AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sometimes-allies Gov. Bill Clements and House Speaker Bill Clayton say they don't want Attorney General Mark White representing them in the federal lawsuit over legislative redistricting.

But White said Friday, "The state can speak with only one voice," and he is that voice.

Clayton, a Democrat, and Clements, a Republican, have asked a three-judge panel in Dallas to overrule White and allow them to hire outside counsel for the suit. White, a Democrat, has refused to give Clements and Clayton permission to get another lawyer.

"The governor's interest in torpedoing this plan is apparent," said White. "That of the speaker is less clear."

White is defending the Texas House and Senate maps drawn by the all-Democratic Legislative Redistricting Board. Those plans are under federal court challenge in a lawsuit filed by Republicans and Mexican-Americans. The U.S. Justice Department has rejected the plans because they violate the Voting Rights Act.

Clayton said he needs a lawyer other than White because, "It has become apparent to me that the litigation has reached the stage at which my interests as speaker of the House of Representatives can be represented only by separate counsel employed by me."

Clayton wants to hire Roy Minton, the Austin lawyer who defended him against federal bribery charges.

A redistricting plan drawn by Clayton will be submitted to the court by Secretary of State David Dean, a Republican. Dean said he would present the plan on Clayton's behalf because "it is obvious that once again Attorney General White is attempting to limit and direct what information the court receives from the defendants he is obligated to represent."

Dean charged that White is "precipitating a constitutional crisis."

Survey Shows Less Services, Higher Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local governments are being forced to reduce services and raise taxes to cope with the federal budget cuts pushed through by President Reagan during his first year in office, according to an Associated Press survey of county officials.

And that trend appears certain to accelerate with the latest cuts that Reagan requested in the 1983 budget he sent to Congress on Feb. 1.

"Most counties are in rough shape and they'll have trouble surviving under the present direction of the 'new federalism,'" said Mike Murphy, a Democratic commissioner of Grays Harbor County, Wash.

"To maintain current efforts, local taxes must go up together with fees," said John H. Hooper, administrator of Lancaster County, Pa. "Even then, some services will be curtailed."

TEC Office Reopens Monday

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

The Hereford office of the Texas Employment Commission will reopen Monday following an emergency restoration of funding by the federal government. Bill Day, TEC District Director from Amarillo, said that the Hereford office will be among 71 offices statewide which will be reopened.

The Borger and Pampa offices in the district were also tabbed for reopening, but those offices will have to find new quarters before doing so since the buildings formerly housing them have already been leased to other tenants.

Local TEC manager Lester Rape said that he and Orval Galley will be the only two employees at the office as it reopens. Rape said that some people from the Amarillo office will be around Monday to help unpack things and get the office running, however.

"I think we'll be alright and will be able to provide the services even with a reduced staff," Rape said. The local office had five employees when it was closed Feb. 1, but three of the five have already found other jobs.

"We're not sure right now how we stand on any possible reinstatement of those other employees," Rape said. "But, a representative of the state office will be in Amarillo this week to work out the details."

Bayne on Panel To Study Increase

Hereford City Manager Dudley Bayne was named Friday to a steering committee which will study Southwestern Public Service's request for a rate increase.

Representatives of 18 Panhandle and South Plains cities served by SPS formed the steering group at a meeting in Canyon. Invitations went to all 68 cities which will be affected by the 12.7 percent hike request.

Twenty-five city managers, mayors and city council members attended the meeting. Others on the steering committee will be Merrill Nunn, Amarillo city attorney; J. Pat Stephens, Canyon city commissioner; and Carl Tillerson, a Plainview city councilman. The committee will select a rate analyst to examine the utility company's request.

All cities who join the group will share the cost of hiring the rate analyst, said Gary Pitner, Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. He noted that Bill McMories of Amarillo was the last such consultant hired to study an SPS rate increase request.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says a friend is a person who knows you and still likes you.

Budget: A method of worrying before you spend it, instead of worrying after you spend it.

In a recent column, we quoted a banker as saying that the budget deficit is "not that big of a deal." Then we compared the deficit of $100 billion to the Gross National Product of $2.7 trillion and stated that it's not so bad when the GNP is cracking along at 2700 times the amount of the deficit.

A reader called to challenge us—not on the matter of how serious the deficit was but on our math. If you check it out, said the caller, $2.7 trillion is 27 times as much as $100 billion—not 2700 times more.

By George, I think he's right! There were just too many zeroes for me.

Hats off to the Women's Division of the chamber for the great job they do with the local blood bank program. You may have noticed that Pat Clark, chairperson of the local blood campaign, received a plaque on behalf of the Women's Division.

The official from Coffee Memorial Blood Bank in Amarillo said Hereford should be proud of the fact it more than meets the need of local residents, something very few communities do. Less than six percent of the population, nationwide, are regular blood donors. Hereford citizens donated 3,731 pints of blood last year.

Southwestern Public Service dropped a packet of information by our office Wednesday to explain the company's request for a 12.7 percent increase in the retail price of electricity in Texas.

The increase will range from $5 to $10 a month for the typical residential customer, says SPS. For the residential user, which represents more than 80 percent of the company's customers, our calculator figures the increase will be in the 14 to 15 percent range.

City officials are expected to form a steering committee next week to start studying the proposal. Two years ago, when SPS made its last rate request, the consultants and the steering committee negotiated a settlement that was somewhat lower than the company asked, but it went into effect more quickly.

In a story in the Lubbock newspaper, we noticed that rates in Lubbock, Floydada and Crosbyton, which have competing municipal electric utilities, will not be affected by the increase.

It's getting so folks are almost shock-proofed over increases in the necessities of life. SPS makes a good case for the need of the increase, pointing out the rate of inflation as being 23 percent since two years ago. Also, they show that the average family spent 2 percent of its budget for electricity in 1977, and 2 percent in 1981.

Besides that, the company says we'll be spending $4 to $5 less per month than we would have if SPS hadn't moved to coal as boiler fuel in new power plants.

Some folks can't stand many more of these money-saving deals!

Boxes of Cheese Available Monday

The Deaf Smith County Community Action Agency will be distributing boxes of cheese from 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. Monday as part of the national program being conducted by the federal government.

Persons who are qualified through one of eight programs or areas are eligible to receive the cheese. A family of up to five people will receive one 5-pound box, while families containing more than five members will receive two 5-pound boxes.

The eight areas under which people may qualify for the give-away are Aid to Families of Dependent Children (AFDC), Food Stamps, those age 60 and over, rental assistance, Social Security, Social Security Insurance, the unemployed, and worker's compensation.

Those who receive the cheese will be required to sign a statement that they have not received cheese previously from any other agency. They must also furnish proof of income such as a check stub or bank deposit, a letter from their employer, or a W-4 form.

Recipients must also be at least 16 years old, and they must present their social security card when they pick up the cheese.

The community action agency office is located at 303 McKinley.

HWY 60 Project Funds Expended

Texas Department of Highways District Design Engineer Jack Light has notified the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce that discretionary funds for the Highway 60 project have run out prior to the completion of the research study on the project.

C of C Transportation Committee chairman Gary Phipps said that as a result the current status of the highway will remain "as it is indefinitely." Phipps added that it is estimated that no other action concerning changes in Highway 60 will take place in the county "for at least six to eight years."

"This also means that no public hearing on the project will be held in Deaf Smith County this spring," Phipps added.

Phipps also said that his committee has learned, however, that some additional funds have since become available, but that these funds may be used for possible construction of a four-lane highway from the Deaf Smith County line to the New Mexico State Line.

A public hearing concerning this possible construction will be held in either Friona or Farwell in the very near future Phipps said.

"This aspect of the Highway 60 project is of great importance to this area," he added. "We need to be sure to assist in any way we might need to."

Motor Vehicle Crash Injuries Major Teen Health Problem

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

The major public health problem facing U.S. teenagers is not drug misuse or alcoholism, but is injuries associated with motor vehicle use according to the latest Texas Traffic Safety Report published by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Citing a study done recently by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, the highway department says that, starting with age 13, motor vehicle passenger death rates per capita climb sharply compared to passengers of other ages.

According to the study, motor vehicle related fatalities are suffered by teenagers at more than twice the rate than would be expected on a population basis. In 1980 the state of Texas recorded 795 deaths to persons between the ages of 15-19 as a result from injuries sustained in motor vehicle traffic accidents.

The safety report says that the teen years are the most treacherous ones on the highway, and the age of 18 is particularly critical since more deaths per licensed drivers were associated with the crashes of 18-year-olds than with any other age group.

"Teenaged drivers not only are more in jeopardy than drivers of other age groups but they also contribute substantially to the deaths of other teenagers as passengers," the report stated. According to the study the majority of fatally-injured teenaged passengers are riding in vehicles driven by teenagers. Deaths of teenaged passengers tend to occur in nighttime crashes, especially on weekends.

Considering the toll associated with teen drivers, the authors of the institute study mentioned several possible measures that might reduce the loss of life in highway crashes.

Among them were raising the minimum age of licensing to 18, hopefully eliminating a majority of the 4,000 fatalities that result annually from the driving of 16 and 17 year olds.

Another possible measure would be to "allow only essential driving by 16 and 17 year olds," seen as one way of offsetting the inconvenience or hardship for many teenagers and their parents that would result in the raising of the licensing age to 18. Other possible measures were:

-Eliminating high school driver education. According to the study "high school driver education has been found to increase the number of 16 and 17 year-olds licensed without reducing crashes."

-Prohibit teenagers from driving during late evening-early morning hours. "Almost half the fatal crashes of drivers less than 18 years old take place from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m."

-Implement crash-packaging technologies. "Deaths of motor vehicle occupants of all ages could be markedly reduced by such measures, including making air bags available for public

Man Treated After Accident

A Hereford man was treated at Deaf Smith General Hospital for multiple lacerations and abrasions early Saturday following a one-vehicle accident at the intersection of Northwest Drive and Park Avenue.

According to the police report, Jerry Betzen, 20, of 618 Ave. G was riding in a vehicle driven by Randle Davis, 22, of 121 Oak when the vehicle crossed the center stripe on Park Ave., ran over the curb, uprooted a fire hydrant, knocked down a stop sign, and then smashed into a telephone pole.

Davis was uninjured in the accident. According to HPD Sgt. Ted Langgood Davis was cited for failure to control his vehicle.

In other items a man in the 200 block of Bradley surprised two men trying to break into his car, yelled at them, and they fled the scene around 5 a.m. Saturday, and thefts at a local residence and the Stagner-Osborn used car lot were reported.

The car dealer reported some wheel covers valued at $208 had been taken, while a step platform at a mobile home valued at $250 was taken in the 600 block of Ave. H.

A criminal mischief report was received from a resident in the 400 block of Ave. G, Sgt. Langgood said that someone had apparently walked on a canvas tarp covering a boat there, causing $150 damage.

Two simple assaults were reported to the police Friday. A resident at the Bluewater Gardens reported that an employee of the apartment house had "slapped her 13-year-old son around and torn his shirt," and a man reported that he was assaulted by four men as he walked home to the Lynette Apartments from a nearby store. No charges were expected to be filed in the second case, Langgood said, even though the victim apparently knew his assailants.

Police also issued five traffic citations Friday.

Suspect Pleads Innocent To Murder Charge

HOUSTON (AP) — A former security guard who told reporters he admitted the way Iris Siff fought for her life has pleaded innocent to a capital murder charge that alleges he killed the Alley Theater managing director.

Clifford X Phillips entered the plea Friday and also pleaded innocent to charges he set fire to an abandoned meat market where police said they found a number of Mrs. Siff's personal belongings.

Phillips was arrested at his mother's home in Los Angeles after the Jan. 14 fire and made a statement about the Jan. 13 slaying to detectives in California, officials said.

The former Alley Theater security guard told reporters Tuesday night that he broke into Mrs. Siff's office in the theater building hoping to find money to buy food, drugs and to pay his rent.

Phillips said he choked Mrs. Siff with his hands when she screamed and used a telephone cord when she struggled fiercely.

"There was great strength," Phillips said of his battle with Mrs. Siff. "I had great admiration for her."

In another development Friday, State District Judge George Walker granted a request by court-appointed defense attorney Joe Cannon to withdraw from the case.

Braniff Furloughs 825 Employees

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International has furloughed 825 employees and says it plans more furloughs during the next 90 days to reduce costs further.

The cutbacks are part of a plan to transform Braniff "into a highly productive, low cost, low fare airline," Braniff President Howard D. Putnam said Friday.

He also said that pilots now stationed in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Kansas City, Denver and San Antonio will be transferred to Braniff's main pilot bases in Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, New York and Miami. The moves will not affect any flights, he said.

Mystery Woman Found Friday

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Police on Friday identified a woman who was found sleeping in a car earlier in the week and claimed she didn't know her name or how she got there.

Det. Ronald McInnis said the woman was Suzanne Cunningham, 21, of Killeen, Texas.

He said her name was learned by tracing items that were found in a duflie bag she was carrying when she was found Tuesday. McInnis said clothing in the bag contained the insignia of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, and a check with the academy resulted in the woman being identified.

However, police are not sure how the woman is connected with the academy.

At first, the woman wouldn't talk to authorities, McInnis said. But, he said, on Wednesday she began answering most of the questions put to her by saying, "I don't know."

Judge Delays Appeal Deadline

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Rex Cauble's lawyers have been given until 9 a.m. Monday to file a motion for a new trial for the 68-year-old Denton millionaire, who was convicted on charges that he financed a massive operation smuggling drugs from Colombia to Texas.

U.S. District Judge William Steger postponed the deadline from Friday.

Also Friday, Steger rejected a request by defense attorney G. Brockett Irwin to question all jurors in the case. Irwin asked to interview jurors about whether they had heard of or read interviews with two witnesses in the trial, Texas Ranger Stuart Dowell and Anita McKesson, wife of a pilot who worked for Cauble.

The judge took under advisement a motion to let defense lawyers examine two jurors on grounds they failed to reveal pertinent information when they were selected for the trial.

RPT Wants New Name

DALLAS — The Board of Directors of Republic of Texas Corporation (RPT) has announced they will submit a resolution to RPT stockholders recommending the name of the corporation be changed to "RepublicBank Corporation" according to James D. Berry, chairman of the board.

Approval of the change will culminate an identity program RPT began in 1981 when the names of RPT's member banks were changed to RepublicBank followed by a local identifier such as RepublicBank Dallas, RepublicBank Houston, etc.

"The program successfully communicated to the public our banks' financial strength and positive growth, and yet allowed each bank to retain an individual identity in the community by using a recognizable name. Thus, we felt it was appropriate now to bring the corporation's name identity into line with that of our member banks," Mr. Berry said.

"While it has been quite the vogue among bank holding companies to change their names, the change we are proposing is one that will retain the traditions and familiar image for which our corporation and our banks are well-known. The corporation will continue to provide the leadership and quality service needed in banking today, regardless of our name," Mr. Berry said.

The resolution will be submitted to RPT stockholders at the corporation's annual meeting, scheduled to be held on April 20 in Austin.

Republic of Texas Corporation had $14.4 billion in assets at year-end 1981 and 31 member banks in Texas. For the year 1981, RPT reported an increase of 34 percent in income before securities transactions to $123.6 million, or $5.00 per fully diluted share, with the fourth quarter of 1981 marking RPT's 19th consecutive quarterly increase in fully diluted earnings per share.

Carrier Due In Port After Collision

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — The Coast Guard today inspected a barge carrier damaged in a collision with a cargo ship that remained in danger of sinking about 110 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico.

Two sailors aboard the Liberian-registered cargo ship African Pioneer were injured, one critically, when it collided in heavy fog with the 892-foot U.S. barge carrier Delta Norte early Friday morning.

The Delta Norte, which has a hole above the waterline, was anchored in Galveston Bay shortly before dawn today.

"We'll have a team of investigators there to make sure it's safe enough to bring into port," said Lt. Jack Hardin, investigating officer for the Coast Guard's Marine Safety Office.

The Coast Guard reported the 6,000-ton African Pioneer, carrying paper and rice, was listing near the collision site about 110 miles southeast of Galveston.

"It's in pretty bad shape," said a Coast Guard officer, who asked not to be identified.

The African Pioneer's 26 crew members abandoned the vessel after the collision and were picked up by the Delta Norte.

Hardin said a tug was sent to the African Pioneer to assess the damage and determine if the ship can be safely towed toward Galveston.

Albert Alexander, 37, remained in intensive care today with a broken leg and ribs, said a John Sealy Hospital spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified.

Alexander was injured when he fell two decks and was submerged in diesel fuel, authorities said.

She said Herman Manfred,

61, remained in serious condition with a crushed hand and a broken shoulder.

The National Weather Service reported near zero visibility when the two ships collided in international waters about 5 a.m. Friday.

The African Pioneer was coming from Lake Charles, La., and was bound for Charleston, S.C., said a spokesman for Strachan Shipping Co. of Galveston, the agent for the vessel.

editor eliminated." Murphy and Hoerber were among nearly 300 county officials from all parts of the nation who responded to the AP survey.

Nearly two-thirds of the officials said the only way they can deal with reduced federal assistance is to raise taxes and cut services.

For many Americans it appeared likely that the increases in local taxes and user fees would substantially offset any savings realized from federal income tax cuts.

County officials also expressed strong doubts that local government would be treated fairly by the states in the distribution of federal block grants.

While many county officials said they are seeing some wavering in public support for the Reagan economic program, most said backing for the budget cuts remains strong.

In most cases the questionnaires were filled out before the president outlined his "new federalism" plan and sent his budget to Congress.

The survey was conducted in cooperation with the National Association of Counties, which opens its annual convention in Washington on Monday. The principal topic of discussion will be administration plans to turn back 43 federal programs to state and local governments, beginning in fiscal 1984.

According to TEC spokesman Terry Biscoe the new funds restore only the cuts made in December. The agency's budget had been cut once before that, so it does not expect to rehire about 800

"The state's position is that the plan drafted and approved by the Legislative Redistricting Board is valid, and there is no other state position," said White.

March 2 Set Aside For Texas Flag Day

March 2 is Texas Flag Day. Over 10,000 flags are expected to be flying for this official Texas Heritage Day.

Around Texas, organizations and individuals are taking this opportunity to pay tribute to their state and its flag by flying the "Lone Star" on their homes and public buildings. Local activities will include flag raisings, proclamations by mayors and county judges, speeches and special programs by service clubs, historic organizations and patriotic groups.

The Texas flag was adopted in 1839 as the official standard of the Republic. It became the state flag after the Treaty of Annexation was signed in 1845.

There were several designs for a national flag prior to 1839, but each of them incorporated a single star. The star signifies that Texas was alone in the Mexican Confederation and that the star of liberty was rising.

This gave Texas its nickname, "The Lone Star State."

Texas Flag Day is a Texas Heritage Project of the Texas Historical Foundation. For more information about this and other programs, contact the Texas Historical Foundation, P.O. Box 12243, Austin Tex. 78711, 512-472-6784.

In summation, the authors comment, "Deaths and injuries inflicted on any segment of the population in motor vehicle crashes constitute a costly burden in pain and suffering and in economic terms. When a disproportionate share of these costs can be identified as being caused by a particular group of drivers and passengers, it is especially important to examine public policies and countermeasures available."

INFLATION

The inflation rate as measured by annual increases in consumer prices has been uneven, but the overall trend has been steadily upward. Variations follow business cycles, with increases accelerating during the later stages of economic expansions and slowing down during and after recessions. In each cycle since the 1960s, inflation has moved to a higher level than in the preceding cycle.

GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT

The price exacted from the economy by inflation is apparent in measurement of the gross national product. Nominal GNP, the current-dollar value of all goods and services, shows an uneven but healthy upward movement. But real GNP, figured in constant dollars adjusted to take into account the effect of inflation, is less encouraging. The spread between the two measurements reflects the portion of growth coming from higher prices — inflation.

Bell To Spawn Seven New Companies

WASHINGTON — Officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., charged with devising a plan to break up their huge communications empire, have tentatively decided to create seven regional holding companies.

The plan, disclosed Friday by AT&T Chairman Charles L. Brown, would have AT&T transfer 22 wholly owned Bell System operating companies to the seven holding companies.

Each of the 22 operating companies would retain its identity and continue to serve the same area it does now, but its stock would be owned by one of the holding companies.

AT&T's three million stockholders, in turn, would receive stock in each of the seven new companies on a proportional basis.

Calling the proposal a "planning model," Brown said it was necessary to provide direction to executives who must now work out details of breaking up the nation's largest company under an antitrust agreement with the Justice Department.

"But we must proceed with our planning in terms of two basic parameters — good service sustained by good earnings — and this configuration looks promising in terms of these considerations," Brown added.

The antitrust settlement, reached Jan. 8 and now pending before a federal judge here, requires AT&T to give up ownership of its wholly owned Bell System companies. AT&T would be allowed to retain its long-distance, Yellow Page, research and manufacturing facilities.

In exchange, the Justice Department agreed to drop a 1974 antitrust suit against the company as well as a 1956 order that has prevented AT&T from entering new, unregulated businesses like data processing and computer production.

The settlement leaves it to AT&T, subject to Justice Department review, to devise a detailed plan for reorganizing itself and divesting the local operating companies.

But the timing of the company's announcement on the proposed holding companies was somewhat unexpected, however, because AT&T is not required to submit details of its plan to the Justice Department until six months after the settlement is approved. U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene recently initiated a 60-day period for public comment on the settlement and is not expected to rule on the agreement for several months after that.

AT&T said its plan called for grouping the 22 operating companies in the following manner:

—New York Telephone Co. and New England Telephone & Telegraph Co.

—Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania; Diamond State Telephone Co.; New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., and four Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Companies serving Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

—South Central Bell Telephone Co. and Southern Bell Telephone Co.

—Illinois Bell Telephone Co.; Ohio Bell Telephone Co.; Indiana Bell Telephone Co.; Michigan Bell Telephone Co.; and Wisconsin Telephone Co.

—Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

—Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.; and Pacific Northwest Bell Telephone Co.

—Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Bell Telephone Co. of Nevada.

AT&T spokesman Pic Wagner said each of the seven holding companies would have its own chief executive and board of directors "with no corporate linkage between regions or to AT&T."

But he noted the settlement would allow the seven companies to set up a central planning organization if they wished.

The decision to set up seven holding companies is expected to satisfy the concerns of congressmen and industry officials, who worried that AT&T might create a single huge holding company for the Bell companies and thereby stymie hopes that the settlement would spur competition. On the other hand, the plan would avoid the problem of each of the 22 operating companies trying to stand solely on its own resources.

Most industry officials and financial analysts declined immediate comment on the plan Friday.

But A.C. Viebranz, a senior vice president of the General Telephone & Telegraph Co., said he remained concerned about the possibility of the seven holding companies establishing a common planning organization.

If the seven work together as one in deciding where to purchase equipment, "you haven't gained anything," said Viebranz, whose company is a major equipment manufacturer as well as the nation's second largest phone company.

"The ideal thing would be to have each of the seven wind up as truly independent telephone companies and operate as separate entities when it comes to dealing with the outside world," he said.

Viet Vets Announce New Group, Programs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A 24-hour crisis hotline and free legal help are two benefits members can expect from creation of the "world's largest Vietnam veterans organization," one organizer said Friday.

Dan Jordan, president of an Austin-based veterans group, told a Capitol news conference that he had been elected the first national commander of United Vietnam Veterans. He said UVV was created by uniting 120 national Vietnam veterans organizations with a combined membership of 200,000.

There are an estimated 196,000 Vietnam veterans in Texas, Jordan said.

He said the group is financed through private grants, donations and voluntary monthly dues of $20.

Jordan said within six to eight weeks UVV plans to establish regional crisis hotlines — including one in Austin, provide free legal assistance and represent veterans in claims before the Veterans Administration, establish a "Find Your Buddy" program to help veterans locate friends they served with, and provide a comprehensive directory of veterans programs and benefits.

Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, who last session sponsored legislation establishing the Texas Veterans Agent Orange Program, joined Jordan at the news conference.

Shaw praised the Texas Department of Health and University of Texas Medical Center for their prompt implementation of the screening and testing program.

Many veterans have complained that symptoms as serious as cancer and birth defects in their children were caused by their exposure to the defoliant while in Vietnam. The VA has said the veterans have presented no concrete evidence to support that contention.

Teddy Bear With Claws

BOSTON (AP) — Suddenly last summer young fops at Oxford and at Britain's red brick universities, too, amused themselves and annoyed their dons by coming to class with a teddy bear under their arms.

The bear's name, invariably, was Aloysius, not Paddington, in case you have failed to keep abreast of ur-sine nomenclature in the Mother Country.

That scattered isle always has been a bedlam of eccentricity, but like Beatle haircuts, miniskirts and punk rock I understand this latest trend is now being exported to the colonies. I saw a chap in a Harvard ski cap crossing Boston Common the other morning with a girl on one arm and a large teddy bear on the other. The bear wore a crimson and white striped muffler. And I thought sure I spotted a MIT man clutching a furry toy bent over a Star Wars video screen in the games room at Logan Airport.

The bear bearers, of course, are emulating Sebastian Flyte in "Brideshead Revisited" and paying rightful homage to the British-made TV serialization of the classic Evelyn Waugh novel now being shown across the land on public broadcasting. It is quite the best thing to hit these shores from that side of the pond since the Queen Mary hung up her anchor in Long Beach.

Too bad Waugh, who died in 1966, didn't live to see playwright John Mortimer's splendid dramatization of his most successful book (among many fine ones) and his belated recognition as one of the great masters of English prose.

Waugh, a gifted eccentric and the last of the creative curmudgeons, isolated himself from carping critics and an adoring public by assuming the role of a dotty don or testy colonel, complete with a Victorian ear trumpet and the rumpled tweeds of a country gentleman.

Asked by a pretentious BBC interviewer why he chose to live in the country when he hated gardening and rural life, he replied "to get away from people like you."

Waugh's reverence for history, ritual and authority led him to the Roman Catholic Church, which received him as a convert in September 1930, although his views on Lent were somewhat unorthodox if characteristically aristocratic. He believed a two-pound lobster at lunch was in keeping with the fasting regulations and several martinis were quite in order because "water was a great health risk when the church was founded."

As the publication of his diaries a few years ago showed, Waugh was unsparing with his scathing wit on family and friends. "My children weary me," he wrote. "I can only see them as defective adults... Auberon dull and barmy... Teresa mincing her words and rolling her eyes like a nun... Margaret stupid... Harriet mad."

Regrettably, I never met Evelyn Waugh, but I did meet his son Auberon, who despite what his dad the diarist wrote, is splendidly carrying on the parental tradition of hilarious, malicious prose as a novelist and as a columnist for "Private Eye," Britain's satirical press magazine which is without peer in its field.

Man Held 5½ Months Without Charge Freed

HOUSTON (AP) — An attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union says she hopes publicity about a man held 5½ months without being charged with a crime brings an end to the use of the peace bond in Texas.

Cleveland White, 47, was freed Friday.

"I'll just go my peaceful ways," he said.

ACLU attorney Mary Keller, of Austin, said she hoped publicity about the case would end the use of peace bonds in Texas.

"These things are blatantly unconstitutional," she said. "We're talking about putting people in prison without convicting or charging them with anything. It amazes me it hasn't been challenged before."

White was jailed Sept. 4 when he could not pay a one-year, $10,000 peace bond assessed against him after a laundromat's owner complained that White was loitering in her business, exposing himself and threatening customers.

"I hated to do it, but it was the only way to keep him from bothering those people," said Justice of the Peace Robert L. Smith. He said White "gets out of jail and the usual performance repeats itself."

White said he was jailed for two months in 1980 on a criminal trespass charge after a pushing match with O.A. Messiah, the laundromat's owner.

Work Together

Does it ever seem to you that the out-of-town reporters and television crews only come to Hereford when there is bad news or controversy to report?

What brought this to mind was a recent article from one of the wire services. Based on a government study, it concluded that the West Texas beef industry would be lost to Kansas and Nebraska.

It all stems from water depletion in the Ogallala—a subject that has been discussed for many years. The article mentioned Hereford and its many feedyards, and did include an optimistic statement from chamber executive Mike Carr.

A report on irrigation wells from the High Plains Underground Water District just this week sounded encouraging. The average decline of wells across the area the past year was just slightly more than four inches, compared to a 10-year average decline of 1.42 feet.

Sure, we've got some problems. But we've also got a lot of things going for us, things that have put Hereford on the map and made Deaf Smith County the No. 1 ag community in the state and most of the world.

One of the problems, of course, has been low prices for our farm products. Rep. Kent Hance, while recognizing the immediate problems facing farmers, predicts this will turn around later this year and the farmer and rancher will be in an enviable position again.

In the meantime, we've got to work together and help ourselves. We have the greatest economic system in the world, and it came about because we relied on private enterprise instead of the government.

We also have the best political system in the world, but we need to remind some of our elected officials that they work for us. A letter to your representative or senator, secretary of agriculture or President of the United States could do some good...especially if enough folks took the time to do it.

Today would be a good time.

The Bootleg Philosopher

A Way Out: Declare '1 Bills to Be '10

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek explores the nation's economic problems some more this week, sort of.

Dear Editor:

There's a man working for the Internal Revenue Service in Washington who can solve the nation's economic woes.

Some big stores brought him a problem about the IRS rule that says a store, when it winds up with a lot of merchandise that won't sell, can donate it to "needy infants" and deduct the full cost of the stuff from its income tax.

But, they pointed out, stores frequently have unsold merchandise that won't fit an infant. For example, a batch of unpopular size 12 shoes or women's dresses that have gone out of style.

No problem, the IRS man said. From now on an infant is anybody not over 21 years of age. Fair enough, the stores said.

That's the man we need to solve our economic problems. As everybody knows, the size of the Federal deficit is a scary thing. But if that IRS man can raise the age of an infant, why can't he by the same method lower the size of the deficit, now calculated at $92 billion?

All he'd have to do is rub out one little zero at the tail-end. The deficit then, instead of being $92,000,000,000, would be $9,220,000,000 and everybody knows we could live with one no bigger than that, a mere $9.2 billion. In fact, he could round it off to an even $9 billion, on the grounds that decimal points always have been confusing.

And there are other possibilities. If he can rub out a zero, certainly he can add one. For example, just add a zero to a $1 bill and automatically it becomes a $10 bill.

It wouldn't be necessary to print up a new batch. Just declare the $1 ones now in circulation are automatically upped to $10. Doesn't the post office get by with declaring a stamp with no price printed on it is worth whatever it says it wants to be, in the current case 20 cents?

Enclosed are three $1 bills amounting to $30. Please renew my subscription and mail me a check for the difference.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Will President Reagan run for a second term in 1984?

Right now that's one of the biggest guessing games in Republican politics.

Aides to Reagan said during the 1980 campaign his age would probably preclude his seeking a second term. Now the White House is hinting that all that has changed.

Reagan's political advisers quietly told GOP state chairmen during their recent meeting here that the president will seek re-election "all things being equal" — that is, if his health and popularity remain strong.

But most party professionals take these statements with at least a grain of salt. They know that it is still early to be thinking seriously of 1984 — particularly when the incumbent is 71 years old.

Another decision announced recently by the White House politics — one that most likely will stick — is the site of the 1984 Republican Convention: Dallas.

But to meet the gathering were also received from several other cities, including St. Louis, Kansas City, Houston and San Francisco. But Dallas appears certain to be chosen provided that it can offer sufficient facilities.

Will George Wallace run again for governor of Alabama? Political professionals are beginning to think so.

A recent private poll commissioned by the Alabama Democratic Party found that Wallace was the leading choice among Democratic voters in the state.

The only question is Wallace's health. He appears strong enough for the demands of private life, but whether he is physically able to wage a political campaign and then to govern the state is a different question.

Those close to the former governor say that the political fires still burn and that he is eager to return to the national spotlight.

One sign that Wallace may be plotting a comeback was the decision by his former press secretary, Billy Joe Camp, to run for lieutenant governor.

The Penultimate Word

MEDITATION

Now that the age of aquarius has been replaced by the age of "Me-ism," there seems to be no end to the ideas for helping me be me. There seems to be a new book each week producing a new fad to follow. I had no idea being me was so much work.

A few years ago it was biorhythms. Somehow our bio's had to have certain rhythms going or the day would be shot.

Then it was assertiveness training. "How To Win Through Intimidation!" The guy who wrote that used to work for the IRS.

I have a psychologist friend who says she is going to write a book on whining. Assertive whining will get you anything you want. Whine your way to wealth, love, respect and joy.

I picked up a book the other day which recommends meditation. This is a revival of an old effort. The only change is now it's no longer necessary to assume the Lotus position for meditation. That is an improvement. The only time I ever got into the lotus position was when Billy Bob Brunk decided I looked better that way when we were in the 7th grade.

If I lotused now, all the King's horses and all the King's men could not get my legs straight again.

This meditation requires a person to sit up straight, close the eyes and repeat a phrase like "ham-so— as you breathe in and out very deeply. I do not know why the word has to be "ham-so," but that's what the book said. The result is supposed to be a gradual state of nothingness when we hold hands with God. Sounds great! I tried it.

Ham-so might work in the afternoon. I gave it a shot in the morning before breakfast. I kept saying ham-and-eggs. Pretty soon I sunk into a state of dreaming about biscuits and gravy to go with the ham and eggs.

I fought this off by thinking of grits. Grits can ruin any breakfast so they should get my mind back to nothingness since that's how they taste. But grits reminded me of Georgia and I knew a girl named Georgia once and...well, you know.

Ham-so doesn't work for me. I decided to concentrate on my last sermon. Maybe that would drift me to nothingness. It worked. At point two of the masterpiece, I went to sleep!

Voice of Business

Does Everyone Want Clean Air?

By Richard L. Leshner

WASHINGTON — Does everyone want clean air? Numerous pollsters have told us yes, but I'm not so sure. There exists a constituency of harping voices that has done everything possible to delay the enactment of a streamlined Clean Air Act that can work better than the one that expired last September 30th.

Am I talking about businessmen, Secretary James Watt's Interior Department, or job-conscious labor unions? No. Ironically, the individuals who seek to preserve the unworkable status quo in clean air regulation call themselves environmentalists.

A recent Opinion Research Survey conducted for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce pinpointed more specifically than previous polls the objectives of Americans on the subject of clean air. First, we want clean air. Second, we are willing to pay for it. Third, we don't want to spend more than is necessary. We do not want to waste our money or needlessly sacrifice economic growth with red tape bureaucracy and overlapping, contradictory requirements. We support changes in the current Clean Air Act to make it work better.

Since the enactment of the original act in 1970, the first two objectives unearthed in our survey have been answered. First, as a result of the Clean Air Act, technological improvements and an encouraging environmental consciousness on the part of the business community, great progress has been made toward cleaning up the air.

Second, we surely have paid dearly for this progress. Best estimates put the cost to businesses and consumers thus far at $200 billion.

However, our third objective—to pay as much as we have to but not more than we have to, has not been met. Since the Clean Air Act expired on September 30, an impressive coalition of businesses, labor unions, state and local governments and a bipartisan group of Congressmen have made a sincere effort to reenact the Clean Air Act, but to pass a law that cuts costs, streamlines regulations and enables us to better pursue our twin goals of a healthy environment and a healthy economy. This coalition, echoing the feelings of a vast majority of Americans, believes that the current law can and must be adjusted to take account of the progress that has been made, without retreating from the strictest health standards.

That's not good enough for many self-styled environmentalists. They insist that any changes whatsoever in the current law amount to an attempt to gut it. They have turned this technical issue into a political football, reducing it to a few jingoistic slogans for their lucrative fundraising letters. They are shown example after example of contradictory and confusing regulations, some of which actually cause delays in cleaning up the air, yet they do not budge from their advocacy of the status quo.

Last December, Rep. Thomas Luken, an Ohio Democrat introduced a Clean Air bill (H.R. 5252) that would meet the major objectives of a vast majority of Americans. It has been cosponsored by a bipartisan group of 36 House members, and is supported by leading business, labor and government representatives. It proposes extensions from 1982 to 1987 on a case-by-case basis, of deadlines for states and industries which are sincerely attempting to meet air quality and health standards. It would ease existing limits on auto emissions but without lessening the overall air quality standards for a particular area. It would once again permit job-creating businesses to expand and modernize in areas that have yet to attain clean air goals, so long as the new facilities are equipped with the best available technology and the community has met, or will soon meet its clean air goals.

The supporters of this legislation, the advocates of a tough, efficient environmental policy for the 1980s, are the true friends of the American environment—an environment in which the people want to include clean, healthy air, common sense and economic opportunity.

Opponents are simply blowing smoke.

Lives Are Shortened By Self-Inflicted Excesses

There is no biological reason Americans cannot live 110 years.

Presently we are averaging 73 years but Dr. Robert Butler, director of the national Institute on Aging, says 110 is par for the course.

Indeed, "there is no inherent genetic limit."

Most of us shorten our own lives with self-inflicted diseases and excesses.

Including drugs. And one devastating one is killing us off at school-age.

Methaqualone was a fad drug briefly in 1973.

Now it's back—more potent and more readily available than ever before.

Methaqualone—trade name Quaalude, street name "lude"—is putting American adolescents in hospitals and morgues in record numbers.

The seductive white tablets which promise a high superior to barbiturates, a drunk without impotence or hangover and an aphrodisiacal experience...

Deliver instead life-threatening toxicity, epidemic personal injury, severe withdrawal syndrome, convulsions...death.

In 1980, four tons of methaqualone was made and distributed lawfully in the United States; more than 100 tons were made elsewhere and smuggled in.

Some 80 percent of the methaqualone produced worldwide ends up on the illicit market in the United States.

The United States Drug Enforcement Administration confirms that most "lude" is counterfeit—may contain diazepam or Angel Dust.

DEA officials say, "The people making this stuff don't care what's in it."

A chronic concern of the street junkie is that he can't really know that he's getting what he's paying for; there's the probability of cut stuff that's worthless and hot stuff that can overdose. The "mix" can create real problems in hospital emergency, confusing countermeasures.

The heaviest abusers are young people.

The situation is not entirely hopeless.

Our DEA has secured the cooperation of several governments, including Colombia's, toward reducing the smuggling. Confiscations of illicit shipments have doubled.

Today's users are getting educated to the hazards.

Nonetheless, in all states—especially in Texas and Florida—when anybody arrives at the morgue dead from overdose, homicide or having been shot at the scene of a crime—the medical examiner is most likely to find in the blood of the corpse...methaqualone.

Ag Problems

By DICK PARKER, Exec. V.P.
Krause Plow Corporation, Hutchinson, Kan.

THE PROBLEM AGRICULTURE IS FACING TODAY

The problem agriculture is facing today actually began when President Ford decided to put an embargo on grain shipments to the Soviet Union in 1975. The reason he gave was that we had high food prices in the U.S. Later, President Carter decided to use the shipment of food and grains to the Soviet Union as a weapon against their invasion of Afghanistan. Reagan is now using the shipment of these items to Poland as a weapon. So it's small wonder that other countries have decided that if U.S. can use the shipments of those commodities as a club over the head of someone, why can't they do the same thing.

For example, Mainland China has told us if we continue to sell military planes to Taiwan, they will not honor the five year contract they have with us for the purchase of various grains. India has also decided they could use it as a weapon against us by threatening to cut off the purchase of various grains from the United States if we continue to sell weapons to Pakistan. Can we criticize them when we are doing the same thing? Also, can we fault the Russians when they indicate they would rather not have us as their main source of supply?

Another tragic example is Japan. It is the largest single importer of U.S. agricultural products. The volume of purchases from the U.S. exceeds 7 billion dollars, about 15 percent of the total U.S. agricultural exports. Two-thirds of the dollar volume is grain—primarily corn, soybeans and wheat.

At Chicago in July of last year, a panel discussion was held between the U.S. and Japanese concerning the future of U.S.-Japan agricultural trade. Secretary of Agriculture Block as well as Ambassador Yoshio Okawara of Japan were in attendance.

The most interesting point made by the panel members - from Japan - and in particular Mr. Eishi Ueno, Agricultural Attache, was the point about U.S. grain embargo against Russia. The Japanese viewed this quite negatively and openly stated that as a result of this action they, the Japanese, would work to become less dependent on U.S. agricultural commodities. The point was made emphatically and repeatedly that the percent of Japanese purchase of grain from the U.S. will decline. They did not consider us a reliable source of supply because we use grain shipments as a weapon in cold war diplomacy.

Somehow or another the United States Department of State and the Department of Agriculture must get their act together. Surely, they realize what a tragic blow to the farmers of this country their actions and in some cases inaction is causing. And the farmer's plight in this mess is only the tip of the iceberg. Obviously, nothing happens until the farmer grows or raises something, be it wheat, corn, soybeans, rice, cattle or hogs. But that is only the beginning.

I don't think most people realize that agriculture is this country's largest industry. It's assets today total nearly one trillion dollars. That amount is equal to almost 90 percent of the total assets of all manufacturing corporations in this country.

Also, agriculture in this country's largest employer (outside the government itself). Around 15 million people work in some phase of agriculture - the growing, the storing, transporting, processing, wholesaling and marketing of all farm commodities.

Also, I think we're all aware that agriculture makes a tremendous contribution to the U.S. balance of payments. Farm exports last year totaled over 45 billion dollars, giving us a surplus of 26.7 billion in agriculture products. That went a long way toward helping us pay for the imported oil bill.

We are constantly hearing and reading the economists of our country proclaiming that the U.S. has fallen behind Japan, West Germany and other countries in productivity. They have completely overlooked the fact that the productivity gains of the farmers outstrip those of any other type of industry in this country or in any other country. This current generation of U.S. farmer produces over 75 percent more crops than their fathers did on the same number of acres. An hour of farm labor in 1981 produced 14 times as much food as it did only 60 years ago.

As a result, food in this country is one heck of a good buy. That's something that most people overlook when they are grumbling about high prices. The United States families now spend approximately 14 percent of their incomes for food. This compares with 34 percent in the Soviet Union, 23 percent in Japan, 59 percent in India, 41 percent in Brazil, 60 percent in Mainland China, 41 percent in Mexico, 20 percent in France, 19 percent in England and on and on. The people of United States spend far and away the lowest percentage of their spendable income for food than any country in the world.

Due to better productivity on the farms, an hour of factory wages today buys four times as much chicken as it did 30 years ago, three times as many eggs, 70 percent more milk, and so on.

I don't think we should forget that farmers are also large consumers. For example, the annual purchases for farm machinery, farm tractors, trucks and other vehicles total 14 billion dollars. For fuel, lubricants, maintenance of vehicle and equipment, the farmer spends over 13 billion dollars a year.

Agriculture uses about six and one-half million tons of steel every year. That is enough to account for 40 thousand jobs in the steel industry. Farmers use a tremendous amount of electricity, 33 billion kilowatt hours in a year. That's more than is used in homes of New England, Maryland, Kentucky and Washington, D.C. combined.

Incidentally, farmers also pay an enormous amount of taxes. Last year they paid over 8 billion dollars.

The farmers today are one of the last vestiges of the independent entrepreneurs. As such, they're not very good at banding together and making their needs and desires known in the political world. They are better now than they used to be, but it's difficult to get a group of farmers to all agree on the same thing. That's why there's more than one farm organization. The interest of the wheat farmer may not be (and in many cases cannot be) the same as a rice farmer, a peanut farmer, a cotton farmer, or a corn farmer. As a result, it's difficult for them to get together and agree on a course of action.

But in this country today if you have no political clout, you have no clout at all. Thus, the farmer and those who are dependent on what happens to the farmer are at the mercy of the Congressmen who come from the center of the big cities and whose interest seems to be pointed only toward having the lowest possible food prices for their constituents. What they have forgotten is that as the farmer is pushed back, some of the people they represent can also be hurt (such as steel workers and auto workers.)

I think it's time for all of us to let our national and state representatives know that, whether they are willing to admit it or not, the farmer is now and always has been the backbone of our country. Stop using them as a "whipping boy" and stop "playing games" with them in the operation of their business. Instead, help them to do what they do well and that's FARM.

RR Commission Not Protecting Water

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Angry landowners charged at a legislative hearing Friday that their land and water are being ruined because the state Railroad Commission ignores violations by oil companies.

Members of the Texas House of Representatives' water subcommittee held the hearing at Odessa College to hear testimony about pollution of fresh water by oil field salt water injection and disposal.

Ten West Texas citizens complained about unplugged abandoned oil wells, salt injections used to push up more oil, poor casings and linings of oil wells and excessive use of freshwater to maintain oil drilling. Some brought pictures of open pits of brine, while others brought jars of salty water.

Clayton Smith, a rancher in West Crockett County, said water on his land was the "best in the world" until 1978 when it became so salty he could not use it.

Smith said he reported the problem to the Railroad Commission in San Angelo, and that the commission repeatedly sent a representative to take samples but never made a report to Smith.

"After replacing hot water heaters, dishwashers and plumbing, I didn't feel like those samples were doing anything to solve my problems," Smith said, adding that he then contacted the Department of Water Resources.

A field representative investigated and told him the pollution came from a salt water disposal well and injection well. The problem was referred to the Railroad Commission, which took no action, he said.

Smith said that although the commission issued orders to plug the well in 1976, 1977 and 1978, it was never done.

Jerry Mullican, director of underground injection controls for the Railroad Commission, said the department does not have enough field investigators to cover the number of oil-related pollution complaints received.

"There's been a 100 percent increase in the number of well permits we issued in 1981," he said at the hearing.

He said the 120 field inspectors for 200 counties have more work than they can handle.

Gilbert Kretzschmar, assistant executive director of the Department of Water Resources, said that his department investigates pollution of underground water but the Railroad Commission has authority over anything oil-related.

Most of the landowners testifying said the regulatory power should be in the hands of the Department of Water Resources instead of the commission.

"When you have oil companies that feed money into political kitties, the individual citizen can't fight them," said Jim Batte of Odessa.

But subcommittee members said that argument could be used to criticize any agency.

The hearing was directed by Rep. Gerald Geiftweid of Mason, who said afterward that subcommittee members would go into the fields themselves to see what violations exist. He said the panel would then report on its findings to the Natural Resources Committee.

"What bothers me the most is the seeming insensitivity that the commission has displayed to citizens' complaints," he said.

"The Railroad Commission is an independent agency," he said. "All we can do is cut their funding. We try to pressure them to be responsive. If they refuse there is nothing we can do but say 'John Q. Citizen, you can vote.'"

West 'Out To Clean Up' TV

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona lawmaker Donna Carlson West says she's out to clean up subscription TV with the help of the Citizens For Decency Through Law.

The Republican legislator, who announced her candidacy last week for the U.S. House of Representatives, has introduced a proposal to take what she calls "indecent and obscene" materials off the airways and cables of subscription television.

In particular, Mrs. Carlson West is taking aim at ON-TV and its late night, X-rated films, most of which she believes would be found at least indecent and possibly obscene under the proposed law.

ON operates in metropolitan Phoenix, and has operations in California, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Oregon and Texas.

In addition, said Bruce Taylor, general counsel for Citizens For Decency, the portion of the bill that deals with indecency could be used to knock hard-R's off the airways and cables as well.

Taylor said the bill is patterned after a U.S. Supreme Court decision that designated television and radio as family mediums that enter the home and therefore are subject to community standards of decency as well as obscenity.

ON, however, isn't worried about the bill, a representative said.

"It's our understanding a couple of concerned citizens met with their representative and had a bill submitted," said ON Senior Vice President Hank Sauer. "We don't feel it's going to be passed because the majority of people in markets we serve with late-night programming have the option to purchase or not and those who don't obviously don't see it on the screen."

Another option, Sauer said, is a "lock box" which parents can use to block off the ON channel if they don't want their children to view certain programs.

The bill, however, did not originate with "a couple of concerned citizens," but rather with Citizens For Decency, a nationwide organization headquartered in Phoenix whose sole purpose is to stamp out what it considers to be pornography.

Taylor said a similar law was enacted by the city of Milwaukee, Wis., in 1981 prior to the award of a cable TV contract and is still on the books unchanged.

Arizona will be the test state for enactment of state laws, Taylor said.

Nor do Taylor and Mrs. Carlson West believe that the "community" is a word that can be applied only to ON subscribers.

"The community means the community at large," Taylor said. "Those are the standards you impose because those were the standards applied to adult bookstores" by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"Just because it's paid for does not make something legal. It's the same as prostitution. Giving sex away is okay, but it's illegal to sell it."

Said Mrs. Carlson West, "I know that what's offensive to me may not be offensive to anyone else, but I just don't feel that the moral fiber of the country has to be constantly attacked."

Mrs. Carlson West and Citizens For Decency confirmed that Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., has been persuaded to sponsor similar legislation in Congress.

Junior Scholars Program Working For Gifted Students

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Jennifer Barker will be a sophomore in college by the time she graduates from high school.

Jennifer, a 14-year-old freshman at Irvin High School, is attending one class per semester in college during her high school years.

Jennifer is one of 78 "gifted" students from area junior high and high schools who are enrolled in the University of Texas at El Paso's Junior Scholars program.

"I love it," she said of her prospects of skipping her freshman year in college.

The program is the only one of its kind in Texas, said program director Jan Cavin. She said Texas A&M University and the University of Texas at Austin allow some underage students to take college courses, but the students don't get credit for them at both the college and high school levels.

In UTEP's Junior Scholars program, students are tested through the Scholastic Aptitude Test and those identified as gifted academically are invited to take one class per semester at UTEP.

"The Texas Education Agency's Office of Gifted and Talented Education has asked us to hold a conference on the program for other colleges and universities next fall," Mrs. Cavin said. "With things like that happening, I think that within three years from now you will see a lot of these programs."

The program was begun last fall with 43 students. Mrs. Cavin said all of the school districts in the area, including parochial schools, are participating in the program and giving credit for the college classes the students pass.

Mrs. Cavin said the students, taking one course each, finished the semester with a grade point average of more than 3.6 on a 4.0 scale.

"We didn't have anything I would consider a casualty," she said. "I think of a casualty as someone who tries very hard and doesn't do well. Two kids made F's. But with an overall grade point average above 3.6, you can see most of them were A's."

Not only did the number of students nearly double for the spring semester, Mrs. Cavin now is planning a summer course where students can take courses such as engineering, print and broadcast journalism, desert ecology and entomology. The intensive classes, which are worth full college credit, last only three weeks.

"There are a couple of things to remember about gifted students," Mrs. Cavin said. "One, they like to study intensively. The normal pace is too slow for them. The other is that they need some contact with their own mental peers."

The program, she said, provides both.

"A lot of these kids are one of just a few on their campus," she said. "It's not uncommon for bright kids to be considered weird. And it's not uncommon for bright kids to cover up their intelligence so they will be accepted. We create a peer group of students who are also bright."

"I don't mean to imply the world is filled with dullards," she added. "But most of these kids have IQs of about 130 and up. The average person has an IQ around 100. Below 70 is considered retarded. We would never ask an average kid to act retarded. But we ask a gifted child to act average."

"The problem in high school is that about two or three days into the semester, the teachers have got you pegged as a smart kid," said Jennifer. "After that, they always call on you for the answer rather than calling on other kids. The kids start calling you a brain and teasing you."

Mrs. Cavin said gifted students don't have that problem at UTEP.

"The nice thing about a college campus is that we don't expect anybody to be the same," she said with a smile. "We allow people to be weird."

She said the age differences have gone virtually unnoticed on the campus. "I believe most students don't even know who the junior scholars are."

Junior Scholars who are seniors or juniors in high school fit in best because they are not that far in age from their college classmates.

Erik Barr, a senior at Burges High School, said the calculus classes he is taking at UTEP are giving him an edge for when he attends college next fall.

"I'll know a lot more about university life," the 17-year-old student said. "It's real neat to see how the university system works. I wish they had this program when I was younger."

Erik isn't sure which college he will attend yet, but Mrs. Cavin said there is no pressure on him or other students to attend UTEP.

"We do hope to get more of these kids onto our campus fulltime," she said, "but we're not trying to blackmail them to come to UTEP. Meanwhile, if I put 78 excellent students into our classrooms, I have accomplished something. That's what it is for us — more bright students on campus."

Kathleen Stout, an assistant professor of political science who taught seven junior scholars last semester, said the younger students added to the classes.

"They really shined in comparison to the rest of the class," she said. "You could always count on them to do the reading. One person did every extra credit assignment I offered even though he had a straight A average."

Political science is one of the most popular areas for the junior scholars, although the classes they take range from chemistry and algebra to anthropology and psychology.

"A lot of these kids will say, 'Aw, I don't want to take government twice,' so they'll come out here and take it once and kill two birds with one stone," she said.

Other students take courses that aren't offered by high schools — like calculus and computer science — or courses in fields they are considering as careers.

"Gifted kids have more problems in career planning," Mrs. Cavin said. "They can be equally successful in several different fields. The question becomes not what can I do, but which one would bring me the most long-term satisfaction?"

Not only can the students sort out their futures through the classes, they can get a head start on their college requirements.

"Potentially, they could be well into their junior year of college when they graduate from high school," she said. "It's like a savings account."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, criticized by his challengers for his vote to give up control of the Panama Canal, says the decision has worked out well.

"That one's working," he said. "Today we don't have the riots. We don't have the sabotage and we don't have the people being killed."

Bentsen, D-Texas, defended his vote in answer to a question at the Austin Democratic Forum. His Republican opponents, state Sen. Walter Mengden of Houston and U.S. Rep. Jim Collins, have criticized Bentsen's support of the Panama Canal treaty.

"People said (Panama) was going to be a communist bastion down there," said Bentsen. "Instead it's developed into an international banking center."

"We have full access through that canal and that's what we wanted. That's been guaranteed to us by the additional provisions we put in that treaty," he said.

Bentsen noted his vote was not a popular one. "But you know I don't believe I was sent up there just to exercise what is the popular vote of the moment," he said.

Knights Of Columbus Celebrate 100 Years

The local Catholic Men's Club, Fr. Nathaniel Council of The Knights of Columbus, is joining councils all over the Americas' in celebrating the 100th anniversary of their order. It had its inception in early 1882, at St. Mary's Parish, in New Haven, Conn. A young priest, Fr. Michael J. McGivney, had for several years realized the need for and value of an association which would draw his parishioners closer together.

After exploring several possibilities, he persuaded a small group of young men to join him. After several meetings explaining his ideas and objectives, his small band was moved with enthusiasm and determination.

Simply stated, Fr. McGivney's visions for the future was an organization that had charity as its main purpose. Since so many of his small band were immigrants and young families, the concern for the widows and children was paramount in his plans. He felt that through the practice of unity and fraternity, the main principle of charity, could better be served.

As an outgrowth of this action came the order's life insurance program, which continues to show steady growth.

As the months went by and more men joined, the need of a name for the organization presented itself: Fr. McGivney had always demonstrated his love for America and had a feeling that patriotism had to be present in any man who was to be an outstanding citizen in his community. He was quick to grasp the value of a name which memorialized Christopher of Columbus, The discovery of America and one who shared his faith.

Along with this came the prefix of Knight, signifying the requirements of members having to meet qualifications of training for membership, much as Knights of the Olden times.

Thus, on March 29, 1882, the general assembly of the state of Conn. granted the charter to the Knights of Columbus for the purpose of rendering mutual aid and assistance to its members and their families.

On April 25, 1937, another priest was to realize one of his goals. Fr. Nathaniel Maden S.A., pastor of St. Anthony's parish here at Hereford joined 58 other men in chartering the Hereford council of the Knights of Columbus. This was the 2778th council of the Order to be so chartered.

After the death of Fr. Nathaniel in 1966, this council voted to change its name to the Fr. Nathaniel Council to honor him as its first chaplain. The late John S. Albracht served the council as its first Grand Knight, the president of the local council, so to speak.

The local council has grown to a membership of more than 260 men and still seeks to exemplify those principles of charity, unity, fraternity and patriotism. As a charity project this Sunday, the council has the annual pork roast scheduled at St. Anthony's Parish Hall. Part of the proceeds from this project will go to the Texas Knights of Columbus Council Charity Fund, which administers our deaf childrens program. The public is invited.

Serious Questions Exist About Ag Department's Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new General Accounting Office report says that serious questions exist about the Agriculture Department's system of analyzing and keeping track of exports.

It says two key department agencies, for example, are not wired in as effectively as they should be on the export situation.

"The Foreign Agricultural Service has no system to determine in advance what commodities will be needed or what should be marketed most aggressively," the GAO said.

"A communication problem exists between the Foreign Agricultural Service, which is organized according to commodity, and the USDA Economic Research Service, which gathers and analyzes production data and which is organized according to country."

The analysis was included in a new GAO staff report entitled "Food, Agriculture and Nutrition Issues for Planning. It is intended to help guide members of Congress and other policymakers in planning for the future.

Although the report raised numerous questions about the various issues, only a few casual recommendations were offered. Detailed recommendations would come later in audit reports that will focus on specific issues.

The GAO report coincided with growing concern about U.S. farm exports, expected to total $42.5 billion in the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, down from $43.8 billion in 1980-81.

If the new estimate holds, it will be the first time in more than a dozen years that the U.S. farm export value has dropped.

Block Sets Visit With Farmers

Secretary of Agriculture John Block has announced plans for a "Town Hall Meeting" with High Plains farmers in Lubbock, on Feb. 25. The meeting is scheduled for 8:00 p.m. at the University Center on the Texas Tech campus.

Arrangements for the meeting are being made by a host committee of High Plains agricultural leaders, including: Vern Highley, vice-president of Plains Cotton Cooperative Association; Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.; Elbert Harp, executive director of Grain Sorghum Producers Association; Dr. Bill Ott, resident director of research, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Dr. Sam Curl, Dean of Agriculture, Texas Tech University.

"Secretary Block told us that he wants an opportunity to visit with farmers," stated GSPA Executive Director Elbert Harp. "This meeting is being planned to allow time for questions, answers and discussion. Farmers are encouraged to attend."

the importance of agricultural exports to the farm economy and to the U.S. trade balance. The Reagan administration, it said, can be expected "to vigorously pursue" expanded farm exports.

But the GAO said the surge in exports has coincided with a 100 percent increase in food prices since 1967 "as well as several dramatic market intervention actions by the federal government, including imposition of export controls, negotiation of international commodity agreements, and negotiation of a bilateral trade agreement with China."

Those actions, the report said, have "significantly influenced domestic supply and

Holly's Harper Is Promoted

Leo Harper, factory manager at Holly Sugar's Hereford plant has assumed the position of Safety and Sanitation Director of the corporation.

He will be based in the corporation's headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo. His new assignment will include coordination of safety and sanitation programs with particular emphasis on safety.

Harper is succeeded by Gene Allen, former assistant factory manager of processing at Tracy, Calif.

Holly Sugar has also announced promotions of four corporate officials.

John A. Richmond, former general chemist, has been named Director of Technical Services.

John M. Toth was appointed to the office of Assistant Controller and Director of Corporate Accounting. Prior to his promotion he was tax manager and special projects accountant.

prices as well as our foreign economic objectives."

"Critics charge that there is not sufficient appreciation by policymakers of the link between domestic and foreign food and agricultural policy," it said. "They offer little hope of the Reagan administration's alleviating the dichotomy."

The GAO said that the critical importance of farm exports is offset to some degree by increasing concerns about the "greater strain on U.S. resources such as soil and water."

In view of the growing dependence on U.S. farm exports — by other countries as well — it "is important to know whether the United States can maintain strong Today 33 4-H members and 44 Future Farmers of America will begin showing at the 1982 Houston Livestock Show. Their stock will be among 29,000 entries at the show.

NOTICE ON LIVESTOCK BRANDS
March 1, 1982 is the deadline for re-registering livestock brands and marks, as required by state law. Article 6899j, V.T.C.S. requires that all marks and brands registered prior to Aug. 30, 1981, must be re-registered within six months of that date, and that the re-registration process must be repeated at subsequent 10-year intervals for then-current owners. The act further states that brands and marks not recorded with the county clerk and re-registered during the required period "shall no longer have any force or effect." The act became effective Aug. 30, 1971, and brands are to be re-registered every 10 years.

Are you ready to work to get your business making a profit again? Come to the Concerned Citizens Meeting Monday night at 7:30 at the Community Center and let's go to work.

We will be planning a caravan to Lubbock Feb. 25 to talk to Secretary of Agriculture John Block!

Every concerned citizen is invited and urged to attend.

Kochia Production Meeting Will be Conducted in Amarillo Feb. 25

A Kochia production meeting to be held February 25, at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Amarillo, has been announced by Jimmie D. Walker, Oldham County Extension agent.

Located at 6500 Amarillo Blvd., West, Amarillo, Texas, the meeting will begin at 6:00 p.m. and will conclude at 9:30 p.m. This program is sponsored by the Oldham County Agriculture Subcommittee.

Walker stated that seven speakers will discuss production practices including irrigation and dryland methods for both grazing and hay. He said, "When managed properly, and considering drought resistance, disease control, insect control, weed control and cultivation costs, I do not know of any other crop or forage used in a cattle operation that will return a net profit per acre as will Kochia." "But, it is no different from any other crop, management is the key word," he continued.

Among speakers will be: Dr. H.D. Fuehring, agronomist at New Mexico State University Plains

Branch Station; Cliff Skiles, DVM, Hereford, Texas; and Larry Hollis, DVM, Head of Diagnostic Services, Texas A&M Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory, Amarillo.

Also four producers will report on their experiences and share their data resulting from Kochia.

Walker stated, "Kochia interest has really boomed in our five state area. I personally feel we can recommend it if the producer learns as much as he can, begins on a small scale and increases as his confidence does. It really scares me to think someone might plant a large acreage, dump a bunch of cattle out and in six months, wish he had never heard of Kochia. Collectively, we have learned many do's and don'ts but we are still learning. This meeting is meant to help others and share where we are. With today's economy, Kochia might really be the answer to help many producers."

For more information, please contact Jimmie D. Walker, County Extension Agent, Box 380, Vega, Texas 79092 or call (806)267-2692.

Water Level Change Slight

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District has completed its annual program of measuring depth-to-water levels in the 89 wells in Deaf Smith County. These wells are part of a network of more than 950 observation wells scattered throughout the District's 15-county service area.

Dan Seale was able to complete 83 measurements of 'static' water levels in observation wells and tag them with the District's red identification sticker for owner information.

"I visited with several irrigators in the field who wanted to know what their water's doing," said Dan. "We have the initial results for each County, but tabulated data on the entire observation network readings is not expected to be complete until mid-year."

Deaf Smith County's 1981-1982 depth-to-water table below surface minimum reading was at 53.94 feet, and the maximum level read was at 341.40 feet. This year's average change in depths-to-water in the county was -0.76 of a foot, which compares with a 1980-1981 county reading of -1.42 feet. Comparing the rate of change calculated this year for these wells shows a minimum decline change of plus 4.43 feet and a maximum decline change of -5.92 feet.

The Water District keeps a record of annual decline and rate of change going back to 1962. The data is used for making projections of decline rate, for determining the amount of water left in storage, and as a basis for the income-tax depletion allowance claims on landowner's tax returns.

AUSTIN—Texas sheep and lamb losses for 1981 were down 8 percent from last year, with 130,000 sheep losses and 110,000 lamb losses. Goat and kid losses were estimated at 95,000 with Angora goats accounting for 65,000 of the total number lost, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reports.

Predators continue to be the major cause of losses

National FFA Week To Be Observed Here

The Hereford chapter of Future Farmers of America will join nearly 8,500 chapters across the nation in celebrating National FFA Week starting today.

Kevin Kelly, Hereford FFA president, said announcements will be made next week for plans of the chapter's community activities. FFA students will be wearing the blue and gold jackets all during the week.

Farmers Getting Back to Land Preparations

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Farmers in South Texas are starting to plant grain sorghum to officially kick off the 1982 crop season. Planting in that region and in the Coastal Bend should increase in the coming days as soil temperatures continue to warm up but lack of planting moisture may cause some delays, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Many farmers are ready to plant in southern and coastal areas but need moisture to get their crops up, he said. Land preparation continues in other areas along with some preplant irrigation in the Trans-Pecos area.

Soil temperatures are warming up rapidly in southern locations but are still cool elsewhere. Readings by the National Weather Service for the past week at the 4-inch depth averaged as follows: Austin, 45 degrees F.; Eagle Lake, 50; Katy, 50; Beaumont, 53; Victoria, 53; Corpus Christi, 63; Dilley, 64; Uvalde, 54; and Weslaco, 61. Extension Service recommendations are to wait for soil temperatures to reach at least 50 degrees before planting corn, 55 for grain sorghum and 65 for cotton to improve germination.

A few gins are still handling modulated cotton in the Trans-Pecos and South Plains areas where a lot of cotton was field-stored in modules to enable faster harvesting, Pfannstiel said.

Harvesting of sugarcane, citrus and a variety of winter vegetables continues in the Rio Grande Valley, and vegetable harvesting also remains active in the Winter Garden. The citrus market has strengthened considerably in Texas following the damaging freeze to Florida's citrus crop in mid-January.

Small grains and winter pastures continue to show the effects of the recent harsh winter weather that blanketed the state. Also, dry conditions are hampering growth throughout most of Texas.

Livestock remain in fair to good condition due to heavy supplemental feeding. However, weight losses are evident in many animals due to the recent severe winter weather, said Pfannstiel.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Farmers are getting back to land preparation following several weeks of harsh winter weather. Wheat growth remains at a standstill due to cold, dry conditions. Cattle feeding remains heavy and conditions have been poor for gains in feedlot cattle.

SOUTH PLAINS: A little modulated cotton is still being ginned. Farmers are getting ready for full-scale land preparation. Wheat continues in a dormant state due to recent cold weather. Livestock feeding continues heavy.

ROLLING PLAINS: Recent cold weather and lack of moisture have kept small grains at a standstill. Greenbugs are also causing some damage. Farmers are top-dressing small grains with nitrogen but rain will be needed to boost growth. Cotton farmers are busy chiseling and deep plowing their land in preparation for spring planting. Livestock feeding continues.

NORTH CENTRAL: Small grains remain at a standstill due to recent cold weather. Freeze damage was heavy in some oats. Some gardeners are planting early vegetables such as onions and potatoes. Livestock are in fair to good condition, with supplemental feeding heavy.

NORTHEAST: Farmers need dry, open weather to continue preparing land for spring crops. Small grains also would benefit from open weather. Some oats suffered heavy freeze damage during the recent cold spell. Some early vegetables as well as fruit and nut trees are being planted. Livestock continue to hold up well as supplemental feeding continues.

FAR WEST: Some ginning of modulated cotton continues; labor and machinery problems have caused delays. Cropland preparation continues. Irrigated small grains look good but others along with pastures and ranges need rain. Supplemental feeding remains active, with livestock generally in good condition.

WEST CENTRAL: Small grains are suffering from lack of moisture and the recent cold weather. Greenbugs and armyworms are also infesting some fields. Livestock remain in fair to good condition with heavy supplemental feeding. Lambing, calving and goat shearing are under way.

CENTRAL: Dry conditions continue to hamper small grains, and greenbugs and winter grain mites are building up in some fields. Some land preparation continues although most farmers have their cropland ready for planting. Livestock are in fair shape with heavy supplemental feeding.

EAST: Wheat and other small grains look good in most counties and pastures are fair. Livestock continue to receive a lot of supplemental feed; calving is heavy. Gardeners and truck farmers are planting onions and potatoes.

UPPER COAST: Farmers are busy getting cropland in shape for spring planting. Recent warmer weather has helped winter pastures. Livestock feeding continues in full swing. Crawfish harvesting continues in Orange and several other counties.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Land preparation is active throughout the area as farmers get ready for the coming crop season. Gardeners are planting such early vegetables as onions and potatoes. Small grains are benefiting from warmer weather but need rain in some counties to boost growth. Livestock remain in good shape with feeding active.

SOUTHWEST: Wheat and range grasses are making little growth due to lack of moisture. This lack of grazing has caused livestock conditions to decline despite heavy supplemental feeding. Farmers are preparing cropland for spring planting.

COASTAL BEND: Farmers are concerned about lack of moisture as spring planting time looms ahead. Small grains, pastures and ranges all need rain. Cattle feeding continues; the calf crop looks good.

SOUTH: Farmers have started planting dryland grain sorghum. Moisture is needed for planting as well as for pastures and ranges. Harvesting of sugarcane, citrus, cabbage, celery, broccoli and carrots continues. The citrus market has strengthened considerably, due to poor grazing conditions. Livestock feeding is active.

Paggi Named As Market Economist

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, has appointed Dr. Mechel S. Paggi as economist in marketing to give leadership to educational programs in international trade and transportation of agricultural products.

Paggi will be headquartered in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Texas A&M University, beginning Feb. 16.

Paggi will be working with the Texas Agricultural Market Research and Development Center at Texas A&M in this effort and will also provide training and teaching materials for county Extension agents and agricultural leaders and organizations.

Paggi has been with the Texas Research and Development Foundation in Austin for the past year-and-a-half. He also worked as a research associate in the A&M Department of Agricultural Economics for three years and taught economics at the University of Arkansas for two years.

A native of Beaumont, Paggi holds a B.B.A. degree from the University of Texas and has an M.S. degree in economics from North Texas State University. He recently received a Ph.D. degree in agricultural economics at Texas A&M.

Too Much Water Leads to Bloat in Wheat Pasture Forage

BUSHLAND -- Wheat pasture forage with a high percentage of water leads to frothy bloat and grass tetany.

Dr. B.A. Stewart, Soil Scientist at the USDA Conservation and Production Research laboratory at Bushland, and three other researchers determined this in a three-year study in Texas and Oklahoma.

Frothy bloat and grass tetany usually cause 2 to 3 percent death losses on wheat pasture on the Southern Great Plains. This is bad enough, but sometimes losses jump up to 20 percent.

Stewart says most severe losses occur in the spring after a cold winter when the soil is wet and temperatures rise fast. Under these conditions, wheat plants take up a lot of water and nutrients.

This increases the level of potassium in the forage to above normal levels, which can cause grass tetany. The percentage of carbohydrates decreases, which in turn increases chances of bloat.

Stewart and his USDA co-workers, Drs. D.L. Grunes, Ithaca, New York, A.C. Mathers, Bushland, Texas, and F.P. Horn, El Reno, Oklahoma, determined nitrogen (N), potassium (K), calcium (Ca), magnesium (Mg), phosphorus (P) and total nonstructural carbohydrates in wheat pasture forage at Bushland, Texas, and El Reno, Oklahoma, for three winters during the mid-70's. They found that N, P, K, and water content of forages increased about 2 weeks earlier than growth in increased yield of dry matter.

This condition was at its worst at El Reno during the spring of 1978. The winter had been so wet and cold that forage samples could not be collected from January 12 to March 14. Then it warmed rapidly, causing ideal growing conditions. The N and K in the forage increased dramatically. The K increased from 2 to 4.5 percent in 2 weeks. Unfortunately, Mg and Ca did not increase rapidly. This increased the ratio of K to Ca and Mg up to 5.0, which is very hazardous to lactating cows. Ratios above 2.2 are considered dangerous, according to Stewart.

The scientists found also that N in forage increased rapidly under these conditions. High nitrogen in forage leads to increased concentration of fatty acids. This causes foam formation in the rumen, which results in bloat.

In looking over all of their data, the scientists noticed a common denominator. When conditions leading to grass tetany or bloat came about, wheat forage contained a high percentage of water. In other words, measuring dry matter in the forage would be a good indicator for the hazard of grass tetany and bloat.

Although studies were not conclusive, Stewart and the other scientists think that wheat forage that has at least 25 percent dry matter is safe. There is some hazard when dry matter ranges from 18 to 25 percent. If dry matter drops below 18 percent, there is a good chance that bloat and grass tetany will be a problem.

AUSTIN—The Texas goat inventory is up, and for the first time since 1966 the number of stock sheep in Texas is on the rise, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reports.

Forest Management Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says some changes are needed in the way the nation's public forests and their wildlife are managed.

Block said Tuesday the proposed changes will "clarify and simplify" methods of managing the 191 million acres under the jurisdiction of the Forest Service, an agency of the Agriculture Department.

But a lawyer for a leading environmental group said the changes as proposed would be a set-back for many wildlife species which now are protected by the agency's regulations and would open the door wider to more timber cutting in the West.

Block said the current regulations which guide the management system were issued in September 1979 and were required by Congress in the National Forest Management Act of 1976.

The regulations were selected last March by the Presidential Task Force on Regulatory Relief "for reassessment and possible modification" because of their length and complexity, he said.

Thomas D. Lustig, an attorney with the National Wildlife Federation, said the proposal "cuts the environmental safety net or at least frays it a little."

The old regulations, he said, require that the Forest Service maintain or improve the habitats of a number of "management indicator species" such as those that are threatened or endangered, as well as a number of others that have been specified by the agency.

Under the proposal, he said, that no longer would be mandatory.

"It takes away from wildlife with one hand and on the other it kind of gives to the timber interests," Lustig said.

Ice three inches thick will support one man on foot. Seven and a half inches will hold an automobile. A foot of ice will sustain a small truck.

Thorpe to Appear At Beef O'Rama

FORT WORTH — Topper Thorpe, General Manager, Cattle-Fax, Denver, Colorado, will be the principal luncheon speaker at the 1982 New World of Agriculture, March 5, on opening day of the Southwest Farm Show.

Entitled "Beef O'Rama '82," the program will begin at 9:00 a.m. with registration and complimentary coffee for those attending.

Frates Seeligson, incoming president, Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, San Antonio, will act as Master of Ceremonies on the program, which is designed to update livestock producers on the latest techniques in profitable production.

Dr. Zerie L. Carpenter, Head, Department of Animal Science, Texas A&M University, will speak on "Quality Beef for the Future," and will cover new carcass grades, new meat processing, new meat products and consumer demands.

Reproduction Techniques for the '80s will be covered by Dr. John Beverly, livestock reproduction specialist, Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

Dr. Don Wagner, animal scientist from Oklahoma State University, will discuss "Beef Nutrition for the '80s," and will cover new trends in nutrition, feed additives, and new feed products.

"Beef Promotion Goes Prime Time" will be the subject of a presentation by Hilmar G. Moore, Past President, Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association from Richmond.

Other features of the Southwest Farm Show include the state beef cook-off sponsored by the CowBelles on March 5, the state Future Farmers of America tractor mechanics contest and a natural fibers fashion review on March 6.

Registration for the seminar is available through the local Extension office. Tickets for the Tractor pulls are available from the office at Box 5423, Arlington, Texas 76011.

Farm Exports May Decline This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — After setting value records for 12 consecutive years, U.S. farm exports are expected to decline in 1981-82, says the Agriculture Department.

"Export volume may increase about 4 percent to 169 million metric tons, but lower prices for most major products will likely reduce the value to around $42.5 billion," officials said Tuesday.

In the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, farm exports rose to a record $43.8 billion. Last fall, department experts predicted a further rise this year to $45.5 billion.

But sagging commodity prices dampened the optimism and by late January the decline was indicated after October-December export figures were reported — a decline of 4 percent from the same three months a year earlier.

Looking at what happened during the first quarter, the latest report said "sharply lower feed grain shipments offset volume gains for soybeans, wheat and most other products."

Export prices also were lower for most items except tobacco and some fruits and vegetables," the report said. "Weakened export demand is most evident for corn. Despite abundant supplies and lower prices, first-quarter volume fell 25 percent from a year earlier."

Wheat Growers Voice Objections

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Wheat Growers says a decision by the Agriculture Department to suspend grain storage facility loans will "undermine efforts to improve farm income" this year.

Wayne Nelson, president of the association and a South Dakota wheat farmer, expressed his objections Wednesday in a letter to Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

On Feb. 8, state and county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service were told to stop making storage facility loans "until further notice."

Congress last year gave discretionary authority to the secretary of agriculture to operate the loan program, but required that loans be offered in areas where storage capacity was inadequate.

Nelson said "the farm facility loan program must function as a companion" to the farmer-owned grain reserve program under which producers can store crops until market demands improve.

The department's plan is to hold down on storage loans, gradually phasing out the program over the next few years.

Nelson said limiting the access of farmers to the program "will measurably affect interest in the farmer-owned reserve program and will reduce potential participation in the 1982 acreage reduction program."

USDA, Red Cross Team Up for Course

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department plans to team with the American Red Cross "to develop a nutrition course for the general public."

Officials said Wednesday the course would be taught nationwide through some 3,000 local Red Cross chapters, beginning on "a limited scale" this fall. Final development will be in the fall of 1983.

The course will consist of six, 2-hour sessions "covering such topics as current concepts in nutrition, health and fitness, food composition, energy balance and nutrition adequacy," they said. Qualified volunteer instructors will be recruited through the Red Cross instructor training program.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block called the project "a successful collaboration between the federal government and the private sector."

Tech Plant Judging Team Ranks High

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech University placed second in team events and took the top two individual honors at the International Plant Judging Contest Feb. 7 in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. The contest was sponsored by the International Society for Range Management.

Top honors in team events went to New Mexico State University students with 2,797 points out of a possible 3,000. Texas Tech placed second with 2,781 points and Antonio Narro University of Saltillo, Mexico, was third with 2,767 points.

Texas Tech's David Boling was first place overall in individual scoring with 968 points out of a possible 1,000. His teammate, Greg Huber, came in second with 965 points.

Cotton Farmers Due Payments

COLLEGE STATION — Texas cotton farmers will be getting almost $200 million in deficiency payments for their 1981 Upland cotton crop because of poor market prices.

The payments are part of an estimated $530 million to be paid to cotton farmers across the U.S. Texas farmers normally produce 35 to 40 percent of the nation's Upland cotton.

"This is the first time ever for cotton farmers to receive deficiency payments," points out Dr. Carl Anderson, cotton marketing economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"The framework for deficiency payments was set up by farm legislation in 1974," notes Anderson. "But it had not been necessary to issue deficiency payments until the 1981 crop when a record world crop and weak demand drove cotton prices below target (support) prices."

U.S. cotton farmers received an average price of 63.20 cents a pound during the 1981 market year compared to the target price of 70.87 cents per pound. That means that eligible producers who reported their 1981 crop acreage and filed an application for payment will receive 7.67 cents a pound, says the economist.

"Payment will be based on last year's planted acreage multiplied by the payment yield for each farm as determined by the local ASCS office," explains Anderson.

Payments to growers who increased their 1981 acreage from the previous year will be reduced to reflect a 93 percent allocation factor, he adds.

Last-Second Bucket Lifts Whitefaces Over LHS, 59-58

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
When John Keating was whistled for an offensive foul with just 10 seconds left on the clock and the Lubbock High Westerners holding a 58-57 lead at the La Plata gym

Gretzky Snaps Scoring Mark

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Wayne Gretzky, Edmonton's 21-year-old scoring whiz, bettered his own National Hockey League single-season record of 164 points Friday night.

Gretzky collected four points by the 11:28 mark of the second period in the Oilers' game against the Hartford Whalers, giving him 165 points, one more than the mark he set last year.

Gretzky got a goal and an assist in the first period of the game against the Hartford Whalers. He set up Glenn Anderson for Edmonton's first goal and then scored himself on a breakaway at 18:36 to give the Oilers a 2-1 lead. The goal, his 73rd of the season, came on a power play.

Gretzky tied the point record at 1:42 of the second period on another power play. He took the puck on a 2-on-1 break and waited until the perfect moment to pass to Jari Kurri, who scored easily. Gretzky had two breakaways called back by offsides infractions but there was no doubt about his 165th point and 74th goal at 11:28. He took a return pass from Kurri on another 2-on-1 break, froze Hartford goalie Greg Millen with a fake slapshot and whipped a shot along the ice into the opposite corner of the net.

That gave Edmonton a 4-1 lead and left Gretzky just two goals short of the record of 76 set by Boston's Phil Esposito in 1970-71.

Wayne Gretzky

Friday night, the 5-10 junior probably felt lower than the dust on the bottom of his sneakers.

But, Keating went from goat to giant 18 ticks later when his 20-foot jumper from the baseline went through the net, giving the Whitefaces a tense 59-58 win over LHS.

Keating's pressure-packed shot followed two missed opportunities by the Westerners to ice the game away. The first came after Keating's foul gave LHS the ball and the Herd's Alan Wartes was forced to foul Lubbock's Leroy Mitchell with 10 ticks left. Mitchell, who had been four-of-four from the charity stripe up to that point, missed the one-and-one chance, however.

HHS coach Bobby Decker used his final two time outs before Mitchell finally was handed the ball at the line, and the Herd mentor set up the final play for the 'Faces.

Hereford looked like the final play might never materialize, however, when LHS' John Frankhouser rebounded Mitchell's missed free throw, and was fouled by Hereford's Don Delozier with eight seconds remaining.

But, Frankhouser also missed his one-and-one opportunity, and HHS leaper Wayne High grabbed the carom, pitching an outlet pass to Wartes.

Wartes, who finished with 15 points on the night, drove just past midcourt and found Keating alone in the corner for the final shot.

The Westerners looked like they might make a runaway of the contest in the second quarter as the visitors came off a 14-12 lead after the first period and built up as much as a 9-point lead over the Herd.

Mike Hill's driving layup with 2:16 left in the half gave LHS a 30-21 lead, but the Whitefaces cut the lead to five points before the buzzer sounded.

Gary Long hit a pair of free throws with 1:22 left, and Steve Welch followed two misses by teammates to bank in a short jumper with 18 seconds left before intermission to make it a 30-25 ballgame.

The deficit was almost cut even smaller at the buzzer, but a 30-foot attempt by Long bounced off the back of the rim as time expired.

Wartes took command for the Herd in the third quarter, hitting nine points as the 'Faces cut the lead to one point (47-46), and the teams headed into the final eight minutes of play. Another desperation shot, this time by Keating, bounced off the rim as the buzzer sounded for the period.

The teams traded points through the early moments of the fourth quarter before High's 5-footer gave the Herd only its fourth lead of the night at 57-56 with 2:45 left, and Decker called a time out to set up a semi-delay game by the Whitefaces.

A Wartes pass was tipped into the hands of Lubbock's Keenan Roberts at the 1:33 mark, and Hill's 20-foot jumper with 50 seconds left set the stage for the hectic final seconds of play.

High led the Herd in the game with 16 points as Wartes added 15 and Long scored 14. Keating closed out the game with four points, as did Delozier and Welch.

Hill's 15 led Lubbock High, while Mitchell and Roberts each tallied 12 points.

The win lifted the Herd's District 4-5A record to 3-4, and was their third loop win in the last four games. The Whitefaces upped their season mark to 7-21, while Lubbock fell to 3-4 in the loop with the loss.

The win also avenged a 49-47 loss to the Westerners during the first half of district play for the Herd.

The junior varsity and sophomore teams completed a three-game sweep for HHS Friday, with the Herd JV claiming a 55-44 win behind a 17-point outburst by Terry Shelton, and the sophs taking a 36-29 decision behind Greg Reinaur's 15 points.

The Whitefaces close out the cage season Monday night in Lubbock against the Monterey Plainsmen. The JV game will begin at 4 p.m. at the MHS gym, with the varsity game moved up to 6 p.m. There will be no sophomore game that night.

Mizlou, ESPN to Televisize Seven Bowl Games This Fall

The Mizlou Television Network, Inc., and ESPN, the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network, have entered into an agreement by which they will simultaneously televise several sporting events in 1982. Among those events are seven college football bowl games: the Bluebonnet, California, Garden State, Hall of Fame, Holiday, Independence, and Tangerine. The one-year agreement (with options) also involves possible simulcasts of LPGA golf, auto racing, and other major sports competition.

Mizlou President, Vincent C. "Vic" Piano, said: "I'm excited about the marriage of two organizations that share the same feeling with regard to quality family-oriented programming. We are delighted to be involved with ESPN. We feel that its growth in a short time is attributed to their quality personnel with network experience."

Robert M. Gutkowski, ESPN Vice-President, Programming, said: "This agreement with an established network like Mizlou enables both organizations to provide quality college football programming to a greater audience."

ESPN President and Chief Executive Officer Chester R. Simmons said: "As the network exclusively dedicated to sports, our agreement with Mizlou becomes another major step in providing our viewers with the best available programming around the clock."

Mizlou, a syndicated network which celebrates its 20th anniversary this year, was the first network to televise the Peach Bowl, the Fiesta Bowl and the Blue-Gray game before the rights were acquired by broadcast networks. Other major events carried by Mizlou in the past include the NIT basketball finals, the Millrose Games and World Championship Tennis (the latter is now carried by ESPN).

Oilers Set Exhibition Schedule

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers will play three of four preseason games at home in 1982, the club announced Friday.

The Oilers will open the preseason against New Orleans Aug. 12. Other home games are with the New York Jets Aug. 21 and Tampa Bay Aug. 28.

Houston will wind up the preseason against Dallas in Texas Stadium Sept. 4.

The New Orleans game is on a Thursday and will a 7 p.m. kickoff scheduled. All the other games are set to begin at 8 p.m. on Saturdays.

Cowboys Open With Buffalo

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys open their 1982 preseason National Football League schedule Aug. 14 against the Buffalo Bills in Texas Stadium, the team announced Friday.

The other preseason games have the Cowboys at San Diego to play the Chargers Aug. 21 and at home against the New England Patriots Aug. 28 and the Houston Oilers Sept. 4.

All of the games are on Saturday nights, with kickoff times set for 8 p.m. Dallas time.

The Cowboys' regular season home opponents will be Philadelphia, the New York Giants, St. Louis, Washington, Tampa Bay, New Orleans, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. The dates for those games will be released in April by the NFL.

Marathon Set in Hobbs

Plans for the third annual Golden Yucca Marathon to be held on the campus of College of the Southwest in Hobbs, N.M. Saturday, April 17 are shaping up, according to race director Steve McCleery.

The marathon and its two companion races, an 8.6 mile and a 3 mile, are open to men and women and will begin at 7 a.m. MST.

New this year is another race: the 3 mile family run in which two members from the same family run the three mile race, and the lowest combined time wins.

McCleery is being assisted in planning this year's events by his race committee which includes CSW staff members Diane Carter, Jim Ravanelli, and Sheryl Stanley; student Dan Zeller; and Hobbs runners Gary Britt, John Carter, and Mike Casey.

The marathon course is a flat, paved course which never crosses an intersection. From a starting point on the CSW campus, runners will go north on the Lovington Highway, turn east on Kansas to Knowles Road; turn south to College Lane; turn west on College Lane and go back to the Lovington Highway; then north to the campus. Runners will circle back inside the campus and then start the second lap. Three laps must be run to complete the 26 mile, 385 yard course. The 8.6 mile race will follow the same course for one lap.

Runners will be given mile splits every three miles. Refreshments, first aid, and comfort stations will also be located at three mile intervals throughout the course.

Registration for the race will be held at the Mabee Physical Fitness Center from 5-8 p.m. on Friday, April 16 and from 5:30-6:30 a.m. Saturday morning, April 17. All runners must pick up race packets, entry numbers, and t-shirts at these times, regardless of whether they have already registered by mail or not. Runners will be able to use the dressing rooms in the Mabee Physical Fitness Center but must furnish their own towels.

Entry fees are $7 per person if registered by April 16 and $9 if runner registers the day of the race. All entrants will receive an official Golden Yucca t-shirt. All finishers will receive a certificate noting their time in their respective races.

Awards will be presented to the top three finishers in each of 26 divisions. Breakdowns are as follows:

Marathon-Men's Division: 17 and under; 18-29; 30-39; 40-49; and 50 and over. Women's Division-Open.

Eight Miles - Men's Division: 17 and under; 18-29; 30-39; 40-49; and 50 and over. Women's Division: 17 and under; 18-24; 25-36; and 37 and over.

Three miles-Men's Division: 14 and under; 15-18; 19-29; 30-39; 40-49; and 50 and over. Women's Division: 14 and under; 15-18; 19-29; 30-39; 40-49; and 50 and over.

Anyone who would like to enter the race can request an entry blank by writing College of the Southwest, Lovington Highway, Hobbs NM 88240 or by calling 505-392-6561.

Johnson Trio Propels Kings Over Clippers

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Kings weren't in the best of shape when all they had was Johnson (Steve) & Johnson (Eddie). It turned out what they really needed was another Johnson.

Newly acquired Reggie Johnson came off the bench to score a career-high 27 points and pull down six rebounds as the Kings trounced the San Diego Clippers 113-97 Friday night and climbed out of the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division cellar. Johnson, acquired in a trade earlier this week with Cleveland, scored 12 points in the third quarter.

Reggie King added 15 points, Steve Johnson 14 - plus a game-high 10 rebounds - and Ernie Grunfeld 13 to help the Kings to their second straight victory. After trailing by as many as six points in the first quarter, the Kings outscored San Diego 19-4 in the first six minutes of the second period to open up a 44-30 lead.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Bucks whipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 106-88, the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Utah Jazz 132-117, the Houston Rockets cooled off the New Jersey Nets 103-96, the San Antonio Spurs shaded the Denver Nuggets 126-121, the Los Angeles Lakers swamped the Golden State Warriors 126-106, the Boston Celtics beat the Portland Trail Blazers 127-117, the Atlanta Hawks outlasted the Seattle SuperSonics 127-122 in four overtimes and the Phoenix Suns trimmed the New York Knicks 104-90.

Bucks, 106, Cavaliers 88
Sidney Moncrief scored all of his 26 points in the first three periods, helping Milwaukee extend its winning streak to 11 games, longest of the NBA season. The Cavaliers have lost seven in a row. Brian Winters, who scored 10 of his 20 points in the final quarter, made three straight baskets early in the period as the Bucks pulled away from an 80-73 third-quarter lead.

76ers 132, Jazz 117
Julius Erving scored 24 points and Maurice Cheeks added 19 as Philadelphia rolled to its eighth consecutive victory. Utah's Adrian Dantley scored 35 points and Darrell Griffith had 34, a season high, but the Sixers broke open a close contest by scoring 16 points in the first four minutes of the final period, while holding Utah to only a field goal by Griffith.

Rockets 106, Nets 96
Red-hot Moses Malone scored 34 points, including three in a pivotal final-quarter spurt, helping Houston to its 10th victory in the last 11 games. The Nets led 87-81 with 7:36 left when the Rockets began a 14-2 burst.

Malone had plenty of help from Robert Reid, who held New Jersey's high-scoring Ray Williams to 13 points.

Spurs 126, Nuggets 121
George Gervin followed up a 49-point effort in his previous game with 38 more and gmike Mitchell added 27 as San Antonio held off a frantic Denver rally and posted its fourth straight victory. The Spurs had a 118-105 lead with five minutes left, but the Nuggets then went on a 12-1 tear and pulled within 119-117.

Lakers 126, Warriors 106
Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored 26 points, Jamaal

Wilkes added 24 and Bob McAdoo had 22 for Los Angeles, which put the game out of reach by scoring eight consecutive points late in the third quarter for a 73-56 advantage.

Celtics 127, Trail Blazers 117
Four Celtics scored more than 20 points each and Larry Bird hit key points in the closing minutes after 22 ties and 14 lead changes. Bird, in addition to his 25 points, had 12 assists and three steals.

Hawks 127, SuperSonics 122
Eddie Johnson scored 34 points and John Drew added

31 as Atlanta snapped Seattle's 10-game home court winning streak and dropped the Sonics into second place in the Pacific Division, one game behind Los Angeles.

Drew scored 18 of his points after regulation play before fouling out in the fourth overtime, playing most of the overtimes with a dislocated finger on his shooting hand.

Mary Tabb Shatters Women's Mile Record

By NORM CLARKE AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mary Decker Tabb ran the fastest official women's mile ever, indoors or outdoors, a time of 4 minutes, 20.5 seconds, in Friday night's San Diego Jack in The Box Invitational indoor track meet.

Decker Tabb's time shaved 1.2 seconds off her own previous world best clocking on the boards, set last week. She also was faster than the outdoor world record of 4:20.89 set by the Soviet Union's Lyudmila Veselkova in 1981.

Decker Tabb had run a 4:17.55 mile indoors two years ago, but it was not recognized because it was run on the Houston Astrodome's oversized track.

Never threatened, Decker Tabb had a 12-second margin of victory over runner-up Francie Larrieu Friday night.

Also in the meet at the San Diego Sports Arena, Willie Banks turned in the best triple jump ever indoors, but an apparent world standard by Evelyn Ashford in the women's 60-yard dash was wiped out by a timing malfunction.

A fourth world best was set when Billy Olson, continuing his incredible indoor season, cleared 18-9½ in the pole vault. That bettered his recently established mark of 18-9¼. Olson attempted to become the first athlete ever to clear 19 feet indoors, but missed three attempts at 19-0¼.

Ashford seemed to shatter the world indoor mark in the women's dash with a clocking of 6.48 seconds in a controversial race that saw half the field pull up early, apparently thinking it was a false start. Meet officials initially said the race would be rerun, but moments later announced the results as official.

But, after an hour's delay, they changed their minds and said the time was not official because of a "malfunction between the starter and the timer."

Banks, coming back from an injury that impeded his workouts, soared 57-1¼ to better the world best of 56-8½ set by the Soviet Union's Gennady Valuykevich in 1979. Banks achieved the mark on the fourth of six jumps and did it without much competition.

John Walker of New Zealand won the men's mile in 3:52.8, the second best time indoors this year. Tom Byers was second at 3:53.6 and Ireland's Ray Flynn third at 3:54.1.

In the women's high jump, Debbie Brill, who last week lost her indoor world record when Colleen Reinstra went 6 feet, 6¾ inches, won for the fourth time this season, defeating Reinstra. Both cleared 6-2¾, but Brill was declared the winner based on fewer misses.

Larry Myricks, owner of the meet record in the long jump at 27-6, was an easy winner at 26-7¾. Ed Tave was second at 24-3, and Scott Countryman placed third at 22-9.

division, said.

"You still can't kill spiked bucks in three counties, even though we spent a quarter of a million dollars proving they're inferior animals," Clark said.

A spiked buck is a male deer with underdeveloped antlers, an indication of genetic or nutritional deficiencies.

Clark said the agency has instituted a spring turkey hunting season, after the birds' breeding season is over, but that ten counties in the midst of the turkeys' habitat have vetoed the idea.

"So we're wasting thousands of gobblers," Clark said.

Varying fishing restrictions from county to county confuse fishermen, Kemp said. "If you have a book of the laws, it's easy to comply," he said, "but we have not made it easy for the public to obey the law."

Subcommittee Chairman Fred Agnich, D-Dallas, suggested dividing the state into "wildlife management areas" instead of leaving the current county-by-county system.

"A deer doesn't know a county line," Agnich said.

Wildlife Laws Said Confusing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' hodge-podge of wildlife laws is resulting in confused fishermen, inferior deer and too many turkeys, a legislative panel considering eliminating most local-option hunting and fishing laws was told.

Officials of the state Parks & Wildlife Department complained to the House Subcommittee on the Uniform Regulatory Act Friday that the local-option nature of wildlife regulations is keeping them from doing their job.

Fisheries Division Director Bob Kemp told the panel that county lines sometimes divide rivers, precluding effective management of fish. He said a rule against netting on the Trinity River was enforceable in Houston County, but not Leon County, across the river.

"You can't regulate a fishery where one side of the river has one set of rules and the other side another set of rules," Kemp complained.

Texas currently has 20 different bag limits and seasons for quail and 40 different bag limits and seasons for white-tail deer, Ted Clark, director of the department's wildlife

NBA Taking Notice of SWC Players

DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The Southwest Conference has never exactly been hoop heaven for National Basketball Association scouts.

You would have trouble filling out a 12-man NBA roster with lads who learned to slam dunk in the SWC.

Elvin Hayes, of course, honed his fall-away jumper at the University of Houston and is now completing his career in the same city for the NBA Rockets.

Otis Birdsong polished his deft 20 footers at Houston before leaving Coach Guy V. Lewis for the pros.

Let's see now Texas A&M's Sonny Parker is still kicking around the NBA along with Baylor's Vinnie Johnson, Texas' Johnny Moore, Texas Tech's Geoff Huston, and Arkansas' Ron Brewer and Sidney Moncrief.

Only Brewer and Moncrief are from these parts, both being from Arkansas.

Hayes is from Louisiana, Birdsong from Florida, Parker from Illinois, Johnson and Huston from New York and Moore from Indiana.

If you asked me to name NATIVE Texans playing in the NBA right now, I couldn't do it at cannon point except for Alton Lister of Dallas at Milwaukee. There's also Dwight Scales of Dallas, Mack Calvin of Fort Worth, Earl Evans of Port Arthur, Dwight Jones of Houston and Sugar Ray Richardson, a Lubbock native.

There may be others with a Texas birth certificate who went to schools other than the SWC but none comes to mind. None, certainly, are dominant players in the NBA.

Anyway, the SWC is getting better and the NBA is starting to take notice.

Seniors like Rice's Ricky Pierce, the nation's No. 2 scorer, Baylor's talented Terry Teagle, Arkansas' Scott Hastings and Texas A&M's Rudy Woods plus juniors LaSalle Thompson of Texas and Rob Williams of Houston have the scouts hanging out at SWC gyms.

Rick Sund, player personnel director of the Dallas Mavericks, has been following Teagle, Hastings and Pierce.

He led an entourage of Maverick brass to Heart O' Texas Coliseum in Waco recently to see Baylor upset Arkansas. That was the night Teagle scored 36 points — the most ever against an Eddie Sutton-coached Arkansas team.

Teagle went on a tear in that game in which he hit eight shots in a row and had 17 of 23 for the evening. Sund kept looking at Mav Coach Dick Motta and shaking his head in wonderment.

The Broadus, Texas, product is projected as a guard because he is only 6-4. Teagle, however, plays at 6-6 or so because of a 40-inch verticle leap. Baylor Coach Jim Haller has been playing Teagle at guard recently and has proved he can handle the ball.

Pierce, who scored 25 points against Southern Methodist with Sund looking on, is 6-5 and the Garland, Texas, native has the jumping ability to play guard or perhaps small forward in the NBA. He has an unstoppable jump shot.

Hastings is a 6-11 Kansan who has a good shot and is known as a smart, position player.

Woods, another Texan from

Bryan, is foul-trouble-prone but his 6-11 size is tempting the scouts.

Thompson and Williams will probably forego hardship and play out their senior season in the SWC.

Not only is the SWC starting to get NBA notice but some of the products are homegrown.

It's not A.I.J. football country anymore.

How did things suddenly get less expensive to make, just in time for the January sales?

THE NATIONAL DEBT

Heading Toward a Second Trillion

SOURCES: Bureau of the Budget, U.S. Chamber of Commerce

NEA/Mark Gabrenya

One consequence of the budget for the 1983 fiscal year as submitted by President Reagan would be another sharp surge in the national debt. The predicted deficit of $91.5 billion plus borrowing for other federal programs not carried in the budget would add another quarter of a trillion dollars to the debt, almost as much as accrued during the more than a century and a half from the founding of the nation through 1950. The debt first broke the $1 billion mark in World War I and has been climbing ever since with the exception of a 1946-50 decline.

Businesses Hope To Salvage Sales

MCCALLEN, Texas (AP) — Border developers and businessmen who watched anxiously as the Mexican peso lost buying power against the dollar and hoped to salvage some of their extensive sales to Mexicans.

"It isn't going to help us, certainly, but we'll all live through it," said Richard Franke, a real estate developer at South Padre Island.

Mexico's central bank announced Wednesday it would let the peso float to a new exchange rate.

The Mexican currency fell from a prevailing South Texas exchange rate of 27 pesos to the dollar to 40 pesos per dollar after the official action.

Franke said Friday that Mexicans, who have invested heavily in new oceanfront condominiums, have known the devaluation was coming. "Our market already had slowed since August and September because everyone knew this was coming," Franke said.

Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo leaves office this year and a similar devaluation occurred during the last year of his predecessor.

Neither Franke nor Otis Claxton of Rancho Viejo Resort Real Estate predicted large-scale foreclosures against Mexicans unable to make payments.

"Most of the people from Mexico who have financing (as opposed to cash purchases) have done it by choice, not because they have to," Claxton said.

Retail sales slowed as many uneasy merchants stopped accepting pesos as purchases until the currency settles.

"We're not taking any pesos," said Raul DeAnda, manager of Sound Centers, a stereo and electronics store. "We received word from Mexico City this morning that it's still floating a 38 or 41 to the dollar. We're not going to take it until it stabilizes."

DeAnda estimated 60 to 70 percent of his sales are to Mexicans crossing the Rio Grande on shopping sprees. Some stores surveyed estimated up to 90 percent of their business comes from Mexico.

Merchants on Friday reported fewer shoppers than normal at La Plaza Mall, a large shopping center 10 miles from the border.

"It's kind of slow," said Oscar Perez, assistant manager at Zales.

"Yesterday we started taking the peso at 40 to one but decided to stop when it kept fluctuating," he said.

Most Mexican shoppers learned Wednesday night of the peso fluctuation and were prepared to get less for their money, merchants said.

Retail sales generally slow down in February before zooming during the Holy Week, a traditional time for Mexicans to vacation in South Texas and shop, said one merchant.

"It will be only the rich Mexicans who will be able to afford to come over here to buy or to spend vacations," said Raunond Coy, a salesman at a San Antonio clothing store.

"It took four years for them to get over it when the peso was devaluated the last time. It's definitely going to hurt us," said Sid Pearlman, a downtown San Antonio clothier.

Edward Rutledge, senior vice president of the international department at San Antonio's National Bank of Commerce, said there will be a reduction of investment in such things as condominiums.

"It will not affect Mexico's oil imports," said former U.S. Ambassador-at-large to Mexico Robert Kruger, "because they have always been priced in dollars rather than pesos, so that it doesn't change the price of oil."

However, he predicted it would decrease the recent flight of pesos from Mexico.

Kruger said he drove through Laredo Friday and saw virtually empty stores, some of them closed, because thousands of Mexican buyers who had been pouring across the border had quit buying after the peso's value dropped.

Convicts Made Pack Look Bad To 'Confuse Jurors'

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Testimony from convicts that painted Warden Wallace Pack as sadistic man who tortured prisoners is nothing more than an attempt to confuse the jurors, a prison spokesman says.

"This is a defense tactic to prolong the trial and confuse the minds of jurors as to the reputation of Warden Pack," said spokesman Rick Hartley.

Pack's reputation was at the heart of testimony last week in the capital murder trial of inmate Eroy Edward Brown, 31, a convicted burglar from Waco. He is accused of drowning Pack last April 4 near a prison farm, and may be tried later in the shooting death of Ellis Unit farm manager Billy Max Moore.

Defense attorney Craig Washington contends Brown acted in self defense, and introduced testimony that Pack and Moore were cruel and abusive to prisoners and had threatened to kill Brown on the day of the incident.

But Hartley disputed testimony that the officials mistreated Texas Department of Corrections inmates, and that Pack had ordered some prisoners dragged and supervised the killings of others.

"The defense seems to be trying the reputations of Wallace Pack and Billy Max Moore, instead of the reputation of Eroy Edward Brown," Hartley said during a three-day recess in the trial. Testimony is to resume here Monday.

Hartley said Pack "was a man of high ethics, high morals and honest. I have never heard a complaint aimed at Wallace Pack."

During the week's testimony about 20 current and former inmates said Pack regularly abused them and subjected them to physical violence.

The most startling tale of alleged abuse by Pack was offered Friday by former inmate Tommy Carlisle of San Antonio. Carlisle was serving a sentence for murder with malice at the Wynne Unit when he said the warden, then a major, tortured him and ordered another inmate beaten to death.

He accused Pack on two separate occasions of holding a gun to his head "because I was attempting to inform the federal court of an inmate's killing," Carlisle testified.

In an effort to get out of prison because he feared for his life, Carlisle said he severed his Achilles heel tendon. The former inmate testified he was placed in a straitjacket, pushed into the hood of a car and kicked repeatedly en route to the hospital.

When he got back to prison, Carlisle said he was placed in solitary confinement and stripped. He said Pack handcuffed his hands over his head and said he was "going to teach me a lesson."

Extension Homemaker Club Woman of Year To Be Announced Monday

The Extension Homemaker Club Woman of the Year will be announced tomorrow at the annual Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council Appreciation Luncheon, which begins at 12 noon in the Bull Barn. Each E.H. club has one nominee, and they are being judged by Barbara Fowler, Randall County Extension Agent.

The Hereford Brand has sponsored this award since 1952, when Mrs. Opal Norton, of the Dawn E.H. Club, received the first award. Cindy Norvell, of the Palo Duro

E.H. Club, was last year's Club Woman of the Year. She is currently serving as chairman of the Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council.

The appreciation luncheon will honor extension homemaker members who have perfect attendance in 1981 at the monthly E.H. Council meetings. The club women use this luncheon as a way to say "thank you" to Commissioners Court and the local media for their support during the year.

A short program will be given by local 4-H'ers, Mindy Rowton and Dale West. The events will be concluded with County Extension Agents, Louise Walker, Justin McBride, Penny Reinart, and Robby Vann giving an overview of their work in the County Extension Service.

Eight Candidates Named

ESTELL BURRELL
West Hereford's nominee for Club Women of the Year in extension work is Estell Burrell.

Her mother and dad, Leonard and Alice Williams, came to Hereford in 1925 and Estell attended school at Valentine. She joined the Messenger club in 1940, after marrying Posey Lee Burrell. She also belonged to the Ward club in Adrian. She has one stepson and her husband is deceased.

Estell joined the West Hereford Club in 1978 and has been a popular member, always being faithful to the tasks she takes on. She has attended a cooking school and attended council meetings, serving as a council delegate. She is now serving as secretary.

Quilting, fishing and antiques are listed among her hobbies. When her husband was alive, they liked to travel and go fishing. She is a member of the Assembly of God Church and spends time with the sick and afflicted. She also sends canned food and quilts to children's homes.

Estell has been a member of the West Hereford Club four years.

BRENDA CAMPBELL

The North Hereford Extension Homemaker Club has nominated Brenda Campbell as its candidate for Club Woman of the Year.

Brenda has been in extension club for more than seven years and is the current reporter. She has also served as secretary and vice president, and is serving on the council recreation committee.

After attending a home furnishings workshop, she taught club members how to make quilted floor pillows. She also shared crafts and recipe ideas from two festive food programs she attended. She is active in 4-H and Camp Fire projects, helping her 10-year-old daughter in some of her projects.

Family activities are high on her list, and the family recently bought and moved a house and did much of the work in remodeling it the past three years. The family enjoys gardening and riding three-wheel cycles. She enjoys all kinds of crafts, sewing, canning and gardening.

As a housewife and mother of two girls, Brenda feels that extension club activities have been "very rewarding."

Brenda has grown up in the Seventh Day Adventist faith and is a member of the church in Hereford.

GAYLE CARTER

The Palo Duro Home Extension Club has nominated Gayle Carter as its candidate for the Club Women of the Year honor.

Termed as its "most active member," the club reports that membership has been doubled with Gayle's help. She has been president two years and also served as vice president and secretary-treasurer. She has not missed a club or council meeting the past year.

Gayle is also very involved in community activities. She is secretary of the Family Living Committee, and she has been involved in the 4-H stock show, Westway Bazaar, Art Guild, Health Fair, Arts and Crafts Show, and the Town & Country Jubilee. She volunteered to be a "sewing mother" for 4-H'ers.

With Gayle's help, the club is hoping to get the community interested in having an educational project concerning "child rape." While serving on the council, she was elected a delegate to the state extension meeting.

She and her husband, Marion, and their two children are members of the First Baptist Church. She helps with Vacation Bible School and is a member of a women's prayer group. Her husband works for the rural electric cooperative.

The family enjoys fishing and camping, and their summer project is gardening. The club's nomination reports Gayle is the "backbone of the club, and without her we could not accomplish some of the projects."

GRACE COVINGTON

"People" are a hobby for Grace Covington, the Westway Club's nomination for woman of the year.

A widow with no children left at home, Grace feels her life has been enriched by the people she has met in her many volunteer duties.

Instrumental in the re-organization of the Extension club in 1975, she has served as vice president, secretary, reporter and council delegate. She has held offices on the council, judged county fairs, worked on committees and attended workshops.

She has served as a United Way director, on district and federal grand juries, helped with Boy Scouts, the Cancer Drive, in the Heart Association and in county and general elections.

An active member of First Baptist Church and having taught three-year-olds in Sunday School for 40 years, she is active in the Women's Missionary Union and served on the education panel. She is currently the church librarian.

She has two children and two grandchildren.

LOU HALL

Lou Hall has been nominated by the Bippus Extension Homemaker Club for the "Woman of the Year" honor.

Lou has been in extension club work for approximately 27 years. She and her husband, G.V., live on a farm and ranch in the Walcott community. They have two adult sons and two grandchildren.

"There couldn't be anyone more willing to do things for others than Lou Hall," states the nomination form from her club. She has held all the offices in the club and has been a council delegate the past few years. Lou feels that being a club member gives her a feeling of "helping the community to grow."

Besides regular attendance at club meetings, Lou does volunteer work at Walcott School one day each week. She also attends a Bible study session which meets each week in the community room at Walcott. She and her husband attend a Hereford church regularly.

Lou loves to sew, especially when it is for her grandchildren. Other hobbies include oil painting and yard and garden work. She keeps a flower bed of native prairie plants.

ANNA MESSER

Draper Extension Club has nominated Anna Messer, a two-year founding member, as its candidate.

She has served in 4-H, judged in school speech tournaments, and judged in bake shows.

Anna uses her dietetic technology degree in the 4-H Food and Nutrition program. She is a dried fruit and vegetable enthusiast and demonstrates her skill for 4-H and adult clubs.

With two active sons, John Wayne, four, and James Robert, 21-months, her life centers around home. She and her husband, Roy Dale, attend many local activities with the children and sometimes, if weather is dismal, enjoy an "indoor picnic" on a blanket in their living room.

She attends St. Anthony's Catholic Church and helps in children's activities.

CAROL ODOM

Although an extension club member only four years, Carol Odom is now the president of Wyche Extension Club and the organization's nominee for Club Woman of the Year.

She lives in Hereford with her husband, Robert, who retired from the Army and is employed as an electrician at Holly Sugar. They have two sons—one in college and one in the Marines—and one foster daughter who serves in the Army.

Carol wasted no time in becoming an active member of the Wyche Club, serving as council delegate and vice president two years before being named president. Last year she served on the 4-H Fair board. She has given numerous programs on cake decorating and assists members and friends in decorating cakes for special occasions.

Carol supports all 4-H programs and bakes for the concession stand at the livestock show. She is active in youth projects through church work at Wesley Methodist Church. She belongs to the Sugar Works cake decorating club and is an active member of the Legion Auxiliary.

She and her husband have a mutual love for tennis. Carol says her participation in extension work has made her "a better shopper, a better cook and seamstress."

Carol is a person any club "would like to have as a member," according to her club members. They report she has gained much in poise and knowledge since joining the club.

TILLIE SCOTT

Tillie Scott is being sponsored by the Cultural Extension Homemakers Club as its nominee for the Extension Club Woman of the Year.

Home and family have always been top priorities for Tillie, who has held all the offices in homemaker clubs. She was active, for years, with her four daughters in 4-H work. This involved everything from sewing and cooking demonstrations to taking girls on trips.

After a few years off from 4-H work, Tillie is back in the activities through her two granddaughters and three grandsons. She feels her club experience has helped her impart valuable information to her daughters and grandchildren.

She was a member of Garden Club for several years and is currently a member of TOPS. Tillie is a member of First Christian Church and Christian Women's Fellowship. She enjoys reading, crocheting and doing things with her family—such as hunting and fishing.

Tillie started extension club work 42 years ago in Randall County and has since belonged to the Wyche Club and the Cultural Club in Westway after moving to Deaf Smith County.

Beta Sigma Phi Holds Annual Sweetheart Ball

Beta Sigma Phi City Council held its annual sweetheart ball Saturday night at the KC Hall from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Members of the three local chapters and their escorts danced to the band Crossfires.

The queen and her two princesses were to be named at the ceremony. They were selected from the three chapter sweethearts nominated earlier by Alpha Alpha Preceptor Chapter, Xi Epsilon Exemplar Chapter, and Alpha Iota Mu Ritual Chapter. Serving as judges were Beta Sigma Phi sisters from Amarillo.

Toni Jones was elected chapter sweetheart for Alpha Alpha. She has been a member of the sorority for 12 years and has served as president, vice-president, recording secretary, treasurer, and corresponding secretary. She has been a member of the membership, social, yearbook, ways and means, program, rosebud, publicity, and contact committees on the city council.

Ms. Jones is a Sunday School teacher and choir mother at the First Christian Church, and has served on the board of the Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Cancer Society and the Board of Directors of the Hereford Women's Bowling Association.

A homemaker whose hobbies include horses, reading, and doing things with her family, she is the wife of Bobby Jones, a farmer, and the mother of two children, Clay, 10 and Mandi, 7.

Lynda Brown is Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter sweetheart. She has been in the sorority for nine years and has served as corresponding secretary, city council representative, vice-president of city council, and chairman of the publicity and scrapbook committees.

She is a member of the First Baptist Church in Dimmitt and has been a member of the Eastern Star for two years. Her hobbies include folk art painting, cooking, and needlepoint.

Ms. Brown is a fourth grade teacher, and her husband, Gerald (Jerry) Brown, is self-employed.

Tonja Gilliam represents Alpha Iota Mu as chapter sweetheart. She has been a member of the sorority since the spring of 1981, and has been a city council representative and chairman of the service committee.

She is a member of the First Baptist Church, the Texas Cowgirl Hall of Fame, the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, the Women's Tennis League, and the Highrollers Bowling League.

Ms. Gilliam works as a receptionist and bookkeeper for her husband, Charles Gilliam, a local dentist. Her hobbies include snow skiing, tennis, ceramics, cooking, jogging, traveling, singing and reading.

Ladies To Hold Stretch And Sew Class

Ladies of the Faith Assembly of God will be sponsoring a Stretch and Sew Basic Class in Hereford in the near future. The class will meet on either Monday or Tuesday nights, with a cost of $25.

Anyone interested in attending or who would like more information is asked to contact Linda at 364-5580.

Andorra

Tucked into the Pyrenees mountains between France and Spain, Andorra has enjoyed effective sovereignty since 1278. Officially a principality, it has two nominal co-princes to whom it pays annual tribute — the president of France and the Spanish bishop of Urgel. Actual government, however, is conducted by a 24-member Council General.

Free CPR Class Slated

A free CPR class will be held at the First Baptist Church on Monday and Tuesday nights, Feb. 22-23, from 7-10 p.m. each night. The class is open to the public and everyone is invited to attend.

Instructors will be Rex Lee, Rick Lee, Rosie Griffin, John Gilliland, and Carolyn Hays.

Lyons, Alexander Exchange Vows

Christine Carole Lyons and Eric Ross Alexander were married Friday evening at the Community Church, with the Rev. Dorman Duggan, copastor of the church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael B. Lyons, and Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey L. Funk of Spring Valley, Calif. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Earl G.

Alexander. Paula Alexander, sister of the groom, was the pianist. Other musicians included Mrs. Greg Skypala on flute and Shannon Wilburn on bass. Ms. Alexander and Robert Salicco were the vocalists. Principal wedding selections included "Seek ye First," "Resucito," "Praise the Name of Jesus," and "Father Make Us One."

The bride and groom entered together to the song "I Have Decided to Follow Jesus." The bride wore a candlelight cotton batiste gown, belted at the waist, with short ruffled sleeves and a sheer lace insert at the neckline. She wore a silk flower hair piece and carried a bouquet of smoky blue and candlelight silk flowers accented with baby's breath.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Community Church fellowship room. Leslie Brush registered guests. The table decorations were in blue and white, and included a copper pot centerpiece filled with a dried flower arrangement.

Mrs. Connie Urbanczyk served the wedding cake, which was a carrot cake decorated with blue and white roses and a twin heart by Mrs. Dorman Duggan and Mrs. Gary Duggan. Several older friends brought their favorite cakes also. Mrs. Davey Thompson served punch.

Others assisting with the reception included Mrs. Jerry Landers, Mrs. Frank Ford, Mrs. Don Brush, Julie Culp, and Kari and Holly Sanders.

For the bride's traveling costume, she chose a purple print blouse with a purple skirt. The couple is at home at 520 N. 25 Mile Ave.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Hereford High School, employed at the Community Christian School. The groom was salutatorian of the 1981 graduating class of Hereford High School. He attended TSTI in Amarillo and Baylor University in Waco, and is employed at the Community Christian School.

Out of town guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Joe M. Funk, grandparents of the bride from Denton, and Mr. and Mrs. Tim Lyons of Tulsa.

THAT SIZE 18 IS HISTORY!

and it will stay there, thanks to Pat Walker's!

"When my friends see me I feel really proud! With 37 pounds lost and 50 inches off I am nearing my goal. Even my sock size has gone from an 18 to a 12. In 1980 I went on a diet and I managed to lose 20 pounds. Then, slowly, over the following months all that weight crept right back on again and even a few new pounds were added.

I decided that December that come January I was going back to the "old diet" again. Then I heard about Pat Walker's where you can lose weight without strenuous exercise and starvation dieting. I saw the Pat Walker's ad and I call for the free courtesy treatment and private figure analysis. The test is history.

This time with Pat Walker's Symmetricon exercise unit firming and toning as the pounds and inches slip away, the weight is going to stay off. The reason I'll stay slim is that, for the first time, I faced up to it that you look like what you eat... and I just ate too much. At Pat Walker's you learn to eat the right combinations of food. I could say I ate my way back to being slim again. If wearing a leotard embarrasses you... if you don't like revealing your figure problems to a roomful of strangers, then Pat Walker's is your kind of place. Every aspect of Pat Walker's weight loss program - from counseling sessions on sensible eating habits to Symmetricon treatment - is in total privacy, something you deserve.

Strafuss Awarded Medal For Essay

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is another of the winning essays from the American History Essay Contest, sponsored by the Los Gobeleros Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution in conjunction with American History Month.

Essays for this year's contest were on the theme of "A Famous American Born in

SANDRA STRAFUSS

Sandra Strafuss, whose essay appears below, was a first place bronze medal winner who tied with Leslie Conkwright, a sixth grader at Bluebonnet Elementary School. Sandra is also a sixth grader at Bluebonnet.

Thomas Edison was born Feb. 11, 1847 at Milan, Ohio. Thomas was the youngest of seven children. His parents were Samuel and Nancy Edison. When Thomas was a youngster he asked questions all the time. Nancy Edison, Thomas's mother had once been a school teacher but still couldn't answer some of his questions.

Thomas would do some experimenting so he could find the answers. When Thomas was nine years old Mrs. Edison bought him a chemistry book. Thomas tested the experiments in the book to see if he could prove the writer of the book wrong. When Thomas was twelve he took a job on a train selling tobacco, newspapers, candy, etc. When Thomas had spare time he worked on experiments in the baggage car department. One day while Thomas was working on one of his projects it caught on fire. Thomas was punished by the conductor.

The conductor hit his ears and threw him off the train at the next stop. Thomas blamed his later deafness on the conductor. But Thomas didn't mind his deafness because he had privacy. Thomas never became totally deaf but in his last years he could hardly hear a person shouting.

In 1868 Thomas perfected his first invention that he tried to sell. He presented it to Congress but Congress didn't like it. Thomas said, "I will never again invent anything which nobody wants."

From then on he kept his promise. After working on the telegraph machine, Edison went to New York in 1869 where he improved the stock ticker. From there he went to New Jersey where he made the typewriter practical.

The World Book Encyclopedia Volume six Field Enterprises page 50 Chicago Frankfurt London Paris Rome.

In 1876 Edison moved to Menlo Park, N.J. where he improved the telephone by putting a carbon transmitter in it. He made it where people didn't have to shout into the receiver. In 1877 Edison invented the phoograph, a completely new and different invention. It was Edison's favorite invention. Many people had worked on the idea of the electric light bulb but failed.

tion pictures. These are only some of his inventions. Edison patented about a thousand inventions. Without Edison's inventions the world would be a much different place.

We might not have a telephone or go to the movies. Where would the world be without motion pictures or the light bulb? For instance motion pictures help children get their education, and entertainment for everyone. Motion pictures are only one of Edison's inventions that has influenced America. The light bulb helps people see their work in schools, offices, home, and work and many other places. These are only some of the reasons why I wrote my essay about Edison. Thomas Alva Edison was a famous American that really deserves special recognition.

Secretaries Association To Sponsor Seminar

First Presbyterian Church To Host Christian Growth Seminar

The First Presbyterian Church, 610 Lee Street, will host the Rev. Peter Marshall, Jr. for a weekend seminar this coming Friday through Sunday, Feb. 26-28. The public is cordially invited to attend, says the Rev. George Belford, pastor.

Topics to be discussed include Christian growth and maturity, healing of family relationships, dealing with emotional problems, overcoming problems of sin and self, and what God is saying to the Church today.

Marshall is a Presbyterian minister who has gained national recognition as a teacher and preacher on Christian growth and maturity. His ministry is one of conducting preaching and teaching missions in various churches across the nation. He is co-author of a book entitled "The Light and the Glory."

PETER MARSHALL, JR.

Born and raised in Washington, D.C., he is the son of Dr. Peter Marshall, the Chaplain of the United States Senate from 1947 to 1949, and Catherine Marshall LeSourd, author of many best-selling books.

Marshall is a graduate of Yale University and Princeton Theological Seminary. He served as an assistant minister in West Hartford, Conn. for several years before becoming the pastor of the East Dennis Community Church on Cape Cod, Mass., where he served from 1967 to 1977. With his wife, Edith, and their three children, Mary Elizabeth, age 12, Peter Jonathan, age 7, and David Christopher, age 1, he now lives on Cape Cod, where he is a member of the Community of Jesus.

Meeting times for the seminar will be Friday evening at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday morning at 10 a.m.; Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m.; Sunday morning at 11 a.m.; and Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Revival Planned At Center

The singing group, "The Flame of the Holy Spirit," will be featured at a Miracle Revival to be held Feb. 26 through March 6 at the Evangelistic Center, 340 Ave. H. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night.

Guest evangelists who will be featured include Hector Fernandez and Ray Salis, both of Houston; Rudy Guerra of San Antonio; and Hulene Cawthon of Waco.

For more information about the revival, call 364-6447.

Wardrobe Seminar Scheduled

Need help in putting to good use all those clothes in the closet? Plan to come to a special program on "Wardrobe Planning" this Thursday, Feb. 25, at 10:30 a.m. in the Heritage Room of the Library. The program is sponsored by the local county Extension office and is free of charge, according to Louise Walker, County Extension Agent.

Sugarland Mall. Mrs. Saunders is well qualified in her area, having a masters in clothing and textiles from Texas Tech University, Lubbock. She works as a resource person in 55 West Texas Counties in planning, implementing, and evaluating educational programs for youth and adult audiences.

Mrs. Ashlock Honored On Her 102nd Birthday

Mrs. L.A. Ashlock, a resident of Westgate Nursing Home, was honored yesterday afternoon on her 102nd birthday with a party given by her children and grandchildren, in the home of one of her grandsons, Guy Cornelius, Jr.

One son, Bill Ashlock, came from California, and her three daughters, Marie Cornelius, Leta Cursinger, and Elsie Russell, who all live in Hereford, were present as well as 23 of her grandchildren. Her other two sons, who both reside in California, were not able to be here.

Mrs. Ashlock was born in Kentucky, and came to Texas when she was 12 years old. She moved to California in 1941, and to Hereford in 1968, where she has resided since then.

Mrs. Ashlock moved into Westgate almost a year ago and is still active, enjoying reading, crocheting, and playing dominoes, among other things.

Antique Seminar Set March 6 In Lubbock

The Greater Lubbock Antique Dealers Association is presenting its first annual Antique Seminar to be held Saturday, March 6, at the Civic Center in Lubbock. The GLAD Association is a group of merchants in Lubbock and the adjacent area, "whose primary purpose is to uphold the finest principles of the business of dealing in antiques and collectible items."

Through mutual exchange of information the association members are enabled to offer standards of service that are in the best interests of collectors and dealers alike. It is this mutual exchange with the public as well that has prompted the association to provide this seminar. Many questions will be dealt with that will be of interest both to the collector and those who have inherited items from the past.

Heading the list of speakers will be Ms. Emyl Jenkins of Raleigh, North Carolina, internationally known and respected appraiser, author, and antiques authority. Ms. Jenkins, whose articles have been featured in the Magazine Antiques, the American Bar Association

The preliminaries took place over a period of three weeks. Children with the fewest words missed during this period of time were selected by their teachers, to go on to the final Spelling Bee.

Winners in the finals were: first-Vicki McQueary (4th grade); second-Kendra

Ann Landers
Most Effective Birth-Control Method

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 15-year-old high school sophomore who has learned a lot from reading your column. A while back you printed some shocking figures about high-school pregnancies. I think you said there were over a million teenagers who had out-of-wedlock babies.

I know of a birth-control method that is very effective, very inexpensive and guaranteed not to fail 100 percent of the time. It is the word NO.

One of the reasons there are so many pregnant teenagers is because someone has sold them the idea that "everybody is doing it." Well, I can tell you that everybody is NOT doing it.

I recently read an article on the true meaning of sex. One line from that article stuck in my mind, and I wish every teenager would think about it. Here it is: "The more special something is, the more we reserve it for special people, special times and special occasions."

It seems to me a person's body is just about as special a thing as there is in the world. It should be reserved for a special person at a special time and a special place.--Holding Out In Holland

DEAR HOLDING: I'm with you. Another fringe benefit of saying no is peace of mind. Every day I receive dozens of letters from teenage girls who are worried sick...asking if the do-it-yourself pregnancy kits available in the drugstores work. They often tell me the date of their last period and the last time they had sex and ask if they could be pregnant.

I hope the girls who write letters to me see yours and learn something. A word from one of their peers is much more effective than anything I might say.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Could you tell me if there are any pet stores in the Lancaster, Ephrata or New Holland area that sell baby raccoons? I would like to have one but don't know where I can get one. I hope you will give me an answer, Ann.

And thank you ever so much for all the good advice I got from you already.--A Regular Reader

DEAR R.R.: Each state has its own rules and regulations regarding pet raccoons. Your best bet is to call up a pet store and ask what the law is in your state.

According to my Chicago experts, raccoons have been known to turn wild if they are moved from one place to another. (They can be mean biters, too.) I suggest that you select a domestic pet--one that is friendly and more predictable.

Looking To A Busy Week

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
I am facing a very busy week but it's oh so exciting! The group that is so special to me, Extension Homemakers Council, will be having their annual appreciation luncheon tomorrow, Feb. 22, at the Bull Barn. Awards for achievements of club members will be given. The Hereford Brand will be giving the award to the Extension Homemaker Club Woman of the Year. This is their 30th year for sponsoring the award. We certainly do appreciate the Brand for this. Also we appreciate all the good newspaper publicity the Brand gives our Extension Service programs throughout the year. The Extension Homemaker Club members do this luncheon as a "Thank you" to the county commissioners and the local news media for their support. Tomorrow, Feb. 22, our local office, Room 304, Courthouse is having an open house. Come by between 10 and 11:30 a.m. for refreshments. On Thursday, Feb. 25, we have a very special program on "Wardrobe Planning" at 10:30 a.m. at the Heritage Room of the Library. Becky Saunders, Clothing Specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, headquarters in Amarillo, will present the program using clothing from the Pants Cage in Sugarland Mall. Thank you LaJean, for cooperating and supporting our program. Interested in learning to make a blazer using ready-made techniques? There are still two vacant spots in our blazer construction workshop to be held March 22-26. Call my office 364-3573 if you're interested. Penny Reinart, my co-worker, and I will be teaching the workshop. There will be a morning (9 a.m. to 12 noon) and an afternoon (1-4 p.m.) session. There is one spot in the morning group and one in the afternoon. The same material is presented in both sessions. To participate in the workshop, you must pre-enroll and attend the "Wardrobe Planning" program on Thurs., Feb. 25. You must also attend a "Blazer Orientation" workshop on Thursday, Feb. 25, at 1:30 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the Library. At this time you'll receive your assignment of things to do prior to the blazer workshop in March. Remember, if you're interested, call early! First come-first serve. We can have only fourteen participants in each session. If you live in the Dawn area and are interested in being in an Extension Homemakers Club, come to a meeting on Friday, February 26, at 9:30 a.m. at the Dawn Community Center. Hope to see several of you there. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Stanton Honor Roll Revealed

Stanton Junior High School principal Bill McCarley has released the names of those students who made the Honor Roll for the first semester ending Jan. 15. There were 14 Honor Roll members in the 7th grade, 11 in the 8th grade and 21 in the freshman class. The position on the Honor Roll is obtained from a grade point average in academic courses, giving more weight to advanced classes and less to developmental classes, with regular classes remaining unchanged. The students listed below have a 90 or above grade point average. The listing is in alphabetical order, and not in order of grade point average.

- SIXTH GRADE
Judy Hamby, Keith Herrera, Teresa Jackson, Kathy Matthews, Laura Osburn, Mary Ann Quijada, Becky Sherman, Kelley Smith, Kyle Streun and Brian Townsend.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

It is written somewhere that all mothers should willingly hold out their hands when their children want to spit something out of their mouths.

On the same tablet, it is recorded that sheets that have to be washed in the middle of the night are women's work.

Also okay are licking our ice cream cones, coughing in our faces, and drinking from our water glasses leaving crumbs that fall like a snow scene in a paperweight.

But where does it say I have to loan my car to my kids? I have the only car in the family that runs all the time. There is a reason for this. It runs because the floor is not cluttered with paper cups, the steering wheel isn't sticky, and onions have not dropped down in the seat covers.

A clean car is a happy, healthy car. When my son's foreign car was in the shop for a week, he begged to borrow my car. Only the threat of his losing his job and having to move back home made me relent and loan him mine, but not without a lecture.

"I know you and I know your kind," I said. "You're used to those fast little sports numbers. They're easy. Let you take them anywhere, do anything. My car is not like that. It hasn't been to rock concerts in the middle of a cornfield, or dirt-bike races along some dusty road. It hasn't been out past midnight since 1978. It's nine years old and it's still innocent. You may borrow my car for one week, but remember, she's a lady."

Last night, I heard a car spin into the driveway with music so loud my teeth cramped. I had only to look at my car with mud on her grill, a seat belt flapping beneath the door, and a message, "For a good time call Vicky, 555-8833" to know that my car had been violated. She had that "used" and "empty" look about her.

Her motor had been raced. She had blown a speaker. All the push buttons on the radio dials had been repunched to rock stations. There was a piece of pizza in her ashtray. Her antenna was high enough to clear the Rockies. There was a tennis ball lodged under her accelerator.

She looked like she hadn't cooled off in a week. "The keys are in her visor," he said, and climbed into his waiting sports car parked at the curb.

Whatever happened to respect the next morning?

Rose Presents Program To Bay View Club Members

Mrs. Austin Rose gave a program entitled "Changes in This Decade 1970-1980" for members of the Bay View Study Club at their recent meeting. The club met in the home of Mrs. R.W. Eades, and Mrs. John Gilliland presided in the absence of the president and the vice-president.

Highlights of Mrs. Rose's program included the Bicentennial, the Olympic games, space flights that took place in this decade, and the changes which have taken place in the medical field, the arts, music, the theatre, television, sports, and international events. Others present at the meeting were Mmes. Jack Case, D.N. Garner, W.J. Gilliland, Jimmie-Gillentine, Charley Hayes, Robert Josserand, Justin McBride, Ansel McDowell, Lester Mehler, Howard Gault, and W.S. Kerr.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Jack Wilcox. The topic of the program will be "Living With Antiques in the Changing World."

Today In History

Associated Press
Today is Sunday, Feb. 21, the 52nd day of 1982. There are 313 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 21, 1838, American inventor Samuel Morse gave his first public demonstration of the telegraph.

On this date: In 1613, Michael Romanov was elected czar of Russia, thus founding the House of Romanov.

In 1916, the battle for Verdun, France, began in World War I. It was the war's longest and bloodiest battle, with more than 1 million killed.

In 1973, Israeli fighter planes shot down a civilian Libyan jetliner over the Sinai Desert, killing more than 100 people. Israel claimed the plane did not heed warnings to land.

walkout, the longest dock strike in history.

Five years ago: Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, ending a visit to the Mideast, said the Arabs and Israelis remained sharply divided on how to achieve peace.

One year ago: Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri Ustinov accused the Western nations of trying to reopen the Cold War.

Today's birthday: Tricia Nixon Cox is 36 years old.

Thought For Today: A sharp tongue is the only edged tool that grows keener with constant use. — Washington Irving, U.S. writer (1783-1859).

One of the best preparations for sleep is a walk. It can be done alone, is always available and can be adapted to the limits of one's time and strength.

The Decline Of Standards

A big city school system requires a student in the seventh grade to be able to read as well as a fifth grader, who, by the way, must be able to read as well as a fourth grader, who, in turn, must be able to read as well as a third grader. What's wrong with demanding that a seventh grader be required to read like a seventh grader? How would you like to be operated on by a brain surgeon who graduated from a school that allowed its students to be a year and a half behind in their skills?

Bestsellers Head New Books

By DIANNE PIERSON
County Librarian

Bestsellers head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. WITNESS TO POWER by John Ehrlichman heads the list of new books.

Since his years as White House Counsel and Assistant to the President, John Ehrlichman has achieved an enviable literary reputation as the author of THE COMPANY and THE WHOLE TRUTH. Now he has written the definitive insider's account of the Nixon Presidency—the frankest, most outspoken disclosure of the events which began with Nixon's electoral triumph and ended in Watergate.

WITNESS TO POWER is a fascinating, keenly observed first-hand view of American political reality. Ehrlichman's narrative describes the struggle for power between the President, his Cabinet, the Congress and the White House staff.

He tells us the intimate human details of the triumphs and tragedies of the Nixon years. His cast of characters include Henry Kissinger, Al Haig, Bebe Rebozo, Bob Haldeman, Tricia Nixon, and Pat Nixon. WITNESS TO POWER is a major work of contemporary political history.

A FEW MINUTES WITH ANDY ROONEY also heads the list of bestsellers available this week. For nearly twenty years, Andy Rooney's wry, rueful, commonsensical essays on American life have been appearing on television and, since 1978, as "A few minutes with Andy Rooney" on "60 minutes."

His book gathers together the best of his essays, more than fifty in all. It includes his longer pieces on houses, hotels, chairs, and war.

Since 1964, Andrew Rooney's essays on America for CBS, ABC and NET have won him two Emmys, six Writers Guild Awards, the Peabody Award, and a host of other honors. He also writes a column three days a week for the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate that appears in over 150 newspapers nationwide, and is the author of four previous books. He lives in Rowayton, Connecticut.

David Niven is a man of extraordinary and varied talents. He life reads like a wonderful novel. In GO SLOWLY, COME BACK QUICKLY, David Niven sits down and tells us a story set in the worlds he knows so well.

A love story, a social comedy, an adventure, it unfolds in England and Europe during World War II, and then in Hollywood and New York, in film and television. It chronicles the glamorous, amorous, humorous, sometimes heroic escapades of Stani Skolimow ski.

Stani's lively career, and his passion for Pandora, the beautiful actress who captures his heart in wartime Britain, make for the sort of elegant, moving, and witty entertainment for which David Niven is famous.

Other new books available this week at the library are THE BREAKS OF THE GAME by David Halberstam, MISSION M.I.A. by J.C. Pollock, and NO ESCAPE by Joseph Hayes.

Library Events:
10 a.m. Story Hour - Thursday morning - Feb. 25.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR CASTLE

AUSTIN — Texas is the only state in the nation that does not allow second mortgages on homesteads. In this state, lenders may foreclose mortgages on only three types of debts: purchase money mortgages, home improvement loans and tax liens.

We do not think this is consistent with a system of free enterprise. Your home is your castle, and you should be able to do what you please with it.

Of course, not everyone agrees. Many people argue that if the ban on second mortgages were lifted, homeowners would borrow money for frivolous reasons, then "blow" the loan money, and lose their homes.

Undoubtedly many would.

However, that does not seem like a good reason to stop everyone else from borrowing money on their homes for good reasons, like educational expenses, medical bills, or to start a business. Government has better things to do than protect us from ourselves.

The present law would require those homeowners to sell their homes to get their money out of them. It seems to make more sense to allow them simply to borrow the money, which is a much simpler way of accomplishing the same thing.

The value of all homesteads in Texas in 1980 was about $71 billion. That is a lot of collateral to be locked away from people who may need it.

Because the ban on this type of borrowing is in the state constitution, changing the law would be a two-step process. First, the Legislature would have to pass a resolution to put the question on the ballot. Then, the voters would have to decide if they thought it was a good idea.

This amendment process guarantees the protection of the interests of the public. Homeowners tend to be voters anyway, so the vote would be one of most representative tallies in history. Of course, any registered voter could participate.

Before this subject comes before the Legislature, we want your opinion. Tell us whether you think homeowners should be able to take out a second mortgage. Write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Foreign Trade Workshops To Be Held in Amarillo

AMARILLO -- Two workshops sponsored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce World Trade Committee are designed to encourage and help Amarillo and area businessmen increase their profits by selling in foreign market.

The C of C committee will bring in a team of international trade specialists from the U.S. Department of Commerce to conduct the two workshops, March 2. The International Trade Workshops will be held in the ground floor conference room at 1000 S. Polk (C of C Offices).

Rick Lalla will head the group and he will be joined by a banker and a freight forwarder.

Basics of Exporting (for beginners) will be the topic of the first workshop, which will run 10:00-11:30 a.m. The second workshop, entitled Documentation, Financing, and Letters of Credit, will run 1:30-3 p.m.

Reservations are necessary for the workshops because seating is limited in the conference room, according to Allen Early, Ph.D. Dr. Early is chairman of the C of C World Trade Committee.

There will be a charge for the two workshops which covers the cost of printed materials and reference guides used in the workshops. The charge is $7.50 for one workshop or $15 for both.

Lalla will be available for individual consultations on Wednesday, March 3, in the C of C offices, according to Dr. Early. Call the Chamber of Commerce at 1000 S. Polk for reservations.

Haig's Statement Poses Questions

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just as it did a year ago at this time, the Reagan administration is putting a spotlight on El Salvador and Central America.

But just as happened a year ago, when Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. called attention to Cuban and Soviet support for left-wing rebels in El Salvador, it is unclear what the administration plans to do.

What is most clear from administration officials is that they do not like making any comparison between Central America and Southeast Asia — particularly any comparison that raises the specter of U.S. troops becoming involved in El Salvador.

However, that shadow hovers over every pronouncement and every step the administration takes in the region. It was certainly there last week when the administration acknowledged that some U.S. soldiers were carrying rifles in El Salvador — after reporters and television cameras recorded the scene.

At the time, those involved were said to be a few enlisted men and a warrant officer — a low-level grade — on a brief training mission. But that was later corrected to show that a lieutenant colonel carried an M-16, in violation of stated policy, and that he had been in the country on an extended mission.

The president, who aides say will address the topic in the coming days with a major speech on the problems of the Caribbean nations, including Central America, has yet to make clear to what extent he will go to protect the civilian-military regime in El Salvador.

From the statements of his aides, it is also unclear what course he will follow to see that his policies are successful. Haig said recently that the United States was prepared to do "whatever is necessary to contain the threat" from the guerrillas challenging President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

That phrase, "whatever is necessary," raised immediate questions about what the former general had in mind. The questions have not yet been answered at the White House.

The "whatever is necessary" statement seems at odds with the president's stated policy, as relayed by deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes. "There are no plans to have American combat troops involved," the spokesman said.

Speakes, asked several times whether that meant there were no plans to deploy troops to El Salvador or anywhere else, replied "that is true."

So that brought the discussion back to just what Haig meant.

"The secretary was discussing contingencies which we have discussed many times in the past in regard to the Caribbean area, particularly El Salvador," the spokesman said.

The average American eats about 13 pounds of onions a year.

By STEVE K. WALZ -- TELEVISION WRITER

'Dallas' rekindles Morgan's career

One of the reasons CBS' "Dallas" continues to entice hordes of viewers is due in part to Lorimar Productions' masterful introduction of new characters into the program.

Last year Audrey Landers was added to the cast as Afton Cooper, J.R.'s (Larry Hagman) voluptuous lover. This year, viewers were introduced to Morgan Brittany, a gorgeous model-actress who portrays Kathrine Wentworth, Pam Ewing's (Victoria Principal) sophisticated and ambitious sister from New York.

Ironically, Ms. Brittany, whose devastatingly good looks are also featured every day on cosmetics commercials, didn't follow the exploits of the Ewing family on TV.

"I never really followed shows like 'Dallas' or 'Dynasty' nor knew much about them," Ms. Brittany recalls.

She won her part after her agent pushed her to go to a 'Dallas' casting call.

Commercials helped

"I think one of the reasons why the show's producers chose me is because of my commercial exposure. They know what the public is going to buy and right now they feel the people are comfortable with me. And because of that, they're trying to build my character around me.

"The character I play is such a strong woman who just won't fade into the background. She's not mean, nor is she a tramp who has to sleep around, which I'm happy about, because I want to be a role model for kids on and off camera.

"I want them to see me and say, 'Hey, she can make it too, without having to do nudity or sleep around.'"

Ms. Brittany's career is now actually building her second career. As a young performer, she was known as Susan Cupito and had a role in the film "Gypsy," which also featured Ann Jillian of "Making a Living" fame. But she says she was forced to "retire" from show business when she was 14 because she had outgrown her role as a child star.

"I was at that stage of my life where the people knew me as child star and once I started getting older, the parts started dwindling.

"It wasn't just the producers' fault, either. The media and advertisers don't recondition people to adjust to this change. So I went to school, studied newscasting and began to model. From time to time, I would be offered roles that had explicit nudity and I kept on turning them down."

Her persistence paid off when she was cast as the actress, Vivien Leigh, in both the movie "Gable and Lombard" and the TV flick "Moviola." These roles spurred other producers to notice her. Ms. Brittany is hoping that "Dallas" will be her ticket back to the top.

Nelson Profile 'Repetitive'

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember Nelson, the newest "Masterpiece Theater" presentation on PBS, is a repetitive profile of a clay hero whom American audiences will neither care for nor care about.

Starting Sunday and for the next three weeks, the military career and extramarital affair of Admiral Lord Nelson, Britain's great naval hero at the turn of the 19th century, will be examined. But the end product is less a portrait of a fascinating man than a microscope fixed on one blemish.

For American viewers to be inquisitive about a foreign hero requires that he have enough complexities and facets of character and experience to sustain interest, like Disraeli, the absorbing British prime minister chronicled on a previous "Masterpiece Theater."

But the Nelson pictured here is woefully one-dimensional, totally absorbed in action and thought by his mistress, Emma, wife of British ambassador Sir William Hamilton. The four-part series is divided into four perspectives of Nelson, and three of them focus almost wholly on his relationship with Emma.

There's no telling whether British audiences will appreciate "I Remember Nelson," since, uncharacteristically, the British-made series will appear in America before it's televised in England. There may be objections overseas to this production's tainting a national treasure. But more likely, the flimsiness of the dramatic story will sink "I Remember Nelson" there too.

The best "Masterpiece Theaters" have offered a tableau of rich characters ("Upstairs, Downstairs"), beautifully dramatic love stories ("A Town Like Alice"), or a picture post card of people in another land (the just-completed "Flame Trees of Thika").

"I Remember Nelson: Recollections of a Man's Life" is none of the above.

Sunday's episode, entitled "Love," is the best of the lot. It's seen from the perspective of Nelson's devoted wife, Fanny. Nelson, returning to England after three years at sea, is hailed as the conquering hero, having just won the Battle of the Nile.

The second segment, "Passion," offers the vantage point of Lord Hamilton, who married the flighty Emma after she split up with his nephew. He trusts Nelson, calling him a "man of honor" because he said marrying Fanny was the happiest day of his life, not the Battle of the Nile.

In the third episode, "Duty," viewers are provided the most rounded perspective. It comes from Nelson's loyal captain, Thomas Hardy.

Part Four, the Battle of Trafalgar, where Nelson was killed, presents the more conventional view of the man. That's his legacy in the history books, where he has become larger than life.

Anderson Moves From Opry Roof to Stage

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — John Anderson helped build the Grand Ole Opry House about 10 years ago. Now he's accomplished enough as a performer to sing inside.

So talented, in fact, that he is a finalist for a Grammy award for his catchy song, "I'm Just an Old Chunk of Coal (But, I'm Gonna be a Diamond Someday)."

Anderson was an aspiring singer-songwriter when he helped build the present Opry House, which replaced the Ryman Auditorium as the home of the fabled country music show in 1974. A carpenter's helper, he worked on the roofing crew.

"I carried boards and stuck brass clips in concrete to hold on the shingles," he recalls. "One thing about it, I can look up now at the roof and say I'm glad it doesn't leak," he says with a chuckle.

Anderson, 27, is a modest, laid-back, slow-talking singer whose hard-core country style has been compared to George Jones, Merle Haggard and Lefty Frizzell.

He remembers that it was winter when he worked atop the Opry House structure, and says he didn't have to worry about bosses scrutinizing his work after climbing on the roof.

"One thing about the roof, we had it all to ourselves," he says. "It was so cold up there we used to build little sheds to eat lunch in — just nail two pieces of plywood together, then we'd tear 'em down and use 'em."

Anderson won't be able to attend Wednesday night's Grammy awards program at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles. He is committed to perform at the Central Florida Fair in Orlando, Fla., near his hometown, Apopka.

"I can probably get away with watchin' a TV on stage," he says.

He's not sure of his chances to win the coveted award — the music industry equivalent of an Oscar. Other finalists for best country music vocal performance by a male are Willie Nelson for "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," Eddie Rabbitt for "Step by Step," George Jones for "Still Doin' Time" and Ronnie Milsap for "(There's) No Gettin' Over Me."

"I don't know. I could (win) I guess," he says, "or I wouldn't have been nominated."

Anderson's current hit is "I Just Came Home to Count the Memories," which has reached the Top 10 on the country charts.

"I've made a lot of progress," he says. "Things have worked a lot in my favor. I've been real lucky."

The hardest way to get eggs served in a restaurant is immediately.

The generation gap is directly proportionate to the amount of chill induced when viewing a young thing going by in a short skirt on a zero day.

MUGGABLE MARY

Karen Valentine (pictured) portrays Mary Glatzle, a divorced mother who becomes a decoy cop in the street crime unit of the New York City Police Department, in "Muggable Mary," a new made-for-TV movie, airing on the CBS Thursday Night Movie on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25. Miss Valentine won an Emmy for her performances in the series, "Room 222," and has since expanded her career in many directions.

Valentine Proving 'Drama' Talent

By JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Karen Valentine said she read for the title role of the CBS movie "Muggable Mary: Street Cop" because she didn't want to be judged on the basis of her reruns.

She read for producer Neil T. Maffeo and director Sandor Stern, something that an actress with her name and experience usually doesn't have to do. Miss Valentine, who usually does comedy, wanted to leave them with a fresh impression of her ability to handle drama.

"I did a very emotional scene where I had to break down and cry," she said. "Then I pulled myself together and said, 'OK, do I get the job or what?'"

She got the job and stars as Officer Mary Glatzle in the made-for-TV movie Thursday night. It's based on the experiences of Mrs. Glatzle as an undercover officer with the New York City Police. She was assigned to act as a decoy to lure out muggers so that her partners could grab them.

Mrs. Glatzle was a divorced mother of a young son with a congenital medical problem. She took the job as a police officer mainly to get the medical insurance. She is presently a detective first grade, assigned to working with the FBI on bank robbery cases.

The movie also stars John Getz, Anne De Salvo, Robert Christian, Michael Pearlman and Vincent Gardenia. It was not available for pre-review.

Miss Valentine said Maffeo was impressed by the book, which Mrs. Glatzle wrote with Evelyn Fiore. "He was at a reunion of sorts and someone came up to him and said, 'You're a producer — here, read this.' It was Mary's book, and he and Sandy Stern got together and Sandy wrote the screenplay."

It was filmed entirely on location in New York, where she said Stern, a former practicing physician, acted as his own medical adviser for a hospital scene.

"This is the first time I've played a cop and the first time I've ever played a real live person," said Miss Valentine. "All my other characters were fictional. I don't do an impersonation. If you've met her, you'd think we were quite different. Yet, I think I capture the essence of her. We use some of the real cases she's dealt with."

The movie is also a pilot for a potential CBS series. It's her first pilot since she did "The Goodbye Girl," although she starred in two previous series.

She was school teacher Alice Johnson in ABC's "Room-222" for 4 1/2 years. Her own show, "Karen," lasted only 13 weeks.

Spacek Learning Latin American Politics Well

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sissy Spacek remembers her trip to Argentina a few years ago:

"I was there doing publicity for 'Carrie,' and I really knew nothing about the politics of the country. I found out from people who told me of friends and relatives who had disappeared. Also revealing was the fact that I couldn't go anywhere without a bodyguard. Even when I went jogging in the park, two men with guns went along with me — and had a lot of trouble keeping up."

The actress' education in Latin American politics was furthered with her new film, "Missing," which she made in Mexico last year. Although the locale isn't specified in the movie, the story obviously takes place in Chile, during the 1973 overthrow of the Allende government.

The Polygram-Universal release uses real names in tracing the disappearance of Charles Horman, a writer and filmmaker who was taken from his Santiago home by the Chilean military. His wife and father, played by Miss Spacek and Jack Lemmon, battle the country's rulers — and their American co-conspirators — to learn of the young man's fate.

It is a powerful indictment of United States complicity with military oppression, co-written and directed by an expert in political melodrama: Greek-born Costa-Gavras, who also made "Z," "The Confession" and "Special Section."

"I met Costa eight months before the picture began," Miss Spacek recalls. "I had seen several of his pictures and had been impressed with them: He told me the story of the Hormans, which he had first seen as a tiny news item. Then he read the book by Thomas Hauser and was certain he wanted to make the movie."

"I figured I had to talk politics with Costa-Gavras, and he must have thought, 'She's a perfect fool.' I'll admit that what appealed to me about the story was the relationship between the daughter-in-law and the father-in-law," the actress says.

"I hadn't really been aware of what had happened in Chile, and I felt ashamed that I could be living in the United States and not be aware of what the government had been doing. If the story could affect me so strongly, I thought the movie might affect other people the same way."

Miss Spacek met Lemmon last year at the Academy Awards, where she was a nominee for best actress for "Coal Miner's Daughter." He told her: "I've got a thousand dollars on you to win." She did.

What's new on Walton's Mountain:

Eric Scott, who was 12 when "The Homecoming" was first broadcast, is now a 23-year-old married man. He was acting even before the Waltons became household names. He began in the business at the age of 7. So most of his life and growing up have been in the public eye.

He has developed into a witty young man who has his first feature film due for release, probably in the spring.

"It's called the 'Loch Ness Horror' and I get eaten up in the picture," he says. He adds that his wife, Karey Louis Scott, is also in the film.

Meanwhile, three Walton's Mountain specials for NBC-TV have been completed. The first will be telecast on Feb. 22. The second will be telecast around Mother's Day, and it features an appearance by Michael Learned as Olivia. Her scenes, Eric says, were filmed in New York because her series, "Nurse" is keeping her busy there.

Anthony Hopkins, who was seen recently on the CBS-Hallmark Hall of Fame production of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" also appeared in Los Angeles in a play called "The Arcata Promise."

It was a short run, by his choice, and was done with practically no publicity (again his choice) at an Equity-waiver theater. And he didn't invite any drama critics.

"If they wanted to come and buy a ticket we couldn't keep them out. But I'll never know why actors should pay for critics to come to the theater and slap us in the face," he says.

Marty Pasetta produced the recent Cerebral Palsy Telethon, which presented 21 hours of continuous entertainment and was telecast on a network of 125 stations throughout the U.S. and Canada. # Reporter Tells of Struggle With Cancer

By LAURA RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Cancer is a disease that runs like this: First you think you have it. Then you wait. Then you know you have it. Then you wait. Then you are treated for it. And then you wait.

I first thought I had it on Nov. 9. I knew I had it Nov. 20. Treatment began Dec. 21.

They told me on Tuesday I'm cancer-free. If I stay that way five years, I'm cured. So now I'm waiting.

With cancer, you wait to be cured, or to die, but more than that you wait for it to make sense, for its great and trivial torments to become — impossible — reasonable.

I can't tell you how it is. "Your chances are excellent," the doctor said.

I never took chances. But while I was sparing myself ordinary risks — no, I won't go to Europe, the plane might crash — my body was preparing this terrible betrayal. It risked everything.

The German philosopher Hegel said that man, the only animal that knows it must die, carries death in his consciousness. Death is in us.

Not me. I jogged. I was going to live forever. As soon as I knew more about life, I would write books. In the meantime, I would prepare myself. Suddenly after 31 years, I was left holding my plans and very little else.

In the hospital, you stop being a person and become someone's job. Your body is outraged so many times the experience becomes banal. You watch other people enduring pain so terrible you hate yourself. There is no privacy. You are publicly humiliated.

In the Intensive Care Unit at Methodist Hospital in Houston, a pregnant teenager was forcibly intubated. She screamed.

A man cursed monotonously, ceaselessly, hatefully. A tiny child, hopelessly crippled, lay crumpled in a crib. An unconscious woman in lush middle age was bathed by a nurse and a high school boy, an orderly.

Her nakedness was pathetic and terrifying. "This can't be real," I thought.

Drugs washed over the palliades of consciousness again and again, until existence became a sort of horror-comedy watched with morphine-bright eyes. Sleeping in the continual half-light of the ward, I sometimes dreamed I had no pain.

I never dreamed anything else. My breast bone had been broken. My throat had been slit at the base. Long fat tubes ran into my chest. Slender tubes ran into each hand and into my bladder. I was connected to bottles and bags, and I stank. My hair was matted and filthy. I itched.

Nothing killed pain. Late one night after I could walk, I crept to the nurses' station and tried to tell the woman there that the pain was ineradicable, it was too much...

"Can't you think of God, and offer this pain to Him?" she said.

Another nurse said my problem was I had never had a baby.

"If you had," she said, "you would know what real pain is: labor."

I was shocked. I laughed at her until she shrugged and left.

I had been initiated into a sorority I didn't want to join, and suddenly found my sisters everywhere. One day, while a thick oil dripped into my lymph system through cuts on my insteps, a nurse sat beside me patting my hand and talking about her cancer.

She had had a mastectomy and planned reconstructive surgery.

"They can make you a new nipple, either from part of the one that's left, or from your labia," she said. "I think I'm going to have it made out of labia, and just not tell my husband where I got it."

We both laughed. Our bodies were dear little dirty jokes.

"All in vein!" I giggled at a young doctor who was explaining the injection of a blue dye.

"Miss Richardson," he said sternly, "some things are serious."

So they are. Back in Dallas, I went five times a week to Sammons Cancer Center at Baylor and sat among my fellow-sufferers: a man without an ear; breastless women; wombless women; a feeble, bald skeleton of a young man with a rosy, buxom wife; a man who'd lost an eye to the disease that has now invaded his brain.

Children. A round-eyed 8-year-old played Little League baseball last summer and Pop Warner football last fall.

"He kept complaining about his neck, and I carried him to the doctors — I carried him to four doctors, and they said he'd pulled a muscle sliding into third base," the boy's father said. "So finally I carried him to a chiropractor, and he took an X-ray and found the tumor."

"And he said, well, he said there weren't nothing he could do for him."

It was difficult to resume my life, although my radiologist had said "You can sit around feeling sorry for yourself, or you can go back to work."

On one of the days I made it to the office, the Sammons receptionist called and said I had to appear four hours early for my appointment because they were closing the center. It was the fourth time this had happened.

I waited almost two hours. Lying on the slab under the huge machine that burned the cancer out of me, I said to the technician, "I don't think it's fair, calling us away from work and then making us wait...."

"Look," she interrupted. "You don't have to come here. So if you do come, don't complain."

In the laboratory at Sammons are two large cartoons. Both show patient-as-victim-nurse-as-sadist.

"Those are cute," I said. Wrong word.

"Yes," said the technician. "The man who did them really knew what he was talking about."

"Who was it?" "He was the cartoonist for The Dallas Morning News. He had leukemia."

"What happened to him?" "He died."

There's never enough time.

14. Card of Thanks
It's our prayer that God's richest blessings be on each and everyone that have shown their love for Pearl and us at this time of our sorrow. We just want to say thank you for all the many prayers, flowers, cards, memorials, food, phone calls, words of comfort and all the many other kind expressions of sympathy extended us. A testimony to Pearl's life has been made here and we'll all miss her very much. There is nothing in this world more important than good friends and we love you all.
Lloyd Hulsey & Girls Family of Pearl Hulsey

We wish to express our heartfelt appreciation for the many kindnesses and courtesies extended to us, during the days following the death of our wife and mother, Helen Millard. Thank you all so very much.
Mrs. Arline M. Williams
Mr. Robert N. Millard
Mr. George Millard

We wish to gratefully express our gratitude for the expressions of sympathy extended in so many ways.

Our Story: JUSTIN is DEAD AND BETWEEN TEARS OF GRIEF AND THE LAST LIGHT OF DAY, THE BALANCE WILL BE THE MOST POWERFUL RULER IN CHRISTENDOM. "AND YOUR ZONE," HE SMILES.

EVEN BELIEVING SWAINS FEEL TO THIS MAN HE CANNOT TRUST FOR THE GENERAL, HOLDS DUTY ABOVE PERSONAL FEELINGS ABOVE JUSTICE. FOR KORTY FEELS HE WILL SERVE JUSTINIAN WELL... AND THE, DISAPPEARS, IN PRISON.

PRICE MUST AND BE GIVEN OPENING THE COUNCIL IN THE BARRACKS OF JAMES SPAIN, HIS DOME SURROUNDED AS BY A GOLDEN CHAIN FROM THE HEAVENS, JUSTINIAN WEARS THE UNIVERSAL, PURPLE BOOTS AS THE DAGGER IS PLACED UPON HIS HEAD. "THOU ART CAESAR," THE BISHOP PROCLAIMS.

IT IS RECORDED IN THE CHRONICLES THAT THE NINTH EMPEROR OF THE EAST IS A FAMED PIECE OF MARBLE: A STRONG RULER, A GIVER OF LAWS, A VIOLENT HUSBAND OF BETTY AND MAGNANIMOUS, GIVER WITH HIS BROTHERS, SUSPICIOUS OF HIS FRIENDS, HE SHOULD BE LESS SUSPICIOUS IF THERE WERE NO GOOD IN HIM AT ALL. THE GREAT COMEDY ALL OF HIS SERVED EVERYTHING EXCEPT AN OLD WOMAN REBUSES BY AND HIS RECORDS. IT IS "THE WANDERER."

ANYTHING SPECIAL HAPPEN TODAY?

NOT THAT I CAN THINK OF

HI, DON'T LIE TO ME, IT'D BE BETTER IF YOU TOLD THE TRUTH

WHAT'S THIS ALL ABOUT?

BOY! THAT COMPANY AUDIT WAS TOUGH TODAY!

I'M GLAD IT'S OVER-I DON'T THINK I COULD ANSWER ANOTHER QUESTION!

WHERE DID YOU EAT LUNCH?

LET'S SEE... OH YEAH, AT MY DESK

YOUR OLD COLLEGE GIRL FRIEND LIBBY, IS IN TOWN. SHE CALLED TO TALK TO YOU. I GAVE HER YOUR OFFICE NUMBER

I'M HOME, HONEY

HOW COME YOU'RE LATE?

STOP FOR A DRINK AFTER WORK?

HOW COULD I BE HOME NOW IF I DID?

SHE NEVER CALLED AND I'M STILL IN TROUBLE

HOW COULD I BE HOME NOW IF I DID?

WABBIT'S HE BROTHERS?

HE'S NOT HERE! HE'S NOT HERE! HE'S NOT HERE!

WE NEED TO FIND YOUR BROTHER'S BROTHER!

HONEY, ARE YOU DOWN HERE?

WHERE COULD HE BE? I EVEN LOOKED OUTSIDE!

WE'VE SEARCHED THE WHOLE TOWN TWICE! HE'S NOT HERE!

I WONDER WHERE HE IS?

TELL ME SOMETHING! TELL ME SOMETHING!

THE ROOM (CLOSET) YES, THE ROOM (CLOSET) THAT'S IT!

HE SAID HE'S ABOUT THE LOOKS ON THE DOOR!

BEETLE BAILEY

BEETLE'S GOTTA BE HIDING HERE IN THE BARRACKS SOMEWHERE!

WHERE THE HECK IS HE? I'VE LOOKED EVERYWHERE!

LOOK UNDER HIS BED, SARGE

BEETLE BAILEY

IT'S THE ONLY THING I HAVEN'T CHECKED

NOT THERE "LOOK UNDER HIS BED"

WHAT WERE THOSE STRAPS DOING ON BEETLE'S BED?!

MAYBE HE GOT OUT ON THE ROOF, SOMEHOW

WE'RE DEALING WITH AN EXPERT!

ARCHIE DID YOU PICK UP THAT ALBUM FOR ME YET? BUT I FORGOT!

OH, NO! I MEANT TO DO IT YESTERDAY, BUT I FORGOT!

I THOUGHT YOU WERE GOING TO WRITE DOWN ALL THE THINGS YOU HAD TO DO IN A NOTEBOOK!

I WAS GOING TO, BUT I DIDN'T GET AROUND TO BUYING THE NOTEBOOK YET!

ARCHIE DID YOU PICK UP THAT PACKAGE FOR ME AT THE POST OFFICE?

OH, GEE, MR. LODGE, I'VE BEEN MEANING TO GET TO IT!

ARCHIE, THE WAY YOU ALWAYS KEEP PUTTING THINGS OFF, YOU SHOULD JOIN THE "PROCRASTINATORS' CLUB."

HE WAS GOING TO, BUT HE KEPT PUTTING IT OFF!

YOU KNOW, JUG, MR. LODGE IS RIGHT. I'VE BEEN PROMISING TO CLEAN OUT THE GARAGE AT HOME FOR MONTHS!

WHAT A JOB! I THINK I LEFT IT OUTSIDE ON THE LAWN!

WHEN? WHERE DID YOU PUT THE LAWN MOWER ON THE JUG?

YOU FINISH UP IN HERE, I'LL GO GET IT!

JUGSA! IT SEEMS TO BE CALGUT IN SOMETHING, MAYBE IF I TRY PUSHING IT...

- BY GEORGE! Teacher: "What do you think George Washington might have said when he cut down the cherry tree?" Student: "AXAME NOOU ESTI ONSI 'LLE LLYO UNOL IES." Rearrange cap-letter spacing for answer.
- Tree Tips! Find a tree in each sentence: 1. We raced around town. 2. Cancel my date. 3. Killroy was here. 4. Pour it into a keg.
- Well Spoken? A buggy wheel with twelve spokes between spokes has how many speakers? Work this out in your head, if you can.
- Fish Tallest! Which fish comes from Russia? The Moscow lunge. Which fish works in a hospital? The brain surgeon. Which dance is done by fish? The flin-dango.

ELUSIVE VERSE

Think you can rely on your hands to distinguish between hot and cold? Let's see. Fill three pans with water— one hot, one cold, one lukewarm. Place your left hand in the hot water and your right hand in the cold water. Keep them there a minute or two, then plunge both hands into the lukewarm pan. Alakazam! It is likely that the lukewarm water will reverse the feeling of hot and cold in your left and right hands. Give it a try!

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.
