Snow amounts similar throughout area

BY KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Weather observers in the Bootleg, Walcott and Summerfield communities concurred with two-and-a-half inches of snow measured at KPAN studios this morning.

The snow began falling in large flakes about 10:15 Thursday morning, quickly covering the ground with the first major snowfall of the season.

A spokesman at Dawn said accumulation was about the same there as in Hereford but was heavier traveling toward Canyon. The weather "experts" at Peggy's Cafe in Adrian said that community was blessed with three to four inches of white stuff and a number of accidents, although no serious injuries were reported.

Deaf Smith County Commissioner Bruce Coleman, who lives near the Precinct 3 County Barn, said roads were slick in that area but had not drifted enough to warrant getting out the county's snow-removal equipment.

KPAN reported an overnight low of 14 degrees, with today's high predicted in the mid-30s. Equivalent moisture reading was .19 inch, with no more snow forecast for today.

Hereford police secretary Betty Davis said there were six accidents worked Thursday between 11:35 a.m. and 12:50 p.m., none of which involved injuries. She said all were caused by the poor weather conditions.

"There were some that we didn't make reports on," she said, "because the drivers thought there was not enough damage." She suspected there were at least three other minor wrecks, each resulting in less than $250 total damage.

Mary Johnson, day dispatcher at the Deaf Smith

Sheriff's Department, said there were several non-injury accidents in the county investigated by Texas Highway Patrol between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. She said she had Darrel Matthews, the sole patrolman on duty, "running every which way but loose."

"People didn't realize it was slick is what the problem was," she said. "We're just very lucky not to have had any injuries."

Several mishaps, Johnson said, were caused by people sliding into the ditches. "The snow slipped up on them."

A number of meetings planned for Thursday afternoon and evening were cancelled, including the December meeting of the Buffalo Lake Water District Board which has been re-scheduled for Jan. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Although cold temperatures overnight made for icy roads this morning, school was in session for the last day prior to Christmas vacation.

Road conditions Thursday caused the most serious problems at Canyon near the football stadium on Highway 287. At least three semi-truck accidents were reported beginning around noon, causing stalled traffic and pileups. One Hereford woman reported spending nearly three hours driving home from work in Amarillo after getting in line behind an accident and later sliding off the road.

The overnight low of minus 1 degree in Amarillo set a new record low, beating the nine degrees above zero set in 1979.

Caught In The Act

David Ruland sneaked a few minutes away from his job as Deaf Smith County Clerk Thursday to enjoy the season's first snowfall and pick up a few mysterious packages.

Suit response expected

By REED PARSELL

Kelly Frels, a Houston attorney representing the Hereford Independent School District, was supposed to respond this afternoon to a lawsuit recently filed against HISD.

That according to Dr. Harrell Holder, the local school district's superintendent speaking at Thursday evening's regular meeting of the HISD Board of Education.

On Nov. 29, the local Texas

By HISD attorney regarding recent filing

Rural Legal Aid (TRLA) office filed a class-action suit in Amarillo's Federal District Court against the school board. The action stemmed from a decision by the HISD body not to act on proposals it adopt single-member voting districts.

At an Aug. 9 board meeting, a TRLA attorney from San Antonio claimed the implementation of single-member districts would give Hispanics a better chance of being elected to the now all-white board. The current at-large election system, he said, makes it unfairly difficult for Mexican-Americans to be voted into office. He presented a plan showing how HISD precincts could be divided to aid Hispanic candidates.

Prior to its Nov. 15 decision not to act on the proposal, board members consulted several times with Frels. Trustee R.C. Hoelscher, speaking for the board, said reasons for the 5-0 (Marilyn Culpepper and Paul Mason were absent) vote would remain undisclosed until a response was prepared.

The lawsuit lists Rumaldo Garcia, Oralia Guzman and Jesus Hernandez as plaintiffs, with Dr. Holder and school board members being the defendants. It claims what Raul Noriega, director of TRLA's Voting Rights Litigation Project, said here in August: the Hispanic vote is diluted by at-large elections, thereby denying minority rights as given in the state Voting Rights Act.

On Thursday, Dr. Holder also said concerned attorneys were preparing depositions for Jan. 19 and 20. Frels will be in Hereford at that time, the superintendent said.

Meanwhile Thursday, board members conducted a lengthy and often lively discussion on a proposed new athletic facility. Assistant Superintendent Larry Wartes and Jerry Taylor, HISD athletic director, said they would like to have a $45,000 to $51,000 structure built east of Whiteface Stadium's fieldhouse for sports squad practices during inclement weather.

Baker to speak at Chamber affair

The last regular meeting of 1983 for directors of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce was a memorable one Thursday afternoon. Hors d'oeuvres were prepared for 14 directors and only 6 showed up for the monthly meeting.

Since there was no quorum and no official action could be taken, discussion and dining highlighted the session. C of C President Bob Sims said directors couldn't remember the last time there was a meeting without a quorum.

Mike Carr, executive vice president, reported a contract had been signed with Dan Baker and he will be the featured speaker at the annual banquet, scheduled Feb. 9. Other progress reports were made on the Fun Breakfast and Women's Division activities.

Baker is widely acclaimed as one of the most outstanding professional speakers in the country today. He travels extensively throughout the United States sharing the warmth, wit and wisdom of his "people philosophy" with conventions, seminars, rallies and banquets, besides doing a broad range of speaking and teaching in the management and sales fields.

Baker is a native Texan who served seven years in the Methodist ministry. Since leaving the ministry, he has worked as a writer, business consultant, speaker and teacher. He resides in Bulverde, 20 miles north of San Antonio. He and his wife, Betty, have two daughters.

Sims said directors discussed the annual installation dinner, but no date has been set pending arrangements for the speaker. It probably will be in mid-January, according to Sims. President-elect Bobby Owen is also making plans for a board retreat to set next year's goals.

Tools taken from Morrison

Brad Morrison, 123 Ave. C, had some tools and their red box stolen from his pickup either Tuesday or Wednesday at an unknown location, Hereford police reported this morning.

Morrison told law-enforcement officers the items were worth about $520 total. Among the tools taken from his 1979 Chevrolet truck were three sets of sheep clippers.

Aside from the six non-injury accidents they worked (see area weather story), policemen Thursday investigated one incident apiece of gun shots, criminal mischief and possible unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Eighty-two hunters foreseen

Jim Steiert of Hereford Young Farmers said 82 persons are still expected for the pheasant hunt this weekend, set to leave from the Hereford Community Center at 7 a.m.

The Young Farmers are sponsoring the hunt to raise money for the Jan. 26-28 Junior Livestock Show. Steiert said there were no cancellations due to the weather as of this morning, though several people on the list are from out of town.

Buffalo board meeting axed

Tuesday's snowfall caused members of the Buffalo Lake District Board to cancel their December meeting, which had been slated for 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Garth Thomas, elected last month to the fledgling permanent board, said the next gathering is planned for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 11 at the Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge Office.

Two men's conditions same

Calvin Henderson, 32, remained in "extremely critical" condition this morning at Deaf Smith General Hospital, Administrator James Bullard said.

Henderson received extensive shotgun wounds last Friday evening during an incident of murder-suicide at 417 Ave. E. His mother, Polly Woolbright, was killed and his stepfather, Lewis Woolbright, also sustained shotgun wounds.

The condition of Woolbright, 40, was still stable this morning, according to Bullard.

Hereford Independent School District students have from now until the morning of Jan. 3 off for Christmas vacation.

Despite the poor driving conditions, school buses made their rounds this morning to transport kids to their last day of classes in 1983.

On Monday, Jan. 2, HISD teachers are slated to have an in-service day.

Sunday supplement discusses waste

Of nuclear energy variety

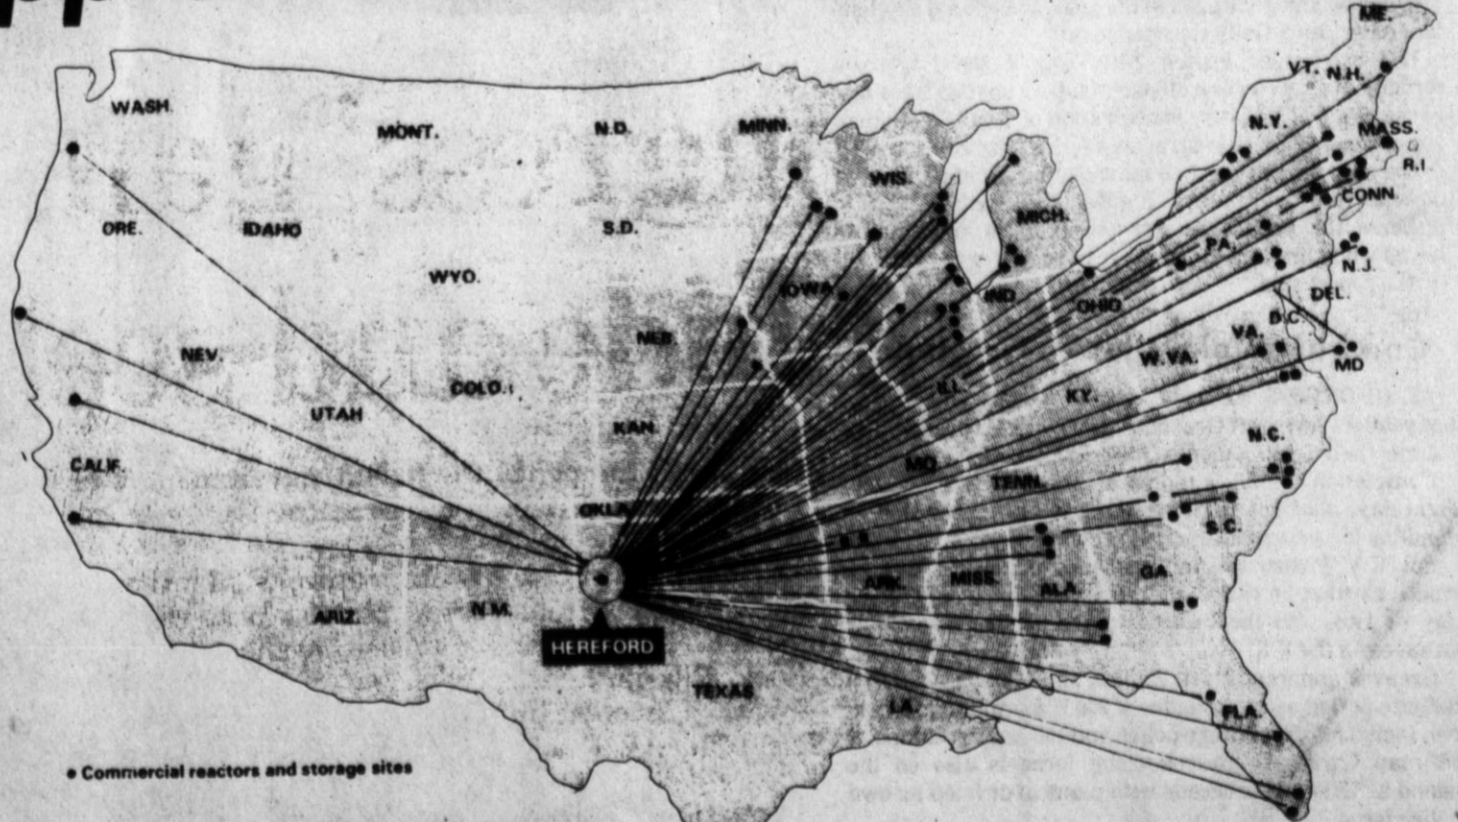

"At first it was a trickle. Now it is a torrent. For 40 years, government and industry have been postponing a crucial decision - what to do with the lethal mountains of nuclear waste that dot America and grow higher each day.

"For 40 years, half-hearted solutions have been tried, then cast aside. Now, the age of runaway nuclear waste production is upon us. And neither science or politics nor business is prepared for it."

The above paragraphs serve as an introduction to "Forevermore: Nuclear Waste in America," a special supplement published by The Philadelphia Inquirer. The 68-page supplement resulted from a major investigation of nuclear waste in America.

The Inquirer articles examine the legacy of indulgence in the Atomic Age and detail the failures of America's nuclear waste management efforts. The articles conclude with an editorial which claims there is no solution at this time for the lethal problems that have been ignored too long.

Because Deaf Smith County is one of nine sites being considered for the first nuclear waste repository, the supplement will be included in Sunday's Brand as a public service. It will be inserted in cooperation with The Inquirer, and local concerned citizens.

Commercial reactors and storage sites

If the nation's first underground nuclear waste repository were located at Hereford, here is an artist's conception of how trucks carrying the radioactive fuel rods would converge on this area. A federal study projects that by the year 2000, a truck carrying almost half a ton of used fuel rods would arrive at the repository site every 90 minutes, 24 hours a day, transforming interstate highways into nuclear thoroughfares. (Map from The Philadelphia Inquirer)

Murder victims from Albuquerque

GROOM, Texas (AP) — Carson County authorities say they have identified the bodies of two Albuquerque women found slain last week but have no solid leads to the killers.

A man who saw the women's pictures on television called sheriff's deputies, said he thought the women were former neighbors of his in Albuquerque and told deputies how to find the relatives, Sheriff Connie Reed.

Relatives later identified the two bodies as Angela Hargara, 17, and her cousin, Ophelia Kimberly Bernal, 18, both of Albuquerque, Reed said.

The bodies were found early Friday in a ditch beside a farm to market road. An autopsy revealed both women apparently had been killed with a blunt instrument driven into their skulls.

College breeds large animals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A new technique that uses modified human genes to convince cells to grow could lead to the birth of rabbits, sheep and dogs that are more than double their normal size, researchers say.

The University of Pennsylvania has applied for a patent on the possible commercial applications of the "enhanced-growth" technology developed in a genetic research project, school officials announced Thursday.

Last year, researchers at Penn and in Seattle teamed up to develop a so-called "Mighty Mouse" that is twice the size of a normal mouse. The researchers now are working on larger species, including rabbits, sheep and dogs, officials said.

Ralph L. Brinster, a professor of reproductive physiology at the university's School of Veterinary Medicine who is carrying out the research project, said there have been no births yet of altered-gene animals larger than a mouse. However, the technique has promise for such commercially valuable animals as cows, pigs and other farm animals, he noted.

Companies will pay for cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP) — In one of the largest court settlements of its kind, 10 major oil and petrochemical companies have agreed to pay $50 million to clean up two abandoned chemical waste dumps in Louisiana.

The government announced Thursday that the companies — including such giants as Exxon Corp., U.S. Steel Corp., and Dow Chemical Co. — agreed to clean up the two sites near Baton Rouge, La., and begin a 30-year monitoring program to guard against possible leaks into water supplies.

Attorney General William French Smith said in a statement that the proposed settlement, if approved by the federal court in Baton Rouge, would end one of the largest hazardous waste cases ever filed by the government.

Trudeau meets with Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, after discussing his global peace initiative with President Reagan, says he sees welcome signs that "politicians are taking hold of the peace process."

After listening to Trudeau's ideas in an hour-long meeting at the White House on Thursday, Reagan sent the Canadian leader off with a "a God speed" for "your efforts to build a durable peace."

Canadian Foreign Minister Allan MacEachen interpreted that remark as an endorsement of the "general thrust" of the ideas Trudeau has been pressing on world leaders for the last several months.

But Reagan did not embrace any of the specific proposals Trudeau has been offering.

Italy still divided over bank

ROME (AP) — A joint Italian-Vatican commission is deeply divided over the Vatican's possible liability for its largest private bank, known officially as the Institute for Religious Works, a Rome daily newspaper reported. It did not elaborate.

La Repubblica said the commission has finished its report on the reestablishment of the Vatican Bank and Banco Ambrosiano, which collapsed last June after its president, Roberto Calvi, was found hanging by the neck from a London bridge.

Coal causing smog in Peking

PEKING (AP) — The burning of soft coal in factories and houses is contributing to air pollution in Peking, plagued by smog 190 days of the year, the official English-language China Daily reported today.

The newspaper quoted Zhu Zuxi of the city's environmental protection department as saying the main cause of smog was the concentration of small, inefficient industries within the central area — 1,000 factories in all.

The government plans to move factories out of the city, close or improve those with antiquated methods, and to disperse the population into the suburbs and satellite towns while limiting the number of people in the inner city, the report said.

Combat soldiers leave Grenada

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The last 80 U.S. combat soldiers have left Grenada along with Maj. Gen. Jack Farris, their commander in Grenada since Oct. 29.

Completion of the withdrawal Thursday night came eight days ahead of President Reagan's promised Dec. 23 deadline for a complete pullout of combat forces.

Col. E.V. Parker was left in charge of non-combat U.S. troops as what he called "a transition commander" for a day or two, and then will be replaced by Col. Arthur Greaves, of the U.S. Army's Military Police.

Greaves apparently will remain on Grenada for an indefinite period as commander of 300 U.S. military personnel, including 150 military police and 150 support troops. A 392-man Caribbean peacekeeping force is also on the island as Grenada proceeds with plans to develop its own police force.

Nearly 5,000 U.S. troops invaded Grenada Oct. 25 for the stated purpose of protecting Americans on the island following the execution of leftist Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and seven other officials in a coup by hard-line Marxist military officers.

Experts cheered by new inflation report

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by November's 0.2 percent drop, the first in eight months, inflation at the wholesale level is running at just 0.3 percent for the year, the government said today. Food prices last month plummeted 1 percent, their steepest fall since July 1982.

The new report virtually ensures that, for all of 1983, wholesale price inflation will be less than 1 percent, which would mark the economy's best performance in nearly two decades.

Even in advance of today's annualized 11-month calculation, showing an even smaller inflationary gain than had been expected, economists were cheering the year's anticipated results.

"Fantastic," exclaimed Edward Yardeni, chief economist for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. And Michael Evans, an economic consultant here, said, "It's amazing considering where we were three years ago" when wholesale prices had surged 11.8 percent.

Prices rose 7.1 percent in 1981 and 3.7 percent last year. Not since 1964, when the gain was 0.5 percent, have wholesale prices risen at a rate below 1 percent.

The department said energy prices, as expected, also fell last month — down 1 percent. Those prices had been off in October after six months of increases.

On the good news for November food prices, the department said vegetable prices were down 16.5 percent. Fresh fruit prices fell 9.5 percent. It attributed those sharp declines to improved supplies of bananas, citrus fruits, corn, lettuce, tomatoes and beans.

Beef and veal prices fell 1.6 percent. Pork prices were off 2.9 percent. Meat prices have been down through the fall as producers sent their livestock to slaughter rather than pay feedgrain prices driven higher by the summer's drought.

As for energy, gasoline prices fell 1.1 percent last month while natural gas prices were up 0.4 percent. Home heating oil prices fell a sharp 1.8 percent.

Over the last 12 months, the Producer Price Index for finished goods rose only 0.7 percent, the smallest 12-month rise since the 0.6

percent pace set from September 1964 to September 1965.

Prices had risen 0.2 percent in September and 0.3 percent in October of this year.

Price changes that show up in the wholesale measure are a good barometer of how food, energy and other commodity prices will move at the retail level. The Consumer Price Index, though, checks for a broader range of items, including housing and medical care, than does the wholesale inflation index.

Retail prices rose at an annual rate of 3.9 percent for the first 10 months of the year, the same as for all of 1982. The November consumer price report is due out next Wednesday.

Analysts generally attribute the bright inflation picture to the lengthy recession and the falling energy prices of earlier in the year.

They also point to the abundant harvests of last year, which helped moderate food prices hikes — and even send some tumbling — through much of 1983.

All the changes are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

First major snow falls on Thursday

By The Associated Press

A winter storm dumped up to six inches of snow along the Red River this morning, left behind hundreds of accidents on slickened roads across much of North and West Texas and closed some schools, authorities said.

Travelers advisories were in effect for much of the northern half of the state because of the snow, which began falling Thursday afternoon in the Panhandle.

The snow resulted from a low pressure system, driven by strong winds at upper levels, that pushed across the state overnight.

The heaviest accumulations of snow were at Wichita Falls, where six inches had fallen in six hours by 3 a.m., and Denton. Interstate Highway 35 in Denton was impassable this morning as a result and a few area schools were forced to close for the day or to open late, authorities said.

Most of the snow in the state had stopped by about 5 a.m., but some continued to fall in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and around San Angelo and Midland.

In Dallas, two to three inches blanketed the ground at dawn. The snow snarled rush-hour traffic and caused numerous minor accidents as overpasses were glazed with a layer of ice, authorities said.

Public schools in both Dallas and Fort Worth remained open. Schools in Wichita Falls opened about 1½ hours late. Dozens of accidents were caused by the snow, but no serious injuries were reported, police spokeswoman Niki Houwers said.

"We came out of this pretty well. I was a little worried early this morning," she said.

Scattered rain showers were also falling over South Central Texas as a cold front was slowly pushing through South Texas and the upper Gulf coast.

By late Thursday night in the Panhandle, Paducah had received three to four inches of snow, Amarillo more than four inches, Tulla two inches, Plainview an inch and a light dusting also fell in Lubbock. Freezing rain was reported as far south as Midland.

About one to two inches fell around Midland and Odessa and about an inch around San Angelo. Another one to four inches fell on the South Plains.

Two to three inches covered North Texas, where crews started sanding icy freeway overpasses after the snow started late Thursday night.

Another four inches of snow fell around Sherman and Tyler reported half an inch.

Authorities in Amarillo said today that the snow there had caused 185 accidents since 7 a.m. Thursday, but there were no serious injuries.

Three separate tractor-trailer accidents Thursday blocked north and southbound lanes on U.S. 87 between Canyon and Amarillo for up to an hour after each accident.

Ten cars also were involved in the first truck accident and 30 cars were involved in these second, according to the DPS.

Skies this morning were cloudy over all of the state but small portions of far West and far South Texas.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. varied by more than 60 degrees over the state. It was 10 degrees at Amarillo and 71 at Brownsville. Readings were generally in the 30s behind the front and in the 50s ahead of it with some readings in the 20s over West Texas and the Panhandle.

The forecast called for the snow to end over North Texas this morning. But rain mixed with snow was probable over parts of East into the afternoon and scattered showers were expected over much of South Texas.

Lows tonight are expected to range from the upper teens in the Panhandle to the lower 40s in the Rio Grande Valley.

Saturday's forecast called for increasing cloudiness and warmer temperatures in North and East Texas, partly cloudy skies and cold temperatures in South Texas, and fair skies and warmer temperatures in West Texas. Highs Saturday will range from the mid 40s in the Panhandle and North Texas to the lower 70s in far West Texas.

ly contain any heating or lighting. There would, however, be some insulation. No pillars would exist, giving those practicing no obstacles other than the walls.

One point of dispute was how the structure would be funded. It was disclosed the 1983 football team netted around $22,000, thanks mainly to its one playoff game in Lubbock's Jones Stadium. Dr. Holder said about $12,000 left from next year's bond payment could be used for such a project.

A few board members questioned whether the available funds could be better used for other needed items, not for the HISD athletic program, such as air conditioners. Trustee Tom Simons, however, said he felt the football team made so much money for the district that any profits should go back into the program. The cost of the structure, he maintained, would not amount to much considering the entire HISD budget.

Hoelscher wondered if the building was of "utmost importance" on the long-range planning committee's list of concerns. Board member Bill Townsend moved the committee prioritize its projects and give a more-detailed description of the proposed facility.

Before a vote was taken, Mason said his committee could not prioritize matters not brought before it. School district officials had to inform the committee about issues, he claimed, such as Wartes and Taylor had done with their idea.

Townsend responded by saying the committee was formed to consider long-range planning, so it was its duty to seek out possible future projects. His motion passed 5-2, with Mason and Simons voting "no."

John Dominguez, principal at Shirley Elementary School, was appointed by the school board to serve on the area's juvenile board. John Claypool, HHS instructor, explained to board members what his two radio and television courses are doing.

The next scheduled meeting of the HISD Board of Education was set for Thursday, Jan. 12 at 5 p.m. in the administration building, 700 Union.

The Newspaper BIBLE

GOD HAS SOMETHING VERY SPECIAL FOR YOU

"Dear brothers, I realize that what you did to Jesus was done in ignorance; and the same can be said of your leaders. But God was fulfilling the prophecies that the Messiah must suffer all these things.

"Now change your mind and attitude to God and turn to Him so He can cleanse away your sins and send you wonderful times of refreshment from the presence of the Lord and send Jesus your Messiah back to you again.

"For He must remain in heaven until the final recovery of all things from sin, as prophesied from ancient times. Moses, for instance, said long ago, 'The Lord God will raise up a Prophet among you, who will resemble Me! Listen carefully to everything He tells you. Anyone who will not listen to Him shall be utterly destroyed.' Samuel and every prophet since have all spoken about what is going on today.

"You are the children of those prophets; and you are included in God's promise to your ancestors to bless the entire world through the Jewish race—that is the promise God gave to Abraham.

"And as soon as God had brought His servant to life again, he sent Him first of all to you men of Israel, to bless you by turning you back from your sins."

Kuhn sounds stern warning with suspension of 4 players

NEW YORK (AP) - Commissioner Bowie Kuhn sounded a stern warning as he imposed the stiffest drug penalties in baseball's history.

"We take the drug problem and role as models for young people seriously," Kuhn said. "We will do what is reasonably necessary to protect the game."

On Thursday, the commissioner's office revealed that it had imposed one-year suspensions without pay on Steve Howe of Los Angeles,

Bowie Kuhn

Willie Wilson and Willie Aikens of Kansas City and former Royals player Jerry Martin.

In Howe's case, the suspension could last even longer than one year. Howe's suspension cannot be reviewed until Dec. 15, 1984, at which time it could be extended if he has not conquered his cocaine dependency.

Kuhn left open the possibility of ending the other three players' suspensions as early as May 15, when their cases will be reviewed. Kuhn cited their three-month prison sentences for attempted possession of cocaine and public apologies as mitigating circumstances. At the same time, Kuhn said each of the three had admitted during his investigation that they had occasionally used cocaine.

"The two situations are very different," Kuhn said in differentiating between the suspensions given Howe and the three others. "In Howe's case, it clearly will be a year and could be longer."

Also facing possible sanction was Vida Blue, a former MVP and Cy Young award-winning pitcher who was cut by the Royals last August. "A message?" the commissioner asked rhetorically. "Yes, I think it is a message."

While this message came through loud and clear to baseball's front offices, Wilson said he wasn't sure he agreed fully with it.

Interviewed from prison, Wilson told ABC-TV's Nightline news show that he understood Kuhn's warning, "but if he wants to make me a role model, that's fine on the field. Baseball is my job. But off the field, I'm a role model to my own kids. That's all I have to do."

Wilson said he had stopped using cocaine long before he was arrested and that he got involved with the police only because he made a phone call to a drug dealer for a friend.

At a news conference in Los Angeles, Dodgers President Peter O'Malley said, "We respect the commissioner's decision. We will certainly abide by it, and, quite frankly, I agree with it."

Howe underwent drug rehabilitation prior to last season, then went on the disabled list last May to re-enter the program. After failing to kick his habit, Howe was suspended by the club twice and fined 154,000, the equivalent of one month of his $350,000 annual salary.

In his statement, the commissioner said Howe failed three cocaine tests as recently as last month. Howe had not surfaced for comment, but his attorney, Roy Bell, called the suspension a "turn-of-the-century, knee-jerk reaction." "I don't think you should punish someone who has a disease," Bell said. "The guy is ill."

Wilson and Martin, both outfielders, began serving their three-month sentences at a minimum security federal prison in Fort Worth, Texas on Dec. 5. Aikens, who is completing a drug rehabilitation program, is scheduled to enter the same facility on Jan. 3.

Wilson, whose .332 average earned him the American League batting title in 1982, was the only player who figured in Kansas City's plans for next season. Aikens, a first baseman, presumably will be traded, and Martin was set free at the season's conclusion.

"having been handed this decision, we can now look forward to the 1984 season with clarity and plan accordingly," Royals General Manager John Schuerholz said. "The message is clear - he Kuhn cares about the integrity of the sport."

Spartans struggle by St. Peter's

By The Associated Press
The Michigan State Spartans aren't having much trouble this year - except when they play the supposedly weak teams on their schedule.

Earlier this year, Jud Heathcote's Big Ten basketball power was upset by little St. Peter's of New Jersey. And Thursday night, the 17th-ranked Spartans struggled before beating unheralded Brooklyn College 85-72 in the only game involving a Top Twenty team.

"We came out and played in the first half, but in the second half, we didn't open up like we should have," said Spartans guard Sam Vincent, who led all scorers with 22 points. "We had a million opportunities to go up by 30 or 40, and instead of doing that, we always made the bad play."

"You know, we win by 15 and you think maybe we played pretty good, but in all honesty, we didn't play very well. When you play a team of this caliber, you should easily win by 40. It's a win, but we're really not satisfied."

Brooklyn, playing its fourth game in six days and losing two of them by an average margin of 25 points, was led by Rich Micallef's 18 points.

Kevin Willis, Michigan State's 7-foot center, scored a season-high 17 points and grabbed seven rebounds, while Scott Skiles had 15 points and Patrick Ford added 13 for the Spartans.

Unranked Teams

In other action, Ron Anderson scored 18 points to lead Fresno State over Sacramento State 73-46, Ed Porter had 23 points and 12 rebounds to pace Nevada-Reno to a 94-82 victory over Southern Oregon State, despite a 30-point, 16-rebound performance for the Raiders' Mycahl Hitchcock, and Robert Brown scored 22 points in the second half to lead Long Island University to an 86-49 victory over CCNY.

Also, Donald Russell hit a layup as time expired to propel Massachusetts to a 67-65 overtime win over Connecticut, a steal and stuff by Morehead State's 5-foot-9 guard Arthur Sullivan sealed an 81-78 victory over Marshall, John Sherman Williams scored 21 points as Indiana State defeated Cincinnati 84-63 and Marvin Ray Johnson and Steve Mitchell scored 10 points apiece as Alabama-Birmingham whipped U.S. International 71-56.

Alabama rolls over Texas Tech

By DAVID LAMMERS
Associated Press Writer
OSAKA, Japan (AP) - Alabama outmuscled Texas Tech 76-56 in the second round of the Suntory Ball college basketball tournament Friday before 15,500 Japanese basketball fans at Osaka Castle Hall.

"We just could not rebound with them," Red Raiders coach Gerald Myers said after Texas Tech's second loss of the season against five victories.

Alabama scored 12 points on offensive rebound shots in the first half, opening up a 21-11 lead after the first 10 minutes of play.

Texas Tech's 5-foot 10 guard Bubba Jennings kept the Raiders in the game early on with crowd-pleasing jumpshots from outside, going 6-for-7 from the field in the first half and finishing with 18 points, high for the Raiders.

Texas Tech was 11-for-18 from the field and 7-for-8 from the free throw line but went to the locker room down 38-29.

The win was Alabama's sixth this year and came just a day after their first season loss, to De Paul 77-76, in the tournament opener Thursday.

Alabama was led by 6-foot 10-inch (206-cm) jumpshot artist Terry Williams who scored a game-high 20 points, followed by forward Buck Johnson's 18 and 15 for burly center Bobby Lee Hurt.

Texas Tech will face De Paul, 6-0, in the round-robin's final game in Tokyo Sunday, which is De Paul coach Ray Meyer's 70th birthday.

The Raiders had defeated Nebraska at Lincoln and Pepperdine earlier on the road, but coach Myers said Alabama was "the biggest team we have faced thus far. They are quick, good shooters and just a real fine basketball team."

Lakers lose without 'Magic'

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Lakers have lost that magic - Earvin "Magic" Johnson, to be more exact.

"They're a lot different team without Magic Johnson, and I think that shows," Phoenix forward Larry Nance said after the Suns handed the Lakers their latest National Basketball Association loss. "They still run the ball a lot, but they don't run it quite as fast as with Magic."

With Nance scoring 33 points, Phoenix eclipsed the Magic-less Lakers 114-104 Thursday night.

In other NBA games, it was Chicago 113, New York 107; Utah 138, Houston 111; Golden State 119, Kansas City 116, and Portland 118, New Jersey 105.

Johnson, the Lakers' all-star guard, dislocated his right index finger on Dec. 2 and will be sidelined until mid-January. Los Angeles has struggled to a 2-2 record since then.

"It's exasperating knowing we're a good team and we can't play effectively," said Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. "We don't want to turn into a bad team."

Nance's layin with 2:39 to go and Walter Davis' jumped 1:01 later made it 112-100 before Nance slammed home his final points with 38 seconds left to seal the victory.

Nance's 33-point effort was just two shy of his career and season high.

Jazz 138, Rockets 111
Andrian Dantley scored 32 points and Darrell Griffith 29 as Utah defeated Houston. Lewis Lloyd topped the losers with 20 points, while rookie Ralph Sampson had 18.

Dantley scored 19 of his points in the second quarter after Griffith had tallied 17 points in the first period as the Jazz took control early and won the game going away.

Bulls 113, Knicks 107
Guards Mitchell Wiggins and Quintin Dailey combined for 27 points in the fourth quarter to lead Chicago past New York.

"We were just running and gunning," said Wiggins, who finished with 25 points, 23 in the second half and 15 in the final period. Dailey scored 27 points to lead Chicago, while New York's Bernard King topped all scorers with a season-high 36.

Warriors 119, Kings 116
Lester Conner scored four points in the final 27-seconds to lift Golden State over Kansas City.

Longhorns land 2 on All-America squad

Nebraska leads NEA team

By Murray Olderman

NEW YORK (NEA) — If any proof is needed that the University of Nebraska football team is the most awesome offensive force in the modern era of the collegiate game, it is provided with the announcement today of the 1983 All-America team by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Three of the Cornhuskers, led by running back Mike Rozier, are unanimous choices on the offensive unit. The others: wingback Irving Fryar and guard Dean Steinkuhler.

The NEA All-America team is selected by canvassing the nation's leading football coaches, writers and scouts.

Fryar, a receiver-runner, is regarded by pro scouts as the best prospect of them all.

Dean Steinkuhler is an explosive player who has been called by his own coach, Tom Osborne, the finest lineman in the history of the school. (This is only after Dave Rilmington, the '82 center, was named the nation's top blocker and winner of the Outland Trophy.)

Another high-powered attack, the Brigham Young offense, produced two NEA All-Americans — quarterback Steve Young throwing to tight end Gordon Hudson. The accent of the modern game is on swiftness, with the left-handed Young having as his targets on this 1983 squad such swiftness as Fryar and Kenny Jackson of Penn State at wide receiver — along with Bo Jackson of Auburn and Rozier coming out of the backfield.

On offense, the NEA All-America team is fronted by a gigantic set of linemen, averaging 272 pounds per position from tackle to tackle.

Bill Fralic, a repeater from last year, teams with 295-pound Brian Blados of North Carolina at the tackles. Steinkuhler is joined at guard by Gary Zimmerman of Oregon, who shows that you don't have to be on a winning team to attract attention. The anchor is center Mike Ruether, who emigrated to Texas from Shawnee Mission, Kan. (home of the NCAA statistical bureau).

The placekicker, Luis Zendejas of Arizona State, is from the clan that also displays field-goal booters at the University of Nevada (Reno) and the University of Arizona.

All this isn't designed to snub NEA's All-America defense.

It features highly mobile hitters ranging from pass-rushing phenom Reggie White of Tennessee at end to hard-tackling safety Jerry Gray of Texas.

To conform to the style of play predominant in college football today — the "Oklahoma defense" with variations thereof — the defenders have been designated by the area in which they perform instead of specific positions.

So, White is joined in the prevalent three-man front by Rick Bryan of Oklahoma and Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech.

Behind them ranges a brilliant quartet of linebackers, players who have the pro scouts slaving in anticipation. These defenders are fast enough to drop back in pass coverage and still intimidate runners with their size (in the 230-pound range). Remember their names: Wilber Marshall of Florida, Ron Rivera of California, Ricky Hunley of Arizona and Carl Banks of Michigan State.

There are two sophomores on the '83 All-America team. One is running back Bo Jackson. The other is defensive back Craig Swoope, whose ball-hawking was pivotal in the march by Illinois to the Rose Bowl. Russell Carter of SMU gives the southwest two men in the secondary — the other is Gray of Texas. The deep umbrella is rounded out by All-America Terry Hoage of Georgia, who has been labeled by grid expert Frank Broyles as the best defensive back he has ever seen.

Jimmy Colquitt of Tennessee completes the squad as its punter.

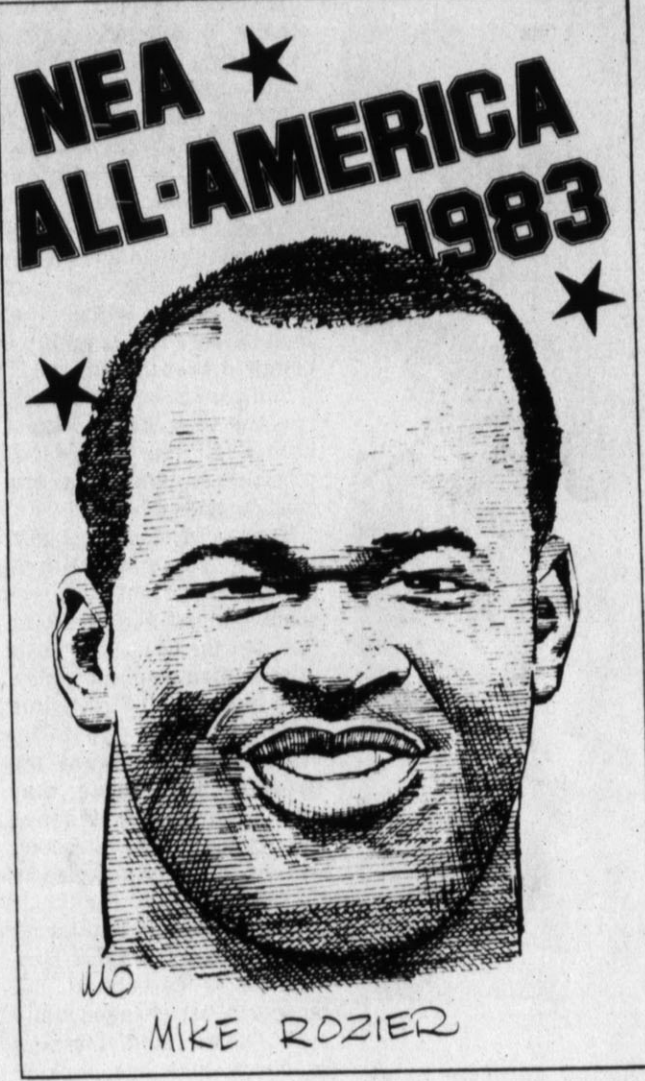

The 1983 NEA All-America team lines up as follows:

Saint-Ram winner in playoffs; Jets travel to Miami tonight

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"It's the biggest game in the history of the New Orleans Saints franchise," nose tackle Derland Moore said of Sunday's National Football League meeting with the Los Angeles Rams.

The winner goes to the playoffs. And a New Orleans victory would also give the Saints their first winning season since the team was formed 17 years ago.

The Rams, if they win, have a chance to capture the National Conference West title, which would give them a first-round bye.

"So many times I've felt bitter, sitting at home watching other people play on television," said Moore, an 11-year veteran. "I always wondered what it would feel like being in contention this late in the season. It feels great."

The final regular-season NFL weekend, with several teams still seeking playoff berths, kicks off tonight when the New York Jets travel to Miami to meet the Dolphins. Tonight's contest is a warm-up for a hoped-for return trip to the Super Bowl for the Dolphins, 11-4, who easily captured the American Conference East Division.

The Jets, a preseason pick to make the playoffs, are at 7-8 and could fall into a tie with Baltimore in the AFC East basement.

On Saturday, the Washington Redskins, 13-2, try to wrap up the National Conference East title when they host the New York Giants, 3-11-1, while Cincinnati, 7-8, travels to Minnesota, 7-8.

Sunday's games will have Denver, 9-6, at Kansas City,

5-10; Green Bay, 8-7, at Chicago, 7-8; the Rams, 8-7, at New Orleans, 8-7; Philadelphia, 5-10, at St. Louis, 7-7-1; Pittsburgh, 10-5, at Cleveland, 8-7; Buffalo, 8-7, at Atlanta, 6-9; Houston, 2-13, at Baltimore, 6-9; San Diego, 6-9, at the Los Angeles Raiders, 11-4; New England, 8-7, at Seattle, 8-7; and Tampa Bay, 2-13, at Detroit, 8-7.

On Monday, Dallas, 12-3, travels to San Francisco, 9-6. Pittsburgh has clinched the AFC Central crown and the Raiders the AFC West. And Denver is assured a wild card berth.

It's in the National Conference where most of the playoff berths remain open. Although Washington and Dallas have clinched postseason spots, Washington needs a victory or a Dallas loss to nail down the NFC East title.

The Saints are one of the few teams who can determine their own date: a win gets a playoff berth, a loss means the season's over. Detroit can win the NFC Central with a victory, despite what anyone else does, and Seattle could wrap up the last AFC wild card with a victory.

The Rams could grab the NFC West title and a playoff berth if they win and San Francisco loses. But in order for Los Angeles to get a wild card, they would need to beat New Orleans, have either Detroit or Green Bay lose and San Francisco beat Dallas.

New England can get a wild card by beating Seattle, if Cleveland loses. Buffalo can get in with a victory, a loss by Cleveland and a tie by the Patriots and Seattle.

Cleveland is in with a victory and losses by Seattle and Buffalo. Green Bay can win the NFC Central if Detroit loses, or can be a wild card by winning and New Orleans losing.

San Francisco can win the NFC West by beating Dallas. The 49ers also can get a wild card even while losing, if Green Bay also loses, or if Green Bay wins the NFC Central title.

Meanwhile, Houston and Cincinnati are looking at next year's college draft. The Oilers and Tampa Bay are battling for the worst record this season, which will give them the first two picks in the draft. But the Cincinnati Bengals own Tampa Bay's No. 1 draft pick.

If Houston and Tampa Bay finish with identical records, the league will determine who gets the first pick by the records of their opponents.

Tampa Bay leads that race by 1½ games with 14 games to go.

THE MIRACLE MAN. THAT'S WHAT THE DOCTOR CALLED HIM!

HOWARD O. PITTMAN was a Baptist minister for 35 years. On August 3, 1979, his main trunk artery ruptured and at some point in the ensuing hours, he suffered physical death. His spirit was lifted from his body by his guardian angels and taken into the Second Heaven (Satan's dominion) where he saw many startling things.

He appeared before our Lord in the Third Heaven where he pleaded for an extension of his physical life. It was here that God showed him what kind of life worship and service to Jesus Christ he had really led. He was given a message to bring back to God's latter rain soldiers in this generation.

Postmaster has hands full untangling flag

BRONTE, Texas (AP) — Old Glory slipped her mooring outside the U.S. Post Office here recently, with some help from a stiff breeze. But the postmaster knew just what to do.

Soon Bronte Water Superintendent Don Adams and a lineman from West Texas Utilities showed up and in just a few minutes, the fugitive flagpole rope was secured and tethered tightly.

"Yeah. The wind just jiggled her loose and she flew way out yonder and got all tangled in them power lines," Bronte Postmaster Noah Pruitt said.

"I'm always having trouble with that flagpole or the rope or something. If it's not the wind it's the kids," Pruitt said, recalling other times he'd had to get help with a similar problem.

"They've cut that rope before and we had to get one of those bucket trucks out here to get up there to replace the rope," the postmaster said. "Then another time a kid climbed over halfway up that pole and wrapped tape around both sides of the rope. We couldn't move it either way, up or down."

But all the while Pruitt related deeds of midnight handiwork a hint of a smile never left his face. He seemed not surprised at such foolishness.

"Oh, yeah. When I was a kid me and a bunch of my buddies used to get into our share of mischief," Pruitt said. He pointed to the alley behind a row of buildings that face Main Street in downtown Bronte — just across the street from the post office.

"We'd run down that alley after dark. They didn't have inside plumbing in those days, you know. We'd push over the outhouses that were set up behind those stores," Pruitt said. "And all the time we'd have to be watching out for Mr. Sims. He was the night watchman back then — F.F. Sims."

Pruitt was born in Coke County, north of San Angelo, in 1923.

"I've lived here in Bronte all my life," he said. He has been with the post office for 30 years.

"I'm going to retire here pretty soon," he explained. "It's about time I started doing some of the stuff I want to do."

Business Mirror

Plan formulated to restore stability

NEW YORK (AP) — John Rennie, a national leader in conceiving and developing opportunities for small business, has an idea that in time could help restore financial stability to many American companies.

"I suggest," he says, "that (corporate) managers might be marked down for maximizing profits rather than making sure the company is competitive in the long run."

Companies have problems because they stressed quick profits at the expense of research or other long-term considerations.

For too brief a time, says Rennie, some short-term managers might impress stock analysts and investors. But over the years they drain their companies of substance.

To budge Wall Street from fixed notions about investments might seem impossible, but Rennie may win. He argues that unless they change, Wall Streeters will miss the companies of the future.

SBANE is the oldest of many regional groups developed in recent years to help counter, among other things, the government's thinking that only big companies can perform.

SBU, something of an outgrowth of SBANE, is a coalition of regional associations with 60,000 members in 35 states, and a reputation as an outfit that understands and can deal with private and public sectors.

Small-business executives work hard, in Rennie's case 80 hours a week running a 300-employee operation making aviation equipment and providing technical services.

Increasingly, they work effectively too. Led by SBANE, several New England companies sought to overcome a major problem for small companies seeking contracts with larger firms or the government.

Warned that what they proposed might not be legal, they nevertheless formed the Small Business Technology Group Inc. to pool research and production skills and, in effect, get big-company capabilities.

On Sept. 20, they won Justice Department approval for their company, which is bound to become a model.

Meanwhile, Rennie, an English major at the U.S. Naval Academy, rushed to completion "Expertise," a book on small-business exporting, an area of unlimited, unexploited opportunities.

And he and his associates in SBANE and SBU worked on plans to convince the White House that soon there ought to be a reprise of the 1980 conference there on small-business needs and opportunities.

Jacobsen hosts club Christmas party

Members of the Lone Star Study Club met in the home of Ursalee Jacobsen Tuesday afternoon for their annual Christmas party. Bertha Detmann was co-hostess.

During a short business session, conducted by President Ruby Stevenson, a donation was made to the Chamber of Commerce Christmas lighting fund.

Nadine Hill reported on the committee which was to select a needy family. Food and a contribution will be taken to the family. Also on the committee were Grace Tinnin and Carmen Angel.

Oneita Davidson introduced Opal Bookout, who gave the program on "Exploring Christmas." She started with a Christmas quiz and then told how Christmas is observed in other countries.

She said that the upper class in England started the tradition of sending cards because they were the only ones who could afford the one cent postage. She added that England also began the use of candles and the Yule Log.

Many traditions from other lands have been brought to America, said Ms. Bookout. She concluded the program by reading a short story about a Bronx boys choir and how they found the true meaning of Christmas.

After the program the group sang "Silent Night" and Ms. Jacobsen played a medley of carols on the organ. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served to Juanita Boynton, Evadna Cox, Jessie Mae Dodson, Margaret Ann Durham, Wilma Goettsch.

Also, Hilda Haven, Lucile

Naylor, Verna Sowell, Zoe Williams, Winnie Wiseman, Ruth Womble, Mildred Elliott, Sue Hensley, and Mmes. Angel, Bookout, Davidson, Hill, Stevenson and Tinnin.

The next meeting will be Jan. 10 in the home of Nadine Hill.

Ann Landers

Vermont was the first

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman from Minnesota wrote recently to say she was so proud that her state was the first to pass legislation making it mandatory to attempt to help an individual in distress. She said, "There is now fine of $100 if a person fails to come to the aid of someone in an emergency."

You congratulated Minnesota and went on to cite the history of humanitarianism of the state.

Sorry, Ann, Minnesota was not the first. In 1967, the Vermont legislature passed the "Duty to Aid the Endangered Act" which fines a person $100 who fails to provide assistance to an individual exposed to grave physical harm—to the extent that aid can be rendered without danger to himself.

Also in Massachusetts a physician licensed under the Medical Practice Act has an obligation to provide medical services to a person in a medical emergency unless the physician's training or experience makes him unqualified to do so, in which case the physician must make a reasonable attempt to secure competent emergency aid.

To date neither the Vermont nor the Massachusetts regulation has been specifically applied.—D.G.B. (Chicago attorney whose specialty is health care law)

DEAR D.G.B.: Thanks for the excellent research. And now I am moved to ask those who live in Vermont or Massachusetts—why have these laws never been used?

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

Please help me decide what to do. I trust your judgment. For many years my husband and I talked about buying a flag and putting up a pole so we could appropriately celebrate patriotic holidays. We never got around to doing it. Unfortunately he died three years ago.

At the funeral service I was presented with a flag, folded. My husband was a veteran. My question: Would it be in poor taste to fly this flag? Or, should I keep it folded as I have done for the last three years?—Unsure In Corpus Christi

DEAR UNSURE: Any flag that is flown eventually becomes faded and often torn while exposed to the elements over a period of time. My advice is to keep that flag folded and see that it is handed down to your children and grandchildren as a symbol of your husband's service to his country. Buy another flag and display it to honor his memory.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I, both 70, are retired. We moved to California from the Midwest to be near our children.

Our daughter wants us to baby-sit her three young ones five days a week from 2:30 until 6 p.m. so she can take a full-time job. I don't want the responsibility. It would deny us the freedom we have looked forward to for so many years.

Our daughter and her husband are angry with us and I am hurt. My husband is on their side. He says he is willing to sit with the grandkids and that I am selfish. What do you think?—Trouble In Stockton

DEAR STOCK: If your husband wants to sit, let him.

You deserve your freedom. In my opinion it's your daughter and her husband who are selfish.

Pakistan became a republic in 1956.

Engineer will work to help other inmates

DALLAS (AP) — Lenell Geter, cleared by a state judge to fly home today to his South Carolina family for Christmas, says he wants to become an advisor to prison inmates after his case is resolved.

The 26-year-old engineer, who was employed at E-Systems Inc. in Greenville before his arrest on armed robbery charges, said Thursday that during his 16 months behind bars he found some prison inmates who probably had not received fair trials.

"There's a very small minority (of inmates) that got a raw deal," he told The Associated Press. "I'm very burdened by that. I've seen men cry. I've heard stories of men who were separated from their families and their wives having to go on welfare for no reason."

Geter was released on $10,000 bond Wednesday after an appeals court granted a request from both prosecutors and defense attorneys for a new trial.

State District Judge John Ovard Thursday waived all travel restrictions on Geter's bond and scheduled a pre-trial hearing for Jan. 30. Geter planned to return home to South Carolina today.

Texas Gov. Mark White, who had urged a speedy study of Geter's appeal, said Thursday at his weekly news conference in Austin he believes the courts "are in the right position now."

"I think the district attorney in Dallas has taken the right steps to ensure there is justice done in the case," White said. "They have an opportunity to review the facts. If there has been a mistake made, I think it's appropriate we correct the mistake."

Geter claims he became a suspect in a string of Dallas-area robberies only because he is black and looked suspicious to an elderly white woman.

Five eyewitnesses testified that Geter was the man who robbed a fast-food restaurant in the Dallas suburb of Balch Springs, but nine co-workers said he was at work on the day of the robbery. Two of the nine — the two who could place Geter at his desk at the hour of the hold-up — did not testify but gave depositions after his conviction and life sentence.

The unusual legal maneuvering that led to his release began Monday when Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade said public pressure prompted him to agree to a new trial for Geter. Wade also said that if Geter passed a lie detector test, all charges against him would be dropped, completely clearing him.

Geter said he would be willing to take the test if his attorneys approved, but court-appointed defense lawyer Edwin Sigel said he and his colleagues still had reservations about the test.

A polygraph administered last spring produced inconclusive results because of Geter's nervousness, officials said, but he did pass a sodium pentothal "truth serum" test.

Sigel said a decision will be made in January on whether to go ahead with the polygraph.

"We won't do it until he gets out of that incarceration mentality. He was in prison for more than a year and that makes you very nervous," he said.

Geter was released after several of his co-workers from the aerospace firm drove to Dallas to deliver the bond they raised through personal loans from the E-Systems credit union.

Geter was one of six black engineers from South Carolina whose pictures were circulated to Dallas-area police officials after a Greenville robbery. Geter became a suspect, Greenville authorities said, only after an elderly white woman thought Geter looked suspicious because he frequented a city park after work.

Wade, Sigel and Ovard, whose court has jurisdiction, all asked the 5th District Texas Court of Appeals to remand the case back to Ovard's court for a new trial. A three-judge panel of the court agreed to the request Wednesday.

While in prison, Geter helped teach inmates to read and write and conducted Bible study classes and chess tournaments.

Geter said would probably return to work, possibly at E-Systems, and would be eager to help some of his friends in prison.

"I do want to encourage men as best I can. I don't mind being a resource person and being able to advise the ones who got railroaded. But I can't say now that I will dedicate myself to that cause," he said.

"I'm still thinking about what I can possibly give to those people," he said. "I'm willing to do what I can because I'm hurting — not only about my situation, but also because there are others separated from their families for nothing."

On compromise

Task force calls off final vote

AUSTIN (AP) — Some top officials of the Texas Farm Bureau who oppose a so-called compromise farmworkers insurance bill can expect to get telephone calls from Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The Joint Committee on Farmworkers Insurance called off a scheduled final vote Thursday on the proposed legislation after S.M. True Jr., president of the Texas Farm Bureau, informed Chairman Tony Koriath of Austin that the statewide farmers organization would not support the plan. He said the bureau considered the proposal to be a "mandatory" workers compensation law for agricultural employers and preferred giving growers an option of self insurance.

Koriath said another meeting of the Joint Committee on Farmworkers Insurance would be called after White and Hobby had a chance to talk with Farm Bureau representatives and other members of the special committee.

Former House Speaker Bill Clayton, a committee member, was unsuccessful in calling for a vote, even a straw poll, Thursday to gauge the consensus of the group.

"It is ridiculous for us to throw in the towel just because one group backed off from the compromise," Clayton said. "I suggest we move on with it now."

The next meeting also will consider amendments suggested by members Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Amarillo, and Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, to protect small farmers.

Sarpalus said he would sign the bill if it included an exemption for "casual" employees "such as high school students who pitch hay for a farmer for a few days."

Whaley wants the bill to exempt small farmers who do not pay out more than $25,000 a year for hired help.

The compromise bill, which some committee members said was almost unanimously approved at a recent meeting in Wimberly, would cover all migrant and seasonal farm workers whose employers pay more than $100,000 a year in wages. All other workers would be covered gradually over a 10-year phase-in period. The labor contractor and the grower would be jointly responsible to provide the workers compensation insurance.

South of the Border

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police arrested three leftist leaders as they left a house Thursday in Mexico City, and two others in troubled southern Mexico, the Unified Socialist Party said in a news release.

The release said Jesus Vicente Vazquez, Sabino Lopez and Alfredo Hernandez Vargas were arrested together Thursday morning as they stepped out of a house in a northern Mexico City neighborhood.

But Alejandro Crespo, a spokesman for the government's Interior Department, denied any arrests had been made.

Vazquez, former police chief in Juchitan in southern Oaxaca state, was negotiating with the government to win the release of 168 members of the leftist Coalition of Workers, Peasants and Students of the Isthmus arrested in Oaxaca this week, the release said.

Two other coalition leaders — Heriberto Pasos and Daniel Lopez Nelios, the coalition's candidate for mayoral elections in Juchitan last month — were arrested in Oaxaca, the state capital Thursday, the release said.

Hundreds of state and federal police stormed and retook the municipal palace in Juchitan, 480 miles southeast of the capital, before dawn Tuesday from coalition supporters who had held it since August. Coalition leaders said 85 people were beaten and arrested in the police action.

Party spokesman Gudelia Pineda said 33 other leftist activists were arrested Monday in Ixtepec, a small town near Juchitan. She said 50 other coalition members were arrested in Juchitan late Wednesday and 40 other leftist activists are missing.

The raid on the municipal palace was the culmination of a long struggle for control over the town of 100,000 people. The coalition won March 1961 city elections, but in August the state government ordered its leaders from office, blaming them for campaign violence in which two men were shot to death.

The coalition, however, refused to leave city hall.

The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party won

Nov. 20 municipal elections, but the coalition charged fraud and said it would not vacate the palace.

Opposition parties charge that the Institutional Revolutionary Party has maintained its domination of politics since 1929 by stealing elections it cannot win.

GUADALAJARA (AP) — A bus and a pickup truck crashed in a head-on collision on a mountain road 60 miles east of here, killing three people and injuring nine others, hospital authorities said.

The Mexico City daily Excelsior, reporting from Guadalajara, 332 miles west of the capital, said the driver of the bus, which was headed towards Guadalajara, was killed instantly in the crash, as were two brothers riding in the pick-up truck.

Injured and shocked survivors were rushed to the Green Cross clinic and other hospitals in Guadalajara, Excelsior said, citing hospital sources.

The accident occurred early Wednesday amid fog and slick roads in the mountains near the town of Ocotlan, it said.

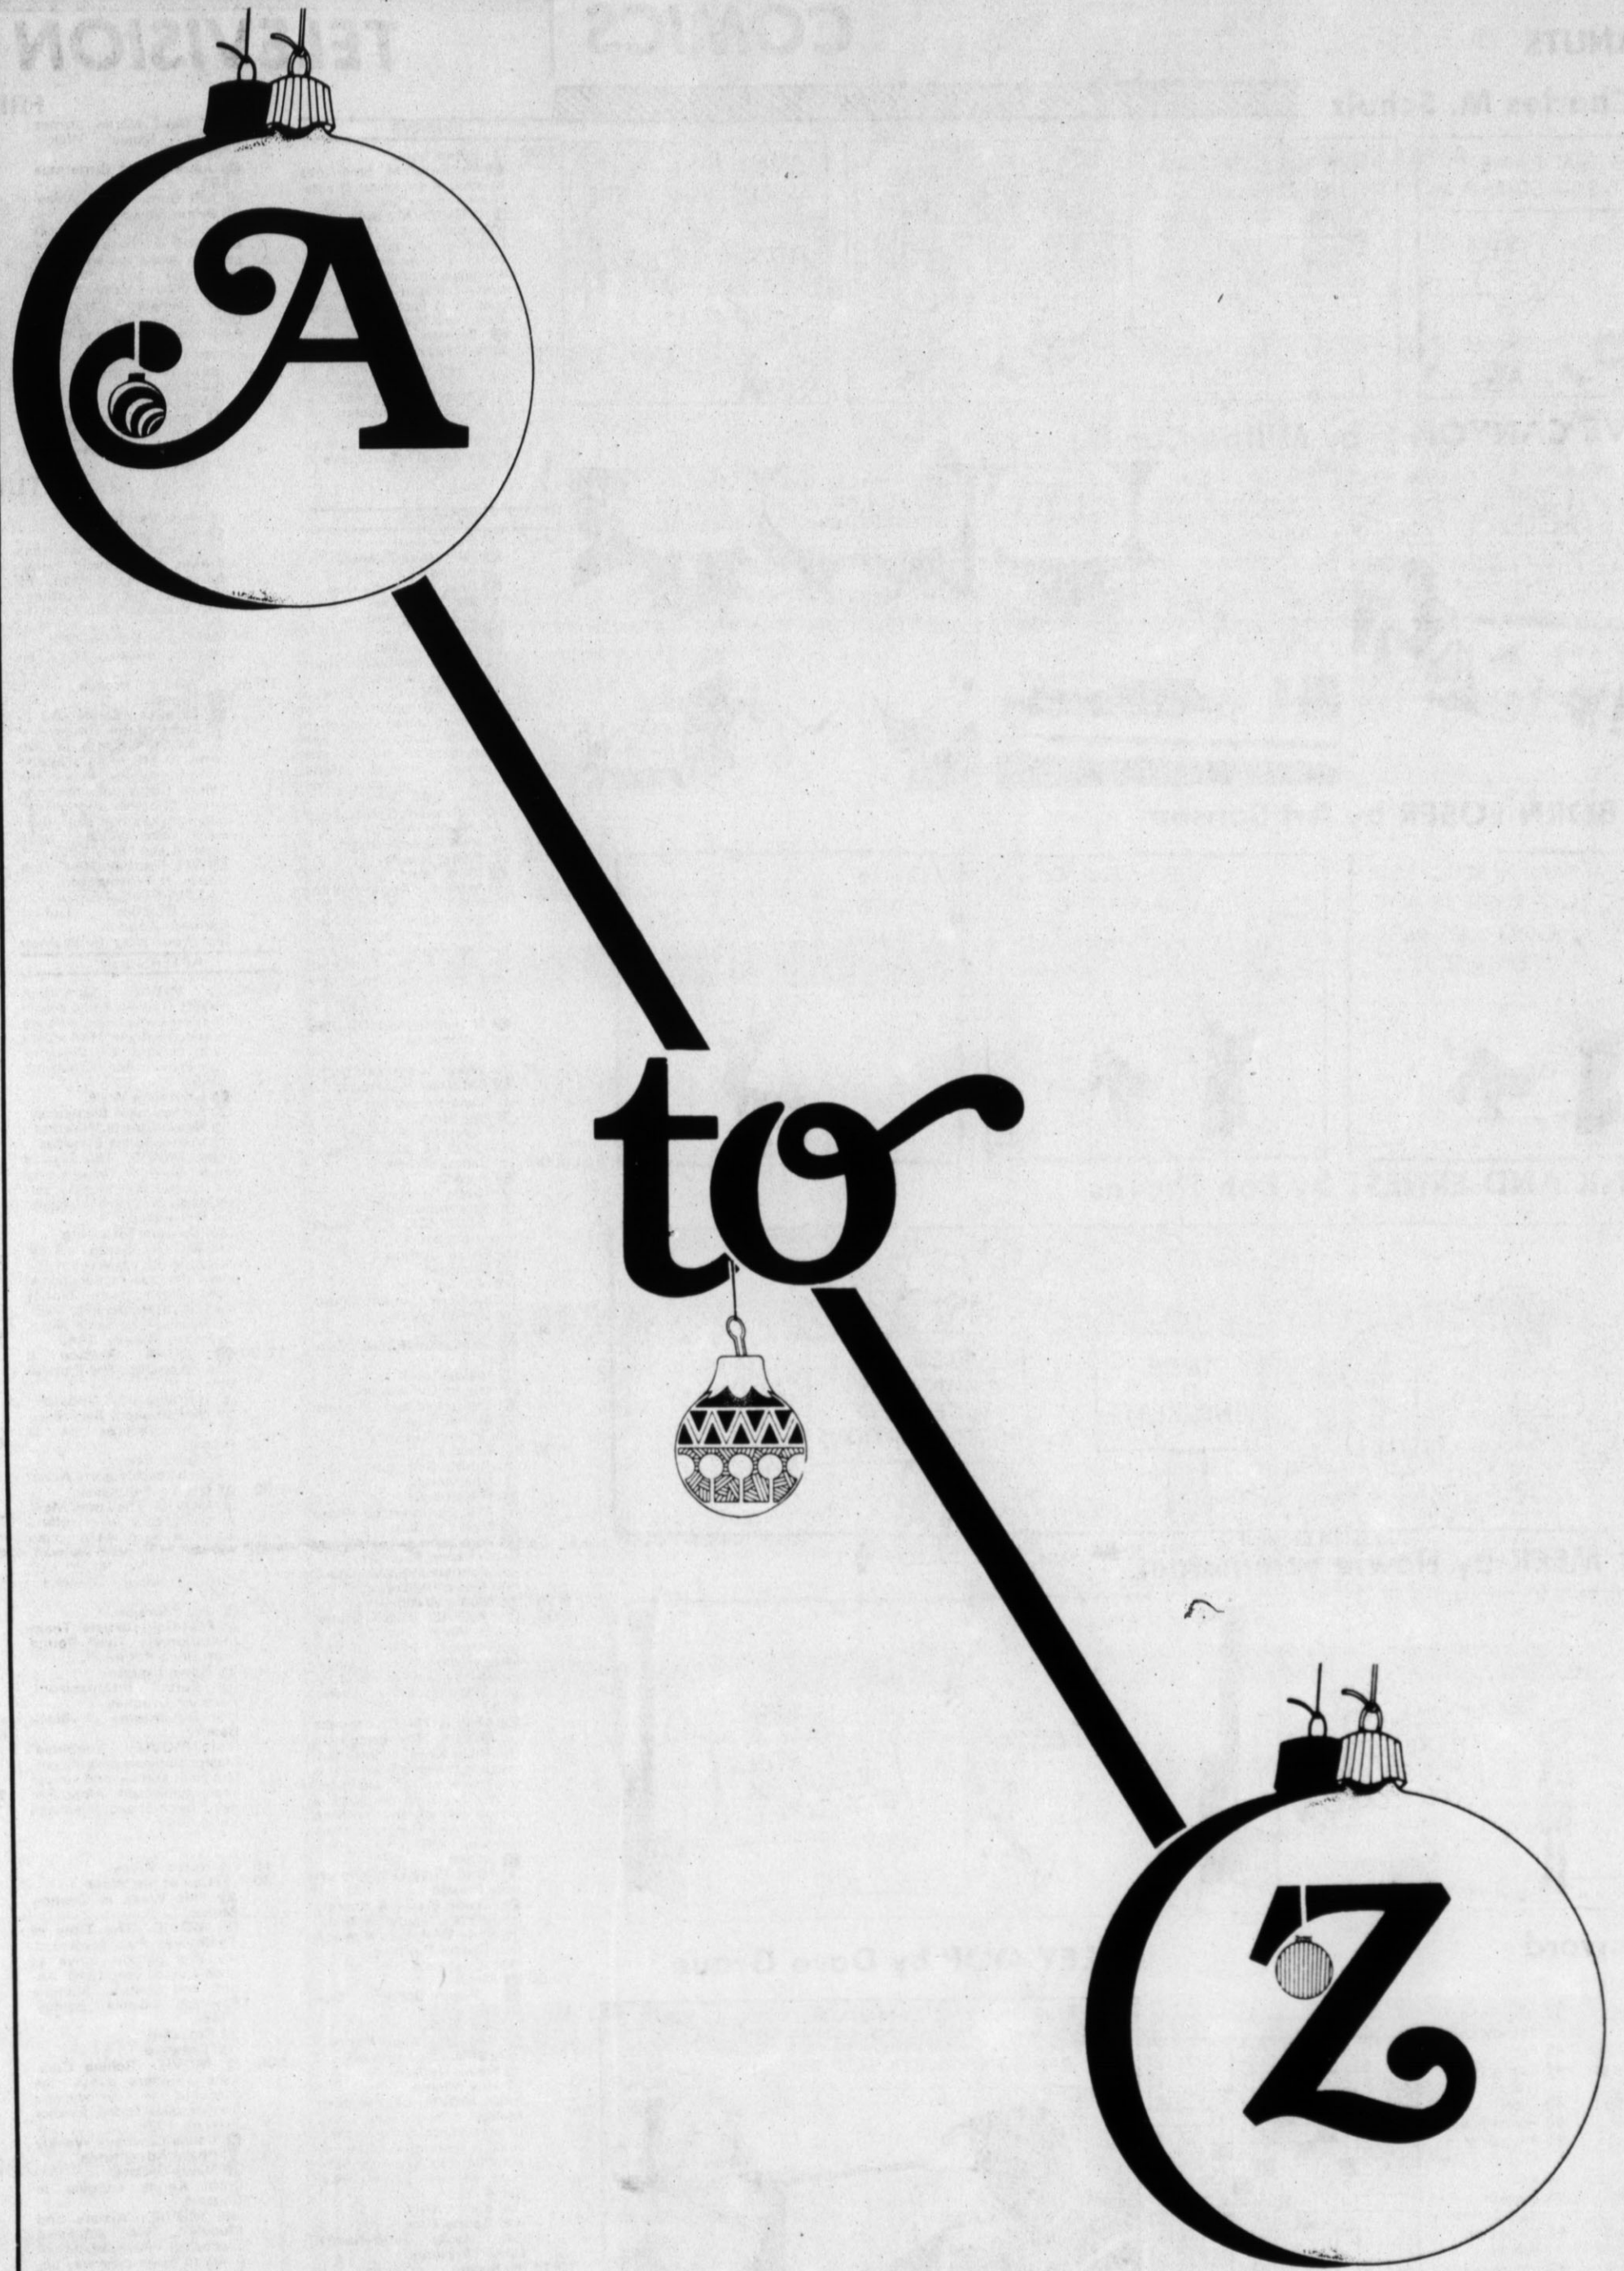

MEXICO CITY (AP) — City authorities are searching for four fugitive former government employees said to be involved in a $685,000 embezzlement scandal here, a spokesman said.

Former city councilman Leopoldo Sanchez Duarte and three of his assistants apparently fled their homes in Mexico City when they got word authorities were searching for them, a city attorney's office spokesman said late Wednesday.

Already, six city officials and eight businessmen have been jailed in the scandal, involving kickbacks and illegal payments for public works projects in the picturesque Coyoacan neighborhood of southern Mexico City.

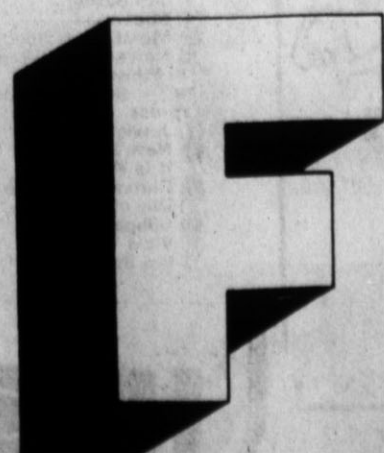

Sanchez Duarte left his post as councilman for Coyoacan in 1962. His successor, David Castillo Gonzalez, was the first to be arrested.

After he was taken into custody in November, Castillo began naming names, and the rest of the officials were arrested.

Made Beautiful

Snow has a way of making the most ordinary objects look pretty. The snowfall that began Thursday morning continued until late afternoon leaving behind a winter wonderland.

White cloudy on race support

AUSTIN (AP) — Ohio Sen. John Glenn is a "good friend" who is doing a "good job" and would run well in Texas against President Reagan, says Gov. Mark White.

But don't use that as an indicator of White's leanings in the Democratic presidential scramble. He says the same things about Walter Mondale.

"I've got friends on both sides," White said at a Thursday news conference.

Glenn was vote-hunting in Texas on Wednesday, and White hosted a Governor's Mansion reception for the former astronaut. Mondale will get the same hospitality, says the governor.

"I'll be delighted to show both of them around to some of our friends in Texas. I've offered the same opportunity to the other candidates," he said. "They're both friends of mine and I think they both have extraordinary talents to offer to the leadership of this country."

"They're both going to do a good job, I think," White said of Mondale and Glenn. "I think they both would do well in Texas."

Asked which candidate would run best in Texas against Reagan, White again walked the political tightrope.

"I think it's pretty close, either one would do well," he said.

And, giving a stock answer to what has become a stock question, White said he has no interest in the vice presidency.

"I have a good job now and I'm not looking for another one," he told reporters.

White was not shy in attacking Reagan. After prefacing his remarks by saying he supports "a lot of things he does," the governor listed Reagan promises he said have died with no action.

"They told us they were going to bring relief programs to South Texas that would be new and innovative. They didn't. They told us a lot of things were going to happen that didn't," said White.

He added he would be satisfied if South Texas would "just get as much as Grenada does."

Also Thursday, White said he planned to call a special legislative session on education "sometime right after the primary" in May. H. Ross Perot's Select Committee on Education is expected to issue its report by March 1.

"The people want to see their schools improved. I think this report will give us a blueprint which we can follow that will result in marked and apparent improvement on a very short-term basis in the quality of our education," he predicted.

On another topic, White said he was aware of reports of sexual abuse of students at the Texas School for the Deaf.

Avoiding age spots

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have those brown age spots on my hands and arms. Is there anything that can be done for them or to keep more from appearing? I have read about a cream that lightens them. Is that effective at all?

Are the spots just from age or is it the kidneys? Any advice would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — Some people call them "liver spots," but they have nothing to do with either the liver or the kidneys. They are caused by increased pigment from the pigment cells that are normally in the skin, much like a giant freckle. They are called lentigenes.

They are stimulated by the sun, and aging does increase their appearance. The best treatment is prevention, and that means avoiding exposure of the skin to the sun, because sun ages the skin. Gloves and long sleeves will protect the hands and arms. The "beauty" of yesterday avoided the sun by wearing a sunbonnet, long sleeves and gloves. As a result, her fair skin remained young-looking longer than that of her sun-worshipping counterpart of today.

You can diminish the pigmentation with creams. The most effective bleaching agent is a depigmentation agent called hydroquinone (Eldoquin, Melanex). It has been found that some of the creams provide some help.

It is not as effective in decreasing pigmentation as the sun is effective in causing it. So even if you use a preparation containing hydroquinone, you still will need to protect your skin from the sun.

You could see your doctor or a dermatologist, who could prescribe a cream that contains hydroquinone. In some instances, such lesions can be removed by agents that remove the superficial area of the skin. And some spots are actinic (solar) keratosis, which are different and usually should be removed. That is a good reason to see your doctor.

I have discussed these types of skin changes in The Health Letter 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a transvestite. I have cross-dressed for most of my life and I think of myself as a woman. I'm full around the breasts, but I'm 40 pounds overweight and my tummy is fatter than I would like.

What would be the risks of taking female hormones? I thought if I were on female hormones I could lose fat from my tummy but keep my breasts. My blood pressure is getting high and my doctor wants me to lose weight.

DEAR READER — Taking female hormones will not get rid of abdominal fat. Many women can tell you that.

Also, estrogen in large doses, as once was used in treating prostate cancer, is associated with a high rate of heart attacks and blood clots. That is why small doses are used for prostate cancer now if estrogen is required. A recent study also suggests that men who have heart attacks may have an increase in estrogen.

You will do better with a good diet and exercise program, although you probably will lose fat all over, not just where you would like to lose it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My problem is what I call skipping a breath. I wake abruptly from a sound sleep gasping for breath. As soon as I wake and sit up my breathing is normal — but my nerves are shot for hours.

I have informed my doctor, but tests and physicals have shown no problems. I am 45 years old and in good health otherwise. Do you have any idea what might cause this? It takes a week or more after an attack before I lose the fear of going to bed.

DEAR READER — You probably are describing sleep apnea, which means your breathing stops during sleep. It often is associated with an obstruction in the throat area. That is why a tracheotomy often is done. It permits air to be inhaled through the windpipe below the obstruction during sleep.

Recent studies show there are redundant parts of tissue at the opening of the throat.

Sheriff's captain to stand trial

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An El Paso sheriff's captain has lost his bid to have an indictment against him quashed and will stand trial on charges of tampering with evidence for allegedly ordering that a white powdery substance found in a county judge's car be destroyed.

State District Judge Sam Callan on Thursday denied a request to have the charges against Capt. Willie Hill dismissed, despite arguments from Hill's attorney that the indictment was vague.

Hill, an 11½-year sheriff's department veteran, was indicted in October on misdemeanor charges of official misconduct and tampering with evidence for allegedly ordering the destruction of the white powdery substance two deputies say they found in El Paso County Judge Pat O'Rourke's car.

Deputies Jim Boykin and Dwight Jefferson have said they found a substance, which they believed to be cocaine or heroin, inside a condom while they were installing a two-way radio in O'Rourke's car last February.

The two men say that when they told Hill of the discovery he ordered it be destroyed.

Hill, who has been suspended pending the outcome of the case against him, will go to trial Monday.

Hill's attorney, Robert Earp, argued before Callan Thursday that Hill should not have to face a trial because the substance never was analyzed and therefore could not be used as evidence. "It is our contention that a substance, which on the very face of the indictment is an unknown substance, could not be evidence," Earp said.

Earp also contested Hill's indictment because it did not specify how the destruction of the substance would benefit Hill or how it would harm someone else.

But an attorney for the state, Thomas Roepke, told Callan the question of whether Hill's actions benefited anyone or harmed anyone was not relevant.

"What one person sees as benefit may not be the same to another person," Roepke said.

He likened Hill's alleged act to that of someone passing bad checks.

"One commits the act of forgery with the intent to defraud, you don't have to specify the object of that fraud," Roepke said.

Roepke also argued that Hill did not need to know how the substance was going to be used as evidence to know that destroying it was a criminal act.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (SWB) has filed with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) an Application for transfer of certain assets to American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T), and its subsidiaries.

This Application affects the provision of customer premise equipment (CPE) throughout SWB's service area in the state of Texas. Effective with the implementation of this transfer of facilities, which is expected to be on January 1, 1984, CPE equipment previously provided by SWB, under tariff, will be detariffed and as of that date will be offered to customers by AT&T and its subsidiaries in accordance with the order in FCC Docket No. 81-893.

The FCC's order also provides that this embedded CPE shall be offered to in-place customers on a sale or lease basis for 24 month transition period. The order further outlines the rates and conditions under which these sale or lease plans may be carried out.

For the purposes of this Application, SWB has filed proposed tariffs with the PUC, anticipated to be effective January 1, 1984, withdrawing its offerings of such customer premise equipment.

Esta Solicitud afecta la suministro del equipo ubicado en instalaciones del cliente, en toda el área de servicio de SWB en el estado de Texas. Con vigencia desde el cumplimiento de esta transferencia de instalaciones, presuntamente el 1 de Enero de 1984, los equipos ubicados en instalaciones del cliente que anteriormente proveía SWB bajo una determinada tarifa, se proporcionarán por AT&T y/o compañías filiales a partir de esa fecha, siendo eliminadas las tarifas, de acuerdo con el decreto en la Orden del Día número 81-893 de la FCC.

El decreto de la FCC también dispone que este equipo fijo ubicado en instalaciones del cliente se ofrecerá a los clientes en venta o alquiler por un periodo de transición de 24 meses. During the long and busy holiday season, crammed with the hustle and bustle of shopping, wrapping, writing cards, decorating, etc., all this feverish activity should add up to a time of spiritual as well as material happiness. However, we sometimes find the dark shadow of an unpleasant incident cast upon an otherwise bright scene. Is there a friend or relative with whom you have quarreled over some trivial matter? Have you hurt someone's feelings with an unkind remark or a slight? There is no better time to heal these wounds and show your spirit of love than during this season in honor of the One who devoted His life to teaching us to love one another. Take the time to learn this at the Church of your choice on Sunday.
