

Mail Ballots For Election Of Four New C-C Leaders

Ballots for the election of four new directors for the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce have been received by members of the organization. Directors chosen in the election will serve on the board for the two years of 1957-58, according to J. R. (Monk) Johnson, chairman of the nominating committee.

The four director vacancies will be filled by two members of the town group of the Chamber and two from the farm group. Town nominees are Harold Banks, Ray Godwin, John Douglas Pitman and Don Zimmerman. Farm group nominees are Charles Hill, Marcus Latham, Bill Messick and T. E. Seigler.

Deadline Nov. 15.

Ballots sent through the mail to Chamber members also designate space for write-in candidates. Instructions for marking the ballots state that the names of the nominees not wanted should be scratched.

Deadline for returning the ballots to the Chamber office is Nov.

Dow Chemical Co. Employs Eyes Of Queer Watchman

Freeport, Tex. (AP)—A lot of people in this area have been contestants on a different kind of television quiz show. It's run by John A. Smith, Ethyl-Dow Chemical Co. plant superintendent here.

It's easy to get on the show. Just walk or ride up to gate No. 7. You won't win $64,000, but you can pass through the gate if you correctly identify yourself.

The plant has installed a closed-circuit television unit as a part of its plant protection system. The TV camera and microphones are in operation at Gate No. 7. This electronic "patrolman" looks you over, chats with you and either lets you in or keeps you out.

The TV unit is operated from the plant protection office several hundred yards away in the main office of Ethyl-Dow. There a patrolman can see and hear all activity at the gate. He also operates controls to open and close the 22-foot gate.

As you drive or walk up to the gate, the patrolman sees you through the eyes of the camera. He hears through the ears of the microphone. When proper identification, including a show of a badge is given, he can push a button and the gate slides open.

The screen is 9 by 12 inches. The camera operates with a half-inch lens. By remote control, the operator can swing the camera to get a sweeping view of the area.

Ethyl-Dow currently has a patrolman on duty at the gate during the day. But after 4 p.m., the electronic television patrolman takes over, operated by a guard in the main office.

SCIENCE FOR GIRLS

If a youngster is sharp at mathematics don't hesitate to steer her to a science career. Research chemists advise that women are demonstrating their ability in chemistry and physics more and more. One chemist points out that industrial research right now could use 5,000 to 10,000 women a year with future prospects as good or better.

Other Advice

"Also place your name and address and the name and address to whom you are sending the parcel on the inside of the parcel," states the Hereford postmaster. "If the wrapper is torn off in handling, postal employees will rewrap the parcel and forward it to the destination."

Combination mail, used for the first time last Christmas season, permits a mailer to enclose a letter inside a parcel, and write, "Letter enclosed," on the address side of the package. The charge will be three cents in addition to the parcel post charges. The combination mailing is particularly desirable when returning merchandise or other parcels when it is desired to have parcel and letter delivered at the same time.

The Whitefaces kept the kickoff on an onside kick and appeared to be headed for their second touchdown. Three straight pass completions carried to the Dumas 26 before a fumble handed Dumas the ball.

The two teams then exchanged intercepted passes. Then on the first play from scrimmage after the second Dumas interception Tiner raced up the middle and outran the Hereford secondary 55 yards for the touchdown. Boxwell's kick made it 34-7.

Still in the third quarter, Hereford scored their last touchdown. Ed Wakefield spearheaded the running portion of the 85-yard march with Bryant and Elliston combining to create havoc in the air. Elliston scored the touchdown on a 12-yard flip from Bryant.

Lipscomb urges patrons to separate local cards and letters from those going out of town, and to ask for "Local" and "Out of Town" labels at the post office.

There will be a window open near the letter drop for these mailings which will save patrons much time, and reduce handling time in the office about 50 per cent, said Lipscomb.

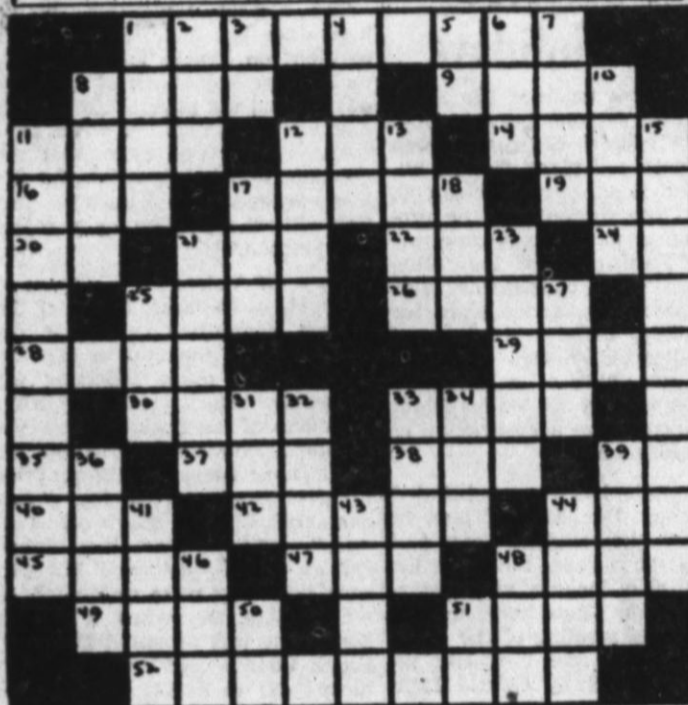

Certified Delivery

Certified mail, also used in the 1955 season, permits mailers to have proof of delivery of Christmas letters, cards, or parcels having no intrinsic value for a postal fee of 15 cents plus first-class postage.

For the first time this year, sealed parcels may be mailed at the third-or-fourth class postage rates without labels, notations, endorsements, or hieroglyphics of any kind authorizing the opening of the parcels for postal inspection.

"The public's cooperation in the past has been wonderful and we appreciate it," stated Lipscomb.

Lights On Dec. 1

Members of the planning committee have suggested that preschool children visit with Santa Claus before parade time because of the rush of the school age children at the end of the parade.

Bill Howard of the Jaycees announced to the merchants that the Christmas lights will be erected here at as early a date as possible. The present work schedule and the equipment already received for the light strings and other street decorations indicate that the lights will be turned on Saturday, Dec. 1, he said.

Streu's Diary

November 9, 1956

DEAR DIARY:

Well, I reckon we're just about ready to tell you all about the RCA Victor products which we have in stock — we have table radios priced at $19.95 — $26.95 — $31.95 — $34.95 and $41.95 — all in a variety of beautiful colors. Some of these radios have two speakers and all have the famous RCA Golden Throat tone system. Have several models of clock radios with more on the road — three-way portables priced from $41 to $59 with batteries and more coming, including two new transistor models priced in the forty odd dollar bracket.

In the record player line, I believe we have every model made by RCA from the $12.95 attachment up to the $355 combination Hi-Fi record player and radio (this machine has one amplifier for the radio and another for the Hi-Fi player). In the "45's" we have players priced at $36.95 — $41.95 — $44.95 — and a Hi-Fi 45 at $84.50. In four speed players we start at $31.95 and have other models at $84.50 and on up to the Hi-Fi portable at $134.50 the Mark VII at $134.50 — Mark VI at $144.95 and $154.95 — the Mark IV at $189.95 and $199.95 and so on. Most of these players are in stock in mahogany, maple, and blond finishes to fit any decor. Just arrived this morning, a lovely little "45" portable in blue finish — with Elvis Presley's autograph thereon — sells for only $44.95 with Elvis' 3-record album for free — stock is limited — case of first come — first served on these little jewels. I might add that we received this morning a shipment containing all of the Presley releases to date — including his two new 45 albums titled "Elvis" — most of these will be gone by the time this reaches print, but may have a few left.

Of course, we have RCA Victor Television in all prices from the $114.95 Personal Portable up to the $625 Big Color TV. By the way, there is quite a controversy going on in the magazines and newspapers over the merits (or lack of merit) of color TV. Seems that several of the TV mfrs., having tried and failed to come up with a workable color TV; have adopted the old "sour grapes" routine and are really going all out to demote color. Believe me, folks, RCA Victor Big-Color TV is not a gadget — not an experiment — it is good, it is practical, and it is here to stay — all we ask is an opportunity to show you a color show — just call 48 for an appointment most any night of the week. No obligation — If you have never seen color TV, you are missing a real thrill.

Had a couple of ladies in the store yesterday doing their Xmas shopping a bit early — they commented that Jean's stock of gift wares compared favorably with stocks of gifts in the big stores in Amarillo, Lubbock, Dallas and Ft. Worth as to selection and price. Really, girls, you just DO NOT have to drive all over creation to find beautiful and serviceable gifts — you'll find them, as usual, at STREU'S. We gift wrap, too.

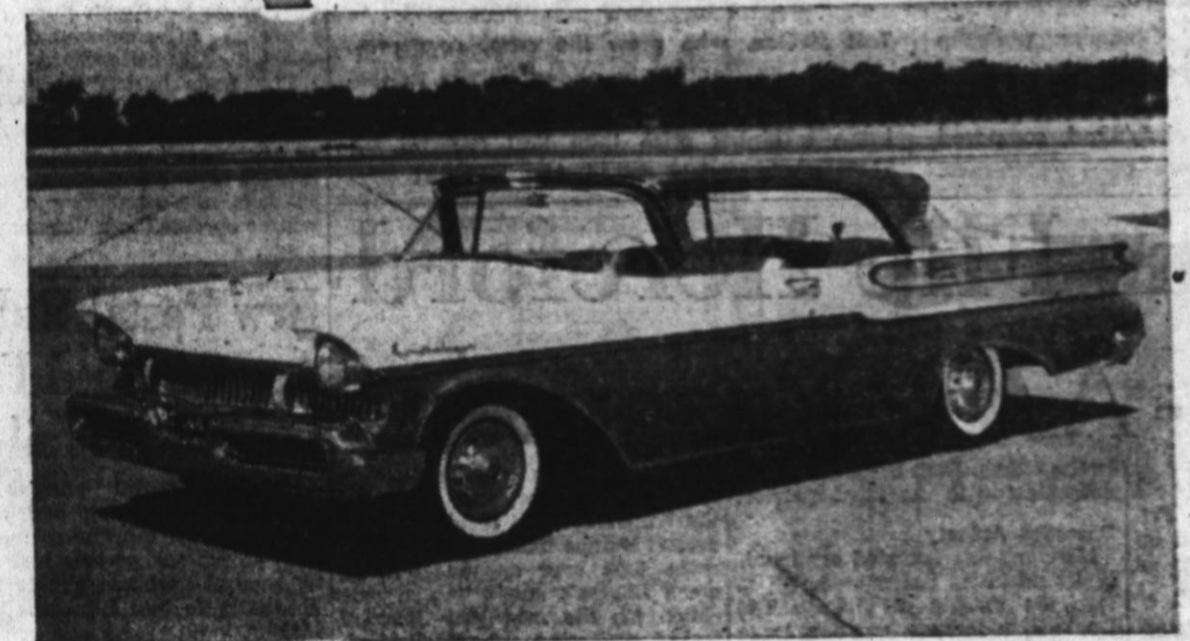

I have, somewhere seen filthier streets and alleys than in Hereford the last week or so — but I disremember just where or when.

Cliques Often Do Harm to Members' School Relations

By SUNNY HUDSON
You're in high school now; it's time to realize that you're on your way to womanhood and manhood.

You and four or five other girls are inseparable. You go everywhere together. You settle your problems together, exchange clothes with each other. Then you have formed what you may not call a club or clique, but actually it is.

It's an exclusive club with just your own group, and no matter how far anyone else climbs, they could not possibly get in. You go home with each other at noon and after school. You are having a wonderful time and see no harm in it. You think, "what harm can that do?"

It limits your friendship when you see no one but the same girls all the time. Maybe there's a new girl who just came to your school and knows no one. A few days after she came you talk to her to get to know her better. Your friends say, "Why were you talking to her?" Maybe someone had a party and you were invited but your friends weren't. You wouldn't go because of that. There is where the harm is done, because it limits your friends and activities. Then you may not be invited again.

Being loyal to your friends is important, but so is growing up and being able to meet people and know how they think and behave.

Perhaps you decide to accept someone else and she has a friend whom you don't want to accept in the "clique" because she doesn't have as many liberties as you do. If she is a sensitive girl, she will naturally be hurt, because you can not keep it a secret no matter how hard you try.

Soon your club has the reputation of being "stuck-up." Just imagine how you would feel if a club was formed and your friends were accepted and you were not.

When any group of kids and teenagers band together they are bound to hurt someone and make them feel left out. Another harmful aspect — you may hurt other girls unnecessarily as well as yourself.

In some schools if a girl is not rushed her sophomore year to become a sorority member she's automatically considered a grind and a "washout."

You not only hurt your reputation but your school also. Even a small club without any official standing can create the same atmosphere. So think carefully before you and your little group decide to form one.

People feel more secure when they think alike and do the same things at the same time. If its kept within bounds, it can be harmless. But you're not adult until you reach the point where you feel you can do something alone.

If you want to have your own group of friends, don't exclude everyone else. You can never learn about the interesting things of the world unless you give yourself a chance to find out.

So, if you decide to form a club, form one that doesn't cause harm to the ones left out.

Sales Winners In FHA Project Are Given Monday

Winners in the recent sales project of the Future Homemakers of America were announced at the club's meeting during activity period Monday. It turned out to be something of a family affair, with Dollie Paetzold taking first and her sister, Betty, coming in second. Natha Bryan was third in the girls' sales of Stanley products.

All the girls who sold $40 or more will be honored at a hostess entertainment at Littlefield in January. Other than the three winners, those who qualified for this honor were Lovilla Finley, Donna Guseman, Kaye Kershen, Donna Lovel, Phyllis Sumner, and Molly Price.

Betty Hagar, Linda Parker, and Molly Price each received prizes for special sales. The two top sales men will be guests at a Lucky U luncheon in Amarillo in January.

FHA Girls Assist Jaycees In Vote Project Tuesday

Thirty members of the Hereford High School F. H. A. chapters assisted the Jaycees in their get-out-the-vote project during Tuesday's general election. Two girls were assigned to each of the three precinct voting boxes in the city on two hour shifts from 8:30 to 7. As each voter completed his voting, the girls pinned an "I have voted" sign on him.

Mrs. J. J. Durham and Mrs. Joel Hodges, homemaking teachers, commented that the girls will earn credit for their civic work to apply on their state degrees.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE VETERANS

Dear Friends:

Optimist Week in this year of 1956 begins on Armistice Day. We didn't arrange it that day. It just happened. It is also Sunday . . . a day of rest . . . of peace . . . and of worship.

Armistice Day is now Veterans Day . . . because there have been other wars, and other veterans, since the conflict that ended in November, 1918. There have always been veterans, since this country was BORN in conflict. Bunker Hill and Lexington turned men into soldiers, soldiers into veterans. The word has never left us because WAR has never left us. Yet each one we fought we hoped would be the last. We still hope . . . and we remember, we pray.

But to you who ARE the veterans, who donned uniforms and learned the art of defending your liberty and your country with arms, we owe much more than words can say. And often we forget to say the words. Perhaps once a year we stop to remember—the time you spent away from home . . . the terrible ordeal of dodging death . . . of seeing comrades fall and die . . . of wondering why it had to be.

You wondered, but still you fought . . . because to lose the war would be to lose liberty, as well . . . and you were too used to living with it ever to be able to give it up. And because you fought, and sometimes died, you preserved our heritage and our freedom, so that future generations could enjoy them, too.

Because we share your love of life and of liberty, we of the Optimist Club of Hereford thank you for all that you have done, and pledge ourselves to see that the work goes on. The freedom you fought for . . . that some of you died for . . . should be extended to all people. We try to see that YOUTH enjoys this freedom, this chance to be a part of America at its best . . . because youth grows up and BECOMES America . . . and we want him to be strong, and wise, and just, and good. We pray that we can do our job as well as you did yours.

We join with all of those whose lives are free, in thanking you who kept them so. May God bless you and keep us ever mindful of your sacrifice.

Your friends,

The Optimist Club of Hereford.

Indians Had Disposable Diaper First

TORONTO (AP) — Nature's throw-away diapers still are used by many Northern Ontario Indian mothers who stick to the economical and practical methods of baby care their forebears have followed for centuries.

Indian mothers use absorbent moss, which they pack around the baby being carried in a "Tikinagan" or moss-bag on its mother's back.

Frank Belmore describes the Indian's answer to a diaper service in "The Tikinagan," an article in the current issue of Sylva, published by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

The Tikinagan is a basket-like cradle, made mainly of wood, in which the Indian child, padded with moss and firmly laced, spends most of his time until he can walk. He rides strapped to his mother's back or in a canoe or sled. But is taken out at night to sleep.

Tradition and superstition are linked in the making of a Tikinagan.

gum, spruce being used for the main board. Pine is taboo because the Indian associates pine branches with the sighing of the wind that would disturb a sleeping child.

The spruce is cut from the southeast side of the tree because of the Indian belief in the influence the rising sun has on life. The child's back will rest against the side of the wood away from the heart of the tree, because to face the center of a tree is a symbol of death. His head will be at the end of the board toward the top of the tree because nothing can grow upside down.

The baby is bound into a U-shaped frame of ash or white birch by a laced-up strip of plaid blanket. Around him is packed the absorbent moss. Rabbit fur keeps his feet warm in winter.

Indian babies suffer no diaper rash, possibly due to the moss having antiseptic qualities. A dusting powder of rotted birch wood is sometimes used to relieve chafing.

When the baby outgrows his Tikinagan at about 10 months, he is transferred to another in a large size. Instead of throwing the old one away, it used to be the custom to take it into the bush and fasten it to a sturdy tree.

There are some 13,700 foresters in the United States.

Hints For First Dates Given In Behavior Tests

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The first real date is a big occasion. It may be that new boy in the neighborhood who has been giving you the eye. Or perhaps it is a new classmate or a boy you've been hoping to have recognize you. It is definitely different from any other date ever.

Test that first-date rating to see how you'd stack up or maybe why you didn't clock on that all-important occasion with this list prepared under the guidance of a couple of willing males.

1. Would you try to dominate the conversation?

(c) Contribute to the conversation if you can.

2. At a restaurant when confronted with the menu would you:
(a) Impress him by ordering a fancy, expensive dish;
(b) Ask him to suggest something;
(c) Put it if he attempts to steer you to a dish.

3. If he invites you to a movie do you:
(a) Suggest the movie you prefer at once;
(b) Wait to see if he'll ask your opinion;
(c) Act bored with the idea of going to a movie at all.

4. If he calls for you at home would you:
(a) Be ready to leave when the door bell rings;
(b) Keep him waiting to impress him;
(c) Mystify him by not being around for the first 15 minutes.

DO... neglect to put a pail or other container under the cleanout plug before you remove it.

DO... allow grease to congeal in the pipes; avoid this by running scalding water in the sink for a couple of minutes after each dishwashing.

Double Duty Hammer Handle

Wax or soap makes a screw easier to drive. But it's easy to misplace a chunk of such lubricant in the tool box. A shallow hole drilled in the end of a hammer handle will hold wax or soap where you can find it. Since a screw is usually started with a tap from a hammer, you'll always have the lubricant handy.

what the dry land farmers and ranchers in the north and west parts of the county have been through. They have really had a tough row to hoe.

Mary Bourn, C-C receptionist, was telling me the other day that she spent her vacation this fall with relatives on a ranch near Tascosa. She says that they bought butane weed burners and have been burning the barbs off cactus in order to carry their cattle. They are getting by, but now they are beginning to hear that this diet will injure or kill the cattle. Is this true? I know they did it a lot back in the 30's, but it may have also killed a lot of them. I don't know.

In contrast to the parched areas of the county, Frank Barber has on display a pod of okra which measures 42 inches in length. It is a special "Florida" variety, but he says it tastes just like any other okra, fried or boiled. To me, the thing looks more like a giant cucumber. Mrs. Barber grew it in the family garden, but Frank says he had to get special permission from Mrs. Johnny Winkler to display the pod. This was because it got so long and so big that most of it was over the property line and on the Winkler land. I know this all sounds like propaganda, but it isn't. Mike Koelzer has been wanting some of the seed and Frank told him they would sell for $1 apiece. "Ok," said Mike, "I'll take one."

This is a new angle to me. I am going to check with Jack Fortenberry, who is another old boy that weathered them both. I have a lot of respect for Charley and Jack, especially about the lack of moisture and how to get along without it. Few of us really appreciate

Folk Tales Best, Miss Moore Tells Central Meeting

Miss Helen White Moore of West Texas State College, Canyon, was guest speaker at the Central P-TA meeting held Thursday afternoon in Central School auditorium.

Beginning with literature or reading for small children, she recommended the folk tales that feature simple characters and build up to a climax, going right to a happy ending. In modern literature for those a little older, she compared Superman to Paul Bunyan, and told of present day biographies which now deal with more human like people.

She said that history novels are resented by children unless the characters are more important and out in front of the history. "The singing verses are best for children, with the verse kept simple and a pretty image described," she commented.

Following the talk a short business session was directed by the president, Mrs. Joe Reinauer.

Dr. Howard Scott Elected Wayland College Trustee

CORPUS CHRISTI (Sp) — Dr. Howard Scott, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Hereford, Thursday was re-elected a trustee of the Wayland Baptist College at Plainview.

The action came on the final day of the Baptist General Convention of Texas' annual meeting here.

Wayland is one of the 11 institutions of higher learning owned and operated by the convention. The schools have spent more than $5,012,450 for new buildings and renovations during the past 12 months and now have assets totaling $42 million. This is an increase of $10 million during the past three years.

Dr. Scott will serve for a three-year term.

and such a big one. Earnest Langley and Ray Cowser tell me that it is bigger than anything this side of Lubbock. They say that it is bigger than the Fair Coliseum in Amarillo. Anyway it is 200 by 100 feet — or 20,000 feet of floor space.

Lots of people are objecting to the name, "Bull Barn." They do not think it is sophisticated or dignified enough. Maybe they are right, but I personally like the title. It tells a big, long story in two little words. However, very few bulls will ever be sold in the new barn — and if folks really do want to change the name, now would be the time. How about "Deaf Smith County Coliseum"?

Many people have stopped me to agree on the fact that voting facilities in Deaf Smith County are about as far from a secret ballot as you can get. Some don't mind, others do. About the legality of our present system, I don't know. All through school, though, I read about the American right of secret ballot — and we sure don't have it in our large boxes.

A JOKE ABOUT two duck hunters is making the rounds. One of the men carried a bottle of whiskey while the other carried a bottle of water. After a couple of hours, both of the bottles were depleted down to the halfway mark — and still no ducks. Both men had another swig and about that time one lone duck came sailing over the blind. The water-drinking partner grabbed his gun, took careful aim, fired twice — and missed both times. The other hoisted his gun, glanced up, fired once — and down came the duck right into the blind.

"That's the most beautiful shot I ever saw in my life," said the first hunter. "It was simply wonderful."

"Naw, 'twasn't," replied the other. "Out of a bunch like that I usually get five or six."

Petitions are now being circulated for a city Airport election. The Commissioners will maybe act on them Monday night. This is a good deal. We really need an airport — and a lot of the farmers feel that the city will benefit most. Whether this is true or not, the election will be a good thing. Personally, I think it will go over this time. People are beginning to realize that an airport is an investment, not a luxury. In addition, the federal government is about ready to withdraw their 50 percent grant if we don't do something. Building a modern airport at the currently proposed figure is something to consider a long time before we say "No."

Records show that the present drouth is worse than the one back in the "dirty thirties." Such, at least, was the opinion of Dan Trew, KGNC weather expert, who appeared in Hereford twice this week as a speaker. Dan says that the drouth has lasted longer — and that we have had less moisture. He also says that he confines his weather bets to a nickel, "because anyone who would bet more than a nickel on Panhandle weather is crazy." He went overboard this week, however, and says that he is betting six cents that 1957 will break the drouth. This was after he pointed out that he lost his nickel on the same bet for 1956.

I wasn't real sure if Dan was right about the length of the drouth, so I asked Charley Burke, who is an old boy that has weathered them both. Charley says Dan is right. He says we had a lot more moisture in the 30's. Charley even figured that the extra moisture back in those days may have caused the unusual spread of dust. He figures that is why Kansas and Oklahoma are now on the march, and points out that the dusters follow rains.

This is a new angle to me. I am going to check with Jack Fortenberry, who is another old boy that weathered them both. I have a lot of respect for Charley and Jack, especially about the lack of moisture and how to get along without it. Few of us really appreciate

Ed Skypala and Emmett Sherman were making plans Wednesday for a pheasant hunt in the north part of South Dakota. Understood that they planned to leave early yesterday morning.

If you can stomp a big, pleasant surprise, take off a few minutes and run out for a look at the new "Bull Barn." It is really nice — and it is really big! This is something we have been needing for a long time, and it is turning out much, much better than I expected. In fact, it is a dandy. The Commissioners have proven beyond a doubt that you can do a lot of building for a little bit of money. They are installing the seats now, and still have about half of the floor to pour. I thought it was really wonderful, and it would do a lot toward promoting interest in 4-H and FFA work during the next few years. Maybe even a fair or ice revue.

This is also a building about which the tax payer can offer little protest. From here, it looks like the county will have spent possibly less than $5,000 in tax money. Certainly not more than $10,000, which is pretty good for a $60,000 coliseum.

Most of the cost of the new building can be credited to the Hereford Breeders Association, which deeded the old "Bull Barn" to the county back down the line. Out of this, the county got $15,000 insurance after the fire, then sold the building and lots for around $23,000. This makes $38,000 to offset against the $40,000 cost of the building. Wiring, kitchens, plumbing, etc., will probably run the county another $2,500 or $3,000.

In addition, the Hereford Lions Club has spent around $15,000 on the interior of the building in the form of bleachers, restrooms, heating, dressing rooms, etc.

The main thing, though, is the fact that it is such a nice building

American Fashion Comes Of Age

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Having attained the ripe old age of about 50 years, American fashion is a big boy now. The biggest in the world, if you want to make comparisons.

Recent establishment of a Fashion Hall of Fame, with designer Norman Norell its first member, calls attention to the growing influence of American designers on world fashion trends. The announcement was made during ceremonies attending the Coty American Fashion Critics Awards, given this year to milliner Sally Victor and young Cuban designer Luis Estevez.

A return award was made to James Galanos of California, 30-year-old sensation of the high-fashion world. And a special award was given to a mother-son team, Gertrude and Robert Goldworn, for carving out new horizons in the field of knitwear.

It was pointed out that until after the turn of the century, America had no fashion industry as it is known today. Most clothes were made at home or by the family dressmaker, by patterns adapted from the French. Development of the sewing machine on a commercial mass-production basis gave birth to the business of ready-to-wear, which now is among the nation's top three or four industries.

With growth of the garment industry came emergence of American designers, who first began getting individual recognition around the start of World War I, with the first fashion "Winnies" awarded in 1943. Since then the annual awards have gone to a growing and imposing group of designers, each of whom has given new stature and importance to American fashions.

WOOL-KNIT SWANK—Robert Goldworn, who with his mother, Gertrude, received an award for outstanding design in knitwear, inspects ensemble of white cable-knit sheath dress and gray knit coat accented by white cable-knit stripes down front.

THEATER SUIT—James Galanos, noted California designer, uses dark gray flannel for strapless gown and mink-collared jacket.

Now that the election is over, the community is gradually settling down to making plans for the long dry winter ahead. Those assisting in the election Tuesday at the Sims Community House were J. G. Fortenberry, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Burk and M. M. Blankenship.

Mrs. A. H. Palk of Tulsa arrived Thursday for a visit with the H.D. Tomlinsons and friends. She left Monday to go on to Brenham and a visit with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nellis. The Palks are former residents of Adrian.

Returns To Home
Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Loveless returned his sister, Mrs. Homer Collins, to her home at Hartshorne, Okla., on Friday. They also visited his parents, the J. L. Lovellesses, at Bache, Okla. We are sorry to hear of Mrs. Bessie Shipp's illness since her return to Adrian.

Move To Farmington
Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Zaring and family have taken leave of Adrian this week. They purchased a house trailer and moved to Farmington, N. M., where M. H. has been employed as a carpenter for some time.

The Adrian Parent - Teachers Assn. wishes to invite the community to a Thanksgiving dinner to be held in the High School gymnasium Nov. 19 at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Roy Fisher has returned home from an extended visit to Ames, Okla., the past week.

Derby Winner Worked Hard For Top Spot

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The winner of the national soap box derby, Norman Westfall 14, of Rochester, N. Y., says that one result of the triumph is that: "You're a little more popular with girls."

Not that it means too much to Norman, a sophomore at Spencer Port H. S., who has lots of fun out of life anyway, hunting rabbits, pheasant, being a good shot with his 22 rifle and a 12-gauge double-barrel shotgun, fishing and hobbies that wouldn't interest girls anyway.

But it is fun to be on top of a competition when you've tried so hard.

It took Norman 2 years to build his soap box racer in spare time. It is made of maple and asbestos, the asbestos mixed with glue and water and molded over the maple. It cost him only $15 and he's already won that back hundreds of times over — a $5,000 college scholarship, a ring, a 3-foot trophy, clothes from local stores, a wrist watch and best of all — a fine all-expense trip to New York for his mother, father and himself.

His brothers, Bobby 10, and Dick 6, could have been in on that too but "preferred to stay home with grandma so they wouldn't have so much home work to make up ill. His condition is reported to be serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Brown were here Tuesday to vote.

NORMAN WESTFALL

when they returned," Norman relates.

"We're just the right distance apart in age so that all may compete in the soap box derby without pitting against each other," says Norman who won't be in another soap box derby now that he's won. Bobby is building a car right now, and Dick is hoping to get on with one later on.

How did Norman get interested in the race?

"It began with little model cars, interchanging grilles from one to the other, and went on from there — you see I want to be a mechanical engineer some day." He tinkers now with the family second car, vintage 1940, which he'll be permitted to drive in two years.

His soap box is 6 feet from nose to tail, made to specifications supplied by sponsors who also provide standard axles and wheels so that one car does not have an advantage. The car fits him "like a shoehorn" Norman says. Each candidate has a newspaper sponsor also — Norman's was the Rochester Times Union. He's never been scared in a competition although his mother is very, very nervous when he's in a race. The big final run — 975 feet long at Akron, Ohio — that's the race that tells the final story. "The funny part of it," says Norman, "I thought all the time I was still in the semi-finals when I won. Maybe that's the secret of winning — being able to relax and not having too much pressure on you."

GERM KILLER
A new commercial chemical formula is said to be capable of destroying all known disease-producing bacteria on contact. The formula (Corobex) is being added to plastic, rubber, ink, paper, paraffin and paint and may be added to textiles and leather to make these items permanently self-sterilizing. It is non-toxic and non-allergic to humans, says Dr. Henri Coutinho, developer of the formula, and has passed bacteriostatic approved laboratories.

I didn't get to go to Amarillo to hear Amy Vanderbilt speak, but I heard that she gave plenty of practical advice on manners pertinent to life on the High Plains. It seems that there are any number of rules of etiquette which have come to be changed in order to more nearly coincide with informality in everything from commercial business to social entertaining. Since informality is a more common keynote than formality in our locale, we should be happy to accept these changes in etiquette.

HAYDITE BLOCS
have 10 Bonus Building Advantages no other block can equal:

- LIGHTER WEIGHT—Makes possible reduction in dead load without sacrificing strength. Easy to handle—quick to lay.
- STRENGTH IN EXCESS of normal requirements and local building codes. An average HAYDITE Bloc can support the weight of a loaded railway freight car weighing 72 tons.
- FIRE RESISTANCE—Will withstand temperatures well in excess of 2,000 degrees F.
- UNIFORMITY—Permits pattern work of unvarying accuracy and beauty.
- MORE PAINTABLE—HAYDITE Blocs take paint perfectly with no possibility of rusting or other blemishes bleeding through.
- MORE ATTRACTIVE—Pleasing texture and natural gray color blend in beautifully for either modern or traditional architecture.
- INSULATES ACOUSTICALLY—The unusual cellular structure absorbs noise to such a high degree that other sound insulating materials are usually unnecessary.
- AVAILABLE—You can nail right into a HAYDITE Concrete Block to save real time and money on many jobs.
- DURABLE—HAYDITE Blocs are concrete and multitude of tiny air cells in HAYDITE Blocs are excellent insulators in summer and winter.
- DURABLE—HAYDITE Blocs are concrete and naturally are impervious to rodents, termites, rot and corrosion.

Dodson, chairman, Mrs. Frank Prowell and Mrs. Leroy Aven.

Every member of the club is working toward making the event bigger and better than ever and are busily putting last minute touches to plans so that visitors may view interesting collections of both creative and collective art including antiques, china painting, ceramic art, Oriental art, oil, pastel and pencil painting, wood carving, photography, needlework, hand made jewelry, and other interesting hobbies. There also will be commercial showings.

Built around the theme "An Hour With The Arts," arrangements in both the adult and junior divisions have been designed to appeal to every taste. There will be first, second and third place ribbons in each class of each division. Members of the club will serve as hostesses.

Mrs. Richard Jewell, who has a wonderful collection of antiques, is shown with a 19th Century Dresden china clock, one of her pieces to be in the show. It is an Amsterdam clock made in France and is exquisitely done in shades of pale pink and raspberry rose. It has solid brass trim and all brass works.

Mrs. J. R. Johnson is pictured above with a portrait done in oil by Mrs. Henry Weemes. This portrait of her mother-in-law, was done recently by Mrs. Weemes, and will be shown along with several other oil paintings in the hobby show. (Staff Photos)

Members of the planning committee compare notes on arrangements. Entries are being screened and selected and facilities for showing the collections to the best advantage are being discussed. Pictured left to right are Mrs. Don Little, Mrs. S. S. Dodson, chairman, Mrs. M. C. Adams, president, and Mrs. F. L. Alexander. Not shown are Mrs. Frank Prowell and Mrs. Leroy Aven.

Mrs. Clint Farby sits at a teakwood table from Hong Kong, China, which is also a part of Mrs. Jewell's antique collection, looking over some pieces of art in Mrs. Jeff Gilbreath's collection sent to her by her son, Carl Shirley, while he was teaching in Japan. "How I would love to have that doll!" was her statement as she admired the delicately fashioned items.

THAT PEACE MAY PREVAIL

WE SALUTE A DAY REDEDICATED TO PEACE AND FREEDOM

Not many years ago we celebrated November 11th as Armistice Day — the end of the war to end all wars. Now we know tragically that such a thing can never be, so long as greed and arrogance exist.

Now we rededicate this day to those who valiantly fought for freedom, and resolve to keep our country strong enough to maintain the peace. That is the meaning of VETERAN'S DAY!

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

Radio Day Will Mirror Work

The annual school radio day on Monday will kick off activities in observance of American Education Week in Hereford. Programs from each of the schools will be aired, and all the high school organizations will present an overview or sampling of their work. The high school Distributive Education Club sponsors the radio day as its one money-raising project of the year. Students sell ads, write continuities, and take charge of production at the local radio station. They work under the direction of their sponsor, J. C. Reese, and members of the staff of KPAN. In addition to club groups, many talented students will appear in individual performances. Programs also will be presented by the school bands, choirs, and musical ensembles. Supt. Fred J. Cunningham and each of the school principals extend a special invitation to school patrons and all others who are interested to visit any of the schools during the week. This invitation includes the cafeterias, who invite those who are interested to eat with them. Those who wish to do so should call the cafeteria or send a note to school by their children so that preparations can be included for them, school officials point out. Work from the high school shop classes and homemaking classes will be on display in downtown windows. "Schools for a Strong America" is the theme for the annual American Education Week observance this year during the week of Nov. 11-17. The annual emphasis on American education is sponsored by the American Legion, the National Education Assn., and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Library Club To Present Skit On Radio Program

The Sadye Rigler Library Club has announced plans to present a skit on the radio during the week of Nov. 7, 1956. At this meeting it was decided that in the future, all the fiction books would be checked out for 14 days instead of 7 days. They discussed the stunt for Stunt Night and the radio skit to be put on Nov. 12 over KPAN. A new reporter, Tina Beth Hazlewood, was elected to fill the post vacated by Martha Logan. The meeting was adjourned by the president, Donna Sue Guseman.

District Meeting For FTA Members

Members of the Future Teachers of America went to Canyon Tuesday for the district FTA meeting. The group organized for the coming year, and elected district officers. Different chapters in the district had parts in a talent show, and Mr. and Miss F.T.A. were elected to represent this district in the Texas Contest. Those attending the Canyon meeting were Dorothy Daniel, Sue Springer, Carlynn Williams, Kee

OFFICERS of the local teachers group of the Deaf Smith County Classroom Teachers Association are Mrs. Merlin Kaul, president; Charles Duvall, second vice president; and Mrs. Tommie Braddy, secretary. The first meeting of the year will be held tomorrow night.

Teachers Group To Hear Rogers

Supt. Charles Rogers of the Amarillo Public Schools will be guest speaker at the first meeting of the year for the Deaf Smith County Classroom Teachers Assn. in the high school auditorium Monday night at 7:30. "How the Classroom Teachers' Organization Works with the Administration," will be the theme of his address. Officers of the local teachers' group, which was organized last year, are Mrs. Merlin Kaul, president; Joe Smith, first vice president; Charles Duvall, second vice president; Jim Garner, third vice president; Mrs. Faust Collier, treasurer; and Mrs. Tommie Braddy, secretary.

Production Crew Named For Play

The production crew for "Phantom of the High School" was announced this week. Bill Woodford heads the stage crew, and house managers are Sandra Story, Sue Channer, and Nancy Cockrell. In charge of publicity are Bill Knox, Alan Newman, and Mary Lou McCullough. Other stage hands are Richard Leggett, Joe Reinauer, Jim Bradley, and Ann Wagoner. On the property committee are Joan Brown, Sandra Story, Karolyn Kirby, Dolle Prowell, Carol Ann Newell and Betty Jean Noland.

In charge of costumes will be Carlynn Williams, Danny Cleveland, Betty Sneed, Virginia Witherspoon and Dora Fern Goldston. On the prompting committee are Charlotte Moore, Phyllis Sumner, Azalee Brown and Kay Sims. Ushers will be Ann Rose Dziuk, Judy Coffin, Carole Ford, De Lourdes Buck, Patsy Cowart, Barbara Martin, Jane Pool, Sandra Roberson, Jonnalee Blocker, Linda Hair, Almona Ritcha, and Dorothea Williams.

In charge of makeup will be Norma Hamby, Doug Womble, Sheryl Patterson and LaVera Head. Phyllis Sumner and Jane Newsom will provide piano music at the performances on Dec. 6 and 7.

AT LIBRARY MEETINGS

Mrs. Olean Leggett, high school librarian, attended two library meetings last weekend. The first meeting was held at Amarillo, and the second was an all-day meeting at Panhandle.

Approximately 90 librarians of the West Texas area, extending as far south as Lamesa, attended on Saturday. The highlight of that meeting was a speech on "The Sleeping Giant," by Mrs. Lura Currier, director of the Mississippi Library Commission.

CARD OF THANKS

The Homemaking Department of Hereford High School would like to express their appreciation for the very useful gift of the Presto sauce pan that was given recently to them by the Westway Home Demonstration Club.

NOTES OUT OF SCHOOL

ANNUAL STAFF VISITS DALLAS

The kids that helped canvas Hereford for funds for CROP are to be congratulated. They raised $828.13. That's over $15 more than the year before. Harder To Get How many of you ended up with privilege cards this year? I can see those are going to become treasured little jewels. They're sure a lot harder to get this year. H.S. is buzzing for plans for the annual D.E. radio day program Monday. Always a big day as nearly everybody manages to get out of school at one time or another for at least 15 minutes. Staff To Fort Worth The four members of the annual staff, Betty Sneed, Betty Ferguson, Gladys Lee, and Bill Johnson, accompanied by their sponsor, Mrs. Virgil Dodson, really had a ball in Fort Worth the first of the week. Or so we hear. They attended an annual clinic there, and learned a lot of useful hints that will really make our annual better than ever. Hereford received a camera at the clinic for being the farthest town represented. We heard the girls "accidentally" got in a boy's dorm. What about that? Rock 'N Roll Music—? People, how did you like the band's new music? We hear they are getting some new songs in, like "Hound Dog," "Blue Moon," and "Alleghany Moon."

D. M. and S. M. are very rude. Another class was listening to a record of "Love Me Tender," and they told Mrs. P. to be quiet so they could listen. The band kids are worried about who is going to play the "big" drum. The person who usually does has a sore foot because he dropped a case of canned goods on it. You'd better get well, D. R. B. L. might get tired of limping along with you. Two freshman girls wrote a story about their lives for one day in school. D. N. and S. M. must like some upperclassmen. Good luck.

POTPOURRI

Are Ducks Worth The Effort?

By CAROL INMAN

The scene: A typical Hereford home during November. The time: The ghastly hour of 4:30 a.m.

It's not daylight yet, and the weather outside is very, very chilly, while the winds are circling the house daring a person to step outside.

Everyone is sound asleep in a warm bed, but suddenly the alarm clock begins ringing.

After several seconds, a hand quickly grasps the clock and silences it by pushing the alarm button, while the head attached to the arm begins thinking merrily about hrowing the old clock against the wall, and sleeping for three or four more hours.

But—in a few minutes—the body moves, and out of the bed jumps a typical Hereford man who goes to hunt ducks! He throws his warmest and oldest clothes on, and leaves with shotgun, hot coffee, and plenty of shells. Soon, at the house of a friend, he is fortified by a second cup of coffee, and they leave for "their private place where ALL the ducks-are."

Several hours later, the men stagger back home, sleepy and tired, but very happy, because they got what they went after—plenty of ducks!

The men's job is done, and now it's time for the wife to take over—cleaning, picking or skinning, and dressing the ducks. She either fixes them for a Sunday dinner, or puts them in the freezer for a big Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner.

Seen around Hereford during the past three weeks on their way to hunt in the wee morning hours... Charlie Bell and Fred Cunningham... Lloyd Brooks... Jackie Allmon... Melton White... Leroy Morrison... Bill Dufur... and several others.

Bill Dufur and Leroy Morrison along with three other boys, loaded their shotguns bright and early Sunday morning and set out. They were sporting 30 ducks when they returned about 9 a.m. For several hours, the five boys were kept busy in Leroy's backyard—skinning ducks!

Wiley Nance, brother of Mrs. J. A. Noland, died of a heart attack Thursday at his home in Lockney. He was 64 years old and the father of eight children, two of whom are in the armed forces stationed in France. Funeral services for Mr. Nance are pending. He had many friends here, especially in the Summerfield Community.

This organization is for students who excel in their field and maintain a 2.0 average in home economics, a general scholastic average of 1.5 and have completed a minimum of 12 hours in home economics.

WT Homecoming Highlights WT chefs will have more than 6,000 mouths to feed if everyone expected for the annual Homecoming celebration shows up. The Homecoming barbecue crew anyway, has ordered enough beef to satisfy that number, which would set a new record attendance for WT's big day.

Final preparations are underway for next Saturday, Nov. 17, when the college's ex-students are honored. More than 5,500 of them returned to visit last year, and the number increases steadily each year.

Special honors this year will go to the Class of 1931, which will observe its 25th Anniversary. On Friday, class members will have a get-together at the home of Dr. R. P. Jarrett, and will have a reunion meeting Saturday morning. Highlights on Homecoming include registration at 8 a.m., the usual parade in downtown Canyon at 10:30, the famed WT barbecue at noon, a football game between the Buffaloes and Texas Western at 2 p.m., club teas, parties, and smokers at 4:30, and the Homecoming dance at 8 p.m. concluding the day's activities.

Off To Army Duty Two Dimmitt boys who attended the Army Reserve meetings in Hereford during their senior year in High School have now joined the active army. Pvt. Don K. CHURCH WORK

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP)—Grace Methodist Church had $53 and its congregation had sore muscles, back kinks and sunburned faces and hands to prove the members would work for their church.

The congregation picked 1,700 pounds of cotton on a nearby farm and donated the proceeds to the church building fund.

This Motorist Can Never Forget!

By ROBERT H. SPIEGEL, DES MOINES TRIBUNE WRITER

Don't read this if you have ever killed a child with your car. You won't need it. Otherwise, you had better read every word.

This is for any motorist, more for the careless than the careful. And it is for every parent of a child who might dart into the street after a rolling ball . . . and never get it . . . or run to meet a friend on the other side of the street . . . and never reach him.

This is the story of a man whose car struck and killed a small child. There is small comfort to the man because authorities called it "an accident." The little girl is dead.

The name of the driver isn't important. He suffered enough when the impersonal words in the newspaper spelled out what happened on that summer day two years ago.

It's enough to say he's a young business man nearing 30. He is married and has two children.

For the sake of anonymity he will be called Mr. Miller. This is the way he tells it.

icular day he left early, shortly before 4 p.m.

(Since he has asked himself again and again . . . "Why, why did I have to leave early that day?" Just a minute or two, or a few seconds either way, and it wouldn't have happened. . .)

Miller was driving on a smooth country road. There was no posted speed limit. Later he estimated he was driving about 45 miles an hour.

"I wasn't going anywhere in a hurry," he says. "I'd left work early. There was no rush.

"I saw this car coming toward me slowly. A door swung open on the side opposite the driver. I saw quite a few people in the car.

"I never actually saw the girl.

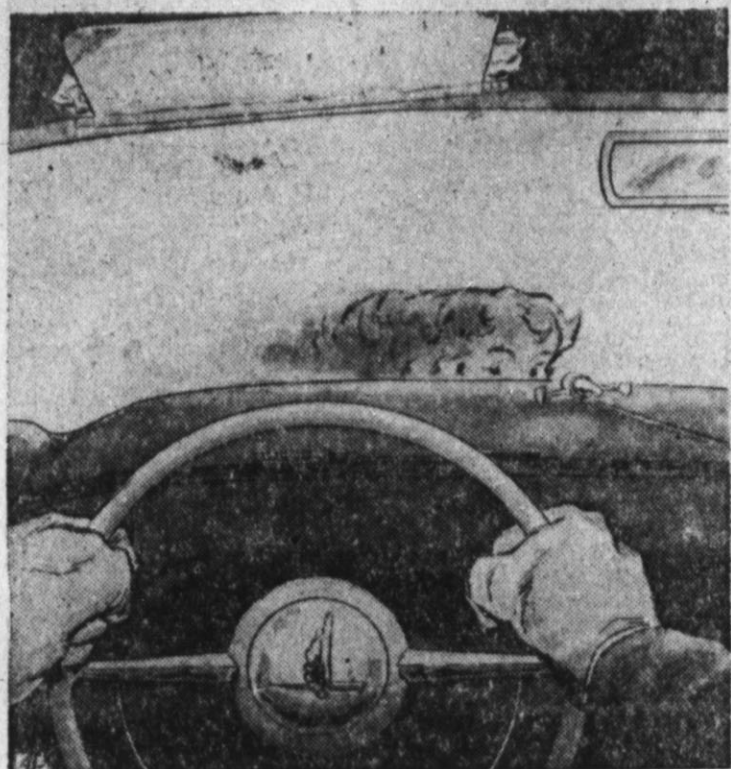

"I remember seeing a flash of red color. I heard the car hit something, then I saw children near the rear of the car that had stopped.

"I knew I had hit someone. Maybe it was their dog. But I knew it wasn't.

"I was so stunned I let the car coast a ways."

He felt detached from the event. He was there, but he wasn't.

Authorities pieced together the story. The man in the car that had stopped was bringing several youngsters home from school. The children got out of the car and apparently ran out from behind the car. A little girl was first. She ran in front of Miller's car.

I saw a flash of red color!

"I ran back and saw her in the ditch. She was awfully close to the size of my own little girl."

The driver of the other car ran up. He carried a blanket. Miller put the little girl on the blanket and picked her up in his arms. Her eyes were closed. They started toward a hospital.

"All the time I tried to think that it was nothing more than a broken leg, nothing more. But I knew she was dead all the time. Either dead or she was going to die.

"It was such a lost feeling."

At the hospital they took the small girl from Miller's arms. He looked at the crook of the arm where he had pillowed her head. The arm was soaked with blood. He hadn't noticed before.

Two or three minutes later a doctor came out and said the little girl was dead.

TOUGHEST MOMENT

The "toughest moment" Miller ever has experienced came a few minutes later when the parents of the girl arrived at the hospital.

"I kept thinking, 'What if it had been my little girl!'"

That was two long years ago but the accident still lives with Miller.

"Even now when I drive down the street and see kids going a cross ahead of me . . . way ahead . . . the impact is almost as great as the day of the accident.

"I drive so cautiously today that sometimes I think I look ridiculous but I don't care."

One great fear rides with Miller:

"It could happen to me again . . . and I couldn't possibly go through it a second time."

He doesn't want to see a flash of red color again. And feel the cruel bump.

JAPAN TOPS IN SUICIDES

TOKYO, AP—Japan has more suicides per capita than any other nation. The welfare ministry reported 22,138 in 1955 — 24.8 per 100,000 population. This was a 1.4 per cent rise over 1954, when Japan also was the world leader, followed by Denmark, Austria, West Germany and Switzerland.

The majority of Japan's suicides were committed by persons under 30 and over 60.

The presidential campaign song in 1900 was "Prosperity, Protection and McKinley."

Two Church Groups Gather For Food And Fun Parties

By DELLA RUTH DOW

Waltine Beavers was honored on Sunday afternoon with a surprise birthday party in the home of Betty Alice Tucker. Games were the entertainment for the group.

Those attending were Marilyn Vivian Rapstine, Billy Wimberley, Dorothea Stewart, Lucy Beth and Gail Miller, Buster and Pat Tucker, Betty Hagar, James Gentry, Mrs. Thomas Tucker and children of Canyon and the honoree and hostess.

Hamburger Fry

The young people had a hamburger fry in the Paul McClung home Monday evening. Those present were Bobby Miller, Betty Hagar, Lucy Beth Miller, Phyllis Wimberley, Della Ruth Dow and the Rev. and Mrs. Paul McClung and Kenneth Dale. Mrs. McClung is the group's SS teacher and the Rev. McClung is their training union leader.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dow and Della spent the weekend in Clayton and Dalhart. They visited their two daughters and families in Clayton. Also one of their granddaughters and her husband. In Dalhart they visited with Mr. Dow's father whose birthday is Sunday.

Enjoy SS Party

The Intermediates had a Sunday School party Friday night in the H. S. Fuller home. Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and Cokes were served to those present: Billy Lynn Miller, Dorothea Stewart, Jerry Clark, H. S. Fuller, Waltine Beavers, Jimmy Gentry, Thomas Coffman, Loretta Russell and their teacher, Mrs. Reece Stewart.

Among those shopping in Amarillo this past week were Mrs. Walt Beavers, Waltine and Loretta Russell.

Mrs. Henry Dow and Della Ruth went to Dalhart Wednesday to bring Mr. Dow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dow, home with them. Mr. Dow's father is ill.

ON SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY—Bugler Hartley Edwards, left, and his wife receive a bon voyage bouquet from railroadman L. M. Stuart in Denison as they started on a trip to Paris, France. Edwards, 61, former bugler under Marshall Foch in World War I, plans to fulfill a wish expressed by the late general to play taps once again under the Arch de Triumph on Nov. 11 in memory of "all the soldiers who have died." Edwards played taps there in the original Armistice celebration in 1918. (AP Photo)

Musical Therapy Speeds Recoveries Of Patients

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—If the patient's hands are burned, the doctor prescribes piano.

If he has a deflated lung, the prescription is clarinet.

The man confined to bed takes up the mandolin or ukelele. If he is tubercular, he plays the organ, for to press down its keys requires no muscular effort at all.

Some 60,000 people, mostly in veterans' hospitals, are getting treatments of this general nature thanks to the Musicians Emergency Fund and the Hospitalized Veterans Service.

People used to talk about the music that had charms to soothe the savage breast. Now they say, "musical therapy." They mean pretty much the same thing: music does something to help cure the physically or the mentally injured or deficient.

President of both the fund, now a quarter-century old, and of the service, Mrs. Lytle Hull recalls the start of this work:

"It was depression time. The money troubles of a few musicians were dramatized by the suicide of a well known singer. A group of musicians got together to create an emergency fund, with Walter Damrosch as the first president, and I was one of the lay members. I remember that the need was so great and the appeal so touching that we raised $400,000 in the twinkling of an eye."

She was interested because it was a personal service. She didn't help an institution, but a particular man or woman.

The fund, as it operated originally, paid the rent, or grocery bill, or met doctor, hospital and even funeral expenses. It gave the lawyer his fee. It bought clothes for the woman who had an engagement to sing if she could dress for it. And it got a ticket to Chicago for a man offered a job there.

In the first 10 or 15 years it paid musicians to play every day in 20 New York public schools.

Mrs. Hull estimates three to four million dollars was spent for these purposes, and says the number of professional musicians who received this help was incalculable.

Some of this work continues today, but about 95 per cent of the fund's efforts now goes to aid the sick and injured in some 50 hospitals, state and federal, and old-age homes from here to Chicago. Some communities, particularly a couple in Pennsylvania, are preparing to raise their own money; and the idea has been introduced in England.

MRS. LYTLE HULL

The war work began, says Mrs. Hull, "with a Red Cross request for some one to teach saxophone to a sick sailor" and eventually the injured took a predominant place in the program.

"Our 300 teachers teach everything except harp." Why not the harp? No one has asked for it—yet.

"For the first two years, the doctors in the hospitals wouldn't look at us. Now in some hospitals they have taken over our teachers on a full-time basis. There were some facts they could not get around, for instance that members of a glee club recovered their health and were discharged quicker than the patients who did not sing."

Most of the country's leading musicians have contributed their time and money directly to veterans, hospitals, and the fund. Fritz Kreisler is chairman, Arthur Rubinstein one of the vice presidents.

"The only limit to our work," says Mrs. Hull, "is the budget."

She reports some 20 requests a week from musicians of acknowledged competence and sometimes with a public reputation for a little money or a little work, and the teachers in the hospitals are often professional teachers who don't earn quite enough in their own studios, or good pianists whose recital programs don't quite carry them through the year.

The fund and service now spend about $12,000 a month, and maintain an office here with a permanent staff of about 12.

Shell of Walls Is All That Remains Of Old Academy

Rockport, Tex. (AP)—Walk along Lamar Peninsula, which juts out from the northern shore of Aransas Bay.

There, near Goose Island State Park, you will find the ruins of an old building built from shell concrete . . . from shells taken from the oyster reefs of the bay.

Parts of walls and the kitchen are all that remain, but more than a century ago the building housed Lamar Academy, a highly regarded girl's academy and one of the earliest schools in the region.

Stories of the founding of Lamar Academy differ.

Harry Traylor, a local historian, says the school was established by a Professor O'Connor, a graduate of Princeton.

"He wore a top hat and sideburns," says Traylor. "He died in 1954 and he's buried in the old Lamar Cemetery. His sister was a teacher and after he died, she carried on the school."

Traylor says the academy's students paid $35 a month for tuition, room and board and had to help with the chores, even driving in and milking the cattle.

He says that once two of the girls were kidnapped by Comanche Indians and carried off to Oklahoma, where they lived for a long time before they were ransomed.

Hobart Hunson of Refugio, whose "History of Refugio County" is the standard work on the region, gives this account of Lamar Academy: "The Lamar Academy was founded by Mrs. Jane P. O'Connor, a kinswoman of Capt. James W. Byrne (Founder of old Lamar), in the early 1850s if not in the late 1840s. Mrs. O'Connor was undoubtedly a cultured and brilliant woman and a great educator. The academy was conducted by her until about 1870."

Both men agree that the academy was well patronized by the substantial families of the area. Those living away from Lamar sent their children to board in the town, either with Mrs. O'Connor or with friends. Some families moved to Lamar and lived there while their daughters were completing their education.

Identify Scene From "Long Ago"

Heading the Long Time Ago column in the Hereford Brand Oct. 17, was a "Do You Remember This One" picture. It was a car covered with flowers with the initials "FBS" on the side, and two ladies were sitting in the car.

We have since learned that the car was the new Buick in 1914, lent to the First State Bank for the parade during the county fair. This car won first prize in the "best float" division.

In the driver's seat of the car was Mrs. Alta Johnson, who was employed at the First State Bank, and accompanying her was Gladys Beetle.

The Buick was lent for the parade by Mrs. Johnson's father, E. Renfro, who was the Hereford Buick dealer in 1914. Mrs. Johnson now lives in Abilene, and her brother John Renfro, lives here at 405 Lawton St.

Make Caraco Jacket

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Today's schoolgirls are making fashion history. By sewing their own, they're turning out clothes with couture style at piggy-bank prices.

One of the hits of the season, by vote of these young moderns, is the caraco jacket suit, which is easy to make at home with a standard pattern. Its softly gathered skirt and pert waist-length jacket suggests the latest "magnet line" of Paris designer Christian Dior.

Local sewing center experts suggest making the suit in tweed. The pattern includes a long-sleeved blouse with a big pussybow and a cummerbund to tie the skirt and blouse together for extra service as an informal date dress.

Because no two girls are built alike, pattern adjustment before cutting the fabric is essential. The pattern chosen is particularly simple for alterations. Inch-rulers printed on the pattern pieces show where to make adjustments. The gathered skirt eliminates hip-fitting problems, and the brief jacket minimizes the waistline with flattering effect.

Covered buttons are prettiest on a suit of this sort, and they're easy to acquire. Just take your fabric to your local sewing center and they'll cover your buttons for a small charge.

CARACO SUIT—Top choice of the campus crowd, easy to make in tweed from pattern.

Bad Manners Are Causing Much Sorrow

AP Newsfeatures
"Most young people today (and my own are no exception) have atrocious manners," writes a disillusioned parent, "and it is pitiful they aren't aware of how much harm they do themselves or other people."

How much harm is done by bad manners?
A mother relates that she has been brought to tears by the actions of a daughter. On one occasion daughter barged into the house with a group of friends and asked her mother and her friends to leave the living room!

A teacher tells how she has been told over and over to mind her own business by a number of spoiled girls in her class. "You can't do anything about it," she says, "because even a parent who understands the problem will rush to the school board and complain if you reprimand their grown-up brats."

Is money the root of the trouble asks one parent.
"Young people make too much money for their own good," he says. "Unlike the last generation, they're not putting the money into the family kitty."

One parent says his young man saved up on an after school job, bought himself a jalopy, and then presented his father with the bills for school tuition books and his clothes.

School girls are wearing horrible dresses in an effort to be sophisticated, one mother says. When she was shocked by the fit and depth of the neckline plunge, her daughter responded with "I bought this with my own money, so why don't you mind your own business?"

What can you do when she's all ready to go out? the mother wails. Young people are rude to each other.
One young girl observed telling a friend that her shoes were the cheapest looking pair she'd ever seen, was appalled when questioned about it. "Well, they were," she countered, not realizing that even if she had been asked to give her opinion her appraisal should have been tempered.

The girl who'd been insulted was hurt as it turned out, but when asked about it replied:
"Oh, I don't mind her. She's afraid to be nice because people will suspect she is soft."

Does this generation pride itself on being hard boiled?
Or is this independence the result of working and earning a good income?

A father has this to say:
"The last generation slaved to make a few pennies in the wheat fields or in a factory to help out a family. That taught them responsibility. But today's young people are only working greedily to corral more choice morsels for themselves. They're getting more egotistical and righteous every day."

It doesn't cost anything to give a verbal bouquet occasionally, to help out on the family groceries, to inflate Mom's ego by consulting her about clothes, to hold your tongue when any elder makes suggestions or offers criticism. If so many people are miserable because young people lack that kind of respect, why not give "being nice" a whirl?

Screwball 'Pardners' To Clown For Star Patrons

PARDNERS
The family will enjoy "Pardners" on the screen at the Star Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Once again the Martin and Lewis team is back, with Jerry cavorting in his usual screwball style, and Dean presents some scenes in this funny satire on westerns.

Dean and Jerry are seen first as turn-of-the-century ranchers whose spread is raided and who die gloriously defending the homestead. Their wives and sons escape and go their different ways — back to the ranch for Dean's mother, and off to New York, fame and fortune for Jerry's.

Dean next appears as a stalwart grown-up cowpoke, with a mortgage he can't meet, and lovely Lori Nelson as a girl friend, while Jerry bows in again as a wealthy hothouse flower with a secret hankering for the rugged life.

Music as well as laughter — and lots of it — will be generously dished out at the "Pardners" chuckwagon. Hit tunes by the writers of "Love and Marriage," and the "Tender Trap," will be sung. Jerry, in typical tenderfoot fashion, blunders his way in and out of one situation after another in the madcap team's adventures.

HELL ON FRISCO BAY
"Hell On Frisco Bay," showing Wednesday and Thursday at the Star Theatre, stars Alan Ladd, Edward G. Robinson, Joanne Dru, William Demarest, and Paul Stewart.

The plot of "Hell On Frisco Bay" is: An ex-police officer is released from jail after serving a five-year sentence for a crime he never committed; he tries to clear his name. This means he must get someone to talk who is close to the notorious character who wields the power over the San Francisco fishermen. Many are murdered before he accomplishes his purpose.

Sherman Student Has All Numbers On Tip of Tongue

Sherman, Tex. (AP)—A 20-year-old Austin College student, Jerry Bell, has a unique system for memorizing telephone numbers. He does it by rearranging them into a mental technicolor combination.

It's part of a system he began using when he was 13 when telephone numbers became a sort of mental hobby for him.

He says certain numbers always have been associated in his mind with color combinations. When he sees a new number he analyzes it into color combinations.

Bell says it works for him. He says he remembers numbers after seeing them only once, regardless of whose number it is or whether he plans to call it.

His unique talent comes in handy, too. One of his initiation stunts for Slimes, a freshman men's organization, was to learn the buzz number for calling each girl in the school dormitories.

In his home town of Gainesville, he used to visit the Chamber of Commerce office and thumb all through out-of-town telephone directories, learning numbers for a pastime.

But his system isn't the "page at a glance" type. He takes the numbers by numerical order. He estimates he knows most of the business numbers in Sherman and all in the Austin College student directory.

He says his talent for memorizing numbers helps him a little in class work, but he says he's no mathematician. Learning formulas comes easy, but he says they just aren't as interesting as telephone numbers.

German Lens Plants Use Age-Old Method

ANOTHER CHECK—A vertical collimator makes one of the final tests on the focusing precision of Rolleiflex cameras at the Franke & Heidecke plant in West Germany.

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newsfeatures

The fine art of lens making means a lot more to me now since I've visited the West German plants where lenses are made with hereditary craftsmanship. Where traditions go back from 40 to 200 years, skills are family heirlooms. Apprentices start in childhood to develop into artisans.

Today, the West German lens plants are in a state of boom and build. Boys of 14 start learning the trade. Even though modern machines have been devised to replace some of the former hand operations in lens grinding and polishing, each plant has its section of hand craftsmen for its finest lenses.

It was young Joe Schneider, son of the founder of the Schneider lens company in Bad Kreuznach, who explained lens making in common sense terms. "Making a lens formula," he said, "is like concocting a cooking recipe for a rare dish when you know what ingredients go into the recipe but don't know how much of each item. You try and try until it tastes right.

"When it works out or tastes right, then you make a sample or prototype before cooking up a big batch."

This much sounds understandable. The complications set in when you call for a chef to juggle the lens recipe. An expert who can devise formulas for successful lens making is one of the most critical items in the business.

He must be familiar with over 200 different kinds of optical glass and their most important consideration—refractive index. His calculations must refer to all measurements and the thickness, size and weight of the optical glasses singly and in combination with others. Most lenses contain many lens elements and their position and the air spaces between are part of the calculations.

The finished lenses must be practical for widespread use, economical to make and tolerances must be so minute that they can be considered negligible.

To boil it down to a specific example, Schneider introduced us to a team of lens design experts and an electronic computing machine with its incredible superhuman mathematical accuracy and also speed. These experts and this machine had taken six months turning out 60,000 data sheets to work out the formulas for the Zenotar, one of their latest lens designs.

We found from our visits to other camera and lens plants that about one out of every five workers checks the accuracy of the parts or operations of preceding work. These control jobs involve intricate testing machines and become more exacting in the final stages. One of the newest devices is an electronic system to find the focusing plane of a lens to within 1/10th of a micron (roughly, 1/250,000 of an inch).

The matter of bubbles in lenses came up for discussion and perhaps now we can clear up the misunderstanding about two popular and contradictory notions: 1. A bubble in a lens is the sign that it is a fine lens. 2. A bubble in a lens is a serious defect.

Schneider said that neither of these statements is true. He was firm in his opinion that a bubble in a lens has no effect on the picture taking quality of a lens if the lens passed all the other routine tests in the preliminary stages.

If a bubble were in the dead cen-

Stamps In The News

Stamp collectors all over the world look forward to new stamps from Switzerland because the adhesives are nearly always of excellent design.

The two latest sets from that country prove the point. Both honor departments of the United Nations (with special offices in Switzerland) — the International Labor Organization and the World Meteorological Organization.

Each set has two designs. The ILO stamps show a symbolic drawing of industrial work and the details from a bas relief of the Albert Thomas Monument in Geneva. The WMO group features weather elements (sun, rain, clouds and snow) and an anemometer.

Five airmail stamps have been issued by Brazil to commemorate the "Santos Dumont Year." The occasion is the 50th anniversary of the first heavier-than-air flight in Brazil. The 3 cruzeiros in green, 3.30 cr blue, 4 cr magenta, 6.50 cr brown, and 11.50 cr red brown. A photo of the first plane flown by Santos Dumont appears on each.

Nationalist China, whose postal offices operate from Formosa, has issued six new stamps honoring the 70th birthday of president Chiang Kai-shek, reports Stamps mater of a lens, it might affect the picture quality if the lens were stopped down to f/32. In that case the bubble would form a major portion of the lens. In actual practice this could never occur due to the rigid checking system.

Bubbles are natural formations which occur in the normal operations of making optical glass. It is possible to make bubble-free glass but only in small quantities and at much greater expense. Experiments which achieved bubble-free glass in the late 1930s were shelved by the war.

In 1948 the program started anew and in 1950 they achieved success by making the glass in platinum crucibles. These, plus new ceramic crucibles and new methods involving high pressure to melt ingredients, point the way to a greater production of bubble-free glass for the future. This would be desirable only because people at present feel that a bubble is an imperfection in a lens.

The final criterion for any lens is: How does it take pictures? So the final check for all good lenses is in a camera body set, on a concrete block and focused on an elaborate chart. When it passes this test it is ready for shipment to camera manufacturers for their new models or to camera store dealers for its final destination—you, the camera fan.

gazine. The stamps show six different portraits of Chiang.

The American Stamp Dealers Assn. exhibition in New York City (Nov. 16-18) will have an attractively designed set of four poster stamps on sale. Since the theme of this year's show is "Stamp Collecting for Children," the design depicts a boy and girl with an open stamp album. A set of four sells for 10 cents. They can be obtained from Peter G. Keller, Executive Officer of the A.S.D.A. at 116 Nassau St., New York 38, N.Y.

Belgium recently issued a set of stamps commemorating the 200th anniversary of Mozart's birth. Now the Belgian Congo has issued an identical set of four Mozart adhesives. One value shows Mozart as an infant of 7 when he lived in Belgium.

A little late arriving on the philatelic scene is a triangular shaped stamp from Ecuador honoring the 10th anniversary of the United Nations. The 1.70 brown adhesive, with the dates 1945-1955 prominently displayed, depicts the U. N. symbol at the apex of the triangle. At the base are seen clutching hands reaching upward for aid and assistance.

Collectors wishing to get first day covers of the U. N. Human Rights Day stamp on Dec. 10 are reminded to send their envelopes to the U. N. Postal Administration, United Nations, N. Y., prior to that date.

One stamp is a 3-center and the other an 8-center. Send either money order or certified check; no stamps or cash will be accepted.

The outside envelope should be clearly marked "First Day Covers—Human Rights."

The design, as depicted in this column previously, features a flame symbolizing human rights and illuminating the world globe.

JUVENILE GENIUS LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP)—Ten-year-old Phillip Kochman has solved the vexing problem of holding a hand-operated egg beater firm by inventing a suction cup which may be attached to the base of the whipper. He has placed it in the hands of a distributing agency.

Another of the sixth grade grammar school boy's inventions is a household utility tool which serves as a spoon, a pickle fork and a lifter of milk bottle tops.

Aluminum ingot exports from Taiwan in China to the U. S. in the first six months of 1956 were 650 tons.

Jewelry Design Goes Atomic

AP Newsfeatures
The nation's jewelry designers are catching up with the atomic age. Winners of the recent Diamonds U.S.A. awards exhibited modernistic tendencies employing motifs suggesting neutrons, protons and electrons arranged in decorative effects.

Fifteen jewelry designers from all sections of the United States received citations this year for original and effective designs in diamonds, gold, platinum and other precious ingredients. The winning pieces ranged from necklaces and bracelets to rings and earrings, and covered a price range from below $500 to six figures.

One jeweler designed a pendant of more than 100 diamonds combined with rubies, sapphires and emeralds in a pattern inspired by the particles of the atom. Other winning designs took ideas from outer space in the form of stars, planets and crescent moons.

Among women award winners was Marianne Ostier of New York, whose prize entry was a pair of earrings in diamonds and pearls shaped like crescent moons to fit both the top and bottom of the ear.

A winning watch design called "Saturnalia" hid the time mechanism within a miniature Earth of blue enamel seas, platinum continents and diamond equator.

NEW LOOK FOR EARS—Prize-winning ear ornaments in recent Diamonds U. S. A. awards were these designed by Marianne Ostier of New York, called "Reappearing New Moon." Ear clips are linked pearl and diamond moons for top and bottom of ear.

TWO CENT RAIN BET

HIGH WINDS ARE THREAT

By JIM WIDMAN

We listened to weatherman Dan Trew talk about his favorite subject at Lions Club this week. One reason, we believe, people enjoy listening to his talks about the weather, in addition to his pleasing personality, is the fact that he so readily admits that he knows very little about the weather.

He pointed out how inadequate the available weather records are for arriving at any kind of a weather cycle. We only have records for the last 60 years, while weather has been going on for billions of years.

Hardy Benson's Chart

However, we still like Hardy Benson's chart that shows the 11 year cycle. According to it, we're in the fifth year of the dry side of the cycle. Benson points out that in the past there have been occasional wet years in the dry cycle and occasional dry years in the wet cycle. Looking back on it you will recall that generally the 20's were wet, the 30's dry, the 40's wet and the 50's dry. Beginning in about 1962 it should start getting wet again.

Trew says he'll bet two cents it will rain before Christmas.

Will It Blow?

It would be nice if we had some way to know how much the wind will blow. We, of the Soil Conservation Service, have a mechanical device to tell us when we have enough cloddiness in the land to keep it from blowing with a given wind velocity.

Last winter we were out trying it on some of George Brumley's wheat land on the morning of the day of the big blow of Feb. 24. According to the machine, the cloddiness was adequate if only normal winds of 40 to 45 miles per hour came. The wind got up to 90 so the wheat blew out. This time we have a lot of land that won't stand a 40 mile wind. If a 90 mile wind comes, we'd better look out.

ASC Program

Faust Collier tells me the ASC office is ready to issue approvals for emergency chiseling and listing.

Chiseling won't work on a lot of land this year. It's been chiseled so much in the last few years without having a crop on that too much loose soil is on top. Where this is the case, a good job of listing will be the best bet.

Of course, there's no substitute for a good cover of either a growing crop or stubble from a dead crop, but when you don't have that you have to do the second best.
