

Smith says probe politically motivated

By O.G. NIEMAN

The investigation of Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul and his former partners in a private law firm stems from a case that was dismissed in March of this year, but the controversy "has now grown into a full-scale fishing expedition which is politically and professionally motivated," according to Jerry Smith, a former assistant DA.

developments, I am considering taking legal action myself and my counsel advised me not to talk about the matter." Saul said his record as DA "speaks for itself." He added that he did not intend to "try the case in the media, and I think the truth will come out."

Saul withdrew from the firm of Saul, Smith and Davis about two weeks ago. Documents pertaining to certain cases were subpoenaed from Saul and from the law offices of Smith and Davis Tuesday.

Calls investigation 'fishing expedition'

"We won't lift our skirts for anyone," Smith declared Wednesday in an exclusive interview with The Brand. "We are documenting information about this investigation and how it has progressed and been pushed. We are considering litigation against some local officials and persons in the community."

Smith claimed there were people involved in the continuance of the investigation "who are politically and professionally motivated." He said that "we are putting the pieces of the puzzle together, and we'll have plenty to tell you when we have it all documented."

The investigation reportedly stems from a case which the DA's office had prosecuted in 1982. District Judge Wesley Gulley dismissed the case in March of this year, ruling there was a "conflict of interest and prosecutorial misconduct on the part of Saul and Smith" because the same firm was responsible for the criminal investigation and became involved in the possible civil litigation.

Judge Gulley appointed a special prosecutor for the case, which had involved potential voluntary manslaughter charges, but the case never came to trial. Local attorney Schalan Atkinson was the defendant's attorney in that case and she has testified before the grand jury here.

Atkinson formerly worked in the district attorney's office, a position she resigned when Saul was appointed as DA. Andy Shuval had resigned the office after he was defeated by Saul in the 1978 Democratic primary. Shuval is now serving as executive director of the Texas Prosecutor's Coordinating Council. The council is involved in the investigation along with the grand jury and the District 13 State Bar Association's grievance committee.

The grand jury recessed here Tuesday without issuing an indictment. It is being led by Linda Walden, an assistant attorney general from Austin who was appointed to assist the jury's investigation. The jury is expected to convene again in January. Although the controversy apparently started with the case which was dismissed in March of this year, Smith confirmed that more allegations have been presented in the investigation. He, however, characterized it as a "fishing expedition."

Smith said the lengthy investigation has "been very damaging to our private law firm." He intimated the investigation and action, if any, should have been completed several months ago.

Homemade Decorations

Keith and Debbie Finch of 431 Western in Hereford enjoy an old-fashioned Christmas decor in their living room this year. The handmade ornaments adorning their Scotch pine tree are a gift from her aunt, Sue Riley of Canyon. Among the trinkets are icicles made from soft-drink cans, painted wood and stained glass ornaments, boots and Santa Claus figures made of felt, handmade doillies and needlepoint designs and painted ceramic figurines. Their son Dean appears more intrigued by the wrapped packages beneath the tree.

Spain offers some tips

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

"Christmas tree fires are among the saddest fires we go to," Hereford Fire Marshall Jay Spain said Wednesday. "When a tree catches on fire, the presents usually go too."

Spain offered tips for preventing holiday fires and other advice on keeping the home as fireproof as possible during the winter months. "Tree fires are not as common as in the past, because people aren't keeping their lights on as long. The new inexpensive kind are usually discarded when they fail to work. The old ones with replaceable glass bulbs were kept around forever, and bare wires and frayed cords often resulted in fires."

Spain said when buying an artificial tree, check on the box to see if it is fire-retardant. Older trees can be treated with fire-retardant sprays.

"If you use a natural tree, but it fresh and keep it watered," he suggested.

Fire marshall tells how to help prevent Christmas catastrophe

"And when Christmas is over, throw it out."

He also offered caution on using outdoor lights. "Turn them off if it starts to rain or snow. The moisture can cause a short. We had several roof fires last year caused from just that."

"Everyone should know this, Spain said, "but we need to remind them not to leave their lights on when they're away from home. We also advise against leaving them on at night while you sleep."

Spain also warned against leaving candles unattended. "Kids and candles do not mix, and you cannot watch your children all the time." "Fireplaces should be cleaned at least once a year," Spain continued. "Certain kinds of wood cause a lot of soot and creosote buildup, especially pine. The idea of a brick fireplace burning may not sound like a problem, until it catches the roof on fire as well."

Spain said heating systems should be checked every two years. "Faulty burners, improper ventilation and dirt build-up have all caused fires in recent years."

"If your pipes freeze, call a plumber," he suggested. "Don't use a torch to thaw them out because you can set the insulation on fire. We lost two trailer homes last year that way."

Spain said wood-burning stoves can be a problem if the pipe is not properly installed. "Make sure it is properly insulated and far enough away from the wall," he counseled.

Other guidelines issued by the fire department include unplugging the television set when away on vacation, discarding wrappings and boxes after the gifts are opened and taking the usual precautions with cigarettes. "Ashes dropped into overstuffed furniture can smolder for hours," he explained. "If you are not sure about ashes being extinguished, drag the piece of furniture into the yard before you leave. It is better than losing your home."

Fund's pledges pass $2,000

Raised $8,500 last year

Mrs. X is not concerned about Christmas gifts for herself or her husband, but she hopes the Christmas Stocking Fund can provide some clothing for her children this year.

Her husband has severe health problems and is not able to work. Mrs. X says she and her husband are not requesting anything, but she would like to see her children have a merrier Christmas this year.

The Christmas Stocking Fund, a local non-profit organization, was established for helping less fortunate families during the Yuletide season. All contributions to the fund are used in the program; there are no expenses since all work is voluntary.

The contributions to the CSF passed the $2,000 mark this week, and the latest donations are listed below. Last year, the fund was almost $8,500 at Christmas time, and many local families

DRGs to assist Medicare

In staying afloat; local hospital adapts

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

If life spans continue to lengthen and nothing drastic is done to change the federal Medicare program, it could be $395 billion in debt within 12 years.

That represents one of the reasons Medicare is altering its system of payments to hospitals, according to Deaf Smith General Administrator James Bullard. The new form of payment evaluation, initiated in October, is based upon diagnosis-related groupings, or "DRGs."

While DRG evaluations are to be used by all the country's hospitals relying on Medicare, DSGH was one of the first batch to begin the program. The first day of a fiscal year is when facilities are supposed to introduce DRGs, and the local hospital's fiscal year started the first month of the system: October.

Basically, DRGs represent "a form of what is referred to as a prospective payment plan," Bullard explained. Medicare payments are based on what has been determined to be the national average cost for a certain treatment. Previously, hospitals were paid for projected total costs.

Under the new system for senior citizens, the principal treatment a patient receives is first placed in one of 23 major diagnostic categories. From there, it is further broken down and determined to fall under one of 467 DRGs. Each DRG has an assigned Medicare payment.

At Deaf Smith General, the medical records department is in charge of determining under which DRG a principle treatment will fall. Debbie Foerster, director of DSGH medical records, said final decisions are often made after doctors are consulted.

One catch of the new system is that payments are based solely on what is found to be the principal treatment.

Should patient have several problems, or develop some during his hospital stay, the amount from Medicare would not change.

Therefore, Bullard and Foerster agreed, careful efforts are made to pin down the correct DRG. Amounts of the DRG payments vary greatly, with one example being a $2,000 difference between "cirrhosis with alcoholism" and "alcoholism with cirrhosis," Foerster said.

Since Medicare payments have so changed, it seems there could be a temptation for doctors to rush treatments considering length of stay is no longer a factor.

"It's not what we're going to do," said Phillis Dawson, DSGH business manager. "Our doctors here do what's right for the patient, and that's why we don't have any problem with it."

Doctors at Deaf Smith General, according to Bullard, have been "cooperative" with the new system. "I think we can feel safe in saying our medical staff see this as another federal intervention into the practice of medicine," he explained. "They won't let it affect their performance."

One reason why the inception of DRGs at the local hospital has not been troublesome, Bullard claimed, is the preparatory work and research done by Dawson and the medical records department. More than four months was spent studying the new system, he said.

So far, DSGH has not lost any money due to the new Medicare program. During the month of October, approximately $25,000 was charged through DRG evaluations for 19 patients. Under the old system, the federal government would have owed the hospital approximately $21,000 for those same patients.

DRGs ranged from $693 to $2,010 apiece, Dawson said. Previously, DSGH would have received from $554 to $3,344 for those treated under Medicare, she pointed out.

The goal for DSGH, Bullard said, is to break even with the new program. Other hospitals, though, are absorbing huge losses due to any one of several factors, including excessive dependence on Medicare or inadequate

Thirty appear in edition

Thirty Hereford students have been included in the 1983 annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1982-1983.

Who's Who, published by Educational Communications, Inc. of Lake Forest, Ill., is the largest high school recognition publication in the country. Students are selected by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups, churches or by the publishing company based upon students' performances in scholarship award contests or extracurricular activities.

Final selection is determined on the basis of criteria which include high achievement in academics and leadership in school activities, athletics or community service. Traditionally, 99 percent of Who's Who students have a grade point average of "B" or better and 97 percent are college bound.

The Hereford students listed included Carla Baxter, Terese Dawson, Sheila Ehler, Michael Foster, Shelly Frye, Michelle Geiger, Craig Hamman, Ilene Hubbard, Allyson Jones, Melvin Kalka, Laura Kosub, Brian David Lady, Scott Lane, Karen Markley and Tim Martin.

School board to gather

Board members of the Hereford Independent School District have scheduled a special meeting tonight for 7:00 at 136 Ave. F.

Only one item appears on the school board's agenda: hearing on suspension of a student.

The next regularly-scheduled gathering of the HISD officials is 5 p.m. Tuesday in the school administration building, 700 Union.

FFA state president speaks

The state president of the Texas Association of the Future Farmers of America was the featured speaker at the Dec. 6 meeting of the Hereford FFA chapter.

Brad Bass, Mt. Vernon, invited local members to set goals and work toward them. "The opportunities are there," he said. "All you have to do is realize these opportunities and get priorities from there." Bass concluded by telling the youths that everyone wants to win, but it takes preparation.

Chapter President Mike Miewes gave Bass a tour of the county, including stops at local feedyards and agricultural industries. The meeting was hosted by the officers and included a meal of calf fries, sausage and french fries.

One arrest made

Hereford police this morning reported one arrest was made Wednesday for public intoxication.

Among the incidents police handled were two apiece of bike theft and vandalism and one of possible solicitation of a child.

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff Department, meanwhile, reported 27 cattle were missing from an area feedyard. Total value of the animals is an estimated $7,236.

Mondale campaigns in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Former vice president Walter Mondale blamed the Republicans for cutting Hispanics out of mainstream politics and promised to invite minorities "into the government at all levels" if elected president.

Mondale, one of eight Democratic presidential candidates, spoke in Dallas before traveling to San Antonio for a $250-a-person fundraiser Wednesday night. He planned more campaigning in Houston today.

"I want to be the president that breaks the ice toward Hispanics," Mondale said. "Hispanic America is an enormous pot of gold for this country, if we'll just use it."

Mondale blasted President Reagan for "trashing" members of the Civil Rights Commission and then replacing them with Republican supporters.

"You don't give people equal rights. They're born with them," he said. "The president owes a responsibility to see that civil rights laws are enforced."

Tower supports invasion

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, says the Reagan administration was surprised at the "extent of the communist presence" on the Caribbean island of Grenada.

"It has become clear that what we found in Grenada was the beginning of another Soviet-Cuban military fortress in our backyard," said the chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services.

Tower, who has announced he will not seek re-election next year, spoke Wednesday at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

He said "at the time of intervention we found:

— "More than 750 Cubans, 49 Soviets, 17 Libyans, 15 North Koreans, 12 East Germans and three Bulgarians, — "Secret treaties with the Soviet Union, Cuba and North Korea which called for military advisers as well as $37.8 in military hardware.

— "Massive quantities of military equipment, including 15,000-20,000 military uniforms — this in a nation with fewer than 2,000 men in the active military."

Computer fails aboard shuttle

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Columbia commander John Young reported computer problems aboard the space shuttle early today and Mission Control considered delaying the planned landing until it understood the problem better.

Young radioed the control center about four hours before Columbia was to land on a California desert runway that two of the ship's four computers had failed and that the failures apparently were associated with jet thruster firings.

Communications with Columbia and its six-man crew were scratchy at the time, and Mission Control spokesman John Lawrence said flight directors considered waving off the landing until later in the day.

Winter threatens at antelopes

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Desperate to reach clear areas to feed amid unrelenting snows, hundreds of antelope have been killed by trains while others await slow death "bunched up" along a fence erected to protect a cattle range, officials say.

About 1,500 antelope are being prevented from reaching Red Rim, a southern Wyoming plateau that dependably blows clear, by the 40-mile fence which has become a focus of wildlife protectors' protests.

The rancher who built the fence argues the antelope herd has been mismanaged by the state Game and Fish Department and is destroying his range for grazing, an issue hotly contested in Wyoming for years.

Wildlife groups have charged that the real reason for the obstruction is to clear the land for coal mining.

Rancher Taylor Lawrence has offered to open some gates, but insists the fence won't come down.

And Bureau of Land Management spokeswoman Pat Korp of Cheyenne said Wednesday her agency and the U.S. attorney's office were "checking all the alternatives" to see if legal action might bring the Red Rim fence down.

Klansman recounts hanging

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A black teen-ager fought "like a crazed animal" and begged "please don't kill me" before two Ku Klux Klansmen beat him, strangled him and left his slashed body hanging from a tree, according to one Klan member's testimony.

James Llewellyn "Tiger" Knowles, 20, testified Wednesday as the state's key witness against Henry Francis Hays, 29, accused of the March 1981 murder of Michael Donald, whose body was found hanging in a tree on a city street.

Defense witnesses were expected to testify today in the trial that began Tuesday.

Knowles said Donald, a 19-year-old brick masonry student, was abducted and taken to an isolated area, where he was beaten and strangled with a rope looped in a hangman's noose. Knowles said they assaulted Donald because he was black and "to show Klan strength in Alabama."

Foreign heads discuss Beirut

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz met today with the foreign ministers of nations with peacekeeping troops in Beirut, and France's foreign minister said afterwards they would not abandon Lebanon.

Both the British and Italian governments, which also contribute troops to the multinational force, are said to be voicing doubts whether the peacekeepers are playing a meaningful role in Lebanon.

Shultz, Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe of Britain nor Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti of Italy would comment on today's meeting, held over breakfast in Shultz' hotel suite here.

But French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson said, "There are no changes that would lead us to change our views — we do not want to give the impression that we would abandon the Lebanese."

Earlier, a senior State Department official, who insisted on anonymity, said the United States would not suggest increasing the size or role of the peacekeeping force.

DRG Dealers

Debbie Foerster, director of medical records at Deaf Smith General Hospital, has recently added the gathering of Diagnosis-Related Groupings to her list of chores. DRGs represent a new form of determining payments owed by the federal Medicare program. Above, Foerster points out data to Dr. Clyde Rush, chief of the hospital's medical staff.

Paul Harvey News

November 14 Cuba's Castro eulogized the 37 Cubans who were killed on Grenada with a speech that lasted an hour-and-a-half.

The diatribe was intended to blame the loss on U.S. and to justify himself.

But the essence of all he said was a public confession that he is no longer the unchallenged Mister Big in the Caribbean. In baseball parlance, he has been "busted back to the minors."

There was calculated risk when our president sent American Marines to Grenada. Not that the mission would fail but that it might boomerang.

It did not. Each sabbath since, Grenada's Catholic, Methodist and Anglican churches have been filled with worshippers offering thanks for the invasion.

The people of Grenada are near unanimous in their expressed hope that the United States will keep at least token forces there until there are new elections and political stability.

In Washington, congressional opposition evaporated. President Reagan's early critics were led by Tip O'Neill.

He has about-faced. Britain's Maggie Thatcher had criticized the invasion; now she has egg on her face. Criticism of her comes from within her own party and from heretofore friendly media.

The London Sunday Times suggested that "the Iron lady is suffering mental fatigue."

On Grenada right now American Army men are repairing pipes, fixing pumps, repaving roads cratered by explosions.

An Army civic-action squad is helping smooth community relations.

Hundreds of new pieces of construction equipment are completing a military station — including the 10,000-foot airstrip at Point Salines.

Some Americans will remain there indefinitely.

Nicaragua's reddish government says that United States Marines are gradually "infiltrating" other Latin American nations, effectively drawing a noose around Nicaragua — to seal it off if not to invade it.

We may not have to.

The public mandate which President Reagan has received for "rescuing endangered Americans" might be enough to reassure our friends and deter our adversaries.

Unloaded gun halts police

DALLAS (AP) — A woman who had her three children in her car when she held police at bay with an empty pistol for more than three hours could not answer a negotiator because she had laryngitis, investigators say.

The standoff began at about 2 p.m. Wednesday, when a woman driving a black Pontiac Trans Am stalled in the middle of a busy intersection and just sat there until another motorist offered to help.

"At 2 o'clock this afternoon the car stalled out. Five to 10 minutes later another motorist pulled behind to help her. She pulled a pistol on him and said, 'No, go away,'" said police Capt. John C. Holt Jr.

There were no injuries in the standoff that lasted until about 5:20 p.m., when a priest arrived and the woman, whose husband died two years ago, surrendered peacefully.

Before she surrendered, police had sealed off the area near Buckner and Old Gate Road in northeast Dallas with about 15 squad cars, SWAT teams and police helicopters standing nearby.

No charges were filed Wednesday night, but Hold said the woman would be booked for assault because she threatened an officer or two with the weapon, which turned out to be unloaded.

Her children, ages 3, 5 and 7 were taken into protective custody, said Holt, a member of the negotiating team.

"During the last several hours there were no threatening gestures made toward the children," said Holt. He added that at one point it looked like the woman pointed the weapon at one of her children.

A Spanish-speaking police negotiator relentlessly pleaded with the woman through a bullhorn, but she sat there with the window rolled up. Hold said the woman, believed to be in her 30s, also took photographs and talked into a tape recorder.

At first, it was believed the woman's husband had recently died and she was reacting to her loss. But Wednesday night, Dallas police investigator Donald R. Marshall said the woman's husband died two years ago.

"What background we have is that he (the husband) died two years ago," Marshall said. "But after talking to the arresting officers, they told me she had laryngitis and could barely speak. She wouldn't answer because she could barely speak."

The interpreter tried throughout to make the woman speak.

"I know your husband died. Roll down your window. We can't talk with your window up. I can't tell if you hear me. Can you hear me? Give me the pistol and open the window. If you don't everything stops here," the negotiator said in Spanish.

"She just got in over her head and had no place to go," Marshall said, adding investigators still did not know the woman's motive.

"What are you going to gain?" asked the negotiator. "You won't gain anything." Holt said the woman finally reacted when a priest from the Good Shepherd Catholic Church in the Dallas suburb of Garland arrived.

Soviets suspend missile talks

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Soviets today suspended talks on long-range nuclear rockets and bombers, saying new U.S. missiles in Europe made a "change in the overall strategic situation."

The announcement came at the end of a 35-minute session and two weeks after the Soviets suspended talks on reducing medium-range nuclear missiles.

"A change in the overall strategic situation due to the beginning of the deployment of new American missiles in Europe compels the Soviet side to re-examine all the issues which are the subject of the discussion at the talks on the limitation and reduction of strategic armaments," the Soviet news agency Tass said in Geneva.

U.S. negotiator Edward L. Rowny told reporters outside the U.S. disarmament headquarters, "We regret that the U.S.S.R. has chosen not to set a resumption date for the next round." He said the United States was "fully prepared" to continue the talks.

Rowny said the United States proposed to resume the talks in early February,

"and we hope that the U.S.S.R. will soon agree on a date for resuming these negotiations which are in the interest of both our nations and of the entire world."

"We cannot agree with Soviet assertions that developments outside the scope of these negotiations require the Soviet Union to withhold agreement on a resumption date," Rowny said.

The Strategic Arms Reduction Talks — called START — which opened June 18, 1982, would have normally gone into a two-month recess with the resumption date announced at the end of the round.

Rowny conducted 78 sessions with Soviet Ambassador Viktor P. Karpov over 17 months to discuss long-range nuclear forces.

The two sides agreed earlier that today's meeting would be the last of the two-month round begun Oct. 5, but there has been no indication from the Soviets that they will resume the talks in February.

On Monday, Soviet leaders in Moscow said the United States was indulging in "wishful thinking" if it thought the Soviets would resume parallel talks on medium-range nuclear missiles.

The Soviets walked out of those talks Nov. 23 after the arrival of the first of 572 U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles to be deployed in Western Europe by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Soviets have announced plans to put nuclear missiles in Czechoslovakia and East Germany, increase the number of SS-20s in the Soviet Union and have sea-based nuclear weapons aimed at the United States to counter the NATO deployment. The plan was endorsed by Warsaw Pact defense ministers meeting Wednesday in Bulgaria.

Deployment of the new U.S. missiles and Europe could prompt the Soviets to reconsider or upgrade their START proposal limiting each side to 1,800 launchers, or vehicles capable of delivering warheads.

The Soviets have about 7,900 warheads mounted on big, fast-flying ground and sea-launched intercontinental missiles, with 900 additional slower flying weapons.

The United States has about 7,200 warheads mounted on ground-and sea-launched missiles, with an additional 2,800 air-launched cruise missiles, bombs and air-to-surface missiles.

Marines attacked, fire missiles, mortars back

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines retaliated with anti-tank missiles and mortars after coming under heavy fire today at their vulnerable Beirut airport base.

The attack, which included mortar fire and rocket-propelled grenades, came as Reagan administration officials were reportedly considering shifting the Marines to a safer location, either on warships off shore or southward toward the Israeli army's front line.

Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks said the U.S. peacekeepers fired back with Dragon anti-tank missiles, 60-mm mortars and small arms after the midmorning attack on the base. He did not identify the assailants and said he had no reports of casualties.

He said the exchange was with militiamen firing at the northeastern perimeter of the Marine compound from a "fortified position" which was destroyed by the return fire.

The Voice of Lebanon radio station of the rightist Christian Phalange Party said the firefight pitted the Marines against Shiite militiamen in southern Beirut, while shelling came from Druse positions in the towns of Amroussieh and Schweifat.

The security of the Marine base has been under intense scrutiny since a suicide terrorist crashed a truck bomb into the Marine headquarters Oct. 23 and killed 240 U.S. servicemen. Last Sunday, eight Marines were killed in an attack by Druse militiamen.

The New York Times and The Boston Globe, in today's editions, quoted sources in Washington as saying plans were being drafted to redeploy the troops in response to military and diplomatic pressures.

Both reports said one option under consideration was to shift the Marines southward toward an area controlled by the Israelis. The Times said another option was to move the 1,600 Marines to U.S. 6th fleet warships offshore.

Simpson will not run

State Rep. Bob Simpson of Amarillo announced Wednesday that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the Texas House of Representatives.

Rep. Simpson, representing the 86th district which comprises Deaf Smith and Randall counties, was in Hereford Wednesday and told The Brand his decision was "based on many considerations."

Simpson said those considerations include more time with his family, his law practice, and more time to pursue civic and church activities and other personal goals.

BOB SIMPSON

"The ten years I have served in public office have given me many personal rewards," said Simpson. "I have made many friends throughout the Panhandle and the state, and I have had the opportunity to have a direct voice in the future of our state. For this, I thank the people who have supported me and elected me to office."

Simpson said the decision didn't mean that he was getting out of politics. "I have preached endlessly that people must be informed and involved if the American experiment in self government is to succeed. I intend to continue to participate as a private citizen."

Simpson became the first representative to serve the 86th district, which was created by a re-districting act. He said the decision not to seek re-election did not preclude him from seeking public office in the future, "but for now, I look forward to a new personal agenda."

Law enforcement session finds 30 cases

AUSTIN (AP) — Investigators from four states believe they may have 30 more slayings that may be traced to self-proclaimed mass murderer Henry Lee Lucas.

Law enforcement officials from Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Florida spent seven hours Wednesday at the Texas Department of Public Safety discussing 39 unsolved murders.

Afterwards, Col. Jim Adams, DPS director, said nine cases were eliminated "because of the time element or the place" or the details of the killings.

"In about 30 cases the modus operandi, time, place and other factors would indicate they could possibly have been committed by Lucas," said Adams.

He said Lucas will be interviewed by investigators assigned to those cases.

Before the closed-door meeting, Adams told reporters that the criminal justice system failed 23 years ago by not ordering Lucas' execution when he killed his mother.

Adams said he is afraid that the drifter who has confessed to more than 100 slayings could one day be returned to the streets.

"I would like to believe he will never be free on the streets again. But I would no more make that statement with certainty because I see too many examples where it just doesn't come about," said Adams.

In addition to discussing Lucas, officials from about 40 agencies traded information about Ottis Toole, a Lucas friend now being held in Jacksonville, Fla. There was no report on this phase of the discussion.

Lucas has been sentenced to a life term and a 75-year sentence in two murders in Texas. He faces eight other murder charges in Texas, including four that could carry the death penalty.

Lucas was sentenced to 20 to 40 years in 1960 for killing his mother but freed 10 years later.

He went back to prison on an attempted kidnapping conviction in 1971, but was freed in 1975.

Investigators at the Wednesday meeting were looking into cases dating back to 1975. Adams said Lucas has claimed responsibility for 120 slayings in 23 states.

Lucas is now held in the Williamson County Jail, where he is awaiting trial in the slaying of an unidentified hitchhiker.

Williamson County Sheriff Jim Boutwell said Lucas has talked freely with investigators who are looking for information on unsolved killings.

Lucas was sentenced to 75 years in prison in the slaying of Ms. Powell, his teen-aged travelling companion.

Adams and Boutwell said the Lucas case has added important new information about mass murderers.

Welcoming New Chairman

Anna Messer, left, outgoing Texas Extension Homemakers Association chairman, welcomed Cindy Norvell, incoming TEHA chairman, at the Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council Christmas party this week.

Displayer of the Month

Debbie Morgan has been selected the displayer of the month at the Deaf Smith County Library. Her showcase of miniature doll furniture, some of which she made herself, will be on exhibit at the library during December. The display features the holiday theme, with Christmas tree, toys and gifts, stockings hung by the fireplace, Christmas cookies, and a miniature Nativity scene.

The Newspaper BIBLE

Once when Jesus' mother and brothers came to see Him, they couldn't get into the house where He was teaching, because of the crowds.

When Jesus heard they were standing outside and wanted to see Him, He remarked, "My mother and My brothers are all those who hear the message of God and obey it."

One day about that time, as He and His disciples were out in a boat, He suggested that they cross to the other side of the lake.

On the way across He lay down for a nap, and while He was sleeping the wind began to rise. A fierce storm developed that threatened to swamp them, and they were in real danger.

They rushed over and woke Him up. "Master, Master, we are sinking!" they screamed. So He spoke to the storm: "Quiet down," He said, and the wind and waves subsided and all was calm!

Then He asked them, "Where is your faith?" And they were filled with awe and fear of Him and said to one another, "Who is this man, that even the winds and waves obey Him?"

So they arrived at the other side, in the Gerasene country across the lake from Galilee.

At winter baseball meeting

Pitching remains top priority

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pitching remains the top shopping priority at the winter baseball meetings, and James A. Baker's status as a candidate for the commissioner's job remains a leading topic of conversation.

The White House chief of staff had emerged as the No. 1 choice to succeed Bowie Kuhn, while no one was saying so for the record. Some cold water was tossed on the conjecture, however, by a published report.

The Washington Post said in today's editions that Baker is almost certain to turn down the job if it is offered. An unidentified source close to Baker was quoted as saying it was "99 percent sure" Baker would not take the job, even though he was interested in it when he was approached by major league team owners several weeks ago.

On the trading front, teams apparently were more than a little willing to pay whatever price needed to get pitching.

The Minnesota Twins surrendered their only 1983 All-Star representative Wednesday, swapping outfielder Gary Ward to Texas for three players including a pair of highly-regarded arms — Mike Smithson and John Butcher.

Montreal and the Chicago Cubs both came up with important new hurlers in a three-way deal constructed by San Diego General Manager Jack McKeon. The Padres' payoff was three young players including a pitcher.

The Expos bolstered their bullpen with the addition of Gary Lucas from San Diego and delivered starter Scott Sanderson to Chicago. In exchange, the Cubs sent two young sluggers, first baseman Carmelo Martinez and third baseman Fritz Connally, and reliever Craig Lefferts to the Padres.

In Wednesday's other deal, slugger Gorman Thomas, who had exercised his right to demand a trade, was dealt by Cleveland along with infielder Jack Perconte to Seattle for second baseman Tony Bernazard.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati signed two-time National League batting champion Dave Parker, who leaves Pittsburgh as a free agent after 10 seasons.

Executive Council meetings started the major league portion of the convention today and a number of owners were discussing Baker, whose name has surfaced as a successor for Kuhn.

"No comment on this one or any other name involved," said Milwaukee owner Bud Selig, chairman of the search committee. "We'll have some comment after my remarks to the owners tomorrow."

Baker, in Washington, offered no help when asked by reporters, "Are you going to play ball?" His only response was an underhand sweep of his pitching arm.

The Rangers came to these meetings determined to add some offense and they had the pitching necessary to get Ward, who celebrated his 30th birthday Tuesday.

Ward batted .278 with 19 home runs and 88 runs batted in last season and has a career .285 batting average. The price for him, however, was high. Smithson was 10-14 with a 3.91 earned run average as a rookie last season and is considered a top prospect. Smithson moves into the Twins' starting rotation and Butcher, 6-6 with a 3.51 ERA and six saves last season, joins Ron Davis in the Minnesota bullpen.

The Twins also obtained minor league catcher Sam Sorce in the deal and completed a busy day by resigning infielder John Castino to a four-year contract.

San Diego's McKeon was determined to put together the deal that sent Lucas to Montreal and Sanderson to Chicago. The Expos and Cubs were happy to oblige.

"We couldn't have done this without Jack," said Dallas Green, general manager of the Cubs, who had been stalemated in talks with Montreal's John McHale until McKeon came along. "I'm not sure John and I could have worked it out. We were not compatible."

McKeon solved that, routing Sanderson (6-7 with a 4.65 ERA last year) to Chicago to give Green the starter the Cubs wanted, and Lucas (5-8, 2.87, 17 saves) to Montreal for the left-hander they were after.

For his efforts, McKeon came away with three young prospects. Martinez hit .251 with 31 homers and 94 runs batted in at Iowa and finished the season at Chicago, batting .258 with six homers and 16 RBIs in 29 games. Connally hit .288 with 22 homers and 85 RBIs at Iowa and Lefferts was 3-4 with a 3.13 ERA as a rookie with the Cubs.

Cleveland was under the gun to trade Thomas, the ex-home run champ who batted .209 with 22 homers and 69 RBIs. He had demanded the deal after being traded by Milwaukee in the midst of a long-term contract. If he had not been obliged, he would have become a free agent March 15.

In exchange for Thomas and Perconte, the Indians obtained Bernazard, who batted .265 with Seattle and the Chicago White Sox last season.

Parker, who batted .279 with 12 home runs and 69 RBIs for the Pirates in 1983, signed a two-year deal worth $1.6 million with the Reds.

The Los Angeles Dodgers completed a trade with the Oakland A's involving veteran slugger Dusty Baker at baseball's winter meetings late Wednesday night, but were attempting to get the veteran outfielder's approval of the transaction.

The Dodgers asked permission from Baker's agent, Jerry Kapstein, to deal the outfielder who has a no-trade clause in his contract. Earlier reports concerning the trade had Oakland sending several minor league players to Los Angeles.

Pearson wants to beat 'pal Joey' in Cowboy-Indian clash

DALLAS (AP) — Washington quarterback Joe Theismann's successor as quarterback at South River, N.J., high school loves to beat him.

"I'd like to have the bragging rights at South River, New Jersey," said Dallas wide receiver Drew Pearson. "I always like to beat Joey, nothing personal. We have a mutual respect for each other."

The Cowboys have downed the Redskins seven out of the last eight times, going into their National Conference Eastern Division showdown Sunday at Texas Stadium.

Pearson, who missed the Cowboys' last game with a sprained ankle, said "I'm 100 per cent. I'll be able to go all out Sunday."

Starting strong safety Dexter Clinkscale, nursing a pulled hamstring, did not work out Wednesday and said "I should know something by Friday."

Clinkscale was replaced by rookie Bill Bates last week.

Dallas opened the season with a come-from-behind 31-30 victory in Washington and both teams enter the game with 12-2 records and wild card berths clinched in the National Football League playoffs.

If Dallas wins, it earns the NFC East crown with a game to go because of an edge in tiebreakers.

If Washington wins, the Redskins can clinch the crown with a victory the next week against the New York Giants.

"I'll be looking forward to seeing Joey," Pearson said. "We don't stay in touch that much anymore."

The Cowboys were favored but oddsmakers dropped the point spread from three points to two-and-one-half points Wednesday.

Holmes wants to promote fights

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. (AP) — Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council's undefeated heavyweight champion, is talking about promoting his own fights, adding that he has no immediate plans to meet No. 1 challenger Greg Page.

Holmes, 34, who had said he might announce his retirement at Wednesday's news conference at his hotel here, instead said, "I'm not going to quit and I'm not going to be forced to quit by any organization or by any promoter. I will not honor my contract for Greg Page unless they increase the purse."

The fight Holmes seems to want most is one with South African Gerrie Coetzee, the World Boxing Association champion. But Wednesday he said that because of media criticism he would now fight Coetzee only in the United States.

Holmes also talked about possible fights with John Tate, the former WBA champion, and unbeaten Pinklon Thomas.

He mentioned a $4-million purse for a fight against Tate and $100 million for a Coetzee fight. Many boxing observers consider both figures to be vastly inflated.

Promoter Don King and Holmes has an agreement for a $2.55-million purse for a Page fight.

Holmes has a contract with King to make a mandatory defense against Page in February or March. If he doesn't, the WBC is expected to strip him of his title recognition.

But while challenging the WBC and King, Holmes also said he would go to Las Vegas, Nev., today to confer with Jose Sulaiman, WBC president, and King at the WBC convention at Caesars Palace.

"I feel I should fight one year for Larry Holmes," he said. "I remember fighting nine times one year (1975, three years before he won the title) for a total of $18,000. I really paid my dues."

Holmes has earned an estimated $25 million in the ring and has made 17 defenses of the WBC crown.

NFL promoting 'THE' game Sunday

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Writer

It's been a long time since the National Football League got very worked up over a regular season telecast. The NFL, after all, thinks of itself as a television institution that takes its status with so much studied nonchalance.

But not in this year of declining ratings, when prime time has been filled with major disappointments like the Giants, Chargers, Jets and Bengals — even teams like the defensive-minded Bradshawless Steelers. The result: sleep-inducing national telecasts, particularly on ABC Monday nights.

Enter the Cowboys and the Redskins, on CBS at 4 p.m. EST this Sunday for the NFC East title, the home field advantage and all those nice things. It will be shown nationwide minus four stations where the game would clash with the home teams — KMOX in St. Louis, WCCO in Minneapolis, KFMB in San Diego and KGMH in Denver.

It's not the Super Bowl, but it may be a ratings season-saver and it's getting the full promotional treatment.

"Washington at Dallas ... What More Is There To Say?" reads the headline on the weekly NFL promotional packet. "The NFL Today" will be on at 3:30 instead of 12:30 and Terry O'Neil, executive producer of CBS' NFL coverage, will be the game producer for only the second time this season — a sure sign of grandiosity. The Thanksgiving game in Dallas was O'Neil's other O'Neil appearance.

That the game comes up now is no accident. Long before the NFL knew that some of the aforementioned prime-time teams would fall on their collective faces, the schedule was made with this weekend and this game in mind.

For example, the league wanted the Redskins and Cowboys in the nation's largest markets.

So the Giants — who always sell out and are televised locally — were scheduled at home against Seattle, an AFC team and will be carried by NBC at 1 p.m., leaving CBS free for Washington-Dallas at 4 p.m. The Bears are on the road at 1 p.m. and the Rams are home — but they don't sell out, so Los Angeles will get Dallas-Washington.

Louisville upsets No. 5 Iowa

By DICK JOYCE AP Sports

Louisville Coach Denny Crum says his pressing defense is finally working, and that was bad news for Iowa, the fifth-ranked college basketball team.

Wednesday night marked the second straight victory for Crum's unranked Cardinals, who had lost to their first two games after being rated No. 6 nationally in the preseason.

"Our press was more impressive than I thought it would be because they tried to handle the ball with the big people," said Crum, who is trying to rebuild his NCAA Final Four team after losing the McCray brothers to the pros. "It made a difference for the first time."

It was the visiting Hawkeyes' first loss after three wins.

Louisville, which led at halftime 30-29, outscored Iowa 17-6 at the start of the second half with the Cards' press forcing the Hawkeyes into 10 turnovers.

Guard Lancaster Gordon, who played a key role in the press, led the balanced Louisville scoring attack with 20 points. Steve Carfino topped Iowa with 17 points.

George Raveling, the new Iowa coach, said, "At the half

I thought we'd made the needed adjustment to their press. But they came out and hopped on us so quick in the second half, it didn't make any difference."

North Carolina State, ranked No. 8, downed Western Carolina 82-61 and unbeaten and 12th-ranked Boston College romped to 90-59 home victory over Brown in the only other games involving the Top Twenty.

Q: I've had the occasional problem of my standard transmission slipping out of gear and into neutral while the car is moving. Is this a major problem, or is it something I can tackle myself?
A: The usual cause, and one most easily checked and corrected, is a matter of misadjustment of the shift linkage. The linkage is composed of the shift lever, the connecting linkage and the transmission shift arms. Most standard shift mechanisms utilize a spring-loaded detent which positions the shifting forks inside the transmission correctly. To determine the correct setting of the shift linkage for your specific transmission, you should consult your shop manual. If this doesn't solve the problem, the difficulty is internal and will involve removal of the transmission for repair.

Washington beats Dallas. . in NBA

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Adrian Dantley has nearly 100 more free-throw attempts than anyone else in the National Basketball Association, and Portland Coach Jack Ramsay believes the league's leading scorer is being protected by the referees.

"It's amazing the license Dantley has on the floor," Ramsay said after Dantley scored 32 points, 10 of them on 13 free throws, to lead the Jazz to a 116-111 victory over the Trail Blazers Wednesday night. "It's unbelievable what he gets away with. He's a great player but he moves people out or just throws them out. No one should be allowed that."

Utah Coach Frank Layden, who has led the Jazz to a surprising 12-9 start after they finished 30-52 last season, bristled at the thought that Ramsay blamed officiating for the defeat.

Ramsay "never lost a game to the Jazz," Layden said sarcastically. "Now it's the referees. I would take a look at some of his own team statistics and be concerned more about that. It was a very unprofessional attack on a player from another team."

In other NBA games, it was Philadelphia 133, Denver 128; Cleveland 106, Atlanta 92; Boston 100, Indiana 95; Milwaukee 103, Houston 101; Washington 114, Dallas 112; and San Diego 106, San Antonio 102.

Dantley, who is averaging 30.5 points per game, was not upset with Ramsay's remarks. "If I was shooting jump shots I would never go to the free throw line," he said.

Ironically, the Jazz nearly blew a lead because they missed seven of 14 free throws down the stretch. Utah finished with 31 free throws in 45 attempts for the game.

"We got to the free throw line and that's all you can do," Layden said. "You get there and if you miss it's part of life."

Mychal Thompson scored 21 points to lead Portland, which cut a 12-point Jazz margin to one late in the game.

Portland, behind the scoring of Thompson, Wayne Cooper and guard Jim Paxson - who finished with 20 points - ran off a 13-4 spurt that put the Blazers up 74-73 with 4:53 left in the third period. But the Jazz ran off a 9-0 streak to lead 88-81 at the end of the period.

Dantley's basket with 9:13 left gave the Jazz a 97-85 lead before the Blazers outscored Utah 17-6 and cut Utah's lead to 103-102 on a layup by Paxson at the 4:47 mark.

Although the Jazz were unable to hit many of their free throw opportunities, Portland was unable to catch up. Lafayette Lever's three-point play with 12 seconds remaining left the Blazers down 113-111.

Ramsay credited Utah's Rickey Green as the key to the victory.

"He played great. He had nine assists, no turnovers, and he was 11 of 15 from the floor," Ramsay said. "And those were long shots."

Bullets 114, Mavericks 112

Jeff Ruland scored the final two of his 35 points on a turnaround layup with 24 seconds remaining, lifting Washington over Dallas.

The loss was the first at home in 12 games this season for the Mavericks, who got 30 points from Mark Aguirre.

After Ruland's basket made it 113-112, Washington center Rick Mahorn blocked a shot by Aguirre with four seconds left, and Ricky Sobers, who added 27 points for the Bullets, hit one of two free throws for the final margin.

76ers 133, Nuggets 128

Moses Malone had 30 points and 19 rebounds and Julius Erving added 25 points to lift Philadelphia over Denver.

The Nuggets never led in the game despite 33 points from Kiki Vandeweghe and 31 from Alex English.

The victory was the 76ers' 11th in 11 meetings against Denver in Philadelphia and was their eighth triumph in their last nine outings.

Celtics 100, Pacers 95

At Indianapolis, Kevin McHale scored 12 of his 22 points in the second quarter and Robert Parish added 21 points and 17 rebounds as Boston handed Indiana its fourth straight loss and ninth in 10th starts.

Larry Bird gave the Celtics the lead for good at 88-86 with 5:10 to go. The basket started a 10-4 spurt during which McHale scored four points. The Pacers, who got 25 points from Clark Kellogg, never got closer than three points after the spurt.

Cavaliers 106, Hawks 92

Cleveland won its seventh straight game at home and handed Atlanta its ninth consecutive loss on the road as World Free scored 21 points and the Cavaliers got 56 points from non-starters.

The Cavaliers led by as many as 20 points in the first half and the Hawks, who got 23 points from Eddie Johnson, got no closer than 11 points in the final two periods.

Bucks 103, Rockets 101

In terms of size and skill, pro basketball players are far from normal. Yet they do have averages. These figures on 288 NBA players were compiled from a survey of the rosters and injured reserve lists of the league's 23 teams on opening day of the 1983-84 season.

House of silver

During the silver strike at Treasure City, Nev., in the 1870s, two miners built a house from rock picked up at their claim. Later, when their mine gave out, the two "mined" their home for $75,000 in silver.

Convicted sex offender says

Injections reducing drive

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Many people were outraged after Joseph Frank Smith admitted raping a San Antonio woman twice and was sentenced to so-called "chemical castration," drug injections to snuff out his sex drive.

They thought he should be sent to prison. But Smith, who is undergoing the chemical injections at a Johns Hopkins Hospital clinic, says the controversial medical treatment is working.

"It totally lowers your sex drive," he said. "You don't have one, which is fine with me. That's what got me in trouble."

Smith, 30, now lives with his sister and brother-in-law in a suburb of Richmond, Va., and said he commutes weekly to Johns Hopkins in Baltimore.

Jurors sentenced him to "chemical castration" in August after his attorney made it clear Smith was willing to undergo the experimental treatments, which involve the drug Depo-Provera.

The shots, along with group therapy treatments, help control Smith's sex drive, which he said could be traced to his mother, a topless dancer who often walked around the house that way.

The only side effects of the Depo-Provera injections are fatigue, a "terrible appetite" and a tendency to bleed easily, he said Tuesday.

Bexar County's chief adult probation officer, Cesar Garcia, had traveled to Virginia for a conference with Smith. Reporters from the San Antonio Light and the San Antonio Express-News went along.

Smith came to live with his sister two months ago, after at least one Texas facility refused to treat him.

He had admitted raping the San Antonio woman twice and was apprehended by her angry neighbors — and wearing only socks and a ski mask — when he went back to rape her a third time.

"I could tell (the people in San Antonio) I'm sorry until I'm blue in the face, but they're not going to accept it," he said. "I just hope that girl can live a normal life."

Up until the time he was arrested, Smith said he was peeping at women through windows every day.

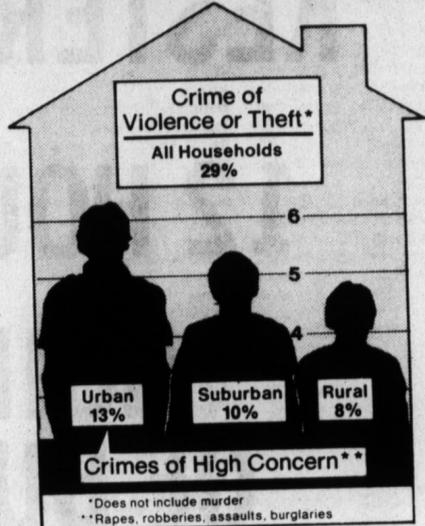

"I hated the person I was," he said.

Smith's medical bills already have topped $14,500, but Garcia said the man would have to repay every cent to Bexar County.

"The taxpayers are not going to pay for it," the probation officer said.

TOUCHED BY CRIME

American Households in 1982

SOURCE: Department of Justice

Almost 25 million American households had some experience with crime last year. An annual survey by the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics came up with the estimate, 29 percent of all households, based on interviews with a broad cross section of the population. The total was 1 percent lower than the previous year and down 3 percent from 1975. Taking selected "high concern" crimes, the survey found the incidence of involvement directly related to the type of community.

Governor announces water grant for county

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — El Paso County, where more than 10,000 households lack basic water services, will receive a $25,000 grant from the state to study ways to improve the water supply, Gov. Mark White says.

The governor announced the grant Wednesday night in a meeting with about 2,500 members of the El Paso Interreligious Sponsoring Organization.

White also pledged to help the city of El Paso in its attempt to establish water lines to parts of the area that the El Paso Public Service Board refuses to serve.

"To the extent that funds are available," White said he would support the use of community development money for building necessary water lines.

But he said communities that aren't receiving water service from the city must be willing to help, something he also promised to do.

"I know how to dig a ditch and how to handle a shovel," White said. "I'll be out here to help out if you will help me make that (water) line work."

The EPISO session with White was a question and answer forum designed to "pin down" the governor on several issues, organization leaders said.

"But the water issue was the main one on most people's mind," they said.

Adolf Hitler wrote "Mein Kampf" in Germany's Landsberg prison in 1923 after he was jailed for leading the Munich Beer Hall Putsch.

Upgrading of relations due

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is prepared to upgrade diplomatic relations with the Vatican, but a White House spokesman said today he would "not go as far" as some news reports that say the administration already has told the Holy See it wants to exchange ambassadors.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes noted that Congress recently passed legislation allowing the United States to upgrade its relations with the Vatican and said, "We are certainly moving in that direction."

But he said he could not confirm reports by the Washington Post and NBC News that the administration had notified the Vatican that Reagan will soon nominate William A. Wilson to be U.S. ambassador to the Holy See. Wilson now is Reagan's personal representative to the Vatican without an embassy or the diplomatic status that goes with an ambassadorship.

An administration official said it is understood the Vatican will respond affirmatively to Wednesday's cable from the State Department seeking to establish formal ties, the Post said.

The president last month signed the legislation, which repealed an 1867 law that barred the use of federal funds for maintaining a diplomatic mission at the Vatican.

First Woman

The first woman presidential candidate proposed at a major political party convention was Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. She was nominated by Sen. George Aiken of Vermont at the 1964 Republican National Convention in San Francisco, Calif.

Smoked meats popular holiday gifts

Deadline Nearing

The deadline for Project Christmas Card, an annual project of the local doctors' wives, has been set for Dec. 17. Money received is used for improvements at Deaf Smith General Hospital and opportunity plan scholarships for students going into health-related careers. Fund canisters are currently set up at various locations throughout Hereford. Carolyn Andrews, OB supervisor at the hospital, is shown with an incubator purchased from donations.

COLLEGE STATION — Mail-order gift packages of smoked cured ham, bacon, sausage or turkey are increasingly popular holiday gifts.

But those receiving smoked meats may wonder about its quality and edibility after weeks in storage and transit, said a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

"Mail-order gift packages from reputable dealers are safe for consumption, so you need not worry about giving them as gifts or using them yourself," advised Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist.

"The products are highly processed and contain preservatives, allowing them to be mailed without refrigeration," she explained.

But the meats should still be inspected before eating, cautioned Haggard. After opening the package, look for signs of spoilage such as a rotten or putrid smell. Foods with a questionable odor should not be used or even tasted.

Also inspect the food for signs of surface mold growth. Mold of this type is not poisonous but must be removed before the meat is used, said the specialist.

According to Haggard, you can trim off any mold and the meat directly under it, or scrub the mold off with a brush and vinegar wash. A vinegar wash can be made by mixing one part vinegar to three parts water. Rinse the wash off with plain water.

For maximum flavor from smoked cured meat, Haggard recommended rapid use. Bacon can be stored in a refrigerator at 35 to 40 degrees F for seven days. A whole ham can be refrigerated for seven days, a half for three to five days and slices for three days.

Smoked sausage keeps well when refrigerated for up to seven days and dry or semi-dry sausage and cured smoked turkey will keep for two to three weeks.

Since frozen cured meat loses quality rapidly, one should not plan on long freezer storage, said Haggard. Bacon should be frozen at zero degrees F for one month or less and ham for only one to two months. Turkey can be frozen for three to six months, but freezing is not recommended for sausage.

New Officers Installed

New board officers elected Wednesday

New officers were elected when members of the Deaf Smith County Child Welfare Board met Wednesday in the Commissioners' Courtroom at the courthouse.

Christmas party scheduled

The Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818 met in regular session Monday night with Rose Goheen presiding. Plans were finalized for the Christmas party to be held Saturday night, Dec. 17, and for the decorating of the Post Home this Friday.

Cards were signed to be sent to four members who live away from Hereford now. Volunteers were asked to help with the Lung Association Christmas tree in the mall.

A covered dish supper was enjoyed after the meeting with Jim Shaw cooking the barbecued spare ribs and hot rolls.

Members present were Helen Bishop, Betty Boggs, Leone Buckley, Doris Coffin, Rose Goheen, Ada Hollabaugh, Essie Martin, Edith Richardson, Maria Williams, Vivian Williams, Doris Wilson, and Mabel Yocum, Vicki Yocum and Marie Goheen.

The next meeting will be Jan. 9 at 7:30 p. with a covered dish supper preceding the meeting.

Ms. Hopson served as hostess to Noble Grand Ms. Fitzgerald, C.D. Fitzgerald, Guy and Bessie Lawrence, Elmer and Roberta Combs, Verna Sowell, Beth Hall, Edna Mathes, and Sadie Shaw, Kee Ruland, Peggy Lemons. Also, Ada Hollabaugh, Ben Conklin, Faye Brownlow, Irene Merritt, Ursalee Jacobsen, Leona Sowell, and Mmes. Curtsinger, Rettman, Bishop and Lundry.

as chairman; Carolyn Johnson, vice-chairman; and Avis White, secretary. Two regional representatives will be elected at the January meeting and it was announced that the Rev. Charles Threewit and Bill McCarley will go off the board.

Also, during the monthly meeting, Ms. Jayroe, nominating committee chairman, submitted the names of the Rev. Ron Cook and Bill Johnson to be recommended to the Commissioners Court for appointments to the board. Rev. Cook is pastor of First Baptist Church and Johnson is with Plains Insurance. The board approved their recommendations.

Jim Bullard, Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator, also met with the board. The local hospital has been helping with medical assistance for indigent and foster children. They are covered by Medicaid but Medicaid sometimes does not pay the entire cost of these ills. Bullard explained that the hospital does not want to pay bills at some other medical facility but are willing to be responsible for duties and services done here. Foster parents are encouraged to use health care services in Hereford whenever possible.

Minutes were read by Wanda Spain and Earlene Cook presented expenditures for the past month and the financial report was approved by the board before the meeting adjourned.

Board members present included Beverly Jayroe,

Carolyn Johnson, Avis White, Lavon Nieman, Rev. Charles Threewit. Absent were Bill McCarley and Laura Walker. Others present were Angela Streun, student at Hereford High School; Kirk Merker, child placement worker and Wanda Spain, Earlene Cook and Judge Glen Nelson.

Taking office in January will be Noble Grand Anna Conklin; Vice-grand Lydia Hopson; Susie Curtsinger, recording secretary; Karrol Rettman, financial secretary; and Dorothy Lundry, treasurer.

Lavita Fitzgerald and Susie Curtsinger were chosen as representative and alternate to the Rebekah Assembly and Grand Lodge at Dallas in March 1984.

Members expressed appreciation for the public's support at the bazaar on Saturday and it was announced that $373 was added to the carpet fund.

Helen Bishop was the winner of the door prize which was furnished by Ms. Conklin. Members were reminded that the Dec. 13 meeting will be the annual Christmas party.

Ms. Hopson served as hostess to Noble Grand Ms. Fitzgerald, C.D. Fitzgerald, Guy and Bessie Lawrence, Elmer and Roberta Combs, Verna Sowell, Beth Hall, Edna Mathes, and Sadie Shaw, Kee Ruland, Peggy Lemons.

Also, Ada Hollabaugh, Ben Conklin, Faye Brownlow, Irene Merritt, Ursalee Jacobsen, Leona Sowell, and Mmes. Curtsinger, Rettman, Bishop and Lundry.

Unlawful medicine practice suspected

DALLAS (AP) — Police say they arrested a 44-year-old man after receiving complaints that he was pretending to remove diseased lumps and internal organs without surgery.

The man was held for investigation of unlawful practice of medicine and released from Lew Sterrett Justice Center Wednesday night on $200 bond set by County Judge Ben Ellis.

Police said the man's arrest followed claims that he had pretended to remove a lump from a patient's throat by rubbing it, then held up a piece of meat and pronounced the patient cured.

Officers found several people lying on makeshift beds in several bedrooms in the house. The man was found hiding behind clothing in a dark closet in a bathroom adjoining a bedroom.

"If I had it to do over, I don't think I could do it," said Trini Gamez, smiling thoughtfully as she recalled the varied events of her life during the past decade.

"I came through a lot, and now I look back and wonder how I made it. But I did, and all the hard work has paid off," she stated with a renewed note of confidence, knowing by experience that "when you really put your mind to something, you can do it."

Trini will see the youngest of her nine children finish high school in the spring. She is proud of her kids and though she didn't push them, she feels they've all had a desire to learn, "maybe because they saw how important it was to me...how I wanted to better myself and went to night school, even if that meant getting up at 4 a.m. to pack lunches," she commented.

"I encouraged them, as they grew up, to get their education first so they wouldn't have the responsibilities of a family conflicting with their school work," she added. "Family comes first."

Trini is currently a paralegal at Texas Rural Legal Aid, where she has been employed for the past five years. She conducts initial interviews with clients, assists with the research of cases, and helps prepare clients for depositions and hearings.

"Every case is so different. I'm always learning," she commented. Sometimes Trini's duties resemble those of a social worker. "Some people really need assistance and I usually refer them to other agencies...my background has helped me to know the people to call," she noted.

She has also put people up at her own house when they can't find a place to stay.

"When you've lived through the hardships yourself you can't find the heart to turn them away," she commented. "Unless you've experienced it, you can't say 'I know what you're going through.' You can sympathize, but when you know yourself, you can't close your eyes to what's going on or turn them away."

Before her association with T.R.L.A., Trini was employed with Community Action for two years, working as director of self help and assistant to the housing director. She was mainly involved in helping people with rent subsidy.

She has also worked as a teacher's aid and parent involvement aid in the Hereford schools. "This was something like social work," she commented. "I was a liaison between the home and school, making home visits and assisting the counselors in testing."

Trini has an associate of arts degree in bilingual elementary education from South Plains College. She has also attended West Texas State University.

She mentioned that her grandmother, who spoke only Spanish, had a great part in cultivating her desire to learn. "She taught us music and poetry, and I played stringed instruments when I was younger," said Trini. "Not everyone has a grandmother to teach them; she was a real encouragement to me. She had been a teacher in Mexico."

Trini's children grew up with an appreciation for music and all nine were members of the band at Hereford High School, playing instruments ranging from the trumpet to saxophone, clarinet and drums.

Three of her five sons served in the Navy, and all were stationed in California at the same time, according to Trini. One son and one daughter are currently honor students at De Vry Institute of Technology in Dallas, and Trini's oldest daughter attended California Lutheran College, WTSU and the University of Texas at Austin.

Eight of her kids are married now, and Trini has 12 grandchildren, soon expecting another.

Trini is originally from South Texas and was raised in Hillsboro County. She first came to Hereford as a migrant farm worker with her husband. They stayed here one summer and then found work throughout the area, living in barns, shacks and similar dwellings.

When her second child was six years old, Trini came back to Hereford and enrolled the kids in school, feeling continuity was important. They continued to work in the fields during the summer.

"Being a migrant was hard. It was new for me because my family always lived in one place as long as possible," she explained. "But having come through all that helps me to understand and relate to people better now."

In addition to her job, Trini is currently serving as president of the Mexican American Democrats. "We try to conduct voter registration drives, get people involved in the elections, make them aware of the issues and help them to know their candidates," she stated.

In the past, Trini has been a member of the GI Forum and has served on several boards including United Way, Camp Fire, Red Cross and Women's Auxiliary.

Her involvement in outside activities, as well as attending seminars and training sessions for her present job, have allowed her to travel, out of state as well as locally. Among the places she has visited are Pennsylvania, Illinois, New York and Colorado.

Though most of her children now reside away from Hereford, the family is still very close, according to Trini. "They call me often and look forward to coming home for the holidays. We especially want to be together at this time of the year," she smiled.

Cooking is something Trini doesn't do as much as she used to, except during the holidays. She rarely measures anything. Below are her impromptu recipes for flour tortillas (to make approximately 1 1/2 dozen); bunuelos, crispy, fried tortillas sweetened with sugar and cinnamon; and potato soup, which she often served to her children while they were growing up.

FLOUR TORTILLAS
4 c. flour
2 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. salt
3 Tbsp. shortening
Mix ingredients together,

Trini Gamez

adding hot water as you mix until you get a firm dough. Knead well and let set five minutes.

Divide dough into small portions (balls about two inches in diameter) and let set again for a few minutes. Then roll out and cook on a grill until lightly browned.

BUNUELOS

Follow recipe above, substituting one teaspoon baking powder for the two teaspoons in flour tortillas. Roll out and cut in quarters. Deep fat fry and roll in sugar and cinnamon.

POTATO SOUP

Peel two large potatoes and slice them into skillet. Cook potatoes halfway in cooking oil or shortening. Add about one tablespoon flour and let brown. Then add one teaspoon garlic powder, 1/2 teaspoon cumin, and season with black pepper and salt to taste.

Add 1/2 can tomato sauce and about two cups water. Let simmer until potatoes are done. Soup should be rather thick.

NOTE: May add hamburger meat or green beans for variety.

ANSWERS

Authorities disagree on where the ancient Romans got the name Junius, our month of June. Perhaps from Juno, queen of their gods, or possibly from juniore (youths), to whom the month was dedicated, as May was to maiore, the elders.

Security procedures tough

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to new security procedures in Washington, it's getting tough on everyone.

Concrete barriers make a quick drive up to the White House gates on the south grounds impossible. Briefcases carried into White House offices are examined in spot checks for weapons and explosives. The limousines of visiting Cabinet members and other dignitaries are often given a once-over to see if bombs have been hidden underneath.

At a White House party the other day, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that he, too, is taking some steps to make himself less conspicuous in security-conscious Washington.

"I'm taking off my license plate tags on my car. That's the first time in 17 years that I've done that. I like to drive around with Illinois license plates on. We're all more security conscious, at the Capitol. It's a lot more complicated than it's ever been before."

He said that he was planning to give up his Illinois VIP license plate and hide his foreign-made luxury car behind a more anonymous set of numbers.

At the party, a reception saluting five American artists being honored by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, President Reagan had a chance to deal with some familiar material.

First, he talked about choreographer Katherine Dunham, working from note cards. Then, it was Virgil Thomson, the composer. Then, he talked about Elia Kazan, the director.

But then, the president turned to the other honorees, Francis Albert Sinatra and James Stewart. It was not difficult for the president to carry out his emcee chores.

Sinatra, he said, developed "a distinctive song style — long phrases and glissade — that's technical talk for crooning."

Old Blue Eyes won an Oscar for his performance in "From Here to Eternity," Reagan noted, and he appeared in "On the Town" and sang with Bing Crosby in "High Society."

"You know, Frank, if they'd only given me roles like that, I never would have left Hollywood," Reagan said, adding that had he taken over Sinatra's roles in the musicals, "They'd have had to get you to dub the voice in."

As for Jimmy Stewart, a long-time Reagan friend, the president recalled this tale from his California political days:

"When Jack Warner, head of Warner Brothers, first heard that I was running for governor of California, he said, 'No, no, Jimmy Stewart for governor; Reagan for best friend.'"

Anyone with a spouse who disagrees lives in a two-story dwelling.

Never try to argue with a person taller than you. He'll make his point over your head.

Another nice thing about the horse: No one is going to snap-off the TV antenna.

Testimony ends in kidnapping trial

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Testimony has ended in the kidnapping trial of a self-taught electrician accused of abducting another man and burying him in a makeshift coffin for four days while trying to collect a $75,000 ransom.

A jury of seven women and five men was expected to hear closing arguments today and then begin deliberating the fate of Ronald Floyd White, 38, of Conroe.

White is charged with aggravated kidnapping in the September 1982 abduction of Michael Baucom, 22, of Santa Fe.

Prosecutors argued White demanded the ransom from Baucom's father, a former employer. The money was never paid.

White's attorney, Elmo Schwab, claimed his client was insane at the time Baucom was allegedly kidnapped.

If convicted, White faces a sentence ranging from five years to life in prison.

Psychiatrists called to testify during the two-week trial disagreed on whether White's chronic high blood pressure could have been caused by organic brain syndrome, a disorder that doctors testified may have hampered his ability to determine right from wrong.

If someone could discover how to make calking compound stick to cracks as perfectly as it does to clothing, they'd make a fortune.

Ann Landers Ignore practical advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My parents both died before I was seven years old. Dad's eldest sister raised me, along with her own three children.

Aunt Marge was a widow at age 36, but she was one of the most remarkable people I have ever known. The woman seemed never to sleep. She had time for everything and everybody. I remember more about her than I do my own mother. She sewed for all "her girls", baked everything — even bread — made noodles from scratch and canned every imaginable fruit and vegetable. If she ever had a worry, no one knew it.

Aunt Marge lives 1,200 miles away now. I last saw her two years ago. She was frail but getting around "just fine" with a walker. And still smiling. The last time we spoke on the phone her voice seemed weak, but she assured me that she was OK.

Night before last I received a call from her older daughter. Aunt Marge is in a coma. She had a stroke two weeks ago. They didn't call me because they didn't want to worry me, and there was nothing I could do. My first inclination was to take the next plane out. They said, "Stay home. She wouldn't recognize you."

I didn't sleep a wink last night. I want to go if only to hold her hand. My husband says the family is right and added, "You might have to make two trips in one week — if you know what I mean."

I DO know what he means and money is not plentiful, but I could swing it. Tell me what to do.—Sad in Cincinnati

DEAR SAD: Ignore all the practical advice and listen to your heart. Take the next plane out. Aunt Marge may not know you are there, but YOU will know — and that is what counts.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I love you dearly, but I wish you would stop telling people, "If you don't use it, you'll lose it."

I am a 50-year-old widow and had not "known" a man in the Biblical sense for seven years when my younger cousin and I made love at a family reunion in a house full of sleeping relatives.

Even though we were somewhat inhibited because we had to be very quiet lest we awaken the relatives down the hall, it was one of the most incredible experiences of my whole life. His reaction to me did wonders for my self-esteem. So tell all those abstainers out there not to give up hope. When the right person came along, it was there for me.—Alive Again In Charlotte, N.C.

DEAR CHARLOTTE: How nice that you haven't "lost it" after seven years, but you might have lost something else—the respect of people close you you had they not been such sound sleepers.

DEAR ANN: I appreciated the letter from the woman who was 6 feet, 2 inches. All her life she answered stupid questions about her height. (Example: "Were both your parents tall?")

I have a friend who is 6 feet, 9 inches. Idiots are constantly asking him, "Are you a basketball player?" His perfect response: "No. Are you a jockey?"—Last Laff in L.A.

DEAR L.A.: Thanks for a winner.

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs—or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot — in moderation? Honored With Shower

Killough given shower

A bridal shower was held for Kelly Killough, bride-elect of Dion Wells, Sunday at the E.B. Black House. The couple plan to exchange vows on Dec. 22.

Guests included the bride's mother, Carolyn Killough; the groom's mother, Bobbie Wells; and his grandmother, Becky Wells. Yellow chrysanthemum corsages trimmed in blue were presented to the women.

Karen Jones assisted the honoree in registering gifts and served refreshments. The centerpiece on the serving table was an arrangement of yellow daisies, yellow spider mums and blue carnations accented with baby's breath.

Hostesses included Barbara Allen, Bowling, Joann Burfield, Olivia Denning, Judy Detten, Jan Dudley, Margaret Ann Durham, Martha Jones, Karen Jones, Nita Lea, Toni Shakocius, Betty Wilson and Shirley Wilson.

Analysts told

Businesses booming

DALLAS (AP) — A different financial outlook toward Wall Street by the leaders of Tandy Corp. is the reason behind the legendary success of the Fort Worth electronics company, says company President John V. Roach.

Roach, also Tandy's chief executive officer, spoke Wednesday to some 150 financial analysts and portfolio managers at a seminar on investing.

"We think Texas is an excellent place for us to grow over other business climates, in terms of expansion, product development, marketing and other management functions," Roach said at a noon luncheon. "We think the prospects are good for growing from this base."

The three-day seminar, which ended Wednesday, was sponsored by the Financial Analysts Federation and the Dallas Association of Investment Analysts. It was designed to expose investment experts to a cross-section of businesses headquartered in the region.

"We have a great advantage down here in doing business, in that we are not exactly as sensitive (to) what Wall Street is doing," said Roach. "For many southwestern companies, that has been a great way for us to do business."

Sam Barshop, chairman of the board and president of La

Quinta Motor Inns Inc., and F.J. Spilman, chairman and chief executive officer of Piz-za Inn, Inc., gave company presentations in afternoon sessions during the seminar's last day.

"There are a diversity of business opportunities in the Southwest," said Benjamin A. Hock, chairman of the Dallas Association of Investment Analysts.

Order angers blacks, whites

CLARKSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Some are outraged, others are sad and yet others vow to stand on firm ground, but feelings aside, some 50 black and white families living in public housing will have to swap apartments.

Last week U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice imposed a federal integration order, ruling that 50 families — 25 black and 25 white — had to exchange residences in this northeast Texas town of 4,500. The deadline is Dec. 15. Residents complain the order is causing chaos in their lives.

"It's torn me up pretty bad," said 79-year-old Iva Sewell, who had 20 days to vacate the apartment she has lived in since 1969 and move to a housing project in a black section of town.

She said the move means giving up her friends and her rose garden.

"No matter what happens, I'm not moving over yonder to that colored neighborhood," she said. In October, Justice ordered the housing authority to impose a quota system so that no project was less than 45 percent black. His order was upheld by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Deberal Brown, 34, will transfer her three children from a three-bedroom apartment to a one-bedroom unit in the white project.

"It sure is a hassle," she said. "It's really putting everyone in a cramp. We're going to be bunched up like sardines, and I don't understand what it's all for."

Doris Holder, a 44-year-old diabetic crippled by arthritis, was ordered to move first. She traded her two-bedroom apartment in the white housing project for a one-bedroom apartment in the black project.

She shares the apartment with a 19-year-old daughter.

"I had no choice — there was no place else to go," Mrs. Holder said Monday. "I'm trying to keep calm because if I get upset, my blood sugar will shoot way up."

Attorneys said the federal ruling could trigger similar transfers in dozens of Texas towns where federally funded public housing projects remain segregated.

"There is no doubt that most of the public housing in Texas is segregated," said Dallas attorney Mike Daniel, who filed a civil rights suit against the Clarksville Housing Authority in 1980 on behalf of two black families.

"Everyone has been ignoring it until now," Daniel said.

The two Clarksville housing projects were built in 1965. They straddle Texas Highway 82, and are equal in size and appearance. Officials said 52 units lie on the black side of town, with another 52 on the white side of town.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development built and later expanded both projects. The agency has outlawed segregation since 1964.

"We never denied that the two projects were segregated," said pharmacist Billy Barker, a housing authority commissioner. "It wasn't a policy to keep them segregated — we just let people live where they wanted to live."

Names were drawn last month from a hat to decide which tenants would be transferred, and Justice approved implementation of his ruling with last week's order.

"It was the only fair way to do it," said Rosemary Caviness, executive director of the Clarksville Housing Authority. "It's been like a crossword puzzle, trying to fit everybody in."

"If we were busing little kids, it would be a lot simpler," she said. "But these are elderly people we're shuffling around. A lot of them are sick or disabled."

Lillie Mae Ricks, 44, was transferred from a four-bedroom apartment in the black complex to a three-bedroom apartment in the white complex. She lives with her father, husband and three children.

"I don't think they did us fair," she said. "To tell you the truth, I think it's crazy. We had two bathrooms in our old place and now we'll have to share one."

It's possible, of course, to have a meeting of minds, but most of the time all that results is a bumping of heads together.

Before you think of yourself as Prince Charming, consider: Perhaps she's hoping to kiss you and turn you back into a frog.

Give some people enough rope and they'll turn into macrame addicts.

Any day now, wind-up toys are going to be made with battery-powered keys.

Two men convicted of enslaving aliens

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Two East Texas men convicted of forcing illegal aliens to work without pay on a tree farm face sentencing Feb. 6 in a case that a federal prosecutor called "human bondage."

A federal court jury deliberated about two hours Wednesday before convicting Steven Crawford, 20, of Center, who ran the farm, and Randall Waggoner, 22, of Nacogdoches, on 19 counts.

Each was convicted of one count of conspiring to transport illegal aliens, nine counts of transporting illegal aliens and nine counts of involuntary servitude.

Authorities said the aliens were forced to work against their will on the farm in order to pay for their transportation from the Mexican border to East Texas, received no pay and were fed every other day.

U.S. District Judge William Steger set sentencing for Feb. 6. Each of the counts carries a possible prison sentence of five years and a fine ranging from $2,000 to $10,000.

Justice Department attorney Chirselda Ortiz told jurors the aliens "came here looking for jobs. They wanted to work and they would have worked if they had been fed."

"You can't work if you can't eat," she said. Two illegal aliens testified they were fed only every other day and forced to work as slaves to pay for their 500-mile journey in the back of a small trailer to East Texas.

Julio Martinez-Rios and Antonio Arias-Cardosa said through an interpreter Tuesday that they were forced to plant pine seedlings, were not paid for any of their work and were fed every other day.

Prosecutor Susan King said

the case was one of "human bondage."

"They didn't have to be locked up, shackled and chained," she said of the aliens. "They were watched all day long. When they tried to escape, their worst fears were realized."

She said Waggoner often threatened aliens with a gun.

Defense attorney Jeff Baynham said the aliens had many opportunities to leave the farm.

But Ortiz countered that even if the aliens had escaped, "they had no earthly idea where they were. And not knowing English, they didn't know how to go for help."

Baynham argued that Crawford and Waggoner were "just young kids who were maybe guilty of immaturity and rash behavior."

"They were two young kids out to make a living," Baynham said. "Were the acts so wrong you want to place around their necks for the rest of their lives this yoke of conviction?"

Crawford did not testify, but Waggoner admitted transporting 19 Mexicans from Rocksprings to Center in a 5-by-8 foot U-Haul trailer on Feb. 11. However, Waggoner denied that the Mexicans were held against their will.

"They were free to leave whenever they wanted to," Waggoner said. "I was an employee just like they were. I had sympathy for them myself."

Waggoner said he worked for Crawford about 45 days supervising Mexicans on the tree farm.

Federal investigators were called into the case after the aliens escaped from the back of a pickup truck after four days on the Crawford farm.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Is it heart disease?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an emergency medical technician so I understand many medical terms and conditions. My problem is a heart arrhythmia called paroxysmal atrial tachycardia, which causes my heart to beat in excess of 250 beats per minute.

I'm a 25-year-old man, 6 feet tall and weigh 160 pounds. I don't drink or smoke and have no other ailments. I have had several electrocardiograms and two echograms, which all have had normal results.

I have had this condition since age 9 and have never been able to get a straight answer as to what the disease is and how serious it is. I have at least five premature contractions a day and approximately one attack of tachycardia every one to three months. My doctor says not to restrict myself in any way and I am not on any medication.

I don't take part in a lot of the activities I'd like to because these attacks scare me.

DEAR READER — A large number of people who have these attacks do not have any underlying heart disease. In these circumstances, the arrhythmia is unpleasant, but not life-threatening.

You may abort an attack by taking a deep breath and holding it. Or you could learn to do massage of the artery in your neck.

Most of these cases are caused by areas of the atria that are electrically active. In some cases, there is an accessory electrical pathway, like an extra electric wire in a circuit, which short-circuits and causes the rapid heart action (WPW syndrome). In some of these cases, the accessory pathway can be removed surgically and will cure the problem.

If the attacks are caused by electrically active spots in the atria (the top part of the heart), a number of medicines can help prevent the attacks, including time-honored quinidine, Norpace and Inderal. But if an accessory pathway is present, the treatment is different.

You should have an evaluation by a cardiologist. I would hope your condition could be controlled well enough that you would feel comfortable about being normally active.

Little rules of life: If the battery is OK, the engine's wiring will prove to be defective.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I have a clear shower curtain and I can't seem to get the soap scum off. I have tried everything, including pine cleaners, ammonia, even vinegar. Is this cleaning job impossible? — PENNY

DEAR PENNY — I've had excellent luck cleaning shower curtains with chlorine bleach. It's easy and you can do it right in your washer. Put the curtain in the washer with an old towel, a full load of water, a small quantity of detergent and a full cup of chlorine bleach. If the curtain is very soiled and the deposit is particularly stubborn, use two cups of bleach. Put the curtain through an entire wash-rinse cycle. Rehang on the shower rod to drip dry. You could also soak the curtain for an hour in the bleach-detergent-water solution before turning on the washer. This method has never failed for me. Done every few months, it will keep your shower curtain fresh and new-looking. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I frequently had to replace my plastic shower curtain because the eyelets would tear out. Finally, I bought a new curtain and sewed wide rickrack on each side of the curtain below the eyelets. I even triple-stitched the rickrack. I am still using the same curtain 20 months later — quite a change from the days when I would purchase a curtain I particularly liked, only to have to replace it a few weeks later. — E.A.C.

DEAR POLLY — To store tall candles (and two to three inches wide), I got empty wine cartons from the liquor store — those that hold 12 bottles. The candles stand upright and the colors can't rub against each other.
