Yeltsin imposes big restrictions on Communists

MOSCOW (AP) - Tens of thousands of mourners grieved today for three victims of the failed Kremlin coup, and anti-Communists toppled another Soviet hero's statue as anger seethed around the retreating party.

Also, the Communist Party's main newspaper failed to publish today for the first time in decades.

The events followed a dizzying day of post-coup backlash that deprived many apparatchiks of power and place in the new Soviet Union. President Mikhail Gorbachev faced heckling Russian legislators, and Yeltsin, who pushed for an assault on the party. Reformers were named to head the KGB and the ministries of defense and interior.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported today that Estonia barred the party from its territory and ordered the prosecutor to investigate its "illegal activity."

Five people died in the three-day coup that ended Wednesday - a relatively low death toll considering the potential for civil war.

Three of those killed were crushed or shot Wednesday in Moscow confronting Soviet armor trying to smash through a barricade near the Russian parliament, where Yeltsin was leading the opposition.

At their funeral today in Manezh Square, Gorbachev awarded them the country's highest civil honor, the title of Hero of the Soviet Union. "Allow me on my behalf, and for the whole country, for all Russians, to bow low before these young people," Gorbachev said standing near the three coffins draped with white-red-and-blue Russian flags.

He said they had given their lives to prevent their country from returning to totalitarianism and a "bloody slaughter."

A Russian Orthodox requiem echoed in the square. Giant black-bordered photographs of the three and Russian flags dotted the crowd.

Early today, authorities arrested the last of the eight coup leaders - Soviet Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov, Soviet and Russian television reported. He had been under police guard in a hospital. One of the eight committed suicide, officials say.

A politically weakened Gorbachev appeared Friday in the Russian parliament and announced the firing of supporters of the coup or those who remained passive.

In a sign of a revolutionary shift in power, Gorbachev replaced many with a new generation approved by Yeltsin and other republic leaders. He also said he and Yeltsin agreed to transfer power in case of emergency.

Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh, accused by Gorbachev of being "passive" during the coup, was among those fired. No replacement was named.

Reformers in republic and city governments quickly took advantage of the public backlash against the coup, and moved to weaken the centralized power structure the party had erected.

Yeltsin suspended the activities of the hard-line Russian faction of the Communist Party, banned the party from the KGB, and temporarily shut down the party newspaper Pravda and five others. Latvia and Lithuania outlawed the party outright. Governments from Moscow to Moldova to Kirghizia seized Communist Party buildings and assets.

Yeltsin also banned political activity in the army on Russian territory; ordered the nationalization of the Novosti news agency; and ordered the heads of Novosti and Tass, the state news agency, fired.

An emotional editor answering the telephone at Pravda this morning said it was the first day since revolutionary days that the Communist Party's main newspaper had missed publication.

"Not even in 1941, when the Fascists were on the threshold of Moscow," said the man, who refused to give his name.

With Gorbachev's consent, the party's Central Committee building in Moscow was sealed to assure that documents relating to the coup were not removed or destroyed. Party archives and documents also were sealed at the Smolny Institute in Leningrad, Lenin's headquarters during the Bolshevik Revolution.

Only in Azerbaijan did the forces of repression strike back at the democrats. Interior Ministry troops and police broke up a demonstration of about 1,000 people Friday in the capital, Baku, which has been under martial law for 19 months, the News and Information Agency reported today. Ten people were hospitalized.

One KGB officer in the Baltic republic of Lithuania told reporters he was confused by the events of the past few days and complained, "Everyone is defecting."

Islam Karimov, the president and party leader of Uzbekistan, quit the party's Politburo, following the lead of the presidents of Kazakhstan and Moldova.

Alfred Rubiks, the hard-line party boss of Latvia, was arrested in his office in Riga. Gorbachev specifically cited Rubiks for supporting the coup.

In the Baltics, statues of Soviet founder Vladimir Lenin were pulled down in the Lithuanian cities of Vilnius and Klaipeda, and the Estonian capital of Tallinn.

"Lenin was an oppressor. For me, he meant the setting up of detention camps in Siberia," said Zaneta Aukse, 16, who watched other gleeful Lithuanians in Vilnius stand on the toppled statue and wave the republic's flag.

Lithuanians had not touched the statue earlier in the 17 months since they declared independence for fear of inciting a violent reaction from Soviet troops.

The party, while acknowledging that its leaders who launched the coup attempt represented "the worst traditions of totalitarianism," nevertheless denounced the wave of attacks.

Gorbachev and Yeltsin announced a new team of trusted reformers to replace those in the government who betrayed the Soviet president.

Kwahadis enjoy summer tour

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A pair of Hereford youths won't soon forget how they spent more than three weeks of their summer vacation this year.

Tyson Foerster and Landon Morris traveled approximately 6,400 miles, through 23 states, as members of the Kwahadi Indian Dancer Explorer Scout Post.

The 27-member Kwahadi troop performed in 15 shows during the trip that began June 21 and ended when they arrived back in Amarillo on July 6.

Among benefits of the trip, if the two youths think about it, may have been the opportunity to see so many parts of their country. In some ways, the tour was a 3-week history and geography lesson.

From Amarillo to Ontario, Canada, they saw historical and scenic points of interest, ranging from the natural wonder of Niagara Falls to the Statue of Liberty.

To say that Foerster was impressed with Niagara Falls is an understatement.

"I got to go behind the falls and see all that water coming down," he says.

The 12-year-old Foerster ranks Niagara Falls right up with the Hope Diamond as the most impressive sights of the trip for him.

"I saw the Hope Diamond in the Natural History Museum in Washington," Foerster explains.

Morris discovered the Smithsonian Institution in Washington and calls his visit there a highlight of a trip chockful of highlights.

"The American History Museum was my favorite," he declares.

While in Washington, the Kwahadi troop visited several sites, but one of the outstanding was Arlington National Cemetery.

The two Hereford Junior High School seventh graders witnessed the changing of the guard at the Tomb of the Unknowns, a sight they'll long remember but one that caused some consternation for Foerster.

"They told us to be quiet but we could take pictures," he reports. But, a malfunction of his camera resulted in a whirring noise that he was unable to still.

"I really was embarrassed," says Foerster.

As the tour continued to the Northeast United States, the Kwahadis had the unique experience of performing for an audience of teenagers from the U.S. and the Soviet Union at the Samantha Smith World Peace Camp in Poland, Maine.

Another camp for teens, in Kezar Falls, Maine, had campers from 13 different countries.

The Hereford youths point out that the camp was "mostly girls."

During the trip, the gregarious Foerster exchanged addresses with three young persons with whom he plans to correspond.

Each Kwahadi making the trip was assessed $200 to cover expenses. The treasury grew by $9,000 as the troop's share of admission charges at performances given during the tour.

Three performances were given early in the tour in the Springfield, Mo., area.

The busload of Panhandle youth and adults then stopped in Fort Smith, Ark., for a performance. After doing a tourist bit in Atlanta, Ga., they traveled to Virginia where two performances were scheduled at a fair.

Man hurt in Friday accident

A Hereford man is in critical condition at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, suffering from injuries sustained in an accident Friday night north of Canyon.

David Dean Saul, 23, of Hereford, is suffering from broken legs and head injuries. Saul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Saul of Hereford.

Saul was one of two persons riding on a 1983 Honda motorcycle that was involved in a high-speed chase with Department of Public Safety units down Interstate 27 that ended near Kimbrough Memorial Stadium on U.S. Highway 60-87. The other person on the motorcycle, Jerry Don Winchester, 22, of Canyon, died as a result of his injuries.

The accident occurred at 9:44 p.m. Friday.

A Department of Public Safety dispatcher said the motorcycle was southbound on Interstate 27 and was clocked at 76 MPH by Trooper Mark Carter. Carter, who was going north on the interstate, turned at the McCormick Road exit, activated his emergency lights and attempted to stop the motorcycle. The motorcycle then began accelerating. DPS officials said, with the motorcycle going over 80 MPH before exiting at Rockwell Road and going down the west service road.

DPS Cpl. Richard Beigleman established a "rolling roadblock" a mile south of the Rockwell Road overpass, but the motorcycle (clocked at over 100 mph on radar) passed Beigleman's unit on the right and continued south. The motorcycle then crossed over U.S. 60-87 at the Buffalo Stadium exit.

DPS officials said the motorcycle went down a steep grade and out of Beigleman's sight, then struck a concrete embankment. Beigleman

Blood drive is Thursday

Coffee Memorial Blood Center will be in Hereford on Thursday from 4-8 p.m. in the lounge area of the Hereford Community Center. The blood drive is sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. All eligible persons are urged to donate blood. All participants should use the west entrance of the Center.

County to meet Monday

Deaf Smith county commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. Monday at the courthouse in Hereford.

The agenda includes a discussion of new laws by Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine; consideration of a copier for the tax assessor's office; rescinding of an order for a sewer inspector; a part-time deputy county clerk; appointment of a central county station tabulation supervisor for the November election; an executive session to discuss real estate; and authorization to advertise for bids for fuel.

Meet the Herd is Tuesday

The annual fall sports "Meet the Herd" Night will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium. The 1991 football, volleyball, cross-country and tennis teams will be introduced, and the Mighty Maroon Band, twirlers and drill team will be introduced along with the 1991-92 cheerleaders. All Hereford fans are invited to attend the event, sponsored by the Whiteface Booster Club.

Crimestoppers offers reward

A reward of up to $300 is being offered by Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers for information leading to an arrest and indictment in the Crime of the Week. Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies are investigating damage done to a Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative substation about 10 miles northwest of Hereford. It is believed the damage was done with a firearm. If you have information about this or any other crime, call the Clue Line at 364-2583. If your information leads to an arrest and indictment, you will receive a reward of up to $300. You don't have to give your name; you may remain anonymous by using a code name or number. All final rewards are determined by the Crimestoppers board of directors.

Police arrest three Friday

Three persons were arrested Friday by Hereford police, including a man, 30, in the 100 block of Bradley for public intoxication and on a county warrant for violation of probation; a man, 27, in the 700 block of Brevard on county warrants for violation of probation and violation of a court order; and a man, 22, at Bradley and Knight for driving while license suspended and violation of a court order. Reports included criminal mischief at Greenwood and Moreman, 200 block of Ave. K, 100 block of E. Sixth and 100 block of Austin; reckless driving in the area of Higgins and U.S. Highway 385; theft on S. Main, 200 block of 13th and 300 block of N. 25 Mile Ave.; criminal trespass in the 400 block of W. Third; burglary of about $500 in the 100 block of Ave. H; assault involving domestic violence in the 100 block of Ave. I; and loud and unnecessary noises in the 600 block of Stanton. Police issued 11 citations Friday and worked two minor accidents.

STARDUST

EDITOR'S NOTE - It's a song that was born in a day when boys and girls, men and women, actually touched, even rubbed, when they danced. It's a dreamy, lilting melody with lyrics meant for courting, "our song" for generations of young couples, the most-recorded song in history. "Stardust" no doubt will be remembered as the Song of the Century.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - "Sometimes I wonder why I spend the lonely night dreaming of a song."

So begins a musical thought that has become part of the American heritage and helped define the very nature of the nation's popular culture.

Now, eight years before the century ends, the song "Stardust" or "Star Dust" (you have a choice) makes firm claim to being the Song of the Century, the inspiration of Hoagy Carmichael, a skinny music-struck kid from Indiana, who wrote the music, and Mitchell Parish, a song tinkerer from Manhattan's lower East Side, who wrote the words.

It has been recorded more than 1,300 times by hundreds of artists. One music historian, the late David Ewen, said its lyrics have been translated into 30 different languages.

Beyond counting are the number of people who have danced to it, wooed to it, sung their babies to sleep to its melody and still recall their glowing youth to its lilt.

"The melody haunts my reverie and I am once again with you."

John Edward Hasse, curator of American music for the Smithsonian Institution, says the evidence for calling it the song of the century is strong. He says it is "the most-recorded song in the history of the world and that right there qualifies it as it as the song of the century."

One music historian says the closest competitor is "Yesterday" by the Beatles' John Lennon and Paul McCartney. Number three is W.C. Handy's "St. Louis Blues."

There was a kind of stunned silence in the crowd for a moment, and then they exploded with cheering and whistling and applauding. The kids thought 'Star Dust' was a new song I had just written...

--Willie Nelson, whose "Star Dust" album was on the charts for over two years.

Through the years, this song is the REAL No. 1

The Top 3 Songs:

1. Stardust, Hoagy Carmichael
2. Yesterday, John Lennon and Paul McCartney
3. St. Louis Blues, W.C. Handy

For 62 years "Stardust" has echoed at dimly lit and festooned high school and college proms and country club dances, in elevators and in dingy piano bars, where a broken-hearted drinker may be having one more for the road; in barracks rooms around the world, in night clubs and in ballrooms and in diners and from car radios and from soda fountain juke boxes.

Those echoes have grossed millions over the years since it was first recorded in 1929. In 1963, the original publisher said it was still averaging $50,000 in royalties a year.

Even as late as the mid-1980s, disc jockeys in New York and Washington featured a different version every morning for going-to-work drivers and never repeated a single one for two years. At least four movies used Star Dust in their titles. This year a new romantic movie, "The Miracle," begins, ends and is laced with its melody.

It is an extremely personal song, evoking secret passions.

A 20-year-old Indiana woman, mortally wounded in a 1933 shooting, asked that "Star Dust" be played at her funeral. President Dwight D. Eisenhower chose it first from the soothing menu of songs he was allowed after a heart attack in the 1950s. It has been the theme song for young lovers for almost three generations.

Artie Shaw's 1940 rendition sold two million copies over the counter and led jukebox polls for years. Willie Nelson's gold album "Star Dust" in 1978 stayed on the best-seller charts for more than 135 weeks.

Nelson recalled singing it in the Austin, Tex., Opera House. "There was a kind of stunned silence in the crowd for a moment, and then they exploded with cheering and whistling and applauding. The kids thought 'Star Dust' was a new song I had just written..."

It was written, however, by Hoagland Howard Carmichael, born in 1899, who died 10 years ago this year. The lyricist, Mitchell Parish (Michael until a song publisher changed his name) is 92, living in a cluttered one-bedroom apartment on New York's upper East Side, confined to a wheelchair among the memorabilia of his life.

The verse begins as if an intrusion into private thoughts, "And now the purple dusk of twilight time, steals across the meadows of my heart..."

The song's history is curious, surrounded by apocryphal and conflicting stories and Hoagy

TBSWCD offers new monitoring

The Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District of Deaf Smith County would like to remind cooperators that the district is offering an irrigation well metering service free of charge.

The district purchased a Polysomic Flowmeter, with the help of a federal grant, which will measure the gallons per minute flowing through a pipeline.

This type of information is needed to determine the production of a well at a given time and can be very useful when an operator is going to renozzle a center pivot irrigation system.

For more information concerning the ultra sonic flowmeter call the SCS office at 364-6995 or come by 315 W. Third street.

saw a dirt cloud from the impact and took evasive action, but the patrol unit--a 1991 Chevrolet Camaro--went into a skid and ran over Winchester, who was laying in the roadway.

Investigators have not yet determined which man was riding the motorcycle. Both riders were wearing a helmet.

Getting away from it all

Hereford children got away from the rigors of the first week of school with a relaxing time at the city pool at Dameron Park last week.

Jorde reeling 'em in at tournaments

A former Hereford resident, Sheri Witaker Jorde of Clovis, earned one fishing honor after another this past week. And, it's a family affair--her husband, Jeff, and brother, Greg Whitaker of Hereford, also got into the act.

Sheri was a cheerleader and Miss Congeniality in the Miss Hereford Pageant before graduating from HHS in 1980. Sheri, 29, also graduated from Texas A&M. Her mother is Mrs. J.D.(Betty) Whitaker of Hereford.

KWAHADIS

The next snow was in Greenbelt, Md., then Washington sightseeing took a couple days. A single day was spent in New York and touring was limited to ferry ride to Liberty Island and climbing up the Statue of Liberty.

Three performances were given in Maine, then the bus went to historic Ticonderoga, N.Y., for a show. Another in the Lake Placid area and one in Syracuse, N.Y., ended that phase of the trip.

Akron, Ohio, Greenfield, Ind., and Aurora, Ind., were the last stops on the show tour. The troop's last leg was the 1,100 miles from Aurora to Amarillo.

In preparation for the tour the Kwahadis learned 21 dances. Although each scout does not perform in all dances, each must be prepared, if called on.

She won a two-day tournament this past week at Ute Lake, catching 9.5 pounds. That vaulted her from 11th place to first in the 1991 Sun Country Bass Association tournament circuit.

Then the bass association announced that Jorde was the amateur "Angler of the Year" for Sun Country. She automatically qualifies for the association's championship tourney Sept. 25-27 at Elephant Butte. Jorde is the first woman to qualify for the championship, which matches the top five amateurs with the association's top 20 professional fishermen, along with another group of five consolation winners.

Among those pros she'll compete against are her husband, Jeff, and brother, Greg. Jeff, also a longtime Hereford resident, is an HHS graduate and WTSU alumni. He and Sheri will be the first husband and wife competing in the championship tourney. Her brother, Greg, a Deaf Smith County farmer, also qualified through the professional ranks to get to the championship. Greg also graduated from HHS and WTSU.

Jeff and Sheri are potato farmers and have about 7,000 acres of irrigated land six miles out of Clovis. Sheri says she started fishing "seriously" only three or four years ago. Last year, she was first in the amateur division of a bass tourney at Elephant Butte and led the state with a largemouth bass weighing 6.79 pounds from Conchas Lake. She also finished second in the Bass'n Gal bass tourney at Sam Rayburn Lake.

KATY ANN KEELING

Aug. 22, 1991

Katy Ann Keeling, 16-day-old daughter of Scott and Karen Keeling of Hereford, died Thursday evening at Northwest Texas Hospital Neonatal ICU.

She was born Aug. 6, 1991 in Amarillo.

Private services were held Saturday.

Survivors include her parents; two brothers, Tyler Keeling and Levi Keeling of the home; her grandparents I.J. and Ann Tow of Amarillo and Tom and Mary Ann Keeling of Canyon; and great-grandparents Dale and Fabrous Keeling of Canyon.

The family requests memorials be to Northwest Texas Hospital Neonatal ICU or a favorite charity.

Landon, son of Jerry and Julie Morris, got interested in joining the troop when he saw the Kwahadis perform. Tyson first saw the dancers at a Webelos camp and set his sights on being a member. His parents are Donnie and Debbie Foerster.

Both Hereford scouts also belong to Troop 53 here.

Expenses of tours like the '91 trip are defrayed to some extent by sponsors of performances. At each stop, the sponsor usually provides sleeping accommodations and at least one meal.

Otherwise, the scouts and leaders stay in churches, armories, colleges and camps. They often eat in fast food establishments.

Laundry for such an extended trip isn't a real problem, says Landon Morris.

"We stopped at least once a week at a laundromat and washed our clothes," he reports.

Even when at home in Hereford, the life of Kwahadis can be busy.

Until Landon and Tyson knew the dances, they made twice-weekly trips to Amarillo for rehearsals. They now go only on Sundays.

Rehearsals currently are underway for the troop's Indian Summer program, scheduled on Sept. 28 and Oct. 5 in Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon.

The troop also has winter ceremonials in December and January and spring shows in April.

Although Foerster and Morris had made "fun" trips with the Kwahadis, this summer's tour was their first as performers.

Needless to say, they're ready to go again.

Trial to begin for cheerleader's mom

By SUSAN FAHLGREN
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - While cheerleaders work on routines to usher in a new season in football-crazed Texas, a Houston-area woman heads for trial, accused of trying to arrange a murder so her daughter could win a place on a high school cheerleading squad.

Tape recordings of conversations with Wanda Webb Holloway, her former brother-in-law and an undercover police officer were expected to be key evidence in the murder-for-hire and attempted kidnapping case.

Mrs. Holloway, 37, described by police as "the ultimate stage mother," is accused of plotting the murder of Verna Heath, 38, the mother of her daughter's chief rival for a spot on the Channelview High School cheerleading squad. She has pleaded innocent and remains free on $10,000 bond.

The case comes before State District Judge George Godwin on Monday.

"She's been indicted for solicitation of capital murder as well as solicitation of aggravated kidnapping," said Troy McKinney, Mrs. Holloway's attorney. "The significance of that is that the prosecutors don't think they can get a conviction on murder charges.

"I don't expect their case to be anywhere near as strong as they portray it to the media. What we will do is present the truth. It doesn't take a lot of different ways to figure out how to portray the truth."

"Hopefully we'll get a running start on it on Monday and the case will last a week to 10 days," Assistant District Attorney Mike Anderson said.

Although Anderson would not reveal the contents of the tapes, which were made in January, prosecutors have contended the tapes will show Mrs. Holloway asked her former brother-in-law, Terry Lynn Harper, to find someone either to kidnap or to kill Mrs. Heath.

They also say she hoped Mrs. Heath's daughter, Amber, would be so distraught she would withdraw from cheerleading competitions.

Shanna Harper, Mrs. Holloway's 13-year-old daughter, had lost out to Amber for two years on the junior high's nine-girl squad in the blue-collar community outside of Houston.

The first year Shanna didn't make the tryouts. In the second year, she was disqualified for unfairly campaigning for the student vote.

In February, the two eighth-graders were to try out for the high school's Falcons cheerleading squad.

Prosecutors say Mrs. Holloway, who has no criminal record, wanted to guarantee her daughter a spot on the squad by having both Mrs. Heath and Amber Heath killed. They say she later decided she could afford to pay the $2,500 to kill the mother.

Harper, who has a previous felony conviction, contacted authorities about the deal and an undercover officer posed as the hitman. Harper later gave the officer a pair of diamond earrings valued at $1,500 that he said Mrs. Holloway wanted to use as a down payment for the slaying.

If convicted on the murder-for-hire charge, Mrs. Holloway could be sentenced to life in prison. The attempted aggravated kidnapping charge carries a jail term of up to 20 years.

Anderson said he was unsure whether either of the teen-age girls would be called to testify.

McKinney said his client has been through a rough summer.

"Obviously it's stressful for her. Obviously anyone facing these charges would be upset," McKinney said.

The arrest Jan. 30 and disclosure of the nature of the charges prompted a media frenzy to the blue-collar, middle-class area east of Houston.

"The media respite over the past few months has certainly been nice,"

McKinney said, adding that Mrs. Holloway's life since then has been "as normal as it can be, under the circumstances."

Tony Harper, who was divorced from Mrs. Holloway in 1980 after six years of marriage, sued his ex-wife in March for custody of Shanna and her brother, Anthony. Harper contended the children needed counseling because of the incident and that Mrs. Holloway was unwilling to provide it.

The parents were awarded joint custody, but Anthony, now 18, opted to live primarily with his father while Shanna splits her time between the two homes.

Since then, Harper has filed motions claiming that Mrs. Holloway violated terms of the custody ruling by taking her daughter on vacation during a period when Shanna was to be with him, McKinney said.

"It's just more in a continuing strain in Tony Harper's continuing plan to deny her her children," McKinney said. "That will probably not be addressed until after the trial."

Meanwhile, the two teen-agers began their freshman year at Channelview High last Tuesday. School officials would not say whether either girl will be cheering for the Falcons.

Grandma surprised by reaction

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) - Arlette Schweitzer says she's neither an oddity nor a miracle worker for carrying her grandchildren in her womb - just a mother who loves her daughter.

Medical ethicists say the 42-year-old is the first American woman to serve as a surrogate mother for her daughter. Mrs. Schweitzer's daughter, Christa Uchytel, was born without a uterus.

She compares herself to parents who donate kidneys or other organs to their children.

"I don't know a mother or father in the world who doesn't do what they can for their children," said Mrs. Schweitzer, already a grandmother of four.

The school librarian spoke publicly about her role three weeks ago in hopes of helping others with fertility problems. She since has been flooded with phone calls and letters.

"We just never, never dreamed this would get this much interest around the world," Mrs. Schweitzer said.

To prove her point, the telephone rings again in the white house she shares with her husband, Dan, and their spaniel. Mrs. Schweitzer, nearly seven months pregnant, lets the answering machine do the work.

The twins she carries, the biological children of her 22-year-old daughter and son-in-law, Kevin Uchytel of Sioux City, Iowa, are due in late October or early November.

Eggs were taken from Mrs. Uchytel's ovaries, fertilized in a laboratory dish with her husband's sperm and implanted in her mother's uterus.

A doctor discovered about seven years ago that Mrs. Uchytel did not have a uterus. Mrs. Schweitzer says she quickly decided she would serve as a surrogate someday.

The family never thought much about making medical history: "We were just thinking of what we could do to help Christa have babies."

Mrs. Uchytel, a teacher's aide, said that when she first told her future husband about the plan, "He thought it was pretty amazing."

Critics have questioned whether the family should have adopted a child instead. Some medical ethicists question whether the children will be confused about their relationship to their mother and grandmother.

Mrs. Uchytel said the children will be told at an early age how they were born and will be made to feel special. They will understand she and her husband are their genetic parents, she said.

"There's no way they'll be confused," Mrs. Uchytel said. "I guess we know who the grandmother is and who the mother is."

Mrs. Uchytel said adoption would have been the next step if the surrogate arrangement hadn't worked.

In October 1987, Pat Anthony of Johannesburg, South Africa, gave birth to triplets conceived of her daughter's eggs and became what is believed to be the first woman in the world to bear her daughter's children.

Mrs. Schweitzer said the family agreed to tell its story to help others with fertility problems. Many couples have been encouraged, she said.

Hereford Bull

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says when opportunity knocks, you still have to get up off your rear and answer the door.

About the only thing a child will willingly share are communicable diseases and his mother's age.

Hereford lost another good citizen this past week. Doug Josseland was one of Hereford's younger community leaders, and his untimely death was a shock to all those who knew him.

We became well acquainted with Doug last year as he served as Chamber of Commerce president. We had come to know the Josseland family earlier and had seen Doug and his brothers growing up in our neighborhood during their high school days. We then became associated with him as a newsmaker when he returned to work in this community.

Doug was concerned about his town and his fellowman, and he was eager to learn and to become involved in community projects. He was striving to make his town a better place in which to live, work and play. We never have too many of his kind in the community...we'll miss him.

State Rep. David Swinford of Dumas says no one paid much attention to him, even his fellow House members, until he introduced legislation in the special session that would allow the top 26 Panhandle counties to form a new state, Old Texas.

Swinford has already been on a half-dozen talk shows, according to Jim Hudson of The Perryton Herald. He has been quoted extensively on the AP national wire service, covered in all the daily newspapers of the state, and was featured in a front-page story in the Daily Oklahoman. A CNN news team came to his office this week for a live interview; the Wall Street Journal has sent a reporter to talk about the new state, and the Rush Limbaugh national radio show is making arrangements for a guest appearance.

With this new-found celebrity status has come responsibility. In these interviews, Swinford is asked to describe the State of Old Texas. Here is a partial list of what he has come up with so far:

Motto: "Independence"
State Flower: Tumbleweed
State Animal: Coyote
State Tree: None
State Bird: Pheasant
Capital: Amarillo

We like his answer on why he started this movement. He uses a quote from Harry Truman, "I never give them hell. I just tell the truth and they think it is hell."

School is underway and the Herd and Mighty Maroon Band are preparing for the first football game. You've heard the "Twelve Days Before Christmas," so we think it's an appropriate time to print the "Ballad of Free Education," author unknown, which talks about the first 12 days of school:

On the First day of school, my children said to me, "Aren't you glad that our education is free?"

On the Second day of school, my children said to me, "We need five more books, six fountain pens, and an unabridged dictionary."

On the Third day of school, my children said to me, "We need Crayolas, your old Victrola, one pencil box and a buck for a lockey and key."

On the Fourth day of school, my children said to me, "We need a gym suit, tennis and shower cap, a sewing kit, some pinking shears and five yards of string, one tailor chalk, two thimbles, one bias tape and something called emery."

On the Fifth day of school, my children said to me, "We need insurance, don't forget our lunches and a deposit for our lab breakage fee."

On the Sixth day of school, my children said to me, "You forgot my workbook, nametags on my soccer box, and the loan of your car till after three."

On the Seventh day of school, my children said to me, "I need a camera, hockey stick, pink tights, a tuba in key, one chess set, one nose plug, one leotard for my extracurricular activities."

On the Eighth day of school, my children said to me, "Do we have some old shoes, food we will never use, books we're not reading, money we aren't needing, for some hard-pressed, needy family?"

On the Ninth day of school, my children said to me, "I had my picture took. It'll cost you ten just to look, for 20 you can buy all poses--no stamps, no checks, just money."

On the Tenth day of school, my children said to me, "Wanna join the PTA, the Boosters, the Maroon and White, and the band is selling key rings--you know how you're always losing keys."

On the Eleventh day of school, my children said to me, "Where is my cigar box? Did you pay my milk bill? I'll need 50 cents. We're going to plant a tree."

On the Twelfth day of school, my children said to me, "Why are you crying? You aren't buying. Aren't you glad that our education is free?" ...and then came the tax bill.

There's an old Jewish story about Moshe, a poor shoemaker, who dies and finds himself about to meet his maker. He begins to make excuses about why he did not make more of himself in life.

With this he is warned, "When you are in His presence, He will not ask you why you were not Moshe or King David or one of the prophets. He will ask you why you were not Moshe the shoemaker."

We are not asked to be great. We are just asked to be all that we can be.

An AP News Analysis Hostage cycle takes another familiar turn

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - The cycle is too familiar in the long agony of western hostages in the Middle East - a note from the Beirut netherworld in which five Americans are imprisoned, a photograph, a man released, then another, a surge of optimism that the rest will finally be freed.

Then silence. This time it is said to be silence with a purpose, a lull in the public phase of negotiations to end the hostage situation but not a break in the effort.

And this time, the dealings openly involve governments, not only back-channel attempts at contact with the faceless kidnappers who hold 10 westerners missing in Lebanon, Iran, Syria, Israel and the United States and other nations that are the homes of the hostages, all have been involved. The United Nations is mediating efforts to exchange the captives for Muslim prisoners held by Israel.

But there also are unsettling parallels to what has happened before, as promises have peaked and ebbed without an end to the ordeal. In the past, delays have become dead ends. And once again, an international crisis has erupted elsewhere, unrelated but diverting attention just as there seems to be progress on the hostages.

This time it was the three-day Moscow coup that temporarily ousted Mikhail S. Gorbachev. In earlier rounds, events ranging from aircraft hijackings to the Persian Gulf crisis have pushed hostage release quests to the background.

"It's uncanny," said Peggy Say, the sister of Terry Anderson, longest held of the western hostages. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was kidnapped in Beirut on March 16, 1985.

While the international focus was on Moscow, there were said to have been discussions Wednesday in Tehran on further steps toward a hostage-prisoner exchange.

Iranian officials and leaders of Hezbollah, the Muslim organization that links the militant factions holding the hostages, were said to be talking about the relay of information on seven Israeli servicemen missing in Lebanon, some for as long as nine years.

Israel insists on that accounting as part of any bargain on prisoners. The Muslim militants who hold the hostages are seeking the release of more than 375 Arabs imprisoned by Israel.

A U.S. official said the Iranian government had been working privately with United Nations Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar on the hostages. The westerners are held by militant Muslim groups loyal to Iran, where the government now is bent on improving its ties with the west.

"I think they've tried to be certainly more constructive," President Bush said last Sunday. "... There's a feeling around the world that it's time to end all this."

"But we've still got a long way to go..."

Bush said then that Perez de Cuellar was not pessimistic, but thought that a release would take more time.

Since he came to office, Bush has tried repeatedly to gain Iranian help in freeing the captive Americans, saying as he was inaugurated that good will would beget good will.

While the administration's stated policy remains "no deals," the president has encouraged U.N. efforts to bargain for what would amount to an exchange of hostages for Israeli prisoners.

That would end part of a problem which, in different phases and forms, has plagued the last three administrations.

The Tehran embassy hostage crisis helped Ronald Reagan win the White House; arms-for-hostages deals with Iran led to the worst scandal of his administration after the proceeds were diverted into forbidden aid to rebels in Nicaragua.

President Jimmy Carter's bid for a second term was crippled by the Tehran hostage crisis, 52 Americans held captive in the U.S. embassy for 444 days, until the hour Reagan took office.

Reagan said no deals, and threatened "swift and effective retribution" against hostage takers. But there was no way to retaliate when Muslim factions in Lebanon began kidnapping and holding Americans and other westerners. And there were deals; three Americans were freed while the Reagan administration was sending secret arms shipments to Iran in 1985 and 1986.

And a vestige of the earlier hostage crisis remains to be settled, with a congressional inquiry due next month into allegations that the 1980 Reagan campaign dealt with Iran to avoid an "October surprise" in which the embassy hostages might have been released before election day, boosting Carter's bid for re-election.

Coming next to a satellite dish near you: a 24-hour channel with those stupid "infomercials."

You've probably seen them on your TV, because all of the Amarillo TV stations have carried them, as have several cable channels. These are the 30-minute, or even hour-long, commercials that look like a regular TV program. They've had these things on stuff that practically makes your car and your teeth invincible. Ron Popeil, the guy that brought you the slicing, dicing Roncomatic deal and the Pocket Fisherman and all this other stuff has a new one out on some food preservation goodies (You can save thousands of dollars on your annual beef jerky bill with one of these new machines!) with all kinds of goodies, not for $150, not for $100, not for $95, not for $75, but for just $59 or something like that.

What is really embarrassing is when you tune in to one of these programs and watch it for five or ten minutes before you realize it's not a real TV program, but a commercial.

It happened to me. I'm still embarrassed as heck about it.

I admit, I had been out late the night before, and awoke early one Sunday morning to see if there was anything on TV. With 32 channels to choose from, you would think I might have found something.

No. Except for this show about this product. I thought it was a story about this Englishman, a biography or something about this guy who had made the greatest scientific breakthrough of the late 20th Century.

Instead, it was one of these infomercials. Now, an infomercial network.

Maybe they'll do a 30-minute program on the "Thighmaster." I do hope so.

By the way, I noticed a few weeks ago that Lloyd Ames and the Hereford Cablevision folks were "testing" a home shopping deal on one of the upper channels.

Next thing you know, we'll have a movie theater in town!

Oh, by the way, I hear there are at least three parties interested in putting a movie theater in Hereford. Wouldn't it be a blast if all three did it?

It should be very interesting to see how everything shakes out over in the USSR.

I think many of us were at least anxious about the unfolding of the coup, what would happen to Gorbachev, and how long were these guys going to let Boris Yeltsin shake his fist in defiance.

The answers seem to be obvious, but if history has taught us nothing else, we have learned not to take things that happen in the Soviet Union at face value. It wouldn't surprise me at all if Boris weren't the next leader of the whole thing, and it wouldn't surprise me to learn that he was behind the whole mess so he could gain power. I don't think that's what happened, but who knows?

And what if that's not the real Gorbachev? What if it's the guy that played him in the first "Naked Gun" movie?

The Wall Street Journal had a very interesting story about what Gorbachev did while he was holed up in his dacha in Crimea last week. He was pretty defiant when the coup ringleaders came calling on him Monday, and he discovered they had cut off his communication. According to the story, Gorbachev has a pretty good streak of smart aleck in him and it may have saved his life.

As a red-white-and-blue-blooded American, I have to wonder just how "reform minded" all of these guys really are. If Gorbachev is kind of a middle of the road Commie and Yeltsin is a liberal commie, that's like choosing between Teddy Kennedy and Mike Dukakis. I believe that what we consider a "hard-line" communist, like these guys--that staged the coup, are a lot like the big-time liberals here. They want everything centralized. The bigger the government, the better. The government must control everything it possibly can control.

See, the planks of the hard-line Commies and the National Democratic Party are similar in many respects, aren't they?

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

LOOK WHO'S DOUBTING THOMAS

By Dr. Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON — It is truly astounding to hear so many otherwise sensible people expressing doubts about the character of Clarence Thomas, President Bush's nominee to the Supreme Court.

There was a time when any citizen of humble origins who pulled himself up by the bootstraps was assumed to possess character. Indeed, the self-reliance required to contend with poverty and triumph over adversity is widely held to be key to the American dream.

It was no accident that almost every presidential candidate up until the present century laid claim to being born in a log cabin (six of them actually were) or that modern politicians born to wealth feel obliged to prove themselves through honest work. There is a notion in this country that people should prove themselves by merit, and that anyone who does earns a place in the front ranks of society. Clarence Thomas latched onto that notion many years ago, and it has served him well.

Of course, Thomas is a special case. Not only was he born to severe deprivation, but he was born black in the deep south in the era of Jim Crow. Cynics who believe the American dream is a fraud, and that black people in particular have no chance in this society, cannot accept the reality of Thomas. They regard the phrase, "black conservative" to be a contradiction in terms, and look askance at Thomas as if he had just descended from a flying saucer.

As so often happens in Washington, there is less to this controversy than meets the eye. Thomas does not question the injustice of racism, or the debilitating impact it has had on black Americans. As Chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission for eight years, he aggressively enforced equal rights laws, securing more than $1 billion in relief for victims of discrimination.

However, Thomas recognizes that there is only so much government can do to rectify past injustice, and that sometimes the cure is worse than the disease. In particular, he rejects the quota mentality which contradicts the very notion of equal opportunity, and unfairly stigmatizes millions of people.

On a more fundamental level, Thomas challenges the politics of grievance and entitlement which has become a mainstay of the mainstream civil rights movement. He believes minorities will progress faster by relying upon traditional conservative virtues of hard work, thrift, honesty, moral behavior, and self-reliance. He exhorts black Americans to assert themselves, and take control of their own destiny. To the extent the civil rights establishment has a problem with Clarence Thomas, it may be the problem lies with the civil rights establishment.

Lessons of coup

BY W.L. (BILL) ALBRIGHT

(Editor's note: Bill Albright, president emeritus of the Houston Tanglewood Chamber of Commerce, is a former executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. He initiated the "H-3" slogan here--"Hustle, hustle, hustle.")

The failed coup taught two very important lessons last week. One was that a taste of freedom, as has been briefly enjoyed on the other side of the iron curtain, is very powerful medicine. It may even be addictive. Once you're hooked, you can't get along without it. Unfortunately for the perpetrators of the take-over, they didn't realize just how much the Russian citizens had fallen in love with even the few scraps of freedom they have experienced. But when civilians armed with sticks and stones and Molotov cocktails stand up to professional soldiers in armored vehicles, it becomes quite clear just how fast the seeds of freedom take root.

The other lesson, I'm sorry to say, has been taught before but repeatedly ignored. It's the lesson of peace through strength. A euphoric reaction followed the great peace overtures of the past several years--the removal of the Berlin Wall, pulling Soviet troops out of many Russian states, the arms reduction treaties, plus all the other reversals of totalitarian rule.

Legislative leaders in the U.S. licked their lips and tasted "a peace dividend." Why should we maintain such an expensive military presence in various parts of the world? Why not bring our troops home and cut down on tanks and guns and planes and ships? Who needs Star Wars defense against missiles and conventional arms to overcome aggression?

The answer: we do. And we've learned the lesson the hard way with much unnecessary loss of life because of unpreparedness. In 1917 we were ill prepared to go to war. In 1941 we were soundly thrashed with more good men wasted because our leaders were "asleep at the wheel." Korea caught us by surprise with another great investment in human life, again unnecessarily. Vietnam was much improved with a steady buildup and a strong fighting force available. But after 1973, the armed forces were again allowed to deteriorate.

Fortunately, during the 80s, our strong military posture brought the Soviet Union to the bargaining table and this era of peace gloriously broke out all over. The coup, had it succeeded, sent a very strong warning once again, that anything could happen to our cherished peace. Anyone could push the wrong button and we could find ourselves once more behind the eight-ball with a lot of lives sacrificed.

And so we must remain strong and ready. We should give thanks for the successful conclusion to that episode in world crisis and give thanks to those leaders who demand America remain militarily capable. They need our support, our determination, our dedication and our... hustle, hustle, hustle!

STARDUST

Carmichael did little to straighten things out. But in his first autobiography, "The Stardust Road" (1946), he recorded his feelings at the moment of its birth, in Bloomington, Ind., one day in 1927 when he was not quite 28, about this time of year, the end of August:

"It was a hot night, sweet with the death of summer and the hint and promise of fall. A waiting night, a night marking time, the end of a season. The stars were bright, close to me, and the North Star hung low over the trees."

"I sat down on the 'spooning wall' at the edge of the campus and all the things that the town and the university and the friends I had flooded through my mind. Beautiful Kate (Cameron), the campus queen...and Dorothy Kelly. But not one girl - all the girls - young and lovely. Was Dorothy the loveliest? Yes. The sweetest? Perhaps. But most of them had gone their ways. Gone as I'd gone mine..."

"Never to be 21 again; so in love again. Never feel the things I'd felt. 'The memory of love's refrain...'"

Carmichael says he looked up at the sky and whistled, and the melody flowing from his feelings was "Stardust." Excited, he ran to a campus hangout called the Book Nook where the owner was ready to close. He begged for a few minutes of piano time to solidify the theme in his head.

Is that really how it happened? Says music historian Hasse, "What can I say? It is truly a thing of legend."

When Carmichael later played it for friends it had a jazzy upbeat rhythm that pushed the theme to the point of obscurity. It was first recorded on Halloween of 1927 by a pick-up band at his alma mater, Indiana University, a version Hoagy called "ragged." He copyrighted the music sans words on Jan. 5, 1928, as "Star Dust" two words, although his first penciled manuscript had it as one word.

On Oct. 28, it was recorded in Detroit by Don Redmond's Chocolate Dandies. On Jan. 29, 1929, Mills Music of New York's Tin Pan Alley published the sheet music for the first time as "Stardust," one word again.

Jack Mills arranged for a special materials writer on his small staff, Mitchell Parish, to write the lyrics but even Parish was not impressed at first.

Then in May 1930, a popular band leader named Isham Jones recorded it and slowed the rhythm to a dreamier tempo.

"And then it happened," Hoagy wrote, "...the horrible thought; that queer sensation that this melody was bigger than I. It didn't seem to be part of me... To lay my claims I wanted to shout back at it, 'Maybe I didn't write you, but I found you.'"

"Hoagy loved the music business the way I did," says Mitchell Parish. "I don't know that he played it for me. But I saw the manuscript and I didn't like it. You know why? It was swing. To me it sounded like another swing tune..."

"It was not an overnight smash." His theory is that most long-lasting songs are not instant hits, because people tire of the instant repetition.

But he was as vague as Hoagy about the process of creation. In all likelihood, Hoagy had some input. Parish says, "You never know how long it takes to write...Because you walk around with it. So when you sit down to put it on paper, you've already written it in your mind."

Carmichael credited the title to a college roommate who ran after him in Indianapolis one day and said, "Call it 'Stardust,'" and then moved his hands to describe dust falling from the sky.

Randy Carmichael, the younger of two sons, plays his father's songs at concerts, but plays and sings a larger repertoire at a supper club called The Arboretum on Friday and Saturday nights in the resort town of Harbor Springs, Mich., on Little Traverse Bay.

His father, he says, was proud of his musical ability and was happy to sit down and play "Stardust" on any piano, anywhere. "He would say, 'I've got this new thing I'm working on' and he'd play parts of it."

"So what I get throughout the country is, 'Your Dad wrote "Stardust" on my piano.' And in a sense he did."

Tied to the song was Hoagy Carmichael's friendship with Bix Beiderbecke, the innovative genius on the trumpet and cornet who changed American music with his incredible jazz shifts and licks and the clarity of his musical ideas, so different from the tragic course of his life.

Carmichael named his first son Hoagy Bix Carmichael. He says Beiderbecke was instrumental in changing his father's career from law to music.

"Bix kept telling him, 'Hoag, there's more in you... You've got the stuff...' And Bix was obviously right."

Besides, says Hoagy Bix, "It was fun. You got to smoke some weird cigarettes and run around with some pretty unusual ladies and drink some stuff and do this music that's in your hands that you can't stop..."

Hoagy Carmichael was brought up in a loving family, the son of an itinerant electrician and a mother, a tiny woman, who would take him with her when she played the piano at the silent movie houses, villain music, chase music, love music. He learned about music from her.

On the other hand, says Hoagy Bix Carmichael, "Bix's parents wanted him to go into the professions and of course Bix was going to play the trumpet...And he always sent his recordings home to his parents. He was proud of them and he wanted them to be proud of him. But of course they weren't. He went home one time to dry out. He had been there a couple of weeks when he happened to open a cupboard and there were all the records he had sent his parents - unopened."

The next year, 1931, this genius of jazz died at the age of 28, the result of alcohol abuse. Hoagy Carmichael played in a movie commemorating Beiderbecke's career, "Young Man with a Horn," starring Kirk Douglas.

Music historian Hasse says that "Stardust" is symbolic of the 20th century because it draws so heavily on jazz. "The melody line is almost like a frozen Bix Beiderbecke improvisation."

It is a very serious, complicated piece of music, three minutes worth of incredible melody. It doesn't have a bridge, for instance, that place in the chorus where the composer breaks his theme to set up its final statement. It is one complete sentence with no dependent clauses.

On the other hand, "Skylark," which Hasse thinks is Carmichael's other masterpiece, has a very difficult bridge which trips up vocalists and instrumentalists alike.

Carmichael was capable of writing a dud and some music that would be lost without the lyrics, for instance, "Two Sleepy People." He and composer and lyricist Frank Loesser were chatting around an old upright piano at Loesser's rented cottage when both discovered they were out of smokes. And Loesser wrote, "Here we are, out of cigarettes, holding hands and yawning, see how late it gets." Great lyrics, simple melody.

The Carmichael brothers, largely Hoagy Bix, have put together the book and music for what they hope will be a Broadway musical, to be called "Hoagy and Bix," featuring some 22 of Hoagy's songs. Mitchell Parish has a musical review called "Stardust: The Mitchell Parish Musical," which has just opened in San Francisco to good reviews.

Parish wrote the lyrics for other Carmichael songs, "Riverboat Shuffle," "The White World of Winter," and one of Hoagy's favorites, "One Morning In May," and went on to collaborate with others. Band leader Glenn Miller got him to write "Moonlight Serenade," and he wrote the lyrics to dozens of songs such as "Stars Fell on Alabama," "Deep Purple," "Sweet Lorraine" and "Sophisticated Lady."

Parish hates people tampering with his lyrics. One publisher told him that "Stars don't fall on Alabama," and that friends of his didn't know what the phrase meant. "I told him off."

If "Stardust" helped establish Parish's career, it also had a great effect on Carmichael's sons as well. Theirs became a world of celebrity.

Hoagy Bix says that Fred Astaire was one of the best friends he will ever have, a sort of surrogate father.

On the Hollywood street where they lived were Bing Crosby, Lana Turner, Art Linkletter, Judy Garland, Alan Ladd. When his father went off to play the London Palladium and he and his wife were gone for almost four months, Hoagy Bix was stashed with collaborator and lyricist Johnny Mercer and family.

"I didn't know anything else," he says. "I thought that Humphrey Bogart lived next door to everybody."

Many times families and friends want to offer their thoughts in the form of a eulogy. We find that by offering them to accept the fact that their loved one is gone, a beautiful silver service will become a precious memory. We can remember the departed with fond memories of the things they loved to do and their favorite music. At our funeral home, we will offer to provide the musical pieces that they enjoyed in life. Many families have found solace, in hearing the music that their loved ones enjoyed.

SMART BUILDINGS?

Q. I've been a tenant long enough. I'd like to relocate my company to a building that I would own. I've heard the term "smart buildings" used in context with office buildings. Are there "dumb buildings"?

A. In the trade, buildings which are equipped with the latest in telecommunication and computer access systems are often called "smart buildings." That's because the heating, air-conditioning, ventilating, elevator and perhaps, electrical and security systems can be controlled by computers. If you leased or purchased a smart building, you could expect under-floor wiring areas would be flexible in order to handle your telephone and computer needs. From a technological standpoint, most new office buildings are planned "fairly smart" to accommodate anticipated tenant requirements. Older buildings undergoing major renovation may also be "smartened" by running access cables and wires under the floors.

Lady Whitefaces take 3 in Lubbock tournament

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford volleyball team breezed through Friday's pool play in the Lubbock Invitational Tournament with wins over El Paso High, Lubbock Dunbar and Perryton.

"We played a lot better than Monday and Tuesday," Coach Brenda Reeh said, referring to a scrimmage against Brownfield and a game with Canyon, respectively.

"Even though we got lots of free balls, we played them a lot more deliberately. We didn't go back and forth with a lot of needless sideouts."

The Lady Whitefaces started with a 15-7, 15-10 decision over El Paso. Brek Binder led Hereford with five kills, Shantel Cornelius had four and Jennifer Hicks and Lori Sanders had three each. Angie Jowell and Teresa Baker each served up two aces, and Cornelius added one.

The second match was a 15-6, 15-7 win over Dunbar. Kara Sandoval led the servers with six aces, and Baker and Binder chipped in two each. Hicks led attackers with four kills and Cornelius had two.

The Perryton score was 15-6, 15-7. Binder led the effort with four aces and two kills. Cornelius had four kills, Baker had three aces, and Sanders added two kills and an ace.

Saturday's scheduled action in the winners' bracket was to pit Hereford against Randall in one morning game and Dumas and Borger in another, with the winners meeting in the second round. The teams in the other half of the winners' bracket were Lamesa, El Paso and Lubbock's Coronado and Monterey.

Dumas got to the winners' bracket with three straight wins: 15-5, 15-7 over Lubbock Estacado; 15-7, 15-8 over El Paso Bowie; and 15-6, 15-10 over Lubbock Monterey.

Borger was second in its pool, gaining victories over Andrews, 15-13, 15-11, and Levelland, 15-8, 15-9. The Lady Bulldogs fell to tournament host Coronado 15-6, 15-7.

Randall was second in its pool, beating Pampa 16-14, 15-11 and Lubbock High 16-14, 15-13. The Lady Raiders loss was to Lamesa, 15-9, 15-9.

Jays preserve lead in AL East

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

With only one inning separating the Blue Jays from their lead in the AL East, they got a break. Actually, a few of them.

Toronto loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth inning on two hit batters and an error, then beat the Yankees 6-5 on Roberto Alomar's soft, two-run single Friday night.

Alomar kept the Blue Jays, who had lost 10 of their last 14, one game ahead of second-place Detroit. The victory was the first since Gene Tenace became Toronto's interim manager while Cito Gaston recovers from a back problem.

"Easy, hard or exciting," Tenace said. "It all looks the same in the standings," he said.

Steve Farr (3-4) took a 5-4 lead into the ninth at the SkyDome, but hit leadoff batter Mookie Wilson with a pitch. Pat Borders reached when shortstop Randy Velarde bobbled a potential double-play grounder, and Manuel Lee was hit by another pitch, loading the bases with no outs.

Duane Ward (6-5) pitched 1 2-3 innings for the victory.

In other games, Detroit defeated Seattle 8-6, Baltimore beat Minnesota 5-4, California downed Boston 4-1, Milwaukee mauled Oakland 13-4, Cleveland held off Chicago 4-3, and Texas topped Kansas City 6-1.

Rangers 6, Royals 1

Brian Bohanon pitched a five-hitter and the Rangers capitalized on three errors to win at Royals Stadium.

Bohanon (3-0) struck out five and walked one in his first career complete game. He retired 11 straight batters in the middle innings.

Right fielder Danny Tartabull's error helped Texas score three times in the first inning off Kevin Appier (10-9). In the eighth, Juan Gonzalez hit a fly to Tartabull, who collided with second baseman Terry Shumpert and dropped the ball, and all three runners scored.

Orioles 5, Twins 4

David Segui singled home the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning as Baltimore won its third straight game. Chris Hoiles drew a leadoff walk in the ninth from Carl Willis (7-3) and Terry Leach relieved. After Bill Ripken sacrificed and Mike Devereaux struck out, Segui singled for just his second RBI since the All-Star break.

Gregg Olson (3-5) pitched the ninth for the victory.

Tigers 8, Mariners 6

Mickey Tettleton hit his 25th home run, triggering a seven-run rally in the fifth inning that sent Bill Gullettson and Detroit over Seattle.

Gullettson (16-6) gave up three runs in six innings and struck out a season-high seven.

The Mariners scored twice in the ninth against Jerry Don Gleaton. Jeff Kaiser got his first major league save by fanning Ken Griffey Jr., who already had four hits, for the final out.

Brian Holman (10-13) allowed five hits on five hits and seven walks in 4 1-3 innings.

Indians 4, White Sox 3

Chicago's two-run rally in the ninth inning fell short and the White Sox fell in Cleveland for their fourth straight loss.

Winner Willie Blair (1-1) gave up 11 hits and left after a pair of leadoff singles in the ninth. Ozzie Guillen hit an RBI double and Robin Ventura had a run-scoring groundout before Shawn Hillegas finished for his sixth save.

Justice's return helps Braves

By The Associated Press

The Braves are ready for a September showdown with the Dodgers, and they'll have Dave Justice to do it.

Atlanta, to most everyone's surprise, stayed in the NL West even when Justice and first baseman Sid Bream landed on the disabled list. Now, Justice is back and the Braves are closing fast.

Justice and rookie Brian Hunter hit consecutive home runs in the sixth inning and Tom Glavine (16-8) became the NL's first 16-game winner, leading the Braves past the Phillies 4-2 Friday night.

Atlanta, the hottest team in the NL since the All-Star break at 28-14, has won four straight in its battle to overtake first-place Los Angeles. The Braves moved within one game of the lead as the Dodgers lost in St. Louis 2-1.

"We need David's bat in the lineup. He means a lot to us," said manager Bobby Cox of the left-handed hitter who has two game-winning hits since his return.

Justice, who came off the disabled list Tuesday after missing nearly two months with a strained back, led off the sixth with his 12th homer off Terry Mulholland (12-11), breaking a 1-1 tie. It was his first homer since June 19 - also off Mulholland.

Astros 9, Expos 2

Jeff Bagwell had three hits and drove in three runs, including a two-run homer, as Houston beat Montreal and Dennis Martinez in a matchup of last-place teams at the Astrodome.

Rookie Ryan Bowen (3-2) pitched eight innings and gave up one run on five hits for the victory. Curt Schilling finished.

Martinez (12-8) allowed five earned runs and six hits in six innings.

Cardinals 2, Dodgers 1

Jose Oquendo's eighth-inning sacrifice fly lifted St. Louis over Los Angeles at Busch Stadium.

Milt Thompson led off the eighth with a double against Tim Crews (2-3) and went to third on a groundout before scoring on Oquendo's drive to left off left-hander John Candelaria.

Cris Carpenter (9-3), the fourth St. Louis pitcher, got the last out in the eighth for the victory and Lee Smith worked the ninth for his league-leading 34th save.

Reds 6, Mets 1

Frank Viola was pounded again, allowing hits to 11 of 21 batters as the visiting Reds beat the Mets and sent the left-hander to his sixth loss in seven starts.

Viola (12-11) failed to pitch past the fourth inning for the second straight time, allowing five runs in 3 2-3 innings. He has given up 19 runs and 28 hits in his last three starts, a span of 13 1-3 innings.

Tom Browning (12-8) won for the first time in six starts since July 24. He gave up one run and seven hits in seven-plus innings.

Cubs 5, Padres 4

Mark Grace capped a three-run Cubs' rally in the bottom of the ninth inning with a two-out double. Grace's double into right field off Craig Lefferts (0-5) sent San Diego to its fourth consecutive defeat.

Lefferts relieved Bruce Hurst before Jerome Walton, batting for winner Les Lancaster (9-7), tied the score with a sacrifice fly. Chico Walker followed with a single, and he scored the game-winning run from first base on Grace's double.

Pirates 8, Giants 0

Doug Drabek continued his turnaround with his second shutout of the season and Pittsburgh ended a three-game slide with their ninth victory in 13 games by beating San Francisco at Three Rivers Stadium.

Rebounding from three consecutive last-inning losses in Philadelphia, the Pirates chased starter John Burkett (9-8) in a four-run third inning keyed by Andy Van Slyke's RBI single and Bobby Bonilla's sacrifice fly.

Drabek (13-11), the 1990 NL Cy Young Award winner, has won three in a row and 11 of 15 since starting the season 2-7.

Willis kicks Pokes to OT win

IRVING, Texas (AP)—Jimmy Johnson was elated. Not because his Dallas Cowboys defeated the Atlanta Falcons 20-17 in overtime on Friday night but because nobody got hurt.

"It was the kind of game you didn't want to get anybody hurt," Johnson said. "I got Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith out of there early and our backup players were in there most of the second half. They were sucking some deep wind at the end."

Atlanta rallied from a 17-0 deficit to tie the game but missed a victory because Rich Karlis missed a 34-yard field goal with seconds left.

Ken Willis kicked a 38-yard field goal with 2:35 elapsed in overtime to beat the Falcons. Both teams finished the exhibition season with 2-2 records.

Atlanta went with its first team most of the game. Starting quarterback Chris Miller played all four quarters and almost pulled out a victory. He passed for 253 yards and had one interception.

Issiac Holt blocked a punt and fell on the ball for a touchdown and Emmitt Smith ran a yard for a touchdown. Willis added a 19-yard field goal for a 17-0 Dallas lead.

A two-yard run by Steve Broussard, a four-yard dash by Keith Jones, and an 18-yard field goal by Karlis brought the Falcons a 17-all tie in regulation.

But Karlis missed a 34-yard field goal in regulation that would have won the game.

Leon Lett caused Broussard to fumble and Odie Harris recovered to set up Willis' game-winner.

"We didn't want a game like this to go into overtime but it's always nice to end the preseason with a win," Johnson said. "Now we can get on with the real thing."

Dallas opens the regular season at Cleveland while Atlanta is at Kansas City.

Atlanta coach Jerry Glanville said he still has confidence in Karlis.

"I've played musical kickers before and there is not much future in that," Glanville said. "Somewhere down the line I look for him to step up and make the big kick to win the football game."

"I'm proud of the way our team came back. We played our style of football and should have won the game. You do everything you should do to win the game, get in that spot and then not get it done. Still, I'm proud of what happened in the second half."

Johnson was happy his team came away with only bumps and bruises.

"Emmitt Smith sprained an ankle but could have played," Johnson said. "We're ready to work on Cleveland now. We wanted to win at the end but after all it's only a preseason game."

It was the first preseason meeting between the two franchises.

DEUCES WILD

CHICAGO (AP)—It was a case of "deuces wild" for basketball star Keith Gales of Loyola University last season.

Gales wore uniform number 22. He celebrated his 22nd birthday on Feb. 2 (221991). He became the second leading school career scorer during the course of the season.

One of his more notable performances saw him score 25 points against Evansville.

A BILLABONG

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Add this one to the list of colorful golf nicknames: "Devlin's Billabong."

That's what they call the pond in front of the 18th green at the South Course of Torrey Pines course here.

A billabong is an Australian word for pond. In the final round of the 1975 Andy Williams San Diego Open, Bruce Devlin of Australia hit a ball into the pond, needed six strokes to get out and wound up taking a 10 on the hole.

Tech fans like Spike

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP)—Not too many major college football coaches struggle through a 4-7 season and end up with a 10-year contract extension.

But then again there probably aren't many marriages that fit like Texas Tech and Spike Dykes.

Some coaches have a reputation for constant intensity and unwillingness to give interviews.

But Dykes, who is beginning his fifth year at Tech, is as open as the treeless farmland surrounding Lubbock.

Dykes can often be seen around campus talking to students, members of the faculty and just about anyone who approaches him.

"Where I come from, if somebody says hello to you going to the post office, you don't just keep walking, you say 'hello, how ya doin'?" Dykes says. "To me that's just natural. That's just being a person."

What you see is what you get with the 53-year-old Tech coach, who was born in Lubbock and is known for his country charm.

Whether talking to reporters after a game or talking to close friends, Dykes speaks his mind. And his delivery often brings a laugh or two.

On a 42-21 loss to Rice in Houston last year: "They whipped us like a tied up billy goat."

After suffering two losses to open the season last year: "We've gotta get our ox out of the ditch."

On Miami's team speed before the Hurricanes routed Tech 45-10 last year: "I thought I was watching their game films on fast forward."

After the game with Miami: "They had more weapons than Iraq." On Baylor's awesome defensive front four: "They could go bear huntin' with a switch."

On his nose tackle Fred Petty: "He's as tough as the back end of a shooting gallery."

On the experience level of Tech placekicker Lin Elliott: "He's got some moss on his horns."

Dykes made no excuses for his team's disappointing season last year, and Tech alums say his forthrightness is endearing.

"People believe in him," said Leete Jackson, who served as president of the school's athletic alumni organization, the Red Raider Club, for 29 years before stepping down in 1986.

"He doesn't promise them the moon," Jackson said. "He just promises to do the best he can. He works hard and people appreciate that Spike won't put his tail between his legs and walk off."

Dykes' popularity has seemingly increased every year since 1988, when the school launched the slogan, "Tell Spike I'll Be There," as a way to promote sales of season tickets.

Attendance at the Red Raiders' home games has increased over the past three years from an average of slightly more than 35,000 in 1988 to an average paid attendance of 42,841 last year. Tech's Jones Stadium holds 50,000.

School officials give a lot of the credit to Dykes, who led Tech to a 9-3 finish in 1989 capped with a victory over Duke in the All-American Bowl.

"Spike sets the tone for athletics at Tech in a lot of ways," said Tech athletic director T. Jones.

"The young men watch and observe coaches and his leadership is invaluable," Jones said. "Spike does so many public speaking engagements in town for the betterment of drug prevention and alcohol prevention. Every time they ask him, Spike is there. I wonder how he gets it all done."

Several alums and former football players say Texas Tech made the right move signing Dykes into the next century simply because "he's one of us."

Outside of a few stints as an assistant coach at Texas, New Mexico and Mississippi State, Dykes has spent most of his coaching career in West Texas.

Dykes made his name as a high school coach with jobs in Coahoma, Belton, Big Spring, Alice and Midland. This year Dykes was inducted into the Texas High School Coaches Association's Hall of Honor.

Dykes hits the road every summer giving speeches at high school athletic banquets and Tech alumni engagements and there is never an empty seat.

Elmer Wilson, a former Tech football player who graduated in 1955, helps organize a golf outing featuring Dykes each summer in Pampa, tucked away up in the Texas Panhandle.

"He's just one of us," Wilson said.

"We all relate to him. He fits the mold in West Texas and is very well thought of in this area - on and off the field."

Dykes can be seen locally on television commercials pushing Tech season tickets and a sports drink.

In one commercial he is pitching the sports drink to viewers before a Tech player interrupts.

"Can't you see I am trying to launch a television career," Dykes snaps at the player.

Boyd Cowan, who played football at Tech from 1985-88, said Dykes' may be known for his sense of humor, but when it's time to kick off the coach is all business.

"He has his moments where he will joke around with the players, but it's not when we are getting ready for a game," Cowan said. "He knows when it's time to get down to business."

But until Sept. 7 when Texas Tech takes on Fullerton State (Calif.) in the Red Raiders' home opener, Dykes will continue to throw out a few gems.

"If we don't get serious about Cal State Fullerton and play our buns off," Dykes says, "they will cut us up like boarding house pie."

Southwest Outdoors

with Mel Phillips

Just returned from attending the Hunters Extravaganza in Fort Worth. It was a dirty job but someone from this area must attend these hunting shows. I am delighted to share with you some of the newest and best products from an outstanding show that attracted some 40,000 people during a three-day exhibition.

Without a doubt, the best new product of the 1991 hunting show was Instafire. John Wofford of Texas and Bill Fisher of Maine have invented and patented a solution to man's age old problem--starting a fire. Their system is inexpensive, waterproof, unbreakable, reusable and just might save your life.

Now, starting a fire is not hard unless it is raining, or the matches are wet, lost or never packed in the first place. Since many outdoorsmen have quit smoking, the need to have a fire can pose unique problems.

Priced less than $10, Instafire is a tribute to the ingenuity of a couple of good ol' boys who have found a new use for ordinary items. It is a small hunk of pitch pine (four inches long and one inch square) with a special flint that is hot-glued to the pine. It takes about thirty seconds to scrape off a small pile of pine shavings about the size of a quarter, then you use the knife on the special flint to ignite these shavings. Presto, fire!

If the right person with the Boy Scouts sees this idea, chances are excellent that they'll have the best money-making idea since the Girl Scouts started selling cookies.

Cove kills--The killing of every fish in a cove in order to improve fishing reminds Playa Pete of the medieval practice of using leeches to bleed sick people in order to improve their health. Modern society has stopped using leeches and many anglers believe that Texas Parks and Wildlife biologists should have stopped using cove kills years ago.

Playa Pete's reply to the woman who placed that late-night, anonymous phone call and complained that ol' Pete is not an ichthyologist (a scientist who studies fish): "Madam, one does not need to be a biologist, ichthyologist or even a journalist in order to ask about cove kills. In America, any citizen has the right to ask questions about the actions of government agents."

Cowboy fans learn to forgive changes

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Jerry Jones, seemingly, is everywhere at once.

One second, the owner-president-general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, is clapping encouragement to the offense.

The next, he has wheeled into "autograph alley" where hundreds of fans await, signing his name to slips of paper, footballs, shirts, and caps.

Jones is king in Austin and he relishes every day of it. He was the one, after all, who turned his back on California in 1989 after decades of training camp in Thousand Oaks.

There was bitterness to be sure, particularly from the folks at California Lutheran College who thought they had a deal with Jones to come back again.

Jones bought his way out of the contract and went to Austin where the Cowboys have cut their training camp costs $500,000 by working in Texas.

Now, Jones is riding high on the back pats of the grateful Texans who swarm St. Edward's University every day.

Jones has left the star on the helmet and hasn't tinkered with the uniforms (still royal blue, metallic silver blue, and white) yet. But that's about all he and his coach-personnel director Jimmy Johnson haven't changed.

He is, as he promised he would be, in charge of everything from jocks to socks.

There are few holdovers from the old regime. Of course Tom Landry and Tex Schramm are gone. They got huge severance payoffs but others weren't as lucky.

Other employees didn't go with hat in hand. Some like former publicity director Doug Todd have sued, charging age discrimination and broken promises. The court date has yet to be set.

The only club employees left are a few secretaries, equipment men Buck Buchanan and Jerry Fowler, and former trainer Don Cochren, who is in charge of medical records, and assistant public relations director Dave Pelletier.

Few players are left from the Landry regime. Those like Jim Jeffcoat, the right defensive end, and special teams captain Bill Bates are fighting for jobs again this season.

If you don't produce, you're out of Austin just like Babe Laufenberg, who got his walking papers because of a bad game against Atlanta that cost the Cowboys a playoff spot.

Jones was quick to shoot from the lip in his first year, boasting Johnson would win more games in the first fourth of the season than Landry had in the previous year (three). Johnson won one.

"I've learned my lesson about predictions," Jones said. "I won't do that again. I've learned some things about the NFL the hard way."

Although a rocky 1989 year shook their confidence, Jones and Johnson are riding high and cocky in the saddle again after a 7-9 season in which the Cowboys just missed the playoffs in a 26-7 loss to the Falcons in the season finale.

Johnson was named NFL Coach of the Year and Emmitt Smith, a first round draft pick, was the Rookie of the Year.

Now, the talk is playoffs or else. "My expectations are for us to be in the playoffs," Johnson said when camp opened. "Regardless of our record, regardless of our schedule, the bottom line is, I expect us in the playoffs."

Johnson's blockbuster trade with the Minnesota Vikings for Herschel Walker has stocked the team with talent, a badly needed transfusion for an anemic franchise.

The Cowboys haven't qualified for the playoffs since 1985.

Johnson was 52-9 at the University of Miami with a national championship.

"Success at Miami has made me hungry for that much more," Johnson said.

Johnson will stand for nothing less.

He celebrated his 48th birthday during two-a-day practices.

"I'll celebrate tonight by going to meetings and watching films," Johnson said. "That's a perfect birthday present for me."

Jones said "Jimmy will work until he gets it done. That's the way he is." (Remember Jones said Johnson was worth five No. 1 picks and five Heisman Trophy winners).

Johnson has made 27 trades and with the help of Jones picked up Tony Casillas of the Atlanta Falcons in a trade this training camp.

"I kept after the Tony Casillas trade until we got the deal done," Jones said proudly. "We'll work as long as it takes."

The fans are coming back. About 45,000 season tickets have been sold for this year.

"Our fans are responding to what we're trying to do," Jones said. "We'll do anything we can to bring a winner."

And this season the Cowboys are back on Monday Night Football for the first time in three years. If you're not winning or an up-and-coming team the network moguls look the other way.

As weird as it may seem, Johnson is second in the NFC East in seniority behind Washington's Joe Gibbs.

Bill Parcells left the world champion New York Giants to be a network TV analyst and Philadelphia's Buddy Ryan was sacked.

"It's a strange feeling," Johnson said. "I don't feel like a dean or a near dean."

Aikman needs to learn not to endanger himself

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - What happened early in the fourth quarter even horrified Jimmy Johnson, who had promised himself not to get upset at anything during the NFL's senseless and practically useless exercise they call the preseason.

The Dallas coach almost strangled himself on the wires to his headset when he saw Troy Aikman take flight at the Houston two-yard line, get hit by a linebacker, and somersault head over cleats to land on his head and shoulder.

There wasn't enough air left in Johnson to blow out a candle.

Aikman got up, checked his body parts to make sure they were all still there, and trotted to the sidelines. A few teammates came by to see if his head was still on his body.

Johnson was hotter than a Las Vegas sidewalk. Aikman was nonplussed.

"Stupid," Johnson called the exhibition touchdown.

"If I don't move the team and get touchdowns then I'm criticized, but I score and I'm stupid," Aikman replied. "If I'm in the game I'm going to try to score any way I can."

You can see the frustration starting to build in Aikman, who is in his third season, the breakout season for NFL quarterbacks if they are going to go anywhere in a very tough business.

When you wake up every morning with "The Franchise" tattooed on your forehead it can get a little old. The pressure to produce builds.

"The third year is supposed to be the year an NFL quarterback takes off," Aikman said. "It's assumed."

Aikman added "there is no question I will play better his year."

The table has been set for Aikman to do so. He has more confidence after a dozen chips were removed from his passing elbow. Surgery from a separated shoulder went well.

The departure of David Shula as offensive coordinator helped free Aikman from a system he didn't really believe in. Norv Turner, who helped teach the passing game for the Los Angeles Rams for four years, has been an immediate hit with Aikman.

In fact, "hits" or lack thereof is one reason Aikman loves the new offensive scheme.

"You can hit receivers on the run and throw to areas," Aikman said. "You can get rid of the ball. You're not as much a target for the defense. You don't have to hold the ball as long."

But Aikman can't be putting himself into dangerous positions by running, then making himself more vulnerable by refusing to take the NFL quarterback slide.

It's perilous enough out there without taking any extra chances. Recall, Aikman missed five games with a broken index finger in his rookie season. Then he was driven into the ground by Philadelphia's Clyde Simmons and missed the last game of the 1990 season with a separated shoulder.

Against Phoenix, in the game he set an NFL rookie record with 379 yards passing, Aikman was knocked unconscious. The next week he was ready to play again. Television commentator John Madden nominated Aikman to his All-Madden tough guy team.

Aikman has got to learn the difference between courage and good sense.

Just ask Roger Staubach, the original captain courageous of the Cowboys, who suffered seven concussions which cut his NFL career short by four or five seasons. Once, Los Angeles Rams linebacker Marlin McKeever separated Staubach's shoulder in a preseason game. Staubach started wearing shoulder pads after that game.

If Staubach had learned to take the slide, he still might be around and Aikman would be fighting him for a job.

Take a lesson from Staubach, Troy.

Do you want Cliff Stoudt to finish the season as the Cowboys first string quarterback while you or somebody else sends in signals from the sidelines?

Technology makes impossible feats reality

By DANEE WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

As a young girl Beckie Fry didn't know what it was like to run and jump around; instead she made adjustments because she was "special." Those experiences she missed as a child can be hers again with the help of modern technology.

Beckie Fry will have the chance to walk as far as a mile and someday even be able to run.

Fry, who lost her right leg to cancer when she was eight, has walked most of her life with a wooden leg.

"When I lost my leg 26 years ago, all that was available to amputees were wooden limbs," said the teacher at St. Anthony's School. "Now, thanks to research and technology, I have a leg that is more like a real leg."

Two years ago, Fry was watching the television program "Hour Magazine" with Gary Collins, who was focusing on prosthetics.

"I watched the show and saw a model who had lost her leg. The artificial leg looked so real that I couldn't tell the difference."

After further investigation, Fry found the main center for the type of prosthetics she was looking for was in Oklahoma City, Okla. Sabolich Prosthetic and Research Center is the only one in the nation of its nature. They are leaders in prosthetics research.

"The key to Sabolich is research," she said. "This leg works more like a real one. It has a metal core, softer tissue with a skin-like surface. Inside is a soft plastic, with a hard plastic on the outside for support. The best thing about this leg is the hydraulic lift knee. Believe it or not, my other leg was wooden with a hinge knee."

"My limp has been cut down drastically with my new leg. I have to put pressure on my toes to make the knee bend. The new leg is more stable because of the structure."

Fry waited two years before contacting Sabolich for a new leg because she wasn't sure if she wanted to make the financial commitment.

"Wooden legs cost around $3,500 to $5,000 and my leg was $18,000."

Not only was Fry hesitant because of the financial burden, but she knew it would take a commitment from her to learn how to walk all over again for the third time.

"It was not a thrill having to learn to walk all over again," Fry said with disgust. "I learned to walk when I was one and again when I was eight and now I'm doing it again at 34. It takes so much concentration. I get lazy and start walking the old way when I'm tired or not concentrating."

Fry has found a new confidence in herself since her new addition.

"The other day I was leaving the doctor's office and it had been raining. There was a big puddle of water and I actually jumped off the curb and over the water. I couldn't believe I did that. Before, I never would have tried it because I would have been afraid that I was going to fall."

leg than just stare. Parents should teach their kids to ask questions rather than pull them away in embarrassment when they point and ask. I think that kind of reaction makes the child think there is something wrong."

Because Fry lost her leg at such a young age, the first adjustment wasn't so shocking.

"...thanks to research and technology, I have a leg that is more like a real leg."

"I don't have to look down any more when I walk. All I have to do is remember to swing my arms and step on my toes."

Although the transition has been difficult at times for Fry, the supportive team at Sabolich and physical therapy is helping her every step of the way.

"The people are so supportive," she said. "I've never been to a place where people are talking freely about their limbs."

"When I walked in for the first time, I saw a cheery place with people setting around comparing limbs and progress. I wasn't use to that kind of atmosphere."

Her physical therapist is monitoring her progress from Oklahoma. She will be returning in a couple of weeks to discuss some of the questions she has about her new leg.

Questions are a natural part of Fry's life. People who have a handicap are often questioned about their situation and Fry believes it is better to ask than stare and wonder.

"I'm trying to teach my students about dealing with people who have handicaps," Fry said. "I want to help them know how to treat people."

"One of the worst things is when people stare. I've never talked to another amputee, but I would think people who stare would bother them. I would rather someone ask about my

"I wasn't scared when I knew that I would lose my leg. I was always in such pain that I was relieved to get rid of it. I didn't know until I was an adult that I had cancer. My parents had always told me that I was 'special' and that was all I knew."

During her adulthood, Fry learned her attitude meant everything.

"I went through a period when I was in my 20s when I felt sorry for myself. I kept noticing other people and decided it could be a lot worse. In college I thought a lot of the students who were in wheelchairs had a chip on their shoulders."

"I think my attitude helped me in school. The students with chips had low grades and I had A's and I attributed that to attitude."

Because Fry knew she was special and knew what she could do, she never limited herself and has lived a full life.

"I live a full active life. I've had three children without difficulty. I like being active. I couldn't imagine having to set all the time and not move around."

"Now I have more mobility to do what I want. My kids are getting older and it is hard to keep up with them, but now I know I can keep up with my family. I am who I am and I've even started wearing shorts."

Fry has found a new happiness and confidence from her leg. Now she knows she will be able to be more active than she ever has before.

"I want my students to know being unique is special and I hope they will learn to be considerate when dealing with people who had handicaps."

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER

Adolescence, that period when the child is poised on the threshold of adulthood, is important not only to the child, but to society as a whole. The choices and decisions made during adolescence often have long term effects and are sometimes irreversible. To make positive choices, youth not only need knowledge, skills and abilities, but they also need an environment which will allow and encourage them to make positive decisions and choices.

Much of the recent concern about young people has focused on specific negative outcomes, such as alcohol and substance use, pregnancy or dropping out of school. Although intervention programs can be effective, they sometimes focus too narrowly on specific problems and situations while overlooking the underlying causes of the problems facing young people. All too often programs focus on intervening or dealing with the consequences, rather than concentrating on prevention.

Prevention requires a policy agenda that goes beyond solving individual problems. To treat the "cause" rather than the "symptoms," a comprehensive agenda to promote the development of healthy, capable young people is needed.

Programs which have been successful in preventing teen pregnancy, alcohol and substance use, or school dropout have several common characteristics. First, they focus on the importance of the early childhood through early adolescent years. Second, they show that the problems are interconnected or related. And finally, they concentrate on strengthening coping skills, promoting self-esteem and providing social support.

Effective programs for young people are aimed at long-term rather than short-term change. Their goal is to set children on a new course by providing opportunities, changing life circumstances and providing support.

Successful programs are designed to change the life trajectory of the child. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Three Deaf Smith County 4-Hers, Ashley Bridge, Jennifer Hicks and Lori Urbanczyk will advance to the District 4-H Better Bake Show on Sept. 14 at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo.

The contest is co-sponsored annually by the Tri-State Fair and Texas Wheat Producers in Amarillo, Arrowhead Mills of Hereford and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The 4-Hers who advance to the district contest won first place honors in the Deaf Smith County Bake Show on Monday. The purpose of the contest is to promote the use of wheat which is one of the Panhandle's leading agricultural products.

In the baked product division, the 4-Her prepares a product using a minimum ratio of 1/3 total whole wheat to white flour. The emphasis is on the nutritional value of the recipe chosen, the taste, texture and appearance of the product.

Ashley Bridge's recipe of Orange Streusel Muffins will represent the county in the Junior division. Lori Urbanczyk's recipe of Sour Cream Twist will compete in the Senior category. Juniors (ages 9-13) prepare a muffin recipe of their choice and seniors (ages 14-19) prepare a yeast-leavened recipe.

Project record forms are also entered at the district level. Junior Ashley Bridge and Senior Jennifer Hicks will compete in the records division.

Records are scored on the basis on goals set, knowledge learned, educational activities, leadership, citizenship and community service, awards and a summary of the bake show activities.

Alternate winners are Suzanne Baca in the junior product division, Jennifer Hicks in the senior product division and Robin Bell and Lori Urbanczyk in the junior and senior divisions respectively.

Other junior entries include, Jami Parker, Emily Parker, Betsy Weaver, Brent Carlson, Staci Betzen, Karon Harder, Ian Isaacson, Ivory Isaacson, Bryan Vasek, Amber Vasek, Brady Parker, Kristin Fangman, Erin Auckerman, Ashley Fangman, Cady

Auckerman, Craig Campbell and Jaime Steiert.

Special appreciation was expressed to Ford Extension Homemakers Club and Westway Extension Homemakers Club for winner and participant prizes; Mary Brorman and Maudette Smith for judging; Shirley Carlson for organizing and implementing the Bake Show; and 4-H Parent Leaders Association for their support and providing ribbons.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap and national origin.

DEAR READERS: I am on vacation, but I have left behind some of my favorite columns that you may have missed the first time around. I hope you enjoy them. -- Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This may be one of the most unusual letters you have ever received. You see, I am dying. But don't become alarmed, and please don't feel sorry for me. After all, we are all dying. From the moment we are born, we are headed toward inescapable death.

Three years ago, when I was 31, I learned I have chronic leukemia. The doctor told me the truth at once because I insisted on knowing. The news came at a crisis time in my life. I had just gone through a divorce and had young children to raise.

Would you believe I had to move out of town to a larger city because people would not accept me as a normal person? I was devastated, not by the disease, which has been controlled by drugs, but by the way people treated me. Although I could play tennis, ski, dance, hike and take part in community activities, the people at work made my life miserable. One woman refused to use the same washroom! Men wouldn't date me. I was treated like some sort of social outcast -- a pathetic, hopeless case.

After I moved to this distant city my life changed dramatically. No one here knows of my illness and I am keeping my mouth shut. I work part-time, attend college, have many friends, an involved with community activities and participate in sports. What a pity that I had to move to a town where nobody knew me in order to live a normal life!

Although I feel well, look fine and am managing beautifully, I know it can't last forever. I dread the day my friends must be told of my illness. I don't want to be pitied. And of course I fear that I am deserted as I was once before.

The purpose of this letter, Ann Landers, is to help educate people, should they encounter someone who is in the same spot I'm in right now.

Yes, folks--you can help. How? Here are the ways:

1. Treat me the same as a well person. Don't look at me with pity in your eyes and ask, "How are you doing?"
2. Include me in your activities. I need friends just as you do.
3. Stay off the subject of funeral arrangements and insurance. (Relatives are especially guilty of this.)
4. Forget I have a disease. I'll do better if I don't know it's on your mind.
5. Ask me out. Develop a relationship with me. You can even marry me. I might live another 20 years. (Today that's longer than most couples stay together!)
6. Hire me. If I'm productive I will live longer. If I'm forced to go on welfare or disability, it will raise your taxes.

7. Give to the American Cancer Society. They support research and alert the public to cancer signs.

8. Get a checkup this week. Many forms of cancer can be cured if caught early.

9. Treat me as you would like to be treated under the same circumstances.

10. Love me! Enjoy me! I have a lot to give. -- I Could Be Anybody

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read with interest your column about the man who got a heatstroke while working on his farm in the heat. Just last week there was an account in our local paper about an elderly woman in town who died from a heatstroke. She was apparently healthy and did not work. In fact she was 72 and rather frail. It had been very hot here for several days and she lived alone. Her neighbor had seen her the afternoon before and she seemed perfectly normal. How can a person be well one day, not work outdoors and be dead from a heatstroke the next day?

DEAR READER: The vast majority of heatstrokes do occur in older people or those with medical problems. There are two types of heatstrokes. One is caused by exertion like the man who worked outdoors in the heat of a hot, humid day. That is called exertional heatstroke. The body produces lots of heat when you work and that increases the need to eliminate heat.

The other form of heatstroke is called classic heatstroke and is not associated with exertion. In those cases a person is almost always dehydrated. They don't sweat when the body temperature rises and they will have a dry, flushed skin. These strokes occur because the body is unable to eliminate the heat it produces at rest.

Failure to drink enough water is a major factor in classic heatstroke. Your body normally gets rid of a lot of its heat load at night, as your body cools with the day-night cycle. If the nights are hot and humid, the body may not be able to eliminate enough heat and the following day, the body temperature continues to climb. That is why adequately cooled sleeping quarters are important in preventing heatstroke.

I have discussed the different kinds of heatstrokes and how to cope with hot weather in Special Issue 38-04, Beat the Heat. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/38-04, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. If there are more than three hot days and nights in a row, there will be heatstrokes. In the 1980 heat wave in the United States, there were 1,265 heat-related deaths. That doesn't include all the people who had heat-related incidents and survived.

No, it is not uncommon for a person to appear well and the next morning be seriously ill or dead from a heatstroke.

YOUR EYES

WHAT ARE CATARACTS?

Despite popular misconceptions, cataracts are not a film over the eye, but a "clouding" of the natural lens that focuses light to enable a person to see clearly at different distances.

Most of the time, cataracts are simply part of the normal aging process. However, a blow to the eye may cause what is called a "traumatic" cataract. Certain medications, such as steroids, taken over a long time, may cause the condition. And some diseases, such as diabetes, make a person prone to cataracts.

Can you protect against cataracts? To some extent. Wear effective sunglasses out of doors, especially in strong sunlight. Eat well; good nutrition and adequate levels of vitamin C and E seem to help. Don't smoke; smokers are more likely to get cataracts.

Your optometrist will check for cataracts in your regular eye exams, in between, watch for changes in vision, colors not as bright as they used to be, or lots of glare from lights at night.

Arkansas site of recent Cummings, Mason wedding

Donann Laniece Cummings of Hereford and Richard Samuel Mason Jr. of Columbiana, Ohio were married recently at the Downtown Church of Christ in Searcy, Ark. Mike Brown, associate minister of Vaughn-Hill Church of Christ in Bethalto, Ill., officiated the wedding ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Joe Don and Ann Cummings of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Richard and Marge Mason of Columbiana, Ohio.

The church altar was decorated with heart-shaped candelabra on each side of a draped arch of off white net centered with a 15 branch brass candelabrum complimented with ivory unity tapers. Pews were marked with peach bows on hurricane globes.

Chelli Cummings served her sister as maid of honor and the groom's sister, Kathy Bennett was matron of honor. Best man was Dave Williams of Searcy, Ark.

Bridesmaids included Carol Riddle of Hope, Ark. and Lisa Cowan of San Antonio.

Groomsmen and ushers were Dave Williams, Dave Beikirch of College Station, Jeff Hawkins of St. Louis, Mo., and Marty McKee of Dallas.

Flower girls were Ashley and Alyssa Berdine, daughters of Sheri and Rick Berdine of Columbiana, Ohio. Candle lighters were Robin Worrell and Lisa Kirkbride.

Wedding chorus including Onetta and Kim Hammit, Todd Martin, Marty McKee and Mark Yarbrough sang "The Lords Prayer," "Lady," "If" and "Faithful And True To Me." Chelli Cummings sang "Wind Beneath My Wing" while the grandmothers were being seated. The bride and her mother sang "Whither Thou Goest." The congregation sang "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white regal satin gown with a Victorian neckline and Edwardian sleeves. The bodice was crowned with clusters of jeweled flowers and molded medallions. The Princess waistline was adorned with pearl swirls and the full flowing satin skirt featured Venice lace medallions and crystalized hand beaded designs. The back of the gown plunged to a low back centered with a designer layered bustle bow. The full length Queens Court Cathedral satin train was accented with European lace cut-outs.

In her hair, the bride wore a halo headpiece with cascading lilies of the valley and a tulle veil.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and greenery covering a white Bible that belongs to her grandmother, Oline Caraway, and was carried by her mother, Ann Cummings, at her wedding. She also carried a handkerchief that was her great-great grandmother Caraway's.

Bridal attendants wore peach satin dresses with cream lace overlay and large shoulder bows. Each carried long stemmed peach roses.

Flower girls wore cream taffeta dresses featuring large heart shaped cream and peach rose designs, lace, cream colored sashes and puff sleeves accented with lace.

Sharon Bowles and Monica Bagley invited guests to register at the reception held at the fellowship hall. Mrs. Jeff Hawkins served the bride's cake and the bride's cousin, Delisa Dyess served the groom's cake. Others assisting was Mrs. "Mom" Burns of Houston.

The three-tiered white bride's cake, decorated by peach colored roses flowing down each tier, was topped with a Precious Moments bride and groom. A fresh flower arrangement centered the table.

The groom's table featured a chocolate cake with the couple's name written across the top. A watermelon filled with fruit was centered on the table surrounded by buckets of fresh fruit.

Leaving for a wedding trip to points of interest in Kentucky, Tennessee and Ohio, the bride wore a navy and white floral dress with shoulder bows and puff sleeve and a peach and white silk corsage made by Mrs. Bonnie Borden.

The couple will make their home in New Springfield, Ohio.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and was a senior at Harding University majoring in social work.

The groom is a graduate of Columbiana High School in Ohio and has a degree in accounting from Harding University.

Out of town guests were from Tyler, Stratford, Canadian, Harrison, Ark., Little Rock, Ark., Columbiana, Ohio, Austin and Memphis, Tenn.

MRS. ANSEL LEWIS MCDOWELL
...nee Elizabeth Gordon Blocker

Couple voice vows during ceremony

Elizabeth Gordon Blocker and Ansel Lewis McDowell III were united in marriage recently in the Trinity Episcopal Church in Dallas. The Rev. John Stanley officiated in the double ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Norman Amps.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Truman Blocker III of Richardson and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ansel McDowell Jr. of Lake Jackson, formerly of Wellington. Grandparents of the groom are the late Mr. and Mrs. Ansel McDowell Sr. and the late Mr. and Mrs. Deskins Wells.

Mrs. Carol Wells of Dallas sang "The Gift of Love" before the ceremony. The groom's sister, Marian McDowell of Alexandria, Va., read the thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silk gown with a fitted bodice featuring a Victorian neckline embellished with tear drop pearls that enhanced the sheer yoke. The long sleeves tapered to the wrists with traditional points. The softly gathered skirt flowed into a cathedral train accented with a sheer window surrounded with pearls and lace. The bride's veil of silk illusion was held by a bandeau of silk roses and pearls. Framing the bride's face and shoulders, the veil fell the length of the train and beyond.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses accented with baby's breath and stephanotis.

Amy Sunderland of Fort Worth served as maid of honor.

The bride's sister, Virginia B. Angrisano of Plano, Lydia B. Kruger of Austin, and Kim Cress of San Antonio served as bridesmaids.

Attendants wore tea-length dresses of pink moiré taffeta accented with a large bow in the back.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with fresh flowers of pink and white roses and small pink ribbons. The groom's cake was chocolate decorated with fresh strawberries.

Bouquets in small crystal vases of pink roses, baby's breath, pink sweetheart roses, peppermint carnations, heather and austramaria were placed about the room and serving tables.

Steve Angrisano, brother-in-law of the bride, sang during the reception.

Attending from Hereford were Mr. and Mrs. Jim McDowell, Mr. and Mrs. James McDowell Jr. and their daughters Tallee and Torree. Dr. and Mrs. Dan McDowell, Ashley and Justin, of Breckenridge, and Charles McDowell of Dallas, all formerly of Hereford, were also present.

The bride is a graduate of J.J. Pierce High School and Texas Christian University. She is employed as a teacher with the Fort Worth Independent School District.

The groom attended the Perryton schools through the sophomore year of high school. He is a graduate of Brazoswood High School and the University of Texas at Austin. He is employed as an investigator with the Resolution Trust Corporation in Dallas.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will reside in Dallas.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Stoneleigh Hotel hosted by the groom's parents.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I'm planning on having my carpets professionally cleaned but am confused about which type of carpet cleaning is best — dry (chemical) or steam cleaning. Could you tell me a few of the differences? — Anna M., Omaha, Neb.

A. The Association of Specialists in Cleaning and Restoration (ASCR International) says that cleaning with a dry compound has a much shorter drying time (approximately half an hour to one hour), it doesn't actually wet the carpet and is good for spot-cleaning high-traffic areas. The major disadvantage is that some of the compound can be left in the carpet and it may take a second procedure to remove it.

Hot-water extraction (steam cleaning), on the other hand, can take two to four hours to dry but does an excellent job of cleaning ground-in dirt. The only disadvantage is that the quality of the work depends heavily on the ability of the person operating the machine. Friends and neighbors satisfied with the work done on their carpets can be a good source of recommendations. Also, don't be afraid to ask the company what type of training their employees have had. — Heloise

GREASE DISPOSAL
Dear Heloise: Disposing of used cooking oil, grease and even tuna oil can eventually clog the drain, so I save tin cans to pour used grease into. Then I store it in the freezer until it's full and I can dispose of it in the garbage. Since it's frozen it can't leak and make a mess. — Kelly Salter, Omaha, Neb.

The groom's brother, Stewart McDowell of Newport News, Va. served as best man. Groomsmen were Tom Pawelka of Austin, Brent Allen of Perryton and Gary Elkins of Buda.

The bride's brothers, Truman Blocker IV of Fort Worth, Gordon

Blocker of College Station, Chris Blocker and Patrick Blocker of Richardson served as ushers.

After the ceremony, wedding guests were entertained with a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was laid with a white cloth accented with pink ribbon using the bride's bouquet of white

Tartans, tweeds turn British fashion heads

LONDON (AP) - Britain's big fashion exports this autumn are its tartans and tweeds. They sparkle and shine, are beaded and embroidered, and stretch for form-fitting styles.

In Paris, Karl Lagerfeld featured surreal weaves in Chanel's collection of glistening wool suits.

Oscar de la Renta did a shimmering evening skirt with a fuchsia-and-black tartan, topped with a short black velvet jacket. He used a bigger and bolder tartan for a blanket-fringed coat that clung at the bodice and waist and flared at the hips.

Yves Saint Laurent applied his elegant touch to a kilt. Valentino used a red-and-black window-box plaid for a striking bell-shaped suit.

Across the ocean, American Anne Klein mixed and matched chunky tweeds, while Ralph Lauren chose more traditional plaids for his curvy jackets.

And in London, Catherine Walker's Chelsea Design Co. is doing tartans embellished with embroidery and jet beads and wrapping them all up in fringed shawls. Emerald green, burgundy and wine are her favored colors.

Vivienne Westwood's designs this season are derivative of the 18th century. One favorite features a plaid clan jacket with lacy frills.

But even the traditional looks have a twist.

The fabrics of Scottish kilts and 1960s back-to-school wear have been updated with "a new-wave weave," according to the fashion bible, British Vogue.

"For seasons, designers from Vivienne Westwood to Oscar de la Renta have shown tartan. Yet, in spite of this never-ending Highland fling, tartan is going to be haute and hot this winter," said Elle magazine.

They're woven as silks, satins and wools, beaded and embroidered. Fun and flashy tartans and tweeds are worn everywhere from the office to a glamorous fete.

The source of many of the inspired fabrics is Linton Tweeds of Scotland. The mill, with a workforce of 50 and an annual turnover of 2.5 million pounds (about $4.2 million), recently received Queen Elizabeth II's award as exporter of the year for 1990.

While the woollen industry overall is depressed, Linton has flourished by working with designers and developing new blended fibers, says Robert Irvine, design sales director.

"We get quite a conglomeration of ideas," Irvine says.

In addition to changing colors and patterns with the season, the mill updates the yarns it uses to achieve new looks. It is a blending of traditional textiles with technology, he says.

"It's fantasy," he says of the new fabrics. "The French call it fantasy and so do we."

Linton has worked with Chanel for 50 years, and Lagerfeld regularly brings his sketchbook of ideas to the mill for execution, Irvine says.

Lagerfeld requested a small amount of Lycra be blended with the wool, which adds a stretch for hip-hugging skirts.

"Chanel thinks the Lycra makes it easier to work with," Irvine says.

Andrew and Leslie Cockburn's new book centers on the secret relationship between Israel and American Intelligence, which has been in existence from the founding of Israel to the present. The book Dangerous Liaison draws on information from the Israeli and American intelligence establishment and other unusual sources such as original interviews and Israeli journalism unavailable in the English language.

This book will tour the shadowy, unknown world behind the scenes where arm dealers and spymasters make connections that determine the foreign policy of governments and the direction of world history. This is a detailed history of the unique cooperation between the CIA, Pentagon and Israel's multifaceted intelligence system.

Do It! Let's Get Off Our Butts by John-Roger and Peter McWilliams is a guide to living your dreams. Each of us has a dream within ourselves, a "heart's desire." Unfortunately most of us do not pursue that desire, that dream. Some are so far away from that dream that they have forgotten what it is. What keeps us from fulfilling our heart's desire?

With every dream there comes the time and ability to fulfill it, but so often we settle for the "comfort zone." The "comfort zone" includes all the things we've done often enough that we feel comfortable and any behavior outside that area results in fear, guilt, unworthiness, hurt feelings, anger and discouragement. To accomplish something new requires new behavior which lies beyond that comfort zone. So we must decide if we are going to honor our comfort zone or our dreams.

Do It! is a book for those who are ready to do something different in an effort to reach their dream. The secret lies in the doing. As Woody Allen said, "Eighty percent of success is showing up."

Unanswered Cries: a True Story of Friends, Neighbors and Murder in a Small Town by Thomas French is the story of human tragedy surrounding a "little murder." Karen Gregory, a 36-years of age, long brown hair, piercing crystalline eyes and successful graphic artist had just moved in with her boyfriend David Mackey. David was an administrator of a counseling program for Vietnam veterans. On May 22, 1984 Karen Gregory's assailant raped and stabbed her. Karen managed to get to the front porch to make one last cry for help, which more than a dozen people in the suburban neighborhood heard, but no one came to her aid.

Detective Larry Tosi, haunted by a previous unsolved murder was determined and committed to finding Karen's killer. Among the clues was a strangely worded note left by a friend around the time of the murder. Tosi also noticed that the house had been left so orderly even though there had been a tremendous struggle in it's darkened rooms.

Tosi also wondered how important the forensic evidence was that the police had missed in their first examination of the scene. In Tosi's search for those answers he was lead to and forced to arrest a friend, a close friend. Tosi had been a member of the wedding party when his friend married. This mesmerizing tale relates all the drama, tension, and frustration that marked the real murder trial, from the machinations of the lawyers to the anguish of the victim's survivors to the fears and doubts of the jurors.

The fiction selections for this week begins with Mirror Image by Sandra Brown. This is the story of Avery Daniel, a TV reporter who is seriously hurt when a Dallas bound jet crashes. Avery is given a whole new life when she is mistaken for a glamorous, selfish woman named Cajole Rutledge and through plastic surgery is given Cajole's face.

When Avery comes to, she discovers her new identity which includes a famous senatorial candidate for a husband and a powerful Texas dynasty for in-laws. While she is still helpless in the hospital, Avery also discovers that someone is planning to assassinate Tate Rutledge. Now she must assume another woman's identity in order to save this man's life and risk her own life during days of dangerous deception.

The Crown of Columbus is a novel by Michael Dorris and Louise Erdrich. This husband and wife team have created a cast of true to life characters and a story full of humor, suspense, and passion. Vivian Twostar is a pragmatic, 40-year-old anthropologist. Vivian is divorced and has an exasperating teenage son, a fierce grandmother, and a baby on the way. Vivian's lover, Roger Williams is a scholar, poet and her polar opposite. The two lovers are plagued by clashes on every point except their attraction to each other.

In her work Vivian uncovers the lost diary of Christopher Columbus and a reference to "the greatest treasure of Europe." Vivian and Roger are drawn into a journey to the Caribbean and soon find their lives threatened and changed.

Catsuits, microskirts return from '60s with '90s flare

ROME (AP) - While most Italians are at the beach working on their tans, shop owners linger on in the cities, trying to get rid of the last of their summer merchandise to make room for fall-winter fashion in September.

It has not been a great season for the "made in Italy" label. The Gulf crisis, a recession in the United States and a weak dollar abroad, as well as a shifting of fashion focus from Milan to Paris, has left stores full of unsold clothes and designers wary of innovative styles.

The result is a winter look full of what the Italians do best - tailored, classical clothes.

The inspiration is the 1960s with its neat suits, pretty A-line dresses, loose swing coats, and the all-purpose trench coat.

However, the look has been shortened and tightened to give it 1990s life, a direct result of the Gianni Versace above-the-thigh microskirt, which rocked the fashion world several seasons ago, and the body-clinging styles which went with it.

The basic winter silhouette starts with a second-skin catsuit or leggings onto which designers put everything from a miniskirt or short shorts to a classic blazer or long sweater.

To go with the leggy look, the most popular revival item is the thigh boot, which comes either in shiny patent leather or suede and is often cuffed or embroidered at the top.

While derriere-hugging styles are out, sexy front views are in. The fall-winter collections abound with plunging necklines and brassiere tops, as well as strategic slits in evening gowns.

Hemlines still tend to shun the knee, although loose A-line dresses or wide skating skirts make thigh-baring more wholesome.

The bright side of the new winter look comes in the color scheme, a palette of lively shades ranging from every hue of pink to fluorescent green and yellow, to electric blue and fiery orange.

Women might have a hard time adjusting to such glowing fashion, but after over a decade of drab browns and grays it might be just the right antidote to the present fashion funk.

Black and white in blocks or checks is another winter favorite taken right out of the 1960s fashion book.

The favorite "fabric" is patent leather, used not only for shoes and boots, but jackets and even dresses. Wool jersey makes a big comeback, and black chiffon is de rigueur for evening. Zippers everywhere replace the multiplicity of buttons used in the past several seasons.

Bouffant hairstyles, peroxide bleaching, and obvious makeup are further signs that current fashion is looking back 30 years for inspiration.

As Italian ready-to-wear style created in Milan in the 1970s struggles to keep its autonomy from Paris - which threatens to become the fashion capital of a united Europe in 1992 - two names and two schools of dress emerge as leaders of the Moda Milanese: sexy flamboyant Gianni Versace and boyish conservative Giorgio Armani.

Versace approaches winter fashion with bold colors, thigh-high boots, micro hemlines and second-skin catsuits in Byzantine prints worthy of the showiest of his Hollywood clients.

At the other end of the fashion spectrum, Armani offers the epitome of Milan elegance in pretty pastel-colored suits with short skirts peering out under long soft jackets, princess-line coats and tie-striped sequined evening jackets. Underneath the jacket is nothing but a strategically placed open ascot in matching fabric.

Following are some tips of where to look for what in the best of the "made in Italy" label:

- Armani. There is no one else who can make a prettier, softer suit in mouth-watering fruit shades.

- Biagiotti. They don't call her "queen of cashmere" for nothing - this time in plaids and tartans.

- Fendi. Radical poor furs where fur and fabric mingle, so only the wearer knows for sure.

- Ferre. Extravagant outerwear - a red patent leather trench coat or feather parka.

- Genny. All the latest looks, toned down for the working woman.

- Ferragamo. Classical and yet sexy, with cut-out necklines on otherwise conservative styles.

- Gucci. All that was good in traditional 1960s sportswear and the welcome return of the bamboo-handled

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Co-existing With Wal-Mart

Last week, we featured several of Dr. Kenneth Stone's tips for co-existing with Wal-Mart. Stone feels that local independent merchants can compete, but not without making changes.

"Most merchants won't survive if they continue with business as usual," Stone pointed out at a recent retailing conference.

"Superior service can become an important competitive advantage for many smaller businesses," suggested Stone. "Research shows that poor customer relations is the primary reason that customers quit doing business with a store."

Here are some of Stone's tips on taking good care of your customers.

Customers Care

Greet customers with a smile. You can create lasting goodwill by acknowledging your customers when they enter your store. Call them by name whenever possible.

Be courteous and friendly. Everyone appreciates courtesy. Make eye contact and don't forget to smile. Offer to help by using a warm, open-ended greeting such as "How may I help you?"

Train your employees to greet customers appropriately and service their needs effectively. Many small businesses put employees on the sales floor with no customer service training. Often, the lowest paid, most recently hired employees have the most customer contact. Train everyone who comes into contact with your customers in customer relations and personal selling.

Other important customer care tips include the actual services your store provides. Small stores can keep more of their market by giving their customers good technical advice. Know your products, and be able to explain to customers how to use and take care of their purchases.

Additional services worth considering include free delivery, on-site repair, liberal return policies, special ordering and "how to do it" classes.

Some Success Stories

Don Johnston is a survivor. Johnston had owned his hardware store for 10 years before Wal-Mart came to Canyon, Texas. In the two years after Wal-Mart opened, his sales dipped 35 percent. The Texas economy was already in decline, so the additional loss of sales really hurt.

Even before Wal-Mart arrived, Johnston aggressively began to weed out inventory that the discounter might sell. He changed brand affiliations to strengthen his buying power. He reviewed his pricing policy and made other changes, as well.

"We added services," Johnston recalled. "We cut glass to size, repair screens, install heavy-duty bicycle tubes and assemble barbecue grills as extra services for our customers." Because he was willing to change, he has steadily rebuilt the store's sales. Johnston's HWI Hardware now co-exists well with Wal-Mart.

Ron and Lila Green, owners of R&R Rental in Broken Bow, Oklahoma, have a different success story. The Greens started their rent-to-own business after Wal-Mart opened a new store in their community of 3,900. They wisely positioned themselves to take advantage of the increased traffic that Wal-Mart brought in to Broken Bow.

The Greens located their store within sight of the local Wal-Mart. Lila Green is quick to praise the discounter's operation. "Wal-Mart has raised the quality of life in our area," she said. "Many of our area residents live on low or limited incomes and Wal-Mart provides them good value."

R&R Rentals has prospered by not trying to compete head-to-head. "You have to meet a need that Wal-Mart can't," Green added. "We've grown our business by providing products and services that don't compete directly." Good service is also important to their success. "You have to be willing to give extra service to keep your customer loyal," she explained.

The keys to co-existing with Wal-Mart are giving good service, practicing sound merchandising, being open when the customer wants to shop and finding market niches. This is sound advice, even if Wal-Mart isn't in your town.

Nutty Trees

ATLANTA (AP) - In the forest products industry, a pignut is not someone enamored with hogs.

Pignuts are hickory trees that were named for their fruit, which is a favorite of hogs and deer, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp., a forest products company.

Pignuts and other hickories, which are known for their strength, hardness and shock resistance, are used to manufacture tool handles, veneer, moulding, furniture and bent plywood.

WRAP AROUND SUN DECK ENCOMPASSES GREAT ROOM AND GAZEBO BREAKFAST ROOM

© BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

On entry from a recessed stoop to the designated foyer area, a full view of the formal dining room and the spacious great room is apparent. The ceilings are sloped to the center of each room, one sloped area perpendicular to the other. Only two attractive columns designate the division of the dining room, foyer and great room, creating wide open space. A wood-burning fireplace is shown on the rear wall and basement access is from the corner of the great room.

A flat ceiling is shown for the roomy kitchen-breakfast room as well as the laundry. However, the breakfast room is gazebo shaped with windows on the perimeter of the area. This area extends into the wrap around sun deck and an appropriate eight sided vaulted ceiling design is shown. Deck access is nearby.

The vast kitchen is a full 11'6" by 15', flaunting premium cabinet space, praiseworthy work area and ideal availability of a separate laundry room that boasts washer and dryer space along with a laundry sink, freezer space, a place for leaving the ironing board open continuously and garage access for the easy transfer of parcels from your car to the kitchen.

There are three large bedrooms, two of which boast high ceilings, either tray or sloped. The lavish master bath provides a garden tub, separate corner shower, isolated commode area, two lavatories and a walk-in closet. The hall bath services daytime use and two remaining bedrooms.

The exterior design features multiple gable roof breaks, corner quoins, oval-top and trimmed window treatments and stucco exterior finish.

The plan is Number 2075. It includes 2,077 square feet of heated area and is a computer generated plan. All W. D. Farmer plans include construction details for energy efficiency and are designed to meet FHA and VA requirements.

Question - Answer

Q. - For the past six to eight months there has been an odor of stagnant water from our washing machine. Could the fault lie in the filter?

A. - Since your clothes apparently smell fresh and clean and you only notice the odor around the washer, we think there's something wrong with the drain, not the filtering system.

Check to see if your drain line is properly fitted with a trap in the wall, under the floor or wherever it leaves the house. Also, check for a broken or leaking drain line under the floor or in the wall. You should also look for any leaks or drips from the drain lines under the machine.

A simple way to trap a drain line and to block foul-smelling sewer and water gases is to replace your current machine hose with a longer one. Let the drain hose loop down almost to the floor in back of the machine, then up and out to the drain pipe or tub. This deep looping bend puts a natural trap in the drain line which holds a "plug" of water and prevents stagnant gases from venting back into the room.

Want Ads Do It All!

YOU WANT IT, YOU GOT IT CLASSIFIED

364-2030
313 N. Lee

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.26	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.48	9.60
5 days per word	.59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are $4.15 per column inch; $3.45 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS
 Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

George C. Scott shines in 'Finding the Way Home'

Respected actor George C. Scott stars as a troubled small-town businessman whose temporary amnesia leads him to unexpected relationships with a group of Latino migrant workers and a rejuvenated enthusiasm for life in Finding the Way Home, airing Monday on ABC.

Actor suffers heart trouble on the set

By Amy Schmidt

There's nothing missing from ABC's splendid new telefilm Finding the Way Home, debuting Monday, Aug. 26. Neither will next year's Emmy nominations be. This one's a winner.

No one gets kidnapped in Finding the Way Home, no one gets killed, and no one even gets switched at birth. Still, the good-hearted, visually-stunning film makes this year's big Emmy vote-getter, The Josephine Baker Story, look like a yawn.

Finding the Way Home also features one of Hollywood's acting legends — George C. Scott, who lives up to his reputation here. Providing sensitive back-up support to Scott are Hector Elizondo (Pretty Woman), a deservedly rising talent, and Julie Carmen (The Milagro Beanfield War).

Scott plays Max Mittelman, a meticulous, elderly hardware-store owner who has taken it on the chin. His old-fashioned, home-style business has been wrecked by chain-store competition. The savings and loan in which he's invested his life savings has gone bust. His building isn't up to code and the city's threatening to close him down.

In short, Max needs to modernize, move more merchandise and get a better attitude, or so his wife (Beverly Garland) says. Instead, Max wrecks his car, suffers amnesia and wanders into a migrant workers' camp, where Elizondo and Carmen take him in.

On the set of Finding the Way Home, which was filmed last December in Denton, Texas, even to the casual observer it is evident Scott is a bear of a man, a giant professionally among those around him.

Hector Elizondo plays a friendly migrant farm worker in Finding the Way Home, debuting Monday on ABC.

Remember, this was the gruff actor who branded the Academy Awards a "meat parade," rejecting an Oscar for his performance in 1970's Patton. One month later he refused an Emmy for The Price. In A Christmas Carol, he played Scrooge. In Beauty and the Beast, he was the beast. Reportedly Scott at one time threatened to tear a photographer's camera off of his neck if he took one more picture.

But when given a moment alone with Scott, his normally gravel-laden voice softened. He sat talking in a porch swing in the dark, away from the lights of the set. He evinced a sense of humor, albeit a dry one.

"I like this (film) because it was human, it was warm, it didn't have a lot of violence, a lot of aggressive sex in it. It was a gentle script about nice people trying to get along in life," said Scott.

Controversy swirls over Emmy nominations

Sunday, Fox presents The 43rd Annual Emmy Awards. Dennis Miller, Jamie Lee Curtis and Jerry Seinfeld serve as hosts of the live broadcast.

Procedures raise questions

By Steven Alan McGaw

This year's Emmy nominations, scheduled for presentation Sunday, Aug. 25, on Fox, were announced early July 18. Later that day, executive producer Steve Sohmer told assembled television critics the theme of this year's telecast: "Great Moments We Can Share."

The press conference that followed likely contained moments Sohmer wished he'd declined to share. Alongside Leo Chaloukian, president of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, Sohmer fielded questions about Emmy-bid bypasses (The Simpsons, The Civil War) and the nominating process itself.

Since then, Emmy-watchers have also noted the number of nods given to cancelled shows and the sameness of nominees in several categories.

The circumstances surrounding the second-year-in-a-row omission of The Simpsons from the Outstanding Comedy Series category appear to be particularly murky. Chaloukian maintains that the Academy needs more information about the show and "input" from the show's producers. Jim Brooks, one of those producers, acknowledges that a scheduled meeting with Academy officials went unattended, but points out that previous pleas have gone nowhere.

"All we want for The Simpsons is that they be treated like human beings," he says. In any case, the show competes again this year in the Outstanding Animated category.

Ken Burns' much-praised The Civil War was deemed ineligible to compete with mainstream miniseries because it has "no actors," according to Chaloukian. Instead, the 11-hour work is up for Outstanding Informational Series.

The nomination process has been an abiding source of controversy (people must nominate their own work) and the resultant omissions are striking. Bill Cosby, for instance, is not in the running, nor is four-time winner John Larroquette, who opted to retire as a winner. Other questions include the equitable distribution of nominating ballots.

STAR NOTES

Barker scores high for 'fur flap'

By Amy Schmidt

In a recent interview with Bob Barker for the Daytime Emmys (he served as host and also won his sixth Emmy), the conversation turned to his anti-fur campaign. Barker, remember, in 1987 created what came to be called the "fur flap" when he quit hosting pageants because the contestants wore furs.

"Hey, that has worked!" said Barker, obviously pleased to talk about it. Indeed, it has worked. Live Aid, Farm Aid and Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" to drugs campaign have come and gone, but Barker's pet project (pardon the pun) has had lasting impact.

"There are people who say that it got more media attention than any single incident in the animal rights movement," said Barker. "From that day forward, we began to concentrate our efforts on educating the consumer. Once consumers know the animal torture involved, they're not interested in buying furs, and today the fur industry is on its last legs."

Cruelty to animals used in movie productions is Barker's latest concern. 1987's Project X and this year's Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken are among the films, he contends, in which animals suffered mistreatment. And please don't even mention The Adventures of Milo and Otis, a Japanese-made, dog-and-cat film released last summer.

SOAP TALK

'All My Children's' Jack Montgomery: hero or sleaze?

By Candace Havens
Nothing on soaps makes viewers madder than a love affair gone wrong. This week, I heard from two readers who've had it up to here with a couple of daytime Romeos.

Dear Candace: That Jack Montgomery on All My Children is getting rather sickening. We've seen enough of Jack to last a lifetime. If he's not with the woman he loves, he loves the woman he's with. I'm also sick of the way Brooke is being treated. —Mrs. Florence Ess.

Dear Florence: All My Children seems to be suffering an identity crisis lately. The writers don't seem to be able to decide which way certain characters' personalities should go. One minute Jack is the hero of the town, the next minute he's a sleaze.

The soap is also famous for portraying some of the strongest female characters on television, only to later portray them as weak, sniveling idiots. I'd say it's about time for All My Children to get its act together or risk slipping even farther down in the ratings.

Dear Candace: I love The Young and the Restless, but I am disgusted with the way Victor has let his spoiled daughter come between himself and Ashley. They were so happy before she showed up. I really hate her. Why doesn't Victor see through that sweet smile and that soft voice? He knew Victoria was never happy about her parents divorcing.

Ashley should leave Victor and go to Brad. After all, he loves her. Let Victor and Victoria have each other. No two people deserve each other more. —L.N.

Dear L.N.: The character of Victoria is one that you are supposed to love to hate, and that certainly has happened. She is certainly determined; she makes some of the witches on other soaps seem like kittens. This young lady is definitely a star in the making.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

Cable's ESPN earns laurels and respect

By Steve Paschal

For over a decade, hard-core sports fanatics have turned to ESPN for the latest in highlights, updates and late-breaking stories. Beginning in September, the cable network starts its 13th season by adding an additional half-hour program to its already unsurpassed Sunday-morning block of award-winning sports coverage.

Sunday's lineup begins with an hour-long recap of the week's events on Sports Weekly, followed by a lively and sometimes heated discussion of the top stories in sports on The Sports Reporters. SportsCenter, the network's flagship news and information program, is next, followed by a preview of the day's football games on NFL GameDay.

ESPN earned numerous awards in 1990, including Emmys for studio programming, sports journalism and special reports, the National Headliner Award for its spot coverage of the death of Loyola-Marymount basketball player Hank Gathers and two New York Festival Awards for the coverage of Pete Rose's banishment from baseball.

In addition, the network took home three ACE and three Cable Guide Reader's Poll awards, as well as the Women's Sports Journalism Award for Scholastic Sports America, a series focusing on young athletes.

In 1991, ESPN will televise 1,896 hours of news and information programming.

Rockers pay tribute to John Lennon

By Dan Rice

Imagine there's no murder. Musical luminaries come together for A Tribute to John Lennon, premiering Sunday, Aug. 25, on The Disney Channel. Paying their respects to the great "peacenik" are Paul McCartney, Ringo Starr, Elton John, Michael Jackson and Billy Joel, with son Sean and the widow Lennon. Where's George?

Music resonates evermore. For a cool jazz blast from the past, join A&E on Tuesday, Aug. 27, for Jazz on a Summer's Day, filmed by Bert Stern at the 1958 Newport Jazz Festival. Not only will you groove to performances by Louis Armstrong, Thelonius Monk, Anita O'Day and Mahalia Jackson, you'll also get a look at the swingin' hepcats and be-boppers of the day bewildering the Newport socialites.

Leap back another generation with The Discovery Channel's The American Documents: The Age of Ballyhoo, also beginning Tuesday. Narrated by Gloria Swanson, this outline of American lifestyles in the Roaring '20s stretches from the old folks down on the farm to the flappers in the big-city speakeasies. Twenty-three skidoo.

Returning from simpler times to the perilous present, we journey into the Amazon rain forest in The Kayapo: Out of the Forest, airing Monday, Aug. 26, on The Discovery Channel.

Singer Randy Travis discusses his new album Hill Country on Thursday's Entertainment Tonight.

FAMILY FARE

Mister Rogers puts on his top hat

By Suzanne Gill
In this week's series of five new episodes of Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, host Fred Rogers explores the magic of dressing up and playing make-believe. The fun begins when cast member Maggie Stewart dresses up as Mr. McFeely to invite Mister Rogers to the neighborhood costume party.

Rogers, who tells his young viewers "It's you I like ... Not the things that hide you," will make and wear masks, try on hats and crowns and swap clothes with his friends in his neighborhood and the Land of Make-Believe to help children have a clearer understanding of who's who and why.

"All children, when they're young, need help in learning what makes them who they are as individuals," says Rogers. "It's not easy for any of us to understand just what it is that makes us lovable. We may confuse who we are with what we have or what others see in us."

Also included in the week's activities are two new "factory films" dealing with the making of two of Mister Rogers' sartorial musts: the making of sweaters and the making of sneakers.

Also on the schedule is a visit to a rehearsal of the Boys Choir of Harlem, with musical director Dr. Walter Turnbull as guide.

Columnists are conduit to the stars

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I read your article every time I get the paper. Here is my question. If you wanted to write stars or wanted some information about one of the stars, and you had no idea how to get a hold of them, even though you knew three or more movies they were in, how would you get in touch with them? It is very important to a friend of mine to get in touch with Christian Slater. —A.C., Kellyville, Okla.

A: I guess if you wanted information on different stars, you could write to someone like me. You could also get some of the addresses of the various fan clubs from magazines focusing solely on celebrities. Those, however, are clubs frequently set up by other fans of the celebrity. After you send your letter, you get the standard pack of photos, stickers, etc. There are also official fan clubs. I would say your best bet is to keep writing to me or to others who do this kind of column. (I would prefer you write to me!) I can help you with Christian Slater. You can write him c/o CAA, 9830 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212. The important thing to remember is entertainment columnists have very busy schedules and get a lot of mail.

Q: I would like to know how old Vicki Lawrence (Mama's Family) is, and what show did Willie Aames play on? Was it Eight Is Enough or Family? —Mrs. Mendell Coles, Auburn, Ky.

A: Vicki Lawrence was born on March 26, 1949, in Inglewood, Calif. Willie Aames played the part of Tommy Bradford on Eight Is Enough.

Q: Could you please tell me the name of the movie (it may have been a made-for-TV movie) starring Roy Thinnes, Joan Hackett and Arthur Hill. The movie is about Thinnes, a doctor, who is sued by Hill over a car accident where Thinnes' wife and child were either killed or injured. Thinnes seeks revenge by killing or attempting to kill Hackett, Hill's wife, in the movie? Eventually, Thinnes falls in love with Hackett and kills himself instead. —Tiber Bohn, Kew Gardens, N.Y.

A: The only movie I have with all three of them in it is called The Other Man, and it was a made-for-TV movie. It originally aired on NBC on Oct. 19, 1970. According to my reference material, it's the story of the neglected wife of a district attorney who drifts into an affair with the ex-con he helped put away. After her lover is found murdered, the wife can't help feeling her husband is the killer. Does this sound right to you? If you liked the story, it's from a novel by Margaret Lynn.

Q: I would like to know about Jeff Wincott of Night Heat. Could I have his address so I can write to him? I am also a big fan of Joe Penny of Jake and the Fatman. —Laytoya Powe, Meridian, Mo.

A: You can write Jeff Wincott c/o Shapiro and Associates, 15301 Ventura Boulevard, Suite 345, Sherman Oaks, Calif., 91403. And the address for Joe Penny is c/o Viacom Productions, 10 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif., 91608.

Q: I have been watching Wimbledon. I am a fan of Boris Becker and Gabriela Sabatini. Would you please let me know where I may write to them? —Larry Wade III, Nacogdoches, Texas.

A: You can write Becker c/o TV Enterprises, 251 East 49th Street, New York, N.Y., 10017. You can write Sabatini c/o ProServe, 1101 Wilson Boulevard, Suite 1800, Arlington, Va., 22209.

'thirtysomething' gang can say goodbye forever

After thirtysomething's abrupt cancellation at the end of last season, many fans hoped ABC would make a deal with producers Ed Zwick and Marshall Herskovitz for a two-hour movie to tie up loose ends. It appears, however, that the thirtysomething gang is breaking up for good. In a recent interview, ABC Entertainment president Robert Iger said the chances for such a project were "very slim."

Meanwhile, series star Ken Olin has moved behind the camera to direct a made-for-Fox movie, Doing Time on Maple Drive, due for broadcast this fall. Olin says he won't miss his on-screen celebrity unless "I can't get into good restaurants anymore."

Robert De Niro and Bill Murray started filming last month on Mad Dog and Glory, a comedy set in Chicago. De Niro stars as a mild-mannered police photographer who saves the life of a local crime-boss, played by Murray.

Uma Thurman co-stars and John McNaughton will direct from an original screenplay by Richard Price. McNaughton achieved notoriety with his splendid critically acclaimed independent film, Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer, and Price was an Oscar nominee for his script for The Color of Money.

BITS AND PIECES

Husband-and-wife screenwriters Bob Tzudiker and Noni White have seen their careers take off this year.

Their first movie, Newsies, stars Christian Bale (Empire of the Sun) and Max Casella (Doogie Howser, M.D.) as turn-of-the-century newsboys in the famous strike against newspaper moguls Hearst and Pulitzer.

Tzudiker and White's second film, a comedy titled Mrs. Faust, goes into production this fall while the pair puts finishing touches on a script for The Frog Prince, an upcoming animated feature from Disney.

New series 'Brooklyn Bridge' gets personal

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Gary David Goldberg says his latest television show, "Brooklyn Bridge," began with bedtime stories he told his daughter.

The comedy series, Goldberg's first creative effort since "Family Ties," is loosely based on his childhood in the Bensonhurst area of Brooklyn in the 1950s. It will be on the CBS schedule in the fall.

"I'd tell Cailin (his daughter) about my old neighborhood back in Brooklyn," he says. "She found it so appealing and always wanted to hear more. I told her about not having a room of my own, no private bathroom, no car, no telephone, yet a wonderful feeling of family."

"You had grandma and grandpa across the hall. My other grandparents across the street. Aunts and uncles all around us. A whole neighborhood of kids to play with."

"The series deals with a boy seeing there's a world beyond his neighborhood."

It's Goldberg's 47th birthday, and as he sits down to talk about his new show his older brother, Stanley, calls to wish him a happy birthday. After he hangs up, he pulls up his sweat shirt to show off a red T-shirt from his wife. The gist of its message is that "baby boys rule."

He explains that his wife, Dr. Diana Mechan, is doing a study on how children are affected by their order of birth in a family. "We don't want to divulge who's who in the show," he says, "but I was the baby boy."

It will be Goldberg's first one-camera show without an audience since "Making the Grade" in 1982.

Goldberg is best known for "Family Ties," but he began as a writer for "The Bob Newhart Show," produced "Lou Grant," and in 1980 created his first show, "The Last Resort." This past season his company, UBU Productions, produced NBC's "American Dreamer."

Goldberg worries whether a one-camera comedy can be as funny as a four-camera show filmed or taped before an audience.

"It's going to be very hard to get everything in the script onto the screen," he says. "We didn't make it with 'Making the Grade.' I don't know what we have yet. Without an audience to push the pace, the humor can die and flatten out. Name me a really funny one-camera show besides 'M-A-S-H.'"

Goldberg says he finds it somewhat intimidating to look back and explore his past. He also wanted to see if people can relate to a Jewish family in Brooklyn.

"I wasn't sure if it was an area where I could find the humor," he says. "I gave the script to other people, and they said they could see a similarity to their own families. I gave it to a guy who grew up on a farm in Iowa and he said, 'That's my family.'"

Stephen Baldwin plays Pony Express carrier William Cody, one of The Young Riders, Saturdays on ABC.

These shows, thankfully, didn't make it

NEW YORK (AP) - This fall, if you grumble at some new TV series, count your blessings. It could have been far worse. For every show that gets on each year, many more do not.

For example, in the season of 1980 you didn't face "Ethel is an Elephant," about a New York photographer who shares his apartment with a baby elephant abandoned by a circus. Really.

A year earlier, you got to miss "The Power Within," about a Vietnam hero who is struck by lightning. He develops X-ray vision and the power to shoot electric bolts from his fingers. He goes out on secret missions.

Each is a pilot that didn't get picked up for a series. So are 299 others in "Unsold TV Pilots," a new paperback book by Lee Goldberg, a writer whose role in life's rich pageant is to chronicle series ideas that croaked.

His book of broken pilots, covering the period 1955-1990, contains many fascinating, little-known facts suitable for saying aloud on appropriate occasions, like when it's time to end the party and send everyone home.

Facts such as:

- Movie heartthrob Alec Baldwin once played a Florida sheriff in love with a lady astronaut in, well, "The Sheriff and the Astronaut."

- Adam West, later to achieve glory as TV's "Batman," played Doc Holliday, the famed dentist, gunfighter and tuberculosis sufferer, in a 1959 pilot called "The Frontier World of Doc Holliday" for ABC.

- NBC had a pilot in 1978 called "Clone Master," about a government scientist who makes 13 crime-fighting clones of himself. It's likely you'd see one clone per episode. Had the series lasted five years with 26 episodes per year, there could be 130 clones running loose right now. Whew.

- There was an NBC pilot in 1984 called "Yazoo." It was about a widowed journalist "who goes fishing one day, falls asleep in the boat, and wakes up in a magical world called Yazoo, populated by the Peppercorn Puppets."

HEREFORD'S

SENIOR SCENE

Supplement to The Hereford Brand

SEPTEMBER 1991

Margie's Notes

Fall is coming fast and we are looking forward to this beautiful time of year. The season seems to be a time when the community of Hereford comes alive and there is an atmosphere of excitement about community activities as late-year harvests come about and school begins. Fall makes it easy to stop and think about how good life is in Hereford.

It seems fitting that the United Way Campaign is scheduled during the fall. The drive begins in September and we at the Center are all looking forward to working with others to raise funds for needed services in our town. Hereford is a neighborly town and our efforts during the fall to contribute time and money to the United Way certainly will be "neighbor helping neighbor."

The Senior Center is a United Way agency and we are well aware of how much difference the United Way can mean to individuals in our community.

We are also looking forward to fall activities at the Center--the Senior tour to the Amish Country/Mackinac Island will leave on Sept. 14. We still have room for more to join us.

We have a feature article on the Festival of Trees in this issue and we hope many will want to work on various festival projects.

It is truly wonderful to be able to work each day with you folks at the Center and also to be a part of the Hereford community. See you at the Center!

President's Corner

Haven't the summer showers been great? Without the wind and hail, they have been the kind of showers we dream about.

The Town & Country Jubilee was great! Those who had a part in it had a good time, even if it meant a lot of work for many. I would like to thank the ones who helped with the Senior Citizen float and with the quilt show at the Community Center.

I also want to thank all of the volunteers who help deliver the meals to the homebound. Without this service, many of the elderly and disabled in our city would not receive a balanced meal. Without volunteers and donations, this service would not be possible.

We often run short on funds for the home delivery project and depend on gifts and memorials to help. Such donations can be designated for this project.

It seems impossible that another month has passed and fall is fast approaching. We are looking forward to several projects in the fall and winter--a chance for everyone to get involved.

Lester Wagner, President
Hereford Senior Citizens Association

Come Shop With Us!

Our Gift Shop is open every day and we have lovely and unusual gifts for every occasion . . . We're adding new items all the time, so visit us often!

Plans made for 'Trees'

Festival of Trees at the Hereford Senior Center will begin on Thursday, Nov. 21, and end on Sunday, Nov. 24. We are looking forward to hosting this event again this year.

Special activities planned are similar to those held last year -- the Festival Gala, a style show and salad supper, a "Breakfast with Santa" and a "Teddy Bear Tea" for children 12 and under, the holiday buffet, Sunday lunch and Festival of Choirs.

An addition this year will be an old fashioned Christmas party, complete with food and music. Entertainment will be scheduled throughout each festival day.

The main feature of the festival remains the beautifully-decorated trees displayed for residents of the community and the surrounding area to enjoy. These trees will be sold at auction during the festival.

Organizations and individuals are being asked to design the trees on a voluntary basis.

People in the community really turned out for the festival last year and seemed to enjoy the affair. The children loved it!!

Several attending last year requested that more ceramics, hand-crafted items, baked goods and condiments be available for festival shoppers. For this reason, outside specialty vendors will not have spaces and the center will have a large "Holiday Bazaar" and expanded bake sale set up in large booths.

We need your assistance in stocking these booths with items and food to sell.

This affair is a major fundraiser for the center and it offers hometown holiday enjoyment and entertainment for people as they prepare for the Christmas season.

Festival workers are needed -- now and during the four-day event. Let us know the area in which you would like to participate.

Combest will sponsor law for 'notch babies'

BY U.S. REP. LARRY COMBEST

The next time someone tries to tell you that your opinion does not count, tell them about the time seniors made a difference in correcting the Social Security "notch."

I have heard from many of you asking me to support an adjustment to the social security formula for retirement benefits of workers born in the years between 1917 and 1926. Your voice and knowledgeable advice has guided me in co-sponsoring H.R. 917, "The Social Security Notch Adjustment Act of 1991."

Since coming to Washington to serve you in Congress, I have closely studied many legislative proposals that attempt to correct the "notch." The increased Social Security payments resulted in 1972 when Congress calculated the future cost of living adjustments, relying too heavily on the runaway inflation rates of the early 1970s. Only after a short time did the federal government realize this mistake would bankrupt the Social Security Trust Fund with unintended and never-before-seen increases in benefits.

In 1977, before I was elected, Congress approved a gradual transition to five percent of the amount mistakenly allocated. That transition, commonly referred to as the "notch" kept the Social Security fund solvent, but the adjustment cut too deeply into the benefits for those persons born between 1917 and 1926.

Given Congress' past inability to accurately adjust benefit levels, you can see why new proposals to "fix" the notch problem were viewed with skepticism. In fact, many of those proposals would have drained the Social Security trust fund. I have always pledged to you that I will do all I can to keep the trust fund in sound financial shape for you, your children and your grandchildren.

However, at your urging and after carefully studying the healthy increases in the Social Security Trust Fund, I am co-sponsoring the S.S. Notch Adjustment Act of 1991. Unlike previous legislation, this proposal does not drain the trust fund. For future generations, an anticipated $1 trillion surplus should cover their retirement benefits.

This is a matter of fairness and righting a wrong based on an arbitrary statistical formula. The senior citizens in my district have never asked for more than they were entitled to. They ask only for what they believe is fair.

Stack Supper

A Mexican Stack Supper will be held at the Hereford Senior Center on Saturday, Sept. 7 from 5-8 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults and $3.50 for children 12 and under.

Everyone in town is invited to enjoy a wonderful meal!

Volunteer Service

It has often been said that volunteers in this country are "America in Action."

The philosophy of neighborly help was actually established by a written pact made between those on the Mayflower.

If you have time in your life to make a difference in the life of another, we invite you to spend some of those hours at the Senior Center.

Volunteers in our community have made it possible for us to offer the wide range of services available at the center.

Golden Line Dancers

Olga Harris, Instructor

Our Line Dancers may be retired from "steady employment" but never retired from fun activities here at the Center as well as the happy times with our family get-togethers.

Addie and Bill Cunningham have Elizabeth Kendall, Addie's mother, visiting them from Denver.

Jolene Bledsoe has been ill and we have missed her dancing with us, so we were happy to have her join in for some of the dances this week. Virginia Holmes has had surgery and is recuperating at her daughter's home in Arlington.

Genevieve Lynn has had her two granddaughters visiting for two weeks, Christine and Morgan.

Visiting over the Town & Country Jubilee with Bertha Tiefel were Danny and Marcia Boyer and children Danna and Beau.

Fred and Anna Stindt just returned from a long, long vacation in the Catskills, N.M., family in Princeton, N.J., and in Chapel Hill, N.C., driving all the 5500 and-some miles.

Two-month old Sally Claire Higgins and her mother Susan Wartes Higgins, from Albuquerque were here visiting Susan's parents, Joyce and Larry Wartes.

Edna LeClaire had friends from Deming, N.M. in her home this week. Natalie Knox of Dallas has been visiting her grandparents, Ruth and Stan Knox, and joined in Line Dance class especially enjoying "Whipped Cream" and the "Hokey Pokey."

About twenty Line Dancers gave a program August 5th at Prairie Acres Nursing Home in Friona, Texas. At the Town & Country Jubilee parade a bunch of our Line Dancers in their Red and White costumes brightened the red-white-blue Senior Citizens float.

Celebrating August birthdays are Line Dancers Gid Brownd, Ann Combs, Margie Daniels, Carolyn Hutcheson, Edna Johnson, Betty Martin and Bertha Tiefel!

Geraldine Frank has had her daughter, Sandra Taylor, and family here from Tennessee, and yesterday they flew in their private plane together to visit places in Oklahoma.

Jolene Bledsoe, accompanied by two of her Sisters from California, Joyce Teague and Charlyn Schmidt attended a Bell Family Reunion at Camp Copass located on the north shore of Lake Dallas. Her brother, Charlie Bell and family also attended this celebration. This was a special event in that it was the 50th Bell Reunion. The family had T-shirts made designed with the Bell family crest on them and also a cookbook made up of favorite recipes handed down through the years from our Aunts and present family members. There was 143 present, 19 of which attended the first reunion in 1941. This is an annual affair and was started after both grandparents passed away.

Ed McCreary attended the McCreary reunion at Eagle Mountain near Ft. Worth. While there his itinerary also included some square dancing and golfing. On his return trip he visited briefly with his son and family in Wichita Falls.

Jack and Irene McKinster enjoyed house guests, Francois DeWinter and family from Begijnendijk, Belgium and a sister-in-law, Margaret Jensen from El Reno, Oklahoma.

It was a privilege for the Golden Line Dancers to ride on the Senior Citizen's float in the Town and Country Jubilee parade. We were proud to salute our flag and show our respect.

Birthdays celebrated this month include Edna Johnson, Carolyn Hutcheson and Bertha Tiefel.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to everyone with a birthday in September! BIRTHDAY SOCIAL Thursday, Sept. 26 6:30 p.m.

Good nutrition is hot topic

NUTRITION UPDATE:
The National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics

Charlotte Clark M.S./LD

Consumer's interest in the role of nutrition in the quality of their life is "hot." Local librarians can report what kinds of health publications their patrons want. They can relate the high demand for self-help, self improvement books and newsletters—especially related to wellness, weight, nutrition, and preventing specific disease. Authors and publishers are tapping into this booming market.

Dietitians are encouraged by all this interest, but as professionals we know that a little knowledge can be a dangerous thing. To help manage this sometimes overwhelming tide of consumer health and nutrition information, The American Dietetic Association has established the National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics (NCND).

As a public education initiative, NCND has a mission to disseminate accurate nutrition information. The Center assures the public information is from the authoritative nutrition resource—the dietitian.

Beverly Banis, The ADA chief operating officer has stated that the expanding of the scope and activities of the Center is fundamental to increasing public recognition of the value of professional trained dietitians and their contribution to the health information in all communities. The Chicago facility offers services and information that is only a phone call or letter away. Public education is a focus and prime objective of the NCND which can be achieved with central outreach efforts.

At the core of the NCND is the Nutrition Info Center, truly an information center, which provides assistance to consumers, dietitians, industry, media, and health care professionals. Included in the resource library are books, manuals, cookbooks, textbooks, and over 200 periodical subscriptions. These include scholarly journals, trade magazines, consumers magazines, and newsletters.

The Info Center houses over 350 books published from the 1800's to 1940 and a complete bound collection of The Journal of the American Dietetic Association dating back to 1925. The audiovisual selection, a computerized catalogue that can be accessed through the Organization for Cooperating Libraries in Consortium and over 11,000 member internationals. Inter library loan is also available.

Hot Lines are accessible by the public to meet the demands for food and nutrition information. Nutrition infokits and nutrition fact sheets for consumers, recorded messages as well as immediate access to a registered dietitian are extended services.

The Center offers forums to discuss and debate current issues of nutrition. The purpose of these conferences is to permeate interdisciplinary consensus and to help unravel the maze of consumer confusion surrounding some health and nutrition issues.

Each March National Nutrition Month is celebrated. In 1992 the NCND plans to launch a public education campaign that will offer a year round program which will expand the hot line messages, answer to questions, and correct information distributed to the public concerning nutrition and dietetics.

In 1991, the ADA cosponsored with Weight Watchers International and the Office of Disease Prevention an Health Promotion the publication and distribution of "Healthy Living for Life." The booklet included a diet and life style assessment quiz, information on weight management, healthy eating, and exercise.

"Healthy Start...Food to Grow On" was the result of a campaign cosponsored by ADA and the American Academy of Pediatrics and the Food Marketing Institute. Four consumer brochures on basic nutrition were distributed to promote guidelines to parents of 2-6 year olds. The brochures make suggestions for parent-children supermarket activities and gives a list of childhood nutrition resources.

Future cooperative projects are being designed for development, printing, and distribution of materials to the public. The Center (NCND) will continue to serve as the voice of reason for the consumers. When new information bombards the public, the National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics has the resources to clear away confusion and give articulate, balanced, and credible information to the American public.

Advisor available

The Benefits Advisor of the Panhandle Area Agency on Aging is available to work with you and your family. For those unfamiliar with the service, it is for the 60 and over population of Deaf Smith County to help in meeting their needs and solving problems.

Older adults are often unaware of the resources that exist in the community. As a result, they go without needed assistance or unnecessarily exhaust their own limited funds. While some may be informed, they hesitate to apply because of confusing application procedures.

Benefits Advising was developed because of a recognized need of the unique problems of older adults often confront. These problems can frequently be solved with information and guidance.

This office assesses the situation and attempts to coordinate the various services, as well as provide the appropriate referral in situations that are outside of the current realm.

Specific areas of involvement include, Social Security benefits, housing concerns, health issues, rehabilitative services, transportation, legal documents, referrals, dispute resolution, consumer issues, medicare/medicaid coverage, SSI, credit/bill problems, nursing homes, food stamps, food, clothing and shelter, home health, medigap policies, tax information and medicare claims.

Benefits Advising services are offered at no cost, regardless of income and all information is kept confidential. The phone number is 364-5681 or stop by the Senior Citizens building where the office is located.

Diabetes needs very special care

Diabetics have more diseases of many sorts. Diabetics have glaucoma twelve times as often, and cataracts ten times as often as the rest of the population. These are blinding diseases, but can often be controlled with early specialized eye care. The earlier and more regularly their eyes are examined, the better the final vision. Our aim is to keep the diabetics seeing to the end of their lives. And the better the general diabetic control, the better the eyesight in general: diabetes control is basic to their sight and to preventing need for leg amputations.

For reasons which are not fully understood, a diabetic's blood sugar can suddenly fall precipitously. Very low blood sugars are much more dangerous than high blood sugars, as the patient goes unconscious and can die quickly, whereas very high blood sugars, even up to 800 milligrams, are compatible with life for days at a time. This is the reason that living with someone is a necessity for a diabetic. Hopefully the patient is found if he goes unconscious, before it is too late.

Testing urine instead of using a glucometer for blood sugar (far more accurate), is a thing of the middle ages now. However, it is better than not testing at all. And remember, "borderline diabetes" is like borderline pregnancy...it does not go away. Borderline is an unfortunate term and the patients think they are not really diabetic. It is usually controllable. If you lose weight and then do not need diabetic pills or insulin, or are controlled on diet alone, remember, you are still a diabetic. Your eyes and feet are still at risk, just as though you needed diabetic medications. You are still diabetic, and remain so for life.

Check your feet every day for beginning sores, and see an ophthalmologist at minimum, once every 12 months for a dilated eye exam with examining contact lens. This is the only method of examination that avoids missing 40 percent of early diabetic damage at the back of the eye.

It helps to go to lectures. The American Diabetes Association puts on lectures and training programs, and your local hospital may have extensive free diabetic education programs. Ask them. There are newsletters and monthly magazines put out by such organizations which will help you. If reading becomes extremely difficult, specially strong reading glasses often get patients back reading that have not been able to read for years...If they are willing to hold reading and sewing seven or eight inches from their eyes.

Above all, don't let anyone tell you nothing further can be done, if you or a friend cannot see to do the things which for you make life worthwhile.

For a free brochure or information, please call Beverley Clark, M.D., at 806-355-7021.

SENIOR

NATIONAL HEALTH CARE: JAPAN'S COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE OVER AMERICA

The crushing burden of health care costs is bankrupting many American families. But it also threatens to crush the American economy. The rapidly rising cost of American health care is a massive disadvantage in our economic competition with Japan. Per person, Japan spends less than half of what the U.S.

spends for health care. And Japan gets much better results. Their life expectancy is two years longer than ours. The Japanese infant death rate is about half of ours. And while 100 million Americans lack adequate health insurance, every Japanese is fully protected—even for dental care and prescriptions! (Source: Families USA Foundation)

Quilt show has winners

Winners were named in several categories at the annual Town and Country Jubilee Quilt Show, sponsored by the Hereford Senior Citizens Association.

Winners included Judy Bullard, oldest quilt; Helen Bell, most beautiful quilt; Catherine Russell, quilt showing the most work; Susie Curtsinger, judge's choice; and Jennie Fowler, most unusual quilt.

Young at Heart Choir

BY JUANITA COKER

The Young at Heart choir has been busy learning our new musical, "Rejoicing in His Presence." We will be ready before long to present this new musical.

The choir has been going to Golden Plains and West Gate nursing centers every third Thursday at 2:30 p.m. Half of the choir goes to West Gate and half to Golden Plains and will rotate the groups each time. The residents look forward to hearing the old time hymns that the choir enjoys singing.

A new member, Elizabeth Dekoster, has joined our choir. We are very glad to have her and would like for more to join us. We plan an "all out" campaign this fall to recruit new members. Won't you come join us for fun and fellowship? A knowledge of music is not necessary and good fellowship is all the criteria needed.

Stack Supper

A Mexican Stack Supper will be held at the Hereford Senior Center on Saturday, Sept. 7 from 5-8 p.m.

Admission is $5 for adults and $3.50 for children 12 and under. Everyone in town is invited to enjoy a wonderful meal!

Travel can spark new excitement

Turning 60 doesn't mean retiring from romance. In fact, current research shows that mature Americans live and love longer than ever before. Depending on how you use it, travel can be a key ingredient in keeping the fun and romance in your lives.

The following tips will help you make the most of your travel:

-Know when to plan and when to be spontaneous. Advance planning can extend the pleasure of travel, especially vacations abroad, while ensuring that you experience the best sights and activities. Read up on your destination and choose some activities in advance.

On the other hand, quick and spontaneous getaways can keep the spark alive in your relationship. You even can surprise your loved one by making all the arrangements and doing the packing.

-Don't take chances on where you stay. Remember, your peace-of-mind and comfort come first.

-Extend the enjoyment of your trip. Reliving an exciting vacation memory can be as much fun as the travel itself. Make a trip scrapbook, including photographs and other memories. You can share these memories for years to come.

-Be a collector. Find something to collect which gives you both enjoyment, for example, unusual salt and pepper shakers, crystal knick-knacks, etc. Adding to your collection while traveling and watching it grow will give you years of pleasure.

-Relive the moments. Have a photo taken of the two of you with a famous landmark. This will remind you of your time together and the excitement of your vacation. You can share the experience by framing a copy for your children or grandchildren. Also, if you have a camcorder, be sure to bring it with you and make copies of your travel videotape for friends and family.

-Be free. Remember, you might want some time for yourself to do whatever you want. Don't feel obligated, just because you're on vacation, to do everything together. If you prefer a trip to the local museum and your companion wants to lounge in the sun, give yourselves some space. You'll have more fun recounting your experience later than if you shared every moment of your trip.

-Schedule a leisurely pace. Plan enough time to savor each new sight, activity and experience.

Travel is among the most romantic experiences a couple can share and few can enjoy travel year-round like mature travelers. Equally important, traveling allows you to learn together, to create new memories and even to renew the way you feel about each other.

Make your own peanut butter at home. Combine two cups roasted nuts and a tablespoon of oil. Add a half teaspoon of salt unless salted nuts are used. Process in a blender or food processor until soft.

AS YOUNG AS YOU FEEL?

You know that in the natural process of aging there may be occasional aches and pains. Your body is not as resilient as it used to be, but if structural problems are causing pain and stiffness. Chiropractic treatment can help you feel well again.
