Jury hears confession, sees video of victim

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Jurors saw videotape of a murdered man's body and heard a taped confession from the man accused of the killing as testimony began Monday in a 222nd District Court first degree murder trial.

Johnny Ramirez, 27, Hereford, is being tried for the shotgun slaying of Gerardo Jasso Guzman, 40, of Olton. Ramirez is trying to convince the jury that he acted in self defense.

We intend to prove to you that Johnny Ramirez is not only a killer, but a liar," Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul said in his opening statement to the eleven-man, one-woman jury. Saul said Ramirez lied about the time of the shooting, and about dropping the murder weapon into a lake in north Hereford.

On the tape, Ramirez told an investigator with the Potter-Randall County Special Crimes Unit that the shooting occurred around noon on Sept. 13, 1984. But a farmer who lives near Umbarger testified he saw the car in which Guzman's body was found parked on Farm to Market Road 168 north of Umbarger as early as 5:30 that morning.

Ten permits issued in March

Ten building permits issued in March totaled $474,000 in value to bring the 1985 first quarter total to $2,327,000 for 24 permits. The top construction was Town and Country Food, at U.S. 385 and U.S. 60, for a $180,000 project. Other major permits obtained were for media center construction at Northwest Primary School, valued at $120,000, and Bluebonnet Intermediate, valued at $102,000.

One residence permit was obtained at a $40,000 value and the remainder was for miscellaneous additions.

At the end of the first quarter of 1984, the city had issued 27 permits for a value total of $903,800. In March of last year, seven permits were issued for a $720,000 total.

School rule may go back to state board

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Education Committee scheduled a vote today that could send the controversial no-pass, no-play eligibility rule back to the State Board of Education for a solution.

The committee discussed the political hot potato Monday but put off a vote until today.

"The board has never really looked at this from the students' viewpoint and what is best for the students," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, committee chairman and a leader in efforts to change the rule. "The board had to work with the boundaries the Legislature gave them."

Under the school reform bill passed last summer, the Legislature said the board should make rules preventing students from taking part in extracurricular activities if they were not making passing grades.

The board decreed any student not making a passing grade of 70 in any one subject would be suspended from Saul believes Guzman died during the early morning hours of Sept. 13. Ramirez led investigators to the lake near Fifteenth Street after his confession, and the bottom of the lake was searched by an Amarillo Police Department Diving Team. Sgt. Ronald Hudson, dive coordinator, said his team searched the lake bottom thoroughly for two days and if the gun were there, they would have found it.

Ramirez was arrested on Sept. 14, after investigators spotted evidence of the shooting in his mobile home on 238 Avenue C. Special crimes Officer Greg Soltis testified that Ramirez was standing in his yard when he arrived at the trailer, and "became very nervous as soon as we identified ourselves."

Soltis said he became more suspicious when he spotted part of a carpet shampoo machine in the back of a pickup parked in the driveway, and eyed more apparent evidence in the house without even stepping inside the door.

The trailer was later searched, and officers found blood stains on the carpet, drapes and ceiling and shotgun pellets throughout the living

City raises cart fee, April 12 it's $12

Golfers will be paying an extra $2 for golf carts at the Hereford green starting April 12.

City commissioners agreed Monday night to raise the cart fees from $10 to $12 at the request of Mike Horton, golf pro at the course. It is the first cart increase since August of 1979.

According to a list of green fees and golf cart rates which Horton provided the commission, Hereford remains the cheapest municipal golf courses in about a 200-mile radius. Cart rates at Ross Rogers in Amarillo, Hogan Park in Midland, Clovis Municipal, Perryton Municipal and Andrews are all $12, but weekday green fees range from $4.50 to $9. At Hereford the weekday green fee is $4. Meadowbrook in Lubbock has a cart rate of $14 and at Ocotillo Park in Hobbs the rate is $13.50.

Commissioner Bud Eades, a non-golfer, said he had heard of carts "running out of whatever they run out of" before a round is completed. Horton said a lot of carts are rented out before they have had a full 12-hour battery charge, despite his warning the customers. Horton said half of the 34 carts have been re-batteried this year.

Commissioner Joe Reinauer Jr. requested that the carts be maintained at a quality equal to the cart rate.

The city also voted to go into an agreement with the state highway department on the widening of U.S. 385 from Moreman north to the city limits near Sixteenth Street. The state will likely let bids on the project this summer. The city will be responsible for furnishing right-of-way, construction of gutters and curb, replacing of driveways and maintenance.

A $75,000 grant from the Texas Aeronautics Commission was accepted for work on the seal coating of the city airport. The city will pay about $25,000 for its share of the work.

In other business commissioners accepted a bid for a truck for the city health department and tabled selection of an architect for the proposed fire station.

Soviets reportedly ahead in 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is continuing a rapid buildup and modernization of its nuclear and conventional forces and is farther along than the United States in developing various "Star Wars-type" defenses, the Pentagon reported today.

The Soviet buildup is reflected by the emergence of new ballistic and cruise missiles; construction of much more capable submarines and fighter and bomber aircraft; an increase in the number of ground forces from 194 active divisions to 199 active divisions, and the development of large bases outside the Soviet Union such as at Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam, the report states.

It is also reflected by the assignment of more than 10,000 scientists and engineers to work just on high-energy lasers, and a "high-priority" focus on the militarization of space that includes development of a heavy-lift rocket, a space shuttle and a smaller "space plane" that could be used to defend manned space stations.

The 143-page study, entitled "Soviet Military Power 1985," was released this morning by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger. It is the fourth in a series of annual reports described by the Reagan administration as offering the most comprehensive review available of the military threat facing the United States.

"The forces of the USSR and its allies continue to expand, modernize and deploy with increasingly capable weapons systems designed for the entire spectrum of strategic, theater-nuclear and conventional conflict," Weinberger wrote. There is also evidence this modernization will continue well into the future, he added, in part because of an aggressive and systematic Soviet effort to steal advanced Western technologies.

Despite the extent of the Russian buildup cited in the report, a senior Pentagon intelligence official said during a briefing Monday he would not trade American forces for those of the Soviet Union. But the official, who asked not to be identified, added the report proves "there is a relentless drive to provide the Soviet forces with an offensive capability."

The official added he was most concerned by the continuing buildup in Soviet submarine forces.

Much of the information on specific weapons contained in the new report has been disclosed in recent months. For example, Defense Department officials confirmed last month the Soviets were preparing to deploy two new intercontinental ballistic missiles — the SS-X-24 and the SS-X-25 — and that the latter is considered a violation of arms con-

Gorbachev replies to summit invitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has sent a reply to his invitation for a summit meeting, but the president refuses to divulge its contents.

However, The Washington Post, which interviewed Reagan Monday, quoted unidentified administration sources as saying Gorbachev endorsed the idea of a meeting without specifying a time or place.

Reagan told the Post he never discusses communications with other heads of state, but said he was "hoping that we can have such a meeting."

"I wrote, and he (Gorbachev) answered, and we're in negotiations, and we'll just leave it like that," the president said.

Reagan extended the summit invitation in a letter brought to Moscow last month by Vice President George Bush at the time of the funeral of Gorbachev's predecessor, Konstantin U. Chernenko.

A U.S. official who follows U.S.-Soviet relations closely told The Associated Press late Monday he knew of no evidence to indicate Gorbachev had definitely agreed to a summit meeting.

In the Post interview, Reagan reiterated his desire for a meeting with Gorbachev despite the killing on March 24 of U.S. Army Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson Jr., who was shot by a Soviet sentry in East Germany.

"This was a murder, a cold-blooded murder, and it reflects on the difference between the two societies, one that has no regard for human life and one like our own that thinks it's the most important thing," Reagan said.

"And, yes, I want a meeting even more so, to sit down and look so-

DOE to photograph

An aerial photographic survey of Deaf Smith County is planned for early April to collect information for the Department of Energy in regard to the possible site characterization for a nuclear waste repository. The data will be used in response to comments made at the February hearing in Hereford on the environmental assessment.

Landowners near the proposed site were informed of the photography by letter. The photography will be done this month before vegetation covers the ground.

The photographs will be used to complete maps and determine location of exploratory shafts in case the site is selected for further characterization. Specifically the photographs will document location of playa lakes and assist in determining the flood plain.

Flights will be about a mile apart and 1800 feet above ground only between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Science Fair Winners

Michael Muse and Cynamin Brownlow, above, sixth graders at Shirley Intermediate, will be exhibiting their prize-winning science project at Hereford State Bank until Friday. The girls' experiment won first place in the elementary biological division of the South Plains Regional Science Fair at Amarillo College. The exhibit shows the different effects of manure from cattle, rabbits, and chickens on common house plants. Winning first place in the junior high division of the regional fair was Cameron Gulley, below. A seventh grader from La Plata, Gulley will keep his global explanation of weather routes on display this week, also.

Local Roundup

Police busied during weekend

Weekend arrests by the Hereford police included four DWI arrests, two of persons under the influence of a controlled substance, three traffic violations, and one for criminal non-support.

Reports filed included four criminal mischief cases, two civil disputes, a family disturbance, and eight thefts.

Three of the thefts were of license plates. A spare tire was reported taken from a pickup parked at Deaf Smith General Hospital, a battery was reported stolen and a dog was taken from a yard.

One arrested Monday

Hereford police made one arrest for driving while intoxicated Monday, investigated a theft of beer from a convenience store and checked a vandalism report at Hereford Day Care on Norton. The facility had the windows in the front door knocked out. Police also checked a case of credit card abuse at a gas station.

Sirens to be tested

The Hereford Fire Department will be testing the tornado sirens at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, weather permitting. The last scheduled test was cancelled due to overcast weather. Fire Marshal Jay Spain noted that a siren being tested on cloudy days may be taken as a real alarm.

Deputies recover vehicle

Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies this weekend recovered a vehicle which was reported stolen from Bovina and also towed in a vandalized car out on West Highway 60.

Deputies also checked a burglary and made eight arrests on Saturday night.

Hotel slowly moving

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Fairmount Hotel has moved one step closer to its final destination four blocks from the spot where it rested for the past 79 years.

The 3.2 million pound structure, believed to be the heaviest building ever moved, traversed a bridge and rounded a corner Monday.

The hotel, ousted from its original spot because of a developing downtown mall, still had about two blocks to go today on its journey.

Officials said plans are for the hotel to reach its final destination sometime today.

"I would say we're on the down leg of this operation," Kiobassa said at a news conference Monday.

Crossing the bridge, which spans the San Antonio River, was considered one of the most crucial points in the move.

But city public works director Frank Kiobassa said the feat went off without a hitch.

"It went very smoothly," he said. "We've found no damage on the bridge nor was there any distress on the building."

The bridge had been shored up with steel scaffolding and could have withstood more than 4 million pounds of pressure, said Cosmo Guido,

Scores of people arrested

CANYON LAKE, Texas (AP) — Prompted by rock-throwing youths, authorities swept through Comal Park on Canyon Lake over the weekend and arrested 144 people.

Comal County Sheriff Walter Fellers led 50 officers from four agencies on the raids Sunday afternoon.

"We did it because we needed to calm them down a little bit," Fellers told the Austin American-Statesman on Monday.

Among the charges were speeding, parking in no-parking zones, disorderly conduct, blocking roads, public intoxication, and possessing marijuana.

In addition, officers stopped a driver fleeing a hit-and-run accident and confiscated one weapon found during the sweep, authorities said.

Fellers said officers are serving notice that public intoxication, drug use, and traffic offenses no longer will be tolerated at parks along the lake.

Fellers said officers found 25 to 30 minors in possession of alcohol.

Clinic zoning measure tabled

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — The threat of a lawsuit forced the local city council to table a proposed ordinance that would require abortion clinics to be in free-standing buildings.

The proposal was introduced in response to a February fire that destroyed an abortion clinic and several surrounding businesses contained in an office building.

The council voted 5-1 to table the proposed ordinance after opponents threatened a lawsuit and a law professor questioned the legality of the measure.

"I really would have a problem voting today on this particular request," said Mayor Brunhilde Nystrom. "We have received some information on some litigation (involving similar ordinances). I think most of us aren't sure what type of litigation would occur if we went forward with this ordinance."

Neil Cogan, a Southern Methodist University law professor, told the council he didn't think the ordinance would hold up in court.

Money keeps rolling in

HOUSTON (AP) — Scores of hot check writers showed up with cash in hand to pay more than $600,000 in restitution and $11,000 in fines in a countywide dragnet.

"They're still coming in," Harris County chief deputy constable Don Chumley said Monday. "With media publicity, it's put the fear of God into them. It's given them encouragement to come in and get right."

County law enforcement officials announced last week that they were starting a sweep to pick up hot check writers. The officials encouraged those owing for bad checks to voluntarily make the checks good.

On Saturday, 403 officers started serving warrants. Chumley said officers made a total of 272 arrests by Monday morning. The arrests cleared 4,485 bad checks, brought in $600,000 "or better" and raised $11,000 in fines, he said.

Chumley said hot check writers were hauled before a judge and given the option of paying off or setting a trial date. Most, he said, paid or were released on their own recognizance. Officers jailed 23 persons, however, who had other warrants outstanding, he said.

Photos to be shown on TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — The floor of the House, so often the scene of divisive political words, is becoming a forum of hope as members of Congress publicize the cases of missing children.

While the television cameras roll after regular business ends for the day, members take turns at the microphone and hold up 16-by-20-inch photographs of some of the hundreds of thousands of children reported missing each year.

The televised House appeals for help began informally last summer and are now being planned in advance as more and more members seek to alert the nation to look out for missing children from their districts.

Today's scheduled session, the first organized House appeal of 1984, focuses on 26 children from 13 states.

Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., organizer of today's event, was the first to use the House floor for missing children when he showed pictures of two teen-age girls who disappeared from the Oklahoma State Fair.

"I started the project last year because of my concern for the safety of the two teen-age girls who had been kidnapped in my own district," Edwards said. "The televised proceedings of the House were an untapped resource to help publicize these and thousands of other cases of missing children."

Here is a list of the missing children from Texas whose cases were to be publicized today by members of the House of Representatives.

—Christy Lynn Meeks, a 5-year-old Dallas resident, was lured away from a group of children and abducted on Jan. 19.

—Bradley Eugene Gilbert, 6, of Chillicothe, was last seen playing in the yard of his aunt's home on Nov. 10, 1984.

—Chris Harvey, 15, of Andrews, disappeared from his parent's summer home near Pagosa Springs, Colo., last July 11.

'Singing nun' commits suicide

WAVRE, Belgium (AP) — The Belgian news agency says Jeanine Deckers, the guitar-playing "Singing Nun" who became world famous with her 1963 song "Dominique," committed suicide along with a friend at a home they shared. She was 52 years old.

The news agency, Belga, quoted a police officer as saying police were alerted Monday by friends who had not heard from the two women. It said police found their bodies and said the two died of a massive dose of sedatives.

Miss Deckers' friend was not identified in the agency's report. The women had left a letter, explaining their suicide and asking for discretion, the officer was quoted as saying. The news report said the two women had been depressed, partly because of the financial problems of a children's institution they ran.

Miss Deckers, who joined the Dominican convent of Fichermont near Brussels in 1959, left the order in 1966.

She was noted for her high, sweet voice and was pressed to make a record. Her first one, "Dominique," was an immediate world hit in 1963. More than 100 different versions of the song were made, including an electronic one she did in 1983. However, she never equalled the success of her first record.

After she left the convent she adhered closely to its rules. She tried with her friend to run an institution for handicapped children but had to give up for lack of funds, the agency's report said.

April Fool's jokes not funny

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities were not amused by a couple of April Fool's jokes on Monday.

— About 50 motorists reported tire damage after someone threw boxes of nails onto a busy Dallas freeway.

— A 27-year-old salesman was arrested after he covered his body with red food coloring and pretended to be bleeding to death.

Among the damage reported early Monday on the C.F. Hawn Freeway were those of all eight tires on two squad cars belonging to the police department in Seagoville, a southeast Dallas suburb.

Donna Counts, 38, of Seagoville said she was northbound on the freeway Monday when she saw several men on a bridge dumping nails onto the road.

"When an 18-wheeler ran over those nails, you could hear the thunder a half mile from there," Seagoville Sgt. S. Stewart, whose car tires were damaged, told the Dallas Times Herald.

His department's two squad cars made it back to the station, but all eight tires had to be replaced, he said.

James Doar, 37, of Dallas was one of the first to encounter the nails.

"I figured it was someone's idea of an April Fool's joke," he said. "It cost me $600 to replace my tires, so I didn't think it was very funny. I had about 50 nails in one tire."

The other April Fool's Day joke took place about 12:30 p.m. Monday outside the apartment of Penny Gardner, 25, in northeast Dallas. A man's loud cursing drew her attention to some nearby bushes, she said.

One man stood up with his hands covered in red as another, who appeared to be "covered in blood," dragged himself from the bushes, she said.

"The man covered with blood threw himself out in the street, coughing and screaming for help. I thought he had been shot or stabbed. It looked that bad," she told the Times Herald.

After she called police, several friends of the "victim" began laughing at her, telling her that only fools fall for April Fool's pranks.

When police, fire and ambulance personnel arrived, Ms. Gardner told them what had happened, and the dye-covered man was arrested and taken to jail. Police said they were considering charges of making a false report, a Class C misdemeanor.

"I'm glad they arrested him," Ms. Gardner said. "It looks like the joke was on him."

Improved pensions and other benefits have made retirement more attractive. Only 16.3 percent of men and 7.5 percent of women over 65 are now in the labor force, compared with 31 percent and 10 percent in 1960.

meane in the eye and talk to him about what we could do to make sure nothing of this kind happens again," he added.

Other points made by Reagan in the interview included:

—Disaffection among Nicaraguans with the leftist Sandinista government is increasing.

—Reagan expressed optimism about trade talks with Japan, saying he expects Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone to keep his commitment to open Japanese markets to U.S. goods. He also said he would oppose any protectionist legislation.

—Negotiations in Geneva to reduce offensive nuclear weapons are "going forward" despite heavy Soviet criticism of the Reagan administration's "Star Wars" missile defense research program. "The plain truth of the matter is they've been doing the same kind of research in the same areas and started it before we did."

—The United States will "go to the source" if foreign governments are found to be sponsors of terrorist acts.

—The administration will continue its policy of quiet diplomacy in its dealings with the apartheid government in South Africa, where Reagan once again blamed some of the recent violence on black factions.

—While saying that America should not forget the deaths of millions of Jews at the hands of the Nazis during World War II, Reagan said it would not be appropriate for him to visit the Dachau concentration camp during his visit to Europe next month during the 40th anniversary celebration of the Allied victory over Germany. "... I believe we should all start recognizing, the day of the end of the war, and make it more of a celebration of the fact that on that day, 40-odd years ago, began the friendship (with Germany) that we now know. Forty years of peace between us. And at the same time, you can say: and let us keep it and never go back that other way."

The Senate previously passed a resolution, by Parker, calling on the state board to do away with the six-

Kiobassa called Guido a magician.

"We get more movement from a dump truck. It (bridge) didn't flex at all," he said.

The three-story brick hotel was muscled off its original site Saturday.

After more than two days of movement, Kiobassa said the hotel "is in excellent condition. Nothing has moved. Nothing has shown any stress whatsoever," he said.

The hotel spent the night Sunday on Market Street between a hotel and the San Antonio Convention Center.

Ramirez told investigators Guzman came to his house wanting the $600 Ramirez owed him in a heroin deal. He told Guzman he did not have the money, and said Guzman became angry and returned about an hour later with a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun.

Jurors heard Ramirez say on the tape that the two wrestled on the couch of his home and the gun went off. Guzman died of two gunshot wounds to the left side of his face.

The search also revealed that the Ramirez family was apparently planning to leave town on the day of weeks rule and consider week-by-week grades in considering extracurricular eligibility.

The state board took no action on the Senate resolution, saying it would wait until it heard from the House, which has not passed a similar resolution.

Before the move began, the structure was jacked more than eight feet off the ground. Resting on layers of steel beams, the hotel is being moved on 36 hydraulic powered dollies.

The move is expected to cost $1 million. Once it reaches its new location, the hotel will undergo $4 million in renovations.

Guzman's body was found in his own car, a 1979 Plymouth Arrow. He had been wrapped in a bedspread, and cushions that matched the sofa in the Ramirez home were found beside him.

Ramirez claimed he drove the body to Umbarger himself, and "thumbed a ride" back to Hereford.

The prosecution is to continue presenting its case at 9:15 this morning, with 22nd District Court Judge David Wesley Guiley presiding.

Ramirez is represented by Hereford attorney John Lesly.

trol agreements.

The new report elaborates on those statements, saying the SS-X-24 — which can carry up to 10 warheads — is expected to be deployed next year. The smaller, single-warhead SS-X-25, however, will be deployed this year, the report adds. It has been designed for launch from mobile tractor-trailers, and thus will complicate U.S. surveillance efforts.

While the report also provides additional details on a host of other weapons, it strikes new ground in discussing the Soviet Union's "Strategic Defense and Space Programs," equating them to the U.S. Star Wars research program that has become a source of contention at the Geneva arms talks.

According to the report, the Russians are engaged in a massive research program that is every bit if not more ambitious than that of the United States. And they are focusing on many of the same technologies that President Reagan has identified as targets for American research, such as lasers and particle-beam weapons.

"The USSR's high-energy laser program ... is much larger than the U.S. effort," the report states. "By the late 1980s, the Soviets could have prototypes for ground-based lasers for ballistic missile defense. They already have ground-based lasers that could be used to interfere with (low-orbit) U.S. satellites."

The Soviets also "have begun to develop at least three types of high-energy laser weapons for air defense," and have mounted "a vigorous program" to develop particle-beam weapons. They are also conducting research "in the use of strong radio-frequency signals that have the potential to interfere with or destroy components of missiles, satellites and re-entry vehicles."

Meet Your Neighbor

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

Maybe Ron and Janie Young finally have found a home.

After moving almost once a year for the past few years, the Youngs are hoping to stay in Hereford where Mr. Young is the head track coach and an assistant football coach.

The couple moved here in August of 1984 from Brownfield where he had coached for two years. Prior to living in Brownfield, the Youngs were residents of Stamford where Mr. Young worked with Jerry Taylor, Hereford Independent School District athletic director.

"I knew I would be in a good coaching situation here with Taylor," Mr. Young said. "I knew we would have good people."

"I think he also wanted Lee (their son) to be in Taylor's athletic program," Mrs. Young added.

Making a rather quick decision to come, Mr. Young said that he primarily came for football. What then does he see in track?

"The track meets are exciting and they go quicker and faster than other sports," Mr. Young said in explaining his interest in the sport. "To run track you have to be an individualist but still have team spirit. It takes a special person to be a trackster."

He feels that the runners get more personal satisfaction out of track than from other sports because they work alone. He said that runners must ask only themselves if they did their best.

"They have to be dedicated," Young said of the track team members. "We especially work hard the distance runners. Their (training) is a lonely road."

Mr. Young ran track and played football while in high school. He attended New Mexico Highlands University in Las Vegas, N.M., on a football scholarship. He graduated with a degree in physical education and has been coaching for five years.

In addition to coaching, he sponsors the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. In Brownfield, he was a member of the Kiwanis Club.

Mrs. Young presently works as a bookkeeper for Hays Cattle Company.

She studied music at Highlands University, wanting to work with church music. She plays the piano and enjoys singing, decorating and drawing floor plans for homes.

In Brownfield, she coached her daughter's basketball team. Here, she is kept busy attending as many varsity games as she can.

Lee is a ninth-grader at La Plata Junior High where he is a member of the football, basketball and track teams. He plays the trombone, and was awarded first chair at all-region. Lee also participated in the Youth-A-Rama at the Nazarene Church in a singing ensemble which received a gold medal and the opportunity to proceed to regionals in Bethany, Okla.

The couple's daughter, Katie, is a third-grader at Northwest Elementary. She plays on a basketball team at the YMCA and is involved with gymnastics. She also is playing a solo part in a musical at their church, First Church of the Nazarene.

"Katie is the one that keeps us happy," Mrs. Young said.

Mrs. Young said the people in Hereford have been nice to them.

"We really appreciate the people here," she said. "When you move a lot, like coaches and their families do, it's especially nice and means a lot when people are good to you."

For NCAA title

Villanova conquers Hoyas

By BRUCE LOWITT

AP Sports Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Far from owning a place in the history books, Georgetown and Patrick Ewing are mere footnotes to Villanova's place in the NCAA's record book. The Hoyas were all but conceded a second consecutive national championship before the basketball tournament began — even before the basketball season began — and most certainly before Monday night's final against Villanova began.

"We're going to have to play a perfect game against Georgetown to win," roly-poly Rollie Massimino, the Wildcats' animated coach, had said before they pulled off one of the sport's greatest upsets with a 66-64 victory.

His prediction wasn't far off. More accurately, his players weren't.

titles. They were supposed to join UCLA, Oklahoma A&M, Kentucky, San Francisco and Cincinnati as repeat champions.

And Ewing, the monolithic 7-footer with the wingspan of a condor, was supposed to join the select company of Lew Alcindor, Bill Walton, Jerry Lucas, Alex Groza and Bob Kurland as a multiple winner of the tournament's Outstanding Player Award.

It all came crashing to the court in Rupp Arena. Ewing alone missed as many shots as the entire Villanova team, getting his 14 points on 7-of-13 from the field.

He was his usual awesome self — three consecutive slam dunks late in the first half — but lithe, 6-9 Ed Pinckney ached Ewing out of his greatest triumph and grabbed it for himself.

It was Pinckney, with five of seven from the field and six of seven from the foul line, six rebounds and five assists, who was selected the tournament's premier player and who joined fellow seniors Dwayne McClain (with a game-high 17 points) and Gary McLain in fulfilling a dream.

They had vowed as freshmen to give Massimino ("a father, a brother, a boss and a coach," McLain had called him) a trip to the Final Four before they were graduated.

"These kids are just great," Massimino told a post-game news conference, the emotion welling up and spilling from his eyes as he sat with his trio of seniors and sophomore guard Harold Jensen.

They were Davids facing a Goliath and his army of sharpshooters.

They were Rocky, real-life fighters from the outskirts of Philadelphia.

They were The Little Engine That Could, panting, "I think I can, I think I can . . . I thought I could, I thought I could . . ."

Ewing's season ended with the Hoyas a 35-3 team. The Ewing era at Georgetown ended with the Hoyas' four-year record at 121-23.

In barely a month, seven teams in the National Basketball Association will participate in a lottery for the first choice in the draft. The winner most certainly will take Ewing.

"I don't feel bad for him," said teammate Michael Jackson. "I'm sure Patrick will have a chance to play another championship game."

Herd drops league baseball game Monday

The Hereford Whitefaces saw their District 3-5A baseball record drop to 1-4 Monday, losing an encounter to Tascosa, 7-2.

Tascosa pitcher Kirk Barron fired a one-hitter to lift his team's record to 2-2 and 5-6. Hereford sports an overall record of 4-6.

Stefen Hacker recorded the only hit for the Whitefaces, an infield single to short in the sixth inning. Chet Bunch and Kurt Simon scored the Whitefaces' runs.

Bobby Medina was the losing pitcher.

Hereford was to play again today at 4:30 p.m. at Whiteface Field. Coronado was in town for a single game.

Seniors believed

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — With 10 seconds left in the NCAA championship game, Villanova senior guard Gary McLain looked up at the scoreboard, flashed the No. 1 sign, and said "it's over. We did it."

What the unranked and decided underdog Wildcats did was defeat No. 1 Georgetown 66-64 Monday night and finish the quest of three seniors who believed they could accomplish what many said was impossible.

It was fitting that McLain, who convinced fellow seniors Ed Pinckney and Dwayne McClain to attend Villanova, should have the honor of proclaiming the victory.

"Our beliefs took us to this point and that alone," said McLain, who boldly promised Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino a Final Four appearance as a freshman.

"We had to believe in ourselves because nobody else did."

"Every one of you people said we had no shot. We shouldn't have even played the game," said Massimino.

"These kids are just great. Everyone wrote us off, said we didn't have a chance to win. They didn't listen."

It started four years ago at a prep basketball camp where the "Three Musketeers" met. It ended in Rupp Arena with McLain consistently breaking a Georgetown press, and McClain and Pinckney scoring 17 and 16 points against a much taller Georgetown front line.

Villanova shot 90 percent (9 for 10) from the field in the second half, and finished with an NCAA record 78.6 percent (22 of 28) for

Ewing still proud

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The award was for second place, but Georgetown's Patrick Ewing let a frenzied Villanova crowd know the Hoyas were still No. 1.

Minutes after dropping a 66-64 verdict and the NCAA championship Monday night to the Wildcats, Ewing proudly took the award stand and thrust his index finger skyward, signifying that one loss could not dampen a 35-3 season.

"We might not have won the ball game, but I still think we're No. 1," said Ewing, who in his four years took Georgetown to three NCAA tournament finals, losing twice by a total of three points, and a 121-23 record.

"They won the game. They get the national championship, but we still feel good about ourselves. We're still the No. 1 team in the nation," added guard Michael Jackson.

Even Villanova center Ed Pinckney, voted the tournament's outstanding player, was hesitant to claim a Wildcat domination over the Hoyas.

"I think tonight we may have been the better team, but I wouldn't want to play them 10 times — let's put it that way — in one season. If we did that, we'd lose a lot of them without a doubt," Pinckney said.

Georgetown, which had its 29-game winning streak stopped by St. John's earlier in the season, got to the finals by beating the Redmen for the third time in a row. The Hoyas couldn't repeat that against Villanova, which had dropped two earlier games to the Big East power.

"We beat one of the greatest teams in history. They played extremely well and we played

Twins' pitcher has strong performance

By The Associated Press

This season, the Minnesota Twins will count on left-hander Frank Viola to win games on the mound. But in spring training, he also can help out at the plate.

Viola singled twice and drove in a run, while also pitching seven innings Monday as the Twins downed the Houston Astros 4-2 in exhibition baseball.

"What do you want to talk about, my hitting?" Viola joked after the game.

On the mound, Viola scattered nine hits over seven innings in winning his fourth game in five decisions.

In other games, Los Angeles reliever Steve Howe, making his first appearance of the spring after sitting out the 1984 season because of drug involvement, lasted just two-thirds of an inning and took the loss as the Detroit Tigers beat the Dodgers 8-6.

At night, another squad of Tigers defeated Florida Southern University 9-0.

The Milwaukee Brewers scored four times in the eighth inning, aided by third baseman Graig Nettles' two errors, to beat the San Diego Padres 6-3.

Eric Davis, a hard-hitting center fielder in his second season with Cincinnati, drilled Dan Quisenberry's first pitch of the ninth inning over the left-center field wall for a home run to give the Reds a 6-5 triumph over the Kansas City Royals.

Dan Gladden, another highly rated second-year center fielder, hit an inside-the-park home run and Dave LaPoint pitched seven innings as the San Francisco Giants pounded the Cleveland Indians 14-4.

Shawon Dunston, a rookie who will start the season at shortstop for the Chicago Cubs this season, led off the ninth inning with a double and scored on Bob Dernier's single for a 7-6 triumph over the California Angels.

Ed Lynch, Calvin Schiraldi and Doug Sisk held Pittsburgh to seven hits as the New York Mets blanked the Pirates 4-0.

Rick Cerone, traded by the New York to Atlanta during the off-season, homered and doubled in driving in three runs to lead the Braves past the Yankees 9-1.

Ozzie Virgil homered in the Philadelphia Phillies' 3-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Fred Manrique's run-scoring double in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted the Toronto Blue Jays over the Montreal Expos 5-4 in the only spring meeting of the two Canadian teams.

Thad Reece drove in two runs with a pair of singles and Carney Lansford singled three times as the Oakland A's tripped the Seattle Mariners 6-5.

The Baltimore Orioles, shut out for six innings by Bruce Kison, scored three runs in the seventh off Bob Stanley on an RBI single by Larry Sheets, a sacrifice fly by Wayne Gross and Floyd Rayford's double in beating the Boston Red Sox 3-1.

Sophomore Harold Jensen, who was named to the all-tournament team along with Pinckney, McClain and McLain, made all five of his field-goal attempts and helped his elders reach their dream by making four of five free throws in the final 1:24.

"Villanova played their game, shooting 79 percent was a perfect game," said Hoya forward Reggie Williams.

"What can you do?" asked Jackson. "They were hitting the shots from the outside and those were the shots we wanted them to take.

"We had a hand in their face," Jackson said. "One shot they took was wide open. The rest they had a hand in their face."

The Hoyas descended from their throne with honor and dignity.

"We know how to win and we know how to lose. I just don't want to make a habit of losing," Coach John Thompson said.

The Hoyas huddled briefly after their free throw line after the final buzzer, hugging Ewing before silently going to their bench for the last time as a team.

Later there were more hugs and even a few smiles exchanged between the players, who applauded the Wildcats as they accepted the first-place trophy, before they left the court.

"I don't look at it as a loss," said reserve center Ralph Dalton. "We went out and played a good game. We had a successful season. I don't see anything to be ashamed of. We got beat by a good team. Coach (Thompson) told us he was proud of us. He said we did a good job."

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
See physician

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently you wrote about a woman who was depressed, suicidal and had lost 25 pounds in two months. I was certain you'd tell her to have a complete checkup to be sure there was no physical problem before she went to a psychiatrist. That sounded like me eight years ago. It was the worst time of my life. I lost 40 pounds in two months, couldn't sleep and was extremely depressed. The thought of ending it all was constantly in my mind.

My thyroid was causing the problem. I'm now on medication for my thyroid and am a new person. The medication helps and I have learned more about what to expect and how to handle my depression. Thyroid problems are more serious than most people realize. I remember how suicidal I was for so long. Thank God I always remembered my responsibility to my children and put them first.

DEAR READER — I can understand why you would think the woman referred to might have a thyroid problem. However, anyone who has any suicidal tendencies must be under the care of a psychiatrist. If there is a medical problem underlying the condition, a psychiatrist, as a physician, can discover it through an examination and proceed accordingly.

Suicides are more common than the public realizes. Suicide is the 10th most common cause of death in the United States. Since many suicides are listed as accidents or other things, there may be twice as many suicides as we believe.

Depressions are common, too. About one in five people who live to age 60 will have a major depressive episode. Many of these get no treatment, and these are the ones most likely to commit suicide.

Everyone has mood swings. The degree of the swing makes the difference. How can you tell if a person has a depression? I have listed the criteria used to identify a depression in The Health Letter, Special Report 36, When You Are Depressed, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It is now clear that mood swings and depressions are related to fundamental changes in brain chemistry. That is the basis of the medical treatment of depressions.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 22-year-old male. I'm 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weigh 215. I stopped growing about six years ago. Could this have resulted from not using milk, eggs and other dairy products? I don't take calcium pills, either.

I heard there is a method to increase your height two or four inches. I want to be 6 feet tall. Is there any truth in this? If so, can you send me some information on it?

DEAR READER — You will not grow any taller now. There is no product available that will make you grow. You may have seen a gimmick-ad for inserts in shoes or you may have read about the use of growth hormone. This hormone is now produced by genetic engineering and will certainly be helpful to those who really are abnormally short because their own hormone system did not produce enough growth hormones. Even then, it will have to be used during the normal growth cycle.

The long bones have a zone at each end of the shaft that is made of cartilage. This is the growth plate. As long as it is still cartilage, you can grow, but when it calcifies, you cannot. Calcification is normally complete before age 22.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the relationship between body smells and health problems? My friend has a very unusual odor to his breath. At times it smells like lilac.

I read that some doctors can pinpoint a body dysfunction by analyzing certain body odors.

DEAR READER — Did you ever smell alcohol on someone's breath? That sums up the mechanism. The alcoholic beverage is absorbed into the bloodstream and is carried by the circulation to the lungs, and the volatile elements are released into the lungs and exhaled. The same thing can happen with any chemical that is absorbed into the blood.

A person who has diabetes that is not well controlled, and who therefore is producing ketones, will have a special breath odor resembling that of alcohol. The tragedy is that such a diabetic may be in a near-coma, but may be regarded as drunk and end up in jail instead of in the hospital.

Excessive zeal in eliminating carbohydrates from the diet can also produce this odor.

At certain stages, liver disease may give a particular fruity odor to the breath. This might be what you mean by a "lilac odor." Certain infections also impart an odor to the breath. A lung abscess causes a particular foul odor.

You will understand how breath odors are produced after reading The Health Letter, Special Report 30, Bad Breath: Causes and Management, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is the common cold a necessary evil? Since there is so much mucus discharge during a cold, I've wondered if it is useful to clear out the respiratory system. My voice always seems clearer and stronger after a cold. I haven't had a cold or flu for 30 months. Would it be better if I caught a cold? I'm 71.

DEAR READER — The only reason there is more mucus discharge is from the inflammation caused by the cold. A cold does not clean our respiratory passages. It inflames them.

The only benefit of having a cold is that it helps to boost your immunity to subsequent colds. If you have not had a cold for a long time, when you do get one it is apt to be more severe. However, many factors determine how severe a cold is, including the type of virus and your general health.

I don't recommend that you catch a cold. Colds and flu can be particularly hard on older people, since their immunity to diseases is not as good as it once was.

Colds and flu are contagious diseases caused by viruses. One can avoid catching colds by not having contact with people. That is a little hard to do, and people may be shedding the cold virus before they have any symptoms. However, I do recommend that people wear gloves when they are out, since a large number of respiratory infections are spread by hands. The virus is picked up from handrails, doorknobs and from other people's hands, and the germ-laden hand then touches the face or wipes the nose.

'Texas' to receive grant

This year, in the musical drama "Texas," the engineer can drive his train along the base of the towering cliff of the Palo Duro Canyon with new confidence.

A new engine is under construction for the branch of the "Peavine Railroad," because the engine built by Pete Cowart in 1966 had become old and faltering. There will also be new sets including a more imposing ranch house, many new costumes, revised lighting, and a sense of renewal about the whole show.

These exciting changes are possible through a grant from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation. It is for $180,000, large enough so that the director has been able to employ experienced professional designers to direct the refurbishing of the show.

George Petit of Dallas who designs the Marriott theme parks and Knott's Berry Farm has made the sketches for the sets and L. Lynn Hunt, production designer for Disneyland has been here to consult with Director Neil Hess and Sound and Light Director, Pat Jarrett, about the most effective ways to use lighting in the Pioneer Amphitheatre.

It is rare for a Foundation to approve a grant for such a purpose. The interest of the members of the Board of the Harrington Foundation stem from Sybil Harrington's experience in the theatre. Some time ago, she began to help the Metropolitan Opera by financing new productions of old and new operas from her own funds. In a conversation with Beth Duke of the Amarillo Globe Times, she mentioned that she felt that this was a lasting way to help the arts, since the sets and costumes for each production are used for many years.

It is also a way to aid the creative people needed in the theatre: the set designers, costumers, scenic artists, etc. Her contributions of this kind in New York have been so significant that she was chosen for the Distinguished Achievement to Music Award for "Outstanding contribution to cultural health and civic endeavors, in particular the Metropolitan Opera" in November of 1982.

When Mrs. Harrington was Woman of the Year in Amarillo in 1980, several of her friends mentioned her interest in making things beautiful and done well.

Following the pattern set by Mrs. Harrington in New York, the Board of the Harrington Foundation made a grant to the Lone Star Ballet last year to purchase new sets, some costumes and new lighting for the "Nutcracker" and the stunning 1984 performance were the result.

Now "Texas" is fortunate enough to receive the same kind of help, and the refreshed production will open on the twelfth of June celebrating its twentieth season.

At the Annual Meeting of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, the association which produces "Texas," Neil Hess, the director, will discuss the details of the refurbishing plans.

The 1985 season will run from June 12 through August 24. For information and reservations write "Texas", Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-655-2181.

Satellite music network providing music, DJs

DALLAS (AP) — For nearly 500 radio stations across the United States, the music and the disc jockey are making a 44,600-mile detour through space in order to save the stations the expense — and the headaches — of local programming.

Satellite Music Network, which began service on Aug. 31, 1981, to three stations, has at least 525 stations under contract and 478 receiving either country music, rock 'n' roll, adult contemporary or traditional middle-of-the-road programming by satellite.

The satellite formats offer stations, mostly in small and medium markets programming comparable to large-market, big-budget outlets, while cutting the overhead required for providing music and news to listeners, company officials said.

Chairman John Tyler, one of SMN's founders, said the idea first came when he moved from management of television stations, which depend largely upon national networks for their programming, to radio, where most of the programming is locally produced.

"I was appalled at the amount of time you had to spend with programming," Tyler said. "I wanted to be able to punch the button and go out and sell (advertising)."

In a nutshell, that's the entire idea behind SMN, Tyler said.

"We operate a lot like a television network," he said.

In a modern radio studio in Dallas, headquarters for the firm, a disc jockey looks at a clock with only one hand — programming covers several time zones — and the announcer gives the time as "5 minutes after the hour."

SMN's contemporary hit radio format — the 1980s version of Top 40 — comes from the Dallas studio. Three other formats — country-and-western, middle-of-the-road and adult contemporary — are produced in studio facilities outside of Chicago at Mokena, Ill.

The service includes newscasts and local breaks where stations can insert promotions and commercial breaks. SMN's disc jockeys also record special promotional spots for stations to add a local flare to its programming.

SMN also sells network spot breaks to national advertisers and pays some large-market stations that do not use the service's programming — "compensated affiliates" — to run the commercials, said Kristine Sites, SMN's marketing director.

Although the company's initial business came from small- and medium-market broadcasters, SMN is "starting to break into the major markets," Ms. Sites said.

"It took us longer to get into the larger markets than we thought," Ms. Sites said. "We went over like gangbusters in the small- and medium-market stations."

SMN charges $1,150 per month for its service, Ms. Sites said, a fee much lower than the average monthly cost of a local station maintaining its own programming department.

"We're not entirely a money-making service," she said. "We're a quality, convenient programming service."

At least one other company — Transtar, of Colorado Springs, Colo. — provides a similar satellite-delivered service, but Tyler said he considers his prime network competitors to be those that compete with SMN for national advertising dollars, such as CBS, NBC, ABC and Mutual.

According to the company's stock prospectus issued in June 1984, SMN lost $1.33 million in 1981, $2.77 million in 1982 and $2.17 million in 1983.

For the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1984, SMN posted a net loss of $1.61 million, officials said. Gross revenues jumped 114 percent during the period to $4.12 million from $1.93 million for the same nine-month period in 1983.

Tyler said the future is bright for satellite programming. SMN has the capacity to grow by 200 to 250 affiliates a year with its four networks — and is looking at the possibility of adding additional programming services in the future, he said.

One possible new network would program an "urban contemporary" format with emphasis on black artists, Tyler said. Another idea under study would be "something new and different for AMs," which have suffered a sharp drop in listeners in recent years, he said.

SMN also is looking at the possibility of a Spanish-language format, with portions originating in Mexico City, Tyler said.

Steve Hawkins, owner of two AM-FM operations in Burnet-Marble Falls, Texas, and San Saba, Texas, said he has used both SMN and Transtar at his stations.

"My experience is that it really hasn't saved us any money in programming," Hawkins said, pointing out that most small-market station personnel are paid minimum wages.

"You still have to either buy expensive automation equipment or pay a board operator" to handle the incoming network feed, Hawkins said.

The big difference for small-market stations is in the quality of programming, Hawkins said.

"In a small market you're going to pay near minimum wage for all but maybe two top people" who handle morning and afternoon drive shifts, Hawkins said.

The rest of the air shifts are often handled by part-time announcers, such as high school students, he said.

"What's happening now is that I'm sounding good all the time, instead of just sounding good in drive time," Hawkins said.

Hawkins said satellite networks can save money for medium-market stations, where most personnel often are salaried.

Forgive and forget

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After more than 30 years of what I believed to be a good marriage, I found out my husband has been unfaithful for many years. Some short-term affairs, one extra-long affair. This was a terrible shock. How could I have failed to see all those telltale signs? Maybe it was because I loved him so much and trusted him completely.

He admitted everything, said he was sorry, that he had been foolish—didn't know why he did it and our marriage was the most important thing in his life. He promised to break all ties with the woman and never see her again.

After sleepless nights and buckets of tears, I decided to forgive him. But his infidelity has changed me from a kind, loving wife and mother to a suspicious shrew. I feel as if he has made a fool of me, and wonder how many people are snickering behind my back. Can a person really forget and start over? Please tell me how.—DEPRESSED IN ALTOONA coughing fits by lighting up another cigarette. Mr. B. spent the last eight months of his life with an oxygen tank. He died of emphysema at the age of 55.

My mother loses sleep many nights because she can't breathe. There are times when she keeps the whole family awake with her coughing. Mom smokes about 4½ packs a day.

Dad has a circulation problem that has forced him to be on disability for the past three years. The doctors have pleaded with him to quit smoking, but he still goes through four packs a day.

Ann, not a day goes by that I don't beg my parents to give their lungs a break. I hope you will print my letter. Maybe if they see it in print they will understand what they are doing to the people who love them the most.—CAN'T BREATHE IN CONNECTICUT

Greg Garcia, 130 La Villa, Hereford, has been named to the Presidential Honor Society at the DeVry Institute of Technology in Dallas.

To be eligible for the prestigious honor, students must have a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.5 (out of a possible 4.0) after two terms of study. Garcia, a student in the Electronics Technician program, has a 3.5 GPA.

How ironic that the agony of lung cancer or emphysema is so much worse. Every lung cancer victim would gladly turn the clock back and quit if he had the chance, but for him it's too late.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. ## Strawberry festival set Bob Spence, chairman of the Poteet Strawberry Festival Strawberry Contest, has announced that two of the state's best known and most respected horticulturists, Dr. Jerry Parsons of San Antonio, and Dr. Loy Shreve of Uvalde, will serve as judges for the 1985 Berry Contest.

Spence said that he and his committee expect a record number of entries in the 1985 Contest scheduled for noon Saturday, April 13, of 1985 Festival Weekend.

Maria V. Sanchez took 1984 Grand Championship honors with a prime pack of Sequoias which sold during the 1984 Berry Auction for $2,000 to South Texas Distributing Co. of Poteet. First State Bank of Poteet purchased the 1984 reserve Champion crate, a pack of Tiogas entered by Donald Sessions of Sessions Produce Co. of Poteet, for $1,500. The 1984 Contest attracted 59 entries which sold during the Auction for a total of $16,275.

The 38th Annual 1985 Poteet Strawberry Festival will be held Saturday, April 13, and Sunday, April 14.

Abalos attends ceremony

Paul Abalos of Hereford was among the honored guests who attended the Friday inauguration ceremony at Alpine for Jack W. Humphries, new president of Sul Ross State University.

Abalos, a 1961 graduate of Sul Ross, attended the inauguration and dinner with his son, Paul Jr., a political science major and junior at the university. Former Governor Dolph Briscoe was the principal speaker at the inauguration. Dr. Humphries is a graduate of Baylor University and completed his Ph.D. at Texas A&M University. He had been associated with Texas A&M and Sam Houston State before his appointment as president of Sul Ross.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—It was bad news for college students but good news for state colleges and universities when the Texas House passed legislation that would more than quadruple tuition rates by the end of this decade.

Students at all public colleges and universities, including medical and dental schools, will be shocked with tuition rates this fall that are at least double the current rates, if the bill clears the Senate and is signed into law by Gov. Mark White.

New revenue generated by the proposed tuition increase would go to offset proposed cuts in college funding now being considered by legislative budget writers. Those cuts probably will range from 4 percent to 6 percent.

Under the bill passed by the House, which was sponsored by House Committee on Higher Education Chairman Wilhelmina Delco, Texas residents enrolled in undergraduate and most graduate programs at state universities would see a tuition increase from $4 to $8 per semester hour beginning this fall, with an additional increase to $12 per semester hour for the 1986-87 school year.

Tuition would then increase $2 per year until it reaches $20 per semester hour.

Non-residents and foreign students would get even a bigger hike, from $40 to $120 per semester hour for 1985-86 and to $180 per hour for 1986-87.

Their rates would then go to 100 percent of cost.

The bill also calls for law students and graduate students in architecture and engineering to pay twice the undergraduate rate.

Medical and dental students also would see the cost of their education increase, with resident students eventually paying $6,400 per semester, compared to the current rate of $400. Non-residents would pay roughly twice that rate.

Some 25 percent of all new tuition revenue would be set aside for need-based scholarships and emergency loans so the increased fees would not price low income students out of a college education.

Open Containers

While the House was socking it to the pocketbooks of college students, the Senate was striking a blow against Texans who enjoy sipping a cold brew while driving down the highway.

The Senate gave quick approval to legislation that would outlaw drinking while driving.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving and other supporters of the driving while intoxicated crackdown had pushed for a ban on drinking while driving in 1983 when the Legislature adopted tough new laws of DWI.

However, the Senate did not give those groups the strict open containers ban they wanted.

The bill approved by the Senate applies only to the driver of an automobile. Passengers still can "pop a top" in the car, and drivers caught with an open container would be subject only to a Class C misdemeanor.

Critics of the new language say it will do little to prevent a driver from simply passing his drink to a passenger if stopped by a police officer.

Mattox Acquittal

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox was reveling in his acquittal on charges of commercial bribery, and putting forth a very diplomatic front for a man who has rarely spared harsh words on his enemies.

Being very conciliatory, Mattox sent a letter to the Fulbright & Jaworski law firm assuring their attorneys that they will get fair treatment from the Attorney General's Office despite the charges leveled against Mattox.

It was that Houston law firm that claimed Mattox threatened to destroy their bond business if they did not stop attempts to question his sister in connection with the state's lawsuit against Mobil Oil Corp.

Fulbright & Jaworski was representing Mobil in that case. Austin politicians said Mattox's conciliatory attitude was an astute political move on the part of the attorney general.

Vindictiveness might have been perceived poorly by the voters, compounding the damage already done by the trial and publicity that surrounded the case, those politicians said.

Blue Law Repealed

Lawmakers may finally lay the perennial debate over the so-called Texas "blue law" to rest this session.

The House Committee of Business and Commerce has given its approval to legislation repealing the 1961 law that prohibits the sale of some 42 different items on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays.

The repeal bill still would require car dealers to close on Sundays, a provision put in the bill at the car dealers' request.

Other provisions of the bill include protections to ensure that employees cannot be forced to work on Sundays if they do not want to and to guarantee each worker one day off each week.

Small retailers located in shopping malls also would be protected from being forced to open on Sundays if major department stores in those malls opt to do so.

Many mall leases require all stores in the mall to maintain the same hours as the so-called "anchor stores."

Corpus Christi Rep. Hugo Berlanga, sponsor of the bill, said his polling of House members is running about two to one in favor of the repeal.

Light-activated drug helps some leukemia patients

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A new technique that uses a light-activated drug to kill cancer cells in blood from certain leukemia patients may be useful in treating some blood cancers and diseases such as arthritis and lupus, a researcher says. When blood was removed from the bodies of two patients with the rare, extreme form of one type of leukemia, treated and returned to their bodies, it appeared to stimulate their immune systems to slow the uncontrolled, cancerous production of white cells, said Dr. Richard M. Edelson.

But the technique has only limited potential for halting some blood cancers and is really aimed at treating symptoms of those cancers and of so-called auto-immune diseases, including myasthenia gravis, lupus and arthritis, said Edelson, of New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

It might eventually be used to sharply reduce the symptoms of the diseases by killing abnormal white blood cells after they are produced, he said Monday during the American Cancer Society's science writers' seminar.

Edelson used the method on 11 patients with the leukemia version of a cancer called cutaneous T cell lymphoma, in which malignant T lymphocytes—a type of white blood cell—invade the lymph nodes and skin and circulate in the blood.

The patients were given a form of the drug psoralen, which occurs naturally in some fruits and vegetables but by itself has no known effect. Each patient's blood was then removed through an arm vein, routed through a clear plastic tube—where it was exposed to a mild ultraviolet light—and put back into the patient through another arm vein.

The ultraviolet light activated the drug so it killed the cancerous white blood cells. The drug reverted to its inactive form as it reentered the body. Three patients didn't improve, but eight had decreased symptoms. Two of the eight showed sharply reduced cancer cell production even after treatment stopped, suggesting the method somehow stimulated their immune system to combat the leukemia.

Because this "photochemotherapy" technique killed the cancerous cells outside the body, it avoids the harmful side effects of conventional chemotherapy, which damages or kills cells throughout the body, not just cancerous ones, Edelson said.

While conventional chemotherapy drugs also might be used to treat blood removed from the body, the toxic drugs would have to be filtered from the blood before it was replaced—a costly and complex step unneeded with the light-activated drug, he said.

Arthritis and other auto-immune diseases occur when the body's disease-fighting immune system attacks the body itself by overproducing other types of white blood cells. So photochemotherapy might be used to kill or damage those cells to reduce the symptoms of such diseases, Edelson said.

"The ultimate use of this therapy in any particular disease is an open game," he said. "Right now, we're at an extremely early stage."

In arthritis, abnormal white blood cells attack the joints. In lupus, they attack the kidneys, skin, nerves and joints. And in myasthenia gravis, they attack muscle.

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas—Trouble had been stalking Ban Thi Tran for the past couple of years.

According to Grand Prairie police, the young Oriental woman had been the target of harassment for almost two years since her divorce.

That harassment turned into murder on August 4, 1984.

Police reports indicate the woman was at her residence in Grand Prairie along with her two children and an acquaintance on the evening of August 4. When her friend was leaving the apartment around midnight, he noticed his automobile had been damaged. A tire was flat and the windshield had been smashed.

Ban Thi Tran told her friend that she would go with him to a service station to get the tire fixed. She went back to her house to lock the front door.

Suddenly, out of nowhere, a man appeared and began stabbing the woman with a butcher knife and a meat cleaver. She was repeatedly stabbed and died at the scene.

The vicious attack was witnessed by Ban Thi Tran's two children, who fled to a neighbor's apartment to seek help.

Other residents of the apartment complex also observed the assault and called the police. Ban Thi Tran's assailant escaped.

However, witnesses identified her attacker as her ex-husband, Gam Van Vo.

The two had been divorced for about two years and there had been a history of acrimony between them during that time. Detectives, armed with an arrest warrant, have been searching for Gam Van Vo since the murder.

He is an Oriental male, 25, 5-5, 130 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. His last known address, detectives say, was in the 2500 block of Choice Street in Dallas. However, he has left that residence and is believed to be travelling back and forth between Texas and Arkansas.

This week Gam Van Vo has made the Texas Most Wanted List. A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to his capture.

Anyone with information about Gam Van Vo's whereabouts is asked to call Texas Crime Stoppers toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

To Supreme Court ruling

A&M officials to explore legal alternatives

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M University officials plan to explore "legal alternatives" to a Supreme Court ruling that forbids the university from denying recognition to a homosexual student group.

"If everything fails, then certainly we will comply with every order from the Supreme Court," said Ted J. Hajovsky, general counsel of the A&M system. "A&M has a history of being good soldiers and like good soldiers we will comply."

The high court ruling let stand a lower court finding that A&M violated the rights of an organization called Gay Students Services by denying the group recognition.

"Naturally, we're disappointed," said Hajovsky. He expressed the fear that the court ruling may erase all boundaries of what student organizations are permitted to do.

"Are we going to have any students with perverted ideas able to band together and promote their ideas?" asked Hajovsky. "It could be free love, or even with animals. It's hard for me to draw the line anymore."

"There must be a line somewhere," he added. "If you got to the point that human sacrifice is part of my religion, are you going to allow that? Obviously not. But where do you draw the line? That's the most frustrating part, trying to determine how far you must go."

The university in 1976 refused to recognize the Gay Student Services group, claiming that the group could lead to "increased overt homosexual activity" and resulting physical, psychological and disease ramifications ... in the student body."

A federal judge in Houston upheld the university ban against the GSS in 1983, but the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said last August that A&M acted against the group because of its homosexual ideas.

A&M officials had argued that withholding recognition was in keeping with the university's policy of forbidding fraternities.

The university also argued that at the time recognition was denied there was a Texas statute forbidding homosexual activities and that the denial merely supported the law. In 1983, however, the Texas statute was struck down in federal court as unconstitutional.

Patrick Wiseman, an attorney who represented the gay group, said that legal tradition was on the side of the homosexual group.

"The case law is clear that universities are to be a free market of ideas, so both sides of a question can be heard," said Wiseman, who now is an assistant Texas attorney general. He said the Supreme Court ruled in 1969 that a radical political group that advocated violence could not be banned from a campus and that this precedent applied to the GSS.

"The court has held that as long as a group is there to advocate rather than act, then the group should be allowed on the campus," said Wiseman.

He said A&M recognized an anti-gay organization at the same time it was denying recognition to the gays.

Wiseman said if groups are forbidden to express their beliefs simply because those beliefs are not acceptable to university officials then that has effectively "repealed the first amendment."

The attorney said the controversy began because the GSS had wanted to post notices on a campus bulletin board and use campus rooms for meetings. This was denied them, he said, because the university would not give the GSS official recognition.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox declined to represent the university and private attorneys volunteered their time to handle the appeal.

GSS, which claims a membership of 30 to 70 among the student body of 35,000 students, has been meeting off campus. It has a phone number providing contacts for counseling and a roommate-location service.

Morse code opens up new world for youth

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The visitor greeted Sean Pevsner, a 14-year-old cerebral palsy victim confined to a wheelchair who was unable to communicate — until recently.

Blue-eyed and blond, Sean greeted his visitor with a grin as he sat perched in a wheelchair connected by wires to Max, an Apple IIe computer.

Suddenly, Sean began twisting his small body and throwing his head backward, squirming to depress two paddles on his chair that were wired to the computer. Beads of sweat formed on his forehead as he contorted his face and body, slowly tapping out his message on the computer's monitor.

"Hi-Chris," Sean said. "Thank-you-for-doing-a-story-on-me."

Until he got Max in August, Sean was cut off from the world, a creative bundle of adolescent energy with lots to say — but no way to say it.

With Max, Sean is able for the first time in his life to communicate. He memorized the Morse code language of dots and dashes last summer and began using it to talk.

"It-was-easy-as-pie," Sean said. "Max has opened up a whole new world for Sean," said his father, Ron Pevsner. "Before Max, I couldn't communicate with him at all, and that was super frustrating to me. I didn't know him as a person. Now, I can't keep him quiet."

Sean communicates by using his head and left arm to hit Morse code dot-and-dash paddles attached to his wheelchair that in turn send signals to the computer. The computer is programmed to interpret the code and display the corresponding letters. It's a physically demanding process that usually leaves Sean dripping in sweat after just a few minutes, but it's worth the effort.

"The first time he wrote a complete sentence, I cried," said his mother, Carol. "I never thought he would be able to do that."

Sean's first words: "Are-you-proud-of-me?"

The computer has been especially helpful in school, his parents said. At school, the Shackelford Junior High eighth-grader uses a computer similar to Max supplied by the Arlington school district.

Sean attends many regular classes in the morning — English, Texas history, and math — and works on his reading and other studies on the computer with teachers in the afternoon, school officials said.

For the first time, teachers can measure Sean's academic progress, said Lynn Hampton, the school district's special education consultant.

"Before, Sean's teachers had no way of knowing how intelligent Sean really is," she said. "Now he can give the feedback to teachers that tell them what he is capable of. It's been marvelous to find out how intelligent Sean actually is."

Sean began using computers to communicate about two years ago, but the systems were unsophisticated and limited Sean's communication, his father said. But with the help of a computer analyst who's a volunteer for the Arlington Handicapped Association, Sean became friendly with Max.

"This machine has given Sean a medium to express himself," said his teacher, John Newman. "It has allowed him to communicate as any other human being would. It's amazing how he uses it to show his creativity."

And Sean has been creative with Max, his parents said. Max came with a printer and a telephone hookup so that Sean can write letters, homework assignments and stories and hook up to computer bulletin boards and reference sources such as "Reader's Digest" and a local newswire, his father said.

Sean even has begun to help out with the family's Herbalife Products distributing business by writing letters and leaving notes on computer bulletin boards, Pevsner said.

"I'm-working-on-my-computer-all-the-time," Sean said.

One of his favorite things to do is write stories, Sean said. "I Have A Dream" is one of them.

"My dream is to walk and talk. If my dream came true, I would build a race car and I would race it. I would drive my race car all over the world. I would be the head of a computer company, and then I would build special computers for handicapped people.

"Also, I would teach handicapped people how to work my computer, and I would go places by myself and sell and build computers. I would go to a lot of races to run and compete. I would be in a marathon race and I would also be in the Olympics. I would do all these things I want to do if my dream came true."

"I know who my son is now," Pevsner said. "I know what he thinks. We can yell and scream andoller at each other and tell each other what's going on. It's neat."

Marijuana trade thriving in Central American nation

ORANGE WALK, Belize (AP) — He sizes a visitor up in a practiced way, swats at the flies on the rotting produce in his grimy market stall and lays out the deal:

"Tell us how much marijuana you want and when we'll deliver it to your plane," he says. "Five hundred pounds? We can do it in a day. We have the runway and we have the security. It's guaranteed. We flew 1,500 pounds out in a load last week. No problems."

And, he adds, "I'll get you the really good stuff."

The product is Belize Breeze, a powerful, seedless marijuana that has popped up everywhere in this tiny Central American country. Income from sales in the United States, where nearly all of it goes, easily surpasses the income from sugar, the traditional top money-earner.

Political pressures scrubbed an American-financed plan to spray the marijuana and, as a result, production has skyrocketed, making Belize a major headache for American drug control agents.

The greengrocer's unimpressive business front belies a huge and growing industry. If there's a big marijuana deal here, this jovial man with the torn shirt, pot belly and homemade tattoo likely will be involved.

There are many like him in Orange Walk, a kind of boom town where sugar is king no more.

A good grade of Belize Breeze, he said, sells here for about $25 a pound in large lots and will cost a wholesaler in the United States four to five times that price. By the time the marijuana gets to the street, its price will be multiplied many times more.

In three years production has soared, making Belize a major source of the drug imported to the United States.

Tons a week are flown from clandestine strips across the country, making Belize a major target of American eradication efforts.

The millions of dollars it brings in, government officials here say, threatens to corrupt the police and military.

Murders, which were rare outside of family or land squabbles, are up sharply, especially in marijuana-marketing centers.

Estimates of how much will be grown this year vary among drug agents and U.S. Embassy officials from 500 to 2,300 metric tons with a retail value of up to $100 million.

The size of Massachusetts, Belize is virtually an unpoliced country. It has a population of only about 150,000 people and a national police force of about 600 that also must patrol the tense border with Guatemala. The farmland is rich and isolated; the main marijuana market is only a two- or three-hour flight away.

Wedged between Mexico and Guatemala, Belize has had a tradition of local use of marijuana since East Indian laborers brought it with them in the 19th century. The quantities now harvested for export are recent and follow the collapse of world sugar prices, which are half of what they were five years ago.

The United States directed a program that involved two sprayings with the controversial herbicide paraquat in October and December of 1983 and covered about 3,000 fields.

"In the first two years we hurt them," said a drug agent.

Political pressures to halt the spraying started almost immediately, and the government of George Price, which was in political trouble, stopped it.

Those who urged the end of spraying used environmental arguments, although an equivalent of paraquat is sold all over Belize and has been widely used here for years.

"The fact is that a lot of people didn't want their marijuana sprayed," said a U.S. embassy official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The official claimed the new government of Manuel Esquivel, which took office in December, appears dedicated to tackling the problem through resumed paraquat spraying or other methods but has not yet outlined its plans.

Texas lottery pros, cons aired

'Wholly voluntary'

AUSTIN (AP) — Backers say a lottery game could raise some $400 million a year for state government without any tax increase, but opponents argue that it also would increase crime and prey on the poor.

"A lottery is a form of entertainment that's wholly voluntary. I don't know of any tax that is entirely voluntary," said Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, told the Senate State Affairs Committee on Monday.

"If we had created a state lottery two years ago, I submit to you we could have avoided the budget crunch we are presently faced with," he said.

Uribe is sponsoring proposals to lift the constitutional ban on lotteries and create a state-sponsored game.

Testifying against the legislation was Austin J.P. McGuigan, chief prosecutor for the state of Connecticut, who argued that lotteries bring many ills for a state.

"The experience in the state of Connecticut is that illegal gambling has tripled over the time period that we brought in the lottery ... Organized crime has moved into areas of the state where it had no standing before," McGuigan said.

"We have not raised anywhere near the amount of money we were told we would raise," he told the committee, which referred the lottery legislation to a subcommittee.

According to estimates by the state comptroller's office, a Texas lottery would raise $136 million its first full year of operation and $400 million annually within five years.

Uribe noted that 17 other states and the District of Columbia already run lotteries, with four more states having approved them last year.

He said large states such as New York and Pennsylvania raise millions of dollars for state government by running lotteries. With its booming population, Uribe said, "Texas would be one of the major producers of money for its state."

Uribe noted that state-run lotteries dated to colonial times. Since 1964, when the first modern state lottery began, revenues to states have soared, he said.

The lawmaker said several myths surround creation of lotteries, including charges that the games prey on the poor.

"The poor participate in disproportionately fewer numbers," he said. "It's a form of entertainment that is participated in by the middle class using discretionary income."

Uribe also rejected arguments that the lottery is a regressive tax. "No one has to pay that doesn't want to play," he said.

Testifying as a witness for the Anti-Crime Council of Texas, the Connecticut official said his state had noted several serious problems since starting its game in 1972.

"What we were told is that we would have a painless tax," McGuigan said.

"The state has shown a complete inability to regulate its games, the way most states have. We have instances of fixing in the Pennsylvania lottery and the Connecticut lottery," he said.

McGuigan said the state-run lottery promotes not only the game itself, but also the whole notion of gambling.

"The state continuously advertises the game to try to encourage people to play. What it does is make a new generation of gamblers. And the people it encourages to get involved in the game are the people who can least afford to pay," he said.

McGuigan also said the odds are against lottery players.

"For every one $50,000-a-year for life winner ... there are 1,999,999 losers. That's the reality. And they don't talk about that," he said.
