Berri says hostage ordeal nearing end

By SCHEHEREZADE FARAMARZI
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri said today that the two-week-old ordeal of the 39 American hijack hostages in Beirut was nearing an end.

He talked to Western television reporters at his heavily fortified house in west Beirut minutes after coming from a 30-minute meeting with French Embassy First Secretary Marcel L'Angel.

"I'm waiting for an answer. Until now I don't receive any answer from U.S. government," Berri said in English. "But I think we're in the end, end of this thing."

Beirut radio stations said France had offered to house the 39 Americans, taken hostage in the hijacking of a TWA airliner on June 14, and two kidnapped Frenchmen at its west Beirut embassy for two days on condition Israel freed 735 Lebanese prisoners.

But the French Foreign Ministry in Paris issued a statement saying: "We cannot act as substitute jailers. ... We are ready to welcome liberated people, not hostages."

L'Angel said after meeting Berri that "moving the hostages to an embassy would be a long-term matter. It will take a lot of talks to get them there."

In Bern, Switzerland, the government said it was studying an offer from Berri to transfer the American hostages to the Swiss Embassy.

The wife of one of the two kidnapped Frenchmen said French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas told her today that her husband, magazine writer Jean-Paul Kaufmann, and the other Frenchman, scientific researcher Michel Seurat, had been handed over to Berri.

Gunmen kidnapped the two Frenchmen on the highway to Beirut airport May 22.

Berri told a news conference Wednesday men who kidnapped the Frenchmen had contacted him to say they had decided to put the pair in his charge "in the same position" as the hostages from the TWA flight.

Berri, 46, is leader of the Amal militia guarding 36 American hostages in secret Beirut hideouts. Three crew members remain aboard the jet at the Beirut airport.

Media Center Masonry

Brick framing is going up on the west side of Aikman Elementary. The 3500 square foot construction, hoped to be complete by fall classes, will house the school's new media center. The project is part of a $289,500 joint venture for the center and for renovations at Shirley Elementary.

The Hereford Police Department is training its first female patrol officer under terms of the proposed out-of-court settlement of a sex discrimination suit filed in February.

Dee Toler Page, 23, who had sued the department and the City of Hereford in an effort to obtain a job on the force, had been in training since June 16.

While the U.S. District Judge has not yet agreed to the settlement and dismissal of the suit, Page's attorney, Betty Wheeler of Amarillo, said Wednesday she expects the judge to do so next week.

Page filed the suit after being turned down for a job as a patrol officer Oct. 12, 1983. She was an August, 1983 graduate of the Amarillo College police academy and had passed an examination given by the department to applicants for police officer positions.

The suit quoted statements submitted by attorneys for the City of Hereford to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission when it was considering whether Page had grounds for a suit. Although both the city and Page have said the statements were not exact quotes, the gist of the statement was that neither Police Chief Caydon Brush nor former City Manager Dudley Bayne felt a woman belonged on the police force.

Page had sought back pay from the time her application was denied, but under terms of the settlement withdrew that request.

"She got what she had sought, a job with the department," Wheeler commented. "To her the most important thing was the job."

Page was awarded attorney's fees in the amount of $2,000 and unspecified court costs. She first began work with the department June 10 as a relief dispatcher, and was moved to patrol officer trainee when a position became available.

The suit had asked that the city and the police department be found guilty of discrimination under Title Seven of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and that the plaintiffs be enjoined from practicing such discrimination in the future.

The U.S. Department of Justice had granted Page the right to sue based on the EEOC's ruling that there was reasonable cause to believe the charge of discrimination was true.

One term of the settlement is that the City of Hereford and the Police Department are not admitting to any wrongdoing in their failure to hire Page when she first applied for the job.

Neither Brush nor Page would comment on the proposed settlement.

Gas leak explodes in Texas

CLEVELAND, Texas (AP) — An explosion believed triggered by a gas leak ripped through a building in the downtown section of this town of 6,000 people early today and fire quickly spread to other buildings in the block.

No one was reported injured and the fire was declared under control about 7:30 a.m. CDT, authorities said.

By mid-morning the blaze was out although officials were worried that another gas leak could set off a second explosion, said Steve Wheeler, fire chief in Cleveland, a community about 45 miles north of Houston.

Police dispatcher Maxine Smith said no one was evacuated. The blast levelled the Trinity Valley Floor Co., a floor-covering firm, with the fire spreading to three adjacent businesses.

"At first they told us the whole block was on fire," she said.

But later she said it was learned only about four buildings were on fire, including a jewelry store, an attorney's office and the Cleveland Advocate, the town's weekly newspaper.

"It's in the business area, and we don't think anyone was around at that time," Ms. Smith said.

The downtown area was immediately cordoned off, and no one was being allowed in the area except for emergency personnel, she added.

At least seven fire department were summoned to the scene, including firefighters from the towns of Dayton, Splendora, Montgomery and Cold Springs.

Two car mishaps involve buildings

Wednesday was a "crazy day", according to a Hereford Police Department spokesperson.

Two unusual traffic accidents were investigated, both involving damage to local businesses.

The first mishap occurred at 11:20 a.m., when a car ran into the front window of Betty's Shoes, 319 N. Main.

The vehicle had pulled into a parking space in front of the store and jumped the curb after an apparent brake failure. The man was cited for driving with defective equipment and having no liability insurance, second offense.

At 2:16 p.m. Wednesday, the Allsup's Store on N. Highway 385 was damaged after being crashed into by a car driven by a 14-year-old girl.

Hereford Police said the girl allegedly took the car without her parent's permission, taking her one-year-old niece along. The little girl suffered a minor cut to her lip but the driver was unharmed.

Police said they believe the young woman hit the accelerator instead of the brakes when she pulled up in front of the store. Damage of $400 to $500 was estimated by police, with only minor damage to the vehicle.

The driver was cited for striking a fixed object, driving without a valid license, driving with no liability insurance and failure to restrain a young child.

Police also dealt with such problems as children riding bicycles in the street and refusing to move for traffic, a girl who was hit by a BB gun as she walked along Park Avenue, and a woman wandering around on S. Highway 385.

There was one arrest for driving while license suspended and one theft report, of a $45 battery taken from a vehicle.

Chavez cancels LULAC speech

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Cesar Chavez, leader of the United Farm Workers, has pulled out of a scheduled speech to the League of United Latin American Citizens because of a flap over a contribution by the Adolph Coors Co.

Several groups, including Hispanic students and the AFL-CIO in Los Angeles, announced plans Wednesday to set up informational pickets outside the league's national convention here on Friday.

The AFL-CIO has longstanding complaints about the Golden, Colo. brewer's non-union hiring practices and Hispanic students lashed out at what they termed Coors' "hypocritical" donations to Hispanic groups.

Chavez told organizers of the convention, which began Wednesday at the Anaheim Marriott Hotel, that he would not cross picket lines to address the convention Saturday. About 7,000 members are expected to attend the 56th Annual league convention that runs through Sunday.

"This protest will hurt," said the convention chairman, Manuel Marquez.

However, Marquez said he participated in a two-year effort to find corporations willing to donate funds for this week's convention. Coors, which gave about $60,000, was among 10 major contributors that gave $50,000 or more.

"It's very hard to raise money," Marquez said. "These people (protesters) think it's easy. It's not. We got turned down by many, many corporations. I'm glad that Coors has decided to sponsor us."

Organizers of the protest sharply attacked an agreement reached last October between Coors and six Hispanic groups, in which Coors agreed to invest $350 million in the Hispanic community over the next five years.

After the agreement was signed, some Hispanic groups dropped their support for a boycott organized by the AFL-CIO in 1977 because of alleged anti-union activities.

The league was not a part of the agreement, however, and at the time, a league spokesman for several Orange County chapters denounced it as a sham.

Stephanie Lopez, a spokeswoman for a Hispanic student coalition at California State University Fullerton, said the protest is intended to rebut Coors' "hypocrisy" and "sleight of hand" agreements that she said have served as corporate public relations tools.

She said her coalition also opposes Coors' labor practices and the Coors family's support of right-wing political causes that hurt minorities, she said.

Two hostages call home from Beirut

By The Associated Press
Two of the men taken captive in the hijacking of TWA flight 847 telephoned loved ones to say they were well, the families and friends said today.

The girlfriend of Ralf Traugott, a Massachusetts auto dealer, said he told her his captors wanted her to go to Lebanon.

"I understand they may be inviting family members to Beirut, but as of yet, I am the only one who has been invited," said Niki Assimakopoulos of Fitchburg, Mass.

She said she did not know if she would go, adding the invitation in the Wednesday night call was to travel to the Middle East "very soon."

Allyn Conwell, of Houston, was allowed to make two telephone calls to his wife in Greece, his wife said.

"It was a wonderful surprise, I just wish he was calling from some place outside of Beirut," Mrs. Conwell told the Houston Chronicle.

Mrs. Conwell, who is staying with her parents in Corfu, Greece, said her husband, who acted as spokesman for the hostages at a press conference last week, told her he was well.

"He was just trying to assure me no harm was going to come and they (the Amal captors) do want him to go to a neutral place."

Mrs. Conwell said the calls, about two hours apart, lasted about 20 minutes each and that her husband appeared to be calm.

Mrs. Conwell also said that during the conversation, a Shiite militia member got on the line to say the captors did not intend to harm the

Helicopter crash fatal to Dallas pilot

DALLAS (AP) — An off-duty police pilot killed when his helicopter crashed in a residential area of southeast Dallas may have been trying to make an emergency landing when the fatal accident occurred, authorities said.

Cpl. James A. Redmon, 41, of Kaufman, had completed a charter flight and was heading to his base Wednesday when the helicopter clipped a clump of trees and crashed, police spokesman Bob Shaw said. No other injuries were reported and no passengers were aboard.

The helicopter — owned by Telstar Transports, a firm operated by off-duty officers — crashed into a field near houses.

"It looked like he had some trouble going over the houses, and to avoid going down on top of houses, he headed for this field," Lt. J.E. Haley said.

The helicopter's rotor blade hung in trees near the crash site.

Redmon had already dropped off the passengers at Redbird Airport and was apparently headed back to his base in Lancaster, a Dallas suburb, when the helicopter crashed, Haley said.

The pilot apparently started experiencing "some kind of malfunction" with the aircraft, he said.

"I was working in my back yard. I saw the helicopter lose altitude," said Mark Julian, 29. "You could hear the engine cutting off."

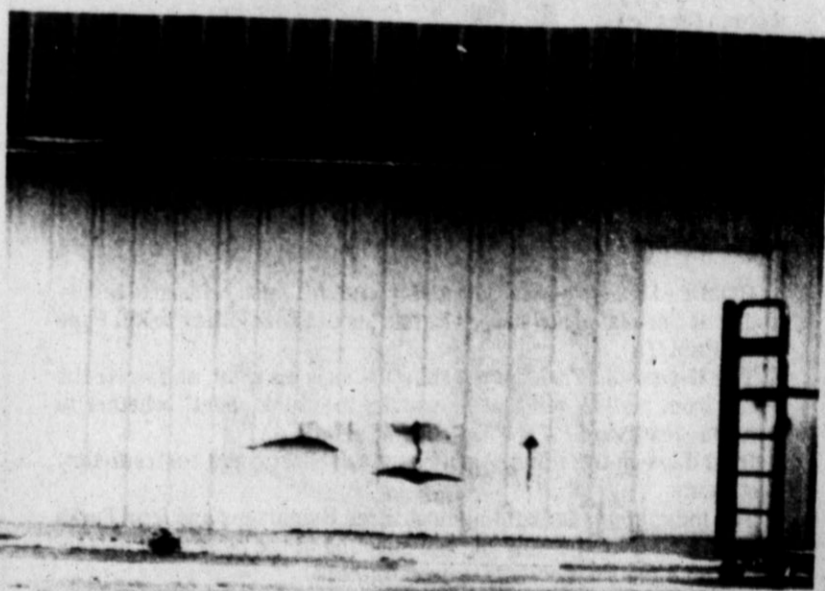

Redmon was thrown 10 yards and the helicopter broke into pieces, but there was no fire, Haley said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration were called to the scene.

The accident was reported to police at 11:41 a.m., police spokesman Ed Spencer said.

Redmon also was a major in the Air National Guard and had been on

Car Hits Building

A local Allsup's store was damaged Wednesday, after a car driven by a 14-year-old girl rammed the building. Police said the girl apparently hit the accelerator instead of the brakes, and she was issued four traffic tickets.

Teenage girl found stabbed to death

DALLAS (AP) — The body of a teen-age girl who disappeared from a doughnut shop last weekend was found stabbed to death beside a dirt road about 10 miles away, authorities said.

A construction worker found the nude, decomposed body of Jennifer Day, 14, about 7:15 a.m. Wednesday in the suburb of Plano.

Miss Day died of multiple stab wounds to the neck, Plano Justice of the Peace Tom Kelly said.

She was identified through dental records by the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office, Kelly said.

Her body was found near the site of a residential subdivision that is under construction, police said.

An autopsy was unable to determine if the girl had been sexually molested, Dallas police Lt. David Clary said.

Miss Day had been missing since she after opening the doughnut shop early Sunday morning.

Supreme Court ruling to be reviewed

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas attorney general's office will review a Wednesday U.S. Supreme Court ruling concerning religious days off to see if it affects legislation repealing the state's Blue Law.

The high court said states cannot force employers to give workers their choice of a religious day off each week.

Texas lawmakers this year voted down the 1961 Blue Law that effectively forced most stores to close on Sundays. The repeal bill includes provisions guaranteeing that Sunday work won't interfere with religious services.

"We have requested a copy of the opinion," said Loretta Hendley, spokeswoman for Attorney General Jim Mattox. "We will have no comment or opinion on it until we get a copy."

The Supreme Court action struck down a Connecticut law that protected employees from retaliation for missing work on their religious Sabbath.

Man hijacks Trailways bus

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A man wielding a knife hijacked a Trailways bus as it was leaving this East Texas town forcing the driver to take him to Louisiana, where he escaped in a car, authorities said.

The bus driver, Eugene Allen, 38, Tyler, said the hijacking occurred about 6:30 a.m. Tuesday when he was driving out of the bus depot.

Allen said the hijacker came walking toward him from the back of the bus, pulled a knife out and demanded the driver to go to Mount Enterprise, Texas, and then east on U.S. Highway 84.

"He kicked me up against the window, and put a knife against my ribs," Allen told the Tyler Courier Times Telegraph.

There were no other passengers on the bus, which was scheduled to take an Athens, Texas, group to Dallas, he said.

Pesticide plant blaze may be arson

THERMAL, Calif. (AP) — A pesticide plant blaze that kept 2,200 residents of two desert communities away from home today was a "carbon copy" of what may have been an arson fire that forced 7,500 people to flee four days earlier in Anaheim, officials say.

More than 120 people were treated Wednesday for chemical burns and respiratory ailments from the fire at the Wilbur-Ellis Co. plant, where authorities were allowing the fire to burn out by itself.

"It's all very lethal stuff," said Riverside County Fire Capt. Gene Ostrander. He estimated that 25 tons of farm chemicals, including malathion, paraquat, parathion and methyl bromide were stored at the plant.

Tons of pesticides burned out of control for hours Wednesday, spewing caustic fumes high above the small adjoining communities of Thermal and Mecca, about 120 miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

The cause of the blaze was not officially determined late Wednesday, but Orange County fire Capt. Mike Rohde called it "a carbon copy" of the Anaheim blaze 100 miles to the west, which broke out four days earlier at Larry Fricker Co.

Arrest made in adoption scheme

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — A 26-year-old woman wanted in connection with an adoption scheme was arrested in a small Oklahoma town on Wednesday and returned here to face charges of attempted kidnapping, authorities said.

Jackie Anderson, who officials said lives in Garland, Texas, waived extradition and returned with Arkansas officers to Texarkana, where she was wanted along with two other women.

Police said she was denied bond and held in the Miller County Jail on the attempted kidnapping charges and on a Henderson, Texas felony warrant stemming from alleged hot checks.

Authorities said Ms. Anderson recently persuaded a woman she had befriended at a Texarkana shelter for battered women to let her enter the woman's 18-month-old son in a beauty contest. Instead, officers say, she passed herself off as a social worker for the shelter and tried to place the child for adoption with a Texarkana, Texas woman for a fee.

The effort failed when the couple who had agreed to adopt the boy grew concerned and called the shelter Monday when the child hadn't been delivered after several days.

Agca refuses to testify

ROME (AP) — Papal assailant Mehmet Ali Agca refused to testify today at the trial of seven men he has accused of plotting to kill Pope John Paul II.

The 27-year-old Turk did not show up, as is his right, and wrote the court from his jail cell that he wanted to "think about" whether to continue testifying.

In 12 days on the stand, Agca has given erratic and contradictory testimony.

The indictments brought against three Bulgarians and four Turks for complicity in the May 13, 1981 shooting of the pope were largely based on Agca's statements to investigators.

Agca, although he is the state's star witness, is also a defendant. He is charged with illegally importing the pistol he used to shoot John Paul.

U.S. baseball all-stars beat Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Pinch-hitter Matt Merullo blasted a grand-slam home run in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving the American collegiate all-star baseball team a 6-3 victory over the Japanese college all-stars Thursday.

It was the U.S. team's first victory against one defeat in the seven-game Japan-U.S. Collegiate Baseball Championships.

Merullo, of the University of North Carolina, slammed reliever Manabu Saito's first pitch deep into the right-field bleachers. It was the first time in the series' 14-year history that a pinch hitter had brought his team from behind with a grand-slam homer.

Autograph hound doesn't like title, claims he's 'archivist'

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — Call Charles Heard an autograph hound and he'll purse his face and howl in protest.

"I am an archivist," Heard growls, puffing what must be his umpteenth cigarette of the day. "I am always very polite and never bother anyone while they're eating. I always wait until they are going or coming somewhere."

To the best of his memory, Heard has "hundreds" of famous people's autographs, from Mae West, W.C. Fields, Clark Gable and Greta Garbo to Jane Fonda, Jessica Lange, Ronald Reagan and The Beatles.

"I am not just a collector, I am an archivist," the North Garland resident asserts, standing among his treasures, his curly-haired head shrouded in smoke. "It's a hobby, more enjoyable than coins or stamps. And it's an investment, too."

Heard, 34, has been "archiving" famous people's signatures since 1963 when he wrote to President John F. Kennedy in search of his autograph.

Since then he has spent thousands of dollars and hours searching for a piece of the people he admires.

"Being famous doesn't always mean I want their signature," the Phillip Morris salesman says. "I want signatures of people who interest me."

Old Hollywood film stars especially interest Heard, who will do just about anything within ethical reason to acquire an original signature.

Heard best remembers his pursuit of a signature by the elusive and reclusive Greta Garbo, who starred in Hollywood films of the 1930s and '40s.

Ms. Garbo, also known as Harriet Brown when she wants to escape her past, refuses to sign anything unsolicited these days it seems.

But Heard got lucky, despite Ms. Garbo's reticence.

He wrote a sometime companion of Ms. Garbo's in New York City asking for a sample of the faded film star's handwriting, but received no reply.

Then one day a letter arrived. Inside was a note from the companion's secretary explaining that her employer had recently died and it had become her responsibility to answer all unanswered correspondence.

The letter also contained the signature Heard wanted, a Happy Birthday greeting Ms. Garbo gave a friend. It came two years after he made the request.

"You get a little piece of that person's time, frozen in history," he says wistfully, explaining the hobby he budgets each month's income to accommodate.

Heard says he followed ex-Beatle Ringo Starr to the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport to acquire his signature. He admits being persistent, but insists he is always polite.

His treasures also include signatures by Judy Garland and principal characters of "The Wizard of Oz," Sean Connery of James Bond fame, Burt Lancaster, Yul Brenner, Marlon Brando, Bette Davis, Charles Bronson, Anthony Quinn, Cary Grant and Vivienne Leigh, the TV Lone Ranger Clayton Moore, Tarzan's Johnny Weismueller, Bela Lugosi, James Cagney, Jimmy Stewart and Humphrey Bogart.

He owns a canceled check penned by Clark Gable and another by Moe Howard of Three Stooges fame.

His collection also includes signatures of five presidents, Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan.

Acquiring the signatures often requires Heard to attend gatherings where the person has been scheduled to speak.

Heard says he met President Reagan during his 1980 campaign and found him to be very friendly and cooperative.

But former President Carter could not have been more disagreeable, he says, recalling Carter's reluctance to sign anything.

He had a signature by Marilyn Monroe, but regrettably traded it for another he can no longer recall.

But Heard says he'll never relinquish a handwritten response he received from the late John Lennon, who would answer mail personally if the inquiry was interesting and polite.

"I don't collect very much anymore because I've gotten most of all I want," he says.

But if he comes across a JFK signature or one by Lon Chaney Sr. — very rare indeed — Heard will do whatever he must, even sell something of lesser significance, to secure the new treasure.

West Virginia schools cling to child spanking philosophy hostages but wanted the release of hundreds of Lebanese prisoners held by Israel.

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Despite thickets of red tape woven by the Legislature, hundreds of West Virginia school children continue to be spanked in a state that clings to a "spare the rod and spoil the child" philosophy.

Conwell's mother, Lois, of Houston, said it was "a miracle that they would let him call."

"Isn't that great?" she said. "I don't understand it."

Traugott, 32, of Lunenburg, Mass., had been visiting in Greece and was returning home when the hijack took place.

Miss Assimakoupoulos said Traugott was in good health and had not been hurt by the Shiite Moslem gunmen who commandeered the plane on a flight from Athens to Rome.

"Not at all," she said. "In fact, he referred to the captors as, 'My friends.'"

"I know he is still safe," she added. "The reason I am speaking out to the media is for the purpose that the American people understand the Lebanese cause," she said, adding that, "Many hostages are very sympathetic toward their captors."

"And they are feeling that this is a great experience, not an ordeal or a terrible trap ... They are almost feeling privileged to be involved. I know Ralf feels that way."

Susan Traugott of Boxford, Traugott's sister-in-law, said she was optimistic about reports the hostages may be moved to a Western embassy.

"With all the hubbub today, I'm hoping a meeting with President Reagan may not even be necessary," she said Wednesday of reports the President may meet with hostage families on Friday.

"We're anxious to make our concerns known to President Reagan as soon as possible," said Mrs. Traugott. "We don't want to make a big media splash. That isn't the idea.

that regulation, we will," adds Maggie Beller, state executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union.

In many parts of the nation, spanking isn't even debated anymore, says Dr. Irwin Hyman of Temple University's National Center for the Study of Corporal Punishment and Alternatives in Schools. "It's been a slow, steady giving-up of paddling in the Western World," he said.

West Virginia's 1983 state spanking law, which Hyman said is among the most detailed in the nation, testifies to the tenacity of advocates on both sides.

The law provides for a minimum 12-hour waiting period between the misbehavior and the time a young scholar's seat is swatted by an "open hand or paddle," witnessed by another adult professional employee but not in the sight of another student.

Another provision, frequently referred to as the "designated-hitter rule," requires principals or designated staffers to do the spanking.

The law also sets these requirements:

— Pupils must be informed of the rules and regulations of the school, be told which rules they violated and be given a chance to explain.

— Parents must be contacted at least 12 hours before a scheduled paddling and informed of the child's misbehavior.

— A written report on the child's misbehavior must be filed in the school office within 24 hours of the incident.

— Within three days after the paddling, parents must be informed in writing.

— Corporal punishment is not permitted if the student is handicapped, mentally disturbed or suffering from a medical condition which would be aggravated by paddling.

Elnora Pepper, public relations director for the West Virginia Board of Education, says there are no reliable figures on how many students have been spanked under the new law.

However, a study in the Kanawha County school system showed that 211 elementary and junior high students were paddled in 1983-84 school year.

Hereford residents involved in drama

Four persons with Hereford connections are currently involved in the production of the musical "Texas" at Palo Duro Canyon. Beth Frye and Douglas Strange, HHS graduates and West Texas State University students, have musical roles; Mary Henslee Mager, a Hereford native now living in Amarillo, is the costumer and Dr. Margaret Forrest, mother of Hereford attorney Richard Forrest, is playing the role of Eula Ellis. Frye joined the cast this year as a dancer. A freshman at WTSU, she danced in the Lone Star Ballet's production of "Jesus Christ Superstar." Frye is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Frye of Hereford, and a 1982 graduate of HHS. Strange, who plays the role of Odie Cook, is a senior music business mafor with a minor in theatre at WTSU. He has appeared in several school musical productions and last year worked in the school's recording studio.

Strange is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Strange of Hereford and a 1980 HHS grad.

Mrs. Mager, the wife of George L. Mager and mother of four, grew up in Hereford and attended HHS. She began costume design when her daughters needed dance and twirling costumes. She went on to serve as a costumer for Amarillo high schools, and in January 1980 became the costumer for the Lone Star Ballet.

Mager has a degree in drama and theatre arts from WTSU and once taught high school classes in Hereford and Santa Fe.

Dr. Forrest, an assistant professor of voice and music education at WTSU, has performed in and directed a number of musicals and operas. This is her first season in "Texas." 4-H'ers compete in Parade of Breeds Show

Deaf Smith 4-H Club members traveled to Plainview last Thursday to compete with their steers at the Panhandle Parade of Breeds Show.

Dr. Bob Kropp of Oklahoma State University judged the three day event. Friday, the show sponsored a fitting contest in which three 4-H'ers or FFA'ers had to take a semi-wild steer and completely fit the animal for show in 45 minutes.

Rickie Vogel competed with two other Panhandle 4-H'ers and placed second out of 14 teams. Also, competing in the contest was the team of Chris Connally, Jeremy Myers and Chris Urbanczyk. Earlier Friday, the show sponsored an eight-class beef-animal judging contest. There were divisions for juniors, seniors and adults.

Herb Vogel of Hereford placed second in the adult division. Saturday began the first day of the cattle show with heifers and market steers. Rickie Vogel took grand champion honors of the market steer show with a 1,275 lb. Chianina steer.

Sunday began the prospect show with county 4-H'ers standing proud. Vogel showed his middle framed Chianina steer to the top of his class and reserve champion of the Chianina breed. He also placed his large framed Chianina to the top of that class as well.

Jeremy Myers placed his small framed Limousin to blue ribbon honors and two Chianinas to second and fourth place spots. Chris Connally showed his middle framed Maine Anjou steer to a second place position as did Chris Urbanczyk with his middle framed Limousin. Angela Brumley stood her light framed cross steer at fourth and a Charolais steer at fourth as well.

Showmanship is a big part of presenting a show animal, and in Deaf Smith County are some of the best showmen in the state as was well defined this past weekend in Plainview. Rickie Vogel took home the trophy and proud honor of being the senior division champion showman for the entire show. Chris Urbanczyk was in the final five and does an excellent job at the halter as well.

Jeremy Myers won the division he competed in an went to the finals in the junior showmanship division.

This week the group travels to Amarillo for the First Annual Golden Spread Show and then to Austin for the big Belt Buckle Bonanza. Good luck 4-H'ers!

Teens reminded of dance

Teens are reminded of a Hawaiian teen dance, sponsored by the Hereford Board of Realtors, from 8:30 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. Friday at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

All teens are invited to come and dress Hawaiian. Leis will be given at the door. Price of admission is $3 per person.

Sound Source, a local band, will be featured. The dance will be well chaperoned.

Proceeds will be used for local civic projects.

South Carolina became the first Southern state to secede from the Union on Dec. 20, 1860. In February 1861, delegates from South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida adopted a provisional constitution of the Confederate States of America.

T-shirts, caps, dolls, jewelry, and more T-shirts decorate her shop. She is the owner of T-shirt Corner and her name is Gennelle Ward.

Jay Ward, Gennelle's husband, also has his own business, Jay's Radiator Shop which is located on the same lot as T-shirt Corner. "It all started out as a hobby," she laughed. "I was staying to answer Jay's phone for the Radiator Shop when he had to go chase parts and it was boring."

"There just wasn't anything to do," Ward explained. "I had to find something to keep me busy, so I started making baby quilts."

Thus, the beginning of a new business. The sewing for fun turned into a full-time job.

The next step was purchasing a used heat-transfer press in Amarillo. She and her daughter, Donna soon learned the business by trial and error. Ward was then able to offer custom lettering on caps, T-shirts, and a lot of baseball uniforms! She had just finished transferring T-shirts for a local baseball team last week.

The inventive businesswoman has added many new items to her shop, such as imported shell jewelry from the Phillipines, shell wind-chimes, and handmade cabbage patch dolls. She has been self-employed for approximately two years and T-shirt Corner has really grown. She had just ordered a new transfer press before the interview.

Ward is a subscriber to "Impressions" magazine and is interested in screen printing, a procedure used to transfer different art work onto material through a screened image.

She speculated on the screen printing, "I've been thinking about taking a class and going from there."

Ward enjoys sewing, quilting, and crocheting, in her spare time. Her hobbies include reading, stitchery and fishing.

She has three daughters and one granddaughter, Brandy.

Pam and Donna Kay are both married and Pam works at Hereford State Bank. Donna Kay assists her mother in keeping the shop open.

Fishing is a family sport for the Wards and they have a trailer at Logan, N.M. for just such occasions.

The family is planning a July 4th family get-together at the lake and all the girls and their husbands are looking forward to the vacation.

Ward has shared her favorite recipes which are easily prepared to take on outings.

TROPICAL APPLE SALAD

1 cup diced unpared red apple
1 cup diced unpared yellow apple
1 large banana peeled and sliced
1 cup sliced celery
½ cup broken walnuts
½ cup flaked coconut
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 Tbs. sugar
½ tsp. lemon juice
dash salt
½ cup whipping cream
Romaine leaves

Combine apple, bananas, celery, walnuts, and coconut.

To prepare dressing, blend together mayonnaise, sugar, lemon juice, and salt. Fold whipped cream into mayonnaise mixture; gently fold into apple mixture and chill.

Arrange romaine in bowl; spoon in salad. Garnish with additional unpared apple slices if desired.

Makes 6 servings.

Ann Landers

Wishes should be respected

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have a 13-month-old baby and another child on the way. We live 300 miles from my mother-in-law.

Here's the problem: "Momma" now has a live-in boyfriend. The last time she visited she brought him along. I set up the cot in the dining room for "Mr. Wonderful." They didn't like the idea and chose to share the small bed in our baby's room. I thought this was pretty sleazy and moved the baby into our bedroom. (The baby slept in the playpen).

This upset Momma. She said I was crazy to think a 13-month-old would notice anything and even if they did have sex, which she says they did not, the child wouldn't understand what was going on.

I am uncomfortable with this situation and need to know what to do on future visits. I don't want my child to see his grandmother sleeping with a man to whom she is not married.

Am I overreacting and being silly? My husband seems to think so. I'd appreciate your thoughts.—SQUARE AND BEING JUDGED IN MPLS

DEAR JUDGED: If you don't want your child to sleep in the same room with his grandmother and her male friend, your wishes should be respected.

As for a 13-month-old child being too young to notice anything, don't bet the rent. Children always notice a lot more than adults suspect—and earlier, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't help but feel that my husband is depriving me of a better life by his stubborn refusal to contribute to the housekeeping.

Bob and I have been together over five years and this is the only thing we fight about. Either I do all the cleaning and picking up or the house isn't fit to live in. He also refuses to help me in the kitchen.

I work full-time and bring home as much money as Bob. He loves my income and assumes that I will be self-supporting as long as I live. I do a minimum of housework, just enough to maintain my sanity. Bob doesn't do one blamed thing. I've hinted, yelled, screamed and threatened. Nothing works. He won't even put his socks, shorts or hankies in the clothes hamper. After a shower he drops the wet towel on the bathroom floor.

Don't suggest that I hire a cleaning woman. I'm opposed to paying someone to do what we should do ourselves.

I'd like to have a baby, but I keep asking myself if I want ANOTHER baby in this house. I need your help.—BOILING MAD IN BOSTON

DEAR BOILING: If Bob hasn't picked up after himself and refuses to help in the kitchen after five years of yelling, screaming and threatening, chances are that he will not change. So, for the sake of your sanity, YOU will have to change.

Here are some alternatives: You can

(1) Clean up after the slob and quit being resentful.

(2) Reconsider and hire a parttime housekeeper.

(3) Leave his socks and shorts and hankies where he threw them.

When he runs out of clean clothes tell him if it wasn't in the hamper it didn't get washed.

Even if drinking is the "in", thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teenagers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Today in History

Today is Thursday, June 27, the 178th day of 1985. There are 187 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On June 27, 1950, President Harry S. Truman ordered the Air Force and Navy into the Korean conflict, following a call from the United Nations Security Council for member nations to help South Korea repel the invasion from the North.

On this date:
In 1844, Mormon leader Joseph Smith was killed by a mob in Carthage, Ill.

In 1847, New York and Boston were linked by telegraph wires.

In 1880, author-lecturer Helen Keller, who would live most of her life without sight or hearing, was born in Tuscumbia, Ala.

In 1942, the FBI announced the capture of eight Nazi saboteurs who had been put ashore from a submarine on New York's Long Island.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy spent his first full day in Ireland, the land of his ancestors.

In 1983, world-famous balloonists Maxie Anderson and Don Ida died during a race when their balloon crashed in a German forest.

Ten years ago: The roundup of political opponents under a declared state of emergency continued in India, bringing the official number of people reported under arrest to more than 800.

Five years ago: The temperature again reached 113 degrees at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport in Texas as parts of the Southwest, the mid-Mississippi Valley and South continued to suffer a severe heat wave.

One year ago: The Supreme Court ended the National Collegiate Athletic Association's monopoly on controlling college football telecasts, ruling such control violated antitrust law.

Today's Birthdays: "Captain Kangaroo," Bob Keeshan, is 58. Opera singer Anna Moffo is 51.

Thought for Today: "I don't know whether war is an interlude during peace, or peace an interlude during war." — Georges Clemenceau, French statesman (1841-1929).

It's not a pretty tune. Ever since disco music peaked in 1978, the number of major-label record albums issued each year has dropped. In 1984, about 1,700 were released. The high cost of music-video promos is a factor.

Rebekahs meet Tuesday

Twenty-two members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 were present during their regular meeting held Tuesday evening.

Noble Grand Faye Brownlow presided during the business meeting when 14 visits and 12 cheer cards were reported.

A committee reported that a quilt was finished Monday and members voted to give $25 to the Odd Fellow Lodge to assist with utilities.

Ada Hollabaugh was the winner of the door prize.

Glissie Shelton served as hostess to Brownlow, Hollabaugh, Susie Curtsinger, Leona Sowell, Verna Sowell, Ursalee Jacobsen, Bessie Lawrence, Irene Merritt, Nellie Beauford, Anna Conklin, Peggy Lemons, Thama Pearson, Kee Ruland, Helen Bishop, Jo Irlbeck, Edna Mathes, Ben Conklin, Wallace Shelton, Guy Lawrence, Gene Bishop and Tony Irlbeck.

At one time in ancient Rome, it was forbidden to eat eggs. The egg was regarded as a potential chicken, therefore too valuable to be eaten.

In 1874, Pierre Janssen, a French pioneer of solar physics and of photography, made the first film recording of the transit of Venus across the sun.

Accent on Health

A corkscrew-shaped organism and four Texas ticks are on the hit list at the Texas Department of Health because their partnership inflicts arthritic misery on Texans.

Special laboratory tests to detect the disorder, Lyme disease, have been available for less than a year, but microbiologist Julia Rawlings has detected 17 cases so far in 1985. She and epidemiologist Jeff Taylor are also investigating another 118 suspected cases.

People develop Lyme disease after being bitten by an infected tick carrying the corkscrew-shaped spirochete. The first symptom of Lyme disease, named for the Connecticut town where it was reported in 1975, is often a red circular rash that enlarges. It is accompanied by fever or headache, chills and a stiff neck.

"Lyme disease is not a life-threatening health hazard, but it is quite capable of making a person's life miserable," Ms. Rawlings said. TDH is studying how and when Lyme disease is spread, Taylor said, in hopes of controlling the disease and lessening its complications.

Within several weeks of being bitten by an infected tick, a person may experience facial paralysis, joint pain, shortness of breath and a pounding heart. Then he or she may develop arthritis and joint pain, lasting months or years. Taylor said the knee joint seems to be most frequently affected.

The spirochete is thought to cause the nervous and cardiac problems, but doctors think the arthritic problems may develop if the immune system overreacts to the organism.

TDH wouldn't be looking and testing for Lyme disease this year, the first time ever, if Ms. Rawlings hadn't had a hunch about Texas ticks last summer.

"Each summer we test ticks submitted to the lab here in Austin for Rocky Mountain spotted fever. That is a disease carried by ticks, and it is sometimes found in North Central Texas," Ms. Rawlings said.

Ms. Rawlings uses a blood test to detect antibodies, protective substances that the body makes once it has been invaded by the spirochete.

Taylor said so far most of the Lyme cases have been reported in Public Health Region 5, which includes the Dallas/Fort Worth area. Other cases have been reported in East and South Texas. "It is too soon to say if Lyme disease seems concentrated in one area of the state or is spread out. We've just really started looking, and aren't sure what we'll find where," Taylor said.

What TDH is learning about Lyme disease is already making doctors think the disease is much more widespread than was first thought, Ms. Rawlings said.

"We think the spirochete may be carried by at least four kinds of ticks in Texas," she said. (Those are the Lone Star tick, the American dog tick, and the brown dog tick, in addition to the Ixodes tick that has been reported in other states.) In the past Lyme disease has been reported among pet owners, campers, hunters and others who work outdoors or with animals.

Artwork to be exhibited

LUBBOCK — A group of artworks with religious symbolism from the collection of The Museum of Texas Tech University will be exhibited Sunday through Sept. 22 in The Museum.

The works include 13 oil on tin, retablos—altar pieces—including "The Most Holy Trinity," "The Virgin Mary," "Our Lady of Light" and "San Miguel." One oil-on-canvas retablo and one oil-on-wood will also be displayed.

On ex voto oil on tin attributed to the "Virgin of Loretto" will also be exhibited. An ex voto is a small votive painting usually made as an offering of thanks for a miraculous recovery.

U.S. Mint

The first U.S. Mint was established in Philadelphia, then the nation's capital, by the Act of April 2, 1792, which provided for gold, silver and copper coinage. Originally supervision of the Mint was a function of the secretary of state, but in 1799 the Mint became an independent agency reporting to the president.

Hot weather tips listed for farmers

COLLEGE STATION — Hot, humid weather which typifies Texas summers can be dangerous to your health, particularly if you work outdoors.

Outdoor workers often suffer from such physical disorders as heatstroke, heat exhaustion, heat cramps and fainting, says Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Such disorders occur most often when workers do not take time to adjust to the heat, notes Nelson. Summer hot spells, the first few days of work for new workers, and the first day back on the job after a vacation or illness are likely to be times when workers suffer the most from heat-related problems.

The combination of high temperatures and high relative humidity can be especially dangerous, says Nelson. Now the National Weather Service has come up with a "heat index" or "apparent temperature"—to warn outdoors people to take it easy.

For example, a temperature of 100 degrees F. and a relative humidity of 50 percent have the same effect as if the temperature hit 120 degrees. The human body cools itself by perspiring, but problems can develop when high relative humidity prevents the evaporation of perspiration from the skin, Nelson explains. The "apparent temperature" takes into account the reduced cooling ability caused by humidity.

To avoid potential health problems during the hot summer weather, he offers these suggestions for farmers and ranchers and others who work outdoors:

—Rest periodically in a cool place; rest is most beneficial when breaks are short but frequent.

—Drink fluids every 15 to 20 minutes. Water intake must equal perspiration loss, so drink more than enough to satisfy thirst. Rely on meals to replace salt.

—Wear loose garments of thin cotton fabric to enhance air circulation near the skin and to allow body heat to escape.

—Slow down work speed or distribute the workload evenly over the course of the day.

—If possible, postpone nonessential work for cooler periods.

—Transfer workers to help from other jobs or obtain extra helpers. Younger and more physically fit workers might take over.

—Where possible, shield workers from equipment heat sources, use exhaust fans near heat sources, and provide open windows and cooling fans for maximum air flow around individuals.

—Provide maximum opportunities for outside workers to work in well ventilated, shaded areas.

Heeding these suggestions and keeping tabs on the daily temperature and relative humidity can go a long way to preventing heat related disorders during summer weather, says Nelson.

Elderly woman shoots passing truckers

RANGER, Texas (AP) — Several truck drivers traveling on Interstate 20 Wednesday night had to dodge bullets allegedly fired from an elderly woman's vehicle, authorities said.

Jessie Winkler, 72, of Fort Worth, was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated and unlawfully carrying a weapon, said Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Richard Treece. She was being held in the Eastland County Jail.

Ms. Winkler apparently was angry with some truck drivers when she allegedly began firing shots at them about 8 p.m., Treece said. Several truck drivers radioed for help saying someone driving in a car was firing shots at them on the interstate.

No injuries were reported Wednesday night.

According to Ranger Police Captain John Mackey, the woman's late-model car was stopped when four 18-wheelers boxed the woman in and followed her car until officers stopped it about two miles east of Ranger.

Assault charges against Ms. Winkler are pending, Treece said. A .25 automatic pistol was found empty of shells in the woman's underwear after law enforcement officers arrested Ms. Winkler, the Abilene Reporter-News said.

Southern pine beetle is spreading

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Infestation by the southern pine beetle statewide is worsening and may surpass the record infestations of 1976, a forest service official said.

"There has been considerable publicity lately about southern pine beetle control in the five new wilderness areas in Texas' national forests," said Bruce R. Miles, director of the Texas Forest Service. "But the problem is much bigger than that."

There beetle infestations in all of the five wilderness areas, and much of East Texas, Miles said Tuesday.

"Destruction caused by these insects is not limited to the forests. They are also destroying valuable yard pines in Houston, Beaumont and other urban areas," he said.

The beetle outbreak is worst in Southeast Texas. In addition, the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation in Polk County and all seven ranger districts in the four national forests in Texas have beetle infestations, Miles said.

Beetles are also killing timber owned by private individuals and forest industries, according to the state forester.

By June 20, a total of 8,718 beetle "spots" had been detected on national, state, industrial and other private lands, Miles said. Spots are groups of 10 or more infested trees.

A month ago, there was a cumulative total of 4,400 spots, he said, amounting to an additional 4,318 infestations in a single month.

"Just like a cancer or a fire, southern pine beetle infestations are easier to successfully treat when they are small," Miles said.

In 1976, a total of 41,000 acres of pine timber valued at $17 million was killed by pine beetles.

The loss was equal to 215,128 cords of pulpwood, enough raw material to make facial tissue for a year for nearly 102 million people, or the daily newspapers read by 7.3 million people in a year.

In addition to the 1976 pulpwood loss, the beetles killed 213,522,000 board feet of sawtimber, or enough lumber to build 18,966 average size homes.

House votes to ban final ASAT testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to bar the Pentagon from performing final tests on anti-satellite weapons while allowing it to use lie detectors for catching spies and ships and planes to hunt down drug smugglers.

House decisions on a variety of defense issues came Wednesday as the chamber worked toward final approval of a huge bill authorizing most of a proposed $292 billion Pentagon budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

The version that passes the Democratic-controlled House will have to be reconciled with the version that passed the Republican-led Senate earlier this month.

The Senate's bill would provide $10 billion more and contains none of the three major provisions approved Wednesday by the House.

The House voted 229-193 to reinstate a ban on final-stage tests of an Air Force anti-satellite, or ASAT, weapon — as long as the Soviet Union refrains from more tests of its ASAT.

It also approved, 364-51, a measure allowing the Navy and Air Force to use ships and planes to hunt down and arrest suspected drug smugglers.

Another provision, approved on a 333-71 vote, would give the Defense Department wide-ranging authority to administer polygraph tests to its 3.1 million employees to try to curb espionage.

In further reaction to Pentagon procurement scandals, the House also voted 383-32 to order new studies of what weapons and spare parts should cost. The "should cost" proposal is also contained in the Senate's defense bill.

The ASAT ban was proposed by Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., who noted that the Soviets have proposed a halt to tests while the superpowers try to agree to a ban at the current round of arms control talks.

"As long as the Geneva talks are in progress, it is to our best interests to accept the Soviet offer of not testing," he said.

Brown won approval for a similar ban last year, but that prohibition has now expired. The Air Force is expected to try its first final-stage test of the ASAT next month. That trial would be banned if the House-passed provision is contained in the defense authorization bill signed by President Reagan.

The U.S. system, which has been tested by components, is a small two-stage rocket launched by a high-flying F-15 fighter. The Soviet weapon is a small satellite fired into space from a ground-launched rocket.

Both nations rely heavily on satellites for early warning of attack, spying, and communications.

The anti-drug proposal was authored by Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., whose son died of a drug overdose eight years ago. It was strongly supported by Rep. Stewart McKinney, R-Conn., who said later that his daughter is a recovering cocaine addict.

The measure would let the services stop and search suspected drug smugglers, make arrests, and seize contraband.

The lie detector proposal was authored by Rep. Bill Young, R-Fla., who said, "people are sick and tired of paying for our national security efforts, only to see it sold to the Soviets."

The Pentagon is now limited to a polygraph test program of 3,500 tests during the current fiscal year.

Today's editions of The Washington Post quoted a recently declassified Pentagon report as saying lie detector tests prompted at least nine people holding or applying for sensitive government jobs to admit they had been recruited for espionage or had agreed to pass secrets to a foreign government.

The report said three other applicants for sensitive intelligence jobs admitted relatives or girlfriends were spies, the Post said.

Tax proposal would cost jobs in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Long-term results of President Reagan's tax revision act would mean a healthier Texas economy, but it also would slow job growth by 40,000 jobs per year, according to projections by State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office.

The reforms would slow Texas' annual increase in jobs to 140,000 from 180,000, officials said Tuesday.

The Reagan tax package "would dampen (oil) drilling activity and slow construction," said Claudia Stravato, an associate deputy comptroller, during a forum on the proposed tax package at Southern Methodist University.

The forum was sponsored by SMU and Touche Ross & Co., a Big Eight accounting firm.

If the law is passed this year, it could cost Texas taxpayers $400 million in disposable income in 1986 and an additional $1.2 billion the following year, Ms. Stravato said.

In real estate, the reforms initially will depress the value of property, "but beyond three to five years, we will see rent increases to offset that," said William Brueggeman, an SMU real estate professor.

Most of the panelists agreed the proposals eventually will result in lower interest rates and a more efficient capital market that will invest money on the basis of returns, instead of tax considerations. But the interim period concerned many panel members.

Because Texas' economy is so strongly tied to industries that will be affected by the reforms, its state and city economies will be among the hardest hit, Ms. Stravato said.

The proposal now before Congress would restrict some of the deductions now available for independent oil companies, such as the oil depletion allowance, reducing the cash they have available for drilling, she said.

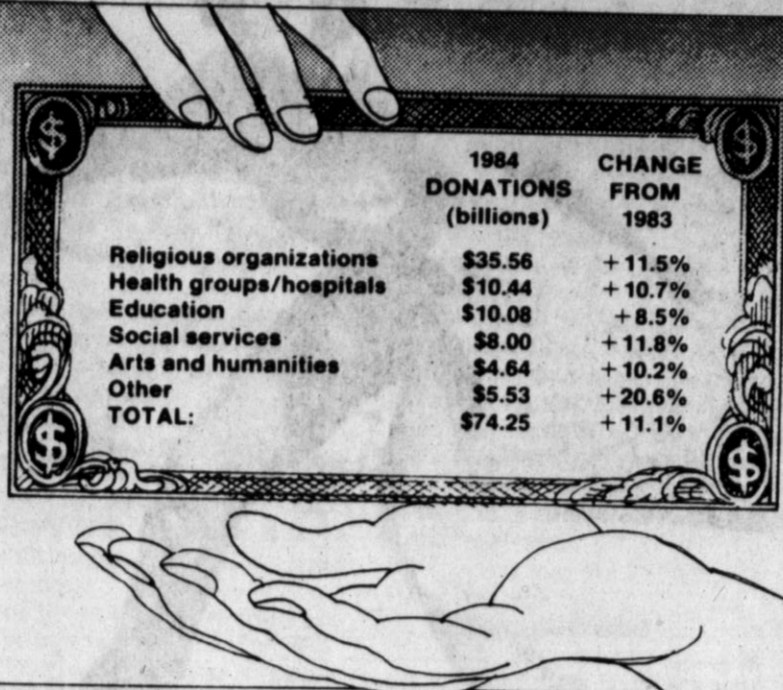

The comptroller's office, responsible for making revenue estimates for the state, said such restrictions would lower oil production by 11 million barrels over the next two years, and gas production by 84 million cubic feet during the period.

Ms. Stravato said a number of other variables, particularly the uncertain direction of oil prices, could dramatically alter those estimates.

Commercial real estate investments would also suffer if the act is passed, she said, by curtailing many of the deductions that have made real estate investments so attractive.

HIGHWAY SIGNS

Highway signs in Texas have a new look with the increasing use of symbols. Pictorial silhouettes, rather than written messages, not only provide traffic information but they are understood by American and foreign visitors alike. The shapes of signs have special meanings. An inverted triangle means yield; a pennant means no passing; a pentagon sign shows the presence of a school; and a circle warns of a railroad crossing.

The minimum time needed to tune a piano is one hour and thirty minutes.

Ag department to coordinate study

AUSTIN (AP) — A national organization has chosen Texas for a comprehensive study of rural water problems, and state agriculture officials say many of those troubles have been ignored for a long time.

"To most of us in Texas, getting a clear, clean glass of water simply means turning on the tap. But over 1½ million Texas farmers, ranchers, farmworkers and other rural residents still cannot take their water quality for granted," said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Hightower will head a 24-member task force overseeing the water study.

The study was announced Wednesday by Kathi Stanley, deputy director of the National Demonstration Water Project Inc., a Washington-based organization which has helped numerous rural areas develop and maintain water supply systems.

Hightower said an Environmental Protection Agency study indicated that two-thirds of rural water sources may be contaminated at levels greater than federal standards.

He said the task force would seek legislative and administrative steps to make certain the 1½ million rural Texans have access to quality water supplies.

As Texas has struggled with explosive growth, Hightower said, rural water quality problems appear to have been ignored.

"In planning for the future, we have forgotten that 10 percent of our population must still get its drinking water from individual wells.

For these 1½ million people, there currently is no government agency — state or federal — which is responsible for monitoring or improving the quality of their water."

Hightower cited several examples of the seriousness of water quality problems in the state, including:

— A state Health Department official says at least half the approximately 3,000 water systems serving fewer than 500 people fail to meet minimum health standards each year.

— Up to 40 percent of residences served by independent wells or small water systems may have bacteria levels greater than national standards. Nearly 2 percent of these drinking water systems are in violation of standards for swimming or water skiing.

Range Riders Rodeo set in Amarillo next week

The 44th annual Will Rogers Range Riders Rodeo, which will draw more than 350 entries, is scheduled on July 3-6 in Amarillo.

Site for the rodeo is the Range Riders Arena northwest of Amarillo. Prize money and trophy buckles totals $35,000.

Nightly performances, beginning at 8:30 p.m., will showcase competitors in saddle bronc, bareback bronc and bull riding, calf roping, team roping, steer wrestling and barrel racing.

A calf scramble for children 12 years old and younger is also scheduled at each performance.

Tickets are $4 for general admission, $4.50 for box seats, and $2 for children ages six to 12. Children under six years of age will be admitted free.

On Wednesday, July 3, Gerald Key, the 1985-86 Texas Tech Red Raider, and Happy VI, the Red Raider horse, will appear at the performance.

Key and Happy VI will be available for autographs and pictures for thirty minutes before the rodeo session and thirty minutes after the session.

Stock contractor for the rodeo is Triple B Rodeo Co. of Leedy, Okla.

YMCA tennis classes planned for July 8-12

Tennis lessons for beginners, intermediate, and advance players will be offered in July at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

The classes will be held from Monday, July 8, to Friday, July 12.

Instructor for the classes will be Ruben Vargas, tennis coach at Hereford High School.

The class for beginning tennis players is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. each morning at the Hereford High School tennis courts. There will be classes available for persons ages six and older.

Maximum enrollment for the class is 16 people on a first come, first serve basis.

Classes for intermediate and advanced players are scheduled from 10:15 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. each day at the high school courts.

These classes are also open to persons ages six and older. There will be a maximum enrollment of 16, also on a first come, first serve basis.

Fees for the classes are $10 for YMCA members and $20 for non-members of the YMCA. All fees must be paid in advance at the YMCA offices, and all participants must furnish their own tennis rackets.

For more information on the tennis classes, call the YMCA at 364-6990.

Ways with Wine
by David Hutchins

PICNIC WINE

There is perhaps no more enjoyable pastime than going on a picnic. The pleasure of a picnic is the simple joy of refreshment in the open air. It is not the time for assertive or expensive wine, but for something that is thirst-quenching. If there is some way of keeping it cold (a stream will do very well), a white Loire, an inexpensive Moselle, an Alsace or virtually any rose is ideal. If conditions will not allow this kind of refinement, drink a plain but good red bordeaux. Be sure that it is not old enough for any sediment to have formed that may cloud it when it is shaken about en route.

Don't every feel uncomfortable asking us any questions about wines to bring on a picnic or to serve at a very elegant and special party. THE STORE is pleased to have one of the most complete wine departments in this area and our staff is one of the most knowledgeable. Stop by 400 N. 25 Mile Ave., 364-7802 and look us over. Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

A picnic is a fine occasion to learn about the wines of Germany.

Baseball tryout camp set by Reds in Lubbock

A baseball tryout camp has been scheduled on Monday, July 1 in Lubbock by the Cincinnati Reds professional baseball organization.

The tryout camp will be held at Lubbock Christian College starting at 9 a.m.

Anyone trying out must be between the ages of 15 and 23, and must furnish his own glove, shoes and uniform.

Chuck LaMar, scouting supervisor for the Cincinnati Reds in Texas and Oklahoma, will direct the tryout camp.

LaMar notes that if an athlete is a member of a American Legion team, he must have a note of permission from his coach or from the commander of the American Legion post.

No players drafted in the June draft may attend the tryout camp. Expenses must be paid by the players themselves, unless a player is signed to a professional baseball contract.

American League roundup

Rangers suffer 5-4 loss to Mariners

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and Seattle Mariners' owner George Argyros watched the little drama from Argyros' private Kingdome box.

Chuck Cottier, the Mariners' manager, decided to pinch hit Barry Bonnell for Spike Owen against Dave Stewart with the bases loaded and none out in the 10th inning.

On the surface, the move didn't make a lot of sense. The little-used Bonnell had only 75 at bats this season. Owen, after a slow start, is suddenly red hot, hitting in eight of his last nine games. He had a homer, triple and single in four trips on Wednesday.

But Cottier thought his decision made sense. "Stewart's a fastball pitcher and Bonnell's a fastball hitter," he explained.

"I don't want to talk about it," said the usually talkative Owen.

Bonnell, a veteran outfielder appearing in only his 30th game, responded to his skipper's confidence by getting the game-winning RBI, drawing a walk for a 5-4 Mariners' victory over the Texas Rangers.

Seattle notched its sixth straight win while Texas lost for the sixth time in seven games, including a three-game sweep by the Mariners. Seattle matched a season-opening winning string.

The Mariners climbed to within two games of .500 at 34-36.

"We've won six in a row but if you walk through the locker room you'll see our guys aren't too high," Cottier said matter-of-factly. "We're enjoying this but we know we have a game on Friday (against Cleveland)."

Bonnell may have been too high, but he was beaming afterward.

"It's nice to contribute any way you can," he said. "I'm not playing a lot, but I only have myself to blame for that because I didn't produce when I had to in spring training."

Bonnell, who is hitting .240, went to bat for Owen after 10th-inning singles by Dave Henderson and Jim Presley and an intentional walk to pinch-hitter Ken Phelps.

"I was just trying to hit the ball hard," Bonnell said. "With a pitcher who throws a ball as hard as Dave Stewart, you can't be trying to hit a fly ball."

Texas Manager Bobby Valentine wasn't around at the end of the game. He was ejected by home plate umpire Tim McClelland for arguing about balls and strikes while reliever Greg Harris pitched to Phil Bradley in the sixth inning.

It was the first time Valentine had been thrown out since replacing Doug Rader as the Rangers' manager on May 16. The frustrated Valentine saw the Rangers' record drop to 18-21 with him at the helm. He insisted he did not know why McClelland ejected him.

"I asked him to tell me about 10 times and he wouldn't do it," Valentine said. "He missed two pitches low and he knew it. Then he came over to the dugout and baited me."

Roy Thomas, 2-0, made only three pitches and got the win. He got Gary Ward to hit into a double play after replacing Ed VandeBerg.

"You can't let Ward beat you with one swing," Cottier said when asked why he brought in Thomas for VandeBerg.

Texas took a 4-2 lead in the top of the sixth when Oddibe McDowell lofted a two-run pinch homer off Robert Long into the right field stands following a double by Don Slaught.

Seattle tied the score with a pair of runs in the bottom of the inning on a two-out single by Bob Kearney, Owen's triple and a Jack Perconte single.

The Mariners took a 2-0 lead in the third inning on Owen's homer and Phil Bradley's run-scoring single.

The Rangers got two runs in the fourth when Slaught knocked in a run on a fielder's-choice grounder and later scored on a balk by Mariners' starter Brian Snyder.

Argyros, a Newport Beach, Calif., multimillionaire, hosted Ueberroth here one day after reaching a new lease agreement in principle with King County, owner and operator of the Kingdome. The new agreement contains an exit clause, allowing the Mariners to depart Seattle after the 1987 season under certain circumstances, including low attendance.

Angels 10, Indians 6

Reggie Jackson's grand-slam homer capped a five-run sixth inning, leading California over Cleveland.

Jackson hit southpaw reliever Bryan Clark's first pitch for his 11th homer of the season as well as the 11th grand slam of his career. The blow gave Jackson, already in 10th place on the all-time major league home run list, a career total of 514.

After playing all of the previous evening's 13-inning contest, Jackson arrived at the ballpark not expecting to play. He struck out his first three times up.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3

Bobby Meacham's two-run single in the bottom of the ninth inning following a pair of Baltimore errors by second baseman Lenn Sakata boosted New York to a comeback win over Baltimore, the Yankees' sixth triumph in as many meetings with the Orioles this season.

The Orioles used three pitchers in the ninth, including Don Aase, 4-3, in an unsuccessful attempt to stem the Yankees. Meacham's game-winner came off Tippy Martinez, who came into the game in a no-out, bases-loaded situation.

New York's Rickey Henderson, the major leagues' leading hitter at .359 after a 1-for-3 night, stole four bases for the Yankees. He has been successful 36 times in 38 attempts this season.

Twins 2, Royals 1

After throwing a one-hitter for nine innings, it's not often that a pitcher has to take a back seat to anyone.

Minnesota's Ken Schrom found himself in that position, however, until teammate Roy Smalley put him where he belonged with a key hit.

"He got the win he deserved," said Smalley, who made sure personally with a two-run, pinch single in the bottom of the ninth inning that gave the Twins a dramatic 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals Wednesday night.

Until Smalley's hit, Schrom had been brilliant, but trailed 1-0 going into the bottom of the ninth.

After pitching the lowest-hit game in the history of the Metrodome, Schrom left the mound to the standing cheers of 20,060. The only run off Schrom came on a wild pitch in the first by the Twins' starter.

Now 7-5, he finished with four strikeouts and five walks.

A's 10, White Sox 0

Rob Picciolo's three-run double and Dave Kingman's 18th homer keyed a six-run third as Oakland beat Chicago behind the four-hit pitching of Don Sutton and moved into second place in the AL West, a half-game ahead of the White Sox.

Sutton, 7-5, walked three and struck out two in gaining his 287th career victory. He passed Robin Roberts and moved into 19th place on the all-time victory list.

Tigers 3, Red Sox 0

Kirk Gibson drove in two runs with his 15th homer and a single to power Detroit over Boston behind rookie right-hander Randy O'Neal.

O'Neal, 3-1, allowed only five hits, struck out five and walked four in a driving rain before yielding in the eighth to Willie Hernandez, who gained his 16th save. In capturing the rubber game of a three-game series, the Tigers won 3-0 for the second straight night. Jack Morris blanked Boston on four hits Tuesday night.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 4

Ted Simmons snapped a 4-4 tie with a one-out home run in the eighth inning and Ben Oglivie added a two-run blast to power Milwaukee over Toronto.

The third homer of the year by Simmons came on an 0-2 pitch from loser Doyle Alexander, 7-4, and helped snap Milwaukee's three-game losing streak.

Right-hander Bob Gibson, 6-4, who came on to relieve Pete Vuckovich in the sixth, picked up the victory.

NBA says tax plan threatens expansion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Reagan's tax reform package threatens the possible expansion of the National Basketball Association, according to owners who say they are looking at nine cities that would like an NBA franchise.

Commissioner David Stern said that a plan to eliminate business tax deductions for sports tickets will hurt the NBA and "puts a cloud over professional sports." He made his remarks Wednesday, during the NBA's annual meeting in San Francisco.

Still, Stern cited the "robust state of the NBA," and said that 15 of the 23 teams made profits this year, making it the league's most successful season.

Expansion also would be affected by the league's new television rights. Talks are scheduled later this summer with CBS, whose 4-year, $88 million contract expires after next season.

If the tax proposal is defeated and a lucrative deal with CBS can be worked out, Stern said the league will then begin evaluating applications for expansion franchises at its meeting in January.

One or more teams possibly could be added for the 1986-87 season, although Stern said such quick action is unlikely.

The NBA's health has improved from a year ago, when only 11 teams were profitable, Stern said. And the league has also grown, from 18 teams in 1975-76, before the American Basketball Association folded, to 23 today.

If expansion becomes a reality, various cities have expressed an interest in obtaining an NBA franchise, including Toronto, Kansas City, Tampa, St. Louis, Miami, Charlotte, Anaheim, Santa Ana and Minneapolis.

Prospective owners will have to put up $100,000 application fees before they are reviewed by the league.

On the final day of its annual meeting, the NBA's Board of Governors also took the following actions:

— Reduced the number of games television "superstations" or cable stations may broadcast from 41 to 25 to "control the product" and avoid flooding the airwaves with games.

— Approved the refinancing of the Golden State Warriors by owner Franklin Mieuli with a $3.7 million to $4 million loan from former Milwaukee Bucks owner Jim Fitzgerald and his partner Dan Finanne, including giving them a future option to become part owners of the Warriors.

— Approved the purchase of the Denver Nuggets by former Houston Rockets minority owners Sidney Shlenker and Alan Becker from Red McCombs.

— Approved the sale of the New Jersey Nets by Joseph Taub to David Gerstein, Alan Aufzien and Bernard Mann.

— Voted to continue the draft lottery that puts the seven worst teams into a drawing for the top pick, but agreed to look at modifications.

— Voted to continue the 2-3-2 playoff schedule in the championships that was used this year.

— Adopted a third tie-breaker rule to determine home-court advantage in the championship series. In addition to overall record and the record of one team against another, ties will be broken by the record of teams against opponents in the conference.

— Decided to experiment in the summer leagues and during the exhibition season with modifications of rules against the zone defense.

Entries are nearly filled for Leukemia Society tourney

Entries are nearly filled for the first annual "Tee Off Fore A Cure" golf tournament, which is scheduled Monday in Lubbock.

The tournament, organized by the Leukemia Society of America, will be held at Lakeridge Country Club in Lubbock. Honorary chairman for the event is Donny Anderson, a former member of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League and an All-American running back at Texas Tech University.

Other sports stars who will participate in the tournament include Gary Wisener, John Fitzgerald, and Don Maynard.

Entry fee for the tournament, tax deductible, is $75 per person and includes 18 holes of golf with Florida scramble rules, door prizes, complimentary range balls, a golf "grab bag" and a barbecue dinner.

To register for the tournament, or for more information, call the Leukemia Society of America, Panhandle-Plains Area Office at (806) 793-4499.

SAVE OUR KIDS DAY

It's a celebration Sunday which marks the beginning of a new commitment to children's ministries in our community.

We are aware of the outside forces which are vying for the hearts and souls of our kids.

This special 2-hour service will feature music from our children, testimonies, and scriptures about the importance of children's ministries.

The celebration Sunday will prepare us for the coming of new staff pastors in charge of children's ministries and music, Jeff and Kathy Love, who will be moving to Hereford from Hastings, Nebraska, on July 14.

You are invited to share with us on "SAVE OUR KIDS DAY" Sunday, June 30 10 a.m. until noon Hereford Church of the Nazarene LaPlata & Ironwood

Plant nation's largest producer of hydrants

ALBERTVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Most people take fire hydrants for granted, but not the manager of a plant that turns out 400 a day.

"I can't pass one without looking to see if it's one of ours," said Lloyd Darnell. "I can tell from the car whether it's ours or, if not, which competitor's."

Darnell manages the Mueller Co. plant, a 380,000-square-foot complex at Sand Mountain Industrial Park. He said the plant turns out more fire plugs than all other manufacturers in this country combined.

"We made a lot of dogs happy," said Darnell. "We made about 100,000 last year."

The plant buys old railroad tracks from a nearby scrap dealer and melts down 325,000 pounds a day. It also pours 30,000 pounds of brass daily for fittings in the hydrants.

Although a supply of basic parts is kept on hand, no hydrants are made without orders for them. That, Darnell said, is because there are so many varieties in the specifications.

"They can order any color or color combination, different sizes of pipe, hydrants with one, two or three nozzles, different threads on the nozzles, hydrants that open right or left, and different length pipe," he said.

The basic pipe sizes are 4.5 inches and 5.25 inches in diameter, although Mueller has a few 2-inch pipes on hand for rural fire districts and estates that have their own system.

Most hydrants are 32 inches tall — the part above ground — with pipes that go underground four or five feet. The two-inch ones stand 22 inches, which entices Darnell into saying "we make those for Chihuahuas."

Before a hydrant is shipped, it is put under 300 pounds of water pressure, with its valve alternately closed and opened. Explaining the rigorous testing, Darnell said, "If they have to dig one up, I have to pay."

A recent visit found the shipping lot with hydrants designated for Baton Rouge, La., Fort Wayne, Ind., Jefferson City, Mo., Tulsa, Okla., Plano, Texas, Jackson, Miss., Springfield, Ill., and overseas points.

A batch of hydrants destined for Houston were painted blue, the same shade as the Houston Oilers use on their uniforms. But red, Darnell said, is the most popular color, with yellow next.

"I wish they were all red," he said. "It would make our job a lot simpler."

The company, founded by Hieronymus Mueller as a gun and machine shop in Decatur, Ill., in 1857, is still owned by his descendants. The Albertville plant opened in 1975 with 59 employees, now has 500 workers and a $9 million annual payroll.

In 1983-84, congressional and presidential hopefuls got a big financial boost from a wide variety of groups, representing realtors, doctors, teachers and blue-collar workers.

Thomas Jefferson, the nation's third president, was one of the most accomplished and versatile of the nation's founders. He spoke six languages, was a surveyor, scientist, lawyer, musician, politician and architect.

Chairman makes plea for converts, prompts boos

DALLAS (AP) — Republican National Committee chairman Frank Fahrenkopf braved boos at the NAACP national convention to plead for black converts, saying they should not continue to align themselves with one party.

"Democrats were not just rejected but repudiated by more than 16 million voters, 49 states and 525 electoral votes" during November's presidential election, Fahrenkopf told delegates at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's 76th annual convention on Wednesday.

Speaking where thunderous GOP applause greeted President Reagan's nomination in August, Fahrenkopf prompted boos instead when he asked, "Why did black Americans isolate themselves ... from other Americans, including other minorities, in supporting a Democratic ticket out of step and out of tune with the overwhelming majority of Americans?"

The boos got loud enough for NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks — who earlier had said Fahrenkopf was invited in the interest of learning and equal time — to call for quiet.

"The NAACP does not insult a guest," Hooks interjected. "This man had the courage to come and face us, and that's a hell of a lot of courage, and this is a bad way to receive him."

Fahrenkopf, in his second two-year term as committee chairman, went on to tell the gathering of more than 300 delegates that "we perceive the Republican Party today is on the crest of a rising demographic wave."

"But the victory is not yet complete because of one last statistic," he said. "Ronald Reagan got only 8 to 11 percent of the black vote."

That remark prompted a standing ovation, but the Nevada Republican continue to plead for GOP converts.

"After all, the Republican Party was the original party of civil rights a century before that phrase became popular," Fahrenkopf said. "Yet we lost each other somewhere between the time of Abraham Lincoln and the time of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and that's a tragedy."

Just before Fahrenkopf spoke at the Dallas Convention Center, Civil Rights Commission member Mary Berry told the crowd that "anybody who becomes a Republican — any black person — based on Reagan's record has to be uninformed or unaware or opportunistic."

US intensified contacts with Syria on hostage issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration news blackout, coupled with intensifying contacts with Syria and other countries to win the freedom of the 39 American hostages in Beirut, suggests diplomatic efforts are at a particularly sensitive stage.

Hints that the 13-day old drama may have reached a turning point revolved around comments Wednesday by Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Richard Lugar and the Rev. Jesse Jackson and — before the blackout — by White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

The administration-wide secrecy lid, a tactic often applied when a negotiating effort may be bearing fruit, was another indication of diplomatic movement.

William Quant, a Carter administration Middle East expert, said Wednesday when asked for his interpretation of the news blackout: "Maybe it's on the way to a solution."

Jackson said after meetings with top State Department officials on the situation in Beirut that he has "reason to believe" President Reagan has been "more directly in touch" with Syrian President Hafez Assad. "That is a step in the right direction," he said.

Jackson, who traveled to Syria last year to win the release of a downed U.S. flier, was accompanied to the meetings by Sheik Muhammad Jawad Chirri, a Detroit-based American Shiite leader.

Chirri said, "President Assad is a man who can deal with the problem efficiently," a reference to the dominant role Syria plays in Lebanon.

Lugar told reporters after a meeting with Reagan that the crisis was "at a very important stage, and it's very hopeful." He later amended the remark somewhat by saying that his observation was a personal view, not necessarily that of the administration's.

Before the blackout was imposed, Speakes said the United States had been "in close touch" with Syria and that Assad had expressed a desire to be helpful. He declined to repeat his statement of Tuesday when he said there was "no tangible evidence" Assad's efforts had made a difference.

Once the blackout was imposed, however, Speakes and State Department deputy spokesman Edward Djerejian limited themselves to saying that "the proper solution is the release of all the hostages."

In 'Boys Town'

Blood tests planned for prostitutes

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — State health officials say they are concerned — for the first time — that Texans who cross over to visit Nuevo Laredo's red-light district may come back with VD.

"Boys Town," a legal zone of prostitution in Laredo's sister city, has long been regarded as nearly disease free. But it is now being scrutinized by Texas authorities as a possible source of recent penicillin-resistant gonorrhea cases in San Antonio, the San Antonio Light reported today.

Bill Boyd, venereal disease program manager for Region 8 of the Texas Department of Health in Harlingen, will join Mexican doctors Friday in administering blood tests to approximately 100 prostitutes in Boys Town.

"We haven't seen Boys Town as a problem until this year," Bill Paschal, a special programs coordinator with the San Antonio Metropolitan Health District, told the newspaper.

But, Paschal said, four of 10 penicillin-resistant gonorrhea cases reported since January in San Antonio apparently originated in Mexican border cities. Three of those cases have tentatively been linked to an unspecified night club in the Nuevo Laredo compound, he said.

Mexican officials say approximately 300 women routinely work in the walled compound five miles from the Texas border, Boyd said. An undetermined number of male prostitutes also works in the zone, Boyd believes.

Boyd said physicians examine Boys Town prostitutes weekly. If any indication of illness is present, they are required by law to receive treatment and to undergo a second examination before returning to work.

Blood tests are administered twice a year.

Health officials believe as many as 10,000 people a month patronize prostitutes in cities along the Texas-Mexico border. However, not all of the sexual encounters occur in zones of prostitution where women are routinely examined for signs of sexually transmitted disease.

By some estimates, unregulated prostitutes outnumber those working in compounds 10-to-1, Boyd said.

If the four San Antonio residents who claimed to have contracted resistant strains of gonorrhea from Mexican prostitutes are truthful — health officials traditionally view such claims with skepticism — it would indicate a possible lapse in Boys Town health programs.

Boyd said that while the four reported cases of resistant gonorrhea might not in themselves be significant, they could indicate that hundreds of men have come into contact with infected prostitutes.

Health officials said 11,181 cases of syphilis were reported in Texas last year, with the state ranking second nationwide in cases per 100,000. Texas ranked 15th in number of gonorrhea cases, with 65,802 reported. Of those cases, 129 involved penicillin-resistant strains of the disease.

Ideally, Boyd said, all tourists crossing the border would be given packets of venereal disease information. Such action, however, might insult Mexican officials, he noted.

The nicest thing about being young is that you're sure to get over it eventually.
