Betzen named
'Realtor of Year'

Clarence Betzen was named
'Realtor of the Year' Thursday night by the Hereford Board of Realtors.

The presentation, which Betzen said greatly surprised him, was made during the Board's annual installation banquet at the Hereford Country Club. The banquet also included installation of officers and an off-the-wall treatise on the energy crunch by a Lone Star Gas Company official.

A longtime Hereford resident,
Betzen served the Board of Realtors last year as its vice president. An Air Force veteran and one-time farmer,
Betzen is now associated with ERA-Marn Tyler Realtors.

Betzen recently took over as president of the Board after 1984 president Lynn Jones resigned his duties, and was commended Thursday night for his leadership abilities. He is a past director of the Board of Realtors.

Officers for the coming year were installed by Jim Sawyer, executive vice president of the Texas Association of Realtors. President Betty Gilbert and vice president Henry Reid will be joined by secretary-treasurer Carolyn Maupin. Directors are Glenn Phibbs, Carol LeGate and Marn Tyler, and Marie Griffin will serve again as state director.

In her acceptance speech, Gilbert told the gathering that "we must educate ourselves if we want to represent our clients professionally."

Gilbert claimed real estate agents have "come a long way since the days when we went down to the courthouse and got a license. Do all that you can to enhance yourselves in finance and real estate knowledge."

Bob Jett, a veteran broadcast personality and current employee of the Lone Star Gas Company in Dallas, showed up for his stint as guest speaker in coveralls and a hard hat.

Introducing himself as Wiley Wingnut of the "DOG" oil company, Jett told how he had been asked at the last minute to fill in for "that big-shot gas company man from Dallas" who was probably down in Austin asking for a rate hike.

Jett claimed there are two villains of the energy crisis: the Arabs and the politicians, and he said one can recognize either of them by their suntans. Through the use of an "imaginary" slide show, Jett presented his version of events since the oil embargo in 1973 that have affected the price of energy.

Special recognition plaques were presented by Don Tardy to outgoing director Betty Lady and Betzen.

"Baby Bull Chips" chocolate candy was given to Sawyer and Jett. Tardy also made the Realtor of the Year presentation.

Pheasant hunters hit fields Saturday

Despite prospects of fewer birds and the lowering of the bag limit back to two cocks, an invasion of about 18,000 hunters is expected in Deaf Smith County and the area
Saturday morning when pheasant season opens.

After considering comments from area landowners and hunters at a public hearing in Amarillo Monday,
the Texas Parks & Wildlife Commission announced Wednesday that the bag limit had been lowered from three to two pheasant per day. The in-possession limit is also reduced from six to four.

The action was based primarily on figures that the pheasant population in the Panhandle is down as much as 48 percent this year. "We've had a bad hatch two years in a row," said game warden Chuch Cosper of Hereford. "We had enough older birds to carry us through last year."

At the public hearing, it was noted that some landowners may ask hunters to limit their "take" to one bird. Local hunters may have a difficult time getting into the fields on opening weekend, since many farmers have opted to lease their land to out-of-town hunters who reportedly are paying from $50 to $200 a gun.

Organizations that have sponsored hunts for a number of years are also finding it more difficult to lease land for hunters. "It's a good cash crop for farmers, and I sure don't blame them for getting more involved in the hunting season," said one civic club member.

A member of one club which sponsors a pheasant hunt said his organization may move their project to the second week of the season next year in order to tie up more land for the hunters.

Big Brothers-Big Sisters will sponsor a breakfast for hunters, or any interested persons, here Saturday morning in the Community Center.
The Dimmitt Kiwanis Club will have a breakfast in the Expo Building, and the Friona Lions will also sponsor a breakfast at the Friona High School cafeteria. The Easter Lions Club will sponsor a barbecue lunch for hunters from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Easter Community Building.

Another lunch is scheduled by the Ford Extension Homemakers from 11:30 to 1:30 Saturday at the Ford
School House.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian joblessness fell to 7.2 percent last month, the first drop since June, as the creation of roughly 300,000 jobs pushed American employment to an all-time high, the government said today.

With a record 105.9 million Americans holding jobs, the labor force resumed its dramatic improvement after a four-month period of practically standstill unemployment, the Labor Department said.

As overall employment set a record, the ranks of those officially listed as jobless plunged by approximately 275,000, from 8.43 million to 8.15 million.

The November report was the brightest since unemployment fell from 7.5 percent to 7.1 percent in June. The jobless rate, however, bounced back to 7.5 percent and stayed in that range through October.

An alternate unemployment rate, which combines the 114-million civilian labor force with the roughly 1.7 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, fell even more dramatically, from 7.3 percent to 7.0 percent.

"Though the employment boom is doubtless over, the data do not indicate an employment bust on the horizon," said William Dunkelberg, chief economist for the National Federation of Independent Business, a Washington-based organization.

Donald H. Straszheim, a senior vice president and analyst at Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates in Philadelphia, said "the current slowdown in business activity is merely a pause in the economy's upward climb."

The jobless claims report showed that the total number of recipients of benefits under state-run programs plunged by 124,000, from 2,463,000 to 2,339,000 in the week ended Nov. 17.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek owe him money?

The only things some folks learn from experience is that they'd just made another mistake.

ple, beyond that, I do not bother."--Will Rogers

A number of Hereford businesses reported increased sales this week, with the Christmas shopping on the rise and other sales linked to the influx of pheasant hunters for the weekend.

Hereford has some positive things going for it right now. The completion of the Senior Citizens Center and the Hereford YMCA facility are near. In that same vicinity of the city, a major grocery company has announced it will build a shopping center; the low-rent apartments for the elderly are nearing completion, and plans have been announced for the possible construction of a nursing home near the new Senior Citizens Center.

There has been speculation that some business firms will be built along Hwy. 385 near the new Senior Citizens building. There is also a possibility that condos for senior citizens will be built near the new center.

With the announcement that Valley View Energy signed a contract to sell electricity to the City of Austin, the big $85 million-plus facility east of town seems to be a sure thing.

Some major capital improvements for the Hereford school district are on the drawing board, and trustees are currently presenting proposals to citizens to get their response on the priorities for buildings and changes in the school system.

From discussions we've heard, the new Senior Citizens Center may be one of the finest, if not the best, in the state of Texas. Both it and the new YMCA facility should be sources of pride for residents of the community.

Loss of drugs hurts
cattle feeding industry

An animal disease diagnostician told cattle feeders Thursday that federal control of drugs administered to beef cattle is tight and can only get tighter.

Dr. Larry Hollis, an Amarillo veterinarian who is head of diagnostic services for the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Lab, spoke during the afternoon session of a beef cattle conference sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Extension
Livestock Committee and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Hollis bemoaned the loss of chloramphenicol, which he described as a "good drug that is lost to us."
The Food and Drug Administration outlawed use of the drug to treat animal disease after evidence linked the chemical to cases of aplastic anemia in humans.

Only in two cases in the entire world was there any connection between a victim and animals treated with the drug, Hollis claimed, and he said those were bizarre cases in which no positive proof was given.

Chloramphenicol is a substance quickly metabolized by animals, Hollis pointed out, and a cow would have to be administered large doses of the drug shortly before slaughter

Beef meeting held Thursday

for there to be any residue found in the meat.

"We lost a drug worth millions of dollars a year," Hollis claimed. He said animal welfare groups and others who lobby against the use of chemicals in anything are a threat to feeding operations.

"They're trying to take tools away that are essential for production."
Describing how efforts to outlaw illegal drug use are being stepped up, Hollis said the FDA is focusing on violators who continue to use chloramphenicol. He said many have been caught, even a few in Deaf Smith County.

"The FDA wants veterinarians involved when prescription drugs are used. Involve your veterinarian to protect yourself from the FDA."
Hollis also warned beef producers to maintain good records.

The keeping of records was also emphasized by Dr. John McNeill,

Police probe parked-car cases

Hereford police Thursday night investigated four incidents involving parked motor vehicles.

A 1984 Chevrolet pick-up parked at Stevens Chevrolet Olds was jacked up and the four tires and rims removed. The theft is valued at more than $700. A pick-up belonging to a local grain company was taken from a residence but later recovered with only a pair of coveralls missing.

An unidentified burglar tried to enter another parked pick-up but succeeded only in prying loose the weather stripping around the window, while the successful theft of fog lights from vehicle belonging to a local car dealer cost the owner $50.

Yet another Christmas tree was stolen from Allsup's Convenience Store; this time a Hereford police officer caught the man in the act and an arrest was made.

Police also investigated reports of harassment and simple assault
Thursday, and were called to settle a dispute between two eleven-year-old boys. One of the youngsters apparently pulled a knife on the other.

Stress big factor in domestic violence,
says Hereford Family Services director

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

In a day and age when mental "wellness" is emphasized like never before, statistics show that suicides, domestic violence and other forms of destructive behavior are on the rise.

Breaking the chain of family violence that often is passed from one generation to the next is the seemingly awesome task faced by mental health care providers such as the Hereford Family Services Center. Director Mike Moon believes education can be the key that opens the door to a violence-free home, but the process of generating information is a slow one.

"The challenge is in providing relevant services to an isolated population that does not get information through the usual channels," Moon explained. Even with the current media blitz of mental health care information, Moon pointed out, there are still a lot of violence-prone homes where newspapers are not read and television news is not viewed.

Dispelling the myth that family violence occurs primarily among the poor and uneducated is another job counselors are faced with. While there still remain a lot of people in society who are not aware of the counseling services available to them, there may be just as many who know how to get help but are not willing to risk their reputation or standing in the community by seeking that assistance.

The inability to admit that a problem exists is another factor that keeps a troubled family from seeking help. "When people get married, they have dreams and hopes," Moon theorized. "They think they have found the best mate for them. The very act of seeking help is admitting that things aren't working out well."

What causes family disagreements to turn into traumatic episodes of emotional abuse and physical violence?

Moon put stress at the top of the list. Job worries, unpaid bills and strained relationships are all problems that if not solved through peaceful channels of communication often result in outbursts that not only do not solve the problem, but in fact create new problems on their own.

Drug and alcohol abuse are another major factor, Moon said.
The chemical dependent and his family are often reluctant to admit the addiction exists, and the person who loses control after using the drugs may have an agreeable, even meek personality when sober.

Perhaps saddest of all are the cases where domestic violence has long been a way of life and family members have come to expect and even accept such disruptions as "the way it is." In those homes there is little incentive for change and small chance that counseling will be sought.

Isolation, poverty and parental immaturity or lack of parenting knowledge are other reasons why family violence occurs, according to Moon. He said women are more likely to be physically mistreated while men are most likely to suffer emotional abuse.

According to a booklet on family violence distributed by the Panhandle Rural Health Corporation in Amarillo, there are at least six reasons why family violence continues.

Lack of alternatives is a major

Family loses third relative

HOUSTON (AP) — The family of a slain mail carrier has lost its third relative in six months as the woman's brother-in-law died suddenly of double pneumonia.

Roger Allen, 36, of Huntsville, died Tuesday, only two days after entering a hospital.

His sister-in-law, Debora Sue Schatz, 23, was shot to death June 7 while making her rounds in an affluent west Houston neighborhood. A resident of the neighborhood, 17-year-old David Port, is free on $20,000 bond on a murder charge filed in the killing.

Ms. Schatz's father, Albert, 57, died Aug. 6 after entering a veteran's hospital. Relatives said he was crushed by his daughter's death.

"We're wondering what's going to happen next," John Harris, another of Mr. Schatz's brothers-in-law, said Wednesday. "You might say we're getting used to it, although nobody gets used to death. You just grieve so much, and this just comes on top of it."

A Houston judge on Wednesday set Port's trial early next year in New Braunfels, about 175 miles west of Houston, after defense attorneys contended Port could not get a fair trial in Harris County because of publicity about his case.

Peso slide won't affect border

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — U.S. bankers and analysts say businesses on the border should feel little to no effect from Mexico's decision to devalue the peso at a higher daily rate.

"It was a very unobtrusive change. I don't anticipate any effect on the peso rates or on how business is conducted on the border," said Don Shuffstall, international banking officer at El Paso's MBank. "It could change the market, but I really don't see that happening."

Mexico's Finance Ministry announced the new rate of devaluation for its currency late Wednesday.

Under the latest devaluation schedule, the peso will be reduced in value at a rate of 17 centavos per day.

Since September 1983, after the ailing peso had gone through several devaluations, the Mexican government established a slide rate for the peso of 13 centavos daily.

There are 100 centavos to a peso. The change to the 17-centavo-per-day slide rate was the first in the peso devaluation since 1983.

Wayne McClintock, an independent consultant on Mexico's economy, said Thursday the new slide may prevent low-income Mexicans from coming across the border to shop in this country.

"But, I don't see it affecting the middle- or upper-class," he said. "The lower strata, they may not be able to afford to shop over here any more. That's probably the only effect we'll see on the border and that's a minimal one."

Boston plane crashes, 13 dead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A commuter plane belonging to an airline that was shut down for two weeks last month for alleged safety violations crashed and burst into flames, killing all 13 people aboard, authorities said. It was the airline's third crash in six months.

The bodies of the 11 passengers and two crew members aboard Provincetown-Boston Airlines Flight 839 were left in the wreckage overnight pending the arrival of National Transportation Safety Board investigators, said police spokesman Sgt. Charley Hill.

The investigators planned today to inspect the wreckage, which was strewn over a mile-wide swath of swamp. The cause of the crash was not immediately known, and an FAA spokesman said he could see no immediate connection to the airline's safety problems.

Police stood watch in freezing temperatures as portable generator lights illuminated the site 1½ miles northwest of Jacksonville International Airport.

Rescue efforts after the 6:15 p.m. crash Thursday were hampered by muck 3 feet deep, said airport operations manager Charles Hardrick. "We could find no sign of life," Hill said.

The plane — a Brazilian-made twin-engine turboprop known as an Embraer Bandeirante — crashed in a densely wooded, swampy area north of the airport. It burst into flames on impact, Hill said.

Senate votes weapons funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee Thursday approved $8.4 million to expand and upgrade the Pentagon's biological weapons program at the Dugway Proving Ground in Utah.

The three Republican members of the Senate Appropriations Committee's five-member subcommittee on military construction voted to spend the money to upgrade the desolate test site west of Salt Lake City, reported a subcommittee aide, Richard Pierce.

Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., the ranking minority member of the subcommittee, had originally sought to block the money until he was satisfied the Army intended the research only for defensive purposes. But while Sasser was out of the country, Mack Mattingly, R-Ga., chairman of the panel, polled the Republican majority and received the votes needed to approve the financing, said Sasser's press aide, Douglas Hall.

The U.S. germ weapons program officially ended in 1969 when President Nixon declared that the United States would no longer try to develop such weapons.

The Reagan administration has repeatedly warned of what it sees as the growing Soviet biological weapons threat, citing U.S. intelligence reports that a 1979 accident at Sverdlovsk infected more than 3,000 Soviets with anthrax.

China says Marxism outdated

PEKING (AP) — China's Communist Party newspaper said on Friday that orthodox Marxist theory is outdated and cannot solve the nation's problems.

A front-page editorial in the People's Daily marked the first time the ruling party has declared the thinking of the Communist ideologues Karl Marx and his associates Friedrich Engels and Vladimir I. Lenin obsolete.

"Marx passed away 101 years ago, his works are more than a century old," the editorial said. "Some were his visions of that time, after which the situation changed greatly. Some of his ideas are not necessarily appropriate."

It said added: "There are many things that Marx, Engels and Lenin never experienced or had any contact with. We cannot depend on the works of Marx and Lenin to solve our modern-day questions."

The declaration by China's ruling party was the latest sign of what foreign observers have called a slow, methodical repudiation of the basic orthodox Communist principles that have helped shape the world's most populous country for the last three decades.

It came less than a month after the party announced sweeping economic changes designed to inject free-enterprise, competition and market forces into the overcentralized Chinese economy.

Hijackers postpone deadline for killing more hostages

The hijackers who have shot and killed at least three hostages — two believed to be U.S. officials — aboard a Kuwaiti airliner in Tehran postponed their deadline for executing more today, demanded a doctor and broke off talks, Iran's news agency said.

The Islamic Republic News Agency said the deadline, set for 7 a.m. (10:30 p.m. EST Thursday), passed without incident and contact with the Tehran airport control tower was cut an hour later.

The hijackers' latest threat, issued Thursday night, was to start killing Kuwaiti passengers unless 14 prisoners held in Kuwaiti jails were freed, IRNA said. The prisoners are believed to be those convicted in the bombing of U.S. and French targets in Kuwait last year.

Kuwait has rejected the demand and appealed to Syria, Algeria and Pakistan, all Moslem countries on good terms with Iran, to secure release of the hostages.

The Arabic-speaking hijackers also demanded that authorities send a fresh flight crew aboard to replace the pilot, co-pilot and the flight engineer, who was released because of heart trouble, the news agency said.

At least three people have been reported killed since the plane was hijacked Tuesday while on a flight from Kuwait to Pakistan, via the United Arab Emirates. Originally, there were 161 passengers and crew on board, but 99 have been reported released. The remaining hostages reportedly are tied in their seats.

IRNA claimed Iranian and Kuwaiti officials at the airport were trying strenuously to negotiate with the hijackers through the control tower and "to pacify them." The agency says there are five hijackers; freed passengers counted only four.

But Robert Oakley, director of the State Department's office for counter-terrorism and emergency planning, interviewed on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program, suggested Iran's government may be collaborating with the hijackers.

"We feel there is a great deal of sympathy, if not support and active collusion on the part of the Iranian government, judging from the treatment which they have given to this particular incident," he said.

Arab sources in the United Arab Emirates reported that a representative of Iran's President Ali Khamenei spent three hours at airport "but only trying to talk the Kuwaiti officials there into giving in to the hijackers' demands."

The New York Times today quoted unidentified State Department officials as saying the hijackers are linked to the militant Shiite Moslem terrorist group called the Party of God, which is backed by Iran and blamed for bombings of the U.S. Embassy and Marine barracks in Lebanon last year.

In Washington, the State Department said it appeared two Americans employed by the Agency for International Development "have been murdered."

Edwina Hegna of Sterling, Va., wife of U.S. AID official Charles Hegna, said she had been informed her 50-year-old husband was the first person killed by the hijackers.

Larry Stanford of Alexandria, Va., said an official told his mother, Loraine Stanford, in Karachi, Pakistan, that the U.S. government was "99.9 percent sure" his father, William L. Stanford, 52, was slain.

On Thursday, IRNA reported two men were pushed out of the plane onto the landing at the top of the steps. The agency quoted one of the men, who identified himself as an employee of the American consulate in Karachi, Pakistan, as pleading with Kuwait to meet the demands.

Talking Shop

Amarillo animal diagnostician Dr. Larry Hollis explained federal drug controls to cattle feeders gathered for a beef cattle conference Thursday at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

Beef

whose talk on stocker cattle management followed.

McNeill, a graduate of the University of Kentucky and former West Texas State University professor, is currently an area beef cattle specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Amarillo.

"Times have changed," McNeill claimed. "At one time all it took to be more prosperous was to buy more land."

McNeill claimed that cattle feeders are not keeping enough records. He told the 25 or so persons who remained for the afternoon session that records are needed "to identify which areas of our operation are making or losing money."

Using a figure of $21.49 per head as a typical profit, McNeill told farmers they could realize a $56.35 profit "if everything is positive."

He listed such variables as purchase price, pasture cost, death loss, daily gain, shrink and sale price in his comments about management techniques that can elevate profits. "Daily gain is the biggest thing we have control over," McNeill claimed.

Citing research results, McNeill listed treatment for worms and lice as an important method of raising daily gain figures.

The morning session of the conference included workshops on video and electronic marketing and a 1985 beef outlook by Dr. Ernest Davis of College Station.

Stress

reason, the publication states, especially for women and children who see no way out financially. Victims are often economically dependent upon the abuser in the home.

Fear and shame is another significant barrier to change, along with isolation, lack of protection and ignorance of help available.

"Many people in violent homes love each other despite the violence and enjoy some good times together," the pamphlet claims. "Victims may feel that it's better to suffer than to be separated from loved ones. They keep hoping for improvement. But without help, violence usually gets worse."

Besides the counseling services provided by the local Family Services Center, Moon reminds, help is available from Alcoholics Anonymous and its related organizations, parenting groups and churches.

The Domestic Violence Council in Amarillo can be reached in 373-8022. The mailing address is P.O. Box 334, Amarillo, 79105.

The Suicide Prevention and Crisis Intervention Hotline number is 1-800-692-4039. The local Chemical People Task Force is also ready to help, Moon said.

During a recent 31-day month, Hereford Police made 40 calls resulting from domestic squabbles. "Communities have ways of denying problems," Moon said. "A lot of information has been made available, but we need to keep certain issues in front of people."

Of Union Carbide Corp.

Chairman arrested

BHOPAL, India (AP) — The chairman of Union Carbide Corp. was arrested today and charged with "negligence and corporate liability" as he arrived to investigate the toxic gas leak from his firm's pesticide plant that killed more than 1,600 people, the United News of India reported.

Chairman Warren M. Anderson and two of his U.S.-based firm's top Indian executives were seized and taken into custody when they arrived at the airport here, the agency said. The charge against them is a non-bailable offense.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said he had no independent confirmation of the reported arrest. An embassy official went to Bhopal this morning to discuss relief efforts.

An Indian government official said Anderson and the two Indian executives were taken to an unspecified location by intelligence officials, UNI reported. It identified the other executives as Keshav Mahendra, chairman of Union Carbide India, Ltd., and the company's managing director, V.P. Gokhale.

"We are convinced on the basis of facts already available that each one of them have criminal liability for the events that led to the grave tragedy," said a statement issued by Arjun Singh, chief minister of Madhya Pradesh state, where Bhopal is located.

By some GOP senators

Social Security freeze urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Reagan's campaign pledge that Social Security would not be cut, some Republican senators are urging him to consider including the giant retirement system among the administration's targets in the drive to cut federal spending.

At a private Capitol Hill meeting with White House Budget Director David A. Stockman on Wednesday and again at a meeting with Reagan on Thursday, several senior GOP senators suggested that cost-of-living increases for Social Security be frozen along with other programs the president has included in a tentative plan to achieve $33.6 billion in domestic spending savings.

Following the session with Reagan on Thursday, Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said, "The position was stated by a number of other senators that if you're going to freeze cost-of-living (adjustments), obviously, to be fair, you ought to freeze everything."

"A number of senators indicated that Social Security — a freeze, not a cut, for one year — ought to be considered," Domenici said.

Domenici previously has said the automatic boosts in Social Security benefits should be restrained, but not cut, if there is to be some overall move to cap federal spending.

Social Security became a favorite subject of Democrats during this year's presidential campaign.

Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale charged that Reagan had a secret plan to curtail benefits for future retirees.

Reagan replied, "A president should never say 'never,' but I am going to violate that rule and say 'never.'"

Hance to join law firm

Congressman Kent Hance will join a Texas-based law firm, Boyd, Veigel, Gay & McCall, at the conclusion of his term in Congress, it was announced this week in Dallas.

Hance, 42, has served as an elected public official for the past 10 years, including three consecutive terms from Texas' 19th Congressional District beginning in 1978.

Hance will reside in Lubbock but plans to spend much of his time practicing in the firm's offices in Dallas, Austin and Houston.

Boyd, Veigel, Gay & McCall is engaged in a diversified business and litigation practice and was founded in 1933. With the addition of Hance in January, the firm will open a Lubbock office.

As a Congressman, Hance sat on the House Ways and Means committee. He co-authored, in 1981, the largest tax cut bill in the nation's history and successfully fought for its passage in the House. Hance also served on the Ag Committee. Prior to being elected to Congress, Hance served a four-year term in the Texas Senate.

"We are very pleased that Kent Hance has decided to join our firm," commented William M. Boyd, a senior partner. "He will add a new dimension to our firm. Only rarely is it possible to add to a firm an attorney with Kent's breadth and depth of experience."

Ann Landers

Checked with other physician

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Lifestyles have changed dramatically since grandma's day. Families used to do things together. People went to bed at a reasonable hour, there was no TV and plenty of time for old-fashioned lovemaking.

Today so many working women are too tired to take care of their husbands' sexual needs the men feel justified to seeking gratification elsewhere.

A friend told me recently that his wife puts so much time and energy into her career (she is an attorney) there is nothing left for him. The result was severe prostate trouble.

According to him, the backlog of semen caused the problem.

This was his explanation for having become involved with an attractive young woman with whom he works. I wonder how many other men are making that choice—suffer with prostate trouble or see a woman on the side. Will you comment, please?—Midwestern Reader

DEAR MID: I checked out your friend's story with a distinguished physician, Dr. Patrick Walsh, chief of urology at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore. Dr. Walsh said he has never known of a single case where abstinence from sex resulted in a backlog of semen causing prostrate trouble.

It sounds as if your friend is attempting to build a case to defend his kanoodlin' on the side. Sorry, he gets no support from the medical community or from me. He and his wife need to discuss the anemic state of their marriage with a counselor and decide if what's left is worth saving.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wedding was four months ago and I am still reeling from the rude, thoughtless behavior of relatives and friends.

Twenty-five R.S.V.P.s were not returned. In other words, 50 unexpected guests showed up. When I asked a very good friend why she didn't return the R.S.V.P. card, she replied, "you should have KNOWN I wouldn't miss your wedding!"

The church was no problem but the reception was a disaster. It was embarrassing and upsetting to try to accommodate these guests on such short notice. There simply was not enough food to go around. And the gifts they brought were dead giveaways—last-minute, no-thought, useless cheapies.

If I had had the time, I would have telephoned those who were unaccounted for to learn if they were coming, but it wasn't possible because I work terrible hours.

I have a word of advice for future brides, Ann. You would be performing a great service by printing it. Here it is: Brace yourself for clods. The world is full of them. And here is another word of advice for future guests: Will you please consider the time, expense and celebration involved in a wedding, and give the bride a break?—Furious In San Francisco

DEAR S.F.: Sorry your wedding dinner was a disaster but it could have been avoided.

Granted, it is inexcusable not to respond to a wedding reception invitation, but the sensible thing for you to have done, if your working hours precluded you from making the calls yourself, was to enlist the help of some close friends and ask them to phone the luncheons and get a yes or no out of them.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, speed, PCP, uppers and downers, glue and heroin? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The mission will begin with the introductory sermon at all of the Masses on Sunday and will continue with session each day through Thursday evening. The mission sessions will be conducted in conjunction with the Liturgy of the Aucharist and followed, for those who wish, by sacramental confession.

Father Wyss has a variety of experience in his background from which to draw upon in his preachings. He is a native of San Francisco, Calif. and has been associated with several universities in the Southwest, both as a teacher and chaplain.

He served as Catholic Chaplain at Rice University in Houston for nine years and for two years at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, N.M.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST

The Christmas Chorale of First United Methodist Church composed of members of the congregations and the Sanctuary Choir will present the Christmas Cantata "Immanuel" by Eugene Butler at 7 p.m. Sunday evening in the church sanctuary.

Dr. Butler has taken the musical theme, "Veni, Emmanuel" (O Come, O Come, immanuel), a French processional from the 15th century, and the ninth century text and woven it through a delightful and refreshing retelling of the Christmas story. Solists for the performance will be Bera Boyd, Judy Crowley, John Smith, Lesley Woodard, Courtney Brooke, Oveta White and Terry Langehennig. Tina Langehennig will be at the organ.

Dr. Weldon Butler will serve as narrator with John D. Avery as musical director. The congregation and public are cordially invited to this second in a series of Advent Sunday evening programs at the church.

ST. THOMAS EPISCOPAL

During Advent, the Lay Readers of St. Thomas Church are conducting Evening prayer in the church at 7 p.m. daily. Everyone is invited to attend. The service lasts about 20 minutes.

Lay Readers are specially trained and licensed men and women of the church, who assist with the celebration of the Holy Eucharist, conduct morning and evening prayer, visit the ill and otherwise assist in the ministry of the church.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

The adult choir will perform "Noel, Jesus is Born" Sunday, Dec. 16, at 6 p.m. along with a candlelight service.

The Good Guys will sponsor a party for the children in Big Brothers-Big Sisters. Each member of the group will draw a child's name and that child will be his responsibility for the evening. Everyone should bring a gift for his child. There is a $3 or $4 gift limit. The party will be Dec. 18 at 7 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall.

The youth group will sponsor a bake sale Dec. 15 in Sugarland Mall. All donations would be appreciated. The proceeds will go toward the Haiti Missions trip.

This year the Parsonage Family would like to invite everyone to drop by their home, 233 Cherokee, for refreshment between 2 and 5 p.m. on Dec. 16.

TEMPLE BAPTIST

The choir will be leading the congregation in a worship service of Christmas Carols and scripture on Sunday night, Dec. 16. Plan to be a part of this warm sharing about the birth of Jesus. This will be a service of fellowship and inspiration.

FIRST BAPTIST

A churchwide missions banquet is scheduled for tonight at 7 p.m.

Members are also collecting gifts for the Westgate Christmas Cart. Please bring all gifts by the church office by Dec. 14.

Think tank issues its agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — The conservative Heritage Foundation, contending the Reagan administration "too often seems confused" about its mission, urged a strategy of getting business to do more of government's work.

In recommending 1,300 changes in the bureaucracy, the group said efforts taken in President Reagan's first term to reduce the size of government "are still politically fragile and incomplete" and it called for quick action to make sure they are solidly in place.

"If, instead, the White House is content merely to bask in the glow of good feeling generated by Ronald Reagan ... the Reagan administration will be no more than an interesting footnote in the growth of federal government," it said.

The Heritage Foundation, a conservative research organization, has been a leading source of ideas for the administration.

As Reagan was taking office in 1981, the think-tank published what it considered to be a guide for conservative policymaking.

The latest report, scheduled to be released officially today at a news conference, is a sequel to the earlier study.

Draft copies of "Mandate for Leadership II: Continuing the Conservative Revolution" already have been given to White House officials.

In releasing it, Heritage President Edward Feulner said, "It's crucial for any administration to get off to a running start in the few months immediately following an election."

In a lengthy discussion of domestic programs, the foundation says the "central theme" of the administration's budget-slashing must be "privatization" — turning government functions over to the private sector.

"Private firms, for instance, can provide many government services — either under contract or completely within the private sector — much less expensively than federal workers," it said.

It urges more market-oriented policies throughout the government, ranging from agricultural and housing programs to those for health care and air traffic control.

Individual Retirement Accounts — those tax-deferred accounts taxpayers can set up for their retirement — should be extended to replace disability, health insurance and some other benefits now provided through the Social Security program, it said.

Food aid, now provided through the food stamp program, should be turned over to the states. The federal cost could be limited to a fixed amount, it said. The requirement that recipients pay a share of the value of the food stamps should be restored.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Regular habits

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 52-year-old woman in good health except for my bowels. For the past three years I have had difficulty. I never had any problems until three years ago, when I started a diet. Like most women my age, I started to gain weight, so I followed a liquid-formula diet plan. It was supposed to provide everything I needed without eating anything else. I followed it for six weeks and it certainly did help me lose weight, but my bowel function changed completely. I used to be as regular as a clock, but starting with that diet, I could go several days without a bowel movement.

Then I started to have pains that were like cramps in the side of my abdomen, and when I did have a bowel movement, it was often hard and dry. Sometimes I also would have loose stools.

Now I eat a fairly normal diet, but my bowels have never returned to normal. Why don't they function like they used to before that crazy diet? I'm glad to have lost a few pounds, but I don't appreciate the way in which this has wrecked my bowels. Any suggestions will be appreciated.

DEAR READER — See your doctor to be certain about the cause of your abnormal bowel function. An unexplained change in bowel function is a sign of colon cancer.

The diet may explain your problem, but don't take an unnecessary risk. That formula diet didn't provide the needed bulk for normal bowel function. Constipation often accompanies fad diets that don't provide adequate bulk. Once your colon lost its usual habits, it never returned to its natural rhythm.

You can do something about that. I am sending you The Health Letter 16-4, Spastic Colon, Irregularity and Constipation, for details. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Increase the bulk in your diet, drink plenty of fluids and re-establish a normal reflex pattern. That means eating a good breakfast, which includes at least two glasses of liquid and going to the bathroom shortly afterward every morning, with or without results, until your colon gets in the habit again. Your story should be a good warning to those tempted by fad diets.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you give me some information on Hodgkin's disease? I have a small lump in my neck and four small lumps in my groin area. I've seen two doctors who say I shouldn't worry, but I'm scared. One doctor said I'll probably have these lumps forever. Could this be Hodgkin's disease? I feel fine otherwise. I'm 23.

DEAR READER — When the cause of a lump is not obvious, there is only one answer: Take a biopsy, or remove it and look at it under a microscope.

I doubt very much that anyone knows what those lumps you have really are. If they cannot tell you specifically what they are, one should be taken out and examined carefully.

The lumps probably are lymph nodes, which can become enlarged for many reasons. A local collection of enlarged nodes could be a local infection; hence, the nodes in the neck enlarge with a sore throat. They also can enlarge due to cat-scratch fever. There are many other causes for generalized enlargement of nodes other than Hodgkin's disease, but it can be one of the causes.

Coffee pot return negotiated

AUSTIN (AP) — The coffee pots are perking again in the regional Internal Revenue Service center just south of Austin.

Lengthy negotiations between the federal government and union representatives ended Wednesday with the announcement that the 1,700 IRS employees may retain their office coffee pots — but no extension cords.

The settlement was effective immediately.

"All the coffee pots will remain at the service center subject to safety inspections by the IRS and the General Services Administration," said IRS spokesman Bob Branson.

The dispute over employees' coffee pots arose in October when the GSA, which manages the IRS building, reported the unauthorized appliances in the center included 46 fans, 120 coffee pots and several refrigerators.

"There were extension cords running all over the building on the floor. You could trip on them," said Marcella Banks, executive assistant to the regional GSA administrator in Fort Worth. "There were multiple appliances hooked to one extension cord. There were a lot of safety hazards like that."

The National Treasury Employees Union, which represents most of the tax return processors, said they had no complaints about enforcement of safety regulations.

"Our concern is that employees out there have production standards," said Anne Ellzey, assistant counsel for the union. "They must work on so many documents per hour. They're low-grade employees. They are under a lot of pressure to do this work."

"And then, instead of being thanked, they are having their coffee pots removed," she said.

Branson said the negotiations ended with an agreement that "The coffee pots will have to sit on fireproof surfaces, appliances must be Underwriters Laboratories approved — and no extension cords," Branson said.

"Essentially the coffee pots will remain as they have been," Branson said.

John Tyler, our 10th president, was senator, governor, vice president and became president on the death of William Henry Harrison.

Polly's Pointers

Mark containers for easy finding

DEAR READERS — Today's Pointer roundup includes housekeeping Pointers, cooking Pointers, sewing Pointers and more. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Keeping a roll of masking tape and a magic marker near the refrigerator to mark the contents on the lids of plastic containers has saved me much frustration.

I also mark partly used paint cans with identifying information, such as which room the paint was used in and the date.

To save your back when picking beans or peas in the garden, use a small child's chair to sit or kneel on. Move it down between two rows of vegetables and pick from the two rows as you move along.

A few slices of bacon placed on the breast of turkey or chicken acts as basting and gives a nice flavor.

Make a habit of reinforcing buttons on all new garments before wearing them. This avoids the difficulty of trying to match a lost button. — MRS. W.N.

DEAR POLLY — To cook asparagus, you only need to use an old-fashioned percolator coffee pot. Put asparagus in with bottoms down. This boils the larger, tougher bottoms of the spears while steaming the tender tops. — MARIAN

DEAR POLLY — Several years ago, I dried some baby's breath and statice. To preserve the flowers, I sprayed them with hair spray. They still look good.

Hair spray is also an inexpensive fixative for charcoal, chalk and pencil drawings. — JANET

DEAR POLLY — When preparing scrambled eggs, stir in one tablespoon cottage cheese to each two eggs to improve the flavor.

When hand sewing, I find that wetting my thimble finger will keep the thimble from falling off my finger. — MILDRED

DEAR POLLY — I used to use salsify to make soup that tasted just like oyster stew. I would slice the salsify, then boil it in water with a little chopped onion and a chunk of butter. When the vegetables were tender, I added milk. We called it "poor man's oyster soup." — M.H.

DEAR POLLY — I love those imported Italian sun-dried tomatoes. Is there any way I can make these at home? — FRAN

DEAR FRAN — Yes, you can dry tomatoes easily in a food dehydrator or even in your oven. (I would not try to sun-dry them, however; it's difficult unless you can guarantee at least three consecutive days of bright, unrelenting sunshine.) After drying, the tomatoes should be cured in oil to develop their distinctive flavor and to preserve them.

Here's the procedure for drying tomatoes in your oven. (If you have a dehydrator, follow the manufacturer's directions for drying tomatoes.)

Slice Italian plum tomatoes in half lengthwise and arrange on racks over baking sheets or shallow pans. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Bake in a preheated 200-degree oven for seven to nine hours until the tomatoes have shrunk to about one-fourth their original size. The tomatoes will be shriveled and dry.

Pack the tomatoes in jars and cover completely with olive oil. You can add a clove or two of garlic or some herbs if you like. Seal tightly and let marinate for at least four weeks at room temperature before serving. The tomatoes will keep for three or four months if kept in airtight jars. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — A good bath for hairbrushes is a full sink of warm water, one tablespoon soap or detergent and one-half cup of borax. This combination will clean brushes and leave them sweet-smelling and fresh. Swish them in the sudsy water, rinse and let dry.

Serve gravy in a heat-resistant glass coffeepot. This way, it's easy to pour and if necessary, you can reheat the gravy right in the pot. — MRS. S.W.

DEAR POLLY — Is there any way to convert a "crisp" cookie recipe to a "soft" cookie recipe? I like to bake cookies because it's fun for my 3-year-old and me, but my husband always asks me, "Why can't you make soft oatmeal cookies like the ones we buy in the store?" — APRIL

DEAR APRIL — To convert your own recipe, you might try reducing the quantity of shortening slightly and increase the liquid in the recipe by a tablespoon or two. Another trick is to add a quarter-cup or half-cup of applesauce to the cookie batter. You can also try baking them for a slightly shorter time; bake just until set and lightly browned. Storing the cookies in a covered plastic storage container or plastic bag also will keep the cookies softer. Some people like to add a slice of apple to add moisture and keep the cookies soft and fresh.

If you'd like to try another recipe, the easy recipe on the back of the Quaker Oats oatmeal box produces a soft, tasty cookie. Adding moist ingredients such as raisins also helps keep cookies soft and moist. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To cut down on salt, I taped shut half the holes on my salt shaker. I find that I automatically use less salt, and I never miss it! — LOUISE

DEAR POLLY — Recently, I was dressing hurriedly to go to a wedding. I discovered that my full slip was showing a good inch below the dress I had shortened. Time was at a premium: what could I do? Then I remembered cutting the elastic band from a pair of discarded pantyhose. I reached in my drawer to find the elastic band and slipped it around my waist. I could pull the slip up over the band, and it held securely. — EVELYN

Degrate garners Lombardi Award

UT player wins trophy

By ANDREW M. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Tony Degrate, a defensive tackle from the University of Texas, said he was looking forward to two things after winning the Lombardi Award — using the trophy to bargain with pro teams and getting out of his tuxedo.

Degrate, a 6-4, 280-pound senior from the small West Texas town of Snyder, was honored as the best college football lineman in the country Thursday night.

"I've never made this many speeches in my life," he said in acceptance. All four finalists had addressed the audience shortly before.

"Each of these guys would have deserved this award," Degrate said. "I'm just left speechless and all I can say is thank God and thank everybody out there."

He said in a news conference afterward that the award "definitely will" help him negotiate a professional contract.

"Lombardi winners have a little edge," he said.

But Degrate said his mind was on other things as well. He said one evening of fancy dressing was enough.

"This is the first time I've ever been in a tuxedo," he said uncomfortably and indicated he was looking forward to getting rid of the suit.

Degrate said his coat measured "52 or 54" inches in the chest — huge, but, he noted, far smaller than that of another finalist, 325-pound William Perry, a noseguard from Clemson.

Degrate said the gargantuan Perry, known as "the Refrigerator" for his massive build, would have won the award if it had been given purely for highlight films. In footage shown at the awards ceremony, Perry scooped up a running back and spiked him several feet away, then chased down a quarterback.

Other finalists were Bill Fralic, a 6-5, 285-pound offensive tackle who is a senior at Pittsburgh, and University of Southern California outside linebacker Jack Del Rio, a 6-4, 235-pound senior.

Degrate led the Longhorns to a 7-3-1 season by making 147 tackles, 123 of them unassisted. His coach, Fred Akers, called him "a fixture in our opponents' backfields."

The Lombardi award, made from a 40-pound block of granite, is named for player and coach Vince Lombardi. It has been presented annually since 1970 and is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Houston.

Dean Steinkuhler, last year's winner and now an offensive lineman with the Houston Oilers, presented the award. When he announced the winner was from the University of Texas, the partisan crowd did not wait for him to finish his sentence, but roared its approval. Several spectators made "hook 'em Horns" signs as Degrate walked to the speakers' podium.

Degrate, who said he never would have gotten the nomination without his teammates, credited Texas' other starting defensive tackle, Bill Heathcock, for his success.

"He did all the dirty work and I received all the glory," Degrate said.

Akers called Degrate, who is from Snyder, "one of the most genuine people I have ever had the pleasure to meet."

Akers said that when he went to visit Degrates in Snyder "the first thing he wanted me to do was to meet his town."

In another major award for collegiate linemen on Thursday, tackle Bruce Smith was named winner of the Outland Trophy.

Degrate was selected by a panel of 217 college football coaches, sports writers and sportscasters representing a geographic cross-section of the United States.

Fralic was first nominated for the award last year. Pittsburgh retired his jersey number of 79 after this season.

Perry is the Atlantic Coast Conference's all-time leader in quarterback sacks and tackles for lost yardage. He is credited with 100 tackles and 10 sacks this year.

Del Rio may play either professional football or baseball. He hit .342 with seven home runs for USC's baseball squad last year and made 90 tackles, including five sacks, on the school's football team. Del Rio was a baseball draft pick by the Toronto Blue Jays out of high school, but he said he will pass up baseball to try for a career in pro football.

Proceeds from the $150-a-plate Lombardi Award dinner went to research programs of the American Cancer Society.

The last bare-knuckle heavyweight championship fight was in 1889 when John L. Sullivan, the famed "Boston Strong Boy," defeated Jake Kilrain in 75 rounds.

Junior High Notes

La Plata beats Canyon

La Plata's junior-high teams took three of three games from Canyon Purple in the first round of the Hereford Boys' Junior High Basketball Tournament Thursday.

However, the Mavericks also lost two of two games to Plainview Blue in the same tourney.

Kevin Hansen burned the cords for 15 points and Raymond Romo added 10 to lead La Plata's ninth-grade A-team to a 49-41 win over Canyon Purple. The ninth-grade B-team came out on the short end of the score in its game against Plainview Blue. Bobby Robbins had 13 and Tim Long 7, but Plainview won 55-33.

In eighth-grade contests, La Plata A-team squeaked by Canyon Purple 29-25. Roger McCracken scored 13 for La Plata. Again it was Plainview

Blue who beat a La Plata junior-high team, this time a 40-17 decision over the eighth-grade B-team. Billy Seivers had 6 points to lead La Plata.

Only one game was played in the seventh grade. La Plata defeated Canyon Purple 29-23 behind the scoring of Chad Schroeder and Russell Backus. Both players had 8.

Two teams triumph

Eighth- and ninth-grade teams from Stanton were winners Thursday in first-round play of the Hereford Boys' Junior High Basketball Tournament, but the seventh-grade teams from Stanton lost two games.

Ross Torres scored half the team's points, 26, to lead Stanton to a 52-48 victory over Valley View. The action occurred in the ninth-grade contest.

Stanton also beat Valley View in an eighth-grade game, 35-27. Pat

Mercer and Pat Rhodes each had 10 points in that game.

The seventh grade entered two teams in the tourney. Jason Walterscheid scored 18 for Stanton's A-team, but Valley View took the game 45-27.

Plainview Blue defeated the B-team.

Action in the tournament continues today and Saturday, with ninth-grade games being played at La Plata, eighth-grade at Stanton and seventh-grade at the high school.

Baseball's winter meetings

Top pitchers traded Thursday

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Bruce Sutter made a quick trip to Atlanta that probably will wind up to be permanent, and LaMarr Hoyt was on his way to San Diego after being traded Thursday night as Cy Young winners took the spotlight at baseball's winter meetings.

Free-agent Rick Sutcliffe, another Cy Young-winning pitcher, was not sure where he was going yet, but he visited with five clubs Thursday that could provide him with a destination by Christmas Day.

The anticipated signing of Sutter by the Atlanta Braves appeared to be only a formality as his team for the past four seasons, the St. Louis Cardinals, all but dropped out of a two-team race for the relief pitcher.

Hoyt took a different route, leaving the Chicago White Sox via trade. The 1983 American League Cy Young winner, who struggled through a 13-18 season in 1984, was dealt to the Padres.

In return for Hoyt and minor league pitchers Todd Simmons and Kevin Kristan, the White Sox received pitcher Tim Lollar, third baseman Luis Salazar and two minor leaguers — shortstop Ozzie Guillen and pitcher Bill Long.

"As you all saw in the World Series, we're looking for the starting pitcher who could get us over the hump," Padres General Manager Jack McKeon said. "We know he didn't have a good year last year. Still, that happens to some pitchers once in a while."

Sutter arrived in Atlanta Thursday afternoon, and the club confirmed that he would speak with Braves owner Ted Turner Friday morning.

Sutter was joined in Atlanta by his two agents, and they met Thursday with Braves General Manager John Mullen.

One source inside Turner Broadcasting said there would be an announcement at 10 a.m. EST Friday, presumably of Sutter's signing, but the Braves would not confirm that report.

Another source said the meeting would occur at 10 a.m., but that there might not necessarily be an announcement at that time. Apparently, several details remained to be worked out.

Cardinals General Manager Joe

McDonald, however, said, "From every report I've received, he is anticipated to sign in Atlanta. But he hasn't signed yet."

McDonald said the Cardinals had been trying to re-sign Sutter for two months.

"The time comes when the writing is on the wall," McDonald said. "We fought hard, but I'd say it doesn't look very good now."

According to Pittsburgh boss

City sale approval unneeded

HOUSTON (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates President Dan Galbreath says he needs only the approval of his fellow major league club owners to sell his financially ailing baseball team.

"I don't need the approval of the stadium authority or city hall to sell stock in my company," Galbreath said during a news conference at the annual winter baseball meetings.

Some Pittsburgh city officials have maintained the city can veto prospective new ownership. A clause in the Pirates' 40-year Three Rivers Stadium lease, which took effect in 1970, states that the team's assets cannot be liquidated without prior consent of the city.

"I don't know how the misunderstanding arose. I've talked to my counsel in Pittsburgh and my counsel in Columbus (Ohio). Both of them have assured me that I can be emphatic on this point," Galbreath said. "We're not selling off our assets. I'm selling stock in my company."

Stadium Authority Chairman George Whitmer disagrees, however.

Olajuwon stands tall, Sampson reduced

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Akeem Olajuwon was a mountain of strength for the Houston Rockets, but the Golden State Warriors reduced his Twin Tower partner, Ralph Sampson, to rubble.

The Warriors held the 7-foot-4 Sampson to six points on 2-for-11 shooting and took their only lead of the game with nine seconds remaining on two free throws by Mickey Johnson to beat the Rockets 114-113 despite a season-high 42 points from Olajuwon.

"I can't believe we lost it," said Olajuwon who hit 18 of 22 field-goal attempts and had 13 rebounds and five blocked shots. "I wasn't getting the ball in the second half. I don't think the Warriors were doing anything different. The ball was just always on the other side of the court."

Olajuwon had 32 points at halftime for the Rockets, who led by as many as 15 points in the second period.

Olajuwon, a 7-foot rookie from Nigeria and the University of Houston, was disappointed although he easily surpassed his previous high game of 30 points.

Golden State got 30 points from Purvis Short and 27 from Eric Floyd. Bucks 114, Pistons 99

Milwaukee took over sole possession of first place in the Central Division by beating Detroit for its ninth victory without a loss at home this season.

The Bucks got 20 or more points by four players, led by Sidney Moncrief and Terry Cummings with 27 each.

Trail Blazers 113, Spurs 96

Portland pulled within one game of the first-place Los Angeles Lakers in the Pacific Division as Mychal Thompson scored 28 points against San Antonio.

George Gervin scored 30 points and Mike Mitchell 27 for San Antonio.

Mavericks 112, Knicks 83

Dallas buried New York with a 15-0 spurt at the start of the second half.

The Mavericks led only 49-43 at halftime, but Rolando Blackman scored seven points and Mark Aguirre six during the run that settled the outcome.

Bullets 111, Pacers 106

Washington got two baskets from Frank Johnson in the final 39 seconds to stifle an Indiana rally.

The Pacers, who got 22 points from Herb Williams and 21 from Clark Kellogg, came back from a 13-point deficit in the third quarter to lead by one point twice in the fourth period. But two turnovers by Williams led to the late baskets by Johnson.

SuperSonics 106, Jazz 99

Tom Chambers and Jack Sikma scored 26 points apiece to lead Seattle to victory at Utah.

Chambers, Sikma and Ricky Sobers, who had 23 points for the Sonics, led a 13-4 Seattle rally in the fourth quarter that turned an 85-83 deficit into a 96-89 lead.

Cooney faces must-win situation Saturday

By WALTER BERRY AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gerry Cooney, who says he's "sick of talking about yesterday" and his 1982 loss to Larry Holmes, admits there are no tomorrows if he loses to George Chaplin in their 10-round heavyweight fight here Saturday night.

"People keep asking me who I'm going to fight next but if I can't beat Chaplin, there's no use talking about what's next," Cooney said Thursday. "These fights are life and death for me. I have to win them if I'm ever going to get another shot at a title. I'm 28 years old. I'm getting too old for comebacks. I'm a realist."

Cooney, 26-1 with 23 KOs, will be fighting for just the second time in 30 months after losing to Holmes, then the World Boxing Council champion, on June 11, 1982 in Las Vegas, Nev.

"He can't afford to lose and he can't afford to take my lightly," said Chaplin, a 32-year-old part-time hospital technician from Baltimore with a 22-6-2 record and 10 knockouts including a seventh-round disqualification win over Earnie Shavers on March 1, 1983.

"Shavers took me lightly and look what happened to him. He doesn't fight anymore," added Chaplin. "Cooney better be ready for me. That's all I can say."

Odds makers have made Cooney as much as a 20-1 favorite to beat Chaplin at the Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum with the bout being televised live nationally to a 30-station cable syndicate.

The 6-foot-7, 232-pound fighter from Huntington, N.Y., will have a seven-inch height and nine-inch reach advantage over the 215-pound Chaplin.

College basketball roundup

Washington ups season mark to 4-0

By The Associated Press

In his freshman season, Kevin Vidato scored a total of six points. Against St. Mary's, the sophomore reserve forward doubled that total, leading the ninth-ranked Washington Huskies to their fourth victory without a loss.

"Thank heaven for Kevin Vidato," Washington Coach Mary Harshman said. "I don't know if a star is born, but the guy came to play."

Washington held a slim 28-25 lead at halftime against St. Mary's. Then Vidato scored 10 of his 12 points in the second half to lead the Huskies to a 68-48 victory.

"He contributed offensively, and that was a blessing," Harshman said of his unlikely star. "He compensated for the rest of us standing around."

The only other member of the Associated Press' Top Twenty college basketball teams to see action Thursday night was seventh-ranked Illinois, which downed Missouri 65-50.

"Everything seemed to fall into place," Vidato said of his point explosion.

Anthony Welch and Bruce Douglas headed a balanced Illinois attack with 12 points apiece as the Fighting Illini stopped Missouri.

The defending co-Big Ten champions jumped out to a 20-6 lead in th first 8½ minutes and led 38-19 at halftime.

Missouri challenged briefly at the outset of the second half, scoring 13 straight points to pull to within 38-32. But it was the closest the Big Eight school could come.

"I thought we played well," Illini Coach Lou Henson said. "I'd take this kind of game every night. Overall, it was a good effort."

Doug Altenberger and George Montgomery scored 10 points apiece for Illinois, with Efreem Winters, the fifth Illinois starter, adding nine.

In other games involving major schools, Lafayette edged Princeton 45-43, Loyola of Maryland stopped Holy Cross 87-73, Vanderbilt crushed Vermont 73-55, Virginia Military nipped Radford 53-51, Iowa State bombed Augustana, S.D., 113-55, Marquette defeated Northwestern 53-44, Wisconsin ran over South Dakota 96-56 and Abilene Christian downed Wayland Baptist 99-89.

PIRATES

"Our position is he has to get our approval to sell the team," Whitmer said. "We would go to court to force him to get our approval and I'm sure the city would, too."

Galbreath is trying to sell both his family's 51 percent share and Warner Communications' 48 percent ownership of the Pirates, who lost an estimated $6 million during a last-place 1984 season. Galbreath hopes to have the sale completed by the start of spring training.

Galbreath said he's already spoken to representatives of four Pittsburgh groups interested in the team, including one headed by city businessman James Roddey, chairman of the Port Authority Transit. Galbreath has not yet spoken to Youngstown, Ohio, shopping mall developer Edward J. DeBartolo Sr.

"I don't know," Galbreath said when asked if he expected to hear from DeBartolo. "I think there has to be some concern over what happened before."

DeBartolo tried to buy the Chicago White Sox in 1980, but was turned down by American League club owners after then-Commissioner

Bowie Kuhn complained he would be an absentee owner.

Galbreath plans to meet this week with several groups trying to land expansion teams for the Denver and Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla., area, but only because he knows the businessmen through his real estate holdings.

Galbreath said he would not hesitate to sell the Pirates to out-of-city owners if their offer was considerably higher than any he received from a prospective local buyer.

"I'm not running a charity," Galbreath said. "If the best offer from local interests was $15 million below somebody else's offer, I'd have to look at it long and hard. I'm going to have to do what's best for the family and for Warner."

Galbreath said the Pirates are paying too much rent at Three Rivers Stadium, where the Pirates drew 773,500 people last season, a National League low.

"I never managed to get the point across that without renegotiating the (stadium) lease, the franchise is in jeopardy," he said. "Maybe now the fans and the city will realize it has to be taken more seriously."

Over U.S. policy

Tutu confronting Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today faced growing pressure to get tough with South Africa as he met with Bishop Desmond M. Tutu, the black winner of the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize who says U.S. policies are "immoral, evil and totally unchristian" because they encourage South African apartheid.

Aides said Reagan would tell Tutu, who sought the meeting, that his administration is forthright in its opposition to apartheid and that U.S. policy is helping to ease the plight of South Africa's 22 million blacks, who have been subjected to decades of iron-fisted rule by the white minority.

Tutu was expected to make a statement to reporters after the meeting. The South African cleric planned to leave later in the day for Oslo, where he will receive the Nobel Peace Prize.

But even as Reagan and Tutu prepared to meet, pressures mounted in the Congress and in the streets for a change in policy. Demonstrators seeking the release of imprisoned black labor leaders marched outside South African diplomatic posts throughout the United States.

Two children of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy were arrested Thursday outside the embassy in Washington. Douglas Kennedy, 17, and his sister Rory Kennedy, 15, were accused of violating city codes for demonstrating within 500 feet of the embassy.

"My whole family has been concerned with this issue for a long time," said Douglas Kennedy, a student here.

The influential new chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., joined lawmakers urging President Reagan to take a stronger stand against apartheid.

Lugar and Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., wrote a private letter to Reagan late last week, asking him to look at other options to the administration's so-called "constructive engagement" policy, which shuns economic and political sanctions in favor of quiet diplomacy.

"Clearly I think we need to do more than the 'constructive engagement' idea," said Lugar, who generally backs Reagan administration policy and is in line to become chairman of the Foreign Relations panel in the new Congress.

Thirty-five conservative House members, in a letter to South African Ambassador Bernardus Fourie, have vowed to seek diplomatic and economic sanctions unless the white-ruled government takes concrete steps to end apartheid.

Tutu has urged the United States to use economic pressure to force the South African government to deal directly with the black population. But U.S. officials say such actions wouldn't work and would actually hurt the black population by reducing American influence in South Africa.

The Center for Strategic & International Studies at Georgetown University here estimates total direct U.S. investment in South Africa at about $2.8 billion. It says about 2 percent of the total black work force is employed by 350 American companies, who have a reputation for providing better working conditions than local firms.

Texas News Briefs

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas motorists were warned Thursday by the Department of Public Safety and the Texas Safety Association of the dangers of driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

The warning came as part of observance of "National Drunk and Drugged Awareness Week" Dec. 9-15.

"It is our belief that most members of the public recognize the hazards of drinking alcohol and driving," said Col. Jim Adama, DPS director. "However, the dangers of driving under the influence of other drugs are less well known, especially among young people.

"The use of marijuana decreases driving performance," Adams said. "The effects become more pronounced when alcohol is used in combination with alcohol."

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White on Thursday nominated Edward Wilson, an Abilene English teacher, to be a member of the Teachers' Professional Practices Commission. Wilson replaces Sally Wiedemann of Vernon who resigned.

White also named Steven Lunsford, parks operations coordinator for the Galveston County Beach and Parks Department, to the Battleship Texas Advisory Board. He replaces Thomas Mitchell of Houston, who resigned.

AUSTIN (AP) — The Public Utility Commission will hold a public hearing Jan. 11 to gather public comment on a PUC staff report forecasting electric needs in Texas the next 10 years.

After the hearing, the PUC report will be submitted to the governor.

Last year the Legislature approved provisions for a statewide 10-year energy plan to be developed by the PUC and updated every two years.

The staff report includes 10-year forecasts from each of the 19 electric generating utilities in Texas. The utilities, which include some municipal systems, represents approximately 99 percent of the total electric production in Texas.

After the Jan. 11 public hearing, the PUC will develop its own 10-year forecast and report to the governor.

AUSTIN (AP) — Four units of state government have received special awards from Gov. Mark White for their records of selecting and promoting women into management jobs in state government.

The awards went Thursday to Treasurer Ann Richards, Texas Industrial Accident Board, Texas Commission on Alcoholism and the Texas Health Facilities Commission.

"These agencies and State Treasurer Ann Richards have demonstrated that it is not difficult to find qualified, talented and experienced women to hire and promote into executive level jobs in state government," White said at a seminar on "Celebration of Leadership: Women in the Public Sector."

He said the award winners were based on recommendations of the Governor's Commission for Women and the State Agency Liaison Group after their review of agencies' salary and hiring statistics.

Santa Surprises Sweetheart

Robyn Hopper, sweetheart of the Hereford Lions Club, received a portable typewriter Thursday night as her Christmas present from the club. Santa was on hand to present the gift during the club's annual Christmas part of the Community Center. Special guests at the party were residents of King's Manor and widows of Lions who served in the club.

Paul Harvey

Fear of success

I was waiting the other evening with Bill Graham of Baxter-Travenol (manufacturer of medical products).

We were talking about the several cost containment factors which have recently affected the health care industry, depressing those stocks.

And hurtful as government belt-tightening has been to his industry's earnings, Bill said, "We all realize it had to be done."

As in any surgical procedure, however necessary to long-term recovery, cuts hurt!

President Reagan has affirmed that he will do what he was re-elected to do: keep cutting the size and scope of big government.

Uncle Sam, as is, is headed for a budget deficit of $190 billion. That's enough red ink to drown any other nation in the world.

But our country is managing a miracle right now. Our government's expenditures — compared to our nation's output of goods and services — is down in one year from 24.6 percent to 23.5 percent.

In dollars, granted, our deficit has increased. But in percentage of the GNP it is less. And this president is committed to continue the "lessening."

The Reagan years have showed us some things we didn't know before: you can run a tight monetary policy despite large deficits.

You can even have falling interest rates with a high deficit.

And you can even have recovery and disinflation simultaneously.

The president's political party does not control this Congress, but the president's philosophy does. Because if the campaign served no other purpose, it put the Democrats on record as agreeing that "deficits are a problem."

There are only two ways to siphon off this red ink: higher taxes or reduced spending.

And Congress has heard the electorate say a loud and clear "no" to higher taxes.

So — the cutting begins.

The loudest cries will be heard when the cuts cut school aid, nutrition programs, health care. Sixty-nine billion dollars a year is more Medicare than we can afford. So is $107.5 billion for "welfare."

As a tradeoff with Congress, I expect the president will be willing to sacrifice a portion of his military budget.

He has vowed that Social Security will not be reduced but the Grace Commission proposed 2,478 other items of federal expense which may be. Any insider knows that our government is still grotesquely over-fat.

But, again, cuts hurt. Dieting is no fun even when your health depends on it.

WHERE PEOPLE STASH CASH

Checking and savings accounts are still the most popular places for spare cash — but more than one-quarter of Americans also invest in company savings or stock programs, certificates of deposit, IRAs or Keoghs and money-market funds.

In the 47 nations where bowling is popular, there are an estimated 60 million bowlers.

Turney converts dreams into millions

HOUSTON (AP)—Howard Turney grew up thinking it was wrong to be a dreamer. Now, he knows better.

His father, a railroad worker struggling to support 11 children from three marriages, scorned creative play and admonished Turney to use his spare time to hunt rabbits and deer to help feed the impoverished family.

Although Turney had read every book in the library of the tiny school he attended in Fort Thomas, Ariz., teachers considered him one of their worst students.

He was a gifted child with genius-level intelligence, but nobody, including himself, recognized it. Lacking encouragement and stimulus, he dropped out of high school, spent two years in the Army and then wandered the Eastern seaboard working menial and odd jobs.

He never got a high school diploma or college degree, but he never quit reading. At age 31, he, by chance, read two books that ultimately spurred him to change his life around.

Now, at 53, Turney is a successful businessman who parlayed his daydreams into multimillion-dollar businesses and launched a crusade to help gifted children.

"Almost the majority of the time, people will say if you have a genius intelligence, you don't need anything else," Turney said. "But if it's not identified, you don't have it. My life is the best example I can think of."

He added, "It took a lot of years to try to better myself and learn how to speak, dress and learn how to talk to people."

It is hard to imagine Turney as the insecure, inarticulate and poorly dressed man he describes as the Howard Turney through age 31.

His craggy, wrinkled face and piercing eyes hint at the rough times he experienced, but his gentle manners and carefully chosen words defy that image.

In the corner of the plushly carpeted room in his office 17 floors above the West Loop near San Felipe, a bronze replica of the Lindbergh Eagle — one of eight in the world — sits perched atop a huge oak pedestal. It symbolizes Turney's fierce determination to achieve.

"You have never heard a hillbilly from Arkansas or any place you can name in the United States who had a vocabulary as bad as mine," he said.

"In my 20s, I was introverted and damn near speechless in front of a man wearing a tie. I had to overcome things most people take for granted. You cannot imagine how far it is from there to here."

Turney dislikes talking about himself, but agreed to share his experiences in hopes of helping others overcome similar situations.

He was the oldest of two sons born to a railroad section foreman living in the Arizona desert. His father married three times during his childhood and Turney had one brother, two half-brothers, four stepbrothers and three stepsisters.

He left home at 12 and returned a few months later at the insistence of the school's basketball coach. To return, however, his father required him to pay $1 a day for room and board until he left home for good in the 11th grade.

Turney worked as a logger, cowhand, bronc buster and ditch digger before joining the Army on a dare from two buddies who flunked the entrance exam. He spent two years in occupation forces in Japan before being discharged and returning to the states.

"I worked in furniture factories, textile mills, restaurants; sold Bibles, blankets and fans door to door; drove a truck, and even did some cooking," he said.

"My theory was, the more things I knew how to do, the better I could make a living. In the 50s, I thought if I could make $36 a week, that would put me on easy street, compared to the $29 a week I was making in the factory."

He added, "But, I also decided if I was going to get out of that rut, I had to educate myself and learn how to speak and do things."

Turney was lying in a hospital bed in Columbia, S.C., recuperating from surgery for leg injuries from a car accident when he found the motivation he needed to change his life.

"I read two books: 'Atlas Shrugged' by Ayn Rand and 'Think and Grow Rich' by Napoleon Hill. Those two books had more to do with me turning around than any other one thing," he said.

"They made the point you are responsible for your own life and can do anything you want to do if you want to do it badly enough. I began doing it. It goes slowly, but if you constantly strive to improve whatever you are, soon you become what you perceive yourself to be."

Turney took an IQ test issued by Mensa, the organization for people with intelligence levels above 98 percent of the population. His score qualified him as a member.

He educated himself through reading and emulating others. And he put his mind to work with a new sense of confidence.

He invented toys, liquid cleaners and some food products, including an item called "Otter Pops," fruit-flavored frozen popsicles still sold on the West Coast.

"I invented a lot of items and products I sold that the world could easily do without," Turney said. "In 1976, I decided that if I was going to develop products, it would be things that would be beneficial to mankind."

In 1979, Turney formed King James Shrimp Co., a commercial shrimp-growing operation near Chicago — 1,000 miles from any ocean.

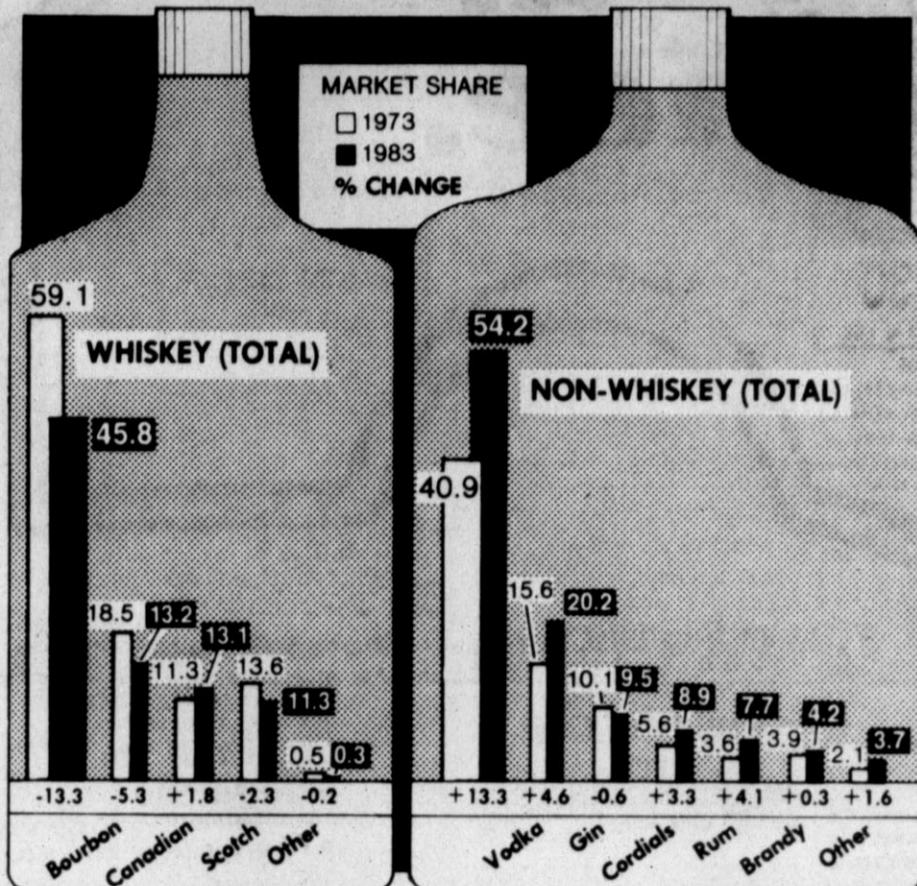

He invented a process to make sea water and built a biological filtration system to grow shrimp year-around. He believes that his process will one day provide an inexpensive food source to feed the poor.

"Every biologist I talked to said I was crazy, that we could never raise and breed shrimp in that environment," he said.

Currently, his firm, Systems International Inc., is negotiating two joint ventures to build $12 million shrimp-producing plants in Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and the Dominican Republic. His innovations, Turney believes, will revolutionize the shrimp industry.

DRINKERS' TASTES HAVE CHANGED

For Americans, whiskey has declined in popularity in the past decade. More drinkers are turning to vodka, gin and other "lighter" spirits.

Peso's daily slide increased in effort to boost economy

By SOLL SUSSMAN Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government on Thursday increased the daily rate at which the peso is devalued, in an attempt to promote tourism, make Mexican goods more competitive abroad and slow the flow of dollars out of the country.

The decision had long been expected despite the government's internationally praised efforts to bring the economy out of a serious tailspin.

It increases the daily slide of the peso to 17 centavos a day — less than one-tenth of a U.S. cent — from the 13 centavo daily slide in effect for more than a year.

A year from now, if the 17 centavo rate remains in effect, 266.02 pesos will be worth $1. The rate Thursday was 204.97 pesos to the dollar.

The plan went into effect Thursday. It is the first change in the regulation of the peso since September 1983, and is intended to boost exports, attract tourists, and make goods on the Mexican side of the border more competitive with those on the U.S. side.

The sliding, controlled scale also is aimed at averting a trauma like the one triggered by three major devaluations that weakened the peso currency in 1982 when Mexico was plunged into its worst recession in half a century.

The rate of exchange went from 27 pesos to 149 pesos to the dollar within the year in 1982, forcing sharp cutbacks in imports and travel abroad that hurt merchants on the U.S. side of the border.

"The measures ... are being introduced at a propitious time, with prudence and not as a consequence of an untenable situation," the Treasury Department said in its announcement. It said Mexico has a surplus in its balance of payments and foreign reserves of more than $8 billion.

The department said the step was taken in accordance with its "flexible exchange policy of gradual adjustments, maintaining a realistic type of exchange and avoiding at all costs an over-valuation of our currency."

Private economists in Mexico had been predicting that the daily slide of the peso would have to be increased to keep pace with inflation, which was 80 percent last year and is expected to be between 55 percent and 60 percent for the year.

Inflation has made it possible once again for Mexicans to cross the border to purchase American goods at comparable or cheaper prices. It also has eroded the price advantage that attracted hundreds of thousands more tourists to Mexico since 1982.

Countless newspaper columns and private business groups had called for an accelerated devaluation of the peso to make Mexican goods more attractive abroad.

Increasing exports, reducing imports, bringing in foreign tourists and keeping Mexicans at home are crucial to the Mexican economy in the effort to meet payments on the country's $96 billion foreign debt, the second-largest in the Third World after Brazil's.

A lower exchange rate is applied to some imports and foreign debt payments, and that also is affected by the daily slide. The so-called controlled rate for imports was pegged at 188.08 pesos to the dollar Wednesday.

President Miguel de la Madrid took office in December 1982 in the worst moments of the economic crisis, amid predictions that social unrest could result. His austerity program and the country's continued political stability have drawn endorsements from the international banking community.

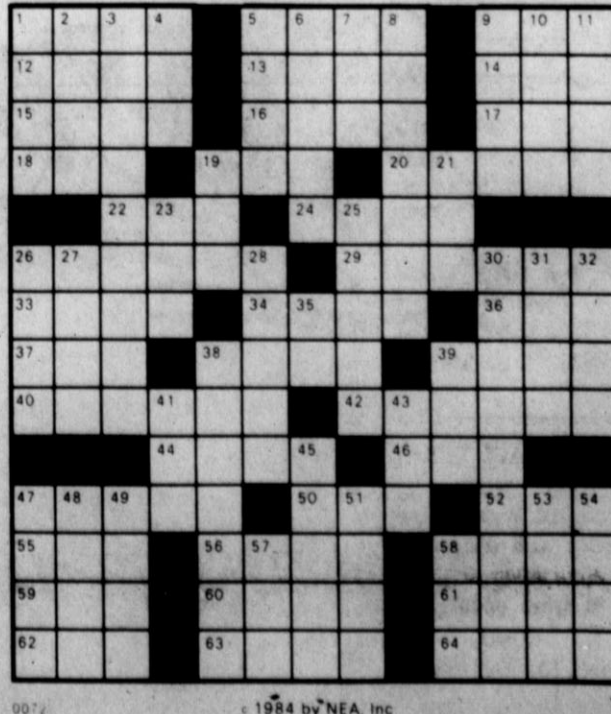

U.S. bankers said Thursday that the decision should have little or no effect on business on the border, where high exchange rates have prevailed since May, when speculation began that a slide change was imminent.
