Plans For Small Wing On Hospital Get County Okay

County Commissioners voted in a special meeting Friday morning to call for bids to construct a small wing on Deaf Smith County Hospital.

Acting upon a recommendation of the County Hospital Board, the Commissioners hired Oscar A. Schilling of Amarillo as architect for the project and authorized advertising for bids.

The bids will be opened at 10:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 22.

Cost of the project is estimated to be about $53,000, which does not include paving, additional alternates which will be asked in the bids, or the architect's fee.

Members of the hospital board told the Commission that they would spend money put in reserve for such a purpose for about one-half the construction cost. The county will pay the remainder, either out of general funds or issuance of time warrants. No bond issue will be required for the construction.

It is planned that the small wing will be built east from the present building, extending generally from the present east entrance.

Included will be a new emergency treatment room, administrative office, admissions office, doctors' lounge and library, lobby and surgical waiting room. Base bid proposal will be for brick exterior, in the same color and style as the present hospital. The base bid also will call for asphalt tile floors, plaster-was and acoustical tile ceiling.

The entrance will be changed to provide a separate entrance for emergency cases. The present administration office and part of the record room will be converted into the record room. The remainder of the record room will become the surgical waiting room.

Schilling explained to the court that the present surgical corridor will be freed of traffic from outside, thus helping maintain sterile conditions. The present emergency room will become a second operating and surgical room.

Under the base bid, heating will be by forced air. Additional alternates to the base bid will call for cost of putting a basement under the new structure, for terrazzo flooring in the corridor and waiting room. Terrazzo will be installed in the emergency room.

Schilling said that a basement under the wing would provide a large storage area and might also be used as a tornado shelter, but that it would not be a fall-

Officers Continue Finding Loot From Area Burglaries

Stolen property taken by three suspected burglars began dwindling as law enforcement officers from counties throughout the Texas Panhandle and several New Mexico counties began identifying the articles.

In one instance, as much as $400 worth of stolen clothing was picked up by officers from a New Mexico city. The clothing was allegedly taken from a parked automobile.

Name tags and laundry marks in the clothing had not been removed when the clothing was discovered hanging in a closet in the home where the three suspects lived, according to Lowell Sharp, Deaf Smith County Sheriff.

As the investigation continued, Sharp said, other articles were found in the home of 204 N. 25 Mile Ave.

An estimated four or five trips was made to the residence in the last two days, he commented.

No value has been placed on the assortment of property ranging from screwdrivers to tape recorders and from vaccinating needles to an expensive 16 mm. movie camera.

If a total value could be placed on the loot taken during the burglaries, it would probbly reach close to $5000.

During the investigation, some of the stolen goods were discovered under the Christmas tree wrapped as gifts. Other articles allegedly taken by the trio had been given away as presents, it was learned.

Implicated in the series of burglaries are two Hereford men and a 16-year-old youth. They are L. D. Locke, 21, Jackie Dickerson, 24, and Wayne Dickerson, 16.

Stolen Pickup Found In County

A pickup truck found abandoned on a lonely country road in Deaf Smith County was identified early Friday morning as one that had been stolen in Clovis, N. M., on Dec. 19, according to Ed Roberson, deputy sheriff.

Two tires and wheels as well as the spare had been stripped from the vehicle, said Roberson. A radio or some other accessory had also been taken from a mounting under the dash.

The spot where the pickup was parked was about seven miles north of Black, just barely inside the county.

The owner was contacted through the sheriff's office in Clovis. The truck was towed to Friona where the owner will pick it up.

Damage Heavy In Crash Here

Two automobiles were heavily damaged as the result of a collision at the intersection of Knight and Catalpa streets shortly after noon Thursday, according to the Hereford Police Department.

Involved in the accident was a 1953 model station wagon, driven by Victor G. Cantu, 16, of Summerfield, and a 1953 model sedan, driven by Herman Gaines, 20, 208 Catalpa.

Both vehicles are reported to have entered the intersection at about the same time as both drivers stated that "they did not see each other," according to the report. The point of impact was approximately in the center of the intersection.

Damage to the left front of the Cantu vehicle was placed at $325 with an estimated $175 worth of damage being done to the front end of the Gaines sedan.

Both drivers were cited for traffic violations, according to the police report.

County Farmers Get Added Bonus In Mild Weather

Deaf Smith County farmers have received an added bonus this week as the weather before Christmas has continued to be dry and mild.

All crops in the county are more than half harvested with less than an estimated five percent of the grain sorghum remaining in the fields.

The milo harvest was described as "pretty well over with" by one grain elevator operator. All farmers are finishing up and most should be through by the first of the year.

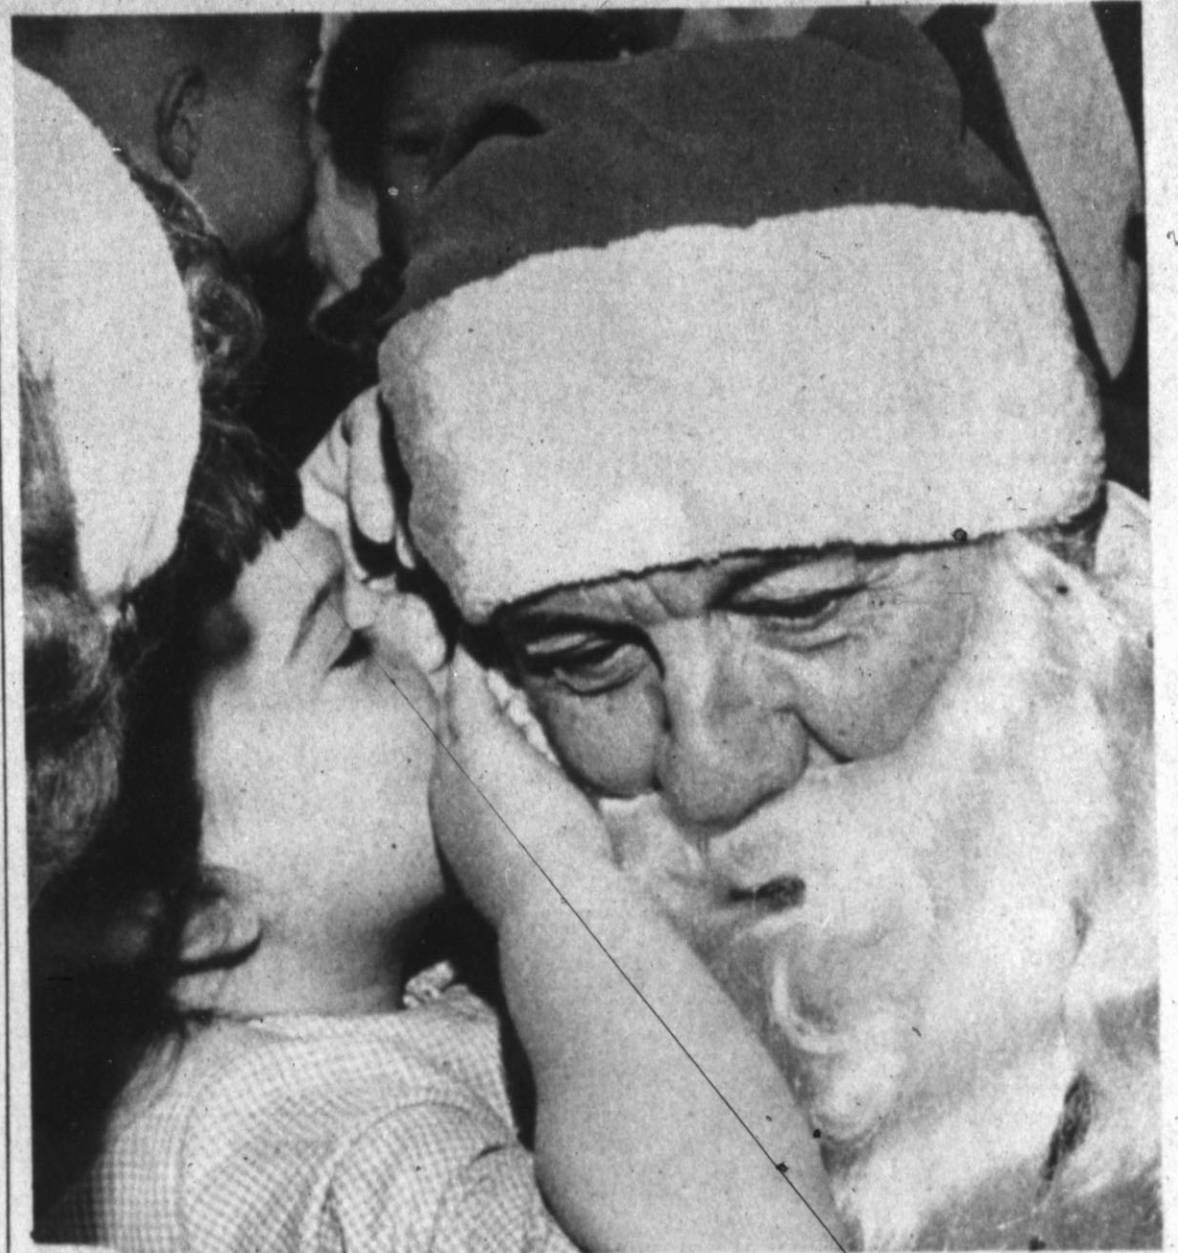

The grain quality is good despite the bad weather which has plagued the county during November and early December. However, the quantity harvested is down.

As the grain elevator operator pointed out, any bad weather will hurt the quantity of grain harvested.

Most of the crop damage from the weather has been done to the 1961 cotton crop with the quality placed somewhat below normal by area ginners.

However, an above average yield throughout the county and slightly higher prices are making up for the lowered quality. The ginners attributed the damage to a cool summer and a wet, hard freeze in the fall before stripping could begin.

Herd Enters Caprock Meet After Losing To Plainview

Hereford will enter the annual Caprock Holiday Invitational Basketball tournament during the holidays, only basketball action the Whitefaces have scheduled.

The Herd is scheduled to open its action at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 28, against Vernon. Also in the lower half of the eight-team bracket for AAA and AAAA schools are Tom S. Lubbock High and Lamesa.

Winners will play at 4 p.m. Friday, while the losers play in the consolation semi-finals at 2 p.m. Saturday. Consolation finals are scheduled for 5 p.m. Saturday and the championship game at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

In the top half of the bracket, Monterey faces Snyder in the first round while Midland takes on Levelland.

Also going on at the same time during the four-day meet will be an eight-team tourney for Class A and AA schools. Featured in the lower tourney will be Monterey "B," Abernathy, McAdoo, Lockney, Tom S. Lubbock "B," Dimmitt, Post and Denver City.

In action before a small crowd here Friday night, Hereford saw its last-quarter rally fall as Plainview came through with a 62-54 victory. It was win number ten for the Bulldogs, compared with two losses. For Hereford, it was the seventh loss to AAAA schools, with four victories.

Hereford found the Bulldogs too tough until the last quarter, when it pulled up to a tie twice, the last with just 1:40 left in the game. But the loss of two players on fouls and some breaks by Plainview gave them the openings they needed to pull away.

The lead rocked back and forth as the game started, with Hereford pulling out to a 13-10 lead. But the Bulldogs began to hit and had an 18-14 margin as the quarter ended.

It was more of the same in the second stanza as Plainview hit from all parts of the court, moving to a substantial 28-17 lead at one point before Randy Dowell found the range and narrowed the gap.

But Plainview had a 31-24 margin as the half ended. A strong scoring surge by Jerry Curtisinger in the third period kept Hereford in the game. Jerry hit a field goal and six free throws in the period as the Whitefaces got within six points with less than three minutes left in the quarter.

But again Plainview came through with the vital shots to lead 48-39 going into the last eight minutes. (Continued on Page 12)

THE NATIVITY SCENE depicting the true meaning of Christmas has been staged by two different groups in Hereford this week. Members of the Saint Thomas Episcopal Church presented their "living nativity" scene Thursday and Friday nights, using a live donkey and sheep. It was presented from 7 until 9 each night. At right, young people from the First Methodist Church staged a similar scene on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights from 6 to 7:30. Both attracted large crowds of spectators. (Staff Photos)

Stanton Ninth Claims Win, Loss At Tulia

"GET BACK!" warns Hereford's Mack Canler (20), as Harry Lisle (20) of the Canyon Eagles started toward the ball during action at Canyon Tuesday night. After downing the Eagles 55-48, the Herd was slated to play host to the Plainview Bulldogs Friday and enter the Caprock Tourney at Lubbock Tuesday-Thursday this week. (Staff Photo)

Keeping their record even, the Stanton ninth grade Dogies claimed both defeat and victory in a double-header with the Tulia Hornets.

Giving Stanton a 5-5 season mark, the Dogies lost 25-29 in the first game, before coming back to wage a 68-57 war on the Tulia mainstring.

Stanton holds title to an even 4-4 mark in non-conference play, and a 1-1 score in Conference competition. The Dogies take off until Jan. 4, when they play host to Littlefield Junior High in their third loop tilt.

In the first game of the night, the Dogies met a 25-29 defeat. Limited to only two points in the second quarter, the Dogies slipped behind with a 10-11 reading.

Dogies Kenney Justice and Dan Thomas paced Stanton scoring with eight and six points respectively. Larry Minks contributed four, while Gil Sims sank three, and Jerry McCaslin and Stan Sigman each chalked up field goals. In the third round, the Dogies regained the lead with a 15-13 mark. Tulia racked up 16 points to gain their final lead and victory.

It was Stanton all the way as the Dogies claimed a 68-57 victory over the Tulia Hornets. Sinking 23 points in the first quarter, the Dogies took a 12-point edge which was the difference throughout the remainder of the point-matching thriller.

Johnny Dowd and Frank Cain had their best nights of the season. Once again the duet led Dogie scoring. Dowd popped the net for 32 points, although limited to only three in the second round.

Cain poured in 20 points, getting 18 from the field. Robert Strange also earned double figures with 10 points. Following their first quarter rampage, the Dogies met Tulia on an even basis the rest of the game.

Both teams garnered 13 in the second round, with the Hornets netting 15 and Stanton 13 in the third quarter. Getting the cords hot again, Hereford made 19 in the final round, as Tulia countered with 18.

Coached by Alex Glass, the Dogies have averaged 47 points per game in their first ten outings, while opponents averaged only slightly under 38 points.

Stanton has a total of 468 points, while having only 376 scored against the Dogies.

REMEMBER WHEN?

BY CHARLIE SEEDS
Few years have held as many moments of tragedy, of awe, and of hope as this one. In May of that year, Adolph Hitler died by his own hand, on the eve of Allied victory in Europe.

Then came V-E Day, and the hysteria celebrations as we realized that peace was at last within our grasp. The attention of Americans turned fully toward the Pacific. From there, in August, came news that overshadowed everything else. An atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima, its giant mushrooming cloud of destruction announcing a change in the destiny of the world.

Then came V-J day... the end of the war in the Far East, and peace throughout the world. In San Francisco, representatives of the world's nations met in joint session, where they struggled to give birth to an idea which would shape the course of future world peace and harmony among nations. Here, that year, the United Nations was born.

Remember the year? Americans began to look ahead to "normal times" that year... times when, for instance, they could buy a new car when they wanted to. One thing car owners had learned... the importance of auto service, during the years the old car had to be kept going.

The year was 1945. Dependable service is always important to a car owner... and we have complete facilities to give the finest in service, with the right parts and accessories. Put your car in the hands of the skilled mechanics at CHARLIE SEEDS MOTOR Co. Inc., W. Hwy. 60 at Miles, Phone EM 4-2727.

La Plata Club Studies Faith

The La Plata Study Club met Tuesday, Dec. 19, in the home of Mrs. Viola Chisholm for the regularly scheduled meeting. Mrs. Raymond White, president, presided at the business meeting.

Each member brought canned food for the local welfare distribution and clothing for the mental hospital in Wichita Falls. Each member also contributed two dollars for the hospital being built at the labor camp in Hereford.

Mrs. Viola Chisholm presented the program on "Faith." She defined faith as the assurance of things hoped for. Faith is a brace against pressures. There are three stages of faith: faith of childhood (an acceptance without question; questioning faith (asking for reasons for everything); and mature faith (accepting the fact that someone or thing is there even if it can't be explained). She gave several examples of faith. She stated that "faith is something bigger than oneself."

Members present were Mesdames Urlin Streu, Jay Boston, Elmer Patterson, A. J. Schroeter, Jack Brown, Buddy Hutson, T. E. Seigler, Leroy Aven, Joel Treadwell, Joe Smith, J. M. Madison, Raymond White, Clint Formby, Viola Chisholm, Bill Thompson and Lloyd McGee.

ART AMONG DIRTY CLOTHES

LONDON (AP) — The newest thing in art galleries is a laundrette in a suburb of London. The owner, Michael Osterwell, 29, is a painter and 30 of his canvasses hang between the bottles of bleach and the washing powders.

"People come from miles around to see them," he said proudly. "They bring their washing with them, too."

Osterwell said European artists have heard about his exhibition and keep asking him for wall space.

"I'm only too happy to oblige, but there are so many of them that I'm going to have a waiting list," he said.

Each show will last two weeks.

A New Home For Christmas

BY JEAN ROBERSON
 "No! No! It can't be true!" Tammy hysterically sobbed. "I'm sorry but I'm afraid it is." Sadly yet calmly Mrs. Loerwald admitted. She didn't know the children, yet she felt a motherly instinct toward these poor wretched orphans especially since it was near Christmas. Tammy was now crying as if her heart would break. Trying to comfort her, the gentle woman turned toward Tim, the next oldest, for help, but he was sitting with little Tommy, trying to console the two-year-old without also crying. Big brother Terry, 14, was holding the twins Toni and Tina, on his lap. They were only four and, like Tommy, were crying although they didn't understand it. The kindly woman who was head matron of the orphanage came just then. "I'm sorry, Mrs. Loerwald but your superiors at the welfare office told me to take these children with me," Miss Lyons apologized, although she was not sorry to be taking these children with her. "Where are we going? Where is Mama?" Tina was upset now. "You're going to stay in a big house with lots of children to play with you," Mrs. Loerwald explained. "And your mama has gone to a beautiful place where you'll meet her some day."

"Will we get to stay together?" nine-year-old Tammy questioned. "Yes, but the boys will get to stay in one part and you girls will stay in other bedrooms," Miss Lyons explained. Next the children were orphans; their father had died in a laboratory explosion a few months before. Then in early December, their mother had been in a tragic wreck which had claimed her life. Friends and the welfare office had been caring for the children. The orphanage had been phoned and plans were made for their arrival.

Jean Roberson

The children went upstairs to pack, dreading it all the while. "All ready?" Miss Lyons asked. "Yes, ma'am," Terry replied. "Now wipe those tears away and come along," she said, taking the twins in her arms. "What will happen to the house and furniture?" Tim wanted to know. "I think they will be sold and the money put in the bank for any time when you will need it," she remarked. They arrived at the orphanage about five o'clock. "I'll show you to your rooms," Miss Lyons offered. To their surprise, they had attractive bedrooms with pretty furniture. The girls shared a large room and the boys had a room to themselves, too. "Supper at six, so don't be late!" the cheerful matron remarked. By six o'clock, they were comfortably settled. Entering the dining hall, each soon found friends his own age. After grace, the hall was filled with gay chatter and laughter. Winking across the table, the new arrivals assured each other that they were having a wonderful time. The next morning the halls were filled with proud "old-timers" showing the newcomers around. "But this room you must never enter," all were told. All of school age went to the (Continued on page 2)

Welcoming The New Neighbors

BY DENNIS LATHAM
 It was a very dreary December afternoon when the Wilsons noticed their new neighbors moving in across the street. "I wonder who our neighbors are?" asked Bob very curious to know. "I believe I will go over that way and find out." "Don't be too long," replied his mother, "supper will be ready in a few minutes." Walking across the street, Bob stuck in his shirt tail. He was hoping to find someone his own age. "Hi, my name is Bob Wilson, and I live over there," said Bob pointing to the beautiful white house across the street. "Hello," answered a dark but cute girl, "my name is Kathy Daniels. We are new in your town and we don't know a single person, except you. We moved here from a small town in Oregon. I have an older brother who is twelve, and his name is Tommy. Oh, I forgot I am just eleven. Would you like to meet Tommy?" "Sure, I am twelve, too," answered Bob smiling. Kathy left the yard, but returned soon with a boy a little taller than she. "Hi, I'm Tommy Daniels," called out the boy. "Hello, I'm Bob Wilson from across the street. Boy, this is going to be a great Christmas, new neighbors and everything." "It may be for you, but not for us," murmured Kathy under her breath. "Why not?" asked Bob, puzzled. "Well, you see we have to pay all of our large deposits on utilities before we move completely in, and when we pay all of that there will not be any Christmas money," replied Kathy. "Oh, I'm so sorry to hear that. Well, I guess I'd better go on back home. It was very, very nice meeting both of you and your family." "Did you meet anybody your age?" asked his mother as Bob entered the back door. "Yes, I met a boy twelve and a girl eleven. They are both very nice. But, Mom, they won't have a Christmas and here it is December 22, and they can't have one," answered Bob very depressed. "Why won't they have one?" As Bob told his mother the story she became very touched. She told Bob that she would discuss this with his father. That was all that was said about it. On Christmas Eve at 7 the doorbell rang and Tommy ran to the door answering it. "Hello," the Wilson family stood smiling in the doorway. Their hands were full of presents. Tommy invited the family in and Bob's parents explained what they had done. They had paid the bills for the Daniels so they could have a Christmas. Two days before Mr. Daniels had been informed by the utility offices that the deposits had been made for him by friends. And it was then that Tommy's parents knew who the unknown friends were. Mrs. Daniels said, "You know, this is what I'd call really welcoming new neighbors."

Dennis Latham

Christmas For Old Mr. Pierce

BY JAN HARDY
 "Bah! Christmas everyone's celebrating it, why so important?" shouted Mr. Pierce, to himself as he sat looking out his window. He saw people hurrying about the streets. He saw children running from house to house collecting odds and ends for the big tree that the townspeople had put up on the city square. The children had finally reached the home of old Pierce. "Shall we go in?" asked a small girl. "He may throw something at us," said another. "My mother said to keep away from him, he's mean and—" Another child broke in. "My dad said he was just an old miser, and that he should be run out of town!" "We'll try anyway," said Karen, the oldest. The children knocked on the door but there was no answer. One of the children screamed, "Old man crab he isn't good or nothing!" "Hush!" snapped Karen, "he'll never come to the door now. Come, let's go to another home." "So they think I'm an old crab," he said bitterly. Mr. Pierce was a very lonely and sad person. He tried hard not to show it, but everyone knew. It was true that he kept his house shut up; he didn't have any friends, and children were always teasing him. Yet there was one girl who seemed to understand him, although he didn't know. While Karen ate her supper, she and her family talked about Mr. Pierce. "Mother, I think something should be done for him. Poor old man. He must be lonely and unhappy. I feel sorry for him." "He's no good!" cried Karen's little brother. "You had better hush, Tommy!" snapped Karen. "Now, Karen, he's an old man, and I don't think you can help," said Karen's mother very softly. Christmas With The Higgins Family

BY STEVE WOODALL
 "Wake up, Willie; Sammy and David are ready to go," said Mr. Higgins. Willie got up and got dressed and hurried down to the barn. Father asked, "Do you want to go on foot or in the pickup?" All three boys said, "On foot." "Willie, you and Sammy carry the axes to chop the Christmas tree and David and I will carry the guns for the turkey." After they had walked about a mile, David spotted a turkey, took aim and shot and killed it. After walking some distance further they found the prettiest spruce tree in the mountains for miles around. On the way back, they talked of the fun they would have decorating the tree that afternoon and eating the turkey on the next day. When they arrived home they put the turkey in the barn and took the tree into the house. "David," called Mr. Higgins, "run to the barn and get me the stand for the tree." By the time David got back, the tree was in the house, and Sammy and Willie were having a fight over who would get to put the big gold star on top of the tree. Father walked into the kitchen and was surprised to see the room filled with bowls of popcorn and sugar cookies. David broke up the fight between Willie and Sammy by saying Father was going to put the star on top of the tree. Dorothy and Annie were sewing strings of popcorn while David and Sammy dragged out the rest of the decorations. "Does anybody want to go with me to pick your aunt at the train station?" asked Father. "I do," chorused Willie and Sammy. "Well, get your coats and get in the Buick, and I'll be right there." When they arrived, Father told Willie and Sammy to stay in the car, but they had never been up close to a train, so Father allowed them to go with him. The train arrived almost immediately and Aunt Florence was the first one off. She declared she would never ride a train again. Willie and Sammy got her bags and carried them to the car. When they arrived home, the tree was already beautifully decorated. That night after dinner, the family and Aunt Florence sat around the Christmas tree while the turkey was cooking. The large livingroom was warm and comfortable, and everyone was happy.

Christmas Shopping On Mars

BY KERRY THOMPSON
 "Ten - nine - eight - seven - six - five," this was the automatic countdown machine ticking off the seconds before the first manned rocket to Mars was to blast off, "four - three - two - one - zero - lift - off!" The men in the blockhouse at

Cape Canaveral watched as the gargantuan Jupiter II space rocket rose ever higher in a pillar of flame and smoke. As it rose up to a tiny speck of darkness, they heard a crackling and buzzing of static over the space-wave radio, then the voice of Captain Salsasia rasping out the words, "All fine! We're on automatic control now, and our electronic navigator is taking us to Mars. Jones and Larians, my pilot and co-pilot, are glad to be relieved of their duties. Ten-Four!"

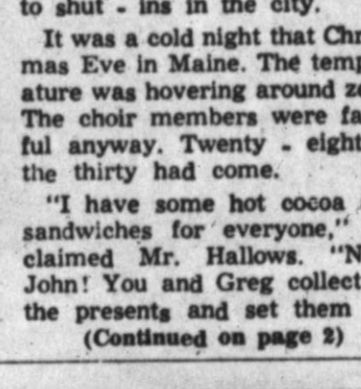

Kerry Thompson

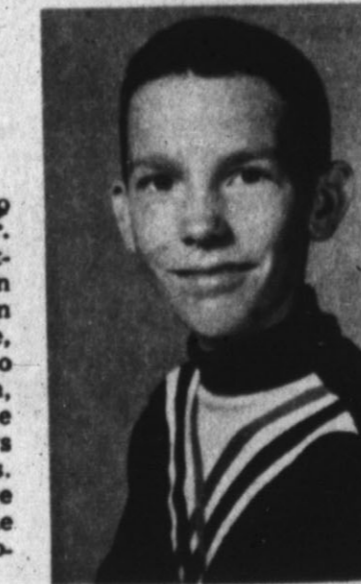

The date of the lift-off was September 25, 1979, and the time was 5 a.m. The first manned rocket to Mars was thus far a successful. The crew and the ship were to land on Mars October 13, the same year. They would arrive back on Earth December 17, eight days before Christmas. The mechanics, Stanford, Slaterians, and Homal, had come along for any emergency that might come up. The geologists, Smith, Lonson, and Samson, hoped to find some unknown minerals on Mars. The flight went along as planned. Every once in a while, a small conversation would start. During one conversation, a loud crash was heard over the space-wave radio on Earth, and a loud crackle of static. What had happened? Was anything going wrong? The crash must have caused a radio blackout! Now there was no connection between the ship and Earth. However, in the ship, there was near panic. "Evacuate the radio chamber!" cried Captain Salsasia, called "Salt" by the members of the crew. "Carry out that injured man! Hurry! Is anybody in here a doctor! It looks like Smith is hurt pretty bad." "I took two years of medical study in college," offered Homal. "Well, don't just stand there," roared the captain. "Do something!" Homal ordered to have a room, alone, and perfectly clean. One of the men offered a barracks, which had not been used yet. Within five minutes, Smith was lying in a clean bed in a spic and span room. He and Homal were alone. The crew waited tensely as Homal made the best use of the scant equipment. However, the time was not wasted, as Stanford and Slaterians went in to fix the radio. Soon the radio was working again, and Stanford radioed the information about the meteor that crashed through the wall, dented the radio and injured Smith. Meanwhile, Smith's door was

The Littlest Present

BY GENE BRASHEAR
 "Everybody here?" inquired Mr. Hallows. "Everyone except Donald," replied Bobby. Just then the doorbell rang and Donald came in shivering with might and main. "Hi, everybody. It must be a hundred below zero out there," said Donald, taking off his coat. It was Christmas Eve and the Portland Junior High Choir members were to go caroling to shut-ins in the city. It was a cold night that Christmas Eve in Maine. The temperature was hovering around zero. The choir members were faithful anyway. Twenty-eight of the thirty had come. "I have some hot cocoa and sandwiches for everyone," exclaimed Mr. Hallows. "Now, John! You and Greg collect all the presents and set them un-

Here's a letter we want you to answer since you're giving food and toys away this year," Ike declared. (Continued on page 5)

A Santa For The Schneiders

BY MARK TIEFEL
 Dear Santa Claus, I have two sisters and two brothers. We are very poor. Every Christmas instead of getting presents we go around town looking at the toys and food in store windows. It is sort of nice, but it would be a lot nicer to have a few toys to play with, some decent food, and some dishes to eat from. Our toys are those cast away by others. Our dishes are cans that we get canned food in from the Charity Fund that moved to another town last week. I am twelve, the oldest of our family besides Mother and Father. June is six, Betty is four, Johnny is two, and Sam is one. They are always sharing their few toys with other poor children. If you could bring us some toys to play with and some decent food to eat we would think it a luxury. Your friend, Judy Schneider Judy reread and folded the letter carefully, then dropped it

"Yes, Auntie, he's not there, in the wood bin, or in the spare room." "Have you looked in the cupboard or in the living room under the tree?" she asked. "No, I haven't. I'll look now," said the terrified youngster. This was the day after the festive holiday with its yule log, popcorn balls, and cranberry strings. Also fitting at this time was Santa Claus with his sleigh full of toys for all the good (Continued on page 6)

Besides it is the last piece of white bread and we can't afford any more groceries until your father is paid," mother pleaded. The door opened and Sandy, a redfaced girl of sixteen, came walking in. The Puppy's Christmas

BY CAROLINA MANION
 "People! Who do they think they are?" thought Bozo, the hungry little puppy. People were buzzing about buying presents, for it was only ten days before Christmas. "How I wish I had an owner and a beautiful house to live in. It would be so nice to have a boy or a girl to love and care for me." All of a sudden he was rudely kicked in the side by the foot of one of the biggest men he had ever seen. He jumped out of the way and went running down the street yelping as if he had been shot. The little puppy went into a back alley and lay down with a moan as the snow started to fall. He felt miserable! The next morning when Bozo woke up, he was nearly covered with snow. He was cold and hungry. "I'm going to find me a home before Christmas. I'll start looking today," said Bozo. Each house he went to already had a dog. He would try again tomorrow, because he was very tired. He had found a few table scraps, so he wasn't very hungry. He found an alley with boxes and rags scattered all around. The little dog started ed gathering up the rags and putting them into a big box. Finally he thought he had enough. Then he crawled on top of the (Continued on page 7)

The Spectacular!

 Janey, muffling her cough so as not to wake Betty and Bill, sat up in her trundle bed. She seemed to have heard noises downstairs. Silently she tiptoed to the banister and beheld an amazing sight. There, from the tip of his toes to his cherry-red nose, stood a fat, jolly man. He was chuckling to himself as he carefully took each toy from the bulging bag. "Santy, are you sure the little girl will be good to me?" asked Milly, the beautiful doll with short golden curls and brown eyes. "Oh, yes, indeed, Betty is a very sweet little girl," promised Santa. "She'll tuck you in and play with you, I'm sure." The shiny red and white rocking horse nickered, "Santy, will you take me out to play and leave me at night in the cold? I love my beautiful color and I would hate to have it spoiled so soon." "Billy may be a little forgetful, but his mother will help remind him of his duties. By the way, Mrs. Grady has certainly needed a new coat and I think I have just the right one." "You mentioned I would go to Mr. Grady to keep his feet warm," commented the shiny black shoes. "You do," replied Santa, "and you'll be polished often to keep your shine. Mr. Grady likes to keep neat." "I'm lucky." "I've forgotten someone. Janey! Ah, here it is." As he said this, Janey leaned over extra far in order to see. There was a bang as Janey fell to the floor and awakened to find herself dreaming. She heard laughter downstairs and she knew it must be time for the tree. With great excitement Janey jumped up and bounded down the stairs to join the family.

der the tree." The choir members brought presents for needy families that night. Donald wasn't proud of his. It wasn't wrapped but was in a paper sack. Donald's family had bad luck that year. His mother had been in the hospital three times during the past few months. His thoughts were interrupted. "Give me your present, Donald," snapped Greg. Donald and Greg had never been on good terms. Greg always called Donald "Sissy" or "Stupid." The reason was simple. Donald never had taken athletics in grade school. Now that he was in junior high school he naturally gave it up. In Greg's sight anyone who did not take part in athletics, no matter if it was his best friend, was a sissy. "Hurry up!" shouted Greg. "I — I believe I will put it under the tree myself," stammered Donald. "Ha-Ha! The sissy is afraid to give me his present. Did it cost a nickel?" Probably swiped it, didn't you?" jeered Greg. "Leave him alone!" snapped Jerry. "You're the one who would swipe and bully younger kids."

Mr. Hallows came into the room and asked "what's going on here?" Judy stepped forward and replied, "Greg was bullying Donald around and Jerry stopped him."

A long silence followed and one could have heard a pin drop. During the silence Mr. Hallows stared at Greg and Jerry. Finally he said, in a cold, hard voice, "Jerry you did right to stop him. As for you Greg, you have been bullying too much. Now get your present and leave."

Greg left the house and was starting up the walk when Donald pleaded, "Let him come back please."

Everybody turned and looked very surprizing at Donald. "Please," he pleaded. "Jerry go get Greg, Hurry!" ordered Mr. Hallows. Jerry dashed out the door and sailed after Greg.

Jerry came up to Greg and told him, "Donald wants you to come back."

Surprise crossed Greg's face and swept away the anger in his eyes.

"You — you really mean it?" questioned Greg. "Sure, replied Jerry, "Let's go."

"Wait a minute," said Greg. "What's the matter?"

"Jerry, I've been thinking. Do you think Donald really wants to be friends?" inquired Greg. "Maybe so, Donald is a nice kid. He's the one who wanted you back, probably he wants to be friends."

They were nearly at Mr. Hallows house so the boys hurried up.

When they reached the door, Greg halted and said, "Jerry, I'll feel like a fool going in there."

"Well, I'll be!" he said with disgust. "You said you were coming so — wait a minute!" and he dashed into the house.

"Will everybody listen a minute," yelled Jerry. "Greg has told me he will come back if nobody laughs at him."

"O.K.," replied everybody in unison.

"Come on in, Greg," Donald said.

"Donald, I'm sorry," said Greg.

"That's all right. Let's go eat. I'm hungry," said Donald. After their snack the members got into the cars and set the presents in the trunk.

The first house that they stopped at was the Schnieders, a German family, new in town.

All of the boys and girls climbed out of the car and lined up. The first song they sang was "Silent Night, Holy Night," a song which originated in Germany.

Inside the house the children jumped when they heard the music and ran to the window. They all shouted and laughed with glee. The parents shook their head with amazement. Then presents were given to the family. Then the carolers left.

The next house, in the slums, belonged to two families. The songs were sung and presents were given to the families. The children were delighted.

At the next house all the presents, save one, were passed out. That was Donald's present.

Four days before Christmas, school was let out. Everyone had lots of fun, but several "tries" were made at the forbidden door.

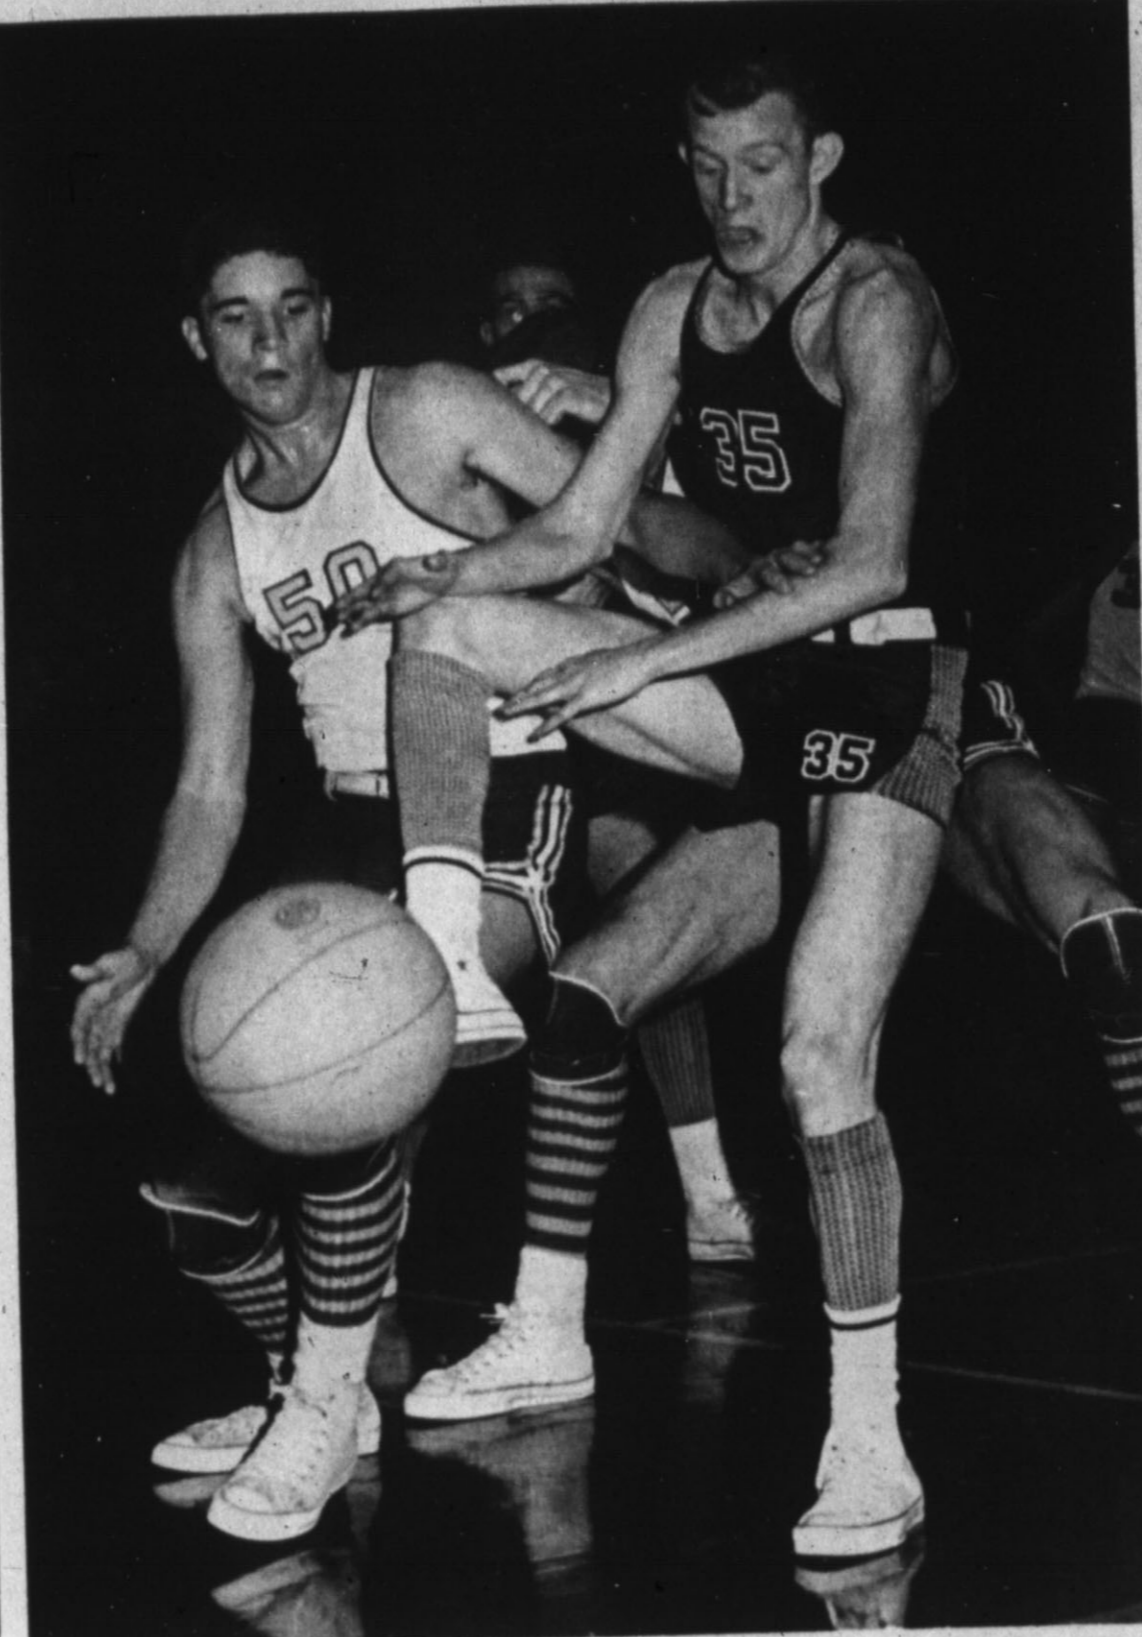

Christmas Eve came and at supper Miss Lyons made an announcement.

"After supper I want everyone to meet outside the 'forbidden door' and Terry, Tim, Tammy, Tina, Toni, and Tommy, please meet me in the office right now!"

Later Miss Lyons said, "Terry, would you and Tim read the Christmas Story, please? And Tammy, would you and the other three lead the children in some carols?"

"Yes, ma'am!"

Finally the door was opened. The children filed in. Suddenly the lights were turned on. Oh's and ah's were heard from all, for in the middle of the room was a huge tree, all decorated. After the program was over, everyone was given a present. All were immediately full of "Look here's" and "oboy's." "This is just — just — wonderful!" Toni exclaimed. All the "newcomers" readily agreed. This was just too good to be true!

"Why does every dog, but me, have a home?" he asked as he changed positions. "Maybe I'll have better luck tomorrow," he added.

But Bozo was wrong. Five days passed, and still he had no home. He slept in the same alley on the same rags every night. Each night he hoped for better luck the next day. Two more days went by with no luck at all. It was just two more days until Christmas.

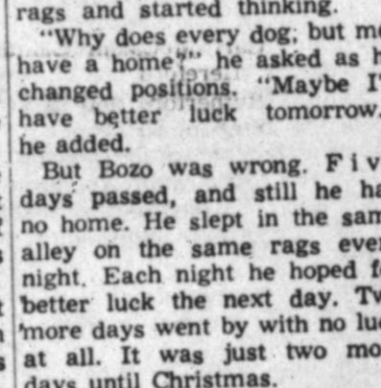

"Well, I don't guess I'll get a home for Christmas," he said as he lay down to cry himself to sleep.

He was soon asleep and dreaming of being in a big nice house with enough bones for every hungry dog in town. Then he started dreaming something else. There was a fairy who told him something very helpful.

"Bozo, you are not dreaming. I am a real fairy. Will you please listen to me?" she said. Bozo shook his head.

The amount we ordinarily spend in this way has been contributed toward a more lasting tribute in our community and we feel it is in keeping with the real meaning of Christmas.

ONE OF THE MOST STRIKING scenes in Hereford during the Yuletide season is this life-size grouping of Santa Claus and his reindeer on the front yard of the Faust Collier home on the Dimmitt Highway. "Mother!" Karen almost screamed. Then she continued more calmly, yet defiantly. "He needs friends. I didn't think I would hear something like that out of you, but I intend to help him all I can."

"Karen, why don't you go to your room," said her father very calmly but sternly.

Karen silently went into her room. She had thought that her mother would never take such an attitude, but whatever her mother had said she was still going to try to help Mr. Pierce.

Days passed and it was Christmas Eve. While Karen's family was busy in the kitchen, she silently crept out of her room toward Mr. Pierce's. When there she knocked on the door, but he just didn't answer. Karen was a little impatient, so she went around the house and found a basement window open. She was desperate so she crawled very quietly into the basement and went up the stairs. She found herself in the kitchen, then she crept silently into the living room. There she was face to face with Mr. Pierce.

"Where'd you come from? How'd you get in here?" belted the old man.

"Hello, I'm Karen Mason. I thought maybe you were alone."

"I'm not lonely. I don't need you," Mr. Pierce was still belting. "Get out! Get out!"

Karen ran up to him crying. "Why don't you like me? Don't send me out, please!"

"Stop your crying and tell me what you want."

"Oh, thank you," cried Karen wiping the tears away. "It's Christmas Eve and I always have a good time."

"Bah! Christmas!"

"Never mind. Do you know the Christmas Story?"

"No, and I don't want to know," said Pierce.

"I'll get something to eat," said Karen.

She went into the kitchen and found some milk and cookies and brought them into the living room. They both seated themselves on the couch.

Karen began. "In those days there went out a decree that all the world should be taxed. Joseph and Mary went into the town of Bethlehem. They came to an inn, but there was no room so they stayed in a stable. Mary had her first born, and laid him in a manger. He was god's gift to the world."

"Now, wasn't that a nice story?"

"You know, Karen, you have made me feel better," said the old man.

Mr. Pierce opened the curtains and he and Karen looked

"Let's go and get a three and some things to decorate it, and some toys and goodies and take it all to some poor family out on Forty-third Street. This Jesus, you say sure started a wonderful thing," he paused. "Christmas," sighed a quite different man who was no longer lonely.

 "Sure 'nuff, Ike," replied Joe. "Me'n Ben are going to take the toys around in that section of town. We'll drop a few things off there. Might even fill some stockings with candy and hang them around the room."
 "Okay, then, I'll be on my way," Ike said.
 While dressing the little kids, Judy seemed to be having a little trouble.
 "Come on, Jane, help me get these little kids ready for window shopping!" Judy exclaimed nervously.

 "Aw heck! I wish we would get some good food and toys for Christmas!" Jane replied.
 "Well, I sent a letter to Santa Claus, so he might bring us some food and toys."
 "Oh boy!" little Betty shouted, "Maybe we'll get something to eat and play with after all!"
 "Hokay, kids, let's go window shopping," their father said joyfully.
 "Okay," Judy returned.

The firemen arrived right after the Schneiders had left.
 "Sam, come're!" Joe shouted.
 "What is it, Joe?"
 "I knocked on the door, but nobody answered, so I pushed the door open and there isn't anyone here." Joe told him.
 "Bring the toys and food on in."
 "Boy, this place is sure neat and clean."
 "Yeah, too bad everyone isn't that way."
 "Let's find the refrigerator and put all this food in it."

 They got on to the upper at-

"Hey, Sam!"
 "What's the matter?"
 "There ain't no refrigerator!"
 Joe exclaimed, "We'll have to put it on the table."
 "Just imagine! No refrigerator and eating out of tin cans! What a way to live."
 "Now let's hang up the stockings and put the toys around the room," Joe said after putting all the food on the table.
 "In a few minutes we'll be through," Sam said.
 "There. Now that that's done we might as well go home," Joe said after a short interval.

After a dream-filled window shopping experience the Schneiders came home to a completely different looking room.
 "Gee whiz, Santa came while we were away, and brought us all kinds of toys, food, and candy!" Betty shouted loudly.
 "Wow! A doll for each of the girls and airplanes for the boys! I'm sure glad I sent that letter to Santa," Judy exclaimed.
 "My goodness, this is sure a dream come true," Mrs. Schneider added, "Say, since we have so much for which to be grateful, why don't we go to church tomorrow?"
 "Yah, Mammah, that is a good idea," Mr. Schneider solemnly agreed.

 woke up. "I'll go to that house now!"
 He got into the old red house and went to sleep under the shabby Christmas tree. When the children woke up and saw the puppy, they were delighted.
 The little dog was happy to be so welcome that he surprised even himself by barking excitedly. His little tail wagged so vigorously that the children laughed. Later, Bozo was bathed and given a good warm Christmas breakfast.

mosphere of Mars without further delay or mishap. Then in the upper atmosphere, they realized something was wrong. The ship was going to crash.
 "Get out the space life crafts!" ordered the despairing captain.
 "Two to a craft. Do it orderly, now."
 Soon, the crafts were ready. Each one, equipped with a carrier, carried enough food, oxygen, and water to last to about February. Stanford had the radio.
 "All fire full!" commanded the Captain.
 The crafts fired from the ship, along with a few extra oxygen tanks that had been jettisoned out, and floated safely to Mars. They watched as the large craft roared down in a pillar of flame and crashed on the surface of Mars. Soon all hands were scouring the wreckage in the bitter cold for something that might be useful. There was some food and oxygen left, but that was about all. While the others were busy at that, Stanford and Jones came back with the oxygen tanks that had been jettisoned out.
 Meanwhile, Larsons radioed Earth about the crash. He returned half gloomy, half cheerful, and announced that a rescue rocket would be there to pick them up about December 30.

"That means we'll have to spend Christmas on Mars!" whined Jones.
 "Oh, well," said Lonson, "Let's make use of our time here. Let's see, counting that delay, it is about November 15. I'm going to pick up some specimens to take home with me for Christmas. Anybody got wrapping paper and ribbon?"
 They all laughed good-naturedly. Soon they were all laughing and joking with each other.
 The men moved into some caverns they had found, and lived on their supplies. Nothing out of the ordinary happened, except Samsons found a low form of a moss-like plant living on Mars.
 "Merry Christmas!" cried Samsons, puffing into camp on Christmas morning. "I found some caverns with oxygen, good enough to breathe, just below these. Better yet, Earth radioed that a rocket would be here about noon. They had been saving it for a Christmas present!"

"I should say, Merry Christmas!" Lonson's voice was drowned out by a roar over head. They all looked up and saw a ship above.

All scampered about, gathering up the specimens they had planned for Christmas presents. They were going home at last!

 the beautiful Christmas decorations and about a contest for the most beautiful Christmas scenes in town.
 "Mrs. Hix has some lovely carolers made out of cardboard in her front yard," exclaimed Sandy.
 "I wish we could have as pretty a scene as the one she has," Gary sighed wistfully.
 All of a sudden Mother's face brightened. "We can," she exclaimed. "When is the contest over?"
 "They'll pick the winners tomorrow night because that is the night before Christmas Eve, you know," Donna said, her face glowing in the light of the fire.
 "I still don't understand," Gary confessed.
 "You just watch us," Mother exclaimed.
 "We can clean out the old tool shed," said Sandy.
 "Let's use that for a manger and borrow a few bales of hay from Mr. Gibbs," cried Gary.
 "And for Baby Jesus I'll let you use the little rag doll that Mother gave me for my birthday," Donna exclaimed with delight.

 "Let's get Bessy and put her in there, she'll just lie down and won't bother anything," suggested Gary.
 "You know, that old metal star I saw in our front yard would be all right to hang on the shed with a lantern behind it," explained Mother.
 The Martin family worked and worked and finally got the "Manger Scene" ready in time.
 Mr. and Mrs. Powell and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gibson were the judges. When they came to the Martin house they were very amazed at such a breathtaking sight. The ladies were impressed with the authenticity and beauty of the scene. The men thought it was wonderful how they had used the resources around them in portraying the birth of Christ.
 Mrs. Martin and the children listened and watched the judges hopefully as they went on down the street.
 The next morning after a meager breakfast, Gary was saying, "I guess we just wasted a lot of time, and energy. I'll boys and girls' stockings. Ever though a young boy in 1900 was not likely to see Saint Nick on that cherished night, Billy knew what he looked like from the pictures at his schoolhouse.

 This had been a very special Christmas for Billy. His mother was at the Springdale Hospital. Billy knew he would soon have a baby brother or sister. Because of this fact his father had sent him to stay with his aunt. To keep Billy from getting lonely, Mr. Lawson bought him a short legged black cocker spaniel for Christmas. With the coming of light Bill had found the little dog in his stocking sound asleep under the Christmas tree. The boy and the dog became companions from the start. The boy named the dog Robo and he seemed to like it. Now it was the day after Christmas and the little dog wasn't to be found.

 "No, Auntie," said the boy terrified, "he's not there."
 "I certainly hope he hasn't gotten out into this snow," said the lady. "He wouldn't have a chance."
 "Then he must be out there!" screamed the boy, running for the door.
 "Don't worry, dear," said the kind woman, holding him with one hand, "I'll call everyone around and see if they've seen him. Hello, Myrtle — Myrtle. Hm-no answer. The line must be dead."
 "Auntie, can't you get a n-y-one?"
 "No, child," she said with a tone of fear in her voice.
 "Then I must go find him," said Billy.
 "No! You can't go out there," said his aunt. "Now go on up to your room."
 "All right," he said reluctantly.
 After a few restless minutes in his bed, Billy started stealthily down the stairs. He could hear his aunt making pies in the kitchen. Arriving at the bottom of the staircase he turned slowly toward the hall closet where the wraps were kept. Very carefully he removed his coat, hat, and overshoes from the closet. Slowly and carefully he took his clothes to a side room and put them on. Then, moving as quietly as possible in his heavy clothes, he moved toward the door. Suddenly, the clatter of pots and pans stopped and his aunt came humming into the room. Quickly he hid behind the Christmas tree and stayed there until his aunt was fully up the stairs. Then he opened the door into the howling winds and went out into the blizzard. The next instant his aunt was hurrying down the stairs calling his name. But he didn't know this for he was tramping through the snow calling another name - Robo.

 His aunt, giving up in despair, hitched her horse to the sleigh and started for town. She had not gotten half way there when she met Billy's father bearing news of his new baby son. Seeing his sister he jumped into the sleigh and drove her the rest of the way to town.
 Billy had been wandering through the blizzard looking for his dog and fearing for his safety. By now his feet were cold and so was his face. He had nearly given up calling for her when he was getting hoarse. Then, dog tired as he was, he found a small ravine. He went in because it formed a break from the wind. This was welcomed with joy. Entering the ravine the boy found a mass of snowy tumbleweed. He knew that in the summer rattlesnakes would be hiding under these. But now, in the worse part of the winter, there would be nothing but hard frozen ground. Then, Billy heard it. A loud mournful cry. A coyote! Billy couldn't tell which direction the sound was coming from but he knew he was in trouble.

"Robo!" yelled Billy with joy. "Robo!"
 Then the larger shape turned on the pup and flung him out of the way. Billy leaped out of his cave forgetting everything but his dog. Billy ran to Robo but the coyote was moving swiftly. The coyote leaped. Suddenly a shot rang out and the coyote skidded to earth a few feet from the kneeling boy. The little dog had some bad cuts and bruises but Robo returned from his adventure wagging his tail.

REVIVING ART
 CLEVELAND, P. — In the hope of restoring the art of manuscript writing and art embellishment, art teacher Sier Alberta at St. Stanislaus High School is producing a hand-illuminated Pontifical.

A Pontifical is a missal book such as are used by the Pope and prelates, including bishops at Pontifical Masses.

Sister Alberta hopes in her teaching to reproduce ecclesiastical art in contemporary style, and she is encouraging her students not to be copyists but to be creative.

FEWER CHURCH FIRES

BOSTON — Church organizations cut down their losses from fires in 1960 while the country as a whole was setting a new record for destruction by fire.

The National Fire Protection Association, a non-profit technical and educational clearing house on fire safety information, reports that approximately 300 fewer churches were destroyed or damaged by fire in 1960 than in 1950. And total losses in the 3,100 fires in 1960 were $14,700,000 compared with total church fire losses of $17,530,000 the year before. The 1960 figure was the lowest in five years.

Seven major fires accounted for 20 per cent of the 1960 losses, the largest being the $760,000 destruction of the Second Congregational Church, Waterbury, Conn., Sept. 7, 1960.

ORSBORN-NORWOOD CHEVROLET

Power Off And On During Intermittent Bad Weather

BY MRS. S. N. THWEATT
Winter weather has been prevailing over the community the past week. Snow began falling last Friday night, and some moisture fell every day, either in the form of rain, snow, or fog.

The electricity was off twice one day, due to the ice. The Bass family home has been without lights since a week ago Sunday, and they do not know when the lines can be repaired. The snow at Bootleg finished melting Saturday and the ground showed signs of drying by Sunday.

Walcott P. T. O. met Friday night, when the Community Christmas tree and party were held. The program was presented by Miss Paula Green's first and second grades; and Mrs. Thomas Collins' third and fourth grades. Music pupils of Mrs. Sam Long gave some musical selections. After the program, Santa paid a visit to Walcott, spending some time with both the young and old — and then he was on his way, since he said he had many other places to go before Christmas Eve. Treats were given to the children and the grown-ups who wanted them. Refreshments of sweet rolls and coffee were served. A lot of visiting and wishes of a "Merry Christmas" were exchanged among all those present. School was dismissed Wednesday, and will not resume until Jan. 2.

Mrs. Jim Monroe announced that the next P. T. O. meeting will be Jan. 19 at 8 p.m. The program will be a book review by Mrs. Ansel McDowell of Hereford. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Bruce Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Collins, returned home Friday afternoon to spend Christmas. Bruce and Merry Kay Pruitt will be joined in matrimony Dec. 22. Miss Pruitt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pruitt of Hereford.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Thweatt visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Brown Sunday afternoon. The couples played "42."

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Sorrells and two daughters, Linda and Debbie, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Thweatt Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Buse attended the farm sale of their son-in-law, Mr. Charles Markham of Texline, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Markham have moved to Waco and are in the insurance business with Charles' brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Edred Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Sorrells, Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Thweatt spent Thursday in Amarillo, where some Christmas shopping was carried on.

Funeral services for Joe M. Head, 82, were conducted at 2 p.m. Friday at the First Baptist Church in Clovis, N. M., with the Rev. C. C. Morgan officiating, assisted by the Rev. R. R. Harrison and Dr. Herbert Bergstrom. Interment was in the Bovina cemetery.

Mr. Head, who resided in the Clovis, Bovina, and Rosedale areas for 40 years, died recently at Clovis Memorial Hospital of a heart ailment. He had been ill a short time.

Survivors include his wife Alice, five sons, Vernon of Englewood, Cal., L. J. of Denver, Allen of Clovis, Garland of Spearman, and Joseph of Lampasas, a daughter, Mrs. Elson of Truth or Consequences, N. M., a sister, Mrs. Annie McBride of Indian Creek, Tex., 23 grandchildren, and 17 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Head was a member of the First Baptist Church of Clovis. He was president of the Old Settlers' Reunion of Broadview, and also president of the fifth Sunday singing at Bippus.

Those attending the services from Bippus were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Homfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Adrin, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fortenberry and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bill White, Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Thweatt, Mrs. N. A. Brown, Mrs. Ernest Brown, Mrs. Floyd Brown, Sammie and Dinnie.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Coleman, Cindy, Jeff, and Mrs. Bruce Coleman spent Friday Christmas shopping. S. N. Thweatt and Carl Hagon made a business trip to Lubbock Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fronk Jr., and children, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Burrus and children, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pruitt and daughter Merry Kay, all of Hereford, attended the Christmas school and community Christmas tree at Walcott Friday evening.

Mrs. J. E. Rouse received a picture of her great-grandson recently, Dwight 3rd. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Rouse Jr. of Nashville, Ky., Dwight 3rd was born in November.

Mrs. J. T. Guinn visited Mrs. S. N. Thweatt Sunday morning on her way home from church. Mrs. Guinn reported her mother was feeling very well the past few days.

The Thweatts received a Christmas card from the Walter Thompson family of Perrie, S. D., reporting that their son, Charles, will be home from college at Fort Collins, Colo., for the holidays. They also said that their weather had been warm.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shadix and children of Rosedale, N. M., spent Sunday afternoon visiting in the home of Mrs. Shadix's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Brown.

Mrs. G. E. Pinkerton entered the Deaf Smith County Hospital on Sunday for treatment.

Mrs. Josie Busby of Frion spent the weekend visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Coleman.

Jeff Coleman was taken to see a doctor early Monday morning. He was suffering with croup.

Mrs. W. B. Hudson, mother of B. B. Hudson, died on Dec. 13 in Chickasha, Okla. Funeral was held at the Oakdale Baptist Church, of which she had been a member for 50 years. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson had come to the community to farm in 1908, later returning to Oklahoma.

Among those attending the funeral from the area were a son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Hudson; a grandson and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hudson; a granddaughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright and family; the Rev. H. V. Fields; a granddaughter, Mrs. Bill White and her daughter, Sharon White, of Bootleg.

OFF THE Shelf

BY H. A. TUCK

Twilight of Honor by Al Dewlin is an almost sure-fire successor to Anatomy of a Murder, both on best-seller lists and for screen production.

In his third novel, the Amarillo writer has produced what promises to be his best book thus far. Dewlin gained at least regional fame with his incisive "fictional" probe The Bone Pickers.

He has done the same type of work in Twilight of Honor, probing with a surgeon's skill into the background of the well-remembered murder of Tex Thornton, biggest of the oil well tamers and casual handler of nitroglycerine.

Again, Dewlin has thinly disguised the actual story with fictional names and places. Otherwise, the facts remain the same.

This time the author uses his background as a newspaper reporter covering trials and courthouse news to set a masterful courtroom drama.

Owen Paulk is appointed defense attorney for the case, although he is a member of a civil law firm and hasn't tried a criminal case in more than five years.

It is with a sense of dread that he takes the case, for the standard defense fee of $25.

Big Jess Hutcherson was one of the Panhandle's best-loved citizens. He was successful in business and in his community. He had donated generously of his time and money for civic good. When he was found brutally murdered in a motel room in his hometown, the wolves began to howl. Special posess and planes searched the country over for the young hitch-hiker and his attractive wife who had last been seen with Hutcherson.

One of witnesses knew he had picked them up in New Mexico, stopped for a drink or two, gotten gas and checked in to a motel in the Texas Panhandle town that is obviously Amarillo. They also knew that vagabond Ray Priest and his teen-age wife Patty had left in the middle of the night in Hutcherson's black Cadillac, recognized all over the country or the cow horns mounted on the hood.

Newspapers and Jesse's legion of friends predict a quick verdict and the electric chair when Priest is arrested. It is even more assured when Patty agrees to turn state's evidence to put herself in line for the reward.

Paulk is told he will have to take a leave of absence for his good from the staid firm that had employed him. But old Jack Singer, master trial lawyer, and Singer's granddaughter agree to help Owen organize his defense.

Paulk loathes the impossible assignment, along with the fact he must defend, but is determined to battle against the machinery of justice contrived by the town.

He will be satisfied with nothing less than saving his client's life. The best he can hope for is a sentence less than death, probably by reason of insanity.

Yet another defense presents itself as the trial opens. Paulk digs deeper into Hutcherson's past and into the methods and motives of the prosecution. He finds himself in the nether world of grey that separates black from white. Paulk knows he is defending a thug, a bum, a procurer — perhaps for his own wife.

His defense will ruin the lives of innocent people, it will destroy the fine reputation of the victim.

Dewlin draws with a deft pen the portrait of man who believes in the law, yet is agonizing about some of the methods it uses. He shows the personal torments as Paulk presents painfully shocking evidence in court, yet withholds other evidence that might be useful.

Paulk finds himself bound up in a struggle with basic moral issues that can leave a larger scar than the fate of one rather brutal, mindless young criminal.

Dewlin has clearly defined a major courtroom drama, with a large cast of clearly-drawn characters and a handful of subplots that are no less important or interesting than the main flow of the story.

We make no secret about being a cheerleader for Al Dewlin. We like his sharp, clean writing skill and, of course, the easily-recognized plots and characters. But he tells exciting, dramatic stories that would be no less interesting if they had different settings or purely fictional characters. Dewlin knows how to tell a story. His reporter's training is apparent in a certain crispness of style and the deft use of words to portray scenes and characters in the least amount of time.

Twilight of Honor certainly glows in the literary field as colorful as a Texas Panhandle sunset. It is a new reserved book in the Deaf Smith County Library.

Pioneer Club Studies Christmas Customs

Members of the Pioneer Study Club met in the home of Mrs. Ralph McCullough on Dec. 12 at 12:30 p.m. for a luncheon meeting.

Each year the Christmas meeting is dedicated to an outstanding member of the club. The meeting was dedicated to Mrs. Ray Johnson for her excellent work on the yearbook. She is also serving as first vice president of the district federation.

Mrs. Waiser read Proverbs 31:20, the scripture for the day; followed by a prayer.

Guests for the special meeting were Peter Lantz of Sweden and Gillian McArthur of Scotland. They presented the program on "The Status of Youth in Relation to Family and Community Life." Mrs. H. E. Miller, program chairman, said, "Each year our world seems to grow smaller. We are learning more about our neighbors around the world. One way is through our exchange students. We must work for peace through better knowledge of their ways."

Gillian McArthur stated that Christmas in Scotland is comparable to what she has seen here. The shops put out their Christmas merchandise early, about Dec. 15. The people put up trees inside but use no outside decorations. On Christmas Eve, they load their baskets with parcels and visit neighbors, giving presents and sometimes returning home with more than they started with. Christmas Eve is spent in church, celebrating the day of communion. The people are Episcopalian.

The Scottish New Year's Eve and New Year's Day are more important than Christmas. The people in Scotland do a lot of visiting with their neighbors. Scots are warm-hearted but reserved and do not often show this warm-heartedness.

Peter Lantz said that the Swedish customs of Christmas in the old country are beginning to be commercialized. The preparation for Christmas begins about the first of December, by baking ginger bread and cookies early and eating them the day after Christmas. Peter said, "They are hard and dry but fun to eat."

In Sweden on the morning of Dec. 23, blonde girls, with lights in their hair, deliver special bread that is eaten with coffee. A Swedish Christmas is mostly an "eating" season. All kinds of sausages and ham are the main meats. Only recently have the people begun to eat turkey. A special fish is caught in the summer and preserved for the Christmas feasting.

The Swedish people stay up late on Christmas Eve, watching the midnight devotional hour on television. New Year's Eve is spent with friends, watching bership is not compulsory, Lantz said.

Gifts were exchanged by the members. The club presented special Christmas gifts to the exchange students, Gillian McArthur and Peter Lantz.

Guests present were Peter Lantz, Gillian McArthur and Mrs. Smith, mother of Mrs. Ray Johnson. The club membership attendance was 100 percent. Those present were Mesdames Fred Barrett, Allen Bell, Buri France, N. E. Gass, J. M. Gilliland, Henry Hastings, O. G. Hill Sr., W. C. Hromas, E. S. Ireland, Ray Johnson, F. M. Kester, A. L. Manjeot, C. N. McClure, H. E. Miller, John Patton, Wirt Phillips, Delmar Sigle, M. L. Simpson, P. B. So-well, C. R. Waiser, Bess Werner and Myrtle Wright. The club welcomed two new members, Mrs. William Wimberley and Mrs. Paul Rudd, who were also present. The hostesses were Mesdames Mary Seigler, L. H. Lookingbill Sr., Ralph McCullough and Miss Roberta Campbell.

Price-Leffel Wedding Pledge Read Saturday

Miss Vida Delores Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Price of Route 5 Hereford, and Charles Edwin Leffel, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Leffel of Hereford, exchanged wedding vows on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 23, at 3:30 o'clock in the sanctuary of the Avenue Baptist Church.

The Rev. H. V. Fields, pastor of The Grace Gospel Church, read the double ring ceremony before an archway decorated with white roses and white mums. Fans of flowers flanked the altar.

Miss Avie Justice, pianist, accompanied Miss Donna Rogers, soloist, as she sang "Because," "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Miss Gail Bishop, maid of honor, wore a street length dress of white lace, featuring a scooped neckline and a blue satin waist jacket. Miss Linda Price, sister of the bride, wore a blue chiffon, over satin, dress with white accessories. The attendants' corsages were made of blue and white crysanthemums. Ray Smith of Dalhart served the groom as best man. Ushers were Doyle Turner of Hereford and Truman Price, brother of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a formal wedding gown of white hand clipped, imported chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves and a Sabrina neckline, edged with seed pearls, fitted bodice and bouffant skirt terminating in a chapel train. The crown tiara, accented with sequins and pearls, held the finger tip length veil of silk illusion. The bridal bouquet was made of white mums falling in a cascade from a white Bible.

Mrs. J. C. Price, mother of the bride, wore a beige two-piece dress accented with black and white accessories and a mum corsage. The groom's mother wore a navy blue two-piece dress accented with black and white accessories and a mum corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Parents of the couple and members of the bridal party formed the receiving line.

The bride's table was appointed with crystal and silver, decorated in blue and white, the bride's chosen colors. The attendants' corsages formed the centerpiece. Miss Linda Reed and Miss Gladys Fezell, cousin of the bride, assisted at the serving table.

When the couple left on a short wedding trip, the bride wore a pale green wool ensemble with black suede accessories and a corsage lifted from the bridal bouquet. The couple will be at home at 123B Avenue A.

The bride is a senior at Hereford High School. She will complete her studies in January. She is a member of the National Honor Society and Journalism Club.

Leffel attended Hereford High School and is presently employed by Turner Drilling Company of Hereford.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Messrs. and Mesdames F. B. Kyle, L. F. Kyle, Wales Dunlap and Beth, E. D. Jackson Jr., H. V. Fezell, W. B. Fezell, all of Lubbock, Ray Smith and E. F. Byrd, L. W. Phillips and family, all of Dalhart, and Jimmie Fowler of Killean.

Door prizes were won by Gary Goodin, Larry Fuhrmann and Ray Oglesby. Games were played. Comedy films were shown by Weldon Baskin and Kenneth Harms of Amarillo for the entertainment of the evening.

Oglesby presented the boys with personal gifts. They, in turn, presented a gift of appreciation to their employer.

Jerltomte And Eating Are Swedish, Scottish Customs

He has a long white beard, is quite chubby, and wears a red suit trimmed in white fur. He comes once yearly at Christmas. His name is Jerltomte in Sweden.

Along about the same time of year, the people in Scotland bake a rich pudding, place coins or small charms in it, and serve it to the members of the household.

Christmas is one of the few holidays celebrated almost the world over. In the United States, it means the birth of Christ, as well as the time for Santa Claus to come and the stores to launch their Christmas sales.

In Scotland, the home of Gillian McArthur, who is attending Hereford High School through the exchange student program, Christmas is celebrated in much the same way.

Peter Lantz, who hails from Sweden, explains that a Christmas holiday in Sweden is celebrated in much the same fashion, with a heavy emphasis on food.

Both exchange students were recently honored by the Future Homemakers of America at a Christmas party in the high school cafeteria. Although surprised by the party, the two were not surprised at the custom of exchanging presents, visiting with Saint Nick, and eating till one can't.

After entertainment with a scavenger hunt, Peter and Gillian were presented gifts in keeping with the occasion, by none other than dear ol' Santa.

"In Sweden, we call him Jerltomte," states Peter Lantz, who comes from a suburb of Stockholm, "but he is just like Santa Claus."

"We have Santa Claus in Scotland, too," states Gillian McArthur of Edinburgh. A senior at Hereford High, she is living with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Higgins and family north of Hereford, while in the U. S. through the American Field Service Exchange Student program.

"Most Americans came from Europe," she says, "and so our customs are not too different. During the first part of December, Santa Claus comes to the shops in Scotland. He stays inside, and does not go from store to store as he does here."

"Almost all of the stores have Christmas trees outside, and everybody puts up decorations. Most of the families hang streamers from the ceiling, as well as decorating with Christmas trees and other things, but we do not decorate so much on the outside."

"Everybody either hangs their Christmas cards from the ceiling on strings, or sets them up where they can be seen," states the charming Scottish lass.

In Edinburgh they always put up a huge tree in the square. Each year the people of Norway send the tree as a traditional present to the people of Scotland," Gillian explained.

"They can put about 2000 lights on it because it is so big." Gillian said that most of the train stations in Scotland erect a tree, and have a small electric train around it. Scottish children come to see the model train run, and bring presents or money to be given to the needy at Christmas.

"On Christmas Eve, we get our bicycles and go see all of our friends," says Gillian. "We take presents and spend about an hour at each house, catching up on the gossip. Then we usually go home with more presents than we take," she admits with a giggle.

"Since my mother is pure English, and my father pure Scottish, I get to celebrate both English and Scottish customs," she jests. Most of the Scottish people attend a midnight Christmas Communion at the Episcopal Church on Christmas Eve. There is also a mass on Christmas morning.

Then Christmas morning comes, and the people open their packages. Friends and relatives get together for the usual Christmas dinner, complete with all of the trimmings. Chicken or turkey is the traditional main course.

"We make a rich pudding in Scotland," continues Gillian. "After it has been baked, we put coins or charms in it. We pour a liquid over it and set it afire when we bring it in to the dining table. The charms mean good luck, and the more charms one finds, the better."

"Of course we have the custom of the mistletoe," she says. "We also decorate with a lot of holly," she continued, "but I had not seen the poinsettia until coming here."

"We also have a holiday the day after Christmas called Boxing Day. I don't know why it is called that," she admitted. When asked what it was for she replied, "I think it is to recuperate." The Christmas season is not over until Jan. 6 in Scotland. "Christmas is about the same in Sweden," according to Peter Lantz. Peter is also an exchange student, staying in the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. T. Mims of 609 East Fifth.

"The Christmas season begins Dec. 13 with the celebration of Lucia," explains Peter. "On that morning, a tall, blonde girl serves coffee and cookies in the homes and businesses."

"Of course the stores have their decorations, and everybody is busy buying Christmas presents."

"The children prepare a long list of things for Jerltomte to bring, and give it to their parents, who get the list to him," he says.

"Two days before Christmas," states Peter, "we buy the Christmas tree and decorate it. Jerltomte comes and distributes the presents on Christmas eve."

According to Peter, the Swedes don't do much on Christmas day except eat and sleep. "This goes on till New Year's."

Food is one of the main things about the Swedish Christmas. "It is really something special," Peter says. "We have ham, sausage, turkey, fish, lots of sauce, rice porridge, and lots of sweets."

"We like to have ham more than turkey. We have rice porridge that is real rich," he explains. "Mother puts a nut in the porridge when she bakes it. The one who finds it is supposed to get married within the next year."

"When I find the nut, I give it to my sister," Peter admits. Another tradition is putting out food for birds during the Christmas season.

On the 20th day after Christmas, they take down the Christmas trees. This is Jan. 13, and there are usually parties and celebrations, marking the end of the Christmas season.

April 30 each year, Swedish people burn the Christmas trees. There are bonfires, with singing and dancing. The holiday denotes the beginning of Spring.

Throughout the world, the carols such as "Silent Night" ring out during the Christmas season. Santa Claus, Jerltomte, and the Christmas sale have been added over the years. But in each country, the celebration of the birth of Christ is observed, although in different ways.

SANTA CLAUS WAS ON HAND TO present gifts to exchange students Peter Lantz, left, and Gillian McArthur, during a recent Christmas party given in their honor by the Future Homemakers of America. The two were not strangers to Saint Nick, or even to the Christmas customs seen here in the United States, though, as Christmas "back home" is celebrated in much the same manner. (Staff Photo)

County HD Council Hosts Yule Party

Representatives of all Home Demonstration Clubs and 4-H Clubs in Deaf Smith County met Dec. 11 in the Hereford Community Center for a Christmas party for the County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs.

The program chairman, Mrs. Gaylon Bryan, 4-H leader, presented the 4-H girls who had charge of the program. Kay James served as master of ceremonies. The program was opened with a get-acquainted game. Group singing of Christmas carols was led by Becky Long with Glenda Fuhrmann as piano accompanist.

Kay James and Glenda Fuhrmann presented a one-minute skit. Everyone participated in a "Merry Christmas" spelling game, led by Fanelda Williams. Dorothy and JoAnn Marnell presented an unusual skit, used to present a Christmas gift to Mrs. Argen Draper from all the Home Demonstration Clubs.

Mrs. Draper presented gifts to four council members who had attended every council meeting during the year. Becky Long read a Christmas poem. JoAnn Marnell led a game called "Name That Tune." Everyone then joined in singing "The More We Get Together" and "Silent Night," after which Miss Loretta Fowler led the 4-H prayer.

Year's Day, the show will open at 3:15 p.m. with the show starting at 3:30 p.m.

We are happy (you really don't know how happy!) to report that all of Princess Tuck's puppies have been spoken for. Those of you who wanted a new dog, but failed to call, don't worry. Sooner or later, we'll probably have more.

The children's choir from San Jose Mission at the Labor Camp will present a program over KPAN radio on Sunday, Dec. 24, from 12:45 until 1 p.m. The program will feature Christmas music, with both English and Spanish songs.

After umpteen years of high school and college Spanish classes, we still remember that "Silent Night" in Spanish starts off, "Noche de paz, Noche de amor," and very little else.

Hereford Whiteface basketball team will be in Lubbock Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the annual Caprock Holiday Invitational Tournament. If you don't have anything else to do, you might wander down and see them play.

City and county offices will be open again Tuesday, following a three-day holiday. But don't plan on doing any business in a state office until Wednesday. The state offices closed up at 5 p.m. Thursday for a five-day vacation.

In 1960, the statewide traffic crusade began to pay off as the state had the best record since 1949. But the record still isn't good. Please remember these facts if you plan to travel during the holidays: In Texas, one person died every three hours and 53 minutes; one person was hurt every four minutes and one crash took place every 100 seconds. This takes place while Texans are driving 127 million miles a day. Every minute they drive, the economic loss from wrecks is $644.

What could we write this day that hasn't been done a better way? About the wondrous, long-ago birth Of a child who would change the earth?

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Charges against the two men have already been filed in Cochran County for burglary as Hazel Hancock, sheriff, returned them to Morton on Wednesday.

It is anticipated that further charges may be filed on the pair in Castro, Bailey, Hartley, Lamb and Swisher counties in the Texas Panhandle and in Curry and Roosevelt Counties in New Mexico, according to Sharp.

The trio is said to have burglarized cars, stores, homes, grocery stores, bowling alleys and schools within this area.

Arrest of the trio came Tuesday afternoon after they are said to have burglarized the Bledsoe School in Cochran County. A description of the car was given to Sheriff Hancock by the school superintendent who spotted the vehicle at the school

A flurry of scoring by Dennis Hodges, who hit four straight goals, and a field goal by Mack Cansler pulled Hereford into a 50-50 tie with 4:15 left.

Plainview hit a bucket and Austin Hodges countered to knot the score again with 1:40 left. But Hereford's defense was weakened as Curtisinger and Cansler fouled out.

Then big Jack Swanner hit for five straight points as the Bulldogs poured in ten points in the final 90 seconds to win going away.

Swanner was high for the night and the only Bulldog in double figures as he tallied 26. Dennis Hodges led Hereford's scoring attack with 15, while Cansler and Curtisinger each had 11.

In the "B" team game, Hereford fell 37-44. Eugene Green was high for the young Whitefaces with 12. Tops for the Bulldogs was Bert Couch with 14.

One technical foul was called on the Plainview bench.

on Monday night.

As the superintendent and a janitor attempted to halt the trio, they reportedly jumped in the car and fled. However, the janitor fired a charge of birdshot from a 12 gauge shotgun at the fleeing suspects.

The car had previously been spotted in Morton and the license number noted, said Hancock. Department of Public Safety offices in Lubbock and Amarillo were checked to determine the ownership of the late-model red and cream Cadillac coupe.

The Department of Public Safety notified the Deaf Smith County sheriff that the car was suspected of being used in the burglary.

Fifteen minutes after law enforcement officers here began looking for the automobile and its description had been broadcast over the police radio, it was spotted here in the city by two Highway Patrol officers.

After the apprehension of the men, Deaf Smith County law enforcement officers entered the suspects' home armed with a search warrant.

Armed with evidence supplied by several identifiable articles, the trio was questioned until they admitted to several burglaries. Since then other articles taken from cities over the Panhandle and in New Mexico have been identified by law enforcement officials.

The 16-year-old youth suspected of being involved in the burglaries is on probation from Gatesville. Juvenile action is pending against the youth.

He explained that the wing is designed so that a second floor could be added later, if necessary.

T. E. Seigler, hospital manager, explained the main reason for recommending the addition, "It's not to get more administrative space, although we are crowded. We need to correct a traffic control problem. Now, we have all traffic into the hospital funneled through the surgical corridor. We also have no place for children to wait in the hospital, except in the center of the building."

He explained that the record room also is getting crowded since it presently contains seven years of records, but that regulations require that such records be kept for 21 years.

At the request of Sheriff Lowell Sharp and the commission, Seigler will check into needs and construction cost for a security room in the hospital, which would be used for violent patients or those who might wander out of the hospital.

He explained that the hospital would like to enforce its rules on visiting hours and on barring children under 14 from visiting in the hospital. This would be accomplished better, he said, by having the admissions and administrative offices next to the entrance.

He also explained that the hospital board was planning to put recessed angle parking areas on the south side of the hospital along Third Street. Addition a parking space is planned for the east side of the building.

Members of the hospital board attending the meetings were: Ed Loerwald, Wayne Thomas, Ira Scott, Casey Gilbreath, Dr.

Sentimental Ornaments Used For Home Decor

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bell, 1101 Union, is beautifully decorated for the holidays with many unusual decorations.

As you enter the home, the entrance hall is graced with a tall, green Christmas tree, decorated with colored ornaments, beaded rope, icicles and blinking vari-colored lights. The tree ornaments are a collection of the children's party favors; things the children had made at school, other little decorations gathered over the years from gift packages. All are things that have much sentimental value because they were received from close friends and relatives.

A copper mailbox, on the wall by the tree, is filled with Christmas cards. Others are fastened to the stairway. The three-cent of the cotton remaining in the fields should continue for the next two weeks if the weather remains good. Gins are working 'round the clock to keep up with the strippers.

About 50 per cent of the sugar beets in the county have been pulled and 15 to 20 days of good, clear weather are needed to finish up, according to Odean Nixon of American Crystal Sugar Co.

He described the crop as being exceptionally good with a high sugar content and good yield.

"We are well pleased with the crop," he commented. Some damaged from rot was reported to the crop, but Nixon emphasized that this has not affected the crop at harvest nor the quality of the beets.

drawer chest in the hall is decorated with a gay Santa, flanked by silver candle holders filled with slender red tapers, and still more Christmas cards displayed. A lavabo, by the front door, is filled with greenery sprayed with a touch of snow, with gold balls and spikes added to the arrangement.

The double doorway to the living room is outlined with evergreen boughs, with a "kissing" ball hanging from the center of the doorway. The ball, a special gift from a friend, is used the same as the old custom of using mistletoe. The "kissing" ball is made of a styrofoam base, with dried cornflowers stuck into the ball, completely covering it. The surface is then sprayed with gold paint, and green glitter balls inserted at intervals to give color. It makes an unusual ornament.

In the living room, an attractive arrangement atop the radio catches the eye. Two red candles are set in a styrofoam base, surrounded with sprigs of green holly, red berries and two pine cones sprayed with a touch of silver. Four choir children are standing in the arrangement.

On the coffee table is a nativity scene, many years old, that is the favorite of the children who arrange and rearrange it each day. The Bells use the scene each Christmas to remind the children that Christmas is the celebration of Jesus' birthday and not just a time for Santa to come and replenish the toy supply. The scene shows the baby Jesus lying in the manger, filled with real straw, with the mother Mary watching over Him and the protective figure of Joseph standing nearby.

The piano is decorated with a fascinating Santa made from a stemmed goblet. Santa's beard is made of white felt, the nose and mouth of red felt and blue felt was used for the eyes. His cap is made of red and white felt, covered with vari-colored sequins in the shapes of stars and snowflakes. A long tassel with things that have happy memories connected with them and are of sentimental value in this special season. Faith in the world and our fellowman is renewed by a visit to the home of "out-giving" kind of folks, the Bells.

MILBURN MOTOR CO.
EMMETT MILBURN

HEREFORD BULL

BY JIMMIE GILLENTE
These days we have some sort of law to cover just about any circumstance you can dream up. There is one class of people, though, who need to be legislated upon. That's the characters who fabricate these Christmas gifts which come knocked down to be "assembled in a few seconds" by the man of the house. I got my first taste of this away back down the line when I had to slip around and assemble my first doll bed in the wee hours of Christmas morning. I tried to get the chore done several nights before but, always, when the hammer banged out the first lick a little tow-head would pop around the corner and a high-pitched voice would want to know, "Whatcha doin' dada?" By the time my wife could get the kid back into bed, I would have everything hidden in the closet — and never could locate all of the tools until daylight the next morning.

Since then I have assembled swing sets, rocket guns, marble games, simulated atom bomb sets, and robots — just to mention a few. I have turned to toy pianos, patched bicycle tubes, dressed dolls, and set up ten pins on Christmas day. It seems to me when you pay your money for something, you should not have to waste those precious "few seconds" it takes to manufacture the item. Besides I must be a little bit dumb, because it often takes me an hour or two to accomplish one of these minor assembly jobs.

All of this naturally comes under the privilege of being a father, but it somehow creates within me a strange affinity for those Kentucky moonshiners. Their job is tough enough competing with the big companies, but they face the added chore of dodging the revenuers. Besides, it is unfair to organized labor. When the average father attaches attached point "A" and point "B," then swivels the joint, he may well be knocking some deserving fellow American out of a job — and I always had my doubts if this saying was passed along to the customer. Worst-of all, though, it leaves him a bit sluggish all day Christmas, making it double hard for him to dodge wind-up cars, electric trains and moving jungle animals; in addition, we must now cope with flying ping-pong balls and those dolls which leave set spots on your best suit.

On the brighter side of things, Leo Forrest is looking for some Cotton Bowl tickets. If you have any extras, give him a ring. The Texas-Mississippi game seems to be one of those everyone wants to see.

Size of the shopping crowds is encouraging. I appreciate the fact that I am not the only sluggard. As an old hand at last-minute shopping, my only advice is not to let anyone hook you on one of these "put-it-together-yourself" deals — unless you are a second rate genius with a degree in mechanical engineering.

I was talking with a county official the other day, and he tells me that we have two situations which could become serious. The sale of marijuana to youngsters is becoming more extensive, floating mostly here through Amarillo sources. There also seems to be a group of boys who specialize in long hair, and sometimes carry special brands on their hands and lower lips. The subject is far from pleasant to contemplate, but it is certainly something that should be curbed. It is not rife, but worries our officers from time to time.

Not long ago, when I complained because the windshield on my car iced over, Pat Wedderbrook tried to sell me a horse. He said they never ice over. While I was still making up my mind, I ran across the following item, however, which I found most discouraging:

"Even at its dangerous worst, the automobile, proportionately, was never as great a killer as the horse. In 1960, for example, 3,850 persons lost their lives in accidents involving horses and horse-drawn vehicles. The horse was not driven more than 500 miles a year. On a mileage basis, compared with the automobile's average run of 10,000 miles a year, the horse was twice as deadly as the automobile."

This will probably draw some fan mail from the Riders Club, but who am I to argue with statistics? Besides, I remember when Nell Spradley broke her arm.

Al Yeager gave me the following item the other day. It was written by a 7-year-old boy to describe his feelings about a newspaper:

"We need newspapers so we can know who reks and who drowns and who shoots some body. And who wants a house and who dies and who gets a baby. It tells if your dog is lost. They are good on shelves and to make bonfires. They also do good on babies plate and keep out under things. You can put out down when you defrost. They tell about snows and how much things are."

G. D. Caison, Jr., on the other hand, was reminding me only this week that just because it has the name printed across the top does not necessarily make it a newspaper.

I notice that more and more people are getting their Christmas home and yard decorations up. It is real nice to drive a round and see them at night. I am especially happy to see more of our churches take an interest in the occasion of Christmas. Instead of sitting back and complaining about too much commercialization of the occasion, they are doing their best to shift the Christmas interest back where it belongs. This is the American way of doing things, and the church has every advantage because that is where Christmas originated.

This Christmas edition comes to you with greetings from many people. All of them are honest and sincere in their wishes, chiefly because we live in one of the nicest communities in all the world. Need less to say, it is the people who make the community — and not the community which makes the people. Right now seems an excellent time to join them in wishing each of you

Ninth Gets Canyon In Fourth Victory

Pouring in 24 points in the third quarter, the Stanton freshmen tripped up the Canyon Eagles here Monday while claiming a 55-44 victory.

It was win number four for the Stanton ninth grade, as they evened up their season record. Taking a two-week rest, the Dogies do not see action until they play host to Littlefield Jan. 4.

Big Johnny Dowd ripped the cords with 21 points to take scoring honors in the duel. Dowd poured in 17 points during the trail-blazing third quarter. Eagles totaled 19 points during the fast-moving period.

Both teams came to a screeching halt following their scoring rampage in the third quarter, as Hereford hit only seven and Canyon eight in the final round. With Dowd, Frank Cain, and Robert Strange nitting from the floor, the Dogies took a 11-7 first quarter advantage, which Stanton held the remainder of the game.

Leading 24-19 at the half, Stanton, as well as Canyon, returned from the dressing room with high-scoring ambitions during the third round.

Larry Minks and Doug Watson contributed the only field goals for the Dogies in the fourth period as the Dogies latched onto a 55-44 win over the Eagles.

Rampaging Seventh Graders Rack Up Run-Away Victories

In what might mildly be termed as a run-away, the Stanton Dogies stamped over Levelland to the tune of 40-4 to claim the championship of the Golden Spread Conference Tournament in Levelland Friday and Saturday.

After drawing a bye for the first round of the meet, Stanton romped over Levelland in the finals to win first place.

Jimmy Allison poured in 18 points, as Larry Noland hit for 10 to lead Stanton offensive efforts. Ronnie Plyman took scoring honors for Levelland three of their four points.

Hereford had no trouble rolling over the young Lobos, as Levelland was scoreless in the first quarter, hit for three in the second, one in the third, and was hapless again in the final round.

Stanton used reserves the majority of the game, but still could not hold the score down.

In another tilt against the lagging Levelland squad, this time at Hereford in a regular conference tilt, the Dogies built another 40-9 run-away.

Once again, the Dogies had no competition in the Lobos, while leading all the way.

Coach Archie Souter's seventh grade Dogies remain undefeated and almost uncontested after seven games. Scoring a total of 283 points as opposed to 118, the Dogies have averaged slightly over 40 points while limiting opponents to an average of only slightly over 16 points per outing.

At Canyon Tuesday, the Dogies racked up win number seven with a 45-17 stomp over the scoring again with 21 points.

Stanton trailed one point following the first round of play with an 8-9 reading, but came roaring back to limit the Eagles to only eight points during the remaining three quarters of play.

'Deaf' Smith Says

TO: The Spirit of General Sam Houston
FROM: The Spirit of Erastus "Deaf" Smith
SUBJECT: The Christmas Spirit

This is the time of year, Sam, when the committees of my Chamber of Commerce are almost completely inactive, it is the one time of year when the members of the organization must give the most time to their families and friends and to their businesses.

It is the time when the staff gets all of those jobs done that pile up during the year when there are more important things to be done. The files are cleared ready for the new year; the annual report of activities is prepared; committee chairmen, budget and other organizational arrangements are prepared. Because of the lack of direct membership activity to report, Sam, I got to thinking about the "Christmas Spirit," Sam; the spirit of giving.

Many people associate giving only with the separation of a person from a part of his material wealth either in the form of cash or material presents. In my Chamber of Commerce, Sam, and in the churches and in the whole realm of community living there is a form of giving that I see as being far more important. That giving is the gift of one's time and talents to those things in which the individual believes.

There is an old saying that long pre-dates our time, Sam, that "if you have a job to be done, give it to a busy man" (and a modern addition) "and he'll see to it that his secretary gets it done!" The people who turn up as officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce, as committee chairmen, and filling important committee positions are the same people who turn up as presidents of their service clubs, officers in their trade associations, filling important positions in their churches, serving as county, city and school board members, as Boy Scout or Campfire workers and in the many other positions of voluntary committee work and leadership.

From a negative side, too often is heard the complaint that the city, the Chamber, or some other organization is run by a clique. It is true that often time new and willing workers are overlooked because the man who has a job to be done goes to the people that he knows will get the job done; but usually the people who are givers of their time and effort will find a job that they can do.

Who then make this "clique" that runs every organization? The clique is made up of those people who, over a number of years, have become known as community service jobs, often jobs that are not only thankless but often earn criticism and, in some cases, even business reprisals.

As I said earlier, Sam, it is not just the givers of material wealth that have the true Christmas spirit. Too often a financial contribution is an excuse. Those who give of their time and talents have the true Christmas spirit the whole year through. Merry Christmas to you and a Happy New Year.

YULETIDE GREETINGS

Once more the season of song and merriment is at hand. May we add our greeting to this harmonious chorus and wish you joy, good health and continued happiness.

Christmas Informs Entire World That America Is A Christian Nation

Christian means many things to many people. If there exists any general application, we could say it is based upon the phrase, "Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men."

A highly sentimental people, we like to have our family and friends about us on the occasion, and we will go to any extreme to achieve this measure, including the risk of our lives on dangerous highways. We enjoy exchanging gifts and, too often, will over-spend our budgets or go in debt to make those we love happy. Instead of a frown or a scowl, we are prone to smile and exchange pleasant greetings during the Christmas Season.

These practices are sometimes over-indulged by a few but, for the most part, it seems to us that Christmas is one of the finest observances on the face of the earth. Furthermore, we do not see how anyone can honestly and sincerely criticize this particular portion of the American way of life.

Even those who feel that Christ has been eliminated from Christmas must admit that it is the one time of the year when many people are prone to seriously consider religion and, even once a year is better than never at all. They must also recognize the fact that charitable efforts on the occasion bring happiness and joy to many underprivileged homes.

Actually Christmas tells the entire world each year that America is a Christian nation. If it labels us as a weak and sentimental nation in the eyes of some, well and good, because it does represent our feelings as a people — and we think the world would be a better place if — even just once a year — all people around the entire globe might feel their hearts swell with love, generosity, and goodwill toward their fellow men.

Christmas started almost 2,000 years ago and, despite the occasional criticism it draws from a minority, it will likely remain with us until a better plan is devised. This undoubtedly will cover many years to come.

If Jesus Were Driving Today

M. M. Burkett

If Jesus were the driver of a car, how do you think He would drive it? You honest opinion is that He would be driving quite differently from the way many people drive. Would He drive the way you drive?

It is time that Christian people gave the subject some thought. The slaughter on the highways has reached alarming proportions. How many of the accidents involve a lack of courtesy or downright selfishness? Anyone who sits down behind the wheel of an automobile assumes a responsibility to God and man for the way he drives that car.

We can be sure that Jesus would be a safe and careful driver, the kind whom you like to meet on the road. Since He said to treat others as we would like to be treated (Matthew 7:12), and to love our neighbors as ourselves (Mark 12:31), we would expect Him always to be fair to others. He would leave them half the road, their turn at stops, and not crowd them at intersections.

Would Jesus stop for a stop sign even if He thought no traffic was coming? Would He drive faster than the legal limit? Remember, Jesus had great respect for civil government and taught that God stood back of its authority. He said "Render therefore unto Caesar (the civil authority) the things which are Caesar's" (Matthew 22:21). The Apostles, when passing the teaching of Jesus on to us, said, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers (civil governments)" (Romans 13:1). "The powers that be (civil governments) are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the powers, resisteth the ordinance of God." (1 Peter 2:13).

Must Christians have the police standing over them before they will obey the traffic laws? Can anyone break those laws and get by with it?

Do you think Jesus would take chances on the road? Tired of poking behind a line of cars, would He pull out with no opening ahead — on the chance that He could get in farther up the line somewhere? It was He who said, "In your patience possess ye your souls" (Luke 21:19).

Would He drive faster than a safe speed for the time and place and His ability? No, He would not drive dangerously at all. Remember that once when the Devil asked Jesus to take a chance, He replied positively, "It is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God" (Matthew 4:7).

Any traffic accident is unpleasant, causing unhappiness and suffering. Would anyone want the lifelong memory and regret concerning the victim whom he maimed or killed? Is it not better to be as careful, as patient, and as courteous as possible when you are the driver — always asking God for wisdom and help? Jesus is not here in person to drive a car. But we who are Christians represent Him. Are we a menace or a blessing on the highway?

Crime Wave In Smaller Cities

Organized crime is generally accepted by people in rural areas as something found only in the big cities. Within the past four months, however, two groups have been charged with organized burglary; one group was uncovered in Dimmitt and the second in Hereford.

While most of us are willing to admit that crime is not confined to specific boundaries, it does upset our thinking to realize that the smaller communities are susceptible to such offenses. Cities held more attraction for criminals in the past; due likely to revenues from narcotics and prostitution, and frequently other crimes radiated from this nucleus.

Today the smaller towns boast shopping facilities, living conditions, schools and governmental agencies which compare to the cities. It is not surprising, therefore, that they should breed or attract organized crime, just as they appeal to other walks of life.

Fortunately, both Hereford and Dimmitt possess qualified city and county law enforcement officials, a fact which is attested from the very circumstance that the two groups were arrested and charged. This is the best solution which seems to have emerged from the larger cities and, though not a perfect answer, it does provide a measure of protection.

Meanwhile, more realistic residents of smaller communities may just as well face facts. The days when it was safe to leave keys in a parked automobile or leave the house unlocked when you leave are no more. Crime, per capita, can become just as rampant in Hereford and Dimmitt as in Amarillo, Lubbock and Dallas.

You Can Lead A Horse To Water

"You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink!"

The adage has been applied to many things and, currently, it seems highly applicable to the government sponsored plan on fall-out shelters. Up to now the proposal, despite wide publicity, has resulted chiefly in controversy, when it is considered at all by the average citizen. Hereford and Deaf Smith County are certainly no exception.

Americans in general, seem to go along with the idea that not too much protection is available through present facilities, or perhaps, they are merely indifferent and, once an actual bomb threat exists, may do a complete about face.

Government planners keep plowing a straight furrow, however, and are currently making surveys to house citizens in case of attacks away from home. Large buildings, both public and private, are being designated as shelter points for government improvement and inspection. Plans are underway to stock these public shelters with food, and practically every hamlet across the nation has committees and organizations scheduled to swing into action should atomic bombs start raining from the skies.

Many people in this particular area justify the few fall-out shelters which exist with the fact that they double as tornado shelters, thus serving a double purpose.

All in all, the people may be said to be matching wits with the federal leaders in regard to possible attack, and concerning the protection which the shelters actually provide. Generally speaking, they are a long way from agreeing with the bureaucrats and their general conclusions. As to who is right and who is wrong, only time will tell.

A Family's Traditions Grow Stronger In Time

BY MRS. R. L. CRISWELL

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the house, every creature was stirring, Mom, Pop but no mouse. The kids were all peeping, most anxious to see—Just what their parents would put under the tree. The tree had been up since Thanksgiving, no doubt, the packages shook till their contents spilled out. Not a gift had been shook that its owner could tell if it had been asked for, if not then, oh well! Now Christmas just ain't what it used to be, folks, as grandpa and grandma are happy to tell us. Before Santa's face and his reindeer turn red, lets all be good fellows and get into bed. I am sure our parents will be most happy if we wake Christmas morning, both bright and snappy."

This is with all apologies due Clark Moore Clements and his poem "A visit from St. Nicholas."

It's fun to make a parody, but we need to be most appreciative of the legends and traditions of Christmas. If your family does not have a tradition, it's time to start one now. Our tradition was the reading of the Christmas Story in Luke 2, one through twenty, by the youngest member of the family able to read. Usually this was a coveted privilege, one not forgotten as the youngsters began going to school. This was read on Christmas Eve after every one was ready for bed or just before the evening meal.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Awtry, on the Dimmitt highway, say their grandchildren delight in asking the blessing on Christmas morning and each must ask God to bless each one present and call them by name. Can you think of anything sweeter than the blessing of little ones?

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Allred say they always have a Christmas program of the children reciting or reading favorite Christmas poems or what they have learned in school. The program is not set as to length but lasts as long as the children desire, and of course, ends with singing carols. Christmas just doesn't seem like Christmas unless there is carol singing by the family group.

Since Christmas was born of love of God for his creations, let us look to the word love. "L" goes up to God and down to his people across the whole world to whom ever will accept and believe on Him. The "O" is the circle that encircles us lets us know that He is in the circle and cares for us. "V" shows the growth of that love as it begins from a tiny dot and goes out and up increasing as our service to Him grows. "E" is for each and all, none are left out. He careth for the sparrow and knows when one falls and so much for each individual that "the very hair of your head is numbered." Mat. 10:30.

Let's remember the word "LOVE" in connection with Christmas and let us also remember that God sent His Son that we might live and it is the celebration of His birth that we at Christmas should remember. God gave the first gift in love for us and so we give to those we love and to those that have need but are unable to care for themselves.

Let us remember when we read the story of "The Littlest Angel," "The Other Wise Man" and a host of others that they are inspiring but the real story, the story of "the Babe in a manger" is the story of love, the story ever new, and never old. Let's take that story to heart and put Christ back into Christmas, so much so that those who are in need will see Him in the things that we do and in the very lives that we live, and remember too that the only Bible some may read is in your life, the way you live it in your home, in your business and in your church.

May each and all have a loving and merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

WORK FOR ADDED PAVING

First step in ultimately paving an additional 38 blocks of city streets was taken Monday night by the city commission. City Manager Bill York said work should begin on the improvement by the time weather permits next spring. In the first step toward paving, the commission instructed the city manager to prepare an ordinance of intent to pave. York said the paving program will cost the city about $21,088 as compared to $20,000 spent on street improvement last year. The money will come from general revenues. The city's portion of the project includes paving of intersections and the portions of streets lying between alley ways. The project will include curbing, guttering, base and pavement of the blocks of streets included. No figures on cost to property holders have been released yet. York said these figures will not be known exactly until competitive bids have been taken.

ST. PATRICK AT COTON BOWL

Shure and a little bit o' Erin will be added to the Cotton Bowl parade to be held in Dallas, starting at 10 a.m. New Year's Day. Entered in the procession, which will be viewed by an estimated quarter of a million people, will be a colorful float representing an equally colorful festival — the St. Patrick's Day Celebration, staged annually on March 17 in this Texas Panhandle town. Building the float will be Carl Williams, who is serving his second consecutive year as general chairman of the St. Patrick's Day Association, the second man ever to hold that distinction; and Shirley Draper, former general chairman, who is the association's float chairman for the seventh straight year. Assisting the two Irishmen in creating the parade entry will be their wives.

FEW HAVE SHELTERS

A survey by science students shows Olton is not prepared for a radio-active fallout warning and that most people aren't concerned about it. Results of the survey were reported Tuesday night at a city council meeting. The survey was a project of a class taught by James Coley. A total of 155 homes were visited, with these answers coming to the following list of questions: 1. Do you think nuclear war is likely? Not likely: 21.3%; Possible: 59.3%; Probable: 19.4%. 2. Should preparations be made for radioactive fallout? Should prepare: 69.2%; No use to prepare: 30.8%. 3. Do you have to plan to prepare against fallout? Yes: 20.3%; No: 79.7%. 4. Do you have a fallout shelter? Yes: 1.5%; No: 98.5%. 5. Do you plan to build one in the next six months or year? Yes: 32.8%; No: 67.2%.

RECHARGE WELL NOT FEASIBLE

Members of the City Planning Commission heard W. L. Broadhurst, hydrologist for the High Plains Water District, advise against the possibility of placing a recharge well in Laguna Park. Broadhurst said, "I don't think a recharge well is the feasible solution and even if it were practical it would not solve your problem of flash flooding." He continued he knew of only two recharge wells that have not failed completely or partially and spoke of the first recharge well placed in this area in 1936 by the Highway Department. The well was located between Littlefield and Amherst and the first time it was used it was successful but the second time the well had silted up and was useless. As a solution to the Laguna Park situation, Broadhurst recommended "excavation as the same approach."

THE BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm has found out what time of the year it is, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:

"Somebody left a door open last night and the wind blew in and turned the pages of my calendar and I glanced up and discovered this isn't October, it's December, and Monday is Christmas. I don't know how it got here, but it's all right with me.

I know there are people who think Christmas comes too often, but they probably think Spring comes too often, too, that children grow up too fast, etc. They take a one-sided view. Most children I've ever known were eager to grow up, and it's only the old folks, who are in the minority, who hoped they'd slow down.

People are always being surprised by things in time. Every Spring I hear some farmer say, "Why, planting time will be here before you know it." So what? I've had years when not only did planting time get here before I knew it, it passed before I knew it. And I've had years when it didn't slip up on me and I got my seed in the ground on time and wound up the year in about the same shape I would have if I'd slept through it.

Now about Christmas, though. I know it's more blessed to give than to receive, but I wish somebody would let Mr. Khrushchev know this doesn't apply to atom bombs. I have a notion though that Christmas will still be here after Mr. Khrushchev is gone.

But back to more pleasant things. For years I have been working on a Christmas Gift Parity Program, whereby everybody gets as many presents as he sends, with the government making up the cash difference in case you over-calculate and send more than you receive, but I haven't gotten anywhere with it. People say it won't work, but they say the same thing about the farm program, foreign aid, etc., and yet the government keeps plugging away at those.

Actually, I don't know of anything that would stimulate business more. If everybody knew he was going to get as much as he sent, the stores would sell out before now and Christmas. For example, if you gave away 500 subscriptions to The Hereford Brand, and all you got for Christmas was a few trinkets, the government would pay you the difference, and who is there to say this wouldn't create a circulation boom?

And don't tell me it would wreck the government's budget. The government's budget has been wrecked for two generations, and it's still functioning. Arguing the government shouldn't adopt my Christmas Parity Program is like arguing a man shouldn't buy something till he can afford it. Congress repealed that law years ago. Merry Christmas.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Freshmen Fall In Finals To Claim Tourney Honors

Winning second place in the Golden Spread Conference Tournament, the Stanton Junior High School Freshmen Dogies were tripped up in the finals held at Levelland Friday and Saturday.

After edging Coronado Junior High of Plainview, the Dogies fell to Estacado, also of Plainview, by a 41-28 score in the finals to settle for second place honors.

Frank Cain netted 12, and Charlie Moreno scored nine as the Dogies pulled a two-point win over Coronado in the second round, after drawing a bye for the initial round at Levelland.

Stanton led 18-15 at the half, and lost only one point of the lead during the point-for-point match until the final buzzer. Lynn Cook added five in the limited-scoring game, with Johnny Dowd sinking three, Robert Strange two, and Gary Roberson a single free throw.

As Stanton entered the finals against Estacado, Johnny Dowd paced the Dogie scoring with ten points while being defeated 41-28. Frank Cain netted eight, and Robert Strange six.

Lynn Cook sank Stanton's lonely field goal in the first quarter, as Hereford failed to get rolling before facing an 11-2 deficit.

Robert Strange contributed six from the floor during the second quarter to lead Stanton scoring, but the Dogies still faced a 13-17 short-coming at halftime.

Johnny Dowd claimed six and Frank Cain two to give the Dogies a total of eight points during the third stanza, as Estacado increased its lead to eight points.

Limited to only seven points, Stanton slipped behind even more as Estacado won 41-28.

Stanton Dogies Down Levelland In Loop Play

In their second Conference tilt of the season, the Stanton Junior High School freshmen defeated the Levelland ninth graders 37-31 here Thursday.

It was the first conference win for the Dogies, as opposed to a loss to Estacado in their conference opener. Stanton has a 3-4 mark for this season.

Taking a two-week rest, Stanton is off until Jan. 4 when they host the Littlefield Wildcats in the Stanton gym.

Gaining a 12-7 lead during the first quarter, the Hereford squad retained the advantage throughout the remainder of the game. Robert Strange, with 13, and Frank Cain with 10, paced the Dogie scoring once again against Levelland.

Stanton led 21-16 at the half. Gary Roberson, Johnny Dowd, Strange, and Cain netted field goals in the third round as the Dogies clung to the five-point edge.

With Cain scoring the only two-point shot, the Dogies hit only six points in the final round, but managed to win 37-31.

Stanton Eighth Defeats Canyon For Seventh Win

Stanton Junior High School eighth graders took their sixth straight win as they pounced over the Canyon Eagles 45-18 here Monday.

Giving them a 7-1 season record, the Dogies take two weeks off until playing host to Littlefield Jan. 4.

Canyon remained scoreless after the first period of play, and was allowed only four points in the second quarter by the merciless Stanton defense. The Dogies racked up a 27-4 first half lead.

Steve Hodges once again led Dogie scoring with 16 points. All Dogies saw lots of action, as Canyon offered little resistance to the Stanton steamrollers, who have totaled 271 points during their first eight games. Stanton's opponents have managed only 174 against the Dogies.

KNOWLEDGE DOUBLING

Minneapolis (AP) — If you think school was tough in your day, pity the poor scholar of five years hence.

Dr. A. Richard Baldwin, research director of a farm products firm, estimates that man's accumulation of knowledge will double between 1960 and 1967. It will be the fourth time that man's volume of knowledge has doubled, says Dr. Baldwin. Previous times were between 1750 and 1900; between 1900 and 1950; and between 1950 and 1960.

ter in marriage. She wore a waltz-length gown of chantilly lace fashioned with a fitted bodice and long tapering sleeves. The bouffant skirt was accented by a peplum of matching lace. The bride's jewelry was a heart-shaped diamond necklace, gift of the bridegroom. A coronet of lace, seed pearls and sequins held her veil of tiered illusion. She carried an arrangement of white carnations and pink rosebuds.

Peggy Mallow, maid of honor, wore a dress of aqua chiffon and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Best man was Tom T. Cheek of Dallas. Ushers included James Pressley of Littlefield and Ray Graham, brother of the bride.

Kelly Graham, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. The reception was held in the Graham residence. Members of the household were Mrs. Ray Graham, Mary Catherine Beck of Wichita Falls, Brenda Ford of Fort Worth, Donivee Roden of Cleburne and Glenda Wilson of Wichita Falls.

For traveling the bride chose a black wool suit with a white fur collar. Her hat was of white fur and she wore white kid gloves. Her other accessories were of black leather.

The bride, a graduate of Abilene High School, is a senior at Hardin-Simmons University where she is president of Tri-Phi, member of the Student Senate and University Princess. She served as head varsity cheerleader in 1960.

The bridegroom was graduated from Washington-Lee High School. He attended American University in Washington, D. C., and is a senior at H-SU where he is a member of Tau Alpha Phi, Phi Mu Alpha and Student Senate. He served with the U. S. Marine Corps for three years. The couple will be at home in Abilene after Jan. 1.

peace, good will toward men!”

How wondrous the message given to all mankind at Bethlehem nearly two thousand years ago. Now, on Christmas Eve in 1961, an uneasy world pauses to hear the glad tidings, and is filled with hope and joy once more.

For the Prince of Peace is born anew in the silent hearts of men;
May His loving peace abide with you as He comes to us again.
