Austin meeting could settle county redistricting

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A conference in Austin Thursday may determine the course of a lawsuit against Deaf Smith County over realignment of commissioner precincts.

A major role in the conference will be played by a computer although the county's attorney, Bob Bass, as well as Judge Tom Simons, County Clerk Davis Ruland and Precinct 4 Commissioner Johnny Latham will represent the county. Rolando Rios will represent the lawsuit's plaintiff, Trini Gamez, in the meeting.

The conference will be held in the office of Allison and Associates, the law firm that prepared new Deaf Smith County's precinct boundaries, required to meet population shifts found in the 1990 federal census.

"We want to see if anything can be compromised," said Judge Simons about the conference.

The computer program used by Bass to outline precinct lines will be examined with the opposing counsel, Rios, present, said Simons.

At issue in the lawsuit and the denial of preclearance of boundaries, is the percentage of persons of Hispanic descent living in precincts one and four.

Within the boundaries of Precinct 1, as drawn by the consulting law firm, the population is 61 percent Hispanic. In Precinct 4, the population is 49 percent Hispanic. Precinct 2, with 69.5 percent, and Precinct 3, 15.8 percent, have drawn no protest.

The county learned in April that the Justice Department would not grant preclearance. Then a lawsuit, Trini Gamez vs. Deaf Smith County, was filed in federal court by Rios calling for the March primary elections for commissioners for Precincts 1 and 3 to be voided and new elections held.

In the Democratic primary, John Stribling of Precinct 1 defeated Tony Castillo and Troy Don Moore won over two other candidates in Precinct 3. However, a Republican candidate is on the general election ballot for Precinct 3.

Deaf Smith County officials hope to effect a compromise by re-working the proposed precinct boundaries rather than starting all over.

"We will ask, also, for the election to stand," Simons said. The feeling among commissioners is that "we need to get on with it," he added.

Officials agree that time is limited to call for a new primary election so candidates could be listed on the general election ballot in November.

There is some urgency, too, in that the first round in the lawsuit has been scheduled in the U.S. District Court in Amarillo on July 20. Attorneys for both sides must file briefs and plans so a decision may be made on whether a three-judge panel has jurisdiction in the suit.

If no compromise is reached or if the court determines that a three-judge panel has no jurisdiction, the county apparently has two options to consider in an effort to resolve the matter.

A lawsuit may be filed in federal court in Washington, D.C., against the Justice Department, seeking preclearance, or the boundaries may be re-drawn and submitted for preclearance.

A protest against the precinct boundaries was filed with the Justice Department last winter. The department refused to reveal the name or names of the protesting individuals or organizations.

Bass reported that officials in the government's top law enforcement agency have failed to answer a Freedom of Information Act request filed to obtain materials submitted in the protest or prepared by Justice Department personnel.

The FOI Act provides that agencies must respond within 10 days. Bass said he was advised after a wait of several weeks that personnel were "too busy" to provide the materials.

He has since filed an administrative appeal but has seen no results of that action. The next step would be to file a lawsuit against the Justice Department.

Bass also represented Terry County in resolving a re-districting lawsuit that was settled within the last week. The plaintiff's attorney in that case was Rios, a lawyer based in San Antonio.

An article in today's paper outlines Deaf Smith County's problems in securing clearance of redistricting lines. To us, it also illustrates bureaucracy at work in our federal government. The county's attorney filed a request under the Freedom of Information Act for Justice Department materials used in turning down the precinct boundaries.

The FOI Act requires a response in 10 days, but the federal agency reported it was too busy. If the shoe had been on the other foot, do you think the feds would allow the county to say it was "too busy" to respond?

The county hopes to work out a compromise and not spend a lot of time and money on the case, even though they are confident that the redistricting lines are legal and were drawn in good faith. The federal agencies know that the county does not want to spend taxpayer dollars fighting such issues, thus they have the upper hand in mandating the "gerrymandered" lines.

US won't cure world's hiccups

MUNICH, Germany (AP) - President Bush said today that the United States is "the sole remaining superpower" but he does not intend to order American troops into action whenever there is a "hiccup here or there."

At a news conference marking three days of international summitry, Bush also warmly praised Russian President Boris Yeltsin as a "very courageous leader" willing to make unpopular decisions at home to promote economic reform.

Yeltsin was invited to make a personal appeal for economic assistance after today's close of the 18th annual economic summit, and Bush sidestepped when asked if he thought the Russian leader should be invited to become a full participant at future summits.

Despite the international forum, the questions - and some of Bush's statements - took on a domestic political tone. The president expressed frustration that a majority of Americans believe the economy is getting worse. It's not, the president said. He said the economy was growing, though perhaps too slowly.

"There's a gap between perception and reality," he said.

Through three days of talks, Bush has assumed a low-key role rather than asserting himself as the dominant player. He said the world still looks to the United States for leadership but that "it's not one country that solves the problem."

"In all candor... I think we are the sole remaining superpower," the president said. "That doesn't mean when you lead you dictate."

Bush opened the news conference by hailing the work of the 18th economic summit of the leaders of the United States, Britain, Germany, France, Japan, Canada and Italy.

He said the leaders had a "frank exchange of views" on sticky world trade problems, a diplomatic way of saying that there was no agreement. Disputes over agricultural subsidies have stalemated the trade negotiations.

Bush said political considerations at home did not affect his stance on the trade talks. "In no way is domestic American politics interfering with this," the president said, adding that he could not think of anything he would do differently if he were not in a battle for re-election.

As for the use of U.S. troops, Bush said that if NATO undertakes a military operation in Yugoslavia or elsewhere, "the United States is going to be a part of it."

And yet, he said, "I have no plans to inject ourselves into a combat situation in Yugoslavia." He noted that United States has naval and air power at the ready but said he didn't want to tip his hand at how it might be used.

The summit nations agreed Tuesday to endorse U.N. military intervention, if necessary to assure the delivery of relief supplies to civilians under attack by Serbian militia.

Bush said it's in the United States' interest "to keep a strong presence, a U.S. presence in NATO. I don't think anybody suggests that if there is a hiccup here or there or a conflict here or there that the United States is going to send troops."

Hartman cleared of wrongdoing at Oklahoma school

No 'deliberate deception' found

MARIETTA, Okla. (AP) - The Marietta school board has decided to take no action against its superintendent after the discovery that his doctorate came from a non-accredited correspondence school.

Board members decided after three hours of closed talks Monday night that Roy Hartman did not deliberately deceive school officials about his diploma.

Hartman enjoyed a 20-year career in Hereford as a teacher and administrator. He moved from Hereford in June 1976 and worked for several Texas school districts before moving to Kansas and Oklahoma. He was named administrator of the year in 1976 by the Texas State Teachers Association for his work in Hereford.

The Oklahoma Education Department recently dropped recognition of Hartman's doctorate from Western Colorado University, which closed in 1983 after it couldn't meet Colorado's demand that it attain accreditation from a recognized regional body.

Hartman maintained the school's accreditation from the National Association for Private and Non-Traditional Schools - started by a former vice president of the school itself - was adequate.

The doctorate was not required for Hartman's employment under state law.

Questions about Hartman's doctorate were raised during his stint in Hereford, but school board members took no action. Hartman also worked in Grapevine, Wylie, Forney and Liberal, Kan.

Austin judge might close schools in '93

AUSTIN (AP) - A state judge is warning that Texans might face a public school shutdown next year if lawmakers don't meet the state Supreme Court's deadline for fixing the school funding system.

A decision on closing schools ultimately would go to the Supreme Court, State District Judge F. Scott McCown suggested at a Tuesday hearing.

But he asked, "How can the Supreme Court say it's not going to shut the schools down? How can the Supreme Court give any more time?"

For his part, McCown said, "I'm serving notice today to every concerned party... that I'm not going to move the (June 1, 1993) deadline."

"I'm simply going to let the time run out, and if we don't have a plan, I'm going to enjoy any state money going out, and I'm tentatively taking a position that there's no local tax authority, and there won't be any local money," he said.

McCown asked lawyers to submit arguments on whether school districts' authority to levy local property taxes survives after the court deadline. He indicated that schools still could impose taxes to pay bonds and interest.

The judge said that if only state aid is cut off, property-poor school districts would be "wiped out" while wealthier districts could operate on local money. The school finance case was started by poor school districts seeking to equalize funding.

McCown also refused Tuesday to appoint a court master, as requested by poor school districts, to draw up an alternative funding plan in case lawmakers fail to meet the deadline.

He cited one argument that the existence of a court plan might take pressure off some lawmakers to act. The poor school districts had said they wanted the master's plan as protection, in case the Legislature failed to come up with a constitutional plan.

"At this juncture, why not just shut the schools down? At this point, who cares any more?" asked the evidently frustrated judge.

"We've given people tremendous amount of notice. They know basically two years in advance," McCown said. "My thought is, you get all those parents at home with their children full-time, and there'll be tremendous pressure on the Legislature to create a school plan."

The Supreme Court ruled for the third time in January that a school funding plan approved by lawmakers violates the Texas Constitution. The court gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993, to fix the system.

After the Supreme Court's previous two rulings, lawmakers didn't approve funding measures until after deadlines set by the court.

McCown appointed a special court master to write a school funding plan in 1990, and an expert to update that plan in 1991. The plans never were implemented, since new school funding laws were passed.

Texas gets ally for dismissal of suit

U.S. attorney general joins effort in prison issue

HOUSTON (AP) - U.S. Attorney General William Barr has joined the state in its efforts to get the long-standing Texas prison lawsuit dismissed.

Barr said Tuesday he agrees with Texas Attorney General Dan Morales that the 20-year-old Ruiz prison litigation has become an albatross around the state's neck.

"The Texas correctional system is operating in good faith compliance with the Constitution," Barr said. "Not only that, Texas has also substantially complied with over 2,000 pages of a veritable prison code promulgated by the U.S. district court and incorporated in scores of orders over the years - a code that goes far beyond what the Constitution requires."

"It is clear the consent decrees in the Ruiz case have accomplished their basic purpose and should now be dissolved."

Barr said the Justice Department had filed a brief with U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice supporting Morales' request that the judge relinquish control of the nearly 50,000-inmate prison system and return total jurisdiction to the state.

"We have had this thing around our neck for 20 years," Morales said.

Justice has scheduled a hearing in the case for next week in Tyler to decide whether Morales can represent the state even though he's at odds with the prison board.

Morales contends a plan backed by Selden Hale, the prison board chairman, and by the attorneys for the inmates, would perpetuate court control.

"Ultimately, the decision in the court system will be in the Supreme Court," Barr said. "I think the plaintiffs, encouraged by some activist defense lawyers, have attempted to obtain complete and permanent surrender by the state of Texas. I think the attorney general is right saying he could not settle the case on that basis."

"That leaves only one choice: further litigation."

Morales said he hoped if the case went into the appeals courts, it would be decided within months. Barr, however, was less optimistic at a quick resolution.

"We'll have to see what Judge Justice decides," Barr said. "If he does not go along with the motion of the attorney general, we have the appellate process, which can go on for years. But this case has gone on for 20 years and it has to come to an end. I'm afraid there's no easy way to do it."

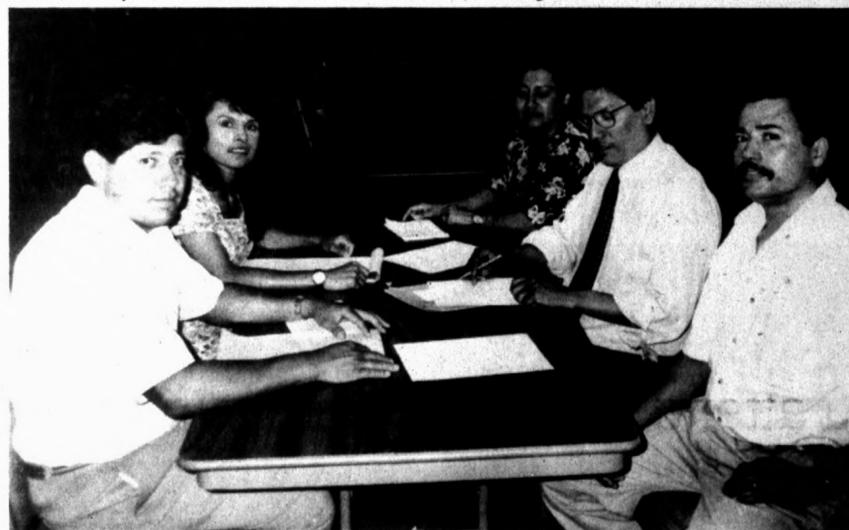

The case began in 1972 when convict David Ruiz, upset with his treatment in the state prisons, filed a handwritten lawsuit. The suit resulted in Justice taking control of prisons, mandating changes in the way they are run and establishing a 95 percent population cap to prevent overcrowding.

Most recently, Texas embarked on a $624 million construction program to add 25,300 prison beds.

The population cap has drawn considerable criticism, particularly when it left county jails stuck with state prisoners and led to the early release of some convicts from state prisons. Some of those inmates promptly were involved in highly publicized crimes.

"It's certainly not the role of the federal judge to impose an arbitrary and perpetual prison cap that let's dangerous prisoners out on the street to victimize more citizens," Barr said, adding that federal prisons operate at 145 percent of capacity "and we're not in violation of the Constitution."

"Back in 1974, when conditions in Texas prisons were much different, the Department of Justice defended the rights of prisoners. Today, we're here to defend the rights of the people of Texas."

Officers arrest 28 in raids

LUBBOCK (AP) - More than two dozen people have been arrested on drug charges following a state-wide raid by federal and state agents in an attempt to halt two family-run cocaine and heroin trafficking rings.

By late Tuesday, 140 federal, state and local police officers had served 35 arrest warrants, mostly in the San Angelo area. Of those, 28 had been arrested by late Tuesday, said U.S. Customs spokeswoman Judy Turner.

Authorities raided homes and businesses seeking individuals believed to operate the drug rings linked to a Texas prison gang, U.S. Customs officials said.

Michael Valva, resident agent in charge for the U.S. Customs Service in San Angelo, said the raid culminated a one-year investigation dubbed "Operation Los Hermanos," or "the brothers."

The roundup Tuesday crippled drug smuggling operations believed to be operated by the Duran family of San Angelo and the Marquez family of Big Spring, both of which are suspected of supervising drug trade deep into Mexico and South America, Valva said.

Most of the charges filed against those arrested were possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, conspiracy and money laundering, said Finley Soule, a U.S. Customs agent in Houston.

The suspects were expected to appear before U.S. Magistrate J.Q. Warnick in Lubbock Wednesday at 9 a.m.

Brothers Ramon and Augustine Duran Sr., are believed to have led a family-run drug operation that supplied the entire San Angelo area with heroin, said Dick Baker, an assistant U.S. attorney in Lubbock.

Robert Marquez is alleged to have run the network from Big Spring supplying large amounts of cocaine and marijuana throughout West Texas, Baker said.

"The Duran family has arrest records going back 18 years," Baker said. "They have been major distributors of heroin throughout West Texas."

"We have dealt with the Marquez family numerous times as well," Baker said.

The operations worked closely with the notorious prison gang "Texas Syndicate," Valva said.

"Any time you have ties to the Texas Syndicate you have violence or a tendency for violence," Valva said. "It's probably the biggest prison gang in the state. And they control things inside and outside of prison."

Valva would not go into detail about the drug rings' ties to the prison gang, but said "some of those arrested may be members of the Texas Syndicate."

Valva said he could not estimate the quantity of drugs brought into Texas by the families, but added it's "easily in the millions of dollars."

"In my 19 years here, it was the single most concentrated effort I have ever seen," Valva said. "It's probably among the biggest busts in West Texas."

would have me believe. I can't tell you yet that it is working but I will be living proof if I lose 30 pounds before July 10th. No, I'll be dead proof!

Anyway, it does give me something to do all my spare time as I can spend hours in the grocery store reading and comparing labels. At least this keeps me away from the table for this period of time (some folks haven't figured out that this is the only reason it works).

Oh, well, some play bridge, some golf--I go to the grocery store and read labels. I am very reverent about counting to 20. By the way, a Snickers bar is 13 in case you are interested. So it isn't very difficult for me to get to 20.

Nevertheless, I have this serious problem and I need your help desperately. I know with Speedy's resources he can probably come up with a reasonable and accurate answer. It may take some correspondence with AP, UP or CP, but please rush an answer to me as soon as possible.

I need to know how many fat grams are on the back of a postage stamp!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to "Ceiling Zero," the Pennsylvania woman who did not want to sleep in the same bed with her husband, so she moved into the guest room. (He had told her that if she was in his bed, she should know "what to expect.")

My husband and I have no problem with sexual incompatibility but we DO have a mutually satisfactory sleeping arrangement which "Pennsylvania" might consider.

For the first few years of our marriage, I slept without covers on 17 inches of a 54-inch double bed. My husband was a restless sleeper and sprawled horizontally across the bed and hogged the blankets.

My solution was to redecorate. I bought two twin beds. They each have their own covers, are made up separately and then pushed together. With one bedspread, it looks like a king-size bed.

Now, after almost 50 years of marriage, we both like our sleeping arrangement and nobody feels exploited. Pennsylvania and her husband seem to be thoroughly confused about sex, sleep, night and bed--things which are not necessarily related.

A sexual act can take place on the kitchen floor, or under the dining room table, as well as in a number of other locations in the house. It can occur during the day or night. Sleep, however, generally occurs in bed and usually at night.

Your advice to seek counseling is right on target. Sign me--Sleeping Beautifully in California

DEAR SLEEPING BEAUTY: If all the women who wrote to complain about their marital sleeping arrangements were laid end to end, they would be much more comfortable.

Twin beds pushed together, as you described, is the ideal solution for couples who want to be close, but not ALL night EVERY night.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Most of your advice is sensible and even-handed. Sometimes it's a pearl. The advice you gave "Zero Self-Esteem" was a diamond. You may be sick of the subject by this time, but I hope you will permit me to have my say.

Everyone should be able to masturbate without feeling guilty. Maybe some day it will be OK to admit it. I'm a 38-year-old man with a wonderful wife and two great kids from a 10-year marriage. I can honestly say we have a good sex life. I've taught my wife a lot which has made it better for both of us.

Robert A. Heinlein said it best in a book titled, "Time Enough For Love": "Masturbation is clean, safe and economical--it's just so LONELY." And wasn't it Mark Twain who said, "Ninety-five percent of men practice onanism (self-gratification), and the other 5 percent are liars?"

Of course, what that woman who wrote to you really wants is a man's hugs and caresses--genuine intimacy. This she cannot get by herself but she can and should take the edge off her sexual appetite when there is no man in her life, or the man is unable or unwilling to accommodate her.

You are sure to get a lot of semi-literate flak from various self-righteous religious nuts. I just want to give some balance to the ranting and raving and say, Lady, you're a champ.--C.N.

DEAR C.N.: You were right about the onslaught from those who didn't like my advice, but a surprising number of readers rushed to my defense. Thanks for being among them.

Hereford resumes season with loss

Randall scored in each of the first four innings and went on to a 10-5 beating of Hereford in a West Texas Summer Baseball League game Tuesday at Whiteface Field. The game was the first for Hereford in several weeks.

Randall scored at least twice in the first four innings--they got three in the second--and held leads of 7-0 and 9-1 before Hereford started cutting into the leads.

Hereford's first run came in the third inning. Chris Brummett led off with an infield single and went to second when the shortstop tried to throw him out anyway and the ball went into the dugout. Brummett scored when Rene Cano punched a single through the right side.

Hereford got two more in the fourth. Russ Watts led off with a walk and moved to second when the ball got loose in the infield. He scored on Shama Hernandez' grounder through the left side. Richard Sanderson grounded to third base, replacing Hernandez on the fielder's choice. Sanderson stole second and scored on Brummett's line drive over the second baseman's glove.

Hereford got two more in the fifth.

Stacey Sanders led off with a walk and went to second on Andy Kalka's bloop single. A pair of wild pitches let Sanders score and Kalka move to third. Watts, who had walked, got caught in a rundown, but stayed alive long enough for Kalka to score.

That cut the Randall lead to 9-5, then Randall added a run in the sixth on a Hereford error and a triple. After the triple, Kalka struck out the next five batters to subdue Randall. Kalka had relieved starter Ralph Holguin with no outs and two on in the fourth. Kalka didn't allow an earned run in his four innings and struck out nine batters.

Kalka, a left-hander, also went 2-for-2 at the plate. Chris Brummett, the team's other left-handed batter, went 2-for-3. Hereford's only other hits belonged to Cano and Hernandez.

The two teams are scheduled to meet again at 12:30 p.m. Saturday during a tripleheader at Randall High School. Hereford then will play Amarillo High at 3, and Amarillo and Randall meet at 5:30.

Hereford's next home game is against Amarillo High at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Got a little greedy

Hereford third baseman Richard Sanderson (11) slaps a tag on a Randall runner who was trying to stretch a double into a triple. Randall won anyway, 10-5 at Whiteface Field.

SWC honors Swoopes, Cobb

DALLAS (AP) - The Southwest Conference has named Rice's Trevor Cobb and Texas Tech's Sheryl Swoopes as Athletes of the Year for the 1991-1992 season.

Cobb of Pasadena earlier received the Doak Walker National Running Back Award, the SWC said in the announcement Tuesday.

A panel of Texas media representatives chose Cobb and Swoopes of Brownfield.

Cobb was the nation's third-leading rusher, averaging 153.8 yards per game and fourth-ranked in the country in all-purpose yards (167.6 per game).

He ranks 11th all-time in SWC rushing with 3,562 yards and had three 200-yard rushing days in 1991.

Cobb last year set school and SWC records for rushing attempts (360) and rushed for a school-record 1,692 yards and 14 touchdowns.

Swoopes, as a junior, led the Lady Red Raiders to their first SWC regular season and post-season tournament titles as Tech advanced to the NCAA Tournament's round of 16.

She also earned an invitation to the Olympic Trials and was named SWC Player of the Week four times.

Cubs file suit to stop realignment

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Cubs want a federal judge to stop the baseball commissioner from moving the team to the National League West next season.

The lawsuit, which claims the commissioner does not have unlimited authority to act "in the best interests of baseball," was scheduled for a hearing today before U.S. District Judge Suzanne B. Conlon.

It came just one day after commissioner Fay Vincent realigned the NL, sending the Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals to the West and the Atlanta Braves and Cincinnati Reds to the East in 1993.

"The commissioner can no more order the Chicago Cubs to play in the Western Division of the National League than he could order them to play in the American League," the Cubs said in their 26-page complaint.

The Cubs contend the Major League Agreement excludes the commissioner from deciding issues governed by the National League constitution.

"The Cubs had threatened suit even before I made the decision,"

Vincent said. "I'm not surprised there is a suit."

Under the NL constitution, realignment must be approved by nine of the 12 clubs, including all teams involved in divisional switches. On March 4, 10 clubs voted in favor, but the Cubs used their veto and the New York Mets also voted no.

But Vincent, responding to the request of several owners, decided to review the issue. He has the power to take action on any "act, transaction or practice" deemed not in the best interests of baseball.

The Cubs challenged Vincent's broad interpretation of this section.

"The commissioner's decision does not explain how the Cubs' longstanding presence in the Eastern Division is an 'act, transaction or practice,'" the lawsuit contended.

"The commissioner's action patently exceeds his authority under the Major League Agreement, and the action is also arbitrary and capricious," the Cubs said.

The NL voted 10-2 not to join the suit, with the Cubs and the Los Angeles Dodgers voting in favor. The Dodgers didn't sue, but the Cubs did. Chicago denied the suit was motivated by concerns about an earnings decline because of lower broadcast ratings for late night games on the West Coast.

The Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs, also owns WGN radio and television, which carry Cubs games.

Jays take four-game lead over Orioles

By The Associated Press

To almost no one's surprise, the Toronto Blue Jays are starting to pull away from the pack in the American League East.

Devon White's run-scoring single in the bottom of the ninth inning rallied the Blue Jays past the Seattle Mariners 4-3 Tuesday night at SkyDome for their sixth straight victory.

The Jays now lead second-place Baltimore by four games and moved 7 1/2 in front of third-place Milwaukee. The New York Yankees are 10 games back.

Pat Borders started the ninth with a single and Manuel Lee sacrificed him to second before White lined a pitch from Jeff Nelson (0-4) into center field, scoring pinch-runner Rob Ducey.

"I wasn't looking for anything in particular. He came in with a fastball away and I drove it up the middle," White said. "It's around the league that you can't give up on the Toronto Blue Jays and I think tonight was a perfect example of a team that won't give up until the last out is made."

Duane Ward (5-4) allowed one run and two hits in two innings for the victory.

The Blue Jays tied the score 3-3 with two runs in the eighth. Dave Winfield followed consecutive singles by Roberto Alomar and Joe Carter with a run-scoring single off reliever Brian Fisher. After Juan Agosto walked John Olerud, Nelson walked Candy Maldonado to force home the tying run.

Brewers 4, Rangers 3

At Arlington Stadium, Franklin Stubbs hit his eighth homer of the season in the seventh inning to snap a 2-2 tie.

Stubbs hit Todd Burns' 3-2 pitch over the left-field wall after the Texas starter had retired 10 of the previous 11 batters.

The Brewers added the eventual game-winning run off Burns (2-2) on Darryl Hamilton's sacrifice fly to center in the seventh.

James Austin (2-2) was the winner in relief of Bruce Ruffin, pitching two innings.

Yankees 2, Twins 1

At Yankee Stadium, Matt Nokes homered into the third deck in right field, breaking a seventh-inning tie. The Twins had won three in a row and nine of 10, but Shawn Hillegas, Rich Monteleone (5-1) and John Habyan combined to stop them on six hits.

Nokes connected with one out in the seventh against Willie Banks (3-2).

Tigers 3, A's 2

At Tiger Stadium, Mickey Tettleton and Mark Carreon hit sixth-inning homers for Detroit.

Kevin Ritz (2-3) won in his return to the starting rotation. Ritz had been replaced by Les Lancaster, but after Lancaster was hit hard in his first appearance, Ritz returned and held the A's to four hits in 6 2-3 innings. Mike Henneman pitched the ninth for his 14th save.

Ron Darling (7-7) lost, allowing three runs on eight hits in six-plus innings.

Indians 3, Angels 1

At Cleveland Stadium, California managed just four hits against part-time starter Dennis Cook.

Cook (2-5) allowed one run, struck out a season-high six and walked none in 7 1-3 innings. Steve Olin pitched 1 2-3 hitless innings for his 15th save.

Chuck Finley (2-9) lost his fourth straight in his first complete game of the year, yielding three runs and eight hits including Glenallen Hill's eighth home run.

Red Sox 3, Royals 2

At Fenway Park, Tom Brunansky, who had struck out in his first three at-bats, singled against Rusty

Meacham (4-2) over right fielder Jim Eisenreich's head with two out and the bases loaded in the 11th inning to lift Boston. The Red Sox had squandered a 2-1 lead when George Brett homered in the ninth.

Danny Darwin (5-4) who worked out of a first-and-third jam in the 11th by striking out the only batter he faced, got the win.

White Sox 8, Orioles 4

At Camden Yards, Dan Pasqua

homered and George Bell had two run-scoring singles to lead Chicago. The Sox stole five bases, two short of the team record.

The White Sox built a 6-1 lead after four innings and held on for their 13th win in 17 games.

Wilson Alvarez (2-2) allowed four runs on six hits in 5 2-3 innings. Brian Drahman, Scott Radinsky, and Bobby Thigpen held Baltimore scoreless the rest of the way. Bob Milacki (5-6) was the loser.

Rangers' Brown may start All-Star Game

ARLINGTON (AP) - In a season filled with pitching surprises, Kevin Brown has been one of the biggest wonders.

Brown doesn't have the Cy Young Award that Roger Clemens, Tom Glavine and some other more celebrated pitchers have in their trophy cases.

That could change this year as Brown, the first 13-game winner in the major leagues, quietly establishes himself as the Texas Rangers' newest pitching ace.

"It's been a matter of time before Brown put together a year like he is having," Milwaukee Brewers designated hitter Paul Molitor said following Monday's 3-1 loss to Brown and the Rangers. "He is definitely establishing himself as one of the best pitchers in the American League."

Clemens (9-6) started well but is winless in his last five starts. He leads the league in strikeouts with 112 and has a solid 2.11 ERA, but also has been fitted with a special shoe to alleviate pain in his right foot.

Oakland's Dave Stewart (7-5) has struggled this season and Los Angeles Dodgers ace Orel Hershiser (7-6) has shown only flashes of brilliance.

Glavine (12-3) has maintained form in Atlanta, holding his ERA at 2.63 and keeping the Braves within striking distance of the National League West-leading Cincinnati Reds.

Brown, meanwhile, is casting a large shadow over the league while establishing himself as the main man on the Rangers staff, replacing baseball's career strikeout leader, Nolan Ryan.

And it is Brown, not Ryan, who appears bound for San Diego to play in the All-Star Game on July 14.

Brown (13-4) won his fourth consecutive start Monday night and set a career high for victories in a season, surpassing his records of 12-9 in 1989 and 12-10 in 1990. He allowed seven hits in 8 1-3 innings, struck out eight and walked two before Jeff Russell finished for his 20th save.

The prospect of Brown starting in the All-Star game has Texas fans buzzing with excitement. But not Brown.

"One day at a time, that's all I can handle," he said. "I've got another start, and there's more work to be done."

Toronto's Juan Guzman (11-1) and Brown are scheduled to face each other Saturday at Arlington Stadium, making it iffy that either would start in the All-Star Game three days later.

"Kevin deserves to be on that All-Star team," Texas manager Bobby Valentine said. "Whether he starts or not is a decision I don't have to make."

"Kevin has been as consistent and dominating as any pitcher in the league."

Texas catcher Ivan Rodriguez might also join Brown in San Diego next week, according to an associate of Minnesota manager Tom Kelly, who will direct the AL team. The Rangers have never had a pitcher and a catcher on the same All-Star squad.

Rodriguez, 20, has the best success rate in the majors against potential base stealers, throwing out 25 of 46.

Reds run streak, lead to 6 games

By The Associated Press

Rob Dibble gets suspended, Jose Rijo gets a win and Cincinnati gets farther and farther in front of the National League West.

Things look quite normal for the Reds again.

Cincinnati, which three weeks ago looked like it was ready to be chopped up by the surging Atlanta Braves, appears ready to make mincemeat of the NL West. The Reds won their sixth straight game - and 50th of the year - with a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Tuesday and grabbed a six-game lead over the Braves.

The Reds' game with Chicago was typical of the way Cincinnati's been going lately.

Minus shortstop Barry Larkin, who's out with a toothache, backup Freddie Benavides hit an RBI double in the ninth for what proved to be the winning run.

With the Reds ahead 3-1, Ryne Sandberg led off the bottom of the ninth with a double and scored on a single by Mark Grace. Andre Dawson's line drive to Bill Doran at second base doubled off Grace. Then Kal Daniels beat out an infield hit but was thrown out trying to reach second, ending the game.

"That run in the ninth was a big run for us," Piniella said. "That was a wild finish."

Things might not be so wild if Rijo (6-6) can continue to recover from injuries and pitch like he did against the Cubs.

Rijo allowed four hits through seven innings. The only run he allowed came in the seventh when Andre Dawson hit his 13th homer.

Norm Charlton pitched the last two innings for his 20th save.

Dibble, along with outfielder Glenn Braggs, was suspended Tuesday by NL president Bill White for four games each because of their June 24 fight with the Houston Astros. Both have appealed.

Houston coach Ed Ott, whose picture was taken under a pile of players with his arm around Dibble's neck, was suspended for seven days and pitcher Pete Harnisch for three days for their part in the fight.

Pirates 5, Astros 3

Andy Van Slyke doubled in the go-ahead run and made the majors' first unassisted double play by an outfielder in nearly 18 years at Three Rivers Stadium.

Steve Buechele had three hits and three RBIs, including a bad-hop two-run single in a three-run seventh. Barry Bonds had a pair of doubles and scored twice for the Pirates.

Bob Walk (2-3) pitched three innings for the victory.

Mets 5, Braves 4

Sid Fernandez (7-7) won his third straight game, allowing only three hits - two to David Justice - and striking out four in seven innings at Atlanta. Anthony Young got his second save.

New York scored three times in the second off Mike Bielecki (2-4) on consecutive RBI doubles by Eddie Murray and Daryl Boston, followed by Mackey Sasser's run-scoring single.

Cardinals 6, Padres 3

Ray Lankford had three RBIs with a pair of doubles as the St. Louis Cardinals handed San Diego its fourth straight loss.

Donovan Osborne (7-4) gave up three runs and eight hits over 5 1-3 innings for the victory, while Lee Smith pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

Lankford and Andres Galarraga, who finished with three hits, had consecutive RBI doubles in the fifth off starter Andy Benes (6-7).

Giants 8, Phillies 7

At Candlestick Park, Robby Thompson had five RBIs, including a game-winning two-run homer in the opener, and Matt Williams had his first home run since May 22 in the nightcap.

Thompson's fifth homer off Mike Hartley (4-2) overcame the Phillies 7-6 lead in the eighth and Bryan Hickerson (3-1) worked three scoreless innings for the victory.

Williams' 12th homer off Don Robinson (1-3) gave the Giants a 5-3 lead and a four-run seventh inning sealed the win for Jim Pena, who won his major league debut.

Expos 4, Dodgers 1

Jonathan Hurst (1-1) held Los Angeles to five singles through 7 1-3 innings for his first major-league victory in the nightcap and helped Montreal to a doubleheader sweep.

In the first game, Delino DeShields' three-run homer off Kevin Gross (4-9) led Montreal. Mark Gardner (8-6) allowed a run on six hits through six innings.

In the second game, Larry Walker's two-run shot powered the Expos. Tim Crews (0-1), a middle reliever, worked a career-high six innings.

John Wetteland got his 15th and 16th saves.

Reds complain about severe suspensions

CHICAGO (AP) - The Cincinnati Reds cannot understand how they got the worst of the penalties from a bench-clearing brawl the other team started.

National League president Bill White on Tuesday suspended Reds pitcher Rob Dibble and outfielder Glenn Braggs for four games each for the June 24 fight with the Houston Astros. Both were blamed for "coming off the bench, inciting a brawl and prolonging fighting."

Both players have appealed and are eligible to play until their appeal is heard, not until August.

Houston coach Ed Ott, whose picture was taken under a pile of players with his arm around Dibble's neck, was suspended for seven days and pitcher Pete Harnisch for three days for their part in the fight, which started when Harnisch threw a pitch behind Reggie Sanders after Hal Morris had hit a three-run homer.

All four players also were fined an unspecified amount of money.

"I'm aghast. I really am," said Cincinnati manager Lou Piniella after Tuesday's 3-2 win over the Cubs. "First of all, where did Houston get penalized? They lose a coach for seven days and a pitcher for three, and he (Harnisch) doesn't even miss a start. I could see it if we instigated it, but they instigated it. It's unbelievable that two of our players get suspended for four days. Something is wrong about that."

Asked if he wouldn't rather lose Dibble and Braggs now than in August if their appeal isn't successful and the pennant race heats up, the Reds' skipper said, "They've got to appeal. I don't think the decision is right."

Reds general manager Bob Quinn said White had called him Tuesday. "He said he had to do something about fighting in baseball," said Quinn. "I respect Bill but this is totally unequatable. He said, 'That's my decision.'"

Dibble noted that White has suspended him before and indicated that his past problems might have played a part in the penalties dished out for the June 24 brawl.

"You can't justify my suspension this time. I went out to protect my teammates," said Dibble. "I didn't throw a punch. I have it on videotape him (Ott) strangling me."

"I didn't know what to expect," Harnisch said. "I didn't know that much about it. I didn't know it would be a fine or suspension or what. I didn't know what to think. I still maintain I don't think it's right. I didn't start that fight. I didn't hit him and I didn't throw it his head."

"It was a frustration pitch because I threw it as hard as I could. But I didn't throw it at him."

Acton believes in the "hospice personality"

Kathryn Acton grew up in Hereford; now she has returned home to accept the position as the Hospice Nurse for Crown of Texas Hospice.

Kathryn completed her nursing training at St. Anthony's School of Nursing in Amarillo, graduating in 1953. Since that time, she has established her experience and qualifications in all aspects of nursing, except industrial medicine.

In 1974, she came back to Hereford to serve as director of nursing at Deaf Smith General Hospital. During that time, she was actively involved with the establishment of the home health care program at DSGH. At that time it was a part of the Panhandle Home Health Association from Dumas. In 1978, Kathryn served in a public capacity as a director of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District.

In 1979, she and her husband, Bill, moved to Las Vegas, Nev., where they remained until 1983. Upon their return to the Panhandle, she joined the St. Anthony's Hospice in Amarillo as director of in-patient and out-patient care. She served in that capacity for two years and then decided to take a respite from hospice nursing and joined the neurology and orthopedic surgery department at St. Anthony's Hospital.

She returned to St. Anthony's Hospice in 1988 where she worked under the direction of Sharla Roselius, now president of Crown of Texas Hospice. Kathryn returned to Hereford in May of 1992, specifically to open the Hereford division of Crown of Texas Hospice.

"I came home to Hereford because I believe that the concept of hospice care for the residents of this community is important," said Kathryn. "I believe that the people of rural communities should have access to the kind of services that are available in larger cities."

Kathryn said she enjoyed growing up in Hereford. "It's always been a personal goal to help care for and give back something to the people here who helped mold my life. This program provides me with an opportunity to do that, and to take care of the people who literally helped my Mom and Dad raise me."

Hospice is not always an easy area of care in which to be involved, since it is a program and philosophy of care specifically developed for terminally ill patients. But Kathryn has what she views to be the hospice personality.

"I've always had a caring attitude. Pursuing the patient's needs is one thing, answering the call button, for example. But I've always felt the need to give something more, whether it is to fluff a pillow, to help make the patient more comfortable, or to check on the needs of the patients' visitors. That's the 'hospice attitude' and I believe that there are many hospice people and hospice nurses."

But Kathryn acknowledges that the job is not always easy. "Sometimes hospice can hurt," she said, "because you become so close to an individual that is indeed terminally ill."

Losing someone is never easy, not for family members and not for trained professional caregivers. But the goal of Hospice is to make the transition for life to death easier for the patient and for that individual's loved ones. As efforts for cure cease, the focus shifts to providing for the patient's physical, emotional and spiritual comfort.

The perception that nothing more can be done to save the life of a terminal patient often has a devastating impact both on the patient and the family," Kathryn explained. "But even though it may not be possible to cure the disease, there is a great deal that can be done to ease the pain and suffering experienced by the patient and to offer comfort, support and relief to the family. That's what my job with Crown of Texas Hospice is all about."

Crown of Texas Hospice, with offices both in Hereford and Amarillo, is a member of the National Hospice Organization. Its services are covered by Medicare and Medicaid. Commercial insurance also frequently covers all or part of the costs associated with Hospice care.

"It's an important part of our concept of care, though, that no patient is refused hospice services, regardless of their ability to pay," Kathryn said.

"I'm happy to be back home," she said, "and I'm happy to be a part of providing this important care to the community."

Travelers can help children

With organ donorship in the United States at an all-time low, the lives of hundreds of children hang in the balance. Some children will run out of time because the wait for a compatible organ was too long. The families of other children will not be able to finance the expensive operation. Hospital cost also can range from $50,000 to $360,000.

This summer, a nationwide campaign will help save youngsters in need by increasing awareness of transplants or children and encouraging more people to become donors. From now until August 31, 1991, American Express and Best Western International Inc. will raise funds for The Children's Organ Transplant Association (COTA), the non-profit charity dedicated to helping fund expensive transplant operation. A donation will be made every time the American Express Card is used at a participating Best Western Hotel, generating a minimum of $100,000 for this very worthy cause. An additional $2 will be donated to COTA for each new approved Card application that originates at a Best Western Property.

To become a donor or to help children in need of organ transplants, call COTA at 1-800-366-2628.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - Genesis, featuring Phil Collins, was the top-grossing rock 'n' roll act in North America in the first half of the year, an industry newsletter says.

The English band, which grossed $28 million during the six months that ended June 30, was followed by the Grateful Dead. The San Francisco rock band grossed $26.3 million.

The toughest tickets to get were for arena tours by Irish rockers U2 and country star Garth Brooks, the newsletter Pollstar said Tuesday.

Hints

CLIP EARRINGS
Dear Heloise: After wearing clip-on earrings of any kind, the back of my ear lobe always gets infected.

One day I ran out of earring back covers so I used a small round bandage on the back of my ear lobe. I was even able to put ointment on the area before the bandage, and it really helped the irritation.

The bandage cannot be seen and it works better than anything I've ever used. — Shannon Davis, Lubbock, Texas

TOILETRIES
Dear Heloise: Whenever we go on a trip, I pack all toiletries, cosmetics and medications in my small traveling bag the day before and use them all from the traveling bag at least once.

This way I know I have everything packed and don't arrive at my destination minus shampoo or a necessary medication. — Mrs. Mittelstaedt, Reardan, Wash.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

NEW YORK (AP) - Guardian Angels founder Curtis Sliwa says being ambushed for the second time in a month will not keep him off the streets.

"Those gunmen have sealed my fate, for I will always be forced to travel in an entourage, but that will not stop the Guardian Angels," Sliwa said Tuesday as he left Bellevue Hospital.

The 38-year-old Sliwa was shot June 19 in a cab outside the headquarters of his anti-crime patrol. No arrests have been made.

Cosby's credits include "I Spy" and "The Cosby Show." Griffith starred in "The Andy Griffith Show" and "Matlock." Shore headlined "The Dinah Shore Show" and "The Dinah Shore Chevy Show."

The syndicated TV show airs Thursday.

EMERGENCY!?!

DIAL 9-1-1,

AND HELP IS ON THE WAY!

Protect environment

Everyone is talking about the environment. Many people know about recycling, conserving electricity and saving water, but what about your car and the environment? Shell's recent addition to their "Answer Book" provides tips on how you can help protect the environment and save money at the same time. Here are a few highlights from "The Environment Book":

-Better maintenance means less pollution. Good maintenance is important for both old and new cars. Because your car's emissions are what pollute the atmosphere, your car's emission system should be tested regularly by a trained mechanic. They have equipment that can tell if your car's emissions control is working properly.

-Don't top it off. When you overflow or "top off" your tank, you risk spilling gas which releases harmful fumes into the atmosphere. Spilled gas also means money wasted. So stop filling the tank as soon as the nozzle clicks.

-Good gas mileage. Fuel efficient driving means saving natural resources and reducing emissions. To help increase fuel efficiency, drive smoothly, avoid a jerky style and check your tires regularly to make sure they are properly inflated.

-Recycling oil. Many people think to recycle paper, aluminum, and glass. Motor oil should be recycled too. Through purification and redistillation, oil can be used again. If you change the oil yourself, use a funnel to pour the old oil from the drain basin into a sealable container like a plastic milk carton or soft drink bottle which can be taken to a neighborhood recycling center. Never use any container that once held bleach or paint. For a center in your area check the yellow pages under "oils-waste."

"55" saves...money and the environment. A safe, steady 55 miles per hour conserves gas and reduces emissions. The more you exceed that speed limit, the more you burn gasoline and money.

-An idle waste. Unnecessary idling wastes gas and harms the environment. When in doubt, follow the 30-second rule: If you are going to be idling for more than 30 seconds-when stopped at a drive through window or at a train crossing-it's more cost-effective to shut your car engine off and start it up again when you are ready to go. You'll reduce emissions, save gas and save money.

Enjoy swimming and diving but don't lose your safety sense.

Military Muster

Navy Seaman Michael S. Drumm, son of Marcy A. Varner of 512 Ave. J., Hereford, TX, recently participated in a combined Australian-United States anniversary commemoration of the Battle of Coral Sea aboard the amphibious command ship USS Blue Ridge, forward deployed to Yokosuka, Japan.

The battle took place May 4-9, 1942, in the Coral when two U.S. aircraft carriers supported by United States and Australian task forces and U.S. Army Air Corps aircraft repelled a larger Imperial Japanese invasion of Port Morsby, New Guinea. The strategic victory ended the Japanese thrust southward and was the first allied victory in the Pacific War.

Drumm visited the Australian cities of Sydney and Townsville, as well as Noumea, New Caledonia.

The Blue Ridge was the host ship for the service at sea near Townsville. More than 300 U.S. and Australian World War II veterans embarked on the Blue Ridge for this historic event.

The 1990 graduate of Randall High School, Amarillo, joined the Navy in August 1990.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Gary W. Prisk, son of Raymond D. and Jane Prisk of 326 Ave. J, Hereford, TX, recently returned with Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron-137, Naval Air Station Whidbey Island, WA following a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean, Red Sea and Persian Gulf deployment.

Prisk's squadron participated in various operations and training exercises as part of the USS America aircraft carrier battle group. The carrier and its escorts conducted numerous exercises with NATO allies in the Mediterranean and with the Egyptian Air Force in the Red Sea. Once in the Gulf, more training was held with the armed forces from Kuwait, Qatar and Saudi Arabia.

The return of Carrier Air Wing ONE to the Persian Gulf earned it the distinction of becoming the Navy's first Gulf War veteran air wing to redeploy to the region in the post-war period.

He also visited several foreign ports including Palma De Majorca, Spain; Naples, Italy; Souda Bay, Crete; Athens, Greece; Antalya, Turkey; Haifa, Israel and Dubai and Abu Dhabi in the United Arab Emirates.

Prisk's squadron flies the EA-6B Prowler aircraft which is used to provide an umbrella of protection for the battle group by denying any enemy the use of radar, data links and communications.

He joined the Navy in February 1988.

Army Spec. Lisa D. McDonald has arrived for duty at Fort Sill in Lawton, Okla.

McDonald, an intelligence analyst, is the daughter of John Winters and Elaine Winters, both of Amarillo.

Her husband, Kirt, is the son of Don and Vi McDonald of 800 Union. Lisa is a 1988 graduate of Amarillo High School.

Residents' granddaughter recently completes tour

The granddaughter of a Hereford couple recently participated in a tour of the Fort Worth Youth Orchestra to the Orient.

Myrna Denton Trent, 16, of Colleyville, has just completed her second year as principal cellist with the youth orchestra, conducted by Kurt Sprenger, director of orchestral studies at Texas Christian University.

A Grapevine High School junior, she is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.W. Denton of Hereford. Her parents are Jana and Stan Trent of Colleyville.

She has studied cello for seven years and is a student of John Burton, professor of cello and theory at TCU.

During the 10-day tour, the youth orchestra played concerts in Taiwan and Hong Kong.

Install your door locks

You can do yourself a good turn by installing your own door locks and hardware. It's an economical way to enhance the beauty of your home while adding a touch of extra security. Here are some tips that can make it easy as well.

Know your locks—There are four kinds of door locks commonly installed in homes; keyed entry, privacy, passage and deadbolt. The keyed entry lock is typically used for exterior doors. A key from both the exterior and interior or a turn button from the interior will lock and unlock both knobs. Interior and exterior knobs of a privacy lock can be locked and unlocked by turning a button on the interior knob and are usually found on bathroom and bedroom doors. Passage sets are non-locking and typically used on hallway and other interior doors where privacy is not a concern. The deadbolt lock, used for extra security on exterior doors, can only be engaged using a key or turnpiece.

Types of Hardware - You can choose from knobs, levers, decorative trim, entry handlesets and deadbolts in a variety of styles, finishes and functions. Door knobs are the standard hardware found in most homes, but levers are becoming more popular. After you have selected the style and finish of your knob, lever or handleset, you can also change the appearance of the piece by mixing and matching the back plate or trim. These pieces fit behind the knob, lever, handleset or even deadlock to enhance its style.

Plan Ahead - For installation of tubular type hardware, you'll need to know the backset measurement and thickness of your door. The backset is the measurement from the edge of the door to the middle of the knob or dead lock.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: When I got married three years ago, I stopped being so active and ate a lot more, which caused me to gain about 25 pounds. Then I got pregnant and gained more weight. After my baby was born and was a year old, I had gained a total of 45 pounds.

That's when I realized I had a problem and decided to do something about it. I started walking between four and 11 miles every day. Then I added biking too. I cut down on the fat in my diet. By seven weeks, I had lost 25 to 28 pounds. For over two months, I have stayed on the same program and eat much less. Also I have been jogging along with walking and biking. But I cannot seem to get below 132 pounds.

I'm 21 years old, 5 feet 3 inches and weigh between 132 and 135 pounds. Before I got married, I weighed 115 pounds. I really want to get down to my original size, but seem to be stuck. I was never overweight as a child or teen. Do you have any idea what my problem is?

DEAR READER: I see by the date on your letter that you have been on your program for about five months. You lose the most weight at the beginning of such a program. Then the body adapts to your new energy level and diet to keep you from losing weight. It is nature's survival mechanism kicking in. The people in many parts of the world where there is not enough to eat adapt, but they do have less energy and that has far-reaching effects. That is not to say you can't lose weight, but it is a lot harder. That is why it is sometimes good to back off, then start over.

That same adaptation mechanism is why if you get on a good balanced diet, learning to eat properly, and follow a regular, sensible exercise program, your body will adjust your weight to what nature intended it to be.

I am sending you Special Report 91, Making Weight Control Work, which includes a balanced diet you can use to limit your calories while you are losing weight, and add to once you have achieved your goal. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/91, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Car trips can be fun

If you're planning on taking a family vacation by car this summer, your trek doesn't have to be a back-seat nightmare.

With a little planning, you can help avoid those "Are we there yet?" blues. Here are some tips to help the miles fly by:

-If your kids are young or if you've never taken a family vacation by car, consider taking a shorter trip rather than a cross-country journey. Regional attractions closer to home may provide great experiences for families to enjoy over a long weekend.

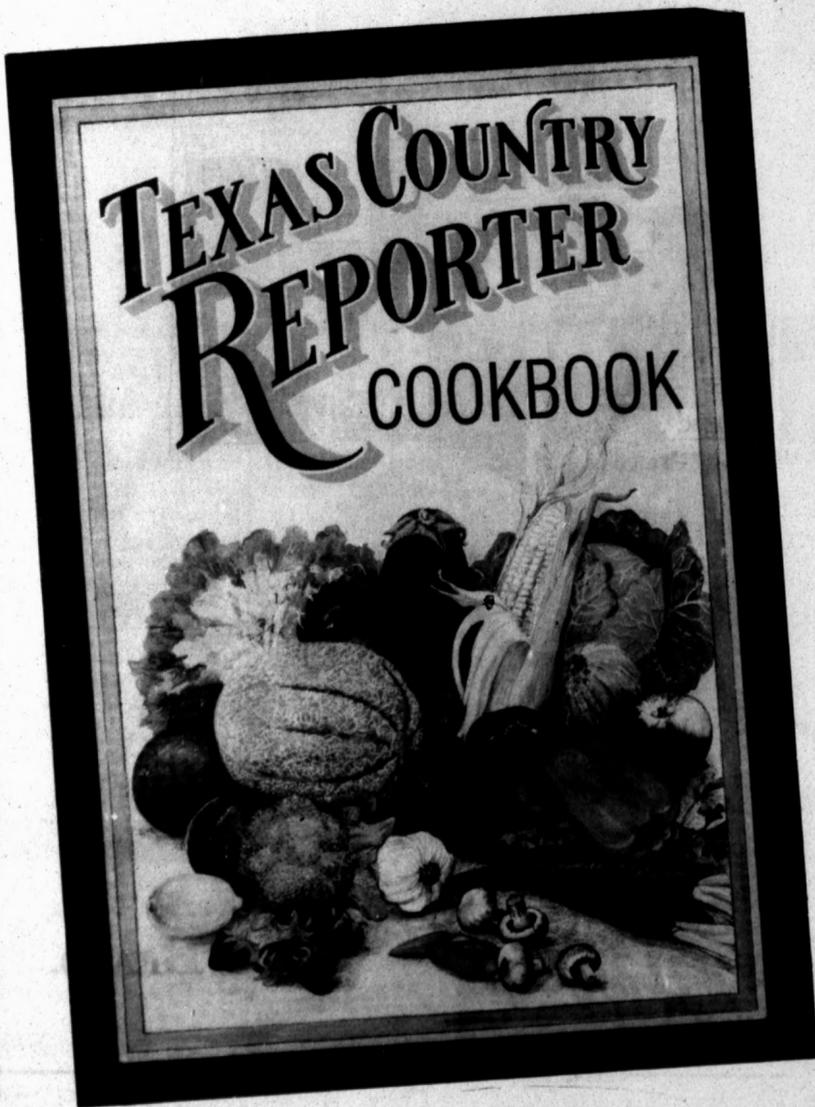

-Once you hit the road, be sure to make frequent rest stops. Everyone needs to stretch, not to mention a break from being in close quarters. When kids get fidgety and tempers flare, a change of scenery works wonders. Bring along jump ropes and bubble solution and a wand as well as balls and a Frisbee to toss to one another for fun and exercise.

-To keep dispositions on an even keel, be sure to have lots of healthy snacks on hand.

Playing with dad is critical to a child's healthy development.
