

Fines Are Cheaper, So More People Pay 'em

OVERTIME — Meter Maid Dorothy Taylor is issuing an overtime parking ticket to an out-of-town car. Since the reduced fines have been in effect collections rates have risen from 50 percent to an astounding 77 percent. This year is expected to be one of the largest ever in the parking meter business. (Brand Staff Photo)

By Phil Duncan
(EDITOR'S NOTE: the following is the second in a five-part series concerning the activities of the Hereford Police Department. This part deals with parking meters and how the reduced fines effect the collection rate. Series to follow will deal with Arrests, Tickets and Animal Control.)

Since the reduced parking meter violation fine was put into effect Dec. 15, 1963, the percentage of collection in parking meter violations has risen from an average 50 percent to a remarkable 77 per-cent according to Police Chief Marshall Padgett. In January of 1963, $694 were collected in the meters, compared to $818 in January of this year. In January of this year, 1204 parking tickets were issued by Meter Maid Dorothy Taylor and only 774 tickets were issued in January of 1963. "However," Padgett said

"at times last year we were without a meter maid and this accounted for the reduction in meter revenue and fine collections." The 1204 tickets issued in January of this year represents a record during the years 1959 to 1963 inclusive. The meter revenue and overparking fines collected in January of 1963 totaled $1145, while the $1 fine was in effect. In January of 1964 the total meter revenue and overparking fines collected was $1,060, which is amazingly close to the figure collected when the $1 fine was collected. The 75 per cent reduction in fines did not lower the revenue as much as expected if the following months continue to bring in the revenue as the month of January. "The main rise in collection," Padgett said, "is in cars from out of the county and state and the transients' vehicles which have out of county licenses."

"The people seem to pay the 25 cent fine in almost all cases, where with the $1 fine our rate of collection was way down from that in January," Padgett continued. In January, 233 tickets issued to out-of-town vehicles were paid which is far below the amount collected when the $1 fine was collected. "From all indications," Padgett said, "this is going to be a record year in all facets of the parking meter business."

The highest number of parking tickets ever issued in one year during the four year period was in 1962 when 9,325 tickets were issued. A total of $5,378 was collected for fines in 1962. This averages at 58 cents collected on each ticket during that record year. During the month of January of this year, $241 were collected in fines and this is an average of 20 cents per ticket. Sheriff's Crew Nips Burglary Ring; Eight Youths Arrested

The arrest of two 15-year-old Latin-American youths late Wednesday helped the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's department clear up the series of small burglaries in and around Hereford. The "petty burglaries" involved the theft of minor articles, the total of which was estimated at less than $500. Two men, Jessie S. Gonzales, 18, and Paulino L. Rivera, 17, are being held in lieu of $2,000 bond after they were arraigned before Justice of the Peace C. B. Miles. One of the juveniles, who was considered the "ringleader" of the group, by the arresting officers was sent to Gatesville Reformatory for Boys in Gatesville. The remainder of the boys, which included two 16 year-olds and three 15 year-olds will be placed on probation for an undetermined period of time by County Judge H. C. Williams. Burglaries thus far cleared up are the Deaf Smith County Gin, Tower Drive-In Theatre, Big Burger Cafe, Griffin's and Brand Sales, Hi-Way Cafe, Wac Seed Co., Jack Renfro Shed, Hereford Fertilizer Company and Stephens-Hudson Ford Company.

The youths tried to enter the Hi-Way Cafe twice and broke into the Wac Seed Company twice, officers said. Two tires, two electric drills, one solder iron, several cartons of spark plugs, one battery charger, one portable light, several sets of hubcaps, a large jack, several cartons of cigarettes, candy and matches were recovered by deputies of the sheriff's department. "Some of the property taken in the burglaries was sold to persons around the labor camp," Sheriff Lowell Sharp said, "but (Continued on Page 3)

Chamber Group Opposes Civil Rights Measure

Hereford Chamber of Commerce's "Government Affairs Committee" this past week came out in opposition to the civil rights bill now being debated in the Senate.

The group pointed to statements by two past presidents of the American Bar Association who called the bill "one of the most ominous pieces of legislation ever presented to the Congress of the United States."

The committee said too many people, including some congressmen who voted for it, are unaware of the contents of this bill. In a statement the committee said, "It is too easy to believe in these times of racial striving for equal opportunity (Continued on Page 3)

King's Manor To Add $93,000 Housing Unit

Contract was let by King's Manor Thursday for a $93,619 addition to the "well-care" facilities of the sprawling home for the aged, the fifth building project to be contracted for the home in the last few months, Executive Director Don Davidson said Saturday.

The contract was let to Knox, Galley & Meador, general contractors from Lubbock, who also constructed the original building.

The new unit for wellcare residents will add 10 new rooms and in addition will provide "permanent" kitchen and dining room facilities, Mr. Davidson said.

The new unit, which will be attached to the present main building, is to be completed within 150 working days, under terms of the contract, and the executive director said the new unit should be ready for occupancy Sept. 1.

"This means," he explained, "that we will have facilities for 40 "well" people and 26 "sick" persons after the new hospital unit, now under construction, and the new annex are completed."

Also under construction is the business manager's home, a $16,500 on-campus project being built by Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Co., and two duplex dwellings of brick veneer, being built by Carl McCaslin Lumber Co.

Biggest single building project under construction now is the $220,000 nursing unit which the director said is "running ahead of schedule." When completed, it will provide the first facilities for "sick" persons who cannot now be cared for in the older portion of the home. He said 17 applicants for admission already have been approved by the board.

The newest unit of the "well-care" portion of the home in addition to providing office, kitchen, dining room and residents' rooms, also will have a sun parlor, a large living room and a (Continued on Page 3)

Board Fails To Renew School Chief's Contract

Disclosure was made Thursday morning that P. L. Stevens, Superintendent of Schools for the past four years, will not be returning to the Hereford school system for the 1964-65 school year. Stevens' contract was not renewed.

In a statement to the Board Thursday, the Board of Education said only that the Board has chosen not to renew the contract. "We feel that this action is in the best interest of the Hereford Schools," the statement read.

Stevens became superintendent of the local schools July 1, 1950 after resignation of Fred Cunningham. He has seen the district through one of its major building programs, and is currently in the midst of another. During his tenure of office the schools have recorded a record growth, as enrollment jumped from 2500 in 1960 to over 3500 for the current year.

Also during this four-year period, the voters of the district voted to change Hereford's schools from a rural high school district to an independent district.

In a letter to all school personnel, Stevens expressed his appreciation for the full support and cooperation of the staff and faculty, stating "We have had a most fruitful four years, and be assured that it is only through your combined efforts that these many objectives have been achieved."

He further stated: "It is my sincere hope and desire that you will keep up the good (Continued from page 2)

80 Tons' Output

New Plant At Dimmitt Gets Off To Fast Start

A 3.5-million ammonia plant built for Western Ammonia Corp. in Dimmitt was completed in February of this year and has been producing more than 80 tons of anhydrous ammonia daily, since completion.

This plant is expected to produce more than 27,000 tons of anhydrous ammonia yearly for the area.

In conjunction with the ammonia plant there is a liquid fertilizer plant with a capacity of producing approximately 25 tons of liquid fertilizer per hour or 500 tons per day.

All of this fertilizer used at the plant will be consumed within a 50-mile radius of the modern plant. George Lambrecht, Midland, is president of the newly formed company and E. J. McMillan, Hereford is general manager and vice-president of the plant which employs more than 60 persons on a year-around basis.

Darrell Martin, Hereford, is sales manager and Craig House, Dimmitt, is plant superintendent.

Dr. William Bennett is chief agronomist for the corporation. "This is a new feature offered by our company which was not available before. Dr. Bennett will counsel with the farmers using our product and prescribe their soil needs," Darrell Martin said.

Dr. Bennett is a graduate of Oklahoma State University and Iowa State University schools of agronomy.

A large storage tank was built on the plant site by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works and has a storage capacity of 12,000 tons or more than 5-million gallons ammonia.

The ammonia is processed through the combination of air, natural gas and various chemicals and steam is used in the manufacturing of the product but not in the ammonia itself.

The ammonia is cooled to 38 degrees F. at which point ammonia has no pressure, and then it is channeled into the mammoth storage tank where it is kept at that temperature until sold. When the ammonia is sold it is pumped into a smaller tank with a 51,000 gallon capacity or approximately 130 tons at which time it is heated to 150 degrees F. and then pumped on to the loading stations where it is sold.

King's Manor Resident Reminisces

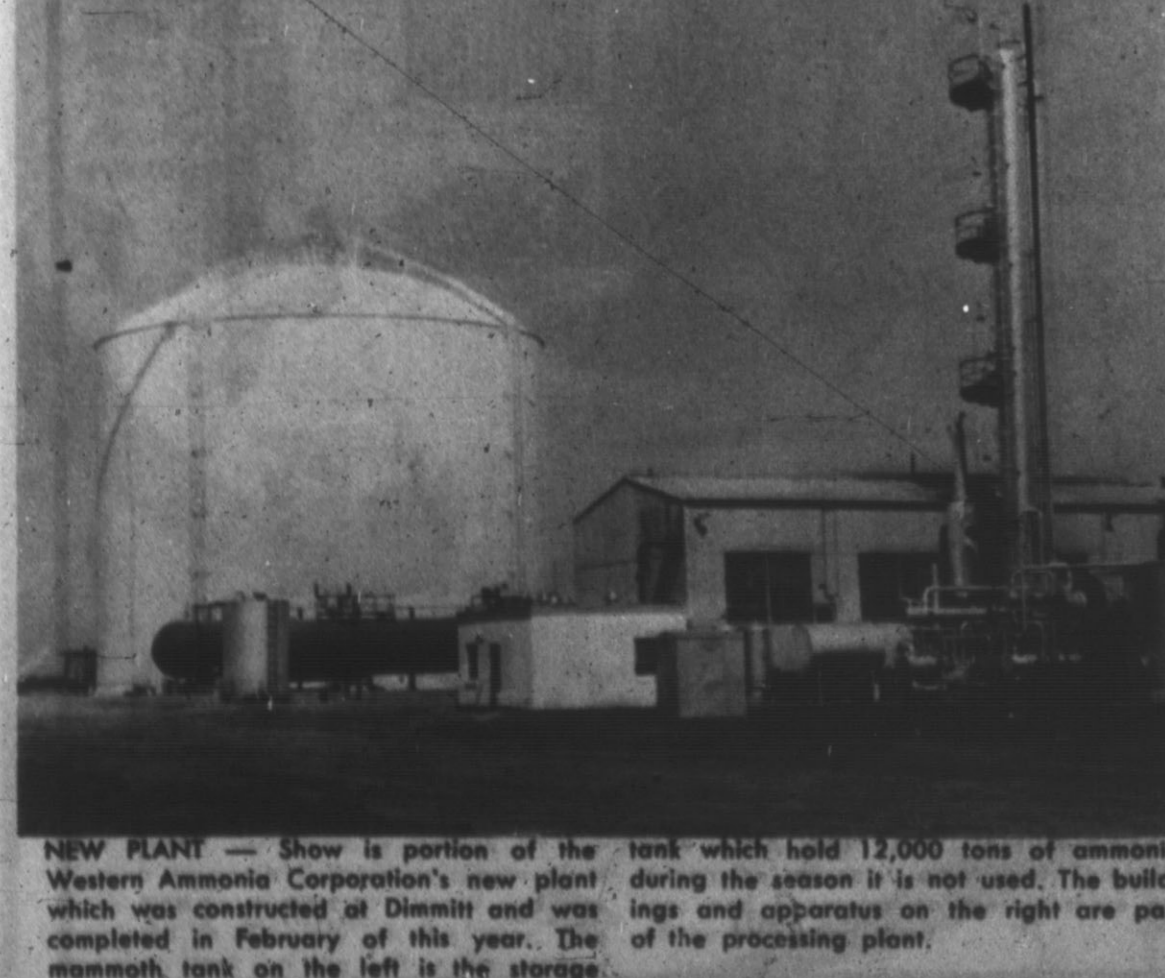

Miss Bessie And The Navajos

Editor's Note: Out at King's Manor lives Miss Bessie Frances Brown, for many years a missionary to the Navajos, who also served for a time in China. Mrs. R. L. Criswell went to the Manor and recorded some of Miss Brown's (only everybody calls her Miss Bessie) memories of those days. Mrs. Criswell has put down the events as Miss Brown told them, without any particular sequence.

By Mrs. R. L. Criswell
Miss Bessie Frances Brown was born in Carroll, Iowa, on Flag Day in 1886, second of six children. The family moved to Harlan and there she was graduated from Harlan High School in 1903, and went on to graduate from Epworth Evangelist Institute in St. Louis. Later she received both her bachelor of arts degrees from Taylor University in Indiana. (Continued on page 2) work under your next superintendent.

"As noted above, I will be superintendent until June 30, and there will be no lag of the work procedures of this office during this period."

Stevens did not indicate future plans, but noted that he would stay on the job in Hereford to fulfill his present contract. Expiration date of his current contract is June 30, 1964.

In other action during the Thursday morning called meeting, the Board of Trustees adjusted the salary of Coby Kitchens, present Athletic Director, who will be returning to the school system in 1964 as driver education instructor and basketball coach. The position of athletic director was abolished at a previous meeting. The board voted unanimously to adjust the supplementary salary to coincide with that of football coach Jack Meredith. The action would drop the district supplementary salary to $3256, plus the state base and increments. This would represent a net salary loss to the Athletic Director of $75 yearly.

The board also heard a report from Stevens concerning a recent trip to West Texas University and Sul Ross, located at Alpine, in an effort to secure additional teachers for the 1964-65 school year.

"There is an extreme shortage of elementary teachers," said Stevens, as well as English instructors. He also indicated that current salary schedule for the Hereford Independent School District made it almost impossible for the system to compete for competent teachers.

Stevens also told the board that his two final goals for the remainder of his time in Hereford, were to see the passage of a bond issue for additional school rooms, and to secure a salary increase for the teaching staff.

Miss Bessie

But this story, from here on, is told by Miss Beadie, events from her past as she recalled them when I visited with her recently.

Here's her story:
Before we go any further I want to tell you a tale that my father was always telling about me. It happened when I was about 3 years old. A neighbor had given mother a baby pig that had got its leg broken. She had planned to have it destroyed, but mother's tender heart could not bear the thought and she asked if she might not nurse it back to health. This she had done. It was fine now, but had a badly sunburned tail. It was very gentle and did not run when I came into the pen, forgetting that I was never to open the gate and leave it open.

The gate stood wide, and as I attempted to dress the pig in my doll clothes it wiggled from my hands and ran out the gate and on into the neighbor's garden. Of course I took after it, badly frightened and wondering what my mother would say when she learned it had got away. I slipped along after it very quietly and suddenly it was near and I grabbed for its tail. To my utter astonishment it came off in my hand; I stared dumbfounded for a second, then again ran after it, more determined to catch it than ever and eventually did catch and put it back into the pen and was very careful indeed to close the gate after it, and to carry my doll clothes to the house.

When mother returned and learned that the pig had no tail she asked me what happened. I answered that "I saw the wind blow it into the alley, and I must go and buy a new one and screw it right back on."

Even when very young I felt the Lord was calling me to do special work for Him. As I grew older, and was so spirited and full of fun, everyone thought I would never go into full time Christian service, but after graduation from high school at the age of 16 I sent my boy-friend away, went to St. Louis and entered Epworth Evangelistic Institute concentrating on studies that would help me in my future work. My boy-friend died two years later while studying at the Armour Institute of Technology in Chicago.

My first graduate work was done as a Missionary Deaconess. One of the things I did was to teach a class of Chinese in Sunday School. They wished that someday I might take the Gospel teachings to their people in China. Even then, though I did not know it, God was planning for me to go to China.

Started in 1906
In 1906 I went to work at a missionary service before the age of 24. I could count all the Indians on one hand whom I had ever seen, and wondered if I would be scalped. However, I learned that Indians made very good friends. I worked there for several years and each summer would take a little Indian boy, named John Charles, on a tour of the middle west and the East in deputation work.

The little boy was very cute with hair as black as a raven's wing and black eyes that sparkled in the sunlight. He could sing with the voice of an angel and appeared in native costume and sang an Indian song he had learned from his grandfather, who was a medicine man, and knew all the rituals and chants of his trade. After he sang the medicine man song he would sing his favorite hymn. I do not remember the name, but here is the first stanza. "On the cross of Calvary, Jesus died for you and me. There he shed his precious blood, that from me I might be free." Today the little Indian boy is a handsome man and a most eloquent preacher as he brings the gospel messages to his brothers. He has a family and his voice is used for the glory of God.

Learned Navajo Customs
Another wonderful thing is that his father, the old medicine man, no longer practices the arts of his trade or sings the medicine chants. He is now of many years, and I learned many things about the Indians from him.

The Navajos will not let anyone die in a Hogan (pronounced with the accent on the last syllable) as they believe that their spirit never leaves the Hogan and it is left for the spirit of the one passing on, or burned to the ground. I often cared for their sick ones but never in a Hogan; it must be out in the open.

One day as I sat in an open corral caring for a sick child, the old medicine man came and sat beside me and began a conversation. Suddenly he turned to me and said, "Do you know about the origin of the Navajo?" "Many, many moons ago the giant Shiprock sailed in the air as a bird. It came from the East. As it sailed along it suddenly descended to the ground and the men and women upon the rock climbed down from the rock and established the Navajo Tribe."

Then too, there was the story of death. When time first began the Navajo had never heard of death. One day a woman died. They were amazed and asked one another over and over, "Where id she go?" As the men were hunting, one came to a cave, curiously he looked in; the first layer of the cave was white, the second one was mottled and the third one was very dark. The man walked on and the cave became darker. At last after he had reached great depth he saw an Indian woman sitting and combing her hair. Thoroughly alarmed he hurried out of the cave to tell the others what he had seen. Since that time when an Indian dies they are sure he must go into the depths of the earth and sit and comb his, (or her) hair through eternity.

Never Cut Hair
The Indians of old never cut their hair and the young men would have a very large bun as they put their hair up in the same way as the Medicine Man. He was very old and his hair had grown very thin, but he put it up in the traditional way, tied with a heavy white cord, wrapped many, many times around the bun.

I loved working with the Indians and could see no end to the work to be done as we not only educated them but taught them to sew and cook and many other of the arts and crafts of civilized living.

Once while I was on tour, I received a telegram that was very puzzling to me as it was from the Superintendent. "No sign of Mission left. Mr. Tice dead. Mr. Weston dying. See you in Wichita, Kan." We had planned to meet there at a Missionary convention. It was there I learned the story of the great storm that merged three rivers into one and changed the course of one, probably for all time. The three rivers were the La Plata, Las Animas and San Juan. The first two were northwest of Farmington and San Juan came from Durango, a bit northeast. La Plata and Las Animas emptied into the San Juan. Seven feet of water was turned out of the storage tanks used for irrigation, and with the overflow into the San Juan, it changed its course and washed the mission away.

The spot was swept clean as a new floor, even to the grove of huge cottonwood trees that had stood there for centuries. In an indirect way my mother saved the children and workers at the mission as she and father had visited me at the mission and were shocked to learn that there was no telephone to the Mission. She worked very hard to have one installed. It had been completed only a few months when the call came to the Mission Agent to get the children to the top of the Mesa as quickly as possible. There has been a terrible storm and the rivers are out of banks and still rising.

They hurried the children up on the Mesa, just back of the mission but much higher. Mr. Tice and Mr. Weston had gone back to try to save the livestock when the tide caught them. Mr. Weston managed to grab a trunk of clothes and hang on to it for several miles. A Japanese farmer saw him and pulled him out of the raging waters. The body of Mr. Tice was found several days later nearly buried in the sand many miles down the river.

The mission was rebuilt in due time, but it was built on the Farmington side of the river San Juan, and only a school was built, where the old Mission taught the young and the old in the arts of living. The children mourned the loss of the livestock, but most of all a little burro named Janess Miller. She was slow and stubborn as all mules are, but the children loved her and loved climbing on her back for a ride each and every day the weather would permit.

In this way the Lord prepared for my going to China as a missionary and where there was many more experiences that will always be in my memory.

The committee wound up its study with a request for citizens "to write their views on this legislation," to the two Texas senators, and to other friends and relatives "to study the real meaning of this dictatorship-creating bill to urge that they write their senators."

The bill is now being debated in the Senate. The committee's statement of opposition to the bill included these 13 points:

"1. The right of freedom of speech and freedom of the press concerning 'discrimination or segregation of any kind at any establishment or place as delineated in the bill (see sections 202-203.)"

"2. The right of homeowners to rent, lease, or sell their homes as free individuals (sections 601-602).

"3. The right of realtors and developers of residential property to act as free agents (sections 601-602).

"Our dining facilities have not been adequate," Mr. Davidson explained, "but when the newest unit is completed we will have one of the finest kitchens and dining rooms in the Southwest. The space now used for such purposes will be converted to residents' rooms." He said laundry facilities will be enlarged, storage rooms, a craft shop, sewing rooms and a hair-styling shop also will be included. It will join the present building on the Southwest and extend the building by 116 feet.

Along with the expanded facilities, a landscaping program

"15. The right of litigants to receive evenhanded justice (A complainant under this bill can have the Attorney General, at the taxpayers' expense, represent him. But the individual accused, justly or otherwise, has to defend himself at his own expense.) (section 101 (d), title IX)."

costing $1500 is being planned with the "help of the local garden clubs" Mrs. Pearl Shetley, Dimmitt, and Mrs. W. T. Graham, Amarillo.

At a general meeting of the board of trustees held last Saturday, Davidson said a pay raise was granted to L. C. Thomas, manager; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turner, Lubbock, were employed as business manager of the nursing unit and director of nursing services respectively.

The nursing unit, incidentally, is to be known as "King's Manor West."

Also hired recently were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Copeland. He will be maintenance man and gardener and she will be an assistant in food services. They will live on the campus. Mrs. Ola Davis will continue as director of well care.

Davidson said vacancies in the nursing care service exist, as well as in the food services. Additional housekeepers also are needed, he said.

"When the Northwest Texas Conference (owner of King's Manor) meets April 20, the executive council will make an excellent report," he concluded, adding, "we are pleased with the response the home has had from its neighbors and from a group of interested volunteer workers who have aided our program greatly." The latter group bought a power mower recently for the Home.

The executive director said a "get-acquainted" day is planned for well care division in April.

most of it has been recovered and returned to the owner."

Four of the youths had been arrested about two months ago by deputies after they were caught breaking out a windshield on a vehicle.

All of the boys reside in the labor camp.

After hours of interrogation Wednesday officers were able to recover most of the property and arrest the other two boys.

One of the boys, Paulino Rivera, had been to Gatesville for two previous scrapes with the law according to Sheriff Sharp.

None of the eight boys attended Hereford schools. The first clue to the burglaries was discovered when one of the deputies discovered that someone had painted obscene words on a garage in the labor camp.

The same color of paint had been used to paint on a wall at the Deaf Smith County Jail where the paint was taken.

Deputies soon rounded up one of the boys and soon gathered up some of his companions in the crimes.

Six were taken into custody Tuesday evening and interrogation revealed that two more were involved in the burglaries.

"I feel the deputies did an excellent job in clearing this thing up as fast as they did. All of our men worked hard and cleared this situation up in record time," Sheriff Sharp said.

Bruce Miller Is Guest Speaker

Bruce Miller, local attorney, was guest speaker March 17 for the meeting of the American Legion and Auxiliary. The occasion marked the 45th anniversary of the organization of the American Legion.

Introduced by Benny Womble, post commander, the speaker noted that the preamble to the constitution of the American Legion was adopted in Paris, France, March 17, 1919. He pointed out the difference in the original and the present constitutions and explained the meaning of each part. Miller was a captain at the time of his discharge after World War II.

About 50 members attended the covered dish supper and anniversary observance. The tables were decorated in the Saint Patrick's Day theme.

Fines...

(Continued from Page 1) with the old fine of $1 the average would have been 80 cents per ticket if the rate of collection were the same.

The record month for tickets issued was in January when the 1204 tickets were issued.

The largest total of fines collected in one month was in October of 1962 when $597 was collected.

The average collected on each ticket during that month would be approximately 54 cents, which is below the average of 58 cents.

"In money taken in by the meter the largest yearly total ever collected was $11,933.87 in 1960. This total does not include the fines but just the money deposited in the meters.

There has been no drop thus far in 1964 in money collected from the meters. In January, $818 were collected from the meters.

There are 286 meters placed in front of business locations in downtown Hereford. Of these 286 meters, more than 180 are on Main Street.

These meters are checked for violators every hour by Meter Maid Dorothy Taylor.

There are 16 "curb cops" located at various locations on the meters and one in front of City Hall. These are used for depositing fines.

The cost of each meter set up at the locations is estimated at $75 and this represents an investment of more than $21,000.

The meters have been in operation since 1947 and have paid for the original investment many times over.

Although the income from parking meters in Hereford was down in 1963 it is felt by city officials that the 1964 income will rise to an all-time high due to the rapid growth of the city.

If the month of January of this year is any indication of what the year is to bring, there will be more than 14,400 tickets issued in 1964. This total should run much higher than the 14,400 as the population increases.

The revenue from the parking meters should exceed $13,000 if the trend continues and if the present rate of collection of fines continues this facet should total about $3,000.

It appears that the parking meter business is one of the most successful operated by the city and probably costs less to operate than any business.

"Our company is unique in one respect that we market our product ourselves and so do rely on distributors. Any one selling our product is an employee of the Western Ammonia Corporation," Martin continued.

The Dimmitt plant has a distributing station located three miles east of Hereford that has every fertilizer offered at the main plant available to the Hereford farmers.

Glen Watts, Jamie Clearman and E. V. Carter are the Western Ammonia employees located at the Hereford station.

Today it is estimated that 95 percent of the farmers in the area use some kind of ammonia fertilizer and of this percentage, more than 95 percent use it on all their cultivated land.

A dry solution of ammonia fertilizer available is a pellet form although the dry ammonia is not made at the Dimmitt plant but is shipped in.

Anhydrous ammonia is used on all crops in the area, only the amounts used in application vary.

"We intend to market the product as previously done in the area and intend to operate here strictly on a competitive basis," Martin said.

"This is the biggest ammonia-consuming area in the United States and this area was selected for the site on that basis," Martin concluded.

Old Barn Becomes Modern Duplex

An old barn was moved recently from its original location to Thirteenth Street and made into a modern duplex. The original lines of the building are intact, but the interior bears no resemblance to the former use of the building.

James H. Bradley Investment Corporation bought the barn from the Norbert Skypalos, moved it about one fourth mile, and converted it to its present use. Each side of the duplex has a living-dining room and kitchen with built-in oven and range top. This view of the kitchen is from the living room through an opening convenient to the dining area. In each apartment a staircase spirals to the upper floor, where there are two bedrooms and a bath. A window extending from the lower to the upper level forms a background for each stairway. On the upper floor the center post supporting the stairs terminates in a place for a potted plant at the end of an openwork iron balcony.

Those making Superior for the first time were: Tracy Hopson, Sally Dingus, Jackie Bodkin, Darla Ann Springer, Lee Line, Gary Hicks, Jane Lyons, Amy Ballard, Nancy Brink, Kathy Roberts, Rebecca Jean Hickman, Carolyn Murphree, Dana Rush, Cordella Suttle, Diana Lyn Hickman, Marilyn Ann Smith, Pamela Garrison, Kima Lis Marsh, Kimberly Dameron, Robert Lyons, Ricky Long, Nancy Fisher, John Nelson, Debra Slaughter, Ralph Knox in piano; Lisa Taylor, Linda Jacobsen and Mary Margaret Sheehan in voice.

A luncheon honoring the judges was held at noon. Tables were decorated with Easter bunnies and chickens.

Twenty people attended, including the festival chairman, Mrs. A. J. Schroeter, her helpers, music teachers and parents, and Rev. B. L. Davis and Duane Duane Barrett of the First Baptist Church.

Youth Injured In Fall From Moving Auto

Gerald Witkowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Witkowski, 215 Texas, was treated in Deaf Smith County Hospital after receiving minor head injuries after falling from a car driven by John Aiken Jr., 216 Texas.

Witkowski was released from the hospital Friday evening.

Officials said the boy suffered a minor concussion in the accident.

Aiken was cited by investigating patrolmen for allowing a person to ride on the outside of a vehicle.

Firemen Battle Three Blazes

Fire-fighting picked up from its usual slow pace last week when three calls were answered in the city.

The worst fire answered was Thursday morning on the west end of Kibbe when a barrack building was almost totally destroyed.

Damage to the building was estimated at more than $600.

Firemen contained the blaze to the west end of the building.

Wednesday morning a call summoned firemen to the intersection of First St. and 25 Mile Avenue.

The flame had been extinguished before firemen arrived.

The fire started when the hose slipped off an open stove in the bathroom.

Another call was answered Friday evening at 406 Witherpoon in a house belonging to Jack Bradley.

Damage to the house consisted mostly of smoke damage.

Planting-time Fertilizer Use Is Explained

By Bill Bennett, Agronomist

A large percentage of land in this area has been bedded up. Some is still lying flat. Beds have been shaped in some fields and are ready for planting. A few have been planted. Some of this land has been fertilized, but there is a lot yet to be done.

How is the best way to fertilize? First, what is to be applied? If only ammonia is needed, it can be conveniently applied on 20" centers on flat ground, chiseled in the side of the beds on 20" centers or it can be applied in the middle of the furrow with one chisel every 40". Where 27" rows are used for grain sorghum, applying ammonia with one chisel in each furrow works very well. Where double-row maize is to be planted, ammonia can be applied in the bed. Be sure to place ammonia so that you don't plant directly over the ammonia band.

Phosphorus fertilizers can still be applied. Some methods of application, however, may be more desirable than others to use this late in the season. The main thing with phosphorus application is that it should be placed within the root zone and within reach of young plant roots. Ideal placement is 4 to 7 inches

Use of Narcotics Is Discussed By Lowell Sharp

Lowell Sharp, sheriff of Deaf Smith County, discussed narcotics for members of Young Homemakers of Texas during their meeting March 17 in the home economics lab at the high school.

Mrs. Kenneth DeHart was presiding officer. The group was invited to attend the FHA convention, Saturday when Mrs. David Brumley, area president, was to be one of the speakers. Plans were discussed for a Mexican chili supper April 3 for Young Farmers and Young Homemakers.

Mrs. Howard Hunter was hostess. Guests were Miss Nina Jackson and Miss Janie Fields, student teachers from Texas Tech. Others present were Mrs. Larry Dobbs, Mrs. DeHart, Mrs. Truman Price, Mrs. Raymond Gerik, Mrs. Layton Sawyer, Mrs. Bob Hicks, Mrs. George Zetsche, Mrs. Brumley, Mrs. Clark Andrews, and Mrs. J. J. Durham.

VISITING MRS. FORBUS
The granddaughter and great-granddaughter of Mrs. Carl Forbus, Linda Cummings Strong and DeAnne, Portland, Ore., are visiting with Mrs. Forbus.

Australians were not the only aborigines to use boomerangs. They have also been found in India, Africa and North America, as well as Egypt and Europe.

Queen Victoria popularized preserved ginger. The monarch liked the candied spice from the Orient so well that she served it at state banquets.

Texan Touring Hemisphere Plugs World Fair, Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Mollie Lupe, an attractive Texas blonde, makes the astronauts almost seem like stay-at-homes as she jets around the United States and Latin America talking about her favorite subject, the 1964-65 New York World's Fair.

Miss Lupe is special World's Fair representative for Braniff International Airways. She is also a qualified flight hostess and reservationist. In fact, about the only thing she cannot do for the airline is fly the jets — even though she has soloed in small, private planes.

She is a native of San Antonio and a former queen of that city's fiesta.

The Vassar College graduate recently returned from a three-week 13,000 mile trip to South America where she encouraged Latin Americans to come to the fair and then to drop by Texas and the Southwest on their way home.

In addition to making talks in each of the cities, Miss Lupe met the press and made numerous personal appearances on television.

In noting that television is still something of a novelty in South America, she recalled following a dancing bear on stage during an hour-long variety show in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

After resting up from her South American journey, Miss Lupe took off again for a series of talks throughout the Southwest and Mexico, again expounding on the World's Fair.

Prior to jetting around for Braniff, she operated her own Spanish-English translating business in Dallas and before that she was employed by the United Nations in New York.

It was through her UN job that Miss Lupe learned to dance the "twist" — and from no less an authority than a Watutsi delegation from Africa, where the dance is said to have been derived from a ceremonial wedding dance.

Dr. James H. Jauncey, pastor of the First Christian Church in El Paso, one of the southwest's most noted speakers, will speak at the First Christian Church here Sunday and Monday evenings at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

An engineer and scientist by training and experience, he now largely devotes his time to the troubleshooting of the malfunctioning of human unhappiness. During the years he has acquired national renown for his advocacy of the traditional American emphasis on personal freedom in a society in which the intrusion of government is at a minimum.

Dr. E. H. Hendon Opens Office in Hereford

Dr. Eugene H. Hendon, O.D., announced today that he had opened offices at 136 E. 3rd. In the offices formerly occupied by J. W. Robinson Insurance Company.

Dr. Hendon is a graduate of Northern Illinois College of Optometry and has been practicing in Midland for the past six years.

Previous to his Midland practice...

Dr. Hendon had offices in Dallas for eight years.

His wife is the former Norma Ruth Harmon, daughter of Mrs. S. L. Harmon Sr. of Hereford.

Mrs. Hendon is a graduate of Hereford High School and was reared in Hereford.

of the traditional American emphasis on personal freedom in a society in which the intrusion of government is at a minimum. This work won him the George Washington medal from the Freedoms Foundations of Valley Forge in 1960 and 1962, and the Americanism Medal of the Daughters of the American Revolution for 1962.

His lecture program carries him all over the world, especially as a keynote speaker at national and state conventions of the most varied character, including the fields of education, science, religion, labor, industry, Chamber of Commerce, medicine, civic groups and politics. Although vigorously anti-Communist, Dr. Jauncey is not associated with any of the professional anti-Communist groups. He prefers the conservative, positive approach of emphasis on personal freedom as the genius of the American Way.

Dr. Jauncey was reared as the oldest of 15 children in conditions of poverty and privation in the Australian wilderness. In spite of these handicaps he acquired an education by means of competitive scholarship, and now holds ten earned academic degrees from some of the world's great universities, covering the highest levels of achievement in science, psychology, history and divinity. He holds professional rank in the British Psychological Society and a fellowship in the Royal Geographical Society. He is listed in Who's Who in American Education.

Dr. Jauncey was a technical adviser to the Australian government during World War II, after which he became Head of the Department of Science and Mathematics at Kings College in South Australia. After coming to America in 1948, he taught at graduate schools on West Coast until he became engaged on a scientific project at White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico, which he left in 1968 to take up his present position. He became a naturalized citizen in 1954.

During the years he has had continual experience in clinical psychology. Besides his works on guided missiles, Dr. Jauncey is the author of THIS FAITH WE LIVE BY (Zondervan's, 19-61), SCIENCE RETURNS TO GOD (Zondervan's, 1961), I BELIEVE IN THE AMERICAN WAY (Zondervan's, 1962), THIS POWER WITHIN (to be published late 1963), and a devotional, THE TWO GREAT COMMANDMENTS (Upper Room, 1962). He has published over 700 manuscripts in over 50 magazines.

Dr. and Mrs. Jauncey are the conductors of the nationally renowned NEW TESTAMENT TRAILS PILGRIMAGE in which every summer a select group is taken to the sacred places of the Bible, after a leisurely voyage in which Dr. Jauncey lec-

Pete Gets Going On 'Donations'

By Pete Progress
I could tell that Pete was disturbed about something when he came into the office but knew that I wouldn't have to ask him what it was. Pete has a way of speaking his mind about things that he feels aren't right so I just waited him out.

"Why is it that the general public condemns blackmail of one individual by another but endorses a form of blackmail against the retailer through his civic, veteran and church organizations?" Pete questioned.

"Though I am not in business myself I am continually amazed at the pressures that are brought to bear upon the business man for donations. Oh, the donations may be disguised as program advertisements or ticket purchases but they are donations never-the-less.

"And they endorse it themselves in the organizations to which they belong while condemning he practice in Chamber of Commerce meetings. The system is simply this. A civic club, or church group, or veterans organization or a fraternal order hits upon a good project — but in order that that project be accomplished it must have funds. And where will those funds come from?

Immediately, some one suggests 'Let's print tickets and then sell them to the merchants to give to their customers' or 'Let's print a program and sell ads to the merchants'. Or perhaps it is an entertainment where a genuine effort is made to sell tickets to the general public but who is asked to furnish the door prizes? — the merchants of course.

"And of course just any member cannot call on any merchant. The membership is carefully screened so that only the best customers of the merchant to be solicited are chosen. After all can the merchant say no to a good customer — particularly a woman customer?

"Why do we feel that the merchant is fair game to be required to support every club's project? All of our business men have their own churches which they are expected to (and do) support. They also have their own clubs and organizations to which they pay dues and help to underwrite the projects. Is it just that he is most subject to pressure? Is it that he can least afford to say no? Or is it that he is just the most available — he can be found in his place of business and the business district is fairly concentrated making it easy to solicit?

"The business man pays on his inventory and on his right to do business as well as the taxes that he pays on his home, just as every one else does.

No other occupation anywhere, is taxed on his means of making a living in any comparable manner with the exception of the farmer. But no other occupation is so available or so subject to pressure as the business man.

"Is their some special obligation that the business man has? Some say that the business man makes his living off the productivity of others — but this is a very narrow and unfair point of view. If the business man was not providing a service to the public that the public wanted he would not survive in business.

He provides the goods and services at a convenient location at a price which will pay the taxes, pay his help, pay his utility and rent bills and still leave him a profit — and profit is just another way of saying 'wage' for profit is the wage earned by the business man in turn for his own time and effort and particularly for taking the risk of operating a business and trying to guess the requirements of a fickle buying public.

"And who really pays for the donations that the merchant is pressured into giving? The customer does, of course, for the merchant has no one else to pass it on to. And perhaps this is one reason why people feel that businessmen in a smaller town are not always competitive in prices to comparable businesses. In large cities where the demands for gifts are spread over a much larger base.

"It seems to me that every club and organization should stop and ask 'does the business man have an obligation to support this activity? Is there a real advertising value or a real benefit that will accrue to the businessman if he supports this project? If the answer to these questions is 'no' then what possible justification do you have in asking him to contribute to your cause? Is there another avenue of providing the financing available, a more just avenue though it may involve a little — or a lot — of work?

"How big a problem is it? A survey reveals that a store doing a gross annual volume of $500,000 will be asked to contribute an average of $5000 per year to various causes unrelated to his business. But this is only 1% you say! Yes, 1% of the gross but a store doing a gross of $500,000 can expect to net — that is pay a wage to the owner, corporation or individual, an average of less than $35,000 (retail profits, nation wide or less than 7 percent) and that $5,000 is over 14 percent of the owner's wages. Who else is expected to contribute even 10% of his wages — before income tax or church pledge?

"Say, got to run" Pete said, hurrying toward the door. "Promised to sell 50 widgets to the Dexit store — trade all the time, you know — so my church can put a bathtub in the kindergarten department."

National Camp Fire Week

The week of March 22-3 is celebrated throughout the nation as Camp Fire Week. During this week the girls wear their uniforms, arrange displays in stores, and visit civic clubs and other organizations to inform the members of the purposes and responsibilities of their program.

In 1910 the need for organized activities for boys and girls led to the organization of the Boy Scouts of America and, a few months later, the Camp Fire Girls.

The people who were responsible for the organization of the groups for boys and girls saw their world changing rapidly and wished the programs to meet the needs of the changing society. But they felt very strongly that some things needed to remain the same—things like music and singing, dancing, making beautiful objects with one's hands, knowing about and loving the beauties of nature, thinking lovely thoughts, and trying to put them into words.

The basic program for the girls was originated by Dr. and Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick. In the very first Book of the Camp Fire Girls, Mrs. Gulick wrote, "Where it (beauty) is lacking, help create it; where it is present, appreciate it. We must see it in nature and in people, and we must love it in our hearts" and "Love your neighbor, and service will be as unconscious and beautiful as the service of a father or mother, brother, sister, or friend. Therefore, let us seek to establish love in our hearts; service will follow. Though not so easy, the opposite is true; serve your neighbor and love will follow."

The Camp Fire movement grew rapidly, and in 1926 the first unit was organized in Hereford with a single group. In 1945 the Hereford Camp Fire Council was formed, with five or six groups. Today there are about 325 girls in 23 groups, including organizations at each of four program levels.

For girls 7 and 8, there are the Bluebirds, and for those 9-11, there are the Junior Camp Fires. Girls 12-13 are in Senior Camp Fires, and for the freshman through the senior years in high school, girls can be members of the Horizon Club.

Each group is sponsored by a civic club, church organization, women's club, or individual parents. However, every effort is made to keep the program inexpensive and self-sustaining through candy sales and small dues.

bers are girls who pay dues, their leaders, and sponsors. From the council, 20 board members are elected. The present officers of the board are Vaive Crume, president; Bob Douthman, vice-president; Mrs. John Jacobsen Jr., secretary, and Mrs. Wayland Smith, treasurer.

Eight symbols represent the law of the Camp Fire girls which reads, "Worship God, Seek Beauty, Give Service, Pursue Knowledge, Be Trustworthy, Hold on to Health, Glorify Work, and Be Happy."

There are three ranks in Camp Fire: Trail Seeker, Wood Gatherer, and Fire Maker. Each rank is attained through completion of various projects designed for the age level and the skills to be acquired before the honors can be awarded.

Honors can be achieved through seven crafts, six of which are represented in the pictures. These crafts are business, citizenship, creative arts, frontiers, home, outdoors, and sports and games.

Business craft honor beads are yellow. This craft is designed to give girls experience in earning and saving money to help make their plans come true. This craft is represented by the girls selling candy.

Honor beads in citizenship are red, white, and blue to represent the colors of the flag of the United States of America, and symbolize good citizenship in the homes, schools, churches or synagogues, the community, and the world. The flag ceremony represents this craft.

Creative arts honor beads are green, nature's color of creation and growing things. Dramatics, dancing, music, hand arts, writing, and other ways of creating beauty are in this craft, which is represented in the picture of the girls doing beadwork.

The frontiers craft, with honor beads in blue, is not pictured. In this craft, there are experiments in science.

Flame color is used for the beads in home crafts to symbolize the hearth fires of the home. Girls learning to cook at Southwestern Public Service are pictured for this craft.

Brown to symbolize earth, tree trunks, the woods, and wildlife is the color for outdoors craft honor beads. Hiking, camping, exploring, and nature hobbies are found in this craft, as seen in the picture of the girls preparing to explore on their bicycles.

Red for apple-red cheeks is the color of honor beads for sports and games crafts, which emphasize good health and physical fitness and good sportsmanship. The Bluebird Girls pictured at play represent this craft.

Camp Fire strives to teach girls high ideals to live by, day by day; a love of home and family that grows as they grow; a quiet pride in being a girl and a full measure of womanly qualities; deep love of country, knowledge of what democracy is, and a readiness to serve; the fun and happiness of making and keeping many friends; good health habits; the ability to take care of herself and do her work skillfully and with pleasure; interests, skills, and hobbies; love of the outdoors and skill in outdoor living, and create a happy heart to help each find beauty, romance, and adventure in the common things of daily life.

Mrs. T. L. Kimbell was hostess for the salad luncheon before the general meeting, and Mrs. J. D. Gilbert Jr. was presiding officer. Visitors present were Mrs. Leo Witkowski, Mrs. Roy Bell, Mrs. D. J. Larsen, Jean Beene, assistant home demonstration agent, and Argen Draper, agent.

High Tea Hostess Is Miss Stagner

Members of the Executive Board of Delta Xi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma were entertained Sunday, March 15, by Della Stagner, president, with a "High Tea", a tradition in Scotland usually celebrated on holidays and Sundays at 4 p.m.

While Miss Stagner was in Scotland two years ago, she attended such a tea. Foods served included sausages, bacon, eggs, potatoes, jams, jellies, sweet rolls, confections, hot biscuits, and tea served with sugar and cream.

During the board meeting, which preceded the meal, plans were discussed for a future tea and retired teachers program in Dimmitt April 4 and for displays in the various towns represented in the chapter. Members voted to send a love gift to Eula Lee Carter, founder, and thank you notes were read from Pearl Adamson, Hattie Boling, and Mrs. Paul Hillburn, who has been in Dimmitt Hospital.

Members present were Mrs. Fain Walker, Mrs. Melton Richardson, and Miss Bernice Littlepage, all from Dimmitt, Mrs. Hattie Boling, Farwell, and Mrs. Merlin Kaul, Mrs. J. D. Neill, Mrs. Kent Spare, Miss Lucille Park, and the hostess, all of Hereford.

Boardman - Stevens Vows Are Pledged In Home Ceremony

Miss Nancy Boardman and Dean Stevens exchanged wedding vows Sunday, March 15, at 5 p.m. The Rev. Herschel Thurston, pastor of First Methodist Church, read the double ring ceremony in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Herbert D. Boardman.

A cathedral archway of candelabra and a sunburst arrangement of white chrysanthemums, white stock, and greenery formed the setting for the ceremony. Traditional wedding selections were played by Mrs. B. Y. Crosthwait at the piano. Miss Pat Price, accompanied by Mrs. Crosthwait, sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Linda Boardman was her sister's maid of honor. Her street-length dress was fashioned of blue lace over taffeta with long sleeves and a rounded neckline. She carried a cascading bouquet of white Frenched chrysanthemums.

Best man was Charles Weemes. Candles were lighted by Debbie Boardman, sister of the bride, and Jamie Pitman.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother, wore a formal gown of moire taffeta, which was her mother's wedding dress. The bodice was fashioned with a yoke, long sleeves, and a fitted high-rise band at the waistline. Her veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of pearls, and she carried a cascade of white Frenched chrysanthemums. Her only jewelry was a silver cross, a gift from the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Boardman chose a sheath dress of pink linen, with embroidered lace inserts outlined with small pearls. Mrs. Robert H. Stevens, mother of the groom, wore a tan silk shirtwaist dress with matching accessories. Each wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Dean Stevens (the former Miss Nancy Boardman... Angel Studio)

A reception followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cutwork cloth over blue. The centerpiece featured a cherub holding a lighted spiral taper surrounded by miniature flowers atop a base of smaller cherubs. An asymmetrical arrangement of white stock and chrysanthemums completed the centerpiece.

The three-tiered wedding cake was iced in white with blue accents and topped with a miniature bride and groom, and appointments were in crystal. Miss Pat Ranspot and Mrs. Les Combs served. Guests were registered by Miss Debbie Boardman.

For traveling, the bride chose a three-piece suit of aqua cotton knit with black patent accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Tombstone Voting Is 'Saved'

In one of the most comical actions on the civil-rights bill to date, Northern and Western liberals in the House narrowly beat down an effort by some Republicans and Southern Democrats to outlaw "tombstone voting" on Monday. The issue arose when Rep. John Dowdy, Texas Democrat, proposed an amendment to the civil-rights bill that would have barred election officials from counting any ballots except those cast "by living persons residing in the precincts where they are registered."

As Congressman Dowdy pointed out, his amendment was "nondiscriminatory" — applying equally to "dead white folks as well as dead colored folks." Rep. William Cramer, R-Fla., added that the amendment merely carried out "what the Civil Rights Commission is supposed to do — to protect every person's right to vote and to have his vote counted."

How can anyone vote against a requirement that only the votes of "living persons residing in the precincts where they are registered" be counted? It's not easy, for to do so is plainly to defend "tombstone voting," a naked fraud.

Yet, when the votes were counted on Monday, 124 liberal House members voted against the amendment — and that was enough to save "civil rights" of dead men to vote, as only 117 conservative members of the House were on hand to vote in favor of the amendment. Though the measure was defeated, its proponents really accomplished what they were out to achieve — that is, to embarrass their liberal colleagues whose inconsistent views on the civil-rights issue are glaring.

Northern liberals in the House have made voting rights a key plank in their civil-rights bill. Title I of the bill would place severe limits on state literacy tests, set up federally standardized requirements for voting and, through additional interference with the constitutional right of the separate states to control their own elections, would seek to protect voting rights regardless of "race, color or previous condition of servitude."

Rep. George Andrews, D-Ala., noted that the civil-rights bill would bring federal "control" of elections anyway, "so why not outlaw vote frauds, too?" A good point. But not good enough, apparently, for some of the liberals.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee and one of the strongest civil-rights proponents in the House, raised violent objections to the Dowdy amendment — insisting that it would "subvert" state election laws. His outburst reminded many House members of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's protest against any federal inquiry into vote-fraud charges in that city after the 1960 election.

So what, if "Manny" Celler has never objected that his civil-rights bill might "subvert" state election laws? He's been inconsistent before. And, besides, he and his liberal colleagues have a majority of the votes.

Looks as if this year they're going to use them to push through a bill that will, at the very least, guarantee the voting rights of all, irrespective of "race, color, or previous condition of servitude — and dead or alive."

Texas Well-Rid Of 'Sore Loser'

Regardless of how one feels about Jack Ruby, who was assessed the death penalty in the accused slaying of Lee Oswald, we must at this point take off our hats to the family of Ruby for their action Friday, when they calmly and efficiently dismissed the loud-talking California lawyer, Melvin Belli.

Belli's action on several occasions definitely fell outside the realm of genteel conduct and, we presume, far beyond the accepted ethics of his profession. This was especially true when he raged irresponsibly, terming the jury as "hogs", the district attorney as a "hog caller" and labeled Texas justice as a "kangaroo, railroad court". In addition, Mr. Belli further subjected the State of Texas and the nation to international disdain at a time when the U.S. image was already under critical scrutiny. Most of all, though, Mr. Belli contributed extensively to the undermining of American justice — both at home and abroad — apparently forgetting that he is an integral part of the very system which he defied.

These tactics have unfortunately long been with us on the political front, but they certainly have no place in our courts which have some 300 years strived to establish and mete out justice.

We do not condemn Mr. Belli for being upset, even frantic, when he lost his case. We can even give him credit for being sincere in his accusations. At the same time, his resulting actions can hardly be classed as civilized or genteel. Most people considered him what youngsters classify as a "sore loser."

To go even a step further, Belli's ranting and gnashing of teeth following the verdict of the jury came much closer to qualifying under the insanity plea than did those of his client for whom the appeal was originally made.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., an amateur historian of some repute, recently related to a meeting of Reserve Officer Association wives little-known stories of Texas heroines.

One of the stories concerned Jane Long, the wife of a doctor and daughter of an army general. She was left in a fort with a detachment of 40 men at Point Bolivar on Galveston Island when her husband, Dr. James Long, and a few companions had to leave for Mexico City in 1821, the year of Mexican independence from Spain.

When the food gave out at the fort the 40 men deserted, leaving Mrs. Long, her small child and a Negro maid. Cannibalistic Karankawa Indians attacked but Mrs. Long manned and fired a cannon, frightening the Karankawas away. She fished and waded for oysters in the cold waters of the bay that winter to survive and also gave birth to a child, the first Anglo-American born in Texas.

With her rescue came word that her husband had been killed in Mexico City. She stayed in Texas, however, and joined Anita's first colony of Anglo-Americans.

Yarborough recounted also the story of the wife of Capt. Aleron Dickinson, commander of the Alamo's artillery, whose life and that of her child was spared when the Mexicans overran the mission. Another story dealt with the experience of Margaret Lea of Alabama, 20, and college educated who married hard-drinking Sam Houston, then 47, and made a teetotaler out of him.

"Do not think that all the heroines were in the past," Yarborough concluded. "I saw three of our own times, under fire in Dallas that sad Friday, last Nov. 22."

He told of "the incomparable courage and nobility" displayed by Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy when an assassin's bullet took the life of her husband President John F. Kennedy.

Yarborough also praised the conduct that same day and time of Mrs. John Connally after her husband, the governor of Texas, "lay wounded and helpless in her lap."

During all the confusion that followed the shootings of Kennedy and Connally, Yarborough said, "Mrs. Lyndon Johnson was like a queen, looking neither to the right nor left, neither seeking cover nor uttering a sound."

Panhandle Paragraphs

Although many persons don't realize it, progressive Muleshoe is on the move. During the last few months the entire area has shown signs of progressive and solid growth. And it's just beginning. Another sign of Muleshoe's growth came this week when word was received here that the area was on the verge of receiving its third savings institution. The State of Texas has granted Tri-County Savings & Loan a state charter to open in Muleshoe and operate in the tri-county area.

Last Friday night she was in the audience at Trinity University, San Antonio, where her play was produced, and it was not until the awards banquet Saturday night she was given the trophy, identifying her as the first place winner.

Acting Postmaster Frank Sutton and yours truly have been having a good-natured running verbal gunbattle over the use of Zip Code Numbers since the inception of the ding-blasted varmints! Well, as we've told Frank on several occasions, we have our own ideas about using Zip codes

We base our ideas upon years of experience during which time we've found that most post office employees downstate don't know the difference between Stratford, Stamford, Stafford, and Stratford, Texas, or Stratford, Okla. . . . So, based on this, how much attention will someone pay, to the difference between 79084 and 79085? Ye Gods, it seems to be a mess to begin with to us!

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Bindweed farm defends his farming methods in an odd way this week.

Dear editor:

A friend of mine visited out here on this Bindweed farm the other day and looked the place over and then asked:

"Tell me, how come you didn't work that field over there last year?" Contrary to what you may think, if you look hard enough you can tell which fields of mine have been worked and which haven't.

"Why," I said, "it never did get out of committee."

"Out of committee? What do you mean?" he asked.

I could see he was grossly unfamiliar with both Washington and this Bindweed farm, so I didn't explain to him, with a man like that there's no place to start, but here's the way it works.

I farm on the Congressional level. I don't just get up in the morning and say, I believe I'll do such-and-such today, review the plan, argue it with myself, debate the issue, then vote on it and proceed to act. No sir.

I send it to a committee.

But you don't send matter to a committee this morning and expect to get a decision this afternoon. First you have to check the calendar and see when the committee can consider it. Generally, me and Congress have found, this is at least a month off, sometimes four or five.

Then when it finally gets to the committee, the chairman can stall if he doesn't like the bill, pigeon-hole it, take off for Europe, etc. I know exactly how he feels. I'm chairman of all the committees on this farm and there are lots of things that come before me that I have a great distaste for, and the longer I can stall the less I have to plow. Plowing and voting in a rough area are two things a farmer and a Congressman don't want to do as long as they can be put off.

Now some people probably think my fences are down or the roof is leaking or the weeds in season are too thick because I'm lazy, but that's not it at all. Those things are still tied up in committee.

Yet I can hear my friend saying now, if he reads this, "Yeah, but why doesn't he start a year ahead, why doesn't he send next year's farm plans to his committee this year, so he can be ready to plant when the time comes?"

There's no excuse for this type of ignorance. Hasn't he ever read a newspaper or listened to a newscast? He doesn't understand the first thing about Congress. What does he think Congress is doing right now? Why it's arguing about this year's farm bill, and this is March and planting time is already underway in some parts of the country.

When you legislate or farm on the Congressional level, you take your time.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Dawn Boy Writes Citizenship Essay

Dawn 4-H youths have been writing essays on the general subject of "Citizenship." Here's another in the series; this one titled "Citizenship and Democracy."

By Gerald Witkowski
I want to read to you from an anonymous letter.
"My Dear Son: I am sorry you are going to have to live under communism. It seemed to come so quickly. I didn't think their lies could win. I guess we were so busy with other things. Not enough of us spoke up for freedom when we had the chance."

The first sight to be seen by weary travelers entering New York Harbor is the Statue of Liberty holding her flaming torch. On the pedestal of the statue can be read these words: "... Give me your tired, your poor, Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free. The wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed to me, I lift my lamp beside the golden door!"
Here is a beautiful promise for life in a land of freedom and opportunity under a democratic government. We as Americans love and take pride in our government and we are truly interested in our civic duties. We cannot expect to uphold our traditions. What can we do to keep our freedom? Let us take a look at our duties as good citizens. Let us talk about Citizenship and Our Democracy.

There is an old saying that knowledge is power. This truly applies to democracy. Political education is important to Americans. Our schools provide courses in civics and history. To well use this opportunity offered by our schools is a good way for teen-agers to prepare themselves for the time when they can actively participate in government. We can also learn by listening to newscasts on radio and television, or by reading newspapers and magazines. In this way we become informed about the situations our democracy faces today.

It is not enough to know of government operations, but we must develop an interest which will lead to our participation in government. This is the only way we can have a real part in the law of the land. WE are the people, and if we want, the government can remain in the hands of the people. It is very important that we are not only interested spectators, but participants in our democracy.

Our nation was planned by individuals seeking a new government in a new land. They based our freedoms on the idea that every man is a responsible citizen. We must stand on our two feet. We must be morally upright, sound in character, and concerned for the rights and well-being of others. If we as Americans, ever lose these virtues, our nation of selfishness and corruption.

We, as citizens, have some tools to help us keep these virtues and traditions of our land. But we MUST use them. These tools are:
Our freedom of speech; Our

We DO care what happens to our country. We want the lamp of liberty to shine forever. But we cannot sit idly by and let others do the work. We must use our tools of self-government.

We must know our government and we must develop a positive interest, which means that we participate.

We must be willing to lead in protecting the rights that all men have to live as responsible human beings. If we all follow these rules, with God's help, we will have a nation filled with good citizens and the Statue of Liberty can truly speak: "I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

DEAD STICK LANDING

BELOIT, Wis. (AP) — A bronze plaque at the side of a highway on the eastern edge of Beloit now marks the site of a development in the history of aviation.

The marker is in the field where the late A.P. Warner, inventor and industrialist, took off and landed his Curtiss pusher biplane several times in November 1909. He experienced engine trouble on one flight and became one of the first aviators to manage a "dead stick" landing.

Warner sent a telegram to Glenn Curtiss telling him the plane was manageable with a dead engine.

The Early Birds, a group of men who made their first solo flights before Dec. 17, 1916, erected the plaque recently.

DOCTOR'S AVOCATION

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The chorus at the Iowa Methodist Hospital nursing school in Des Moines has as its conductor Dr. Laverne Wintermeyer, who was enjoying a successful musical career when he decided to be a doctor.

He interned at Iowa Methodist and although he is in private practice now he likes to keep up his music by directing the nurses' chorus.

Machine Checks Tail-Water Loss, Makers Claim

A new irrigation device which its makers claim will put an end to tail-water runoff, is being tested in the Hereford area with apparently good results.

The new device, called "The Sentry," is being produced commercially by Bruton Manufacturing Co., Lamesa, and its makers say it has been used successfully in that area for two years.

Tests here are the first with deep-water pumps. Experiments have been conducted on the Raymond Higginbotham farm eight miles north of Hereford, where water caught at the end of the feeder ditch returned by pipe to other fields.

It is this last feature of the device which makes the Sentry have value, makers pointed out. "Not only does it permit recirculating run-off water but it prevents tail water from trailing off down fields and roads, thus preventing both water waste and erosion caused by the overflow," says its local representative, Israel Ybanez.

The equipment can be powered by a tractor, stationary en-

Important Announcement To Hereford Residents

Plans for Hereford's first planned community, the Green Acres Estates, was announced here Friday by Reuben Aasland, president of Hereford Development Co., Inc. Aasland stated that the corporation intends to build a model community, complete with shopping center, schools, park area, swimming pool for use of the community residents, plus some of the finest homes in Hereford.

At present, the corporation will concentrate on a 40 acre tract, centered around Live Oak Street which will be highly restricted to protect owner's property values. Live Oak Street will be restricted to a minimum of 2500 ft. floor space.

The entire development, if the demand suffices, will entail the development of a complete section of land laying north and west of the original 40 acres. "Naturally," said Aasland, "the development will have to be geared to the demands, but we are highly optimistic concerning the entire area."

Proper restrictions to protect owner's property values was cited as the number one asset of the community, plus the fact that underground utilities will be used throughout. A swimming pool and community center will be incorporated early in the development and homes will be built to include the latest and finest in architectural designing.

"Schools, of course," says Aasland, "will have to come later at the discretion of the Hereford Independent School District, but the trend toward the development of the west and northwest sections of the city indicate that a school in this area will be desirable in the near future." He stated further that the Corporation would cooperate in all ways possible with the school district, and would endeavor to make it convenient and practical for the location of a school close by.

Construction of the first homes for Green Acres Estates started this week, similar to the one shown above; according to the president of the firm. Aasland also pointed out that lots will be available to individuals or to reputable contractors wanting to build in the area. "It is not especially necessary that your home be built by Hereford Development, Inc.," pointed out Aasland. Lots will be available if you want your favorite contractor to do the work for you.

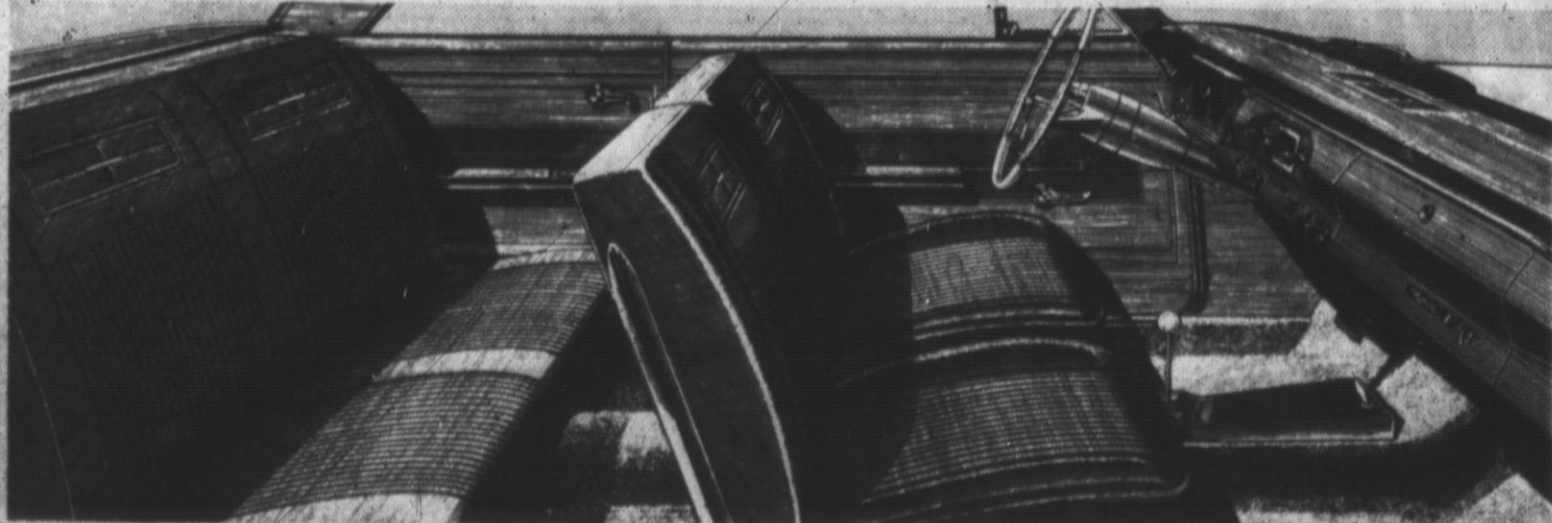

The development is located on Harrison Highway, just north and west of the cemetery. — Paid Adv.

'64 Chevy II Super Sport with V8 power

...and just the place to enjoy it

Find out for yourself what this Chevy II can really do. If there are hills nearby, let it give them a good going-over. Then see it give slow-moving trucks the run-around. With its new extra-cost V8 you need but give the accelerator an inch, and this Super Sport will take a mile. And this great highway performer looks the part it plays so well. A glance at its all-vinyl interior and door-to-door carpeting will tell you that. There's your choice of either the floor-mounted Powerglide or Four-Speed Synchro-Mesh transmission. Both are optional at extra cost, along with a Positraction rear axle, AM-FM radio, and many other accessories. And for all its new power, Chevy II rides so softly it seems to glide along the highway. That's because it has high-mounted independent coil springs in the front and Mono-Plate single-leaf springs in the rear. With everything Chevy II Super Sport has going for it, it's no surprise your Chevrolet dealer is anxious to show you its price tag. Because that's the only thing about it that isn't super.

Texas and The Civil War — Part 4

Arizona Grabbed As 'Rebel' Prize

By Allan C. Ashcraft
PH. D.

History Department,
Texas A&M University
(No. 4 in a series of published in cooperative program of this paper, the Texas Press Association and the Texas State Historical Survey Committee.)

John Baylor, lieutenant-colonel, commanding the Confederate Army in the Territory of Arizona, hereby take possession of the said Territory in the name and behalf of the Confederate States of America. With these words the commander of the Second Regiment Texas Mounted Rifles proclaimed himself governor of that great expanse of land below the degree line that stretched from Texas to California. The place was Mesilla, and the date was August 1, 1861, as Baylor and several hundred followers undertook the initial steps in an ambitious project to expand the borders of the Confederacy into the distant west.

After being reinforced by Sibley's Brigade, three regiments raised in San Antonio, the Southerners continued to advance up the Rio Grande Valley of New Mexico. By March, 1862, they had taken the Santa Fe-Albuquerque area, they had occupied Tucson with a small command and they were patrolling within eighty miles of California. It was then, however, that Federal relief columns arrived to challenge Confederate possession of northern New Mexico. The climax came at Golieta Pass, near Santa Fe, when the main rival forces closed in a battle that could have great bearing on the future of the west. During the fighting Union soldiers had the great fortune to destroy the Confederate supply train. Thus deprived of all resources, Sibley ordered a withdrawal. Heavy enemy pursuit, however, caused this retreat quickly to degenerate into a rout. About half of Sibley's 3,000 men were lost in this disastrous campaign that ended only when the United States occupied western Texas from El Paso to the Davis Mountains.

About the same time, other Texas troops participated in the Battle of Pea Ridge; an unsuccessful three day effort to defeat the enemy invader in northwestern Arkansas. Commanded by Brigadier General Ben McCulloch of Texas, a half dozen Lone Star regiments repeatedly assaulted Union positions. McCulloch constantly exposed to heavy fire, was killed while preparing for another charge. "A bolder soldier never died for his country," declared Major General Earl Van Dorn, overall Confederate commander at Pea Ridge, when told of this great loss.

Southern military considerations of 1863 were dominated by United States efforts to gain full control of the Mississippi River and, thus, to split the Confederacy into two parts. While Grant took Vicksburg, northernmost Confederate stronghold on the river, Nathaniel P. Banks was to attack Port Hudson, Louisiana, the lowest Mississippi River installation still in Southern hands. Before concentrating on his main objective, Banks unleashed a series of diversionary attacks to keep the weak defenders of Louisiana off-balance. To deter these preliminary thrusts, Texas units were ordered to the neighboring state. One such command, Pyron's Texas Regiment, as described by a distinguished British military observer as it left Galveston for Louisiana service:

"First came eight or ten instruments braying discordantly, then an enormous Confederate flag, followed by about four hundred men moving by fours — dressed in every variety of costume, and armed with every variety of weapon; about sixty had Enfield rifles; the remainder carried shot-guns (fowling pieces), carbines or long rifles of a peculiar and antiquated manufacture. None had swords or bayonets — all had six-shooters and bowie knives."

A short time later Banks shifted his troops to the east side of the Mississippi River, and undertook his operation against Port Hudson.

In the spring of 1864, Texans were again called forward to reinforce the small Louisiana defensive forces of Major General Richard Taylor. In a try at grand strategy, the Union hoped to drive two pincers into the heartland of the trans-Mississippi west. One very powerful expedition, again under Banks, was to push up the Red River of Louisiana while a second formidable force, commanded by F. Steele, was to cut its way through southwestern Arkansas. If these two great wings could join together near Shreveport, their combined strength could well knock the Confederate Southwest out of the war.

By early April, Banks had occupied Pleasant Hill and was advancing on the town of Mansfield. It was here that Taylor, now with impressive Texas support, committed his forces against the Federals. In a very hard fought battle, Banks was defeated and compelled to withdraw to Pleasant Hill. Taylor retained close contact and, after additional difficult fighting on the second day, could report that Banks was retreating to Natchitoches. Although one rather ungrateful Louisianan described the Texas cavalrymen as looking like "baboons riding goats," it cannot be denied that Texas troops played a vital role in Taylor's victory. Seven Texas brigades and divisions, representing dozens of Texas regiments, took part in the Confederate attacks. A short time later wonderful news arrived from the Arkansas front. At Poison Springs, Marks' Mill and Jenkins' Ferry, the Southern forces, which included Walker's Texas Division, successfully repulsed Steele.

These represent peak military operations that occurred to the west of the river. There were also, of course, hundreds of smaller engagements. In many of these the security of Texas homes and the possession of Texas soil were directly at stake.

HE WAS EVERYWHERE

DES MOINES, Iowa (U) — While in Germany on business, Edward Bird of Des Moines visited a town which was captured in World War II by the battalion which Bird had commanded.

Bird returned to the mayor of the town's flag, which had been taken as a souvenir.

The mayor expressed gratitude, then asked Bird if it would be possible to locate "an American soldier who carved his name" in the organ of one of the community's churches.

Bird asked the soldier's name, and came the reply: "Kilroy."

"I am glad to plead guilty. Your roads are so straight, level and so well kept, I simply couldn't help speeding."

"Where I live, the roads are winding and so crooked that it just isn't safe to drive more than 60 miles an hour."

Thursday night's jr. high and high school band concert was one of the most enjoyable events that we have attended lately. Our congratulations to directors Ben Gollehon and Clyde Wilson. We were particularly impressed however, with the progress of the jr. high group under the direction of Clyde Wilson, assisted by Ben. The kids started from scratch early last summer, and have developed into a band that would do justice to many high school groups. Wilson worked with the youngsters during the summer months to get them off to a flying start, and they haven't stopped since.

Actually, our entire band program is exceptional. We know of few schools in the area who can consistently field the quality bandmen that the Hereford schools turn out. Much credit, we think, must go to the fine band directors, both high school and jr. high. The programs are coordinated we understand, with high school band director Ben Gollehon helping Wilson with the jr. high group, while Wilson assists Gollehon with the high school program.

And speaking of the band, we understand that their fund raising campaign for the Enid festival is progressing nicely, with a greater portion of the money needed already in their hands. We understand also, that the group sold 1,538 ham sandwiches at Taylor and Sons Food Store last week, raising $153.80 for the trip. That, we would say, is a "bunch" of ham sandwiches.

Gerald Burney almost started a stampede last week at Packard Milling Company. Burney offered 50 free baby chicks with the purchase of 50 lbs. of his particular brand of chick starter, and managed to give away 4000 chicks before the day was over. We'd classify that one under the "power of advertising" heading.

Dudley Bayne, on the other hand, is not too happy with the power of advertising. He says our recent headline about the airport losing money has given him no end of troubles. "People think", says Bayne, "that the city of Hereford has lost money on the airport operation, which is not true." Actually, the city has made money from the operation consistently, but the boys who have leased the field are the ones who have lost money. Therefore, the city has now proposed a new contract to the operators, which will allow them to operate the airport at a substantially lower cost, putting them back in the black and keeping the airport under their able supervision.

The city of course, is not trying to make a big profit from the operation. As long as they can break-even, or perhaps a little above, then they will be happy with the set-up. The idea is to maintain the high standard of air service, without costing the taxpayers a pot of money.

It seems that we've gotten ourselves in hot water with all the "powers that be" this week. And it just goes to show that you can't please them all. Last week, unfortunately, the colored comics did not arrive in time to be inserted into the Sunday Brand. Therefore, when they arrived Monday morning we decided that our subscribers should get their comics, so we proceeded to mail them out with the Thursday paper. Judge H. C. "Hank" Williams, however, called to lodge his protest. "I thought it was Sunday morning," said the judge, "and promptly plopped into my favorite chair, to leisurely read the funnies over another cup of coffee."

Fortunately, Mrs. Williams, who depends on a calendar rather than the paper, got the judge up and out. He was only

SPACE! NOTHIN' THEY'RE GONNA NEED TH' CHEESE A LOT WORSE!

LOOK AT IT THIS WAY! IF YOU NEEDED SOMEONE TO CLEAN OUT A LITTLE ELBOW ROOM FOR YOU - WHOM WOULD YOU HIRE?

BUT IF SPACE IS THE PROBLEM - LITTLE DOGS WILL BE POPULAR!

GOLLY, BINGO - WE'RE LIABLE TO GO HUNGRY!

SHUCKS! THAT ARITHMETIC WORKS FOR COWS JUST THE SAME AS PEOPLE! THERE'LL BE MORE HAMBURGERS THAN EVER!

SEE WHITT - I THINK I'M GONNA BE ABLE TO WEATHER THAT TURNIP SHORTAGE O.K.
