Basic—The administration slipped a fast one over on Congress in the Farm Bill.

The House was sound asleep on it. The Senate opened one eye at the last minute but did not see what it was all about. There is no wonder. All that was involved was one innocent looking little word—"basic."

If Congress had left that in the bill it would have applied only to basic agricultural products. Everyone knows what those are—wheat, corn, cotton and such. But with that word left out the field of operations increases a hundred fold. Hides, meats, cloth, shoes and anything that has the faintest connection or competition with any product of any farm anywhere comes within the selling pool and price fixing purview of the bill.

The confidential estimate of government statisticians themselves is that the government took control of 45 per cent of American industry by that master stroke.

It came about in a strange way. The word basic was NOT in the marketing agreement provision of the bill passed by the House. It was in the licensing section. As the Senate was passing the bill Senator Stephens slipped the word in to the other section. He is supposed to have been helped by Vice-President Garner who was in sympathy with the move. But that is another story.

When the Senators and Representatives started ironing out the differences between their bills, word came from the Agriculture Department that the word basic should be deleted everywhere. No explanation was offered. No questions were asked. Congress had the habit of doing what the Administration wanted, and did it.

They had to go to the extent of passing a separate law to cut the word basic out of the marketing agreement section because it had been approved by both Houses.

Republican Leader Snell grew suspicious in the House. He asked what was going on. Democratic Chairman Jones in charge of the measure explained they were merely correcting a clerical error. He neglected to say the government was gaining 45 per cent control of industry thereby.

The progressives were not so easily satisfied in the senate. LaFollette, Bennett Clark and others raised Cain and voted against the change.

It was too late for a contest.

The thing was put over on the cloakroom plea that it was needed to take care of sugar people in the west.

That plea does not hold water. The bill would have taken care of sugar as it passed the senate. That commodity was specifically mentioned. But the specific mention was cut out at the same time the word basic was stricken out, again on orders from the Agriculture Department.

Thus on the pretext of getting sugar into a bill it was already in they took it nearly half the universe.

It will be bigger news for the packers and the Sugar Institute than it will be to the beet growers. Packer attorneys are already studying the possibility of using it for a modification of the anti-trust law decree against them. The Institute people might similarly use it in a case now pending against it in the Circuit Court of Appeals, New York.

Indeed there are those here who insist the position of the packers to the farm bill was bought off by the elimination of this little word basic.

You can never prove that. Neither can you remove the suspicion.

Bonus—The Administration took the Red bonus marchers through the hoop at the outset. It was a smooth piece of work. The basis of it was that no man sees red on a full stomach.

The government actually killed the demonstration with kindness. Everything possible was provided for their comfort. A nice camp was fixed up for them ONLY about a full day's walk from the White House. They could eat their fill and sit around on the grassy slopes

Larger, More Modern Site Is Selected

Jordan Building, Next To Settles Hotel To Be Occupied About June 1

The Big Spring Herald will move its offices and plant on or about June 1 from the present location at 119 West First street to 210-12 East Third street.

Legal arrangements were completed Wednesday morning between The Big Spring Herald, Inc., and T. E. Jordan, who owns half interest in the building now occupied, and who is sole owner of the East Third street building. The new quarters will be larger, more modern and more centrally located in the business district. The building is next door east of the Settles hotel, and formerly was occupied by the J. L. Webb Motor company.

Since 1904 the plant of The Herald has been in its present quarters since 1904, the year it was founded by Messrs Jordan and W. G. Hayden. The newspaper and plant were bought in 1929 by the present owners from Mr. Jordan, who had purchased Mr. Hayden's interest several years before. The Big Spring Daily Herald had been inaugurated ten months before Mr. Jordan disposed of the business. The Big Spring Herald, weekly, also is published by the present owners, having been continued by Mr. Jordan and his successors after the daily was started.

Arrangements are being made to perform the difficult task of moving a daily newspaper plant in such manner that there will be no interruption in publication of usual editions of the paper.

Maximum convenience and efficiency are the objectives being borne in mind as plans are finished for arrangement of the mechanical equipment and the business and editorial offices in the new quarters. Counsel of experienced engineers and individuals who have planned some of the most modern and economically arranged daily newspaper plants in the southwest has been used in arriving at the details of The Herald's plans for its new plant.

The new building is 38 1/2 by 88 feet, inside dimensions, providing 3,388 square feet of floor space. The present quarters are 23 by 119 feet, inside, dimensions or 2,737 square feet. The East Third street building is much better adapted to occupancy by a newspaper plant. Ventilating and lighting facilities are far better. The entire building is floored with concrete, instead of wood as in present location.

In announcing the change in location Joe Galbraith, business manager and Wendell Bedichek, managing editor, said: "Completion of arrangements necessary for The Herald to make this change and provide Big Spring and trade territory with a completely modern, efficient and well-located newspaper plant is highly gratifying to ourselves and our associates. It has been and will continue to be the Herald's policy not only to keep step with the community but to do its best to help lead the way whenever possible. That has been the principal thought in mind as negotiations for the change have gone forward."

"We are glad that The Herald will continue to be a tenant of T. E. Jordan, former owner of the Daily Herald and the Weekly Herald. Our dealings with him through the past four years have been very pleasant. We cherish his friendship."

The Herald has, since it was acquired by the present owners, experienced with Big Spring a variety of conditions. The "boom" conditions of 1929 changed directly into the conditions of economic stress that have prevailed throughout the nation. We have seen the community at the peak of its development and activity and in the midst of unparalleled problems for its wage-earners, its business men and its industries.

"The net result of our experience through these varied conditions has been maintenance of unflinching faith that Big Spring will through the future be one of the most stable, one of the most consistently sound communities of Texas. While Big Spring has had its troubles these past three years, the city has without shadow of doubt continued

May Work Relief Quotas May Be Paid Within Week

R. F. C. Forwards $968,787 To Texas After $20,000,000 Bond Issue Resolution Adopted By Legislature And Signed

Prospects Wednesday were that allotments to Texas counties of federal funds for the latter half of May would be distributed within a week.

Relief Officer Homer McNew Saturday announced the county committee had been forced to greatly reduce the amount of work provided, due to depletion of the fund received for April.

Distribution of May allotments in Texas had been held up by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation while the state legislature considered the $20,000,000 bond issue proposal, which has now been passed and signed by the governor.

County Seventh Grade Graduation Exercises To Be Held Here Friday; District Attorney Mahon Speaker

Job Finished

MAURY HOPKINS

Seventh grade graduation and county rural school rally day will be held here Friday.

George Mahon, district attorney, will deliver the commencement address Friday morning from the city auditorium. Mrs. Pauline C. Brigham, county superintendent, will present the diplomas.

Following awarding of the certificates, pupils and parents will repair to the city park where they will spread luncheon in an fashionable picnic.

At 2 p. m. a parade will be staged through the downtown district. Itinerary for the parade has not been completed.

Members of the graduating classes will be called to meet Mrs. Brigham at the auditorium at 9:45 a. m.

Special music is being arranged for the occasion.

Thousands Of News Stories Published On WTCC Meeting

There can be little doubt that the past West Texas Chamber of Commerce was properly and amply publicized. Clippings from papers over the state have been placed on a huge board now on display in the local chamber offices. There are thousands of them.

Mrs. Pauline C. Brigham, county superintendent, scored Hartwell and Highway schools for standardization Tuesday. Hartwell scored far less than the average.

TROUBLE IN CUBA

HAVANA (AP)—A dispatch from Santa Clara Wednesday reported approximately 30 casualties on the outskirts of Sancti Spiritus, 210 miles southeast of Havana between rebel and federal forces Tuesday night.

Roosevelt's Public Works Plan Issued

Congress Asked To Devise Tax Basis For Program Early In Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt sent his all-inclusive public works industrial supervision program Wednesday to congress, where Democratic majorities were planning expeditious action.

Requesting full executive authority to inaugurate a three billion three hundred million dollar public construction program, he asked the legislators to decide before early next week on new taxes to underwrite the project.

If a decision has not been reached then, he will submit his own recommendations for levies.

The president said that in event it is adopted "the prohibition revenue laws would then automatically go into effect and yield enough wholly to eliminate these temporary re-employment taxes."

So-Called 'Prom' Not School Affair, Students Declare

Bill Zafaronetti and Kyle Sanders, local high school students, Wednesday issued the following statement:

To the students of Big Spring High School and the citizens of Big Spring: Inasmuch as we caused an announcement to be circulated through the Big Spring high school and community generally of a so-called Junior-Senior Prom and inasmuch as this announcement was so worded as to leave the impression that the dance thus advertised was a school affair, we wish to make this statement of facts: first, that this dance is not a school affair, but an enterprise sponsored by an organization; second, that the names indicated as a committee do not represent any organization and that the profits of this enterprise will belong to us as individuals; third, that no school authorities will be present to see after the conduct of those present at this dance.

We wish to further extend our apologies to the Junior and Senior classes, and the school in general for having caused this misconception to arise.

BILL ZAFARONETTIS,
KYLE SANDERS.

County Buys Own Warrants

Five Per Cent Interest To Be Saved By Purchase

Howard county has purchased three viaduct warrants due in 1934, 1935 and 1936 at par.

County commissioners court authorized Judge H. R. Debenport to make the purchase in order to save the county five per cent interest.

Surplus remaining in the sinking fund after the 1933 warrant had been retired enabled the county to buy the other warrants from Moore Grocery company of San Marcos.

Interest for the three warrants will amount to $300 over the three years. State will assume approximately eighty-five per cent of the principal of the three warrants.

Montgomery Ward And Company's Big Spring Store Ranks Second In South For Ward Week Sales

Herald Used Exclusively In Advertising Program, Manager W. Rance King Points Out; Store Staff To Be Feted

Montgomery Ward and Company's Big Spring store ranked second among all stores in the southern states in volume of sales during annual Ward Week. Manager Rance King was advised.

Trade was seriously hampered a day and a half of the week by a severe sandstorm, but the local store even then reported sales very near the figure attained by the Shawnee, Okla., store, which ranked first in the southern states.

Mr. King pointed out, in announcing to the local store staff the outstanding record achieved, that use of newspaper space constituted practically the entire advertising program for Ward Week and that Montgomery Ward and Company carried advertising only in The Big Spring Daily Herald and the Weekly Herald altogether. He declared that effectiveness of Herald advertising was a major factor in making the week such a success for the local store.

Mr. King announced Wednesday morning that Montgomery Ward and company would be host Wednesday evening at City Park for all local employees, at a chicken barbecue, in recognition of their services and efforts that helped to make possible the fine showing made during Ward Week.

Elaborate arrangements are being made for this evening's celebration. A Mexican orchestra has been retained for the occasion.

Saturday Expected To Be Last Day Of 32nd District Court Here, With New Court Bill On Governor's Desk

Mahon, Expected To Run For Congress, Expresses Regrets

When the present term of district court is ended this week by Judge A. S. Maury of Seagraves, it is likely Big Spring will be saying adios to the thirty-second district.

Probably the next term of district court to be held here will be in September with Howard county in the 70th district and with Judge C. L. Klapproth of Midland presiding.

George Mahon concluded his duties as district attorney here Tuesday when the grand jury adjourned, Wednesday, as he prepared to return to his home in Colorado, he said he regretted severing his official association is here. He spoke highly of Big Spring and its bar.

Since formation of a new congressional district, Mahon will likely be drafted as a candidate for representative.

First Lady Of Land To Stop Here In June

Plans Now Are For Mrs. Roosevelt To Be At Port June Third

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to stop at Big Spring airport at noon Saturday, June 3 as she flies across the country to visit her son, Elliott, in Los Angeles.

The First Lady of the Land is scheduled to arrive here at 12:04 p. m. June 3 on an American Airways ship, which will stop at the Big Spring station 20 minutes.

Mrs. Roosevelt will, according to reports from Dallas, arrive there at 6:28 p. m. Friday, June 2. Her plans now are to spend the night in Dallas and continue Saturday via American Airways to Tucson, the home of her friend, Miss Isabel Greenway, national committee woman from Arizona.

Elliott Roosevelt, the second of the Roosevelt sons, stopped here a few days after the inauguration, on his way to Tucson with a friend. He now is residing in Los Angeles, as manager of an air line.

Cowboy Chaps Put Man In Jail Here

One pair of chaps came from too many places.

Consequently, Oran "Bud" Gabbert is being held in the county jail awaiting arrival of Sheriff C. R. Elliott of Knox county.

Several days ago Deputies Andrew Merrick and Bob Wolf picked up Gabbert who was attempting to sell a pair of valuable chaps. Questioning developed the prisoner was too uncertain as to where the cowboy equipment came from.

Merrick inquired of West Texas sheriffs if theft of chaps had been reported. Knox county authorities replied in the affirmative, and "Bud," officers said, remembered where he came into possession of them.

Gabbert gave his home as eighteen miles south of Abilene. The chaps were taken from a ranch in southern Knox county.

Lower House Won't Quit

AUSTIN, (AP)—The lower house of the legislative Wednesday refused to set a date for sine die adjournment.

Checks Issued For All Bills, Report Ready For Board

Big Spring made the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention pay for itself.

With all bills in, and checks issued in payment of them, approximately $25 remained.

C. T. Watson, local chamber of commerce manager, and Maury Hopkins, assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, finished their complete report Tuesday. It will be submitted by Watson to Carl Blomshield and E. J. Mary, co-chairmen of local convention arrangements, who will present it to the board of directors of the local chamber. Mr. Hopkins will submit it to the general manager of the W. T. C. C., D. A. Bandeen. The financial report will be published for information of the public.

The report lists every item of expense and income, and the original bills filed under the classification carried in the convention budget are on record at the local chamber's offices.

Registrations total 2,760 and $137 was taken in at the auditorium show and dances in single admission.

The prime objective of the local chamber was realized when it found registration had paid the whole cost of the convention, which was put on at about $400 less than the original budget allowed.

Jimmy Allred On Radio Tonight

James V. Allred, attorney general, will speak from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. this evening over stations of the Southwestern System including KVO, Wichita Falls and KTAT, Fort Worth.

Mr. Allred wired friends here he would reply to criticism recently aimed at his department in a meeting at Wichita Falls of the North Texas Oil and Gas association, and that he would make public "valuable information" concerning the "oil lobby" at Austin. The address will be delivered in Memorial hall, Wichita Falls, his home town.

Miss Fannie Mae Brigham, Wiley, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brigham.

Would Scrap Claims, Says Chancellor

Plans For Invasion Of France And Poland Denied In Speech

BERLIN (AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in an impassioned speech before the Reichstag, Wednesday endorsed President Roosevelt's plan for relieving the international crisis and promised cooperation with Mr. Roosevelt's efforts.

The chancellor agreed that without a solution of the disarmament problem lasting economic reconstruction is unthinkable.

In behalf of the entire nation and especially the young Nazi movement, Herr Hitler pledges Germany would go as far as any in disarming, even to the extent of scrapping her whole military equipment provided other powers did the same.

He declared his generation had suffered too much from the insanity of war "to visit the same upon others."

He particularly offered to refrain from any claims for instruments of aggression so long as other nations scrapped theirs. He denied Germany contemplated invasion of either France or Poland, emphasizing that his nation was devoid of all instruments of aggression.

Edwin Kelley Talks To Club

International Relations Subject At Tuesday Luncheon

Members of the Rotary Club heard Edwin A. Kelley, chairman of the International Relations committee of that organization, in a most inspiring and informative message at that subject at its weekly meeting at the Settles Tuesday noon.

Mr. Kelley read parts of a letter he had received recently from a friend in New York, who had just returned from Europe, expressing views on conditions existing in European countries.

In his usual forceful and interesting manner, Mr. Kelley used the letter as a basis for his subject, which dealt with the many trying conditions existing across the Atlantic, and how the leaders of the various countries were attempting to solve them.

Omair Pittman was program chairman for the day. Maury Hopkins, Rotarian of Stamford, was a guest of the club, as was Mrs. Gordon Phillips, Big Spring.

Next week's program will be in charge Jack Thomas, Fred Keating and Joe Pickle, Sr.

Mrs. Billie Frost has returned from a visit with relatives in San Angelo.

DARLING FOOL

CHAPTER XIII

Charles said "Hot!" and smiled. He wore no hat and the pallor of his skin was a thing Monnie noted subconsciously. Unlike Dan, who wore his sunburn with a swagger, Eustace ever tanned but bore all ways, in spite of hatless horseback riding and mornings at golf, a kind of tropic indolence which suited him well. He wore, just now, the most elegant of carefree white flannels and a blue coat.

"You look awfully cool," he said to the girl sitting on the low step, in the shadow of the honey-suckle vine.

Monnie scarcely stirred. She felt the smile with which she answered him to be a prodigious effort. There seemed to be no life in her at all these days. Tonight after a cold supper and after a shower she had slipped into one of her oldest party frocks—a blue lace of two seasons ago, unsuitable she felt for anything but the warmest night in Belvedere. She had not expected visitors but here on her very doorstep, was the most elegant young man in town! She said with an effort, "Thanks, I don't feel at all cool."

She glanced up at him in the half dark, one flushed cheek resting on a slim, long-fingered hand, her breath coming and going quickly beneath the folds of soft lace. The bodice was cut rather low and the creamy skin of her neck and bosom glistened above her. Her eyes, shadowed with weariness and heat, looked big and dark under their fringe of heavy lashes.

She asked him to sit down. He made a gesture toward the car in the shadows outside the gate and said slowly, "I'd thought perhaps you'd come for a drive—out where it's cool."

"Mother and Mark have gone to a strawberry festival," Monnie said with apparent irrelevance. "And Kay—Kay's over at Rissy's. I wonder if I ought to—"

"We'll be back in an hour," Charles said. "Why not?"

She debated this. She had refused to go to the festival. She had said she was too tired but the real reason was her desire to avoid people. Frying people who would ask questions. About Dan. About everything.

With this man it was different. She could be easy with him. He was—well, a friend! She felt that splendid in his way, of course, but Monnie thought, the type to stir her pulses.

As he held out his hand to assist her, she gave him her own. A child's clasp, Charles Eustace felt, half plucked and half amused.

"Believe I will," Monnie murmured softly. "If you'll excuse this—this ridiculous costume."

He gave her a mocking bow.

practiced eyes taking in every detail of her appearance. The lace had been adroitly cut to show every exquisite line of the girl's figure. "It's a lovely dress," he told her. Monnie widened her eyes at his tone. There was something not quite cordial about it. Did he think she was fishing for compliments? She reddened to the roots of her hair and in that instance Charles Eustace regretted his discourtesy. Used as he was to the finished wiles of more sophisticated women, he had carelessly bulked this young girl with the crowd.

"I'm sorry," he said awkwardly. "I really mean it. It is a lovely dress."

"Of course, it is old," Monnie faltered, hurt by she knew not what. "It's a party dress, too, and unattractive—but I was so hot—I had nothing else so cool—I didn't expect anyone—"

She hated herself for it, but suddenly she was in tears.

"Do forgive me. I'm an idiot—but I seem to be all tired out and we were so busy today at the store—"

A big clean handkerchief was pressed into her hands. She straightened herself, mopping at the persistent tears, trying to smile again. But it had not been just that. Both she and the man knew that his tone was the lash which had cut her deeply. Charles Eustace said slowly, "Monnie, you do know I'm your friend, don't you?"

"She stared at him. "I hope so. Of course!"

He flicked at the bushes beside him with a willow switch he had picked up.

"It's only—only that I get into one of my bad moods now and again and say things I don't mean. I did mean your frock was lovely. But some devil of sarcasm put that edge on my voice. I don't know why. Or yes, I do. I'm used to the sort of women who invites comment on her attire. I thought, for an instant, that was what you were doing. I ask you pardon—"

"But even if I had," Monnie began, puzzled, "it's no crime, surely, to want compliments?"

He laughed on an uncomfortable note.

"Of course not, Monnie. You don't know anything about me. I've got a wretched temper. I've been through some bad times. Some day perhaps I'll bore you by telling you about them."

"It wouldn't bore me in the least," the girl told him demurely. Her tears had dried now. The little flare up had only served to heighten her color.

"Wait just a minute, I'll get a scarf for my hair," she said, going back into the darkened house. She paused to scribble a line for her mother and in that instant the telephone rang stridently. Her instant thought, as always, waking and sleeping, was "Dan!" She put one hand to her breast with an unconsciously dramatic gesture and called out to the man in the shadows, "I'll answer that. Hope you don't mind waiting."

Lifting the receiver, she was conscious of an almost unbearable feeling of tension. But it was not Dan's deep voice that came to her over the wire.

"Oh, Miss Anstice. Yes. How are you?"

She put cordiality into her tone. Miss Anstice was an old family friend.

Charles Eustace lounging against the pillar outside, heard a note of alarm in the quick, terse words that followed.

"What? Yes—yes. Please tell me. Outside Miller's garage just five minutes ago? There must be some mistake. She's at Rissy's! Thank you. I know you won't. Yes, I'll do something about it—at once—good-by—"

All the color now drained from her cheeks, she returned to Charles Eustace.

"Something terrible—I don't know what to do!"

He put out a brown, lean hand, touching hers. "Tell me. I'll help you."

Eyes big and dark and unseeing, she stared at him.

"It's Kay. She's gone—with some man. Miss Anstice happened to see them. She's not a gossip. She's a real friend. They had bags, she said. The man was asking the best way to Waynesboro."

"Good Lord!" Charles said. "Jump in. I know that road well. We can catch up with them."

Binding the scarf she had picked up from the hall table about her head with stumbling fingers, Monnie obeyed.

The scent and sound of a June night received them, as the motor purred and the powerful little car plunged down Denny street. Everywhere—everywhere were little groups on porch and lawn. Lights in little houses. Laughter. The music of a radio. Monnie thought, blindly, "Little Kay, Little Kay. I've got to save her."

"Miss Anstice didn't happen to mention what sort of car it was did she?" inquired Charles, expertly swerving to avoid a boy on a bicycle.

"No, she—she—" Monnie's teeth were chattering now, as if with cold. "I'm so frightened," she interpolated. "What if we don't find her?"

catch up with them? I never saw Kay either!"

The calm voice of the man in the driver's seat came to her. "We'll find her," he said. "Don't worry!"

Ahead, miles ahead, on the country road, Bigelow grinned down at the girl beside him.

"Cooler now, baby? That sure is a hot burg you live in."

Kay said, "Yes, lots cooler." She cast an apprehensive glance back over her shoulder. "Sure nobody thank you. I stopped for gas!"

He had a big, booming laugh—empty, meaningless. He employed it now.

"Baby, don't think about that old burg any more. You've shaken the dust from your shoes. You're slated for big times."

He slipped an arm around her shoulders. Kay shrank from it.

"Hadn't you better watch the road?"

The laugh boomed again. "Don't like one-armed drivers, do you, baby?"

Kay grimaced to herself in the darkness. She'd been a fool to come, she told herself, but she was no quitter. She'd burned her boats. She'd have to keep on going.

Methodists Who Sell 3.2 Beer If And When Legal To Be Ousted

HOUSTON (UP)—If an when 3.2 beer becomes legal in Texas, any Methodist who persists in selling it will be excluded from membership in the church, Bishop H. A. Boss announced.

Methodists found guilty of selling the beverage will be "disciplined" first, the bishop said. After that, failure to desist from the practice will result in the culprit's dismissal from the church.

"Anybody knows that 3.2 per cent means alcohol and that alcohol is a spiritous liquor," said the bishop. "Our stand is the same as it always was. The church handled that question long ago when it decided to close its doors to any persons dealing in such liquors."

Many persons wondered what effect his edict would have on a nationally known Houstonian who owns most of the city's hotels. He is a pillar of the Methodist church and his hotels are preparing to sell beer.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Fly Across Continent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will fly to Los Angeles, Cal., early in June to see her son Elliott, it became known today.

She will stay only a few days, probably in a hotel with Mrs. Isabella Greenway of Arizona, who owns the airline being managed by Elliott Roosevelt. She probably will spend one night on the train and two in planes.

Gaston B. Means' Case Placed In Jury's Hands

WASHINGTON, UP—The case of Gaston B. Means, and Norman T. Whitaker, on trial on charges of conspiring to defraud Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, in connection with the Lindbergh baby ransom case, was given the jury in District of Columbia supreme court Tuesday afternoon.

Waetermark just after it entered the Lehrter station. Passengers had left the compartment, but a woman on the station platform was inhaled. Police said they suspected communists of setting the bomb.

of the Potomac and tall politics. The boys took to it better than you might have thought at first. They promised to be good and go home when told. They also agreed to stand by the skulls up against any police bullets.

For the first few days at least it was more like a D. A. R. convention.

A fancy tale that Mr. Roosevelt was scared into taking the rough edges off his veterans cuts has been broadcast through the land. The radical bonus army is being given the credit. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The inside fact about that is the first cuts saved more money than Mr. Roosevelt intended. His confidential figures will show now that the veterans cutting program would have saved $25,000,000 more than he intended. He cut too deep. All the modifications you are reading about are merely going to make up for that excess twenty five millions of savings.

In the end the actual savings will be exactly the same as announced at the start.

This way of handing the bonus army was worked out by Mr. Roosevelt last July. That was the time Mr. Hoover was grappling with the problem. Mr. Roosevelt then told intimates the way he would have handled the thing was to treat the veterans as softly as possible and invite them to take forest jobs or go home. He thought it a marvelous opportunity for a ten strike.

The bonus leaders declined to say a word against the White House the first few days of their visit here. One explained: "The President is cooperating with us very fully."

Notes

There are many snakes around the country so even snakes come within the limitations of the farm bill. Vice-President Garner is supposed to have helped Stephens put through the "basic" amendment because of long standing opposition to the packers.

This farm bill now leaves only 85 per cent of American industry yet to be brought under Federal control through the Industrial Control bill. . . .

The flippant Senator says they "can not find out about the farm bill until Prof. Twigg translates it from the Russian." . . . A midwestern District Attorney is warmly pursuing a recent Administration appointee, trying to get a Senatorial investigation. . . . He claims the appointee was involved in an improper tax case presented to the International Revenue and wants to make a scene about it.

Unfreezing—
 Insiders here will tell you that the Administration is more interested in the buoyancy of the stock market than it cares to admit. Every point that the market rises cases the burden of banks and insurance companies which have delicate cases of tangible goods stuck as automobiles. Both of these considerations are prominent in plans for recovery.

This does not infer that excessive speculation is to be encouraged. It does infer that contributions to bullish activity are well regarded. This factor helps account for American Telephone's optimistic action—despite the fact that the company had been losing business steadily. It also provides a motive statement accompanying dividend for favoring this corporation's stockholders once more in spite of continued payroll reductions.

The same factor also figures in the rigid gains of U. S. Steel Common which has small chance of paying a dividend for a long time to come. Steel and Telephone are key stocks, very widely held by both banks and corporations. From the psychological and collateral angles it is more important that they should act in buoyant fashion than any other listed corporations.

Several members of the Committee for the Nation—which has excellent Washington connections—have been buying stocks actively. It is not likely that they would have such activity would be viewed with disapproval or would be ridiculed by events.

The Stock Market has seen some of the most skillful professional maneuvering in its history recently. Public interest in stocks revived very suddenly and experts have done all they could to sustain it. One effective stunt is to mark up a popular stock with a single order running to thousands of shares. The size of the order impresses the ticker hounds and they usually respond promptly.

A large volume of liquidating on behalf of closed Michigan banks has been done very skillfully in the past two weeks. Precautions were taken to avoid any appearance of dumping and the liquidators have been pleasantly surprised at the prices they were able to obtain.

Discipline

The Stock Exchange has won its battle with Allied Chemical although no announcement has yet been made. The delay is for the purpose of letting the corporation find a way to save its face.

Retirement

Two of the most successful brokers on the floor of the Exchange sold their seats a few weeks ago. They could have been called as important witnesses in the Senate investigation. They will not be available for that now. If they want their seats back when the storm is over there is reason to believe they can have them without financial sacrifice.

National City

Percy Rockefeller's retirement as a director of the National City Bank was a well-guarded surprise. His former dominant voice in the bank's affairs has waned considerably in the past few months. He was very close to Charles E. Mitchell and the change in the bank's policy since Mitchell's retirement has not fitted with his ideas. He has pulled out of the Wall Street picture almost entirely since his appearance before the senate committee last year.

The largest individual stockholder in National City is Trans-American Corporation—which means Glanville. He controls about 10 per cent of the stock. Despite his unpopularity in Wall Street he is likely to get a post on the National City's board of directors—either personally or through a representative.

Morgan interests are not as important in National City as reports have made out. Their present holdings amount to about 45,000 shares and represent mostly foreclosed collateral on loans to Charles Mitchell.

Floyd Carlsile of Consolidated Gas has a lot to say about National City policy these days. He can not be rated a Morgan representative as his relations with the Morgans have cooled considerably.

France

Inside consensus in France is that they will have to inflate before the end of two years. Some high-ups say that it will come about within the year. . . . Word comes from Paris that Soviet and the Germans get equal blame when their pictures are shown in the cinema. The parties of the Right are campaigning after the former Premier with a vicious hatred.

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE

United Press Staff Correspondent ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—Jack Dempsey, the boy promoter, led a junkie to this place here by the sea yesterday to allow the boxing critics an opportunity to watch Max Baer in training. After all the boister and expense Dempsey went to the chartered the private railroad car in which Alfred Smith stamped the country in 1928) it seems a shame to report Baer looked only ordinary.

In fact, Baer or the Livermore Clouter as his mother calls him, looked just like he did when he fought King Levinsky in New York a year ago February. And you know how he was then. The great fighter in the world from the neck down. And the worst from that point up. His training yesterday consisted of seven rounds and during those seven beats he committed all seven of boxing's deadly sins. He telegraphed his punches. He led with his right. He was hit hard and often with all sorts of punches, especially hooks and uppercuts. He pawed. He lunged. And he clowned.

And yet when the big Californian finished and announced all sundry he would stop Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium on the evening of June 8, you didn't laugh. For with all his awkwardness, Baer, 216 pounds of whalebone and wildpoodle, is so tough. You couldn't imagine any man staying in there with him over the championship distance of 15 rounds.

There can be no doubt that Baer is one of those rare tough 'uns who delights when the going gets toughest. He has proved that in half a dozen fights, and he proved it again yesterday. It was immediately after being clipped that he was most impressive.

Now Schmeling is no sparring partner, but we'll wager you're right now that on June 8, when the two Maxes stand toe-to-toe and start swinging it will be the German, not the Californian, who will break ground. Schmeling may lick Baer, but he'll never do it if he's foolish enough to try and swap punches with him.

Two former world champions were in the crowd that watched Baer work yesterday. One of the ex-champions was Tommy Loughran, the other Pete Latzo. Loughran, who has fought Baer, was particularly sold on the Californian.

"He looked terrible today," Tommy said, "mainly because he was pressing—trying too hard. But everybody is entitled to one off day. I've been down here several days now and have seen him in a couple of workouts that convinced me he has enough to make it mean for anybody, anytime."

Trans-Pecos Farmers Continue Worm Fight

PECOS—Farmers of the trans-PECOS have organized in an effort to recover some of the thousands of dollars spent by them to meet requirements of the state pink bollworm quarantine.

A district organization to work to recover at least part of the fumigation and sterilization charges suffered by farmers of the 11 counties in the pink bollworm district has been formed.

Officers of this district are Judge J. B. Woolfolk of Pecos, chairman; H. P. Davis of Pecos, secretary; E. A. Borren and A. Dieman, directors from Pecos County; H. B. Eudaly and J. H. Miller, directors from Ward County; J. W. B. Williams and R. N. Couch, directors from Reeves County; Hal Burnett of Pecos County, director-at-large.

At request of the organization the Reeves County Commissioners Court this week passed a resolution calling upon the Texas Legislature to refund to the farmers moneys spent in this regard.

It is maintained that the quarantine was for benefit of the entire State but that farmers of the penalized section had to bear the entire cost.

Samuel Seabury May Be Candidate For Mayor Of New York As Fusionist

NEW YORK (UP)—Samuel Seabury, counsel for the legislative committee that investigated the city government, emerged as a leading fusion candidate for mayor in the wake of Alfred E. Smith's emphatic refusal to accept any nomination.

Smith eliminated himself in a brief statement that ended: "There is no compulsion or persuasion that can affect my decision. It is final."

Seabury, approached by fusion leaders, did not accept or decline.

Early Americans Lived In Caves Of Big Bend Country, Assistant Curator Of National Museum Says

WASHINGTON—Traces of ancient people hitherto unknown and who may have been among the earliest Americans, have been found in the caves of the Chisos Mountains in the Big Bend region of southwestern Texas, Frank Setzler, assistant curator, division of archeology, United States National Museum, gives the results of his exploration of five caves in 1932 in a publication of the Smithsonian Institution issued here.

His field work last year produced what was termed an exceptionally uniform type of cultural material. The archeological researches were centered at two points: The Chisos Mountains area, 150 miles south of Alpine, and in the Sunny Glen Canyon, eight miles west of Alpine.

Among the important artifacts (products of human workmanship) found were: Grooved club fragments (rabbit sticks) attali or throwing stick forearm, a bun point, hand end of a throwing stick, two fragments of painted, twisted woven bags and a small sample of cloth woven with apocyanum fiber. Commenting on these finds Mr. Setzler observed:

"As similar specimens have been found with basket maker burials in the San Juan (Northern Arizona) region, we have here for the first time evidence which may serve to indicate the relative age and development of our nonpottery culture in the Big Bend area. But it should be noted in this connection that, associated with the specimens above mentioned were also found numerous arrow shafts and forebaths which are not a characteristic of the classic era of the basket maker culture."

From Transition Period They seemed to suggest, rather, that the Texas cave dwellers lived during a transitional stage between the basket maker third and Pueblo first periods. Absence of pottery and house types in the Big Bend region still contemplate this problem of possible relationship. Continuation of our studies may clarify this phase of the prehistory of Southern Texas.

In addition to the above mentioned articles found the caves explored by Mr. Setzler contained numerous stone flakes, projectile points, flint knives, painted pebbles and ad scrapers, yucca bags, mats, nets and a great variety of corded, wooden scrapers, spoons and awls; can tubes containing minute seeds, corn cobs, gourd shreds and bone beads; painted sticks, bones and buckskin bags of a positive relationship between the Big Bend area and the Southwest."

Further evidence that the prehistoric Indians who dwell in the Big Bend country were influenced by their neighbors, the basket makers of New Mexico and Arizona, lies in the fact that Mr. Setzler found no coils of pottery, European artifacts, or stratification. Coiled basketry fragments found were predominantly of the split stitch with a single bundle foundation. This is the distinctive type in the Big Bend region, but Mr. Setzler also found three others. He said none of these correspond to the characteristic technique used by the ancient basket makers of New Mexico and Arizona. The sandals of Southern Texas likewise differ from those of the basket makers, said Mr. Setzler.

Varied Transport Used

Transportation facilities for the exploration in the rugged Big Bend country varied successively from railroad to truck, horse, burro, airplane and back to burro. The first objective of the field party was the Johnson ranch which had been suggested as field headquarters by Major C. E. Brenn of Fort Crockett, Galveston. An account of the trip as written by Mr. Setzler in the Smithsonian Institution pamphlet follows:

"Eighteen miles down the Rio Grande from Castolon we drew up before the door of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Johnson and were received with genuine Southern hospitality. Both Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are interested in archeology and have accumulated an interesting collection of specimens. Through their kind offices we secured an excellent guide, Del Dodson, and were soon in pursuit of information pertaining to the primitive Indian tribes who dwell in this region before Cabeza de Vaca made his memorable journey across the deserts of Northern Mexico. We drove the truck over trails, creek beds and meads as far as possible; then resorted to burros and when the latter could go no further, we pushed on afoot. Our first camp was established near the southern tip of Mule Ear peaks and here two caves were excavated. A third cave on Wayne Carlsberg's ranch yielded information not found elsewhere. From these three sites we gained an excellent cross section of the culture typical of the region.

"The Chisos Mountains proper were first surveyed from the air and numerous caves were sighted along the precipitous cliffs. The territory we covered by plane in an hour required four days to reach by mule. And then we were disappointed in that none of the caves visited contained evidence of more than passing occupancy by historic Indians."—From Dallas News.

New Officers Are Installed By Junior Hi P.-T.A.

The Junior High School P.-T.A. met at the Junior High auditorium Tuesday afternoon for the last session of the school year. Mrs. Charles Koberg, president of the Council, installed new officers.

The time was devoted to business. The members took time to admire an art exhibit put on by the pupils of Miss Clara Secrest.

Installed were: Mrs. W. T. Bell, president; Mrs. V. H. Fiewellen, first vice-president; Mrs. M. K. House, second vice; Mrs. L. W. Croft, third vice; and Miss Clara Secrest, secretary.

Plan For Elective Highway Commission Given Severe Jolt

AUSTIN—The Texas senate committee on highways and motor traffic voted an unfavorable report on a house bill to create an elective highway commission. This meant that the bill was dead unless the senate should vote to print it on a minority report.

The vote in committee was seven to six. Those voting no were Ernest Fellbaum of San Antonio, Archie Parr of Benaevides, Gus Ruseak of Schulenburg, Roy Sanderford of Belton, John W. Hornaby of Austin, and W. R. Poage of Waco.

Representative John W. Laird of Lufkin, author of the bill, stated that the elective highway commission was a platform demand both of the state democratic party and of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson. Asserting that his primary desire was to make the highway commissioners directly responsible to the people, Laird said he was willing for the senators to change the details of the bill in any way they saw fit.

Ely-Martin Control The present highway commission is appointive. The Laird bill originally provided that Mrs. Ferguson might appoint the commissioners to serve until the general election of 1934 but the house eliminated this provision.

Under existing law, W. R. Ely of Abilene and D. K. Martin of San Antonio, would constitute a majority of the commission through-out Mrs. Ferguson's present term. They were appointed by former governors who were political opponents of the governor.

Governor Asked To Sign Oil Tax

AUSTIN—Petitions were circulated in the house and senate of the Texas legislature urging Governor Miriam A. Ferguson to sign a bill levying a tax of two cents per barrel on oil production and taxing the intangible assets of all pipe line companies.

The bill was passed by substantial margins in both houses. Under existing law, W. R. Ely of Abilene and D. K. Martin of San Antonio, would constitute a majority of the commission through-out Mrs. Ferguson's present term. They were appointed by former governors who were political opponents of the governor.

House Favors Fee System Abolition

AUSTIN—The house today approved, with minor changes, a senate resolution to submit an amendment to the constitution to abolish the fee system of compensating public officials. Senate concurrence was necessary before the resolution could be sent to the governor.

What have you learned today in the New University?

Talk with almost any woman and you will find her amazingly informed on vitamins, balanced diets, refrigeration, household sanitation, labor saving, family hygiene, table and home decoration. Watch her during her day and you will find her employing this new knowledge for the improvement of living.

Talk with almost any man and you'll find him technically informed about motor-cars and adding machines, aeroplanes and radios, telephones and oil burners—materials, designs, uses, processes in a dozen fields.

What has happened? It seems that people know more than they used to and that they use their new-found knowledge to their comfort and happiness. Perhaps this is the explanation: There is today a New University—the University of Advertising. Its doors never close, it is open to all and the fees of admission are the daily price of a newspaper. The subjects taught are ways to make life better and more enjoyable. Eminent authorities in the various fields work with skilled writers and illustrators to prepare the daily "lessons"—the advertisements. They are admirably printed and illustrated. They are studied and applied, as needed, by the youngsters and grown-ups of all ages.

What have you learned today in the New University? Study the advertisements. Useful knowledge is waiting there for you.

Rookie's Hits Lead Boston To Win—Pirates, Dodgers Gain

CHICAGO—Carl Hubbell, south-paw pitcher ace of the Giants, turned in his fifth victory of the season Tuesday as New York opened an invasion of the west with a 4 to 1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Hubbell yielded eight hits, two more than his mates were able to muster off a trio of Cub pitchers, but he was invincible with men on the bases. In addition he walked only one while the Giants drew six passes from Pat Malone, who started the game, and his two successors, Bud Tinning and Guy Bush.

The Cubs' run, which prevented Hubbell from winning his fourth shutout of the season, was the fault of the pitcher himself. After Jurgens opened the seventh inning with a single, Hubbell threw Taylor's grounder wild in trying for a force play at second. Two infield outs pushed Jurgens across the plate.

Cleveland Erases 6-Run Lead, Fights It Out 12 Innings

WASHINGTON, (AP)—In a weird 12-inning slugfest, with the two teams using 33 players between them to produce the astounding total of 43 hits, the Washington Senators Tuesday recorded an 11 to 10 victory over Cleveland to pull even with the Indians in second place.

After three hours and 24 minutes of baseball, in which almost everything happened, Joe Kuhel, Senator first baseman, stepped up to the plate with the bases loaded to push a clean single through the pitcher's box and bring across the winning run.

Kuhel was the batting hero of the day. His five hits included a home run in addition to a triple.

After the third inning, Washington fans began to relax behind an apparently safe six run lead. But the Indians had other ideas. They disposed in order of Pitchers Stewart, Hurke and Weaver and when Russell finally retired the side in the eighth, Cleveland enjoyed a two run lead. Vosmik's fourth hit of the day, coupled with singles by Kamm and Averill, two bases on balls and a costly error by Goin, gave the Indians three runs in the eighth.

Receiver Asked For Wirt Franklin Group

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—A receiver for the $10,000,000 Wirt Franklin Petroleum Co. the $5,000,000 Cromwell-Franklin Oil Co. and for personal affairs of Wirt Franklin was demanded by the majority stockholders.

In three district court receivership actions the stockholders alleged that creditors of the companies had forced themselves into control of the board of directors and through mismanagement and fraudulent operation are dissipating the assets.

The defendant creditors were listed as: The First National Bank & Trust Co. of Oklahoma City; First National Bank & Trust Co. of Tulsa; Exchange Trust Co. and Exchange National Bank of Tulsa, and Liberty National Bank of Oklahoma City.

By threatening to take over the properties for indebtedness which the stockholders alleged could be repaid in normal times, the banks established a creditors' committee which assumed control of the board and appointed a virtual dictator, John S. Aicorn, the petitions assert.

Meat, Potatoes and Gravy

MANY a meal is built around these three standbys—meat, potatoes and gravy. Invariably they are the first dishes that come to your mind as you plan your dinner. But in spite of their hunger-satisfying and nourishing qualities, this time-honored triumvirate can become monotonous unless it is supplemented by other dishes. However, it is often a problem to find these "side dishes" in your own head. Of course you can quiz your neighbor, or ask the members of your family what they would like. But even this source of information is often lacking in ideas.

The thing to do is read the advertisements in your newspaper. Every day your local markets display their foodstuffs on those printed pages. You'll read of new vegetables and fruits that have "just arrived." Your appetite will be aroused by the tasty creations of national food manufacturers. With pencil and paper you can make your market list and menus before you step out of the house.

Speaking of monotony, consider this. There are 11 different cuts of beef, 9 cuts of veal, 7 of lamb, 10 of pork; there are at least 20 different breakfast cereals sold in every store, 16 different canned vegetables, 6 canned fruits, a dozen or more canned meats and fish, numberless varieties of cakes and crackers. Why should there be monotony in meals with such a variety of foods available at your store and so many of them advertised in your paper?
