School board endorses city sales tax proposal

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

Hereford's school board joined other local governments Tuesday in unanimously endorsing the proposed half-cent sales tax for economic development on the May 5 municipal election ballot.

Mayor Wes Fisher explained the proposal to the school board members worked together in the past to make and asked for a resolution expressing Hereford grow, and called for the board's support.

Fuston said that many people had community support of the sales tax "We haven't seen any growth plan to make Hereford move forward

Fisher explained the sales tax proceeds could be used for a revolving loan fund for small business (especially existing businesses wanting to expand); venture capital for new businesses; to provide incentives for the creation of new jobs; to issue bonds to pay the cost of certain projects; and other needs.

Fisher said the sales tax plan "is the only way to raise funds, as I see it. We don't currently have incentives to Fisher also explained the Hereford Commission, which was formed a year time director.

Fisher said the city commission ago and received $48,000 each from the city and the county, is not active but still has about $50,000 in the bank to help get the new economic development effort started.

He said that Bud Eades had served "The appointments won't be as a volunteer director for the HAEDC, political," Fisher said. If it passes, the tax would amount to only five cents on a $10 purchase, but would generate about $300,000 a year in economic development funds.

"This could have even more benefit for the school district and the county because a new industry would likely be located outside of the city limits, Fisher said.

HHS students hunteggs

Hereford High School students will be busy with an Easter egg hunt this

That may sound a little elementary for older teenagers, but it's part of a student council project to increase energy awareness.

Eggs are being hidden in second period classes this week, and each egg has energy conservation messages and a prize code taped to its back. The prizes will include Easter baskets and chocolate bunnies.

On Thursday, teachers will be visited by bunnies Cara Printz and Nikki Hutson and given a candy carrot.

On April 20, the student council will observe Earth Day by planting a tree at HHS. All of next week the group will be observing Earth Week and promoting environmental awareness through announcements.

On April 26-28, 10 student council members will attend the state student council convention in Austin and will receive a sweepstakes award as one of the top student councils in the state. Attending will be Printz, Hutson, Richard Perez, Vaavia Rudd, Jeri Ann Parker, Javier Gutierrez, Lindsay Radford, Trisha Teel, Matthew Parker and Susan Emmons.

Local voters support Mattox

Almost 10 percent of the county's registered voters cast ballots in Tuesday's runoff elections in the Democratic and Republican primary, and voters went against state trends in three races.

There were 806 ballots cast in the Democratic primary, including 144 absentee votes. Jim Mattox downed Ann Richards, 491-300, in Deaf Smith County, but Richards edged Mattox in the statewide returns.

In the state treasurer's race, Tom Bowden edged Nikki Van Hightower in the county, 404-336, but Van Hightower won the state runoff.

Morris Overstreet carried the county in the Court of Criminal Appeals Place 1 race, 463-281 over Frank Maloney. Statewide returns weren't comple but Maloney had about 7,000 more votes than did Overstreet with 91 percent of the votes counted.

Local Democrats went with the state in giving Bob Gammage a big win over Ross Sears in the Supreme

After grabbing about 57 percent of Tuesday's vote, Ms. Richards faces millionaire oilman-rancher Clayton Williams, who cruised to the GOP nomination with 61 percent of the primary vote March 13. The winner will succeed Gov. Bill Clements, who did not seek re-election.

Hubble Telescope waits for journey into space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -It should be orbiting 380 miles high today and looking at the heavens, but instead the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope rests inside space shuttle Discovery, shielded from earthly dust and debris.

The shuttle's launch was scrubbed four minutes before liftoff Tuesday because of a malfunctioning power unit, and NASA said the mission will be attempted again in a week or two. The space agency needs the time to replace the unit and recharge the telescope's batteries.

We are certainly concerned about contamination every day that we're here on Earth, and we will do everything we have done in the past to assure that we take care of any problem like that," said Fred Woitalik. a NASA project manager.

Recalculation of damages ordered in Delta 191 suit

AUSTIN (AP) - A federal appeals court has ordered an Austin federal judge to change his calculation of some portions of $6.9 million in damages awarded to the family of a San Antonio man who was killed in the worst airline crash in Texas

The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals told U.S. District Judge James Nowlin that he should recalculate portions of the damages awarded to the family of Michael Douglass, who was killed in the Aug. 2, 1985, crash of Delta Flight 191 at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Douglass and 136 other passengers and a man in a car on the ground were killed when the plane, enroute from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to Los Angeles, crashed while attempting to land during a thunderstorm.

In March, the judge awarded a total of $6.9 million to Pamela Douglass and her three children for the loss of her husband.

Federal authorities have blamed the cash on pilot error, inadequate weather information and insufficient crew training to handle wind shear.

Delta appealed the way some portions of the $6.9 million judgment were calculated after a week-long trial in Austin in November and December of 1989.

The three-judge panel at the U.S. 5th Circuit Court upheld parts of Nowlin's decision in a ruling announced Monday, but it reversed other elements of the judgment and instructed the Austin court to re-figure some of the damages.

Keep eggs safe for Easter

If you are planning a traditional Easter egg hunt in the next week, specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service remind you to follow safe food-handling

Like any other perishable product, eggs should be properly stored and cooked to prevent the growth of potentially harmful bacteria, such as salmonella enteritidis, said nutri- or food coloring. tionist Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten.

While the risk of contracting salmonellosis from raw or undercooked eggs is extremely small, special precautions should be taken when preparing eggs for Easter or any time," Sweeten said. Dr. James Denton, poultry marketing specialist, said cooked eggs do not contain salmonella. However, it's important not to recontaminate eggs after they've been cooked. Here are a few tips for preparing

-Keep eggs refrigerated before preparation, and don't let them sit at room temperature for more than two hours before or after cooking.

On May 20, 1927, Charles Lindbergh took off for Paris from Roosevelt Field on Long Island, N.Y., aboard the "Spirit of St. Louis."

-Eggs should be hard-boiled. Put eggs in cold tap water and bring them to a boil, turn off the heat and allow the eggs to cool for about 10 minutes. Salmonella is destroyed at a temperature of 142 degrees Fahrenheit. When you boil eggs, the temperature exceeds 200 F. -When decorating eggs, use commercially available coloring kits

-Do not hide real eggs. Use plastic eggs or other items. Eggs left out in the heat and moisture will be subject to contamination by bacterial organisms that could lead to food-torne illness.

Sweeten said leftover boiled eggs can be stored in the refrigerator for up to one week and can be used in all kinds of salads.

Eggs provide a wholesome source of such nutrients as protein, vitamin A, riboflavin, vitamin B-12, iron, zinc and phosphorus, she said. The dictary guidelines of most health organizations allow you to eat up to four eggs a week.

"Most nutritionists recommend that we eat at least one ounce of high-quality protein for breakfast each day," Sweeten said. "Poached eggs with hot cross buns would help make a delicious, nutritious breakfast during the Easter holidays.'

Dumas dumps Herd, 9-4, in -4A action

By SAM W. WALLER Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces overcame a four-run inning Tuesday by the Dumas Demons with a four-run fourth, but couldn't get over the hump as the Demons took a 9-4 win at Dumas.

The Herd fell behind when starter Max Mungia (0-4) was called for two balks in the third. With the Demons leading 1-0 with two out, Samuel Strayhorn was awarded the plate on Mungia's first balk. A base on balls and the second balk put runners at second and third, both of which scored when Herd center fielder Matt Bromlow dropped Scott Venable's blooper. Dumas added another run in the inning to take a 5-0 lead.

The balks proved to be the difference in the game as both pitches would have produced the third out of the inning. Troy Wilborn grounded to short on the first balk, but singled when given the second chance. Venable popped up dow the third base line on the second balk.

to that point," Coach T.R. Sartor said. "Max did a good job of getting out of the second inning (bases loaded with one out) with only one run, but those balk calls hurt us."

The Herd cut the margin to a run in their next at bat with the help of three errors by the Demons. Jim Andrews reached on a grounder to short with one out when Dumas first baseman Kevin Apple pulled off the bag too soon. George Jowell got on when second baseman C.P. Thomas booted a ground ball and Max Mungia loaded the bases when he beat out an infield hit.

Belcher blows off Gwynn, Padres 1

AP Sports Writer

Tim Belcher isn't taking credit for a near-miracle. A three-hit shutout built on nothing fancy makes him think an abbreviated spring training didn't help anybody.

'I didn't do a lot of pitching out there," Belcher said after leading the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 1-0 victory Tuesday night over the San Diego Padres. "I threw an occasional good slider and one curveball and one changeup. Outside of that, I was just throwing fastball after fastball.

"I guess the 32-day lockout affected hitters as well because they just missed a couple of pitches," said Belcher, the major league leader in shutouts last year with eight. "I threw a lot of fastballs.

"I was fortunate in that respect. It wasn't overpowering but it was enough. Certainly enough to impress four-time National League batting champion Tony Gwynn.

"When he's on, he gets a good fastball up there and keeps the slider down," Gwynn said. "Then, he's one of the best pitchers in the game."

Elsewhere, it was St. Louis 4, Montreal 2; Cincinnati 3, Houston 2 and Chicago 2, Philadelphia 1. San Francisco's season opener at

Atlanta was rained out and rescheduled today as a twi-night

Belcher, now a winner of eight straight decisions dating to last season,

Asked if he considered taking Belcher out early because of the shortened spring training, Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said, "Not as long as he was throwing like that."

Lasorda said he has learned to 'expect the unexpected. This guy put on a pitching clinic tonight."

Belcher put on several last season when he won 15 games and tied San Diego's Bruce Hurst for the most complete games in the NL with 10.

There was little doubt that the Dodgers, who led the major leagues last season with a 2.95 team ERA, had enough pitching to make a run in the NL West. But offense - the worst in the majors -was another story, so they made some off-season moves.

Juan Samuel in a trade from the New York Mets and Hubie Brooks as a free gent from Montreal.

Both have paid immediate dividends. Brooks beat Hurst with a three-run homer on Monday and Samuel provided the only run Tuesday with a solo shot.

Ron Oester's eighth-inning single off reliever Charley Kerfeld, who surrendered the winning hit for the second straight game, led Cincinnati over Houston.

Loser Juan Agosto walked Todd Benzinger to start the inning and was sacrificed to second by Paul O'Neill. Kerfeld relieved and walked pinchhitter Luis Quinones on four pitches Marvell Wynne's pinch single in the eighth gave Chicago the victory. The hit scored Mark Grace, who reached on an intentional walk and took third as center fielder Sil Campusano's throw nailed Ryne Sandberg at the plate for the second out. Sandberg singled to start the inning against loser Jeff Parrett and took second on a wild pitch.

The game, following a rainout of the opener Monday, started at 36 degrees with a 26 mph wind blowing in. Reliever Les Lancaster was the winner, with Mitch Williams pitching the ninth for the save.

By BEN WALKER AP Baseball Writer

President Bush gave it the old college try and showed off a strong arm, Dave Stieb did even better.

Stieb gave up just two singles in six scoreless innings Tuesday night as the Toronto Blue Jays beat Texas 2-1 before a crowd of 49,673 that included Bush, Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and Commissioner Fay Vincent.

Bush, whose son George W. Bush owns the Rangers, and Mulroney began the evening by throwing out ceremonial first pitches. Bush, a former first baseman at Yale University, also threw a ball about 40 rows up the first deck as he walked off the field.

Then Stieb and three relievers took over, combining on a five-hitter as the Blue Jays won for the 11th time in 14 home openers. The game drew the 41st straight sellout in the SkyDome.

It was quite a night for all of us, what with the President and the Prime Minister here," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said. "On the whole I'm pleased with the way this whole day two. turned out."

In other games, Oakland beat Minnesota 5-3, California stopped Seattle 7-0, Boston downed Detroit 4-2 and Chicago defeated Milwaukee 5-3. The New York at Cleveland opener was rained out.

Walden pork farm produces 2 million pounds of hogs a year

Industry thriving after breakthrough in animal research uncovers grain mold

By ORVILLE HOWARD Special Feature Writer

Bill Walden says happiness is finishing fifty-dollar hogs from 80 percent farrowings.

And right now, he's beating the odds on both counts.

Right smack in the middle of the world's largest cattle feeding center, Walden is finishing out around 2 million pounds of hogs a year from a Deaf Smith County pork farm that's billed as one of the finest in America, if not the world. And the pork he's producing is also the

But don't look for Walden pork in Hereford supermarkets...fine pork from Walden farms is funneled direct to Eastern markets where grocery shoppers pick up larger food tabs than in the West.

"We ship our finished hogs direct to West Point, Miss., where the pork is processed for the Eastern markets," said Walden, who noted that the Bryan food chain takes 100 percent of his production. "Right now, things are looking better for us in the West Texas pork business than it has in 20 years."

Walden was not only speaking of a current bullish run in pork bellies but also of a big break-through in animal health research that recently uncovered a microscopic grain toxin that has plagued Texas hog producers for more than a generation. Livestock researchers at Texas A&M University & University of lowa are still groping for all the answers, but the latest word coming down the pike is that a particular toxin (mold) hazardous to hog health has been narrowed down to about three strains of mold. As a relative point of interest, there are more than 100 types of molds or toxin that frequent feedstuff.

During the past 20 years, the Southwest hog industry was almost devastated by an unknown culprit that caused weaner pigs to die and bred sows to abort. And all to frequent, open breeding stock would HUSTLE ing high-dollar rations without production.

Then in 1989 researchers tied grain toxins directly to the problem, microscopic mold that develops in cracked kernels, grain trash and sometimes tend to hang onto old grain kernels that have been in storage for lengthy periods of time.

This new discovery had turned the Texas hog business completely around," said Walden. "After 20 years in the business, I was ready to throw in the towel last fall, then they (researchers) came up with some answers that surprised us all."

Walden said that during the past six months, he has fed nothing but pre-cleaned grain, no run-of-themill feed as it comes out of storage. The cleaning process eliminates all cracked kernels and trash, leaving only whole kernels protected with nature's own shell. As result, Walden's brood sows are recycling regularly, big litters are coming and the nurseries are filled with feisty

Pork prices are also topping out at the highest levels in more than a decade--above $50 per live hundredweight--with economists predicting good demand in pork through 1990.

"From this point forward, it's going to be a matter of an educational process on the part of the grain industry," said Walden, while reflecting on the recent toxin discovery. "I don't mean just the grain elevators, but down to the very turnrow where the grain is produced. In other words, the combines are going to have to be set fail to cycle regularly for concep- more properly to eliminate trash and tion. This meant seedstock consum- stop cracking the grain--this is where the mold begins." Walden was quick to point out that there are still a lot of unanswered questions on this line of grain toxins--"But we're sure we're on the right track...things have never looked better in the Texas hog business since I started here 20 years ago."

You could have called a hog meeting in Hereford 15 years ago and 30 or 40 people would have showed up," recalled Walden. "You could call one today and not a single person would come, other than the three or four producers left around the Panhandle.'

Other than Walden, the only sizable commercial operations remaining here on the High Plains of Texas is one near Sunnyside and two near Dumas. Twenty years ago, following the establishment of the Jimmy Dean Co., at Plainview, there were no less than 30 commercial hog finishing operations in the Panhandle, with several pinpointed near Hereford.

Following the closing of the Jimmy Dean plant in the 1972, the Texas hog producers, one by one, dropped by the wayside. However, most of the hog failures were due to animal health problems and mis-management rather than the lack of markets--and the unknown factors that killed pigs and aborted sows. The nation's pork industry decades ago recognized the fact that the Texas Panhandle has an ideal climate and environmental conditions for the production of hogs on a large-scale basis.

Early-day pioneers had a pen of hogs on nearly every farmstead and nearly every hamlet boasted a hog buying station. As a matter of fact, most of the nation's early livestock auctions began as either a hog market or horse market. A new-car dealer in downtown Hereford once advertised on big billboards that his agency also bought hogs.

But the glamorous end of Texas livestock was the cattle industry and by the end of World War II, Panhandle pork production had dwindled to a little more than a weekend business for small farmers and traders.

Then in the 1960s came three men who changed the whole image of Panhandle pork production--Euell Liner of Lubbock, Jimmy Dean of Plainview and Sam Thomas of Amarillo. All three played key roles in bringing commercial hog operations to the Panhandle, with much of it centered around Hereford. And one of these newcomers to the hog business in 1970 was Bill Walden, a Deaf Smith County irrigation farmer who elected to feed hogs rather than cattle.

"If you remember back in those days, there were new feedyards and cattle clubs springing up all a-round," recalled Walden. "Almost everyone in the agricultural world around here was feeding something, so I decided to go with hogs since the initial investments weren't quite as much, and besides, I liked to raise hogs. With Jimmy Dean running full blast at Plainview, it looked like a sure thing...but it wasn't."

Walden opened his first farrow-ing barn with 54 sows during the spring of 1970 and at the same time placed his production on the bid list at the Jimmy Dean plant. by this time, the plant was booked full, so Walden was placed on a waiting list. But Walden kept expanding and improving his operations since there other regional markets.

"I managed to get in on the tail end of the Jimmy Dean market," said Walden, as he recalled his early years of growth in pork production.

"We only got a few loads in before he closed in 1972." Then came the closing of other regional pork processors-Glover in Roswell and Amarillo and Wilson in Oklahoma City. But Walden kept reaching farther and father for live markets-- and kept expanding.

The economically tough times of the 1980s were devastating to American agriculture, but you might say the decade was almost total disaster to the Southwest pork business. Near record-low prices, a slump in demand and a high gestation mortality rate hit Texas pork producers on the bottomline.

"We (industry) could never figure out why we were having these health problems here in the Southwest and not in other parts of the country, such as the Midwest or in the South,' said Walden. "Our climate for raising hogs is absolutely ideal, yet we still had these health problems...you know, problems that didn't have any answers.

Walden told how he spent thousands of dollars trying out new medical remedies and vaccines and tried every conceivable ration in the book: "Last fall, I had finally come to my wits end and was about ready to close up when the researchers came up with the toxin discovery."

Today, the Walden hog farm is a showplace for the industry, a 500sow operation that sends out around 150 head of finished porkers a week to processing plants in the South. This is a turnkey unit from pig-topork--no feeder stock is bought, no feeder stock is sold. Every grain-finished animal that leaves Walden farms was born on Walden farms. There are no middle-men on this Deaf Smith County operation...oneman backstopped with a small workforce. Two key employees, Lorenzo and Alfredo Amina, have been with Walden for 13 years.

A modern feedmill stands at the hub of the Walden production circle, with farrowing barns, nurseries and finishing pens strategically aligned to provide the most efficient feeding system possible. All farrowing barns and nurseries are climate controlled units, having a minimum of window and door space.

One of his newest finishing barns is among the finest in the industry, now serving as a pattern for many new hog units being built in old hog-producing areas of Colorado and the Midwest. This 200-by-36 foot building will hold 800 grown butcher hogs with every pen fitted with complete automatic watering and feeding systems. The concreteslatted flooring allows all waste to sift to an underground system that is water-flushed periodically 24 hours a day. The flush empties into a nearby lagoon which in turn is pumped onto adjacent fields for "My son and I and our regular hired hands built this entire unit and got it done for about one-third of what a contractor would have charged," said Walden. "Wayne Phillips over at McCaslin Lumber in Hereford figured out the struss work and we went from there."

Walden has five farrowing barns, with 100 sows to the barn-"We try to keep 100 sows farrowing at a time then wean the pigs at 3 1/2 to 4 weeks of age."

Bill Walden...started with 54 sows in 1970 At the present time, he is averaging about 2.2 litters a year from each sow, and weaning over eight in the pork industry-consolidation pigs to the litter. In an effort to keep the bred sows in prime physical condition, he has an ultra-modern gestation barn which is nothing less outlets for Texas Panhandle producthan a modern maternity ward for ers, the Mississippi market 1,000 the swine world. Each nursery barn measures 25-by 64 feet, with about 320 pigs to the barn. In an effort to cut down on crowding, the nursery barns are so designed to allow about 15 pigs per pen, with each pen equipped with fans, overhead heaters, automatic waters and feeders. Baby pigs have into the Hereford area and haul baby rations, while growing pigs Texas hogs back to Mississippi. The have growing rations--and finishing back-haul situation makes the choates have finishing rations. Walden is pretty closed-mouth about his various rations, other than that most pre-mix is handled by the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, Farr Feeds in Hereford, with some thus allowing a little more spread on pellet formulas coming from Acco the investment end. Feeds in Amarillo. His basic protein "We were at a national seminar

'We feed all of our own homegrown mile then buy the rest from the local elevators," said Walden. "As a matter of fact, I started out in the hog business back in 1970 to just feed the milo that we raised, but then gradually expanded."

On the breeding end of the business, Walden buys all of his boars from the DeKalb breeding farms near Plains, KS., generally using a new animal for only about one year. On the otherside of the breeding business, however, sows frequently have a production longevity of five to six years. All Walden boars have been scientifically-crossed to provide the maximum in pork production, with the original crossing having been developed by Euell Liner at Lubbock back in the 1960s.

Walden raises all of his own sows which are a cross of Hampshire, Yorkshire and Duroc--Hampshires for muscling, Yorks for color and Duroc for mild temperament.

As a matter of record, DeKalb Swine Breeders in the mid-1970s purchased Lubbock Swine Breeders and merged the two into one breeding operation. The Lubbock unit. originally headquartered near Slaton, was started by Liner and Roy Poage who were also the first to originate confinement pig production in West Texas. Many of their trait selections are still being used today by DeKalb. During this time, the firm developed a hybrid boar line that is regarded by Walden as the best in the business..."We maintain the modem-day traits in boars through DeKalb."

The Walden hog operation is perhaps a prime example of changes in both, production end and the packing end. At the present time, there are two major packing house miles to the east and the California market 1,000 miles to the west.

The Mississippi market, however better serves the Texas panhandle pork group due to local demand of lightweight southern calves for the commercial cattle feeders. Bryan Food trucks haul Mississippi calves difference. Due to the high quality of pork, Walden gets a premium over the open prices quoted through source includes milo and soybean on pork production in Dallas a few days ago and I don't really like what I see coming but there's not much I can do about it," said Walden, as he spoke of national consolidation in pork packers. "It's happening in the beef business and it's happening in the pork business." As a recent example of consolidation, Farmstead Foods, a pork processor and packer at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, last week announced it was closing.

On the nation's production side, National Farms headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., has been the largest pork producer for a number of years with a 25,000-sow operation in Iowa nd at the present time is completing a second 5,000-sow operation east of Greeley, Colo., With about 97 million head of hogs on hand in the U.S., pork has experienced a recent surge in consumption as a result of favorable research on cholesterol Lean pork has about the same cholesterol count as chicken without the skin. In 1989, Americans purchased $7 billion more pork than in 1988.

Though promotional programs, such as special labelings as the "other white meat" and "protein power," the breeders have been the key to increased consumption as a result of scientific selection in excellent production traits. Or, simply put, fine pork begins in the farrowing crates at Walden farms. Walden and his son Cory, farm 1300 acres of irrigated cropland in a diversified program of wheat, milo, corn and sugar beets. Cory heads up the farming end while Walden handles the hogs. Cory lives on the

Born in Amherst to Mr. and Mrs. Earnest William Walden in 1930, walden was 3 when his parents moved to Olton to take up farming. HOwever, his Western heritage dates back to 1910 when his grandfather, Dr. William Phybus Walden and family, migrated from Alabama to Eastern New Mexico to practice medicine at Eunice. He was the first medical doctor to practice in this region of New Mexico, and when he died a few years later, his wife took up the practice and has went down in historical archives as being New Mexico's first "Lady Doctor." Walden's father had a cattle operation in eastern New Mexico before moving to Amherst following the killer blizzard of 1917.

Walden's maternal grandfather, Church Edgin, built the first hard-ware store in Amherst, a town which actually preceded the county seat of Littlefield. Other than being a farmer, Walden's father was also a carpenter and figured prominently in Pampa's oil boom days.

One of four sons in the Walden family, Bill Walden graduated from Olton High School in 1948. College studies at Texas Tech University at Lubbock was interrupted in 1951 by the Korean Conflict, and following four years in the U.S. Navy, Walden returned to Tech where he graduated with a degree in agronomy.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Truitt Sides of Olton, Walden's wife, Norma, was also reared in the Olton Community, a farm town 30 miles west of Plainview where the two eventually established a family farm, with cotton being one of the leading crops.

"I was watching the big boom going on over here at Hereford and bought my first farm in Deaf Smith County in 1961 but we didn't decide to move to Hereford until 1965," said Walden. "With all of the cattle feeding going on around Hereford, I decided to quit raising cotton at Olton and move to Hereford to raise milo."

The Waldens have four children--Cory, who lives on a farm about 10 miles from the Walden Hog Farm; Debra of Hereford and Renee' and Karen, both of Amarillo. Through the years, the Waldens have made their home in the city of Hereford rather than on the farm. However, it's a rare sunrise that doesn't find Walden checking his pig pens 10 miles northeast of Hereford.

Walden currently serves on the board of Texas Pork Producers Association and is chairman of the Texas Farm bureau Swine Advisory committee and Chairman of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service Livestock Committee. He has also served on Deaf Smith County Soil Conservation Service Committees. Walden has served on the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau board of directors for 22 years, the longest such post ever held on the county board.

Through the years, Walden has worked closely with the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and is a walking testimonial for the city of Hereford.

"I don't think you can find a better place on Earth to live and raise a family than Hereford, Texas--and the land...I just love it."

Entrepreneurs say: Stay out of the way!

NEW YORK (AP) - What is the "Firms are best at producing goods eatest contribution government can and services." reatest contribution government can make to entrepreneurship?

"Keep out of the way and don't impede the work," says William Dunkelberg.

His response might seem flip, but it isn't. It is the considered judgment of an economist, professor and business school dean who has spent many hours analyzing the needs of small-business people.

Dunkelberg, head of Temple University's School of Business and Management, also advises the National Management, also advises the National Federation of Independent Business, and in that role listens to hundreds of small-business opinions each month.

What he sees and hears is that small-business people have all they can do just to remain solvent, not just because of competition but because of government. To them, government has become oppressive.

To Dunkelberg, one of the amazing things about these amazing people is that, left to do their jobs, they benefit everyone. They provide jobs, fill marketplace needs and pay taxes. Their efforts help support government.

In some respects, government recognizes their efforts and strives to help them. More often, in Dunkelberg's view, it imposes burdens on them in the form of social programs and tax collectors, jobs they aren't trained to do.

The Community: Part 2

What is a community?

A community is a group of people who have something in common, shared by all. In our case, it's that we live in the same area. Our children go to school together. We attend the same churches, yell at the same ball games, play dominoes at the same senior center or domino hall.

Our taxes go into the same pot, to provide us with water systems, fire and police protection, roads, schools and hospitals. We share the same wide open spaces, the beautiful sunsets, the clear open skies at night. We cherish the small town atmosphere.

Most of us have chosen to live here even though we may have originally come from some distant place. Our community grows on you. The longer you stay, the harder it is to leave. Here we can raise our kids and know our neighbor, grow our gardens, or keep a horse.

The Hereford Brand is a vital part of this community. We read the local paper for news we can't get anywhere else, for ads we won't see anywhere else. The Brand feels the pulse of ourcommunity--city and county commissions, school board, hospital, senior citizens, school kids. It gives us honor rolls, lunch menus, birth announcements, weddings, ball games, chili suppers and church events. When we read the local newspaper, we see ourselves, our community, reflected.

If the local newspaper didn't tell us those things, nobody would. Not the Globe-News, not the Avalanche-Journal, not channels 4, 7 or 10. This isn't their community, it's ours. The local paper is not the center of the community. You are. But every community needs a good local newspaper.

The new lab has 5,000 square feet of well-planned space. Auxiliary rooms are designed to make daily research chores less tedious. These include a walk-in cold room to keep stable temperature, a well-equipped dark room and even a dishwasher. A beautifully designed and executed atrium marks the entrance to the lab area. The high-tech chemistry lab for the isolation, purification and crystallization of the next-generation molecules which will be subjected to x-ray and computer analyses is still being completed.

The Research Institute was made possible by a reoccurring annual grant given to the Harrington Cancer Center. The 1988 grant from the Harrington Foundation was the latest in a 10-year history of support for the Cancer Center by the foun-

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) -Nearly 50 years ago, broadcaster Eric Sevareid saw Ronald Reagan on a Warner Bros. movie lot and immediately identified him as "Mr.

America." It was 1941, and as a reporter for then fledgling CBS News, Sevareid also met Warner Bros. stars like Gary Cooper and Marlene Dietrich. But Reagan most impressed him, Sevareid recalled Monday night in a speech at Central Missouri State University.

"You could see immediately he was the Eagle Scout, Mr. America,' Sevareid said.

In the White House, 40 years later, Reagan's appeal "did prove to be almost irresistible for quite some time," Sevareid said, in remarks concerning the relationship between the presidency and the press.

"I think he did make most people feel better," although by his second term Reagan had nothing new to offer, Sevareid said.

Pioneer Round-Up planned

The 62nd Pioneer Round-up is additional information may be obtained scheduled for Saturday, May 19, and by contacting Doyle, 806-293-3635 or the 31st pioneer woman of the area 293-4979. will be honored.

Doyle, chairman of the program committee. The Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club is the sponsoring organization of the Pioneer Round-Up.

Entry blanks are available to individuals, civic clubs, women's clubs and organizations in Plainview and surrounding areas. All entries must be signed by the organization or individual who is submitting the letter of nomination and must state whether or not she would be able to attend the Round-Up, if selected. The nominee must have been a pioneer resident of the High Plains and be at least 80 years of age. This woman should be one of the early settlers to make her home on the Plains and have a true "pioneer" spirit. A short biography of the nominee must be submitted, including her outstanding contributions to the home, church, community and general welfare of her fellowman.

A panel of judges will select the winner based on information submitted. The number of times a person is nominated will have no effect on the selection of the honoree. All entries must be postmarked no later than May 9, 1990. Entry blanks and

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last July, my husband decided he was in love with his best friend's ex-wife and asked for a divorce. The divorce was final Oct. 12. On Oct. 20, they were married. The following morning, I had a heart attack. (I found out that it happens to 40-year-old women, as well as 65-year-old men.)

Since then my life has taken a 360 degree turn. I no longer smoke. I joined Weight Watchers and lost 58 pounds. I watch my salt, cholesterol and fat intake and exercise daily. How do I feel? Wonderful! For the first time in my life, I know what good health is.

It's tough to admit, but I owe this newfound happiness to my exhusband who dumped me. What I thought was the worst tragedy of my life turned out to be a blessing. I'll sign this -- Heart Smart in Oregon

DEAR HEART: Many years ago, I told a reader, "When life hands you a lemon, make lemonade." I've heard that line dozens of times since, but you are the best example of someone who

Coffee planned Saturday

A coffee will honor Jean Chapman Burton of Harlow, Essex, England, Hereford's first American Field Service exchange student in 1955, from 10 a.m. until noon Saturday, April 14, at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

The public is invited to attend the event which is being hosted by the Hereford High School graduating class of 1955.

Jean and her husband, Chris, are visiting the United States for seven weeks as part of their research project on "Stress in Clergy Families." The couple will be guests of Margaret Ann Durham, who taught at HHS during Jean's year here.

Jean Burton is a counselor and family therapist for Family Care, a voluntary agency run by the Episcopal church and her husband is an Episcopal minister in charge of a parish of 30,000.

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - Former Beatle Paul McCartney, playing on the 22nd anniversary of the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., criticized Arizona for not having a state holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader.

The Arizona Legislature passed a bill in September for a King Day, but opponents gathered enough signatures to stall the holiday until after a referendum in November.

"I thought that was really dumb," McCartney said at a news conference Wednesday. "That was a very good opportunity to make a nation proud of one man. He was a great guy. It looked a bit silly for when one state held out against it."

did it! My hat is off to you, lady.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you have heard about almost everything that can happen to humanity, I come to you with a rather unusual problem.

I attend old-time Sunday afternoon dances in this rather small town and have a great time dancing the polka, Club, 7 p.m. waltz and fox trot. I always go single and pick dancing partners from the group that shows up.

Recently, I picked a rather attractive, heavyset lady who was wearing a tight foundation garment. Apparently, there were actually two garments, a top and a bottom. Between the garments was a ridge of fat that bulged where I would ordinarily place my right hand when dancing.

I didn't want to place my hand too low, because it would then be on her rump and that might have prompted noon. a stomp on the foot or worse. I was unable to place my hand higher than the ridge of fat because my arthritis has imposed severe limits, and it is painful to raise my right arm. So, dear Ann, I placed my hand over it with one a.m. finger on one side of the ridge and another finger on the other side. Was this proper? I'd like your opinion, in case we dance again. I am 80 years old and don't want to mess up this late in life. Thanks for your counsel. --W.H.E., Franklin, Minn.

DEAR W.H.E.: You mess up? No way. You sound like a perfect gentleman who is very resourceful and can take care of himself no matter what. You shouldn't be asking for advise. You should be giving it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed that wonderful quote from Edmund Burke, "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing.

I can't resist the temptation to add these words from a speech by William Faulkner when his daughter, Jill, graduated from high school: "Never be afraid to raise your voice for honesty and truth and compassion against injustice and lying and greed.

If people all over the world, in thousands of rooms like this one, would do this, it would change the earth." -- A.H.P., Memphis

DEAR MEMPHIS: Beautiful, especially now, when there seems to be so much injustice, lying and greed around. I hope the '90s will be better than the '80s, which was a moneycrazed, scandal-riddled decade that made Americans ashamed.

Gem of the Day: (Credit Charles Kuralt): Thanks to the interstate highway system, it is now possible to travel from coast to coast without seeing anything.

Is that Ann Landers column you clipped years ago yellow with age? HOMESTEAD EXEMPTIONS

MAY LOWER YOUR HOME'S PROPERTY TAXES

the property taxes on your home by lowering its taxable value. For example, if your home is valued at $50,000 and you receive a $5,000 homestead exemption, your home will be taxed as if it were worth only $45,000.

You qualify for a homestead exemption if you owned your home on January 1 and used it as your primary residence on that date. It doesn't matter whether your home is a house, a condominium, or a mobile home.

Exemptions are available to all homeowners to lower their school taxes. Additional exemptions are available to homeowners who are disabled or age 65 and over. And, if you receive the over-65 exemption, you also qualify for a ceiling on school taxes. Other exemptions may be offered to homeowners by school districts, counties, cities, and special districts.

Who should apply? If you received a homestead exemption on your home in 1989, you won't need to appraiser requires it. If you became 65 or disabled before January 1, file a new application to receive the additional exemptions.

A homestead exemption lowers re-apply for 1990 unless your chief

If you haven't received an exemption on your present home, or if you've moved to a new home, make a new application for 1990. File your homestead exemption with your local appraisal office at the address shown below. The last day to file for applications is April 30, 1990. Contact your appraisal district before then if you need more time to file. For more information, get a free copy of the pamphlet, Taxpayers' Rights, Remedies, Responsibilities,

RENDER YOUR PROPERTY

A rendition is a report to the appraisal district that lists all the taxable property you own or control on January 1, 1990. The form is available at your local appraisal district or you may draft a similar

You must file a rendition if you own tangible personal property used to produce income—such as the inventory and equipment used by a business.

The appraisal district may require any taxpayer to file a rendition by sending the taxpayer a written notice and a rendition form.

The advantages of filing a ren-

· You give your opinion of your property's value. If the appraisal district wants a higher value for your property, it must notify you in writing of the higher value and explain how you can protest that value to the appraisal review board. You record your correct mailing address so your tax bills will go to the right address. If your bill is mailed to the wrong address, the law still holds you responsible for paying your taxes on time or paying extra charges for late payments. You can also file a report of decreased value, to notify the appraisal district of significant depreciation to your property in 1989. The district will look at your property before assigning a value in 1990. The last day for filing or postmarking 1990 renditions is Monday, April 2. You can get an extra 30 days if you ask for it in writing before the April 2 deadline.

MAY LOWER THE PROPERTY TAXES ON YOUR FARM, RANCH, OR TIMBERLAND

Texas law provides farmers and ranchers, and timber growers with a way to lower their property taxes, known as productivity appraisal.

If you qualify, your agricultural land will be taxed on its capacity to produce crops, livestock, or timber, instead of its value on the real estate market. Productivity appraisal can lower the taxable value of your land, and lower your property taxes as a result.

If your land has never received productivity appraisal, you must apply to the appraisal district no later than Monday, April 30, to get tax benefits for 1990. If you miss this deadline, you may still be able to apply, but you will pay a penalty. Check with your appraisal district If your land already receives agricultural or timber appraisal, you normally don't need to reapply unless the chief appraiser requires you to. If an annual application is required, the appraisal district will notify you by mail. For more information and appli-
