Leftist crackdown continuing

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Acting under the military government's 4-day-old state of siege, police have raided homes and union offices in the capital and three other cities and seized 107 people in a continuing crackdown on leftists.

Francisco Cuadra, secretary-general of President Augusto Pinochet's government, announced that 107 people were rounded up Friday in the raids, bringing the total arrested since the siege was declared to 153.

Most of the arrests were made by gunmen wearing armbands of the secret police. Gen. Pinochet's 90-day siege decree suspended judicial controls of his regime's emergency power to arrest and banish critics. Midnight-to-5 a.m. curfews were imposed in major cities, unauthorized gatherings were banned and media reporting of politics was curbed.

The Vicariate of Solidarity, Santiago's Roman Catholic human rights agency, said four of 46 people arrested before Friday's raids had been released and the government had acknowledged holding the others.

The National Information Central, Pinochet's secret police agency, said four leftists who were arrested during overnight curfews since Tuesday have been sent to military courts for trial — one for allegedly bombing a bakery, the others for barricading streets during recent anti-government demonstrations.

In describing Friday's arrests, the church group said 11 activists were seized at the Mining Confederation union offices, and seven at the Surco Campesino Confederation headquarters. Both labor groups are led by Communists.

It also reported raids on homes in working class districts of Santiago, Antofagasta, Temuco and Valparaiso.

Pinochet said the state of siege was needed to combat what he called a Marxist-led insurrection against his military regime, which came to power in the 1973 overthrow of an elected Marxist president, Salvador Allende.

The crackdown has been used so far only against leftists. Hundreds of them have abandoned their party headquarters and their homes to avoid arrest.

Cuadra announced that police had offered protection to three centrist opposition leaders in response to threats against them by an underground right-wing group.

Fanny Pollarollo, a Communist leader who turned up at the Vicariate's headquarters next to Santiago's downtown cathedral, said party activists in hiding were planning a day of protest on Tuesday, followed by nightly clanging of pots and pans until some date in late November when a very large demonstration was scheduled.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leftist Sandinista government has sent its third protest note to the United States in nine days, claiming a loud boom that shook Managua was caused by a U.S. spy plane crashing the sound barrier in preparation for an American invasion.

The 8:30 a.m. shock Friday kept up the tension in Nicaragua, which has been on edge since earlier this week following reports that a Soviet freighter off the coast was suspected of carrying Soviet combat jets to the Sandinista government.

U.S. officials did not rule out military action to destroy any warplanes arriving in Nicaragua.

A knowledgeable source, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said Friday it was likely the Soviet freighter that docked in the port of Corinto brought as many as three Soviet helicopters, and that a second Soviet freighter was waiting off the Pacific coast.

Nicaragua's leaders have been predicting an American invasion for weeks.

The government said it will begin issuing rifles today to 20,000 student volunteers for a defense force for the capital. Carlos Carrion, coordinator general of the Sandinista Youth Organization, said the students will "receive immediate training" in preparation for "a direct invasion by the U.S. armed forces."

Throughout the day Friday, government statements were broadcast warning people of a possible invasion and urging them to donate blood. Neighborhood defense committees held meetings to explain "how Managua will be defended," said a resident.

But a tour of the Managua area did not reveal any extraordinary military preparations.

Westberry helping cross kids

By KIMBERLEY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

J.D. Westberry understands perfectly why L.B. Bass of Plainview gave his life for a 12-year-old sixth grader at the school crossing where bass worked as a guard.

Westberry is a crossing guard himself, directing pedestrian traffic every morning and afternoon at Bluebonnet Intermediate School. He said pushing the child to safety was just a reflex action for the Plainview man.

"You don't think about yourself if the kids are in trouble," he explained.

In his four years as a guard at Bluebonnet, Westberry has never had a close call. And the excellent work he does has not gone unnoticed.

David Alvarado, who lives across the street and has children who attend the school, appreciates the care Westberry takes in waiting until the traffic has completely passed by before he lets the youngsters step into the street.

"He's very conscientious about his work," Alvarado claimed. "He teaches the kids to respect traffic."

Alvarado said he often sees older students, who have not been taught the safest way to cross a street, step out into the traffic and expect motorists to stop for them. Westberry said he does not consider that a safe practice because it is possible for the car's brakes to fail.

Hereford Police Chief Caydon Brush recently issued a letter of commendation to Westberry for his performance on the job. "Your commitment to your job as school crossing guard is commendable," the letter read. "This is to let you know your diligence and dedication are appreciated."

Alvarado, also wanting to let Westberry know of his appreciation, presented Westberry with a gift certificate to a local restaurant.

When asked if he is on a first-name basis with the kids he sees twice a day, Westberry replied, "Not really. They all just call me 'crossin' man.'"

J.D., whose birth certificate shows only initials for his first two names, will turn 68 this week. His parents named him after a grandfather, Jeff Davis. His twin sister, Ida Lee, was named after two of her grandmothers.

A native of East Texas, J.D. was born in a place called Swan Switch. It was the Great Depression that brought him and the girl he eventually married to West Texas.

One of five children in a rural southern Baptist family, the depression forced the family to abandon farming and turn to day labor for a living.

He pulled a lot of cotton during his teenage years. Westberry remembers that he could pull 500 pounds a day, and pick 175 to 200 pounds. One summer he started in Henderson County and worked his way west to La Mesa, pulling cotton all the way.

Westberry was married in Abilene

At Bluebonnet Intermediate School

on his 23rd birthday. His wife Laverne, who died last summer, turned 19 the next day. That was in 1939; the depression was nearly over and he got a job in a dairy.

The Westberrys raised their three children on whatever money J.D. could earn with his hands, driving a truck, running a service station and doing carpenter work. "You name it, I've done it. Anything to make a living."

When he retired and began collecting Social Security, Westberry needed something to supplement his income. He also just plain wanted to keep working. He likes the job as crossing guard and has no trouble getting there by 7:20 every morning.

"I get up every morning at 6:00, or earlier. Even as a kid, I'd get up and help-cook breakfast."

Westberry said he likes every one of the children he works with. "I want to keep doing it for as long as I'm able."

Combest to thank area voters

Larry Combest, victor in the 19th Congressional District race, plans in Hereford Community Center Friday at 1:40 p.m. to express his thanks to Deaf Smith County voters.

Combest, Republican candidate for the U.S. Representative seat now held by Kent Hance, defeated Democrat candidate Don Richards in the Nov. 6 election. The difference in Deaf Smith County was 308 votes in Richards' favor. Combest garnered 58 percent in the district.

Trio to get chemical training

Three Hereford residents who work with youth are to receive additional training in the area of chemical abuse when they attend a conference later this week in Austin.

The Deaf Smith County Chemical People Task Force, the Hereford Independent School District and the local Family Services Center are to co-sponsor the trip.

Those set to go to Austin are Patsy Giles, Hereford High School counselor; Suzanne Duvall, teacher at Stanton Junior High School; and Paula Kopecky, alcohol and drug abuse counselor at the Family Services Center.

The three are to attend the fourth annual conference on prevention of Alcohol-Chemical Abuse Among Youth, scheduled Wednesday through Friday in the state capital.

Workshops are to include instruction on teaching children how to say "no" to drugs, responsible decision making and student assistance programs. White House staff member Abigail Healy is among those invited to speak at the conference.

Governing bodies to gather

Three area governing bodies are to meet early this week, including the Deaf Smith County Commission at 10 a.m. Monday in the courthouse.

In addition to other business, the county court is to open bids for the Walcott tennis project, consider compensation for the special prosecutor in the State vs. Jerry Smith case and canvass the general election returns.

On Tuesday, directors of the Hereford Independent School District are to have their regular monthly meeting beginning at 5 p.m. in the HISD administration building. Included on the school board's agenda is authorizing an architect to develop plans for remodeling Shirley Intermediate School.

Rounding out the governing body gatherings is the Buffalo Lake Water District board of directors. Its meeting is to commence at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the lake headquarters building in Umbarger. A discussion of Stewart Dam is one of the slated concerns.

OUTLOOK: Clear Saturday night with a low in the upper 20s and light winds. Sunday is to be sunny, have a high near 70 and southwesterly winds of 15 to 20 miles per hour.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says contrary to what you may have heard lately, most folks are still concerned with the higher things of life—prices, for example.

Politician: "Well, dear, I've been reelected!"

Wife: "Honestly?"

Politician: "I don't see any need to bring THAT up."

Meetings are places where people go to learn how to do things better that they already know how to do—but don't have time to do because they go to so many meetings.

After being chastised last week by Al Dziuk for not endorsing a straight Democratic ticket, there's a letter to the editor this week from Garth Thomas who gets in his licks because "all those Democrats" signed ads for McBride and Richards and now Thomas knows who this "kindly and friendly opposition is."

Dziuk and Thomas seem to have the same political malady—they can't see beyond their Party noses. I hate to disappoint the two but the fact is that the Republicans couldn't have won a landslide and the Democrats would never have lost so bad were it not for Independents!

Thomas and other republicans preached to us long and loud that conservative Democrats and Independents should help re-elect Reagan. When some of us helped re-elect Reagan and also support Gramm, they still didn't excuse us for voting for some Democrats on the ballot.

Dziuk and other Democrats still won't admit that party philosophy has drifted too far to the left of center. The Republican landslide is not a mandate from the people, say folks like Tip O'Neill—it's just that President Reagan is very popular.

There's no doubt that Reagan is one of the most popular presidents in recent history, but liberal Democrats who are not afraid to face the torture of thought can surely see that their philosophy has gone sour with the majority of Americans.

In case readers didn't notice, I'd like to point out the contrasting closing of the two letters. "In love," was the signoff by Democrat Dziuk. "With a simple thanks," was Thomas' conservative, Republican closing.

Just so there's no misunderstanding about the point I'm making, I really liked the "in love" closing better—especially since it served to soften the attack on my politics. Maybe that makes me a "liberal" when it comes to loving my neighbor, but please don't align me politically with either Dziuk or Thomas!

Killer suffered brain damage

DALLAS (AP) — A Moroccan national accused of killing six people at a posh North Dallas nightclub would probably die if he was sent to prison, but he has suffered so much brain damage he would be a good subject for research, a psychiatrist has testified.

Dr. Sheldon Zigelbaum of Boston testified Friday that Abdelkrim Belachheb was in a state similar to sleepwalking or a seizure when he opened fired on seven customers of Ianni's Restaurant and Club on June 29.

Belachheb, 39, is charged with six counts of murder and one count of attempted murder in the worst mass murder in the city's history. If convicted, Belachheb, who has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, faces a maximum punishment of life in prison.

"At the time of the shooting, Mr. Belachheb was not conscious. He could not in any way tell you about the shooting itself," Zigelbaum testified.

Zigelbaum agreed with other defense witness that brain damage and a paranoid personality disorder afflict Belachheb.

Dallas test tube baby born

DALLAS (AP) — Laura Hobby didn't suffer a moment of morning sickness when she finally got pregnant, and that's not the only thing atypical of her pregnancy.

Mrs. Hobby, 29, gave birth Thursday night to Jessica, one of Dallas' first babies conceived by in vitro — or test tube — fertilization.

"Somebody up there wanted us to have a baby," said Claud Hobby, Jessica's father, in an interview with the Dallas Morning News.

About nine months ago, an egg was extracted from Mrs. Hobby and mixed in a laboratory dish with her husband's sperm.

Mrs. Hobby suffers from endometriosis, a disease that scarred one ovary and Fallopian tube so much that it had to be removed. In addition, her remaining tube was so scarred that an egg could not move through it from her ovary.

Hobby, 30, a pilot with Jet America Airlines, and his wife, owner of the Texas Quilt Co., had been trying to have a baby for six years. The couple were sweethearts at Richardson High School and they married shortly after graduation from Baylor University eight years ago.

New school regulations knocked

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — West Texas school administrators, challenging Gov. Mark White, say a recent education reform package and past legislation has left little time for teaching.

"Everything I'm doing is double what it was," said Joe White, superintendent of Reagan County Independent School District. "I don't think anybody foresaw all the things that were going to happen by having these two bills come in conjunction."

At his weekly press conference Thursday, the governor said the mounds of paperwork is the result of House Bill 246, passed in 1981, and later translated in Chapter 75.

The bill requires teachers to document how they are providing students with "the essential elements of education."

But some educators said that the 1981 bill coupled with the education reform package passed by the Legislature last summer is causing headaches. The 1984 package, also referred to as House Bill 72, deals more with rules and management.

Shipment claim has no proof

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — In an apparent attempt to head off a confrontation with Moscow over Central America, the Reagan administration says it has no proof that a Soviet freighter delivered MiG-21 fighters to Nicaragua.

But a White House official, who spoke Friday only on condition he not be identified, said he believes the Soviets are backing a major conventional arms buildup in Nicaragua to guarantee its continuity as a Soviet-sponsored state.

President Reagan, meanwhile, is reviewing a CIA inspector general's report that sources say recommends disciplinary action against junior intelligence officers for a psychological warfare manual for Nicaraguan rebels that recommends selected use of violence to "neutralize" Sandinista officials.

White House spokesman Peter Roussel said Reagan had not yet approved the report. But two sources in Washington, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the president apparently did not object to the findings.

In discussing Soviet arms shipments, the senior official recent events have forced him to conclude that "it appears we've been had in this major, serious escalation of arms to Nicaragua."

Shuttle eyeing salvage mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — As Discovery chased down two wayward satellites at 17,400 mph, the shuttle crew prepared for today's launch of a second communications payload that would empty the cargo bay for next week's double-salvage mission.

The crew planned to follow up Friday's successful deployment of a Canadian satellite with the release today of a payload named Leasat 2, which the Navy will use for military communications traffic.

Meanwhile, a series of course adjustments by commander Rick Hauck and pilot David Walker has helped the shuttle close the gap on the satellites it will try to retrieve next week.

The shuttle's launch on Thursday was timed to start a 1.6-million-mile orbital chase of the Palapa B2 and Westar 6 satellites, which have been in useless orbits since their booster rockets misfired last February. They are to be returned to Earth.

By this morning the gap had narrowed to about 7,000 miles and Discovery was gaining on its quarry at a rate of 202 miles an hour. The target satellites are orbiting 224 miles high, about 760 miles apart.

Many die in civil war

SUCHITOTO, El Salvador (AP) — Airborne troops landed in this government stronghold north of the capital and drove out an attacking rebel force in the heaviest civil war fighting in nearly five months. As many as 120 people were killed and more than 30 were wounded, the Defense Ministry said.

Guerrillas attacked the heavily fortified town 27 miles north of San Salvador at 3 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) Friday, rebel and military sources said.

The rebels' clandestine Radio Farabundo Marti said the guerrillas quickly overpowered police and Civil Guard posts on the outskirts of town and began pummeling the town's central command post with automatic rifle fire, Chinese-made grenade launchers and recoilless rifles.

The rebel force, estimated at 1,000 men, battled into the center of town, but a few National Police and Civil Guards held them off while troops transported by helicopter arrived from the north, army and civilian sources here said.

Nursing home firm indicted

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A Galveston County grand jury has returned eight indictments against a Houston-based nursing home corporation in the 1978 deaths of two elderly patients at one of the company's facilities, a prosecutor says.

Galveston County District Attorney Mike Guarino said the eight murder indictments were returned against Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc., the third time indictments have been returned against the company.

In addition to the charges against Autumn Hills, the first company to be charged with murder in Texas, the president, vice president and three employees were also indicted in the case which began in October 1979.

Guarino said Autumn Hills, which operates about 12 nursing homes in Southeast Texas, was named in all eight indictments.

Robert Gay, 58, president and chief stockholder; Ron Pohlmeier, 41, vice president; Mattie Locke, 42, nursing consultant; Virginia Wilson, 62, a former administrator; and Cassandra Canlas, 31, director of nursing services, were named in six indictments.

"I'd like to know what took them so damn long," said their attorney, Roy Minton of Austin. "They said they only needed a month or two to get another indictment. Well, two years later, they finally do. None of these people should be indicted and they know it."

Minton said the five were each released on $20,000 personal recognizance bond.

Except for Gay, all the defendants were included in two previous indictments, which were thrown out, Guarino said.

"The information contained in the indictments is basically the same as returned by the other grand juries," Guarino said.

Guarino said he was uncertain whether any further indictments would be returned, because the nine-man, two-woman panel has not completed its investigation.

Both Mrs. Witt and Mrs. Breed were patients at Autumn Hills' facility in Texas City, about 30 miles south of Houston. The nursing home is still owned by Autumn Hills but is being leased by another firm, Minton said.

According to the indictments, Autumn Hills also failed to provide an adequate nursing staff and adequate supplies such as bandages and bed linen.

Charges of failing to adequately supervise the nursing staff and failing to take appropriate action when patients were not receiving needed care were also returned against the five individuals.

Mrs. Witt died Oct. 16, 1978, at Galveston County Memorial Hospital. She had lived at the nursing home for 45 days, the indictment said.

Mrs. Breed died Nov. 20, 1978, at the Texas City nursing home, where she had lived 47 days.

The two patients died, the indictment alleges, because the nursing home staff failed to report abuse and neglect of its patients to the Texas Department of Health as required by law. The deaths of the two women occurred because their clinical records were being falsified by the defendants, according to the indictment.

"I think we are seeing an increased concern across Texas for the quality of life our senior citizens lead, particularly those who live in nursing homes," Attorney General Jim Mattox said Friday of the indictments.

While previous indictments named eight victims, the current grand jury named only the two strongest cases because financial resources were limited.

No plea bargains will be offered or accepted in the case, which could go to trial sometime next spring, Guarino said.

sent his third protest note since Oct. 31 to Secretary of State George Shultz, following what the Sandinistas say was the third overflight in that time by a U.S. spy plane.

The note said a U.S. SR-71 spy plane flew over the country at 8:30 a.m. Friday, about the time a sound like a sonic boom was heard in Managua and elsewhere.

The protest note said the alleged spy flights indicate "plans already have been put into gear to proceed to a direct military intervention" by the United States.

The Reagan administration has denied the leftist government's allegations of spy missions violating Nicaraguan airspace.

The government had sent a protest note following what it said was a flight by a spy plane Oct. 31 and again earlier this week when it said U.S. navy ships and aircraft harassed the Soviet freighter Bakuriani as it was steaming toward Corinto.

The freighter was first seen in the port of Corinto, 105 miles northwest of the capital, on Wednesday.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

In the interest of fairness to our customers, I would like to point to an error of interpretation in the story of November 6 concerning Hereford Cablevision service and rates.

The sentence reads, "More than $1 Million in revenue was allowed Hereford Cablevision three years ago," Bayne pointed out, "by a rate increase he did not feel was then or now merited. Much of that money has not been used to update the cable system as promised," Bayne claimed. This statement is incorrect.

First, the rate increase was not granted three years ago but two years ago, in November 1982. Second and most important, is the fact that Hereford Cablevision was not allowed $1 Million in revenue as the statement would suggest. That is misleading. The local system was awarded a rate increase of $2.80 per customer for the 3,750 customers on the system. The rate went from $6.20 to $9.00 per customer.

Perhaps it is important to note that at the time of the rate increase in 1982 we added four additional channels to our basic service and only two weeks ago added still another channel (Cable Music Channel) to the basic service. At the time of the increase we had received only one small rate adjustment in 1975 over a period of nine years with no rate increase. At the time we were granted the increase we were in the lowest 2 percent bracket with cable rates in all of Texas...and we offer as many or more channels for this basic rate than virtually any city our size in the entire state.

I feel the suggestion that we were allowed $1 Million is misleading to the public as that has not happened. The $1 Million was an estimated amount to totally rebuild our local system. Cliff Gardiner, a former stockholder and consultant for Hereford Cablevision at that time, stated to the city Commission in open session that a cost of up to $1 Million dollars would be required to totally rebuild the system and that this would probably be necessary within the next five years.

We have been upgrading the system from time to time, and in the future will find it necessary to rebuild our entire system to keep it at state of the art standards. Presently, we feel that the local system is a good one and meets or surpasses the standards of most systems our size. The rates in Hereford are still below the average with a greater choice of channels.

Sincerely,
Lloyd Ames

Dear Editor,

For a number of years many of us have been increasingly concerned about the activities of the Texas Rural Legal aid in this area.

Prospective new industries have been persuaded not to locate here by the evidence of strife and strikes. The vegetable industry is shrinking, businesses are hurting, and jobs are dwindling because of movements sponsored by TRLA in violation of its own rules and purpose. Our local government and institutions are under attack, and our tax money pays for it.

We do not have to be farmers or packers to worry about the growing will intimidation (by people on both "sides"), and reluctance to take a stand because of the possibility of unpleasantness. It is time for all of us to insist that the Legal Aid be required, in an orderly and legal way, to fulfill its rightful purpose of helping those who need help.

We ask all people to read and consider signing the petition being circulated, which asks for an investigation by TRLA's own head people.

Copies will be available in a number of public places until Wednesday evening.

Thank you,
Ruth Fish

Dear Editor:

This is a reaction to a letter to the editor in the Sunday, Nov. 4 issue of The Brand. When I first glanced over the letter, I exclaimed, "Horsefeathers." Then I noted the author was Mr. Al Dziuk, Precinct 1 Democrat Party Chairman.

I misread then I was being disrespectful in my thinking of a powerful Democrat political leader and spokesman. I read further in that issue and noticed the names of all the Democrats listed in both the McBride and Richards campaign ads and I thought: "Birds of a feather flock together;" and that one of their respected elected officials is the above referenced Mr. Al Dziuk.

So I read the letter again more thoroughly and I cautioned myself that I should not call the contents and import of it "hogwash." After all, the language used and the subject matter were most similar to that we have been hearing from Mondale, Ferraro, Doggett and Jim Hightower—all Democrat party patriarchs.

As an active Republican, it's good to know who the kindly and friendly opposition are. With a simple thanks,
Garth B. Thomas
Hereford, Tx.

P.S.—The election is over and I gather Mr. and Mrs. America do not like political diatribe. But how sad that Mondale, et al, cannot seem to understand that it was not their inability to communicate their programs but, on the other hand, the voters understood too well and rejected them for the Republican alternatives.

Houston stop no victory for tour

HOUSTON (AP) — The singing Jackson brothers came to Houston this weekend, but far fewer than expected were thrilled for the 19th stop on the Victory Tour.

Although box office officials said they did not have total attendance figures for Friday night's performance, almost 24,000 tickets were still available late Friday morning, an Astrodome spokesman said.

The Victory performance sold more than 1.1 million tickets by its seventh week — a record for any American band, concert promoters say. The group Styx held the previous record when the band took eight months to sell 1 million tickets.

Ticket sales in Houston weren't impressive as they were on some of the Jackson brothers' other tour stops, which began July 6 in Kansas City, said tour spokeswoman Ginny Buckley.

"I think it's been lower than it did in other cities," Ms. Buckley said.

Steve Howard, production representative for the tour promotion company, said, "Sales are brisk — which is better than steady in tickets sales jargon. But so far, it's no sellout."

An Astrodome spokesman said about 26,000 of the $30 tickets had been sold by Thursday for Friday's show, and about 29,000 were sold for the Saturday performance. Capacity is 40,000 seats for each show, leaving about 25,000 unsold by Thursday.

Howard said he was surprised that so many tickets were still available.

"Maybe it's because so many people from Houston went to the Dallas concert," he said, referring to one of the group's July appearances. "Or it could be that there have been so many concerts here lately — people like Rod Stewart, Cyndi Lauper, Culture Club and The Cars — that a lot of potential Jacksons customers already spent all the money available for that kind of entertainment."

Many people have complained to concert promoters that the Jackson should have come to Houston sooner, said Ms. Buckley, who added that the Astrodome wasn't even available then.

"We were hoping to play here sooner," she said. "But we were waiting for the Astrodome to give us the availability."

Crews for the tour need 11 days to set up some 375 tons of equipment — about 14 truckloads — to play, and to remove the equipment, Ms. Buckley said.

Tour officials had to ask the Houston Independent School District to give up its lease date for the stadium this weekend so the city could host the two concerts.

Vietnam War veterans preparing dedication

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam War veterans are preparing to dedicate a statue honoring survivors of the Southeast Asia conflict that they added to a controversial memorial for comrades who died or disappeared.

The statue, depicting three young and weary GIs in combat gear, stands 80 yards from the 2-year-old black granite monument that bears the names of 58,022 servicemen killed or missing in the Vietnam War.

"The statue unveiled today brings to fulfillment the purpose of the memorial in paying respect to all Americans who accepted the responsibilities of their citizenship," retired Army Gen. Michael S. Davidson said at Friday's unveiling ceremony.

"This memorial says to those who served in Vietnam, both those who returned and those who did not: we respect you, we admire you, we honor you, and we offer you our profound gratitude," said Davidson, a field commander in Vietnam and an original proponent of the statue.

Some 4,000 people crowded around at the grassy memorial site to watch the 40-minute ceremony. Vietnam veterans wearing rumpled camouflage uniforms watched with public officials, sightseers and reporters.

"I think the wall was beautiful. Some people have put it down, but I think it is great, and so is the bronze statue," said Jack Wojewoda, an Army veteran from Rockford, Ill. "We should have another monument for the over 60,000 service people who have committed suicide since the war."

Both the bronze statue and granite wall, located near the Lincoln Memorial, were paid for with private funds.

On Sunday, the entire memorial will be dedicated and formally handed over to the National Park Service. President Reagan is scheduled to fly from Santa Barbara, Calif., to accept the memorial and take part in a wreath-laying ceremony.

The statue, created by Washington, D.C., sculptor Frederick R. Hart, is designed so that the GIs — a black, a white and one representing other minorities — appear to be looking for names on the granite walls.

It was added to the site after some veterans complained that the memorial's design failed to honor those who fought and survived.

George Sullivan, director of the National Salute II Committee, which is conducting a program of Veterans Day events in tandem with the memorial ceremonies, said alteration of the site was a necessary compromise.

"The wall is very abstract and was a great shock to the veterans and public who contributed $9 million for the memorial," said Sullivan, a former Army Ranger in Vietnam.

Hard Work

Our early settlers knew that, if they were going to survive in their new surroundings, they would have to work hard. Everyday there were many chores to be accomplished around the home. They could rely only on themselves to get the job done.

In 1900, the First National Bank of Hereford was founded. The folks who started our bank knew it would take a lot of hard work to make it successful.

As we look back over 84 years, we're glad we could lend a helping hand to a lot of people.

We're proud to be a part of Hereford and the Texas Panhandle.

But our hard work isn't finished yet. At First National Bank of Hereford, we're still pioneering new ways of service and security for you and your family.

25% system

A news release from Texas A&M University Texas A&M University Extension Service this week gives some good advice to people who never seem to be able to save any money. It is called the 25 percent system.

In order to make this system work, an individual or a family must have some sort of budget.

To make it work, you divide your monthly take home pay into four equal parts. Assign 25 percent for housing, 25 percent for food, 25 percent for monthly loan payments, and 25 percent for everything else.

Allowing 25 percent for housing, including taxes and utilities means you won't exceed one week's pay for housing costs.

Another 25 percent can be spent for food, including groceries, children's lunches, and other meals away from home.

Another 25 percent goes for monthly payments on everything you are buying on time, such as a car, furniture, television, appliances, home improvements or credit card charges.

This leaves 25 percent of your income for savings, insurance, education, recreation, contributions, child care, personal expenses, and emergencies.

The important thing is to keep all of your expenditures to not more than 100 percent. A great many families are unable to do this.

These are sensible guidelines but no doubt if a family has not learned by now how to live within its income no set of guidelines will be of very much help.

Saving money and living within one's income is a matter of discipline and the willingness to do without some things or postpone buying others. It is self-discipline and this is an ingredient that seems to be lacking in a great many families these days.

If you earn a dollar and spend 99 cents you are all right. But spend $1.01 and you are piling up trouble. Yet today spending seems more fashionable than saving.

What once was called poor money management has become "deficit spending" and our federal government has accepted this as a way of life.

Some people seem to be able to live within their income and avoid most of the problems that go with constant debt and pressure from creditors. Others never learn how to do without spending more than they make.

No new economic theory beats this old favorite: "A penny saved is a penny earned." As Calvin Coolidge once said, "There is no independence quite so important as living within your means."

Those who truly desire happiness and contentment should first put this advice into practice.

As the years turn

75 YEARS AGO

The whole Panhandle and the greater part of the state was soaked by a regular Fall rain last Sunday and Monday. Reports from the Panhandle show an average of one and a quarter inches. Around Hereford, the fall is reported by farmers at one and a quarter to one and a half inches of rain.

All lovers of that seductive dish, chicken pie, will have a chance to indulge in that toothsome dainty tonight at the Wyche school house. The ladies of the neighborhood have succeeded in capturing a number of yellow-legged pullets which make up the ground work of the aforesaid pie.

50 YEARS AGO

One week from today, Hereford's first "Good Will" Day will be held. It will be an all-day affair sponsored by 98 merchants and professional men of the city. All day on Thursday, stores will offer special bargains and special entertainment for visitors to the city.

One thousand Deaf Smith county cattle are being purchased by the government this week. The special allowance of 1,000 head was made as a relief measure after officials surveyed the food conditions here. Lack of moisture has resulted in poor wheat pasturage. The grass is in bad condition for the same reason and the county made no feed crops.

25 YEARS AGO

Twelve business representatives from Hereford Thursday testified in Lubbock before James E. Strock, examiner of the Texas Railroad Commission, in endorsing a bid by Curry Motor Freight Lines for authority to offer service between West Texas points, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Angelo and Corpus Christi.

Combined deposits of the two Hereford banks at the end of the third quarter this year showed a jump of nearly one million dollars over the previous quarter, according to financial statements released for the close of business Oct. 6.

Deaf Smith County has been allocated a considerable portion of the $2.2 million set aside to upgrade Panhandle highways in the 1975 State Highway Safety and Betterment and farm to Market Improvement program.

The Hereford area reported its first frost of the season Tuesday morning, but it wasn't a "killing frost" and not too much crop damage is expected according to spot checks around the county.

A trio of timely topics for cattle feeders—exports, promotion and grading—will receive attention Monday and Tuesday when the Texas Cattle Feeders Association hosts its 1974 convention in Amarillo.

A patient at a Lubbock Health Clinic was killed and seven other people were injured when an explosion in a boiler room blew out a wall and collapsed the roof of the city health department, authorities said.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. will back the First National Bank of Midland with $100 million under a law that lets the FDIC make loans to banks until they can merge with a sound institution, officials said.

The Penultimate Word

A NEW WAY TO CUSS

At the dedication of one of the famous cathedrals in England, the King told architect Sir Christopher Wren that he found the cathedral to be amusing, artificial and awful. Sir Christopher Wren was highly complimented. In those days the word amusing meant amazing, the word artificial meant artistic, and awful meant awe-inspiring.

Language changes as it is used. Over the years, words get the edges worn off and often they end up meaning the opposite of what they originally meant. In normal times this process can take centuries. Somehow the process has been speeded up lately. In my life time some words have taken on new meanings almost overnight.

I can remember when gay meant happy. I liked the word. I liked the feeling the word suggested. I wanted to be gay. Overnight some strange folks claimed the word and it can no longer be said in mixed company.

I can remember when he did not necessarily mean men only. Ships were referred to as female gender and he used in a general sense could mean all of us. All of a sudden the use of he can bring the charge of being a chauvinist at best, a pig at worst. Writing has become a complicated process of avoiding pronouns, or the awkward insertion of he/she.

I can remember when liberal meant open mindedness and flexible. Suddenly a liberal is a weirdo who has no morals and very little sense.

I can remember when conservative meant buying a four-door sedan instead of a convertible. Now conservative means some kind of superman—uh super-person who has the only answer to all of the world's ills.

I can remember when a humanist was a person who possessed a love for the human race. The new cuss word in our society is to call someone a secular humanist.

It took centuries for artificial to go from artistic to fake. In a few short years we have created a whole new negative language. Maybe we needed a new one, since cussing has become so socially acceptable that it has lost its power. When I was a boy, the world was horrified by Clark Gable's famous line in "Gone With the Wind." Nowadays, words that I could not ever say in private, without guilt, are common place. I even heard Mary Tyler Moore, whom I think is a saint, cut loose a big one on her family show.

Not to worry. We will always figure out how to cuss. Once we called someone we did not like a few choice names sailors are supposed to use. Now we can cut loose with the big guns and say he/she is a gay, liberal, secular humanist. Nuf said.

America is back, standing tall

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President

WASHINGTON — America. She's back. And standing tall.

There is a new sense of confidence in the future. A new confidence in ourselves. A renewed faith in our nation and her destiny. Time magazine made it official with its cover story on the American optimism, but you could sense it coming.

It was in the air during the Los Angeles Olympic Games as the crowds roared U-S-A and those of us watching the television swelled with pride. We were reminded of our common destiny as a nation and as a people when we saw the rescued medical students kiss the ground as they returned from Grenada.

What created this American Renaissance? How have we as a people, in four short years, arisen from the swamp of self-doubt and handwringing of the late 1970s. Then we feared the future and were told to be ashamed of our past. We were told, and too many of us believed, that our best days were behind us—that a stagnant, limp economy was the best we could expect. Inflation, unemployment, and crippling interest rates were not challenges to conquer but permanent fixtures in a dwindling vision to tomorrow.

I proudly maintain membership in the Royal Order of the Wildly Optimistic, but even I must confess amazement at how rapidly we have turned around as a nation.

Inflation has fallen from the back-to-back years of double digit increases in 1979 and 1980 to below 4 percent.

Interest rates which rose to 21.5 percent in January 1981—their highest level since the Civil War—have fallen to 12.5 percent and continue to decline.

A record number of Americans are now at work. More than 6.8 million new jobs have been created since the third year of the tax cut took effect. Our job creation is outpacing any other nation's in the world, and all of Europe makes no secret of its envy and desire to follow our lead.

Economic growth is brisk, deep, led by investment, and strong across the board. America over the past year grew faster than any other major industrial nation in the world.

Once again, America is the acknowledged world leader in economic growth, job creation, opportunities for the future, and strengthened military alliances.

New businesses are starting up at record clip—over 600,000 a year. That is a tremendous number of men and women proclaiming their confidence in our future as a nation of expanding opportunity and real growth.

How did we do it? It began with leadership from a President who understood that there are no limits to America's future. No limits to our ability to dream and to make today's dreams tomorrow's reality. By cutting taxes and reducing extraneous and counter-productive regulations, President Reagan unleashed the most tremendous force history has ever known: the human spirit, the free, untrammelled minds of free men and women working to make a better life for themselves and their families and their country.

Government could not solve our problems. Too much government was the problem. Together we found that there was no mountain too high, no challenge beyond our grasp. We stopped looking for problems and reasons why they are insurmountable and began to search for solutions.

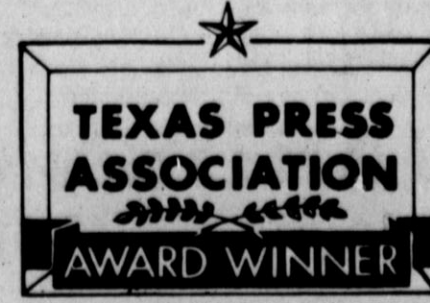

We became a nation possessed of hope and confidence, not debilitating despair.

If we as a nation can continue the low-tax, less regulation, low-inflation policies of the past few years we can and will build on our successes.

We can then turn to the world and say: You ain't seen nothing yet.

At the local beanyery, a well-balanced lunch is any collation that the waitress doesn't manage to drop in your lap.

To add a snowy touch to the house for the upcoming holidays, just shake out a garment that has gone through the wash with facial tissues in a pocket.

When nuclear power is the topic among Deaf Smith County residents, waste and the possibility of a dump being placed in this area are the predominately spoken concerns. Most U.S. citizens, however, address the power generation aspects of the nuclear industry rather than its garbage.

As such, the U.S. Department is not only trying to convince us nuclear waste can be stored safely. It is attempting to assure the rest of the nation nuclear power plants do not threaten to nearby lives.

Last month, the Energy Department adopted a new approach to its public relations problem with nuclear power generation. Standard statements claiming radiation leaks "have been so low (they) pose no threat to the public or to the environment" were not convincing to everyone.

Actually, that quote is part of the new approach. The DOE is, with an $85,000 investment, sponsoring a study to see if those opposed to nuclear power feel that way due to an irrational phobia.

Participants are asked several questions, instructed to read the "not intended to take sides" booklet quoted above and then answer the original questions one more time. If, once "informed," a person no longer harbors anti-nuclear views, it is declared he had previously possessed an irrational phobia.

The study is an offensive addition to the nuclear power debate. There is nothing irrational about fearing fission, for there are undeniable dangers which may result from that atomic process. Accidents at nuclear power plants have the potential to be intensely harmful, though no one can yet positively gauge what damage can occur.

Scientific ignorance abounds in the nuclear power industry. Some propaganda is of a positive nature, but the negatives and unknowns form a mountain which does not require phobias to be noticed.

Janet Bearden of the Safe Energy Communication Council, a coalition of environmental groups, has spoken well against the study. She said the DOE is "trying to obscure the problems of nuclear power by shifting the blame to those who have legitimate concerns."

From a Panhandle viewpoint, the study is not only an insult, but also a waste.

Bootleg Philosopher

About oil, human nature

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm examines oil and human nature this week, sort of.

Dear editor:

According to an article I read the other day, if the 13 OPEC countries can't stick together on the price they charge for oil, the world price will plummet and the oil market will face chaos and disaster.

That's the kind of chaos and disaster I could use more of. I know it will take courage, but I believe I could call up my strength and face the prospect of cheaper gasoline without feeling chaotic and disastorous.

The article said the 13 OPEC leaders called an emergency meeting because one of them broke their solemn compact and cut the price of oil. Naturally oil buyers started buying from the price-cutter, leaving the others with more oil than their storage tanks will hold.

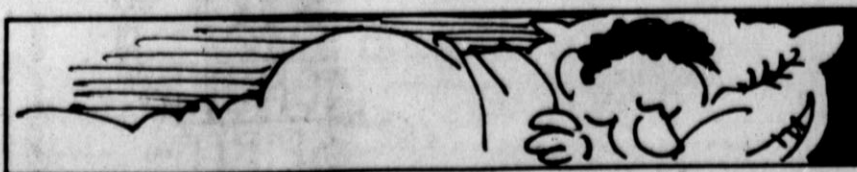

I understand their problem. Except for the fact the word wasn't spread around, a parallel situation with a different product could have existed in the United States. Had hardware stores around the country known that one store was getting $500 for a screwdriver from the Pentagon, don't you know they'd have cut their price way under that, even if it did cause chaos and disaster in the screwdriver market.

The OPEC leaders may know a little something about oil, after somebody comes along and discovers it under their land, but they don't know much about human nature. It's pretty much the same, whether it's under a 10-gallon hat or a turban.

Trying to get 13 countries to get together and agree on what they'll charge for oil, and then expecting all 13 to stick with it, is like two candidates for the same office agreeing to tell nothing but the truth during their campaign and sticking with it. In fact, sometimes it's impossible to get even one to stick with it.

Competition in oil, screwdrivers and lies will break out every time.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thanks a million for printing the letter from the burned-out nurse in Maine. I am an R.N. in Hartford, Conn. The situation is just as bad here. I've complained endlessly to the administrators and all I hear is, "There is no budget for more help. Do the best you can." The only reason I stay in nursing is because I am committed to my patients.—30 Going On 60

DEAR 30: I received a staggering number of letters on this subject and the litany of complaints appears to be completely valid. I must say, this was the most depressing batch of mail I have read in years. Here's a sampling:

Toledo: Nursing has become the pits. I wanted to serve humanity, but now I must carry malpractice insurance to protect myself against patients who may sue because of care that is so poor it could be life-threatening. Pray for us, Ann.—Frustrated But Hanging In There

Fayetteville, N.C.: I have come home from work and cried because I didn't have enough time to do a decent job for my patients. I am not sure nursing qualifies as a profession anymore.—Heartsick In N.C.

Portland, Ore.: The American people would be appalled if they knew of the stress we suffer, the low pay, poor working conditions and lack of respect nurses get from the medical community. Quality care? Forget it!—Angry R.N.

Long Island: Short-staffing and overtime are potentially lethal to patients. Yet hospital administrators keep preaching "cost-effectiveness," which means cutting back on staff and supplies. Where will it end?—Also Disgusted

Washington, D.C.: Never mind about back rubs. These days a patient can hemorrhage unnoticed in a $575-a-day room. I'm an administrator who says nurses must band together and demand quality care for their patients.—Fed Up Philadelphia: I quit hospital work because I became sick and tired of working through lunch and dinner. My protests of unsafe practices were ignored. I was considered a troublemaker and they made my life miserable. No more hospital work for me. I am now—Private Duty R.N.

Oshkosh, Wis.: I am an L.P.N. (Licensed Practical Nurse) who would love to give my patients the quality care they are entitled to in a hospital, but "team-nursing" is out and "primary care" is in. This means L.P.N.s aren't being hired because budgets are being slashed.—Looking For Other Work

Pasadena, Calif.: I am exhausted from working without time to eat, get a drink of water or go to the bathroom. How can I take a minute off when suffering people need me? I don't blame nurses for quitting and becoming waitresses and store clerks.—Mad As Hell

Des Moines, Iowa: Perhaps the reason nurses cannot band together and organize is because as a female-dominated profession, we lack clout. More and more it looks that way.—32 Years Invested Vancouver, B.C.: This was posted at our nursing station: Please print it: We the willing, led by the unsure, are doing the impossible for the ungrateful. We have done so much for so long with so little.

We are now qualified to do anything with nothing.—Disillusioned

The Palo Duro Dons wrapped up the District 3-5A runner-up spot in post-season football play Friday via a win over the Coronado Mustangs at Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium.

The Dons ended league play at 6-2 and tied the Hereford Whitefaces for second place. However, Palo Duro is granted the playoff berth by virtue of a 21-0 win over Hereford Sept. 14.

The Herd was so close. After losing three of the first four regular-season games, the Herd came back with a vengeance to win its last six contests. The six-game winning streak included a dramatic 17-16 win over league champ Plainview and a 31-7 trouncing of New Mexico's top-rated team, Clovis.

That's not to say that Hereford should be in the playoffs and not Palo Duro. The Dons have a fine football team. They were picked in pre-season to win it all, and they are deserving of the opportunity to do battle in the playoffs.

But they are not any more deserving of the chance than is Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor, his assistants and the Whiteface players. With a 1-3 record staring the Herd in the face, the Whitefaces refused to quit, battling adversity in numerous ways throughout the remainder of the season. The Whitefaces had to overcome injuries, inexperience at some positions, a weight advantage of their opponents and the mounting pressure to win as each game rolled around.

"I can't believe we're so close, yet so far," Taylor said after Friday's season-ending game with Tascosa.

When Taylor said that, the Whitefaces' future for the remainder of 1984 still was unknown. Regardless of how Coronado or Palo Duro fared, though, Taylor wanted to you and me to know that the Whiteface effort was there.

"We've got a great group of guys. They're not very big in size, but they've got big hearts."

The Herd almost was sitting pretty two weeks ago. Amarillo and Palo Duro were playing for the second-place standing, Amarillo the favorite. Hereford was to join the loser in a tie for third. A tie ball game would have granted Hereford sole possession of second place with one game remaining.

Palo Duro won 22-20. A two-point conversion by Amarillo, the points that would have tied the game, failed.

A similar situation appeared Friday. If Palo Duro and Coronado had tied, Hereford would have been in the playoffs.

"I hope the players can learn something from this experience," Taylor said. "I hope they can pull some resource later in life from it."

The 1984 season has been one of emotional highs and lows, to say the least. The players already have learned how to accept those highs and how to overcome the lows. Maybe they will be able to look back to 1984 and remember the feelings they had when the Herd was 1-3 and the feelings when the Herd was 7-3.

The purpose of this column is not to make you feel sorry for the Hereford Whitefaces and those people closely associated with them. They don't feel sorry for themselves, you can bet.

But remember — in 1985, 1986 or whatever year the Herd is struggling through a season — the year that almost was. The players didn't give up in '84, even when some fans might have. Be assured they aren't going to give up then.

The Herd's got too strong a tradition of winning to quit. And too strong a tradition of outstanding coaches, both head and assistant who won't make excuses.

Cowboys struggle for survival

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Writer

The knot at the top of the National Football Conference's Eastern Division will unravel at least a little bit on Sunday when the Dallas Cowboys and St. Louis Cardinals meet in St. Louis.

The Cards and the Cowboys, both 6-4, share the top spot in the division with the New York Giants and Washington Redskins, who will be playing outside the division — the Giants at Tampa Bay and the Redskins at home to the Detroit Lions.

The Cowboys have missed the playoffs only once in the last 18 years, but this year's already different. Dallas has lost twice to the Giants, the first time that's happened in 21 years, and the Cowboys are only 1-4 against division opponents, a serious impediment if they get caught in a tiebreaker.

"Talent is well-rounded. You never know when someone's going to win," says Cowboys safety Dexter Clinkscale.

In other games Sunday, Buffalo is at New England; Indianapolis at the New York Jets; Houston at Kansas City; Minnesota vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee; New Orleans at Atlanta; Philadelphia at Miami; Pittsburgh at Cincinnati; San Francisco at Cleveland; Chicago at the Los Angeles Rams, and Denver at San Diego.

In St. Louis, the key may be the Cards' Neil Lomax throwing against a Cowboy secondary that's allowed less than 50 percent of the passes thrown against it to be completed.

The game in Los Angeles between the 6-4 Rams and 7-3 Bears matches the NFL's two best running backs — Walter Payton of Chicago and Eric Dickerson of the Rams. The Bears hold a 3½-game lead in the NFC Central, while the Rams, three games behind San Francisco in the NFC West, are in the middle of a struggle for a wild-card spot.

Miami, going for its 11th win without a loss, could clinch the AFC East title against 4-5-1 Philadelphia, although it would need the unlikely combination of winless Buffalo beating New England and the Colts beating the Jets to do it.

The Dolphins, who lead the division by four games, also have other milestones to think about it, although Coach Don Shula downplays any thoughts this early of emulating the 1972 Dolphins with an unbeaten season.

Officials at Big Brothers-Big Sisters report that 10 pheasants are to be marked and released just prior to the first weekend of pheasant season, all within a 25-mile radius of Hereford. The first licensed bounty hunter taking part in the hunt to present a marked pheasant to a representative will receive the $1,000. Big Brothers-Big Sisters representatives will be stationed at the Caison House restaurant during business hours.

The hunt is scheduled to end Dec. 9 at 5 p.m.

All proceeds go to Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Hereford.

The mini-gym planned for preschoolers, the four year old boys combination class of Karate & Gymnastics, the very young (some just two) dance class - you must visit that class. A lot of the karate students went to the National Tournament this week-end - hope they bring back some National Championships.

Tell me more about this rumor I heard about Mr. L.; that is really something. I wish him the success he deserves.

I can't wait to see the trophies those Karate boys will likely bring back.

Pro-football record

Oilers want to end losing streak at 23

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The winless Houston Oilers will try to break a National Football League record road losing streak, while the Kansas City Chiefs hope to rebound from one of the most humiliating losses in their history.

Sunday's Oilers-Chiefs clash in Arrowhead Stadium is not exactly the duel of the titans. About 40,000 were expected for the 12:01 p.m. (CST) kickoff.

The Chiefs' threadbare hopes for their first playoff appearance since 1971 went up in smoke last Sunday in a 45-0 shellacking by Seattle. The Seahawks set an NFL record with four interception returns for touchdowns as the Chiefs, who started out the season by winning their first two games, dropped to 5-5.

The Oilers and the Buffalo Bills are the NFL's only winless teams 10 weeks into the season and the Oilers have only three victories in the past two years. A loss to the Chiefs would extend their league record for consecutive road defeats to 24.

Houston Coach Hugh Campbell, who won five Canadian Football League Grey Cup titles with the Edmonton Oilers, said a victory by Houston "would be like winning two Grey Cups."

"In coaching, the unusual circumstances are the Tom Landrys who can stay in one place and be challenged and happy for a great number of years," Campbell said. "I think it is more common that from time to time coaches make changes. I felt very comfortable with the length of time I stayed places. I hope that it will work out as well here."

John Mackovic, in his second year as coach of the Chiefs, was pleased at mid-week when his players called a special meeting in the wake of the Seattle debacle.

"They wanted to get together and talk," said Mackovic. "I think it was apropos. I thought they should at least find out where they all stood."

"We were just trying to find the attitude we felt we had in training camp when we came into the season fresh and hungry," said linebacker Gary Spani. "It is hard to get it back. Teams like Denver and Seattle have been able to keep it because they keep winning games. But once you lose it, it's hard to get it back."

"We set some goals as to how we are going to approach the last six games of the season," said cornerback Albert Lewis. "We're going to be like the hurdler, get over them one week at a time. As a team, we decided to have a renewed commitment to winning."

"We were just talking about goals for this week, things we have to change, things we have to get going," said quarterback Bill Kenney, who may not play against the Oilers because of knee and shoulder injuries. "After we accomplish our goals this week, we will meet again next week. The most important thing is to get everyone going in the same direction."

Champ scores TKO in 12th round

Bleeding Holmes cuts up Bonecrusher

By TIM DAHLBERG
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes, bleeding badly from the first cut of his career, turned to his corner for help. Then Holmes went about cutting up James "Bonecrusher" Smith.

Holmes stopped Smith by technical knockout in the 12th round Friday night to retain his International Boxing Federation heavyweight crown.

Holmes had fleeting visions of losing his first fight ever after an apparent head butt in the seventh round opened a gaping wound over his left eye. But some expert work by his corner kept the blood from flowing into his eye and the fight was allowed to continue.

"I thought it (the fight) would be stopped for a second but then I looked back toward my corner and thought I couldn't lose," said Holmes, who won for the 46th time without a defeat.

Holmes, obviously troubled by the cut, was stunned by several Smith right hands in the eighth round and appeared to be in danger of losing control of the fight.

But he managed to regain his composure and came out throwing stinging left jabs in the ninth round. He finally finished Smith off in the 12th when ring doctor Donald Romeo stopped the bout at 2:10 as blood streamed into Smith's left eye.

"He hit me hard and shook me up but he never hit me twice in a row," said Holmes. "This is the only time I've ever been cut, but nobody's going to beat me as long as I'm standing."

The 35-year-old Holmes, who hadn't fought in nearly a year, showed some signs of age against Smith. Although he was leading handily on the scorecards of the three ringside judges, he seemed unsure of himself at times and his punches often missed their marks.

"I found Bonecrusher very strong, very awkward," said Holmes. "I tried to get him out early but I couldn't. The only good punches I landed were on the inside, I couldn't land from the outside."

Holmes revealed that he had chipped a bone in his right thumb while training in July and said he went through with the fight anyway because he felt he owed it to the fledgling IBF.

Holmes went to the hospital after the fight to get stitches over his left eye and X-rays of the thumb.

"I hope to get it (the thumb) fixed and in six weeks be training for David Bey or Michael Spinks," he said.

Smith, a 31-year-old college graduate who was a 13-10 pick not to last seven rounds against Holmes, gave a most credible performance, stunning the champion on several occasions.

Smith was cut early on his left cheek and then again on his eyelid, but the cuts did not reopen until the 11th round. In that round, Holmes, still bleeding profusely from his own cut, ripped open a deep cut above Smith's left eye. The challenger managed to finish the round but the cut was reopened in the 12th.

Smith, whose previous biggest fight was a knockout of England's Frank Bruno, earned $175,000 for the bout while Holmes walked away with $1 million.

In a strange ending to a companion bout, former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Mike Weaver, now top-ranked by the organization, was awarded a first-round victory when his opponent, Tony Anthony, was disqualified for hitting after the bell.

Breeders' Cup tabbed horse racing's best

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — In theory, the Breeders' Cup — seven horse races worth a total of $10 million — is to be held at the close of each year to determine the champions of the various divisions — a Super Bowl of horse racing.

But, through attrition and injuries, many top horses never got as far as Saturday's inaugural Breeder's Cup series. NBC was to televise the four-hour series of races live, the longest horse racing exposure ever given by a major network.

"I've waited for something like this for 25 years," said Johnny Nerud, an owner-breeder and Hall-of-Fame trainer. "We needed this to show off our sport at its best. The best horses in the world on the same track and everybody watching on TV."

Win or lose Saturday's race, the $3 million Classic at 1 1/4 miles, Slew o' Gold probably will win Horse of the Year honors, although racing's all-time earnings king, John Henry, unable to compete in the $2 million Turf race and sidelined the rest of the year because of a leg injury, also will be given consideration.

Slew o' Gold, fitted with a patch to mend a quarter crack on his right heel, was pronounced ready Friday by co-owner Mickey Taylor. He incurred the crack during a gallop Thursday, but worked three furlongs Friday in 36.2-5.

The 4-year-old son of Seattle Slew entered the Classic unbeaten in five starts this year and was the odds-on favorite.

Earlier this year, he became the first horse ever to sweep the New York Fall Championship Series — the Woodward, Marlboro Cup and Jockey Club Gold Cup.

Slew o' Gold's opposition included Preakness winner Gate Dancer and West Coast standouts Precisionist and Desert Wine.

The Breeders' Cup series pointed out the success of Seattle Slew, the 1977 Triple Crown winner, as a sire. Three of his offspring, including Slew o' Gold, ran today and another, Seattle Song, was scratched earlier this week because of an injury.

Also competing were Tsunami Slew in the Mile and Adored in the Distaff.

The Turf and Classic races, the concluding races on the program, were preceded by five $1 million races — the Juvenile for 2-year-old colts and geldings, the Juvenile Filly, the Sprint, the Mile on the grass, and the Distaff for older fillies and mares.

It was possible several of the races would help decide Eclipse awards as best in the respective divisions.

A victory by Chief's Crown, a five-time winner, in the Juvenile, a one-mile test, might sway some voters away from Saratoga Six, who was unbeaten in four starts before being injured and permanently disabled.

Chief's Crown was the odds-on choice.

Bowling's Bowl to lock doors

Bowling's Bowl, 110 N. 25 Mile Ave., will lock its doors for good Friday, according to Kenneth Cook of the Hereford Men's Bowling Association.

Cook said he received word of the closing Thursday afternoon, that the alley would shut down following Friday Night League bowling. Cook said complete details as to why the alley was being closed were not available.

A meeting for officers and members of the Hereford Men's Bowling Association has been called for 8 p.m. Wednesday in the SPS Reddy Room. All men bowlers and interested parties are asked to attend.

Cook said a meeting of the women's association probably would be called, but he knew of no details.

DON'T KISS $8,938 GOODBYE

That's how much you could lose just on resale value if you don't buy a John Deere

Looking for a big discount when you buy a tractor? Don't get stuck with an even bigger discount when you want to trade.

Always consider resale value when you price a field tractor. Because the differences among brands may sometimes be bigger than ANY purchase incentive.

Compare John Deere with our two leading competitors. According to the Spring 1984 Official Guide of the National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association, the average 5-year-old John Deere 4440 sells for 106 percent of its 1979 list price. One leading competitor averages 87 percent of its 1979 list price. The other averages 73 percent.

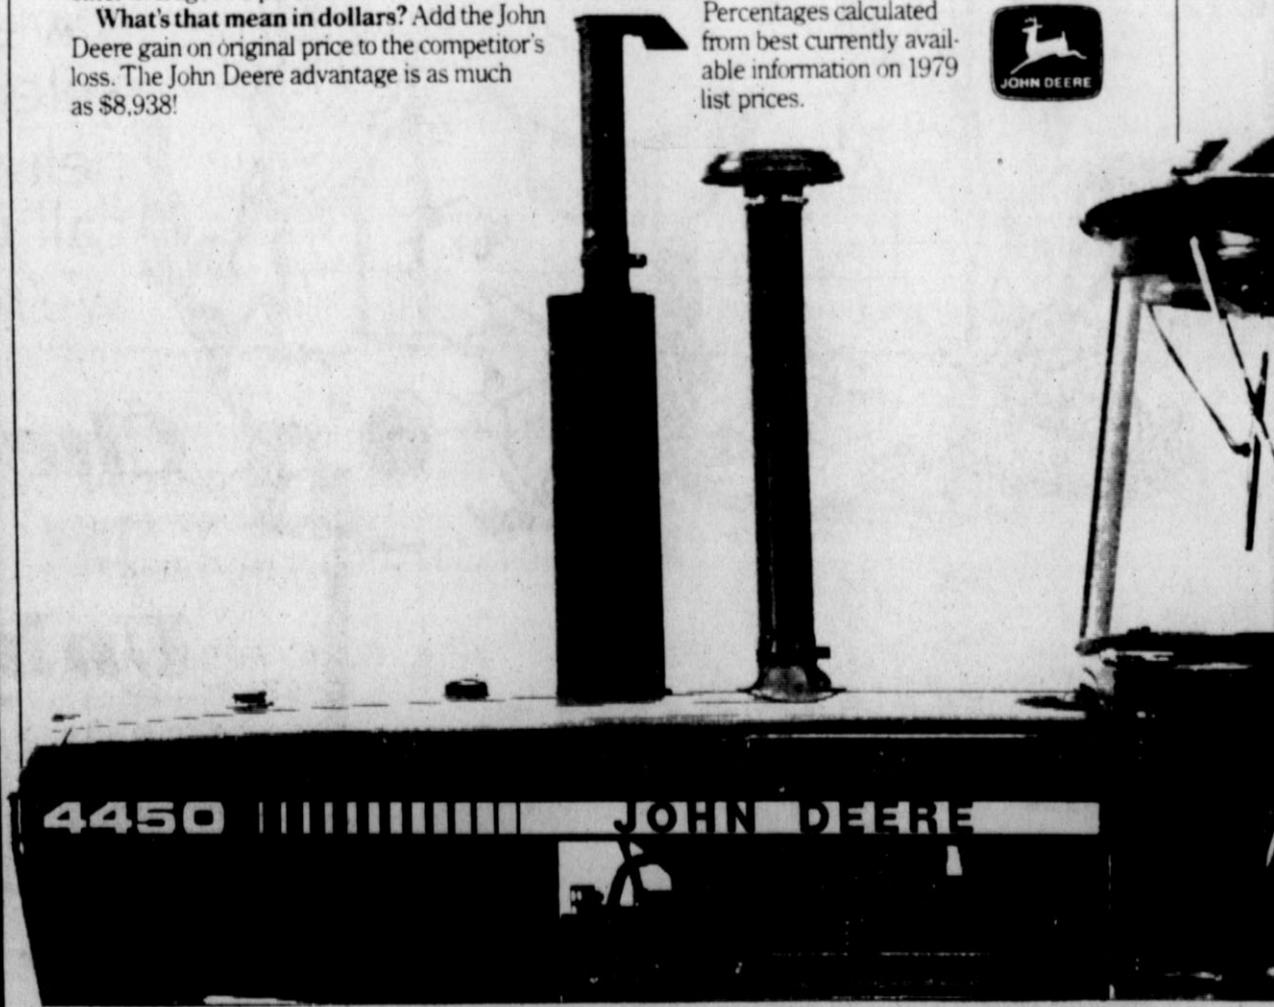

What's that mean in dollars? Add the John Deere gain on original price to the competitor's loss. The John Deere advantage is as much as $8,938!

Is this only true of one model? No. Every 40 Series 90- to 180-hp tractor has an average resale price that's higher than its new price five years ago.

Is resale your only John Deere advantage? No. Don't forget the remarkable fuel efficiency of today's 50 Series John Deere Tractors. And don't forget our unmatched reputation for high quality and high reliability. See your John Deere dealer. He'll be happy to explain the big difference between a low-price tractor and a low-cost John Deere: 100-hp 4050, 120-hp 4250, 140-hp 4450, 165-hp 4650 or 190-hp 4850.

NOTE: Average resale prices taken from Spring 1984 Official Guide of The National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association.

Block eyes market-oriented farm policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's mandate from voters will provide fresh muscle for the administration's market-oriented policies when Congress writes a new farm bill next year, says Agriculture

Secretary John R. Block. "This strength of the vote for the president is going to help us do what the president would like to do — and I feel encouraged by it," Block said Wednesday in an interview.

Block also said that he is not thinking about leaving his Cabinet job, but that he has not yet talked to Reagan about staying on.

A new general farm bill will be one of the items of business when Congress goes to work next year. One of the tasks will be to reconcile demands for greater federal involvement to help financially pressed farmers, with the administration's wish to cut back on government programs.

Block said the administration "moves into the process of developing this new farm bill with more muscle, substantially more muscle than we would have had" if Reagan's victory had not been so great.

How come some nature fakirs can see the rain aloft that's not reaching the ground, yet fail to spot the stuff floating the house away?

Exception to the rule that you can't take it with you: Northerners who flee to the Sunshine State invariably bring record cold along.

The National Security Agency is worried about secure phones. Solution to the problem: Mute the blabbermouth at the speaking end of the circuit.

However, Block declined to be specific as to whether Reagan now will be more adamant in his farm bill demands, to the point of threatening veto of the package if it did not conform strictly to a predetermined list of cost objectives.

"I'm really speaking more in terms of philosophy, and the philosophy direction this administration wants to take and will work to take," Block said. "It's the philosophy of prices that are really a product of supply and demand conditions, rather than prices that are a product of government mandate or government support."

"I will talk to the president about the future," Block said. "I'm excited and encouraged by the prospects of writing farm legislation that I believe will be good for agriculture."

First loan guaranteed

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Department of Agriculture has guaranteed its first loan under a new program designed to help Texans purchase farms and ranches, and more than 40 others are in the final review stages.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower signed a loan guarantee which he said will allow a Falls County couple who have been leasing land to own a stocker cattle operation.

"The people who work the land now own their land," Hightower said Friday.

The program was established under the Family Farm and Ranch Security Act, which allows the state to guarantee such loans providing borrowers make the farm or ranch bought their chief occupation.

Hightower said the first loan was guaranteed for Aubrey and Janet Stone of Marlin, who are using it to purchase a 537-acre ranch for $644,000 at an 11 percent variable interest rate.

Financing for the loan was obtained through the Marlin National Bank, an independent, locally owned institution.

Bank president Windell Scruggs said that because of its existing loan limit, Marlin National could not have made the loan to the Stones without the state guarantee.

"We think this is a great program, and we hope to close several more of these loans in the coming months. This is just the kind of help rural, agriculturally oriented banks and family farmers need," Scruggs said.

According to Hightower, the Stones have been running the cattle operation for several years, but on leased land because they couldn't buy their own land.

"The Family Farm and Ranch Security Act was the only opportunity they had to purchase their own operation," he said.

"There are plenty of qualified, capable people out there — just like the Stones — who want to have their own farm or ranch. But the combination of depressed commodity prices and skyrocketing production costs has just about slammed the door on them. This program can re-open that door for some people," Hightower said.

According to Larry Strange, who administers the loan guarantee program for the agriculture department, about 40 more applications for loan guarantees are in their final stages of evaluation by agriculture department officials.

NEXT TIME YOU HEAR SOMEONE TALKING about how farmers must be getting rich considering the cost of food and fiber, here's a little piece of information you can pass along in direct rebuttal. Out of each dollar spent on food in 1983, the farmer, on average, got only 27¢. That's according to the most recent figures published by the American Farm Bureau Federation in their updated brochure, "Who Gets Your Food Dollar?" Where does the other 73¢ go? Well, according to the AFBA, 33¢ goes to labor, while the biggest chunk — 40¢ of each dollar — covers the multitude of marketing costs connected with the food industry. That includes such items as advertising, packaging, processing, etc. The biggest bunk of the marketing costs went to packaging. Seems like someone is doing well — somewhere between the farmer and the consumer.

Vietnam memorial marks a war unlike others

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The designer of the Vietnam Veteran's Memorial in Washington says she wanted "to make the point that there were no heroes or villains in this war, that it was unlike any other major war in our history."

Maya Ying Lin, a second-year student at Yale University's school of architecture, chose a stark design: two black granite walls sunk into a bank of earth and conig together in a huge V, inscribed with the names of the more than 58,000 Americans killed or missing in the war.

"At first, people said that the memorial was too abstract, too morbid, too inhuman," Ms. Lin recalled last week in an interview with The Associated Press. "Then they went and saw it, saw their faces reflected in the granite between the carved names, and they realized it was the most human kind of memorial that you could have."

"The memorial represented a great maturing in our attitudes towards war," she said, "but we've been sliding back over recent years."

An addition to the memorial, a statue of three soldiers, will be unveiled at the site. The statue is placed so it appears the soldiers are walking through a small grove toward the memorial.

Ms. Lin, who did not participate in the statue design, said the idea came from "people who wanted to politicize the memorial, to give it a heroic John Wayne image." She said the sculpture was not heroic because the men had "dazed" expressions and would have little effect on her design because it was situated on a plaza out of sight of the monument itself.

After winning a national competition to determine the memorial's design as a senior undergrada on art.

Hair loss

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a female in my 60s. I have always had a thick and luxuriant head of hair, which has been dyed, bleached and permed for more than 40 years without any ill effects.

About five or six months ago I discovered, to my dismay, that my hair is becoming very thin, especially on the top and sides of my head. The back is still quite thick. My hairdresser thinks it's caused by stress and advised me to take vitamins for stress. My internist took a thyroid test, which came out negative, and he is against vitamins. He advised me to stop the harmless rinse (no peroxide) which I have been using for five or six years instead of dye. I don't know what to do. Could it be due to my age? Please help.

DEAR READER — You have the female counterpart of male pattern baldness. In men, the receding hairline and bald spot at the back of the head gradually enlarge until only a fringe of hair encircles the bald pate. In women, the hair thins markedly over the temples and over the front of the head.

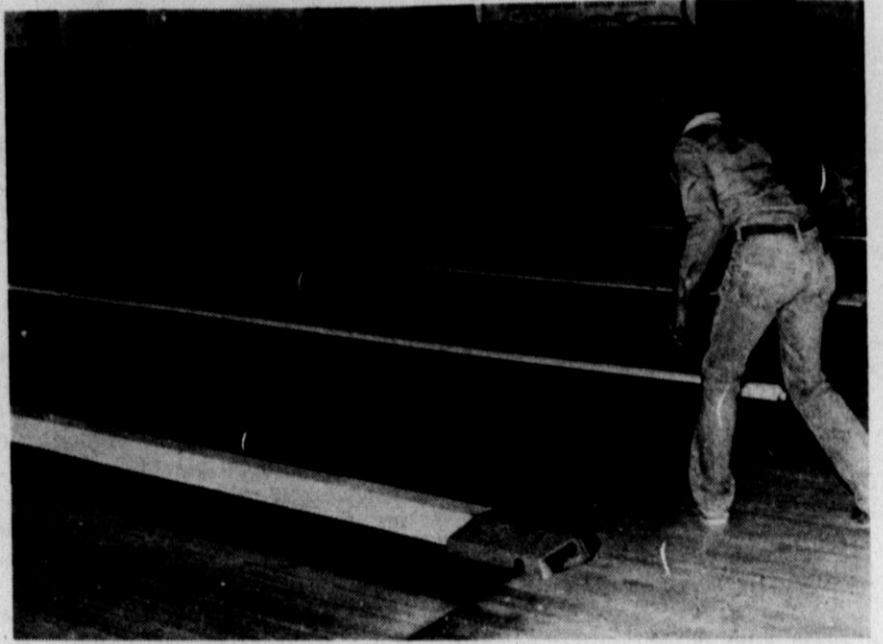

In both instances, the cause is that the involved hair follicles produce an increased amount of one type of testosterone, the male hormone. Whether this will happen is genetically predetermined for each hair follicle. The hair follicles on the side of the head are less likely to have this genetic characteristic, which is why they will grow normal hair when they are transplanted to the front of a bald pate.

Women with this problem may benefit from increased amounts of estrogen. Some dermatologists give estrogen as Dienestrol (9.05 percent) in a lotion that can be applied on the scalp. Two droppersful are applied to the scalp five days a week. This should not be used in women likely to become pregnant.

Other measures to help prevent the loss of hair with this condition are discussed in The Health Letter 12-6, Hair Care, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You might wish to consult a dermatologist. Most dermatologists do not feel that most hair coloring will cause hair loss.

THE LIVING TRUST
A living trust can offer maximum benefits for both the present and the future. With a living trust, assets do not have to be probated as they do when left in a will. However, returns must still be filed, taxes paid and some formalities duly observed. Nonetheless, income from the trust is available to the beneficiaries with greater speed and efficiency. Certainly, with respect to property in the trust, much of the delay and/or many of the costs usually attendant with the administration and settlement of an estate are minimized. Furthermore, wills are public documents which trusts are not. A living trust can spare the family unwelcome publicity.

Everyone should have a will or trust set up as they should also have a good accountant to handle end-of-the-year taxes on an individual basis or to handle the payroll records and books if you have a small company. RICK ROBERTS, CPA, 138 Thrld, Suite A, can provide the expertise you need in these areas and many more. We are open Monday thru Friday 8:30-12 and 1-5 and our phone number is 364-7525. Have a nice day.

Most living trusts are revocable.

Camp Fire News

ANN CUMMINGS

Three generations in Camp Fire! Enjoys the challenge of working with girls! Loves the out-of-doors! Believes in setting goals! These are represented in Hereford Council of Camp Fire's choice of honoring Ann Cummings for the 75th Anniversary celebration of Camp Fire with the theme of "Celebrate Friendship - Celebrate Camp Fire."

Ann Cummings is the leader of her youngest daughter's Adventure group as she continues her chosen career as a classroom teacher. In her growing-up years, Ann lived in Hereford in the Wyche Community through the eighth grade after which she moved to Stratford with her family, graduating from high school in that city. Ann's mother, Mrs. Hartland Caraway was a Camp Fire leader.

During the time that her parents were active in Camp Fire, there was no paid staff or board organization. The volunteers worked in committees supporting the Camp Fire philosophy of preparing children for "the business of living." In those days resident camp was held at Camp Western Life, New Mexico. Ann well remembers that her father furnished his truck to carry the girls' luggage to camp.

She also remembers that Marian Jo Wilson Clark who is now executive director of Green County Council of Camp Fire in Tulsa, Ok., was a senior counsellor in her camping days.

Ann began her volunteering as an assistant to her older daughter, Donann's group. Now, as Chelli's group leader for the time since she was a Blue Bird, she continues as the Adventure leader in the sixth grade. The seventeen active, enthusiastic girls chose to name their groups WAJING DEI TANDA - maidens who love the out-of-doors.

Before the beginning of this school year, the group took a trip to El Capitan, N.M., visiting the National Park which encompasses Mt. Capitan, where the group enjoyed the nature trails and its attendant wild life.

The group as always actively supported candy sales selling an average of 43 boxes per girl every year. They are working toward "Save the Statue" project by collecting tin cans, delivering them for recycling and watching the process. They have entered the national art competition every year. This year the group will be assisting in the Christmas wrap booth at Sugarland Mall.

The girls look forward to their time when they will be eligible to become helpers as counsellors at day and resident camp. Ten of the girls aspire to achieve the Wo-He-Lo Medallion - the highest award in Camp Fire - presented the senior year in high school.

Ann chose the Indian name of Ka Wa Ka, meaning industrious April girl, and this became a goal for her life not only in Camp Fire but in her professional career also. Ann received her B.A. degree in elementary education with a minor in English and music from West Texas University. She teaches first grade at Northwest Elementary School and has taught orthopedically handicapped. She is a member and past president of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary teachers society.

She is also a member of N.E.A., T.S.T.A. professional classroom teachers organizations. For several years she served on the board of Kids, Inc. She and her husband, Joe Don, are members of the Central Church of Christ where Ann has taught in the nursery class for more than 11 years. Joe Don is a Science teacher at Stanton Jr. High School.

In 1983 Ann received the honor of "Leader of the Year" award in the Hereford Camp Fire Council. She has been a resident camp and day camp counsellor four years serving as cabin mother and on the outdoors program. She will be Adventure trainer next year and continues to work with her group in a special program for Adventure girls called "Link-Ups." With all her chosen activities, Ann still finds time for bowling once a week.

The Cummings family is truly a Camp Fire family! Besides the leadership responsibility Ann volunteers, Joe Don has and continues to serve on the board of directors. Donann is a junior in high school and Chelli is a sixth grader. Both girls are actively involved in Tumbling. Doann competes in National Tumbling and Chelli in State tumbling competition.

As our chosen person to honor, Ann Cummings fits the high ideals of Camp Fire. She has set goals for herself and continues that tradition by inspiring and challenging young people. Three generations showing how to celebrate friendship through Camp Fire!

Beer batter

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a good recipe for beer batter for frying the shrimp? — RUTHIE

DEAR RUTHIE — This beer batter recipe, from "Fish and Shellfish," by Charlotte Walker (HP Books; 1984), is light and crispy, and it's a delicious way to prepare shrimp, fish or vegetables:

Beat together two egg yolks, three-fourths cup beer, one tablespoon vegetable oil, one cup all-purpose flour and one-half teaspoon salt until smooth. Let stand three to six hours. When ready to use, beat egg whites in a separate bowl until stiff but not dry. Gently fold beaten egg whites into batter. Dip in food to be coated and deep fry until golden brown. — POLLY arrange my slacks and tops on the rack in the order of the colors of the rainbow — red through violet, followed by black, brown and white.

When I give a jigsaw puzzle to a friend or donate it to a charity thrift shop, I tape the box securely on all four sides so no pieces can escape. If any pieces are missing, I make a note of how many. If none are missing, I indicate that also by a note on the top of the box.

Anyone saving as many recipes as I do must have a system to avoid chaos. My plan is to alphabetize dessert recipes by flavors; to divide cake and cookie recipes into chocolate and non-chocolate; and to categorize salads as meat and fish, vegetable or fruit. — FRANCES Polly will send you a Polly Dollar ($1.00) if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

American Red Cross to aid African victims

The American Red Cross will send two fact-finding teams to Africa in November to assess the famine caused by one of the continent's worst droughts in 100 years. The teams will visit Ethiopia and Mauritania, two of the countries most severely affected by the drought.

The purpose of the teams' visit is to obtain first-hand knowledge of drought conditions and to raise the American public's awareness of the situation. In January, the American Red Cross will launch an African Famine Relief Campaign to raise a minimum of $5 million.

The money will help some of the 180 million people in 27 African countries who are in danger of dying of severe malnutrition and starvation. The countries affected cover an area greater than that of the United States and part of Canada.

The teams—headed by volunteer leaders of the American Red Cross and American Red Cross President Richard F. Schubert—will visit famine-relief centers and long-range development projects being implemented by local Red Cross and Red Crescent societies. The local societies are being aided by the League of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies.

Presently, the League is conducting famine-relief operations in 12 African nations. On a day-to-day basis, it is providing food, water and medical aid to the most vulnerable groups—children, pregnant women and nursing mothers. In addition, the League is coordinating a variety of long-range projects aimed at reducing the impact of future droughts. Those projects include market-garden programs, reforestation and other self-sufficiency efforts aimed at reducing the impact of future droughts.

The two Red Cross teams, accompanied by media representatives, will leave for Africa shortly after Thanksgiving.

Contributions for the African Relief will be used in a variety of ways including buying food, such as cereals, edible oils, milk powder, dried fish, sugar, baby food and protein tablets.

The money will also be used to buy medical supplies, to obtain trucks, four-wheel-drive vehicles, and airlift services to transport goods in Africa, to provide trained medical and relief personnel to coordinate on-site relief operations, and to install long-range food production programs. These programs include tree planting, backyard gardening, and preparations for increased agricultural production.

The Deaf Smith Red Cross will accept and forward all donations for the fund. Checks should be made payable to the American Red Cross African Relief. To contribute, individuals may send money to the Red Cross, P.O. Box 1371, Hereford, Texas, 79045, stop by the office at 224 S. Main, or call 364-3761.

Texas Waterfowlers Association works to preserve wintering habitat for waterfowl in Texas, particularly in the local area. A wide variety of waterfowl species overwinter here.

TEXAS
ASSOCIATION, INC.

Texas Waterfowlers Association fundraising dinner-auction set

Jim Steiert, chairman of this year's TWA fundraiser, shows off some of the excellent hand-carved decoys to be offered at auction during the TWA dinner Thursday night. Steiert is holding a hand carved ash pintail donated by Don Kriebel, retired federal game warden from Lubbock. Other outstanding decoys include a rustic swan and snow goose as well as readhead and bluewinged teal.

Dr. H.A. Cavness examines the fine detail of a waterfowl mount prepared by Patrick Pitt of Memphis Tn. Pitt has donated a waterfowl mount to be auctioned during the TWA fundraiser. K Bar M Taxidermy of Amarillo has also donated a waterfowl mount. The TWA auction will get underway at 8 p.m. Thursday following a social hour at 6 a.m. and a catered dinner at 7 p.m.

The second annual Texas Waterfowlers Association fundraising dinner-auction will be held Thursday at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Country Club Road.

A full evening of activities will get underway with a social hour at 6 p.m. followed by a catered dinner at 7 p.m. and drawings for door prizes and a big auction at 8 p.m.

Proceeds from the fundraiser will be used for waterfowl habitat work in the local region.

An impressive array of items has been collected for this year's auction and a wide variety of door prizes will also be awarded.

Ladies in attendance will be eligible to win a VCR to be awarded as a door prize. Numerous ladies' door prize items have been collected for the dinner.

The major mens' door prize is a Ruger Model 77/22 bolt action rifle complete with scope mounts.

Topping the auction list is a guided roe deer hunt in Belgium, donated by Texas Panhandle Guided Hunt Service and Wenceslas de Beaudignies. The hunt is open to one shooter and one non-shooter and will be staged on a Belgian estate at the edge of the Ardennes Forest. Hunt participants will board in a 250 year-old castle. A day has been set aside for sightseeing during the hunt.

Hereford artist Andrew Wilks has donated a bronze wildlife sculpture for the auction. A wide assortment of items including hand-carved decoys, art prints and photographs, taxidermy services and sporting equipment will also be auctioned.

Ted Walling of Hereford will serve as auctioneer.

A special highlight of the evening will be membership boost periods. During two designated times those in attendance will have an opportunity to add to their TWA membership. Those boosting their membership will be eligible to win either a Ruger 12 gauge over-under shotgun or a Browning B-80 12 gauge autoloading shotgun.

Tickets for the dinner are priced at $20 each which includes a $10 TWA membership and the meal. Individual meal tickets are available to spouses at $10. Tickets may be obtained by calling 364-8400. Tickets will also be available at the door.

TWA was founded in 1982 by Mike Smith and Jim Steiert of Hereford. The non-profit conservation organization was formed by a group of sportsmen to provide waterfowl wintering habitat in Texas with particular emphasis on the Deaf Smith, Castro and parmer county regions. Landowners are paid by the association to manage playa lakes as sanctuary areas for waterfowl.

Donations to TWA are tax deductible.

Texas Waterfowlers Association committeemen Toby Turpen, at left, and Mike Watts examine two of the fine firearms to be featured at the TWA dinner-auction Thursday night. Turpen shows a Ruger Model 77/22 bolt action rifle that will be awarded as a mens' door prize while Watts admires a Ruger Red Label 12 gauge over/under shotgun that will be awarded in a membership boost session. A Browning B-80 12 gauge autoloader will also be awarded during a membership boost.

Taylor, Hoover exchange vows during candlelight ceremony

During a Nov. 4 afternoon candlelight ceremony in First Baptist Church, Cynthia Bernice Taylor became the bride of Timothy Alan Hoover of Arlington.

Dr. Ron Cook, pastor, officiated during the wedding. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don B. Taylor, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoover of Vacaville, Calif.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, walked to the front of the church which was filled with candles. The altar was decorated with three 15-branch fan candelabra, two 15-branch spiral candelabra and two 7-branch fan candelabra with greenery. White satin marked the pews. The couple lit a unity candle during the ceremony.

The bride wore a designer gown of shimmering white satin. The dress featured an exquisite Victorian neckline bordered with alencon lace, tiny seed pearls and tridescents. Appliques of alencon lace covered the entire bodice to the flattering basque waistline. Crushed Juliet sleeves were adorned with alencon lace.

A full gathered skirt and court train had self fabric bows centered with flowers trimming the back of the skirt and train. Alencon lace bordered the entire skirt.

A matching hat, with veiling, covered in lace and pearls, complemented the ensemble. Her bouquet consisted of a cascade of white roses, mini carnations and stephanotis with baby's breath and fresh greenery. The flowers, trimmed with white lace and picot ribbon, were made on the Bible that her mother carried in the bride's aunt's wedding.

For something old, the bride chose a necklace fashioned from her maternal grandmother's gold wedding band and her mother's solitaire diamond engagement stone. She wore diamond earrings. Her dress was something new.

She borrowed a white lawn handkerchief edged with white lace from her paternal grandmother. For something blue, the bride carried a sachet ball filled with her favorite perfume. She also wore pennies with her and the groom's birthdate on them in her shoe.

Melissa Carlisle of Amarillo served as maid of honor while Mrs. Scott Taylor and Mrs. Jim Taylor were bridesmaids. Each of the attendants wore a tea length burgundy taffeta dress with a strapless bodice that was fitted at the waist. The matching jacket with puffed sleeves featured a ruffled peplum and was accented at the waistline with a bow.

The outfits were complemented by waffle weave burgundy hats with a brim and a matching taffeta band and a side rose flower with waist length illusion. The ladies carried two long stem burgundy roses with baby's breath, fresh greenery, a pink bow and streamers.

The groom wore a full dress white tuxedo which featured a formal tailcoat complemented with a ruffled shirt, wing-tip bow tie, pleated cummerbund and matching trousers.

Tim Donkelaar of Allen served as best man. The groomsmen were David McClung of Amarillo and Dave Leighninger of Amarillo. Scotty Taylor and Jim Taylor, brothers of the bride, served as ushers.

Angela Shea Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Taylor and the bride's niece, served as flower girl. Her dress was formal length white lace over burgundy organza puffed sleeves and wide ruffle on the skirt. She had flowers in her hair and carried a white lace basket with burgundy and pink rose petals.

The ring bearer, Santre Scott Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scotty Taylor and nephew of the bride, carried a satin pillow with seed pearls. He wore a burgundy rose with white lace.

The candles were lit by Jim and Scott Taylor, brothers of the bride. Mrs. Ken Walser provided the music for the vocalist Ameka Badgett of Canyon. She sang "Whither Thou Goest," "And on This Day" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The reception took place in Kinsey Parlor in the First Baptist Church. Mrs. Tim Donkelaar of Allen registered guests from a table decorated with a nosegay bouquet of pink and burgundy mini carnations and baby's breath.

The ten-foot oval bride's table was draped with a floor-length white silk organza cloth, with matching swags. At each swag, there was a corsage made of burgundy and pink roses. The bride's bouquet was placed on the table and used as the centerpiece. Silver punch bowl and appointments complemented the table.

Mrs. Mike Harris served the three-tiered cake which was decorated with tiny burgundy, pink and white rose buds. A Precious Moments figurine topped the cake. Nancy Beach of Canyon served the punch and coffee. Rebecca Dilbeck assisted.

The bride's mother chose a formal length mauve gown of lace over taffeta. A long-sleeved chiffon jacket with ruffled peplum and lace trim for the collar complemented the dress.

The couple planned a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev. and San Francisco, Calif. The bride chose for her traveling costume a double-breasted black tweed suit with a white fold-back lapel. She wore black snake pump shoes and carried a matching handbag. Her corsage was white roses and fresh greenery with baby's breath.

The couple will make their home after Nov. 12 in Arlington.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1982 and attended West Texas State University for one and one-half years. She is presently assistant department manager of sportswear for Mervyn's Department Store in Plano.

The bridegroom is a 1981 graduate of Vacaville High School and has been employed by Mervyn's Department Store for the past three years. He is currently operations manager for Mervyn's Redbird in Dallas.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Taylor of McLean, the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Pyeatt of Clyde, the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McClellan of McLean, also an aunt and uncle, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dilbeck of Lubbock, an aunt and uncle.

Also, two great aunts, Cora Miller and Myrtle Smith, both of Amarillo.

Other towns represented were Houston, Amarillo, Albuquerque, N.M., and Jayton.

A reception dinner was held Saturday evening in the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church. Catered by Something Special, the dinner was hosted by the bride's parents.

Airfares to many parts of Europe are frequently their lowest through the fall and winter. Hotel rates are also considerably lower during these seasons. Yet the weather can be pleasant enough for traveling, particularly in the south. There is also the added bonus of not having to contend with hordes of foreign travelers during this time of year. Ask your travel agent about bargain tour packages, many of which start in the U.S. As many consumers already know, the trick to buying nearly anything is to buy it in the "off-season", when the demand is not so great. This philosophy pertains to the travel industry as well.

Louise's Latest

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
Ronald's Latest

I may not be very big but I'm still controlling the five people I live with. Three-fourths of the time, it seems they're all gathered around me and applauding me for my development. It must be awfully lonely being an only child. People, especially family, and my two sitters, are so nice to have around.

Last weekend, my mom and I were all alone. I didn't know that as I thought Daddy and I were all alone. Because you see that sometimes is the way it is when Mommy goes to work and my brothers and sisters go to school. Daddy lets me sleep late. I slept in the big bed with Mother and Allison. So when I woke, at a late hour, I crawled off the bed and started walking toward the den chanting "Dada, Dada, Dada." boy, was I surprised when I saw my mother and she looked hurt. Guess, she thought I wanted my "dada." Even as a baby, you can get yourself into some real predicaments.

I love to sit in things! I found out I fit nicely into Mother's crockery container she uses to make kraut. Out come the cameras and the pictures were taken. I knew I had stolen their hearts. Then I started checking other things I could crawl into and sit. Allison's doll carriage worked nicely. I noticed Mother's nice big stainless steel pan. She cooks roast, stews, and chili in it. So I crawl in and get nicely positioned. But uh-oh I couldn't get out. I was stuck. At this moment, no one was watching so I had to summon for help. I kinda whimpered and no one noticed. Finally had to let out a hearty cry. And would you believe everyone was called in to see my predicament. They all laughed before anyone attempted to unstuff my body from the shiny pot.

Mother says I'm the world's biggest and best clutterer. I love to find the pantry open. I can spend quite a bit of time pulling out lunch boxes, thermoses, canned goods, and crackers. Then I distribute them throughout the house. However Mother says I don't take much time with this feats. She says I can undo faster than she ever thought of doing. Guess age is taking its toll on Mom by slowing her down.

Oh, books, and magazines are so much fun to tear to bits and pieces. I like the mail mother gets at the post office. Her water bill is about chewed to pieces. Again I was quicker than she was.

Unloading the dish washer is so much fun. However, my breakage record is not perfect. A dinner plate, salad plate, measuring cup, and numerous glasses have bit the dust because of my prowess.

I learned early what the word "Go" means. I can be napping. Daddy can softly say, "I'm going to school to pick up your brothers" and I'll beat him to the door. When someone leaves the house, I want to go.

I figure there's more going on out in this world than at home.

Mother's sewing certainly looks interesting. There's all kinds of things I'd like to play with. I go for the scissors first. They always get taken away from me before I get a chance to try them out.

And I'm a songbird. Last night Allison was playing her saxophone and Bryan was accompanying her on the trumpet. They were perched on the fireplace hearth. There was just enough room in between them for me to join them. So I did and I sang and sang. Guess it met with everyone's approval as the camera came out again.

Must go. It's nap time.

Sincerely,
Ronald

Blood Donors' Rewards

dent, and DeRoy Thomas, president of FHA/HERO chapter. Thomas' organization is responsible for preparing and serving cookies to the blood drive participants.

Key Club sponsors blood drive

The Hereford High School Key Club will sponsor a school community blood drive Tuesday from 3 to 7 p.m. in the stage area of the High School auditorium.

During this annual event, the members seek to enlist the high school students in donating blood. Students age 17 with parents permission and students 18 or older are encouraged to give blood on this date. The club also invites and encourages all residents of Deaf Smith County to support this drive.

Promotion of the drive among high school students is being done this week and early next week by handing out a pamphlet giving full details on giving blood. Also, each student that gives blood will receive a blood donor t-shirt. Adults giving blood will receive a special mug.

Students will also be eligible for door prizes from a drawing at the end of the drive.

The high school VEH FHA/HERO chapter will prepare and serve cookies to participants in the blood drive. DeRoy Thomas, president of HERO, will supervise both the preparation and serving.

Over 175 residents of Deaf Smith County are in need of blood. Some of the blood replacement is needed for individuals who have deceased, but blood is still needed to assist families who have had great medical and funeral expenses.

There are professional tea tasters as well as wine tasters.

MRS. BRYAN REINART
...nee Donna Schilling

Reinart, Schilling exchange vows Saturday

St. Anthony's Catholic Church was the site of Saturday afternoon's wedding between Donna Marie Schilling of Dimmitt and Bryan Douglas Reinart.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald T. Schilling, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leander J. Reinart Sr. Father Tim Schwertner of St. Michael's Catholic Church in Levelland officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white taffeta, with a silk venice bodice on a sweetheart neckline. The sleeves were french pouf and had a chantilly lace ruffle on the edge. The middle of the sleeve was cinched and accented with a big bow. The skirt was a full pick-up skirt with petticoats of chantilly lace underneath.

The semi-circular skirt was decorated with scallops and topped with big taffeta angel bows cascading down each scallop. The train gathered to a full chapel sweep and was accented with petticoat underskirts of chantilly lace and scalloped. The big bows were on the edge of each scallop.

She chose a veil of country flowers and rosebuds wrapped in a wreath with pearls accenting. The wreath was caught in the back with a large bow to match her bows on the gown. The veil of bridal illusion cascaded down the back with scallops of embroidery on the edge.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, azalia blossoms and Bells of Ireland. Baby blue and peach rosebuds were worked throughout the bouquet. Peach, baby blue and white lace streamers complemented it.

The bride wore her great-grandmother's gold engagement band borrowed from her grandmother in Nazareth. She also wore a blue antique garter first worn in November, 1920, borrowed from Mrs. Bob Simpson.

The church was decorated with large and small spider mums which were potted and decorated with baby blue paper and white bows.

Joyce Schilling of Dimmitt served her sister as maid of honor while Nancy Acker of Nazareth, Joyce Acker of Amarillo, Mrs. Bert Navar of San Antonio, the bride's cousin, and Elaine Reinart of Canyon, the groom's sister, served as bridesmaids.

The attendants wore taffeta gowns featuring off the shoulder puff sleeves with angel bows atop a sweetheart neckline. The entire top of the gown was an ocean blue down to the pick-up skirt. Underneath, the ruffled skirt was baby blue, accented with baby blue bows cascading over each scallop on the skirt. They carried white lace fans with swags of peach, baby blue and ocean blue rosebuds trimmed with baby blue streamers.

Rex Reinart of Amarillo served his brother as best man with Charlie Stengel, cousin of the groom, Tom Schlabs, Kevin Urbanczyk and Doug Schilling of Dimmitt, brother of the bride, serving as groomsmen. Ushers for the occasion were Tony Reinart, the groom's brother, Gerald Marnell, cousin of the groom, Lee Schilling of Dimmitt, the bride's brother, and Roy Schilling of Clarendon, also the bride's brother.

Junior attendants were Caroline Downing of Easter and Jay Gunnels of Tulia, cousin of the bride. Flower girl was Stephanie Reinart, the groom's niece and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leander Reinart Jr. She wore an ocean blue pinafore with lace and baby blue bows accenting over a baby blue dress. She carried a white lace basket with a nose gay of blue and peach baby roses with baby blue bows and streamers.

The ring bearer was Charlie Broderson of Lubbock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Broderson of Lubbock.

Mrs. Sonny Evers provided the accompaniment for Bill Sava of Dimmitt and Mrs. Francis Acker of Dimmitt as they sang "The Gift of Love," "The Wedding Song," "His and Hers," and "God, a Woman and A Man."

Carrying gifts up to the altar were Mrs. Robert Newsom of Hereford, the groom's sister, Leander Reinart Jr., the groom's brother, Mrs. Dennis Anthony of Friona, the groom's sister, and Mrs. Brian Rahlfs of Amarillo, also the groom's sister.

The reader for the ceremony was Claud Schilling of Lubbock, the bride's brother.

A reception followed the ceremony in St. Anthony's Auditorium. Barbara Schlabs and Annette Diller of Amarillo registered guests.

Eileen Schwertner, of Amarillo, Leona Kleman of Nazareth and Mrs. Michael Campbell of Canyon served the Italian Cream cake with rolled fondant. The middle cake had four tiers with a fountain underneath. Two smaller three-tiered cakes flanked the center cake with bridges connecting them to the larger cake. All tiers had ribbon weaved in and out and bows to decorate. The cake top was a Precious Moments bride and groom.

The groom's cake was chocolate with a tractor and plow, a snow skier and a trapshooter atop the cake. The table was decorated with a brass candle holder with peach, baby blue and ocean blue candles. The bride's bouquet was also laid on the table.

Judith Schilling of Canyon served the punch. She was assisted by Mrs. Robert Diller and Mrs. William Earl Kahlick.

After the ceremony, a dinner took place which was catered by K-Bob's along with a dance with Shotgun Kelly of KDJW in Amarillo.

After a wedding trip to California, the couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride is a graduate of Dimmitt High School and Braniff Airlines School. She is currently employed by the U.S. Postal Service in Dimmitt as a clerk.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Hereford High School and farms east of Hereford.

Between the Covers

By DIANNE PIERSON
Library Director

Novels are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. The novels featured are "Love and War" by John Jakes and "The Summer of The Barshinskeys" by Diane Pearson. The intensity and the sweep of the Civil War is revealed in the towering novel, "Love and War." John Jakes recounts the adventures of two unforgettable families—the Hazards of Pennsylvania and the Mains of South Carolina.

The Civil War years were the most shattering years of our nation's history. Impeccably researched, Jakes's saga spans the five fiery years between the Union's first disastrous rout and the Confederacy's ultimate surrender. It ranges from New York to Georgia, from the western deserts to the shipyards at Liverpool. With astonishing creativity and unflagging pace, "Love and War" is a meaningful, compassionate, haunting experience...an American epic. "Love and War" is the second volume of his "North and South Trilogy." "North and South" and "Love and War" are in development as a major television miniseries.

Also available this week is "The Summer of The Barshinskeys" by Diane Pearson. With her brother, Edwin, and her sister, Lillian, Sophie listened to the seduction strains of the wild Russian violin tune Mr. Barshinsky played and watched spell-bound as the ragtag Barshinsky family, Ivan, Mrs. Barshinsky, and Galina made their way across Tyler's meadow and into the Willoughby's world.

The delighted Willoughby children could not know that this day and the Barshinsky's arrival would change their lives forever. "The Summer of the Barshinskeys" is a beautifully told, compelling story that moves from the small village of Kent to teeming London. This is the unforgettable saga of two families whose destinies are fated to entwine in endless combinations of friendship, passion, hatred, and love. Diane Pearson is the author of the 1975 bestseller "Csardas."

Also available this week is "The Zurich Numbers" by Bill Granger, "Fallen Angels" by Susannah Kells, and "Raising Children to Achieve" by Eric W. Johnson.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON
Executive Director

Special thanks to everyone offering their support and help to me and to my family after the death of David York. David was a CPR instructor and an all around volunteer for the Chapter. He will be greatly missed. The Chapter is accepting donations for the African Famine Relief campaign that is now under way. The International Red Cross has provided aid to African countries for many years. A serious and long-lasting drought has ravaged many African countries, causing the most severe famine in this century. The drought endangers about 185 million people in twenty-seven countries. Donations will be used both for emergency relief operations and for long term preventative programs. A contribution of $48 will feed one person for an entire year. If you would like to send a donation, mail or bring by a check made out to African Relief to our chapter, P.O. Box 1371-224 South Main Street. The Social Services office, High School Art classes and the Red Cross chapter are collecting used and new toys for needy families for Christmas. If you would like to share, please bring repairable toys to the High School office, the courthouse or the Red Cross office. The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

The couple plan to wed Dec. 28 in Lefors at the First United Methodist Church.

The bride-elect is a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School and is attending West Texas State University where she is working on a degree in communication disorder.

The prospective bridegroom, a 1982 graduate of Hamlin High School, also attends WTSU and is majoring in computer information systems.

MR. & MRS. WENDELL HUGHES

Couple wed recently

Sylvia Ann Gamez of Amarillo became the bride of Wendell Dwayne Hughes of Amarillo in an afternoon ceremony held recently in Amarillo. The bride is the daughter of Mike and Anita Gamez of Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Gayland

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Nov. 10, the 315th day of 1984. There are 51 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 10, 1982, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev died of a heart attack at the age of 75.

On this date:

In 1483, Martin Luther, a major leader of the Protestant Reformation, was born.

In 1775, the U.S. Marines were organized under authority of the Continental Congress.

In 1871, journalist-explorer Henry M. Stanley located missing Scottish missionary David Livingstone in central Africa. Stanley gave his famous greeting: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?" To which the Scotsman replied, "Yes, and I feel thankful that I am here to welcome you."

In 197, 41 suffragists were arrested in front of the White House.

In 1919, the American Legion held its first national convention, in Minneapolis.

In 1925, actor Richard Burton was born.

In 1928, Hirohito was enthroned as emperor of Japan.

In 1951, coast-to-coast dial telephone service without operator assistance began as Mayor M. Leslie Denning of Englewood, N.J., called his counterpart in Alameda, Cal.

One year ago: Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said he could not give a target date for the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Grenada.

Today's birthdays: Actor Roy Scheider is 49. Lyricist Tim Rice is 40. Singer Donna Fargo is 35. Actress Mackenzie Phillips is 25.

Thought for Today: "It makes no difference if I burn my bridges behind me, since I never retreat." — Fiorello La Guardia, mayor of New York (1882-1947).
