Renovation bids lower than foreseen

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Two general contractor bids received for proposed renovation work at Deaf Smith General Hospital are considerably less than anticipated, it was revealed Tuesday.

"I think we have got some very competitive bids here," DSGH directors were told by Administrator James Bullard, who later in the meeting was granted a $4,000 raise.

The lowest general contractor bid of $139,220 was submitted by Northline Construction. Its main man, Don Miller, was once a superintendent for Wiley Hicks Jr. construction company. Wiley's bid of $144,555 was the second smallest turned in for the DSGH project.

Both firms are based in Amarillo. In addition to the general contractor bids, offers were also made for supplying various equipment needed for renovation work. They represent such items as mini-blinds, headwall units and a nurse call system.

According to Bullard, the total cost of the general contractor and sundry purchases should total between $174,000 and $180,000. Prior to opening of the bids, DSGH officials figured they would have to spend well over $200,000 for the work.

At their last meeting, board members agreed they should consider having hospital employees assume the general contractor duties if such a move would save money. After viewing the bids, however, Bullard admitted, "We can't do it that cheaply."

Two other bids were submitted by the 2 p.m. Monday deadline for general contractor services. Local resident B.L. Jones offered to perform the work for a little more than $164,000 and Built-Rite of Fritch bid just under $200,000.

It was agreed the two low bidders and the project's architect - Jack Nottingham - would meet with DSGH officials some evening next week. The powwow is to help determine which contractor is better suited for the work and which subcontractor bids should be accepted.

Northline, Bullard said, claimed it could complete the work within 75 days.

To be included in the renovations is remodeling of 19 patient rooms. Along with the headwall units and access to the nurse call system, rooms are to be given new blinds, tile,

Administrator given raise lighting, paint and an air conditioning unit. Ceilings are not included in the bids, Bullard said, but might need to be replaced soon.

Aside from patient rooms, also to be altered are the emergency room and front entrance. New X-ray equipment and television sets were added to the hospital last year.

Bullard, at the request of the DSGH financial committee, was awarded a 9.5 percent salary hike Tuesday. According to board member Dr. Charles Allison, directors voted 3-2 in favor of the increase. Opposing the move were Allison and John Gilliland.

As amended, Bullard's stipend is to be $46,000. He also receives life insurance coverage, the use of a car (with gasoline and other expenses paid) and fees for service clubs. Last fall, Bullard's salary was hiked from $40,000 and $42,000.

Allison, who called the Brand Tuesday evening, stressed he was not implying the raise was "a travesty." Rather, in light of the recent 31-percent tax rate jump, Allison said he felt uneasy with the decision on Bullard's pay.

"I'm not trying to stir up trouble," the board member stated over the telephone. "It was just bothersome to me...I think the county should know."

When contacted this morning, Bullard agreed with Allison his new salary was "middle of the road" for hospitals of comparable size. The administrator pointed out, though, DSGH offers more services - ambulance, home health care, etc. - than most other rural facilities.

Bullard also said 8 percent raises were budgeted this year for all DSGH personnel. In previous years, he said, his salary hikes were usually at lower percentages than those for the other hospital staffers.

In other business Tuesday, statistics for the first month of the 1984-1985 DSGH budget year were announced. During October, the facility's occupancy rate ran at about 40 percent," Bullard said, with the Tennessee firm suing cattle companies

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Swindling and misappropriation of funds are two of the charges levied against Hereford Cattle Commission and Texhoma Livestock Commission by a Tennessee company that has filed suit against the two auctions.

A.W. Cherry and Sons, a cattle company based in Lebanon, Tenn., is asking for at least $2 million in the lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Amarillo. Cherry alleges the two auctions, closed since Nov. 6, owes it for 3,928 head of cattle worth just more than $1 million. The Tennessee firm also wants at least $1 million in punitive damages.

The two Panhandle auctions are accused of mishandling custodial accounts, which are trust funds maintained for those who do business with cattle auctions. The owners of the cattle companies used money from those funds to purchase cattle, Cherry claims, and resell them at their auctions to boost the sales numbers.

For at least two million dollars

The cattle in question were delivered to Texas, Cherry says in its suit, and either they were not paid for the cattle or they were paid with bad checks. The suit alleges Cherry was tricked into delivering the cattle.

The plaintiffs also suggests that since Jan. 1, 1983, the commission owners used custodial account funds to pay for corporate and individual debts. The funds were also used to cover bad checks, Cherry and sons claims.

Meanwhile, an investigation by the Packers and Feedyards Association of the USDA continues. Tom Morris and Bill Butler of the P&SA's Ft. Worth office have been in Hereford the past two weeks looking at the company's financial records. The auctions closed down voluntarily and the P&SA is said to be here at their request.

Deaf Smith County Criminal

District attorney Roland Saul said this morning he does not know if criminal charges will result from the investigation.

"We will be conducting our own investigation, but right now we're waiting on the P&SA to go through the books."

Saul said the FBI is also involved, because federal charges could arise from the interstate shipment of cattle. He said he has also been in contact with the U.S. Attorney General's office in reference to the situation.

"It may be that the matter will be turned over to a grand jury," Saul admitted, "but right now I want to emphasize that we do not know if there have been criminal offenses."

The five Hereford men named as owners of the company are Julian Berry, Steve Hodges, Armon Lauderback and Warren Owen. Keith Lauer of Texhoma is also listed in the suit as an owner.

The Hereford Auction maintained its custodial fund accounts with Hi-

Pheasant season set despite fewer targets

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Yes, Virginia, there will be a pheasant hunting season in Deaf Smith County this year.

Game warden Chuck Cosper told the Brand Tuesday that contrary to what some local residents may have heard, the season will not be canceled because of a low pheasant population.

Cosper confirmed, however, that there will be fewer birds to shoot when the season opens Dec. 8. "The crop is down about 46 percent, probably because of dry weather we had last spring. But it is not true that they're considering closing the season."

The bag limit is three cocks, with six in possession after the first day, Cosper said. And all hunters must have permission to hunt on anyone else's land.

Landowners who plan to charge for the use of their property must get a shooting preserves license, Cosper reminded. They are available from the Texas Parks and Wildlife office in Amarillo. The fee depends on the number of acres leased or $15 for anything less than 500 acres.

Cosper said he expects the usual 8,000 to 10,000 people to hunt pheasants in Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties during the two-week season which ends Dec. 25.

A Texas resident hunting license is required and costs $8. Hunters

Game warden denies rumors to contrary younger than 17 or over 65 are exempt from the fee. Licenses are available from the Deaf Smith County clerk, TG&Y and White's Auto Store in Hereford.

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday the hunts sponsored by the Chamber and other local organizations are already filled.

The chamber has a waiting list, Carr added, of hunters who would be willing to pay for the right to use someone's land.

A landowner willing to lease his land to one or more of the 600 people still on that list is welcome to call the chamber of commerce, which will make the lease arrangements free of charge.

Last year, hunters had good luck the first weekend but the season fizzled down to a slow conclusion on Christmas Day. The 1983 pheasant crop was light as compared with the preceding year, and bitterly cold weather Christmas week kept some would-be hunters indoors.

Cosper, who last year used the news media to announce his intention to ticket those hunting illegally, wrote just half the usual number of hunting violations tickets.

Man passes out in apartment

A Hereford man was reported in good condition this morning at Deaf Smith General Hospital, where he was taken after being discovered unconscious Tuesday afternoon in his room at the Fullwood Apartments.

Ramiro Alaniz, 27, was transported by ambulance to DSGH at about 1 p.m. after family members forced their way into his apartment and were unable to arouse him. Family and friends became worried after Alaniz did not show up for work Tuesday.

Jerry Walls of DSGH said Alaniz was unresponsive until later Tuesday afternoon, when he awakened but was still "lethargic." Walls said the hospital has not determined why Alaniz became unconscious.

Brand to be closed Thursday

The Hereford Brand, along with most other local businesses, will take Thursday off to enable employees to be with their families on Thanksgiving Day.

It is one of four holidays taken by the Brand each year. Since no paper will be published Thursday, deadlines for classified advertisements has been changed to 9 a.m. Friday for that day's newspaper listings. Classifieds normally must be in by 3 p.m. the previous day.

Today's paper includes some features usually printed on Thursday, such as comics and television listings. Other holidays when no paper is published are Christmas Day, New Year's Day and July 4th.

The Brand's Christmas Shopping Edition is to be published Sunday, Dec. 2, and we plan to deliver that issue to all households in the city, as well as mail it to all area rural homes. The following day, Santa Claus and his lovely wife are to be in Hereford for the annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony.

TUESDAY'S HIGH: 68 (normal: 58 record: 81 (1968))

OVERNIGHT LOW: 32 (normal: 39 record: 4 (1968))

OUTLOOK: Fair tonight with a low in the middle 30s and southerly winds of 5 to 15 miles per hour. Thanksgiving Day is to also be fair. The high is to be around 62 and winds are to be 15 to 25 miles per hour - often gusty - from the southwest and south.

"God gave us our memories so that we might have roses in December." - James M. Barrie

Perhaps God also gave us memories that we might look back and count our blessings. Thanksgiving Day is a time to remember. As a man grows older, he treasures the memories and the blessings increase.

He's thankful for life—a gift and opportunity from God. He has come to realize that the gift must be taken as it is, but he must make the most of the opportunity.

He is thankful for the family circle—for a mate whose love and understanding has nurtured the wedding vows, for loving children, and for parents who love and support through the years.

He appreciates more the value of friends who have cheered with him in victory and have cried with him in defeat, who have helped him meet goals and loved him despite his faults.

He's thankful, too, for friends who have given him the example of praising more and criticizing less, of stopping and smelling the roses along the way. He is even grateful for the disappointments, for they have made him stronger and have made the successes taste sweet.

On this Thanksgiving Day, we wish for you and yours a time of sharing and remembering, of expressing love and counting your blessings!

Teenager suing state trooper

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A teen-ager who says a state trooper preached to him for two hours, forced him to make a list of his sins and then promise to dedicate his life to God has sued the officer for $750,000.

Darryl Ray Craig, 17, of Orange contends in his suit he was forced to sign a statement asking God to take charge of his life. He said trooper Douglas Fetters co-signed the document with the name "Jesus."

Craig has been assigned to office duty. He declined to comment on the lawsuit or the incident.

The trooper made the youth list his sins on a sheet of paper, including "sassing back Mom," "stealing candy" and "cheating on tests," the suit said. On the other side of the paper was the "New Life" statement Craig said he was forced to sign.

Larry Todd, a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety in Austin, said Tuesday an administrative inquiry into the allegations has been completed and a report presented to agency Director Col. James Adams. No decision has been made yet, Todd said.

Land sale may help budget

AUSTIN (AP) — Money-hungry legislators might be able to ease a cash crunch by selling state land that has become too valuable to hold on to, according to a Senate committee report.

John Leedom, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agency Funds Management, offered a package of ideas he said could raise $100 million a year for the state. The proposals include a look at selling some state property.

The 1985 Legislature faces a deficit that now looks to be about $653 million.

"If we do save $200 million over two years we are talking about covering one-third of the expected deficit we face," said committee member Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville.

The proposals include statute revisions to allow higher returns on state investments, updated accounting procedures, better asset management and a new cash flow system.

The sale of state property appears to offer the biggest potential windfall. "Within the next five years the fund could easily contain $500 million in cash assets," the report said.

Much beach trash from ships

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Up to 75 percent of the garbage on Texas beaches may be from ocean dumping by commercial ships and offshore drilling rigs, an oceanographer told a state panel looking for a solution to beach pollution.

Anthony Amos of the University of Texas Marine Science Institute told the Texas Coastal and Marine Council Tuesday that much of the garbage found on the beach is traceable to the hundreds of commercial ships, from a variety of nations, that jettison tons of garbage into the Gulf each day. Dumping off oil rigs also accounts for a high percentage of the trash, he said at a public hearing on beach garbage.

Amos has been conducting a survey since 1978 along a stretch of beach about seven miles long. He testified that one recent morning he found 199 large plastic milk jugs and 235 other large plastic jugs like those used by institutional kitchens.

He has also found hard hats emblazoned with company names, chemical cans with manufacturer's labels and a wide variety of other marked garbage.

'Death Squad' encounter told

WASHINGTON (AP) — To some, the Salvadoran Mother's Committee is a humanitarian organization that looks after orphans and other victims of El Salvador's political terror. To others, it is little more than a front group for leftist guerrillas.

For a brief moment Tuesday, the controversy was set aside as one committee member, Emelino Panameno de Garcia, stood before an audience of several hundred here and recounted how she had been tortured and raped by eight "death squad" members three years ago.

The occasion was an awards ceremony at which Mrs. de Garcia accepted a $30,000 prize from the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Foundation on behalf of the Mother's Committee for its work in tending to the needs of the thousands of victims of El Salvador's political turmoil.

The group, founded in 1977, is officially known as the Committee of Mothers and Relatives, Disappeared and Murdered of El Salvador. Mrs. de Garcia has been a member of the committee since 1978.

Firemen bury 275 blast victims

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Firemen working by the light of flashlights buried 275 unidentified victims of fiery gas explosions in a huge mass grave on a hillside northeast of the neighborhood where they died.

The victims buried late Tuesday night were among at least 324 people killed when explosions at a liquid petroleum gas storage and distribution center showered flames, debris and sections of tanks onto homes in the area at daybreak Monday. Red Cross officials said at least 500 other people were seriously injured.

The office of President Miguel de la Madrid, which issued the latest fatality figures late Tuesday, said the toll "is not expected to rise significantly because the injured are being attended efficiently by the health system."

Fire fighters on Tuesday night stacked the 275 unidentified victims' coffins, some metal and some wooden, in layers into a dusty grave dug by a bulldozer.

Guided by the headlights of a jeep and 10 flashlights held by policemen, the fire fighters quickly filled the grave.

Most of the bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Man objects to quitting strikers

CARLTON, England (AP) — Mick Schofield thinks the coal miners who have quit the eight-month-old strike are selling their souls for a Christmas bonus.

No matter that he eats at a soup kitchen and the family savings have run dry, he said, he won't join the swelling tide of miners returning to work.

The son of a miner who is married to the daughter of a miner, Schofield has been on the picket line in this Yorkshire mining village five days a week, pushing the union's demands that the state-run National Coal Board abandon its plan to close money-losing mines.

He hopes the strikers will win out and that someday his son, John, 17, who is out of school and jobless, will be a miner, too.

"Yes, we are fighting for jobs for my son," Schofield, a burly man with a broad grin, said in an interview this week.

The coal board said Tuesday that 3,278 miners had given up the strike this week. In all, more than 60,000 miners were not on strike, and 59 of the industry's 174 mines were producing coal.

Between Gromyko, Shultz

Early arms meeting possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressions of Soviet interest in resuming arms control talks could lead to a meeting early next year between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, according to informed sources here.

Based on a Soviet statement and a message late last week, the administration has notified Moscow it was prepared to arrange for a Shultz-Gromyko meeting if an agenda could be worked out, the sources said Tuesday.

The meeting is seen here as an icebreaker, designed to end the year-long suspension of negotiations to cut back U.S. and Soviet intermediate and long-range nuclear weapons. Moscow is a potential site, although a senior Soviet diplomat said last week that a neutral setting would be acceptable to his government.

The sources, speaking only on condition they not be identified, said the Soviets have been showing a growing interest in holding talks with the United States.

Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko last Friday urged a renewal of the spirit of detente from the 1970s and said Moscow was ready for arms control talks if Washington was. He issued no demands and listed no conditions.

This reportedly was followed with a message over the weekend proposing a Shultz-Gromyko meeting.

The negotiations broke down in Geneva, Switzerland, a year ago when the United States refused to postpone the deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe targeted on Soviet territory.

The Soviets countered by expanding their own deployment and increasing the submarine force within striking distance of the United States.

It was considered significant that Chernenko did not repeat the Soviet demand that the U.S. missiles be withdrawn as a precondition for resuming negotiations.

The two sides began to inch toward a new dialogue after President Reagan, in a United Nations speech in late September, suggested sidestepping Geneva by establishing a new "framework" to work out differences between the two superpowers.

Gromyko then called on Reagan and Shultz in Washington, and along with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, asked the administration through diplomatic channels to elaborate on the Reagan proposal.

The pace quickened last week when a top Soviet embassy official here told the Associated Press and the Washington Post that his government was interested in pursuing Reagan's idea. Chernenko, responding to questions posed by NBC News, then declared his government was ready to renew discussions.

On the U.S. side, Shultz was authorized to respond publicly by describing Chernenko's comments as "a positive statement" and saying the two governments should "really sit down in small groups and work concretely on problems and look for real results."

With arms control talks in suspension the United States and the Soviet Union have steadily built up their arsenals of nuclear missiles, restricted only by previous arms control agreements.

Bad debt may have led to bar shooting

DALLAS (AP) — A bad debt may have triggered a barroom shooting spree that left one man dead and five people wounded, police say.

Officers said Tuesday the first intended victim of the shooting was a man who allegedly owed money to Charles W. "Doc" Morrison, who is accused of opening fire on patrons of the Webb Lounge Monday night with a high powered rifle.

Morrison was being held today in lieu of $200,000 bond in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center here after being returned from Denton County where he was arrested on a rural road about five hours after the shooting spree.

Police investigator J.J. Coughlin said the customer believed to be the target of the shooting spree was not hurt.

Bullard, during his operating report, pointed out sizable increases in the number of surgical procedures and drop-ins last month. He also drew attention to the respiratory therapy treatment numbers: 692 this October as opposed to 333 the year before.

Though the hospital finished more than $123,000 in the black last month, Bullard explained such a figure is deceptive since a bulk of the fiscal year's tax revenues - about $147,000 - were received.

Alma Ester Millsap, 80, died Tuesday in Deaf Smith General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

The gunman apparently tried to fire first at the unidentified 55-year-old man as he sat with another patron at the front of the bar, but a round was not chambered in the gun and the assailant ducked behind a partition to load, witnesses told police.

Coughlin said other bar patrons apparently could not see the gunman behind the partition, but the two men closest to him ran out the back door while the assailant loaded his weapon.

"We can't say whether he was trying to get the first victim as he was running or whether he was just firing into the bar," Coughlin said. "Everyone just started running, falling and getting down."

Witnesses said the gunman had not argued with the intended victim earlier on the day of the shooting.

Paul Harvey Electricity

I am embarrassed for us; in three seconds you will be.

Our nation is importing electricity!

The United States of America - historically the powerhouse of the planet - is so delinquent in the development of new energy sources that we are having to buy electricity from outside our country.

The atom was first harnessed in the United States. We had a 20-year head-start in the development of nuclear electricity.

Now...

While the United States gets barely 13 percent of its electricity from nuclear power plants, the backward nations are moving full speed ahead, leaving us behind.

Taiwan gets 40 percent of its electricity from nuclear.

France is building a fast-breeder nuclear reactor which will produce more fuel than it consumes.

Finland and Sweden get 40 percent of their power from nuclear.

Japan, West Germany and Britain get 16 to 20 percent.

The United States - 13 percent. Among 10 nations developing nuclear power, we are the last!

And now the transcendent indignity - further regarding our own development of generating capacity and further unbalancing our nation's lopsided trade deficit - American power companies are having to string wires across the Canadian border to buy what kilowatts we are presently impotent to produce.

We bought a billion dollars worth in 1982.

The New England Power Pool is a group of 86 utilities in Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut. In the springtime of 1983 they signed a contract to purchase from Hydro-Quebec three billion kilowatt hours of electricity over a period of 11 years.

In June, 1983, the pool agreed to purchase another seven billion kilowatt hours over a period of nine subsequent years.

Thus another 7.5 billion American dollars will be leaving home.

Had we completed the two disputed Seabrook power plants we would have produced more than enough electricity for half that cost!

And we would have created thousands of American jobs.

And Energy Secretary Donald Hodel warns that buying electricity outside the United States will make us so dependent on that source that we will be forced in the future to pay any prices the Canadians demand.

New Brunswick is now contemplating building a whole new nuclear power plant, the total output of which they intend to sell to us.

Shame on us - and on the paranoid bureaucracy and the misguided fear-mongers who are thwarting our nation's independence.

Columbian missionary visits Hereford cousin

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

Returning to the United States for the first time in ten years from missionary work in Columbia, South America, to visit her cousin, Dianne Rowton, in Hereford was quite a shock for Tommie Cross.

"It was really a cultural shock coming back here after being gone so long," Cross said. "Little things shocked me like the tremendous selection of food and the modernization of the grocery store in my parent's town."

The greatest difference she saw in the U.S. was the change in morality.

"The standards seem to be so low now," she said. "All the commercials appeal to baser instincts. You just can't compare it with the purity and cleanliness of Christ's teachings."

Cross is a member of the Body of Christ church in Dallas. She attended the church for four years during which she learned about the mission in Columbia. She has been a missionary now for 12 years.

"I felt I had been called to mission work," Cross explained. "I knew God had a purpose for me and with that in mind, the hardships were of no importance to me."

The hardships that she spoke of stemmed primarily from Columbia's position as a Third World country. No modern conveniences or ease of travel may be found. To reach La Esperanza, the farm where she resides and which houses approximately 70 people, one must fly or ride the bus from Bogota, the capital, to Florencia. Next, a bus must be taken from Florencia to Solita over roads which many Americans would consider little more than trails through the mountains.

From Solita, a canoe ride awaits the individual for anywhere from one to two hours on the Caqueta River before reaching the mission farms which are along that river. The mission consists of 11 farms with a total of 500 people including 100 missionaries.

The farms do not have electricity or indoor plumbing, and the residents catch rain water to use for bathing and washing clothes. The community never lacks water because the farms are situated in southern Columbia in a tropical rain zone.

The missionaries have a three-fold purpose. First, they want to communicate Christ and allow the farmers to know Him on a personal basis. Second, they wish to improve the agriculture.

"We are reclaiming land from the jungle," Cross said. "We are cutting out the jungle and growing vegetables we were told would never grow there like tomatoes."

"The people are getting more nutrition from the crops which include greens, lettuce and cabbage."

No machinery is used. Horse-drawn equipment is all that is available.

The third purpose of the missionaries is to help educate the people. They have an English and Spanish school, and all the children are fluent in both languages. The farmers are taught English in night classes and many are just now being taught how to read and write in Spanish.

"We only have up to the eighth grade now," Cross explained. "But we're trying to start vocational training like mechanics and carpentry.

"For the women, we have courses in making dresses and men's pants. We also offer accounting and typing. Those may sound rather ridiculous but we don't know where the women will go and we are trying to prepare them for anything."

Her own preparation before going was most important to her. She has worked with Inter-Varsity at the University of Illinois for two years and was a student at a Bible institute for one year. For the four years she attended the Body of Christ she was deeply involved with studying the Bible. The result was Cross being "saturated with the Word of God."

Columbia is one of the few countries in South America that is democratic. The missions are incorporated with the government and the people have a good relationship with the government. The missionaries try, however, to not get involved in any political situations in the area.

"We have had guerrilla warfare in the area," Cross said, "but they haven't bothered the farms. It's kind of hard, though, when both sides storm through and demand to know who you're siding with."

A typical day for Cross begins about 5 a.m. with prayer and devotionals. At 6:30 a.m. she either works in the kitchen or teaches phonics. Breakfast begins at 8:30 a.m. After the morning meal, many of the women return to the kitchen to prepare for lunch. Afternoons bring free time to get caught up on washing or cleaning.

With evenings comes the opportunity to listen to tapes of speakers from various countries or to go and visit others.

"I like so much of it," she said, "that it's hard to say what I like best. I enjoy living with the people. I really love getting into the Word and teaching and preaching and seeing how they respond to it. It's exciting to see them take on responsibilities."

In her spare time, Cross enjoys studying the Bible and singing praise songs in a group. She also likes to illustrate the teachings in the Bible with pictures and diagrams.

"I think it makes the teaching stay with them better," she explained about the diagrams.

She also likes to read "good Christian literature."

Since moving to Columbia, she has seen some changes in herself.

"Entertainment is not a big deal to me now," she said. "Before I always wanted to go out and eat or go to parties. I'm also interested in basic foods rather than rich foods."

She says that being in Hereford has been an enriching experience. She was here for about a week, staying with Rowton whom she had not seen for 20 years. They began corresponding while Cross was in Columbia.

"I've met so many wonderful Christians who have really enriched my life," she said of Hereford residents.

While in the United States, she wants to study nutrition and find some "helpful hints" to take back with her to the mission. She has been in the States since Sept. 1.

A Feeling Of Oneness

Life was extremely rough on the early settlers' families. Grandma, grandpa, mom, dad, brothers and sisters all lived together in some very tight quarters.

There was little leisure time with each family member having to carry his or her full load of chores. Yet, family life was comfortable — and prosperous.

At our bank, we strive to generate that same Pioneering spirit of oneness. We want to make your banking experience with us as friendly and pleasant as possible.

When you bank with us, you'll know we've brought back that Pioneering spirit . . . the kind of dedication it takes to get the job done right.

At our bank, we're pioneering new ways of service and security for you and your entire family.

Country Christmas Bazaar scheduled

Westway Extension Club will sponsor their eighth annual Country Christmas Bazaar from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Community Center. Martha Rickman, bazaar chairman, explained that proceeds from this year's sale will be used for the 4-H bake and food show.

Items to be sold include Cabbage Patch doll clothes, cornhusk dolls, paintings, ceramics, woodworking, needlework, handmade rag dolls and hand-crafted jewelry. Also, for sale will be a variety of baked goods.

During the bazaar, members of the extension club will be serving tea and coffee and members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will be selling stuffed baked potatoes.

Ann Landers

Could be physical

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As soon as I read "Nutsy Nellie in Bakersfield's" letter, I just had to take the time to sit down and write to you.

I too have compulsive behavioral problems. I have a rare, little-known neurological disorder called Tourette's Syndrome. The onset of my symptoms began when I was 7 years old.

When the disorder first struck, I couldn't sit still. At times my head shook violently. Then my right arm or right leg would fly out. There was a time when I would feel an urge to choke myself or bite my arm. In the third grade I can remember writing a lesson or homework and randomly crossing out correctly spelled, perfectly written words. I frequently made uncontrollable grunting sounds that I learned to disguise by clearing my throat.

For years, my family searched for answers, only to be told my mother must have potty-trained me wrong and I needed psychiatric help. When I was 23, I read an article in Psychology Today magazine and made a telephone call to the Tourette Syndrome Association in Bayside, N.Y. I was referred to a doctor who knew what was wrong with me. I was diagnosed as having Tourette's Syndrome. It was a great relief to know I had a physical problem and that I was not a psychiatric case. I was put on medication that proved to be effective. Unfortunately, not all Tourette's Syndrome patients respond to medication as well as I did.

I can't possibly know if TS is the reason for Nellie's problem, but there are so many people (including doctors) who know very little about this disease, I felt compelled to write this letter, hoping it might help someone out there.

I was one of the lucky ones. I am now 30 years old, gainfully employed and live a normal life in spite of this mystifying disease. I still find myself struggling from time to time, but what was once an enormous problem is now a small one. Ann, I hope that you will print this letter, so that other unaware, misinformed TS victims can seek the help that has been available only for the past 10 years.—Grateful In New York

DEAR GRATEFUL: Another symptom of TS is the uncontrollable urge to shout obscene words in public. Several years ago when I spoke to a large audience in the Veterans hospital in Battle Creek, Mich., a young GI yelled out some four-letter words in the middle of my presentation. The officers in charge jumped up and began to drag the GI out of his seat and rush him from the auditorium, to reprimand him, no doubt.

I immediately spoke out on behalf of the young man and explained from the platform that he had an illness called Tourette's Syndrome. No one present had ever heard of it. I felt very good about being able to save him from being punished. I also educated a lot of people that day.

Those who want more information about this illness should write to the national headquarters of the Tourette Syndrome Association, 41-02 Bell Blvd., Bayside, N.Y. 11361. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting - What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Taking fretful kids out to supper is a sure-recipe for whining and dining.

Avocados

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for green avocados — unripe by about three weeks? — MRS. B.T.S.
DEAR MRS. B.T.S. — No, I really can't find any recipes using hard, unripe avocados. Perhaps that's because there's no real need for them. Avocados ripen readily at room temperature in your own home. Just let them sit out until they yield slightly when you press them gently. They will then have the rich, mellow avocado flavor that I and so many others love. Then just eat as is, use in salads, or use in your favorite avocado recipes. Unripe avocados, even if you needed to use them in this state, would not have the delicious flavor and luxurious texture of the fully ripened fruit. So please, just let them ripen and indulge yourself in delicious flavor! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — What is the best way to take the musty odor away from a davenport and carpeting? I've tried sprays, but they are not effective. — EVA
DEAR EVA — Sunshine is really the best way to remove musty odors. It does wonders with destroying mildew, too. If possible, move both sofa and rugs outside on a bright, windy day. Let them sit out all day in the sun, then move them indoors at night. Repeat for a couple of days if necessary. The fresh air and sunshine should dispel most of the musty odor eventually.

If you can't move the items outdoors (such as with installed carpeting), you might try baking soda. Sprinkle it liberally over the carpeting or the upholstery, let sit for 15 minutes, then vacuum off very thoroughly. Repeat if necessary.
I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Eliminating Household Odors," which has other ideas for dispelling objectionable odors of all kinds. Others who would like this newsletter should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — While my baby was learning to eat mashed bananas, she would only eat a very small portion. I would either have to eat the rest myself or let it turn brown. I discovered that you can peel whatever portion of the banana your child will eat, then the unpeeled portion can be put in a tightly closed plastic storage container in the refrigerator. The banana won't turn brown for a day and a half. — SUSAN

DEAR POLLY — To make cakes rise evenly, wrap a one-and-one-half-inch strip of wet terrycloth around the outside of the pan twice before baking. Pin in place. Bake the cake as usual. — MRS. C.H.

DEAR POLLY — If you have no mold for forming hamburgers, use canning-jar rings and lids. Use the wide-mouth style for jumbo burgers and the regular size for minis. Just put the lid in the ring, fill the cavity with seasoned meat, level off and press out.

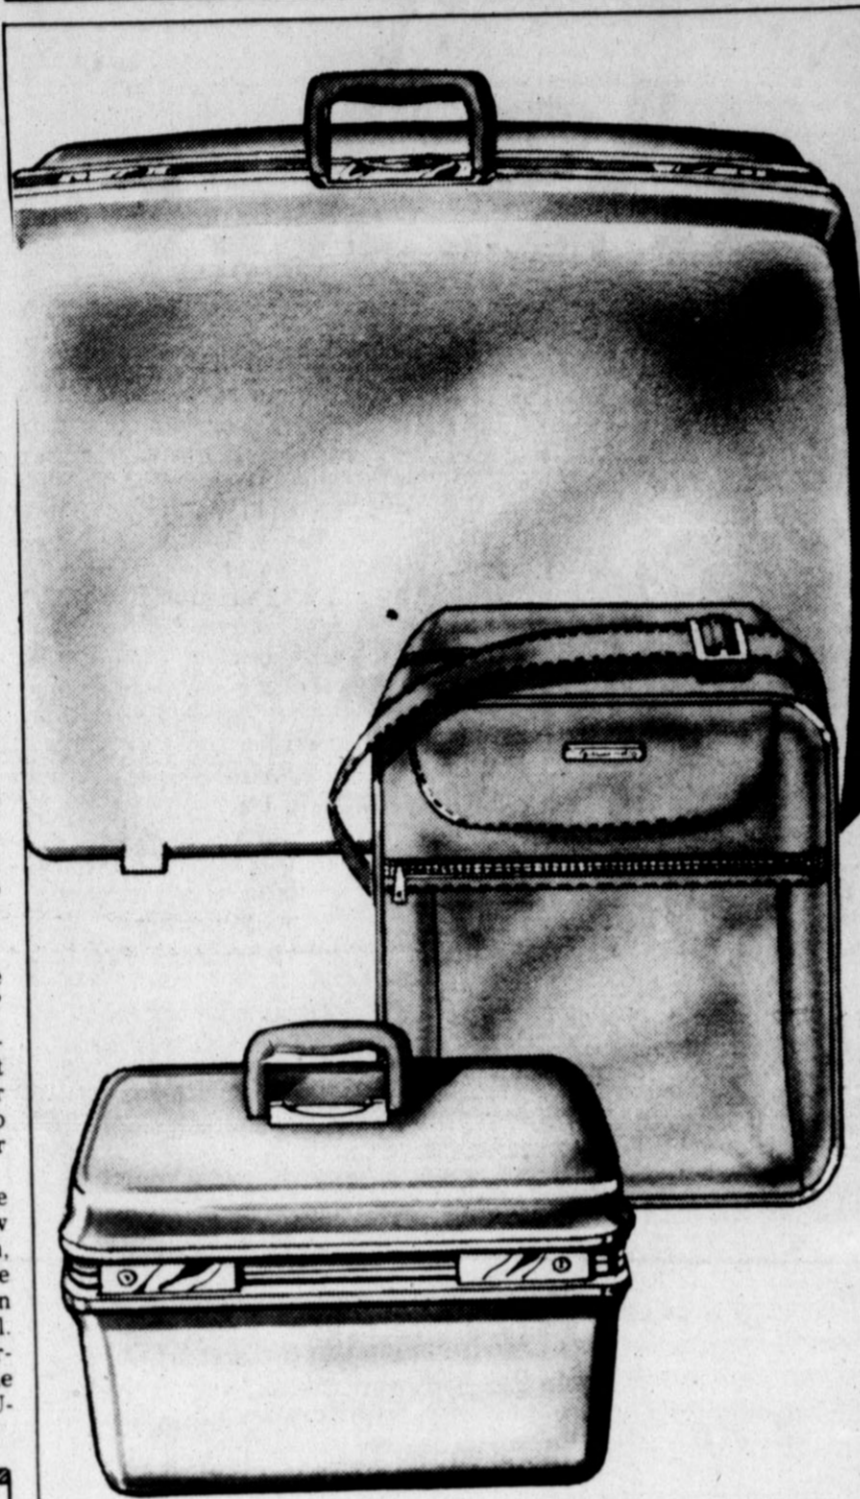

For a great cooling rack when baking, use a rack from the oven with a jar ring under each corner. — J.T.E.

DEAR POLLY — Do you have empty bottles around the house?

Here's how to make beautiful decorations out of them: Just rinse them out in hot water, then fill with cold water and a little food coloring. Put the top on tightly and shake to mix the color with the water.

For a cool treat, poke a hole in the top and bottom of an egg and blow out the egg. Rinse thoroughly. Then, put masking tape on the bottom hole to seal it. Mix any flavor of gelatin dessert and pour it into the eggshell. Set in the refrigerator in an egg carton until gelatin is firm. Remove the top of the eggshell and serve. — LAURA

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Ask doctor

DEAR DR LAMB — My husband suffers from congestive heart failure. He is under the care of a doctor who has prescribed Minipress, Digoxin, Dyazide and Transderm Nitro 5. His problem is with the Dyazide. The doctor has urged him to maintain a very low-sodium diet and to eat potassium-rich foods in abundance. We read that if you take Dyazide, you should not use potassium supplements or increase your intake of potassium-rich foods, such as bananas or orange juice. Also, that you should not reduce your salt intake, because the salt helps counter dehydration. We feel we need a third opinion and hate to mention this to our doctor. Can you clarify this matter for us?

DEAR READER — I wish you would talk to your doctor about it. Sometimes doctors learn things from their patients. And whenever anyone reads something that is at odds with what his doctor has told him, even if it is in my column, I think he should discuss it with his doctor. After all, you have asked your doctor to be in charge of your medical care.

Many diuretics do increase the loss of potassium. In these instances an increased intake of potassium rich foods is wise. But Dyazide is a combination of two diuretics — spironolactone, which may cause the body to retain potassium; and hydrochlorothiazide, which may cause the kidneys to eliminate too much potassium. The only way to know if a person taking Dyazide needs more potassium or not is by taking blood tests. Unless a low potassium level is demonstrated, it is not wise to try to increase the potassium level through excessive consumption of potassium-rich foods, which can cause too high a potassium level.

I do not agree that you should not reduce your sodium salt intake. The reason most diuretics are given is to help the kidneys eliminate sodium, since the elimination of sodium takes water with it. Some people do better with salt restriction than with diuretics to eliminate sodium salt.

To help you understand these problems, I am sending you The Health Letter 19-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Hereford boys triumph

Hoopsters win

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Some respond well to pressure, and others don't.

Tuesday night in the Hereford High School gym, the Levelland Lobos of District 1-4A played the role of the others. The Hereford Whitefaces used full-court pressure much of the night to turn around an early 10-4 deficit into a 77-61 boys basketball victory.

The game was the season opener for both teams.

The Whitefaces took the lead at the 1:56 mark of the first quarter and never relinquished it until Levelland's Jack Noles scored on a layup in the third period. But even then, the Lobos lead was short-lived.

Hereford coach Mike Fields agreed that the press was one of the major factors in the Herd win.

"Our press helped a lot in the win," he said. "It just wore them down, because the press lets a lot of kids play, and we can keep moving. Our guys coming off the bench really helped."

WTSU football coach resigns

CANYON, Texas (AP) — West Texas State University President Dr. Ed Roach says head football coach Don Davis has resigned his post effective Jan. 1.

Roach made the announcement Tuesday.

West Texas won only two games this season under Davis and his three-year record at the university was 6-26-1.

John Askins, sports information director, said university officials will begin an immediate search for a replacement.

"The new coach will require a special type of leadership skill due to the transition from Missouri Valley Conference to Lone Star Conference membership," Roach said in a news conference. "We are confident of finding the right person for the job."

Regents of WTSU voted recently to drop out of the Missouri Valley Conference in spring 1986 and begin playing in the LSC that fall.

"I did not want to outstay my welcome," said Davis, 44. "I have no bitter feelings toward West Texas State, I hope they succeed in the future."

"On behalf of the university, I wish to express my appreciation to coach Davis for his service to this institution," said Roach. "I wish him every success in his future endeavors."

Roach also said he had no "sharp differences" with Davis.

Athletic Director Ken Sawin was scheduled to work with recruiting until a new coach is hired.

In a 1972 American League game, the Haller brothers, Tom and Bill, made baseball history. Tom caught a game for the Detroit Tigers while Bill umpired behind home plate.

Even though the press was instrumental in giving the Whitefaces the lead early in the ball game, the press was the hammer that drove the last nail into the coffin of the Lobos. After Levelland had taken the lead at 46-44 with 3:47 to go in the third, the Herd outscored the Lobos 27-2 over the next 9:06 to lead 71-50 and put the game out of reach.

"Their press really did hurt us," Levelland coach Paul Dinkins said. "Hereford did a fine job of running it. They wore us down with it, and after awhile, we got tired and just started watching the game."

Hereford shot 45.9 percent (28 of 61) from the field for the night. In addition, the Whitefaces shooting from the foul line never let Levelland even think about getting back into the game. The Whitefaces hit 23 of 32 free throws for a 71.9-percent mark.

Levelland hit on 11 of 21 free tosses, but didn't even get into the 1-and-1 bonus situation the last half until 2:19 remained in the game.

Hereford entered the game as the much smaller team. Lee Brockman, a 6-2, probable starter, injured his ankle in Saturday's scrimmage with Canyon and did not suit out. Doug Watts, at 6-1, filled in for Brockman, but was outmanned height-wise by almost half-a-foot.

Watts and 6-2 Kevin Redus squared off against the 6-6 Noles and the 6-7 Mike Durham. Watts and Redus did a commendable job, though, holding Noles to only six points and Durham to 13.

For Hereford, sophomore Bobby Baker had the hot hand. The 6-3 post player, who by the way is the tallest member listed on the Whiteface team, connected on nine of 11 field goals and eight of nine free throws to finish with 26 points. Baker led all scorers, Durham and Ron Webb each scoring 13 for Levelland.

Blair Rogers had 10 points to be the only other Whiteface to get into double figures. Hereford's Daniel King and Mike Scott added nine and eight, respectively.

Other Whitefaces and their point production were: Rodney Torres, seven; Sammy Suarez, six; Watts, four; Redus, three; Mark Lomenick, two; and Dean Fuller, two.

The Whitefaces seemed untiring on the court, quickly turning Levelland turnovers into Hereford baskets.

"We were able to play every person on the team," Fields said. "Nobody got too tired."

"And you have to be able to shoot and press when you're small like we are. Also, if you're small, you'd better be able to shoot free throws."

The Whitefaces will next be in action Friday when they host the Dimmitt Bobcats in the HHS gym.

Pulling It Down

Hereford sophomore Bobby Baker pulls down a rebound from an errant Levelland shot in the Herd-Lobo game Tuesday night in the HHS gym. When not on the defensive end of the floor, Baker was scoring points for the Herd, 26 for the night, in the 77-61 Whiteface victory.

AL's best rookies

Seattle has top two

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Mariners, losers on the field and at the gate since the inception of the American League franchise in 1977, have a couple of winners in rookies Alvin Davis and Mark Langston.

On Tuesday, first baseman Davis was named American League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Langston, a left-handed pitcher, was runner-up in the voting.

Davis received 25 of the 28 first-place votes and 134 points to beat Langston, who had the other three first-place votes and 82 points. Davis and Langston were the only players named on all 28 ballots.

"It's a dream come true," Davis said Tuesday in a telephone conference call to Seattle from his home in Riverside, Calif. "This is really an exclamation mark to a fantastic experience and a fantastic season."

Davis, who started the 1984 season with Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League, set a Mariners' record with 116 runs batted in while batting .284 and belting a club-high 27 home runs.

Davis pointed out that Langston, also 24, had an outstanding season. Langston set a club record with 17 victories and led the AL in strikeouts with 204. He had a 17-10 record and a 3.40 earned run average.

Mariners' General Manager Hal Keller said, "I think it's a tribute to the scouting staff, and a tribute to our minor league instructors."

Both Davis and Langston were signed by Mariners' scout Bob Harrison.

They helped the Mariners to a 74-88 record for a tie for fifth place in the AL West, second-best record in the club's dismal history. Despite their presence, the Mariners failed to draw a million fans in the Kingdome for the sixth time in their eight AL seasons.

Outfielder Kirby Puckett of Minnesota finished third with 23 points and second baseman Tim Teufel of the Twins was fourth with five.

Also receiving votes were Baltimore outfielder Mike Young, 3; Boston pitcher Roger Clemens, 2; Kansas City pitcher Mark Gubicza, 1; Boston pitcher Al Nipper, 1; and California pitcher Ron Romanick, 1.

The rookie honor completed the BBWAA's postseason awards.

Pitcher Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets was named NL Rookie of the Year on Monday.

Hereford girls lose 45-25

Lobo's inside game too much

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Knowing people on the inside sometimes can get you places.

For the Levelland Lobos girls basketball team, knowing Sindy Lewis at her inside post position got the Levelland team a 42-25 victory at the Hereford High School gym Tuesday night.

Taking passes inside the lane from about two feet away from the bucket, Lewis pushed 14 points through the nets. Lewis had to be the bright spot in the Lobos meager 36.7-percent shooting effort.

But even the low 36-plus mark from the field was good enough. Hereford committed 14 turnovers, while canning 37.5 percent of the Whitefaces' field-goal attempts. Hereford coach Larry Sowers was disappointed in his team's performance and the loss.

"You know, when you think you've got a good team and lose your first game, it hurts a little. We shot very poorly, and you've got to make baskets to beat people.

"Part of our problem, of course, was the first-game jitters. But part of it was Levelland, too."

The Lobos made only five turnovers. Levelland coach Dean Weese, formerly at Wayland Baptist University, could only praise Lewis.

"She (Lewis) is only a junior," he said. "I think she will really come around and help us. We're very inexperienced, looking to get better. but Sindy did a good job for us."

The game would have had a different outcome had the contest ended at the end of the first period. The Whitefaces held a 9-6 lead after eight minutes of play, Darla Alford canning one basket, Natalie Sims hitting one, Stacie High one and Kim Williams one. Lori Niblet added a free throw in the period.

However, the Herd scored only 16 more points the final three quarters and the Lobos turned a relatively close game into a blowout.

Levelland grabbed the first four points of the second quarter on inside jumpers by Missy Etchison and Melissa Caviness. Hereford's inside game, on the other hand, suffered. Hereford's Shelly Edwards, a 5-11 junior, didn't score in the ball game. Sowers admitted the lack of a good inside game hurt.

"We didn't get very many shots off from our inside game," he said. "Levelland took advantage of our inside, both scoring and defending. I don't think Shelly took a shot.

"We have some people that can shoot the ball if they will."

Hereford was led by the scoring of Sims, a junior, with 12 points. Other whitefaces scoring were: Niblet, 5; High, four; Williams, two; and Alford, two.

The girls play again Friday against Dimmitt. The game is to be played in the HHS gym beginning at 6 p.m.

Swish!

Hereford High School basketball player Natalie Sims just releases a side shot for two points in Tuesday night basketball action in the HHS gym. Levelland's Missy Etchison is too late to get a hand in Sims' face. Sims led Hereford scoring with 12 points.

Landry needs spark

White to start Thursday

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP
Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Danny White once again is being called upon to rescue the floundering Dallas Cowboys.

The veteran White was the incumbent starting quarterback in training camp but lost the job to Gary Hogeboom. Three weeks ago, White regained the starting job, but Hogeboom got it back when White was hurt.

Now, Dallas Coach Tom Landry needs White again following a humiliating 14-3 loss to the Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

Landry said Tuesday that the Cowboys need someone to "spark us up."

And benching Hogeboom wasn't the only change Landry planned for the Cowboys' Thanksgiving Day National Football League game against New England in Texas Stadium.

Landry also tabbed Tim Newsome as the starting fullback over Ron Springs and said Doug Donley would replace Mike Renfro at flanker. Landry wouldn't go so far as to say White was the starter for the remainder of the Cowboys' regular season play.

"I have no idea what's going to happen next week. We'll just have to wait and see," Landry said. "Danny will do a good job directing the offense. He knows it so well."

Hogeboom has thrown twice as many interceptions, 14, as he has touchdown passes.

Despite their problems, the Cowboys are tied with Washington and the New York Giants atop the National Conference Eastern Division with 7-5 records. They are rated a 3-point favorite over the 8-4 Patriots, who have never beaten the Cowboys.

The Dallas-New England game will feature Patriot Coach Ray Berry going against his former teacher, Landry. Berry's first coaching position was as an assistant with the Cowboys in 1968-69.

Olympic champ

Retton-endorsed products selling big

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

"One more, Mary Lou ... Over here, Mary Lou ... Smile, Mary Lou."

Doing what comes naturally, gymnast Mary Lou Retton smiled. It was not the first time. It will not be the last.

The post-Olympic marketing of Mary Lou continues under the careful orchestration of her business manager, John Traetta.

You want to see Mary Lou? You see Traetta first. You want Mary Lou to endorse your product? Here's Traetta's card.

Retton tumbles. Traetta negotiates.

"The demands on her have been enormous," the business manager said. "We're being very selective."

Among those selected were Wheaties — "It seems strange, watching myself on the TV commercial," she said — and McDonald's Corporation, which has arranged for her to ride on its float in Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade. "I love parades," Mary Lou said, smiling. "I'm really excited about that."

Since she was in New York for the parade, it was convenient for Retton to pick up Southland Corporation's Olympia Award, a Greek amphora presented to honor her competitiveness and contribution to gymnastics.

Parades, breakfast cereal, hamburgers, amphoras. Sounds like a typical teen-ager's life. But Retton, 16, hardly fits the rest of the profile.

She is a junior in high school but does not attend classes. Her education is carried on strictly by correspondence courses arranged through the University of Missouri.

She dates, but only as much as her training program allows. And training is what she does with most of her time.

"I want to continue to compete," she said. "I feel I still have it in me. I can't say if I'll do it four more years. I'm taking it one year at a time."

And, Traetta said, one offer at a time.

Next fall you can look for a line of clothing from Dobbie Originals — "actionwear for young girls," Traetta called it — carrying Mary Lou's endorsement. She's also signed with Vidal Sassoon Cosmetics.

"We are trying not to oversaturate," Traetta explained. "We want to balance it with her training."

Mary Lou's winsome smile and diminutive size became something of a trademark for the Games. She was the stars and stripes all over. And she loved every moment of it.

"The patriotism throughout the country was incredible. I never saw so much red, white and blue in my life. The 1980 boycott hurt so bad and with the Games in this country, everybody was ready."

"I guess the fact that we had never had an American gymnast win an Olympic medal made it so much better."

HONDA ATC FOLLOW THE LEADER

A THREE-WHEELER FOR ALL REASONS

Nearly a decade and a half ago, Honda "invented" three wheeling with the ATC. We've been leading the way ever since. For 1984, the ATC line has been further refined and has grown even larger, ensuring that there's a machine for every type of activity whether it's recreational, utility, all-out racing or a convenient blend. There's also a Honda ATC for every level of riding ability from beginner to pro. So, if you're thinking three-wheeling, you needn't think any further than ATC's. You see, Honda just doesn't know how to rest on its laurels.

NBA roundup

New Kansas City coach tastes victory

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Guard Reggie Theus said the Kansas City Kings were faster. Center LaSalle Thompson said they were looser.

But most important, the scoreboard said they were winners.

The Kings, who started the season 1-8 under Coach Jack McKinney, played their first game under new Coach Phil Johnson Tuesday night and scored 22 points more than their National Basketball Association season average to defeat the Utah Jazz 129-122.

"I didn't feel as if I had a monkey on my back," said Johnson, who quit his job as a Jazz assistant coach to take over for McKinney after he resigned Sunday. "I came in 0-0; these guys had a 1-8 record. We added some things and took some things out. I wanted the players fired up, I wanted hand-slapping and cheering. They really wanted the win."

Eddie Johnson scored 25 points, Larry Drew 21 and Theus 20 to lead the Kansas City attack against the Jazz.

In other NBA games, it was Washington 120, Philadelphia 105; New York 106, Golden State 101; Dallas 109, Milwaukee 108; Houston 123, Detroit 117; Los Angeles Lakers 130, Phoenix 108; Portland 117, New Jersey 107 in overtime and Denver 124, Seattle 114.

Bullets 120, 76ers 105
Washington won its sixth straight decision by outscoring Philadelphia 48-28 in a 14-minute span of the second half.

The Bullets broke away from a 68-68 tie with 3½ minutes left in the third quarter to lead the 76ers 116-96 with 1:15 to go in the game.

Lakers 130, Suns 108
Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 29 points and 10 assists as Los Angeles, which started the season 3-5, tied Phoenix for first place in the Pacific Division with its fifth straight victory. The Lakers shot a season-high 67.8 percent from the field, hitting 59 of 87 shots.

Rockets 123, Pistons 117
Houston stayed in first place in the Midwest Division as Ralph Sampson had 28 points and 17 rebounds against Detroit.

Despite the Rockets' 65-47 rebounding advantage, the Pistons led 104-103 midway through the fourth period. But Sampson, who had 16 points in the fourth period, led Houston down the stretch.

Nuggets 124, SuperSonics 114
Denver won its sixth straight game to stay one-half game behind Houston in the Midwest.

The Nuggets got 25 points from Alex English and 23 from Calvin Natt against the SuperSonics, who were led by Tom Chambers with 21.

Trail Blazers 117, Nets 107
Portland outscored New Jersey 15-5 in overtime to pull within a half-game of first place in the Pacific Division.

The Trail Blazers trailed 102-98 with 10 seconds left in regulation before Kiki Vandeweghe, who led all scorers with 28 points, hit a jump shot and Clyde Drexler stole the ball and hit two free throws to force the overtime. A 9-0 Portland streak settled the game in the extra period.

Mavericks 109, Bucks 108
Dallas led by 16 points on five occasions, but had to hold on at the end to beat Milwaukee.

The Mavericks, who got 24 points from Mark Aguirre, took the lead for good at 100-98 with 1:36 left on a basket by Rolando Blackman.

Knicks 106, Warriors 101

Hall of famer

Andrew "Rube" Foster was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1981. He was one of the best Negro League managers and one of the league's top pitchers, hurling for the Cuban and Philadelphia Giants. He was general manager and field manager of the Chicago American Giants and he organized the Negro National League, stabilizing Negro baseball for the first time.

Bernard King scored 28 points and New York got season-high totals from Butch Carter, Pat Cummings and Darrell Walker to outlast Golden State. King is averaging nearly 30 points per game, while no one else on the team is netting more than 13.

Christmas Card Sale

Rachel Quintana, president of Future Teachers of America, is shown with the Christmas cards and poster advertising the Christmas card sale the group is sponsoring to raise money for Cancer Support, a non-profit organization. FTA members will sell the cards during the Neiman-

Marcus Fun Breakfast Thursday in the Community Center from 6:30 to 8 a.m. sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Anyone wishing to buy cards at another time may call Carolyn Cook at the high school at 364-0617 through Dec. 20.

Christmas fund established by group

A special Christmas for foster children is being planned by the Golden Spread Foster Parent's Association of Castro, Deaf Smith, Parmer and Oldham Counties. A Foster Children's Christmas

Fund has been established at the Hereford State Bank. Money donated will be used to help purchase toys and needed clothing for foster children.

All donations to the non-profit organization are tax deductible. An individual or group wishing to help by giving funds may send them to the Christmas chairperson, 137 Ave. B., Hereford, or to the Deaf Smith County chairperson, Nancy Mata, 901 Schley.

Donations may also be made at the Hereford State Bank to the Golden Spread Foster Parent's Christmas Fund, P.O. Box 272, Hereford. The deadline for donations is Dec. 3.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 28, the 333rd day of 1984. There are 33 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 28, 1942, nearly 500 people died in a fire that destroyed the Coconut Grove nightclub in Boston. The victims included a couple married just three hours earlier, cowboy movie star Buck Jones and 22 members of a party celebrating an engagement. The cause of the fire was never officially determined, though many blamed a busboy who survived the blaze.

On this date: In 1520, Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan reached the Pacific Ocean after passing through the South American strait that now bears his name.

In 1895, the first automobile race was held, over 52 miles of snowy roads from Chicago to Waukegan, Ill. The winner was James Franklin Duryea, who won $2,000 dollars from the Chicago Times-Herald.

In 1919, American-born Lady Astor was elected the first woman member of the British Parliament.

In 1922, Captain Cyril Turner of the Royal Air Force gave the first skywriting exhibition, over New York's Times Square. Turner spelled out, "Hello USA. Call Vanderbilt 7200." Some 47,000 calls resulted.

In 1929, Lt. Cmdr. Richard E. Byrd took off from his Antarctica base on a flight that would take him over the South Pole.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin met in Tehran to map out World War II strategy.

In 1958, the African nation of Chad became an autonomous republic within the French community.

In 1964, the United States launched the space probe Mariner IV from Cape Kennedy on a course set for Mars.

Ten years ago: Meeting with Chinese leaders in Peking, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told his hosts he had achieved a "better understanding" of their viewpoint, which he said the United States would take into account in conducting foreign policy.

Five years ago: In a nationally broadcast news conference, President Jimmy Carter warned of "grave consequences" should any of the hostages in Tehran be harmed. And he said the United States would "never yield to blackmail."

One year ago: The space shuttle Columbia blasted off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., carrying a six-man crew and a European-built space research laboratory.

Today's birthdays: Actress Hope Lange is 51. Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., is 47. Singer Randy Newman is 40.

Thought for today: "The passion for setting people right is in itself an afflictive disease." — Marianne Moore, poet (1887-1972)

Reagan simplistic in his view

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — President Reagan is ill-informed about the state of world affairs and he should call on former U.S. diplomat Henry Kissinger to shed some light on the matter, Trinity University professor John Stoessinger says.

Stoessinger, the author of ten textbooks on international affairs and writer of an "intellectual biography" of Kissinger, said Reagan "tends to surround himself with people who are very much in his image."

"He sees things in terms of black and white," Stoessinger said. "It's almost as if for Reagan, Joseph Stalin has never died."

Stoessinger, who has lectured extensively on world affairs throughout the nation and abroad, wrote a paper a few months ago expressing fear Reagan's confrontational attitude would push the nation toward nuclear war.

But since then, Stoessinger said, the president has softened his stance. "Reagan has his eye on the history books. He doesn't want to go down as a confrontational president," Stoessinger speculated.

"I think he sensed (during the election) the American public feels he's too confrontational with the Soviets," he said. "He's an actor. When he loses his audience he naturally retreats."

Stoessinger cited the troop withdrawal in Lebanon as an example. The president might be hesitant to call on Kissinger, Stoessinger said, because Reagan might perceive the diplomat as a liberal. The president also might have fears of being upstaged by Kissinger.

But the administration, Stoessinger said, badly needs the intellectual depth that Kissinger can provide. Stoessinger has known Kissinger for 30 years, ever since they were classmates at Harvard.

Stoessinger earned his doctorate there in 1954, seven years after he immigrated to the United States from China.

He and his mother had fled their home in Vienna, Austria, when he was 14, fearing Hitler's anti-Jewish policies.

They stayed three years in Czechoslovakia before migrating through Siberia to China and settling in a Jewish ghetto in Japanese-occupied Shanghai.

After the war, Stoessinger stayed in Shanghai two years while he worked for the International Refugee Organization.

He became an aide to an American lieutenant, who told Stoessinger of his alma mater Grinnell College in Grinnell, Iowa.

A short time later, Stoessinger set sail on an American ship, bound for Grinnell, where in three years he obtained a degree.

He became an American citizen in 1960 and from 1967 to 1974 was director of the political affairs division of the United Nations secretariat.

He was also a political science professor at the City University of New York.

But last year, after 25 years at the university, he decided he had "had enough of New York. It's a very harsh place."

So he accepted an offer at Trinity. He lectures extensively, offering a dozen speech topics ranging from "Can Peace Survive The Eighties?" to "Doing Business With China."

Stoessinger also spends considerable time updating the many books he has written.

An expert in international trade, he advises such companies as IBM, Phillip-Morris and Westin Hotels. He also has been an advisor to President Kennedy and to Vice President George Bush.

"I didn't deal with Lyndon Johnson because I didn't agree with the Vietnam War," he said.

Despite his criticisms of the current administration, Stoessinger says he is a very patriotic American.

"I don't equate patriotism with missiles," he said, adding that being an immigrant intensifies his loyalties to the United States. "I'm old enough to remember Hitler, Stalin and Mao Tse Tung. Sometimes you have to be an immigrant to appreciate America," he said.

Man convicted for part in packax slayings

HOUSTON (AP) — Jurors who convicted a Houston man of capital murder in the slaying of a woman hacked to death with a pickax may have considered a secretly made recording of the strongest piece of evidence, a prosecutor said.

Daniel R. Garrett, 38, was convicted Tuesday in the death of Deborah Ruth Davis Thornton, 32. The jury was to reconvene today to decide whether he should be executed or spend his life in prison.

Prosecutor Charley Davidson said the crucial evidence may have been a recording made by Garrett's 37-year-old brother, Douglas. Davidson said jurors asked to have the tape brought into their room during deliberations.

Douglas Garrett told police his brother was involved in the killings and agreed to be wired for sound.

The result was a tape of a conversation between the two brothers and Karla Faye Tucker, who has already been sentenced to die for killing Ms. Thornton's overnight guest, 26-year-old Jerry Lynn Dean. The two were killed in June 1983.

During the recorded conversation, the Garretts and Ms. Tucker discussed details of the killings. At one point, Douglas Garrett asked his brother if the victims were asleep when they were killed. Daniel responded, "The guy woke up. The girl started waking up. I told her to stick her head under the covers."

Daniel Garrett's attorney, Ray

Bass, said he was "shocked and disappointed" by the verdict.

"We thought we had a chance. Obviously the jury saw it differently," he said.

Assistant District Attorney Rusty Hardin said he would ask jurors to sentence Garrett to death by injection because "his behavior deserves it."

Prosecutors claimed Garrett and Ms. Tucker went to Dean's apartment to steal his motorcycle. Ms. Tucker testified as a prosecution witness that Garrett struck Dean with a hammer and left the room, and she then hit Dean with a pickax to stop him from gurgling.

First mother-in-law helps with holiday meal

AUSTIN (AP) — The governor's mother-in-law is in town for Thanksgiving and that means the governor's chef has an able and willing extra pair of hands in the kitchen.

Lola Thompson of Irving came with her suitcase, a cornbread dressing recipe and turnip greens from her garden.

"Mark loves them so," she said of Gov. Mark White's penchant for greens.

Mrs. Thompson, whose peanut brittle has become a favorite on Neiman-Marcus' shelves, planned to spend the morning in the Governors' Mansion kitchen helping prepare the holiday meal.

"I'm going to do the cornbread dressing — with lots of celery, onion and sage," said Mrs. Thompson, mother of first lady Linda Gale White.

"I'm not a better cook than anyone else," she said during a recent trip here to deliver 300 pounds of her peanut brittle to the Austin Junior League.

But 10-year-old granddaughter Elizabeth White disagrees with her grandmother's assessment of her own cooking. Elizabeth says grandma's cornbread dressing is the holiday meal highlight.

The mansion menu includes fresh green beans, homemade cranberry sauce, candied sweet potatoes "the old-timey way" and giblet gravy rich with chopped hard-boiled eggs, according to Mrs. Thompson, 70.

Homemade rolls now play second fiddle to dressing, she said.

"My husband used to make the rolls. He was a baker, by trade, when we married," she said of spouse Robert, a retired cafeteria manager.

The dressing is cooked in a pan and made with the broth of a baking hen.

"Linda Gale does a pretty good job of making dressing, too. She's a good cook, but she's been so busy she hasn't had much time lately," said Mrs. Thompson.

When the Whites spend the holiday at the Thompson home, "Linda Gale and her daddy usually do the turkey, basting it along. It browns real pretty," she said.

This year the turkey is in the hands of mansion chef Larry Adams. Mrs. Thompson will play sous chef, using a recipe she's had for 25 years to bake a coconut pecan pie.

"This Thanksgiving we are going to have a pumpkin pie, too, because (grandson) Wells asked for it. If I were making it I would do sweet potato pie. I prefer that to pumpkin," said Mrs. Thompson.

The holiday visit for the Thompsons will be brief. On Friday, they return to Irving and the peanut brittle business which keeps them busy this time of year.

"I started doing it as a hobby — for Christmas gifts," said Mrs. Thompson, who worked in a candy factory 50 years ago.

"That's where I learned the secret to good peanut brittle. It needs to cool off real fast. The art of my peanut brittle is a marble slab, greased with Pam," she said.

About 10 years ago a friend suggested she sell her popular peanut brittle at Neiman-Marcus. After converting one of her rooms in her house to a brittle factory, Mrs. Thompson made as many as 1,000 pounds in one season.

"We don't do that anymore. We still give it as gifts. ark gives it a lot. I have a doctor in Dallas who, for five or six years, has been giving it to his friends. They ask for it every year," she said.

Tame turkeys delicious but dumb

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The turkey you eat this Thanksgiving may be delicious, but Texas A&M University scientists say that when it was alive it was one of the dumbest creatures on Earth.

That's not all. Left to its own devices, the animal would almost certainly become extinct. Tame turkeys cannot breed without help.

Farm turkeys, unlike their wild relatives, are among the idiots of the animal kingdom. Young birds, or poults, are literally too dumb to come in out of the rain.

"Some poults have been so amazed during heavy rains that they stood still and gazed at the sky until they drowned," said William O. Cawley, a Texas A&M poultry expert.

And stupidity is only one failing.

David B. Mellor of Texas A&M said that generations of breeding have given male turkeys such heavy breasts they "now are simply too heavy to breed by themselves."

The breast meat is so thick it prevents the male from achieving a natural union with a female. So breeders must remove sperm from the male and artificially fertilize developing eggs inside the female bird.

As one might expect, a bird that neglects to breathe air when given an opportunity to inhale water is capable of extraordinary acts of foolishness.

For instance, Cawley said, poults "are so inquisitive that if you leave an empty bucket in their pen they'll all climb in until the bucket fills up. The ones at the bottom could smother."

Their gregarious natures do not stop there.

A turkey placed by itself in a pen next to an area holding the rest of the flock will "run up and down the fence line until it is exhausted."

"And if you upset a flock of turkeys, they may all pile up on one another, which has led to fatalities," Cawley added.

Volleyball, invented in 1895, was first played by hitting a basketball over a rope and was originally called Mintonette.

Buying guidelines for crabmeat

COLLEGE STATION -- Blue crabmeat season is here, and many Texans will want to enjoy this delicacy--especially around the holidays. But, like any other perishable food, care must be taken to select high quality crabmeat in order to avoid a food-borne illness, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service seafood specialist.

Crabmeat is highly perishable and is frequently eaten as purchased without further cooking or other processing which would kill any contaminating bacteria present, says Annette Redell Hegen. The meat is moist and high in protein which makes it an ideal growth material for bacteria. "That's why it's so important that blue crabmeat be processed and handled safely, from cooking to final consumer use," she adds.

Buy crabmeat only from reputable and licensed dealers, emphasizes Hegen. According to law, no person can operate a plant or place of business engaged in handling and packaging shellfish without a valid certificate issued by the State Commissioner of Health, she notes.

Also, make sure the container is permanently and legibly marked with the words "Perishable--Keep Under Refrigeration," advises the specialist. Containers should bear a code indicating the day of processing and the name of the picking plant.

"Beware of crabmeat in unmarked containers," she says, "since it may have been cooked, picked and packed under unclean conditions, at two low temperature for too short a time."

Crabmeat packaged under a label containing a license number and properly stored and displayed, should cause no worries for consumers. These licensed products, processed under state surveillance, make it possible for consumers to enjoy one of the best delicacies from Texas waters, Hegen points out.

Texas license numbers consist of the state abbreviation and a number such as TX 987C or TX 654CP. Without this number, consumers have no assurance of the sanitary quality or safety of the product, she adds.

El Llano Study Club members hears glass etching program

The El Llano Study Club met with Karen Abney Monday with Leona Kimball as assistant hostess.

Kathy Johnson, president, was in charge of business. The club voted to give a contribution to the United fund and plans were discussed for a Christmas party to be Dec. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

A program on glass etching was given by Elaine McNutt, the 'guest speaker. She brought several pieces that she had made including name plates, a door that she had etched around the edge, and family trees with the names of the family and birth dates etched on the glass.

Two new members were welcomed, Alice Eades and Mary Ann Nunnally. Christa Arney was welcomed as a guest.

Members present were Zula Arney, Johnson, Jean Ballard, Roberta Caviness, Elizabeth Cesar, Jane Coplin, Billie Farr, Delores Foster, Ursalee Jacobsen, Rhonda Wagner, Donna Warrick, Avis White, Opal Bookout, Nunnally, Eades and the hostesses.

According to the requirements of the early American republic, less than 5 percent of the present U.S. population would be eligible to vote.

"You always do your part to help out with the church."—Lucy Kirksey. She, however, has done more than her part.

Kirksey has worked in the First Baptist Church since she and her husband moved to Hereford in 1942. At one time she worked with a Mexican Sunday School class before the Mexican church was completed.

"I taught out of the church bus," she said. "It was the only place at the time where there was room."

The next class she taught was in the Beginner Department. With this job, she was the Sunday School teacher for four and five year olds.

"I enjoy little children," she said, "and since our daughter had moved away I didn't have any children close."

"Children are easier to work with than adults, they just love you and want to do what you want them to do. I liked working with them because I loved them."

And her work easily supports her words. She seems to have worked with children all of her life.

After working with the beginners, Kirksey decided to go back to Sunday School herself. Before long, however, workers were needed in the Intermediate Department and so she started working there. In this area, she taught 13-year-old girls.

Soon, she became a volunteer and worked in the nursery whenever she was needed.

"It was when the main woman quit that I started working in the nursery," Kirksey explained.

And for the next 20 years, she faithfully worked with the very young.

"It's hard to get anyone to work with the little ones, but you can teach them as they grow to love God and learn more about God," she said. "I think it is the most important job in the church."

Last September, Kirksey retired from her service to the nursery. She did not, however, stop participating in church activities.

"Church is one of the main things in our life," she said. "Church has always been important to us. I enjoyed working at the church because I never wanted to work away from home while my child was growing up."

She has been important to the church, too, as the congregation demonstrated with a reception they hosted specifically for her in September. She was given a leather-bound Bible with her name in gold, and a scrapbook from the children and their mothers.

"The mothers put the children's pictures in it and some of the kids drew pictures to go inside," she said. "I really appreciate the church doing that for me. It was an honor for people to come and tell me that they appreciated my working with their children."

With her "retirement," she now has time to enjoy her own Sunday School class. She is also a chairman in the Women's Missionary Union.

In some of the free time she now has, Kirksey and her husband, Jack, plan to make some trips either to visit relatives or just to "see what we want to see." In October, they went to the World's Fair with a Trailways Tour group.

"We were gone 10 days and had 38 people go," she said. "Two years ago we went to the World's Fair in Tennessee and enjoyed it so much."

Being at home now is not boring for the lady who stressed that she "likes to go."

"I can always find something to do even if it's working in the yard," she laughed. "I'm still staying active. I don't seem to have too much spare time."

She enjoys sewing and likes to watch sports with her husband.

"I started sewing when I had my daughter. Now I just make blouses and slacks for myself," she said.

"I also used to fish with Jack," she added. "but now when we go on trips to fish, I hike, hunt for rocks and take pictures."

At one time, Kirksey was involved with the Garden Club and the Child Study Club.

Her husband is a Deacon at First Baptist Church and works in the office on Sunday morning. He also regulates the heating and cooling for the church. At one time, he was the Sunday School superintendent.

"Jack says that he's semi-retired from the carpenter business," she said. "He still likes to do smaller jobs that don't take a long time to complete. He remodeled our home and has built quite a few homes in Hereford and surrounding communities."

He enjoys fishing and all sports. He, too, "likes to go."

The couple has one daughter, Wanda, living in Englewood, Calif. She has two children, Nathan, 19, and Lara, 15.

Additionally, Kirksey loves to can and freeze. She enjoys collecting recipes which she puts in her library of recipes.

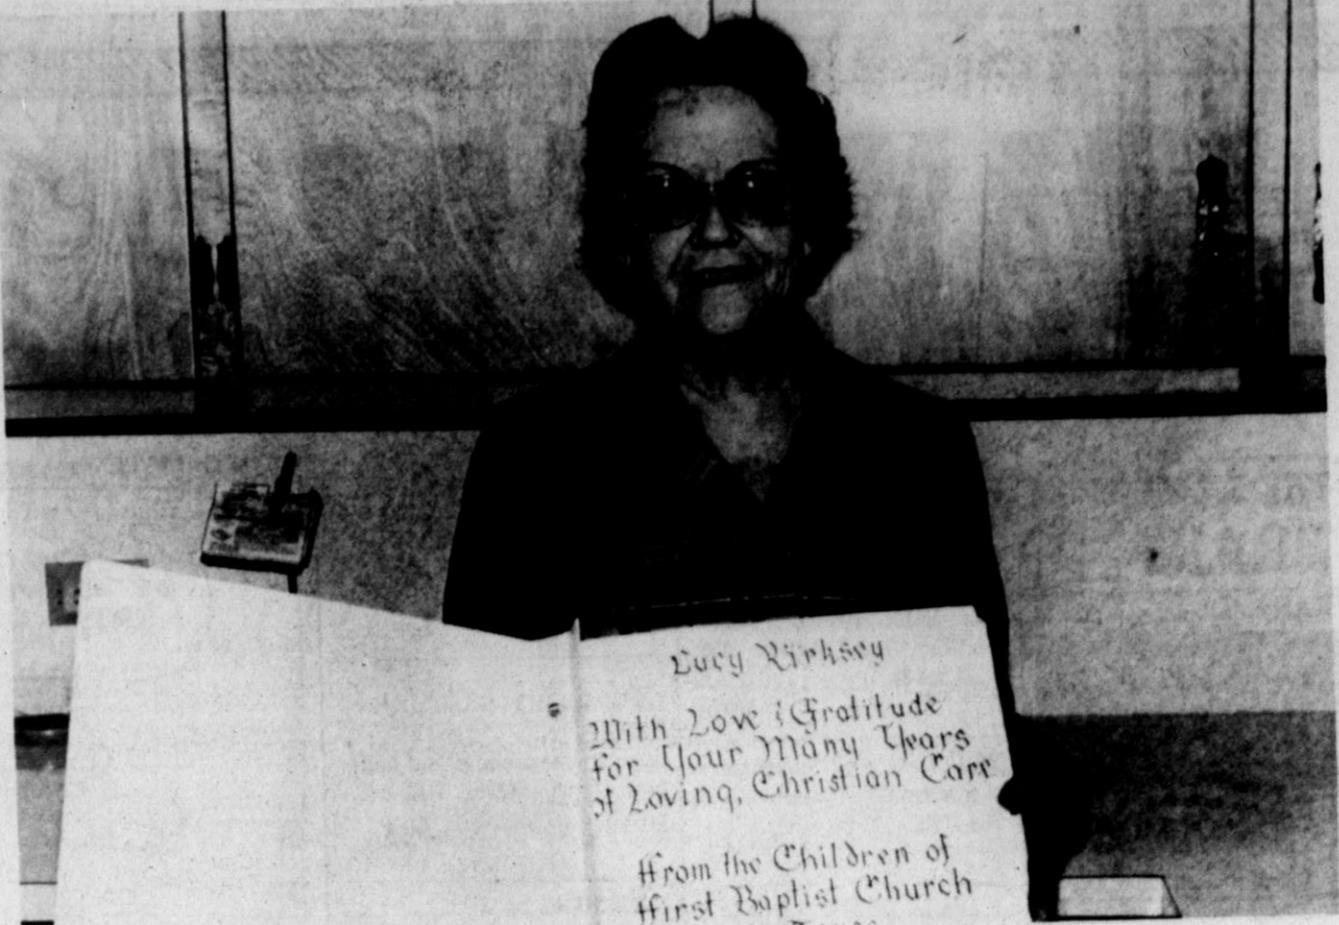

"I don't like to cook as much now as I did," she admitted, "but every once in a while I'll try a new recipe on my husband."

The recipes she shared are some that have been in the family a long time. The pineapple cheese salad is good with meat.

CHICKEN PIE

- 1 chicken
- 1 C stewed carrots
- 1 C english peas
- 1 jar pimiento peppers
- onion, enough to flavor
- salt and pepper, to taste
- canned biscuits

Stew chicken and bone. Place chicken in a baking dish. Slightly thicken the stock and pour over the chicken. Add carrots and peas. Cut up pimiento pepper and add onion.

Killeen man traces his unit's war route

KILLEEN, Texas (AP) — Killeen artist John Carter this autumn traded his M-1 rifle for a pad and pencil.
Carter, a World War II veteran, went to Reforger '84 military exercises in West Germany as the "Tiger artist" for the 1st "Tiger" Brigade, 2nd Armored Division.
The Texan, who held the House-designated title of state artist for one year, donned a camouflage uniform and went to Reforger at the invitation of former 2nd Armored commander, Maj. Gen. John Woodmansee, and Tiger Brigade commander Col. Ben Covington III.
Following the Tiger Brigade across Germany, Carter sketched and painted his way along almost the same route he fought over in World War II with the 3rd Battalion, 334th Infantry Regiment of the 84th Infantry Division.

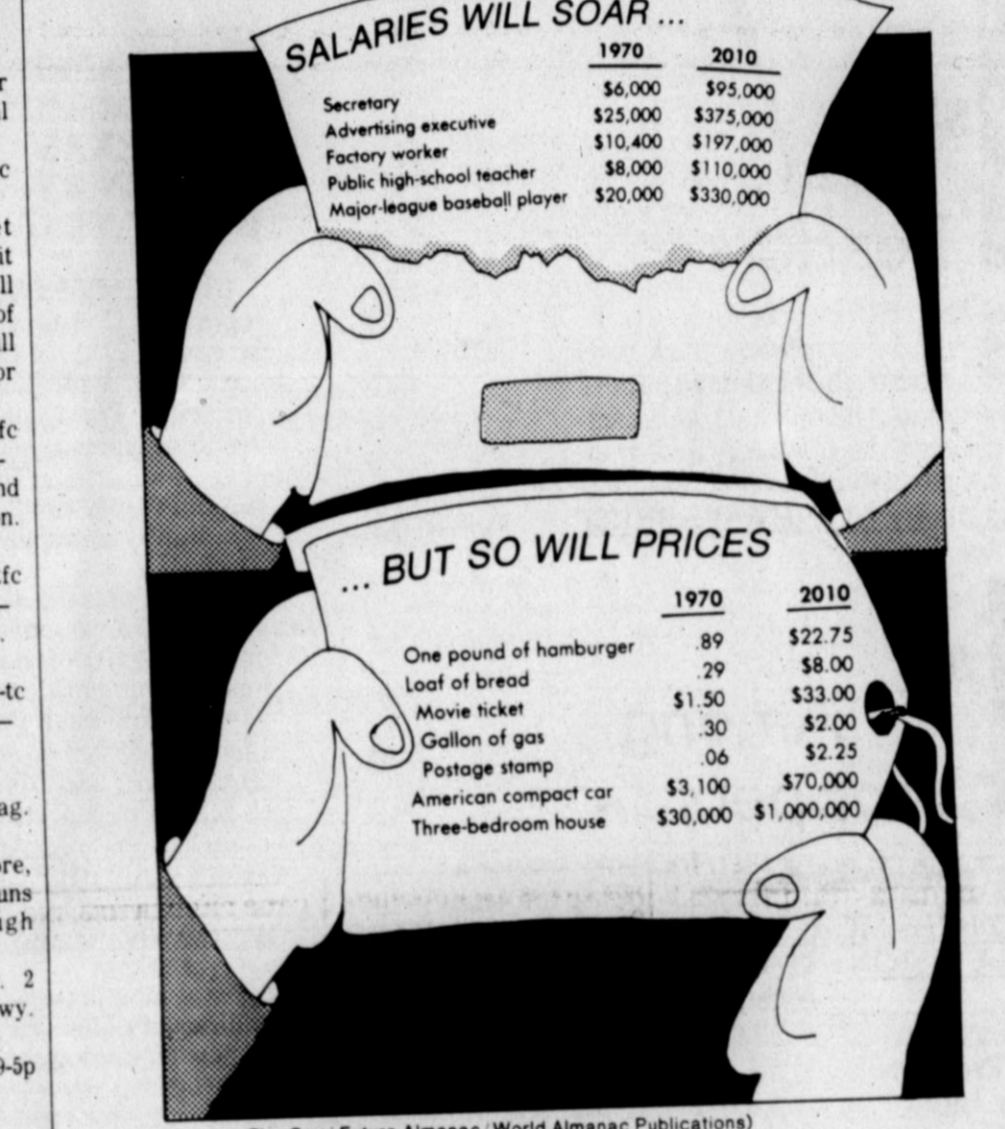

Forerunners of newspapers in Roman times were written newsletters sent by Roman scribes to businessmen and politicians in cities far from the center of the empire.

All along the route, he saw familiar towns and places, summoning back memories of those hard-fought days.
He recalled moving into a German farmhouse along the route.
"A German division moved in on the back side of a snow-covered hill not far away. We hit them with an artillery strike from the corps' 8-inch guns. There were a lot of dead men up there."
Not far away, Carter came face-to-face with a German tank and took a shot at it with a bazooka.
"The round hit the tank and bounced it up into the air. I never saw it come back down. I was 500 yards down the road by then."
Driving down the highway en route to the brigade's staging areas, roadside signs prompted more memories. Carter reminisced about the town of Mors.
"That's where the first sergeant was killed," he said.
"We had moved into a three-story house. It was square with an open stable in it. We established a perimeter defense. The Germans were retreating but we overran some of their positions. They were moving back past us and dropped a mortar round through the roof."
"We had dead and wounded all over the place. We made a hospital on the ground floor."
"I was upstairs on the third floor in our headquarters area. At one point we were dropping hand grenades out the windows. I've never spent a more exhausting or fearful 24 hours."
"Someone said, 'Go find Sgt. Deck.' Arty Blinko and I followed 1st Sgt. Joseph B. Eisenhower downstairs. The first sergeant shoved the door open just as two mortar rounds hit outside."
"The mortar rounds killed the first sergeant and Staff Sgt. Leon H. Deck, who was at the bottom of the steps in his radio Jeep. Blinko and I were thrown back by the force of the explosion and were showered with broken glass."
Another road sign was spotted and another memory unearthed.
"Duisberg! That town was on fire. We went through it in 2 1/2-ton trucks. We were worried about falling shards setting the trucks on fire."
A military convoy reminded the artist of another convoy, long ago.

"We were trucked back during the Battle of the Bulge. It was snowing and we huddled under our ponchos in the back of the truck and tried to sleep. When we got to our destination, we were covered with mounds of snow."
"When they tried to get us out of the trucks we wouldn't budge. We all pretended to be sleeping. Finally, the company commander came out and took us in one by one. He brushed the snow off us and talked to us to get us to move."
With the eye and the mind of an artist, Carter carries crystal-clear pictures of vivid scenes in his memory.
"There was a church near here," he said. He began to sketch rapidly.
"It had been torn apart and the rafters were exposed to the sky. There was a graveyard in front of it and a large shell or bomb had made a crater and exposed some of the caskets." As he spoke he sketched in the details of the scene.
With his words and the sketch, he peeled away 40 years and carried his listener back with him to the days of World War II.
"I'd like to go see that church again," he said.
Unfortunately, there wasn't time. He had to carry on with his mission of producing a graphic record of the 1st Brigade's Reforger experience.
At another time during the Reforger exercise, a shower point for the troops was being discussed. That triggered another wartime memory.
"I remember diving into a shell crater one time," Carter said, "and there was a dead man already in it. It was two weeks before I got a chance to shower!"
While in Germany, Carter produced more than 50 sketches and six paintings. Two of the paintings were presented as mementos to the German and British forces participating in Reforger. The rest will provide a unique record of the brigade's participation.

State demands refunds, threatens lawsuits

AUSTIN (AP) — Those who sold annuities of the now bankrupt Baldwin-United Corp. have been told to make full refunds to customers or face a class action lawsuit.
In seeking the refunds, Attorney General Jim Mattox said Tuesday that 25,000 or more Texans spent millions of dollars on the annuities, sales of which violated state laws because of "false, misleading, deceptive, unconscionable and unfair acts."
Mailing letters to 458 individuals, insurance agencies and brokerage firms, Mattox asked for refunds of the full amount each consumer paid, plus 12 percent interest.
Should refunds not be made within 30 days, Mattox said, he will file a class action lawsuit "against those who do not respond appropriately."
Officials estimated that between 25,000 and 35,000 Texans, most at or near retirement age, purchased the annuities through two Baldwin-United insurance companies to provide for their retirement.
The total amount invested by Texans, including the accumulated interest, could reach $500 million, Mattox said.
"The annuities were marketed in a manner that led consumers to believe the investments were safe and involved no risk. In reality, however, they could not have been safe because of two important reasons," Mattox said.
"First of all, Baldwin-United was draining reserves from the sale of the annuities. Second, the policies were actuarially unsound because the companies were obligated to pay out more than they were taking in. Had consumers sought to cash in their policies, it would have been impossible because sufficient monies were not there," Mattox said.
Mattox said sales practices used violated state consumer and insurance laws and rules of the State Board of Insurance.

The insurance companies which issued the annuities are National Investors Life Insurance Co. in Arkansas and University Life Insurance of America in Indiana. Both are Baldwin-United subsidiaries, and both were put into rehabilitation in their home states prior to Baldwin-United filing for bankruptcy last year.
Mattox said that state officials, along with the National Association of Attorneys General and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, have sought for eight months to negotiate a settlement in the case.
Mattox said the annuities were sold in Texas by at least the 458 individuals and firms receiving his letters.
"These brokers were getting 4 1/2 percent commission on these sales while the consumers weren't getting anything but headaches," Mattox said.
The attorney general said that the Baldwin-United situation appears to be one "in which innocent consumers through the investment of their life savings, Uncle Sam through tax write-offs for the companies and the state of Texas through its Guaranty Fund, are footing the bill for the gamble."
Mattox said the cost could run between $75 and $110 million over the next 10 years through the state's health, accident and life guaranty fund, which is made up of pro-rated assessments to all those who sell annuities in the state.

Perot praises state officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — When people ask him how to go about revamping their state's public education system like Texas did, the first thing H. Ross Perot asks them is how much heat their governor is willing to take.
The Dallas businessman was asked by Gov. Mark White last year to head the Select Committee on Public Education. The committee's major recommendations were approved in a special session of the Legislature this year. The program necessitated the first increase in Texas taxes in 13 years.
Perot, who recently sold his computer company to General Motors for $2.5 billion, addressed a luncheon of the National Press Club on Tuesday and gave advice to people in other states who might want to seek similar school reforms.
The first thing he asks when they call is, "Do you have a governor who's tough enough to take the heat?" He asks the same thing about their lieutenant governor, speaker of the house and controller, Perot said.

"If any of these people ever blink in the middle of the fight, you're going to lose, and lose hard," he said.
"In Texas we were fortunate enough to have four people (White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and Comptroller Bob Bullock) who were tough as nails. They never blinked, never faltered. And on those really, really bad days when all you could see was the Indians and you wondered if the cavalry even existed any more, they were right there, ramming this program through."
He praised Bullock for getting so involved in constructing the equalization program that Bullock "sacrificed his ability to run for governor and withdrew from the race, but he did it for a lot of little kids in Texas nobody represents."
Bullock had said he planned to run against White in 1986.
Above all, Perot advised, "Never compromise."
"If the child is not going to get the maximum benefit, who wants it?" he said. If all else fails, Perot recommended, threaten to seek "vouchers for the poor" to get good private education. He guaranteed legislators would shrink from the thought.
The most important aspect of school reform is equalization of school funding, Perot said.
If states don't do it themselves, he said, "It's just a matter of time before our courts give us 'Integration II,' and that's equalization."
During a question-and-answer session after his speech, Perot told the Washington-oriented group that he was not a candidate for Secretary of Education, and would never be a candidate for elected office.
"I don't think I'd be successful," he said. "I don't think I'd be elected, and if I was, I don't think I'd be effective."

AUSTIN—In less than two months, the Texas Legislature will convene again in regular session, and lawmakers have already begun prefilming legislation on a myriad of issues.

Some of the top attention-getting issues will be repeats of last session

Holiday turkeys cost more

COLLEGE STATION — After two years of bargain prices for holiday turkeys, shoppers may be surprised to find that they cost more this year.

"Consumers can expect to find 20-25 percent higher prices for turkeys this year, says Dr. David Mellor, Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service poultry specialist. This year's wholesale price for standard 8-16 lb. hens is 81 cents, compared to 63 cents last year, he adds.

Last year's lower prices were due in part to a plentiful supply of turkeys, shoppers may be surprised to find that they cost more this year.

To cut costs on a Thanksgiving or Christmas bird, extension food and nutrition specialist Dr. Alice Hunt suggests that consumers buy an unbasted, store brand turkey. Pre-basted store brand turkeys will cost more per pound than unbasted birds, and national brand pre-basted turkeys will cost even more, she says.

But turkey is still a good value, Hunt says, especially if you plan ahead to make good use of the leftovers. Smaller families or those who don't care for leftovers may want to consider purchasing a turkey breast or a boneless roast turkey for their holiday meal, even though these cost more per pound.

Whatever the cost of your holiday turkey, you'll be getting high quality protein for your money and relatively few calories, observes the specialist. An average 3 1/2 ounce serving of turkey has 190 calories. It's all the gravy and "trimmings" that make holiday meals high in calories, she adds.

The Confederate government was formed when 42 delegates from South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida met in convention in Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 4, 1861.

Without doubt, the Legislature's toughest assignment will be to balance a state budget, with or without a new tax increase, for the coming biennium.

While economic forecasts from the Comptroller's Office predict that incoming state revenues won't be enough to pay for state government at current levels, at least a handful of lawmakers have sworn to fight any proposed tax increases.

One of them is State Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, who chairs the powerful Ways and Means Committee where tax bills by law must be heard first.

Schlueter told reporters last week that he intends to guard that first locked gate very carefully, so carefully, in fact, that no tax bill will ever hurdle it.

Austere Cuts?

Schlueter, a fair-haired conservative who is one of Speaker Gib Lewis' top lieutenants, prefers to balance the budget by writing in austere spending plans. During the last regular session, he held the Governor's proposed tax hike in committee until adjournment, and only extreme pressure in the following summer special session forced him to free the $4.8 billion hike out to the floor where it passed.

Now that law needs to be cleaned up, especially some areas of interpretation. For example, after lawmakers jumped taxes on amusements, the Comptroller ruled that golf course and tennis court fees were taxable, but that country club dues and memberships were not.

"Lawmakers did not intend to tax the poor kid going to the movie, but not the millionaire going to his country club," Schlueter explained.

Over $600 Million

At present, the legislative budget writers are about $635 million over the goal of current spending levels, a "no-growth" mind-set.

A no-growth budget adds up to $24.8 billion for the coming two years, and Comptroller Bob Bullock estimates available resources at $26.12 billion. However, his estimate could easily be lowered by a drop in oil prices or a recession, perhaps into the deficit danger zone.

Since Bullock's estimate is the constitutional ceiling that holds down Texas government spending, his prediction of a deficit could send lawmakers into a bloodbath debating whether to raise taxes, hold spending, or even repeal taxes.

Pesticide Dispute

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's proposed safety rules for farm and ranch pesticides has run into a barrage of opposition from a collection of farm groups.

At the forefront is the Texas Farm Bureau, which says Hightower's new regulations will drive up production costs while doing nothing that isn't covered right now by state and federal law.

Hightower says they are throwing a "blue-faced tantrum" because they can't kill his proposals.

Presidential Primary

Governor Mark White and other Texas Democrats are urging their party to pass legislation creating a presidential primary to replace the complicated caucus system.

Voters in the Democratic primary would be able to vote for president at the polls, rather than having to return at night to participate in the precinct conventions.

White explained that voters are "convenience-oriented," and state party chairman Bob Slagle is expected to appoint a committee to study election changes.

Leaders in the Texas Republican party made no comment.

New Naval Base

White also joined with Gulf Coast officials in announcing a joint effort to convince the U.S. Navy to build a new battleship base in Texas.

Seventeen Gulf ports from Texas to Florida are competing for the facility which would generate $100 million in initial construction and a payroll of $60 million.

Texas cities on the list include Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Brazosport, Houston, Galveston, and Beaumont-Orange-Port Arthur.

Charges Dropped

A Port Arthur state senator, Carl Parker, won temporary relief when a visiting state district judge dropped charges against him which included perjury and promoting pornography and prostitution.

But the Jefferson County DA disagreed and said he may seek new indictments from another grand jury.

Parker has argued that the grand jury which indicted was influenced by a political vendetta against him.

1st In Immediacy And Permanence

SPEED

Newspapers provide the most effective and immediate service for product and service ads, price changing, couponing and news and ad response.

PERMANENT

Newspapers provide a permanent record for every reader... each copy always available when you get the time to read it. They don't disappear into thin air... or clutter the post office lobby.

NEWSPAPER LEADERSHIP FOR TEXAS PROVEN BY EVERY TEST

* CURRENT RESEARCH reports by Consumer Data Service (CDS), of Oklahoma City, show that 86.3 percent of Texans are reading newspapers every week... including more than 80 percent who read their local community newspaper.

* Texas is populated by 15,400,000 persons comprising 5,450,000 households earning more than $147-Billion each year and spending $84-Billion for retail goods, according to U. S. Census reports in January, 1983—FACTS THAT CAN BE REPORTED IN DETAIL ONLY BY NEWSPAPERS.

* Texas newspapers spend millions of dollars each year on new technology to provide superior news-gathering services, better reproduction methods and faster delivery systems... and more effective advertising techniques to activate consumers.

* In 1983, over 10.6-million tons of newsprint were consumed in the U. S.—equal to almost 100 pounds for every man, woman and child in this country—an increase of over 16% since 1970.

* ADVERTISERS SPEND THE MOST for newspaper ads:

$20.6 Billion in 1983
$ 5.0 Billion MORE than tv
$16.0 Billion MORE than radio
$ 9.0 Billion MORE than direct mail
$17.0 Billion MORE than magazines

...and today's advertisers are the world's most successful business people... their expenditures put NEWSPAPERS FIRST! because newspapers are by far the most effective.

(Source: National Advertising Bureau, NY)

* Texas is served by 583 newspapers with a combined circulation of 5,300,000... and each newspaper is read by two or more consumers. A lot of swat for advertisers!

* Americans spend over 6 billion dollars a year to buy their favorite newspapers. They don't turn them off, or toss them on the post office floor. THEY READ THEM... because they thought enough of them to buy them!

1st In Ad Influence

The majority of Texas consumers read and react to news and advertising in their local newspapers.

86.3% read a newspaper this past week
71.9% usually read its grocery ads
69.2% usually read department store, and discount store ads in newspapers
