Two Men Die In Explosion At Amarillo

Police Seek Identity Automobile Bears Nevada License

AMARILLO (AP)—Police Wednesday sought identity of bodies of two men killed in a mysterious explosion at a residence here. House-hold furnishings were found in the street outside. The car bore a Nevada license.

The Lubbock convention of those who consider themselves Democrats in this particular year, as well as those who always have been Democrats, ran true to expectations.

The pot called the kettle black as per plans and specifications. Tom Love was hooted for betting in 1928 by followers of Jim Ferguson who bolted to organize his American party. Party regularity was appealed for in fervent speeches by Ferguson disciples with the usual reference to Thomas Jefferson, Jim Hogg and the Battles of San Jacinto.

Party regularity and adherence to the law, and the alleged Democratic principle of letting the majority rule was urged by those who openly threw the law to the winds in selection of the new Democratic State executive committee.

Selections for district committees made in senatorial district caucuses held under the rules and regulations set out in the statutes meant nothing to those who so seriously and earnestly begged and pleaded that all good Democrats stand by the party in November.

Two or more men from any district could put forward their own candidate for district committee, go before the permanent or organization committee, and after answering 'yes' or 'no' to the question 'did you support Mrs. Ferguson in both primaries?' let the committee on permanent organization, rather than the duly elected delegates from the senatorial districts, decide who would be placed on the executive committee.

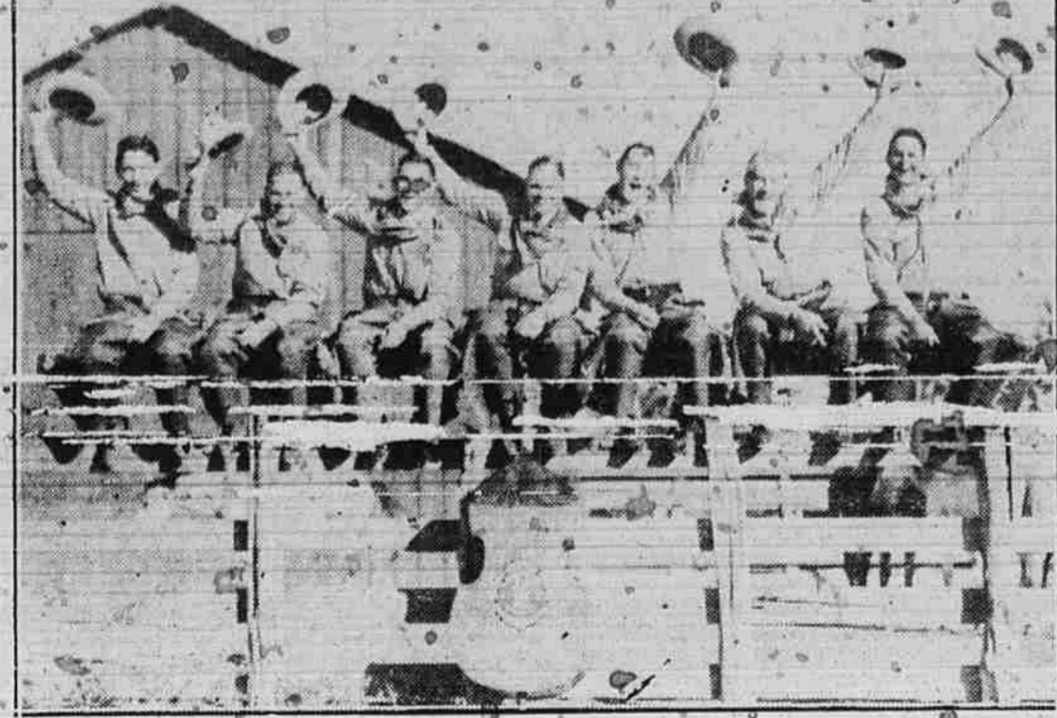

Although this writer will not be among them, tens of thousands of people who never have scratched a Democratic ticket will do so in November in the governor's race at least.

It is and when they do, however, neither the wets or drys, the Fergusonites or anti-Fergusonites will have any sound excuse for criticizing them. At one time or another most of the leaders of all factions have bolted in a general election or have disregarded laws governing party procedure, as was the case in the Lubbock convention.

Sentiment among Sterling supporters at the convention was clearly divided upon the wisdom of a contest of the recent primary results in the courts.

Sterling's support for a contest was weakened among the rank and file of those who voted for him by two factors; anxiety of the weak-kneed to get on the band wagon, and belief by others that a court contest would serve only to prolong bitterness and strife within the party.

The Garner Formula

JOHN GARNER, father of acceptance politics, is putting in words the main philosophy of government in this paragraph:
"There are just two things to be safeguarded—our lives and our property of our people; the second to insure that each of us has a chance to work out his destiny according to his talents. The inventor who is oppressed by those of superior acquisitiveness, and perhaps less conscience, who seek to strain the rules to their own advantage."

It might be easy to improve the English of it, but extremely difficult to improve the philosophy. The vice "presidential nominee has put in a few words all that political parties need to keep in mind. And if they can insure the establishment of that ideal of government, they will have their hands full keeping it intact.

CHAPTER XLIII

For all Lottie's arful planning during a Holiday House that evening was singularly unromantic. There were no lovely gowns and there was no lingering over a candle-lit table, no strolling in the moonlight. It proved to be the life no one dressed for.

Their departure from Gretna was delayed the carpenters taking a great deal of time to decide how they could not begin work on the hangar for at least a week. The motor boat left the harbor three hours later than they had planned. She, the native boy was on the wheel while Barry and Steve spent most of the trip in rather dispirited discussion.

When they arrived at the house they found the table on the veranda still set for dinner. The flowers drooping under the electric light and the fire gathering on the terrace. The food in the kitchen had long since cooled, and lost its flavor.

"I sent the maids home for the night," Miss Grace said unexpectedly. "The dinner table has been set for a week yet. Steve announced 'I was going to buy this girl a pair of monkeys to take back to New York.'"

Back to New York? Steve's face brightened through a smile. "I'm not sure I can't buy them for a week yet," Steve announced. "I was going to buy this girl a pair of monkeys to take back to New York."

Barry rose and looked at Steve. "Don't buy those monkeys," Barry said. "I don't want to see you with a monkey on your back."

Steve looked at Barry and sighed. "I don't want to see you with a monkey on your back," Barry said. "I don't want to see you with a monkey on your back."

Steve looked at Barry and sighed. "I don't want to see you with a monkey on your back," Barry said. "I don't want to see you with a monkey on your back."

"He won't tell me if he knows... and I don't think he does," Mona said.

Lottie came a step nearer. "Barry will never let you get that far," she went on. "When you tell him you love him he'll either stop you and say everything is O. K. or else he'll leave you sitting right where you are. I think tomorrow at tea time would be a good time."

"I see you have it all planned," Mona said. "I never will trust blinds or hinges either. Only I can't do all that. Lottie if Barry doesn't speak for me soon, it's all over. We'll go back home and think of something else to do but I can't speak to Barry about it."

"I understand," Lottie agreed so cheerily. "Well, good night. Go to bed."

"Oh, I'll sleep," Mona promised. "But she did not. Long after Lottie ceased moving about in the next room, long after lights had been set to shine through the lattice work at the top of the door leading into the hallway and silence settled over the house, Mona lay awake in her bed, thinking of the amazing silliness of the tropical night. The fragrance of the tropic night, the fragrance of the tropic night, the fragrance of the tropic night, the fragrance of the tropic night.

As she moved down the pathway the flamboyant trees flicked her face gently with their fragrance. It did not occur to Mona to be afraid. She gained the sand. Ah, here she could really think! Was it safe to lie on the sand at night or any other time? Of course it was safe! Why not? Anyhow, it was delightful. Mona stretched her slender length along the shelf of rock where the shadows played, her hands beneath her head. This was comfort. This was peace.

Silence and still more silence. All of a sudden Mona felt rather than hear a sound. Someone was near her! She sat upright, tense and alert. It had been foolish to come. Foolhardy and silly beyond words. Who was making that sound? A bird perhaps or the wind?

A shadow separated itself suddenly from a clump of trees and moved toward her. The girl wanted to scream and found she could not.

THAT NEW AMBERBANK COFFEE IS AWFUL. AM I RIGHT OR AM I NOT?

YEAH, IT'S FULL OF QUAKERS.

IT'S SUPPOSED TO BE A BLEND OF MILDS.

IF ROBUSTAS ARE MILDS THEN IT'S 100 PERCENT.

IF THEY WERE SMART THEY'D PUT IN A LITTLE VIC TO TAKE THE EDGE OFF THE RUBBER.

IF IT WASN'T FOR THE REVOLUTION MIGHT THEY'D LOAD IT UP WITH MINS AND MINIS.

AND DID YOU GET ON TO THAT STEEL CUT? THEY MUST HAVE PUT IT THROUGH THE SCENE MILL BY THE DUST IN IT.

YEAH, A COUPLE MORE NEW ONES LIKE THAT AND THE WHEELS WILL BE DRIVING ORANGE JUICE.

HOW ABOUT SOME GOLF SUNDAY WITH HIM AND ME?

NOT WITH THOSE GAMES! THEY DON'T SPEAK OUR LANGUAGE! THE ONLY WORD ABOUT IS SUGAR!

Yankees Cinch Pennant In 100th Victory Of Season

Pipgras Beat Cleveland, Finishing Game Against That Team For First Time Since 1928

CLEVELAND—The New York Yankees reached the end of their long march toward the 1932 American league championship Tuesday when they defeated the Indians, 9-3, to make their triumph a mathematical certainty.

The victory was their 100th of the season against 43 defeats so far. Even if they lose all their remaining games and the second place Philadelphia Athletics take all the 12 they will have left, the pennant still will belong to New York. The 'A's have won 87 games and can do no better than 99 victories.

George Pipgras, veteran right hander, had the honor of pitching the deciding game although he had a full arm.

The Yankees piled up 16 blows off Clint Brown and Sarge Connolly, every one of them getting at least one hit, and put the game away in the sixth inning with a four-run outburst that gave them a 7-1 margin.

cia was almost as good a first baseman as Hutto and a better hitter, and Garcia was very near to being the all-star initial sacker.

Billy Bass was shifted from shortstop to cover the middle bag, but fan after fan explained that the transfer was caused by the lack of a good second-baseman. Devaney, the turnerup, is an excellent fielder but is not a good hitter. Bass, on the other hand, will hit close to 400 during the season.

A Garcia and L. Walker were standouts. The same goes for the outfield of Harris, Madison, and Cramer. Ferro was heads and shoulders above any catcher in the country. Brown was undeniably the best pitcher, while Payne worked in the most games and turned in the most victories.

The second team is like this: 1b. Juan Garcia (Tigers); 2b. Devaney (Cochoma); ss. Joe Valdez (Tigers); 3b. Charles Ferguson (Forsan); if. Bud Mahoney (Cochoma); cf. N. Walker (Cochoma); rf. Raymond Cruz (Tigers); c. Patton (Cochen); P. Potter (Cochen) and Walden (Forsan); utility, Cook (Forsan) and Tate (Forsan).

Only six or seven fans voted for a utility man, but the deserving is easily apparent. Martin received votes for second base, shortstop and outfield, securing a total of 15. Bishop was selected on different ballots as a second-baseman, shortstop and third-baseman, running up the total of 19 votes.

Fifty-one fans should not be wrong, and we do not believe that they are in this instance. Personally we can think of no means of improving the lineup. Juan Gar-

Redistricting For Legislative Posts Proposed In Bill

AUSTIN, (UP)—A bill to redistrict the state for state representatives which will increase the number in the large population counties was offered in the house of representatives here Tuesday by Representatives Emmet Moran of Houston and Charles McComb of Dallas.

Under it Harris county would have nine representatives; Dallas eight and a floater; Tarrant county five; Bexar county seven; El Paso three; Jefferson, three and a floater; Wichita two; Cameron, two; McLennan two and Travis, two.

Harrison county is put in a district with Polio and Marian counties. Upshur and Gregg counties are made a district. South county is a single district and it is an additional district with Wood county. Several other counties which now have separate representatives would be combined and a district representative.

Adjutant General Is Visitor In City

Communications

The Herald will print communications that are acceptable to it. They must be free of libel and personal abuse. Short ones will be given preference. Only original communication addressed to The Herald will be printed; open letters or letters otherwise addressed to various persons in public life are not acceptable.

To The Editor:
 A meeting of the State Executive Committee of the Independent Democratic party of America was held at the Worth Hotel at Fort Worth at 9 a. m. Sept. 12th. For the purpose of changing the name of the party. It was decided to change the name to the "Independent Democratic" party if permitted by the Secretary of State, and if not, to the "Jacksonian Democratic" party and certificate was accordingly made to the Secretary of State.

Judge Geo. W. Armstrong, the party's candidate for governor, said that the Good Government party of Hidalgo County protested the use of this name to the Secretary of State. "We adopted the name," Judge Armstrong said, "because it seemed to fit, and in ignorance of the fact that there is a local Good Government party in Hidalgo county."

"As a matter of fact the Dallas convention preferred the name 'Independent Democratic' party but the Secretary of State would not permit its use. We are all life long Democrats who believe in democracy and who are seeking to restore the party to its ancient principles. We haven't changed but the party has fallen into alien hands and into evil ways. We have again requested the use of this name."

"Jim Ferguson truly said in 1920 when he was a candidate for the presidency on the American party ticket:

"Ask yourself with your conscience to answer: Why should any Texan vote the Democratic ticket? There is no longer any reason, logical or sentimental, why any Texan should vote the Democratic ticket. In the first place the Democratic party has abandoned the principles upon which it was founded. It has betrayed the people and belied its principles."

"The names 'Independent Democratic' and 'Jacksonian Democratic' are both descriptive of us and our purpose. Jackson vetoed the charter of the Second Bank of the United States nearly 100 years ago because it had assumed the power to control the government through financial-political parties and to control the economic welfare of the people through the manipulation of currency and credit. We have precisely that situation now and it is the chief mission of the new Independent Democratic or 'Jacksonian Democratic' party to correct it."

GEO. W. ARMSTRONG.

20-Year-Old Cincinnati Player Captures Medalist Honors In Amateur Meet

Gus Moreland Qualifies With 149 For 36 Holes

By ALAN GOULD
 Associated Press Sports Editor

FIVE FARMS COURSE, Baltimore Country Club—The highly-prized qualifying medal for the United States amateur championship was captured by a 20-year-old college star, Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati and the University of Michigan, with a record-equalling tally of 69-73-142 for 36 holes.

Exhibiting little if any tendency to wilt under the strain of the most spectacular scoring pace in the 26-year history of the national tournament, Fischer, who holds the national intercollegiate championship, beat his nearest rival, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, by two strokes. He was in front all the way. But for three narrowly missed putts on his round yesterday he would have blasted a new qualifying standard instead of doing well enough to equal the mark of 142 first set by D. Clark Corkran of Baltimore, in 1924 at Merion, Pa., and duplicated twice by Bobby Jones in 1927 and 1930.

Scores of 152 and Better
 Goodman's brilliant 77-72-141, where a single losing putt with a bunker on the 16th hole cost him two strokes and a tie with his Ohio rival, was just good enough to give the Nebraskan second place. He finished one stroke in front of 19-year-old Wilfred Crossley, Harvard freshman and Perry E. Hall, wealthy Philadelphia banker, tennis star by preference and golfer only by request.

Crossley and Hall, two of the qualifying play's biggest sensations, posted identical scores of 73-72-145, as they, too, made the grade.

In the wildest of all hunts for the 32 qualifying places by a field of 154 players, it took 152 or better, another record, to get into the battle for match play, which starts today with two 18-hole rounds for the survivors. The best previous mark was 145.

Thirty-three were left after yesterday's exciting events. Two of these, Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., youngest of a noted golfing clan, and John Brawner, Jr., Washington business man, each with 152.

A series of stunning setbacks. Two of the American Walker cup stars, Don Moe of Oregon and Billy Howell of Virginia, successful partners at Brookline, were eliminated by wide margins. Moe finished with 157 and Howell with 161. Along with them went the sensational George T. Dunlop, Jr. of New York, a hero of the Walker cup competition who blew up with a 42 on the last nine and finished just above the qualifying limit with 153.

In the 149 bracket, with such campaigners as Gus Moreland of Dallas and Chick Evans, was 19-year-old Charley Yates, Georgia state champion, competing in his first national tournament. Yates with a 72 the first day, played coolly to get inside 74 and continue his bid for fame. A stroke back of him, at 150, was Gene Vinson, young Mississippi champion.
