Jail inspection indicates improvements

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor
Deaf Smith County Jail, slated for approximately $1.55 million worth of renovation work, received a largely favorable report Wednesday following an official inspection.

Joe Slater, supervising inspector of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, said he thought the jail is looking quite a bit better now than it did last summer. "You show a whole lot of improvement in little things," he told County Commissioner Bruce Coleman and David Castillo, who earlier this year replaced Charles Saterfield as jail administrator.

"The jail is greatly improved as to sanitation, functioning of lighting and plumbing," Slater wrote in his report. "The staff is very cooperative and willing to provide operating procedures and records to operate at a high level performance."

Proposed work to solve problems

The report listed four jail standards not now being complied with at the local facility. Three of them are health-oriented. There is no exercise area, no plan for physical exercise and inmates are not granted the privilege of being in sunlight at least once a week.

All three of those problems, Castillo and County Judge Glen Nelson explained, will remain unsolvable until the jail is renovated and expanded to include an outdoor exercise area. They also said the fourth listed violation of TCJS laws - inmate rules are not listed in both English and Spanish - was only recently learned. Slater admitted progress is being made in that area.

The jail is also operating with seven variances, the inspector noted. Included are a lack of standpipes and hoses, insufficient square footage in multi-occupancy cells, lack of day rooms for several cell areas, lack of a floor drain in the holding cell and insufficient emergency operation of doors.

Nelson stressed Wednesday's was the best report in several years. "It looks good to me," he said. "It looks like we've done a lot down there." All the variations are to be remedied by the proposed jail work, which has not yet begun. Slater said though he is not the TCJS official working with the jail architects, what he has seen of the plan "looked good." Coleman pointed out the preliminary drawings have already been approved by TCJS.

Deaf Smith County has hired Gondeck-Poage Partnership Architects of San Antonio to design the jail changes. According to Slater, the firm has designed many jails. Coleman said he believed "that's about all they design anymore."

Coleman, retiring from the commission this year after having been on it for two decades, listed some reasons why renovation and additions to the jail are preferable to building a new one.

The cost of a new facility, he said, would be $3 to $4 million. Should it be constructed in another location, the added expense of transporting inmates and deputies to and from the courthouse would be around $250,000 per year, he guessed.

The recreational area, according to plans, would contain a 30-by-30 foot outdoor space along with a smaller, multi-purpose room. The holding section would increase from the one current room to an area large enough to sleep 10 inmates. It would also have the capability of keeping prospective inmates in detention for at least 72 hours.

Nicaraguan diplomat expelled

By FREDDY CUEVAS
Associated Press Writer
TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Honduras has ordered a top Nicaraguan diplomat expelled for spreading communist propaganda, while Nicaragua, in turn, claims Honduran troops participated in an attack on one of its border towns.

Honduras leaders cite propoganda

The Honduran foreign minister, Edgardo Paz Barica, on Wednesday accused Nicaraguan Charge d'Affaires Javier Aviles Ibarra of making his embassy "an agency of Marxist propaganda... in favor of Sandinism," a reference to Nicaragua's ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front.

Aviles Ibarra, at a news conference last week, criticized Honduras for allowing U.S. military operations and installations on its territory.

A Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry statement called the expulsion "unfriendly" and said it was "directed toward deteriorating still further the relations between the two countries and falls within plans of the North American administration to promote a climate of tension that makes possible higher acts of aggression against Nicaragua."

The United States aids the Honduras-based Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the larger of two groups fighting the Sandinista government. Another rebel group, the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, is based in Costa Rica.

Nicaragua charged Wednesday that Honduran soldiers and Honduran-based Nicaraguan rebels attacked the village of Santo Tomas del Norte in Chinandega province, 150 miles north of Managua, the capital.

A protest note from Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said a 12-month-old girl was killed and a Sandinista soldier wounded in the attack Monday.

The note accused the Honduran army of "growing involvement" in cross-border attacks by the guerrillas.

In El Salvador, the far-right Republican Nationalist Alliance on Wednesday asked the Central Election Council to reject a petition by the moderate Christian Democrats to disqualify from the elections later this month the alliance presidential candidate, Roberto d'Aubuisson.

The Christian Democrats on Monday said d'Aubuisson was ineligible because it was commonly believed, and had been charged in "the foreign press," that he was behind the 1980 murder in San Salvador of Roman Catholic Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero. He also was accused of being the "intellectual author and promoter of the sadly famous death squads."

challenging Emory Brownlow for Place 4. Both he and Fuston filed just ahead of the 5 p.m. deadline. Fuston will try for one of two at-large positions open on the Hereford Independent School District board of education, running against Bob Baker, R.C. Hoelscher and Bill Townsend.

Candidates for the school board's District 2 (See map spot are Jo Garcia and Ronnie Nunley. That position was created under terms of a re-districting agreement reached late in January but not yet approved by the Justice Department.

The compromise resolution resulted from a lawsuit filed Nov. 29, by Texas Rural Legal Aid against the school district, challenging the at-large election system. TRLA represented local Mexican-Americans who said the practice was discriminatory because it diluted the Hispanic vote.

Last month, Judge Mary Lou Robinson of the Federal District Court in Amarillo ordered the school go ahead with plans for the April 7 election as though the re-districting plan had been approved. Kelly Frels, a Houston attorney representing the school board, has asked the Justice Department to "expedite" its consideration of the plan and he expects to receive word on the ruling before the elections are held.

The only other Hereford City Commission chair up for grabs - Place 4 - is that held by R.W. "Bud" Eades, who will run unopposed. He and Brownlow were last elected in 1982, when Eades ran unopposed and Brownlow beat opponent Rumaldo Garcia.

Last year, Wes Fisher ran an uncontested race to take over for retiring Mayor Bartley Dowell, while Melvin Jayroe was unopposed in his bid for the Place 2 office being vacated by Fisher. Ed Coplen defeated Lynn Jones to retain his Place 1 seat.

The 1983 school board elections saw incumbents James Gentry and Paul Ramirez lose to Calvin Jones and Marilyn Culpepper. Trini Gamez and Dale Pierson had also campaigned for those spots.

Paul Mason ran unopposed to fill the unexpired term of Bobby Griego.

The filing deadline for Deaf Smith General Hospital Board candidates is Monday at 5 p.m., with eight persons running so far for the three available posts.

Faulty rail thought derailment cause

Four killed, 69 injured

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — An Amtrak passenger train that derailed, killing four people and injuring 69 others, would probably not have gone off the tracks if the rail steel had been in good condition, a Missouri Pacific official says.

C.D. Barton, chief track engineer for Missouri Pacific, testified Wednesday in the second and last day of a probe by the National Transportation Safety Board, which is investigating the Nov. 12 derailment north of Marshall.

Barton said the tracks were in good condition and the rail would not have shattered unless it was defective. He placed the blame on the manufacturer, Krupp Stahl, a German company.

"In my opinion, the support of the rail and track was such that unless there had been something in the rail with a problem, it would not have broken," Barton said. "Or at least if it did break, that it would not have this shattering effect that we have."

Witnesses testified the rail exploded into at least 50 pieces and possibly more than 100. The rail was replaced about two hours before the passenger train passed over it.

Some of the six witnesses who gave sworn depositions on Tuesday said the Amtrak Eagle was traveling at between 70 and 75 mph when it derailed.

Barton said railroad employees violated company policy when they failed to impose a 10 mph speed limit on the passenger train and on a freight train, that crossed the mended section of track shortly before the Amtrak Eagle.

The engineer was the first of four witnesses to testify Wednesday before a four-member NTSB.

Harold F. Degenhardt, an attorney for Krupp Stahl Inc., presented laboratory photographs in which rail fractures appeared to originate from a notched torch-welding cut.

Railroad workers testified Tuesday they cut the rail with a welding torch rather than a saw as required by Missouri Pacific. According to company rules, the crew must impose a 10 mph speed limit when a torch is used.

The speed restriction was not posted, and records show the train was traveling 73 mph when it derailed.

The Lone Star Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation has announced the Deaf Smith County District Attorney's office is spring chairman of the local 1984 campaign.

The campaign is held to provide the community with information about cystic fibrosis, described as "the number one killer of children and young adults." It is also to raise funds to support research, education and care programs.

"Cystic Fibrosis is difficult to diagnose and, at present, impossible to cure," a press release stated. "Each day five babies are born with this tragic disease which will clog and choke their lungs and inhibit their digestive process and their growth. It will eventually take their lives as it takes the lives of three young people each and every day."

Barbara A. Koelzer and Giens S. West, both from Hereford, have been recognized for academic achievement at Texas A&M University.

Each was selected to the dean's honor roll, which requires at least a 3.75 grade point average on a scale of 4.0 during the most recent grading period. A minimum of 15 semester hours is needed to be considered for the list.

Koelzer is a senior business analysis major while West, a junior, is studying agricultural economics.

Condemned man to fight for life

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death Row inmate James David Autry, with his scheduled execution less than one week away, has vowed he won't stop fighting for his life.

"I don't want to die and I'm not going to give up," said the 29-year-old Autry, known to fellow inmates as "Cowboy."

Autry, who was sentenced to die for the 1980 slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk, is scheduled to be executed by a poisonous injection before sunrise March 14.

Five months ago, Autry lay strapped to a hospital gurney with intravenous needles in his arms when U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White granted a reprieve 30 minutes before the lethal flow of chemicals was to begin at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 5.

Case may help society says killer

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan, scheduled for execution on March 31, said he is innocent of killing his son with poisoned Halloween candy and that he expects someday to have a "very fond reunion" with the youngster in the hereafter.

O'Bryan, 39, said the public was outraged by the death of his son, Timmy, and that the anger was directed toward him. As a result, he said, people "forgot the relationship ... that I had lost a son."

"I'm not asking for sympathy," he said. "I'm asking that they understand the relationship. ... I loved Timmy very much."

Non-praying sections suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public school classrooms might have to be divided into "praying" and "non-praying" sections under a proposed modification to a school-prayer constitutional amendment being debated in the Senate.

That's one change vote-hunting sponsors of the amendment are considering as they press their search for a compromise that can pick up enough support to win the two-thirds majority — or 67 votes — needed for passage.

Senate leaders now say a test vote on a proposed constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in public schools may not come until next week. Opponents, led by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., have vowed to delay a final vote on the issue until early June.

Texas backers keep faith

AUSTIN (AP) — Although Sen. Gary Hart's Democratic presidential campaign rolled over Walter Mondale in northern New England, Texans won't be impressed, the state Democratic chairman says.

Chairman Bob Slagle, a leading Mondale backer, said the former vice president hasn't lost his Texas support. He said he expects Texans to speak for themselves when choosing the state's 200 Democratic National Convention delegates this spring.

"I really don't think Texas is going to let Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine dictate our politics to us," Slagle said.

But Hart's Texas campaign chairman, Congressman Martin Frost, was in a mood to celebrate Wednesday, the day after the Colorado senator overwhelmed Mondale in the Vermont primary for his third victory in a week.

Meese was sent Carter documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Counselor Edwin Meese III, despite his earlier denials, was sent copies of documents relating to former President Carter's campaign strategy in 1980, an aide to Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said Wednesday night.

Metzenbaum, a leading opponent of Meese's nomination as attorney general, released the documents Wednesday after submitting written questions to Meese about the papers.

The main memo, dated Aug. 11, 1980, from Max Hugel to Meese, was a cover letter for a three-page Carter campaign document outlining strategy for the Democratic National Convention and a campaign against Reagan, Metzenbaum aide Roy Meyers said.

"Bill Casey asked me to have you review this memo which fell into our hands and to come up with some of our own strategy on this particular subject that might counteract this effort," the Hugel memo said.

Aquino led down stairs after shot

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A security guard today contradicted the military's version of Benigno Aquino's assassination, testifying he saw the opposition leader led down stairs from an airplane, his head hanging to the side, just after a shot rang out.

The military contends Aquino was shot by a leftist assassin after descending the stairs and reaching the airport tarmac on Aug. 21, when he returned to Manila after three years of self-imposed exile in the United States.

Only military men were on the stairway, and some Aquino supporters contend one of those escorts carried out the killing.

The private guard, Efrén C. Ranas, 22, was among four employees of the Lanting security agency who had been held in contempt by the board probing the assassination for failure to answer a summons. He obtained promises of protection from the board prior to giving his public testimony.

Government not funding school

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — The Mexican government has reneged on a promise to provide funding for an often financially troubled agriculture college in this border city, according to students, who claim their money is going to a smaller, less qualified school.

Students aired their allegations Wednesday, one day after they had an altercation with the director of the smaller agriculture school over which facility should be federally funded.

A student leader, Alfredo Aguirre, 25, charged that the federal government had budgeted 150 million pesos for the Hermanos Escobar agriculture college this year. But to date, no money has arrived, he said.

The government of Chihuahua state has loaned the school 14 million pesos to help keep it afloat financially, but Aguirre said that money is not sufficient.

He said students are growing sorghum and selling it just to be able to afford toilet paper for the southeastern Juarez school.

Shootout, recapture end escapees' terror reign

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It started on a chilly Saturday morning in a prison silage pit when five Tennessee convicts drew pistols on their guards and bolted to freedom.

It turned into 19-day trail of blood and terror that left two innocent people and one convict dead and two lawmen wounded.

At the height of the chase, hundreds of nervous Tennessee and North Carolina residents packed guns and kept their lights burning through the night.

Two of the convicts said they would never be taken alive, shot a man as he grilled steaks, let his wife say goodbye as he lay dying in the back yard, then held the woman hostage on a 400-mile odyssey.

Another convict was found under a carpet, "hungry and cold, and was talked into surrendering over breakfast and a Bible lesson served up by a 73-year-old woman.

The chase ended Wednesday morning for double murderer Ronald Freeman, killed by two shotgun blasts as he made his last stand behind an unheated wooden door at an abandoned North Carolina house.

The end for habitual criminal James Clegg came nine hours later, when he meekly surrendered from his hiding place behind a board in a nearby home.

The bid for freedom against all odds began the morning of Feb. 18, when 25 convicts, flanked by two guards, marched out of the fence around Fort Pillow State Prison and headed for the prison farm's silage pit.

Less than two hours later, the guards were tied up and five inmates were racing eastward in a stolen car, pausing only to fire a shotgun at a pursuing officer.

Missing were Freeman, 41, a prison activist and ladies' man serving 198 years for the 1970 shooting deaths of his pregnant wife and stepdaughter; Clegg, a 30-year-old thief serving a life term as a habitual criminal; Randolph Oliver, 33, serving six life sentences for rape and murder; Riley Arzeneaux, 26, serving 25 years for second-degree murder; and Sylvester Alexander, 33, serving 40 years for robbery.

Today the race is over for all but Alexander, who authorities believe is hiding in Illinois.

On the night of the escape a policeman in Brownsville, about 40 miles east of the prison, chased a pickup truck speeding through town. At the end of a narrow lane, three men jumped out, blasted a shotgun and vanished into the woods.

Within hours, police, sheriff's deputies, prison guards, state troopers and volunteers were combing the area. A helicopter dropped squads of officers to search in overgrown fields.

By noon the next day, police found Oliver walking down a highway. He offered no resistance, and the manhunt intensified.

Early on the morning of Feb. 21, 72-year-old Nathan Degrainfried went outside his Braden home to find out why his cats were howling. Under a piece of carpet he found a hungry Arzeneaux, who pointed a broken-stocked shotgun at him.

But the escapee didn't intimidate Degrainfried's wife, Louise.

"Put that shotgun down," the 73-year-old woman ordered the fugitive, who humbly complied as she fixed him breakfast, prayed with him, and then persuaded him to surrender.

That evening, 20 miles to the northeast, Paul Windrow Sr., a 59-year-old church elder and retired businessman, was grilling steaks in his Brownsville back yard, a 45-caliber pistol strapped to his waist because of news reports about the escapees.

As his 55-year-old wife, Elisabeth, made a salad indoors, Freeman and Clegg emerged from the woods and gunned down Windrow when he drew his pistol. The pair commandeered Mrs. Windrow's car, allowed the woman a few minutes with her dying husband and then forced her on a 400-mile ride across the state. En route, they told her they would not be taken alive.

Outside Knoxville they jumped into a car waiting at a rest stop on Interstate 40, leaving their captive unhurt.

Gov. Lamar Alexander put a $5,000 reward on each convict's head and the FBI joined the search. Authorities trailed them into Ohio and Kentucky.

Mondale to South:

"I need your help"

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter Mondale, telling southerners "I really need your help," is accusing Gary Hart of being soft on civil rights, while the Colorado senator is aiming his words at President Reagan and sounding more and more like a front-runner in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Hart, too, acknowledged that southern votes have become crucial to maintaining his campaign surge, and he was appearing today before the Alabama Legislature followed by a meeting with Gov. George Wallace — just as his rivals have done.

"It's important that I be able to demonstrate voter support in the South," Hart said while campaigning in Huntsville, Ala., on Wednesday.

Mondale, honing a new, tougher image in light of his three-in-a-row losses to Hart in New England, appeared before the Alabama Legislature on Wednesday and held his meeting with Wallace, the one-time segregationist who isn't endorsing anyone in the Democratic field.

Wallace said Mondale was paying just a courtesy call and had not asked for his endorsement. But, Wallace said, "I feel very kindly toward him."

Sen. John Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson also have made similar calls on Wallace and addressed the state's lawmakers.

Hart, Mondale, Jackson and Glenn all are focusing on the South because of primaries in Alabama, Georgia and Florida on Tuesday — three of the nine states selecting delegates that day.

The fifth candidate, former Sen. George McGovern, remained in Massachusetts where he is gambling on that state's primary.

Jackson was in Mississippi today after spending Wednesday in Illinois, where he hit Hart's "new ideas" theme. The only new thing about Hart, Jackson said, is that he "lowered his age and shortened his name."

He was referring to Hart's shortening of his name from Hartpence more than 20 years ago, and to earlier incorrect listings of his age as 46. He is 47.

Glenn, meantime, is appealing to southern patriotism to rescue his campaign with new television commercials airing in the South today. The ads stress his experience as an astronaut and say he has "The right stuff. You better believe it."

On the Republican side Vice President George Bush was on a two-day campaign swing through the South, ridiculing Democrats on Wednesday as "prophets of doom" who claimed Reaganomics would never work.

"America is better off today than it was four years ago," he said in Macon, Ga. "Those opposition" critics would like the American people to forget what the economy was like before President Reagan took office."

Also Wednesday, Democratic House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said in Washington that Mondale must "change his image" if he is to overtake Hart, and that he is in real trouble if he doesn't win half of Tuesday's primaries. "Two weeks ago I would have said Mondale's a cinch," he said.

In Georgia earlier, Mondale picked up the endorsements of the father and widow of Martin Luther King Jr., and he accused Hart of paying little attention to civil rights issues.

"My opponent wrote a book about America's future and never even mentioned the words 'civil rights' in the whole 180 pages," Mondale said.

Students end takeover

MIETNO, Poland (AP) — More than 400 teenage students ended their takeover of an agricultural school under threat of a police assault and gathered today in a nearby church, a local priest said.

The students, who had been angered by the removal of Christian crosses from their school, left the building late Wednesday night when authorities threatened an assault by the feared "Zomo" motorized riot police, said the priest, who declined to be identified.

He did not say how many of the police had been concentrated near the school, but a convoy of three police trucks and three jeeps was seen approaching the village Wednesday night.

Some 3,000 students from the Stanislaw Stazik agricultural school and other local schools gathered overnight and in the morning at the Transfiguration Church in the nearby town of Garwolin, a second priest said.

The Stazik students had occupied their school Wednesday morning after a three-month dispute over the crosses, which Communist authorities removed from the walls of the school located 40 miles south of Warsaw.

The provost of the church in Garwolin, the Rev. Henryk Bujnik, said the crosses had been in the Stazik school since it was built in the 1920s. The school's 600 students study meat production.

The students attempted to march from the school to the church after the threatened takeover, the second priest said, but were blocked by the helmeted riot police.

The students, aged 15 to 20, slipped through fields and backroads to Garwolin, he said.

There were no reports of injuries or arrests in the incident, the most significant student unrest since Communist authorities declared martial law and suspended the outlawed Solidarity labor federation in December 1981.

Poland's Roman Catholic bishops, in a communique last fall, urged Communist authorities to stop removing crosses from schools and hospitals, where they are commonly displayed in the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic country.

The country's Communist government has said that such religious artifacts should be taken down.

Government officials say Poland's law on religion identifies schools and hospitals as property of the state, which is officially atheist. They note that Western democracies also observe legal separation of church and state affairs.

Oklahoma's legislature debated equal rights for women and voted no.

A bill specified that women should be "equal partners" in a marriage. It was defeated by a substantial margin when opponents demonstrated that it would make wives responsible for individual debts and would make wives equally responsible for providing family income.

With today's discriminatory pay scales, it was unlikely many wives could provide "equal income."

Incidentally, during the debate some lawmakers protested that it would contradict Scripture.

To which a proponent replied that those lawmakers demonstrated a lot of nerve quoting Scripture when everybody sees them out nights "floozing."

That is a quote. The law is specific, men and women shall be paid equally for performing equal work.

But they're not.

Further, of 400 occupational categories, women are employed, with rare exceptions, in only 20.

Women, in effect, are "segregated" into a limited number of occupations which are low in status and low in pay.

It is argued that "given time" the laws of supply and demand will balance things out. Not necessarily.

In recent years, despite severe shortages of nurses, pay increases for nurses have been minimal.

At the same time, despite an oversupply of doctors in some metropolitan areas, their pay has continued to increase.

Our present prevalent practice — dating back to categorization of women's professions a hundred years out of date — pays librarians and nurses with years of education and experience far less than the man who paints the house or fixes the faucet.

However gradually, women are beginning to bypass the entrenched male-oriented establishment.

Women are now sole owners of 2.8 million small businesses, a quadruple the number five years ago.

In the sciences and engineering, overall employment of women is increasing more than twice as fast as for men.

One woman went to work in an underground coal mine ten years ago. Of all coal miners hired last year 8.6 percent were women.

Yet, "a woman's place" is still in the back of the bus when it comes to pensions, tax policy, insurance, child support and alimony enforcement, dependent care services, government regulations—and average wages.

The president and the Congress promise "legislation to eliminate discrimination."

Yet, equal pay for equal work was legislated 20 years ago and the average man still takes home $388 a week, the average woman $251.

And the "leap" year has to do with common years, those years which have exactly 365 days plus one day. That extra day means that if your birthday falls on a Monday in a common year, it will fall on a Tuesday the next common year, and so on as long as the following year is a common year.

However, the rule changes for leap year. A leap year is 52 weeks plus two days. So, if your birthday last year fell upon a Wednesday, this leap year it falls upon a Friday — having "leaped" Thursday.

The "leap" occurs on all days following March 1st after Leap Year's Feb. 29th through the following Feb. 28th. Now you know.

With the holding area and eight additional bunks to be placed on the recreational (east) end of the jail, its capacity would jump from 72 to 90.

Ann Landers Uncaring baby-sitter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This morning I witnessed an unusual case of child abuse. It broke my heart.

I was seated in the reception room, waiting for the doctor, when I noticed a rather young woman engrossed in a magazine. A little boy, about 9 months old, was on the floor beside her. He was such an adorable child with the sweetest smile I'd ever seen. I was captivated at once. Children know when they are appreciated, and this wee one crept over to me and held out his little hands—asking me in his own way to pick him up. I did.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I didn't cut a word. Your letter is going into the column exactly as you wrote it. Thanks for a most provocative contribution.

I was just about to take him on my lap when she swooped the youngster up and said in a loud voice, "The heck with this. My appointment was 15 minutes ago..." She left, carrying the baby on her hip into the 40-degree weather without a cap or a coat.

I wonder what the child's mother would have thought had she witnessed that scene.

How can a mother leave her precious baby with someone so uncaring and callous? Is a second car, or a home in the suburbs, THAT important? Or, if she really must work, surely she can find a better qualified person to care for her precious baby.

A thoughtful inquiry would certainly turn up a good day care center.

And then we wonder, 10 years later, why our children have so many problems. Have we offered them a start in life that makes them feel loved and wanted? Did they get the early nurturing that every human needs?

I hope this letter (which already is much too long to be printed in your column) will wake up some of those working mothers. Do they know what quality of care their youngsters are getting while they are out making sure their college education doesn't "go to waste?"

Thank you, Ann Landers, for letting me have my say. I feel so much better for having written this letter. You have my permission to make the necessary changes so that it will be printable. I am not much of a writer. Sincerely Yours—A Wisconsin Reader

It was voted to take on this project as part of the Auxiliary's work.

Child abuse film to be shown here

Beverly Jayroe presided over the business meeting of the Child Welfare Board when members met Wednesday in the Commissioners Courtroom.

Earlene Cook presented the financial report and Wanda Spain read the minutes.

Also, during the meeting, Avis White reported on screening a child abuse film at 7:30 p.m. March 20 in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. All principals, school nurses and administrators are encouraged to preview this film.

Ms. White stated that hopefully the schools will show the film to children and their parents with a question and answer period to follow.

She reported that the film was shown in the Dumas schools and because of the educational nature of the film, child abuse cases have been less.

Members present included Ms. White, Dr. Ron Cook, Lavon Nieman, Ms. Jayroe and Carolyn Johnson.

Speaking of Sports

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

Hereford High School Athletic Director and head football coach Jerry Taylor has a dubious task of selecting a choice handful of some 72 Class 5A football players.

The players were nominated by their coaches, in the northern half of the state to play in a summer all star football game.

Taylor was recently named by the Texas High School Coaches Association to pick 5A players who will join with players from other classifications for this summer's annual North-South All Star game.

The contest will be played in Houston, possibly August 3. Only 34 players will be picked from all classifications.

While many high schools may be hounding Taylor, and the other four coaches in the various classifications, to select a certain player from their school, state finalists in every division are guaranteed one selection.

Taylor said he is to meet with the four other coaches in Austin March 20 to iron out the final selections for the teams.

After the picks are completed, Taylor may be facing criticism from a number of coaches whose boys were not chosen.

"It's not an enviable task," said Taylor. "I'll probably have a lot of coaches mad at me when it's over."

The THSA called him recently to ask if he would help with the selecting process. When he agreed, Taylor was provided with films containing footage of the 72 nominated athletes. The players come from West Texas to the Houston area.

"I've looked at the films of every player myself...and I'm having some of my assistant coaches help rank," said Taylor, who served on the state athletic office's Board of Directors from 1980 to 1982.

The coach is ranking the players according to position, region, and athletic ability.

He anticipates contacts from the various high schools and even college coaches trying to persuade him into selecting a certain player. But Taylor and the other four coaches will have the final say as to who makes the North All Star squad, and who does not.

This is the first time Taylor has served such a role.

"I've always had some players who I've nominated myself. At times it is difficult for a coach to be objective when his player is not elected."

There is no clear-cut ratio as to the number of players being selected from each classification, but "Hopefully, 5A will be well represented."

Eventhough final selections should be completed later this month, names will not be released until much later because contracts must be signed by each player and his coach.

HHS Junior Sammy Suarez eyes a rebound as they play today in the first round of Hereford baseball tournament today against Borger.

Weekend events feature baseball, girl tracksters

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce's Super Sports Weekend continues with two events this week.

The Hereford Invitational Varsity Baseball Tournament is scheduled to begin today at the Whiteface baseball field. The three-day journey will run through Saturday.

There will also be an invitational girls track meet to take place inside Whiteface Stadium Friday.

On March 31, the Hereford Invitational Boys track meet will wrap up the "weekend" tournaments.

The baseball tournament was scheduled to open with Levelland playing Hereford junior varsity at 9 a.m. today, and the HHS varsity squad is scheduled to play Borger in first round action at 3:45 p.m.

The semifinals will be played Friday at 1:30 and 3:45 p.m. The tournament championship is to take place Saturday at 3:45 p.m.

A total of eight teams will be battling for the baseball tournament championship. HHS will be the only District 3-5A team entered in the tournament.

Field events and preliminary running events in the girls track tourney will commence at 2:30 p.m. Friday. The finals in the running events are scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. and presentation of the trophies will be at 7:30 p.m.

There will be 11 JV and nine varsity squads competing in the tournament. Besides HHS, other District 3-5A schools participating in the event include Lubbock, Monterey, Caprock, and Tascosa high schools.

Junior high athletics affected by new league proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — The legislative council of the University Interscholastic League has voted to extend the organization's authority over junior high school competition.

Under the new rules adopted Wednesday and effective next school year, junior high school students will be under the same academic requirements recently approved for high school students.

A student won't be allowed to participate in an interscholastic activity if it means the student will miss a class that he or she is failing.

Also, students must be passing four courses — seven days before an event — in order to participate.

The legislative council, made up of 20 school superintendents, is the rule-making body of the UIL.

In a move mirroring a recently approved high school rule, the council restated its ban on "redshirting" of seventh graders — the practice of making a student repeat the seventh grade in order to gain an additional year of growth before high school.

Before Wednesday's unanimous vote by the legislative council, the league regulated only non-athletic competitions at the junior high school level.

Some officials on Wednesday also voiced displeasure with a UIL executive committee decision to allow a girl to participate in boys' baseball, saying the move threatens girls' sports.

On Tuesday, the UIL's executive committee voted 6-2 that the rule banning girls from playing in boys' baseball programs is unconstitutional because it discriminates on the basis of sex.

Bridge City superintendent Glen Pearson, chairman of the legislative council, said he felt the executive committee should have forced Diane Henson, the attorney for Wanda Krejci, a Flatonia High School freshman, to go to court for that opinion.

Sixers triumphant on road trip

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

After winning three out of four games on their West Coast road trip, the Philadelphia 76ers believe they may be coming out of the doldrums.

"If we can go 3-1 on the road, we should be able to play much better at home," Julius Erving said after the defending National Basketball Association champions beat the Los Angeles Lakers 113-105 Wednesday night. "A lot of it should carry over."

"I thought it was a good win for us," guard Andrew Toney said. We've been struggling and maybe now we'll get out of this rut we're in."

"Before the game, I had a very good feeling and mentioned it to the players. It came true," added Coach Billy Cunningham, who has seen the 76ers fall 9½ games behind the Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Detroit 107, Atlanta 93; Boston 117, Utah 106; New Jersey 106, Milwaukee 100; Dallas 115, Cleveland 103; Phoenix 123, Houston 110 and San Diego 114, Indiana 110.

Erving hit 12 of 18 shots and scored nine of his 28 points in the last five minutes as the 76ers avenged a 101-99 loss to the Lakers in Philadelphia nine days ago. Thirty-six-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had a game-high 29 points for the Lakers.

Moses Malone backed Erving with 22 points.

Nets 106, Bucks 110

Albert King scored 12 of his team-high 20 points in the fourth quarter as New Jersey won at Milwaukee to extend its winning streak to seven games.

After King's jumper with 7:14 left gave the Nets a 94-87 lead, the Bucks could get no closer than three points.

Bob Lanier led the Bucks with 24.

Celtics 117, Jazz 106

Boston rolled over visiting Utah as Larry Bird had 26 points, 14 rebounds and nine assists one day after missing another game with a stiff back.

The Jazz got 27 points from John Drew.

Utah played the game without the NBA's leading scorer, Adrian Dantley, who had a death in the family.

Mavericks 115, Cavaliers 103

Rolando Blackman scored 22 points as Dallas beat visiting Cleveland for the first time in eight tries since joining the NBA four years ago.

Mark Aguirre scored 14 of his 18 points in the first quarter when the Mavericks, now only a half-game behind Utah in the Midwest Division, took a 31-25 lead they never relinquished. It was the sixth straight loss for the Cavaliers.

Pistons 107, Hawks 93

At Pontiac, Mich., Isiah Thomas and Bill Laimbeer had 22 points each, while Laimbeer had 18 rebounds and Thomas 15 assists as Detroit handed Atlanta its sixth consecutive loss.

The Hawks picked up 24 points from Johnny Davis.

Suns 123, Rockets 110

James Edwards scored nine of his 29 points in the decisive third quarter and Maurice Lucas added 11 of his 17 in the same period to help Phoenix pull away from visiting Houston.

YMCA Hoop Champs

The Eliminators defeated the A-Team to capture the YMCA High School Basketball League championship Monday. Members of the Eliminators shown here

Mayor says no truth to Colts moving away

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The mayor of Indianapolis says reports of a deal being reached to bring the Baltimore Colts to Indianapolis are "absolutely not true."

Mayor William H. Hudnut also said, when asked if a contract agreement between the Colts and Indianapolis representatives was imminent, "No comment."

"No deal has been reached," he said in an interview Wednesday before addressing a church meeting. "I wish I could say more, but I can't. However, reports that an agreement has been reached to move Baltimore here are absolutely not true."

Hudnut said that before a deal could be finalized, it would have to be approved.

Q. My 1979 Chrysler Cordoba was performing fine until last week. For no apparent reason, it has started to backfire through the carburetor. This sounds like it could be dangerous. How can I check for what's wrong?

A. Provided the automatic choke is not set to lean, you may have received a tankful of contaminated gas. First the choke needs to be checked. If it's all right then check your gas for contamination. Disconnect the fuel line and let some gas fall into a small container. Rub some between your fingers to see if you feel any grit. Then let some of the gas evaporate (it will do so quickly). If a few drops of liquid remain, that's water. Either water or grit can be signs of contaminated fuel which can cause the kind of backfiring you've described. To cure it, drain and flush the fuel system. Your fuel filter will probably need to be replaced since it may still contain some of the contaminant.

HHS courses provide proficiencies

The course offerings of Hereford High School fulfill the aims of the school system to provide an opportunity for academic and career training.

Among the departments providing students those skills and proficiencies necessary to become responsible citizens of the community are the English, business and industrial arts departments.

Approximately 950 students work at their own levels of achievement in English classes each day at HHS. Enrolled in basic skills, enrichment, standard, or advanced classes, these students work to develop concepts and skills in writing, language, literature, and reading.

This year one-third of the sophomores, juniors, and seniors are taking courses designed to prepare them for immediate entrance into the work force and community. Two-thirds of the students are taking courses for the college bound. At the senior level 128 students are working in college preparation and advanced classes.

The business department gives the students the opportunities to explore the many areas of the business world. Through the courses available, the students gain entrance-level skills and introductions to some of the areas in business. The business department offers the following courses:

Typewriting (keyboarding)—grades 7 and 8.

Personal business management—grade 9.

Typewriting—grades 9

This year approximately 500 students have taken these courses.

The students can learn to operate up-to-date equipment.

The department has electric and manual typewriters, an electronic typewriter, electronic calculators, electric duplicator, and microcomputers (Apples, Commodores, IBM, and TRS 80's). In addition to using the equipment, students complete business simulation sets, hear guest speakers from the community, and take field trips.

The industrial arts department is an integral part of the general education plan that deals with the materials, processes, and procedures of industry. Drafting, woodworking, metal working, power technology, photography, and electronics are offered as a part of the industrial arts curriculum at HHS.

Beginning classes offer basic familiarization of the subject matter and equipment while advanced classes are college equivalent in knowledge and skills. Industrial Arts has grown from four basic courses to nine basic and advanced courses offered to the 365 students who are currently enrolled.

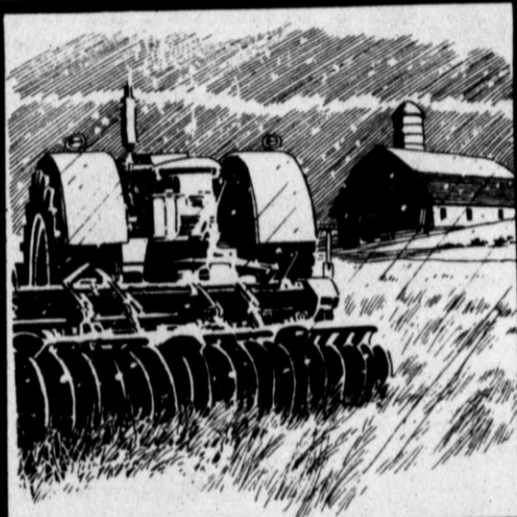

As industry changes, I.A. will continue to change in order to meet the needs of society. There is a nation-wide movement to change the name of I.A. to industrial technology.

Because of community and administrative support, the HHS I.A. department has developed into one of the best departments in the state. During the 1982-83 school year, HHS achieved the award for the Outstanding High School of the Panhandle Industrial Arts Association.

The goals of these departments are to teach students concepts and skills to be used throughout life, either as a part of the students' careers or leisure activities.
