Plead Guilty To Adultery Charge

Jerry San Juan and Gladys Brannon pled guilty in county court on August 22 to a charge of adultery filed against them Friday.

The offense, according to Patrolman James R. Kirkwood, occurred on or about August 20. Each was fined $25 and costs by Judge Leonard H. Foster.

LEO GALLAGHER, center, has reason to smile as he brings the first load of 1952 maize in to the Bradley Grain company late Friday afternoon. The unusually early date, prompted by the hot weather and drought, smashes all local records and could possibly be the first load in the Panhandle. Gallagher brought in 11,860 pounds off six acres cutting. Jack Bradley, left, and Sylvester Slagle, right, bought the maize from Gallagher. Staff Photo.

Records Fall As 1952 Maize Sells

Deaf Smith county farmers, intent on breaking records this year, smashed another one Friday afternoon when Leo Gallagher, a dryland farmer living 25 miles northwest of Hereford, brought in the first load of 1952 maize.

This performance smashed by at least a week all previous records for first load of maize. Gallagher brought his load, weighing 11,860 pounds, to the Bradley Grain company where Jack Bradley and Sylvester Slagle bought his 1952 "first".

Market $3

Market price for the feed on Friday was $3, although Gallagher got slightly more for his. He also got a premium from Bradley. Gallagher's early yield was Sooner 60-day mix.

It took seven acres to yield the 11,860 pound load the lucky farmer brought in, into Hereford late Friday afternoon.

Test weight was 54 pounds with moisture running a "little high".

Weather Factor

The hot, dry weather prompted Gallagher to cut his crop a little ahead of normal. Most farmers are expected to get into the fields to cut in about 10 days, maybe 15.

Gallagher's "first" put him way up front. Most farmers are eyeing their maize as it turns golden brown, but they have had to hold off just a little.

The quick-maturing variety used by Gallagher for his acreage was planted the latter part of May.

On the crop front, Friday's 30 inch of rain wasn't general enough in the opinion of farm observers to correct the damage done in the extreme western part of the county.

Heavy Yield

Irrigated maize is headed for a heavy yield and is ripening rapidly. Some dryland looks good, but still others in the belts where there has been no moisture look bad.

The overall county outlook can only be described as "spotted". That's the way the moisture has fallen and that's the way the good and bad crops can be determined.

While Hereford had the 30 inch of rainfall, southeast of the city there was up to an inch while gone fell in the Bippus area.

O. G. Hill reported 7 inch at his place near the Towel Drive-In. Northeast of Ford there was no moisture, but west of Ford a small shower was reported.

Not too much moisture fell north of Hereford, either according to reports gathered by County Agent Hugh Clearman.

Brand Editor Accepts Post In Washington

Wallace W. Knief, news editor of The Brand since January, 1951, has resigned to enter the daily newspaper field.

Knief will leave the first week in September for the Pasco-Kenewick-Richland tri-city area in Washington, where he will be the Richland bureau editor for the Tri-City Herald.

The tri-city area is the site of the first atomic research center in the United States.

Prior to coming to Hereford, Knief was news editor of the Decorah (Iowa) Public Opinion.

Mrs. Major Hudson of Clarendon is visiting her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hudson.

Feed Problem Answered By Trench Silo

Ensilage cutting is currently making a big dent on the farm scene in Deaf Smith county. Now that the drought has crippled so many of our pastures in the state, rich ensilage is going to mean all the more to cattle feeders.

The latest Deaf Smith county farmer to go in for growing Atlas sorgo for ensilage is R. W. Mitchell, who farms 15 miles west of Hereford. Mitchell has 47 acres he is growing on contract for Roger Brumley, whose ranch is just west of the Mitchell place.

Mitchell was cutting the feed last week and Brumley's men were hauling it to the Brumley pit silo for storage and curing.

On his 47 acres, Mitchell has top-notch feed which he expects to make 700 tons or about 10-15 ton per acre. The trench silo on the Brumley ranch is 20 feet wide, 400 feet long, and about 15 feet deep. Mitchell estimates it'll hold about 1,500 tons of ensilage.

While the 10-15 ton per acre yield on the Atlas sorgo ensilage isn't tops, Mitchell has top quality feed. He has heard of yields up to 25 tons per acre in this vicinity.

The sorgo was planted May 1 and irrigated three times, same as the other Mitchell crops. It had one good rain and a couple of showers.

The ensilage, Mitchell estimates, will feed about 35 pounds per day per cow.

"Citizens For Eisenhower" Group Formed

Curtis Traweck was elected permanent chairman of the Deaf Smith county "Citizens for Eisenhower" organization in a meeting held Friday night at Hotel Jim Hill.

Thirty interested citizens attended the meeting and voted to inaugurate a county committee to support the general and to arouse interest in his election.

Joe Evans and Carl Perrin were named co-chairmen of the committee to contact local businessmen for financial assistance for staging community-wide meetings in the county.

Ben Guill, Republican campaign manager for Eisenhower in Texas, was invited to the meeting but could not attend.

Bruce Miller told the group why he favored Eisenhower in a brief talk. He said "Ike" was not a member of any pressure group, which was the main reason he favored the general.

Dr. M. C. Adams also spoke briefly on behalf of the five-star general, calling Eisenhower "a man, not a politician".

Pete Cowart, county Democratic secretary, participated briefly in the meeting as a representative of the party who had been asked to explain how the ticket could be split this fall to elect Democratic local and state officers and still vote for Eisenhower electors on the national level.

Sam Nunnally, Republican candidate for county judge, stated the needs of the "Citizens For Eisenhower" committee as far as office space and "give-aways" was concerned. He cited the need for funds and from this came the appointment of Joe Evans and Carl Perrin by temporary chairman Kenneth Rudd to select a working finance committee.

Meetings in rural areas will be held after September 9 when Gov. Allan Shivers meets with Adlai Stevenson and gets his views on the Tideland and FEPC. If Shivers goes "fishing" November 4, Nunnally said several leading Democrats in the county will feel unobligated to the Democratic nominee and will aid the "citizens" movement.

All 10 of the community meetings -- complete with speakers, entertainment and food -- will be held from September 9 to November 4, election day.

Sam Nunnally was named chairman to arrange for the programs.

Voting Drags In Run-Off

Apathetic voting marked the run-off elections Saturday in Deaf Smith county with very little interest shown in the contests.

A total of 51 votes had been cast in the three Hereford precincts. In Precinct 2, there were 29 votes cast. Precinct 1 had 15 and Precinct 3 had seven votes by early afternoon Saturday.

There are no local races to be determined in the balloting and voters evidently are beating the heat by staying home under the air conditioner.

Complete results of the run-off primary will be carried in The Brand on Thursday.

Grandson Of Local Residents Victim Of Bulbar Polio

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Witherspoon received word Friday that their grandson, 14-year-old Richard Baird of Amarillo, had died of Bulbar polio.

The youth became ill Thursday morning and was taken to the hospital Thursday afternoon.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 4:30 p.m.

The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kay Baird. Mrs. Baird is the former Mabelle Witherspoon, who was born and reared in Hereford.

H R Tax, Budget Features Listed

(Ed. Note — This is the third in a series of four articles on the Home Rule Charter proposal to be placed before the voters on September 8. This article deals with taxes and budgets.)

Q. Under the present general law under which Hereford is now operating, does the city commission have authority to appoint a city manager or designate any employee of the city to act as city manager?

A. No, they cannot. General law cities under a population of 5,000 by a majority may adopt the city manager plan of government, but without Home Rule. Without such a vote, however, after an election called for that purpose, the present city commission has no authority to appoint a city manager or to designate any employee of the city to act as city manager.

Q. What provisions are made under the Home Rule charter for a financial plan?

A. The charter provides that at least 60 days prior to the beginning of each budget year, the city manager shall submit to the city commission a proposed budget setting out the estimated income from each department, and the estimated expense of each department. The budget will show a statement of all receipts and expenditures for all funds; an analysis of property valuation and tax rates; general fund resources; a summary of proposed expenditures and for what purpose they are to be expended; a revenue and expenditure statement for all types of bonds; and a schedule of requirements to pay the bonds and all interest on bonds. The budget is to be filed with the city clerk and notice thereof published and a public hearing had on the adoption of the proposed budget.

Q. Is there any difference in the manner of forwarding bonds and the issuance thereof under the Home Rule charter, than under the present law?

A. There is very little difference. (Continued on page 2)

GRASS ROOTS

Saturday again! I have been advised time and time again by people who know about writing such things as this that the way to do it is to write a part of the column every day. I am sure that they are right, but I can't seem to get around to it until Saturday morning. At any rate maybe I can find something to fill up space between now and the noon deadline.

Looks like farmers and ranchers are a little weary of paying the high price of alfalfa hay. I have no way of knowing how many acres of alfalfa will be seeded but it will be sizeable. Seems like everytime I get settled someone is picking up alfalfa seed and a seeder. There are several varieties of alfalfa adapted to this area but the most commonly used one is Southwest Common. Every season there is a lot of heated discussion about Texas seed versus California or Arizona seed. There is little doubt in my mind about the comparison between Texas and these other States but in so far as the seed is concerned there is little difference. This is a pretty flat statement and I imagine I will get a raise out of someone on it, but I have the statements of some of the big hay growers around the country to back me up. A new strain of alfalfa, BUFFALO, was seeded here last Fall by Richard Ireland and considerable interest has developed from this seeding. Richard reports a quick hearty growth and a very fine stem hay. The selling point of the strain is that it is resistant to Alfalfa Wilt, and that plague of the hay fields is beginning to show in the High Plains area.

Speaking of the Irelands for a minute. Woodrow has a good demonstration of Hubam Clover seeding south of town a few miles. The clover is making seed now and the field is white with blossoms. Woody seeded the Hubam into wheat early this Spring and the growth that the clover has made is something considering the amount of moisture it received. Woody also has quite a stand of Pinto Beans on his home place here in Hereford. A lot of different ways to get organic matter back in the soil and build up the Nitrogen content of the soil at the same time.

Want to keep reminding you that it is time to get your plans made for Fall seeding of permanent pasture. This practice is definitely out of the test tube stage now and is a money maker on every irrigated farm. There is going to be a big demand for pasture here this winter and Spring and if you don't want live stock of your own there will be plenty of cattle men who will be hounding you for pasture. If you don't believe this take a short trip in any direction and you will find the pastures burned up from the drought. The Vetch and Rye fields will bring in a lot of return this winter and spring also. Irrigated pastures and Vetch fields were bringing $1 a hundred per month last year, and all indications are that they will do it again this year. Get 'em seeded early and get some Fall grazing.

There has been a lot of Fungus showing up in the lawns around town. The common name of the stuff is Brown Patch and shows up as a circle of dead grass. This circle continues to grow until it has taken up the entire yard. Mercury compounds and other highly poisonous fungicides are effective on this disease, but as stated are highly poisonous. Mr. Robert Viegel found a compound in Amarillo that is put out by the Dupont Chemical Corporation that seems to be stopping Brown Patch in his lawn. Would be wise to watch the lawns pretty close for a few weeks.

H. R. Tax....

ence in the issuance of bonds under the proposed Home Rule charter than those which can be issued by the city commission under the present law. All tax bonds, that is bonds which must be paid from ad valorem taxes, must be authorized by a vote of the people after an election to be held for that purpose. Revenue bonds, that is bonds that are not payable out of ad valorem taxes but payable only out of the revenue from any particular project for which the bonds are issued may be issued by the city commission. All bonds issued by the city commission are subject to the referendum provision of the charter whereby the question of the issuance of such bonds must be submitted to a majority vote of the citizens of Hereford if a referendum petition is filed.

Q. Is there any change in the procedure for taxation of property?

A. The procedure for the taxation of property is substantially the same and will be the same as conducted by the city under the present law. There is one change, however, in that any tax payer who is dissatisfied with the decision of the board of equalization may appeal from such decision to the city commission within five days after the tax rolls have been certified by the board of equalization to the city commission. This provision is not available under the present law.

Q. Is there any change in the procedure of the collection of taxes?

A. NO, collection of taxes is controlled principally by the laws passed by the Legislature of Texas, all of which are incorporated within the provisions of the proposed charter.

Q. Will the City commission have authority to borrow money in anticipation of property taxes?

A. The charter provides the city commission may, by resolution, authorize the borrowing of money by issuance of negotiable notes of the city in anticipation of the taxes to be collected for that year. The notes must mature and be payable no later than the end of the fiscal year. All notes must be sold at not less than par value plus the accrued interest.

Q. Can the city commission under the new charter forgive or release any penalty or interest on delinquent taxes?

A. The charter provides that the city commission shall never extend the time for payment of taxes or remit, discount or waive the penalty that may be due by any person, providing, however, that the city commission may remit, discount, or waive penalty to all persons. In other words, the city commission cannot favor any one tax payer and if remittance, discount or waiver of the penalty or interest on delinquent taxes is made to one person, then it must apply to all persons and tax payers equally in the city.

Randall, Deaf Smith Scouts Get Executive

W. M. Teague, Scout executive for the Liano Estacado Boy Scout council since 1942, has been named executive to serve the eight units in the Randall and Deaf Smith county districts, The Bradford has been informed.

Teague's appointment is an answer to a charge issued here earlier in the year that local Scout units are not getting their just share of paid executive assistance. Deaf Smith county has six units and Randall has two. Teague will serve these eight solely under the new arrangement.

The new executive is not new to this district, having been here before when the district was composed of more clubs. Previously, one fieldman had been serving Claude, Amarillo, Adrian, Vega, Friona, Happy and Hereford.

Before coming to this district last time, Teague was Scout executive out of Dalhart serving Dallam, Hartley, Moore and Sherman counties.

Teague is a veteran of World War II, having served two years in the European Theater of Operations. He has been in Scouting since 1922.

Teague served this district from 1942-1947, prior to the appointment of Harry Delashmatt. At that time, there was one executive in the council. Now there are three.

The first assignment for the new full-time executive will be "training", he said. He will embark on an extensive training program for all Scout leaders. The first phase will be presented beginning September 18.

Tommy Joe Martin, son of Mrs. Myrtle Martin, is home on two weeks leave from the Navy.

See Two-Day F.B. Membership Drive

Community meetings held throughout the county during the past week on behalf of the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau Federation were termed a success by Horace Vaughn, chairman of the Farm Bureau's impending membership drive.

Vaughn said the number of workers who volunteered to help in the membership drive will enable the work to be completed in two days with cleanup work to be completed in about two additional days.

Farm Bureau members will go out in pairs for the drive to contact 20 prospective members each, Vaughn said. The drive will begin on August 29.

A kick-off dinner for all volunteers will be held in the basement of the St. Anthony's school this night before the drive opens Thursday, Aug. 28.

Goal for the membership campaign is 250 new members, the chairman stated. The teams of workers will depend upon personal contacts both in the rural and in the business areas of the county.

Final instructions for the volunteers will be given at this meeting.

No replacement has been secured as yet for Williams. Graham reported. His replacement will devote full time to the work. Music orientation was also one of the subjects taught by Williams during his four years at Hereford as band instructor.

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Hopson and children are vacationing in New Mexico and Colorado.

Rameys Return From Convention Of Letter Men

Mr. and Mrs. E. Ramey returned this week from the National Rural Letter Carrier's convention held in Stillwater, Okla., from August 12-15.

Mrs. Ramey was a seated delegate at the convention. The Rameys reported the largest delegation ever assembled for a rural letter carrier's convention with 4,000 to 5,000 attending.

Highlight of the entertainment for the convention included a reception, Texas breakfast, mother and daughter banquet, watermelon feasts, barbecue and a trip to Ponca City.

An impressive memorial service was also held, the Rameys reported.

Jesse M. Donaldson, postmaster general, addressed the convention and it was taped so all carriers could hear it over their radios on their return trip home.

Following the convention, the Rameys made brief visits with relatives and friends at Sapulpa and Durant, Okla., and in Denison, Bonhom, Savoy, Ector, St. Jo, Quanah and Memphis, Texas.

McCulloughs "Find" Is Antique Bellows Organ

By Joan Hardwick Lovers of rare antiques will be interested in hearing of the "find" made by Mr. and Mrs. Ray McCullough while visiting relatives in Arkansas this spring.

The "find" is one of those old-time bellows organs which was manufactured in the 1880's. The exact date is not known, but the last repair date is believed to have been in 1902, indicated by that year marked on the back of the organ.

Even though the organ was in very poor condition in appearance the tone did not need repair and Mr. McCullough was able to make the necessary repairs and completely refinish the outside and inside.

This organ was purchased for a mere $30 and after refinishing had been completed, a furniture dealer from Amarillo told them of friends of his who paid $1500 for an antique organ that was not comparable to the one now owned by the McCulloughs.

When the McCulloughs bought the organ in a small second-hand furniture store in Harrison, the major problem was the method they would employ in getting it to Hereford. They removed the head piece which was a large mirror and carried this in their car and made arrangements to have the rest shipped.

After returning to Hereford, Mr. McCullough refinished the head piece and it was so beautiful that they anxiously awaited the arrival of the rest of the organ. When a month had passed and they still had not received the organ nor had any notice of its whereabouts they made arrangements to have it traced.

Information was found to the effect that the organ had reached Ft. Worth and because of the value, the Ft. Worth office would not accept it so they returned it to Harrison.

Plans were then made to ship it through El Paso and it arrived in Hereford in fair condition considering the various trips it had taken.

Re-Finishing Work. Mr. McCullough took the organ apart piece by piece except for the musical apparatus. He then removed all of the varnish, stained it and then shellacked it with a mahogany shellac, even though the organ is made of solid walnut because Mrs. McCullough's other furniture is mahogany.

Mrs. McCullough collects antique dishes, however she says that she never considered buying antique furniture until they purchased the valuable organ.

MRS. RAY McCULLOUGH stands beside the 1800 model bellows organ which they salvaged out of a second hand store in Arkansas this year. They brought the instrument for $30 and, after McCullough's refinishing work on it, found that it was far more valuable. It's a showpiece, though and "not for sale." Staff Photo.

Charter Extended For Credit Union

Both the geographical area and the scope of activities of the Hereford Federal Credit Union were extended this week by a charter extension approved by the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions, according to President Robert L. Thompson.

Thompson said the bureau has approved an amendment to give the local group authority to enlist members throughout Deaf Smith county and also within a radius of 25 miles of Hereford. Previously, the lending capacity or membership in the group was limited to within a 20-mile radius of Hereford. This didn't include all of the home county. Another new feature of the charter revision is that membership can be solicited through organizations, heretofore prohibited.

The new area change will allow for members in the communities of Friona and Dimmitt, Thompson said.

Mrs. Dyalitha Brady, secretary-manager of the credit union, said she will attend field trips next week in the Dallas and Fort Worth areas to study credit unions of comparable size to the expanding Hereford operation.

She told The Brand that the credit union gained $13,000 in shares during the past month. Officers of the organization are: Thompson, president; J. W. Robinson, vice-president; A. J. Schroeter, O. L. Bybee, and Dyalitha Brady, secretary-manager.

Beauty at Home

By Lynn Carter

Q. What is a suggested way to add oil to hair that is very dry?
A. Wet it well with 70% alcohol in which a small amount of castor oil has been dissolved. The alcohol evaporates and leaves the oil on the hair. A proper mixture is 3 or 4 teaspoons castor oil to a pint of rubbing alcohol. This treatment must be done as frequently as necessary to keep the hair in proper condition.

Q. What is a good way to apply mascara?
A. First comb the eyebrows straight up with a fine comb, moisten the mascara brush, and darken the brows while they are still straight up. Then comb the hairs gently back into a graceful arch.

Q. How can I camouflage unsightly blotches on my complexion?
A. Dip the end of a wooden toothpick into a one-ounce bottle of acetone, and press this on the pimple. Then with a bit of absorbent cotton saturate with alcohol, press the spot to disinfect it and to neutralize the acetone.

Q. What is a good inexpensive skin bleach I can mix at home?
A. First make a mixture of 1/3 lemon juice to 2/3 witch hazel, and then mix a cake of yeast with enough of this to make a paste and spread the entire mixture over the face. Let this dry for about 15 minutes, and then remove with warm water. If the skin feels dry, rub with a little oil of sweet almonds or olive oil, and wipe off the excess with cleansing tissues.

Q. How can I soften the appearance of a very square-shaped face with my hairdressing?
A. You should adopt an irregular hairline—loose waves and curls high, just at the front, softly covering the ears at the sides.

Q. My face has an unusual paleness and colorlessness. Is there a good quick way I can remedy this?
A. Maybe your face needs a good "drink". Fill the basin with cool water, close your eyes and hold your breath, and thrust your face deep into the water, holding it there as long as possible. Keep repeating this.

Q. What is a good shampooing procedure for sticky or oily hair?
A. Apply the beaten whites of two eggs to the hair with a tooth-brush, and let dry. Then brush it out with a sterilized, stiff-bristled brush. Your hair should then be clean, fluffy and glossy.

Q. How can I whiten the back of my neck?
A. Mix about a half-pint of sour milk and lemon, equal parts, and add a little glycerine to this. Then make a pad of cheesecloth to fit the back of the neck and saturate with the mixture. After washing the neck with hot water, apply the pad for 15 minutes. Repeat regularly for 10 days.

Mrs. Perrin told of the Indian origin of the name "Ashram" which means cessation from work. "The retreat is in the form of a training school for all denominations and races and attendants are encouraged to call each other by given names. Organized 12 years ago, there are now five Ashrams in the United States and one in Canada," she said.

True, but true: "There's no place like home."

Probably one of the best things about vacations is the wonderful, wonderful feeling when you get back home. Especially when it's Hereford. Honestly, of all the places we saw there was not a single one which had anything over Hereford as a place to live.

Kearney, Neb., was the only place I saw which seemed to even compare. This is another irrigation area and has developed quite a few small industries. It sure is a live-wire town. Guess the reason I liked it so well was the fact that it definitely reminded me of Hereford.

Grand Island, Neb., was another town along the same lines, but must have been around 20,000 population as compared with 7,000 or so for Kearney.

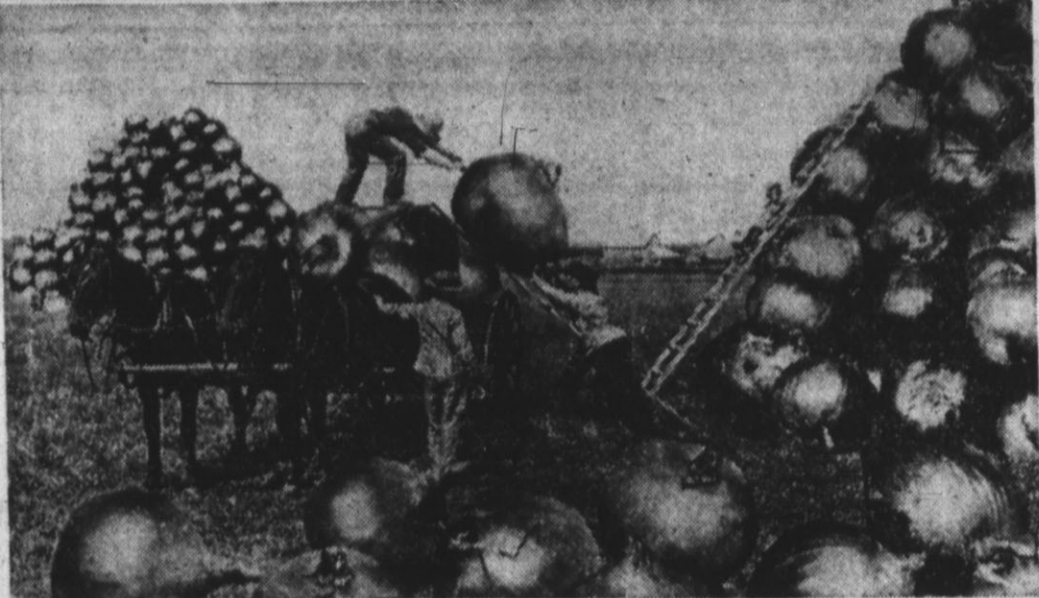

L. Coy dropped in to say that he certainly enjoyed the two columns. He farmed near Blue Earth and Wynabago, Minn., for eight years—and he says they made him a little bit homesick. Earl Wood is another Hereford man who spent four years in that country. He was superintendent of a construction crew and worked in Minnesota and Wisconsin, but says he enjoyed most a winter which he spent in Sleepy Eye, Minn. He says that the eligible young men in that country never get in before 2:30 or 3 o'clock.

Jim Wheelan grew up in Wisconsin and he says that I missed the prettiest part. All three were unanimous, however, in declaring that we made the trip at the wrong time. They say that early October is the very best time to visit the country.

On the way back home we stopped in Dumas for gasoline and were saddened to learn of the death of Hall Beavers. The attendant noticed our Hereford tags and said he thought we would probably know Hall. Several cars of De Sota officials had stopped there earlier and told him.

If you didn't know Hall Beavers, you missed knowing a fine man and a good citizen. Hall played football on one of those early S. M. U. teams and I always got a kick out of hearing him tell about the days when the gridirons were covered with gravel instead of grass and when shoulder pads were mere pieces of thin cloth. Hall loved sports. Anything from football to fishing, but the thing I will always remember about Hall is the fact that he was a true artisan. He was one of those fellows who took pride in doing a job, and doing it right. He got a lot of self-satisfaction from hearing a motor overhaul purr just like it should and in knowing that it was just as good as new. Hall Beavers truly loved his work and he worked toward doing a first-class job just as much as he worked for the fee he charged. His type of craftsman is rapidly disappearing in modern day mechanics. I feel sure that we will notice the consequences more as time passes. Hall Beavers was a wonderful man and many of us will miss him as the days pass into weeks, and the weeks pass into years—and I doubt if Hereford will ever have a more substantial all around citizen.

Another "coming home" shock was the resignation of Wally Knief as news editor. Hundreds of people feel as I do that we have lost a valuable man. Wally is one of the best news editors in the history of the Brand and he has found a warm place in many hearts of people over the

Believe it or not, here's a picture of Canyon onions. It was taken in 1909, reproduced on a postal card and mailed to Roy Jowell in Hereford. The onions you will note are bigger than men, even horses, and it is difficult to get three on a wagon at one time. Some people might think this is trick photography, but not me. After seeing Hereford onions so long, I know this is on the up and up, but do have to admit that the Canyon variety is just a little bit larger than ours—but not much.

Canyon City. Cecil isn't here, but I am taking down my sign about Hereford onions. He may hold out that it is trick photography or something, but when I see a picture of onions bigger than people, bigger even than horses, I figure I haven't any place in the argument. Three of those Canyon onions made a full wagon load, and that's too much for me. I do have one request, however, if they can forgive my previous rash statements, and if they ever cook hamburgers and put a slice of these large onions on each side of the meat, I sure would like to have a couple of those hamburgers.

Rumors are floating thick and fast that one of our county officials may resign to accept a post with the Rural Telephone Cooperative, but we have been unable to secure any definite confirmation. No denials. No affirmations. No comment.

Signs on all outskirts entering Sioux City, Iowa: "This road is radar patrolled—exceed limits at your own risk." I still think that they were bluffing, but was afraid to make a test, besides, the traffic was so heavy it was difficult to maintain the regular 45 M. P. H. All you see along along Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota highways is corn and soy beans, and the crops look wonderful.

Leaving Kansas we were checked by the State Highway patrol and Kansas Chamber of Commerce with a long questionnaire: "Where did you enter the state? How much did you pay for meals?" "How much for lodging?" "Why did you take this particular route?" "Did you stop at any points of interest in Kansas?" This went on for a full 14-inch page. They have crews of Kansas university students employed on the job and seem to be gathering statistics as to how much money tourists spend in the state, also why. It is a very good deal and will maybe go a long way when they ask the Kansas legislature for some new highways, which they definitely need. Texas roads seemed to us to be better engineered and better maintained. Maybe this is because we are just used to them. After you leave this immediate section all service station machines are equipped with 10c coin venders for bottle drinks. No deposit charge for bottles, however. Bugs and insects are terrific throughout the north and east. Maybe worse than here. You see

Workers 4-H To Carlsbad For Tour Of Caverns

NW HEREFORD — Members of the Workers 4-H club and their sponsor, Mrs. M. G. Caywood, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Corbett and family, left Wednesday for Carlsbad where the group will be personally escorted through the caverns as an educational group.
The money for this trip was obtained through a rummage sale sponsored by the club several weeks ago. At this sale they collected over $40 which is more than enough for the trip.
The expense of the trip is expected to be light as Mr. Corbett is furnishing his grain truck for the girls' transportation. In preparing the truck for the trip, Mr. Corbett fashioned a covered wagon type of shelter over the bed, which will provide shelter for the group.
The girls plan to be gone two days and one night. They will camp out, which includes cooking out and sleeping out. They are planning to swim somewhere along the way and really have a good time. Each girl took her bed roll and some kind of chuck.
Members of the group who went are: Freda Inman, Paula Beth Corbett, Marie and Stella Hunter, Patsy Childers and Evelyn Hunter, Joe Eddie Scott, Frankie Dee Culpepper, Lula Mae Harris from Tipton, Okla.
Ronald and James Corbett, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Corbett also accompanied the group.
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cave have returned from a week's vacation to points in Colorado.

"For Goodness Sake" Story of Parish Life By Minister's Wife

Reviewed by Mrs. D. Alexander

When Carol was 12 she decided that she was going to marry a minister, but she forgot this decision during all the busy exciting times during high school and the first two years of college.

When she was 19 and a junior in college, she met Bob Beattie, a young priest of the Episcopal church and two years later they were married.

Now, looking back over the not-too-far-distant past, she tells what it is like to be a minister's wife. It might be difficult sometimes but for her it has been a happy experience.

In the main it is the human side of parish life that Mrs. Beattie describes. Some of them very humorous and some very serious. Bob's first parish was two little country churches. It was here she learned, very soon, that the church was their "All in all". They took the 23rd Psalm literally. The psalm was written for pastoral people and they leaned upon it. They did not ask "why", having faith that The Lord was their shepherd.

Carol soon took her place at Bob's side and was interested in every thing the women of the parish were. It was here that she decided never again to wear slacks. She was busy painting and cleaning when she was called to the church and in her hurry wore slacks covered with paint and an old sweater with the elbows out. There were all the ladies of the parish, old and young, all dressed in their very best. They were giving her a surprise shower and they forgave her because they knew by the slacks that it really was a surprise. From that day to this, she has never worn slacks. She takes no chances.

One near tragedy was when Bob was asked to address a group of women in a nearby town on some religious topic. Thinking they were Episcopalians, he quoted from a book that had to do with the oppression of the Episcopalians by the Congregational church.

"Oh no," you can't mention that book here," Carol thought and tried to catch Bob's eye, but there was no stopping him. The applause was so light he knew something was wrong and he knew when Carol whispered, "Congregationalists". He ate his refreshments wearing "sack-cloth and ashes".

They went to their second parish just two months before Pearl Harbor in December 1941, and it was here that she had her real trials as a minister's wife.

From this parish, 85 men and women were in the armed forces. Bob beat at the door of every branch of service, but because of child-hood heart ailment was refused. All returned except one and Carol says, "How God must have yearned to solve the terrible puzzle of war His children had set for themselves. He could not without taking from them His greatest gift, the freedom of will and action. He had done His best -- had sent His own son to teach the world how easy it was to love and still men went stubbornly to their own selfish and tragic destruction."

ing the year Bob was rector at Trinity. "Tuck" was the first rector baby in 54 years and no crown prince was more eagerly awaited. The members of the church practically cheered. Life was very good. Bob in his sphere and I in mine? Probably the most unhappy time of her life was when Bob left a parish to be chaplain of a boy's school.

She says of this, "If Bob thought that the Lord was pointing out the path to a school, it was up to me to walk that path with Bob."

When Bob was called to St. James church he told Carol there was lots of work to be done. She answered with, "I'll vote for St. James. It sounds like our kind of church."

What is rectory life like? It's full of laughter, it's full of tears, it's full of responsibilities. All that we can do never, seems enough, for God's children are our concern -- yes, mine as well as Bob's.

We wouldn't trade places with any one, any where, because a rectory -- any rectory -- is a happy place.

Another of Mrs. Beattie's comments which deserves quotation is this: "A minister's life dull? I should say not!"

Peace Officers Concerned Over Juvenile Situation

"Know where your sons and daughters spend their leisure time".

That was the tenor of an appeal by local law enforcement officers in their attempts to halt a growing under-cover surge of "juvenile delinquency."

There IS juvenile delinquency in Hereford. Period. It doesn't sound nice to the parents of Hereford to say that some of our youngsters are making trouble. It may get some of them up in arms to hint at such a problem locally.

But it's the plain, unvarnished truth and we'll have to cope with it in one of two ways—either before it breaks out into the open or after it erupts.

The situation has become so irritating under the surface that County Attorney Gib Howard sat at this writer's desk Wednesday afternoon and posed one question, "What can we do to warn the parents of what's brewing?"

We volunteered this method. We hope it makes some people think.

Monday night's draining of the municipal swimming pool is a prime example of irresponsibility and of juvenile delinquency. It wasn't a "smart trick, although we're sure the delinquents who did it thought so.

Then, too, neighbors around the pool are complaining of gangs spending the nights in the parking area around the pool, littering the premises with beer cans.

That certainly doesn't speak well of the conduct of our youths.

Howard volunteered the information that last week-end a 16-year-old white youth went to a nearby town with two older Latin-Americans. The driver of the auto was charged with driving while intoxicated. Howard said the 16-year-old was drunk also. It was the Latin-American man's second offense.

Howard also made the disturbing revelation to this writer of dating between Latin-American youths and white girls, also white boys and Latin-American girls.

It's a dangerous trend. We're sure if the parents had any idea of how their children were spending their spare time—as outlined by the county attorney—they might stop and think. Think SERIOUSLY.

Why don't the law enforcement officials do something?

As far as they can, they act. But their hands are tied. We have no curfew, but they can see for themselves that boys and girls roam the streets at all hours of the night and morning. That's no healthy condition.

What would happen if they threw your son or daughter in jail for any of the above malpractices? There'd be some heads rolling! Parents would be furious!

This isn't mere conjecture. It is the result of observations of our law enforcement officials of a situation over which they have no legal control. And they're worried.

So should the parents be worried. Don't say "It can't happen here." It can and it might.

Howard also told this writer that a series of minor thefts of gasoline and batteries from farms in the area has plagued both farmers and peace officers.

Farmers now have come to regard these incidents as a "thing to be expected."

That feeling, that we should be forced to adopt such a resigned attitude, is nothing to be proud of. When we feel we must submit to petty thievery to "let the kids have some fun", it's pretty sorry.

There's only one group that can remedy it—the parents. If they can't keep track of their boys and girls and at the same time fail to give our peace officers the right to do so, they have only themselves to blame for the consequences.

That sounds like hard talk. It'll make many parents "fighting mad." If it will HELP remedy the situation, good enough. If they must assume a belligerent and offended attitude in the light of their shortcomings, let them do so, but it is better to bring this matter to light at a time when a little parental guidance will correct a situation that might require use of the courts in future years.

Crime—an ugly word—has its beginning in juvenile delinquency. "Harmless fun" can all too easily broaden into juvenile delinquency.

Let it be made clear here and now that we're not "picking on the kids." We have every respect in the world for our younger generation. They are no different than you or I were when we were young. They have to release the same amount of energy in their growing stage.

It has to be released in some direction.

If we, as parents, are delinquent in guiding the release of that energy—if we take a complacent attitude towards our children's nighttime activities—we are MORE at fault than they.

We have failed in our duties as parents and moulders of our children.

Hereford DOES have a juvenile problem. All the denials in the world won't erase it. All the hush-hush won't overcome it.

A little firmer control by the parents over their offsprings and a little indulgence, in their problems of "growing up" and providing them with the wholesome entertainment and relaxation they want and NEED will go a LONG, LONG way in eliminating the problem.

We don't expect everyone who reads this to agree with us. We do, however, hope that everyone who reads it will re-evaluate their problem, the community's problem, on this important issue.—W.W.K.

HST's Mediocrity Coming To Light

Harry Truman hasn't been a bit bashful about letting his mediocrity show since retiring from the political wars this spring. Some of his public utterances have bordered on the embarrassing for the American people.

They only bear out our contention that every American boy CAN grow up to be president, but not every American boy SHOULD.

Truman's cockiness since he announced his "abdication" has been a little ridiculous.

Harry seems to feel that no one within the magic circle can do wrong and anyone who feels otherwise is off the beam.

Take two statements from his Thursday's press conference. One that he didn't have to read Eisenhower's speeches to comment on them or to know that they were not correct. The "chief" intimated that he knew more about government than any man living.

Some talk for a former ward-heeler, but typical of the Truman attitude.

Another mis-statement that will cause—that has caused—some embarrassment in international circles is the bodyguard Miss Margaret Truman carried to Sweden. The law requires she have this bodyguard. Well and good. We won't argue that.

The thing we will argue, however, is that Truman said the bodyguards must have been in the right because the secret service men "are always right."

Truman should know better than anyone else that it is most desirable to have an incident like this dealt with as inconspicuously as possible. But not the "give-em-hell" LITTLE man from Missouri who has pulled himself up through the mire of machine politics.

Truman has gotten himself into several messes with the men of the press and radio because of his favorite trick of backtracking on a previous statement and then trying to push the blame on the reporters and radio men.

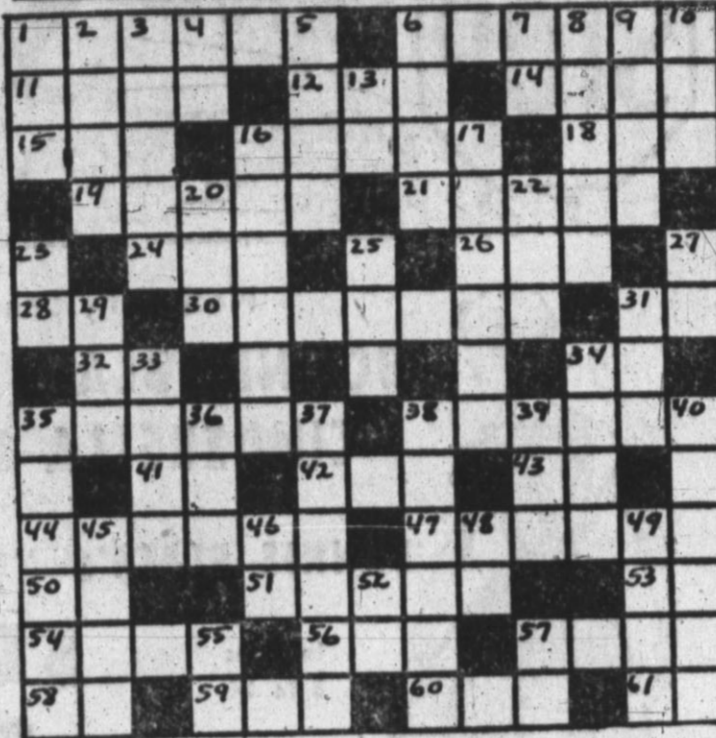

It's another manifestation of his dangerous "dictatorial" policy that the chief can do no wrong.

Truman told reporters he doesn't have to read his opponent's remarks to know what they're talking about. He knows, he avers, more about government than anyone in the country.

If he's going to show the American people that he does, he'd better hurry and do it before January.

One thing which no one can deny and that is that REGARDLESS of who wins the election this fall, the White House will assume more dignity than the nation's highest office has been granted in the past seven years.—W.W.K.

I'll Never Forget

By L. B. BASKIN

I was born in Oregon, Mo., in—oh! way back there. My father was the county treasurer and owned a store called the Elephant store.

That store had about everything there was to have in it. You know, I was up there not very long ago and the room where I stayed, I could look right out the window and see the very spot where I was born.

There were 10 of us children in the family. I still get to see some of my brothers and sisters once in a while. They live in Oklahoma City. Did you know that my sister has one bedroom in her house that is mine and when ever I want I can stay there and my nephew has a room in his house that is mine too.

My father had dealings with the Anthony family. You might not believe this but Susan B. Anthony ate two meals in our home and I sat at the very table with her.

My first job was in a newspaper office where I worked as a "printers-devil"—that's sweeping the floors, running errands and all that work. I finally worked up to be reporter and my newspaper sent me to report on the inauguration of Gov. George T. Anthony, brother of Susan B. Anthony, who was to be sworn into office as governor of Kansas.

At that ceremony I sat between George T. Anthony and Susan B. Anthony—did you know that those two were brother and sister and they would never speak to each other!

I was sitting next to Col. D. R. Anthony, who was owner of the Leavenworth Daily Times, when he was involved in a political argument. Col. Anthony became so involved in this argument that he took it to court. However, I don't know how it came out.

Once Col. Anthony and I traveled together and on that very trip Col. Anthony's assassination was to take place—and I was sitting right next to him, not knowing a thing about it—but nothing happened.

Now Col. Anthony was a rich man, but he was also wise and stern. He had a son named Dan—when Dan finished college, Col. Anthony asked him what he would like to do. Dan said that he would like to tour the world. Col. Anthony asked how much this would cost. Dan said he thought he could do it on a thousand dollars. After thinking a long time Col. Anthony told Dan to be down at the office the next morning in old clothes. When Dan arrived at the office the next morning Col. Anthony told him to clean the cuspidors, sweep the floors and tidy up the office. Well Dan knew his father well enough to know that he meant what he said so he got to work.

Now Dan was about 19 or 20 at the time and he was still working around the office when his 21st birthday rolled around. Col. Anthony called his son in and told him, "Now, Dan you have been a good boy; you've been loyal and you've worked hard, so I want to give you something nice for your 21st (Continued on page 6)

SUNDAY'S CURRENT QUESTION

Worth Of Price Stabilizing Is So-So Topic With Local People

Do you think government efforts at holding the line on prices has done any good?

H. E. HENSLEE—Sure they have done some good, but to what extent I don't know. They could have done much more if they had put controls on sooner.

ROBERT THOMPSON—I am of the opinion that government controls have held down prices. However, I have given this no serious study. I am basing my conclusion on the fact that every time the prices are released the prices shoot up. The government didn't start soon enough nor have they been strict enough. They should have started before prices got so high.

FRED BAIRD—My opinion is that it probably has helped a little but the greatest help it has been is the psychological effect on the buying public, by reason of effort on the government's part. If the people get the idea that the government is making an effort to hold prices down, they will do like wise and not pay more for goods just because they have a pocket full of money.

MRS. ARGEN DRAPER—Yes, government efforts at holding prices on articles—certain articles—has done good or some good. I appreciate this effort to protect the consumer.

J. M. POSEY—NO. JOE LOWRY—I believe we should have a support price at the present time to preserve farming and small business. However, I believe the ceiling price is not needed. That should be regulated by supply and demand.

HUC HOMER—NO, I don't think so. Due to the fact shoes, which are my business, when talk about OPS started—went up maybe 15 or 20%. Then as soon as OPS had been on a little while the prices of shoes and other articles started tapering off and gradually came down to what they had been before, if not a little lower.

"DOC" COWAN—I believe that OPS has been a joke, because its object was to stabilize and control prices. But now that it has started everytime you turn around prices are raised, so it hasn't done any good.

FRANK DANIELS—I don't think they have done any good, because prices keep climbing all the time anyway.

'Tater Peelin's

By Roberto Campbell

Sorry folks, but the first pickin' of blackeyed peas didn't last as long as a paper shirt in a bear fight. However we have enough for everybody when we start pickin a new patch in about a week so any of you shouldn't be disappointed this time.

For the life of us we can't understand why Hereford can't support a taxi when town around us with only a third as many people as we have can keep one going.

It's pretty bad for people comin in by train or bus, especially at night, not to be able to find a way to the outskirts of town.

It's a pretty long walk with a suit case or a baby or both. Maybe the Conoco Station that stays open all night or someone else could work out a plan with somebody to at least be on call for a cab.

This is the week we are to spend in Kingsville and we're lookin' forward to it in a big way because we've often wondered what it would be like to have an expense paid vacation somewhere.

This isn't exactly a vacation but it IS different from hoein weeds.

The BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm at Bootleg discusses thinking this week, a subject it's easy for him to get over his depth in.

Dear editor: Every once in a while lately I've been readin where the candidates for President and other major offices mention the importance of gettin out and gettin the grass roots opinion on matters of vital importance in the conduct of this nation and the world also.

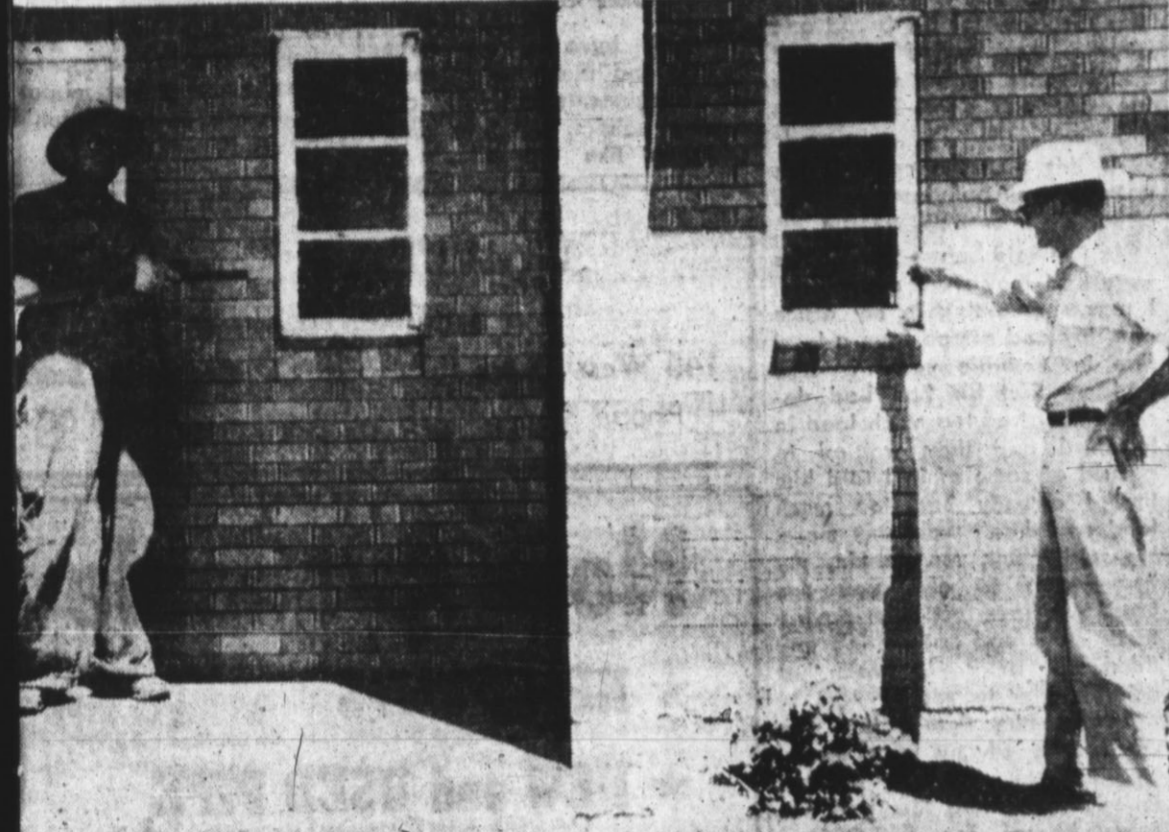

"What this country needs to solve its problems is some down-to-earth, grass roots thinking," one candidate announced recently.

I am afraid he is on the wrong trail. If anybody is closely associated with grass roots, I'm it, but if he thinks I got the solution to any national or world problems, he's badly mistaken, I can't even solve the problems right around me out here on the grass roots farm, let alone the problems of inflation, debt, world turmoil, etc. If anybody's lookin to a man who can't manage his farm to where it even suits his wife, to think up a solution to the world's problems, he's pretty certainly doomed to disappointment.

Grass roots thinkin I guess is about as brick pavement thinkin or skyscraper thinkin or ocean side thinkin or mountain top thinkin or Congressional thinkin or Presidential thinkin, but up to now as far as I can tell ain't none of em been good enough to solve some of the problems we got. I don't mind any of the Presidential candidates or Vice-Presidential candidates comin out here to sample any grass roots thinkin he can find, but if he thinks he's gonna find any solution for example for inflation or Korea or the Russians or traffic accidents or hot weather, he might as well stay at home with his own thoughts, even if he's already discovered they ain't satisfactory neither.

Understand, I'm in favor of thinkin, beats plowin ten to one, hoein twenty to one, and helpin with the washin fifty to one, in fact it's the next best thing to holdin office, but thinkin, grass roots or top of the stalk, up to now ain't been no absolute cure for what ails us. I've thought all my life and this farm out here is in worse shape now than it was when I started.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

LONE STAR Agriculture Released by The Texas Department of Agriculture. Five-Year Farm Outlook. A nation-wide survey has been recently completed which offers some reassuring figures to those who fear we may have reached peak in agricultural production. The study indicates that in the next four or five years, farmers of the nation can produce about 10 per cent more than they did in 1950, and 18 per cent more than in 1951 if there is a need for such volume, and provided that steps necessary to assure it are taken. Agriculture is the foundation on which to build for national defense. No one can dispute that potential capacity, or the rate at which farmers could increase production under favorable conditions. The farmer could, under "favorable conditions", produce about a fifth more of both crops and livestock than he did in 1950. Nationally, the projected increase is based on estimates that he could increase hog output 12 per cent above that of 1951, cattle and calves, 14 per cent; milk, 12 per cent; commercial broilers, 30 per cent; eggs, 12 per cent; corn, 21 per cent; wheat 40 per cent; rice, 18 per cent; cotton, 11 per cent; soybeans, 14 per cent; tobacco, 11 per cent, and potatoes, 24 per cent. Labor costs and improved farming practices would be an important factor in realizing these figures. The study further indicates that the South has the greatest possibility of increasing production percentage-wise. The North Central, Mountain, Northeast and Pacific regions follow in that order. More than half the increase could come from feed and livestock. The rest might come largely from food grains, fruits, vegetables and cotton. The production capacity report can be obtained by writing John C. White, Agriculture Commissioner, Land Office Bldg., Austin, Texas. Mrs. George Holliman of Caney, Okla., is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Allie Lomenick. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Curry and Mrs. Ulys Pierce and daughter, were in Portales last week to visit with Mrs. Pierce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Sikes. The Currys and Sikes were neighbors in Summerfield for years. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Quattlebaum have been on a vacation trip to points in Colorado.

birthday." With those words Col. Anthony handed Dan $2,500. But Dan did not go around the world—he got married, settled down and became a newspaper man. Now Dan III is running the Leavenworth Daily News and he visited me not very long ago right here in Hereford.

I had a lot of jobs and went a lot of places. In fact, I can say that I have been in almost every state in the union, Canada, Mexico—I've done a lot of traveling in my life.

Just before I moved to Hereford, I was in the real estate business with two partners, in Kansas City—that was Montgomery-Baskin & Hitchcock, with offices in the New England National bank building. Our firm became interested in the activities of Geo. G. Wright land company, and made weekly trips with prospective land buyers to Deaf Smith county. The set-up was that Montgomery and Hitchcock were in charge of the Texas business and I was left in charge of the office and business in Kansas City. During this arrangement I became the top man in Kansas City in the sale of land and city property. Our arrangement was that all the profit be divided three ways—now, I decided that I was doing a lot of work and I would be making much more money and the same work if I dissolved the partnership and went into business for myself. Following along the same line of thinking, I also decided that the Panhandle had a lot of possibilities. In December of 1906 I moved to Hereford and have been living here ever since. And since that time I have been engaged in the real estate and title business.

Hungry land seekers were flocking to this Texas land by the hundreds and buying up this cheap land, which was then selling at around $5 an acre. Rainfall was abundant, so grass and what few crops were had looked fine and thrifty. In going out to see this wonderful land of Eden, we went west on what is now Harrison highway to a gate on what was then known as six-mile-lane. After going through this gate was open prairie with practically no roads, so we just took off in all directions to see this land of promise. Buyers were so eager to buy that they often ran races to get to a place to sign up for the purchase of land. In reality the land looked so fine and wonderful that the sight of it was all that was necessary to effect a sale. Thousands of acres were sold each week.

But when times were bad—this country was among the worse. Why the milo maize that sells for $3.50 a hundred pounds—well, I had 4200 bushels in my granary and sold them for 40 cents a hundred.

I've seen trains run through this very town that had so few passengers that it was hardly worth looking. But no matter how hard the times the railroads kept running.

I was president of the chamber of commerce and we had a banquet about this time. At that meal everything we served was grown here in Hereford—except the coffee, salt and things like that. The flour for the bread and biscuits was called "fallrika" and it made mighty fine eating too, but you don't hear of it any more.

At this time the country was not very well populated just had about 2100 or 2200 people.

As I've said before when times were bad they were really bad. I remember sitting in my office one day and a man from a land firm in Amarillo came in and told me that his firm had decided they had too much land in Hereford and they wanted to get rid of some of it. I told him that I already had too much land and didn't want any more. He said, "But, Mr. Baskin, my firm wants to give you this land. We have just been paying taxes on it and not getting anything out of it—so we'll just deed it over to you." I told him that I had too much land of my own and I wouldn't take it. Why at that time I was renting four and five room houses for $20-$25 a month.

I was letting a fellow from north use my office and while he was here he got word that 14 banks in his country had locked their doors. I felt sorry for him but couldn't do anything about it.

Things began to pick up as soon as Roosevelt came into office. When he declared a national holiday and closed all the banks that saved the country. Things have been steady picking up since then. People have always talked politics and there have been a lot of arguments and feuds concerning politics, but they didn't complain like the people do now. But I guess no matter you or I say or the way act the whole of the country go on running just about way it was going to run.

AS YOU know, it is impossible for a prospective buyer to accurately judge the relative merits of various cars through a casual examination or on the basis of claims.

Therefore, smart buyers are taking advantage of the record established in stock-car racing which affords an impartial test of the important features of competitive makes—features which largely determine owner satisfaction. In this rough, tough competition between cars just like you can buy from dealers, every make of car is compared for power, durability and safety—vital qualities in your daily driving.

With 30 victories in 34 starts already this year, Hudson proves it has these great qualities in measures no other car can match!

Hudson's rugged high-compression engines are famous for terrific power and performance. But more important, only Hudson has "step-down" design with America's lowest center of gravity. A Hudson hugs the road like it loves it and almost steers itself. Monobilt body-and-frame* is the most durable, safest known!

Visit us and try a Hudson, or if more convenient, phone and a Hudson will come to your door.

Mideast Unrest

AN OLD Middle Eastern ailment—Arab-Jewish mistrust—has cropped up again, causing disappointment and concern among Western officers looking for signs of stability in that turbulent area.

Israel's Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion held out the olive branch this week to Maj. Gen. Mohammed Naguib's new reform government in Egypt, but at the same time issued a warning to Syria's dictator Col. Adib Shisheki to stop rattling his sabre.

Denounces Colonel's Statement
Ben-Gurion denounced a reported statement by Shisheki that the "Middle East is not large enough for both Arabs and Jews" as a grave violation of the armistice agreement.

To take the place of the armistice now governing relations between Israel and Egypt, however, Ben-Gurion expressed his willingness to see a peace treaty substituted.

In Cairo, Abdel Rahman Azzam, an official of the Arab League, scoffed at Ben-Gurion's peace offer to the new Egyptian regime. Azzam declared Israel's peace overture, at the same time she proposed boosting military service from 24 to 30 months, "sounds as sort of a joke."

In Tehran, meanwhile, ailing Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh sent orders from his sick bed commanding provincial officials to begin immediately to implement his agricultural reform decrees or look for new jobs.

Mossadegh's Plan

Mossadegh announced his intention was to see the organization of village councils within the next week to set into operation decrees by which the peasants will get a bigger cut of the profits from the land on which they work.

The premier's program calls for landlords to turn over 10 per cent of the profits to peasants and another 10 per cent to rural banks which are to be set up to give long-term aid to the landless and poverty-stricken farm workers.

As the premier's orders went out, fighting broke out in Tehran between nationalists and Communists. Troops were called out to quell the disorders.

London, meanwhile, prepared a new note to Iran suggesting talks on a broad basis to reach a settlement of the drawn-out Anglo-Iranian oil dispute. This could be construed as an acceptance, in effect, of Mossadegh's proposal to the British August 8 that the two countries get together for new talks about compensation for the nationalized British oil installation in Iran.

Informants said Britain would reject any restrictions Mossadegh wanted to place on such talks.

A U.S. proposal for a joint Anglo-American aid project in Iran was under study this week, but London officials reportedly were cool to the idea.

The WORLD This WEEK

GRASS ROOTS DUE FOR SPADEWORK

POLITICAL RIVALS HOLD STRATEGIC MEETINGS

TRADITIONALLY, U. S. political campaigns start rolling shortly after Labor Day. Officially, both Dwight Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson are observing tradition this year. Unofficially it's a different story.

The general gave an all-out political speech in Boise, Idaho, this week and he is slated to address New York August 25, two days before Stevenson does the same. These speeches cannot help being political.

Then Gov. Stevenson also is down for talks before New York's Democratic convention August 28 and the American Labor Party convention, the same week. In addition, he will cross the Hudson to address New Jersey Democrats before "formally" opening his campaign with a noon speech in Detroit Labor Day. Eisenhower will "formally" open his campaign with an address in Philadelphia Sept. 4.

Minnesota Speech Planned
On Sept. 4, Eisenhower will speak at the National Plowing contest at Kasson, Minn. On Sept. 9, he will make what his campaign leaders call another major speech in Indianapolis.

Stevenson originally was scheduled to speak at the Kasson plowing contest the same day as Eisenhower, when an arrangement committee for the fair suggested the governor speak to California, the Pacific Northwest and possibly the Southwest. After that, the Illinois governor will also leapfrog through Dixie by plane.

It was reported that Stevenson might even boldly invade Denver, Colo., headquarters city for Eisenhower until August 25.

Wilson Wyatt, Stevenson's personal campaign manager, said the upcoming campaign "will be the most intensive in the history of the country."

Said candidate Stevenson: "I intend to carry the campaign into every part of the nation and inform people as fully as our resources permit both by personal appearances and by television."

Southern Stress
In the normally Democratic strongholds south of the Mason Dixon Line, meanwhile, party stalwarts this week worked to preserve harmony in the middle of a three-way split between backers of Stevenson, Eisenhower and a third faction which showed a familiar tendency to bolt.

In Alabama, Democratic party leaders, faced with the first serious GOP threat since 1928, whooped it up in Huntsville at a homecoming celebration for Sen. John Sparkman, Democratic nominee for Vice President.

In Arkansas, Democrats were told they could be suspended from the party for two years if, after having voted in the Democratic primary, they support the GOP ticket at the polls Nov. 4.

Mississippi for Stevenson
After a stormy floor battle, Mississippi's state Democratic convention named its eight presidential electors and pledged them to Stevenson and Sparkman. The action was tantamount to approval of the national party team.

Mississippi's Gov. Hugh White, a personal supporter of the Illinois governor, led the fight to approve the Stevenson-Sparkman team without reservation.

Pro-Eisenhower forces made an unsuccessful bid to deflate the resolution accepting Stevenson and Sparkman, then declared they would place the Republican nominees on an Independent ticket.

Mississippi party regulars warned that Democrats who vote for Eisenhower in November will have to do so under either a Republican or Independent label—not under the Democratic emblem.

Ponder Motives for Moscow Conferences

THE 15-man Red-Chinese delegation had hardly set foot on solid ground at the Moscow airport when Western diplomats began trying to figure out what was going on.

Western observers agreed the Communist Party Congress, slated for Oct. 5—the first party conference in 13 years—will be the most important Soviet get-together since the war. Announced purpose of the congress will be to chart a fifth Five Year Plan to increase Soviet production 70 per cent by the end of 1955.

Another objective—A sweeping reorganization of the Communist party. Ostensibly, the Russian-Chinese talks were for the purpose of "broadening military and economic collaboration" between the two countries.

These opinions were advanced, however, by Western observers:

1. Russia and Red China were meeting to map out ways to apply more pressure in Korea, Indochina and Japan.

2. The Chinese were in Moscow to do some high-powered bargaining and possibly begging—for more, possibly Russian aid and for fulfillment of Russian obligations under the Sino-Soviet treaty of 1950.

3. The talks were called to iron out problems which have caused irritation between Peiping and the Kremlin in recent months—for example the rivalry over control of the Japanese Communist party.

4. The talks were just "routine." In the midst of the meetings, Pravda suddenly published the full story of a decisive Moscow victory over the Chinese Communists in a sharply contested drive for control of the Japanese Reds and spheres of influence throughout Asia.

The full story of the Moscow talks may, of course, never be forthcoming. Or it may make itself apparent in some new Communist adventure.

In Short
Hinted: by White House associates, that President Truman hopes to take a trip around the world after he leaves office.
Announced: by the Government, that more than half the nation's 500,000 grocery stores will be required to post dollars-and-cents ceilings on a wide range of market basket items by Oct. 1.
Submitted: by steel magnate Alfred Krupp, a plan to the Allies and West German government under which he would take his firm out of the munitions field. The firm would hold onto such Krupp enterprises as locomotive and truck plants, shipbuilding works and real estate.
Granted: by the Office of Price Stabilization, authorization for automobile dealers to calculate their own top legal prices, thereby clearing the way for slight increases in retail ceilings on new autos. OPS said the action is necessary to comply with Congressional amendments to the Economic Control Law.
Demanded: by Progressive Party Presidential Candidate Vincent Hallinan, who just completed a prison term for contempt of court, a briefing on the foreign situation such as President Truman offered Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson and Republican Dwight Eisenhower.

Sidelights

● In Vienna, black marketeers took advantage of a simmering heat wave to peddle admission tickets at exorbitant fees to the city's jampacked swimming pools.

● In Des Moines, ex-Wacs attending the National Wac Convention took a close look at present Wac training methods at Fort Des Moines, decided things are much easier today than they were in their time 10 years ago. Not so much "spit and polish," opined the female vets.

● In New York, a Brooklyn bachelor tied his 33-foot sloop to a mooring at a local yacht club, thus completing a round-the-world voyage three-and-a-half years after he left the club without a word of his plans. Fellow club members cheered lustily as 40-year-old Al Peterson stepped ashore.

Illegal Entry...

Most Americans have heard of the Mexican "wetback." They know that hundreds of Mexicans enter the U. S. illegally every year either by jumping border fences or through an underground operated by nationals of both countries which smuggles them in.

San Diego reporter Gene Fuson this week disclosed that he has twice been smuggled into the U. S. from Mexico by the California underground—posing as a European Communist.

Fuson, a newsmen with the San Diego Union, lived with wetbacks and smugglers during his three-month investigation of the alien smuggling racket. He said he paid only $20 to obtain fraudulent birth and border crossing permits in Tijuana, Mex.

Fuson declared the underground, "run by the scam of two nations," has made a multimillion dollar racket out of alien smuggling.

"It handles all comers," Fuson said. "Even after I told them I was a Czech Communist who had reached Tijuana via South America. I paid my passage and they did the rest."

Fuson, who spoke Spanish throughout his investigation, conducted his masquerade so effectively that U. S. border patrol agents once captured him 30 miles north of the border and deported him with 23 real aliens to Mexico.

The underground, said Fuson, works through an arranger in the U. S. who sees that the alien has transportation once he's in the country. The degree of safety depends on the price paid by the alien.

Quotes

Prof. Joseph Hromadka, 63-year-old Protestant Czech theologian, commenting at a religious conference in Switzerland on what it's like to be a clergyman behind the Iron Curtain: "I am living in constant danger. I pray to God to give me His wisdom and prudence not to make a false step. At the same time, I thank God to be allowed to do my work under a Communist regime. I know the dangers. . . I've never been so happy as a preacher as at present."

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior U.N. Command armistice delegate at Panmunjom, Korea: "An armistice is possible but I haven't the faintest idea when it is a matter of how much the Communists are willing to pay for it. They could give us a good cushion out and then accept our offer on repatriation of prisoners of war, for example. They never would have to agree with us on the principle of no forced repatriation."

Medicine

California Mosquito War
No one in authority considered it an epidemic, but state health officials said the number of encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, cases in California is higher than for many years past.

The disease breaks out in towns in the central valleys of the state every summer. The death rate in the area never has been high, but the disease causes damage to brain and nerve cells.

Airplanes, tractor-powered dusters and hand-operated equipment have been at work several weeks in a giant campaign to wipe out the mosquitoes and their breeding places. The clean-up is not expected to reach its height until next week.

The object of the extermination campaign is to ring some 300 towns in the central valleys with clouds of DDT and other chemicals. The disease, caused by a tiny virus carried mainly by the Culex Tarsalis mosquito, has been edging slowly northward from the warm southern end of the San Joaquin Valley. Public health authorities seek to halt the spread by ringing the entire area with insecticides.

In California hospitals this week were more than 400 persons with sleeping sickness symptoms.

It's HERE! The New HOLLAND WIRE-TIE baler!

This New ONE-MAN Tie Baler has been fully tried and Proved in Deaf Smith County under varied Field Conditions.

The New Holland "80" will bale up to 10 tons per hour—up to twice the capacity of other wire-tie balers! Not just a conversion of the famous "77" twine-tie, the Model "80" was designed from the ground up as a wire-tie baler. Its tying mechanism is fast and trouble-free. Pick-up and baling action are so gentle that the valuable leaves are saved. This means up to 30% more feed value... a better price for hay.
 If you're in the market for a wire-tie baler, remember only the "80" gives you up to 10 tons an hour!

UP TO TWICE THE CAPACITY OF OTHER WIRE-TIE BALERS PLUS THESE EXCLUSIVES!

Warning System: When wire in the can runs out, an automatic warning lets you know in plenty of time to prevent missing any bales.
 Twine or Dry Hay: Hydraulic bale tension control, an optional feature, automatically allows for variations in moisture content of hay.
 New Holland Twist: The Model "80" ties its "knot" in an "in-line" twist. Neat and sturdy, this wire-tie lies flat—will not pull loose or uncoil.
 Roll-Away Bale Chute: Standard equipment on the wire-tie "80", the roll-away bale chute flips bales far to the left out of the tractor's path.

With a New Holland "77" you can count on baling up to 10 tons of hay an hour. The "77" is rugged, simple in construction. It has 20% fewer parts and offers many improvements. Farmers agree there's no finer twine-tie baler!
