COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP)

Three members of Texas A&M University's Corps of Cadets have been suspended for a year and a former member disciplined in the hazing death of a student cadet, the Bryan-College Station Eagle said in today's editions.

Bill Kibler, assistant director of student affairs and A&M's disciplinary hearings officer, on Friday notified the three juniors — Anthony D'Alessandro and Jason Miles, both of Houston, and Louis Fancher III of San Antonio — that they had been suspended from the university until the 1985 fall semester, according to unnamed sources quoted by the paper.

A fourth student, Gabriel Cuadra, a senior from Houston, was also disciplined, sources said, but the nature and extent of the action could not be determined, the paper said.

From Texas A&M

He could have been suspended or expelled from the university.

The four students were disciplined in connection with the Aug. 30 death of 20-year-old Bruce Goodrich of Webster, N.Y. According to police reports, the three juniors roused Goodrich and another transfer student from their beds early that day and forced them to run and do "motivational exercises."

Goodrich collapsed after about an hour, and died later that day of heatstroke. The other transfer student, police said, suffered no ill effects from the exercise.

All four students were indicted Sept. 28 on a charge of hazing, a misdemeanor under the Texas Education Code.

The three juniors were also indicted on a misdemeanor charge of criminally negligent homicide. The charge alleges they forced Goodrich to run and exercise after he showed signs of difficulty.

Cuadra, who resigned from the corps after Goodrich's death, was indicted on another misdemeanor charge, tampering with evidence. The indictment accuses Cuadra of destroying an exercise schedule the day after Goodrich died.

Kibler confirmed that he gave the students his decision Friday, but he refused to say what that decision was, citing a federal law that protects students' privacy.

Tornadoes touch South Texas

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Heavy thunderstorms in South Texas spawned five tornadoes and caused flooding in several areas, but the heavy downpours bypassed drought-stricken Corpus Christi, officials said.

The stalled storm front, however, pounded cities surrounding Corpus Christi and the Nueces River, about 10 miles northwest of the city, was overflowing its banks.

But the thundershowers only reached the fringes of the city and did not fall in the watershed, which is located northwest of Corpus Christi toward San Antonio.

"As best we know right now, it's all south and east of the watershed," said Doug Matthews, Corpus Christi public utilities director.

Corpus Christi is under a mandatory water rationing plan due to an almost two-year drought.

Lightning struck at an oil rig, two miles south of Odem, at 7:30 p.m. Friday, injuring three people, one seriously.

Several people in low-lying areas in Odem were evacuated by helicopter and boat crews.

"We've got all kinds of hell over here," San Patricio County Sheriff's Deputy Terry Simpson said. "We've got floods. We've got houses torn up. You name it; we got it," he said.

Two of the tornadoes were sighted north of Robstown, located about 20 miles north of Corpus Christi, said

TRLA investigation requested

The 29th and final resolution passed by the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas Friday dealt with one of Hereford's most controversial political issues.

Deaf Smith County Commissioners Bruce Coleman said the association, wrapping up its annual convention with a business session at Amarillo's Hilton Inn, unanimously passed the following resolution.

"Be it resolved that there be an investigation of all activities and expenditures of Legal Services Corporation (and its) funded entities such as Texas Rural Legal Aid (TRLA), and action be taken by the appropriate authorities to insure that all discriminatory and illegal acts as well as those in opposition to congressional intent are terminated immediately."

Coleman said Friday following the meeting the association has passed similar resolutions at the conventions "the last several years."

A copy of the resolution will be sent to federal legislators and to the National Association of Counties, Coleman said.

"It shows the broad concern of the commissioners and judges in Texas," Coleman said about the resolution.

The gathering was also attended by local county commissioners Bill Bradley and Austin Rose, who is an officer of the association.

College Night slated Tuesday

At least 50 colleges and technical schools are expected to be represented at Hereford High School's College Night Tuesday.

Counselor Willie Braddy said the event will begin at 7 p.m. in the HHS library.

"All high school students and their parents are urged to attend," she said. "The financial aid people, especially, are good for the parents to talk to."

Braddy also stressed underclassmen as well as seniors are encouraged to show up.

Two local boards to meet

Deaf Smith County Commissioners are to meet for a regular session Monday and directors of the Deaf Smith General Hospital district are to gather Tuesday.

The 10 a.m. commission assemblage in the courthouse is to include a discussion of jail operation expenses for city prisoners. Also, the chamber of commerce women's division is to request use of the courthouse grounds for the annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony.

During their noon gathering in the DSGH conference room, directors are to consider renovation and, among other things, personnel matters.

Key Club sponsors 'Partners'

The Hereford Key Club, in cooperation with the Hereford Police Department, will be sponsoring "Partners at Halloween" Wednesday, Oct. 31.

Any single parent with children, ages two through 12, that need an escort for their child while they trick or treat should call 364-6591 or contact the HPD and ask for Officer Randy Williams by Friday, Oct. 26.

Registration forms are available at the police department office.

Waterfowlers fund-raiser set

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

The second annual fund-raising dinner and auction of the Texas Waterfowlers Association, an organization founded by two Hereford men is planned for Thursday, Nov. 15 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Hereford.

With a professed goal of "Preserving a Heritage Through Habitat," TWA is working to provide sanctuary for the thousands of geese and ducks that winter in the area each year.

Jim Steiert and Mike Smith organized TWA two years ago. Hereford physician Dr. A.T. Mims is the current president.

Proceeds from the evening are to go primarily for the securing and nurturing of waterfowl habitat in the Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties area.

Nov. 15 at

Last winter, TWA leased three 20-acre playa lakes on the Ike and Gerald Marnell farms in the Westway Community. The playas and a buffer zone around them served as protected wintering habitat, allowing up to 30,000 geese and another several thousand ducks to rest undisturbed.

TWA's newsletter, the "Texas Waterfowler," reported that Canada, snow, blue and speckle-bellied geese made use of the lakes, along with mallard, pintail, widgeon and teal ducks. The project enhanced field hunting opportunities and helped draw birds from an overpopulated wintering lake farther north, easing the dangers of an outbreak of disease.

A tax-deductible TWA membership will be available for $10 at the fundraising dinner. The $20 donation requested also includes $10 to cover the cost of the meal.

The social hour will begin at 6 p.m. with dinner to be served at 7:00. The auction will get underway at 8 p.m.

The Knights of Columbus Hall is on Country Club Road.

United Way's officials appealing for support

United Way officials Saturday issued an appeal to volunteer workers and to the citizens of the county to join in putting this year's goal over the top by Oct. 31.

The campaign is entering its sixth week and the drive is at 46 percent of its goal with just two weeks remaining to reach the $128,150 budget for 10 community agencies.

"The goal is reachable, but we're also at a critical stage of the campaign," UW President James Self said Saturday. "We know the goal is attainable because we've got 46 percent of the total with just 370 accounts reporting pledges, and there are 1,000 prospect cards," explained Self.

Want goal topped soon

B.J. Gilliland, drive chairman, said this means that many accounts have not been contacted, or their pledge cards have not yet reached the United Way office.

"For the campaign to be successful, we need two things to take place," said Self. "First, if a business or individual has not been contacted we urge them to take the initiative and call the United Way office (364-5220) to offer their pledge. Second, there may be volunteers who are not going to be able to complete their calls and we ask them to call the drive chairman to make other arrangements."

Self said officers of the campaign are encouraged by the prospects. "We have 100 new pledges from accounts not listed in 1983, so we feel people will become involved if they are contacted."

Police question trio in slaying

SEABROOK, Texas (AP) — Authorities have questioned three men in connection with the slaying of a millionaire businessman whose daughter was the victim of a pickax killing last year.

Investigators on Friday talked with a 16-year-old boy and two men — one 19 and the other 22 — about the death of William List, said Police Chief Bill Kerber, adding that charges were expected to be filed.

List, 57, was found dead at about 2 p.m. Thursday in his post waterfront home in Seabrook, south of Houston, police said.

Authorities said he died apparently from a shotgun wound to his head. No weapon was found, and List's car, checkbook and credit cards were missing.

List operated a Houston trailer-truck business and was the father of 32-year-old Debra Thornton, one of two victims found slain with a pickax in a northwest Houston apartment last year.

Karla Faye Tucker, 24, was sentenced to death in the pickax killing of Jerry Lynn Dean, a 28-year-old man who was found dead with Ms. Thornton. Ms. Tucker's co-defendant, Daniel R. Garrett, 39, is charged in Ms. Thornton's death and is on trial in Houston this week.

Parents jailed for valid reason

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors have a valid reason for keeping a couple jailed for refusing to testify before the grand jury that indicted their teen-age son on a murder charge, a federal judge says. U.S. District Judge Norman Black refused for a second time Friday to order the release of Bernard and Odette Port, who have been jailed since Sept. 12.

"They are being jailed for refusing to testify. That's the purpose of civil contempt," Black said during the 15-minute hearing. "I think that's what it's designed to do."

Black said the district attorney's office had a valid argument in pursuing a higher charge of capital murder against David Port because authorities "felt they had evidence to support a charge of murder, but did not have admissible evidence to support a charge of capital murder."

The Ports, citing their Jewish faith, have refused to testify before a grand jury investigating the June 7 slaying of postal carrier Debora Sue Schatz.

Their son, David, 17, has been indicted on a murder charge in the case and remains free on $20,000 bond.

Two arrested in cocaine seizure

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal narcotics agents say they have made the largest cocaine seizure in Texas history and arrested two men described as kingpins in an international smuggling ring.

Marion Hambrick, special agent in charge of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration's Houston office, said 1,000 pounds of cocaine and 1,200 pounds of marijuana were taken from three Houston warehouses.

Don Perry, another DEA special agent, said the cocaine has an estimated street value of $500 million, while the marijuana has an estimated value of $8 million.

Perry said the men were arrested Friday as they were about to fly out of the Houston Intercontinental Airport.

The arrests culminated a year-long investigation by 10 local, state and federal agencies probing the drug-smuggling operation that brought in between $17 million and $20 million in cocaine each week, Perry said.

Mondale seeks ouster of boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Sunday's critical foreign policy debate with President Reagan drawing near, Walter F. Mondale is calling for the dismissal of CIA Director William Casey for permitting circulation of a psychological warfare manual among U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels.

"This has been a profound embarrassment to our country," Mondale said Friday.

Today, Mondale and Reagan planned to complete preparation for Sunday's 90-minute, nationally televised matchup in Kansas City — the sequel to an Oct. 7 presidential debate widely perceived as a boon to Mondale's campaign.

A sparkling performance by Mondale could help him narrow Reagan's lead in the polls, but the president's camp asserted on Friday that the debate will have no impact on the outcome of the election.

New storm warnings raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary T.H. Bell, who last year warned of a "rising tide of mediocrity" in American high schools, is raising new storm warnings over the quality of education on college campuses.

Bell was briefing college presidents and holding a news conference today at George Washington University here at the official unveiling of a critique of America's colleges penned by a group of scholars for Bell's National Institute of Education.

The study was first reported by The Associated Press last Wednesday.

It recommends that all undergraduates take at least two full years of liberal arts courses, even if that forces them to spend more than the usual four years getting a bachelor's degree in business, education, nursing or other fields.

Bell's report, called, "Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education," warns, "The strains of rapid expansion of higher education, followed by recent years of constricting resources and leveling enrollments...have taken their toll."

Four Americans die in crash

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — An unarmed plane carrying four American CIA employees on a surveillance mission in rebel territory 20 miles north of the capital crashed into a volcano during a heavy rain storm. All four Americans died.

Meanwhile, reporters returning from the site of a major government offensive in northeastern El Salvador said the chief of U.S. military advisers and two other American military officials were seen in the area fully armed. U.S. military personnel are barred from combat areas and are allowed to carry weapons only for their personal protection.

Col. James Steele, who oversees 55 military advisers and 11 administrative staff in San Salvador, told reporters he had traveled to Perquin, 125 miles northeast of San Salvador, several hours after a U.S.-trained battalion was airlifted into the town.

The surveillance plane, equipped with sophisticated night photography equipment, was trailing an aircraft suspected of carrying arms to leftist Salvadoran guerrillas when it crashed early Friday, according to one intelligence source in Washington.

It was not clear whether the surveillance mission and the offensive were related.

Rebel says

Advice 'morally wrong'

MIAMI (AP) — A CIA-produced manual advising anti-Sandinista rebels to "neutralize" Nicaraguan officials was "offensive and morally wrong," according to a rebel leader who says he deleted sections on assassination from the booklet.

Congressional intelligence committees are reviewing the psychological warfare manual and a comic book-style manual the intelligence agency produced urging the Nicaraguan rebels to sabotage their leftist government.

Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale on Friday called the manual "a profound embarrassment to our country" and demanded that President Reagan fire CIA Director William Casey before Sunday's presidential debate.

Reagan has ordered investigations by the CIA and Intelligence Oversight Board, but Democrats have demanded an independent inquiry by the congressional General Accounting Office, or by a special prosecutor.

Despite White House claims that the primer was a first draft "caught before anything serious happened," about 200 of the booklets were distributed, said Edgar Chamorro, chief of propaganda for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force.

Chamorro, who said he was in charge of translation and publication of the manual for the NDF, the largest rebel group, denied Friday that there was more than one draft of the booklet.

However, Chamorro, who lives in Miami, said he had excised references to assassination of government leaders and a section recommending a rebel supporter be killed to create a "martyr."

"We thought it was offensive and morally wrong," Chamorro told The Associated Press.

He said those pages were destroyed and replaced, and that 2,000 of the rewritten manuals were distributed.

Chamorro said the 90-page booklet contained "Spanish guerrilla argot" that may have confused some critics. The word "neutralization" in the original version was meant to mean "practically anything, from humiliating a person to making him shameful of the work he's doing," he said.

It also covered assassinations by "professional killers" hired from the criminal class, he said, adding that only officials labeled "criminals" were to be killed.

Chamorro said the book was written largely by an American he characterized as a Vietnam veteran but wouldn't identify, and added that the funds used to produce and print the book were funneled through this man.

He said he didn't know whether the man had any connection with the CIA or the U.S. government. The booklet was printed in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, in October and November 1983.

In today's editions, The Washington Post quoted sources in the Nicaraguan anti-government movement as saying the book's author is a hard-drinking veteran who also fought in the Korean War and calls himself John Kirkpatrick.

Unidentified sources in the FDN quoted in today's Miami Herald said the American, in his 50s and of "military cut," described himself as an expert in psychological warfare who was working toward a doctorate in the subject.

The Post story today cited a classified intelligence report that rebel actions over the previous four months had included assassinations of minor government officials and a Cuban adviser.

Chamorro acknowledged that the guerrillas have killed some government officials in three years of fighting, but said the number killed was small and called the victims "Sandinista criminals."

Texas floods, but no drought relief

Thousands of Utah homes were without power today and the National Guard was called in to bail out residents of flood-ravaged Texas, after autumn's third major storm dumped record amounts of snow in the West and threw tornadoes and thunderstorms across the Plains.

Thunderstorms and tornadoes marched across Texas on Friday, raising the death toll from a week of Western storms to six. And flooding could continue today in several Texas counties, where as much as 20 inches of rain fell in 24 hours, the National Weather Service said today.

Highways across the state were closed by heavy flooding, rail traffic was halted at Odem, where storms washed out the tracks, and several people in low-lying areas were evacuated by helicopter.

Three people were injured, one seriously, when lightning struck an oil rig two miles south of Odem, and authorities were unable to reach the victims immediately because of high water surrounding the rig.

"We've got floods, we've got houses torn up," said San Patricio County Sheriff's Deputy Terry Simpson. "You name it, we go it."

The National Guard was called out to help evacuate residents of Odem and nearby Sinton.

Seventeen inches of rain drenched

Bluntzer and Bayside, Texas, while Robstown got 15 to 20 inches. But the storm brought no relief for Corpus Christi, stopping at the fringes of the Gulf Coast city hit by an 18-month drought.

The National Weather Service predicted up to 2 feet of new snow could be added over the weekend to 3 feet already covering parts of the Utah mountains. Salt Lake City continued to dig out today from a record 1 1/2 feet of snow.

The weather service also predicted rain and thundershowers for the southern Plains and the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee valleys, and snow showers from the Rockies to northern Minnesota.

Travelers' advisories were posted for parts of Nevada, where mountain passes were slick, the weather service said.

On Thursday night, 14 tornadoes whipped across Arkansas, Missouri and Texas, killing two people. More than 5 1/2 inches of rain poured on Hot Springs, Ark., in 24 hours, and the torrent left parts of Little Rock, Ark., under 4 feet of water.

A handful of people evacuated from their flooded homes in Little Rock, Ark., overnight were allowed to return Friday after rain-swollen rivers and street flooding receded, officials said. The 4.02 inches of rain that fell Thursday was the most for any October day in the city's history.

About 5,000 homes were still without electricity early today as Utah Power & Light workers trudged "house by house and neighborhood by neighborhood" through knee-deep drifts to repair broken power lines, said utility spokesman John Serfustini.

The storm was so severe that snow-laden branches crashing into power lines ripped meters from the sides of homes, and "there are people with holes in their houses," Serfustini said.

Board looks at new rules

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education was scheduled to look at rules today that would offer second chances to students who run afoul of the stringent requirements set by the education reform bill passed this year.

The measures were advanced Friday by a board committee, but no board action was expected until December.

Proposals included academic requirements for extra-curricular activity participation, social promotions for students incapable of passing and absences.

Lawmakers in July voted to bar failing students from extra-curricular activities. The proposal now before the board would allow teachers, at a parent's request, to "withhold" a failing grade that would make a student ineligible for activities.

The student would remain eligible for the next six-week grading period. The grade from that period would then be averaged with the withheld grade. If that produces a failing grade, the student would become ineligible for extra-curricular activities.

The proposal by board member Jack Strong of Longview also would allow students to practice extra-curricular activities — but not compete — in the six weeks following a failing grade. The student would become ineligible if he or she does not earn a passing grade during the subsequent grading period.

Board member Volly Bastine of Houston voted for the proposals Friday although he said the package "undermines" the legislative intent.

He said the proposal to withhold a failing grade might be proper in some cases, but he added, "Let's not put them back through that same process and just play games with the student, play the numbers game more or less, in order to accommodate that student's participation in extra-curricular activities."

A Bastine amendment added Friday restricts withheld grades to two courses a semester, and bars them for students whose grade would be below 60. Seventy is the passing grade.

Strong's proposal also would waive the 10-absence limit to permit students to participate in competitions beyond the district level. "We should not penalize excellence," he said.

Also advanced was a plan to limit students to eight hours per extra-curricular activity a week, including travel and game time on school nights.

In the social promotion proposal, Strong said there are students who fall in between youngsters who can pass courses and those who have disabilities that prevent passing.

His plan would allow promotions without passing grades for students who fail despite "doing the very best they can."

Students first would attend required tutoring sessions — two days a week at first, and five days if needed. If no improvement is shown, the student could be moved to the next grade.

No student would be allowed to repeat the same grade more than once. A student who has repeated two grades would not be allowed to repeat a third.

The committee also advanced a proposal allowing students to make up absences by making up 150 percent of the time missed and doing written work to prove mastery of the material.

CADET

He said, however, that the students will receive written notification of the decision early next week, and will have three days to appeal to a university panel that is the final authority in disciplinary actions.

Kibler said suspension generally means that a student may apply for readmission to A&M after a certain period. Readmission is not automatic, he said, but must be approved by the Office of Student Affairs.

BULL

take on the undefeated Bulldogs.

Absentee voting is underway and the big Nov. 6 general election is just over two weeks away. Through the years, we've promoted "get-out-the-vote" campaigns, urging everyone to vote. However, we may change our approach. We're going to urge all good citizens to vote for good candidates.

If good citizens don't support and vote for good candidates, public officials will be beholden to the special interest groups that did elect them. All the votes count the same whether the reasons are good, wrong, silly or hateful. Thus, good government depends on getting more votes out for the good candidates.

Many voters missed a good opportunity here Thursday night to hear the candidates in three races of interest to Deaf Smith County citizens. The Candidates' Forum, sponsored by the C of C legislative committee, drew about 100 people, but there should have been twice that many.

One of the things that impressed us in listening to the county commission candidates is that voters have a good choice in the lone local race. Both Troy Don Moore and Bill Allen are good, qualified candidates. Occasionally, in county races, we see a candidate who is "a good old boy who needs the job." Neither of these candidates falls into that category. They are both capable, conscientious candidates who could be an asset to county government.

Thanks to YOU?

The United Way campaign is going to fall short again this year unless a lot of folks give the drive a little more priority.

There are cards laying on the desks of volunteer workers and the contacts will never be made, because the worker just couldn't find time.

There are business firms and individuals who will not contribute to this very worthwhile community program because no one called on them.

There are employees who could easily give 50 cents a week, but it's too much trouble and they don't want to give $26 in a lump sum. Ten agencies in the United Way will wind up with zero from many of those people.

It doesn't have to be that way. This community could easily make its United Way goal if volunteers would meet their commitment on making the calls, if employees would make even a small commitment to the program, and if businesses and individuals would call the United Way office if they've not been contacted.

Hopefully we can report on Oct. 31, "Thanks to YOU, Deaf Smith County cares more in '84!"

An American

One of our readers submitted an anonymous statement which we think is ideally suited for a brief editorial. He says he spotted the following words on a home-made plaque which was mounted on a restaurant wall in another state:

Let every man honor and love the land of his birth and the race from which he came and keep their memory green. It is a pious and honorable duty.

But let us have done with British American, Irish American, German American and Mexican American, and so on, and all be Americans.

If a man is going to be an American at all, let him be so without any qualifying adjectives and if he is going to be something else, let him drop the American from his personal description.

Tax madness

Amid all the talk about who won the first Presidential debate, we offer this opinion: We all lost.

Both debaters were over-coached, over-briefed and over-rehearsed and neither actually responded to the questions asked.

And, neither Mondale or Reagan mentioned the one thing that would change the complexion of this country quicker than all the quibbling over deficits, transfer programs, abortion or inflation.

Neither debater proposed or even mentioned the possibility, if elected, of adopting a flat rate tax to replace the present over-powering, over-complicated, over-loopholed income tax mess.

Four previous commissioners of the Internal Revenue Service have proclaimed its merits, ex-heads of the Treasury Department have endorsed it, the Grace Commission said it would mean a savings in administering it, and congressmen on both sides of the aisle have promised to take a long, hard look at it.

For eleven months of the year, corporations, private firms and individuals do their utmost to increase income, lower expenses, and put a little something back. That's solid, sound, basic economics that works for individuals and businesses alike.

Then in that final month, when projections show what the estimated federal income tax will be, sound economics are thrown out the window, and knee-jerk spending takes over like a drunk with a new bottle.

Oil companies launch last quarter drilling programs that were unthinkable, unfeasible, and unrealistic in the first three quarters; businesses start buying items that were unneeded and unnecessary in the first part of the year, and individuals purchase or invest in items that give a tax break—all under the guise that it's Uncle Sam's tax dollars that they're spending.

The whole income tax system spawns actions that are unwarranted, uneconomic, and counterproductive to a trim, taut, economic ship of state.

With 88 million checks mailed out of the federal treasury each month and only 84 million of us sending money in, we're outnumbered and outgunned and perhaps that's the reason neither candidate proposed the adoption of the flat-rate tax.

But if every corporation, every business, every farm, and every individual knew exactly what his or her tax was going to be as the year progressed, sane economics might return to this country.

and with realistic and practical economics, perhaps Congress would not each year have to raise the ceiling on the national debt—a debt that has now passed the trillion dollar mark—and will go to two trillion before the end of this decade.

As the aide to the colonel said in the movie, "Bridge Over the River Kwai" as explosives rocked the British-built bridge:

"It's madness, madness!"

That's our tax system.

FRIENDSHIP LOST

Obie was my friend. We don't get to have many real friends in our lives, so the ones we have become all the more dear.

We had long talks about life. We never did figure it all out, but we gave it a good talk. We went on vacations together—Obie, me and our wives. New York, Atlantic City, New Orleans—somehow we made them all and loved the experiences.

Sunday nights, after church, we would go to a hole-in-the-wall Greek restaurant and take home snacks of Coneys. One sack without onions for the group. One sack with onions for Obie. The man could eat!

He wielded a golf club like it was a hammer. I remember one swing that took a divot big enough to carpet a bedroom and did not move the ball. Obie searched the heavens for the ball. I said nothing. He searched some more. When he found it at his feet he said, "Don't tell anyone about that." I promised I would not tell a soul until I saw them.

We stopped for pie and coffee in a restaurant one night. Just as the pie ala mode arrived, I noticed the restaurant was filling with smoke. Since I have an incurable Messiah complex, I began getting people out of the restaurant. I was proud of my concern and of the orderly way I got the people out with no panic.

When the last ones were out and the smoke was getting worse, I noticed Obie cramming in his pie and ice cream with both hands. I told you the man could eat. We sat in the car and laughed at Obie while the restaurant burned.

I don't know what happened to our friendship. Maybe someone planted a seed of suspicion or maybe I said something or did something. Whatever happened, the friendship died. It was a sudden death. I went to a party at their house on New Years Eve. Before January passed, Obie was trying to get me fired.

I tried to reconcile, but forgiveness has to be mutual or it doesn't work. Even God can't forgive unless we want forgiveness.

It hurts to loose a friend. Something inside warns us to never have another one because it hurts so bad when they are gone. I am glad I did not listen to the something inside. I am glad for two reasons. First, because I have other friends and their friendship means much. Second, because even after the friendship is gone the memories are still fun. I eat a coney when I can and relive the days when Obie and I laughed our way thorough life. Memories make it worth it.

Bootleg Philosopher

Who decides who's essential worker?

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm shows some sympathy for federal workers this week, more or less.

Dear editor:

Some people enjoy poking fun at federal workers, calling them tax-eaters and such, but working for the government isn't always free of nerve-wracking problems.

For example, recently the federal government ran out of money. Well, it wasn't really recently. Actually it was a trillion dollars ago. What it had run out of was authority from Congress to borrow some more. Congress won't let the U.S. treasury borrow above the ceiling limit, but will from time to time, say about every month or so, raise the ceiling. That makes it legal, prudence be hanged.

Anyway, Congress, being pre-occupied with getting re-elected, didn't get around to raising it in time, the treasury couldn't write any more checks, and all non-essential workers were ordered to go home until more salary money was available.

That's where a government job becomes nerve-wracking. Everybody wants a holiday but who wants to be called non-essential? Your holiday might stretch from here on. The job is no bed of roses.

Moreover, who decides who's essential? Could it possibly be done by somebody who was himself non-essential? Does the government keep a list of workers it can do without?

Fortunately, Congress woke up and raised the borrowing limit and the workers got back on the job before anybody had time to find out if they were needed.

One question keeps nagging at me. If they were furloughing non-essential workers, were any Congressmen sent home?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

State newspapers present opinions

By The Associated Press
Here is a sampling of excerpts from editorials around the state:

A NOBEL GESTURE

The immediate comparisons between this year's Nobel Peace Prize winner, Anglican Bishop Desmond Mpilo Tutu, and last year's winner, Poland's Lech Walesa, must be cause for deep thought in South Africa.

Bishop Tutu is a peaceful crusader against South Africa's racial segregation. He is outspoken in a country where others have been effectively restrained. As winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, he has a platform from which to address the entire world.

South Africa has in recent months moved toward addressing its racial problems in a more positive way. Bishop Tutu now has been given leverage that may increase that movement.

TAX CHANGES AHEAD?

Texas taxpayers need to take note of the fact that the era in which the state's revenue system produced double-digit growth and billion-dollar surpluses, without new taxes, has closed. The 1970s were an era of plenty for the state government. ... But now comes a warning from the Texas Research League that if state spending isn't tailored to the new lower growth pattern of state revenue of the 1980s, there could be major changes in tax policy on the horizon.

... (This) indicates the importance of voters knowing how the candidates for legislative posts that will be involved in making these decisions feel on the subjects of spending and taxes.

—The Tyler Morning Telegraph

WILL MONDALE LEARN?

Reaganomics may still be a dirty word to Walter Mondale, but the Europeans who once agreed with critics of the president's economic programs are now taking a long second look. The reason? Reaganomics has helped to create nearly 7 million new jobs for Americans during the last two years; an amazing feat to Europeans saddled with double-digit unemployment and stagnant economies.

French President Mitterrand's new prime minister, Laurent Fabius, announced a new government budget recently that included impressive spending restraints and, voila, Reagan-style cuts in France's income tax rates... If France's socialists can recognize that cutting marginal tax rates is the way to promote growth and create employment, there is hope for everyone else in Europe, as well. The next question is: can Mondale learn, too?

—The Pecos Enterprise

DEATH PENALTY CAUTION

Texas legislators, when they meet in regular session in January, would be well advised to exercise caution in expanding the state's death penalty statute to include mass-murder cases and cases in which the defendant previously had been convicted of murder... We agree that mass murders... are terrible events. But it is possible that persons who commit multiple murders can be sentenced to death under the present statute.

The present statute has been declared constitutional by the Supreme Court, and it would be foolish to amend it needlessly and risk additional review by the federal courts. Any change must come from an overriding public need and not from political expediency.

—The Dallas Times Herald

BAN BLUE LAWS

Strictures against Sunday sales in this state have outlived their usefulness, if they ever had any to begin with.

And they're shot so full of holes and exceptions, they're really nothing more than exercises in hypocrisy — which is obvious to anyone who pays a Sunday visit to a grocery or discount store and sees certain aisles roped off.

We realize that certain businesses, particularly smaller, family-run businesses, favor mandatory Sunday closing. But a change in lifestyles and shopping habits and an unwillingness on the part of the public to go along with the idea makes the abolition of Texas blue laws overdue.

MORTICIANS BOARD TEST

After catching flak from both industry members and a consumer group, the state Board of Morticians has voted to consider stronger rules to better enforce federal and state laws about funeral prices. That is good, but some of the attitudes displayed indicate improvements will be made only reluctantly...

If the board adopts stronger administrative rules next month, and carries on its duties in the spirit of protecting the public interest, it can redeem its image. If it continues to act as an apologist for the industry it is supposed to regulate, or refuses to do the work necessary to keep the industry apprised of the law and in line with the law, the board should be replaced.

REGISTRATION'S FIRST STEP

In Gregg County and at least four surrounding counties, more residents are registered to vote than at any time in history. The reason, says one Marion County official, is that "Every son-of-a-gun in the country's been out getting people to register."

Whatever the cause, the push to get out the vote comes none too soon. Americans' past voting record is, in a word, dismal.

...The country is at a crossroads in several areas: international relations, nuclear arms, domestic industry and a host of moral-religious issues. More than ever, this country's leadership needs to hear from each and every voter.

Motel business home of hundreds of India immigrants

DALLAS (AP) — The Patels don't have a worldwide reservations system with a toll-free number. They don't have bright signs in front of their motels, and they don't advertise.

But were they related — they aren't — they would outnumber Holiday Inn by 3-1 in Texas, 429-133, according to the most recent records.

Most towns have at least one. In fact, more motels in Texas are owned by people named Patel — a very common surname in India — than anyone else. Yet few American travelers have ever heard the name, and few have ever stayed in a Patel-owned establishment.

"It truly is a phenomenon," said Herb Wilson, president of the Texas Hotel-Motel Association.

Federal immigration officials say the phenomenon is not all coincidence. East Indians flocked to Texas, the deep South and parts of California when the law allowed immigrants to "buy" United States residency with only a $10,000 investment in a business, such as a motel.

According to state tax receipt records, nearly 14 percent of all non-chain motels and more than 11 percent of all motels and hotels in Texas have owners with the Patel name.

Records show Patels almost always own 15- to 50-room, aging motels or hotels away from highways, usually on the seamy side of town, catering to the poor, elderly or transients. Most have taxable receipts of less than $20,000 annually.

An Associated Press study of state hotel occupancy tax accounts for the period ending June 30, 1983, found that about a third of the motels listed in Amarillo, Big Spring, Bryan, Killeen, Marshall, Odessa and Wichita Falls were owned by Patels.

Half of the motels in Denison, Mexico, Haltom City, Hamilton and Liberty were Patel-owned. In seven towns, they owned the only two local hotels, the only hotel in 25 towns and two of three in 11 towns.

Thirteen of the 61 hotels and motels in Fort Worth, five of 17 in Lufkin and 30 of 162 in Dallas were listed with Patel owners. In Abilene, it was six of 31; in Longview, five of 24.

In Houston, however, only three of the 287 hotels had Patel owners, and in San Antonio, the figures were 12 of 143.

"It doesn't mean we are all related. It's (Patel) like Smith and Jones in this country," said Ray Patel, owner of the Last Frontier Motel, one of eight Patel-owned motels on a 21-block strip on Dallas' south side.

Patels say they immigrate to the United States and purchase small hotels to operate because it instantly gives them, and their families, both jobs and a home.

Economics are in their favor because 40 percent of the cost of operating lodging is labor and most owners of run-down, out-of-the-way hotels are eager to sell, Wilson said.

Napoleon entered Madrid in 1808 and suppressed the Spanish Inquisition.

Morgan graduates from academy

Following 20 weeks of intensive study and physical training, Donnie Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Dirks of 211 Aspen, graduated from the Waco Police Academy on Oct. 12. Morgan was one of the 18 recruited early this year from a field of over 400 applicants. He received an expert marksmanship award at the graduation ceremony where Phil Gramm, a pro-law enforcement candidate for U.S. Senate, spoke. Morgan began his probationary rookie year Oct. 14. He and his wife reside in rural Waco. He is a graduate of Hereford High School.

Simpson celebrates 92nd birthday

Mrs. J.H. Simpson, a resident of Westgate Nursing Home, celebrated her 92nd birthday on Oct. 7.

Her birthday dinner was given at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson. Other hosts were a son and daughter-in-law, and her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Simpson and Mrs. Leon Roberts of Wellington.

Mrs. Simpson received several long distance phone calls from relatives and friends to wish her "Happy Birthday."

She and the late Mr. Simpson lived in Collingsworth county many years before moving to Hereford 38 years ago.

The couple married at Rising Star and moved to Wellington, living in Shinnery community before moving to Houeolog in 1929.

Those attending the celebration were Pat Ford and Kandi Ford of Amarillo; Robert Proctor of Childress; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harrison of Springdale, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ambruster and son of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson and sons of Dimmitt; and Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Lindley and family.

HERO selling calendars for this year's fund-raiser

The Home Economic Related Occupations (HERO) students at Hereford High school are selling community birthday calendars for this year's fund-raiser. The sale will run until Oct. 26.

The calendars cost $3 and the birthday and anniversaries listings cost an additional 50 cents.

Birthdays and anniversaries will be printed on the calendar of everyone who is contacted. The calendar will also list meeting dates of churches, schools and organizations.

Also, listed will be advertisements for businesses that wish to catch the public's attentions. Some of the businesses are giving discounts for people who list their birthdays and anniversaries.

Proceeds from the calendars will be used for the organizations' activities which include donations to the March of Dimes and Ronald McDonald House, the area FHA-HERO meeting in Lubbock and the State FHA-HERO meeting in Houston.

For more information contact Mary at 364-3218 or Lorie at 364-3546.

Halloween Carnival scheduled

Church and civic organizations are urged to participate in the Hereford Rotary Club's Halloween Carnival scheduled from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 31 at the Bull Barn.

Groups are asked to provide booths and entertainment for the children.

For further information contact Ike Graves, 364-0041.

Whitefaces get 22 points in fourth quarter

Late scoring burst too much for Caprock

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Sometimes you save the best for last, more specifically last quarter. The Hereford Whitefaces did just that Friday night at Whiteface

Stadium, scoring 22 points in the final 12 minutes to record a hard-fought 29-14 District 3-5A win over Caprock High School. With the win, Hereford moves into a tie for second place with Palo Duro and Amarillo at 3-2 in loop action. The Whitefaces are 4-3 overall.

The stage now has been set for next week's Hereford-Plainview game, the Herd still battling for a playoff berth. Plainview clinched at least a tie for the 3-5A crown by beating Coronado 25-14 Friday.

For the Longhorns, the Whiteface win probably proved to be the last roundup. Caprock fell to 2-3-1 in district play and 3-3-1 overall.

"They (the Whitefaces) came after us with more than we could handle in the second half," Caprock football coach Ray Basinger said. "They came after us, took advantage of our mistakes and controlled the game."

That second half Basinger was talking about saw the Herd roll up more than twice the total number of yards it had in the first two periods. The Whitefaces picked up 193 yards and 14 first downs in the final 24 minutes.

"It really was a different game the second half," Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor said. "The first half was just a comedy of errors, all of them on our part. It was a miracle that we went in at halftime down by only seven points."

After failing to make a first down in the first quarter, the Herd finally got untracked when Patrick Phibbs recovered a fumbled fair-catch by Amarillo's Freddy Watts at the Horn 34. The recovery came just three plays deep into the second period, and on the fourth play, quarterback Mike Scott hit Sammy Suarez on a 34-yard touchdown strike. Javier Mendiola's extra-point temporarily tied the game at 7.

After the Herd was thwarted on its next possession at the Caprock 1-yard line, Watts burst through the middle for 42 yards to put the Horns inside Hereford's 20. Three plays later, Caprock quarterback Lee Meza threw to Hondo McKinney in the middle of a crowd to put his team back in front.

"Caprock has some fine football players," Taylor said. "(Monte) Buchanan and Watts are just two of them."

Earlier in the game — which marked Hereford's Homecoming — Buchanan had scored on a two-yard run. Patrick Vigil kicked both PATs.

"I felt like we should have had more points in the first half," Basinger said. "We played hard and were moving the ball fairly well. I just wish I knew what happened."

What happened, for all practical purposes, is that Caprock had to play the second half. Hereford took the kick and held on to the ball for nearly six minutes. Even when Caprock's Bryan Young intercepted a Scott pass in the end zone, a feeling of momentum change was apparent.

"I felt like the first drive of the second half was important," Taylor said. "It was even more important that we could control the ball like that against the wind. I thought we might be able to loosen their defense up a little with a pass, but it was intercepted. We did show our people, though, that we could do what we set out to do at the first of the game — control the ball."

Hereford had the ball for 18:47 of the last 24 minutes.

On that initial drive of the third quarter, Scott was two for three and finished the night with his best performance of the season in terms of completion percentage. Scott connected on 10 of 14 passes with the one interception.

"Mike Scott did one super job of competing for our second touchdown and conversion," Taylor said. "The second half was ours; that's the only way you can describe it."

Hereford cast the winning die early in the fourth period. Tight-end Kurt Simon made a brilliant catch, Taylor said, on a fourth-and-one pass from Scott. Simon turned completely around in mid-air to pull the ball in for the score.

Still trailing by one, however, Taylor called for a fake kick attempt. Scott took the deep snap and rolled right before throwing to Suarez, who caught the ball just off the ground, for two points.

"I thought we had just as good a chance of going for two from kick formation as we did by lining up the offense on the ball," Taylor said.

"We never did plan to kick it, though. I don't know if we fooled people or not, but probably some of their players. We had two great catches those last two plays."

The Herd scored on each of its three possessions the final period.

Running back Alan Dudding scored on a 1-yard run up the middle for the second TD of the period.

Stefen Hacker had recovered a Caprock fumble on the Longhorn's 23-yard line to precede Dudding's run. Mendiola's PAT gave Hereford a 22-14 lead with 6:06 to play.

Suarez got his second TD of the night a little later when he came back for a Scott pass that covered 19 yards. Scott almost was tackled on the play, but managed to see his receiver cutting back across the end zone.

Suarez's only two catches of the night, not including his conversion grab, were for touchdowns. Added to last week's totals, four of the last five balls Suarez has caught have been for scores.

Dudding led Hereford runners with 67 yards on 23 rushes. Vincent Brown carried the ball 18 times for 61 steps.

"We were facing a situation where we had to stop killing ourselves," Taylor said. "And the second half, we did."

"This win surely does set up a big game next week in Plainview. I'm looking forward to it."

Approximately 4,000 were on hand to witness the Homecoming game.

Let Me At It

Hereford and Caprock High School football players mix it up Friday night attempting to recover a loose ball in the first quarter of the Whiteface-Longhorn football game. The Herd lost the fumble at the 2:07 mark of the first quarter to set Caprock first-and-10 inside Hereford territory.

Hamsho knocked down twice

Hagler wins in third round

By ED SCHUYLER Jr. AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler knocked down Mustafa Hamsho twice with sudden swiftness in the third round and kept the undisputed middleweight championship Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

When Hamsho went down for the second time, his manager, Al Certo, jumped into the ring before referee Arthur Mercante could begin a count, and the fight was over with 29 seconds left in the third round.

It was the 10th successful defense for Hagler, who had said before the scheduled 15-round, "I am going to come in there throwing everything."

The 30-year-old champion didn't throw everything in the first round. In fact, he was having trouble finding the range. Hamsho, who was trying for the second time to beat Hagler, seemed to have an edge in the round as he scored with good lefts to the head on four or five occasions.

But Hamsho came out of that first round with a cut over his left eye, which apparently was caused by a collision of heads.

In the second round, Hagler started to find his way with his right jab and also scored with a couple of good right hooks. Early in the round, he caught Hamsho with a right hook to the head. Hamsho fired back with a left to the head. Then Hagler backed him up with a left to the head.

Then in the third round, the champion ended the battle of left-handers, eight rounds earlier than he had finished Hamsho in their first meeting Oct. 3, 1981.

Early in the third round, Mercante warned Hamsho for butting. Hagler then landed a good right and left and then a hard right. Suddenly, with 1:25 left in the round, Hagler connected with a left-right that dropped Hamsho on the seat of his pants in a neutral corner.

The challenger, a native of Syria who is a U.S. citizen living in New York, struggled up and tried to fight back. But he was fighting on wobbly legs.

Then, after Hagler was warned by Mercante for pushing Hamsho away, Hagler leaped in with a right to the jaw that dropped the challenger and brought his manager into the ring.

The impressive victory for Hagler, who weighed 159½, over the No. 1-ranked contender by both the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council, who also weighed 159½, came before an estimated crowd of 12,000 at the Garden and followed Mike McCallum's one-sided 15-round decision over Sean Mannon for the WBA junior middleweight championship, which had been vacant.

Hagler earned $1.4 million for his performance on Home Box Office. The New York metropolitan area was not blacked out.

Hagler now has a 60-2-2 record with 50 knockouts and has an unbeaten streak of 34 fights dating back to March 9, 1976, when he lost a 10-round decision to Willie Monroe in Philadelphia.

Hamsho, who got $300,000, now has a 38-3-2 record with 22 knockouts.

In the first half of the title double-header, it was all McCallum. The Jamaica native who lives in New York speared Mannon with left jabs, right counters, straight rights and right uppercuts. Mannon, an Irish native living in Dorchester, Mass., did hurt McCallum with a left to the head in the ninth round, but that was his only bright spot.

McCallum, who weighed 153¼ and was ranked No. 1 by the WBA, now has a 22-0 record, with 19 knockouts. Mannon, who weighed the class limit of 154, now is 29-6-1 with 11 knockouts. He had been ranked No. 2.

McCallum succeeds the retired Roberto Duran as champion.

Todd will start against the Cowboys and be given a chance to get something going, Phillips said. But he added, "I would not hesitate to make a change if the situation called for it."

The same goes for Landry. He said Hogeboom, who was given the starting job at the end of pre-season training, could be given the hook for the more experienced White.

"I might go to Danny a lot quicker in this game than I have in the past," Landry said.

Both teams have struggling offenses and have suffered back-to-back losses. They meet Sunday night in a National Football League game that will be nationally televised after the presidential debate. The kickoff is set for 8:45 p.m. CST to accommodate ABC. That's 45 minutes later than originally scheduled.

The 4-3 Cowboys were six-point favorites over the 3-4 Saints, who are 1-10 against Dallas and 0-4 in Texas Stadium.

New Orleans hasn't defeated Dallas since 1971 — ironically, the year the Cowboys marched to their first Super Bowl championship.

After White failed to get the Cowboys into the Super Bowl for three straight seasons, Landry opened the season with the strong-armed Hogeboom. But the Cowboys have had offensive growing pains thus far.

Dallas running back Tony Dorsett hasn't rushed for 100 yards in his last 10 games dating back to the 1983 season.

New Orleans has also had running problems.

The Saints obtained runningback Earl Campbell from the Houston

Oilers earlier this month, and he joined the team for the Los Angeles game but gained only 19 yards on five carries. George Rogers, like Campbell a former Heisman Trophy winner, had 11 yards on five carries.

Campbell owns the second highest single game rushing performance ever against the Cowboys, a 195-yard effort in 1979.

In 1934, the Brooklyn Dodgers, then playing in the National Football League, set a league record by making only one touchdown by rushing for the entire season.

From The Blind Side

Caprock quarterback Lee Meza sets to get a pass off in Friday night football action at Whiteface Stadium, hopefully before Hereford's Adam Olivarez can reach him. The Herd defense limited the Longhorns to only 152 total yards, including 24 the last half. The Whitefaces improved their record to 4-3 overall and 3-2 in district with the win.

On the Ball

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

"He wants to win football games just as much as you or I would," Butch White began, "but he loves the kids more than he loves to win games."

Jerry Taylor, Hereford High School football coach. That's the "he" White was referring to. And White described Taylor accurately.

As the Whiteface Booster Club Fan of the Week for the Clovis-Hereford football game, White may have seen a part of Taylor few people outside the locker room actually get the chance to view. White had the opportunity to be on the sideline during the Clovis-Herd contest as well as be in the Herd dressing room prior to and after the game. He heard what Taylor had to say and saw what Taylor did.

But even though White got to see and hear those things, all followers of Hereford football should have a pretty good idea of just what went on. Think about Jerry Taylor the person and you've got Jerry Taylor the coach.

The man is concerned with all people — his own children and family, his players, his neighbors, you and me, and about all townspeople. As White said, Jerry Taylor wants the best for everyone without caring too much about what he receives — be it criticism or praise.

"I think if I had a son who was playing football, I'd rather he be on a 6-4 Jerry Taylor team than on a state championship team where he got nothing out of football other than being on a winner," White said. "To him (Taylor), winning is not everything."

But Taylor does a pretty good job of winning. Before coming to Hereford, Taylor was head coach at Stamford High School where he compiled a 44-14-2 record in five years, and took Stamford to the playoffs his last three seasons there. His Stamford teams compiled records of 2-7-1, 8-1-1, 10-2, 13-1 and 11-3. Taylor was his district's coach of the year in 1979 and 1980.

Since coming to Hereford in February of last year, Taylor has guided the Whitefaces to the District 3-5A co-championship. For accomplishing that feat — in his first year when the Herd was picked in pre-season as a second-rate team — he was named this league's coach of the year. His team was 8-2 in regular-season play a year ago.

Like White said, though, a person wouldn't know of Taylor's success just by talking to him.

"He never wants to take any credit," White said. "He gives all the credit to the assistant coaches and the players when they win. But if Hereford loses, he wants to shoulder all the blame."

Think back again to the Hereford-Clovis football game. When the Wildcats' assistant coach was penalized for unsportsmanlike conduct near the end of the game for something he did in front of his players, his players' parents, God and everybody — something totally uncalled for — weren't you glad your son, nephew, grandson or friend was playing for Taylor?

Taylor is the first to say that behavior like that of the Clovis coach has no place in football. Taylor surely would say that not only making an obscene gesture to the official was wrong, but the coach shouldn't even have been on the field.

Taylor is a Deacon of First Baptist Church in Hereford. He teaches a Sunday School class there as well.

"I think Jerry is a very fine Christian man," White said. "He's not ashamed of his faith. He led the team in a prayer following the ball game that was very sincere. He means what he says."

Hereford hit the jackpot when the school system hired Taylor. Successful football coaches who are successful men — in the way Taylor is successful — surely must be few and far between.

"I don't know if I could sum up what Jerry Taylor is in one word," White said. "There are so many outstanding qualities he has."

Neither could anyone sum up what Jerry Taylor is in one word, or even one sentence. Maybe Hereford ISD Superintendent Harrell Holder gave it a good shot when Taylor was hired, though.

In the Feb. 25, 1983, issue of the Brand, Holder was quoted. He said: "Jerry Taylor is not only a winner, but a man with the high moral standards and character that our school district desires." The kind of coach every school district desires.

Won't reschedule season in 1985

Football league plans change in '86

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — United States Football League officials said Friday that despite reports they might be considering their move from the spring to the fall, they are more determined than ever to make the switch in 1986.

"That's the path we're taking; that's the road we're going down," Commissioner Chet Simmons said at a news conference after the USFL's first day of meetings here. "There was never any question about it."

The league, which began play in the spring of 1983, voted in August to switch to fall 1986, following one more spring season.

League owners and other officials met for about four hours Friday morning and said afterward they had spent most of the time on committee reports.

However, George Allen, who retired last month as coach of the Arizona Wranglers but still owns a piece of the club, conceded that the most important item on the agenda was the mergers — the league calls it "consolidation."

The USFL began two years ago with 12 teams, then expanded last season to 18, in part because Simmons felt they needed to expand the number of television markets.

But now, with the league having lost what owners estimate at $63 million last season and more than $100 million over two years, the move is to get smaller. That would give the remaining clubs more from the combined $15 million the league will get from ABC and ESPN next year.

"It's premature to say what we'll do now, but it's clear that several teams are having problems," Allen said. "Everyone's concerned about money, but what we have to do is strengthen the weak teams without diluting the strong teams."

The USFL wants to get down to 14 and perhaps 12 teams as well as do something about the troubled Los Angeles franchise, which is now being run by the league after owner J. William Oldenburg's financial problems forced him to bow out. The Express under Oldenburg spent millions on players, including a huge contract to quarterback Steve Young, and any new owner must grapple with that.

Also a possibility is the sale of the Chicago franchise to groups from either Charlotte, N.C., or Honolulu by Eddie Einhorn, who bought the franchise after the Chicago Blitz failed and were taken over by the league. Einhorn, along with Donald Trump of the New Jersey Generals, were the principal architects of the move to a fall schedule, which is supposed to start in 1986 after a final spring season in 1985.

Beck leads tourney after two days of play

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Chip Beck, a frequent challenger but not yet a winner on the PGA Tour, set a tournament scoring record as he moved out to a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Walt Disney World Golf Classic.

Beck, 28, completing his sixth season as a touring pro, added a 6-under-par 66 to his opening 64 and set the tournament record for 36 holes at 130, 14 strokes under par at the tournament's halfway point.

"I'm just going to play and enjoy it and hope things go my way," said Beck, who was a runner-up three times last year and this season led through the first three rounds of the Westchester Classic.

"If I get a chance to win, on the last day, on the last nine holes, I think I can win," Beck said after his second-round effort at the Magnolia course, one of three resort layouts used for the first three rounds of this event.

He will play Saturday's round at the Palm course, which defending champion Payne Stewart said "is the hardest of the three we play."

The format calls for the 132-man field to play one round on each of the Palm, Magnolia and Lake Buena Vista courses before the field is trimmed to the low 70 scorers and ties for the final round at Magnolia.

Jay Haas, who held the previous tournament record at 132, again matched that total and was tied for second with rookie Brad Faxon, Larry Nelson and veteran Hubert Green, who broke a three-year non-winning streak last week in the Southern Open.

Ready For A Spill

Hereford running back Alan Dudding is brought down by two Caprock defenders, including Bryan Young (12), on a run in the first half Friday night. Dudding carried the ball 23 times for 67 yards in the Whitefaces 29-14 District 3-5A victory.

'Grow up time'

Oiler assistant frustrated

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler offensive coordinator Kay Dalton has decided it's "grow up" time for his young team and he's told them so emphatically. "I can't change your personalities, I can't change your attitudes," Dalton said in a blunt team meeting. "But somehow, you've got to grow up — fast. I mean faster than what you normally could if you were one of only two or three rookies on a veteran team." Dalton has taken the brunt of Houston's offensive fizzle this season but then he's not dealing with a group of seasoned veterans. Despite his Canadian Football League experience, quarterback Warren Moon is a National Football League rookie, starting running back

Larry Moriarty is in his second year and receivers Jamie Williams, Chris Dressel and Herkie Walls, all are second-year performers. Rookie Dean Steinkuhler starts on the offensive line along with second year performers Bruce Matthews and Harvey Salem, third year starter Mike Munchak and five-year veteran John Schuhmacher. The starting lineup in last week's 28-10 loss to Miami averaged 2.5 years of NFL experience. "All I wanted to get across to them was that we're a talented bunch of guys, so let's get with it," Dalton said of his Wednesday afternoon blast. "What we've got here is a bunch of young guys and no leadership. I've told the running backs, because we don't have any big-play people, 'look, let's just hit it. Hell with it. You know where the hole is supposed to be, so just hit it as quick and as aggressive as you can.' "If the hole is there, great, if it's not, at least you'll knock somebody down and make a yard or two, instead of pussyfooting up there." The Oilers rank last among the 28 NFL teams in total offense and have averaged only 80.1 yards per game rushing this season. A year ago after seven games, the Oilers were gaining 133 yards per game on the ground. "This is the first time Coach Dalton ever got on some guys and let them know 'Do whatever it takes to win,'" Moriarty said. "He didn't say play dirty but smack 'em, because they're going to do it to us."

Agent says pitcher to return

Sutcliffe files as free-agent

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe's agent said that it is "reasonable" to think that the right-hander, who has applied for free agency, will be back with the Chicago Cubs. Barry Axelrod, who represents Sutcliffe, said the Cubs "remain the front-running contender to retain his services for 1985 and the future." Axelrod said the filing, which took place Friday, was "a procedural step geared to protect Sutcliffe's rights to become a free agent if no agreement can be reached with the Cubs, but should not be interpreted as any indication that negotiations with the Cubs have ceased or are not progressing." Sutcliffe was one of six players to file for free agency Friday, according to the Major League Baseball Player Relations Committee. The others were utilityman Danny Meyer of Oakland and outfielders Champ Summers of San Diego, Ruppert Jones of Detroit, Jim Wohlford of Montreal and Al Bumby of Baltimore. Sutcliffe was 16-1 with the National League East champions. He won 15 straight decisions, including the game that clinched the division crown and the opener of the League Championship Series against San Diego.

The 6-foot-7 pitcher, who was traded by the Cleveland Indians to the Cubs on June 13, is one of two Type A free agents that have declared. The other is his former Indians teammate Andre Thornton. Teams losing a Type A free agent are entitled to a pick in the June amateur draft and a selection from a compensation pool. The pool is made up of players left unprotected on their teams' rosters. Five other Type A players are eligible to become free agents this year: Bruce Sutter of St. Louis, Fred Lynn of California, Dan Driessen of Montreal, Jim Gantner of Milwaukee and Cliff Johnson of Toronto. Sutcliffe, 28, made $900,000 plus incentives this season. The team reportedly has offered him a $1 million-a-year contract for three years, a pact he said was not "a sincere or serious offer." "It was like something they felt they had to do right after the World Series," Sutcliffe said from his home in Independence, Mo. "I like everything about the Cub organization and the town. But I have to see what I'm worth." Teams have until Nov. 5 to re-sign any player who has declared for free agency. The deadline for filing for free agency is Oct. 29. The draft will be held Nov. 8 in New York.

Grubb of Detroit, outfielder-designated hitter Ken Singleton of Baltimore, and outfielder Sixto Lezcano of Philadelphia. Also, catcher Gary Allenson of Boston, pitchers Jim Kern and Jerry Augustine of Milwaukee, pitcher Bobby Castillo and infielder Chris Speier of Minnesota, pitchers Vern Ruhle and Mike LaCoss of Houston, outfielder Lee Lacy of Pittsburgh, pitcher Rick Reuschel of the Cubs, infielder Jerry Royster of Atlanta, and infielder Rob Wilfong of California.

Shoot slated today at 1:30

Members of the Hereford Gun Club are to shoot at 1:30 p.m. today at the Gun Club, east Highway 60. All shotgunners are invited to the club for practice or competition. Prizes are to include turkeys, hams and bacon. Officials at the club report that the afternoon will be a good chance to teach children proper gun handling.

Early Wynn of the Cleveland Indians won the American League earned-run title in 1950 with an ERA of 3.20, the highest ever for a champion.

Ann Landers

Many feel differently

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A recent column in which you expressed unrestrained joy at the jailing of a Los Angeles landlord indicated to one and all that you have never been a landlord.

Why don't you take some of your hard-earned money and buy a couple of single-dwelling houses and rent them? You will learn before long that there are more bad renters than there are bad landlords.—One Shoe On The Other Foot In Queens

DEAR SHOE: You could be right. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I never thought I'd live long enough to write to you but your reference to "sleazy" landlords did it.

I have had 34 renters in the last six years. Only one tenant did no damage and left the place clean. All the others put holes in the walls, tore out screens, burned counter tops, mattresses and carpets and stole draperies, mattress covers and even furniture. I had to spend a lot of money to replace items that were damaged, destroyed and stolen, not to mention the cost of having the slabs evicted.

When one bunch of low-lives moved out I had to put in at least three days scrubbing, scouring, delousing, varnishing and replacing knobs and broken mirrors before I could show the place to a prospective tenant. Two months ago, I put my property up for sale. I hope I will be lucky enough to find some unsuspecting sucker who will buy my headache. Please stop giving advice on subjects you know absolutely nothing about.—Bummed Out In Arizona

DEAR BUMMED: Thanks for the comeuppance. My face is getting redder and redder. Here's more of the same.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Sleazy landlords," eh? I wonder who stopped up those toilets, left the trash in the corridors and attracted rodents, cockroaches and Lord knows what else. Surely the apartment wasn't in that condition when it was rented.

Since you live on the other side of the tracks, so to speak, you don't know anything about people who live like pigs. Would you believe some folks have no soap or detergent in the house? They never clean ANYTHING!

Sure, there are landlords who take advantage of tenants, but 20 to 1 it's the other way around. You ought to eat your words.—Been There In Va

DEAR VA.: Gulp, gulp, gulp: I'm eating them as fast as I can. Thank you and all the others who wrote to give me the straight scoop. I learned once again that it is unwise to make a judgment until both sides have had a chance to speak.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Often we hear the words attributed to John F. Kennedy: "Life is unfair." Too bad that the quote always appears out of context. The entire paragraph is worth hearing again and again. I am enclosing it and hope you will print it.—D.K.L. In Great Falls, Montana

DEAR GREAT: Thanks for sending it on. It's excellent.

"There is always inequity in life. Some men are killed in war and some men are wounded. Some men never leave the country and some men are stationed in the Antarctic while others are stationed in San Francisco. It's very hard in the military or in personal life to assure complete equality. Life is unfair."

Ann Landers' new booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Speakers part of Pro-Life meeting

The film "Miracle of Birth" will be shown during a meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Community Center hosted by Pro Family-Pro Life, a non-denominational, educational group.

Also at the meeting will be a panel of four speakers. The speakers are Dr. Howard Johnson, a local medical practitioner, R.C. Hoelscher, a local attorney, Mary Jo Monroe, an Amarillo counselor, and John Smithee, a candidate for state representative.

The meeting is suitable for sixth graders and older, and children are encouraged to come with their parents. The discussion will focus on the social, medical, legal and legislative aspects of abortion.

The meeting should not last more than one hour and the panel will be available for discussions afterward for anyone with further questions.

Public invited to workshop

The second part of a parent communication workshop will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday at St. Anthony's Catholic School. Sponsoring the event is St. Anthony's School PTO and Catholic Family Service of Amarillo.

The workshop will be led by Don Pitts, community education coordinator at Catholic Family Service. It will focus on how parents can teach the facts of life to their children within a framework of shared values and commitment.

The goal of the workshop is to enhance communication in this area and to provide knowledge and skills that will carry over into any area of communication between parent and child.

Westway finalizes plans for their Bazaar

Westway Extension Homemakers Club met Tuesday night with Marjorie Thomas as hostess and Deborah Noland as co-hostess.

Martha Rickman, president, conducted the meeting. She urged members to attend the Pro-Life program Tuesday evening at the Community Center as well as the program Christmas in the Kitchen with Marla Stark, consumer information specialist, in the Flame Room on Nov. 1 and 2 at 7 p.m.

Final plans for the Christmas Bazaar on Nov. 24 were made with plans for publicity, and setting up tables being finalized. Key Club members will aid in the preparation.

The nominating committee was named during the meeting. The ladies on the committee are Debbie Keyes, chairperson, Gayle Carter, Noland, Joyce Aycock and Grace Covington.

Johnnie Messer, president of Draper Extension Homemakers, gave a report on the state meeting in San Angelo. She also presented a program on nutritious snacks.

Refreshments were served to Aycock, Carter, Covington, Caroly Evers, Rickman and the hostesses. The next meeting will be Nov. 27 with Susan Raney, county extension agent, bringing a program on cooking for two.

Public invited to attend Western Jubilee

Popular features of past bazaars at First United Methodist Church will be evident in the 1984 Western Jubilee scheduled from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 2 in the church fellowship hall.

The public is invited to visit the bazaar where booths will be open with a variety of merchandise for sale, most of it suitable for holiday gift giving.

Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. with the price set at $5 for adults and $2 for children under six years of age. The menu will include barbecued brisket, ranchstyle beans, cole slaw, cornbread, fruit cobbler, tea or coffee.

Employees in downtown Hereford businesses are especially invited for lunch, as the church is convenient for them. They are also urged to take their "breaks" at the bazaar locale, where each year coffee and homemade sweet rolls are offered at a nominal price all day.

Della Hutchins and Nancy Josserand are co-chairmen of lunch arrangements and Roberta Caviness is the coffee room hostess this year.

General chairmen of the bazaar are Judy Williams and Kathy Moore.

There will be a trash and treasures booth offering junk, antiques and other items except clothing. Virginia Garner is chairman. The food booth, with Bessie Story and Helen Spinks serving as co-chairmen, will have fresh baked goods as well as pickles, relishes, jelly, preserves and casseroles.

Nell Hodges is serving as treasurer; Zula Arney, head cashier; and Sue Coleman, publicity chairman.

Other booths will include arts and crafts, with Gayla Kimball and Faye Holt as chairmen; needlecraft, Carmen Angel; men's crafts, Bill Lyles; children, Dee Ann Trotter and Naoma Spann; Christmas items, Jody Skiles.

Also, candy, Cherry McWhorter and Pat Walsh; handmade silk poinsettias and grapevine wreaths, Donna Jones and Karen Abney; and children's quiet books, Beverly Bryant and Donna Warrick.

All proceeds from the event will be used for church repairs and missions.

PHOTOS

RIGHT - Assorted candies will also be available during the event and Cherry McWhorter is candy chairman. Sue Coleman is the publicity chairman.

Defense report given during meeting

Members of Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, met Thursday evening at the E.B. Black House. Upon arriving, members and guests enjoyed refreshments prepared by hostesses, Pat Smart, Mildred Drake, Sue James, Cindy Black and Marlene Watson.

The meeting was called to order by the Regent, Ruth Knox. She led the chapter in the opening ritual and Ruth Newsom led the Pledge of Allegiance to the flat. Nell Norvell led the American's Creed and Violet Reinauer led the singing of the National Anthem.

Mrs. Knox gave a special welcome to guests, Mary Morrow, Gladys Flood, Linda Reinauer, Merle Clark and Jolene Bledsoe.

Mrs. Newsom gave the National Defense report based on remarks made in a 1984 Memorial Day speech at Haddon Heights, N.J. by Lt. Commander Robert L. Chenery, U.S. Navy, entitled, "The Torchbearers."

In his remarks Lt. Commander Chenery honored "The most gallant and honorable Americans" people, not chosen by race, color or creed, but chosen to protect the torch of freedom for all generations of Americans.

The Torchbearers have gone forward for more than 200 years to fight the forces of darkness that threatened American's liberty and pursuit of happiness. He encouraged all Americans today to love America, to work every day to make it a better place to live, to respect the rights of others, to stand up for this country and its people and by performing these deeds to honor the Torchbearers who preceded other Americans.

Recording secretary, Helen Rose, read the September minutes and they were approved as corrected. Treasurer, Mrs. Newsom, gave her report and Lois Gilliland, corresponding secretary, read a letter from the State Pages committee.

The following reports were given: President General's project by Ruth Fish; Constitution Week by Anna Margaret Moss; DAR service for Veteran patients and Motion Picture, radio and television by Mildred Drake; conservation by Rachel Henslee; Ad Hoc Committee on Scholarship by Margaret Bell, membership essay contest by Mrs. Reinauer.

Mrs. Norvell reported that she has declined nomination for the State slate of officers and expressed her appreciation for the consideration she received.

Mrs. Rose was presented a Resolution of Appreciation from the Chapter.

Mrs. Reinauer introduced Ms. Bell, who brought a program concerning the duties, objects and activities that occupy the members of the NSDAR. She stressed the history, objects, committees, special projects including patriotic occasions, historical properties and special schools that involves the members throughout the years.

In her closing remarks, Mrs. Bell said the work of NSDAR at least became an interesting hobby, and at most, a lifetime's work.

Following the program Mrs. Knox reported that on Oct. 11, 94 years ago, four women met in Washington, D.C. and founded the NSDAR. Texas now has 168 chapters and 16,080 members.

Other members present included Wanda Jones, Corene Smith, Mary Williamson, and Patricia Robinson.

An Update From Ronald

I'm still having birthdays. Yes, last week, I was thirteen months old. I'm still putting on my cute act. Everyone is responding as I had planned. One day I was playing in a glass of tea. Daddy told me I wasn't nice. So I just started crying loud. Mother gave me back the glass and approved of my hands in the tea. My brothers and sister were approving but I wasn't so sure my Dad was very happy. To play it safe, I cut my eyes to see his reaction. Everyone noticed, laughed and I knew I was in control.

Annual bazaar slated Nov. 18

An annual Holiday Arts and Craft Bazaar is scheduled from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Nov. 18 at the Nazareth school cafeteria.

The booths will be eight feet by 10 feet and one table and two chairs will be provided. Participants must state if a table is needed or if they will provide their own display racks.

Booths cost $15 and interested individuals need to specify if they want a wall booth or a center booth. Booths will be assigned on a first come, first service basis. Money must be received before a booth will be reserved.

The last day to reserve a booth is Nov. 10. The cafeteria will be open at 8 a.m. Nov. 18 so participants may set up.

For more information, contact Lucille Drerup at 945-2563 (Dimmitt) or Rose Mary Wilhelm at 945-2583 (Nazareth).

One question: When it's advertised that "one size fits all," all WHO?

Arts, crafts fair slated for Dec. 1

The fourth annual Fall festival of Arts and Crafts, sponsored by Wesley United Methodist Church is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dec. 1 at the Hereford Community Center.

Only a limited number of booths are available, and all applications are screened. The booth fee is $15.

Applications may be obtained by writing Tracy Coker, 1101 Union, Hereford, Tx. 79045 or by calling 364-3200.

When it comes to more tax increases, which candidate stands for YOU?

Here is what the two candidates for State Representative, Randall & Deaf Smith Counties, are saying about tax increases.

JUSTON McBRIDE (Democrat)

FOR HIGHER TAXES

"It will be necessary that the Legislature support an increase in some taxes. A careful examination of the economic status of Texas in January 1985 will determine the amount of such an increase and the sources best suited at that time from which to draw the increased taxes."
— Amarillo Classroom Teachers Questionnaire

"The (1985) Legislature will probably be in a more positive frame of mind about tax increases."
— Amarillo Classroom Teachers Questionnaire

"I would support increased 'sin' taxes, sales tax increase and would be open to other options as they are presented in the Legislature."
— Amarillo Classroom Teachers Questionnaire

"McBride says he is 'flexible' (about tax increases) if the need arises. (If necessary), he would suggest a one cent sales tax increase. He also says he would consider new suggestions for taxing methods if they were feasible..."
— Amarillo Sunday News-Globe
April 29, 1984

JOHN SMITHEE (Republican)

OPPOSES HIGHER TAXES

"I will not commit to any new taxes."
— Amarillo Classroom Teachers Questionnaire

"Instead of raising taxes, we need to re-examine our spending priorities. Texas is collecting and spending more money now than ever and a tax increase would severely retard our economic climate."
— League of Women Voters Guide

"Specifically, we must resist a tax increase. Tax increases are counterproductive. They take capital out of the marketplace and make government bigger and bulkier."
— Amarillo Daily News
February 5, 1984

"We are impressed by Smithee's dedication to fiscal restraint during a time when the governor and some state legislative leaders are considering as many as four major tax increases during the next year."
— Amarillo Daily News
April 30, 1984

Signing The Proclamation

claimed that the week of Oct. 21 be set aside to honor the members of Pilot International.

Pilot Club to observe Founder's Day

The Pilot Club of Hereford, chartered on Aug. 14, 1984, will observe Founders Day on Tuesday. In honor of Founder's Day, Mayor Wes Fisher proclaimed that the week of Oct. 21 be set aside to honor the members of Pilot International, and urged all citizens to express their recognition and appreciation to this organization for its myriad of contributions to the betterment of the world.

During the Tuesday morning meeting, Linda Minchew, Joan McPherson and Donna West will present a program on the history of Pilot International from 1921 to the present. This is the 63rd year for Pilot International.

Shopping for Clothing topic of homemaker's meeting

North Hereford Extension Homemakers met Thursday for a program by Edith Higgins.

Higgins topic of "Wise Shopping for Clothing" included hints such as to look for the labels to see if a garment is washable, shop with an eye to alterations, and be extra careful about bargain buying.

Naomi Brisendine presided over the business portion of the meeting during which Martha Lueb gave her report on the recent cooking school held in the Reddy Room. Members present were Lueb, Brisendine, Higgins, Lela Kemerer, Anna Kovacs and Peg Hoff. The next meeting will be Nov. 1 in the home of Lela Kemerer, 210 Cottage Dr., at 2:30 p.m.

Carnival scheduled Oct. 31

A Halloween Carnival, sponsored by the Hereford Rotary Club, will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 31 at the Bull Barn.

Church and civic organizations are asked to participate in providing booths and entertainment for the children.

For further information contact Ike Stevens, 364-0041.

With almost 40,000 students, the University of Toronto is Canada's largest university.

Amarillo Teen pageant scheduled

Young ladies from throughout the Amarillo area between the ages of 14 and 18 are invited to enter the Amarillo Miss T.E.E.N. pageant at the Amarillo Hilton Inn on March 2, 1985.

Young ladies from throughout Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth, Childress, Hall, Briscoe, Swisher, Castro and Parmer Counties will be competing for the title of Amarillo Miss T.E.E.N. pageant to be held over Labor Day weekend of 1985 in Dallas. Miss Cindy Wall of Lubbock is the reigning Texas Miss T.E.E.N.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement, volunteer service, poise, personality, formal presentation, speech or talent. No swimsuit competition is required.

Each contestant selected will be required to participate in the Volunteer Service Program of the pageant. All contestants must have a "B" or better school grade average.

The winner of the Amarillo pageant will receive a $500 cash scholarship and an expense paid trip to represent Amarillo in the 1985 Texas State pageant. Texas Miss T.E.E.N. will compete for over $3,000 in cash and prizes.

Among her other prizes, the Texas State Queen will receive an expense paid trip to represent the state of Texas at the national Miss T.E.E.N. pageant in Albuquerque, N.M. Over $25,000 in awards and scholarships will be awarded at the national level of competition.

For more information, write Cappy M. Smith, State Director, 902 Ellis Road, Stone Mountain, Georgia 30083, or call 404-292-1025.

Lending A Hand

Cousins Marchelle and Joseph Gonzales give each other a hand with preparations for Friday's Hereford High School homecoming. Hereford Day Care students, with a little help from their teachers, made homecoming mums and "bulls" in celebration of the event.

Miller, Kreig exchange vows Friday

During a Friday evening ceremony, Peggy Louise Miller of Amarillo became the bride of Benjamin Ross Kreig of Hereford in the E.B. Black House with John Daugherty, associate pastor of Temple Baptist Church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Gerald Miller of Holyoke, Colo., and Mrs. Beulah Miller of Tucson, Ariz. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Kreig.

A mantle arrangement of flowers and three taper candles of pastel blue decorated the house. As part of the ceremony, Rhonda Miller, sister of the bride, of Fort Collins Colo., served as maid of honor and David Kreig served his brother as best man. The maid of honor wore a formal length gown of blue with a lace jacket. She carried pastel blue and white carnations with a blue background.

The bride wore a long white gown with a gathered bodice and pleated skirt. The jacket was enhanced with ruffled lace and tiny pearl buttons in the back. She also wore an arrangement of blue and white carnations in her hair.

Her bouquet was fashioned with pastel blue carnations flanked with pixie carnations and baby's breath on a lace background.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the E.B. Black House with Mrs. Neal Lomenick, the groom's aunt, serving the cake. Mrs. Byron Elmquist of Amarillo, a cousin of the bride, served punch and coffee while Mrs. Rodney Miller of Colorado, sister-in-law of the bride, registered guests. Mrs. Bill West assisted with the reception.

The three-tiered cake with pastel blue flowers, wedding bells and a bride and groom sitting on top, was served from a table decorated with a white lace tablecloth, the bride's bouquet and two pastel blue taper candles. Silver appointments complemented the table.

The bride left in a blue pants suit.

The couple will make their home at 815 S. Lane in Hereford.

The bride is a 1964 graduate of Canyon High School. The groom is a 1979 graduate of Hereford High School and is employed by the City of Hereford to work at the John Pitman Golf Course.

Out of town guests came from Holyoke, Colo., Fort Collins, Colo., Tucson, Ariz., Amarillo and Tulsa.

Task Force to meet Tuesday

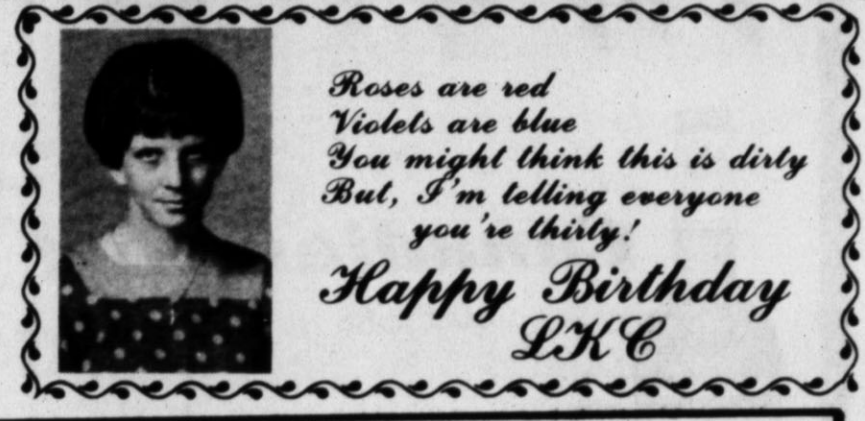

The Information Subcommittee of the Deaf Smith County Chemical People Task Force will meet at the Hereford Family Services Center, 610 East Park Ave., on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Items to be discussed include an evaluation of the recent Health Fair, planning November's community education program, and an upcoming conference in Austin on preventing drug abuse.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting.

Officers for the Task Force are Bill McDowell, president; Clark Andrews, vice-president; and Rhonda Long, secretary; and Dave Folger, treasurer.

In Aug. 1939, the Nazi-Soviet non-aggression pact freed Germany to attack Poland. Britain and France, who had guaranteed Polish independence, declared war on Germany. Russia seized East Poland in September, attacked Finland in November and the Baltic states in July. Germany's "blitzkrieg" overran neutral Sweden, Norway and the low countries, and defeated France in 1940.

COSTA DEL SOL
 Among European playgrounds promising fun in the sun, Spain's Costa Del Sol ranks as one of the most enticing. With quiet coves, miles of beaches and some 325 days of sunshine each year, this stretch of the Mediterranean coast supplies abundant pleasures for an outstanding vacation by the sea. But what makes a Costa visit unforgettable is the array of other attractions that await in southern Spain's Andalusian region. These include fishing villages, swank resorts and remnants and ruins from the Moors, who invaded Europe from North Africa 1,000 years ago. A Costa Del Sol visit is not complete without seeing a Flamenco show. Go to a "tablao" (Flamenco cabaret), rather than a nightclub to see the most authentic presentations.
 Costa Del Sol or Boston there are many exciting new worlds for you to discover. Whether you know exactly where you would like to spend your next vacation or would like some suggestions from us, take some time out of your busy schedule and let's get to know each other. New From First National Bank The Super N.O.W. Account

As part of our continuing program of offering you the best possible banking services, it gives us great pleasure to offer you an account that gives you the best of savings and checking — in one package.

It's better than a traditional N.O.W. Account because, instead of 5 1/4% interest, you earn some of the highest interest rates available in today's competitive market place.

You do have to deposit a minimum of $2,500 to open your account. And you must maintain $2,500 to earn the top interest. If your balance falls below $2,500, you earn 5 1/4% interest.

We're excited about this new account. And, while not everyone will want to open one of these accounts, we think you should investigate the advantages of having your account all in one location — right here at home.

For details on charges, restrictions, and the current rate, come by our bank.

By DIANNE PIERSON
County Librarian

Fiction bestsellers are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. The new books featured are "God Knows" by Joseph Heller, "The Outsider" by Howard Fast, and "James Bond in Role of Honor" by John Gardner. All three of these books are listed on the New York Times Bestseller List.

Joseph Heller's powerful, wonderfully, funny, deeply moving new novel, "God Knows," is the story of David—yes, that David: warrior kind of Israel, husband of Bathsheba, father of Solomon, slayer of Goliath, and psalmist nonpareil. He also introduces us to a David we've never known until now: David the cocky Jewish kid, David the fabulous lover, David the plagiarized poet, and David the one-time crony of God. In "God Knows," David is telling his own story, and he tells it all.

"God Knows" is an ancient story, a modern story, a love story. It is a novel about growing up and growing old, about men and women, about fathers and sons, about man and God. It is a novel whose seamless meshing of biblical intonation and the most outrageous contemporary idiom is a joy. Heller is also the author of "Catch-22" and "Good as Gold."

In 1946, David Hartman, a chaplain fresh out of the Army, comes to serve as rabbi to fourteen Jewish families. It is here that he meets Martin Carter, the Congregational minister who will become his closest and lifelong friend. They and their wives forge a bond that survives the unpleasant effects of a peculiarly nasty small-town prejudice and the larger strains of a world swept by great upheavals and governed by power, greed, and ambition.

The unfolding of David Hartman's life is an enthralling journey through a part of our times that millions of us still remember, sometimes with nostalgia, sometimes with perplexity, and sometimes with heartbreak. Of all Howard Fast's many books, this perhaps will be remembered as the best and most important.

In John Gardner's most exciting adventure yet James Bond abandons his 007 status, resigns from the Service, and heads south for Monte Carlo in his new Bentley Mulsanne Turbo, in search of a new ROLE OF HONOR.

So begins the most ingenious mission that James Bond has undertaken in his illustrious career. For whatever M and Bond know, in private, the world intelligence agencies soon know it too: James Bond is for hire, to the highest bidder. It is conceivable? James Bond in the employ of "Spectre?"

In the service of his new masters Bond must pass a series of diabolical tests. "In Role of Honor" is a high-tech, high-tension thriller, that lives up to the standard John Gardner has set in his previous James Bond novels: "License Renewed, For Special Services," and "Icebreaker."

Other new books available this week include "Wild Swan" by Celeste DeBlasis, "The Best of Peter Marshall," and Cristina Ferrare "Style."

LIBRARY EVENTS:
Public story hour - 10 a.m. Thursday morning. Hey kids, come to the library and meet our new Services Co-ordinator, Sharon Duke. She has had lots of experience in children's programming and is looking forward to meeting you!!!

ANNOUNCEMENTS:

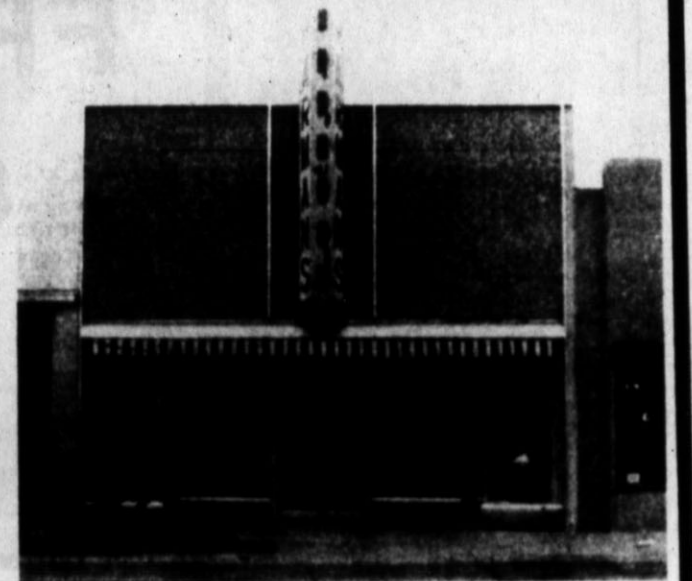

The Deaf Smith County Library would like to thank each Friends of the Library member that participated in the Book Sale. It was a great success. We would also like to thank the townspeople who went out to the book sale and purchased books. The Friends of the Library is a valuable organization to the Deaf Smith County Library. Special thanks to Mildred Fuhrman, Helen Eades, Helen Nelson, Joy Stagner, Bob Wear, for their support in this project. Also, special thanks to Jack Nunley and his staff for their help.

Accent on Agriculture

By DENNIS W. NEWTON
County Extension Agent

Frost will be hitting Deaf Smith County before long, and this could lead to prussic acid poisoning in livestock grazing certain forages.

Although many plants contain the toxic material that causes poisoning, those causing the highest mortality in livestock when grazing after they have been frozen and wilted are Johnson and Sudan grasses and sorghum or hybrids of these.

The most dangerous time as far as the grazing of these plants is concerned is following frost when the plant material begins to wilt. Livestock should not be allowed access to the wilted material until it has dried completely. This usually takes three or four days of good sunlight. New plant growth usually becomes non-toxic and can be grazed within 10 days to two weeks following a rain.

As far as prussic acid poisoning is concerned, the poison acts rapidly and can kill animals within minutes. In most acute cases, animals become affected within 10-15 minutes after eating toxic material and can die in two to three minutes.

Symptoms may include a brief period of stimulation followed by depression and paralysis. Signs of colic may be present. Stupor (loss of sensibility), difficult breathing and frequent convulsions may result.

Death is caused by suffocation since oxygen remains in the blood and is not exchanged to the tissues. This also causes the blood to appear bright red.

To prevent prussic acid poisoning in livestock, farmers and ranchers are urged to follow these steps.

1. Allow plant material affected by frost to dry thoroughly before grazing. This may require a week or more of good sunlight.

2. Feed animals hay or a supplement before turning them in on plants that may contain prussic acid. Animals that are not hungry will not be affected as seriously by toxic material since their intake will be limited.

3. Remove all animals from the pasture if one in the herd shows any signs of poisoning.

4. Call a veterinarian immediately if an animal appears to be poisoned. An antidote to treat affected animals is highly efficient if given early. This product is available from veterinarians.

5. Have suspect plant material checked by the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratories at College Station or Amarillo. Local veterinarians will be happy to submit samples for you.

The overall key to prevent prussic acid poisoning in livestock is to be aware of plant materials that may cause poisoning and then to keep cattle from grazing those plants until a safe period has passed.

Controlled breeding praised

COLLEGE STATION - Controlled breeding allows a cattleman to pull a lot of loose ends together so as to increase overall herd production.

"Having a controlled breeding season can make a big difference in the total operation of a cattle business and can result in more pounds of beef going to market - the ultimate objective," said Dr. L.R. Sprott, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Controlled breeding makes overall calf management much easier," Sprott pointed out. "It makes for more uniform weaning and working of calves—vaccinating, dehorning and castrating. It also eliminates the problem of exposing immature heifers to bulls."

Just how effective a controlled breeding season can be has been demonstrated on the B.J. Armstrong farm in Milam County.

Spratt has worked with Armstrong to change his year round breeding and calving seasons to about three months. At the same time, late-calving cows were replaced with early-calving heifers.

Before the change, Armstrong's cow herd had about a 62 percent calf crop and calf weaning weights were averaging 476 pounds. Now Armstrong boasts a 90 percent calf crop and is weaning 600-pound calves.

Not only does Armstrong have more and heavier calves to take to market but they are more uniform—an added plus that can reap a premium price, Spratt said. And he has reduced labor costs with once-a-year calving. "This study as well as others in Texas and across the nation have shown that a controlled breeding season can help a cattleman get his business in order for greater profits," Spratt said.

Sod treatment key to winter ryegrass crop

COLLEGE STATION - When it comes to ryegrass production on winter pastures, the key is in the sod treatment.

A demonstration on the Jerry Duren farm in Victoria County has shown that shredding and disking Coastal bermudagrass pastures prior to planting ryegrass gave the largest production—4,853 pounds of forage per acre.

The demonstration was a part of the integrated livestock management program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a multi-disciplinary approach to meeting the needs of Texas producers.

The demonstration, under the direction of Dr. David Bade, extension forage specialist, and former Victoria County Extension agent Dennis Hale, also showed that shredding only before planting resulted in 3,850 pounds of forage while planting in pastures with 4 to 6-inch tall Coastal bermudagrass produced only 2,925 pounds of forage.

Three varieties of ryegrass were used in the demonstration - Funks G-2401, Funks Marshall and Gulf Ryegrass. The ryegrass was planted at 30 pounds of seed per acre in early October. Forty pounds of nitrogen were applied when the ryegrass was 3 to 4 inches high. A topdressing of 20 pounds of nitrogen was applied in November.

Clippings of the ryegrass were collected in January, February and March—months when ryegrass is grazed. Production was slightly higher from the Gulf Ryegrass. However, plant population counts and overall yields were the greatest on plots shredded and lightly disked prior to planting.

A feeding study in Jackson County has shown that hay ammoniation can boost beef cow performance.

The study was part of the integrated livestock management program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a multi-disciplinary approach to meeting the needs of Texas producers.

Hay ammoniation involves treating low quality hay with anhydrous ammonia to improve its feeding value by increasing crude protein and energy content, explained Dr. L.R. Spratt, Extension beef cattle specialist.

Spratt and Jackson County Extension agent Marvin Lesikar coordinated the study on the Billy Traylor farm. Angus-Hereford crossbred cows with calves at side were fed a hay mixture of Coastal bermudagrass and Gordo bluestem for 40 days. Cows were divided into two groups, one getting untreated hay and the other receiving ammoniated hay. The ammoniation process had boosted crude protein 3.5 percent and energy 5 percent.

Weight losses in the cows, which were fed the hay free choice, were reduced almost in half with the ammoniated hay—48 pounds per day compared to 79 pounds per day.

With a cost of about $10 per ton of hay for the ammoniation process, cost per cow in the study was about $4.10 based on a consumption of 820 pounds of hay. Considering the weight advantage of cows on ammoniated hay and their salvage value, gross returns per cow were estimated at $5.72, or a net of $1.62.

So ammoniation can be effective in increasing the feeding value of low quality hays—those with less than 9 to 10 percent crude protein—and thereby boosting animal performance, noted Spratt. Cows with calves need at least 12 percent crude protein for body maintenance, milk production and reproduction. Use of ammoniated hay can, in many cases, reduce the level of protein supplement needed by livestock, Spratt added.

YET ANOTHER REPORT INDICATING A MEAT DEMAND SHIFT is in, and, once again, it favors poultry. This report comes from an extension livestock specialist at Oklahoma State University, and, in a nutshell (or hen's egg) indicates there may be yet more bad news for red meat suppliers in the form of continued strength in poultry demand by consumers. The Oklahoma researcher says that it's still too early to tell if this is a short-run phenomenon or a clear shift in consumer preferences for poultry over red meats. However, he does report that chicken consumption has increased dramatically relative to beef and pork. He said that until the first quarter of 1984, this seemed to be a matter of consumers substituting less expensive chickens for more expensive beef and pork. However, even with an upturn in poultry prices, the trend continued.

Moist relief descends on West Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Farmers and ranchers in western areas of Texas finally got a little relief from drought conditions that they have endured for more than a year, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In his weekly report on the state's agriculture, Carpenter said that while the moisture also caused some immediate green-up of warm-season grasses, cooler temperatures will limit growth.

Cattle sales slowed down some due to the rains although some culling of cow herds continued with the winter season approaching. Market prices gained some strength following the rains, particularly for feeder cattle, as grazing prospects on small grains improved, he said.

Although the rains were welcomed over most of the state, they did cause some problems in the plains and Southwest Texas (Uvalde area), Carpenter said. The rains plus cooler weather continued to slow cotton maturity in the Panhandle and South Plains and delayed corn, grain sorghum and sugar beet harvesting.

In Southwest Texas, some cotton field-stored in modules was left standing in water after the rains and will likely suffer some quality damage.

Hay making continued in some eastern and southern counties, but overall supplies of hay remain short and quality is low, Carpenter said. With winter approaching, many livestock producers are buying hay from neighboring states.

Harvesting of the state's pecan crop continued in southern counties while early varieties were in the shuck-split stage in central and eastern areas. This year's crop will be short due to the drought and the fact that last year's crop was heavy, Carpenter said.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Rains over parts of the area boosted moisture conditions for small grains but slowed corn, grain sorghum and sugar beet harvesting. The rains along with cooler temperatures also slowed cotton maturity. Early wheat looks good and grazing prospects have improved. Cattle are in good condition.

SOUTH PLAINS: Rain and cooler temperatures continue to slow down cotton maturity. Harvesting of corn, grain sorghum and sugar beets was delayed by adverse weather conditions. Wheat is making good growth.

ROLLING PLAINS: Rains of up to 3 and 4 inches will boost small grains already up and also will enable additional plantings. Cotton is maturing, with about half of the bolls open; however, this year's crop is short due to the season-long drought. Grain sorghum harvesting continues. A fifth cutting of alfalfa is being harvested in Fisher County. Rains have slowed cattle marketings.

NORTH CENTRAL: Recent rains will help wheat and allow some green-up of pasture grasses. Peanut harvesting continues; some dryland yields are better than yields from irrigated acreage. The pecan crop will be short due to the dry summer. Livestock conditions range from good to poor; some feeding continues.

NORTHEAST: Good rains over the area will be a real boon to winter pastures. About half of the wheat crop has been planted, and planting will continue as soon as field conditions permit. Harvesting of cotton and sweet potatoes has been slowed by the rains. Some hay making continues, with supplies short. Culling of cow herds continues.

FAR WEST: Cotton harvesting is about to get into full swing although recent scattered rains have caused interruptions. Range grasses have made a little progress although cooler temperatures will limit growth. Ranchers are starting their fall roundups.

WEST CENTRAL: Good rains over much of the area have brought some relief from drought conditions. The rains provided some run-off for stock water and should give a boost to small grains. Warm-season grasses are greening up but will make limited growth with cooler weather. Cattle marketings have slowed due to the rain, which also delayed peanut and cotton harvesting.

CENTRAL: Scattered rains will boost small grains planted and will enable additional plantings. About 60 percent of the oats and 20 percent of the wheat have been planted. Pasture grasses are greening up but cooler temperatures will limit growth. Some peanut harvesting continues, and early varieties of pecans are starting to fall.

EAST: Rains should give a boost to winter pastures; planting will continue as field conditions permit. Some hay making continues; hay supplies are short and hay quality generally is low. Gardeners are planting more cole crops. Cattle are in good condition, with markets stronger.

UPPER COAST: Soybeans and peanuts are maturing; yield prospects generally are good. Pecans are falling but this year's crop will be short due to dry conditions during the growing season. Most livestock are in good shape although heavy mosquito infestations are causing problems.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Rains should get wheat and oats off to a good start and enable additional plantings. A few cotton cleanup operations continue. Pecan harvesting has started but this year's crop will be short.

SOUTHWEST: Much of the area got 3 to 5 inches of rain, which should boost small grain plantings and fall vegetables and allow for a little improved grazing before cold weather sets in. The rains halted peanut harvesting and also caused some damage to moduled cotton that ended up in standing water. Pecan harvesting remains in full swing, with yields about 35 percent of normal.

COASTAL BEND: Rains in a number of locations will benefit small grains, pastures and fall gardens although some counties remain dry. Planting of wheat and oats ranges from 45 to 65 percent complete. Some hay making continues, but hay supplies are short and hay quality is low. Many producers are buying hay as the winter season approaches. Pecans are starting to fall; the crop is short.

SOUTH: Soybeans and fall vegetables are making good progress. Cucumber harvesting continues and hay making remains active. Grazing has improved with recent rains although forage conditions are still short in some northern and western counties. Livestock are in fair shape; heavy mosquito infestations continue to cause problems in some locations.

Plant nutrients needed

COLLEGE STATION — Winter pastures which are just germinating from recent rains need adequate amounts of plant nutrients to help "catch up" from a slow start.

"Many forage producers had planted their winter pastures in dry soil without a fertilizer application," according to Dr. Neal Pratt, forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "They needed a good rain first to get a good stand, and now these pastures should make some growth."

But they need adequate nitrogen, and this is where proper fertilization comes in, the specialist said. Fertilizer applications (topdressings) should be based on soil test recommendations, and there's still time to get soil tested, Pratt added.

With adequate moisture, winter pastures will make good growth over much of Texas until about Dec. 1, or the first heavy frost of the season, said E.K. Chandler, president of the Texas Forage and Grassland Council.

Extension service says

Foreign ownership steadying

COLLEGE STATION — While foreign ownership of U.S. farmland is a concern to some people, the level of such ownership is relatively small and has remained fairly stable.

Just over 1 percent of U.S. agricultural land—about 13½ million acres—is owned by foreign investors while in Texas that amount is even less—about six-tenths of 1 percent, said an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Fifty-seven percent of this foreign-owned land in the U.S. is timberland, 24 percent is pasture and 14 percent is cropland.

In Texas most of the foreign-owned agricultural land also is timberland in the eastern one-third of the state, pointed out Dr. Bill Black.

While the total amount of foreign-owned land in Texas is relatively small, it is spread out over much of the state, adds the economist. Fifty-seven percent of Texas' counties have one or more foreign landowners, with the largest number in Hidalgo County in the Rio Grande Valley. One-seventh of the land in that county belongs to foreigners.

Other counties with a large number of foreign landholders are Cameron, Collin and Harris.

Despite the wide distribution of foreign-owned agricultural land in Texas, only 19 percent of the counties boast a foreign ownership of 1 percent or more of their land, Black said.

Where does the money for these land investments come from?

Leading countries in U.S. agricultural land ownership are the Netherlands, Antilles, Mexico, Germany and Canada, Black noted. Others are Greece, the Netherlands, Switzerland, the Bahamas, the United Kingdom and Lichtenstein.

U.S. corporations with 5 percent or more foreign ownership own about 63 percent of all foreign-held acreage, the economist points out. The remainder is held by foreign persons not affiliated with a U.S. corporation.

The largest amount of foreign-owned acreage—mostly timber—is in Maine, but most foreign land holdings are concentrated in the South and West, Black said.

Meat packer profits dip again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economic crunch of the last few years has had an impact on the meat industry as well as the nation's farmers and ranchers.

In 1983, an industry report said Thursday, meat packers' profits dropped 10 percent, the third annual decline in the last four years.

The American Meat Institute said sales rose slightly to $49.98 billion from $49.65 billion in 1982. But profits after taxes dropped to $386 million from $426 million the year before.

Based on confidential information voluntarily provided to the institute — a trade association supported by member companies — the report showed that profits rose to a record $488 million in 1979, dropping to $480 million in 1980 and to $343 million in 1981. They rose to $428 million in 1982 before declining again last year.

"Turbulent operating conditions, labor negotiations and weak consumer demand contributed to the decline in industry earnings during the year," said Ewen Wilson, vice president for economics and statistics.

Officials were cautious about 1984, saying total meat sales could remain about the same as last year but that some upturn in earnings is anticipated.

The annual report, 59th by the institute, said the $386 million in profits in 1983 "was barely above the average of the last 10 years."

Since the mid-1970s, meat packing "like many other domestic industries, has been subjected to a variety of uncontrollable economic forces that have prompted major structural changes and dislocations," the report said.

Industry earnings last year as a share of sales averaged 0.77 percent, making 1983 the third straight year that returns on sales was below the historical average of 1 percent.

Red meat production totaled 39 billion pounds, up 5 percent from 37.3 billion pounds in 1982 and only 0.5 percent less than the record of 39.2 billion pounds produced in 1977, the report said.

Beef production, at 23.1 billion pounds, was up for the fourth straight year, while pork output increased 7 percent to 15.1 billion pounds. Veal and lamb production increased 1 percent and 3 percent, respectively.

"In 1983, for the first time in more than a decade, wage costs in the meat packing industry declined," the institute said. "Both the number of industry employees and the average wage rate were reported down, with wage levels in meat packing below the average for all manufacturing industries as a whole for the first time since World War II."

Despite lower wages, total industry labor costs were reported higher because of higher employee benefit costs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The inventory of cattle being fed for the consumer market as of Oct. 1 in the 13 major beef states totaled 9.0 million head, up 6 percent from a year ago and 2 percent more than two years ago, says the Agriculture Department.

A quarterly report said Thursday that farmers and feedlot operators placed 6.24 million head of cattle and calves on feed during July-September, 12 percent more than in the same three months of last year and 7 percent more than two years ago.

Looking ahead, the report said that marketings this fall are expected to total about 5.7 million head, 5 percent more than in the October-December quarter of last year and 6 percent more than two years ago.

A recent supply-and-demand report said that the total meat supply this fall is expected to be near last summer's level but down from the high level of a year ago.

"Broiler production will be up from last year this fall but beef and pork output are likely to be down," the report said. "For all of 1984, total meat output may be about 55 billion pounds, about the same as in 1983. Meat production is expected to continue at this high level in 1985."

Analysts: newcomers urbanize vote

HOUSTON (AP) — The steady stream of newcomers flocking to Texas in the past two decades has shifted the power of the ballot box from the country to the city and diluted the strength of the Democratic Party, political analysts say.

The Republicans have made significant gains in Texas, more than doubling the number of votes cast for GOP candidates between 1966 and 1982. But those inroads may be offset by the emergence of Hispanic voters, analysts say.

Residents from economically stagnant Frost Belt cities began fleeing to Texas in the early 1970s at the rate of 1,000 a week, according to census estimates. The newcomers, many aged 25 to 35, settled primarily in the state's technical and industrial centers.

Today, about 80 percent of all Texans live in what is defined as an urban center — a town with at least 2,000 residents, said Chandler Davidson, a Rice University political sociologist. More than half live in communities of 50,000 or more, he said.

The trend has helped boost Republican candidates in a traditionally Democratic state and has reshaped the state's political makeup to more closely resemble the rest of the country, experts believe.

Surveys show that about 20 percent of the state's 7 million registered voters call themselves liberals, while 30 to 35 percent say they are conservatives. The remaining 40 to 45 percent call themselves middle of the road, siding with conservatives on some issues and with liberals on others.

"Texas is a much more urban state than it has ever been," Davidson said. "The makeup of the voting population is almost identical to the makeup of the voting population of the United States as a whole."

"Texas has always considered itself unique, but it's very close to the mainstream, not all that different than, say, Minnesota," he said.

According to analysts, one of every seven voters in Texas lives in rural areas and neither party can consistently win without them.

"The rural vote is as important as the swing vote. Their vote is up for grabs," said Dr. Richard Murray, a University of Houston political science professor.

"Rural voters go to the polls in the spring and the fall. The primaries are just as important as the general election. In the cities, the turnout in the primaries is typically low," he said.

Changing patterns in Texas politics have been to the GOP's benefit, with the greatest advances since the 1978 gubernatorial election in which Dallas millionaire Bill Clements became the first Republican governor in Texas since Reconstruction, said Houston pollster Lance Tarrance.

"There has been a tendency to get further away from the Democratic Party. Texas has become more of a ticket-splitting state," Tarrance said.

Since Texas has no party registration, he said, the best way to gauge party strength is voting in the gubernatorial races.

In 1966, the GOP captured only about 26 percent of the total 1.4 million votes cast. By 1970, the party took 46 percent of 2.2 million votes and then captured 50.1 percent of 2.3 million in the 1978 election.

Two years ago, however, the Republicans claimed 47 percent of the 3.2 million votes cast in the race between Clements and Democrat Mark White. Analysts said White's victory was due largely to the emergence of Hispanic voters.

Ten years ago, only about 5 percent of Texas' registered voters were Hispanic, Tarrance said. Today, the number has doubled, he said.

"The acceleration of the Hispanic vote has been in evidence for some time. They are not a sleeping population," he said. "Their presence is not so much politically oriented. The blacks were mobilized through the civil rights movement. Hispanics tend to regard it as their civic duty."

Davidson also noted that the rise of the Hispanics is linked to the urbanization of Texas.

"Many people still think of Hispanics only as farm workers, when actually only about 4 percent are in farm labor. Most work in towns and cities," he said. "With the increased registration, they probably will tend to vote liberal in some cases and offset net gains by the Republicans."

On lake shores

Monastery near Corpus Christi

SANDIA, Texas (AP) — A grassy, breezy promontory on the banks of Lake Corpus Christi looks more like a military camp with its cluster of Quonset huts and unadorned grounds.

Yet it is home for 26 monks — the only Benedictine order in Texas.

The community is tucked in the rolling countryside alongside the lake, surrounded by lake houses and yet peaceful enough for the secluded monastic life.

It is here among a church, the prefabricated huts and two shrines that the monks go about their work, wearing black robes for their church duties and street clothes for their daily tasks.

"Our motto is work and pray," said Father Luke Buegler, prior of the abbey. "If I pray, I'm in a good relationship with God. If I work, I'm in a good relationship with my fellow man."

The white fiberglass huts will be home for the monks only a few more years. Plans are on the drawing board for a new permanent monastery, and the existing headquarters will be used for retreats the monks often hold for Catholics in South Texas.

"We are semi-contemplative," Father Luke said. "We are set apart but people are still welcome here."

The public is welcome at each of the daily masses.

The monastery also is equipped with a simple lobby area, where visitors are greeted by a sign instructing them to ring a brass buzzer and wait for a monk to appear.

The abbey moved to the lake site in 1975 when a dwindling number of monks available to teach forced the order to close a Corpus Christi boys school it had run for 45 years.

The monastery bases its philosophy and lifestyle on a code of rules drawn up by St. Benedict in the sixth century, and stresses the importance of peace and a family atmosphere.

"I entered the Benedictine order because it was so much like a family," Father Luke said. "This was appealing to me. Everybody working together for the benefit of the whole group."

"Our life is meant to be discreet — nothing harsh or overbearing for anybody. You don't find us fasting a lot. There's some denial, but you won't see us doing without meat."

Candidates for the monastic life spend more than three years learning the rules and lifestyle before they take their final vows.

Then they take vows of poverty, chastity, obedience, conversion of morals (a promise to live a better life) and stability (a commitment to one monastic community).

Father Luke, 59, a tall man with clear, forthright blue eyes, took his final vows in 1947.

Men become monks, he says, "out of love for God and their fellow man. They want to serve. They want to be of benefit to others."

Father Luke, who is also a priest, often performs mass at nearby parishes when needed, and conducts premarital counseling for couples.

But he spends much of his time running the monastery's

"sweepstakes," a money-making contest that helps keep the community self-supporting.

The monks, through a mail campaign, sell tickets in return for a donation. Four times a year, they hold drawings and give away $6,000 in cash prizes. The abbey earns $10,000 to $20,000 each time a drawing is held.

"It has been useful for us in a number of ways," Father Luke said, pointing out that it has helped in recruiting new monks.

The Benedictines live a structured life. Morning prayers and mass are at 6:20 a.m., followed by breakfast and a morning work period.

After lunch, there is a rest period and recreation before the afternoon work session. At 5:20 p.m., it is time for prayers and meditation, followed by supper, recreation and vespers.

"It doesn't get boring," Father Luke says. "There's always something happening."

"We've even got some Dallas Cowboy fans here," Father Luke said.

"Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Matt. 11:28

The Two Penny Difference

If you earn a dollar and spend 99¢, you're ok. But spend $1.01 and you're heading for trouble. Yet today spending seems more fashionable than saving. What once was called poor money management has become "deficit spending." Whatever it's called, it leads to inevitable headaches for people, for companies, and even governments. No new economic theory beats this old favorite: a penny saved, is a penny earned. As Calvin Coolidge once said, "there is no independence quite so important as living within your means." Don't let your checkbook be the saddest book you ever read.

Bank grows, has cashless operation

By JULIA MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — When Joe Stedman first decided Lone Star National Bank would operate without cash, the idea was meant to be temporary because of a security problem.

As soon as the bank moved into permanent facilities, it would begin cash transactions.

But two months after Lone Star opened its doors, bank executives like the way things are going and think the time for a cashless, completely electronic bank has come.

"We're growing at a nice rate and we're not running into customer resistance," says Stedman, Lone Star's 44-year-old chairman and chief executive officer. "So we plan to continue operating without cash."

Lone Star, with $6 million in assets and 150 depositors, has more than doubled its assets since opening its doors Aug. 3 in an industrial area near downtown, catering to medium-sized businesses.

The small bank's growth has come without handling a single penny in cash. Its two tellers don't accept cash deposits, don't make cash withdrawals and don't even cash employee paychecks. Most transactions are done by mail, and customers can get cash from a network of automatic teller machines.

Unlike most bank lobbies at peak hours, Lone Star's lobby is quiet and free of long lines — one of the things Stedman hopes will lure depositors.

"I know from past experience that you lose people who don't want to stand behind the 20-minute transaction," he says. "If you've ever been behind someone from a grocery store who had to deposit hundreds of dollars in cash, get it verified by the teller and then get change, you know what I mean."

Lone Star decided to go cashless for awhile after learning that a 700-square-foot mobile home was to be the bank's temporary quarters. A permanent building won't be ready until January 1985. Bank executives decided the facility was not secure enough to accept cash.

But they soon concluded that the no-cash operation was saving on security guards and armored cars as well as employee salaries and insurance premiums. By banning cash, they reasoned, Lone Star could hold down costs, give customers higher rates on accounts and at the same time save them from long lines.

"We decided there were a number of advantages to not having cash," says Stedman, who thinks a cashless operation is the next step in the evolution of commerce.

"People once traded in chickens and rocks. Eventually came money and now it's electronics," says the 16-year veteran of Dallas banking who launched Lone Star after leaving his post as chief executive officer of Texas Commerce Bank-Casa Linda.

Stedman acknowledges, however, that Lone Star isn't for everyone.

"We wouldn't be convenient for household accounts and we do give up some retail outlets," he says. But the bank chairman believes Lone Star will do well without some "labor intensive" and "cumbersome" clients.

"Some businesses are willing to give up a certain share of the marketplace. Yet many would be better off without them," he argues. "We're willing to do that. Deregulation enables you to do both less and more. We're going to do less, but better with what we have."

Stedman says the bank currently pays about one-quarter of a percentage point higher interest on accounts than other banks.

But at least one bank analyst isn't so sure Lone Star's cashless operation will survive.

"It's nonsense and doesn't make sense for a banker to consider doing this," says Robert Walters, senior vice president of Sheshunoff & Co., an Austin bank consulting firm.

"Even the banks employees can't cash payroll checks," he says. "They have to deposit the check and then go to an ATM (automatic teller machine) to get cash. So they have to go through two transactions instead of one. I just can't see how this would be in the public's best interests."

Nevertheless, Walters concedes Lone Star will be "an interesting experiment" to watch, and might survive if it can carve out a large enough niche of cashless customers.

The office of the Comptroller of the Currency in Washington says it's up to the public to decide where it wants to do business.

"There is nothing innately incorrect about that type of operation," says Ellen Stockdale, spokeswoman for the comptroller's office. "All banks decide what services they will offer and not offer and customers can decide what bank to deal with."

Don Reynolds, a partner with LFWF Group, a Dallas-based management consulting firm, sees potential for Lone Star in an era of financial deregulation and intensifying competition.

"I couldn't say it's going to be a trend. I couldn't make a prediction that it will even work for this bank. But the concept is one I would agree with," he said.

Reynolds believes that a large enough segment of the market — such as large corporations, lawyers, accountants and consultants — doesn't need cash banking and needs instead highly professional financial consulting and cash management services.

He believes Lone Star has a good chance of survival if it can channel the savings from its cashless operation into top-notch personnel, equipment and services for customers.

Cash for customers who need it shouldn't be a problem, he says, because teller machines have made cash banking more convenient outside of bank lobbies.

"In an era of deregulation, there's going to be a shakeout of banking institutions, so specialists and those who can offer the best services will survive," says Reynolds.

Stedman thinks Lone Star will be one of the survivors. By next year at this time, he hopes to have $50 million in assets.

To that end, bank officials are working feverishly to get new customer accounts.

"We're spending a lot of time outside the bank in the homes and offices of people we want to solicit accounts from," he says.

Oral's offspring

Roberts' son given promotion

By HERBERT G. McCANN Associated Press Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — At the beginning of his television program, Richard Roberts, like many other talk show hosts, bounces out from behind a curtain and launches into an upbeat song when introduced.

However, unlike the typical host, Roberts sings inspirational songs. Instead of interviewing a guest about his or her latest movie, Roberts questions his guests about their religious experiences.

With the fall debut of the daily Richard Roberts Show, Roberts is making his first attempt at hosting a show in the medium that launched his father, evangelist Oral Roberts, into prominence.

For years, Roberts has appeared on his father's weekly television programs — singing and expanding on the religious doctrine preached by his father. In recent years, he also has served as executive producer.

The hour-long Richard Roberts Show is broadcast live from television studios in the Mabee Center, located on the campus of Oral Roberts University. The center also contains a sports arena.

Roberts tells the viewers of his show that its purpose is to "encourage, entertain, inform and help them find answers to the problems they face daily."

Except for brief musical interludes provided by a 14-member band and a group called the Oral Roberts Singers, Roberts is on camera for most of the program. He is assisted on the show by his wife, Lindsey.

Immaculately dressed, Roberts wanders around the huge set either to sit on a sofa and talk to his wife about letters from viewers asking for prayers, or circulates among the audience.

In the audience, he seeks reports from "real people with miracle stories on physical, emotional, spiritual and financial problems they have overcome through prayers."

During a recent show, Roberts combined the real people stories with another segment of the show he calls "news updates" to form a near 15-minute promotion of Oral Roberts' City of Faith Medical Center which opened in 1981.

The hospital has had financial problems in recent months because of a lack of patients. Roberts talked of a number of hospital promotions and touted a new hospital policy of offering free treatment to the poor.

Roberts, in keeping with the recent emergence of his healing ministry, also prays for viewers who call a bank of telephones located on the show's set.

Like his father, Roberts has refused to be interviewed by the media in recent months, and recently declined to talk about the show sponsored by the Oral Roberts Evangelistic Association.

However, the producer of the show, Harry Salem, said the idea of the program came from the son.

"The idea resulted from Richard receiving word from a Chicago man who said he was delivered from drug addiction while watching Oral Roberts' Sunday show," Salem said. "He decided if that was what the show was doing, why should the viewer have to wait seven days to be helped by the ministry?"

The cost of doing the show has not been determined, Salem said. He said because the show is produced in house, using the same technical people who produce the Oral Roberts shows, a budget has not yet been developed.

Earlier this year, Oral Roberts revealed that about $15 million a year is spent producing television and radio shows for his ministry.

During his show, Roberts makes pitches for contributions from viewers.

'The Karate Kid'

Movie helps boost Banarama

By YARDENA ARAR Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Columbia Pictures, Pat Morita and martial arts schools aren't the only ones getting a boost from "The Karate Kid." The three young English women in the pop group Banarama credit the film for their first big U.S. hit.

The funny thing is that Sarah Dallin, Siobhan (a Gaelic name pronounced like Shawn with a v in the middle) Fahey and Keren Woodward didn't even know "Cruel Summer" was going to be in "The Karate Kid" until the soundtrack was already a fait accompli.

"When we came over in June, and we went to the record company, and we met the bloke who put the soundtrack together. He said, 'I put your record in the soundtrack of this film.' And it just happened it was being premiered, so we went to see it," Miss Woodward said.

Before "Karate Kid," radio had all but ignored the group, and Music Television had been less than generous in giving their videos air time, even though Banarama had been hitmakers in Britain since late 1981.

The group got together in 1979. Miss Dallin and Miss Woodward, childhood friends, were sharing a small apartment in London, Miss Woodward working for the BBC and Miss Dallin studying at a fashion school where she met Miss Fahey, who had dim hopes of a journalism career.

They began singing oldies together in their spare time simply because they liked music, and kept on after Miss Dallin and Miss Fahey left school.

Though Miss Woodward had studied piano, they decided to leave instrumental chores to others with more experience. The "rama" part of their name was inspired by a Roxy Music tune; the banana part was just for laughs.

With producers Tony Swain and Steve Jolley, Banarama scored with "Shy Boy" and a redo of the Steam hit, "Na Na Hey Hey (Kiss Him Goodbye)."

But Banarama didn't intend to sing songs by other people forever, and the group has come into its own as a songwriting force. "Cruel Summer" was co-written with Swain and Jolley, as was "Robert DeNiro's Waiting," a dance hit about a girl who prefers fantasy romance to the agonies of the real thing.

The success of "Cruel Summer" and their U.S. debut LP, a self-titled album, will give Banarama some creative breathing space, and the group hopes to begin touring with a band later this year.

But don't look for "Cruel Summer" on the album for "The Karate Kid." Banarama didn't authorize the reuse of the song on the LP, a decision they feel turned out to be pretty astute.

"It means our album will sell that much more, doesn't it," said Miss Woodward with a smile.

First woman on show

Sawyer joins 'Minutes' crew

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although broadcast history will be made Sunday night, Diane Sawyer, the first female correspondent inside the door at "60 Minutes," doesn't see herself as a journalistic pioneer banging down the hinges.

"We're beyond that," said Ms. Sawyer, who will join the cast of crusading correspondents on CBS' popular newsmagazine Sunday with a profile of Velma Barfield, the North Carolina grandmother and convicted murderer who is scheduled to be the first woman in two decades to be executed.

"I'm pleased that there's a woman on '60 Minutes,' and boy am I pleased that it's me," said Ms. Sawyer. "I'm going to do the same range of stories that Mike (Wallace), Ed (Bradley), Harry (Reasoner) and Morley (Safer) do. We're interchangeable, except in our personalities and interests."

"I don't think in ceremonial terms, or see this as a frontier achievement. This is a journalistic honor, and, as journalists, we're genderless."

Part of the phenomenal success of "60 Minutes" is that the program allows journalists to be personalities, and vice versa. A Mike Wallace story will invariably come across with a harsher tone than one reported by Morley Safer, who usually can be counted on to offer a wry twist or two.

Viewers remember stories as Wallace pieces or Reasoner pieces. In contrast, can you name one correspondent from NBC's failed "First Camera?"

Wallace and former "60 Minutes" correspondent Dan Rather are also remembered for sometimes lying in wait for reluctant interview subjects. Ms. Sawyer calls this so-called "ambush interview" a valid technique, when it's "the only way you can get access to someone on a critical story with a critical question."

Gen. William Westmoreland's current libel case against CBS has raised questions about the role TV reporters play in developing and preparing stories. Concerning the 1962 documentary, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," Wallace has acknowledged reading verbatim many questions prepared for him by producer George Crile.

Ms. Sawyer said she's always done her own research for interviews. She expects times when she won't be as involved in the editing process as she would like. "But the thrust and writing of the stories, the focus, certainly I'll be involved in all that," she said.

She also has the freedom to say no. "It's true that you don't have to do stories that you don't care about deeply," she said. She turned down a story about immigration because "I didn't think it could be told effectively the way it was being proposed."

Robert Benton

Director enjoys going home

NEW YORK (AP) — For director Robert Benton, one of the joys of going home again was remembering the taste of hot biscuits and the smells of cotton mills and the Texas farmland.

He journeyed to Waxahachie, Texas, a dusty town south of Dallas, to drink in his past and celebrate his family's roots to create what is certainly one of the year's most outstanding films, "Places in the Heart."

Almost literary in its approach, the movie outdistances other excellent works by the filmmaker — "Bonnie and Clyde," "Superman," the Academy Award-winning "Kramer vs. Kramer." It is perhaps Benton's most artistic work.

"I think that when I saw it all strung together, I was surprised at what a romantic view I had of my past," Benton said in an interview at his New York office. "I thought I had a more realistic view."

Starring Sally Field as a woman who fights for her family's survival in the Depression, "Places in the Heart" is a quiet tribute to the people and places Benton knew as a child. Benton, 52, left Waxahachie in 1949 to attend the University of Texas in Austin. He moved to New York to pursue a master's degree at Columbia University.

His mother died in 1979, two weeks before the publicity swing for "Kramer vs. Kramer."

"I think I never got to say goodbye and I think if I exercised anything (with "Places in the Heart"), I got to say goodbye," he said.

Benton began thinking about "Places in the Heart" 10 years ago. The story he had in mind dealt with his father's side of the family and two brothers who were bootleggers. He wrote a script and thought it was too violent.

"Then I remembered the story about my grandmother," he said. "and I opened the door to that woman and she pushed her way in and took over and it just became her story. She would not tolerate sharing the movie with anyone else."

The character, Edna Spaulding, is strong and memorable. Her husband, the town sheriff, is accidentally shot by a drunken black youth, who later is lynched. With the help of a blind border and a black cotton picker, Edna harvests a cotton crop.

Benton's great-grandfather, John, actually died in 1882 the way Edna's husband did in the movie.

"I was trying very hard simply to tell these stories in a way that was somehow interesting and tell stories in an atmosphere in which I had grown up," the director-writer said.

Was author Thomas Wolfe right when he wrote, "You Can't Go Home Again?"

"I don't know," Benton said. "I don't second-guess novelists."

'Garbo Talks' praised

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

"GARBO TALKS" is a comedy drama that centers on two eccentric women. One is Estelle Rolf, a lifetime radical whose causes exhausted her ex-husband and exasperate her son. The other is Greta Garbo.

As this darily different movie opens, Estelle (Anne Bancroft) is watching a late-night TV screening of "Camille" and weeping buckets as Garbo dies in the arms of Robert Taylor. Shortly afterward, her son Gilbert (Ron Silver), a middle-level accountant in a Manhattan firm, bails her out of jail. She explains that she had done some creative shoplifting to counter a pricing inequity in the grocery store.

Gilbert has other problems. He is getting shafted at the office by his unctuous boss. Gilbert's wife (Carrie Fisher) wants him to take a job with her father in Beverly Hills. Gilbert is also distracted at the office by a gorgeous co-worker (Catherine Hicks), who does aerobics on her lunch hour.

Estelle falls ill. Brain tumor. No hope. Her one last wish is to talk to her longtime idol, Greta Garbo. A loving son, Gilbert aims to accomplish the impossible and penetrate the star's inviolate privacy.

Anne Bancroft's performance makes an Academy Award nomination mandatory. The scenes remain in the mind long afterward: her castigation of construction workers for hurling vulgar remarks to a passing beauty; a solo jitterbug dance in her hospital room as she listens to music on earpieces; the final, riveting soliloquy.

A film of small marvels and unexpected joys. Rated PG because of language.

THE DEPENDENCY EXEMPTION

Parents know that the tax law provides a $1000 exemption for each dependent in the family. If your children work, do not jeopardize that tax saver. Generally, there are two key requirements that must be satisfied to claim an individual as a tax dependent. First, you must provide more than one-half of that person's support during the calendar year. And, that person cannot earn more than $1000 during the year. Fortunately, the law makes an important exception to the $1000 earning rule. Children under the age of 19 and full-time college students of any age can earn as much as they want without jeopardizing the $1000 exemption for parents.

If you want to be sure that you are aware of all the important new tax information, you should be working with a professional such as RICK ROBERTS, CPA. We can help you make the right decisions based on your own individual or small business needs and make sure that the forms are filled out correctly, to your benefit. Our office is conveniently located at 126 Third, Suite A, Monday thru Friday 9:30-12 and 1-5 or call 364-7525. Children can earn up to $1200 a year without paying federal income tax on those earnings.

 DEAF SMITH COUNTY,)
)

NOTICE OF CLASS ACTION DECREE

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL HISPANIC PERSONS WHO, SINCE MARCH 6, 1979, HAVE APPLIED FOR AND BEEN DENIED EMPLOYMENT WITH DEAF SMITH COUNTY.

This Notice is being sent to you because you may be a member of a class of Hispanic applicants to Deaf Smith County who are Plaintiffs in this lawsuit. The purpose of this Notice is to inform you of this lawsuit, so that you may make appropriate decisions as to what steps, if any, you wish to take in relation to it.

PLEASE READ THIS NOTICE CAREFULLY AND IN ITS ENTIRETY. THIS IS THE FIRST NOTICE YOU HAVE RECEIVED OF THIS ACTION, REGARDLESS OF WHAT OTHER NOTICES YOU MAY HAVE RECEIVED IN THE PAST CONCERNING ANY OTHER CLASS ACTION.

Nature of the Case

The United States District Court in Amarillo, Texas, has decided that Deaf Smith County illegally discriminated against Hispanics who, since March 6, 1979, have applied for and been denied employment with Deaf Smith County in any of the following four departments: Sheriff's, Social Services, Building Maintenance, and County Commissioner Precinct No. 3. If this describes your situation, then the County may owe you money and you may be entitled to priority in the County's future hiring together with retroactive seniority, but you must act before November 30, 1984, in order to get any of these benefits.

What You Must Do

In order to get money, hiring priority, or retroactive seniority, you must fill out the attached proof-of-claim form in its entirety and mail it to:

United States District Clerk
P. O. Box F-13240
Amarillo, TX 79189

If you fail to do this by November 30, 1984, you will have lost your right to claim any money, hiring priority, or retroactive seniority because of this lawsuit.

Who Will Help You

If you need help in filling out the proof-of-claim form or if you do not fully understand your rights or this Notice, then this attorney will help you:

Debra A. Smith, Esq.
Texas Rural Legal Aid
P. O. Box 2223
Hereford, TX 79045
Telephone No. (806) 364-3961

This help will not cost you anything. By filling a proof-of-claim form, you will not have to pay any of the attorneys' fees or costs of the lawsuit personally.

Again, you must act by November 30, 1984, in order to claim any money, priority in hiring, or retroactive seniority.
