Meeting held to calm Korean tension

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Korean Military Armistice Commission officers met today to defuse tensions arising from a gunbattle at the truce village of Panmunjom in which at least three soldiers were killed and two wounded, including an American.

The meeting was held in the same area where the firefight erupted Friday between security forces in the demilitarized zone that divides the pro-Western South from Communist North Korea.

A statement issued today by Lee Jin-Hie, South Korean minister of culture and information, termed the incident "a grave violation of the military armistice agreement and a criminal provocation act threatening peace."

The United Nations Command in Seoul said the fighting began when a Soviet defector fled to the south and 20 to 30 North Korean security guards began firing and crossed the demarcation line between the north and south in pursuit.

The command said U.N. guards took "defensive action" and in the resulting firefight, one South Korean soldier was killed and one American soldier was wounded. It said two North Korean guards apparently were killed and two others wounded.

But North Korean broadcasts monitored in Tokyo said a member of a tour group from the north "unexpectedly" crossed the demarcation line in the Armistice Commission conference room at Panmunjom and was "dragged away" by guards from the U.S. side. Shooting erupted, and three North Korean guards were killed and one was wounded seriously, according to the broadcasts.

In Washington, State Department press officer Kathleen Lang said the North Korean allegation that the defector had accidentally stepped across the dividing line was "totally false."

The South Korean minister's statement noted that the incident occurred when efforts were under way to open a dialogue between the south and the north on economic and humanitarian issues, and urged the North to cooperate in the dialogue "in a sincere posture."

The man who the U.N. Command said was a Soviet defector was brought 25 miles south from Panmunjom to Seoul. A U.S. Embassy official gave his name today as Vasilii Yakovlovich Matuzok.

The U.S. Embassy said in a statement today that the defector was under the joint protection of South Korean and U.S. authorities, and his future status would be determined on the basis of his "stated desires and standard precedents and procedures."

The embassy said Matuzok had "voluntarily crossed" the demarcation line and was safe and in good health.

The wounded American was identified as Pvt. Michael Burgoyne, 20, Portland, Mich. Sources said today that he had suffered a superficial neck wound and was in "good condition" at a military hospital.

Justice makes move to Hereford

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Bill Justice completed his first emergency medical care class at the age of 16 and he's been going to school ever since.

Justice is 24 now and his career so far has included stints as a fireman, respiratory therapist instructor for the state of New Mexico. A lot of his training came while he was still in high school and belonged to an explorer scout post that taught fire fighting and rescue techniques.

Now in his second month as a respiratory therapist and member of the emergency medical services team at Deaf Smith General Hospital, Justice hopes to be accepted as a Hereford volunteer fireman. In the meantime, he will continue with his full-time job at DSGH, work toward an associate degree in paramedics from Amarillo College and continue his New Mexico teaching job.

While still in high school, membership in the explorer posts gave Justice an opportunity to perform the kind of rescue missions not normally undertaken by a high school student.

Justice got his first training in Knoxville, Tenn., where the city fire department taught the kids by simulating real-life emergencies. He supplemented the firefighting lessons by enrolling in a respiratory therapy course taught by the health occupations program at his high school.

From the deep South it was on to the skyscrapers of New York City. (See JUSTICE, Page 2A)

Progress in transportation is funny—every year it takes less time to fly around the world and more time to get to work.

Things would be a lot nicer if more people were eager to pat a fellow on the back instead of punching him in the nose.

With Thanksgiving behind us, it shouldn't come as too big of a shock that there are only 24 more shopping days until Christmas!

While some of those efficient types have already been doing some Christmas shopping, the observance of Thanksgiving is usually the kickoff of the busy holiday season. Next Sunday, The Brand will publish its "Christmas Shopping Edition" with a host of gift ideas from local stores.

The special pages will receive a lot of attention since the edition will be delivered to all homes in town and mailed to residents all around the area.

And, speaking of gift ideas, the C of C Fun Breakfast Thursday morning will be the annual "Eat Your Heart

Out, Neiman-Marcus" special edition of the chamber events. A number of merchants will be displaying samples of their Christmas gifts, and those attending the event will have an opportunity to browse before and after the breakfast.

The breakfast starts at 6:30 a.m., so make plans to attend and call in your reservations to the C of C office, 364-3333. Merchants desiring to participate in the display booths should make reservations with the chamber.

Pheasant-hunting season is just around the corner, and some folks don't realize this is Hereford's top tourist attraction. C of C Manager Mike Carr estimates the season will generate more than $100,000 in purchases from motels, restaurants, service stations and other stores.

Some farmers, too, have just begun to realize what a good "cash crop" the season offers. On opening weekend alone, it is estimated that more than $500,000 will be spent on hunting lease fees alone.

Incidentally, any farmers who want to lease some land to hunters can contact the chamber office for help on arrangements. The C of C office has a list of hunters who are looking for a place to hunt, and the chamber offers a free service on getting the parties together.

Stocking fund starts up

The Christmas Stocking Fund, a local non-profit organization, will again brighten the lives of needy persons in Hereford at Christmastime, thanks to a group of Christian men and the generosity of city and county residents.

The opportunity to share with less fortunate neighbors through the Christmas Stocking Fund begins Monday and continues through the holiday season.

This will mark the fifth year that the CSF program has benefitted local families. It is a labor of love for the anonymous men in the organization, which has again named Ben Childers as the treasurer.

The Hereford Brand will again act

Less fortunate to receive gifts as the fund-raising arm of the project. Monetary donations only are requested. Checks should be made payable to The Christmas Stocking Fund and sent to The Hereford Brand, Box 673, Hereford, Tx. 79045, or checks and cash will be accepted at the newspaper office, 313 N. Lee.

The newspaper will publish a list of contributors on a regular basis and report the total contributions to the fund. Persons who contribute and wish to remain anonymous should so indicate when they donate.

Last year the program raised about $7,634. It was used to help some 120 families, or about 500 persons. A CSF spokesman said food and clothing went to about 30 percent of the people on the list.

Applications for the CSF fund should be submitted to the Social Services Office, located near the west entry of the courthouse. Persons who need help, or persons knowing of needy families may submit applications.

A CSF official said strict guidelines will be followed by the committee "in order to assure that we are using the contributions for those who really need help the most." A screening committee will review the applications and determine the merits of each case.

The program started in 1980 with approximately $4,800 being raised for the Christmas cheer of the needy. The amount rose to $7,480 in 1981 and reached a peak of $8,400 in 1982.

Prison officers seek second gun

ROSHARON, Texas (AP) — The warden of a prison where officials found a .25-caliber pistol earlier this week says his officers are scouring the building for a second weapon they believe may exist.

Tim West said Friday's search began after some inmates gave differing descriptions of the weapons to be used in an escape plot foiled earlier this week.

Some inmates at the Darrington Unit said the weapon was a .25-caliber pistol, but others described it as a .38-caliber handgun, West said.

"We became concerned that they might be talking about different weapons," West said.

West said that when guns are smuggled into prisons, they are usually "extremely well hidden. It could be something as elaborate as breaking a hole in the wall and then plastering gun inside and painting over it."

For that reason, he said, guards are conducting an "inch-by-inch search."

American doctors heading south

HOUSTON (AP) — Half a dozen American doctors have gone to Mexico City in hopes of alleviating the suffering of 500 burn victims injured in natural gas explosions, but one says their help could be like "an Alka-Seltzer in the sea."

Dr. Hugo F. Carvajal heads the team that left Houston Friday. He said he and the other physicians would "assist as advisers" the Mexican doctors and nurses treating the injured.

But Carvajal said he hopes American doctors could continue to visit Mexico for the next three months.

"I certainly hope this (one-week trip) will not be the end of this," Carvajal said. "If so, it will be like my father said — 'an Alka-Seltzer in the middle of the sea.'"

The trip is being paid for by the government of Mexico and the University of Texas, Carvajal said.

"If you get 10 major burn victims, it would be a big thing," Carvajal told reporters at Houston Hobby Airport. "Mexico City is dealing with 500."

Shoppers make tracks to stores

Fager holiday-season shoppers, lured by retailers' extended hours and large markdowns, are grabbing up robotic toys for their kids, fluorescent socks for trendy teens and clothes for the working women in their lives.

"I couldn't sleep last night I was so excited about it. The day-after-Thanksgiving sales always start the Christmas season for me," said Susan Vanek of Dallas, Ga., who got up early Friday morning and drove 45 miles into downtown Atlanta so she could be there when the stores opened at 8 a.m.

"There's a lot of good sales," said Jan Paul, 40, who was shopping at a mall in the Lansing, Mich., suburb of Okemos.

The day after Thanksgiving — one of the industry's busiest days — retailers went beyond providing Santa Claus' laps to sit on and glittery decorations as they try in a slowing economy to surpass last year's strong performance.

"This year, the promotions seem to be even more intense," said Jeffrey Feiner, a retail analyst with the investment firm Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. in New York. "Retailers have priced very, very aggressively and we think consumers think they can get very good prices and they're willing to come in earlier."

Thousand evacuated from homes

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — High seas and strong winds battered Florida's Atlantic coast today after storms rivaling a 1979 hurricane forced nearly 1,000 people from homes, beached a freighter, smashed a pier and killed one man.

Gov. Bob Graham on Friday declared a state of emergency for Volusia and St. Johns counties in northeastern Florida and spokeswoman Jill Chamberlin said the emergency could be expanded to other areas.

The National Weather Service predicted a gradual lessening today of the destructive weather as a low-pressure system responsible for the storms drifted off to the northeast.

Nearly 1,000 residents of a 10-mile section of Hutchinson Island in Indian River County were ordered from their homes.

"We've got an awful lot of sea-wall damage and two establishments that have had part of their buildings washed into the ocean," said Steve Wells, the county's director of emergency management.

Arafat ousts parliament speaker

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Yasser Arafat, attempting to re-assert his control over the splintered Palestine Liberation Organization, ousted the pro-Syrian speaker of the PLO parliament and replaced him with an Arafat loyalist.

Speaker Khaled Fahoum, who joined Syrian-based anti-Arafat rebels in boycotting the Palestine National Council meeting, was voted out of office 207-7, with 47 abstentions on Friday.

Arafat loyalists said Fahoum was replaced because he failed to show up to preside over the meeting of the council, the Palestinian parliament.

At a news conference in the Syrian capital Damascus, Fahoum declared the meeting was illegal because a quorum was reached only after Arafat supporters appointed other Arafat backers to fill the seats left empty by the boycott.

Arafat convened the council meeting in the Jordanian capital Amman on Thursday despite the boycott, claiming 257 members of the 379-seat council were present.

Thousands march in rallies

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Tens of thousands of people attended raucous political rallies as Uruguay prepared to elect a civilian government to replace a military dictatorship in the first national elections in 13 years.

Polls open Sunday at 8 a.m. and Uruguayan law requires that all campaigning cease Friday, a full day before.

Uruguayans will choose a president, vice president, 30 senators, 99 deputies and hundreds of local officials, including chief executives for the country's 19 departments, or provinces.

Voting is mandatory, and a fine equivalent to $4 is imposed for not voting. About 2.2 million of the country's 2.8 million citizens are of voting age — 18 years or older — and a turnout of about 90 percent is expected.

Under an agreement between the armed forces and several political groups, the new government will assume power March 1 to end more than 11 years of military dictatorship. President Gen. Gregorio Alvarez and other military leaders have promised to return their troops to the barracks and support the new leadership.

Greek woman gives birth to quintuplets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 30-year-old Greek woman has given birth to what are believed to be the first quintuplets born at the Lackland Air Force Base hospital in 25 years.

Kyra Afentakis, the wife of a Greek air force officer, gave birth to two boys and three girls Friday at Wilford Hall U.S. Air Force Medical Center, an Air Force spokesman said.

Such an event is rare, occurring only once in about 85 million births.

The Afentakis quintuplets were born about 6 p.m. at the Wilford Hall U.S. Air Force Medical Center, Sgt. Karl Gruhkey said.

The quintuplets, 14 weeks premature, ranged in weight from 1 pound, 3 ounces to 1 pound, 10 ounces, Gruhkey said.

They were delivered by Caesarean section and were listed in critical but stable condition in the Wilford Hall neo-natal intensive care unit, he said.

Gruhkey said the mother, Kyra Afentakis, was resting comfortably. Her husband, Lt. Col. Dimitrios Afentakis of the Hellenic Air Force, is a flight instructor with the EURO-NATO flight training program at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls.

The spokesman said the woman had been a patient at the hospital for two weeks.

He said the family had requested to withhold interviews and photographs until Monday.

Mrs. Afentakis is from Volos, 200 miles north of Athens, while her husband is from Kalamata, 200 miles south of Athens, Gruhkey said.

The last quintuplets at Lackland were a set of girls born three months premature to the wife of an Air Force officer in 1959. All died within 18 hours, according to the San Antonio Light.

Quintuplets were born July 18, 1975 at Dallas' Parkland Hospital to Jerry and Debbie Davis. The four girls and one boy now live with their parents in the Dallas suburb of Lewisville.

The first quintuplets known to have survived more than a few hours were the Dionnes, near Callander, Ontario, Canada, in 1934.

The four girls and a boy born to Andrew J. and Mary Ann Fischer on Sept. 14, 1963 in Aberdeen, S.D., were the first set of quintuplets to survive early infancy in the United States.

Secretary Shultz to confer with Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz will confer with President Reagan and other National Security Council members in the next six weeks to discuss the U.S. posture in upcoming arms control talks, a White House spokesman says.

Bob Sims, the spokesman, said Friday he did not know when Reagan and Shultz will hold their first discussions.

Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko are meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 7-8 to talk about ways to reopen stalled arms control talks between the two superpowers.

The president is winding up a vacation at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

"My expectation is that the president would be meeting with Shultz to talk about the upcoming meeting that the secretary will have with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko and that certainly between now and the time the meeting takes place the secretary would be discussing our posture for that meeting with the principals of the National Security Council," Sims said.

Meanwhile, the Washington Post reported in today's editions that Paul H. Nitze appears to be the leading candidate to become a special envoy in follow-up talks after the Shultz-Gromyko parlay.

Nitze, according to unnamed administration sources quoted by the Post, seems to be the favorite of many officials, particularly moderates. Nitze was chief U.S. negotiator in the intermediate-range missile talks that were broken off by the Soviets a year ago.

A possible hitch in Nitze's selection, said the Post, could be that choosing him would be seen by conservatives as an attempt to circumvent hard-liners within the administration, such as Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and his arms control deputy, Richard N. Perle.

Sims and State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman had no comment Friday night on the Post report.

Asked about a CBS News report Thursday night that the United States might offer as a concession to the Soviets a three-year moratorium on testing of space weapons, Sims reiterated the administration's position, saying:

"We have said that we are testing (an anti-satellite system) because we have no operational system and the Soviets have an operational anti-satellite system and that in the context of negotiations, we're willing to talk about mutual restraints."

CBS also said that another concession the United States possibly could make would be a temporary suspension of deployment of additional cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe. Asked about that possibility, Sims said:

"We have said all along as far as missiles deploying in Europe that the deployment was continuing on schedule. We've also said we're willing to halt or reverse those deployments in the context of an agreement with the Soviet Union."

where Justice specialized in high-rise fire fighting. His training in rappelling included learning to slide down the sides of tall buildings and swing from one skyscraper to the next.

Still in high school, Justice moved south again to Paducah, Ky., where he worked for an ambulance service and continued training with a county fire and rescue crew.

In Paducah, Justice specialized in water rescue. He twice earned a Red Cross Merit award for pulling people from the turbulent Ohio River.

With all those experiences already behind him, Justice graduated from high school and moved to Hobbs, N.M., where he was hired as a firefighter and EMT. He stayed with that job three years, then moved to Lubbock where he continued to study and work for Lubbock General Hospital.

Before leaving Hobbs, Justice began paying his dues for all that explorer post training by helping organize a similar post there. He served as an advisor until the move to Lubbock.

Justice focused on rescues while in Hobbs, mostly automobile accidents and water rescues. Now that he's in the Panhandle he intends to better familiarize himself with farm accident rescue techniques.

What makes a person devote his life to firefighting and emergency medical care?

"Some people do it just for the excitement: the lights and sirens," Justice claimed. "Some do it because they truly enjoy helping others. And for some it is an interesting way to earn a living, beats sitting behind a desk."

Justice said that as a child, he was attracted by the lights and sirens. "I've long since outgrown that. Now I do it for the other two reasons."

Married and the father of two, Justice looks forward to being joined at DSGH by his wife Patricia. A registered nurse, she will be working in intensive care and with the ambulance service.

Sharing her husband's belief in continuing education, Patricia is a certified EMT special skilled and will soon finish paramedic training. "We'll probably never quit going to school. There's so much to learn," Justice predicted.

Ambulance services have changed a lot since the days when they were maintained by funeral homes, Justice claimed.

"The crew we have at DSGH is trained well enough to stabilize the patient. Sometimes we're still at the scene of the accident as much as 40 minutes after it happened. People stand around and say 'Why don't they just get them to the hospital?'"

What we need for people to understand is that we are the hospital."

Negative reaction

When a baby was kept alive by the transplant of a baboon's heart, some negative reaction was on grounds of cruelty to the animal involved.

Yet, you hear little or no objections to the slaughterhouse slaughter of animals for food.

Partly, this could reflect a rubber ruler for measuring such considerations based on the vainglorious presumption that "the more it looks like me, the more it suffers."

No evidence supports that. Some defend baby seals on the grounds that "they're cute."

Yet almost nobody objects to mousetraps which torture.

You are hearing objections to an airstrip in the Antarctic because defenders of wildlife protest that it might displace a colony of penguins there.

Yet, these same concerned citizens have voiced no objection to the wholesale animal suffering in Japanese laboratories where an absurd law requires unreasonably drastic tests. Japan's Health Ministry, for example, demands to know before approving any pill "what would happen if a human took a 100-pill overdose every day for six months."

The unnecessary agony imposed on their lab animals is unconscionable.

Yet none can deny that responsible animal experimentation is necessary, is productive, may prevent suffering.

That to me is the issue worthy of a concerted crusade: "suffering."

Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, has demonstrated that it is possible to conduct research "humanely."

While 71 million animals a year are dying — many of them after days or weeks or hideous suffering — Dr. David Milechik is using in his experiments animal "cells" rather than live animals.

And he has discovered his experiments are more reliably and far less costly.

Dr. Milechik is able to study the heartbeat of a baby rat by watching cells, magnified 40 times, on a television screen. The cells beat in unison, like miniature hearts. A drug or a chemical is applied and the researcher can watch what happens to the cell beat.

In a live animal, results will vary depending on the animal's condition, age, species, blood pressure and heart rate.

Cell research eliminates these variables.

The John Hopkins Center for Alternatives to Animal Testing is coordinating 22 separate projects with that objective.

Those devoted to resisting man's inhumanity should focus their attention on the single objective of eliminating suffering — wherever — to whoever or whatever.

Not to wage a phony-balance war on people who swat flies, but on those who torture ANYTHING, anywhere — for any reason.

Contracts negotiated to help reduce costs

Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) has negotiated contracts that will significantly reduce costs customers eventually pay for hauling coal by rail from Wyoming mines for use at SPS power plants, company officials announced today.

New contracts with the Burlington Northern Railroad and the Santa Fe Railway will lower costs of delivering coal to the power plants by about $27 million in 1984, said Bert Ballengee, SPS president and chief operating officer.

"The new contracts will save our customers an estimated $790 million through the year 2002," Ballengee said.

Ballengee cautioned, "These contracts provide an excellent overall savings for customers. We're lowering fuel costs by some five to six percent. But, of course, purchasing fuel on the open market — as we must do — remains expensive for us, as it is for everyone."

The new contracts will hold down the average SPS residential customer's electricity bill by about $1.07 per month, Ballengee said. The reduction could begin as early as January 1985.

The average SPS residential customer uses 635 kilowatt-hours of electricity monthly. The average monthly bill for a residential customer in Texas is $49.51, plus sales tax. An average New Mexico customer pays $46.94, plus tax. The average customer in Oklahoma pays $49.27 per month plus tax. In Kansas, the price of 635 kwh is $51.33, plus sales tax.

Southwestern's last general rate change, an increase, was in mid-1982.

The importance of the new contracts will become more apparent in the future, Ballengee said, when SPS generates significantly greater proportions of its electricity at coal-fueled plants. The company will bring a new coal-fueled power plant unit into service in August 1985, and plans still another for service in the early 1990s.

Presently, coal fuels the boilers at two SPS power plants, near Amarillo and near Muleshoe, Texas, generating about 56 percent of the company's electricity. Natural gas fuels the boilers at the company's other power plants.

The coal-fueled plants generate significantly less expensive electricity than do the natural gas-fueled plants, Ballengee said. "Our fuel costs at the coal-fueled plants are less than one-half of the fuel costs at the natural gas-fueled plants. Our coal-fueled plants are playing a major role in keeping electricity affordable."

He said the newly renegotiated contracts with the Burlington Northern and the Santa Fe railroads, signed last week, are particularly important because in recent years the cost of transporting coal by rail from Wyoming to the Texas power plants had grown higher than the costs of the coal itself. "For our customers' sakes, we had to reverse that trend," Ballengee said.

Southwestern Public Service Company primarily provides electric service to a population of about one million in a 52,000-square-mile area in the Panhandle and south plains of Texas, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Panhandle of Oklahoma, and southwestern Kansas.

Anniversary Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson of 105 Ave. E celebrated their 63rd anniversary Wednesday. The couple has nine children.

Alcohol was involved in an estimated 25,600 automobile-related deaths in 1982, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. It says this means about 70 people were killed each day owing to drinking. In addition, some 670,000 people were injured as a result of alcohol-related crashes.

One of the most destructive things to do to an auto's finish is to polish off a pint before driving.

Judicial Decisions

There's an old saying about cockroaches that easily applies to federal judges—it's not what they eat and carry off, it's what they fall into and mess up.

We've got a federal judge in Amarillo who seems to uphold anything that Texas Rural Legal Aid claims is discrimination and violation of civil rights. It may be the law of the land, but many Deaf Smith County taxpayers cannot understand what is happening to them.

Their tax money is being used to fund the TRLA, an agency that files suits against local governmental agencies and, with the approval of a federal judge, not only collects for claimants but also collect legal fees. Our tax money is being used to pay the TRLA attorneys and then we give them more tax money as a bonus for suing us.

Probably the only reason that taxpayers are not being hit with the same kind of suits in Littlefield, Dumas and Dalhart is that there is no TRLA office there.

Our laws should protect people from racial discrimination, no doubt about it. But a person without medical training should not be awarded damages because he couldn't get a job as a brain surgeon. Or, a person shouldn't win a job discrimination suit because he went to apply for a job and the personnel manager was out for coffee. Some of the suits seem almost that ridiculous!

We've got another federal judge in Tyler that's got the prison system so fouled up that currently we have more crimes behind the bars than outside.

Another example is the federal district judge in Dallas who ruled that city, already faced with paying $1.5 million for costs left over from the Republican National Convention, must pay $32,902 for lawyers who represented protest groups in two suits filed against the city before the convention.

A federal judge also ruled that the NCAA could not bind its university members to television contracts, and left the door open for all schools to hustle their own deal. The result is that viewing audiences are way down, revenue from commercials has dropped, and networks are complaining the audience has been saturated with games.

And, down in Austin, lawyers and judges have got the Class 4A football playoffs in such a mess that teams in one district will have to play twice in a week in order to have the schedules completed before Christmas. Although the UIL rules were violated, a player sought a court injunction from enforcing the rule and allowing him to play. One judge wasn't even going to rule on the matter until January, but they found a judge who knew something about football and came up with a plan to at least finish the season!

We think a lot of bad decisions are being handed out by federal judges who have gone overboard on civil rights.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

William A. Rusher

Election lessons

By William A. Rusher

NEW YORK (NEA) — There are fairly few mistakes left for the liberals to make, but if they want to try to run up their score I have a suggestion: Let them conclude that Ronald Reagan's huge re-election victory was attributable solely to his attractive personality and not at all to his conservative principles.

The effort of American liberals to deny the popular appeal of conservatism is one of the epic stories of our time. It began more than 20 years ago, when Attorney General Stanley Mosk of California dismissed the growing conservative movement in his state as "a bunch of little old ladies in tennis shoes." Ten years later, when every public opinion poll showed that those who called themselves "conservative" outnumbered the self-described "liberals," Arthur Schlesinger Jr. dashed forward with a soothing distinction: Americans might be "nationally conservative," but they were and would remain "operationally liberal" — which was to say, they might be against Big Government in principle, but they would always vote for it because some of its "benefits" trickled down to them personally. Gerald Ford believed this so firmly that he was still arguing, as the 1970s drew to a close, that "Reagan can't win."

Then came 1980, and Mr. Reagan trounced Jimmy Carter convincingly. Never mind, argued the liberals: The voters weren't really pro-Reagan; they were just anti-Carter. Now Carter has long since returned to Georgia, and the voters have had four years of Mr. Reagan. What's more, Mr. Reagan has been more faithful to his principles, and has delivered on more of his promises, than any president in modern times. And, lo and behold, the voters have just sent him back to the White House for another four years, by one of the largest margins in American political history. As Santayana said, those who do not learn from their mistakes are doomed to repeat them.

Ah, you say, but what about the Republican Party's disappointing showing in the battle for the House of Representatives?

There is indeed a lesson here, but it must be understood correctly. Many of the Democratic congressmen who will be returning to Washington virtually repudiated liberalism and the Democratic national ticket in the course of their own campaigns. That won't prevent them from reinstalling

Tip O'Neill as speaker and participating warily in his efforts to thwart the Reagan programs, but it does suggest what must be done.

First and foremost, Mr. Reagan should propose a domestic budget so lean that its backbone is clearly visible beneath its abdomen. O'Neill should then be invited to crank up his compassion to its advertised dimensions and reject that budget. Mr. Reagan should thereupon veto the one O'Neill sends him instead, and let Congress pass it over his veto if necessary. Then (as he threatened in his first post-election press conference) he should "take his case to the people," wrapping the deficit around O'Neill's neck and asking the voters in 1986 to send him a Congress he can work with.

Simultaneously, quite independently of the Republican Party (which has neither the belly nor, in many cases, the good repute locally to win these battles), an independent conservative should be nominated to oppose the incumbent Democratic congressman in every one of the approximately 105 congressional districts that the GOP doesn't seriously contest. A major educational effort must be made to convince voters in such districts, who are often strongly conservative, that the Democratic good ol' boy who has been representing them in Washington for years is in fact a hidden pillar of O'Neill's ultra-liberal House machine, and that only by retiring him can O'Neill be dragged, kicking and screaming, from the speaker's rostrum.

Then, perhaps, the liberals will stop deluding themselves and realize that they have in fact been a minority in the United States for nearly 20 years.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm examines the word out of Washington on taxes.

Dear editor:

At a high school football game, never criticize the quarterback in front of his parents. In a national election, never mention raising taxes in front of the voters.

Now that the election is over, I understand the word in Washington is that taxes won't be raised. Instead, the tax structure will be simplified.

To Congress, simplifying something means obscuring it. Never use one word when you've got a dozen or so lying around to cloud the issue with. The shortest path between two points is four or five paragraphs.

I have thought long and hard on how Congress will go about simplifying the tax structure. I believe I have it figured out.

To simplify a tax structure all you do is make it simpler to figure out you owe more than you thought you did. Why make a person wrack his brain going through a long, headachy tax form when a simple one will bring in just as much revenue and maybe more?

What will constitute a simple tax structure? I figure it'll be one that an average Congressman can figure out all by himself. It may be years in coming.

Speaking of words politicians use, one of the handiest they've ever gotten hold of is "mis-spoke." Let them say something ridiculous or make a promise they can't possibly keep and, when confronted with it, they say they mis-spoke.

This seems to work satisfactorily in the political arena, but it's a shame it won't work in other areas. I won't attempt to report what the reaction would be if, when a note at the bank came due, you called up the banker and told him you mis-spoke when you promised to pay him back. I won't say what would break loose but it wouldn't be all heaven.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

The Penultimate Word

THANKSGIVING

I knew it had to have happened, but now there it is in black and white. The World Book reports that the annual Thanksgiving Day was moved one week earlier in 1939. The move was made to make the shopping period between Thanksgiving and Christmas longer.

This happened in 1939. I thought commercialization of everything and everybody came much later. I wonder if commercialism existed in 1621 when Governor Bradford decreed December 13 as the day of feasting and prayer? If so, it probably went like this:

At last there had been a harvest. The Indians had shown the pilgrims how to grow corn. The corn was in the hopper and now it was up to the marketing boys to sell the stuff. Unfortunately, there was no one to buy the corn. There were some guys living on a little island called New York. They had a street marked off called Madison Avenue. The pilgrims sent for these guys to help.

The Madison Avenue boys immediately hit on the idea of a big celebration. From a marketing standpoint, the idea was one that could not miss. The object was to sell corn. What could do that better than a big feast featuring cornbread and corn fritters. The day would have been called National Corn

Day if the unions had stayed out of the deal. Unions somehow don't stay out of deals.

The Turkey Pluckers Union sold the group on serving turkey. They clinched the deal by pointing out that the turkeys were corn fed. If turkeys caught on, then feeding corn to the critters would create a new market for corn.

The Travel Agents Association sold them on the idea of bringing in the Indians. This started the tradition of travel and car wrecks.

The Ministerial Association got in the act and forced the name change from Corn Day to Thanksgiving.

The newspapers loved the idea. They always need something to have a sale after—after Christmas, after Ground Hog Day, etc.

Enough fantasy. Thank goodness it did not happen that way. Madison Avenue has given us National Secretaries Day, Mother's Day, Mother-in-Law Day, Hug Your Gerbil Day and hundreds of other silly reasons to buy something.

Easter - Thanksgiving - Christmas, these three come from something great. No one can ruin these. Not even the efforts to make them sell corn.

Choice was clear in election

By RICHARD L. LESHNER, President

WASHINGTON — The choice was clear. Walter Mondale promised to raise our taxes. Ronald Reagan promised he would not.

On Nov. 6, the American people went to the polls in record numbers and made their decision. The message was loud and clear. It was unmistakable. The people turned down Mr. Mondale's offer to raise their taxes and chose another four years of President Reagan's low-tax, low-inflation policies.

This had been predicted. The pollsters told us ahead of time that it would be a landslide of historic proportions.

But on Nov. 7, something happened that the professional politicians and the pundits did not expect. Ronald Reagan, safely re-elected to a second term, stood before a press conference and repeated his pledge not to raise taxes. He went further and promised that he would not allow tax simplification to "result in any individual having his taxes raised by way of a tax reform."

Hmmm. The man intends to keep his promise of no new tax increases. No wonder the District of Columbia didn't vote for him.

No American presidential election has focused so completely on an issue as the 1984 election centered around taxes. And no one has ever received as many electoral votes as Reagan did in Tuesday's landslide.

Ronald Reagan's low-tax policies brought us millions of new jobs and real economic growth. It brought him a tremendous re-election victory. Isn't it reassuring to see that good policy is also good politics?

Now, our good friends the liberal politicians took a real shellacking on election day. They know that. They can count. Yet they remain committed to raising taxes to pay for their favorite spending programs.

Their challenge is to interpret the clearest anti-tax mandate since Yorktown as something other than what it was. They have begun in earnest by explaining that it was only an endorsement of Reagan, the man...that Reagan was popular, well-spoken and good looking. Walter Mondale, their candidate, they tell us, whined, looked funny and was disliked by the American people. It won't wash.

Walter Mondale is a better man than his former friends let on. He made his case well. He is not ugly. He is not unlikable. His running mate joined him in clearly stating his case for higher taxes. The American people rejected higher taxes, not Walter Mondale's personality.

It is more than a little unseemly of Mr. Mondale's former friends to turn on him so soon. The men and women who began savaging Mr. Mondale so soon as the polls closed are the same men and women who chose him as their candidate. And the vice presidential candidate Ms. Ferraro, once hailed as a bright star, is now denounced.

How would you or I feel if our friends walked away from us and belittled us just because we lost an argument?

President Reagan acted wisely when he cut taxes in 1981. He chose wisely when he promised to keep taxes low.

For their purposes, the liberals chose well when they selected Mr. Mondale as an articulate spokesman for more spending and higher taxes. The American people then chose wisely in electing Mr. Reagan.

In Wales it was thought that rubbing your palm with an oak leaf would keep you healthy for a year.

NFL preview

NFC East important

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

The Dallas Cowboys did their part. Now it's up to the New York Giants and Washington Redskins to keep pace.

The Cowboys marched 55 yards in 10 plays to a 23-yard field goal by Rafael Septien with four seconds left to edge New England 20-17 Thanksgiving Day. They also registered 10 sacks against Patriots quarterback Tony Eason to improve their National Football League record to 8-5. Dallas leads the NFC East by a half-game over the Giants and Redskins.

To recapture a portion of the division lead, the Redskins must win at home Sunday against Buffalo and the Giants have to beat visiting Kansas City.

Buffalo won its first game of the season last week by upsetting Dallas. "Anytime somebody in the division loses it helps us. And I was glad to see Buffalo win one before we played them," said Washington Coach Joe Gibbs. "When a team is hungry for its first win they will fight to the very end to get a victory. Now maybe some of that hunger has been satisfied."

Kansas City also has been struggling and is mired in the AFC West basement at 5-7. But the Chiefs can be explosive and they beat New York last season.

"I'm just worried about Kansas City, not anything else," said Giants Coach Bill Parcells. "They have guys who can hurt you. Carlos Carson, Henry Marshall and J.T. Smith all are capable of making the long play."

Chiefs safety Deron Cherry said he is anxious to take on the Giants.

"The Giants are leading their division and heading toward the playoffs," said Cherry. "I think they will take it seriously. I know we will. I know we played them last year and beat them, so that's still got to be fresh in their minds."

Just behind the top three in the NFC East are the 6-6 St. Louis Cardinals, who will host Philadelphia.

In a battle for the AFC West lead, 10-1 Denver hosts 9-2 Seattle. The teams also close out the season against each other. Denver's defense has scored seven touchdowns and leads the NFL with a plus-28 turnover ratio. Seattle is plus-27 and has a league-leading eight defensive touchdowns.

"I'm not surprised at what Denver's done and they're not lucky either," said Seattle Coach Chuck Knox. "When you win 11 games I don't think you're lucky. Denver has earned its wins by playing good, tough, aggressive football."

Elsewhere Sunday, it's Atlanta at Cincinnati; Houston at Cleveland; the Los Angeles Rams at Tampa Bay; San Diego at Pittsburgh; Chicago at Minnesota; Indianapolis at the Los Angeles Raiders, and San Francisco at New Orleans.

Monday night, the New York Jets play at Miami.

At Irving, Texas, the Patriots rallied to tie the Cowboys 17-17 with a 65-yard drive sparked by Craig James' 43-yard run. Eason made it in from the 1 with 1:58 to go, then Dallas marched to the decisive field goal.

At Pontiac, Mich., the Detroit Lions rallied for a 31-28 triumph over Green Bay, snapping the Packers' four-game winning streak. Gary Danielson hit on 24 of 33 passes for 305 yards and three TDs for the Lions.

Hereford girls beat Dimmitt

Whitefaces lead early, hang on

By DENNIS BALL Sports Editor

Relying on a strong defense that created turnovers and turned them into baskets, the Hereford Whitefaces downed the Dimmitt Bobbies Friday night in the HHS gym by the count of 58-53.

Making use of a half-court trap press, the Whitefaces jumped to a 10-2 lead at the 5:24 mark of the first quarter and had an 18-7 advantage at the end of the first quarter. From the opening bucket, the Whitefaces never trailed.

Hereford coach Larry Sowers said he felt good about his team's performance, much better than he did following Tuesday's 45-25 loss to Levelland.

"We were fortunate to hang on there at the end," he said. "Now, we're a lot more ready for district to start than we were last Tuesday. Offensively, our confidence should be better."

The Whitefaces travel to Tascosa Tuesday for an opening District 3-5A game. The offensive confidence they take with them is due to an improved field-goal shooting night. The Whitefaces made good on 45.5 percent of their tries.

The bulk of Hereford's buckets in the early going came off of a zone press by Dimmitt. In the first half, Natalie Sims scored 8 of her game-high 15 points as a result of outlet passes against the press. Dimmitt coach Doug Porter said he realized too late the harm the zone was causing his Bobbies.

"We started getting back into the game when we went to a man-to-man defense instead of a zone," he said. "But when we were playing a zone, Hereford's outside shooters started hitting just about everything."

Hereford's Shelly Edwards did hit everything the first 15 or so minutes of play. The 5-11 junior was three of four field goals the first half in staking the Whitefaces to a 32-17 lead at intermission. Edwards finished the night with 14 points.

"Shelly played a lot better than she did the other night," Sowers said. "We had 42 rebounds, and Shelly had 11 of those, I think. She shot well from the outside, too."

Sowers said all his players performed well, but that players getting into foul trouble slowed their output some. Also, an injury to to Darla

Alford pulled another starter from Sowers' lineup.

"We got some people into foul trouble, and they started getting some momentum late in the ball game," Sowers said. "Stacy (High) fouled out and Darla got a bruised arm and a floor burn from the fall she took. At least we were able to hang on."

The Bobbies started getting the momentum about which Sowers was

Check Safety To Make The Holidays Bright

- Before hanging strings of lights, spread them on the floor and check for frayed or bare wires, cracked insulation, loose connections, and damaged plugs or light sockets.
- Check extension cords for wear or damage and don't run them across walking areas.
- Test lights before putting them on the tree. Unplug them before making repairs or replacing bulbs.
- Overloading circuits with too many lights can cause fire. Follow manufacturer's instructions about the number of lights allowed on one circuit.
- Choose a fresh, green tree, trim its base and keep it in plenty of water. If the needles are brown and break off easily, it could be a fire risk.
- If you buy an artificial tree, make sure it has been tested for flammability by Underwriters Laboratories (UL).
- Place your tree away from the fireplace or other heat sources and out of the traffic pattern.
- Never string lights on a metallic tree. Light strings with damaged insulation can electrically charge a metallic tree. Instead, shine unattached colored floodlights or spotlights on the tree.
- Always turn off lights before leaving home or going to bed. You'll save money and be safer, too.
- Never use lighted candles on a tree or near evergreens. And don't burn evergreens in the fireplace.
- Do not use inside lights on the outside. All outside lighting equipment, including lights, cords and plugs, should be waterproof and made for outdoor use. Also, hang sockets downward and don't leave a socket empty.
- When hanging lights on the rooftop or in tall trees outdoors, stay clear of electrical lines. Make sure you or your decorations don't come in contact with them.
- Should you receive a CB radio or television this Christmas, let a qualified serviceman install the CB base unit or television antenna for you. This delicate job is best left to the professionals.
- Be sure electrical toys are tested for safety. Look for the UL mark.

Second quarter vital to Herd win

Whitefaces move to 2-0

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Dimmitt High School boys basketball coach Ken Cleveland said a 13-point half wouldn't be good enough to beat most teams.

And it wasn't. The Bobcats scored only six buckets the second period — all of them free throws — to go along with seven first-quarter points, and eventually fell to the Hereford Whitefaces 66-53 in the HHS gym Friday night.

"Anytime you score 13 points in a half of basketball, you're not playing very well," Cleveland said. "That's pretty fatal. But I don't want to take anything away from Hereford — they played well."

The Whitefaces indeed played well the first half, Hereford coach Mike Fields said. Hereford jumped to a 9-0 lead behind some good outside shooting and strong rebounding. Mike Scott opened things up for the Herd with a 20-foot jumper that touched nothing but net. Scott was fouled on the play and added his free throw.

Rodney Torres also had an opportunity at a three-point play a few minutes later when he went back up for 2 after grabbing a rebound. Torres missed the free toss, however. Scott then hit another jumper from about 12 feet, and that was followed by a Sammy Suarez layup.

"We played pretty well the whole first half," Fields said. "We played like we did against Levelland (Tuesday in a 77-61 Hereford victory). Our press didn't work as well, but that's because Dimmitt is a much better ball-handling team."

The victory gives the Herd a spotless 2-0 mark heading into Tuesday's game with Pampa at the HHS gym.

After jumping out to the 9-point lead, Hereford scored 12 more points in the initial period, primarily on close shots. Doug Watts got 2 from inside the lane, Kevin Redus, Bobby Baker and Blair Rogers each scoring two on layups. Another 2 was copped by Daniel King off a rebound, and Redus scored on a free throw.

Hereford led at the end of the first quarter 21-7. Then the Bobcats suffered a disaster.

Hereford grabbed a 32-13 lead at intermission. Dimmitt did not make good on a single field goal the second quarter, finishing the night with a 29.6-percent field goal mark.

Pat McDonald led Dimmitt scorers with 12 points. His counterpart for Hereford was Suarez, who finished the night with 14 points. Hereford shot 36.2 percent from the field.

The Whitefaces built their lead to 21 points immediately after intermission, but saw Dimmitt creep back to within 7 several times the last half. That caused concern for Fields.

"We've got to learn how to play with a lead," he said. "We kept putting them on the free-throw line when we were ahead, and it's too easy that way (for the opponent to get back into the ball game)."

"But it is nice that you can do all those things wrong and still win, especially against Dimmitt. Not many teams do."

Other than Suarez, Hereford players and their scoring were:

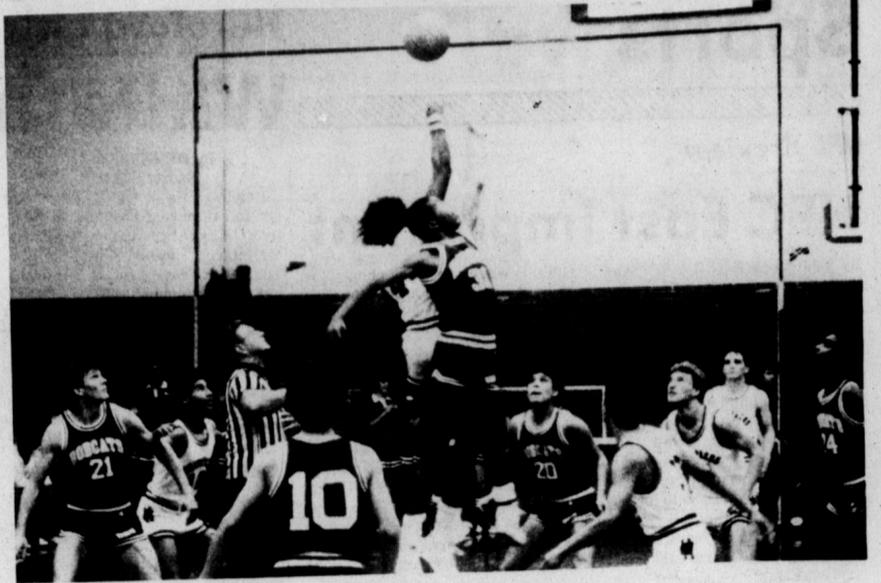

Scott, 12; Rogers, 9; Redus, 9; Torres, 8; Baker, 8; Daniel King 4; and Doug Watts, 2.

"Kevin (Redus) took the ball to the hoop much better tonight than he did against Levelland," Fields said. "And Mike (Scott) hit some clutch free throws there at the end. But we're going to have to raise our level of play to beat Pampa on Tuesday. Up until now, we've been playing teams who are about our height, but we're going to get into some games where we'll be a lot smaller."

Three Dimmitt players fouled out of the game. James Alexander exited in the third quarter, Woody Glass and Nathan Nelson in the fourth. Daniel King for Hereford fouled out in the final period as well.

The Whitefaces went to the line 29 times, shooting 43 free-throw shots. Team members made good on 55.8 percent of their tries.

Tuesday's game begins at approximately 7:45 p.m. following a junior-varsity game. The Hereford J.V. boys beat Dimmitt Tuesday 43-35 behind Kevin Strew's 13 points.

Elite foursome teed off Saturday

Palmer may play in last Skins Game in '84

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer
SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Arnold Palmer approached the waiting, massed ranks of reporters, grinned broadly and offered the observation:

"You better ask me everything you want; it looks like the last chance you get."

Palmer, 55, perhaps the most popular player golf has ever produced, was referring to a change in the format for the Skins Game which will take place next year.

Palmer was to join Jack Nicklaus, 44, Gary Player, 48, and 1984 PGA Player of the Year Tom Watson, 35, in the two-day chase for $360,000 in the second edition of the Skins Game that began Saturday on the Nicklaus-designed Desert Highlands course.

That's the same foursome — four of the greatest players the game has known — which inaugurated the unique and highly-successful Skins Game last year.

And it's likely to be the last time those four get together in this event.

The PGA Tour takes control of this made-for-television event next year and will change the invitational-only format. The four spots in next year's Skins Game will go to the defending champion (the winner of the most money in this year's event), the tour's 1985 leading money-winner, the leading money-winner from a series of Skins Games that will be played in connection with weekly

DEDUCTING CLOSING COSTS

Some, but not all, of the closing costs paid when buying a house can be deductible items for income tax purposes. Loan origination fees, or "points", that are paid "solely to obtain the use of money", with the loan secured by your personal residence, are treated, for tax purposes, as interest. As such, they are fully deductible in the year of payment. Neither title-related expenses nor attorney fees can be claimed as itemized deductions, but they may be added to your home's basic cost to reduce the net taxable profit when the house is sold. This would apply as well to recording fees and transfer taxes.

When figuring deductions you want to do business with accountants that are going to give you full information and up-to-date. RICK ROBERTS, CPA is just the firm you are looking for. We know that there's no such thing as a small tax payer so you will get the same personal attention that a large company would receive. For all your financial needs we are conveniently located at 138 Third, Suite A, Monday thru Friday 8:30-12 and 1-5 (364-7525). Stop by and we can discuss your needs.

Deductions may be taken for mortgage prepayment penalties.

Citizens take several steps

Directors elected at bowling meeting

At a special meeting Tuesday night, citizens concerned about the closing of Bowlings Bowl in Hereford took several progressive steps toward opening a new alley, according to Kenneth Cook of the Hereford Men's Bowling Association.

Among business discussed at the meeting was the election of board of directors, financial matters and outside investors becoming a part of the alley.

Avis Blakey, Brenda Elliott, Carl Kleuskens, Ken Walsler and L.V. Watts were elected board members.

Joyce Walker, secretary-treasurer, reported that an account had been opened at Hereford State Bank where any investments could be made or monies kept which were earned toward the construction of a new bowling center.

A report from AMF Bowling indicated the firm was interested in providing a lease program for the new alley. Earlier, AMF and Brunswick had been disinterested in a lease program because the new facility is to be 12 lanes only.

"It was good news that they (AMF) are willing to work with us on this project," said Kenneth Cook of the Hereford Men's Bowling Association. "They even sent us a set of plans for a 12-lane bowling center with AMF interior and machinery."

Eighty-six people were in attendance of the Tuesday meeting. According to Board member Watts, those 86 have been delegated authority to visit with businesses and civic clubs about plans for the new alley.

Cook added that interested investors should contact Walker or the Board of Directors.

The Board currently is studying investments and fund-raising plans, he said. Findings of the Board will be talking in the fourth period. Hereford built a lead of as many as 17 points in the third quarter and led by 13 to start the final 8:00.

Taking a 51-34 advantage on Tonya Redwine's layup well into the fourth quarter, Hereford began to let Dimmitt slip back into the ball game. With 3:54 remaining, Dimmitt's Kim Howell sank two free shots to narrow the gap to 53-47. After trading missed field goals, Edwards stepped up to the free-throw line and sank two shots.

Dimmitt could have cut the Whiteface lead to four points at 55-51 with under 2:00 left, but Adelia Rodriguez came up with several big plays to shut down the threats.

First, Rodriguez knocked the ball away from a Dimmitt player on a break of sorts then forced a jump ball at the 1:22 mark. She also tipped the ball away from the basket on an inside Dimmitt pass.

"It got close in a hurry," Porter said, "but I'm sorry we came out on the short end of the score. Maybe next time."

In Tuesday's game with Tascosa, the Whitefaces must face last year's District 3-5A Most Valuable Player in Marcie Mitchell. Will Hereford be ready?

Like Sowers said, he feels a lot better about his team with a win under its belt at 1-1.

tour events, and one invitational choice.

Palmer, winner of three Senior Tour events this year, is less than enthusiastic about the change.

"I think the tour is taking over too much, too many tournaments. I feel there's a need for more independent tournaments, particularly at the end of the year," he said.

Palmer, Player, Nicklaus and Watson — who have a combined total of 41 major professional victories and more than 300 world-wide — are scheduled to play nine holes today and another nine Sunday in the game that is, in effect, a mini-tournament on each hole.

The first six holes are worth $10,000 each. The next six carry a value of $20,000 each and the last six are worth $30,000 apiece. If none of the four win a hole outright, the purse is carried over to the next hole.

Last year the carry-over aspects produced situations in which Player won $150,000 on one hole and Palmer won $100,000 on another. In all, Player won $170,000 last year, Palmer $140,000, Nicklaus $40,000 and Watson $10,000.

Boston College pass downs Miami

By FRED GOODALL, AP Sports Writer
 MIAMI (AP) — With 28 seconds remaining and 10th-ranked Boston College trailing Miami by four points, Eagles Coach Jack Bicknell prepared himself for what he felt was the inevitable — defeat.
 "My kids had given so much and had still come up a little short," he began. "I was already thinking about what I could tell them to get them prepared to play again next week." Bicknell should have known better. When you've got Doug Flutie on the field, you don't concede until time has expired.

 "He's a winner, what more can I say," Bicknell said after the diminutive quarterback heaved a 48-yard "Hail Mary" touchdown pass to Gerard Phelan on the game's last play to give Boston College a 47-45 victory over the 12th-ranked Hurricanes Friday.

 "I didn't believe it until I saw the kids going nuts," he added. "It was a miracle. I know it was, but we deserved it because we had played well enough to be in a position to do it."

"Akeem and Ralph had as many easy shots as they've had this year," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said, but the 7-foot-4 Sampson and 7-foot-Olajuwon made only 13 of 35 field goal attempts and had six of them blocked by the 7-4 Eaton and four more blocked by the 6-11 Bailey.

Eaton also had 16 rebounds and scored seven of his 15 points in the pivotal third quarter. Bailey added eight of his 15 points in the period, when Utah took control of the game and went on to improve its record to 7-7 and drop Houston to 10-3.

Heisman Trophy, didn't hurt his chances for the award that goes to the nation's top collegiate player.
The triumph boosted Cotton Bowl-bound Boston College's record to 8-2 with one regular-season game remaining against Holy Cross. Miami, headed for a Fiesta Bowl date against UCLA, dropped to 8-4.

Flutie passed for 472 yards and three touchdowns to outdue Miami's Bernie Kosar, who threw for 447 yards and two touchdowns against a defense that yielded 655 yards of total offense.

The lead in the nationally televised, see-saw battle changed hands five times in the fourth quarter and left a rain-drenched Orange Bowl crowd of 30,235 emotionally drained.

With six seconds left, Bicknell called for "Flood Tip," the Eagles' "Hail Mary" play.

"The idea is to send three receivers downfield," Bicknell said. "If one of them can go up and catch the ball, fine. If not, he's supposed to try to tip it to somebody else."

Flutie, who completed 34 of 46 passes, scrambled to his own 35 and let his desperation heave sail from about the 38. Bicknell said he thought Miami's secondary relaxed when they saw him dropping back.

"They stopped, probably thinking Doug couldn't throw it that far," said Bicknell said. "He can throw it as far as he has to."

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
The Panhandle Panthers used the running of Wes Wood and Shane McCaskey and a quick, swarming defense to post a 27-3 upset win over the Abernathy Antelopes in a Class 2A playoff game at Whiteface Stadium Friday night.

Wood and McCaskey each ripped off a long-distance scoring run and chalked up 138 yards rushing each to spark the Panther offensive attack. Panhandle, champion of District 1-2A, will face Stamford in a regional match, tentatively set for Floydada next Friday night. Stamford edged Wall, 25-23, Friday.

Abernathy scored on the first play of the second quarter here Friday night for a 3-0 lead, but Panhandle came back to score 17 unanswered points before halftime. The Panthers blunted Abernathy's second-half comeback hopes when McCaskey bolted 74 yards on the first play of the second half.

Panhandle's first score came after an Antelope turnover in the second period. A Panhandle punt was mishandled by Abernathy and Wood recovered for the Panthers at the Antelope 21. Two plays later, sophomore quarterback Derek Holmes lofted a 19-yard touchdown pass to end Timmy Sorrells.

"It was just a great team effort," said Panhandle school superintendent Jim Holmes, a former administrator at Hereford and father of the Panther quarterback. When Holmes moved from Hereford almost nine years ago, his son was in the first grade.

Holmes expressed concern before the game about the size of the Antelopes. But the quick, hard-hitting Panhandle defense took care of those concerns. The Panthers held Abernathy without a first down in the second half until the closing seconds of the game.

An estimated 2,800 fans attended the playoff battle, with Panhandle using the "home" team west side at Whiteface Stadium. The win left Panhandle with a 9-2-1 won-lost-tied record.

Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees led the American League in home runs four times — 1955, 1956, 1958 and 1960.

After Abernathy opened the scoring with a 25-yard field goal by Wade Wesley, the Panthers used the fumbled punt and Holmes' touchdown pass for a 7-3 lead in the second period. Kevin Powers intercepted an Abernathy pass to set up the next score.

Panhandle was stopped at the four, and Wood kicked a 20-yard field goal for a 10-3 advantage. Just before halftime, Panhandle struck again and antelope hopes began to dim. Wood broke loose on a great 70-yard scoring run, breaking a couple of tackles, then using a stiffarm on the last defender about the 20. That made it 20-3 but Panhandle fans were still worried about the Abernathy offense, sparked by star running back Chester Cooper.

The Panther defense, however, kept Cooper corralled. Cooper rushed for 121 yards on 23 carries but a 27-yard gainer in the first half was the only time he almost broke one for a score.

Abernathy had only 161 yards rushing, and the net was only 103 after quarterback sacks and a bobbling punt attempt. Panhandle wound up with 277 yards rushing and Holmes hit 2 of 8 passes for 30 yards. Antelope quarterback Jamie Manssanales hit 4 of 20 passes for 67 yards.

BOWL

discussed at the next meeting, 7:30 p.m. Dec. 4 at the Community Center.

"It is estimated that 60 to 70 people per week will leave Hereford to bowl somewhere else if we don't have an alley," Cook said.

"We are working toward this (building a new alley) for many different reasons. Number one, we feel it was tragic Hereford lost a place where the whole family can participate in a fun, clean and healthy sport.

"Number two, we want to see businesses stay in Hereford and number three, when the other bowling center closed, there was a plan in the works giving children the opportunity to win a college scholarship just by bowling in a junior league."

Watts said Cook hit on a key subject when he spoke about scholarships for young people.

"We had about 250 children involved in the scholarship program when the bowling alley was shut down," he said. "The program was offered through our alley. You didn't have to get first, second or third to qualify, either. You just had to bowl. "Everything (about the program) is kind of in limbo now, waiting to see about the new alley."

Another meeting, set for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 10 at the Community Center, is for all interested persons, Cook said.

The meeting is for both input and observation.

LONG FIBER VS. SHORT FIBER: THE DEBATE GOES ON. Now, instrument classing of cotton fibers may bring the debate closer to resolution. Instrument classing, according to one cotton buyer, gives a better indication as to cotton spinning value, regardless of fiber length. Quality of cotton is identified by seven property measurements in instrument classing, which compares with only three properties with the manual classification system. With the realization that strength is important to spinning mills, and influences pricing much more than other factors, most buyers agree that incentive in the form of financial rewards for producing strong cotton is likely to improve. He points out that strength is already very much a factor in the market place with a number of textile companies actively looking for cotton with good fiber strength.

MR. AND MRS. GUADALUPE VILLARREAL JR.

Couple celebrate 50th anniversary

Guadalupe Jr. and Norma Villarreal celebrated their 25th anniversary Saturday afternoon with a ceremony in the Spanish Assembly of God church and a reception following in Hereford State Bank.

Hosting the reception were the couple's children, Diana and Ricky Garcia of Amarillo, Saul and Marisa Villarreal of Amarillo and Jennifer Villarreal of the home. The three grandchildren took part in the ceremony in the church. They were Jeremy and Melanie Rose Garcia and Saul Villarreal Jr., all of Amarillo. Each of the grandchildren and the couple's youngest daughter wore red and white.

For the reception, cake, punch, cookies and nuts were served from tables decorated with three silver candles, a silver punch bowl and silver bells with a "25" on top. Serving were Juana Olivo, Olivia Carter and Anita Garza.

The Villarreals married in Hereford in 1959 and have lived here since.

Are You Ready For Retirement?

Our early settlers had one common denominator -- they all worked, and they worked hard! Everyone from grandma right down to the kids worked -- and worked -- and worked.

For all it's worth, the word "retirement" couldn't have been in the vocabulary of many of our forefathers.

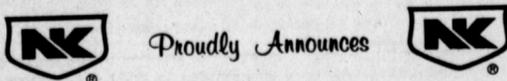

Today, that word, "retirement", holds a very special and deep meaning to a lot of folks.

At our bank, we offer the new Individual Retirement Account. It's a plan that helps make your retirement years all you've worked for and more. You can deposit $2,000 a year as an individual to this program, without paying any federal income taxes on the principal or the interest, until you retire. Married couples who are both working may deposit $4,000, and one-paycheck couples may deposit $2,250.

The I.R.A. program - from the Bank that's pioneering new ways of service and security for you, your family and your retirement.

NOT FOR TOM
CLEVELAND (AP) — Tom Cousineau, the crack linebacker of the Cleveland Browns, dabbled in another sport in the off-season and decided it was not for him. He worked as a member of Scott Brayton's pit crew at the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race in May.

Tom says auto racing is fascinating, but he felt no great desire to change jobs with Brayton.

"I personally think you have to be out of your mind to race automobiles," Cousineau said. "Those people are human rockets. I know that a lot of fans say you've got to be nuts to play pro football but you can walk away from Earl Campbell. A wall can be unforgiving."

Ann Simmons, 1982, Leatrus Clark, 1981, Georgia Sparks, 1980, Virginia Adams, 1979, and Susie McGee, 1978. Also, Sherry Hoover, 1977, Inez Albright, 1976, Lavon Nieman, 1975, Wynell Robinson, 1974, Violet Reinauer, 1973, Katherine Kester, 1972, and Irene McKinster, 1971.

Discussing Plans

Lorraine Hopson, LVN, at left, and Peggy Oakes, RN supervisor for the Panhandle Health Care in Hereford are shown discussing plans for a blood pressure clinic scheduled from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday at Sugarland Mall. The event is being held in conjunction with National Home Care Week which begins today.

Hereford residents ask to observe National Home Care Week

Marie Milliken, R.N., President of Panhandle Health Care today, invites Hereford area residents to help celebrate National Home Care Week in Hereford.

The President and the Congress have proclaimed Nov. 25-Dec. 1, as National Home Care Week to pay tribute to the thousands of dedicated individuals throughout America whose efforts allow more than five million elderly, infirm, disabled or dying to receive skilled health and social services in the comfort and privacy of their own home.

Mrs. Milliken remarked, "There is a movement in this country to find less expensive and more humane ways to provide health care to our growing elderly population, as well as to children and young people who are temporarily or chronically ill or disabled. Lawmakers are finally discovering what we have known all along: Home care supports the dignity and independence of our most vulnerable by keeping them out of hospitals and nursing homes for as long as possible. It keeps families together and offers a compassionate and a low cost way to care for our loved ones. In an era of skyrocketing health care costs, home care offers an excellent alternative to institutional care both because it is less expensive and because it encourages the self reliance and cooperative effort upon which this nation is founded."

Mrs. Milliken went on to note that Panhandle Health Care has been proudly serving the Hereford area for two years with foundation experience dating back to July 1, 1966.

They provide Nursing Services, Home Health Aides, Physical Therapy, Speech Therapy and Social Services to over 66,000 people every year.

Home Care Week in Hereford will kick off with a no charge blood pressure clinic from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday at Sugarland Mall. The Panhandle Health Care hopes that as many Hereford residents as possible will take part.

Mrs. Milliken concluded by saying: "The theme for National Home Care Week is "When It Comes to Health Care, There's No Place Like Home." We think that says it all."

The couple plan to marry Dec. 22 in Polk Street United Methodist Church in Amarillo.

The bride-elect graduated from Hereford High School in 1979 and attended Texas Tech University where she received her bachelor's degree in horticulture. While at Texas Tech, she was a member of Alpha Phi sorority, Horticulture Society, and was a Beta Theta Pi fraternity Little Sister. She is currently employed at Davis Garden Center in Midland.

The prospective bridegroom will graduate from Texas Tech in December with a bachelor's degree in Real Estate Finance and Petroleum Land Management. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity and the Inter-Fraternity Council Judicial Board.

FTA sells cards to aid Cancer Support

Members of Hereford High School's Future Teachers of America will be selling Christmas cards during the Neiman-Marcus Fun Breakfast sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Thursday from 6:30 to 8 a.m. All proceeds will be donated to Cancer Support, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Cards may also be purchased at additional times by contacting Carolyn Cook at the high school at 364-9617 through Dec. 20.

Cancer Support is a group of volunteers who are business and professional leaders in the community. Each individual shares in the commitment of support for people with cancer and the people who care about them.

The purpose of the organization is to assist patients and their families with health care expenses and programs that are directed towards improving the patient's quality of life. The method for establishing and maintaining the finances needed to support the program is through the annual sale of Christmas cards.

The art design for the Christmas cards was provided by school children. A contest was held during November when a panel of judges selected four winners. Each child whose card was chosen received an award of $100.00.

Businesses and individuals also selected designs for exclusive cards and each of these children received an award of $100.00. Each year a contest will be conducted to provide new art for the next edition of Christmas cards.

This program was initiated by local individuals who were aware and had participated in similar programs of Wadley Institute of Dallas and M.D. Anderson Hospital of Houston. Both of these programs have been successful. M.D. Anderson sold one million cards in 1982.

The financial assistance provided by this program is available for all individuals who live in the Panhandle area and are treated in any of the Amarillo health care facilities or programs.

Purchasing the Christmas cards provides the opportunity for individuals to share in helping friends and family who may have cancer.

Some say peacock feathers are unlucky.

Former Hereford residents celebrate 25th anniversary

Don and Juanita Moore celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a surprise reception and "roast" hosted by their children Saturday afternoon in the Santa Fe Women's Club from 2 to 5 p.m. in Santa Fe, N.M.

The couple has four children, Pickens Moore of Santa Fe, Sandra Wolcott of Albuquerque, N.M., Amanda Moore of Chicago, Ill., and Cyrus Moore of New York, N.Y.. They also have five grandchildren. About 100 people were expected for the celebration for the couple who were long-time Hereford residents. The couple moved to Hereford in 1950, and taught in the public schools until they moved in 1964. They returned to Hereford before moving to Espanola, N.M. where they now reside.

Decorations for the Moores who married Nov. 28, 1934, included old photos which were enlarged to posters and helium balloons in gold, white and peach which covered the ceiling. The tables were covered with peach cloths on white and white wedding bells. A wedding cake with a bride and groom on top completed the table.

A gold server engraved with their name and original wedding date was presented to the couple. Coffee and champagne punch were among the beverages served.

Sawyer selected

Sidney Sawyer of Abilene, great-grandson of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Guinn of Hereford, has been selected as a member of Who's Who in American College and Universities for 1984.

This is a high distinction, not only for the students named but also for their families who have given so much to the total development of these students.

Home health care popular today

By DORIS MORGAN
Home Health Director

President Reagan and the United States Congress have proclaimed the week of Nov. 26 through Dec. 1 as National Home Health Week.

Organized home health services began in the United States in 1893 when Lillian Wald established the Visiting Nurse Service of New York as part of the Henry Street Settlement services to the city's poor. By 1900, 20 agencies modeled after the Visiting Nurse Service were providing home nursing care in urban areas. In 1912, the American Red Cross pioneered rural home nursing service. The experiment proved so successful that county health departments began to expand their services to include nursing care in the home and public health nursing became a vital part of the American health care scene.

In the beginning, home health services were provided primarily to the poor through charitable or welfare funds. However, in the 1920's insurance companies realized that, in many cases, patients could receive effective and economical health care in their homes and began to include home health services in their benefits.

When Medicare came into existence in 1965, home health benefits were part of the package. During the almost 20 years since then, these services have expanded in scope to include not only skilled nursing and nurse aid care, but also physical therapy, speech therapy, occupational therapy, medical social services and medical supplies and equipment. Home health is now one of the fastest growing health care fields.

This rapid growth is explained by two major factors: 1) Americans are living longer with more than 11 percent of the total population currently qualifying for Medicare benefits, and 2) the rising cost of health care reflected in the share of the gross national product spent on health care, 10.4 percent in 1982 and growing steadily each year.

Add to these factors the human factor—most hospital patients are anxious to be home and opt for early discharge if their continuing need for care can be met in their own homes. Often the familiar surroundings and presence of loved ones can speed recovery. As Americans become more health conscious and more knowledgeable about health care, families are able to assume responsibility for more complex procedures with teaching and supervision by health professionals.

The primary goal of home health care is to allow patients to remain in their own homes for as long as they can comfortably and safely receive the level of care appropriate to their illness or disability. Home care staffs are teaching oriented and their focus is to assist the patients and family to manage this care as independently as possible.

I am really amazed at the complex care families are able to provide in order to keep their loved ones at home. Families have learned to perform tube feedings, complicated sterile dressing changes, catheter changes, flushing of IV lines, injections and even care of patients on ventilators.

In keeping with the focus on independence, home health care is usually not provided on a long term basis. The average length of stay on the service is two to three months. Usually during this time, the staff has been able to help get the patient through a period of acute illness or to teach the skills necessary for ongoing care.

The range of services is wide with skilled nursing services usually accounting for more than half the visits made in this area. Assistance with baths and personal care is provided by Home Health Aides. Medical social workers assist patients and their families in adapting to the illness and often aid in obtaining financial assistance. The therapists can provide many of the services they give in a hospital or rehabilitation setting.

In order to qualify for home health services, the patient must be in need of intermittent care, essentially homebound and under the care of a physician. In most cases the care is provided at no cost to the patients and is reimbursed by Medicare, Medicaid, Veterans Administration, or group or private health insurance. Although the services must be ordered by a physician, anyone may request an evaluation to see if they qualify.

Two agencies provide most of the home health care in Hereford. Panhandle Home Care with offices in Amarillo and Dumas is a private non-profit agency which has an RN and an LVN providing services in Hereford. Also available from this agency are physical, speech and occupational therapists and a medical social worker from the Amarillo area. Individuals may contact them at their Amarillo office at 358-8051.

Deaf Smith Home Care Service, a hospital-based agency, is a department of Deaf Smith General Hospital. Their staff includes three full-time RNs plus one part-time bilingual RN, three LVNs, and one home health aide. Also, a physical therapist, speech therapist and medical social worker who works with the agency on a contract basis. Their office is located in Deaf Smith General and they may be contacted at 364-2344 during regular office hours and by calling the hospital switchboard, 364-2141, after office hours or on weekends.

Registering For Program

These young children are shown enrolling for the Hereford Camp Fire Council's "I'm Safe and Sure" program. Enrollment is limited to 100 youths and all interested persons should call the Camp Fire office as soon as possible. Pictured from left are Carolyn Ray, who will be directing the program, Darcy Krtinich, Kirk Pagett and Courtney Gearm.

Enrollment limited for program

Boys and girls in K-5 and first grades may register now for the Hereford Camp Fire Council's program "I'm Safe and Sure" scheduled from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1 at the Camp Fire Lodge.

Enrollment is strictly limited to 100 youths and all interested persons should call the Camp Fire office as soon as possible at 364-0395. Registration fee is $5 for registered Camp Fire members and $12 for non-members. This $12 includes the $7 Camp Fire registration fee which makes the child a member of Camp Fire through Aug. 31, 1985 and entitles them to participate in any Camp Fire program offered during this time without paying the fee again.

The program will be under the direction of Carolyn Ray, a professional school counselor, with each of the five segments being presented by credited, trained teachers.

This particular program is unique for children of this age because of its two major related goals. It helps young children keep themselves safe by helping them avoid being the victims of crime and other potentially harmful situations and to help them be sure of the right thing to do by reinforcing positive social attitudes and behaviours.

This combined focus makes "I'm Safe and Sure" unique for children this age. Camp Fire feels the deliberate combination of both focuses in "I'm Safe and Sure" and offers an integrated approach to developing desired behaviours and attitudes in young children.

Like all Camp Fire programs, this presentation emphasizes learning by doing, assuming responsibility, developing decision making skills as well as learning to appreciate, care and work with others.

The five segments to be covered include rules, play safety, honesty is best, strangers and nobody wins in a fight.

Lincoln

Abraham Lincoln was nominated by the Republican Party on an anti-slavery platform in 1860. He ran against Stephen A. Douglas, a Northern Democrat; John C. Breckenridge, a Southern pro-slavery Democrat, and John Bell of the Constitution Union Party. A month after the election, South Carolina seceded from the Union, followed in 1861 by 10 other Southern states.

Bestselling author, Victoria Holt, is featured this week with her latest novel, entitled "The Landowner Legacy." In 1887, in the excitement of Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee, fourteen-year-old Caroline Tressidor blurts out a secret. Though it is a secret she does not understand, her punishment is swift: Her beautiful mother disappears, her father banishes Caroline to a family estate in Cornwall. There, puzzled and lonely, she begins a search for understanding that takes her back to London and to heartbreak. It sends her to the South of France and a romantic reunion with the man she has learned to love and fear, returns her to Cornwall, to tragedy and a desperate murderer; and ends ten years after its beginnings as she watches the plain little Queen celebrate her Diamond Jubilee.

"The Landowner Legacy" is set against the rich background of historical detail of late Victorian England. With her gift for breathing life into history, Victoria Holt, brings to life Victorian manners, dress, and gossip. Victoria Holt creates a colorful story, a spirited, outspoken heroine, and characters of depth and reality; among them the Landowner brothers, whose desperation to save their vast holdings spawns a legacy of hatred and death. Victoria Holt has dominated the field of romantic suspense. She is the standard by which others are judged.

Also available this week is "Portrait In Oil" by Charles Fox. It is a novel about the world's last independent oil man. Tom Scott trapped in a corporate squeeze play by the "Seven Sisters" elects to stand and fight. In the aftermath of both John D. Rockefeller's failure to make Standard Oil a monopoly and the Crash of 1929, Scott bucks colluding corporate giants.

Scott's story is narrated by Carey Nichols, a young Englishman, who wanders innocently into Scott's life, is taken into the tycoon's confidence, becomes a rival for the love of Scott's young and beautiful wife Joanna, and eventually becomes Scott's conscience.

"Portrait In Oil" is the story of a lifelong love between three people, of the sins of fathers visited upon their children, and of the terrible price each pays for their loyalty to one man obsessed with desire to create the world's Eighth Sister. Charles Fox was born in England, raised in Kenya, and emigrated to the United States.

Other new books available this week at the library are "The Dossier" by Pierre Salinger and Leonard Gross, "Mourning Into Dancing" by Laurel Lee, and "The One Minute Scolding" by Gerald E. Nelson.

LIBRARY EVENTS: 10:00 a.m.—Thursday morning - Public preschool story hour.

Public view of private man now at auction

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The possessions of the late Steven McQueen, an enormously popular tough-guy actor who zealously guarded his off-screen life, are going public in an auction to benefit his children.
Some 1,500 people have purchased $30 bidding passes for the auction that begins today at the Imperial Palace Hotel, said Kris Engelstad, who spent months visiting McQueen's former haunts to help collect more than 100 antique motorcycles, 25 vintage autos, gas pumps, movie memorabilia and numerous antiques.
By Friday, more than 2,000 people, considering bidding for McQueen's possessions, had wandered through the showroom, eyeing a 1957 Jaguar XK-SS with a magnesium body or the firefighter's hat he wore in "The Towering Inferno," Ms. Engelstad said.
"He never threw anything away," said Ms. Engelstad, daughter of Ralph Engelstad, who owns the Imperial Palace, where the auction takes place today and Sunday. "There were partial scripts, the cars he used in 'The Hunter' and 'The Reivers,' even a production board from the movie 'Yentl,' which indicates people had contacted him about the movie 10 years ago."
Engelstad, whose hotel has a display of antique cars, predicted the Jaguar will bring more than $150,000. Hotel officials valued the estate at more than $1 million.
The proceeds from the auction will go to McQueen's children, Terri, 26, and Chad, 23.
McQueen died of a heart attack in 1980, after suffering from cancer. He was born on March 24, 1930, in Indianapolis, and became a top box-office star in action and adventure movies of the 1960s and 1970s. Among his films were "The Magnificent Seven," "The Great Escape," "Love With a Proper Stranger" and "Bullitt."
Much of the auction material came from an airplane hangar in Santa Paula, Calif., where Mc-

Queen stored an antique plane and retreated from Hollywood.
"Everything sat untouched for four years from the day he walked out of the hangar and locked the door," Ms. Engelstad said. "There were 120 motorcycles jammed into the place, things hanging from the walls and the ceiling, antique toys all over the place. It took us a day just to catalog all the bikes, another day to catalog the toys."
"There was still food and dishes in the kitchen," she said. "Boxes were there just as he left them. There were a lot of creepy crawlies around."

McQueen apparently lived in the hangar between marriages to Ali McGraw and Barbara Minty "because he wanted to live around the things he loved the most," Ms. Engelstad said.
McQueen's collection of motorcycles includes some dating back to 1928.
Ms. Engelstad said she believes this is the first time the entire estate of an actor has been auctioned since Rudolph Valentino's estate was sold in the 1920s.

Skeleton discovery sours relocation plans

EL PASO, Texas — The owners of a partially demolished restaurant say they've lost interest in salvaging the chimney after a skeleton was discovered wedged inside.
"Nobody wants to touch it," said Herlinda Hernandez, who owns the Farmer's Market and Restaurant along with her husband.
El Paso police believe the clothed skeleton is that of a young man who got stuck while trying to burglarize the business.
A worker at the site of the old restaurant, which is being torn down to make way for a supermarket, found the skeletal remains Friday morning.

answers.
Police Sgt. Dwain Johnson said an autopsy will be performed to try and determine how old the man was and when he died. He said foul play is not suspected.
Johnson said the man may have been trying to break into the restaurant through the chimney.
"I don't understand it," Mrs. Hernandez said. "The chimney is about 6 feet tall from the outside. How could anyone climb into it?"
"The burglar must have been insane. The opening to the pit is about an inch in diameter. There was no way he could get through it. It was a suicide attempt."
Mrs. Hernandez said she and her husband ran the restaurant at its West Side location for about 20 years. They were burglarized many times until they installed an alarm system about 10 years ago.

"I have a hunch he had already tried the windows, but they don't open," she told the El Paso Times. "But if there was a burglary attempt, we haven't known about it."
The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations merged in 1955 to become one of the world's largest labor federations.

Mrs. Hernandez, who owned the restaurant with her husband, Juventino, said the chimney is made of bricks from Italy that are at least 50 years old.
"It had done such a good job for us that we wanted to relocate it to the new restaurant, but forget it now," she said.
Mrs. Hernandez said the discovery was a shock because the chimney had always worked properly. She also wonders why nobody noticed the body sooner.
"I'm curious to see who it might be and what he died of," she said.
