Walcott settles land issue

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

A year of haggling between the Walcott School Board and the Mrs. N.A. Brown & Sons partnership over the title purchase of 14.93 acres of land came to an end this morning.

At a special meeting, the Walcott School Board voted 5-0, with board member Ernest Brown abstaining, to pay the Browns $7,800 for the reversionary clause the Browns maintained on the 12-acre school site and for 2.93 acres surrounding it.

Board member Dennis Brown was absent.

"I'm just glad the whole thing is over," said Dan Hall, vice president of the board. "I had hoped we had been able to buy it quicker, but this saved a lot of legal expenses to settle out of court."

One of the three latest proposals the school offered included letting the Browns keep the reversionary clause, a stipulation that if the school district were abolished, the Browns would keep the buildings. This would apply only if the Browns agreed to forfeit the reversion if the school consolidated.

The other two options were to offer the Browns $5,900 (the appraised value for clear title), or proceed with eminent domain.

After the Browns refused the first two proposals, the school board started the wheels rolling on eminent domain which meant three commissioners would decide on a value for the land and the Browns would be forced to accept it.

But the Browns decided to settle instead.

"Yeah, we settled, but they (school board) still spent about $20,000 (on lawyer's fees, survey, appraisal)," said Ernest Brown, a member of the partnership. "It's just as well it's over with. We're supposed to use the tax money to educate the kids and not mess with it like we have been. I'm a lover, not a fighter. This bickering is for the birds."

The Porter Johnson family originally deeded six acres for the school in 1950, which the Browns obtained in 1971. The Browns then deeded about six acres of their land to the school on March 21, 1980, with the reversionary clause attached.

"That school never did have any money in the 1970s and in 1980 we decided to give that land to the school for its use. The only intention we ever had in deeding that land was for the kids' use. It's just a real shame it had to come to this," Ernest Brown said.

Bush taking third vacation

WASHINGTON (AP)-- With his Cabinet selections finally completed, President-elect Bush heads for the Florida Keys today for a weekend of fishing before returning to the capital for the whirlwind of events culminating in his inauguration.

Bush was bound for Islamorada, Fla., the self-proclaimed sportfishing capital of the world, to fish in the Everglades with buddies including Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady and Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

The president-elect, who once hoped to appoint the whole Cabinet before Christmas, finally finished the task Thursday by naming former naval chief James D. Watkins as energy secretary and tapping former Education Secretary William J. Bennett to lead anti-drug efforts.

Bush had promised to bring "new faces" to Washington, but only Bush wound up recruiting seven current or former Reagan Cabinet officers for top jobs and filling two others with retiring Republican lawmakers.

He also enlisted Edward Derwinski, an undersecretary of state and former congressman, to head the new Department of Veterans Affairs.

Labor Secretary-designate Elizabeth Dole will be the sole woman in the Cabinet. It will have two Hispanics, Lauro Cavazos at education and Manuel Lujan at interior, and one black, Louis Sullivan at health and human services.

Bush assembled his Cabinet at Blair House for an informal meeting followed by a dinner with their spouses. He told reporters beforehand:

"I'm going to tell them to think big. I'm going to tell them to challenge the system. I'm going to tell them to...adhere to the highest ethical standards."

He also said, more in earnest than in jest, "I'm going to tell them I don't like kiss-and-tell books." He added that he wants them to "be on the record as much as possible."

"I'd rather see their name on the record than insidiously leaked to somebody," Bush said.

"I don't mind differences being aired. I want them to be frank. I want them to fight hard for their position, and then, after I make the call, I'd like to have the feeling that they'd be able to support the president," Bush said.

"I'll tell them to work with Congress. We're going to have some fights with Congress, but we're not going to approach it as though we're dealing with the enemy," the president-elect said.

Watkins, 61, the chief of naval operations until 1986 under Reagan, is a nuclear warfare expert who headed the presidential commission on AIDS that called last year for new legislation to protect the civil rights of victims of the deadly disease.

S&L crisis caused by many things

WASHINGTON (AP)--More savings and loans failed in 1988 than in any year since the Depression. This year, taxpayers may be asked to pick up the cost of rescuing the industry, and the price could run into the billions of dollars.

Here are answers to some commonly asked questions about the problem.

Q: How are depositors' savings protected?

A: The first line of defense when an institution fails is a government insurance fund, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. (the FSLIC).

The ultimate backing, if the fund runs out of money, is the taxpayer. On several occasions Congress, most recently in 1987, has reaffirmed that the full faith and credit of the federal government stands behind the deposits.

Q: Does that mean the government would pay the depositors if the S&L went out of business?

A: Yes, as long as the S&L has federal insurance.

In most cases the insurance fund tries to avoid direct depositor payoffs. Instead, the government "rescues" the institution by providing new owners with a mixture of cash, promissory notes and other guarantees to wipe out the old losses.

The new owners also invest some of their own money and the institution stays open, usually under a new name. The old managers lose their jobs, the stockholders lose their investment but depositors are protected.

Q: How does the FSLIC work?

A: The FSLIC guarantees deposit accounts up to $100,000 in nearly 3,000 S&Ls. (Similarly, government insurance also protects savers in commercial banks through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC), while the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA) stands behind credit unions.)

Q: Where do the insurance funds get their money?

A: From the institutions whose deposits they insure. S&Ls, for instance, pay a premium of 21 cents a year for every $100 in deposits. The FSLIC also has been raising money by selling 30-year bonds, which will be paid off by the premiums from their industry. And, it sells property from failed institutions to recover some of its costs.

Q: If S&Ls fund the insurance plan, why do people say the public will end up paying?

A: The Reagan administration has recently acknowledged that income from the industry won't be enough to cover savings accounts in failed S&Ls and, therefore, the public will have to bear much of the cost. Industry trade groups say healthy institutions will start going under if they're forced to pay higher premiums.

Q: How would the public pay?

A: This is not clear. The Treasury Department is working on a plan for President-elect Bush. Private analysts believe that in some manner tax money will be needed.

The solution could involve a direct appropriation of taxpayer funds. Or, Congress could authorize regulators to borrow what they need with the understanding that taxpayer funds will be used to pay the interest. Or, Congress could impose fees on members of the public, such as home buyers, who benefit from the S&L system.

Q: What is the controversy about the 1988 bailouts?

Keeping a money-losing institution alive means it could continue to lose money under new owners, eventually making another rescue necessary.

The government protects the new owners from losing money on loans made by the previous owners. Critics think the new owners ought to share more of the risk as an incentive to manage the loan portfolio wisely.

Also, members of Congress are angry because in some cases private buyers are reaping tax breaks from the deals that are worth more than they are paying to take possession of failed institutions. They say regulators ought to have been able to get more cash from the buyers in exchange for the tax benefits.

Q: Why do regulators think the bailout approach will ultimately save money for the taxpayers?

A: If the government simply shuts down any institution, it has to spend enormous amounts immediately to pay off depositors, more money than the regulators have. Over a period of years, it then hopes to get back some of it by selling loans and repossessed property from the failed S&L.

By rescuing an institution, the government pays only for the loss, not for the entire amount of insured deposits. And, it gets to spread out the cost, typically for as long as 10 years.

Also, most institutions have a certain value as a going concern, such as a loyal customer base, that would be destroyed if they were liquidated. In 1988, new S&L owners pumped $3 billion into the rescued institutions in exchange for this value.

In December, regulators "resolved" the cases of 75 S&Ls at an estimated cost of $15.5 billion to the insurance fund and $ billion in tax breaks. The ultimate cost of liquidating those S&Ls would have been $22.8 billion, however, and the insurance fund would have had to immediately come up with $47 billion in "up-front cash."

Q: How did we get in this fix in the first place?

A: Inflation and high interest rates in the 1970s and early 1980s

Top ag man to be named Saturday

Hereford's 1988 "Man of the Year in Agriculture" will be named Saturday night at the annual Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association banquet.

Rocha gets 20 years for assault

A 44-year-old Hereford man was sentenced Wednesday to serve 20 years in the Texas Department of Corrections for sexually assaulting his 11-year-old stepdaughter in 1987.

Lorenza Rocha, 44, of Hereford, had been found guilty of aggravated sexual assault of a child on Wednesday in 222nd District Court.

The eight man, four woman jury deliberated only 20 minutes before returning Wednesday's guilty verdict. After receiving its charge and hearing final arguments from District Attorney Roland Saul and defense attorney David Martinez, the jury deliberated for a total of 90 minutes, including time taken for lunch.

Rocha could have been sentenced to as many as 99 years or life in prison for the first-degree felony.

Rocha was found guilty of sexually assaulting his stepdaughter on May 25, 1987. She later had a baby, and an expert witness testified Tuesday that blood tests proved Rocha was the father of the child.

Rocha was arrested by Hereford police July 5, 1988 and was indicted by a grand jury last Sept. 15.

Bluebonnet sixth grade at DARE

Sixth graders at Bluebonnet School in Hereford received certificates on Thursday showing they had completed the DARE program sponsored by the Hereford Police Department. Several of the students read essays they had written about what they had learned in DARE before receiving their certificates from Principal Howard Birdwell.

DARE certificates given

Bluebonnet second to graduate

Sixth graders at Hereford's Bluebonnet School received their diplomas from DARE on Thursday in an assembly at the school's gymnasium.

The students received their certificates for successfully completing the 17-week course taught by Hereford police officer Roy Rector.

Sixth graders at Bluebonnet and West Central completed the courses this week, and the program will start next week for the rest of the HISD's sixth graders.

As part of the course, Bluebonnet students composed essays on what they have learned during the course. Some essays were chosen, completely at random, to show how students feel about drug abuse, DARE, and ways to say "no."

I don't do drugs because they're harmful to my body.

If I do drugs I won't have good friends. They'll be people who won't make me look good, also, if I do drugs I will not do good in school.

If I have friends that do drugs I either try to talk my friends out of doing drugs or I avoid them because I don't want to get mixed up in drugs or alcohol.

When my friends or family are forced into doing drugs by heavy pressure it hurts. It seems like people who do drugs could find better things to do like sports, school, or just hanging out with people who don't do drugs.

What I'm trying to say is that drugs are no good, so don't do drugs.

By Rita Guerra

My name is Rita Guerra and I don't do drugs.

I don't do drugs because I will damage my brain, ruin my life, and I don't need the.

When I am offered drugs I am going to use the eight ways of saying "no": Saying "No, thanks"; giving a reason or excuse; say "no" as many times as possible; walking away; changing the subject; avoiding the situation; giving them the cold shoulder; or remembering there's strength in numbers.

Don't take drugs because they will ruin your life and the lives of the people around you.

DOE early report:

Accelerator safer to make weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unreleased Department of Energy report concludes that a linear accelerator could produce one of the key ingredients in nuclear weapons more cheaply, quickly and safely than new production reactors could.

Such an accelerator would produce far less radioactive waste than a nuclear reactor and "should be more readily acceptable to the public," according to a draft summary of the report obtained by The Associated Press on Thursday.

The U.S. supply of tritium, a radioactive gas used to produce nuclear warheads, is threatened by the crumbling condition of the Energy Department's existing weapons plants and reactors.

The report, prepared by scientists at the Brookhaven and Los Alamos national laboratories and at Westinghouse-Hanford Co. in Washington state, concluded that an accelerator could produce enough tritium to meet all U.S. weapons needs.

An accelerator is essentially a long tunnel in which subatomic particles are whipped at high speeds until they crash into a target, in this case lithium clad in aluminum. The resulting collision produces tritium.

According to the report, using such an accelerator to make tritium would not produce any "long-lived" nuclear wastes and "costs associated with safety and environmental concerns should be minimal."

In addition, it said, an accelerator "does not have the licensing requirements associated with nuclear reactors and should be more readily acceptable to the public."

Last July, the department recommended building two new production reactors, one at the Savannah River complex near Aiken, S.C., and the other at the Idaho Falls National Laboratory in Idaho.

At present, the nation's only facilities for producing tritium are three reactors at Savannah River, but all three are shut down either for maintenance or because of safety problems.

Department officials have said that at least one of the reactors should be back on line this year, but the start-up date continues to slip as more problems are found.

The department's Energy Research Advisory Board looked "briefly" at using an accelerator to produce tritium, but ended up recommending construction of two new reactors, said Chris Sankey, a DOE spokeswoman.

"The board concluded that these technologies were not mature enough to provide new production capacity in the next 10 to 12 years," she said.

But the DOE report said that the nation's tritium needs could be met by using an accelerator "that could be in operation as early as 1996."

By comparison, the proposed new reactors are expected to take a minimum of 10 years to complete.

"The required accelerator technology has largely been demonstrated at the component level although some additional development work is desirable to effect cost reductions, improved performance and ease of operation," the report said.

The accelerator would take massive amounts of electricity to operate, roughly the entire output of a nuclear power plant. One potential site for it would be in the Pacific Northwest, which has the cheapest electric rates in the nation.

The report said "preliminary discussions" with the Bonneville Power Administration indicated that the federal power marketing agency based in Portland, Ore., would have enough electricity available to power an accelerator.

An accelerator could cost more to build, but because the cost of operating it would be about half that of a reactor, "total life cycle costs," including construction, would be

Southwestern Public Service reports regular quarterly dividend

AMARILLO, Texas -- The Board of Directors of Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 55 cents per share on common stock and regular quarterly dividends on all series of preferred stock.

The dividend on common stock is payable March 1, 1989, to holders of record at the close of business Feb. 15, 1989. Dividends on preferred stocks are payable May 1, 1989, to holders of record at the close of business April 20, 1989.

The electric utility's board also announced officer changes, which include a transitional move resulting from the planned retirement later this year of SPS Chairman of the Board Bert Ballengee.

The board elected SPS President W.R. Esler to the additional post of Chief Executive Officer, formerly held by Ballengee. Ballengee remains Chairman of the Board.

The SPS board also elected John L. Anderson as a Vice President. He had been Director of Personnel. Anderson will have responsibility for the company's employee development programs, labor relations, insurance and related activities.

Separately, on January 9 the boards of directors of SPS's two wholly owned subsidiaries--Utility Engineering Corporation and Quixx Corporation--made several officer changes.

Each board elected Esler as its Chairman, replacing Ballengee, who remains a member of the boards of directors of the subsidiaries.

Albert A. "Pete" Smith has been elected President and Chief Executive Officer of Utility Engineering, of which he had been Vice President and Chief Operating Officer.

Utility Engineering provides design, engineering and construction-supervision services to a variety of companies. Its recent projects include two power plants for other electric utilities in Texas and a bus-manufacturing facility in New Mexico.

Monroe "Hub" Floyd, who had been President and Chief Executive Officer of Utility Engineering, becomes Vice Chairman of the Board of Utility Engineering. Additionally, he has been elected President and Chief Executive Officer of Quixx.

Quixx provides telecommunications and data processing services and finances the sale of heat pumps to consumers.

"The increasing activity and responsibility of the two subsidiaries makes these moves appropriate," Ballengee said. "Quixx will benefit from the experienced leadership of

Four closed banks reopen; trust closes

AUSTIN (AP) — Four banks, ordered closed in the first Texas failures of 1989, reopen today as branches of other institutions, say federal regulators who also shut down a trust company.

Texas Banking Commissioner Kenneth Littlefield and the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency on Thursday announced the year's first bank failures, with two closings in Houston and one each in Austin and Harper. A Dallas trust company was also closed.

The sole office of First State Bank in Harper reopens as a branch of Security State Bank and Trust in Fredericksburg, with its depositors automatically becoming depositors of the assuming bank, say regulators.

That bank, with total assets of about $9.7 million, was closed at 2 p.m. Thursday. An hour later, Commercial State Bank in Houston with deposits of about $52 million was closed. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was named receiver in both cases.

The agency approved assumption of Commercial State's deposits and fully secured liabilities by Channelview Bank, Channelview, Texas.

The comptroller's office declared Oak Hill National Bank, Austin, insolvent at 4 p.m. and appointed the FDIC as receiver. The failed bank's two offices were reopening as branches of Community National Bank, Austin.

The comptroller's office an hour later declared West Belt National Bank, Houston, insolvent and appointed the FDIC as receiver after saying problems with the institution's loan portfolio resulted from a real estate slump.

The FDIC board later approved assumption of West Belt National's deposits and other liabilities by Deposit Guaranty Bank, Dallas. The failed bank's sole office will reopen Friday as a Deposit Guaranty branch and customers will automatically become depositors of the assuming bank, subject to court approval.

Robert J. Herrmann, senior deputy comptroller for bank supervision, said Oak Hill National became a concern in late 1986 because of poor management and inadequate supervision by the institution's board of directors.

The agency said the Austin bank, which received a national bank charter in 1986, had total assets of about $16 million.

Littlefield also announced the closing of American National Trust Co. in Dallas. He found the company was insolvent and had engaged in numerous activities in violation of the Texas Banking Code and the Texas Trust Code.

At Commercial State, Littlefield said, a recent examination conducted jointly by the State Banking Department and the FDIC revealed loan and related losses of nearly $3 million that rendered the bank insolvent.

Commercial State Bank was in apparent violation of numerous state and federal laws and regulations, as several loans appeared to have financially aided an insider of the bank who received preferential treatment, said Littlefield.

Littlefield said a recent examination at the Harper bank had identified loan and loan-related losses that exceeded the institution's capital accounts. The bank had previously been identified as a problem institution and was under supervision by the commissioner.

First State Bank loan losses resulted from liberal and hazardous lending practices, including large out-of-territory loans, and inadequate board supervision over lending activities, said a statement announcing the bank closing. Efforts to recapitalize the 74-year-old institution were unsuccessful.

Security State will assume about $10.1 million in 1,700 deposit accounts from First State Bank and will purchase $9.5 million of the failed bank's assets at a discount of $2,196,000. The FDIC will retain the assets of the failed bank with a book value of $243,000.

Allowing Security State to purchase the assets at a discount would cost the FDIC less than if the assets were held and liquidated in receivership, the agency said.

Pizza in thirds

This three-sectioned pizza is filled with three varieties of cheese and vegetables sure to please different tastes.

Pizza pleases different tastes

There's no end to creative ideas for pizza toppings. If you're trying to please several with a homemade pizza, make one with personality.

This pizza is prepared in three sections, each featuring its own selection of vegetables and cheese.

PIZZA TRIO WITH VEGETABLES AND CHEESES

- 1- 16 oz. package hot-roll mix
- 1 1/4 c. hot tap water
- 2 Tbsp. vegetable oil, divided
- 1 c. shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1/2 c. chopped fresh tomatoes
- 1 tsp. basil
- 3 cloves garlic, minced, divided
- 1 c. shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- 1/2 c. grated zucchini
- 1 tsp. oregano
- 3/4 c. grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 c. chopped parsley
- 1 Tbsp. grated lemon peel
- 6 red and green bell pepper rings

In large bowl, stir together hot-roll mix and its package of yeast. Stir in water and oil to moisten. Knead on lightly floured surface about five minutes until smooth.

Pinch off and reserve about one-eighth of the dough.

Grease 14-inch pizza pan; line with remaining dough, stretching gently to fit. Prick generously with a fork. Roll reserved piece of dough into three 7-inch ropes. Place over pizza to make 3 equal sections. Brush with additional oil. Cover with towel; let rest 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, prepare fillings: Combine mozzarella cheese with tomatoes, basil and one-third of the garlic.

Combine Jack cheese with zucchini, oregano and another third of garlic.

Combine Parmesan cheese with parsley, lemon peel, pepper rings, and the remaining garlic.

Sprinkle each cheese mixture over a section of the pizza. Bake in pre-heated 425-degree oven about 20 minutes, until crust is well browned and cheeses are melted. This kitchen-tested recipe makes one 14-inch pizza.

LONG ROOTS
GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) - The perennial dandelion is a common weed in the United States and its roots often grow several feet deep. Mowing the plant or pulling the stems out of the ground is not effective in preventing or eliminating the weed since the deep root will sprout again. Dandelions should be attacked with weed killer at the first sign of growth which usually is in the spring.

Wolfpack supports Valvano; Miami halts Kansas win streak

By The Associated Press
These troubled times, Jim Valvano is doing more listening than talking. "My kids have been telling me things I've been telling them for 22 years. So far, they have been my support system," the usually effervescent coach said after No. 15 North Carolina State beat Coastal Carolina 97-69 Thursday night. "(Brian D'Amico) gave me a hug after the game. Kelsey (Weems) told me to hang tough," Valvano said. Valvano's concentration has been interrupted by charges, soon to be published in a book, of wrongdoing in the Wolfpack basketball program. "The allegations are false. You're finding out part of that now," Valvano said. "Certainly it has been a major distraction, maybe more for me than for the kids."

The Wolfpack players have seen a difference in their coach. "After Temple, he was really down," Chuckie Brown said. "We just pulled him aside and told him we were behind him and supported him."

Brown scored 20 points as N.C. State easily defeated the visiting Chanticleers.

But No. 16 Kansas ran into problems at Miami. Joel Warren's foul shot with two seconds left enabled the Hurricanes to upset last season's national champions 87-86.

Miami ended the Jayhawks' 11-game winning streak with its first victory over a Top Twenty team since reinstating the basketball program four seasons ago.

Elsewhere, No. 2 Illinois swamped Wisconsin 103-80, No. 6 Michigan topped Wisconsin 98-83, No. 12 Arizona defeated Oregon State 85-64 and No. 20 Providence routed Central Connecticut State 105-56.

No. 2 Illinois 103, Wisconsin 80
Kendall Gill was 7-for-7 from the field, including four 3-pointers, and scored 19 points as Illinois beat visiting Wisconsin in the Big Ten.

The Illini, 14-0, defeated the Badgers for the 16th straight time. Illinois, trailing 25-24 late in the first half, took command with a 20-6 burst.

No. 6 Michigan 98, Minnesota 83
Glen Rice scored 31 points and Rumeal Robinson had 24, leading Michigan past visiting Minnesota in the Big Ten.

Sean Higgins added 20 points for the Wolverines, 14-1. Higgins made a pair of 3-point shots during a 12-4 run as Michigan pulled away from a 50-all tie in the second half.

No. 12 Arizona 85, Oregon State 84
Anthony Cook scored 20 points and Jud Buechler 17 as Arizona overcame an early 11-point deficit and beat visiting Oregon State in the Pacific-10.

The Wildcats improved to 10-2 for the season and 5-1 in the Pac-10, while Oregon State dropped to 9-4 overall and 2-3 in the conference.

Miami 87, No. 16 Kansas 86
Warren was fouled as he attempted a layup. His first free throw bounced off the rim but he swished the second try.

Dennis Burns scored 25 points and Eric Brown had 23 points and 10 rebounds for Miami, 10-6.

Milt Newton scored 20 points for Kansas, 13-2.

No. 20 Providence 105, Central Connecticut State 56

Providence moved to 13-0 as Marty Conlon's 16 points led six players in double figures.

The Friars never trailed, taking a 20-7 lead and making it 53-30 at halftime. Carlton Screen and Cal Foster scored 13 points each for Providence.

UIL proposes rule changes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legislative Council of the University Interscholastic League voted Thursday to allow high school athletes to participate on non-school athletic teams when the sport is not in session at their school.

If approved by the State Board of Education, the proposal will take effect June 1.

Currently, a high school athlete cannot play for an out-of-school team until the end of the school year, with the exception of soccer and volleyball.

A provision was added for baseball, however, that a coach could not instruct more than six of his own players on non-school baseball team.

"There has been a gradual movement in this direction during the past three years," said UIL Director Bailey Marshall on the landmark decision. "It will have a negative effect on some students and a positive effect on others. We'll just have to wait and see what the results are."

Marshall said he believes the amendment will be approved. The UIL meeting was attended by American League Baseball President Bobby Brown.

Brown appeared as a spokesman for major league baseball concerning the UIL's attempt to prevent high school baseball coaches from coaching their own players during the summer.

"About 40,000 teen-age kids play baseball in Texas and how they are affected, affects us," he said. "The baseball programs in Texas are well-run and they should be helped, not restricted."

The board also passed several other measures that must be approved by the State Board of Education. They are:

- Next year's high school seniors will be allowed to participate in college tryouts for scholarships.
- The girls' 300-meter hurdles and the boys' triple jump will be added to the state track meet.
- Class A, 2A and 3A, baseball seasons will not begin until after the spring state track meets. That pushes the state baseball tournaments in those classifications back to June 28-29. The Class 4A and 5A state tournament is scheduled for early June. These proposals were among 12 items voted upon by UIL member schools as a part of the annual referendum ballot.

Seattle 'disgraces' Dallas by 117-77

By The Associated Press
Dallas traveled to Seattle. Listening to Mavericks coach John MacLeod talk, it was Dunkirk and Waterloo rolled into one.

"That was disgrace. That was surrender. They just gave us an old-fashioned whipping," MacLeod said Thursday night after the SuperSonics beat the Mavericks 117-77.

"We didn't put in the effort tonight. Seattle took us behind the barn and gave us an old-fashioned whipping," said MacLeod, who waved a white towel in the fourth quarter when Seattle first opened the lead to 40 points.

Dale Ellis scored 36 points, including four 3-pointers, and Seattle won at home for the 12th consecutive time. Dallas lost its sixth straight game.

Detlef Schrempf scored 24 points for Dallas.

Slocum adds two aides to A&M staff

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M Head Coach R.C. Slocum says he hopes the addition of two assistant football coaches will help him bolster the school's program, which has been rocked by NCAA sanctions.

UCLA co-defensive coordinator Tom Hayes and Oregon offensive coordinator Bob Toledo were hired as assistant football coaches, Slocum said Thursday.

"The head football coach's future and success is directly related to the quality of his assistant coaches," Slocum said. "I'm pleased these excellent coaches have agreed to join the group of outstanding young men already on my staff."

Named head coach in December after Jackie Sherrill resigned, Slocum has coached the Aggies to national Top 20 defensive rankings in the past two years. Sherrill was accused of paying "hush" money to a former player during an NCAA investigation.

The NCAA in September imposed two years' probation on A&M, along with a ban on post-season bowl appearances last year.

Toledo said he would not have taken the job if he thought the Aggies faced the NCAA's death penalty or other further serious penalties.

"In talking to their people, they feel very comfortable that's not going to happen," said Toledo. "They kind of assured me that nothing else will happen."

Hayes will become assistant head coach and secondary coach while Toledo will serve as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach, said Slocum.

Bob Davie, current A&M outside linebackers coach, will become defensive coordinator, said Slocum, with the job of offensive line coach to be filled soon.

The 40-year-old Hayes served on Terry Donahue's staff at UCLA for nine years, with the past seven as co-defensive coordinator.

"Tom is one of the most outstanding football coaches in the country," Slocum said. "His background in a program such as UCLA will be vital as we start our program at A&M."

"I've got great respect for his knowledge of the game as well as his overall knowledge of college football programs."

Toledo was offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at Oregon for six years and was named assistant head coach in 1987. While at Oregon, Toledo coached quarterbacks Chris Miller, a first-round NFL draft choice, and Bill Musgrave, the nation's top freshman passer in 1987.

"Bob has one of the most outstanding offensive minds in football today and is a fine quarterbacks' coach," Slocum said. "He has a tremendous national reputation as a developer of quarterbacks and multiple offenses."

The 33-year-old Davie came to A&M in 1985 as outside linebackers coach after two years as assistant head coach and defensive coordinator at Tulane. He coached at the University of Pittsburgh from 1980 to 1983, helping the Panthers to Gator and Sugar Bowl victories and a Cotton Bowl appearance.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Michelle Pfeiffer realizes people want to know more about her now that she's starring in several major movies, but that doesn't mean she likes it. "I didn't become an actress so that my life could be exposed," Pfeiffer says in an interview in the February issue of Vanity Fair. "It's really the only thing that makes me contemplate quitting acting. I would give it up because I hate it that much."

In recent months, Pfeiffer has appeared in three major films — "Dangerous Liaisons," "Married to the Mob" and "Tequila Sunrise."

Meanwhile, her estranged husband, Peter Horton, has gained stardom on ABC-TV's "thirtysomething."

"I had a great marriage with a great man. They don't come much better than that," she said.

Why the breakup? "It's very confusing," she said. "We got married really young. I think we grew up and our views changed."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If President Reagan decides to return to sports casting after leaving the White House, he shouldn't have much trouble finding work.

Two radio stations, perhaps more intent on publicity than beefing up their staffs, said Thursday they had offered jobs to the outgoing chief executive, whose early career included sports casting in Des Moines, Iowa.

Sister stations KZLA-FM and KLAC-AM are offering Reagan a $100,000, one-year contract to do a daily sports talk show from his California home.

No sooner had word of that offer hit the airwaves than oldest station KRLA-AM topped it with a $200,000-a-year bid.

"This is absolutely a 100 percent bona fide offer," said Robert Novak, marketing director for the two stations, which play country music and broadcast Los Angeles Lakers basketball and Los Angeles Kings hockey.

KRLA General Manager Bob Moore said he conveyed his offer in a telegram to the White House Thursday.

"Seeing how Ron's an ex-sportscaster, we thought this would be a good use of his abilities," Moore said.

Neither station got an immediate response.

DETROIT (AP) — When he becomes president, George Bush will get a new car with the options chief executives have come to expect: armor plating and communications gear.

The Secret Service on Thursday received a Ford Motor Co. limousine, a 22-foot modified 1989 Lincoln Town Car that will first be used in the inaugural parade Jan. 20.

The black limo is 44.7 inches longer and 6.1 inches taller than a conventional Town Car. Its chassis was redesigned and a 7.5-liter engine was used primarily because of increased weight from the armor plating and communications equipment.

The car's weight was not revealed for security reasons, Ford spokesman J.F. ter Horst said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The creator of the ABC hit comedy "Roseanne" says he was forced off the show by Roseanne Barr, the show's sharp-tongued star.

In a statement released late Wednesday, Matt Williams said Miss Barr insisted he leave the program, and he "reluctantly agreed."

Williams, one of three executive producers for the series, left the show last week. The show's producers cited "creative tensions."

"Days after completion of the 13th episode, Roseanne Barr informed the executive producers that she refused to continue in the series as long as Matt Williams was there," Williams said. "In order to permit the production of the remaining nine episodes ordered for this season, Matt Williams reluctantly agreed to leave the show he created and developed."

"Roseanne," which stars Miss Barr as a housewife and mother who works at a factory, has beaten NBC's "The Cosby Show" for the No. 1 spot in the Nielsen ratings in two of the last three weeks.

A spokeswoman for the show said no immediate response to Williams' statement was planned.

Rebekah Lodge meets

Hereford Rebekah Lodge # 228 met in regular session Tuesday evening with 15 members present.

Noble Grand Marie Harris presided at the routine business session. Thirteen visits to the sick, 24 cheer cards, 15 dishes of food and five flowers or memorials were reported.

Erma Loving received the door prize. Refreshments, furnished by Sadie Shaw, were served by Faye Brownlow and Merle Boozer. Others present were Stella Hershey, Susie Curtsinger, Eunice Boyer, Shirley Brown, Jim Loving, Peggy Lemons, Ada Hollabaugh, Dorothy Lundry, Jo Irlbeck, Anna Conklin, and Verna Sowell.

Ski trip set

A Winter Ski Camp is set for Jan. 21-22 and will be sponsored by the Hereford Camp Fire Council.

The trip is offered to youth ranging in age from second to 12th grade. The group will stay at Camp Summer Life at Vadito, N.M.; those wishing to ski will ski at Sipapu Lodge.

Departure from Hereford is set for 3 a.m. Jan. 21 with return planned for 11 p.m. Jan. 22, depending on weather conditions.

The registration fee, which does not include skiing expenses, is set at $55. Since registration is limited, call or come by the Camp Fire office as soon as possible.

For more information, call the Camp Fire Council at 364-0395.

POTASSIUM DISORDERS

ORADELL, N. J. (AP) — Potassium disorders often result in hypertension and other serious effects that may not be obvious until the doctor assesses serum potassium levels.

People who are undergoing diuretic treatment of high blood pressure are particularly susceptible, says Diagnosis magazine. See that the physician does a thorough lab evaluation and followup on your blood — it may not be laxative abuse.

Hypertensive patients may develop abnormal potassium levels for other, underlying reasons.

Problem found in trimming fat from pork

By Marilyn Brown
TAES Science Writer

Today's consumers want leaner meats, and one offshoot of this development is the trend to more closely trim the surface or subcutaneous fat from retail cuts of meat. A potential problem with additional trimming, however, is the possibility of further contaminating the muscle with microbial organisms. The extent of microbial contamination of both fat and muscle surfaces depends largely upon the degree of sanitary effort during slaughter, dressing, and fabrication procedures, says Gary R. Acuff, animal scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"In the fabrication of wholesale and retail cuts, cutting operations cause microorganisms residing on surface fat to contaminate interior meat surfaces not yet exposed to microorganisms," Acuff says. "In view of the current industry trend of marketing fresh meats with little or no surface fat, there is a need to compare microbial activities and sensory properties of cuts packaged and stored with little or no surface fat with those of comparable cuts with a normal quantity of surface fat."

A wide variety of common meat bacteria, including Pseudomonas, Flavobacterium, Serratia, Enterobacter, Aeromonas, Brochothrix, Hafnia, Lactobacillus, and Leuconostoc species can grow extensively on lean and fat surfaces of beef, pork, and lamb carcasses. The individual bacterial profile of carcasses can differ considerably, Acuff says.

Acuff and his colleagues conducted studies in which pork loin chops with subcutaneous fat attached, without subcutaneous fat, and with the removed fat itself (intact chops) were packaged and stored in poly vinyl chloride (PVC) film for up to 6 days or high-oxygen barrier film for up to 28 days.

The aerobic plate counts of bacteria on lean and fat of intact chops packaged and stored in either treatment did not differ in most comparisons, Acuff says. Counts for subcutaneous fat portions that were packaged and stored separately in high oxygen barrier film often were higher than those of comparable fat samples of intact chops. There was no consistent pattern of differences in the types of bacteria found on lean and fat samples.

Differences in sensory scores for surface discoloration, off odor, and overall appearance of intact and trimmed chops usually were either not significant or inconsistent. Lean color scores of chops with or without subcutaneous fat did not differ, except that chops with the subcutaneous fat removed were rated higher than intact chops during the early periods of storage.

"Based on the results of this study, removal of most or all of the subcutaneous fat from chops had little effect on the sensory properties or shelf life of chops, except that lean color scores of trimmed chops were higher than those of intact chops," Acuff says. At 28 days of storage, intact chops packed in barrier film had less surface discoloration than trimmed chops, and at day 6 of storage in PVC film, trimmed chops rated higher in overall appearance than intact chops.

There were no significant differences in either surface discoloration or overall appearance between the two types of chops at all other packaging and storage conditions, Acuff says.

suggesting that pork packers and processors should not be concerned about the impact of trimming on microbiology and ease of life of centrally packaged pork retail cuts.

Of more concern to the pork industry, Acuff says, is the fact that there is no systematic sorting of marbling levels in pork carcasses or cuts as there is for beef with the use of USDA quality grades.

In a companion study, pork loin chops of high, intermediate, and low marbling were trimmed free of subcutaneous fat and then packaged and stored as in the first experiment.

In general, marbling group had no effect on bacterial counts and did not result in major differences in the distribution of types of bacteria present, Acuff says. Surface discoloration and overall appearance scores of chops with low marbling stored in barrier film were usually lower than those of chops of intermediate and high marbling.

In contrast, marbling the group usually had no significant effect on surface discoloration and overall appearance of chops packed in PVC film. Chops with high and intermediate marbling stored in barrier film were usually rated higher than those of chops with low marbling.

"This finding offers further documentation that marbling is related to certain display characteristics of meat and has a definite impact on how long centrally fabricated and packaged retail cuts will remain acceptable to consumers," Acuff says.

"With the data from the present study, those within the meat industry who wish to centrally fabricate and package beef or pork retail cuts should know that marbling level will have a major impact on retail case life even when all other usual case life variables, such as cutting sanitation, packaging material, storage and display temperatures, and lighting are held constant," Acuff advises.

Sorting or segmenting pork loins into different marbling groups or assuring that loins with low levels of marbling are not used for centrally fabricated and packaged pork may have to be a quality control function within the industry rather than a government service, the scientist says.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm still burning over the letter from "On Needles and Pins in Texas," the tramp who had slept with three men in three weeks and didn't know who the father of her child was.

How in the world can anyone who's been with three men in 21 days have the nerve to expect support money?

I believe that a woman is responsible for her own body. If she doesn't use birth control, whatever happens is her fault, not the guy's.

It seems to me that the men in this country need laws to protect them against wenches like this. For example: My boyfriend went through a similar experience years ago. That tramp was 21. He was barely 18. She wanted him forever and he wanted out. So what did she do? She "forgot" to use birth control. That was 10 years ago and he is paying child support to this day. What's more, he will continue to pay for eight more years.

There is plenty injustice in this world and loose women like the one who wrote are responsible for a lot of it.--Raleigh, N.C.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just returned from a weekend trip to Silver Dollar City with my boyfriend "Sam" and his 5-year-old son. "Sam" and his wife split when "Billy" was 2.

The trip was a disaster. Every time I wanted to go on a ride, Billy would scream and say he was afraid. If I wanted to go into a shop, the boy would cry and tell his dad that he didn't want to go--so we didn't!

Sam bought lunch ($16 for the three of us), but the boy hardly ate a thing. He held his fist up to his father's face, gritted his teeth, and said, "I told you I want a piece of pie." (He scarcely touched the food in front of him!)

By this time, I had had enough of the crying and complaining. I was also angry at my boyfriend for not disciplining the child. Sam then became upset with me and kept repeating, "The boy is only 5."

Sam says he cannot discipline Billy because he only sees him twice a month and he wants that time to be pleasant. Also, he's afraid the boy won't want to be with him if he punishes him all the time.

I say bull! If Billy is demanding and disrespectful as a child, he will behave that way as an adult and they will never have a good relationship. Any advice you have will be appreciated. I am -- Out of Whack in Granite City

DEAR WHACK: Sam is caught in the same trap that so many divorced men find themselves in these days. And you, of course, are being cast in the same old role -- that of the wicked stepmother.

You and Sam need joint counseling. He needs to learn how to deal with Billy and you must learn how to fit into the family picture. The challenge is enormous I hope you are equal to it. Good luck.
