Big crowd expected for July 4

Fireworks, watermelon, fun on tap at Veterans Park

Planners hope another huge crowd turns out Saturday at Veterans Park for the second July 4th celebration in

The program will begin at 6 p.m. with music by Natalie Sims. Other singers will perform through the evening until the 30-minute fireworks display begins about 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Over 5,000 persons attended last year's celebration at Veterans Park.

Everyone is encouraged to bring a picnic supper to the park. Drink booths and other vendors will be at the park, and the organizing committee will serve free watermelon as long as it lasts.

Chairman Wes Klett said there will be several barrels around the park for donations. Including fireworks, watermelon and other needs, the celebration costs about $9,000. Donations may also be made to the Fourth of July celebration at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office at Seventh and Main. The park will be closed to traffic at 4 p.m. from the bridge on Tierra Blanca Creek south to Jackrabbit Road. Senior citizens may park on the west side of the road on the north end of the park; everyone else should park on the east side.

The program will include music by the Moondogs, Vicky Ortiz, Annie Zuniga, Chelli Cummings, Melissa Celaya, Leslie Woodard and Miss Hereford Vanessa Gonzalez.

The American Legion will present flags and Mayor Tom Legate will give the official welcome.

Have a SAFE time with your fireworks

Ok, we know that many of you are going to buy fireworks, no matter what. You might as well enjoy them safely, so we got some tips from Fire Marshall Jay Spain. Designate a responsible adult to light fireworks; never let children light any fireworks. Most fireworks injuries are to children under 15.

•Read the instructions. If you don't know how they work, don't light Never experiment with fireworks.

•Only light fireworks outdoors in a clear area away from buildings, grass, dry brush and fuel tanks.

•Allow enough room for fireworks to function. Never ignite fireworks in glass or other containers.

•Keep a safe distance away from the lighting area. •Never handle fireworks that have malfunctioned. If they are duds, leave them alone!

•Don't bring fireworks into the city limits. If you do bring them in the city limits and you're caught with them, they will be taken away and you might be fined. If you light them in the city limits, you could get two tickets (one for possession, one for discharge). It could cost you $400 plus court costs.

A total of nearly 1,000 Canadian troops dispatched by the United Nations were expected to arrive today after a dangerous trek through mountain territory disputed by Serb irregulars and troops of newly independent Bosnia.

Artillery duels continued overnight downtown and in the eastern and western outskirts. Serb guns fired on Bosnian government positions in Muslim-held neighborhoods around the airport, said Maj. Dervo Harbinja of the Bosnian Territorial Defense.

House, Bush agree on urban aid but stay apart on other issues

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House is moving ahead, with White House agreement, on an urban aid plan granting $2.5 billion to 50 urban and rural enterprise zones. A new extension of jobless benefits may also be in the works.

But lawmakers and the White Louse appear headed for confrontation on abortion. And President Bush was visiting Capitol Hill today to talk to Republicans on another issue, health care, where the two parties are at loggerheads.

The House planned to vote today on the $2.5 billion urban aid bill education and law enforcement programs in 50 inner cities and distressed rural areas.

Also coming before the House was a measure containing $14 billion in tax breaks, many for people and businesses in the 50 troubled areas. Those so-called enterprise zones have not yet been selected.

The plan follows the $1 billion in emergency aid passed last month in the aftermath of Los Angeles riots.

Both houses worked long hours Wednesday as the Senate pushed for a weeklong July Fourth recess. The House plans to return to session next

The House and Senate have approved separate plans to again extend unemployment benefits, with the current system due to expire

The Senate would provide up to 33 weeks of extra coverage for people who have used up the standard 26 weeks of benefits. The House would allow people up to 26 additional weeks. Both measures would also make it easier for people to qualify for extra benefits in future economic downturns.

While House leaders found agreement possible with Bush on urban aid and unemployment yield cooperation in other areas.

On health care, the president which would provide job training, supports Republican plans that call for modest reforms in private exempt capital gains taxes in a far insurance markets.

But House Democrats favor a more sweeping bill that would impose rigid controls on health costs and assure care to millions of uninsured poor, including all children and pregnant women. A Ways and Means subcommittee approved the Democratic version Wednesday.

In another example of conflict, the House voted to cut off spending for the White House Council on Competitiveness, headed by Vice President Dan Quayle, which critics say has allowed industry to dodge federal health, safety and environmental regulations.

Also pending today was Senate consideration of the administration's Russian aid package. On Wednesday, the Senate rejected an effort by Sens. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Larry Pressler, R-S.D., to condition the aid on the withdrawal of Russian troops from the Baltic republics.

The Senate is expected to consider the urban aid plan when it returns from recess later this month.

Businesses would enjoy a reduced tax on capital gains, with the rate cut perhaps in half, on investments in the enterprise zones that are held for five benefits, they cautioned that both years. No tax would have to be paid were triggered by crises and may not if the profits were reinvested within the zone.

Such an arrangement would be less ambitious than Bush's proposal to larger number of zones.

The tax bill would also renew a dozen tax breaks that would otherwise expire for such activities as construction of low-income housing, research by businesses and employer-financed education benefits.

The measure also repeals luxury taxes on yachts, private planes, furs and jewelry, and reduces the levy on expensive automobiles.

The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee voted 12-5 on Wednesday to send the full Senate a bill writing abortion rights into federal law and prohibiting states from applying many abortion restrictions. The House Judiciary Committee approved a similar bill a day earlier.

Suit filed to prohibit dumping of sludge

AUSTIN (AP) - The state has gone to federal court to try and block New York City sludge from being spread over arid rangeland in West Texas.

In a lawsuit filed Wednesday against the Environmental Protection Agency, the Texas attorney general's office claimed that the proposed spreading of thousands of tons of the municipal sewage byproduct could endanger the environment and public

The lawsuit demands that the EPA conduct an environmental impact study of the project, and consult with state historical officials about archaeological sites on the Hudspeth County site.

A hearing on the temporary court order is scheduled for Monday before U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton in

But project leaders, MERCO Joint Venture, and the EPA denied Morales' charges.

'This is nothing more than a thinly disguised attempt to discriminate against out of state generators of bio solids," said project partner Ralph Macchio of Long Island, N.Y.

Roger Meacham, a spokesman for the EPA in Dallas, said the agency had not yet reviewed the lawsuit, but defended the sludge dumping process proposed by MERCO as "proven technology" that helps enrich and replenish the soil.

MERCO, based in Oklahoma City, has a six-year, $168 million contract with New York to transport city sludge by rail and spread it over a 128,000-acre ranch the company owns near Sierra Blanca. The project entails dumping about 250,000 pounds of sludge per day, the lawsuit said. The sludge includes heavy metals, such as arsenic, cadmium, lead and zinc, and pesticides, according to the lawsuit.

State officials said they are worried that the sludge will run off into local waterways that lead to the Rio Grande, and that sludge-laden dust could be blown all over the area and later ingested by people. According to a sworn statement by Kirk Brown, a soil and crop professor at Texas A&M University, "The proposed application of sewage sludge on this particular site is not a beneficial use, but will cause irreparable environmental damage.'

But Macchio described the dumping as a "win-win-win situation.

Local jobs will be created, the land will be revitalized, and New York will get rid of a lot of waste. "We have a first-class project that uses proven methods that have been successfully utilized for more than a century," he said.

Iran, Syria spreading fake U.S. bills

WASHINGTON (AP) -High-quality counterfeit $100 bills are being printed on U.S.-built presses in Iran's official mint and distributed around the world with the help of Syrian government operatives, a Republican congressional report

The bills are being sold at about half their face value, stuffed into bribes for Third World officials and used in money-laundering operations for drug dealers, the Task Force on Terrorism and Unconventional Warfare said Wednesday.

Some are making their way to North America, the report said.

It accused Iran of a program to print billions of dollars worth of the bills to undermine the U.S. economy and finance its efforts to spread Islamic fundamentalism. Syrian officials also involved in drug smuggling are aiding the distribution through Syria and Lebanon, it Iran's goal appears to be printing New York by the country's permaforeign currency shortfall, said Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla.

The bogus bills are showing up in Europe, Asia and Africa and in the cash-hungry nations of the former Soviet Union where Iran is trying to handle $100 bills, such bills are spread Islamic fundamentalism, said McCollum and Sen. Connie Mack. also a Florida Republican.

The bills are printed on presses obtained during the rule of the late Shah of Iran with high-quality ink mixed by U.S.-trained chemists on paper the Iranians have learned to manufacture themselves, the report said.

The Federal Reserve System has equipment that can detect the fakes, but most of the counterfeit currency remains outside the U.S. banking system, McCollum said.

Iran strenuously denied the allegations. A statement issued in up to $12 billion annually to erase its nent mission to the United Nations said the task force "has not presented one scrap of credible evidence to support these wild hallucinations of the extreme right."

While most Americans rarely commonly used in transactions abroad. Officials say they often are the preferred currency for bribes, money laundering and drug deals. "The implications for the dollar's role as the international medium of exchange could be serious," McCollum said. A major reason for announcing details of the task force investigation, he said, was to counter recent Iranian claims that the U.S. government is producing the bogus bills itself. Evidence gathered by the task force, which is part of the House Republican Research Committee, has been passed on to the Secret Service and the Treasury Department, McCollum said.

Vaughn Forrest, the task force chief of staff, said the report was based on information from reliable sources in Iran and Syria.

Boxes of up to $500,000 worth of the fake bills have been reported, Forrest said.

Lower-quality $100 and $20 bills are being produced in the Bekaa Valley of Lebanon under Syrian control, the report said.

The task force traced the money trail for the high-quality bills from Tehran's mint through Syria and Lebanon to overseas distribution. The only way to stop it may be to go after sources of production and circulation in Tehran and Damascus, the report

Syria and Iran began counterfeiting U.S. bills in 1989 but only recently perfected the operation to produce large quantities of high-quality fakes, the task force said.

Accent on Health

It is a paradox that many individuals who are admired for their athletic excellence and seeming physical fitness have gained their prominence through drug abuse. Despite adverse publicity and ever tightening regulations, the abuse of anabolic steroids and related drugs is a thriving, illicit industry. Texas is one of the main distribution points for such drugs in the Steroids and related androgens which can help the human body to build muscle mass, strength and endurance have been common in sports and competitive bodybuilding for decades. Even some firefighters and police officers, desiring more size and stamina, sometimes risk dangerous drug side-effects for a quick alternative to conventional weight training.

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) Division of Food and Drugs is a leading authority responsible for investigating and stopping steroid abuse in the state. According to Dennis Baker, director of the division, about 30 percent of the nation's illicit steroids are distributed through Texas. "We have not only port cities, but the longest shared border with Mexico," Baker said, "and smuggling methods for steroids often correspond with those for other contraband."

Most steroids and related androgen products are synthetic chemicals which act similar to the male hormone testosterone. They may be injected in liquid form or taken orally in pills or capsules. "Individuals who abuse steroids take mega-doses which may be up to 10 times the therapeutic dose," Baker said.

Medically, steroids are used to correct developmental disorders in men, to aid in muscle rehabilitation after certain injuries or illnesses and to help regulate hormonal imbalances. What has made them so attractive to all who want increased size and strength is that they also speed muscle growth. Not only professional athletes, but college amateurs, even high school and junior high students have been found to consume massive doses of steroids. One study estimates that three of every five college athletes uses steroids at some point in training or competition.

FORGET

ĽNOO

Another study shows that 6 percent of high school athletes have abused the drugs. Sometimes coaches and trainers have bene the steroid suppliers.

According to Baker, "The longterm side effects of steroid abuse can be debilitating and even deadly."

baker explained that different individuals suffer a variety of physical and psychological side effects, including liver problems, increased blood cholesterol and blood pressure levels, acne, sterility, depression and aggressive behavior. Recent evidence shows that steroids also can cause cancer cells to grow faster than they do in patients not using steroids.

Baker said that despite the dangers, until 1987 when the Texas Legislature designated steroids to be controlled substances, it was legal in this state for a physician to prescribe steroids for athletic or cosmetic uses. The U.S. Department of Justice did not designate steroids and related drugs to be controlled substances until 1990.

baker said that until the drugs became controlled substances, subject to tracing from their manufacturers to their users, most steroids being abused were diverted form legitimate wholesalers. After the drugs became controlled, black market prices for them skyrocketed, fueling a worldwide smuggling network supplying not only U.S.-made drugs, but foreignmade and counterfeit products of dubious value and safety.

"Products that might cost $5 to $5 Patriotic Gift or legimately form the manufacturer suddenly commanded as high as $50 on the black market, once steroids came under tighter regulation," Baker

QUICK LUNCH FOR TWO

Dear Heloise: Here's a quick lunch recipe I enjoy. You'll need: 1 can of chicken noodle soup or chicken broth 2 cups baking mix

²/3 cup milk

Heat soup or broth to a boil. Combine baking mix and milk, blend well (or you can use your favorite dumpling recipe). Spoon dough into boiling soup (dip the spoon in hot broth after each spoonful; this keeps dough from sticking to it). Cover lightly and reduce heat to a simmer. Cook for 12-15 minutes. - Goldie Morningstar, Middletown, Ohio development on the planet could be less of a surprise than this one: The Dream Team has qualified for the Olympic Games.

Even though they were without three players because of injury and were playing for the fourth time in as many days, the United States squad romped over Argentina 128-87 on Wednesday night.

"We were a little short-handed so we were concerned about the guard situation but as it turned out it was not a problem," coach Chuck Daly

Jordan finished with 24 points, his highest total thus far in the Olympic qualifying competition. And all that after playing 36 holes of golf for the second day in a row.

Still, this was the worst the Americans have performed thus far and the 41-point victory was the closest an opponent has come to the Dream Team.

"We're definitely tired," Charles Barkley said. "I don't think I've ever played four games in a row. It's hard."

Especially with nine players,

"We couldn't do that pressure, pressure, pressure that we've been doing," he said.

Even though they weren't at their best, the Americans again left their opponents awestruck.

'I played with great happiness against the monsters," said forward Hernan Montenegro, who played at LSU and was drafted by Philadelphia. We dreamed of playing against them. This obviously is the highlight of our careers."

The tactic wasn't all that effective as the United States boosted its lead by only nine points over a 10-minute span.

But Daly indicated he might use

'It's a team we thought about, a pressure team, a shot-blocking team," he said.

The United States still has two more games to play. The Americans face the winner of Thursday night's Argentina-Puerto Rico game in the semifinals Friday night.

Unless a miracle of almost Biblical proportions occurs, they'll play for the tournament championship on Sunday, where their likely opponent is Brazil, which is 4-0 in the tournament.

Americans in Wimbledon semis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - 4-6, 6-3 win over three-time McEnroe last won the tournament in an ace. "The ball was a foot long!" John McEnroe and Andre Agassi swept into the Wimbledon semifinals today, joining Pete Sampras and putting three Americans in the final four for the first time in 10 years.

Take my word on this: None of us wants to be around to see the gunslinger who can hit a serve harder than 20-year-old Goran Ivanisevic.

It is the last thing grass-court tennis needs. Last year's final between Michael Stich and Boris Becker lasted 2 hours, 33 minutes and somebody calculated that the ball was in play for a little more than 9 minutes. Total.

"When he is serving as well as he did today," Edberg, a two-time Wimbledon champion said after getting dumped in a five-set quarterfinal on Wednesday, "I don't really see how anybody gets to play.

"I got into the fifth set and I had a break point early. He had an ace. Then in the last game at 5-3, 15-40, he has two clean aces. Another break point a little later, he has another clean ace. What do you do?

"It is frustrating," he sighed. "You want the chance, at least, to hit on a second serve once."

gy and technique over the past decade from opera to rap.

Ten years ago, John McEnroe was the game's dominant player and played every match here like a symphony. His zinging, cleverly disguised groundstrokes from the baseline made up the string section, his deft, angled volleys from the net, the horns, and his thumps from the service line the percussion.

Mac is still around, but almost something of a relic because now, as Jimmy Connors described the game in an interview three months ago, there is only "boom, boom, boom; bang, bang, bang.

Wednesday at Wimbledon, defending champion Stich's serve was clocked at 130 mph; he pounded out seven aces to raise his total to a very respectable 53 for five matches.

For all his troubles, however, he got hammered by an even-faster Pete Sampras (nine aces for the match; 82 total; top speed 129 mph), who now moves on to the semifinal to match laser beams with Ivanisevic. Good thing that, because Sampras, also 20, at least has numbers to stack alongside the Master Blaster,

The young Croat, who somehow stalled out at 129 mph in his only performance for the radar gun alongside Centre Court, had 33 aces Wednesday against Edberg to raise his stake to a staggering 133 for the fortnight.

To be completely fair about it. Ivanisevic has a very nicely rounded game. He volleys well for a player who stands 6-foot-4, punches quick, efficient groundstrokes from both sides and with increasing maturity, has begun to display admirable court

So he was understandably pained when someone suggested that his serve was prompting calls to limit the power of the rackets, or slow down the balls and surfaces in a bid to restore rallying to the game.

"I mean, there's nothing too fast," Ivanisevic said. "I mean, I'm a guy who can hit a lot of aces. It's not my fault. I'm not so strong. I mean, I'm not hitting the ball hard, I'm just serving good.

"I mean, (Andre) Agassi is hitting the ball harder than me and (Jim) Courier, too, and nobody's complaining about it, only when I hit, like, 40 aces in the game.

"And then," he said, "they complain.'

McGwire hits 27th HR; Eck gets 28th

By BEN WALKER

AP Baseball Writer The most curious race in the American League this season? That's easy - Mark McGwire vs. Dennis Eckersley.

The two Oakland stars again increased their major league-leading totals Wednesday, with McGwire hitting his 27th home run and Eckersley earning his 28th save in a 3-1 victory over Seattle.

All season long, McGwire and Eckersley have been on a parallel. No telling which one will wind up with the higher number, but they're both on pace to break career highs - 49 homers for McGwire in 1987, 48 saves for Eckersley in 1990.

McGwire began the three-game saves. McGwire's two-run homer broke an eighth-inning tie that gave the A's a sweep.

"It was a fastball," McGwire said. "In fact, it was the first fastball I got over the plate in the whole series. I was kind of surprised it went out. People think the ball carries well here. It doesn't. There's a lot of dead air here.'

Eckersley moved ahead of McGwire's total with saves in all three games. He has converted 28 straight save chances this season and 32 in a row over two years, both major league records.

Oakland and Seattle were tied at 1-1 in the eighth when Harold Baines singled with one out. Lance series at the Kingdome with 26 Blankenship went in as a pinch homers and Eckersley started with 25 runner, and McGwire hit a 427-foot shot to center field against Mark Grant (0-1).

> Mike Moore (8-7) pitched well after going 0-4 with an 8.06 ERA in his previous five starts. But with two outs in the seventh, Jay Buhner hit his 10th home run, tying it at 1.

Blue Jays 3, Rangers 2

Greg Myers doubled home the winning run in the 10th inning at SkyDome.

Derek Bell, who made a running catch on Rafael Palmeiro's liner to left-center with the bases loaded to end the top of the 10th, opened the bottom half with a single. Myers followed with a double off Jeff Russell (2-3).

Texas starter Todd Burns retired Orioles 7, Brewers 4 17 straight batters and allowed three hits in 71-3 innings. Russell relieved and gave up Devon White's tying triple in the eighth.

Toronto starter Juan Guzman gave up five hits in eight innings. Duane /ard (4-4) pitched two innings.

Yankees 7, Royals 6

Pinch-hitter Matt Nokes' two-run homer in the seventh inning completed New York's rally from an early 6-0 deficit at Yankee Stadium.

Nokes connected for the second straight day, and his 10th home run of the season came against Tom Gordon (1-8). Greg Cadaret (4-6) was the winner and John Habyan pitched two innings for his second save.

Bill Ripken went 4 for 4 with a homer and drove in three runs as Baltimore won at home. Brady Anderson and Sam Horn also homered for the Orioles.

Ripken had a two-run single in the fourth, helping Baltimore take a 6-0 lead against Bill Wegman (7-6).

Ben McDonald (8-5) allowed four runs on eight hits in six-plus innings. Gregg Olson got three outs for his Minnesota won its sixth straight game, all on the road, behind Willie Banks and four relievers.

Banks (3-1) allowed one run on three hits in five innings. Rick Aguilera pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

Jim Abbott (4-10) gave up eight hits in his fifth complete game. Chili Davis hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning that broke a 1-all tie.

Red Sox 6, Tigers 4

Tom Brunansky's double capped a five-run seventh inning that lifted Boston over Detroit at Fenway Park.

The Red Sox trailed 4-1 before Scott Cooper's RBI single off Bill Gullickson (9-5) and Jody Reed's sacrifice fly made it a one-run game.

John Dopson (5-3) got the win, allowing four runs, one earned, in seven innings. Jeff Reardon worked the ninth for his 16th save.

White Sox 8, Indians 5

Craig Grebeck went 5 for 5 with three doubles, two RBIs and two runs scored at Cleveland.

Kirk McCaskill (6-6) allowed four runs on five hits in six innings. Bobby Thigpen, Chicago's fifth pitcher, went 1 2-3 innings for his 19th save.

The White Sox went ahead 4-0 in the second inning when they had four consecutive two-out run-scoring hits off Jack Armstrong (2-10).

That tradition is being carried on for California by Bert Blyleven, 3-2 at age 41 after missing all of 1991 with rotator cuff surgery. Thirty-sixyear-old Rick Sutcliffe is having a comeback year with Baltimore after missing most of the last three seasons with arm surgery and 37-year-old Jack Morris continues on his merry

He has been - and he must be good. You have to be doing something right to keep getting a chance when you're 0-9 with a 5.43 ERA.

That's three losses short of the team record of 0-12. Please note that the Phillies scored just 17 runs in his nine losses - eight while he's been in the game.

HOT ARMS: Abbott (Kyle) could

Milwaukee's management had been talking to San Antonio about the No. 18 pick and Ellis for some time. "I heard about Portland two days ago. I thought it was a trade rumor until it happened today," he said. "I was very happy when I heard. I wanted to yell.

Buckwalter said he sees Murray playing mostly at small forward but he could see some action at big guard.

"I think Portland is going to be surprised at my versatility," Murray said. "They can put me just about anywhere and I'll fit in."

There are questions about Murray's defensive abilities.

"I have this bad rap of not playing defense and I think I've really improved a lot," he said. "I think the Portland coaching staff is going to realize I can play some defense." Ellis, a 31-year-old guard, will be playing for his fourth team in 10 NBA seasons. He is fifth all-time among 3-point shooters and shares the league record with Michael Adams for most 3-pointers in a game with nine.

Ellis played three seasons in Dallas and 4 1/2 in Seattle before being traded to Milwaukee for Ricky Pierce in February 1991.

'We're sure he's going to fit into San Antonio's system extremely well because their weakness has been a lack of outside shooting," Milwaukee coach Mike Dunleavy said. "Dale will certainly be able to provide that for them."

Ellis has a career average of 17.9 points. Last season, he averaged 15.7, tops for the Bucks but his lowest figure since 1986. He was used mostly as the team's sixth man. His best season was 1988-89, Orlando on Dec. 4.

when he averaged 27.5 points.

Abdelnaby, a 6-10 forward chosen out of Duke as the 25th player in the 1990 draft, fell out of favor with the coaching staff in his two seasons with Portland.

He played briefly in the regular rotation as a backup power forward and center midway through 1991-92 but otherwise spent most of his time on the bench.

The Egyptian-born Abdelnaby averaged 4.9 points, 3.1 rebounds and 10.7 minutes of playing time in his two NBA seasons. Last season, he averaged 6.1 points and had career highs of 13 points against Detroit on, phone and say, 'Hey, we actually want Dec. 13 and 13 rebounds against.

"I think coming from a winning organization like Portland has been over the past few years and playing every day in practice against those quality players has him ready to be able to step into a bigger role with another team," Dunleavy said.

Abdelnaby said he was sorry to leave Portland but was glad to be going to a place where he can play more. He said Dunleavy spoke to him Wednesday and assured him that he would get that opportunity.

A lot of times when your ego may take a little bit of a beating it's nice to hear somebody finally pick up the to have you come over here and play," Abdelnaby said.

UT women sue for more sports

AUSTIN (AP) - Seven female athletes at the University of Texas have accused the school of sex denied a chance to participate in some varsity intercollegiate sports.

The athletes filed a class-action Court, stating the university is in violation of Title IX, a 20-year-old federal statute prohibiting gender discrimination in educational institutions that receive federal funds.

The women all compete in sports not included in the women's athletic department but are offered as club sports or intramural competition.

representing the women, said the lawsuit does not seek monetary discrimination, saying they have been Texas to add softball, soccer, crew and gymnastics to the women's Rentschler and Suzanne Vossman. athletic department.

"We're out for the future, not out lawsuit Wednesday in U.S. District for blood, but for an opportunity," Henson said. "We want them to give us participation. We've tried to make a reasonable claim.

'This is the first offensive kind of lawsuit using Title IX law in a long time. Most of the cases that were filed were reacting when (athletic) departments dropped sports. This one will be a watershed case and looked Diane Henson, the attorney at by a lot of athletic departments."

The seven athletes were identified as: Rachel Sanders, Kristan damages. The lawsuit seeks to force Staudenmayer, Jessica Mortenson, Beth Wyatt, Jessica Green, Jennifer

> The women's department, separate from the men, funds eight varsity-level sports. The men's department, which partially funds the women's division, has nine sports.

> The suit states that the men's department includes 304 athletes while the women have 90; or 77 percent of the school's athletes are men while 23 percent are women. The suit also states the undergraduate student body is 53 percent male and 47 percent female.

Fireworks safety is everyone's concern

The Texas Commission on Fire Protection warns Texans that MOther Nature may not be as much help in preventing Fourth of July fires this year as she was in 1991. Executive Director Mike Hines said that wet weather in the summer of 1991 was one variable in the reduction of fireworks-related fires during the Fourth of July holiday.

"Wet weather during fireworks season certainly helps fire fighters," Hines said. "But every Texan should be responsible for preventing fires and injuries caused by fireworks by using them as safely as possible or by choosing another way to celebrate."

Fireworks-related fires in Texas decreased by 60 percent in 1991 compared to 1990 figures, according to Jean Mitchell, program manager of Texas Fire Incident Reporting System (TEXFIRS), TEXFIRS, a program of the Texas Commission on Fire Protection, collects data from 373 fire departments representing approximately 72.4 percent of the state population. In 1990, 1185 fireworks-related fires were reported to TEXFIRS; in 1991, 480 fireworks-related fires were reported.

George Bomar, climatologist for the Texas Water Commission, confirmed that June 1991 was exceptionally wet. "Last year every region of the state had more than its usual amount of rainfall," Bomar said. "For instance, the North Central Region had more than 1 1/2 inches over the norm for the month of June. This wet weather continued into July in a large portion of the state."

Additional factors contributed to the reduction in fireworks-related fires in 1991, according to Hines. "Fire departments around the state have emphasized fireworks safety through public education about the potential hazards of fireworks," he said. "Public education is an effective way to increase awareness and reduce the number of fireworks-related fires and injuries."

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) - Jim McKay says it's sad but true that his career got a big boost from his coverage of the massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

McKay, now 70, was host of ABC's "Wide World of Sports" and worked 11 Olympics as a sportscast-

"Although it was such a horrible occasion, it was something that really gave an impetus to my career," he said of his nearly 20-hour coverage of the Arab terrorist attack.

'I hate even to admit that the coverage had something to do with giving my career a push, but the simple fact is that it did."

McKay was interviewed in the latest issue of New Choices for Retirement Living magazine.

NEW YORK (AP) - Helen Hayes says her late husband, playwright Charles MacArthur, probably didn't fully pursue his career because of her success as an actress.

MacArthur and Ben Hecht wrote the "The Front Page," a play based on MacArthur's experience as a Chicago reporter. He died in 1956.

In an interview in the latest issue of New Choices for Retirement Living, the 91-year-old first lady of the American theater said her husband probably didn't give "full service to his talent" because of her success. And she said she believes she could have done more to help him fight his drinking problem.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "Northern Exposure" star Rob Morrow is giving CBS the cold shoulder in a contract dispute.

Morrow, who plays Dr. Joel Fleischman in the quirky series about a New Yorker in small-town Alaska, failed to show up Tuesday in Washington state, where the series is filmed, said a source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Details of the dispute weren't known.

CBS and the series' studio, MCA Universal, refused to comment Wednesday, Morrow's agent in New York did not return calls.

The audio cassette was invented in Holland in 1963.

Hines added, "Many cities in Texas have banned the use of fireworks within city limits. Although fireworks are still available, the ban has helped make the public aware of the potential fire problem."

In addition to the fires caused by fireworks, TEXFIRS data for 1991 shows five reported injuries in the fires caused by fireworks. This figure represents only those injuries from fireworks-related fires. Property loss in 1991 from these fires amounted to $487,453 as compared to $652,438 in 1990. "This is a 25 percent decrease in property loss," Mitchell said.

State Fire Marshal Ernest Emerson said the safest option is to leave fireworks to the professional technician. "If you choose to use fireworks, use appropriate safety measures," Emerson said. "Teach your children fireworks safety by letting them see that you are concerned about the damage fireworks can cause."

Using fireworks safely can reduce the number of fires and injuries caused by fireworks. The Texas Commission on Fire Protection offers 10 recommendations for safely using fireworks:

. 1. Purchase fireworks only from a vendor that displays a State Fire Marshal's Office retail fireworks

2. Remember that many cities and communities regulate the possession and use of fireworks. Contact the local fire department or law enforcement authorities for rules in your communi-

3. Never let children use fireworks. Always designate a responsible, sober adult to ignite the fireworks.

4. Use fireworks outdoors only, in a clear area away from houses and flammable materials, such as grass, trees, gasoline cans or wooden decks. Be sure that the fireworks, especially aerial fireworks, will not contact or land on potentially dangerous objects, such as power lines or automobiles.

5. Keep a bucket of water nearby while setting off fireworks. Use the water to douse any malfunctioning fireworks or accidental fires and to immerse minor burns. Also use this bucket of water for disposing of used

6. Keep everyone, especially children under 15 years of old, a safe distance away from the area where the also get relief from using a bulk fireworks are ignited.

7. Read and follow the directions ing program discussed in the report.

8. Never touch a firework after it has been lit. If the firework malfunctions, do not try to relight it or pick it up. Carefully douse all used fireworks

9. Never experiment with fireworks. Don't take fireworks apart or mix anything with the contents. Never make fireworks at home. Don't set off fireworks in metal, glass or other types

10. After you have finished lighting fireworks, cool the remains with water. Then collect all used fireworks materials and put them in a metal container. Cover with water again to reduce the chance of an accidental fire.

"Even one fire from fireworks is one too many," Hines said. "Most of these fires can be prevented. The fun that children and adults have with fireworks can never equal the loss of lives and property caused by fire."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am writing because I am too embarrassed to see a doctor. I am 34 years old. In order for me to have a bowel movement daily, I must sometimes sit on the toilet for 45 minutes to one hour. This is real embarrassing when I go to visit overnight at other people's homes where they only have one bathroom. In the morning, I can feel that there is something in my intestines, but I don't have a natural urge, so I sit until I finally have a bowel move-

I get very testy unless I have a bowel movement. Now I feel like I have to plan my whole day around this ritual. It seems as if it has been like this for the last 12 years. I exercise regularly and do not eat any pork or beef and very little poultry. My diet does lack in fruits and vegetables. I eat mostly whole-grain breads and cereals and low-fat cottage cheese and skim milk. I know this is not normal, but I am at a loss as to what to do. DEAR READER: The first step is to realize that you do not have to have a bowel movement every day. Not doing so will not affect your health and should not affect your disposition. An old idea that you would absorb toxins if you didn't, called autointoxication, is completely without foundation. In general, if a woman has fewer than three bowel movements a week, or a man fewer than five, that is consider as constipation.

Don't be embarrassed to talk to your doctor about it. There are medical reasons for slow bowel movements. Some people have an excessively large colon. Some have defects in the nerve fibers that enter the wall of the colon to stimulate normal contractions. And some people have such problems from low thyroid states. It wouldn't be a bad idea to have your thyroid evaluated.

Read about constipation in Special Report 73, Irritable Bowel and Constipation, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/73, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Depending on what the cause is, you might former and following the bowel-train-

DEAR DR. LAMB: There is a big disagreement at my workplace concerning a food/weight issue. My coworker says that if you eat one pound of food, you cannot gain more than one pound in weight. I say the caloric content of the food can cause you to gain more than one pound. Who is

DEAR READER: Pounds of what? If you have been on crash diet, or limited your carbohydrates, so that you lost a lot of body water, then eat sensibly, your body will regain the water you have lost, and you may gain five pounds in a day's time. But the weight loss was not fat in the first place, and the regained weight is not fat either. A pound of body fat contains 3,500 calories because of water content. So, if you ate a pound of lard, which contains 4,091 calories, that would cause you to gain more than one pound of body fat.

Lawyer-gunman had made plea lawyer, distraught over failed attempts to win custody of his son and unable to quash a sex offense charge, opened fire on a Tarrant County courtroom killing two attorneys and wounding three others, including two judges.

Hours before the 10 a.m. attack Wednesday on an appeals hearing at the Tarrant County courtroom, George D. Lott made one last plea to a Peoria, Ill. Judge Robert Manning for a hearing on the sex charge against him. Lott was to be tried July 20 on the charge filed in March by ex-wife Margo Z. Best. Lott was accused of sexually assaulting his 4-year-old son Neal, who lives in Peoria with his mother, a Bradley University employee. Lott's battle for custody and his fight against the charge are believed to be the catalyst for his brutal attack.

Ms. Best also was an attorney, said Maryellen Hicks, the Tarrant County Family Court judge who handled the

"I think it was about two years ago. It was approximately a three-week jury trial," Ms. Hicks She said the jury awarded custody of the couple's child, Neal, to Ms.

The 45-year-old, who for the last 3 (years lived at a modest Arlington apartment complex, surrendered to police after telling his story to WFAA-TV at their downtown Dallas studios at about 4:15 p.m. "It is a horrible, horrible thing I

DALLAS (AP) - An Arlington have done today," Lott said. "I sinned. I am certainly wrong.

> "I basically went into the courtroom, got up and shot apparently five people," Lott said. "One of 'em started running out and I shot him running out of the room.

Peoria County District Attorney Kevin Lyons told the Houston Chronicle Lott called the court clerk's office Tuesday and again Wednesday at 8:50 a.m. for a hearing on his case. "He was asking the judge to address deficiencies in the case and practices by my office," Lyons said. "The judge, of course, denied that and here, in my office an hour later, we're watching this stuff on CNN."

The courtroom Lott selected was the site where his own divorce case had been heard, he told the television station. However, Lott did not know any of the victims.

The two judges remained hospitalized Thursday, the fifth victim, an attorney, was treated and released.

"If we could pick someone capable of this from our long list of defendants, he'd be the one we'd pick," Lyons told the Chronicle.

Peoria police reports show Lott's ex-wife first noticed her son's abuse in early October 1991. However, she did not seek medical treatment for months, not until Feb. 16. But she told police she took pictures of the affected area back in October.

She told police she didn't notify authorities because she said she had seen even worse treatment after Neal visited his father, The Peoria Journal-Star reported.

The Associated Press was unable to contact Margo Best for comment. Lott, who remains at the Tarrant County Jail, says he is innocent and accused his wife of the abuse.

Meanwhile, in Arlington, residents at the Trinity Trace apartments said they knew little of the man who lived in Apartment 607, where on Wednesday only a volleyball game notice and a certified letter receipt hung on the door.

"I basically went into the courtroom, got up and apparently shot five people." --George Lott.

Many said he did not work, but spent hours working on his fishing boat, parked in the complex car lot or remained inside his 2-bedroom apartment.

Police searched the apartment for evidence late Wednesday night where court documents and other papers were strewn across tables inside.

Among the seized items - a personal computer and accompanying disks, from which police hope to glean further information about the troubled lawyer.

Lyons said Lott's visitation rights were at first very limited when Ms. Best and Neal moved to Peoria.

But he said a Texas judge modified the agreement on Jan. 5, 1990, to allow him rights to the child on the first, third and fifth weekends of the month, the Chronicle reported in Thursday editions.

Sometime this year, a judge in Peoria terminated Lott's visitation rights, Lyons said. The prosecutor then obtained a felony indictment against Lott in March.

Lott was held Wednesday night in Tarrant County Jail on six arrest charges: two capital murder charges, three charges of deadly assault on a court participant and one charge of carrying a weapon in a place where weapons are prohibited.

Fort Worth police spokesman Lt. Ralph Swearingin said the arrest charges would be formalized today after they are presented to a district

Lott was easygoing as he said he carried out the shootings to force attention on his family plight. "You have to do a horrible, horrible thing to catch people's attention," he State Bar of Texas records show

Lott was licensed as a Texas attorney in October 1981, said spokeswoman Marcy Goodfleisch. Lott is a graduate of the University of Texas law school.

She said he is still licensed, but is not currently eligible to practice because he became inactive on June 7, 1988 after he quit paying his State Bar dues. Ms. Goodfleisch said that is not unusual for someone who is not practicing.

There is no record of any disciplinary action against Lott by the State Bar, she said.

just walked down the stairs and left." Lott said he walked out of the building and drove off in his car, which was parked at a meter.

Lott's vengeance against the courts stems from his divorce during which he lost custody of his son, Neal: In March, Lott was charged in Peoria, Ili., with aggravated sexual assault of

The charge had been filed by the child's mother, Margo Z. Best, said Peoria Sgt. Phil Benne.

Lott was registered as a lawyer in Lott blamed his grief on the He told the television station he Tarrant County Family Court Hicks - fixed the case for her friend."

ust walked down the stairs and presided over by Judge Maryellen Ms. Hicks said she did not know Hicks. Following the shooting, she was given police protection.

Ms. Hicks said Wednesday she recalled the trial, which she said was about two years ago. She said it lasted approximately three weeks and resulted in a jury awarding custody of the child to Best, also a licensed

"I don't know what was in the mind of the jury. The jury awarded conservatorship of the child to her,"

Lott said on tape Wednesday that he did-the shooting because, "You can't come to people and say, 'Here's my evidence, here's the judge - Maryellen

Ms. Hicks said she did not know either of the parties involved in the divorce case or she would not have

This is the fourth incident at the courthouse since 1986. Three of those situations resulted in fatalities while the other saw a capital murder defendant hold a loaded gun to a judge's head.

The previous incident, on Aug. 1, 1989, an ex-sheriff's deputy took his former girlfriend hostage in a courtroom, then killed himself and her.

However, reaction was mixed

Wednesday whether security needs to be improved.

'You go in a federal courthouse and a calculator will set off a security device," said Joe Shannon, a former prosecutor who was in an adjacent courts building at the time of the

"You can walk into this courtroom with an Uzi under your coat and no one would know the difference. It's ridiculous. And a shooting like this will bring out the copycats."

Judge Farris questioned the necessity of metal detectors and other devices.

"What're you going to do? You want to run and hide? We've got seven or eight doors to that one building. How are you going to block them off?"
