NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Vengeance-seeking Hindus set fires and beat up Sikhs across northern India today, venting their fury over the assassination of Indira Gandhi by two of her Sikh guards. At least 50 people reportedly were killed and hundreds injured nationwide.

Authorities ordered a 24-hour curfew in New Delhi and 15 other cities. Police in some places were given shoot-to-kill orders against the mobs and troops were summoned to the capital from neighboring states.

The United News of India said more than 60 people were killed nationwide. Hospital sources in New Delhi told police more than 50 people were killed and 600 injured in the capital alone.

The only government casualty estimate came from Home Secretary M. M. K. Wali, who told reporters nine people had been confirmed killed throughout India.

Despite pleas for calm from Mrs. Gandhi's son and successor, Rajiv Gandhi, the estimated crowd of 600,000 mourners hung past the flag-draped body of the slain prime minister in New Delhi became so unruly that police threw tear gas to restore order.

Mrs. Gandhi died Wednesday after being shot by two of her guards, authorities have said. The United News of India said she was shot 22 times.

Police in Punjab state arrested relatives and friends of the two Sikh guards, United News of India reported. One of the accused guards, constable Satwant Singh, was killed by other security men, and the second, sub-inspector Beant Singh, was wounded, authorities have said. A third guard, who did not fire, was arrested. He has not been identified.

The backlash in cities with Sikh populations was part of a surge of rioting, arson and looting by mobs of Hindus seeking revenge for the killing of the 66-year-old Mrs. Gandhi. The mobs burned Sikh-owned businesses, cars and buses, and beat Sikh men they found in the open

There was a two-hour exchange of gunfire today between police and a "large group of people" in a building near the Home Ministry in New Delhi.

New Delhi's deputy police commissioner, Qumar Ahmed, said the violence plunged New Delhi into its "worst position since independence" from the British in 1947, when Hindu-Muslim violence erupted.

The assassination was claimed by anonymous Sikh extremists as revenge for the Indian army attack on the Golden Temple in Amritsar to flush out Sikh separatists in June. Sikhs number 13 million in the predominantly Hindu nation of 730 million.

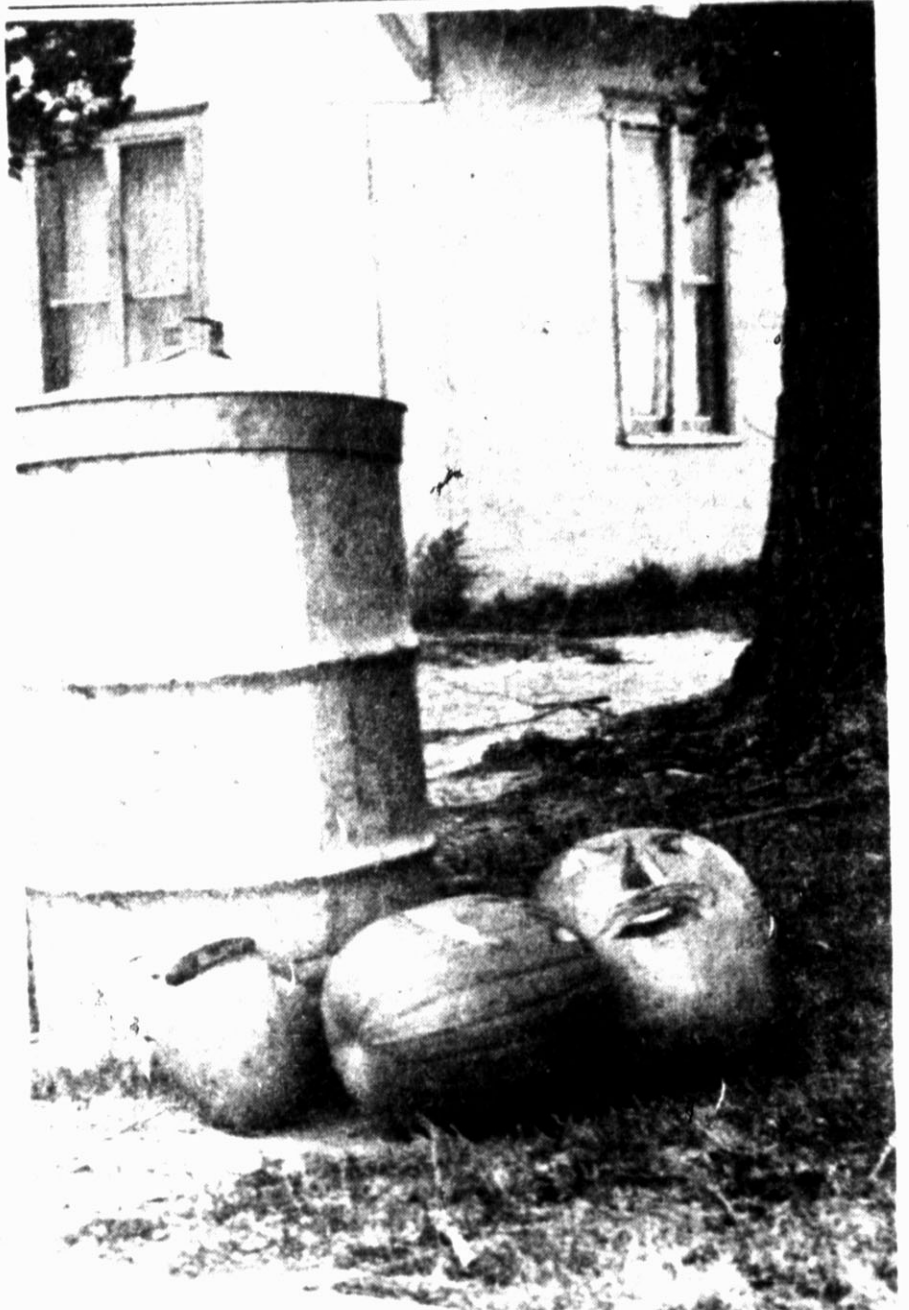

The Soviet news media today hinted that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency may have been involved in the assassination. Reports from Radio Moscow, in newspapers and from the official news agency Tass condemned the assassination of Mrs. Gandhi and blamed it on "India's opponents abroad." The press also published reports about alleged CIA involvement with Sikh separatists who advocate independence for the Punjab state in northwestern India. None of the Soviet reports directly accused the CIA of engineering Mrs. Gandhi's assassination.

Mrs. Gandhi's body is to lie in state for 24 hours. It is on a tilted bier in the "Teen Murti" house where her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, independent India's first prime minister, lived and died. Her head was covered by a pale yellow sari, and her face appeared swollen.

The building is a few hundred feet from the spot where independence leader Mohandas K. Gandhi was assassinated by a Hindu fanatic 37 years ago. He was not related to Mrs. Gandhi.

The heavily guarded Rajiv, 40, sworn in Wednesday as the new prime minister, appeared tired with bloodshot eyes and admonished mourners to stop chanting the slogan "Blood for blood."

Casias sentenced 31 years for robbery

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

An eight woman jury that deliberated in a trial that lasted Wednesday afternoon in Hereford, Texas, convicted a man of aggravated robbery to 31 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

The 22-year-old defendant was earlier in the day taken to court on duty to find Henry Casias guilty of robbing a local convenience store last March 31. The 27-year-old clerk on duty at the time of the robbery Tuesday that Casias held a knife to his throat while he and three companions stole an undetermined amount of cash from the store.

Casias was still in court on Tuesday when he was sentenced to 31 years in the TDCJ. He had been held without bail since his arrest the night of the convenience store robbery. Casias testified in court that he and his friends had been drinking beer and eating pizza and smoking marijuana the day of the crime, and that he was drunk when he gave a voluntary statement to District Attorney's Investigator Perry Gaston. The confession was admitted as evidence in the trial.

Casias and his companions, who had been turned over to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice in Hereford, Texas, were apprehended by police officers based on a physical description given by the store clerk.

A local physician testified during the trial that the knife used in the robbery was a deadly weapon. The knife had been recovered and was also admitted as evidence. Casias could have been given up to 99 years of life in TDCJ for the crime, his second felony offense.

The jury first retired to deliberate on punishment at 3:25 p.m. Wednesday, and twice sent out notes that a sentence could not be agreed upon. The jury was told to continue deliberations, finally agreeing on the length of sentence just before 7 p.m.

We were pleased that the defendant received a 31-year prison sentence," Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul said this morning. "We hope that the verdict will deter other persons who might have ideas of robbing a convenience store from committing the same crime that Henry Casias did."

Court-appointed defense attorney K. C. Hoelscher said Casias has not decided if he will appeal the conviction.

Amendments 3, 4 eyed

Second in series

Editor's Note: Following is the second of four articles describing the eight amendments to face Texas voters Tuesday. Information for the series has been chiefly obtained from "Analyses of Proposed Constitutional Amendments," a booklet compiled by the Texas Legislative Council.

Survivor benefits and abolition of two county treasurer positions are the subjects of two amendments before Texas voters Tuesday.

There are eight amendments in all, each proposed during the 1983 regular and first sessions of the 68th Texas Legislature. Of the 11 other constitutional changes submitted from that legislature, 10 were passed last November.

Dependent parents, brothers and sisters of public servants killed while performing hazardous jobs are to receive state money should Amendment No. 3 be okayed. Now, only spouses and children are entitled to benefits from such deaths.

The current system concerns paid law enforcement officers, paid probation officers, paid parole officers, paid jailers, campus security personnel, members of organized police reserve or auxiliary units and custodial personnel of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Also included are supervisory personnel in county jails, juvenile correctional employees of the Texas Youth Commission, employees of the Rusk State Hospital for the Criminally Insane, paid firemen, members of organized volunteer fire departments and park and recreational patrolmen and security officers.

About $1.4 million has been budgeted for death benefits in Texas during the 1984-1985 fiscal year. It is unknown how much more money would be needed to cover payments to dependent parents, brothers and sisters of the deceased servants.

One argument for No. 3, according to the Texas Legislative Council, is the amendment "serves the same purpose as the current version covering the surviving spouse and minor children." Also, the extra benefits add incentive to do hazardous work, which makes the added expense "not a frivolous use of state money."

Those opposed to No. 3, the council noted, cite the amendment could cost a lot of money "when the state budget is tight." Also, there are other benefit options, such as workers compensation, local pension plans, social security and private life insurance which "are all available and will be paid in addition to the assistance allowed by the proposed amendment."

Amendment No. 4 would allow citizens in Bexar (near San Antonio) and Collin (near Dallas) counties to vote on having their county clerks assume duties now performed by their county treasurers. Each holder of the two concerned treasurer positions ran on platforms advocating abolition of the offices.

In 1982, Texas voters approved a similar amendment for Bee and Tarrant counties, though county auditors were designated to assume treasurers' duties. In subsequent

A garage sale is a way of distributing all the junk from your garage among all the other garages in the neighborhood.

This newspaper has always carried an "independent" label in political philosophy, and our endorsements for the Nov. 6 election reflect that view as we support both Democratic and Republican candidates.

Regardless of pressures and claims from political parties, a voter has the right to pick and choose on the general election ballot. He can check a Republican in one office and a Democrat in another. We believe that provides another set of checks and balances for our system.

We believe a vote for the Reagan-Bush ticket will be best for America's future. The Republican platform is a conservative campaign document that conforms to the themes President Reagan sounded in his first term in office.

The Democratic leadership put together a platform of promises to lure special interests groups, ranging from union labor to homosexuals, and a demand for more taxes to fund bigger bureaus and more government handouts.

We believe the complex problems of our country can best be solved by political leaders who are headed in the right direction, and by Congressmen who will help them to obtain desirable legislation. We endorse the Reagan-Bush ticket at the top of the ballot.

We also believe Republican Phil Gramm would best serve the interests of Texas and the nation as a U.S. Senator. His opponent, Lloyd Doggett, is simply too liberal for the majority of Texans. If one looks at the man and what he stands for instead of sticking with obsolete party standards, the choice is simple.

Accident kills Hereford man

A 26-year-old Hereford man was pronounced dead at the scene of a semi tractor and trailer wreck Wednesday night south of the city on Highway 385.

David Stanley York, 610 Avenue F, died after the truck he was driving left the roadway, overturned and caught fire. According to the Department of Public Safety report, York failed to negotiate a curve as he was heading northbound eight miles south of Hereford.

The 1986 International tractor, pulling a Hobbs trailer, then left the road, ran over a tree, struck two telephone poles and traveled 95 feet before turning over and catching fire. The DPS report said the Castro County Fire Department was sent to the scene and the vehicle was destroyed by the blaze.

York, who was driving the truck for Newton Trucking of Hereford, was pronounced dead at the scene at around 8:30 p.m. by Castro County Justice of the Peace Marshall Young.

The body was taken to Parson's Funeral Home in Dimmitt and later to Gililand-Watson Funeral Home in Hereford, where services are pending.

Brand to have voter's guide

As a special Friday feature, The Brand will present a "Voter's Guide" on statewide candidate and the eight proposed constitutional amendments.

The four-page insert was prepared by the League of Women Voters, a nonpartisan organization, as a means of helping prepare voters to cast an informed vote in the Nov. 6 general election.

The Guide includes responses from candidates in contested races, as well as "for" and "against" arguments on the amendments.

Absentee voting in Deaf Smith County is approaching record proportions, according to David Ruland, county clerk.

As of Wednesday afternoon, 572 ballots had been cast in person and another 210 had been mailed out. The clerk's office has not tabulated how many ballots have been mailed back so far, Ruland said.

The 782 total potential absentee ballots is 25 shy of the record

Man charged in slaying shot

DENTON, Texas (AP) — A man charged in the slaying of a 13-year-old North Richland Hills girl who was missing for three weeks was in fair condition after being shot in an escape attempt, officials said.

Mark Robert Matthys, 23, was shot in the neck Wednesday by a Denton County officer within a half-block of the county jail as he attempted to flee about 3:20 p.m., Denton Chief Deputy Jim Wilson said.

Matthys had just been moved to the facility from the North Richland Hills jail, he said, adding that he didn't know which officer fired the shot.

A Flaw Memorial Hospital spokeswoman said Matthys was in fair condition Wednesday night.

Matthys was arrested late Tuesday and charged with capital murder in the death of Michelle Trimmier. Her body was found partially buried on a farm Saturday, 21 days after she disappeared from her home's front yard Oct. 6.

Pesticide controls raise questions

AUSTIN (AP) — Opponents to proposed new state controls for pesticides outnumbered supporters at an extended meeting of the House Agriculture Committee, which was divided itself on the subject.

The public hearing was scheduled to continue today. More than 60 witnesses registered to speak for and against the tentative new standards for the use of pesticides announced Oct. 19 by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

In addition to the House hearing, the Texas Department of Agriculture will sponsor public hearings beginning Nov. 12 in Austin, Lubbock, San Juan and maybe in the Victoria area.

Hightower was not at Wednesday's session, which at times attracted a crowd of about 200.

"No one has documented the need for these kinds of regulations," said S.M. True, a Plainview farmer and president of the Texas Farm Bureau. "To enact regulation before a problem is determined or if there is no problem, is wrong."

Houston man sought in heist

DALLAS (AP) — Federal authorities have issued an arrest warrant for a Houston man in connection with the robbery of a North Texas bank where armed robbers made their getaway in a stolen helicopter.

James Richard Little, 40, is believed to have been involved in a robbery ring that committed other bank heists using aircraft to escape, George Lyford, an FBI agent in Las Vegas, told The Dallas Morning News Wednesday.

The warrant, issued this week in Dallas, is the first in the July 20 holdup of the Valley View National Bank, said Chief Deputy John Aston of Cooke County, where the robbery occurred.

Aston said he is also seeking indictments against two other Texas men in the Valley View case. Both have already been arrested in connection with the mid-September robbery of an Overton, Nev., bank that also involved an airborne getaway.

Aston said he is seeking indictments against Russell Earl Auzston, 36, of Conroe, and Charles R. Holden, 38, of Houston. Both men are being held in Nevada.

Unusual fall twisters kill two

CARBONDALE, Kan. (AP) — An unusual late-season tornado tossed and tumbled house trailers as it ripped through a mobile home park, killing two people and injuring 10 others.

The flurry of fall tornadoes Wednesday also hit Oklahoma, where the National Weather Service said as many as three twisters touched down and damaged houses and vehicles. No injuries were reported.

The twister that struck this eastern Kansas town Wednesday night gave residents little time to react.

"It hapened so quickly it would make your head swim," said Mildred Boyer, 79, owner of the Mineral Springs Trailer Court in this town about 10 miles south of Topeka. "It got still. It got dead hot. It seemed like it came right down and dropped."

The tornado killed a middle-aged man who was found buried under debris, and killed a woman whose trailer home just outside the mobile home park was demolished, said Osage County Sheriff Robert Masters. The names of the victims were being withheld until relatives could be notified.

The 10 people injured at the mobile home park were treated at the scene for minor cuts, bruises and shock, said Osage County ambulance squad director Tony Bell.

Man wants smasher on moon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Physicist Edward Teller said he is not sure it's such a good idea to plan an atom smasher that will cover "a good part of Texas." Instead, he suggested building even a larger one around the equator of the moon.

Teller's proposal to build the device, a particle accelerator, around the equator of the moon would cover a distance of 6,700 miles. The one planned for Texas sometime in the 1990s is to be a mere 100 miles long.

Accelerators are racetracks for subatomic particles, which are sped along inside a tube by electric fields. Once they achieve high energy, the particles are allowed to crash into matter and either scatter or produce other particles.

In this way, physicists probe the inner workings of the basic particles making up atoms.

The 76-year-old Teller, often called "the father of the hydrogen bomb," told a lunar conference that scientist Enrico Fermi once proposed "that sooner or later we will obviously make an accelerator around the equator of the Earth."

Sandinistas blaim U.S. spy plane

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista government said a U.S. spy plane flew over Nicaragua, causing sonic booms that panicked people who thought they were being bombed. In Washington, the Pentagon denied the claim.

A Defense Ministry communique from the leftist government in Managua said the alleged incident Wednesday substantiated a long-voiced Sandinista claim that U.S. military forces are planning to invade Nicaragua if President Reagan is re-elected next week.

Residents of Granada, about 28 miles southeast of the capital, told The Associated Press by telephone that two explosions shook buildings in their city Wednesday shortly before what sounded like an explosion was heard in Managua.

Capt. Guillermo Gonzalez, a Defense Ministry spokesman, claimed that a high-flying spy plane — a supersonic U.S. Air Force Lockheed SR-71 known as Blackbird — had violated Nicaraguan air space and "carried out acts of espionage while at the same time causing justified alarm in our population on breaking the sound barrier."

Gramm stumps in west

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — GOP Senate candidate Phil Gramm, campaigning across what he hopes will be one of his strongest regions in Tuesday's election, is telling West Texans that Democrat Lloyd Doggett will be beaten if Republicans get out the vote.

Visibly pumped up by cheering crowds at a series of rallies on Wednesday, Gramm predicted he would be get the largest margin any statewide GOP candidate ever has received.

Doggett, he said, will be handed "a more resounding defeat than any candidate for statewide office in that party has ever suffered in the history of Texas."

Gramm spent all day Wednesday stumping in traditionally conservative West Texas. He hit Fort Worth, Abilene, retiring Sen. John Tower's hometown of Wichita Falls, San Angelo, Lubbock and the Midland-Odessa area. Asked about the crowds, which cheered, chanted "We want Gramm," and gave him repeated ovations, the candidate said he believes it reflects the mood of his supporters.

"I see more enthusiasm among our people than among theirs (Doggett backers)," he said. "Our people are fired up. I think our people are going to turn out."

Gramm said he expects a record number of voters, adding that he doesn't fear it although some politicians have said such a turnout would benefit Democrats more than Republicans.

"I think everybody's going to turn out. I think we'll get an election that really represents the average Texan. I'm willing to trust their judgment," he said.

Jail bids to be advertised

Deaf Smith County Commissioners are to meet Monday to advertise for a second time bids for the proposed $1.55 million county jail renovation project.

The special meeting is to be held at 10 a.m. in the courthouse. On Wednesday, commissioners Bruce Coleman and Austin Rose met in San Antonio with Gondeck and Associates, the architectural firm in charge of the renovation project.

According to Rose, detention equipment bids are scheduled to be opened Tuesday, Nov. 27, while bids for general construction are to be examined one week later.

Last summer, all bids were rejected due to exorbitant costs. Gondeck has subsequently revised architectural plans to make the project less expensive.

After bids are advertised Monday morning, commissioners are to meet in closed session to discuss pending litigation, according to County Judge-Glen Nelson.

Negativism featured in several political spots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negative television and radio advertising has become a staple of modern political campaigns, and this year candidates for Congress are spending millions to broadcast what's wrong with their opponents.

Negative ads are being used in nearly every state where there is a hotly contested race, to the point where even some candidates using this electronic mudslinging are questioning whether the tactic is doing more to win votes or offend voters.

But most candidates, while lamenting the need for such advertising, accuse the other side of striking the first low blow and say they're just trying to set the record straight.

"You know what a negative ad is, don't you? It's the other fellow's ad," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Helms' re-election campaign against Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt has generated some of the most vitriolic TV and radio commercials of the campaign year.

It is also the most expensive Senate race in history, totaling more than $21 million for both candidates, most of it spent on television commercials.

One controversial Hunt ad seeks to link Helms with death squads in El Salvador.

A Helms ad shows Hunt raising his right hand while an announcer states, "This is actual TV news footage in slow motion of Jim Hunt voting to raise your taxes." Hunt cried foul, claiming the footage was shot at a meeting of the National Governor's Conference.

Another Helms ad asks, "Is everybody lying but Jim?"

In the Senate race in Texas, Democratic candidate Lloyd Doggett is running a commercial featuring the voice of an actor who sounds something like Republican Phil Gramm commenting on Social Security. Using words that are purportedly Gramm's, the actors states:

"They're 80 years old. Most people don't have the luxury of living to be 80 years old. So it's hard for me to feel sorry for them."

Gramm, claiming his quote was taken out of context, has blasted the ads as unethical. But Gramm himself has run radio ads criticizing Doggett for supporting gay rights legislation and for accepting contributions from an all-male gay strip show.

In Illinois, in a $3 million war of commercials, Democrat Paul Simon has TV ads accusing Sen. Charles Percy of flip-flopping on major issues. "Where will Charles Percy stand tomorrow? Only his pollster knows for sure."

A Percy commercial, meanwhile, claims Simon is seeking a $200 billion tax increase, more than double the $85 billion increase proposed by presidential candidate Walter Mondale. Simon claims the ad incorrectly compares his four-year plan with one year of the Mondale plan.

In Iowa, Democratic Rep. Tom Harkin is using ads showing Sen. Roger Jepsen wiping perspiration from his face and appearing to doze while on the job.

Three people arrested by police

Three people were arrested for public intoxication Wednesday, Hereford police reported this morning.

Also, one person apiece was picked up for juvenile theft, driving while license suspended and reckless driving. Among the incidents investigated were two thefts from coin-operated machines and one each for simple assault and vandalism.

BULL

Gramm switched parties and his district still sent him back to Congress because he represented the majority's views.

The race for the 19th Congressional District seat has been a difficult one for the candidates because all started with little name identification among the voters. It has been a hotly-contested race but, thankfully, has been carried on with much more civility than the Senatorial race.

We heartily endorse Don Richards for this important position. He has the support of his former boss, Kent Hance; the Conservative Democratic Forum and chairman Charles Stenholm; more than 20 West Texas newspapers, and the leaders of most ag groups in West Texas.

Don and his opponent, Larry Combest, are both conservatives, but there are some critical differences. We know Don's background. He is a fine Christian man who doesn't smoke, drink or curse. He and his wife, Melba, worked their way through college and they've paid their dues in community service in each town where they've resided.

The chairman of the House Ag

Committee, a fellow Texan, has said publicly that he wants Don on his committee to help with the 1985 farm bill. As a conservative Democrat, Don can have a crucial swing vote in the House where Democrats have a large majority.

Kent hance says, "Don Richards will be a great Congressman." We agree!

Last, but not least, we endorse Hereford's own Justin McBride for the state representative post, District 86. McBride has the mature judgment, the time and energy to devote to the post, and the experience and background to be an effective voice for the agricultural area which he will represent.

McBride may not be the smooth-talking politician that many people are accustomed to hearing, and that may be a plus in this race. In this county, we know him as a longtime county agent who served us well in that position. We think he has the concern of our area at heart and the ability to present our views in the state legislature.

AMENDMENTS

county elections, both Bee and Tarrant opted for the change.

The council claimed, in its "pro" side of No. 4, the amendment allows Bexar and Collin County residents to decide "their needs in the best tradition of local self-government." Also, budgets could be more efficiently managed and the "transfer of functions to the county clerk will retain necessary safeguards against the misapplication of county funds."

Too much authority in a single office and incompatible duties are two reasons the council gives against transferring powers from treasurers to clerks. Also, No. 4 can be said to represent a "piecemeal approach" which "will lead to a rash of attempted constitutional amendments as even more counties seek to carve out individual exceptions for themselves."

Now You're Cookin'

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

Not only has Rose Ann Smith spent the majority of her time nursing at the hospital, she has also nursed her house through ten years of repairs to make it a beautiful home.

"We've been working on the house for about ten years," she said. "We redid the wiring, put in the fireplace and planted all the trees. My husband is from Alabama and he wanted trees. He just loves them."

Simply, the Smiths completely remade their house.

"It was a challenge," Smith said. "We had looked at newer homes and what we could afford, we didn't want."

Recently, the couple finished making a brick patio and are preparing to glass-in the front of the house.

With the house now in good shape except for a few projects that the two want to undertake, Smith has more time for her nursing career.

Presently, she is employed by Amarillo College and is teaching Licensed Vocational Nurse classes for the second year.

"I teach Dimmitt and Hereford students the didactic or classroom part," she explained. "For the clinical part, I have only Hereford students."

Smith is a registered nurse and has completed graduate work as a nurse practitioner. She received her bachelor's degree from West Texas State University and went to school for her RN at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. In addition, she is certified as a nurse practitioner from the University of Texas at Arlington and was the first ICU supervisor at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

"I think I bring something to my teaching because I have had advanced classes," she said. "I get so close to the students, too, when we work in such small groups. It's hard letting them go."

Smith teaches only first-year classes which include such topics as geriatrics, pharmacology, ethics, professional and vocational adjustments, mental health and medical-surgical skills.

"The first year is a really difficult year," she said. "It prepares them to go on for RN work and to take the state board examination."

"Nursing is a whole total thing in itself," she continued. "Basic nursing is a general program. We cover a little of everything."

The first five weeks of classes are strictly classroom, she said. Once the women start the clinical part, she is with them all the time.

"I enjoy their idealism most," Smith said. "I love their curiosity and I love teaching adults. They bring with them life experiences, they work hard and are more disciplined."

"In every profession, we tend to lose some of that idealism and we need it. Working with the students keeps me viable."

"I was worried about losing the patient contact," she continued, "but I get it through the students."

She said that if she ever decides to quit teaching, she would like to work in a hospice (a facility for terminally ill patients and their families).

In addition to teaching, Smith is the in-service coordinator for the hospital. She coordinates educational programs including bringing speakers to talk to the staff and scheduling meetings to discuss new policies. Recently, she scheduled WTSU to give a workshop on the EKG.

She succinctly stated her philosophy of life when she said "the happiest people are those who are busy." And she is definitely busy.

Not only does she work full-time with the hospital, she is a charter member of the Chamber Singers, she takes voice lessons and sings in the St. Thomas Episcopal Church choir.

In her church, she has served in the vestry, as senior warden and as a lay reader. She enjoys decorative painting which involves working with acrylic paint on wood.

She is taking a jazzercise class and collects glass slippers. Smith is a member of the Junior College Teacher's Association, the Texas Association of Vocational Nurse Educators and the legislative committee for the TAVNE. She also serves on the Advisory Board for Home Health.

At one time, she was involved with the American Heart Association and taught swimming lessons for ten years with the Red Cross.

Her husband, Bill, has worked at Holly Sugar since the plant opened and enjoys doing handy work around the house. He, too, is involved with the church and serves in the vestry and as junior warden.

"Bill does a lot with the church," Smith said. "He is a really devout Christian."

Smith has three sons. Bill Tom Fraser and his wife, LeaAnn, live in Odessa with their two children, ages one and three. Jon Fraser is a junior at the University of Texas at Austin. The youngest son, Michael Fraser, is attending Odessa Junior College and plans to move to Lubbock next semester.

Smith's cooking abilities, like her professional abilities, are exceptional. With a Lebanese mother, she was raised eating Mediterranean food including stuffed grape leaves and yogurt. She also grew up in New Mexico and does a lot of Spanish cooking.

"We love to entertain, especially in the holidays," she said.

One suggestion she had to enhance dips was to core out a red cabbage, place the dip in it, and surround the cabbage with fresh cut vegetables.

The recipes she shared are good for the holidays, easy, and may be frozen without any problem.

MUSHROOM CRESCENTS
3-3 oz. packages cream cheese
1/2 C butter or margarine
1 1/2 C unsifted all-purpose flour
2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 medium onion, chopped
1-3oz. package cream cheese
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. thyme
1/8 tsp. freshly ground pepper
1 egg, beaten, with 1 Tbsp. water (for glaze)

Soften 9 oz. of cream cheese and 1/2 C butter at room temperature. With wooden spoon, stir flour, cream cheese and butter until well combined and smooth. Wrap and chill for at least 30 minutes.

In skillet, melt 2 Tbsp. butter. Add onion and saute until lightly browned. Add mushrooms and cook over medium-high heat for about three minutes. Lower heat and add three ounces of cream cheese, a bit at a time, stirring until it has melted. Stir in salt, thyme and pepper. Cool.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Remove half of the dough from the refrigerator. On a lightly floured board, roll it to 1/8-inch thickness. Cut into circles with a 2 1/2-inch round cookie cutter.

Place 1/2 teaspoon of the mushroom filling on each circle. Fold in half and press the edges together with the tines of fork. Make a small slit in the top of each crescent to let steam escape.

Repeat with remaining dough and scraps. Brush crescents with egg glaze. Bake on ungreased baking sheet for 15 minutes. Makes 50 to 60 crescents.

These may be prepared in advance. Cool, place in freezer container and freeze for up to one month. Warm in a 300 degree oven for 20 minutes.

TRICONAS
(Hot Cheese Pastries)

2-8 oz. packages cream cheese, softened
1/2 lb. Greek cheese (feta), crumbled
1 egg
3 Tbsp. butter, melted
1 package (2 lb.) prepared phyllo-pastry or strudel-pastry leaves
1 C butter, melted

In small bowl with electric mixer, combine cream cheese, Greek cheese, egg and three tablespoons butter. Beat at medium speed until well blended and smooth.

Place two leaves of phyllo pastry on board and brush with melted butter. Cut lengthwise into strips two-inches wide.

Place one heaping teaspoon of filling at end of a strip. Fold over one corner to opposite side, to make a triangle. Continue folding, keeping triangle shape, to other end of strip. Arrange on brown-paper-lined cookie sheets. Repeat with remaining strips.

Repeat with other pastry leaves. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes or until golden-brown. Cool on wire rack. Arrange in single layer on tray. Freeze. When frozen hard, remove tray and freezer-wrap. Freeze until serving.

To serve, preheat oven to 350 degrees. Arrange frozen pastries on brown-paper-lined cookie sheet. Bake 10 minutes or until heated through. Serve at once. Makes about seven dozen.

Tell 'em to cool it

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After working most of my life I recently retired. I was looking forward to a change of pace and some heavenly peace and quiet. What a joke!

I was aware that my next-door neighbor was a licensed day-care mother, but since I worked during the day I didn't realize what a change it had made in the neighborhood.

The noise starts around 7:30 a.m. — screaming, fighting, crying and kids on bikes yelling in front of my house like maniacs. I realize children need a place to go when their parents work, but don't adult property owners have some rights?

Don't tell me to go to my neighbor and speak to her. We have always had a good relationship and I don't want to ruin it. (P.S. Earplugs would drive me crazy and I can't move.)—Headaches In Ill.)

DEAR HEAD: The children who are screaming in front of your home should be told, by you, to cool it. The law says you are entitled to peace and quiet.

If you can hear the children yelling while they are in your neighbor's home, you have no choice but to tell her, in as nice a way as possible, that the noise is giving you a perpetual headache. It's either that or those earplugs that drive you crazy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a young girl who needs advice from an understanding person. I should also tell you I am not average. I'm special.

All the guys my age act so stupid, I'm looking for a really good relationship with a nice fellow. But the nice ones are always older.

Wherever I go, I look for men. Last Sunday I found myself flirting with a married man in church. When I realized what I was doing I stopped at once. Please tell me how to find a nice man my age—about 14.—Looking In Lancaster

DEAR LAN: Look in the ninth grade, or maybe the 10th. If you're really special you shouldn't have to look very long. The nice ones will find you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm the mother of six children between 18 and 35. To this day people still tell me what beautiful manners my children have. They are gracious and considerate and never fail to write thank-you notes or words of congratulation to friends who have done well.

Two of my children have presented us with grandchildren whom we love, but we can hardly believe they were raised by the children we raised.

They do not say "please" or "thank you". It's "gimme" or "I want." They interrupt conversations. If they don't like what you say, they will take a healthy swing at you, or scream, "I'll do what I want and you can't stop me."

They have no respect for personal property. Their parents make no effort to correct them.

Any advice on what can be done about grandchildren such as ours?—Disappointed In Waterbury, Ct.

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Obviously you did a much better job with your children than they did with theirs. You can do little more than insist on civil behavior when the children are in your presence and I hope you will. Yours is a very sad story—one I hear over and over these days.

Ann Landers' new booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. ### Help For Crippled Children

B.J. Gililand, left, presented a check to the Lions Crippled Children's Camp during the club meeting here Wednesday. Raymond White, a director of the camp, accepted the check from the Lions Club. The contribution came from a weekly fund-raising project.

Women's fashions reviewed

Jo Anne Arasim, curator of textiles for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, presented a program on "Overview of Underwear" at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday.

Arasim reviewed women's fashions from 1850 to 1920, displaying examples of some clothing from the museum and explaining how some of fashion changes evolved over the years. Lion Milton Adams introduced the program.

President B.J. Gililand announced the club was holding a special "Super Wednesday" next week to induct new members and to announce major contributions for the year. He said the club's Christmas party has also been scheduled for Dec. 6.

Two new members were introduced at the club meeting. They are Joe Hamilton and Scott Hall.

Textiles uses are varied

COLLEGE STATION — To most people, textiles mean consumer products like clothing, linens, carpet and upholstery. But there are hundreds of other important uses for textiles in medicine, space and defense, construction and sports that also impact our lives, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialist Dr. Ann V. Beard.

The uses of textiles in medicine include artificial kidneys, where blood is passed through hollow fibers to remove toxic wastes and sutures for sewing patients up after operations, she says.

Also, sterile non-woven coverings made of synthetic and cotton fibers are used on operating tables, in surgeons' masks and disposable gowns for hospital patients.

Among the many uses in space and defense are NASA astronauts' space suits. Some of these NASA garments are 100 percent cotton, notes Beard. Military uses of textiles include whole-body suits which have the ability to absorb toxic gases and protect a soldier in gas warfare. Special dyeing and printing methods have produced infrared reflecting camouflage clothing for troops which cannot be spotted by infrared scopes at night, she reports.

Textiles are also used in construction, says the specialist. The roofs of many domed stadiums contain coated textile fabrics. Rubber coated textiles serve as bottom liners to prevent ground seepage of stored water for farm ponds and city water supplies alike.

Western Jubilee set Friday

Lunch and coffee-break time will be features of the annual fall bazaar at First United Methodist Church Friday, as they have been in past years, and a special invitation is extended to employees of downtown businesses who find the location at Main and Fifth Streets convenient.

Theme of the bazaar is Western Jubilee. The lunch will consist of favorite western food—barbecued brisket, slaw, ranch beans and homemade fruit cobbler. It will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the church fellowship hall where booths for sale of handmade items suitable for holiday giving, will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The coffee booth will be open all day, offering the "break" beverage with homemade sweet rolls, coffee cake and doughnuts. Roberta Caviness will be head hostess there.

Other food made by the Methodist cooks will be on sale at a booth where baked goods, jellies and relishes will be starred. A new specialty will be found this year in the men's craft booth, where Grant Hanna's widely popular chili will be sold in containers of two sizes for take-out.

Della Hutchins and Nancy Josserand are co-chairmen for the lunch. General chairmen who are supervising decoration in Western Jubilee motif are Judy Williams and Kathy Moore.

Trash-treasures sales, always a favorite spot for bazaar shoppers, will be in a room across the hall from the main bazaar, in charge of Virginia Garner and Pat Faulkner, who promise some authentic antiques among the run of less-choice but still useful articles.

Booths will be stocked with needlework, arts-crafts, children's needs, Christmas decorations, men's crafts, candy and silk poinsettias.

Today in History

Today is Thursday, Nov. 1, the 306th day of 1984. There are 60 days left in the year. Today is All Saints' Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 1, 1952, the United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb, in a test at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands.

On this date:

In 1512, Michelangelo's paintings on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel were first exhibited to the public.

In 1765, the Stamp Act went into effect in the British colonies, prompting stiff resistance.

In 1870, the U.S. Weather Bureau made its first meteorological observations from reports gathered by telegraph from 24 places.

In 1913, Notre Dame's football team upset Army, 35-13, in a game at West Point that popularized the forward pass and brought attention to Notre Dame's team captain, Knute Rockne.

One year ago: The House of Representatives voted 403-23 to apply the War Powers Resolution to the U.S. military operation in Grenada.

Today's birthdays: Actress Betsy Palmer is 55. Golfer Gary Player is 49. Magazine publisher Larry Flynt is 42. Actress Jeannie Berlin is 35. Pitcher Fernando Valenzuela is 24.

Penny auction planned Nov. 8

A "penny auction" planned by the sociology department at West Texas State University will benefit the Rape Crisis Center in Amarillo, a student spokesman said Wednesday. Willie Salazar, 1980 Hereford High school graduate and WTSU senior majoring in social work, said the auction is planned for Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the snack bar area of the Virgil Henson Activities Center on the WTSU campus.

Area merchants are donating merchandise, and the school's Sociology Social Work Club is working to enlist the services of a professional auctioneer, Salazar said.

"We want to raise at least $1,000," Salazar said. He said the first $1,000 will go to the Rape Crisis Center, and any remaining donations will go into the sociology club's scholarship fund.

Those who wish to participate in the auction should bring pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters, Salazar explained. Every time a participant bids on an item, he will be asked to put that amount of change into the "kitty."

Donations will also be accepted from those who would like to support the center but are not interested in taking part in the auction, Salazar added.

Sometimes You Have To "Do It All!"

When our early settlers struck out for new opportunities, they had to be prepared to handle any problem that came up.

They had to be the surveyors, the carpenters, the hunters, the farmers, the mechanics, and the doctors.

For most of our country's pioneers, it was "on-the-job-training" that provided them with the skills to cope with what seemed like insurmountable problems.

At our bank, we have a philosophy that's based on the pioneer spirit. It means we work hard to provide financial services that will help you cope with Twentieth Century situations.

We offer savings accounts, checking accounts, individual retirement accounts, home improvement loans and a host of other services designed to make your life easier. And we don't stop here. Every day our staff is looking for new services and programs to serve you even better. It's this kind of dedication that makes us the bank with the pioneer spirit.

Monterey boss on Friday's game

Plainsmen hope for extra help

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

The Monterey Plainsmen hope to have God on their side Friday when they meet the Hereford Whitefaces at 7:30 p.m. here in a District 3-5A football game.

At least that what Monterey football coach James Odom said Wednesday.

"I don't know what we'll do to stop Hereford," he said. "I wish I knew. I imagine we'll do a lot of praying."

The Plainsmen arrive in town to pit a 3-5 overall ledger and a 3-3 district mark against the Herd's 5-3 and 4-2 respective records. The Whitefaces are riding a four-game winning streak, including a 17-16 win over previously unbeaten Plainview last week.

However, Monterey has won three of its last five contests, including last Thursday's 10-0 shutout of Coronado.

"In that game, Monterey really handled Coronado," Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor said. "They were very methodical about it and just seemed to be able to do what they wanted to do."

Monterey tailback James Goolsby did what he's been doing all year against the Mustangs. The 5-9, 180-pounder ran the ball 25 times for 115 yards in the game with Coronado. For the season, the sophomore has rushed 177 times for 741 yards.

But Goolsby has had some help running, Taylor said, pointing to Monterey's offensive line. The Plainsmen, at times, make use of all seven men up front, running from a double tight-end set.

"We had three returning starters on our line when the year started, but now we just have two," Odom said. "Jody Gestes broke his leg just before the Lubbock High game (Oct. 12), so he is no longer with us."

Who Odom does have back on the line are guards Bruce Drake (5-10, 185) and Grayson Craft (5-10, 180). Craft is a two-way starter, playing tackle on the defensive unit.

Total, six players for Odom are two-way starters.

"It hurts when you have to have that many (two-way starters),"

Odom said. "The players are tired, and you have to cut your workout time in half because you have to play with the same people."

Odom said he hopes those two-way starters play the majority of Friday night's game on offense.

"When you play Hereford, you've got to keep the football," he said. "(Hereford quarterback Mike) Scott throws the ball too well and his receivers catch it too well to let them have the ball very much."

In 1984, Scott has thrown 110 times and completed 50. The senior signal-caller is averaging just more than 14 yards a toss. His primary target has been Sammy Suarez, who has hauled in 20 passes for 376 yards.

As of late, however, Scott has been hitting his other receivers almost as much as he has Suarez. In the game against Plainview, wingback Chet Bunch caught two passes for 13 yards and one touchdown. Tight-end Kurt Simon had three grabs against Caprock for 19 yards and one TD.

Monterey aligns its defense from four different fronts on a regular basis, Odom said. He said, however, the one the Plainsmen used a great deal was the 4-3.

Taylor said he expects Monterey to play Friday like a 3-5 team would, but not in the way fans might expect. Out of the district race in every way but mathematically, Monterey should play more relaxed, Taylor said.

"I think Monterey will be loose," he said. "They'll probably go for broke. They'll play better because they'll play relaxed."

Odom knows what's at stake for the Plainsmen.

"We're going to try to break even for the year, and we can do so by winning our last two games," he said. "I hope we can make it close. If the score gets out of hand one way or the other (in Friday's game), I'm afraid we'll be on the short end."

Another District 3-5A game which could go a long way in determining Hereford's fate concerning post-season play gets underway Saturday. Amarillo and Palo Duro lock horns in a game that probably will drop one of the teams from second-place tie.

Without a victory over Monterey, though, the Herd may as well forget about the playoffs, Taylor has said.

A NOSE TACKLE
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The nose tackle in a 3-4 defense in pro football is of fairly recent origin. He has to line up opposite the offensive center, making for a one-on-one confrontation. Jim Burt, who has been playing the position on and off for the New York Giants for several years, describes it this way: "I'm going to make sure the center knows I'm the boss. He, of course, will try to do the same to me and whoever wins will be the boss."

Lloyd ready for tonight

LONDON (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd, playing the opening match for the United States' women's team in the Wightman Cup tennis competition, says she would rather play here than in America.

"The Royal Albert Hall has a better atmosphere than anywhere else I've ever played," said Lloyd as she prepared for tonight's play.

"I prefer playing the Wightman Cup here than back home. There's something special about the place."

The Albert Hall, London's dignified, elegant concert center in the heart of the city's Knightsbridge district, traditionally stages the annual confrontation between the two nations when they play in Britain every other year.

Players leaving early

Colleges asking why

By The Associated Press

If as many as a third of premier college athletes, especially football players, sign contracts with agents before the NCAA-allowed deadline — as one prominent agent claims — the questions become "Why?" and "What can be done?"

"Nowadays, the kids don't get anything," Tennessee football Coach Johnny Majors said. "It's not fair, because some of them come from homes where the parents can't afford to send them money."

Majors is one of many coaches and athletic directors who support the idea of paying the athletes up front, giving them perhaps $50 a month or maybe $1,000 a year to cover incidental costs.

"I think that's a possibility," Don James, coach of No. 1-ranked Washington, said. "I'd like to see the players get a little bit more. They do so much for their universities."

"There are problems involved here, though. Can an athletic department afford $50 a month for all college football and basketball players? Can an athletic department afford that amount for all its athletes, both men and women? It probably can't. So the key question would be: Is it (the money) going to be just for football?"

In early 1983, Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker left Georgia a year early and signed a multimillion-dollar contract with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League after compromising his college eligibility by retaining an agent.

After losing Walker, Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said one of the problems was created by the NCAA itself when it changed its rules several years ago to halt schools from providing spending money and part-time jobs to athletes.

"Some of these fellows have no way of earning any money," Dooley said. "They can't have part-time jobs (during the school year), and if they need to go to school in the summer, they can't work in the summer."

In the last month, Jerry Robinson and Mike Quick of the Philadelphia Eagles and 1983 Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier have admitted violating NCAA rules by signing with agents during their senior seasons.

Leigh Steinberg, one of the leading agents, is the one who says one-third of the top collegians sign with agents before the NCAA deadline.

"The competition level among agents has grown enormously," says Steinberg, who adds that he has never signed an athlete with eligibility remaining. "The creation of the United States Football League means there are more jobs for college football players. And that has drawn new agents into the field. Now there are more agents than there are football players."

NBA roundup

Boston rallies to beat New Jersey by 11

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

The Boston Celtics received their championship rings, and when it counted in the fourth quarter, showed why they earned them.

The Celtics trailed injury-plagued New Jersey for most of their National Basketball Association game Wednesday night, then scored 10 straight points at the start of the fourth quarter to beat the Nets 116-105.

"We were very sloppy and didn't play well in the first half," said Larry Bird, who had 29 points, 13 rebounds and eight assists for the Celtics. "Then we started getting it together."

"It wasn't smooth," said center Robert Parish, who had 25 points and 15 rebounds for the Celtics. "You look at it and all you can say is that we worked hard and finally got into a groove. We got the kinks out. The adrenalin also was flowing very high."

Before the Nets-Celtics game, NBA Commissioner David Stern presented the Celtics with rings for last season's championship and their 15th title banner was hung from the rafters of Boston Garden.

In other NBA games, Milwaukee crushed Washington 105-79 and Dallas edged Indiana 101-100.

"They strap you in a chair and explode a cyanide bomb underneath it," Nets Coach Stan Albeck said. "You can see it coming like a big cloud of smoke."

"The Celtics just outplayed us down the stretch. We got paralyzed and they made all the plays."

The Nets, who have Darryl Dawkins, Albert King and Foots Walker on the injured list, were led by Otis Birdsong with 21 points.

Mavericks 101, Pacers 100
Rolando Blackman scored 28 points and defused a furious Indiana comeback by hitting the game-winning basket for Dallas with 16 seconds left.

The Pacers scored 10 straight points, six of them on two three-point plays by Steve Stipanovich, to tie the game 95-95 with 2:52 left. Two free throws by Stipanovich, who led the Pacers with 19 points, gave them a 100-99 advantage with 25 seconds to go before Blackman scored on a 10-foot jumper.

Bucks 105, Bullets 79

Terry Cummings and Paul Pressey scored eight points each during a 22-10 spurt in the third quarter that carried Milwaukee to

Writer views season

BY HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) - Leaden clouds hang heavily over the Golden Dome these days as the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame struggle through another difficult football season.

They carry a mediocre 4-4 record into Saturday's game against Navy in East Rutherford, N.J. Mediocre is fine in some places but here, among the ghosts of Rockne and the Gipper, where the Four Horsemen, Leahy and parseghian created legends, it is viewed with very little enthusiasm.

Autumn has created a spectacular splash of fiery colors on the pastoral campus and the flames lick hungrily at the heels of Coach Gerry Faust. He is a man on the hot spot.

A malaise has set in here in the wake of a season that has evaporated from a promising 3-1 start into a struggle for 500, even after last week's upset of previously undefeated and ranked Louisiana State University.

That victory was only the fifth in 14 games for Notre Dame teams against ranked opponents in the four seasons Faust has been here.

"Five and nine is not very good," said someone close to the athletic scene here. "If you reversed it to 9-5, under Ara Parseghian that wouldn't have been viewed as very good."

Faust remains upbeat. That is his style. He sees the LSU victory as a turning point, a new beginning for his team. He talks about sweeping the final three games, going 7-4 for the season, good enough for a bowl bid, especially since the Irish went to the Liberty Bowl after last year's 6-5 record.

There was much soul-searching, however, over that Bowl acceptance, even after Notre Dame beat Boston victory over cold-shooting Washington.

The Bucks boosted their nine-point halftime lead to 68-47 with the rally. After the Bullets cut the deficit to 78-64, a 16-3 run by the Bucks clinch-

NCAA's TV deals

Some power remains

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - The federal judge whose rulings broke the NCAA's monopoly on selling broadcast rights to college football said Wednesday the association can still put together television packages in competition with other groups.

But U.S. District Judge Juan Burciagna's ruling, filed in Oklahoma City federal court, also showed suspicion over whether the National Collegiate Athletic Association would compete openly without his power to enforce the notion.

Burciagna's decision denies contentions by the universities of Oklahoma and Georgia that the NCAA should be barred from the football television market for several years.

He stressed that there should be an open and competitive market in the field. "I assume the defendant (the NCAA) is well aware of the resources available to this court to achieve its stated purpose should the defendant seek to avoid compliance with the court's injunction."

Both sides in the case said they were happy with the ruling by Burciagna, who sits in Albuquerque but took the case because local judges had too many ties to the University of Oklahoma.

"It sounds like we got most of what we requested," said George Gangwere of Kansas City, an attorney for the NCAA. He said he wanted to read the entire opinion before making a definitive statement.

"We feel good about it," said Clyde Muchmore of Oklahoma City, one of the attorneys for Oklahoma and Georgia. If they (the NCAA) proceed in the spirit the judge suggested, we don't have the same kind of objections to them having a plan."

Wednesday's opinion modified his original order which had voided the NCAA's television contracts with the ABC and CBS networks and barred the NCAA from making similar contracts in the future.

'Cartier Affair' on NBC Sunday night

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's "The Cartier Affair," reminiscent of both a 1930s-style screwball comedy and a French farce, is the funniest movie of the new television season.

In fact, as the November sweeps open, NBC might find itself laughing all the way to the Nielsen ratings bank.

"The Cartier Affair" is a caper film, but it's also a hilarious spoof of Hollywood.

Joan Collins, of ABC's red-hot "Dynasty," plays a parody of herself as the star (Cartier Rand) of a nighttime soap opera. David Hasselhoff, the hunk from NBC's "Knight Rider," pretends to be gay to get past Cartier's jealous lover when he's hired as her male secretary. He's really there to set her up for a jewelry heist to pay off a debt to a "Mr. Big" he met in prison (Telly Savalas).

Naturally, Hasselhoff's Curt Taylor is doing this under duress and falls in love with Cartier. But since he's supposed to be gay he can't reveal his true feelings. Cartier's randy maid figures she can solve his "problem," while Curt's old girlfriend, who has not one social grace, turns up in time to turn a formal dinner party into a shambles.

"It's not pie-in-the-face comedy," said executive producer Leonard Hill. "A lot depends on style. It's more like a Preston Sturges screwball film than 'Meatballs.'"

He said he wasn't sure Miss Collins would accept the role because it is a self-parody.

"I kept waiting for her to say Alexis would never approve of this," he said. "But Joan's a true iconoclast. It was also a risk for David. They got along well on the set, but when it got down to the love scenes David chickened out. We were trying for something a little spicier for foreign sales and the videocassettes. Joan was agreeable, but David said, 'I'm newly married. I can't do a nude scene with Joan Collins.'"

"The Cartier Heist" will be up against "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" on ABC and regular programming on CBS. The movie is one that has had considerable exposure on cable television.

"I think if 'The Cartier Affair' beats 'The Best Little Whorehouse,' the whole pricing structure for theatrical films will collapse," said Hill. "The made-for film will become more valuable to a network."

Day marked with mass for slain priest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland today marks its most solemn holiday day with an All Saints' Day Mass by Cardinal Jozef Glomp at a Warsaw cemetery that was expected to draw a large crowd to honor slain pro-Solidarity priest Jerzy Popieluszko.

On the eve of the holiday, an estimated 10,000 worshippers packed Warsaw's St. Stanislaw Koska Church and the surrounding streets at a Mass for Popieluszko.

The Rev. Aleksander Seniuk told the crowd, which included Popieluszko's parents, that the outspoken priest had become "Solidarity's patron."

"Today Solidarity is handcuffed,

Tonight, Ralph Macchio ("The Karate Kid") stars in ABC's "The Three Wishes of Billy Grier."

Macchio plays a teen-age boy stricken with a rare disease that causes him to age rapidly. Billy has just three months to achieve the three great ambitions of his life: to find his father, play saxophone in a band, and make love.

but thanks to you, her chaplain, it is free with her soul as never before," said Seniuk, his voice booming over outdoor loudspeakers.

Popieluszko's body was found Tuesday in a reservoir in northern Poland, 11 days after his alleged abduction by three officers of the Polish secret police. An Interior Ministry spokesman said Wednesday the three would likely face murder charges.

The 37-year-old priest was one of the most vocal members of Poland's Roman Catholic clergy in advocating the ideals of Solidarity, the now-outlawed independent labor federation.

All Saints' Day is a national holiday in Poland on which millions of Poles traditionally travel to cemeteries to place flowers and light candles at the graves of loved ones. The day was expected to take on an added significance this year because of Popieluszko's death.

Popieluszko is to be buried Saturday at Powazki Cemetery in Warsaw, following a Mass at St. Stanislaw Koska, his parish church.

Australian Visits Hereford

Texas and South Australia will be celebrating their 150th birthdays in 1986, and Jim Gullick of Adelaide, S.A., was in Hereford Tuesday to make contacts. Gullick, secretary general of the Local

About birthday celebrations

Australian visitor speaks to leaders

Jim Gullick of Adelaide, South Australia, visited in Hereford Tuesday to talk with local leaders about the 150th birthday celebrations of Texas and South Australia.

The Texas Sesquicentennial and South Australia's Jubilee 150 are both scheduled in 1986. Gullick is the secretary general of the Local Government Association in the capital city of Adelaide. The organization is similar to the Texas Municipal League in Texas.

Gullick visited in Hereford with Mike Carr, executive vice president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, as well as several other community leaders. A number of Texas cities, including Hereford, have adopted "twin cities" in South Australia.

Hereford's twin city for the celebration is Bordertown. Organizations and groups in that city are anxious to correspond with similar groups in Hereford, said Gullick.

The South Australian coordinator of The Twin Town project, Mrs. Libby Ellis, visited Hereford earlier this year and she reported the country here is very similar to that around Bordertown. It is about 180 miles from Adelaide and about 280 miles from Melbourne.

The population of Bordertown is under 3,000. It is not on the border, but is about 13 miles inside the state of South Australia. The district is noted for its cereal growing, wool and fat stock. With water from vast underground supplies, the production of grapes, vegetables and small seeds is increasing.

Anyone wishing to contact individuals or organizations in Bordertown can write: Jubilee 150 Committee, Secretary L.S. Dempsey, P.O. Box 346, Bordertown, S.A. 5268.

Turkey walk slated Nov. 17

Board members of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Heart Association see at last three ways a person can benefit from joining the "turkey walk" planned for Nov. 17.

The morning walk at Whiteface Stadium is to remind people of the benefits of cardio-vascular fitness, board president Troy Waddell pointed out. Anyone who raises at least $50 in sponsor money will receive a free turkey, he said, and the person in Texas raising the most sponsor money wins a free trip to Puerto Vallarta, a Mexican coastal resort.

The local heart association is signing up members of financial institutions, businesses and schools to compete against each other during the 9 a.m. to 12 noon fundraising event.

Participants will be asked to obtain their own sponsors who will pledge a specified amount for each mile walked.

Persons of all ages are welcome to participate, and can walk the entire three hours or any portion of that time, Waddell said.

Money raised will be used along with funds from a spring door to door campaign to support the American Heart Association's educational programs.

Self-exam for parents

COLLEGE STATION — Most of us are so busy being parents that we rarely have the time to reflect on this important task, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

"Taking 'time out' for some observation and self-examination can shed new light on the job of parenting and give parents another perspective on their relationships with their children," says Diane T. Welch, a specialist in family life education.

One type of parenting self-exam takes about a week. The first three days are spent observing your friends who have children near the ages of your children, she explains. As you observe, check the following points:

—How do these parents act toward their children? Is their attitude friendly, courteous and pleasant? Do they appear to enjoy the children and approve what they are doing, or do they appear critical, impatient and nagging?

—How many parents request their children to do something or stop doing something and how many habitually order the children around?

—How many embarrass their children in front of others?

—How many expect conduct beyond their child's years, such as making a two-year old share his toys in order to teach him to be generous?

—How often do you see parents who show approval more often than they correct, and who seem to like and enjoy their children?

—How many give orders so endlessly that a child has to develop deafness in self-defense? How many punish children for disobedience when the child fails to know which order was important enough to follow?

For the next three days of the week, observe how you and/or your spouse parent your own children, says Welch. Without changing anything about the way you normally manage your children, ask the same questions about your parenting behavior.

The final day is for thinking earnestly about what you observed in others, in each other and in yourself. Discuss whether you are satisfied with the way you are bringing up your children or whether you feel changes are needed in this important business, she says.

Not all parents will want to devote an entire week to this self-examination, observes Welch. But most can afford some time to reflect on their parenting skills, she adds.

Some say its good luck for a firefly to fly into the house.

Candidates believe bitter race closer than polls show

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Getting out the huge Hispanic vote for liberal Democrat Lloyd Doggett is at the heart of Texas' bitter, expensive race to fill the seat being vacated by 23-year Senate veteran John Tower.

Trailing Republican Phil Gramm by as many as 24 and as few as six points in the latest polls, the lanky, lawyerly Doggett is counting on both a massive turnout among the state's 1 million Hispanics registered to vote and ballots from President Reagan's supporters.

"This is a very tight race," Doggett said. "We're not planning a victory party election night, we're planning a victory brunch for Wednesday because we won't know who won until then."

The contest represents both a litmus test of where usually Democratic Texas now stands politically and a chance for the Democrats to regain a seat in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Gramm, a conservative congressman who co-sponsored Reagan's 1981 tax program while still a Democrat, has the president on his team and hopes to ride his coattails to victory.

He is running strong among rural conservatives and Texas' affluent urban population, yet says he is spending the last week of campaigning "under the assumption that this is close."

"You've got a clear-cut choice in this race between a conservative who supports traditional values and a liberal who's philosophically closer to the thinking of (Sen.) Ted Kennedy (D-Mass.)" Gramm says at campaign stops.

Despite the long-shot odds of upsetting Gramm, "Landslide Lloyd" Doggett, as the veteran Austin state senator calls himself after two razor-thin wins in a May primary and June runoff, appears confident.

He enjoys reminding voters of Texas Gov. Mark White's 1982 victory when an under-pollled minority vote surprised political experts and helped the Democrat oust incumbent Republican Bill Clements.

A recent Houston Post poll showed a large portion of undecided voters — 14 percent — in a Houston area where 20 percent of the state's voters reside. That poll gave Gramm a 10-point lead, and said the area polled generally runs three to six percentage points more Republican than the state as a whole.

The wild cards in the race remain the nearly 1.5 million newly registered voters — 18 percent of Texas' 7.9 million registered voters — and Doggett's ability to draw Reagan supporters.

A recent poll released by the White House showed Reagan leading Democrat Walter Mondale in Texas by 30 points — a spread that would require Doggett to capture votes from nearly 30 percent of the president's supporters to win.

Doggett's appeal as the only native Texan — Gramm was born and raised in Georgia — and as both a friend to farmers and a foe of nuclear waste dumps in rural Texas may play in tiny towns, Garza County Judge Giles Dalby said.

Gramm, a former economics professor from Texas A&M University, has countered by trying to position Doggett alongside Mondale. But Doggett has kept his distance from the Democratic presidential nominee.

Asked last week why he hadn't joined Mondale at an

El Paso stop, Doggett said, "Oh, was Mondale in El Paso? I didn't know that."

"Lloyd Doggett can't tell you a major issue where he disagrees with Walter Mondale," Gramm said.

Gramm has outspent Doggett $7.6 million to $4.3 million, according to the latest Federal Election Commission filings, and has received $1.1 million from special interest political action committees, nearly doubling Doggett's $669,914.

Gramm's mother — Florence Scroggins Gramm — has even become an issue after a "hand-written" letter was mailed to thousands of senior citizens saying Gramm won't ever forget "those of us who depend on Social Security because I'll be there to remind him."

Gramm says he helped save Social Security while in Congress; Doggett claims Gramm voted to cut benefits.

A favorite Doggett campaign line is that Mrs. Gramm's $333 Social Security check "would be about $150 less if Phil had had his way."

'Mariachi' tourist spot getting facelift

MEXICO CITY (AP) — One of this city's traditional night spots is getting a facelift.

The government has poured over $800,000 into renovating Plaza Garibaldi, center stage for Mexico's mariachi bands.

City authorities are hoping the improvements will attract foreign tourists and also bring back Mexicans who had stopped going when the folkloric square became too seedy.

For decades, Plaza Garibaldi has been the place to take a girlfriend for a birthday serenade, or to stroll around sampling spicy tacos, hearty soups, or deep-fried pig skins.

The square is surrounded by brightly-colored colonial houses, trimmed with tiles. On one corner sits a pulqueria, which features the potent drink known as "pulque" made of fermented maguey cactus, first developed by the Aztec Indians.

But the mariachis are the main attraction. Half a dozen bands and sometimes more — each in a different colored uniform trimmed with silver braid and silver clips down the pantlegs — stand ready to play requests.

The sound is uniquely Mexican, the blend of violins, guitars, guitarrones (oversized guitars), harps, basses and trumpets.

"The Mexicans are the ones who like our music," said Lucio Flores, a harpist who has played regularly in the plaza since 1937. "We don't make any money off the tourists," he added.

Authorities in charge of the renovations say too many people had been driven away from the plaza in recent years because of the increasing presence of neighborhood gangs and prostitutes.

To give Garibaldi a new image, flagstones have been replaced, benches painted, floodlights installed. The San Camilito food market has been undergoing a complete overhaul.

"It got so I couldn't use the restrooms there any more because the women (prostitutes) would always be in there changing their clothes," said Esther Perez, who has had a candy stand on the edge of the plaza for the past 10 years.

She added that San Camilito had become too overcrowded with vendors. "The grease on the floor was real thick and would give off a terrible smell," Mrs. Perez said.

Vicente Manuel Gil Oliva, director of markets for the Cuauhtemoc part of the city, told reporters the number of food stalls at San Camilito will be cut in half, to 75.

Handicapped son's progress termed miracle

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — He likes to sit quietly in a car at the edge of the road and gaze at the cows.

For most children, a cow is just a cow, but to 7-year-old Koby Shields, the delight of his young life is to observe the passive tranquility and serene atmosphere of cows grazing in a field.

As they watch their son's eyes sparkle at the sight of his favorite animal, Pam and Larry Shields inwardly voice a prayer of thanksgiving that Koby is showing more and more animation at his surroundings.

It wasn't too many years ago that the little boy battled for his life, suffering from a disorder that came upon him unexpectedly when he was four months old.

Koby was born a normal baby. He cooed, gurgled, laughed, cried, noticed people and watched, fascinated by his crib toys. There was no warning that at four months everything would change.

It was an ordinary day, Pam Shields remembered. She was busy in the kitchen while her 4-year-old daughter played in another room. Suddenly she heard some strange noise coming from the bedroom.

Shock and disbelief were her first reactions when she saw Koby, blue in the face, apparently choking.

"After I got to him I noticed almost immediately that even though he was not choking, his arms and legs were making little movements. I remember carrying him to the couch, putting him on his side, and opening his mouth to see if the airways were cleared," she said. "It seemed to me that God was directing my mind and my hands to do the right thing for my son."

"He was still thrashing around wildly but I managed to call the emergency room at the hospital, hysterically blurting out the situation," Mrs. Shields said.

Although this happened some seven years ago, the mother can still remember a nurse on the other end of the line giving directions, all the time reassuring her that the child would be all right. "She stayed on the phone with me the entire time until the ambulance came, calming me down, reassuring me and telling me what to do," Mrs. Shields said.

Contacted last week, the nurse, Zona Atkinson, said she had not forgotten the incident either. She simply said, "I was doing my duty."

It was one of those never-to-be forgotten days. Over and over the family relives those anxious hours. They remember the rush next door to a neighbor Mrs. Shields didn't even know, asking the woman to care for her daughter and a little friend that had been visiting. The two children had continued playing together in another room, oblivious at what was happening in the bedroom.

Koby received preliminary treatment at Brownwood Regional Hospital. Emergency room personnel brought the boy out of his seizures. He was then immediately transferred to Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene, where the family was bombarded with questions.

Several times, she was asked if and when the baby had been administered the routine combination Diphtheria-Pertussis-Tetanus inoculation. The answer was always the same. The shot had been administered the day prior to the seizures.

Then came the years of testing, spinal taps, questions, and more questions. Over and over she was asked how soon after the inoculations had the convulsions started.

"The doctors at Hendrick did not think the vaccines caused the seizures because he had already had one inoculation the previous month with no complications," she said.

"But through the years I cannot help but wonder if there was any connection. After Koby's second shot and knowing that the seizures had followed so closely after the inoculation, we had to take him to a pediatrician in Abilene for his subsequent shots," Mrs. Shields said. "He stayed overnight in Abilene after he received the remaining required shots and each time after the inoculation, he had a seizure," she said.

A Brownwood pediatrician, Dr. Halbert O. Woodward, says the chance for a reaction to the DPT inoculation is about one in two million, with the greatest risk associated with the pertussis, or whooping cough, portion of the inoculation. He said that the risk of contracting whooping cough is considered a greater health hazard for children.

Epilepsy was the first diagnosis of Koby's problem. Although the boy was put on medication, he continued to have seizures, 10 or more a day, some lasting an hour.

Koby was taken to a neurologist in San Antonio where other tests were made including an EEG and CT scan. The CT scan showed no damage, but the EEG showed seizure activity in the brain.

"We went twice a year to the neurologist and various medications were tried. But despite all these trips, Koby did not develop normally. He did not talk much and what he said was unintelligible. Although he walked, it was only with great difficulty," his mother said.

"We saw no improvement up until he was three years old. The seizures never let up. Until I could cope with it and come to grips with myself, I would call an ambulance anytime I saw him turn blue," she said.

"I often wondered — why me? I had a handicapped brother who became deaf after having had whooping cough. He had not had the D.P.T. shot. Now, here's Koby who had the shots and is so handicapped. It's something we just don't understand," she said.

When Koby was 3 years old, the neurologist told the parents that their son would not advance any further than he already had. "He told us he would have the mentality of a 12-year-old child. Take him home and just love him and resign yourself to the fact that he is not going to get any better, the neurosurgeon told me," Mrs. Shields said with the hint of a tear in her eyes. "I told myself as I walked out of the hospital in San Antonio that I appreciated the honesty of the doctor, but I had made a little prayer to God that if He would just let Koby live, there would never be anything that I would not try to handle," she said.

"I decided from then on to take one day at a time and not give up. I would bring him back home and work with him and never give up. I would continue to push and to encourage him," she said.

Larry and Pam Shields followed those guidelines. The first thing they did after returning to Brownwood was enroll the child in the infant stimulation program at the Central Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center.

She spoke in great praise of Sarah Gale, formerly an occupational therapist there, who at that time was in charge of the infant program designed to help youngsters with handicaps. "Sarah taught me not to give up and gave me the hope and reassurance I so desperately needed."

Mrs. Shields also praised Martha Taylor Graves, who teaches speech therapy at Howard Payne University. "She is teaching my son to talk. Martha told me last week that we might soon be able to move on to whole sentences now that he has been able to grasp words," she said.

Today, the little boy is enrolled in a self-contained classroom of the special education program of the Brownwood Independent School District. "Irene Tolston and her teachers are doing wonders for him," she said. In 1983 he was enrolled in the Early Childhood program of the BISD.

More recently, in January this year, she was told by a friend of the "wonderful" work done by the Scottish Rite Hospitals. "We were asked why we had never taken our son to the Scottish Rite Hospital. I told her we had tried years ago but at that time only crippled children were being admitted," she said.

But children with handicaps like Koby's, are now being admitted and treated at the Scottish Rite Hospitals.

A whole new world has opened up for the boy. He was accepted as an out-patient at the Scottish Rite Hospital in Dallas, and every three months he is examined, tested and new medication are provided.
