American Airlines may close several money-losing routes

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - American plans to shrink, because it continues to expand in other markets. American's recent losses have mirrored those throughout the industry. Carriers were hit hard when the Persian-Gulf crisis pushed fuel prices sharply higher in late 1990 and early 1991. They ran into further troubles when the recession cut into demand for air travel.

The No. 2 executive at American, Donald Carty, acknowledged to reporters that any plans to cut back, which could conceivably involve closing a money-losing hub, are not easily accomplished because the airline would be unable to reduce costs as fast as it cuts service.

American has questioned in the past whether it needs to keep all of its hubs. Crandall told shareholders a recent fare initiative launched by American is proceeding pretty much as planned, although the airline is not bringing in as much money as hoped because two rivals now in Chapter 11, Trans World Airlines and Continental Airlines, keep trying to lower the price of some tickets.

American's fare simplification plan cut the price of first-class and non-restricted coach fares, while limiting the number of discount fares available. The goal was to prompt more people to fly, and Crandall said business has gone up by more than the 3 percent American had estimated earlier. But that could be because tickets are cheaper than American wants them to be in some markets, he acknowledged.

Other airlines and travel agents around the country have disputed American's contention that the new fare structure is getting more people to fly. Some airlines have complained bitterly that the new fares have diluted revenues in the short-term. Carriers operating in bankruptcy have accused American of trying to run them out of business, a charge denied by American.

American has already said it would slow its expansion rates by sharply cutting back its capital spending plans, a move that was quickly followed by rivals United Airlines and Delta Air Lines. American spokesman Al Becker said Wednesday's comments did not mean

Congress 'okays' new amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress has symbolically ratified the 27th Amendment, the first change to the Constitution in 21 years.

The House and Senate voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to support the change, which would bar any pay raise lawmakers vote for themselves from taking effect until after the next congressional election.

Without debate, the Senate voted 99-0 for a resolution giving its blessing to the amendment. The House voted 414-3 a few hours later.

No action by Congress was needed, as the amendment had taken effect Tuesday, when it was published in the Federal Register. But House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said lawmakers wanted to dispel any notion that they hoped to preserve the right to vote themselves an immediate pay raise.

"Rather than have indications in the press and other places that the Congress was opposed to the amendment, ... that ought to be clarified," Foley said.

Some also saw the vote as preserving Congress' prerogative over constitutional amendments.

The amendment was the first change in the Constitution since 1971, when the 26th Amendment granted 18-year-olds the right to vote.

Written by founding father James Madison, the latest amendment was among the first ever sent to the states by the first Congress in 1789. Unlike the quickly ratified Bill of Rights, however, the proposal languished without ratification until Michigan put it over the top earlier this month.

Some had questioned the measure's validity because of the 202-year lapse.

But the issue of whether the proposal was too old quickly withered in a political atmosphere in which Congress is under fire for pay raises, perquisites and ethical lapses and any reform measure is seen as a shield against an angry public.

In modern times, all proposed constitutional amendments have been submitted to the states with time limits - usually seven years - in which they must be ratified, or die.

Four amendments proposed long ago without time limits remain pending before the states; Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has introduced a resolution to declare them dead.

One, an amendment that would protect slavery from being banned by the Constitution, already is seen as moot because the 13th Amendment outlawed slavery. The others would limit each House member to representing 50,000 people, allow regulation of child labor and bar acceptance by American citizens of foreign titles of nobility.

Dan vs. Murphy: a real sitcom

NEW YORK (AP) - Headlines screamed about it. Talk shows buzzed about it. Men and women argued about it. And the White House seemed not to know what to do about it.

The crackdown in Thailand, the JFK autopsy, Johnny Carson's impending retirement - all took a back seat to Vice President Dan Quayle's claim that television character Murphy Brown's giving birth to a child outside wedlock mocks "the importance of fathers."

"MURPHY HAS A BABY ... QUAYLE HAS A COW" crowed the Philadelphia Daily News. "Quayle to Murphy Brown: YOU TRAMP!" blared the New York Daily News. "DAN RAPS MURPHY'S FLAW," punned the Boston Herald.

On Tuesday, in a speech on the causes of the Los Angeles riots, Quayle said: "Bearing babies irresponsibly is wrong. Failing to support children one has fathered is wrong."

He continued: "It doesn't help matters when prime time TV has Murphy Brown - a character who supposedly epitomizes today's intelligent, highly paid, professional woman - mocking the importance of fathers by bearing a child alone and then calling it just another 'lifestyle choice.'"

On Wednesday, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said that Quayle had a point, but he also praised the show's "pro-life values" for showing a prominent character deciding against an abortion.

Quayle - who admitted he doesn't watch the show - said Fitzwater was wrong, that the show "does not represent pro-life policies."

President Bush refused to comment directly, explaining, "I'm not going to get into the details of a very popular television show." But he said he was all for two-parent families.

Democratic presidential frontrunner Bill Clinton was equally cautious, saying an out-of-wedlock birth "is not the example we want to set for our children."

Johnny Carson seized on it in his monologue on "The Tonight Show."

"Dan also came out against 'Gilligan's Island' because he thought Gilligan and the skipper were sleeping in adjoining hammocks," Carson joked.

"It doesn't help matters when prime time TV has Murphy Brown - a character who supposedly epitomizes today's intelligent, highly paid, professional woman - mocking the importance of fathers by bearing a child alone and then calling it just another 'lifestyle choice.'"

And David Letterman announced a list of "Dan Quayle's Top 10 Other Complaints About TV." The No. 1 complaint: "Not enough positive portrayals of really dumb guys."

The issue divided Regis Philbin and Kathie Lee Gifford, hosts of the syndicated TV show "Regis & Kathie Lee." Philbin said the vice president had a point. Ms. Gifford asked what else Murphy could have done under the circumstances.

Guardian Angels founders Curtis and Lisa Sliwa also disagreed on their talk show on WABC radio in New York. Curtis said Murphy Brown "is setting the wrong example." But Lisa asked what Quayle expected Murphy to do - "Have an abortion?"

Anyway, she added, "I'm not sure Dan understood Murphy Brown's a fictional character."

By late morning, the Sliwas' successor at the mike, Joy Behar, was sputtering, "I'm sick of this topic!"

No one else seemed to be, possibly because they could recall the Golden Age of Television, whose code of decency forced Rob and Laura Petrie to sleep in separate beds on "The Dick Van Dyke Show." On Monday, 38 million people watched an episode in which Murphy Brown, unmarried TV anchorwoman, gave birth to a boy.

About the only person with nothing to say was the woman who plays Murphy Brown, Candice Bergen. Her spokesman, Allen Eichhorn, said that when he told her on Tuesday about Quayle's remarks, she said, "Oh really? ... OK, fine. Thank you."

"I don't think she cared to jump into the fray," he said.

But Diane English, the show's producer, did. "If he believes that a woman cannot adequately raise a child without a father, then he'd better make sure abortion remains safe and legal," she said.

Johnny Carson joked that Quayle was after Gilligan's Island next

Don't let this story bug you*Connoisseurs 'enjoy' insects at classy meal

NEW YORK (AP) - Ants, worms and crickets on the table are usually enough to ruin a dinner. At the first Bug Banquet, they WERE dinner.

"Live caviar!" Robert Boyle, a member of the New York Entomological Society, said Wednesday night, crushing an ant in his mouth. He moved for another but was stopped by Raymond A. Mendez, a Museum of Natural History employee.

"One each. Only one each," Mendez chided.

"Can I eat my wife's?" Boyle asked.

The banquet, held by the entomological society to celebrate its 100th anniversary, was so successful that the group said it will make it a profit-making endeavor with more exotic dishes in the future.

The scientists decided to hold the feast after choosing Gene Defoliart, a retired University of Wisconsin professor with expertise on edible bugs, as a guest speaker for their anniversary meeting.

Defoliart said he became interested in bugs as food in the mid-1970s while researching insects as a high-protein food for poultry. Insects are considered delicacies in many countries, he said.

At the banquet, 118 people paid between $45 and $65 to find bugs in their food and compliment, rather than berate, the chef.

Writers in tuxedos carried trays of hors d'oeuvres such as cricket and vegetable tempura, mealworm balls in zesty tomato sauce, wax worm fritters with plum sauce and sauteed Thai water bugs.

Main dishes were more conventional - roast beef with gravy or chicken and pasta. But there were seasoned cricket breads. And desserts included chocolate cricket torte and insect sugar cookies.

Because the entomological society couldn't find a restaurant that intentionally puts bugs in its food, it chose the caterer New York Parties to do the honors.

Diners found the crickets crunchy with a taste like that of mushrooms. The mealworms were chewy and tasted like fish. The ants tasted peachy. The wax worm fritters were nutty.

Crowds gathered to sample the live ants.

One by one, people who had never eaten an insect cupped an ant in their hand, paused for confidence and tossed it into their mouth like peanuts.

"It's good. It's really good," said Leah Frank, a society member.

"It was the scream that really was the worst part," she added with a devilish grin.

Nobody seemed to doubt the safety of the experience, especially after speaking to Norman Cooper, president of the National Pest Control Association.

"I know that these insects are clean," said Cooper, noting that most of the world's 900,000 insect species are not pests.

"You couldn't pay me to eat a fly or a roach because of the diseases they carry," he said. "Probably this is a lot safer than eating chicken."

Then Cooper picked up a live ant with tweezers, its legs dangling all the way to his lips.

"Good," Cooper said, as if savoring a new wine. "They happen to be delicious, probably the best-tasting thing here."

Perryton man treated after meal of metal in release try

PERRYTON (AP) - A jail inmate was in good condition following surgery to remove five pieces of a metal drain the man said he swallowed in a suicide attempt.

Ochiltree County Sheriff Joe Hataway said the screws securing a drain cover in the Ochiltree County Jail had rusted enough that Gerald Lee Loser, 44, was able to remove it and break it into pieces.

Loser swallowed the rusted metal Friday in what he said was an attempt to kill himself. On Tuesday, Loser said he would never try eating another drain cover.

Loser will likely be hospitalized for several more days, hospital officials said Wednesday.

Hataway said he thought Loser was trying to attract attention "and thought if he could bring about an injury to himself, he could get out quicker."

When he recovers, Loser will be returned to jail, where he is awaiting trial on charges of aggravated assault and resisting arrest, Hataway said.

Stalked by silent killer?

Close to 60 million Americans have a life- and health-threatening condition-but this "silent killer" often has no symptoms. Perhaps millions more (maybe you?) have the same problem and don't even know it. It's high blood pressure. It occurs when blood vessels become narrow or rigid, forcing the heart to pump harder to move blood through the body. If untreated, high blood pressure can lead to heart attack, stroke and kidney failure. In fact, it's a leading cause of kidney failure and untreated high blood pressure can mean a shorter life-much of it spent attacked to a kidney dialysis machine.

While no one is immune, high blood pressure affects men slightly more than it does younger people and African-Americans more than it does Whites. In fact, 24 percent of the White population but 38 percent of the Black population has high blood pressure, though Blacks make up only about 12 percent of the entire U.S. population. High blood pressure is a leading cause of death among Black Americans. For every African-American who dies of sickle cell anemia, 100 die of high blood pressure. In addition to developing high blood pressure more often, Blacks tend to develop more severe cases and to get it at an earlier age. Black people are also more likely to suffer kidney disease as a result of high blood pressure. Black Americans have a nearly fourfold greater rate of kidney failure than do Whites. African-Americans account for 32 percent of dialysis patients. Recent studies suggest Hispanic people may also be disproportionately at risk for high blood pressure and resulting kidney troubles.

Fortunately, regular trips to the doctor can help you tell if you have the problem, and medication and lifestyle changes can help you solve it. Says Shaul Massry, M.D., president of the National Kidney Foundation: "It is of life-saving importance for everyone, especially blacks, to get their blood pressure checked twice a year."

The experts at the National Kidney Foundation point out that ways to lower high blood pressure can include:

- *losing weight
- *cutting down on alcohol
- *changing diet
- *stopping smoking
- *exercising regularly, and
- *reducing stress.

In addition, there are several different kinds of medications made to get blood pressure under control. In any case, it is important to follow your doctor's advice. Make the lifestyle changes and take the medication as directed-even if you feel fine. If the medication has unpleasant side effects, tell our doctor. A change of dose or type of medicine may make all the difference.

Early detection and long-term treatment are the keys to a longer, healthier life and to preventing kidney disease.

Use Texas products for Memorial Day barbecue

All the makings for a "memorable" Memorial Day barbecue are available from Lone Star State farmers and ranchers.

"Whether you're going to fire up your grill for seafood, beef, chicken, turkey legs or lamb chops, chances are you can find these locally produced items at your nearest supermarket," Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said.

And don't forget that different woods such as Texas mesquite or pecan can enhance grilled meat flavor. Unique flavors also can be added by using Texas fresh herbs in a baste or by placing herbs directly on meat or coals.

Grilling isn't just from meat though. Nice worm-weather treats also can be found in grilled vegetable kabobs. Texas farmers already are producing tomatoes, squash and onions that are just some of many ingredients that go into kabobs.

For salads, rice is a flavorful variation as a main ingredient instead of, for example, potatoes in potato salad.

To top off the meal, Texas melons, such as cantaloupe and watermelons, provide a low-fat and nutritious dessert. For those wanting something richer, Texas peaches and blueberries can be used on cobblers and topped off with Texas-made ice cream.

And don't forget to wash it all down with Texas-processed fruit juices, sparkling waters, milk, apple cider, wine or beer.

Expos rally; Astros beaten

By The Associated Press

The Montreal Expos delivered several late messages - to their fans and, perhaps, to themselves.

Trailing 5-2 headed into the ninth and with Reds ace reliever Norm Charlton on the mound, the Expos appeared headed for a three-game sweep at the hands of Cincinnati.

Then Montreal erupted for four runs, including Marquis Grissom's bloop single off Rob Dibble, to win it 6-5.

"I hit a broken-bat blooper," Grissom said. "They all count. He's the hardest thrower I've ever faced. It was quite a finish. The true fans were still around. That will teach the fans who left not to leave early."

It also might teach the Expos something about themselves.

"To score four runs in the ninth off Charlton and Dibble is a boon for the offense," said Tim Wallach, whose ninth-inning single gave him the Expos' career record for hits.

Dibble apparently wasn't ready to pitch or talk.

"We won the game Tuesday," Dibble said, "but you didn't come and talk to me. Now we lose and you want to talk."

In other games, it was San Diego 12, New York 6; Atlanta 6, St. Louis 3; Philadelphia 2, Houston 1; San Francisco 3, Pittsburgh 1; and Los Angeles 5, Chicago 3.

The Reds had fought back from a 2-0 deficit in the first inning to go ahead 5-2 in the seventh when they sent 11 men to the plate. Both Paul O'Neill and Barry Larkin had two-run singles.

But Charlton, who came on in the eighth, allowed singles by Ivan Calderon and Larry Walker to open the ninth. Dibble relieved and struck out Moises Alou, then allowed an infield single to Wallach to load the bases.

Dibble (0-2) walked pinch-hitter John Vanderwal to make the score 5-3 before Tom Foley struck out. Pinch-hitter Bret Barberie then walked to make it 5-4 before Grissom singled in the tying and winning runs.

Padres 12, Mets 6

At San Diego, Tony Fernandez matched his career best with four RBIs, including a three-run homer, as the Padres erupted for a season high in runs.

Gary Sheffield, extending his hitting streak to 13 games, went 4 for 5 with a homer and scored three runs. Fred McGriff went 3 for 5, including a two-run double.

Craig Lefferts (5-2) got his first victory against the Mets.

Braves 6, Cardinals 3

At Atlanta, Steve Avery, who hadn't won in nearly a month, allowed four hits in 8 1-3 innings and Brian Hunter hit a two-run homer and drove in three runs.

Avery, 18-8 a year ago, needed last-inning relief from Marvin Freeman, who got the final two outs, but also gave up one hit and one run. Avery walked five and struck out three.

Phillies 2, Astros 1

At Philadelphia, Terry Mulholland pitched 8 1-3 innings for his fourth straight victory. Like Avery, he needed relief, and Mitch Williams made it even more exciting than did Freeman for Atlanta.

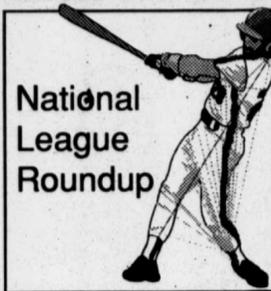

Mulholland (4-3) gave up nine hits, struck out six and walked one. Williams came on with runners at first and second and walked Craig Biggio, loading the bases. He got Steve Finley to pop out to shortstop and Jeff Bagwell to fly out to right field to end it.

Giants 3, Pirates 1

At San Francisco, the Giants handed the Pirates their fifth straight loss behind Bud Black, who allowed four hits in 7 2-3 innings. Jeff Brantley got three outs for his fourth save.

Zane Smith fell to 0-7 against the Giants in his last 10 appearances.

With the score 1-1, Will Clark and Cory Snyder hit one-out singles in the sixth before Matt Williams had a soft single over third that scored Clark. Chris James was walked intentionally and pinch-hitter Mike Felder hit a popup to shallow center field that Andy Van Slyke caught. But he hesitated before throwing to the plate, and Snyder scored.

Dodgers 5, Cubs 3

At Los Angeles, Mike Sharperson pulled the Dodgers into a tie with a two-run double. Then he knocked the ball loose from catcher Joe Girardi later in the inning for the go-ahead run.

Down 3-1 in the fifth, Los Angeles rallied as Sharperson hit a deep drive to left-center field, driving in Eric Karros and Brett Butler. Kal Daniels hit a sharp grounder deep into the hole, where shortstop Jose Vizcaino made a diving stop and threw home. Girardi fielded the ball on one hop, but Sharperson barreled over him and the ball dropped.

Angels' team bus overturns, manager, 11 others hurt

DEPTFORD TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) - One of two buses carrying the California Angels baseball team overturned on the New Jersey Turnpike early this morning, injuring manager Buck Rodgers and 11 other people, authorities said.

The accident occurred about 10 miles from Philadelphia as the team traveled from New York, where it played Wednesday night, to Baltimore.

Rodgers, who broke his right rib, right knee and right elbow, was the most seriously injured, said Underwood-Memorial Hospital spokeswoman Debbie Given.

Also injured were second baseman Bobby Rose, broadcaster Al Conin, former batting star Rod Carew and several other players and team officials. No pitchers or star players were injured.

Toronto fights for win; Rangers sweep Indians

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Toronto Blue Jays were determined not to get swept again by Minnesota at the SkyDome, and they were ready to fight with the Twins and the umpires to make sure it didn't happen.

The Blue Jays, after clearing the benches in the fourth inning because of beanballs and filing a protest in the fifth because of suspicious bats, eventually wound up with an 8-7 win Wednesday night when Pat Borders singled home the deciding run in the 10th inning.

In other games, Boston beat Seattle 6-4, Detroit downed Milwaukee 4-3, Oakland beat Baltimore 4-2, New York edged California 3-2 in 12 innings, Texas topped Cleveland 1-0 and Kansas City defeated Chicago 7-2.

Tempers flared in the fourth in Toronto when Minnesota's Scott Erickson threw a pitch behind Derek Bell. Blue Jays starter Todd Stottlemire, who already was out of the game, led the charge from the dugout.

The benches and bullpens emptied, but no punches were thrown and no one was ejected.

An inning later, Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston announced he was playing the game under protest. He contended that home plate umpire Larry Young would not comply with his request to check Greg Gagne's bat after Gagne hit his second home run of the season in the fourth.

"Cito protested in the fifth," Young said. "In his words, 'a protest for not checking Gagne's bat.' He didn't make the request and I want to make this clear, at no time did I deny a request from him to check the bat. He never asked me. He never said to me that he wanted the bat checked."

Twins manager Tom Kelly, as expected, said there was no reason to check Gagne, anyway.

The Blue Jays scored their first seven runs on homers by Bell, Joe Carter, John Olerud and Kelly Gruber. They won it in the 10th against Rick Aguilera (0-4) when Gruber reached on an error by Gagne at shortstop, a single by Olerud and an intentional walk that loaded the bases.

The Twins brought in Randy Bush from right field to play a five-man infield, but Borders foiled the strategy with a deep drive to center. Tom Henke (2-1) pitched one inning for the victory.

Red Sox 6, Mariners 4

Ellis Burks' sixth career grand slam, a tie-breaking shot in the eighth inning at Fenway Park, lifted Boston over Seattle and completed a three-game sweep.

Roger Clemens (6-3), coming off consecutive shutouts, gave up two runs on six hits in eight innings.

Tigers 4, Brewers 3

Mickey Tettleton's three-run homer with one out in the ninth inning rallied Detroit over Milwaukee at Tiger Stadium.

Chris Bosio, 3-0 with a 1.89 ERA against the Tigers last season, limited them to one run on three hits for eight innings. But he was pulled with one out and one on in the ninth, and Doug Henry (0-1) walked Cecil Fielder, then gave up Tettleton's ninth home run.

Athletics 4, Orioles 2

Oakland finished off a three-game sweep in Baltimore behind Bob Welch and Dennis Eckersley.

Mike Bordick's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning put the Athletics ahead 3-2.

Welch (2-2) allowed seven hits in eight innings. Eckersley pitched the ninth for his 16th save in 16 tries.

Yankees 3, Angels 2

Charlie Hayes doubled home Jesse Barfield from first base with one out in the 12th inning as New York completed a three-game sweep at Yankee Stadium.

Barfield, who tied the game in the ninth with a sacrifice fly, singled with one out in the 12th off Chuck Crim (1-2). Hayes, in a 3-for-32 slump, followed with a deep double to left-center.

John Habyan (2-1) pitched two innings.

Rangers 1, Indians 0

Jose Guzman, with fine relief from Jeff Russell in the ninth inning, led Texas to a three-game sweep in Cleveland.

Ruben Sierra singled home the only run in the sixth inning as the Rangers won their fourth straight.

Guzman (3-3) allowed five singles in 8 1-3 innings. Charles Nagy (4-3) lost despite allowing seven hits in his fourth complete game.

Royals 7, White Sox 2

Hipolito Pichardo pitched five shutout innings to win his first major league start and Mike Boddicker finished for his first major league save as Kansas City won at Comiskey Park.

Gregg Jefferies hit his first major league grand slam, connecting in the fifth inning against Alex Fernandez (2-5).

Foyt oldest ever in Indy 500 race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A.J. Foyt, Mario Andretti and the other graybeards of auto racing are an oddity. In earlier generations, they never would have lasted as long as they have, let alone remained competitive all these years.

"You wouldn't be here. You retired or you were dead," recalls Louie Meyer, the first three-time winner of the Indianapolis 500 and one of only a handful of drivers who survived - and thrived - through Indy's most deadly decades.

Foyt will be starting his 35th consecutive race Sunday and, at age 57, is the oldest known driver in Indy history. Andretti, 52, will be making his 27th start; Al Unser, 53 next week, is starting his 26th race; Gordon Johncock, 55, his 24th; Gary Bettenhausen, 50, his 20th race; and Tom Sneva, the baby of the crowd at 43, will be in his 18th race.

All of them were expected to be on the track today for the final practice session before Sunday's race. The two-hour "Carburetion Day" practice is the only time the cars are allowed on the track between the end of qualifications and the start of the race.

Thirty drivers who began their careers after Foyt's first race in 1958 made 10 or more starts. Only nine drivers, including Meyer, who started their careers in the 1920s, lasted that long.

No driver who started his career before 1930 appeared in more than 16 races. Thirteen who began their careers in the 1950s or '60s have driven in 17 or more races.

Why the longevity?

"The safety standards are terrific," said Meyer. "So many innovations have come out. Now they're going 230 mph ... I don't believe it."

The '30s were the deadliest decade. Twenty drivers, mechanics and spectators were killed from 1930-39 - almost a third of the 65 deaths in the entire 83-year history of the track.

"In '33 alone, we lost five," said Meyer, 87, the oldest known former driver. But the threat of death, or even of injury, has never and will never deter race drivers, he said.

Meyer, who lived in California, first came to Indianapolis in 1926 as a mechanic and first drove a race car at the Ascot track in Los Angeles later that year. He recalled spinning his car and going backwards down the track as all the other cars passed him. His brother told him, "You'll never make a race driver. Get out."

The next year, he was back at Indianapolis as a mechanic in Wilbur Shaw's pit. During the race, Shaw pulled in, exhausted and climbed out of the car. There was no one else to drive, Meyer recalled, so the car owner told him to get in.

"I took it 100-some miles, and between the two of us, we finished fourth."

In 1928, Meyer had a ride lined up with car owner August Duesenberg. The only problem was there was no car. He walked into a room and saw parts scattered all over the floor.

"I had to put it together," he said. "They had no mechanic. So we got the car together, and I got about 10 laps of practice, and Augie came up and said, 'Louie, the car was sold last night.'"

Meyer did some scrambling, found another ride with the Miller team, qualified 13th, moved up to third by 400 miles and won the race.

"From then on, it was a lot easier for me to get a car," he said.

Tagged fish contest set for Ute Lake

Logan-Ute Chamber of Commerce area and local businesses are sponsoring the 1st Annual Fish Tagging Contest.

The contest starts Friday and runs through Sept. 7, 1992, at Ute Lake. All species of fish in Ute Lake have been tagged. The only requirement to fish in the contest is a valid New Mexico fishing license. Children 13 and under are not required to have a license.

All tagged fish are worth cash or prizes. A total of $1,500 in cash is offered, including seven fish worth $100 each. Numerous prizes have been donated, including an installed muffler, savings bonds, gas, meals, overnight motel stays, and many other prizes.

When a fisherman catches a tagged fish, he must turn it in at one of the bait shops or the marina for verification.

Ehlo hopes to hold Jordan under 30 points

CHICAGO (AP) - Craig Ehlo won't get greedy when the time comes to play defense against Michael Jordan tonight.

Just holding him under 30 points will do.

That's something, however, that the Cleveland Cavaliers have not been able to accomplish in 11 playoff games since 1988.

Jordan's 33 points in Chicago's 103-89 victory over Cleveland in Tuesday night's opener of the Eastern Conference finals lowered his career playoff average against the Cavaliers to 41.6 points.

Tonight at Chicago Stadium, Ehlo again will have most of the defensive responsibility against Jordan.

"That would be great if we can hold him in the 20s," Ehlo said Wednesday. "I think we'd have an excellent chance to win that game. But even if you try to contain, control and limit Jordan's shots, he can still get 30 shots. The best thing about the first game is that he mainly shot jumpers instead of driving. At least that's a start."

Ehlo and the Cavaliers are less concerned with being characterized by the Chicago media as marshmallows and cream puffs.

"Sticks and stones can break our bones, but words will never hurt us," Ehlo said. "They can label us any way they want. We're in the conference finals because we played well all season long. What they say is just words."

"If my wife called me a marshmallow, I'd be upset. I was more upset about the way we played."

The Bulls were only slightly more diplomatic than the media in their description of Game 1, compared to their tough seven-game series against New York.

"We're back to playing real basketball, not hockey," Bulls forward Horace Grant said. "We had fun out there. No punches, no scratching, no clawing, no kicking, no shooting, no murder. You can bring the kids to see a game like this."

"When teams win the first game, they can say whatever they want," Cleveland coach Lenny Wilkens said. "But the fact is, we had an emotional drain after playing a seventh game against Boston. We'll be motivated to come out hard in the second game because we weren't happy with the way we played, not because of what anyone said. We have to continue doing the things that helped us win 57 games in the regular season."

Wilkens admits there's "a psychological game being played between these two teams. Since we won 33 games last year and have never been this far in the playoffs before, we have to prove we can compete every time we play. We've recovered every time we've played a bad game, and I'm sure we will again."

Jordan said Cleveland won't try to be as rugged as the Knicks.

"We'd be ready for that, but they would be stepping out of their character," Jordan said. "That's not them. They're a fast-break, half-court, ball-control type team, very similar to us."

Tomjanovich no longer 'interim'

HOUSTON (AP) - Rudy Tomjanovich has his own ideas about what it takes to be a head coach in the NBA.

He got a taste of it for 30 games last season as interim coach of the Houston Rockets. That was enough to convince him he wanted the job fulltime, and on Wednesday the Rockets agreed, giving him a three-year contract worth a reported $475,000.

"I don't think if you wear a nice suit or comb your hair back, you get wins," Tomjanovich said. "You do it on the basketball court, and there's a lot of blood, sweat and tears."

Last season, the Rockets got off to a 11-4 start after Tomjanovich replaced the fired Don Chaney Feb. 18.

"That's when I got the fever," Tomjanovich said.

But the Rockets then posted a 5-10 record in Tomjanovich's next 15 games, which included games when center Hakeem Olajuwon was serving a controversial suspension.

"What I needed to know was how I would react to the disappointments, and I believe we had some big disappointments at the end of the year, going right down to the last game," Tomjanovich said. "After that, I felt I could handle the negative part of it, too. That was a selling point to me that I could do the job."

Prior to the experience, Tomjanovich wasn't certain he wanted to be a head coach after serving nine years as an assistant and scout with the Rockets.

"I think I've got a good idea now for what the job entails," he said. "I believe wholeheartedly that I can do well in this job."

Olajuwon has asked to be traded following his public feud with Rockets general manager Steve Patterson. Olajuwon claimed he could not play with a hamstring injury and the Rockets accused their center of faking an injury as a ploy to get a new contract.

Tomjanovich says he hopes Olajuwon will be wearing a Rockets uniform next season.

"Hakeem is under contract for the next three years," Olajuwon said. "He's a great player and our relationship has been very good. I'm looking forward to him beginning the season the way he ended it."

Patterson says the Rockets expect to get fair value if they do trade Olajuwon. Tomjanovich hopes it never happens.

The new coach said the Rockets would be looking for any way possible to improve the team. The Rockets will select 11th in the June NBA draft.

"We're looking at the No. 1 pick down through 15," he said. "We're at 11, but we have tapes from (Louisiana State's Shaquille) O'Neal all the way down to 15."

"Our team will do anything to improve this team. We'll look at all possibilities."

Tomjanovich also expects improved timeliness from his team, a project he started as interim coach. "We did slip up at times and I had to address it," Tomjanovich said. "But starting from scratch where you put in all of your rules, I don't anticipate it being a problem whatsoever."

And if there is a problem? "I talked to (owner) Charlie (Thomas), and if we ever did get into a situation where we have to deal with someone in drastic or harsh measures, he's 100 percent behind me," Tomjanovich said.

Brown dazzled by his hot golf streak

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Billy Ray Brown, still a bit dazzled over his current hot streak, wants to make it two PGA golf titles in a row, and he says there's no better place than Colonial to do it.

"Colonial is my favorite course to play," he said. "I hope I can react to the challenge."

The burly Texan, fresh from a playoff victory at the nearby Byron Nelson, loomed as one of the favorites in a field of 113 on hand for the Colonial.

Davis Love III, the odds-on choice to win his fourth tournament of the year, fanned a 1-iron in Wednesday's pro-am but still claimed a "snake-in-one" at the lake guarding the par-3 13th green.

"He was a 5-foot long water moccasin," Love grinned. "I whiffed the first time when I tried to hit him in the head, but I got him on the next try. It's like making a hole-in-one after a whiff."

He claimed the poisonous cotton-mouth was surveying both the gallery and his amateur partners and that he rescued them all with his courageous and deadly 1-iron head shot.

Heroics aside, most of the pre-tourney attention was focused on Brown, a personable portrait of confidence.

"I'm ready," he said on the eve of today's first round. "Anytime you're playing well, you try to run these things out."

The former University of Houston sharpshooter traces his current success to the second round of the Houston Open in early May. He turned the front nine 5-over par and in serious danger of missing the 36-hole cut.

"I shot 30 on the back side, made the cut on the number and shot 68-64 to finish third by myself," he recalled. "Then I went to Paris, and I'm the worst overseas player we've got, I think. I went over there and shot 10-under par and finished third two weeks ago."

"It seems I got on a roll and it carried over to last week."

Brown, 29, finished the rain-abbreviated Nelson at 11-under par and won the tournament with a birdie on the first hole of a sudden-death shootout with Ben Crenshaw, Ray Floyd and Bruce Lietzke.

"It was great, especially considering the company I was with," he said, "guys I've idolized growing up. They were winning tournaments when I was in junior high. When you're able to succeed against guys like that, it really boosts you up."

He said he has been too busy to savor the triumph, only his second since joining the tour in 1988.

"I really haven't had a chance to think about it much, but it's starting to sink in a little now. Seeing all the guys back at the golf course, congratulating me. It means so much."

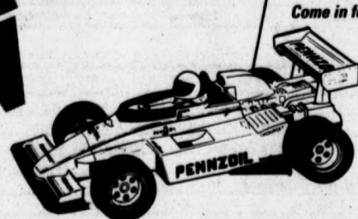

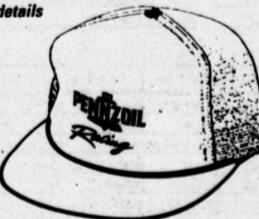

He said winning was great, but winning in Texas was special. And it exempted him from qualifying for the U.S. and British Opens.

"Killed two birds with one stone," he quipped.

New CTA officers installed recently

New officers installed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for your column about breast implants. I also am appalled by the misinformation and the huckstering of personal injury attorneys who are out to make a buck any way they can.

I had my implants 12 years ago to correct a physical deformity. I'm 34, a registered nurse, in excellent health and married to a physician. We have four children.

I was pleased with my implants and forgot all about them until the media onslaught began.

Being a born worrier, each new report was more frightening than the last. I became so nervous I could not sleep or enjoy anything. Then I saw your column.

I showed the column to my husband and he said, "That is exactly what I've been telling you all along. I'm glad you read it in the paper. Now maybe you'll believe me."

I then went to a surgical oncologist at the University of Miami, Dr. Alfred Ketchum, who is a past president of the Society of Surgical Oncology and considered a leading authority on breast disease.

What Dr. Ketchum told me was identical to the information you printed in your column. He also said he would be very comfortable if any of his five daughters wanted to have breast implants.

Please, please print your message again so the women who may have missed it will see it the second time around. Yours was the voice of sanity when the media feeding frenzy got going.—Peggy in Miami

DEAR PEGGY: Thanks for those kind words. Here's the information again, for those who missed it:

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration's advisory panel has determined that there is no compelling scientific evidence that silicone implants cause disease but made it clear that more studies are needed.

The panel has recommended that all women who need breast reconstruction after mastectomy be allowed to have it, as well as a limited number of women who want the procedure for cosmetic reasons, to supply data for a controlled study.

The FDA is advising women who have not experienced any problems to leave their implants in.

Anyone who has questions can call the FDA Breast Implant Information toll-free hot line. The number is 800-532-4440(TDD for the hearing impaired: 800-688-6167).

The Deaf Smith County Classroom Teachers Association held its installation of officers May 7 in the Hereford High School library. Installation ceremonies were conducted by Teddie Poindexter, retired teacher and a member of TCTA.

New officers include Catherine Cortez, of Hereford Junior High School, president; Maria Garcia, West Central, president elect; Jeannie Conway, West Central, secretary; and Bertha Celeya, Tierra Blanca, treasurer. The new officers were challenged by Poindexter to board Flight 1993 and make the local association an active participant in the coming year. She said the legislature will be dealing with a major problem of concern to all teachers, parents and students in the next session. Every teacher should take the time to write their congressman expressing their concerns.

Also installed were faculty representatives from each school: Aikman, Regina Pender; Bluebonnet, Murlene Streun; Hereford Junior High School, Carolyn Waters and Amy Cole; Hereford High School, Gail George and Carol Printz; Northwest, Barbara Yavornik; Stanton, Donna Grady; Tierra Blanca, Tonya Setliff; and West Central, Rose Nava. Shirley School has not yet elected a faculty representative.

Current President Laurel Horton announced the recipients of the two-member scholarships awarded by TCTA. They are Tonya Setliff of Tierra Blanca and Amelia Pesina of West Central. These teachers are completing their certification requirements.

It was also announced that Lindsay Radford was awarded a $500 scholarship. She is the daughter of Jane Radford, a junior high teacher and TCTA member.

Power of positive thinking

Although losing a few pounds can be the first step toward improving your image, in order to really make positive changes in your life, you've got to feel good about yourself.

How do you break the cycle of low self-esteem? Try following these tips:

Assess your unique spiritual traits. Instead of focusing on your skills, think about your qualities: Are you honest, independent, playful or loving? Do you reach out warmly to people? Can you bring others out of a bad mood with your humor? All of these things play a big part in determining who you are.

Consider your talents. You don't have to be a great singer or an outstanding athlete; maybe you're good at cooking, needlepointing, repairing household objects or caring for children or animals. Perhaps you're a great painter or piano player. These are things that make a difference to those around you.

Take time to appreciate the

NEW YORK (AP) - Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg and John F. Kennedy Jr. sailed into New York Harbor aboard the aircraft carrier named for their father.

Navy officials said Kennedy arrived by bicycle Wednesday at a Hudson River pier, where a Navy helicopter picked him and his sister up and flew them to the USS John F. Kennedy, waiting just outside the harbor.

The 81,000-ton warship then sailed past the Statue of Liberty to a Hudson River pier as part of the city's annual Fleet Week observance.

Schlossberg, 34, christened the carrier in Newport News, Va., 25 years ago next week. A Navy spokesman said he believed it was the first time Kennedy, 31, had ever visited the ship.

beautiful things about your body. Perhaps most of all, concentrate on what natural features you already have: sparkling eyes, a great smile, perfect nails and a cheery laugh at all things to be admired. Remember, losing weight is much easier if you can like yourself first!

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have often heard and read that drinking too much coffee can be harmful. I usually have two cups with each meal and probably three additional cups a day — nine cups total. I have not read that drinking too much cola is harmful. I also drink a lot of that.

What specifically, aside from caffeine, is the danger of drinking so much liquid — the water? If I drink decaffeinated drinks am I doing any better? I am a 57-year-old female.

DEAR READER: Caffeine is the major stimulant in coffee, and it is a brain stimulant or "upper" drug. People do develop a level of addiction to it, and when caffeine intake is eliminated suddenly, it can cause withdrawal symptoms, particularly headache and sleepiness. Caffeine from other sources has the same effect, including caffeine-containing colas and tea. Chocolate also contains caffeine.

I have listed the caffeine content of different ways of preparing coffee, tea, colas and chocolate as well as the effects of these on health in Special Report 83, Coffee, Tea, Colas and Chocolate, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/83, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Coffee contains substances other than caffeine that can be irritating to some people, particularly their digestive system. Anyone with digestive complaints would do well to eliminate all forms of coffee, tea, colas and chocolate. That includes decaffeinated coffee.

Coffee and tea also significantly decrease the absorption of important minerals such as iron and calcium. Also, substituting these liquids for nutritious fluids you need — such as milk and fruit juices — may lead to poor nutrition.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

There's something for everyone in the newspaper...
