashy infielder bought last year from the Wichita Falls-Longview club. Rather was issued a new suit by the Tigers, indicating the work he learned behind the bat at Beaumont is satisfactory. James went to the New York Giants from Dallas. Burns stepped from Waco to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Fielding for Wichita Falls-Longview won Garna a berth with the Browns. The Giants drafted Peel after he had been sold by Houston to Columbus of the American Association.

There are others working for the majors who have blazed trails through the Texas League. The Detroit Tigers have six others taken from their Beaumont farm, Philadelphia one from Dallas, the Cardinals two from Houston and Pittsburgh Pirates one from Galveston.

On the Job every minute

—they've just got to be right

Each and every Chesterfield!

Each tray of CHESTERFIELDS from the cigarette-making machines passes under the watchful eyes of inspectors, trained by long practice to see flaws such as an end of torn paper, or a poorly filled cigarette.

And there's still another safeguard... two "electric detectives" on each packaging machine. Electric fingers "feel" each end of every cigarette, and throw out every imperfect package.

Open your pack of Chesterfields, and look at them. It's no accident that every cigarette is round, firm and full. Somebody's been on the job every minute to give you what you want... a cigarette that's made right in every way and that's milder and tastes better.

they Satisfy

End-on, this tray-full of fresh-made Chesterfields looks like a huge honeycomb. Inspectors, expert from long practice, remove with tweezers each torn or imperfect cigarette.
