Editor's note: For many months in 1976-77, the Panhandle was under siege as authorities searched for months for a man known only as The Traveling Rapist. A drawing of the man appeared on television newscasts and in newspapers daily.

He was responsible for at least three rapes. Twice, Samuel Hawkins killed his victims. He left a Hereford woman for dead after a vicious attack on Sept. 2, 1976. She lived through her ordeal, and today is a strong survivor. Her name has been changed in this story to protect her privacy.

By JOHN BROOKS

Managing Editor Sally's world changed on Sept. 2, 1976.

That was when she first met Samuel Hawkins.

Hawkins beat her. He raped her. He tied her up and left her for dead. Sally survived. She's still a survivor today.

Sally was living in northeast Hereford. Her husband had left about 4:30 a.m. to tend cattle. She was home with her 13-month old daughter. Sally was still in bed; her daughter was in her crib.

That was the last of the old world, the old life, for Sally. She was a small-framed blonde, 22 years old. Years later, she would learn she was the ideal victim for the man who would become known as The Traveling Rapist. Hawkins didn't have to break into the house. "I was so naive," Sally says today. "The front door was unlocked." Hawkins, in a confession several years later, said he had gone into 30 houses in Hereford that morning.

"He was looking for a small-framed woman, because he didn't want a victim that might be able to fight him off," Sally said. "He also wanted

Sally met the description of what The Traveling Rapist was hunting. He went into her bedroom and tried to subdue her.

"I kept fighting," she said. "Maybe he wouldn't have hurt me so bad if I hadn't fought...but I think I have been able to live with myself a little better because I did fight.

Sally fought hard. Hawkins kept screaming at her: "Quit fighting, or I'll kill you." He kept hitting her, with his fists and with the handle end of his knife. He slashed her face with a knife. When she was treated at the hospital, she had over 400 stitches in her head.

He raped her twice. During the first attack, he had a mask over his face. The keep Sally from fighting, he bound her hands and feet with ropes. During the second attack, Hawkins placed a washcloth over Sally's face. Hawkins took off his mask. During the course of the rape, the washcloth came off and Sally saw her attacker's face for the first time. Sometime during the second rape, she went unconcious. Hawkins later told her he thought she was dead.

Sally was awakened sometime later (she's not sure how long) by her

"I went to go see about her," she said. "I thought he had done something really bad when I started spitting up blood. As it turned out, it was blood from my face.

A few minutes later, a friend came to the house. "When I answered the door, my friend took off running. I still didn't know how bad I looked. The next thing I knew, there were police everywhere. She had gone next door and called the police.

Sally's attack was so severe that she spent two week in ICU at Deaf Smith General Hospital. She had only one surgery, to put a plastic disk in her face to support her right eye.

In 1976, the Rape Crisis/domestic Violence Center was a fledgling organization in Amarillo. There was no outreach center here. The word had not been spread about the center.

"I thought it was Alcoholics Anonymous for rape victims," she said. "I didn't think I needed to get in there with other victims and compare my rape with theirs. That's what I thought it was about."

Instead, she was left to work with a justice system that didn't really know how to handle her or her case.

Sally would have been happy just hearing the words "I'm sorry." Instead, Samuel Hawkins told her, "I'm sorry, but it wasn't me." 15 years later, it would make her feel better if Hawkins, The Traveling Rapist, would just apologize.

"There was a female officer here, and I guess they thought since I was a woman and she was a woman, I needed to work with her," Sally said. Instead of support, Sally was belittled by the woman.

"She told me that if I didn't take a lie detector test they wouldn't believe me," Sally said. "She said if I didn't do it they couldn't press charges. Then the man would come back and do it again, and it would be my fault." The officer was later fired for her actions in the case.

City beginning recycling program

A major step has been taken in recycling in Hereford with the City of Hereford assuming responsibility for collecting recyclable material.

Mayor Tom LeGate met last week with board members of EnCoRe, a local recycling advocate group. After the meeting, LeGate said Hereford soon be able to deposit plastic, glass and aluminum at labeled dumpsters at the entrance of the city landfill, just north of the intersection of 15th and Progressive northeast of the city.

EnCoRe board members were concerned that some items left for recycling might end up in the landfill.

"While I cannot promise you that every single item we receive will be recycled, I can say that it will be the city's intent to recycle these materials," LeGate told the group.

The group also discussed the city's attempt to construct a new steamgenerating incinerator and how it would affect solid waste management. According to EnCoRe member Kerrie Steiert, the group wants to stress the importance of recycling during the interim.

Residents are asked to store their recyclables until the city is ready with its receptacles. The Red Cross will no longer be a drop site for recyclables due to manpower shortages.

All persons planning to recycle should sort items into plastics, glass and aluminum. Glass has to be separated by color: green, brown or clear. All containers should be rinsed and labels removed, if possible.

The city won't be taking paper, but bundled newsprint may be taken to St. Anthony's School or Nazarene Christian Academy.

State law requires municipalities to establish recycling programs. During 1991, the Hereford school board, county commission and city commission, as well as several businesses, signed resolutions supporting recycling as a viable means to extend the life of the landfill and preserve natural resources.

Sally did find support from former Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson. McPherson was honing his tool of forensic hypnosis.

"I think one of the reasons the oman wouldn't believe me is that I couldn't remember everything that happened," Sally said. "There were parts I had blocked out, including some of his features. Travis hypnotized me and I remembered practically everything.

Including what Samuel Hawkins looked like.

Sally was taken to Amarillo "at least 30 times" to look at men in lineups. "Every time they would make every one of them step forward and say, 'Shut up or I'll kill you," Sally said. "Every time I would say, no, it's not him. I was tired of it. And there were all the pictures. I looked at hundreds Finally, Samuel Hawkins was in one of the lineups.

"He didn't even have to say anything. I saw him and said, that's the Samuel Hawkins was there because he had raped and killed two women. Ward found out she was the lucky one. Hawkins later admitted to raping many more women in the Panhandle. Ward is the only survivor who has come forward in the 15 years since Hawkins rampage.

Hawkins was immediately arrested for aggravated rape against Sally. He said he was innocent. Sally was sure it was him. "I finally asked the police if I could ask him why, why he chose me, why he raped me. It took forever, because when they arrested him he had all the rights and I didn't have any." After making sure Hawkins' rights wouldn't be violated, Sally asked her question. "I'm sorry, but I didn't do it," was Hawkins reply.

"I'm still waiting for him to apologize," Sally said. "Thanks to my family and their support, I didn't need to go through counseling or anything. But I would still feel better if he would simply say, 'I'm sorry.'

Today, Hawkins sits on death row. He killed Rhonda Keyes and Abbe Hamilton, two small-framed women. One was pregnant when Hawkins raped and killed her. During the punishment phases of the trials, Sally was called on to testify. Hawkins got life for raping Sally. He got the death penalty for killing Keyes and Hamilton:

"At first, a few years ago, I wanted to be there to pull the switch," Sally said. "Now, I don't know how I feel. I feel responsible in a way because it was my testimony that put him on death row. But I don't want to pull the switch anymore.'

Today, Sally doesn't live in Hereford. Her naivete is gone.

"I'm probably overcautious at times, especially with my kids," said said. "They all know what happened, and that helps them understand why I always want to know where my kids are and what they are doing."

She spends much of her time volunteering with the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center and similar organizations. She has spoken to several groups about her ordeal.

"Many times after I talk to a group a woman comes up to me and says, 'I was raped, but I couldn't tell anyone about it. I think I can now.' It makes you feel good to hear that maybe you've helped someone else."

BY CHESTER NOLEN Hereford City Manager

This is the first of what I hope to be a weekly update on the activities at City Hall.

In the past several months, there have been some changes occurring. The retirement of Bonna Duke after 24 years has left the City with a certain sadness because of her pleasant demeanor and cheerful, nonplussed attitude. Mike Hatley has assumed most of Bonna's duties except that of secretary to the Commission and the City. Terri Johnson has taken over the duties of City Secretary.

Dave Kaesheimer is the new Golf Professional and Course Manager at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

All of these individuals have brought a service spirit to their new duties and are more than glad to be of assistance to you.

Budget preparation is moving along with the first Commission workshop scheduled for Feb. 24.

Elections for the City are scheduled May 2. The filing period extends through 5 p.m. on March 18. Places 2,4,5 and 6 are to be considered.

Teach kids good practices

There could be a cleaner America in the years to come, thanks to an environmental program in our schools

This program, for students in grades four through Six, informs them about environmental issues related to solid waste. Called Kids C.A.R.E., it's based on the premise that "Kids Can Actively Renew the Earth." The educational components were developed by the Center to Teaching Resources and Mazer Corporation, long-time developers of educational materials. The program is sponsored by the Mead Corporation, the nation's leading producer of school supplies.

The program, launched last fall in ten thousand classrooms in four states-Alabama, Georgia, Ohio and Michigan-can be used by schools in other states, too. But optimistic forecasts aren't going to be enough, even though the primary states ahead may not be as angry as New Hampshire.

Official returns in New Hampshire on Wednesday, reflecting a tally of write-in votes cast for Democrats in the Republican primary, narrowed the margin between the president and the challenger, but pushed Buchanan's share down below 40 percent.

That made it 53 percent to 37 percent for Bush, instead of 58-40.

before the primary, Buchanan said he had no realistic prospect of defeating Bush for renomination, nor would any other challenger unless the president decided to quit the campaign.

Asked about that at the Nashua Rotary Club, Buchanan noted that Ronald Reagan couldn't dislodge President Gerald Ford although he almost beat him in New Hampshire. Even Theodore Roosevelt couldn't Rushmore.

And even if he could beat Bush in primaries, he isn't entered in enough states to assemble the nominating votes to win.

As the New Hampshire returns were counted Tuesday night, Bush issued a statement at the White House calling it "a message of dissatisfaction," and saying he understood it.

At that point, Buchanan was running at about 44 percent.

The initial reaction may have been a bit hasty; it clearly was influenced by network projections based on exit polls of voters after they cast ballots.

"The exit polls were wrong all day," said Mary Matalin, deputy director of the Bush re-election campaign. "They had us at 50-50 all

Henceforth, she said, the Bushcampaign will deal only in actual votes, not projections.

some tense moments By morning, his lieutenants were fanning out to the television talk shows to revise the appraisal, and Bush himself was saying the margin was a landslide. "Numbers change but the victory tands forever," Marlin Fitzwater, his press secretary, said after the revised numbers were issued. Buchanan claimed victory in defeat, and insisted, with some validity, that he'd accomplished his mission by coming from political joke to formidable candidate in 2 1/2 months. But the arena that made such a change possible won't be available again. New Hampshire is a perfect starting point for a rebel candidate, push a president off a GOP ticket, small enough to blanket with personal Buchanan said, and he's on Mount and broadcast campaign messages, and, of course, first.

In the crowded primary schedule just ahead, the trappings and reach of the presidency will work to greater advantage than in the small, hand-to-hand campaign style of a New Hampshire primary.

And there's another change coming: in New Hampshire, Buchanan attacked, in person and in TV advertising, while talking only in general terms about his own proposals. His central message was that he wouldn't be George Bush.

Now the Bush campaign is ready to retaliate. There are reams of Buchanan columns, statements, speeches to yield up politically vulnerable positions. In a predictable attempt at a preemptive strike, Buchanan demanded a campaign debate with the president, saying that if Bush "ducks it and hides behind attack ads" it will show he can't defend his record. Bush said he'll still be kind, but he's debating how gentle to be.

Not very, in all likelihood. "I'm certainly going into this as a dog-eat-dog fight," he said in a television interview back on Dec. 23,

"and I will do whatever I have to do

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

THE ASBESTOS RACKET

by Dr. Richard L. Lesher, President U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON - "The mere presence of asbestos poses no risk to human health," said William Reilly, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency in 1990. "Only when asbestos fibers are released into the air and breathed into the lungs do they become a human health risk," he said, adding that efforts to remove asbestos "may actually pose a greater health risk than simply leaving them alone."

That statement denoted a remarkable aboutface for EPA. In effect, the agency admitted that its ruinously expensive anti-asbestos campaign is a mistake. Rarely does a prominent government official acknowledge such a dramatic error.

Unfortunately, a curtain of silence descended upon Reilly's message. Scarcely a hint of it has reached the American public.

Not only has a colossal government blunder gone virtually unreported, but massive amounts of public funds are still being squandered on a pointless program to remove asbestos from build-

To be sure, the story is available for anyone with time to dig it out. A comprehensive account of how this unwarranted and expensive folly got foisted on our country appears in The Asbestos Racket, a new book published by Free Enterprise Press.

The author, Michael J. Bennett, is a journalist and political writer. "Bennett's superlative book," said Dr. Aaron Wildavsky of the University of California at Berkeley, "is a model of what informed investigative journalism ought

The essence of Bennett's grim saga is that extremists fomented the asbestos hysteria for political purposes, aided and abetted by journalists inclined to amplify any environmental disaster. Perhaps Bennett's most sensational revelation relates to the Challenger disaster. Asbestos putty had always been used to seal the critical O-rings on space shuttles because it is a strong, temperature-resistant sealant. But because of the misguided paranoia about asbestos, a substitute material was used - a substitute that proved disastrously \ Government officials and scientists gree the asbestos removal program is foolish, expensive and dangerous. But the public remains largely in the dark because of what amounts to a news blackout. I don't know why this is so, unless journalists are simply reluctant to admit that their original reports about asbestos were wrong. If that is the hangup, the fourth estate must overcome it. It is essential that this story be told so our leaders will have the political support they need to abolish the foolish asbestos removal program that is wasting so much of our scarce resources.

Spending debate

With the announcment tht Magic Johnson tested positive for the HIV virus, a precursor to AIDS, the debate has once again been opened on whether the nation spends enough money on research for the fatal disease. Currently, the federal government invests about $2 billion in research funds to find a way to stop Americans from either contracting or dying from the virus.

That debate would fall on deaf ears if the public understood that the regulations now being enforced by a number of federal agencies has us spending many times that sum to protect the populous from cancer risks that are merely theoretical. Heart disease, drug overdoses, AIDS, automobile accidents and other forms of death are proven killers. Enviornmental causes of cancer are not.

In an article in Science magazine, three top cancer researchers list the major causes of cancer in this country. No mention is made of cancer caused by pollution or other environmental causes. Even the Environmental Protection Agency admits that only one to three percent of all cancers--5,000 to 15,000 each year--have even a remote environmental cause. The Center for Disease Control, using a more restrictive definition of environmental cancer, estimates that only 1,200 cancers, or two-tenths of a percent, have a cause based in the environment.

But, the spending on environmental cancer risk reduction is a major cost to government, industry and business. Last year, pollution control and clean-up cost over $131 billion and that figure is expected to climb to over $172 billion by the year 2000.

In contrast, research on the causes of all cancers is costing only $2 billion each year. The entire biomedical research budget for both public and private inquires is $20 billion.

The net result is, as a nation, we are spending $131 billion to stop 1,200 cases of theoretical environmental cancer and only $20 billion to find the cause of 1,000,000 cases of provable cancer deaths. The environmental lobby has grossly shifted our national priorities toward the theoretical causes of cancer and away from the proven causes of death.

Canyon's D stifles Friona in bi-district game here

Canyon's Lady Eagles dominated the Squaws of Friona with defense and won 68-23 in a Class 3A bi-district girls' basketball game Friday

Canyon, now 24-8, was the District 1-3A champion with a 10-0 league slate. They were favored in this game, but not by 45 points.

"It was just one of those games where everything fell into place for us," Canyon coach Joe Lombard said.

Lombard said he stressed defense before the game, and it showed. The taller Lady Eagles allowed the Squaws only two points--both on free throws--in the first period. Canyon's Leslie Shippy, a 5-foot-10-inch post, scored eight points to help the Lady Eagles to a 15-2 lead after one quarter.

Friona scored a little in the second quarter, but Canyon increased its lead to 27-10. Despite the big lead, the Canyon players came out for the second half with a renewed zest for defense. Friona didn't score its first field goal until the final minute of the third period. The Squaws helped Canyon with poor shooting and gave the Lady Eagles several easy points with ball-handling mistakes. The result was a 53-16 lead for Canyon.

"At the half, we talked about how we wanted to come out and play defense," Lombard said. "Thankfully, our kids responded." Shippy ended the game leading all scorers with 16 points. Sandi Stevens added 13 for the Lady Eagles, and Darcie Schenk had nine.

Alicia Widner led Friona with seven points, all on free throws. Tena Willard and Renee Downey each scored six and had the Squaws only field goals: Downey on two three-pointers, Willard on three two-pointers. Friona, the 2-3A runner-up to Dimmitt, ended its season at 21-11. Next up for Canyon is Slaton, a 50-37 winner over Graham Friday.

In another girls bi-district game Friday, the District 1-4A champion Randalf girls defeated Big Spring 72-28 in Levelland. The Lady Raiders will meet Mineral Wells next at a time and site to be determined.

Reid knows pressure Herd basketball stats of being Nolan's son

An AP Sports Analysis By ARNIE STAPLETON AP Sports Writer

FORT WORTH (AP) - Son of a gun, he throws just like his dad.

Well, not quite. But, then again, who in the world can throw a fastball like Nolan Ryan? "I'll never throw as hard as he does," Reid Ryan says without apology. Reid, a sophomore righthander at Texas Christian University, is strikingly similar to his father in many ways, both on and off the mound. But even with a delivery and mechanics nearly identical to those of his father, Reid's fastest pitch has been clocked at 88 mph, about the speed of Nolan's curveball. If Nolan is the flame, 20-year-old Reid is the flicker.

A transfer from the University of Texas, where he got little playing time last year, Reid started four of the Frogs' first nine games this year, going 1-1 with eight walks and six strikeouts.

That's the first thing they all want to know about, the strikeouts. That, and how many no-hitters has he

"Not even a No. 1 draft pick could live up to the pressure of trying to be another Nolan Ryan," Reid says. "To ever compare anybody to him is unfair. There will never be another pitcher like my father. Are they going to compare the next hard-throwing lefthander to Stève Carlton?"

Opponents' fans forever try to rattle Reid, to remind him he's no Nolan when things are going good and to question his parenthood when things go bad.

"I've had ragging my whole life, from Little League on," says Reid. "I get a big kick out of it, but I don't let it bother me,'

He's too busy looking for control - much like Nolan was at this age and trying to develop a consistent curveball, says TCU coach Lance Brown, a good friend of Nolan's who used to coach at Rice and pitch batting practice for the Astros while Nolan played in Houston.

His answering machine contains ho "Hello, this is Reid, please leave film, would like to be a sportscaster à message" stuff. It's the major league if he doesn't sign a major league baseball television broadcast disclaimer. contract.

Those are big reasons Reid chose TCU. While Reid hones his craft here, Nolan will be selling out Arlington Stadium 15 miles up the road in his 26th major league season, his fourth with the Texas Rangers.

'Realistically, this is probably my last year," Nolan says. "It'll be nice to be close enough to see Reid

Father and son have rarely been closer.

"Here, the next couple of years will decide if I play ball beyond college," Reid says. "So now is when I need his help the most."

Nolan and Ruth Ryan recently bought a summer home in Arlington, and Reid is looking forward to seeing more of them, of getting a good home cooked meal now and then.

"It'll be nice to see my parents," Reid says, smiling. "Since I was a kid, they've always had a hectic schedule with baseball. ... It's just

"I always wish my dad could have come out and see me.'

But while Reid was toiling in Little League, Nolan was building his legend. This Christmas, Nolan, in long relief. worked with Reid on his curveball.

He went out to the ballpark to see his son pitch against Louisiana Tech earlier this month, but was hounded for autographs by hundreds of fans during the four innings Reid threw. After 25 minutes, Nolan took refuge in the announcer's box, windows shut. Reid chatted with him after the

Reid has the same work ethic as his father, says Brown. "And they're both practical jokers, too."

County Extension Homemakers Council Appreciation Luncheon will be held at noon Monday in the Hereford Community Center.

During the festivities, the 1991 of the Year will be announced. Dean Bradley, last year's recipient, will relinquish her title when The Hereford Brand Publisher Speedy Nieman makes this year's presentathe event since 1952.

Six Deaf Smith County Extension Clubs have submitted nominee resumes which have been judged by an out-of-the-county extension agent for home economics. Each of the nominees are recognized for their leadership, growth and development in extension club work and their involvement in the community, church and family.

All members of the local extension clubs use the luncheon as a way of expressing thanks to the Commissioners Court and the local media for their support during the year.

Also, being given special recognition will be E.H. members who have had perfect attendance in 1991 at the monthly E.H. Council meetings and those who have had perfect attendance at the E.H. club meetings. Fifty-year plus members will be presented with a rose.

The 1991 Club Woman of the Year candidates are Sherrie Blackwell, Mary Brorman, Argen Draper, Carolyn Evers, Perry Keyes and Martha Lueb.

The following resumes were submitted for publication by the nominees.

BRANDed WOMEN

By Sandy Stagner

When I was younger, it occurred to me that I wanted to live anywhere other than Hereford, Texas, where I knew everyone and everyone knew me. What a boring existence?

But you know something? As I'm older, and naturally much wiser (I think), I have decided the advantages of living in a small town definately outweigh the disadvantages, at least for me.

Just think, if I made my home in Dallas, for instance, I couldn't do what I do in Hereford. I couldn't

-Call my hairdresser at 6 a.m. and scream into her ear, "Help! I went temporarily insane in the middle of the night and started whacking my hair off in the back. I look like a bald headed kumquat and I have to be at work in two hours!" (The hairstylist says no problem. She'll meet me at her salon in 30 minutes. And she doesn't even expect a tip.)

-Call the repairman whining, "I'm in serious trouble. I broke my husband's television. Right, the one with the picture within a picture. He's going to kill me because the Winter Olympics start tomorrow." (Poor old Wayne, the repairman, makes yet another "emergency" trip to the Stagner house and saves the day and my precious hide!)

-Run into the dress shops announcing that I simply have to have a red silk dress with a basque waistline that buttons down the front and has a slit skirt and that I need it in two hours! I also add that I can't spend over $89.95 but I still want to look like I've shelled out at least $300. (The local saleswomen are also be a tremendous help in these very solicitous and most always have exactly what I want. If not, they suggest that I try another store. Now, that's above and beyond the call of duty.) -Walk meekly into my dentist's office and cry to him that I have a tooth that's killing me and I need medical attention this very minute. (He doesn't even flinch even though he knows I have canceled appointments five times in the last six can arrive on time anywhere in months because I'm a big chicken Hereford without exceeding the speed when it comes to sitting in a dentist chair. It's always very humiliating for me to have saliva drooling down my chin. Very tacky indeed.)

-Go to my local optometrist and argue that I don't need bifocals even though I can't see a telephone book without it 10 feet from my nose. After accepting the fact that I need special lenses and having ordered them, I change my mind about the tint of the lenses, the shape of the frames, the color of the frames, etc. (The doctor's employees keep smiling and never allow their irritation to show even though I know they could kill me for my indecisiveness.)

-Telephone my local physician complaining of being tired, listless and depressed. "I'm sure I have some terminal illness. Can you see me today? Can I come in right now? I think this could be the big one!" (My doctor works me in his already tight schedule, checks me out and instead of him telling me I'm the typical hypochondriac, which, of course, I am, he suggests that I start going to bed earlier and adhere to a more healthy lifestyle. But he has known me for too many years, so he also gives me a prescription knowing this will pacify me. I'm sure the pills were nothing more than placebos but I was a happy woman because I had come home with a bottle of pretty pink pills.)

You know it's also great living in a smaller town when you have kids, especially teenagers. If they haven't come home by their appointed curfew, it takes little effort to go and find them. SEEING

SIDEWAYS

There are two parts to vision: central vision. with which you look directly at objects and peripheral vision, which enables you to be aware of what exists on either side. People are more aware of central vision; we use it consciously to read a book, say, or watch

TV. But peripheral vision is important to locate us in our surroundings. Without it, it would be difficult to walk down stairs, hazardous to drive a car. In a professional eye examination, your optometrist will check both your central and peripheral vision. Loss of either type of vision that is uncorrectable is generally an indication of disease. Peripheral vision is damaged by uncontrolled glaucoma, which is yet another reason for regular glaucoma testing after age 55, to spot the disease while it can be contained. Central vision is affected by degeneration of the macula, the central part of the retina. Other diseases affect the eyes, too.

Ellibee, Harris wed on Valentine's Day

Kathy Michelle DeLong Ellibee and Jimmy Leon Harris Jr., both of Dumas, were wed early Friday evening, Feb. 14, in Lew Haile Annex in Dumas. Roger Orr, youth minister of First Baptist Church in Dumas, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mark and Marilyn Ellibee of Dumas and Dennis and Gayla DeLong of Oklahoma. The bridegroom is the son of Arnold and Carolyn Stevenson of Hereford and Jimmy Harris Sr. of Canyon.

Wedding decorations included a white arch entwined with greenery and red and white bows. Matron of honor was Jenney Rarf and best man was Roy McMahan. Other members of the wedding party included the bride's brother, Bobbie Ellibee, and the bride's cousin, Steven Williams. Given in marriage by Mark Ellibee, the bride was attired in a traditional white satin gown fashioned with a lace wedding ring collar neckline, fitted bodice covered in matching lace, and long fitted lace sleeves. The full floor-length skirt flowed from a natural waistline and was trimmed with matching lace scallops.

The hip-length bridal illusion veil with pencil edging formed a large pouf at the back of a headpiece which featured delicate white satin flowers on either side. She carried a cascading bouquet of white and red satin roses with matching ribbon streamers.

Her jewelry consisted of a gold cross that belonged to her great-greatgreat-grandmother.

The matron of honor wore a red satin floor-length gown designed with an off-the-shoulder neckline which was adorned with long pearl strands.

"Our efforts include new signs that also will make it easier for patients and visitors to find their way around the hospital."

The lobby area next to the gift shop is beautifully arrayed in stripped green, burgundy and blue wallpaper. Burgundy wing-back chairs provide a comfortable and attractive area for visitors. The chairs nicely offset the vertical blinds and form an attractive complement to the colors in the carpet. Visitors will also see the hospital's Joint Commission Accreditation and its membership certificate from the Texas American Hospital Association and the Texas Hospital Association prominently displayed on the walls.

A burgundy stripe leads visitors down through the west wing of the hospital and also to the chapel area. In addition to a new coat of paint, the surgical waiting room has been furnished with individual chairs and a love seat. The color scheme is very year millions of Americans take the plunge and start their own businesses. Their hearts are full of hope and their heads are full of questions. Every day we receive calls from bright, ambitious men and women who want to strike out on their own. Frequently, they are not certain just where to start.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS Don Taylor

To Inc. Or Not To Inc.

Some of the more common questions have to do with selecting a legal form of ownership for their venture. To be incorporated or not be incorporated is an often asked question.

Selecting the proper business structure will vary with the needs of the owner(s), the type of business and the local laws governing new ventures. Other elements to consider are the ever changing tax laws and the geographical reach of the business.

Before we try to answer the question of whether or not to incorporate, let's examine the alternatives. Once we understand the options, the decision may be clear.

Three Types of Business

There are three principal types of business structures: the sole proprietorship, the partnership and the corporation. Each form has distinctive advantages and disadvantages. Let's start by looking at the most popular form of small business ownership, the sole proprietorship.

Nearly 70 percent of all U.S. businesses are sole proprietorships. Most are owned and operated by one person. It is the easiest form to start, allows the owner maximum control and reduces the cost of legal expenses and fees. It is relatively free from governmental control and offers the owner an income tax advantage.

On the negative side, the biggest drawback may be the unlimited liability a sole proprietor faces. Lack of start-up capital and difficulty in obtaining finacing are also major disadvantages. All business debts and potential liabilities are the sole responsibility of the owner.

The partnership form of ownership form of ownership is similar to the sole proprietorship except that the business now has two or more owners. Partnerships are easy to form, give the owners flexibility in control and have income tax advantages.

The main disadvantges of the partnership are that at least one partner has unlimited liability and there is often difficulty in reconciling differences of opinion between partners. I would recommend that all partners sign a written agreement specifying details of the partnership.

The Corporation

The major difference among proprietorships, partnerships and corporations is corporations are separate legal entities. Because it is a separate legal entity, the corporation has limited liability - its major advantage. Shareholders in the corporation can lose their entire investment. However their loss is limited to no more than they invested.

Another advantage of the corporation is that ownership is readily tansferable. In addition, it may be easier to raise capital with the corporate form of ownership.

The major disadvantages are cost and regulation. Forming a corporation requires filing out complex papers with the state government and licensing fees may be several hundred dollars. Usually, it is advisable to involve an attorney which will add to the formation costs.

Another cost consideration is that corporations are often subject to double taxation. The federal government and most states have a corporate tax rate and also tax individual salaries and dividends. Corporations face other government regulations. Regular reports are usually required at the local, state and federal levels.

The "S-Corporation" offers small businesses some tax advantages not available to regular corporations. If you meet certain requirements, and S-Corporation will allow the owners to bring corporate profits through as personal income. This eliminates double taxation of corporate earnings.

So which type of ownership is best for you? It depends on your needs, the type of business, the number of owners and your state laws. If you would like to discuss this subject further, call me at (806) 372-5151.

You may write to don Taylor in c/o "Minding Your Own business," P.O.Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

> Baskin said the procedure is less painful than the current type of surgery and decrease the patient's time in the hospital.

"Patients can go home from the hospital on the second or third day after surgery and return to work in two to three weeks," he said.

Degenerative disk diseases can lead to a ruptured or herniated disk, and involves part of the vertebrae. The disk, an oval-shaped piece of cartilage that lies between vertebrae in the spine, acts as a natural shock absorber. When it ruptures and protrudes, however, it can cause ntense pain.

The disease commonly strikes blue collar workers, people who are overweight, and people who do not exercise regularly. Men are three times more likely to suffer from the

Another problem is that the center of the disk progressively dries up as people age," he said. "As it loses its spongy consistency, the disk space becomes narrower, putting more stress on the spinal joints.".

Nerve pressure may be intensified by lifting heavy objects, sitting for long periods of time, a sudden movement, or even from sneezing or coughing. In some cases, degenerative disk disease may cause severe nerve damage and even paralysis.

Baskin said people who have pain, a numbness and tingling sensation, weakness in the legs or arms, or loss of bowel or bladder control should consult a physician.

"Anti-inflammatory medication, muscle relaxants and strict bedrest often improves the condition with out surgery," he said. "However, the pain recurs approximately half of the

AARP volunteers draft 1992 policy

AARP's National Legislative of Directors again next year. Council (NLC) today developed a comprehensive draft health care reform proposal that addresses the critical problems facing the nation's health care system including access for people of all ages, quality, affordability, and long-term care.

built on the health care reform principles adopted by AARP's Board of Directors last year. It was developed to share with the members and the public. It is offered for discussion, debate, suggestions and modifications," said NLC Chairman organization for people age 50 and Robert Sell.

The NLC's health care reform proposal was developed after an extensive two-year effort by AARP to determine the preferences of its members for reforming the nation's health care system. The effort has included hundreds of town meetings and health care forums held throughout the country, combined with extensive polling and surveys.

The draft proposal now goes to the Association's Board of Directors for review. After the AARP Board makes its recommendations, the proposal will undergo another full year of review and discussion during which members will be asked for their reactions. Their comments will be considered by the NLC and Board World Trade Center.

AARP's Board ultimately has the final authority and responsibility to decide whether or not to formally propose the revised plan to the President and Congress.

The Council recognized that outof-control health care costs pose one "The Council's draft proposal is of this nation's greatest threats," Sell said. "For the sake of our health care needs now and the years to come, we ask every AARP member to be involved as we try to meet this challenge.

These measurements are made in a network of more than 1,000 privately-owned water wells. These wells are spaced throughout the Water District service area at a density of about one well per nine square miles...

The depth-to-water measurements are made by lowering a steel tape with the lower ten to fifteen feet coated with

When the chalked tape comes in contact with the ground water, it turns a darker blue. This interval of wetted tape is subtracted from the total interval of tape introduced into the well to determine the depth-to-water from the land surface.

Lyle honored b

LUBBOCK -- A research scientist whose practical applications of irrigation engineering principles are helping farmers protect and conserve their vital water supplies has been named "Man of the Year in Service to Southwest Agriculture" by Progressive

Farmer magazine. Dr. William L. Lyle, professor of irrigation engineering with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station here, was honored for his leadership in developing the low-energy, precisionapplication (LEPA) irrigation system. This ultra-efficient sprinkler system, Progressive Farmer reports, "has taken the High Plains of West Texas and eastern New Mexico by storm. Now LEPA is spreading throughout the Southwest and beyond as farmers learn of the cost savings and application efficiency that the method offers."

er," the magazine notes that he "brings a special insight to his job because he also is a farmer." LEPA was born from a need Lyle saw for wise use of the Ogallala Aquifer, the underground supply for a multistate region.

LEPA systems apply water 12 to 15 inches above the ground at a low pressure. This precise application saves energy, reduces evaporation caused by wind and high temperatures and delivers the water where it is needed.

With center pivot irrigation systems, which apply 500 to 700 gallons of water a minute, converting to LEPA saves 100 to 150 gallons a

"Bill Lyle's work with LEPA is a stellar example of what public research means to us," Wolfforth farmer James Mitchell says in the Progressive Calling Lyle a "farmer's research- Farmer salute to the Experiment Station scientist. Mitchell was one of the first farmers to try LEPA when Lyle took it from the research plots to commercial farms.

> Mitchell said that converting his center pivots to LEPA for a demonstration had impressive results. He said his irrigation efficiency, which had bene about 80 percent with his pivots, went to 97 percent with LEPA.

> Through his research, Bill Lyle has helped protect and stabilize our scarce water resources," Dr. John Abernathy, resident director of research for the Experiment Station at Lubbock, say sin the magazine's salute. "Literally thousands of farmers are now using LEPA systems. As a result, an entire region is doing a better job of protecting the limited water resources that are available to agriculture in the Southwest.

Because of the efficiency of LEPA, the cost of converting a pivot system can usually be recovered in one growing system, Progressive Farmer notes. The magazine concludes:

"In recognition of his uncommonly practical and usable research with LEPA and other irrigation innovations, Progressive Farmer is proud to recognize Bill Lyle as its 1992 Man of the Year in Service to Southwest Agriculture."

lyle has been with the Experiment Station at Lubbock since 1976. His research has dealt with many aspects of irrigation, including soil, water and plant relationships; irrigation system design, and efficient water utilization.

He holds a B.S. degree from Texas Tech University and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Texas A&M University. before joining the Experiment Station faculty, he was an associate professorof agricultural engineering at Tech, farmed and served two years as an agricultural engineer with the Texas

Relation of pests, water stress studie

Are water-stressed plants more likely to suffer from insect infestation than plants with adequate moisture stored in the five-foot root zone soil

Kerry T. Siders, Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) Agent in Entomology and Pest Management for Castro and Lamb Counties, thinks so.

Studies have shown that there is a direct relationship between plants that are water-stressed and insect infestation. Scouting each individual field for insects has always been an important aspect of the pest management program in Castro and Lamb Counties. However, water management and its possible role in pest control was a frequent topic of interest during 1990," said Siders.

Soil moisture monitoring tools, such as tensiometers and gypsum blocks, have been in use for several years across the Texas High Plains. Siders is working to educate local producers about the proper use of these tools to determine when plants are water stressing.

After discussing the situation with Texas Agricultural Extension Service Area Irrigation Engineers Dr. Rose Mary Seymour in Lubbock and Leon New in Amarillo, Siders determined that gypsum blocks and resistance meters would be the best method of determining soil moisture conditions.

"At a cost of $180 to $225 for a hand-held resistance meter and $4 each for gypsum blocks, this seemed to be the most cost-effective and most efficient method for the average producer's use," said Siders. He added that the gypsum blocks will need to be replaced each year, the resistance neter will last several years.

Gypsum blocks are buried after crop emergence at one foot intervals down to three feet in the root zone soil profile. Lead wires from the gypsum blocks are then coded to indicate the level of the block and are usually attached to small wooden stakes in the field.

Soil moisture readings are attained by connecting the lead wires to a handheld meter which registers the electrical resistance within the gypsum block as it relates to the amount of moisture stored in the soil.

A digital meter reading of "O" would indicate dry soil conditions, while a meter reading of "100" would indicate soil conditions at field capacity.

Eleven producers from the Dimmitt-Springlake area volunteered to participate in the initial project. They were George Sides, James Welch, Norman Hinchliffe, Bob Phipps, Bobby Jack Angeley, Jack Angeley, Bill Weldon, E.S. Jones, Dickie

Jones.

Springlake-Earth High School student, was hired by Siders to take readings every three days at each of the 41 soil moisture sites in the program.

"We installed the gypsum blocks at the end of May and made readings through the end of August. Charts detailing the soil moisture record for each farm were maintained throughout the three-month period," said Siders.

Initial data from the pest management/soil moisture monitoring project crop yields using soil moisture has shown promising results, while feedback from the program has been very positive.

Many producers are realizing that soil moisture monitoring devices are necessary tools which should be added to farm management programs, said

"Soil moisture data from a corn field near Springlake indicated about 30 percent available moisture at the three-foot level of the root zone soil profile. This is an indication that the soil is getting pretty dry and that there is potential for the crop to water stress. Within two to three days, the corn became infested with spider mites, and the producer had to treat the field with crop protection chemicals," he said.

Siders praised a producer who used gypsum blocks to maintain a high level investment portfolio for today."

Brownd, Johnny Martin and Carl of soil moisture in his corn field from June to August 1990. The farmer Staci Beerwinkle, a former increased his corn yield, conserved ground water, and saw a reduction in insect infestation in his field.

"This producer has previous experience with soil moisture monitoring tools. Therefore, he could interpret his own data and could adjust his center pivot irrigation accordingly. His corn yield was 12,000 pounds per acre, and I'm sure that was an increase over previous years."

While most producers increased monitoring to determine irrigation scheduling, Siders said there were a few that had difficulty maintaining adequate soil moisture in their fields. As a result, they faced serious pest infestations and increased production

"One producer really had a difficult time. He had well problems, which really put him behind with his irrigation application. Then spider mites infested his corn. The aerial insecticide application cost $26.50 per acre, or $1,643 for this field. Had the circumstances been different and the level, this producer could have ignificantly reduced his crop protection chemical costs," said Siders.

The Castro and Lamb County entomologist plans to continue the program for the 1992 growing season. He hopes that use of this soil moisture data will allow producers to better schedule their irrigations and reduce some of the pest infestation problems brought on by water-stressed plants. If this works, the need for expensive aerial application of crop protection chemicals will be reduced.

Cattle feeding can be alternative for long-term investment return you're a candidate for cattle feeding. of 13.5%.

Yes, cattle feeding. The darling of many pre-tax reform investors has emerged in the post-tax reform era as an economically sound investment alternative that stands on its returns as confidently as the more "conventional" investment alternatives.

According to research by Dr. Jerry Miller, the Gene Edwards Professor of Finance at West Texas State University at Canyon, Texas, six-year returns on feeding cattle in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico averaged 14.2%. Over the long haul, that's not bad--somewhat higher than fixed investments such as Treasury bonds and Treasury Bills, and somewhat lower than common stocks.

"Cattle feeding is an alternative that deserves attention by serious investors," Miller concludes. "With a should be able to weather the cyclical downturns and capture excellent profits during the good times in this industry."

To arrive at that conclusion, Miller analyzed six different cattle feeding operations form eight feedyards in the TCFA area of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, taking data directly from accounting reports. He chose a sixyear period beginning Jan. 1, 1985 and ending Dec. 31, 1990.
"We chose that time period so we wouldn't bias the results in favor of cattle feeding," Miller said. "that's because 1985 was a loss year generally in cattle feeding and was profitable for stocks and bonds. Therefore, the returns over the six-year period will tend to favor stocks rather than cattle feeding."

Miller's analysis revealed that an initial investment of $100,000 in cattle an investment suited to everybody, it feeding on Jan. 1, 1985 would have does offer some real potential," Miller grown to $221,206 at the end of six years, for a compound rate of return

On the other hand, a commitment of $100,000 in the S&P 500 on Jan. 1; 1985 would have grown to $245,561 by Dec. 31, 1990, for a compound rate of return of 16.2%.

Miller points out that, if 1986 were the base year for the study, cattle feeding in the TCFA area would offer annual returns of 17.4%, while

If you're a long-term investor, common stocks would produce returns

However, longer-term returns (1926 through 1990) in common stocks averaged only 7.0% when adjusted for inflation," Miller said. "If one assumed inflation were estimated at 5% today, a 12% return for common stocks (7% real return plus 5% inflation) would place cattle feeding for these six years above the long-term returns expected from common stocks."

The returns from fixed income investments, such as Treasury bonds and Treasury bills, provided a smaller, though more secure, return. A $100,000 investment in bonds would have yielded a final return of $204,495, for a compound annual return of 12.7%. The same investment in T bills would have netted $151,277. for a compound annual return of 7.1%.

While an overall return of 14.2% is certainly acceptable, most investors would immediately believe that a higher overall return could be realized through leveraging. In order to evaluate leveraged returns, Miller looked at investment scenarios with equity percentages varying from 20% to 60% over the six years.

"The result is that some degree of leveraging does enhance the overall returns from feeding cattle," Miller said. "In fact, a 40% equity position results in a 17.1% compound annual return over the six years." What's more, Miller points out that a 40% equity position would probably enable the borrower to acquire funds at 50 to 75 basis points lower than a highly leveraged (20% equity) borrower, which may raise the return by 1.0% over the six-year period.

"While cattle feeding certainly isn't

CAPACIOUS PLAN BRIMMING WITH AMENITIES

Master Bedroom Suite Befitting Royalty

© BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

Reminiscent of nostalgic times a wrap around front porch offers enough depth to accommodate your favorite rocking chair, a porch swing or lounge chairs if you choose. It provides a shelter to the recessed foyer too. The dining room is open but separated at the left of the foyer and to the rear you will enter a luxurious great room that is appointed by a tray ceiling, corner fireplace and adjoining deck.

The master bedroom suite is endowed with the popular Mr. & Mrs. walk in closets, garden tub and separate shower, two lavatories, a tray ceiling and expanse.

Two additional bedrooms are located at the opposite end of the home and a central bath services these two rooms and guests. The basement stair is from a small central hall and laundry facilities are near the garage.

The unique kitchen-breakfast room boasts a sloped ceiling and adjoins the great room allowing the family chef to be included in family activity.

The side entry double garage appears as part of the living portion of the plan. This contributes to the pleasant exterior country look, along with the twin dormer windows, gable roof style and the wood rail porch.

The plan is Number 2076. It includes 2,079 square feet of heated space. It is a computer generated plan. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to conform to FHA and VA requirements. For further informa-450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Questions - Answers

and mineral deposits from a toilet? A: The deposits have to be removed chemically. For instance, Sani-Flush, manufactured by Boyle Midway, Inc., and commonly available at supermarkets, is quite effective in removing these stains.

Q: We have a drain line around the foundation of our house that runs to the edge of a stream. When it rains and the stream'get full, it covers the end of the drainpipe. Could this cause water to back up in the drainpipe or will it continue to drain out?

A: It all depends on the elevation of the drain line relative to the stream when the stream is running full. A problem.

Q: Is there a way to remove rust difference in elevation will create a pressure differential. And as long as there is a greater pressure in the drainpipe, the water will flow out into the stream. When the edge of the drain line is submerged in the stream, water flowing down the drainpipe will flow into the stream. However, a residual amount of water equal to the level of the stream will remain in the pipe.

If the level of the stream, when the stream is running full, is above the level of the drain line that runs around the foundation, then the water will back up into the drain line to the foundation and cause a water seepage

Question & Answer

Q. - We get some rough winters in created which causes further melted New England, and we have a problem with water leaking down through our ceiling when the snow starts to melt. We've had to retape and repaint our ceiling every spring because of this. Interestingly enough, our roof doesn't leak at all when it rains. Is there a way we can correct this situation?

leakage problem is caused by an ice When this water freezes, a dam is lowered snow to accumulate in a pool. Roofs are designed to shed water, not to protect against standing water which eventually works its way down through the roof and your ceiling. Removing the snow from the roof is the best solution. The next best y we can correct this situation? alternative is maintaining a "cold-roof." The way to do this is by over-insulating the ceilings and having abundant ventilation in the dam -a common situation in the attic. This will keep the heat in your northeast. Ice dams begin when a home from warming the roof, and layer of snow next to the roof melts. will keep the roof-deck temperatures

Check logic at the door of Craven's 'Nightmare

(Clockwise from top left) Jack Coleman, Lindsay Frost and Robert Englund star in Nightmare Cafe, a new dramatic anthology series premiering Friday on NBC. In addition to breakfast and burgers, the cafe regularly serves patrons the chance to change their past or peer into the future.

After Freddie's death, Englund lands in limbo

By Suzanne Gill

Abandon disbelief, all ye who enter here, viewers of NBC's Nightmare Cafe should be advised. The dramatic series from horrormeister Wes Craven, debuting Friday, Feb. 28, will not bear scrutiny in the light of day. It belongs instead to the night, or the conspiratorial darkness of a movie house.

Robert Englund, the recurring villain in Craven's big-screen nightmares, plays Blackie, the winking maitre d' at an all-night cafe in a large coastal city. Situated on a lonely pier between land and water, the cafe attracts the souls of those who have come to the end of life, yet still feel the weight of their existence. This is the court of last resort, the gallery of second chances, where the far-fetched is a breadand-butter staple. There's even a big-screen TV for instant replays.

The pilot episode introduces Blackie's likable short-order staff, cook Frank and waitress Fay, played by soap-opera veterans Jack Coleman (Days of Our Lives, Dynasty) and Lindsay Frost (As the World Turns). They emerge, appropriately, from the watery depths. Frank and Fay (several puns, including a reference to the Hill Street Furillos, seem intended), as we and they learn, are among the justdeceased. Even with a few crumbs of consolation and, yes, revenge to soothe their passing, their demise only serves to prove that nice guys and gals finish

Their story is told Twilight Zone fashion, with intricate flashbacks, as time folds back and over, sometimes intersecting itself. Check your incredulity at the door, or be prepared to have a sci-fi hangover in the morn-

'Captain Planet' teaches Earth-saving

By Chris Carpenter
Idea man Ted Turner is credited with the creation of Captain Planet and the Planeteers, a weekly cartoon series with a decidedly green moral tone.
Airing on TBS and in broadcast syndication, the series features the first superhero assigned to fight crimes against the environment. Joining Captain Planet are five Planeteers, a group of children serving as environmental watchdogs, as well as role models for young viewers who will one day inherit the Earth.

In a two-part hour-long special airing on TBS on Sunday, Feb. 23, the Planeteers visit the fictional Summit to Save Earth (a clear parallel to the upcoming real-life Earth Summit). There they take their case for a better environment to the world.

While it has much in common with other cartoons, Planeteers differs in that these heroes seek righteousness not simply for its own sake but for the sake of the environment, encouraging young viewers to become pro-active in the struggle. Giving voice to these themes are series regulars Whoopi Goldberg and Ed Asner, along with special guests Hector Elizondo and Sting.

The Planeteers special is rife with a sense of urgency and uses strong visual scare tactics to deliver its message. The special is loaded with ecological terms such as "old-growth forestation" and offers children practical advice on conservation.

The Bugs Bunny/Road Runner Movie **
Excerpts include Duck Amuck and Rabbit

in a carnival setting, TBS' One Child—One Voice looks at environmental problems through the eyes of children. Airing Sunday, the special is part of the cabler's Save the Earth campaign.

TBS campaigns to 'Save the Earth'

When 'One Child' speaks, will world leaders listen?

By Dan Rice

Seeing it's time to rise from the trenches of complacent consumer apathy and help get the bandwagon of environmental concern rolling, the Turner Broadcasting System, which has been at the forefront of the media's attempts to reform the opinions of our planetmates, is moving full steam ahead for the cause with its Save the Earth campaign, beginning on Sunday, Feb. 23, on TBS.

The network's special programming is designed to draw the world's attention to the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro this June, a meeting of world leaders to discuss and implement strategies aimed at reducing threats to the global environment, such as air and water pollution and the destruction of rain forests. Besides showing relevant editions of National Geographic Explorer, World of Audubon and Captain Planet and the Planeteers, TBS will premiere the original One Child — One Voice on Sunday, which repeats three times this week.

One Child, to be distributed by TBS free of charge to more than 120 countries, is a moving call to action against the problems plaguing our planet. Executive producer Peter Wagg sets the program inside an amusement park employing metaphors including bumper cars as pollution-spewing automobiles and a roller coaster symbolizing a world out of control. Several children from diverse areas of the world use their One Voice to speak out on issues such as global warming.

acid rain and famine. The children also present solutions and wonder aloud why their leaders aren't pursuing them

SITARI MOTTESI

Valerie Bertinelli likes her domestic role

By Suzanne Gill
"I always perceive myself as being a shy but friendly kind of gal," says actress Valerie Bertinelli, "and people come up to me and say, 'Gee, you're hard as nails, you're so strong.'"

Bertinelli's strength shows, in an 11-year marriage to sometimestroubled rock star Eddie Van Halen, and in a successful transition from juvenile actress to grown woman unmarred by the kinds of personal tragedies that have afflicted others of her generation. She attributes her stability to the influence of her family.

A mother herself since last March 16, the 31-year-old calls young Wolfgang Van Halen (he was named for Mozart) the light of her life.

"Want to see a picture?" she bubbles to a gathering of the press who expected to hear more about her NBC TV movie, What She Doesn't Know, airing Sunday, Feb. 23.

Bertinelli waited until recently to begin interviewing nannies, she says, because "I want to put him to bed, I want him to see me first thing in the morning. ... The longest time I ever spent away from him was 10 hours."

The nanny is a must now, since his mom is busy developing a new series she hopes to have ready for fall.
"I wish I could knock on the door of America and and say, 'Tell me exactly America and and say, 'Tell me exactly what you want to see me in.' " It's a friendly sounding idea, but hardly shy.

One Child — One Voice combines news footage and dramatic cinematography to illustrate its message with stirring images. At its conclusion, the special supplies an address where people may direct hand-drawn leaves to be added to a Peter Max-designed Tree of Life, which will demonstrate to world leaders at the Earth Summit just how many Earthlings really do care about the future.

See the world on cable TV

By Dan Rice

No visas are needed for a jaunt about the planet via cable television this week. First stop is Africa's Mount Kilimanjaro, where 12 mentally handicapped individuals attempt to scale its rugged heights to prove to themselves their ability to overcome extraordinary obstacles. Airing on Sunday, Feb. 23, Let Me Be Brave is presented as part of The Discovery Channel's Discovery Sunday.

Heading northward up the continent and back into time, The Learning Channel's Ancient Journeys begins the three-part series Romer's Egypt on Monday, Feb. 24. Egyptologist John Romer takes us up the pyramids at Giza and into the depths of a pharaoh's tomb, offering insights to this ancient civilization.

Jumping over to Asia, on Wednesday, Feb. 26, A&E's Our Century: The War Years examines Korea and the Cold War. When the People's Republic of China was created in 1949, there was a major shift of power between communism and democracy. The resulting ideological Cold War would last over 40 years.

Island-hopping back to the present, we go to Australia for Showtime Championship Boxing on Saturday, Feb. 29. In this live broadcast, Gham's Azumah Nelson defends his super featherweight title in a rematch with Aussie Jeff Fenech.

TIME OUT

Virginia's Staley rules the court

By Steve Paschal
In her three years at Virginia, Dawn
Staley's just about done it all. The Cavalier guard is a three-time AllAmerican who two years ago led her school to its first final-four appearance and, last year, took them to within three points of a national championship.

Staley was already being heralded as the most exciting women's basketball player ever when she arrived on the Virginia campus in 1988. She immediately began living up to expectations, thrilling fans with her no-look passes and near-magical ball handling as much as her 18 points per game scoring average. Last year, Staley's scoring dropped by more than three points a game, but her seven assists and six steals per game made her arguably the nation's most complete player.

If Virginia is, as many preseason publications predicted, on a collision course for a championship-game repeat with Tennessee, it will be far from a one-woman effort. Not only does Tammi Reiss combine with Staley to give Virginia one of the nation's top backcourts, but the trio of center Melanie Wagener and 6'5" twins Heidi and Heather Burge gives the Cavaliers a dominating inside game.

Fans at home will see Staley in action when Virginia and North Carolina State clash Saturday, Feb. 29, on CBS.

Ivanhoe  A chivalrous knight finds romance and adventure in medieval England. Robert Taylor, Elizabeth Taylor 2:15. (1952) © Feb. 25 11:00em.

Jack London + Jack London travels the world as a war correspondent. Michael O'Shea, Susan Hayward 2:00. (1943) ■ Feb. 26 3:00em.

The Jayhawkers ★★ A border raider dreams of ruling the wide open Great Plains. Jeff Chandler, Fess Parker 2:05. (1959) ● Feb. 26 11:25pm:

Who'll eat crow in North Carolina?

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: Is the actor playing the attorney whom Cricket recently went to work for on The Young and the Restless the same one who played Phillip Chancellor III.Or was he on As the World Turns? Please let us know at Carolina East Mall so we can figure out who needs to eat some crow. -G. Cox, Greenville, N.C.

Dear Reader: Christian Le Blanc is the recruiter/attorney Michael Baldwin on Y&R. He previously portrayed Kirk McCall for two years on ATWT. Thom Bierdz was Phillip Chancellor III. I hope you are not the one who has to eat crow.

Dear Candace: I'm down to one soap, but I'll quit that, too, if General Hospital doesn't come up with a new story line soon. For the last few days, 90 percent of the show has centered around Mac and Dominique. I like Mac, but there is no spark between him and Dominique. I liked seeing him and Jenny together. I'd like to see a lengthy courtship, minus the sex scenes.

—Margy Hengy, Mankato, Minn.

Dear Reader: GH is going through some big changes, again. Gloria Monty has left the show, and Wendy Riche has joined up as executive producer. We're sure to see some cast changes and new story lines. Riche has no previous experience with soaps, so it could get interesting.

Dear Candace: Is the actor who plays Clay Alden on Loving the same person who portrayed Travis Montgomery on All My Children? I think he is really good-looking. He was such a nice man on AMC and now he plays mean old Clay. My friend says he looks like a man on one of the soaps she used to watch, too. Please help us. —F.S.,

Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear Reader: Larkin Malloy (Clay
Alden, Loving) was indeed Travis Montgomery on AMC. He was one of the most popular characters ever to appear on the show and several viewers protested when he left. It is likely he will have quite a following on Loving. Malloy also portrayed Kyle Sampson on Guiding Light and Schuyler Whitney on The Edge of Night, for which he received an Emmy nomination.

Paint a leaf and 'Save the Earth'

World leaders won't have to be psychic to read the message in the leaves soon to flutter from the Tree of Life, a worldwide hands-on project sponsored by Turner Broadcasting in conjunction with its Save the Earth campaign. The idea is to demonstrate concern for the environment by encouraging thousands worldwide to mail in postcards bearing leaf draw-ings. The postcards will adorn a Tree of Life to be displayed in June at the first Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro.

Leaf postcards designed by artist Peter Max are available in Save the Earth books and action packs dis-tributed nationwide by Citizen Action, tributed nationwide by Citizen Action, a non-profit group. Interested Earth-savers can also design their own leaves on blank postcards and mail them to Tree of Life, Rio de Janeiro, Save the Earth Campaign, P.O. Box 140155, Atlanta, Ga., 30374-0153.

Save the Earth specials, from Captain Planet to Jacques Cousteau, air Sunday, Feb. 23, on cable's TBS.

day, Feb. 23, on cable's TBS.

e the Earth leaf

What child development tool can help kids stick to a task, follow the rules, overcome their fears, consider others feelings and play more imaginatively? According to research sponsored by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, it's Mister Rogers' Neighborhood. And if you think Fred Rogers' show is just kid stuff, consider these comments from adults who watch, too: "I have much more resistance with the kid." much more patience with the kids"
"I learned different ways to interact with children, to solve problems" "I feel better about myself and what I do." So you, might say if the sweater fits,

You are not alone: Nielsen Media Research estimates that between 89.7 million and 109.1 million people view prime-time television each night in the United States. The slowest night is Friday, while Sunday, Monday and Tuesday rank first, second and third in viewing, respectively.

Many readers curious about Ann Jillian

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Can you provide me with an address for actress Ann Jillian? —Kerry Piller, West Plains, Mo.

A: I received quite a few letters asking about Jillian this week. So, for you and the others who wanted to know, you can write her in care of the William Morris Agency, 151 El Camino Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: Could you give me an address for Oliver Stone? I am very impressed with his films and admire people who have the courage to examine controversial issues. I often want to write to movie stars or authors and am wondering if there are any directories available to the public so I can do this. —Betty Hawkins, Silver City, N.M.

A: You can write Stone care of CAA, 9820 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212

There are many books available with addresses of authors, actors, directors, etc., but they are not always accurate or up-to-date, so I always call the appropriate guild or agency to check my facts. Reference books can cost anywhere from $5 to $500; periodicals such as Entertainment Weekly, Hollywood Reporter and Variety can offer needed background information, too.

If you are trying to reach an author, you might contact the publisher for information. Sometimes, it can be like Sherlock Holmes looking for clues, and you'll seldom find the information you need on the first try, but most research just takes common sense. You might begin by checking at a local library or bookstore for reference books already on the shelves, then ask for more help at the counter. If you have the name of a book, its author or publisher and want more information, check a copy of Books in Print. Happy hunting!

Q: My friends and I would love it if you would give us the address where we could write to Edward Furiong.—Sophia Theresa, Ridge Crest, Calif.

A: You can write the young star of Terminator 2: Judgment Day in care of

Susan Smith and Associates, 121
North Sanvicente Blvd., Beverly Hills,
Calif., 90211. Incidentally, his agency reports that the volume of fan mail for Furione has been phenomenal

Furiong has been phenomenal.

Q: I am a big fan of MacGyver and want to know if there is any way to bring the series back. Also, are there any Richard Dean Anderson fan clubs? He is a great actor and MacGyver is a wonderful series and shouldn't have been canceled without real cause. We fans were never given a chance to give our say-so. I would like to know where I can get a hold of photos and information about Anderson and the rest of the MacGyver crew. —C.M., Greenville, Texas.

A: After debuting on Sept. 29, 1985, MacGyver aired on ABC for seven seasons. While never an out-and-out hit, it certainly had a loyal viewer following. What viewers may not know is that any series will become more and more expensive to produce the longer it airs, chiefly because of a built-in system of annual raises for the stars. A series like NBC's Cheers, for instance, which is now in its 10th season and has a large cast, will at some point become too costly to produce in comparison to the revenue expected in return. In an interview last summer, MacGyver creator Lee Zlotoff said he had been surprised each year to find the series was renewed, not the reverse.

I know of no MacGyver fan clubs, but fortunately for fans, the series is still available in reruns on cable's USA network. Write to Anderson care of Paramount Domestic Television, 5555 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., 90038. The letters will be forwarded to him.

Margie's Notes

I was reading an article in the "Aging Arkansas" written by the Director Division of Aging and Adult Services. What ever we are doing at this moment we are all aging. Because this happens to all of us, there are some secrets to successful aging.

The first and probably the most important knowledge to possess is an understanding of health. Most of us have a misconception of what health is. We think good health is freedom of physical disease or pain. This is a serious misconception. It is almost as bad as thinking medical care and health care are the same. "The medical and health care guide for people over 50" gives a good definition of health by looking at a day in the life of two women:

The first lady begins her day by rising early and doing some stretching exercises. After her exercises she drinks a glass of juice, meets her neighbor for a two-mile morning walk. After the walk, she has a good breakfasthalf a grapefruit, a bowl of bran cereal with banana slices, low fat-milk and coffee. Since she's a diabetic, she has strictly adhered to her diet. After breakfast, she washes her dishes and cleans her apartment. She then showers and dresses for her afternoon work as a volunteer at a local nursing home, where she has lunch with the other volunteers. In the middle of the afternoon, she goes home to relax for a little while before going to her daughter's home

The second lady gets out of bed at 10:30 a.m. She had trouble getting to sleep the previous night and was up most of the time. Upon rising she goes to the kitchen, turns on the TV, and fixes herself coffee and toast. She spends the next hour watching TV, drinking coffee and smoking cigarettes. She is still tired because she didn't sleep well. After breakfast she goes back to bed for a little nap. When she gets up she goes to the kitchen for a snack of cookies and hot tea. She then does her ironing as she watches the soaps. Later her niece phones and invites her for dinner that evening. She thanks her niece but declines saying she did not sleep well and too tired

This lady is free from disease, but most would agree the first lady is the healthier person.

Health involves physical, emotional and social well being. This means most of us can improve our health--no matter where we are in the aging process. Living a healthier lifestyle doesn't have to be complicated. Here are some simple things you can do to age well:

Eat well balanced meals, exercise regularly, learn how to relax and deal with stress, use medications properly, get adequate, peaceful sleep, do not use tobacco products, avoid excessive use of alcohol, prevent injuries, buckle up for safety, and practice good dental hygiene.

No matter what age, it is never to late to take these positive steps.

We visited my mother-in-law last week. She celebrated her 94th birthday and is still living alone. A few months ago she was very ill and in the hospital for about 3 months, at which time the doctors could not find her trouble. She was then taken to a nursing home, and of course after a week or two in the nursing home, we had to take her to her home because do what the nurses told her to. Her daughter took her to Wichita to try to find out her medical problem. The pacemaker given her a few months before had never been regulated. So she's home now and doing well.

She still has her car, and when we or some of the family go to see her, she has to go riding to her farm--about 20 miles away. Of course the first thing we had to do was drive her, in her car, to the farm. She asked me how her car looked, I said great, and guess what-she had just waxed it!!! I said you're kidding! No she said--Ldidn't like the way it looked, so I waxed

I thought of my mother-in-law when I read the article in the paper. So

See you at the Center for exercising and a good meal!

Hereford Senior Citizens will present the Braschler Music Show from Branson, Mo., on April 3 at the Serrior Center at 6 and 8:30 p.m.

The concerts will be completely different. The tickets for each show are $10 each, but a discount package for both shows is only $18. A package including both shows and dinner will be $24 per person.

Two different menus will be served beginning at 5 p.m. in the dining room. Menu No. 1 includes brisket, pinto beans, baked polatoes, cole slaw, fruit cobbler, homemade bread, ice tea and coffee. Menu No. 2 includes Baked boneless chicken breast, baked potato, seasoned green beans, cole slaw, fruit cobbler, homemade bread, ice tea and coffee.

want when ordering tickets.

Each show features wide variety. Country and gospel tunes feature solos, duets, a quartet and some fivepart harmony. The Braschlers have been featured on Nashville Now on TNN and are one of the top attractions at Branson.

The band backs up the group on drums, piano, guitar, fiddle, steel guitar and banjo. It also includes harmonica, trumpet, saxophone and the kazoo.

Homer Lee, the comedian of the show, is a regular on Hew Haw. He is a lovable character whose pre-show monologue will tickle anyone's funny bone. His side-splitting antics during the performance entertain and amuse of the group guessing, too.

The Braschler Quartet includes Cliff Braschler, who sings tenor; plays harmonica and is straight man for Homer Lee; Paul Braschler, who sings baritone and plays bass guitar and trumpet; Johnny Walters, who sings lead and plays piano and saxophone; and Brad Bacon, who rounds out the quartet with his deep bass voice. Add Dee Schrock, who sings and plays keyboard and sax, and it's a combination for great entertain-

DSGH plans 2 March meetings

Few issues are in the spotlight more often these days than health care. As a specialty in health care, will be on more and more attention is placed on quality care, it's only natural that increased emphasis also will be devoted to patients' rights.

The "Patient Self-Determination Act," aimed at improving patient knowledge about their rights and their freedom to make choices regarding their treatment, went into effect Dec. 1, 1991. This new law, often referred to as "The Living Will," allows a patient to make all medical decisions, from the simplest to the most difficult. This new federal law will help disseminate information about patient rights and encourage individuals to exercise their options to prepare for the possibility of a devastating accident or terminal illness.

Sometimes, though, laws can be confusing or difficult to understand. In an effort to help members of the community understand their rights, Deaf Smith General Hospital is sponsoring a seminar on patient rights.
The seminar will be held at 7 p.m. March 10 at the Hereford Senior DSGH in cooperation with the Citizens Center. Alan Rhodes, an a specialty in health care, will be on hand to explain Texas' Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care Act as well as the Texas Natural Death Act. He will be joined by Lisa Formby, Quality Assurance Coordinator, & Ron Rieves Administrator of Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Be sure to make your plans now to attend this important seminar. Knowing your rights is vital to being able to protect your rights. That protection is an important component of DSGH's effort to provide this community with quality health care.

A seminar on medications management for arthritis will be held March 24 at 1 p.m. at the Senior Rita Chamberlain, director of the pharmacy at Deaf Smith General Hospital, will conduct the two-hour program.

The seminar is sponsored by Arthritis Foundation.

President's Corner

Congratulations are in order to Clarence and Mildred Betzen, our new Valentine King and Queen. These folks have been long time residents of Hereford and have contributed much to their church and the community. They are faithful and enthusiastic volunteers at the senior center. We appreciate them.

We are looking forward to having the Braschler's Music Show at the center on April 3rd. We saw the group in Branson, Missouri last spring and they really put on a good show.

During the last few winter weeks, activities have been going strong at the center. Attendance at the noon meal has remained high and new membership. enrollment is strong. People are enrolling for water exercises, special ceramics classes, and other programs.

We have been doing some needed pre-spring maintenance with repair of the parking lot and other minor repairs.

We are looking forward to seeing you at the center.

Diet change can improve heal

MS, RD/LD

To become healthy Americans, we must consider several alternate plans for eating properly. A revision plan for one's eating habits and lifestyle can help achieve a healthier life by eliminating one of the major risks of heart attack, high blood cholesterol.

The three most important factors that are present for heart attacks are high blood cholesterol levels, high blood pressure and cigarette smoking. Several other contributors are diabetes, obesity, lack of exercise, and family history of early heart disease. The longevity of one's life may depend on the individual controlling factors now that can become deterrents to health in the future.

The plan of eating should be consistent to basic nutrition. The diet should be wholesome and afford energy for an active life of exercise and eliminating the bad cholesterols from one's daily intake. To outline this diet plan to follow, one should consider:

1) daily protein, vitamins, minerals and other nutrient needs.

2) achieve and maintain desirable

weight.
3) Reduce total fat intake, especially the saturated fats and those containing a high percent of cholesterol. a) fat intake 30-35% of total calories consumed. b) saturated fats 10% of total calories consumed. c) restrict cholesterol intake ot 300 mg./daily.

4) Diet modification and behavior changes should be done gradually over several months so that the pattern becomes established. Only the individuals themselves can change their eating style. Start now and form sound habits slowly but steadily.

The American Heart Association has made available handouts on the varied and many ways the individual may evaluate his or her heart. Another valuable guideline is the simple ways there are to modify a favorite recipe. To reduce saturated fate and cholesterol, remember the following: 1) serve lean cuts of meat; 2) serve moderate portions; 3) make substitutions for some of the animal,

Instead of butter, lard, bacon fat and chicken fat, use polyunsaturated margarine or oil. Instead of sour cream, use low fat yogurt; instead of whole milk, use skim milk; instead of whole milk cheeses, use low fat cheeses; instead of whoel eggs, use egg whites or egg beaters.

The food habits, lifestyle practices, diseases and conditions that may adversely affect nutritional health and that increase nutrition risk need to be recognized by older Americans so that further help can be sought. The "Journal of the American Dietetic Associaton", February 1992, contains a checklist designed to help in this process.

In the longest tennis match in Wimbledon history, Pancho Gonzales (41) defeated a much younger Charles Pasarell in a 112 game match taking five hours and game materi taking it twelve minutes over two days.

The Nutrition Checklist is based on the Warning Signs described belows the word DETERMINE to remind you of the Warning Signs.

Any disease, illness or chronic condition which causes you to change the way you eat, or makes it hard for you to eat, puts your nutritional health at risk. Four out of five adults have chronic diseases that are affected by diet. Confusion or memory loss that keeps getting worse is estimated to affect one out of five or more of older adults. This can make it hard to remember what, when or if you've eaten. Feeling sad or depressed, which happens to about one in eight older adults, can cause big changes in appetite, digestion, energy level, weight and well-being.

Eating too little and eating too much both lead to poor health. Eating the same foods day after day or not eating fruit, vegetables, and milk products daily will also cause poor nutritional health. One in five adults skip meals daily. Only 13% of adults eat the minimum amount of fruit and vegetables needed. One in four older adults drink too much alcohol. Many health problems become worse if you drink more than one or two alcoholic beverages per day.

A healthy mouth, teeth and gums are needed to eat. Missing, loose or rotten teeth or dentures which don't fit well or cause mouth sores make it hard to eat.

As many as 40% of older Americans have incomes of less than $6,000 per year. Having less -- or choosing to spend less -- than $25-30 per week for food makes it very hard to get the foods you need to stay healthy.

REDUCED SOCIAL CONTACT

One-third of all older people live alone. Being with people daily has a positive effect on morale, well-being and eating

VEULTIPLE MEDICINES

Many older Americans must take medicines for health problems. Almost half of older Americans take multiple medicines daily. Growing old may change the way we respond to drugs. The more medicines you take, the greater the chance for side effects such as increased or decreased appetite change in taste, constipation, weakness, drowsiness, diarrhea, nausea, and others. Vitamins or minerals when taken in large doses act like drugs and can cause harm. Alert your doctor to

ENVOLUNTARY WEIGHT LOSS/GAIN

Losing or gaining a lot of weight when you are not trying to do so is an important warning sign that mus not be ignored. Being overweight or underweight also increases your chance of poor health.

TEEDS ASSISTANCE IN SELF CARE

Although most older people are able to eat, one of every five have trouble walking, shopping, buying and cooking food, especially as they get older.

Most older people lead full and productive lives. But as age increases, risk of frailty and health problems increase. Checking your nutritional health regularly makes good sense.

Eye Openers

By: Dr. Huge B. Currie Currie Eye Institute DID YOU KNOW...?

The patient suddenly loses the vision in one eye; there have been no previous problems in the eye and the eye is quiet and non-painful. What is happening and what should the patient do?

The sudden loss of vision in one eye is usually due to a blood supply problem to the eye. In some cases, it means that the blood vessel supplying the blood is stopped up. In other cases, it means that the blood vessel that takes blood away from the eye is stopped up, resulting in a sudden engorgement of the eye with blood. In either case, there is no continuing oxygen supply to the retina and the vision decreases suddenly. The patient should cal ltheir ophthalmologist immediately. There is often treatment that can restore some of the vision. Sometimes the patient has to be hospitalized to be given special gasses that dilate blood vessels. Also, there is oxygen available at the hospital to put as much as necessary into the blood stream.

Another cause of sudden loss of vision includes bleeding inside the eye. This is a particularly frequent cause of vision loss in diabetics. Again, the physician's office should be called.

Additional causes of sudden loss of vision on one side include retinal detachment, inflammation of the optic nerve, and sudden obstruction to blood vessels anywhere from the neck up to the eye. All of these occurrences require immediate evaluation from a physician.

Remember, if you have a sudden loss of vision in one eye without pain and without any other associated symptoms, call your ophthalmologist as soon as possible.
