Hereford High School Principal Terry Russell says the weather won't be a problem for today's graduation exercises at 7 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium.

No rain, Russell promises. It won't even be cool. It will, he says, be just right.

But just in case...
...Each senior who attended the required graduation meeting and practice this morning received seven tickets for the ceremonies. At least 120 other tickets will be available at 6 p.m. at Whiteface Gymnasium. Tickets will be required of everyone going to graduation if the ceremonies are forced inside Whiteface Gymnasium.

Seniors will be encouraged to offer any tickets they won't use to other classmates, or to turn them in to school administrators. That way, other persons wanting to go to graduation may attend.

"Each person waiting in line for a ticket will get one ticket and one ticket only," said Kathy Slamp, HHS assistant principal. "There won't be anyone getting five tickets for their family or anything like that. We will give each person one ticket."

Slamp said school officials will make a "final" decision about the location of the graduation at about 5:30 p.m. and hope KPAN will broadcast the final location.

The Class of 1992 has 252 seniors who will be receiving diplomas today. One of them will be named Highest Honor Student in a special presentation by Russell. After the National Anthem and the processional, both performed by the HHS Band, Danny Garza will give the invocation. Teresa Baker will give the salutatory address, and David Bone will present the valedictory address. Superintendent Charles Greenawalt will present the class, and John Fuston, president of the school board, will award diplomas.

County working on offices

Work is nearing completion on new quarters for the Deaf Smith County tax assessor-collector and the offices at 136 E. Third should be ready for occupancy in mid-June.

Dean Hacker, building maintenance supervisor for the county, reported to Commissioners Court Thursday that work is almost finished on the new offices adjacent to the Deaf Smith Appraisal District.

Commissioners contracted for space for the tax assessor-collector in the building owned by the Appraisal District.

The ground floor area in the courthouse now occupied by Margaret Perez and her staff will be converted into offices for Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine and needs of other county departments.

During the brief commission meeting, held Thursday because of the Memorial Day holiday last Monday, County Extension Agent Dennis Newton told commissioners that the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has advertised a vacancy here earlier than expected.

The position of assistant agent has been vacant since Wade Shackelford moved to Lynn County.

Deaf Smith Sheriff Joe Brown reported to the commission that his office needs 10 new hand-held radios. He quoted prices from three sources at $7,080, $6,700 and $5,034. He was advised to check references on the suppliers before purchasing the equipment.

County Judge Tom Simons reported that a meeting was scheduled Friday with Ray Dunn, representing Community Supervision Surveillance of Lubbock. Dunn presented information at a recent commission meeting about electronic equipment for supervision of offenders.

Invited to take part in the conference Friday were District Judge David Wesley Gulley, Sheriff Joe Brown, Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul and county probation personnel.

In action on an agenda item, the commission approved a request from Barry Roberts for permission to lay a water line across County Road M, west of U.S. 385, north of Hereford.

A request from Joe Soliz Jr., to permit a softball group to construct a field in the county-owned park was referred to Judge Simons. No action could be taken because the item was not on the agenda.

Castaneda has first winner

Rick Castaneda, left, of Hereford was the city's first winner of a prize in the Texas Lottery. Castaneda went to the lottery party Thursday in Amarillo and was one of the thousands who received a free ticket. Rick won $2, but said he'd probably not cash the ticket but keep it as a souvenir. With Rick is his nephew, Christopher Castaneda, who wasn't quite as fortunate.

Texans taking a chance on game

AUSTIN (AP) - For 147 years, Texans have forbidden, debated and finally demanded a state lottery. Today, thousands played it.

Gov. Ann Richards bought the first ticket - and became the first loser.

Others had better luck. Petra Auguiano, who purchased her ticket in Baytown, became the first to claim a $10,000 prize, said Greg Hartman of the state comptroller's office.

Just before 9 a.m., Ms. Auguiano arrived at the Houston lottery office to redeem her ticket.

Lottery spokesman Andy Welch said four other people had phoned claim centers in Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth and McAllen to say that they also had $10,000 winners.

While smaller prizes could be paid at retail outlets, $1,000 and $10,000 tickets must be redeemed at one of 24 lottery offices statewide.

Welch said 32,600 people claimed instant prizes ranging from $2 to $100 at retailers by 10 a.m.

No official figure was immediately available on total sales. But the lottery earlier said that one of every 7.9 tickets was a winner, which would indicate that more than 250,000 tickets were sold in less than four hours.

Before the day ends, Lottery Director Nora Linares predicted that a ticket would be sold for every man, woman and child in the state - 17 million in all.

The Dallas-based 7-Eleven convenience store chain, which sells tickets in two dozen states, advised store managers to brace for a tidal wave of lottery players.

Perot launches satellite campaign

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Unofficial presidential candidate Ross Perot is pressing the flesh in Florida and beaming his voice and face to five other states in trying out a rally-by-satellite that some say - and worry - is the campaign style of the future.

The billionaire businessman, whose name is already on ballots in nine states, plans to substitute extensive reliance on satellite communications for typical barnstorming.

"This is a practical way of campaigning, I hope," said Perot spokesman James Squires. "That's the old way - go five different places and spend all that time going and no time there."

In Orlando today, Perot's stage will be an old-fashioned campaign venue - a livestock pavilion stage on which he'll be flanked by 150 bales of hay and a huge map of the nation, organizers said.

But the barn scene will be broadcast by satellite link to rallies in Ohio, Alabama, Kansas, Wyoming and Idaho, from where supporters will be able to ask Perot questions.

The red-white-and-blue affair is expected to draw a caravan of buses and 5,000 people, according to Perot organizer Kevin Burnett in Florida.

Satellite appearances are nothing new in politics. But substituting travel for television is, analysts said.

"I think he may lose something by doing it that way," said Brookings Institution analyst Stephen Hess. "He might have learned some things if he had gone out, shook hands and met a lot of people. You can't do that sitting in a studio and talking to another studio.

"I don't doubt that other people will pick up on this because it can be very efficient," Hess said. "This has been coming for a long time. ... With or without Perot, we're getting there. And in some ways we're the poorer for it."

Squires said Perot has no trouble drawing attention, and has no need to raise money. Traditional campaigning, at least for now, isn't necessary in Perot's opinion.

"We asked why everyone does it the other way, and none of the questions and none of the answers apply to this deal," Squires said. "This really is nothing more than being practical."

Some experts wondered whether Perot can sustain enthusiasm for his campaign, and convince voters he wants the job, without a hectic coast-to-coast effort.

In the absence of Rita Bell, Women's Division president, Carr reported that plans for the annual Miss Hereford Pageant are well underway and 10 contestants will vie for the crown on June 6.

The July 4th Celebration, chaired by Wes Klett, will include picnics, games and entertainment prior to the big fireworks display. No parade is scheduled this year.

Mental health bills to be proposed

State Senate committee seeks end to abuses

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The chairman of a state Senate committee probing the psychiatric treatment field says his panel expects to introduce three omnibus bills next year aimed at correcting mental health abuses.

"Our goal is to try and restore public confidence in our system of mental health services in Texas," state Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, said Thursday.

His comments came in the wake of the latest development in the state's mental health scandal: the indictment Wednesday of four men and a plea from Colonial Hills Hospital in San Antonio on charges of false imprisonment.

The charges stem from the detention of 14-year-old Jeremy Harrell at Colonial Hills psychiatric hospital in April 1991 against his family's wishes.

For-profit Colonial Hills pleaded no contest to the misdemeanor charge and was fined $10,000.

"I quite frankly don't believe there was any defense for what they did to Jeremy and his family," Moncrief said.

Colonial Hills, owned by National Medical Enterprises of Santa Monica, Calif., announced earlier this month the hospital is closing because of a changing market. In a prepared statement Wednesday, the company said it saw no point contesting the false imprisonment charge in light of the closure. It also acknowledged playing a "limited role" in the Harrell situation.

Texas lawmakers in a special session last year passed legislation cracking down on the so-called "bounty hunting" of mental patients by private hospitals.

Now, after months of public hearings, Moncrief's Senate committee is studying and drafting legislation that would:

- streamline mental health facility licensing and regulation into one state agency, rather than the three that currently do the job.
- impose administrative, civil and criminal penalties against individuals and corporations committing abuses.

- prohibit certain controversial types of therapy, such as "rage therapy" and "shock therapy."
- call for the mandatory reporting of psychiatric abuses, similar to laws requiring that child abuse be reported.
- provide protection for "whistle blowers" who report abuses.

Moncrief said the proposals will be divided among the three members of his committee and packaged into three bills.

Moncrief said his committee also may examine alleged abuses in the physical and mental rehabilitation field.

Bexar County District Attorney Steve Hilbig said Colonial Hills, a division of Psychiatric Institutes of America, came forward voluntarily as his office investigated the Harrell case.

The boy was held at Colonial Hills for almost six days despite protests by his grandparents, who are the boy's legal guardians, prosecutors said. The grandparents finally won a court order to release the boy.

Also charged in the case Wednesday were Dr. Mark Bowlan, 34, who now lives at Oklahoma City and was at one time associated with Colonial Hills; John Blanks, 41; Joe Saenz, 47; and Ulysses Jones, 29.

Blanks, Saenz and Jones are former employees of Sector One, the now-defunct private security company that allegedly took Jeremy from his home. The family accuses Bowlan of signing an order to hospitalize Jeremy without having treated him.

Hilbig said all four face a misdemeanor false imprisonment charge and could get up to 180 days in jail and a $1,500 fine.

Attempts by The Associated Press Thursday to reach Bowlan, Blanks, Saenz and Jones were unsuccessful. Bowlan, Blanks and Jones had unlisted telephone numbers. Of the two listings for a Joe Saenz listed in the San Antonio telephone directory, there was no answer at one home and the other said he was not the same Joe Saenz.

Former gang members suggest ways to prevent juvenile crime

AUSTIN (AP) - Former gang members have suggested religious outreach programs, recreational activities and showing that "somebody cares" as ways to keep others from following in their footsteps.

A House subcommittee studying youth gangs and guns took testimony Thursday from the four former members of Dallas gangs.

The young men served in Texas Youth Commission facilities after being convicted of crimes as teen-agers, and now are working to improve their lives, officials said.

James Virden, 18 and back in Dallas for a year and a half, said he committed aggravated robbery after falling in with a gang of Jamaican drug runners who came from New York. He now works for the city.

"I was lonely. I didn't have a father figure to look up to. My mom was struggling I took it upon myself to raise myself," said Virden about becoming involved in the gang. He currently lives with his mother and stepfather, who he said has made a big difference in his life.

Gang members provide "a big brother figure" to younger teen-agers, he said, and the drug business offers "a lot of money - tax-free." He said while guns are common among teen-agers in his neighborhood, many carry them for protection.

"When I was like 12, I had actually seen four or five people killed, and then I felt like it was time for me to have a weapon," Virden said.

Eliseo Garcia, 19, said his offense was attempted murder of a rival gang member who had participated in a drive-by shooting of his house. He said of the person he shot, "We grew up together."

Garcia, who has just graduated from high school and plans on college, said his gang started out as friends from school hanging out together. But then a rivalry developed with another gang, he said, and it became a question of "who's macho man."

John Sanders, a 17-year-old who said he was found guilty of burglary while in a Dallas gang, has his own apartment and fast-food restaurant job in San Antonio as part of a TYC program to promote independent living.

He said he was "sort of forced" into a Dallas gang by members who told his cousins they would be shot if he didn't join.

Carlos Muniz, an 18-year-old who said he was convicted of murdering a rival gang member, also has a restaurant job now.

When asked how to get weapons away from gangs, Muniz concurred with Sanders' praise of a religious outreach program called "Street Church." Sanders said that gang members tried to talk things over at the once-weekly program, and also prayed.

"If you can get the kids together and put the message of God into their heads, they'll go straight," Sanders said.

Garcia suggested alternative recreational activities to get youngsters off the street, and Virden said,

Questions on ethics pouring in AUSTIN (AP) - A flood of questions over what is acceptable conduct between legislators and lobbyists has poured into the Texas Ethics Commission.

The queries range from whether a lawmaker can go hunting with a lobbyist, to whether an elected official can accept a car as a prize if he or she fires a hole-in-one at a golf tournament.

Suzi Woodford, executive director of Common Cause of Texas, said Thursday that some of the questions were unnecessary and wondered if they some of these questions were posed by opponents of the 1991 ethics law to "whip up hysteria."

"People that have integrity and are ethical don't have to ask these nitpicking questions," she said. "They know what passes the smell test."

Those identities of those requesting advisory opinions are kept secret, but the requests themselves are published, and will be taken up by the Ethics Commission next week.

Access to transportation, hunting, and sporting events seem to be uppermost in the minds of those asking the commission for guidance.

One questioner asks if representatives of federal, state and local governments can participate in a tour of a local business and then play in a golf tournament sponsored by a non-profit organization.

At the golf tournament, players would receive door prizes. A car would be awarded to anyone making a hole-in-one. The requester has also asked if the event could be considered a fact-finding trip.

Another question asks what is acceptable on the all-important legislative hunting trips, and poses several examples. In one, the legislator pays his own transportation, but an organization provides a private hunting lease, lodging and breakfast. In another, the hunt takes place in Mexico, and the lobbyist provides transportation, food, lodging and a place to hunt.

Tom Smith, director of Public Citizen's Texas office, said the questions show that lobbyists are looking for loopholes.

"It is clear the lobby is already on a hunting trip to bag exceptions to the ethics law," he said. "Ethics isn't a game, but as the examples show lobbyists will go to any links (sic) to find a hole in the ethics law."

Low-level radioactive dump okayed

AUSTIN (AP) - Despite strong opposition, state officials have designated a West Texas site for a low-level radioactive waste dump.

On a 4-1 vote Thursday, the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority chose a Hudspeth County location and approved purchasing a ranch for $909,000 to be home to the facility.

The final price tag for the project is about $50 million. Officials said they hope to have it operating by Jan. 1, 1996.

The dump site, located about seven miles east of Sierra Blanca, and 90 miles southeast of El Paso, would be the first of its kind in Texas, and the fourth in the United States. Other radioactive dumps are located in South Carolina, Nevada and Washington.

The authority plans to buy the 16,000-acre Faskin Ranch for the project. Only 80 acres will be used for the actual dump which will take in radioactive waste from nuclear power plants, hospitals and medical research.

The most contaminated waste it will hold would be radioactive for up to 500 years, according to Susan Odum, a spokeswoman for the authority. Ninety-nine percent of the waste would be radioactive for 100 years, she said.

By next year, Texas is expected to generate 52,000 cubic feet of radioactive waste. The dump could also take up to 20 percent of its annual load from other states.

State Rep. Pete Gallego, D-Alpine, said the dump would threaten the area's most valuable resource - water.

"We're the victims of discrimination; the discrimination of urban versus rural," he said.

"There will be less unhappy people if you put it in Hudspeth County than if you put it in Harris County," he said. "But if it's safe, then why not put it in Harris County?"

Don Gardner, of the Texas Nuclear Responsibility Network, accused the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority of sidestepping the law governing the site-selection process "and ignoring public health risks and disastrous environmental consequences."

But Dr. Milton Guiberteau of Houston, chairman of the authority, defended the panel's action.

"Something must be done to resolve this issue - to provide a repository for waste that is generated," he said. "We don't like to do things in general against local communities unless there is a greater good. The state of Texas should take hold of its own nuclear waste."

But one authority member, Carmet Rodriguez of El Paso, voted against the proposal, saying she thought that public opinion was a factor to be taken into consideration when choosing a site.

HHS graduating class of 1937 has reunion

The Hereford High School graduating class of 1937 met Saturday, May 23, for its 55th class reunion in conjunction with the 69th Mid-Plains Pioneer Day Celebration.

Many of the class members attended the celebration's festivities before congregating in the lounge of the Hereford Community Center for an informal reception that afternoon. Betty Stanford was in charge of registering guests and name tags were distributed.

During the reception, lemonade and coffee were served from a table covered in white and centered with a basket of red flowers. Memorabilia from school days, including yearbooks and scrapbooks, were arranged on a table which also featured a plaque inscribed with the names and pictures of the deceased classmates made by Gladys Willoughby.

To complete the celebration, a banquet was held that evening in the lounge. Tables were covered with white. In depicting the class flower, white vases containing red carnations and baby's breath were placed at intervals. A large basket of red flowers adorned the speaker's table. Bill Stanford served as the evening's emcee and the Rev. Russell Pogue gave the invocation. A brief memorial service was held in memory of the 11 deceased classmates with Rev. Ray Schulz offering the prayer.

Dr. Earl Oldham spoke to the group about his heart transplant and urged fellow classmates and guests to become organ donors. He stated, "This is God's way of giving people another opportunity to do that which was in the design for their lives."

Ray and Helen Schulz presented three vocal selections, accompanied by Schulz on the guitar. In concluding the program, members told what they had done since their 50th class reunion and spoke about their grandchildren.

During the business meeting that followed, the class voted unanimously to hold another reunion in five years with Bill Stanford serving as chairman.

Class members and guests from Hereford were Jim and Dorothy Mercer, Irving and Gladys Willoughby and Leona Kimball. NEW YORK (AP) - Horror writer Stephen King is suing the producers and distributors of "The Lawnmower Man," saying the film had virtually nothing to do with his short story of the same name.

Aside from the title and one brief scene, the film "bore no meaningful resemblance" to the story he published in the 1970s, King said in court papers.

King's story tells of a homeowner who is killed by the man he hires to cut his lawn. The movie centers on a dimwitted gardener whose intelligence level was raised through computer experiments.

The lawsuit seeks all profits "attributable to the use of Stephen King's name" in the movie, which has grossed more than $30 million.

King also wants the court to block the use of his name in connection with the movie and a planned comic book, and to force Allied Vision Ltd., a British company which bought the movie rights and produced the film, to publish a correction to its advertising.

Allied's Los Angeles lawyer, Roger Sherman, wasn't available for comment, his secretary said.

Day Camp offered to youth

The Hereford Council of Camp Fire Boys and Girls is offering its Day Camp to Hereford youth, K-4 through third grades. The Outdoor Progression Program is for youths in fourth through sixth grades.

The theme for Day Camp, planned June 1-5, will be Camp Fire "Under the Big Top." Participants will spend the week exploring the magic and excitement of the circus. Each day the youth will be involved in crafts, hiking, sports and games and will be treated with a snack and a special event. On Friday, there will be a cookout and ceremonial.

The fee for Day Camp will be $20 for members and $25 for non-members. This fee includes all crafts, T-shirts, certificates, emblems and special circus items.

Outdoor Progression is designed to teach basic skills for living in the outdoors. The Outdoor Program gives young people an opportunity to become actively involved with the environment while acquiring fundamental skills in outdoor living. At least one night during the week, the youth will be spending the night out cooking supper, breakfast and lunch. The fee for the Outdoor Progression Program is also $20 for Camp Fire members and $25 for non-members.

If you are interested and would like additional information about the upcoming programs, please contact the Camp Fire office at 364-0395 or go by the office located at 903 14th St.

NEW YORK (AP) - The slaying of his closest friend in a drug deal lured Gregory Hines to the Broadway stage.

Hines, in Sunday's Parade magazine, said he was content working as a busboy and playing in a band until 1977, when he learned his lifelong friend, Dalbert Clark, had been shot to death.

"It turned my life around. I realized I was not invulnerable," Hines said. He left California for New York, resumed his career and soon became a Broadway star.

Hines, 45, is playing jazz pioneer Jelly Roll Morton in "Jelly's Last Jam."

New options available

Recent improvements in contraceptive technology have given today's 35-plus woman birth control options she did not have before, according to a reproductive endocrinologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Her choice should be based on which contraceptive method offers the least risk for her health, said Dr. Alfred N. Poindexter III, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology.

Oral contraceptives, once not routinely prescribed for women over 35 because of the risk for blood clots and heart attacks, are now a popular choice for many. The low-estrogen pills used today have reduced the risk associated with the high-estrogen pills introduced in the 1960s.

However, Poindexter cautioned, older women may have other risk factors that need to be considered before deciding to take "the Pill."

Older women at an increased risk for high blood pressure, diabetes and cardiovascular disease, conditions that increase the chances for complications from birth control pills.

Women over 35 who smoke should not take birth control pills, Poindexter said. Smoking dramatically increases the danger of fatal and non-fatal heart attacks for women that age, and oral contraceptives magnify the risk even more.

If birth control pills are not the right option, other contraceptive methods for today's 35-plus woman include:

* Sterilization. "The risk as are minimal after the operation," Poindexter said. He performs tubal ligations through a small abdominal incision using a local anesthetic, which further reduces risk and cost.

* Norplant, the new, no-estrogen contraceptive contained in small tubes implanted in a woman's arm. It can provide birth control for up to five years, or until the tubes are removed. "There is some research indicating Norplant may adversely affect cholesterol and triglyceride levels and, therefore, increase cardiovascular, decrease risk. But the data are still inconclusive," Poindexter said.

* Barrier contraceptives, such as condoms and diaphragms used with a spermicide containing nonoxonyl-9, a chemical toxic to sperm and to many disease-carrying organisms. "While not new, this is a very good contraceptive method for a woman with winning fertility. It is also good protection against sexually transmitted diseases," he said.

* IUD, or intrauterine device. "The IUDs currently approved for use can be a good choice for a woman approaching menopause who know she has completed her family," Poindexter said. "Since IUDs can be associated with fertility problems, older women wanting to postpone pregnancies should choose another contraceptive method."

Poindexter recommends that women over 35 consult their doctors to decide which method is best for them.

HONOLULU (AP) - Former pro football player Nuu Faaola says he supports a television movie being made by his former fiancée, Miss America Carolyn Sapp, even though it deals with their relationship - in which, she has alleged, he abused her. "I hope people will learn from it," he said this week.

Before winning the Miss Hawaii title a year ago, Sapp had accused Faaola of physical abuse and sought a court order to keep him away from her. He has since received counseling and the two say they are now friends.

Faaola never confirmed or denied the allegations, but said he sometimes was aggressive.

Sapp is playing herself in the NBC-TV movie about her quest for the Miss America title and her relationship with Faaola. The movie is expected to air in September.

Faaola was a running back with the New York Jets, Miami Dolphins and Cleveland Browns.

Clarity is the politeness of a man of letters.

Make designer crayons

If your house is full of broken and worn-down crayons, don't throw them out. You and your kids can make new "designer" crayons, perfect for art projects or for party favors at your child's next birthday party.

Here's How" First, remove the paper wrappers for each crayon. Then, supervise as the children break the crayons into pieces and put them into small glass jars such as empty baby food jars, separating the colors.

Fit a small rack inside a saucepan, and place the jars on the rack. Fill the saucepan with enough water to cover one-half inch of the jars. Heat the water until the crayons melt.

An adult should carefully pour the melted wax into a plastic candy mold tray. The wax will harden quickly and pop out of the mold easily. For added effect, pour a contrasting color in the mold after the first layer of wax has hardened. This will produce a two-tone crayon.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Are people becoming more insensitive, more vicious, crueler and maybe crazier as time goes by? I wonder where mankind is heading when I read about the hideous things that are happening all around us. For example:

A lawyer in Maryland pleaded guilty to breaking into the home of a friend's estranged wife to look for documents that had to do with the couple's divorce. He encountered the family kitten running loose in the kitchen, became annoyed by the "nuisance underfoot," picked up the kitten and tossed it into the microwave. He then "accidentally" turned the oven on. Of course the poor little thing died instantly.

When the woman discovered the kitten she was horrified. The man was prosecuted for this heinous act and pleaded guilty. His defense was that he had been drinking and "wasn't thinking straight." The penalty--are you ready for this?--probation!

What is this world coming to when a person can break into a home, nuke the family pet and not be punished? Again I ask, are people becoming crueler, more vicious and crazier?--Richmond, Va.

DEAR RICH: Check the Bible and you will find that the cruel, vicious and crazy have been among us for a long time. Because of the advances in communication, however, we not only hear about atrocities the moment they happen, but get instant replay in our living rooms on TV. Now back to that poor cat. My friends at the Baltimore Sun informed me that the lawyer was sentenced to one year in prison, which was then suspended, given 18 months probation, required to receive alcoholism counseling and do 40 hours of community service and fined $1,000 plus court costs. He also faces disbarment proceedings.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have carried around part of a newspaper clipping for several months and I cannot tell you why. Perhaps it touched my heart because I, too, am a mother, and I felt so sad for the woman who wrote this letter to the editor:

"Don't let the National Rifle Association tell you we have to sacrifice our loved ones to keep our constitutional rights. The Second Amendment reads, 'A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.'

"I ask you, was that a well-regulated militia that killed my son?"

With murder involving guns at an all-time high in nearly all the nation's major cities what can we look forward to in terms of safety on our streets?--Scared to Death in Chicago

DEAR SCARED: For now, sad to say, more of the same.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a suggestion that I hope you will pass on to your readers. If someone you know has an accidental injury and is wearing a cast, a sling or bandages, please don't say, "What have you done to yourself?" Such a remark, although well-intentioned, only makes the individual feel more foolish about an accident that probably was preventable. A simple, "I'm sorry," is much more appropriate.--Been There in Geneseo, N.Y.

DEAR GENESEO: You may have "Been There" but you don't know didly-dee about human nature if you think anybody is going to pay attention to your suggestion. But thanks for your good intentions.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother-in-law and I have never gotten along. She now requires constant care because she has crippling arthritis, yet my husband, "Joe," refuses to place her in a nursing home. He's been taking care of her for the past 10 years.

I feel that Joe should try to build a life with me, but he says his first commitment is to his mother. This has created constant tension between us. I believe his mother should be placed in a nursing home and I've said so many times. Joe says his mother lived in this house before I did, and if I don't like it, I can leave.

As soon as Joe comes home, he heads straight for his mother's bedroom. He changes her diapers, bathes her and gets her ready for bed. Since our wedding, we've spent only one night alone--that was our entire honeymoon--and then he moved me into this house with his mother. I figured since this is Joe's third marriage, he might put forth a little extra effort to make it work, but I was wrong.

I love my husband, but I have a lot of resentment toward him because of the strain this arrangement is putting on our marriage. I should tell you that Joe refuses to put my name on the deed to the house because he's afraid that if anything happened to him, I might throw his mother out.

I don't know if he's just hanging on to the umbilical cord because he's a devoted son or if he needs the extra money her check brings in. Please help me figure this out.--Hanging On In Jackson, Miss.

DEAR JACKSON: What's the mystery? Joe has told you that you are playing second fiddle to his mother and if you don't like it you can get out of the orchestra. He has made this clear, so you must at least give the man credit for being up front about where you stand.

Your life sounds hellish. Sooner or later you're going to pack your bags. For your sake, I hope it's sooner rather than later.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is in response to "Stuck at the Cleaners." That dude made me mad enough to write my first letter to Ann Landers.

I can't believe he had the gall to complain in print about having to wear a suit jacket and tie to work. If I choose to wear a "power suit" and a tie, which is actually a scarf, I must

ALSO wear a bra, slip, pantyhose and heels. I'd trade them in any old day if I could get away with only a suit and skip the rest.

Since when is a "flimsy cotton something-or-other" considered appropriate office attire? If a blouse is somewhat transparent we must also wear a camisole in addition to the already constricting bra.

I think this guy is unhappy with more than just the clothes he must wear to work. He sounds like a chronic kvetch. Tell him to quit his job and go work in a zoo. I'm sure the monkeys wouldn't care what he wore. He'd fit in real well with them, too.--Valley of the Sun in Arizona and Tired of Pantyhose

DEAR ARIZONA PANTYHOSE:

"Stuck at the Cleaners" created some hefty overtime in my mail room. The responses from the women who wanted to clobber him were staggering.

SO who's got the edge in comfortable attire? I'd say it's a stand-off except perhaps in California and Florida where the males definitely get a break.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Hints from Heloise

ONION ODOR

Dear Heloise: You'll think I'm nuts but I'm not. To get the onion smell off of your hands, just rub them on your stainless-steel kitchen faucet. I don't know how it works but it sure does -- and it's free. -- Karen E. VanWinkle, Spring, Texas

PERFECT POTATOES

Dear Heloise: When making mashed potatoes, once they are fully cooked I pour off the water into a bowl and save it.

I then put the potatoes into the bowl I plan to mash them in, adding the following ingredients: as much butter or oleo as is preferred, salt, powdered milk and the water of the potatoes (in proper proportions to the amount of potatoes being mashed).

Obviously, this preserves many more vitamins than would adding milk and pouring the potato water down the drain. -- Julie Newman, Lincoln, Neb.

Blazers edge Jazz, await East champ

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The Portland Trail Blazers advanced to the NBA Finals the hardest way possible - by stealing a rare victory at the league's toughest arena.

"We didn't want to have to go back to Portland (for Game 7) because we knew they could beat us there," coach Rick Adelman said after the Trail Blazers won the Western Conference series 4-2 with a 105-97 victory over Utah Thursday night.

"I don't think anyone thought we could win here with the record they have," Adelman said. "We believed that we could and it was just a tremendous win for us."

The victory marked Portland's third conference title and second trip to the NBA Championships since 1977, when the Trail Blazers won it all. Portland also made the league finals in 1990, bowing to Detroit.

The loss ended Utah's first-ever conference final appearance. For the Jazz, who finished the regular season an NBA-best 37-4 record in the Delta Center, it was the first loss in nine playoff games at home.

Adelman said tough defense down the stretch helped Portland pull away from a 77-all tie after three quarters and finally crack Utah's aura of invincibility at home.

"We went into the fourth quarter knowing it would have to be our best quarter of the year," Adelman said.

It may have been. The Blazers used a smothering defense to hold Utah offensive mainstay Karl Malone - who led Utah with 23 points and 19 rebounds - to just two points in the final 12 minutes. The Jazz, who had shot nearly 53 percent in the first half, could manage just 22.7 percent in the fourth quarter to Portland's 47.4 percent.

"We did a great job of not letting them get easy opportunities and getting defensive - rebounds for ourselves and getting out on the break," said Terry Porter, who along with Clyde Drexler and Jerome Kersey shared Trail Blazers' scoring honors with 18 points.

we hoped to extend it, but they are an experienced team and were back by the end of the quarter," Stockton lamented. "They came back and beat us on our home floor, fair and square."

The Trail Blazers indeed rallied, riding Buck Williams' eight points to a 16-6 spurt that closed them to 27-24.

With Portland trailing 33-30, Drexler opened the second quarter with a slicing drive to the basket that cut Utah's lead to a single point.

The two teams then exchanged runs, with Utah building a 48-38 lead with 5:29 left in the half with a 15-6 spurt featuring two baskets each by Edwards and Jeff Malone. Portland countered with a 13-6 run, with Kersey and Kevin Duckworth each hitting a pair of field goals, closing the Blazers to 54-51 at the 2:16 mark.

Corbin gave the Jazz a 59-53 edge with his shot from the corner, but Porter's layup at the buzzer trimmed Utah's advantage to four at halftime.

Reeh may hire hoop coach soon

A girls' basketball coach may be hired for Hereford High School by the middle of June, girls' athletic director Brenda Reeh said.

Reeh has been busy interviewing coaches all week, and she plans to bring in the top four candidates for second interviews with a hiring committee during the week of June 8. The committee will consist of Reeh, boys' AD Danny Haney, Superintendent Charles Greenawalt and HHS principal Terry Russell.

Youth served in France

PARIS (AP) - Although French Open crowds are pulling for the old-timers, only a handful are surviving the onslaught of the younger generation.

While top-seeds Jim Courier, 21, and Monica Seles, 18, and their major rivals continue a brisk march toward the final rounds, Kevin Curren found himself symbolizing the plight of the senior citizens.

The oldest player left in the field after Jimmy Connors' loss on Wednesday, Curren, 34, found himself up against a Ukrainian half his age in a second-round match Thursday.

Andrei Medvedev, whose mother is a tennis coach and who remembers watching TV in Kiev when Curren played the Wimbledon final in 1985, rolled to a 6-4, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3 victory.

Last year's junior champion here at 16, Medvedev is the youngest player in the men's draw this year, but finds his success unremarkable.

"I'm not surprised I'm playing so well," he said. "I'm surprised the other players my age haven't kept up."

For the third time in four days, rain fell Thursday and disrupted the schedule. Eight men's and two women's second-round matches could not be completed, including two hard-fought contests involving top men's contenders.

Second-seeded Stefan Edberg led Argentina's Gabriel Markus 4-6, 7-6 (7-1), 7-5, 3-1 when play was stopped because of darkness, and No. 10 Ivan Lendl was deadlocked with Brazil's Jaime Oncins 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, 6-5.

Lendl, 32, has won the title here three times, while it's the only Grand Slam crown that has eluded Edberg.

Michael Chang's match also was suspended. The 1989 champion led Spain's Marco Aurelio Gorriz 6-3, 1-3.

Courier and Seles won their second-round matches easily, as did most big names. Three of the lesser women's seeds - No. 9 Anke Huber of Germany, No. 11 Katerina Maleeva of Bulgaria, and No. 16 Sabina Appelmans of Belgium - were losers.

In third-round matches scheduled today, Courier was to play Argentina's Alberto Mancini, No. 3 seed Pete Sampras was to face Frenchman Rodolphe Gilbert, and No. 4 seed Michael Stich was paired with France's Henri Leconte.

No. 2 women's seed Steffi Graf was matched with South African Amanda Coetzer.

In addition to Connors, 39, and Curren, the 30-and-over casualty list here includes John McEnroe, 33; 1990 champion Andres Gomez, 32; and Brad Gilbert, Casio Motta and Anders Jarryd, all 30.

Curren, a native of South Africa who now lives in Texas, had stayed away from Roland Garros stadium throughout his 13-year pro career, but decided to give the French Open a try this year in part to boost the rankings of his doubles partnership with Christo Van Rensburg.

Medvedev was one of five 20-and-under men to reach the third round Thursday. Other included Sampras, Goran Ivanisevic, Wayne Ferreira and Richard Krajicek.

Ten of the 11 oldest women in the field - those 28 and over - already have been ousted. The one survivor is Britain's Jo Durie, 31, the upset winner over 17-year-old Huber.

Courier, a strong favorite to retain his title here, was asked Thursday whether he envisioned playing into his 30s like Connors and McEnroe.

"Hopefully, I'll still be playing," he said. "Hopefully, my body will give me that chance to do it."

"But maybe when I'm 30 years old, I'm going to say, 'Well, it's time to hit the golf course.' It's hard to say."

Jazz All-Star John Stockton, who missed the second half of Game 5 after being accidentally poked in the left eye by Drexler, finished with 18 points and 12 assists. Tyrone Corbin had 22 points for Utah.

"This is a tough business. John played very well. There are no excuses," Utah coach Jerry Sloan said. "Portland is a tough team."

If there were doubts about Stockton's recovery from the eye injury, they were erased in the first two minutes of the game. He hit consecutive driving layups and a free throw, then passed to Malone and Blue Edwards for inside baskets, keying a game-opening 9-0 run.

"We jumped out to a nice lead and Coberly bound for Sul Ross U.

Sam Coberly, a senior member of the Hereford High School rodeo team, will attend Sul Ross University on a partial rodeo scholarship.

Coberly sent applications and videos to several schools, and Sul Ross was interested.

"They said I just need a good heeling partner (in team roping) and could go a long way," Coberly said. "They sure thought they could teach me. They thought I had a lot of potential."

Though the scholarship is partial, Coberly said it could become a full one if he performs well.

Mud Bowl II set Saturday

Mud Bowl II, a day of football, volleyball and baseball in the mud, will be Saturday May 30, starting at 3 p.m. and ending at 9.

The event is being put on by ten Hereford churches for youth in grades 7-12. It will be played in a special mud pit constructed behind the Community Church at 1508 Whittier.

Getting muddy is optional, and there will be some good, clean fun available. A free supper of hamburgers and hot dogs will be served.

Tennis camp set for June

A summer tennis camp for boys and girls will be conducted by Hereford High School tennis coach Natalie Sims June 8-19 (weekdays only).

The camp, for ages 8-12, will go from 9-11 a.m. each weekday at Whiteface Courts. The camp is aimed at teaching drills, conditioning and game strategy.

Cost of the camp is $39. To sign up, call John Matthews at HHS (364-0617). The camp is limited to 15 players.

Hereford's other summer sports camps start in July: golf, July 6-10; volleyball, July 13-17; boys' basketball, July 20-24; and girls' basketball, July 27-31.

The boys basketball camp will be conducted by new coach Joe Main. The girls' camp will be conducted by the new girls' coach, who may be hired in mid-June.

For information or to sign up for one of the basketball camps, contact the athletic director, Danny Haney for boys, Brenda Reeh for girls.

Drug testing called inadequate

DALLAS (AP) - The Olympic movement, television executives and major corporate sponsors are reluctant to recognize a dire need for better drug testing of world-class athletes, sports scientists say.

Panelists at the annual meeting of the American College of Sports Medicine said current urine testing for banned substances is inadequate and efforts to strengthen the testing are met with powerful resistance.

The reason is money, said Kenneth Forsythe, exercise physiologist in Palm Desert, Calif., and former Canadian downhill skier.

In 1968, he noted, the television rights to the Winter Olympics were sold for less than $1 million. By contrast, NBC paid $401 million to the International Olympic Committee for the rights to broadcast the Summer Games in Barcelona.

"And these are only the television right fees," Forsythe said during a symposium Thursday. "The sponsorship fees also account for extra hundreds of millions of dollars, all paid to an international agency (the International Olympic Committee) that is accountable to no one."

"Now given this marvelous set of political and economic incentives," he said, "is it any wonder that the issue surrounding drugs in sports is considered merely a nuisance?"

Forsythe and others suggested random, unannounced tests for anabolic steroids during training and blood doping checks during competition.

At the Olympics, an athlete's urine may be tested after competition for hundreds of banned or restricted substances. There is no blood testing.

But the ACSM reports, for example, that anecdotal evidence from Europe and the United States suggests long-distance runners, cyclists, nordic skiers and triathletes may be blood doping with recombinant erythropoietin.

The anti-anemia drug stimulates the body's production of red blood cells, thereby improving athletes' ability to transport oxygen and better their performance.

But changes in drug testing are slow because of the bad publicity generated when an elite endurance or power athlete is caught cheating with chemicals, said Dr. Gary Wadler of Cornell University Medical College.

Wadler said that with huge contracts involved in international sporting events, "One could cynically say, it's in their best interests for corporate America, for the corporate world, to say, 'Hey, we don't really want to know.'"

Forsythe said a documentary he did on drug testing for ABC years ago was met by resistance by network executives.

"Sponsors aren't really crazy about the idea of discussing the subject either," he said. "They spent a quadrillion dollars to get the rights for these things. And why would the IOC want to tamper with a system that has given them lifelong sinecure?"

Terry Todd, a former national weightlifting champion and professor of kinesiology at the University of Texas, concurred.

Todd was a consultant for CBS at the Winter Games in Albertville, France, this year. He helped produce features on sports medicine, training and drugs, he said.

One advance that never aired was a five-minute analysis of drug testing narrated by Morley Safer.

"The piece was critical of the drug testing in the sense that it simply pointed out that people are beating the drug tests right and left," Todd said. "In many ways it's sort of a joke ..."

"It certainly was not the kind of piece that tended to make athletes at the highest levels look heroic," Todd said. "That, however, is the agenda of the big-time media. They want to produce heroes. They want heroic images. That's what makes the turnstiles spin."

Rangers win as Witt outduels McDowell

ARLINGTON (AP) - It's been pitching and not hitting that has helped the Texas Rangers keep alive a winning streak that vaulted them into first place in the American League West.

The Rangers got another quality start from Bobby Witt Thursday night as Witt threw three-hit ball over eight innings to outduel Jack McDowell in Texas' 4-2 decision over the Chicago White Sox, moving the Rangers atop the division for the first time since April 12.

Rangers starters are 6-0 with a 2.14 ERA in their last 13 games and have worked six or more innings in eight straight and 17 of their last 18. Witt, 5-4, struck out seven and walked two.

"It was an outstanding performance by Bobby Witt," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said. "He was very aggressive and kept the ball down. He's been a pleasure to watch and he's throwing all of his different pitches for strikes. There's nothing more that you can ask."

Witt established a season-low for hits, lasted as least eight innings for his third consecutive start and lowered his ERA to 3.29.

Witt got all the run support he needed when the Rangers scored four times in the fourth, capped by Ivan Rodriguez's two-run single and Jeff Huson's RBI double.

"It's a lot easier when you go out there and throw strikes and the team is playing well behind you," Witt said. "Right now the team is playing real well and hopefully we'll continue to do so."

Still, the Rangers weren't celebrating. They also took first place last year on May 28 but finished the season third.

"I'd glad we're there," said Valentine, "but it doesn't mean a thing."

The Rangers completed a three-game sweep of the White Sox, winning their sixth straight and 10th in their last 11 games under wet, cold conditions.

Texas, which hopped a half-game ahead of the idle Oakland A's, has been involved in one- or two-run games in 12 of its last 14 starts. The Rangers have won nine of those games.

Jeff Russell pitched a perfect ninth for his 13th save.

McDowell, 7-3, had won his first seven starts but has dropped his last three, yielding 15 runs over that span. McDowell gave up only 17 runs in his 7-0 start. McDowell pitched his third complete game of the season Thursday while losing to the Rangers for the first time in his career after four straight victories.

"He struggled a little in his two previous starts, but tonight he was outstanding," said Chicago manager Gene Lamonte.

Lamonte, whose team dropped its third straight and was swept in a series for the first time this season, said the Rangers are for real.

"In my mind, they're a contender, sure," Lamonte said. "They're getting good starting pitching and their bullpen pitched well against us."

Royals 5, Tigers 1

Mark Gubicza wouldn't wish rotator cuff surgery on anyone. Yet it made him a better pitcher.

Gubicza, Rusty Meacham and Jeff Montgomery combined on a three-hitter Thursday night as the Kansas City Royals beat the Detroit Tigers 5-1, snapping a five-game losing streak.

Gubicza (5-3), who had surgery in August 1990, was 9-12 with a 5.68 ERA in 1991, easily his worst year in the majors. But the Royals stuck with him. He never missed a turn, starting 26 games after a rehab stint at Omaha.

"Last year, we were very patient," manager Hal McRae said. "We kept running him out there. And, to Mark's credit, he never refused to take the ball. Now, it's paying off."

It was very frustrating for Gubicza. But he learned from it.

"Last year, I basically got my butt kicked," said Gubicza, who is 5-1 in his last seven starts while lowering his ERA from 6.89 to 3.38. "I didn't have the stuff to get people out. I had to learn to pitch again."

"Now, I've learned from that injury how to be a pitcher. It was embarrassing. I doubted, at times, I'd ever be back."

Gubicza gave up two hits in 6 2-3 innings, struck out eight and walked four. He had defeated Detroit with a six-hitter on May 17.

"He's a helluva lot better than he was last year," Detroit's Tony Phillips said. "I think he's gotten his velocity back, and he's got command of his pitches again. I like hitting against him because right now he's one of the best pitchers in the American League and it's always a challenge."

Meacham, a former Tiger, stranded runners on second and third when pinch-hitter Shawn Hare bounced into an inning-ending grounder. Montgomery pitched the ninth.

"Oh, yeah! There was some extra adrenaline," said Meacham, who lowered his ERA to 0.38.

Mark Leiter (3-2), making his fifth start after joining the rotation on May 12, gave up four runs and eight hits in six innings.

Kevin McReynolds hit his seventh homer in the fourth inning. Rico Rossy then led off the fifth with a walk and scored on Wally Joyner's fourth home run.

Chris Gwynn tripled in the sixth and scored on Brian McRae's RBI grounder for a 4-0 lead. Mickey Tettleton hit his 10th home run in the Detroit seventh, and McRae doubled home McReynolds in the eighth.

Detroit's only runner past first base in the first six innings was Travis Fryman, who hit a two-out single in the first and moved to second on a wild pitch.

Red Sox 2, Angels 1

Mike Greenwell singled in the go-ahead run in the fifth, then left with a groin injury in the bottom of the inning as visiting Boston completed a three-game sweep at Anaheim for the first time in eight seasons.

Joe Hesketh (1-2) gave up six hits in seven innings, struck out five and walked one. Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth for his 12th save.

Mark Langston (5-2) gave up both runs and eight hits, struck out seven and walked three.

Coaches praise, roast Fraser

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Miami coach Ron Fraser is normally the one with the quick wit and sometimes biting humor when College World Series coaches get together for their kickoff news conference.

Thursday, the man who is retiring as Hurricane coach and who will manage the U.S. Olympic team later this summer was the target of both praise and good-natured ribbing from his CWS competitors.

"Sentimentally, any of us would love to see Ron Fraser go out with a national championship," said longtime CWS adversary Cliff Gustafson of Texas. "But none of us up here is in a position to be sentimental."

Gustafson echoed comments from several of the other coaches who qualified for the NCAA's Division I national baseball championship concerning Fraser and what he has done for the college game.

"Anybody who's followed college baseball over the years, and in all due respect to the great legend Rod Dedeaux (formerly of Southern Cal), Ron Fraser has been more responsible than any one person for the growth of the game to where it is today," Gustafson said.

Miami (53-8) is the top seed and ranked No. 1 entering the tournament. The Hurricanes face No. 8 seed California (35-26) in a 3:06 p.m. CDT game to open the 1992 tournament today. No. 4 seed Cal State-Fullerton (42-15) meets No. 5 Florida State (48-19) at 6:36 p.m. in the other Bracket One opener.

No. 2 Wichita State (56-9) and No. 7 Pepperdine (44-11-1) meet at 12:06 p.m., and No. 3 Texas (46-15) meets No. 6 Oklahoma (42-22) at 6:36 p.m. in Bracket Two on Saturday.

"It's kind of neat to play Ron Fraser in his last year here. He's been so great for college baseball," California coach Bob Milano said. "That's a helluva reward for us to play Miami."

"But I'm kind of happy to be here. There are 246 other schools that probably would like to be."

Fraser has been to 12 national tournaments events and won twice (1982 and 1985).

Gustafson, making a record 16th CWS appearance, said the coaches should at least make a deal to let Texas and Miami meet in the championship game a week from Saturday.

Florida State coach Mike Martin, making his sixth CWS appearance, said his team has seen Miami plenty over his years with the Seminoles.

"I've learned an awful lot of baseball competing against him," Martin said. "Eighty-some times, we've lined up... eighty-some times. It's always fun to play Miami because of Ron. There have been some great games."

Also among the coaches praising Fraser were previous champion and two-time runner-up Gene Stephenson of Wichita State; Oklahoma's Larry Cochell, who brought a record third school to the CWS; two-time winner Augie Garrido of Fullerton State, and CWS newcomer coach Andy Lopez of Pepperdine.

"There definitely is a tremendous respect for these gentlemen I am seated with here," Lopez said.

He said he dreamed as a young coach of reaching the CWS.

"To be here, there is a sense of accomplishment," Lopez said. "I know I'm going to keep my eyes and ears open to try to learn something."

Martin tumbled a little humor.

"I don't know when I've sat with a better bunch of coaches or any with more national championships," Martin said, then added with a smile, "and we ain't got any of them."

Morgan wins fifth for Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) - Jim Lefebvre says that watching Mike Morgan pitch is just plain fun.

"It was important for Morgan to give us a lift," the Chicago manager said Thursday after the Cubs beat the San Francisco Giants 5-0 in the only National League game on the schedule.

Morgan (5-2) allowed four hits while walking a season-high seven in eight innings.

Morgan won despite walking a season-high seven.

"What has made him such a tough pitcher the last five years is his control," Lefebvre said. "So, these walks are kind of unusual for him. He seems to have the knack of making the right pitch when he needs to. He was able to work his way out of jams. He's really fun to watch."

After starting slowly, he's found consistency.

"Getting caught up in how I pitch early on is not important," he said. "What is important, I can go out there and do what I'm capable of doing, getting a quality start."

Morgan was in trouble early, but twice escaped jams by retiring Matt Williams. Williams struck out with runners on first and second in the first inning and fled out with the bases loaded in the third.

"He bent, but he never broke," said Mark Grace, who homered for the Cubs. "We needed that today. He really picked us up."

In the fourth, Giants manager Roger Craig called for a squeeze bunt with Robby Thompson on third.

"We know Roger likes to do that, so we called for a pitchout and nothing happened," Lefebvre said. "But on the next pitch to Royce Clayton, Morgan threw a tough pitch and Clayton bunted right through it. We had Thompson nailed. The run would have given them some momentum."

Mike Felder had two hits for the Giants.

Dave Burba (2-6) lost for the fifth time in six starts, allowing three runs and seven hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Grace started Chicago's three-run fourth with a single that extended his hitting streak to 11 games and took third on Ryne Sandberg's single. Andre Dawson hit a sacrifice fly for his 12th RBI in as many games, and singles by Doug Strange and Morgan chased Burba.

Sandberg hit his seventh homer in the fifth off Mike Jackson. Grace added his fourth homer against Rod Beck to start the eighth.

Calumet Farm had two "walkovers" (unopposed) in the Pimlico Special, Whirlaway in 1942 and Citation in 1948.

Jockey Braulio Baeza rode five winners of the Champagne Stakes, four of them in succession.

After winning the 1940 Champagne Stakes on Monday Lunch, jockey Eddie Arcaro tried to leave with the winner's bottle of champagne but tripped and fell.

As part of National Kids Fishing Month, the Fun Tournaments in June will have a special deal for the area youngsters. On June 4 at Lake Meredith and again on June 18 at Lake Greenbelt, all kids under 17 may fish free if accompanied by an adult contestant. There are thousands and thousands of kids who would love to go fishing. Find one and bring her/him to a Thursday evening Fun Tournament. It will be a memory that they cherish forever.

Adult entry fee is only $20. Registration opens at 4:30 p.m., and the fishing is from 6-9 p.m.

He's back--After missing nearly a year of fishing the Thursday evening Fun Tournaments because of his work schedule, Hutchinson County deputy sheriff Mike Harber returned to his winning ways at Lake Greenbelt. Using a "secret spinnerbait," Mike became the first three-time winner as he outdistanced the competition with a three-bass limit weighing 6.97 pounds. With 50 entries braving the rainy weather, first place was worth $350.

Second prize and $150 went to Mike's boat partner(!), Brad Carpenter of Borger, who caught bass totaling 4.7 pounds. $100 third-place prize money went to Rick Crutchfield of Panhandle for his bass that weighed 3.81 pounds. Rick just returned from fishing a Big Bass tournament at Lake-of-the-Pines, where he won $40,000!

Of the 50 fishermen entered, 14 brought at least one bass to the scales, including two kids who out-fished their dads. Jim Allison's son Derek, of Lefors, caught a 1.27-pound bass, and Jason Baggett of Pampa gave his dad Jimmy a fishing lesson by catching a 1.54-pound largemouth bass.

Honey Hole, the trophy bass magazine of Texas, takes issue with a plan of the fisheries division of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to set up a permit and fee system on fishing tournaments. Editor Jerry Dean expressed his anger over the increasing arrogance at TPWD and their "Boss Hog" attitude on the date and time of a meeting of something called the Freshwater Advisory Council.

"If TPWD wants us to give them our support for their projects, then let's demand they hear our opinions and viewpoints. At present, the boys in Austin have a Freshwater Advisory Council giving them suggestions. Have any of the board members asked you for your opinion on anything? Have you had any personal contact with these individuals, or is it, as I suspect, their own opinions that TPWD receives?" asked Mr. Dean in the May edition of Honey Hole.

Reds to hold tryout camp

The Cincinnati Reds will conduct a baseball tryout camp June 27 in Lubbock. It is open to boys aged 15-22.

The camp starts at 9 a.m. "sharp," according to a release from the Reds organization. Participants should bring their own equipment such as gloves, shoes and uniform. Bats, balls and catching gear will be furnished.

All participants under the age of 21 must have their parents' written permission, as they must assume full legal liability for any injuries that might occur. The Reds will furnish forms for their signature at the camp. Also, players on American Legion teams must bring written permission from their coach of post commander.

If you can't make the Lubbock camp, there will be a few others in this part of the country: June 13 in Albuquerque (La Cueva High School); June 14 in El Paso (Hanks HS); and June 28 in Odessa (American Legion Field).

Tennis tourney in Denver City

The Denver City Summer Tennis Tournament will be held June 10-13. The tourney, sponsored by the Denver City Chamber of Commerce, includes brackets in several age groups for men's singles and doubles, women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles.

Entry fee is $7 per event, and the deadline is June 9 at 10 p.m. To enter or get more information, call the Denver City Chamber of Commerce at (806) 592-5424 before 5 p.m. or call Scott Stentz at 592-8431.

Agents flying high over tickets

NEW YORK (AP) - Travelers better enjoy cheap air fares while they can, because the latest fare war may help kill some wounded airlines, giving survivors the power to raise prices, an industry official says.

"While this bargain basement summer ticket sale is attractive to consumers on face value, its long-term impact could hurt travelers," said Philip Davidoff, president of the American Society of Travel Agents.

"This promotion will be extremely costly to the industry," Davidoff said in a statement Thursday. "It could easily push weaker airlines over the edge at great cost to consumers."

Three sickly carriers, Trans World Airlines, America West Airlines and Continental Airlines, are now flying under Chapter 11 protection in bankruptcy court. Three others, Pan American World Airways, Eastern Airlines and Midway Airlines, died in Chapter 11 last year.

Some observers believe that once the weaklings are gone, the stronger carriers could start gouging their customers.

Others in the industry dispute this view, saying three or more carriers are enough to keep the market competitive, assuming they continue to compete on routes between most cities.

However the airline consolidation plays out, the struggling airline industry, which has lost about $6 billion over the past two years, seems certain to feel the pinch from this fare war.

Although travelers in search of new bargain fares are tying up airline reservations phones, analysts and many industry executives doubt the fare war will bring in enough new passengers to offset losses the carriers will suffer from the cheaper tickets.

"All prospects for a profitable summer are now doomed," said Julius Maldutis, airline analyst at Salomon Brothers Inc.

Increased phone traffic doesn't necessarily translate into more business for the airlines.

"Most of the activity is people who are on the books already who are now trying to find a cheaper way, get a refund or reissue their tickets," said Al Kolakowski, senior vice president of sales at Delta Air Lines.

"I don't think it's a money-maker," Kolakowski said of the latest fare cut.

Northwest Airlines, which started the fare battle Tuesday night by allowing an adult and child to fly together for the price of one ticket, disputed suggestions that the sale will be a bust.

The discount fare was expanded Wednesday when American Airlines responded to Northwest by chopping the price of its cheapest tickets in half for travel in the lower 48 states.

"I think it's a pretty safe deduction to think those people are being brought in off the sidelines," Northwest spokesman Jon Austin said.

American's senior vice president for marketing, Michael W. Gunn, dismissed some of the gloomier predictions about the impact of the sale.

"It could be anywhere from a slight negative to neutral," Gunn said. The sale might even make a small amount of money if more traffic is stimulated than American expects, Gunn said.

The sale includes fares as low as $200 on a round-trip ticket from New York to Los Angeles.

The ringing phones were unwelcome news for many travel agents, who were forced to reissue tickets at lower prices and lower commissions.

"It's a lose-lose situation," said Eric Munro, chief executive of Uniglobe Wide-World Travel in San Diego. "It's madness."

Wall Street also took a dim view of the fare cuts, pushing airline stocks lower Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

AMR Corp., the parent of American, fell $2 a share to $61.62 1/2; UAL Corp., the parent of United, fell $4 to $113.75; Delta fell 62 1/2 cents to $57; and USAir Group Inc. dropped 75 cents to $12.12 1/2.

U.S. airlines suffered record losses of nearly $6 billion over the past two years. The latest fare battle came as oil prices began rising and posed a further threat to the carriers.

Oil has shot up $1 per barrel this week on indications Saudi Arabia, the world's most influential oil exporter, wants higher prices. Such an increase could raise airlines' annual fuel costs by hundreds of millions of dollars.

retailer of lottery tickets, so we have a lot of experience with first day kickoffs. If it holds true in Texas ... we expect lines outside the doors," 7-Eleven spokeswoman Karen Raskopf said Thursday.

Instant-win tickets, offering prizes of $2 to $10,000, went on sale at 6 a.m. in 14,712 retail outlets. Lottery officials said only 500 of the first 300 million tickets will offer $10,000.

Odds are better for a small prize. Of all tickets being sold in the first game, 37.4 million are winners. But 29.9 million tickets win $2 and another 6 million bring $5 prizes. Only 3,000 carry prizes of $1,000 or more.

In addition to instant prizes, some tickets offer a chance at one of 12 weekly drawings for a $1 million prize. Odds of winning that pot with a single ticket were pegged at about 1 in 41.6 million.

All five Texas constitutions from statehood in 1845 prohibited a state lottery. Texas has been the nation's largest state without the gambling game. But after years of controversy and legislative battles, voters last November overwhelmingly approved a lottery amendment.

Comptroller John Sharp has estimated $1 million a day profit for the state Treasury, at least $461 million for the current two-year budget cycle.

The instant-win game is starting 47 days ahead of the Legislature's deadline. Sharp said big-money, computerized "lotto" games should begin in September, well ahead of the Jan. 1, 1993, deadline.

Ms. Linares said licensed retailers were equipped with mini computer terminals to validate winners. She said more than 127 million tickets were delivered to retailers for the kickoff.

"We're just amazed at the wide variety of businesses that want to sell lottery tickets to their customers," she said. Retailers keep 5 cents of each $1 dollar they collect.

The largest category, with more than 7,000 licenses granted, were convenience stores. Lottery tickets also were being sold at groceries, liquor stores, gas stations, restaurants, bait shops, pharmacies, laundromats, barber shops, and even an American Legion post.

Ms. Raskopf said all Texas 7-Eleven stores were licensed to sell tickets, a total of about 530. She said stores were hiring extra workers to handle the lottery crush.

"It's going to be like a wild and crazy party," she said. "We see one of the main benefits to us of the lottery is that it's going to bring a lot of new customers to our stores. We've viewing this as one big open house."

Sharp said the most licenses per capita were located in East Texas, along the Texas-Louisiana border, and in South Texas, along the border with Mexico. Both Louisiana and Mexico have operated lotteries played by Texans.

SIRLOIN STOCKADE

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

- All 172 pages in full color
- Each page measures a large 15 x 11 inches
- Presents the entire state in stunning detail
- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

"When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS ... you'll wonder how you ever travelled the state without it!"
 Texas Highways Magazine
 October, 1988

"For details of Texas terrain, oil company maps and the State's Official Highway Map can't match THE ROADS OF TEXAS."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SPIES AND SCOUTS

IN BIBLICAL TIMES IT CAN BE SAID THAT AN ARMY WAS ONLY AS GOOD AS ITS SPIES AND SCOUTS. HAVING NO RECONNAISSANCE OTHER THAN THE NAKED EYE TO REPORT WHAT LAY AHEAD OF AN ARMY, THE MEN, DESIGNATED AS SCOUTS AND SPIES, HAD TO BE OUTSTANDINGLY ALERT AND ABLE TO JUDGE THE STRENGTH OF THEIR POTENTIAL OPPONENTS SEEN FROM AFAR. THE SCOUTS MOSES SENT TO SPY OUT THE PROMISED LAND (NUMBERS 13) WERE OF THIS CALIBRE. HOWEVER, IN REPORTING TO MOSES, THEY CLAIMED TO HAVE SEEN GIANTS IN THE LAND AND ADVISED AGAINST GOING FORWARD. ONLY JOSHUA AND CALEB GAVE MOSES A CLEAR PICTURE OF THE LAND AND ITS POSSIBILITIES. FORTUNATELY MOSES GAVE EAR ONLY TO THEIR REPORT! SCOUTS AND SPIES WERE THE UNSUNG HEROES OF EVERY CONQUERING ARMY, AS THEY ARE TO THIS DAY, THOUGH SOPHISTICATED WARFARE HAS THEM THUNDERING THROUGH THE SKIES AS "THEY SEARCH OUT THE LAND."
