Group Proposes Study Of House Numbering

A recommendation that the solutions to the problem, in co-Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce initiate action to cor-bering of houses in Hereford was passed by the chamber's governmental affairs committee here Friday The committee passed the resolution after hearing Postmaster Nolan Grady describe problems in delivering mail resultrect inconsistencies in num-numbering THE MOTION passed by the committee called for initiation

ing from inconsistent street

operation with the post office, police and fire departments, and other groups

Action came after the postmaster pointed out several problem areas within the city where addresses are confusing or numbering is non-existent.

"IT TAKES something like $600 per day to operate the local post office, and this is one way to cut the cost ... by renumbering houses in certain areas and curtailing confusion which results when we sort and deliver

He pointed to Avenue K. where houses on the west side of the street are numbered in the 600 block, while houses across the street bear numbers iii the 1000's and homes a block due east, on Blevins, are listed

SIMILAR inconsistencies were pointed out in several sections

He said that much of the problem arose from additions to the city since 1948, when the exist-

"EVEN the addresses designated at that time (in 1948) were not consistent throughout the existing part of the city."

He outlined suggested changes which would expidite mail delivery and also serve to aid those not acquainted with the city in finding addresses.

INCLUDED was a suggestion that the portion of the city west of U.S. Hwy. 385 and south of West Park Ave. be renumbered throughout, since numbering there is "backwards" to other

He said that the local post office handles some 20,000 pieces of mail daily, adding that the present inconsistent numbering causes delay in dispatching

Members of the committee commented that it is not only postmen who are hampered by the present house numbering situation, but newcomers and visitors are often at a loss to find addresses

"IT'S NOT always just the newcomers," one member quip-

At the same time, it was pointed out that considerable would be involved in changing existing addresses . . . and some public opposition would probably arise. On a motion by Stan Knox and seconded by Mrs. O.G. Hill Sr., the committee voted unanimously to ask the chamber to study the situation.

IN OTHER business, the committee set Sept. 9 as the date for an organizational meeting of a public study of the U.S. ChamCourse in Practical Politics."

The course - which has been approved by the national committees of both the Democratic and Republican parties - is a non-partisan course describing how to effectively participate in local, state, and national poli-

Lettuce Smokes Plans May Jell

Local Backing Now Studied For Facility

Indications that a "lettuce cigaret" factory may soon be established in Hereford continued to mount last week although no official announcement has been made.

Reports reaching the Brand indicated that plans call for the processing of lettuce leaves for the "new smoke" here as early as Sept. 15 of this year, with marketing commencing shortly thereafter.

Brand sources said that work is currently underway towards the formulation of a local corporation to operate the facility—which have a $1½ million annual production in initial stages, according to present plans. Meanwhile the man who brought the "lettuce cigaret" idea to Hereford has returned to New York to work on details of the project there, it was learned.

ASKED ABOUT the current status of the proposed corporation, a local attorney said only that "work is now underway to line up local backing for the plant in order that it may be established here."

He added that prospects "are promising . . . but as yet there is nothing definite."

It was also reported that a lease on a building to house the facility is now pending and that plans are to open a business office for the proposed operation

The only exception she noticed was on street cars, which are always crowded because comparatively few city residents own automobiles. Suzanne learned that it was necessary to push and shove to a place on the street cars, and that each passenger is expected to occupy as small a space as possible.

"STREET cars are good places to find the people of Vienna, all kinds of people, I liked to ride them to various parts of the city and see people and hear them talk Sometimes strangers will talk with other passengers; I remember two little old ladies, raher bossy, one of whom told me to not sit with legs crossed because I took too muchspace, the other showed me how to hold my umbrealla to make a little more room."

Study of German was one major purpose of Suzanne's stay in Vienna and she spoke it at every opportunity so that she was able in about a month to carry on conversation. She often had to insist on her Austrian friends speaking German as most of them knew a little English and policly spke to her in her own language.

She went to the University of Vienna with a group of 200 students under auspices of the Institute of European Studies, an American-based organization to promote study abread. In addition to German her major study was European history. She also learned some

THE LATTER subject 'opened a whole new world" to the Hereford girl, she says, because she went from the classroom to the opera houses which present fine music in Vienna the year round and made the acquaintance of an art form that she had not before had a chance to experience.

Opera is cheap in the gay city where it has flourished for a couple of centuries, and she could buy a ticket for standing room for about 25 cents. Seats were priced at around a dollar to three dollars. She liked the theaters, too, and joined the Viennese in their favorite pasttime of siting in wine cellars or coffee houses where everyone meets friends, talks interminably and frequently bursts into song.

FOR A CHRISTMAS holiday, a group of the students went to the Alps for skiing at Kaprun, a small town in Salzburg province. Other sightseeing trips over the city and surrounding country gave her a general view of the people she cultivated as friends.

"I appreciate having been able to live in Austria with the Austrians, to meet people, make friends and exchange ideans," she says, adding that she became acquainted with students from other European countries at the university. some from behind the Iron curtain zanne's knowledge of Austria's romantic and confused history. During the first semester all the American students had meals together, but after her knowledge of German grew, Suzanne liked to eat in cafes when she did not prepare her own meals.

Window shopping was a pleasant occupation as she found shop windows filled with goods, rather than showing only a sampling. But browsing in stores was discouraged; she said salespeople inquired what was wanted, and were reluctant to show goods except at a definite re-

Living in Vienna was inexpensive on the basis of collar value, she found, but not for the Austrians. Suzanne assessed the city as not too sophisticated in spite of its long history as a cultural and educational center, but its palaces and museums preserve the atmosphere of its glamorous

ELECTRICITY helps

Placing power lines where they are needed is fun for a child, but it is a big job for the nation's power industry.

Today, consumer-owned electric systems such as ours serve 54% of the rural population, and the demand doubles every seven years.

Meeting the rising power needs and preparing for tomorrow takes the best efforts of the entire power industry. In our area we are proud to be carrying our share of the load.

Hereford Municipal Airport -where the business is flying in ...

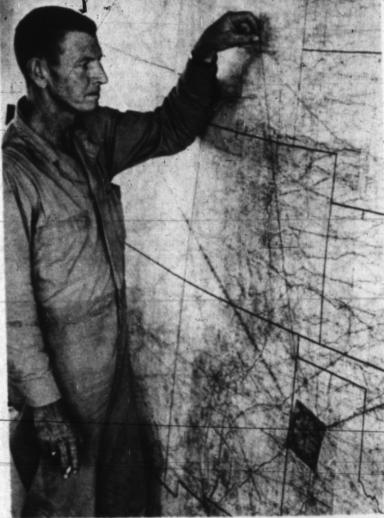

Built in 1958, Hereford Municipal Airport continues to gain usage.

Aircraft landings and take-offs total an estimated 10,000 movements annually.

All services commonly found at small-city airports are found here :...

These photos show common scenes at Hereford Municipal Airport, a plane gliding in for a landing . . a handsome sign extending a jubilant welcome craft parked alongside runways and a plane taxiing out for a take off

The Hallmark of Circulation Integrity

In the same way that STERLING on silver signifies a standard of known value, so is this A.B.C. emblem a symbol of FACTS about the circulation of newspapers and periodicals. It is the emblem of membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations* and is assurance to advertisers that the circulations of member publications are measured, audited and reported in accordance with the rigid standards that have been mutually approved and adopted by advertisers and publishers. Here's why our membership in the A.B.C. is important to our advertisers and ourselves: At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors makes a thorough inspection and audit of our circulation records. The results of this exacting audit show: how much circulation we have; where it goes; how it was obtained; and many other FACTS that advertisers need as a sound basis for their advertising investments. This audited information is published by the Bureau in easy-to-read A.B.C. reports which are available to our advertisers on request.

*The Audit Bureau of Circulations, of which this newspaper is a member, is a cooperative, nonprofit association of nearly 4,000 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers. Organized in 1914, A.B.C. brought order out of advertising chaos by establishing: A definition for paid circulation; rules and standards for auditing and reporting the circulations of newspapers and periodicals.

What Are Collegians Doing This Summer?

for the summer, classwork plays a part for some at least for a portion of the time. Discussing their bouts with books are, from left, Kathy Knox, who will be a junior in Texas Christian University this year and who Aven, a commuter to West Texas State Uni-rolled at WTSU now but returning to Texas Tech as a junior; Larry Hill, who will be a sophomore in Texas Lutheran College at Seguin and is a summer student at WTSU, and Jackie Fooks, an Abilene Christian attended the first summer semester; Carolyn College student who is completing some summer work with a correspondence course.

TRAVELING — Vacation trips of course include the students. This group, all enroute to Texas Tech for the fall semester, with their families made up a party which spent several days early in the summer in the mountains near Cowles, N.M. From left, they are Barabara Langley and Patti Nobles, who will be freshmen, Steve Coneway and Terry Caviness, sophomores. Patti, not done with travel, is pointing to a route she will take for a car-and-plane trip to Mexico with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Nobles.

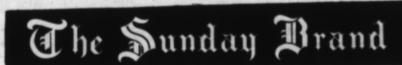

PLAYING - No matter how busy, the college crowd finds time for recreation—and that includes summer sports. Tennis is the choice of Clarkie Adams, who will attend WTSU, and Dian Wilson, due to return to Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene. Golf courses and swimming pools are proving attractive to others of the sports-minded.

HELPING — Home chores get some attention from vacationers, like Linda Hart and Janice Hagans, prettily aproned as they stir up a dish at the Hart home. Linda will return to Tech in September while Janice will be a sophomore in Baylor University. Boys as well as girls are summer helpers to their parents in homes, on forms and in businesses.

SECTION TWO

The Sunday Brand, Hereford, Texas, Sunday, August 1, 1965

WORKING - Most college students who are not busy with summer study seem to have found paying jobs to occupy their vacation time. Among the numerous wageearners are, from left, Jimmy Martin, a junior English major at WTSU employed at the Ink Spot; Kathleen Kuper, who will return for a second year at Meerymount College in Salina, Kan., after her summer job with Barrett Produce Co.; Kay Nell Reeves, working in the high school principal's office before her sophomore year at WTSU, and Arvell Williams, WTSU sophomore who is one of the partners in the newly-formed D&W Wrecking Company.

Famed Subject Is Related To Local Man

Since a story about the re-markably accurate forecast of world events by Jeane Pinckert Dixon of Washington, D. C., ap-peared in the July issue of Readers Digest, Frank L. Pinckert of 1014 East Third has frequently been asked if he is re-lated to Mrs. Dixon.

The magazine story related that she is the daughter of Emma and Frank Pinckert, who came to this country from Germany, Hereford's Frank Pinckert says that she is indeed his cousin and that he was named for her father, his uncle.

HIS PARENTS also came from Germany, and Pinckert's father and uncle, with their families, both lived in Midwest states, both for a time in Wisconsin. Pinckert lived two years in his uncle's home, before Jeane was born.

He knew Jeane, her sister and an older brother, Erny, who became an All-American football player, when they were children. He still corresponds with two sisters who live in San Bernardino, Calif. Jeane as a youngster moved to California with her family, and grew up in Santa Rosa and Los Angeles.

PINCKERT does not recall any particular interest in the family in Jeane's odd gift for "seeing" things that would happen in the future, although it was discovered when she was a child

She became widely known after she married at the age of 21 and went to Washington when her husband took an assignment with the War Department shortly after Pearl Harbor.

The magazine article was an abridgement of a book written about her, The Crystal Ball, by Ruth Montgomery, which relates many of her predictions which proved true, including the deaths in office of Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy.

Letter To

The Editor

Dear Editor:

Many Americans who had been waiting with bated breath for the announcement by the President, expressed both surprise and relief when he stated that all that was anticipated was sending 50,000 troups, and doubling the draft. The Viet-Nam Government had requested 125,000, bringing our total to 200,000.

Mr. Johnson has not told the people the whole story. It's like a T-V program during commercials. The speaker says, "I'll be back in a moment. There's more to come, so please stand by". There's more to come on the Viet-Nam committment, so just stand by a few days, and Mr. Johnson will be back.

He is an old pro at the business of handling public sentiment. He's too wise to reveal in one appearance just how far his cabinet has planned to involve us in this conflict. He never gives the whole dose in one capsule, but like the faithful nurse, he will keep waking you up 'till you have the whole prescription. You can absorb it better that way.

His appearance Wednesday was like the Intern. He was just giving us a shot in the arm to deaden the pain a little, and get us ready for the operation. We'll lose our appendix yet before this thing is over. He is busy getting ready to operate, and it won't be long 'till he'll enter, and we'll be in no shape to resist.

We never have had, and we still don't have, one bit of business meddling in South Viet-Nam. We wouldn't be in trouble today if we would learn to leave other people alone, and mind our own business. "He that passeth by, and meddleth with strife belonging not to him, is like one that taketh a dog by the ears". (Pr. 26:17). We've meddled until we are in trouble, and it looks like we may lose the seat of our britches before we get loose from it. The souls of our boys who will pay the supreme price in senseless war in Viet-Nam will rise up in the judgement day and cry out for vengeance on those who gave their voice in sacrificing them to the God of war. Their blood will be reired by the Lord who has "Vengeance is mine, I will, saith the Lord" (Rom. 2:19). Our boys deserve to live and enjoy the rich prosperity of this great land just the same as Mr. Johnson's daughters, and should not be denied this God

LET'S COOK SOMETHING Recipe From Parsonage Is Shared

By SUE COLEMAN Women's Editor

Preachers' wives are noted as good cooks, with adaptability their keynote for varied calls on parsonage hospitality. Being able to produce a cup of coffee, a sandwich or a full meal on short notice is one of their important qualifications.

Hereford ministers' wives disclaim any special genius in the kitchen, but admit that they have had plenty of practice and have some good stand-by recipes proved by experience.

Here We Go Again

governor of New York, Nelson Rockefeller, from the 1968 presidential race is winning loud huzzas from-of all people-the other liberal Republicans. Those ever-popular "sources" have it that Sen. Jacob Javits has been urging Rocky not to run again, so that the mainstreamers can get together behind one candidate to block the nomination of another conservative.

Rocky, it appears, was not the candidate they had in mind. Rather the GOP new look is to feature what Gov. Robert Smylie called "exciting candidates" who can "successfully recast the image." The image apparently is going to be based on the belief that it's better to be president than to be right-or left, either, for that matter.

Ideology thus yields to the need to find a noncontroversial, marketable product a mong the "moderates," a group that includes most leading Republicans except Goldwater. The Grand Old Party is about to stoop to politics. Some might say that it is about time and the bumbling and stumblings of 1964 would seem to bear them out. The campaign of Sen. Goldwater and the ineffectual attempts by his rivals to deny him the nomination revealed rather clearly that the top leadership of the GOP is not in the same political league with the wily old pro, Lyndon B. Johnson.

The coy candidates who stood aside awaiting the call of the Eastern kingmakers were as guilty of living in the past as they later accused Goldwater of being, Because the call always had been the equivalent of a command in the past, they assumed that the sound and fury of the conservatives

Water Depletion

A landmark decision in the courts was announced recently when the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously upheld a lower court judgment allowing a tax deduction for the depletion of ground water on a South Plains irrigated farm

The case was United States vs. Marvin Shurbet, et ux, and concerned a deduction from the federal income tax return for the value of water used on the Shurbet farm, as a depletion allowance.

Shurbet claimed that water from underneath his farm was being "mined" in the sense that petroleum and other minerals are mined, because the water pumped out was not replaced by rainfall or other sources.

And, he reasoned, without underground water on his farm, the value of it would be diminished, just as surely as the value of an oil well is diminished when the oil ceases to flow from it.

But the Internal Revenue people disagreed. The case went to court. The district court upheld the farmer, and now the appeals court sustained that decision. The case now goes to the U.S. Supreme Court for the final decision.

The Shurbet case points out that groundwater is the irrigated land owner's most precious asset and should be carefully con-

The Shurbet case indicates that an irrigation farmer may claim a deduction of $6 to $8 an acre as a depletion allowance, with the actual deduction being computed on a variety of factors.

This is a historic case. It will go a long way toward easing some tax problems for farmers. It paves the way for future savings. It is a case that ought to be studied by all who use irrigation water to make a living.

Withdrawal of the liberal Republican at work south and west of the Potomac meant nothing. A shift in the party's center of gravity escaped their notice.

After pooh-poohing the Goldwater drive for months, at the last moment they panicked and their frenzied scurrying-about in the weeks before the convention evoked more pity than sympathy. The desperate attempts to destroy Goldwater by denunciations provided ample ammunition for Democrats to use against the party later.

Then the conservatives behind Goldwater could not resist the temptation to rub their opponents' noses in their defeat. Refusing to toss the liberals a bone or a platform plank, they arrogantly adopted a "with-usor-against-us" attitude. Thus revenge for past beatings may have been sweet, but it was costly in November.

Now Rocky comes to the fore with a selfsacrificing move supposedly intended to end the suicidal intramural bickering. And on this noble occasion what do the liberals do? They are already muttering about "purges of Goldwaterism."

One hopeful talks of telling "the extremists" that "their voices are not wanted in the party or the country."

Since some of these same worthies assured the world last year that anyone voting for Goldwater was an extremist, they have begun their consolidation move by reading out of the party some 26 million voters. This is an odd way to close ranks.

Whether the Eastern liberals like it or not, the fact remains that conservatives give the party its zip. They are the Republicans who are willing to work as Republicans, whose devotion to the GOP goes beyond idle talk. The GOP liberals need the conservatives. And as last November proved, the conservatives need the liberals—it is not enough to burn with a pure and gemlike flame; you must also have the votes if you are to win elections.

Most important, the nation needs a healthy Republican party to restore meaningful debate to the governmental process. It is therefore distressing to see the party leaders preparing for 1968 by repeating the mistakes of 1964.

One of the ironies of our time is that so many parents strain themselves to get their children into "the best colleges" and seem to be surprised when these "best colleges" seem to be turning out the most leftish of the left wingers.

And it can be safely assumed that these parents who want their children to get into the prestige colleges are conservative, if not reactionary people. They are even likely to be capitalistic.

But the college professors and the academic environment on the college campuses today are not conservative, and certainly not capitalistic. The campuses are more likely to harbor the bearded sign carrying intellectual who savors his new found freedom from stuffy middle class conservative views, especially in the political arena if not the economic.

In other words, dad sends junior off to college and then is dumbfounded when junior comes home talking like a socialist.

The parents of today can surely remember their own college days, when they were first introduced to the excitement of free thinkers, when they first actually heard a professor question the existence of God, or the sanctity of the profit system, or any of the other things that children grew up believing to be solid as a rock.

It is part of the growth pattern, that a young person learns to think, to question, to discuss, and do it in an atmosphere where his opinion is respected as much as his peers.

Of course, it is also noted that a few years after graduation, when the campus liberals are faced with the cold hard facts of making a living, that the intellectual stamp dims, and some of these same liberals join the Republican party and some of them even might have voted for Barry

But on most campuses today there is a mood of unrest because these are uneasy times. The college age youngsters have grown up in a different set of times. They have grown up in a time when it is expected that jobs will be waiting which will pay well and allow plenty of leisure. It is a time when the government has taken over, and will take care of its subjects. The sought after jobs are those within the secure envelopment of the government.

Free enterprise, the capitalistic system, individual freedom, patriotism, the other things that we associate with Americanism, are not promoted on the typical college campus today because the professors that teach are too busy looking down their nose at the money grubbers.

And it will be supremely ironic if our own transition to full scale socialism is led by the children of the affluent conservatives who are so bound upon getting their kids into "the best colleges."

THE BOOTLEG ---Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm holds firm to his backward view of outer space, his letter this week

Understand, sending a television camera 135 million miles through space to take some pictures of Mars and then getting the pictures transmitted back to earth is a brilliant feat, and while I couldn't tell much from the pictures, still you can say the same thing about some television shows originating here on earth, none the less I continue to stay sort of unexcited about outer space. What I mean is, I'm in favor of man's exploring, but

's got a lot of odds against him.

Take Mars. Scientists have already discovered, according to Mariner's messages, that there's not enough oxygen there to keep a man alive. Now I suppose we could overcome that, if we wanted to populate the place, by getting some company to go into the Mars oxygenmanufacturing and distribution business and equipping everybody with a meter to calculate his monthly breathing bill, think what you could make off of athletes and Congressmen, and I figure that's one bill practically everybody would pay and the company would have very few occasions when it had to disconnect a man's supply for lack of payment, a thoughtful person would just naturally put it ahead of his television or car installment, I'd like to have some stock in that company myself, but you might run into stubborn people who'd argue, why go to Mars and pay for breathing when you can do it free here on earth? This of course wouldn't include the people who go to the Mediterranean to see the sun set when they could stand in their own backyard and see the same sun setting.

Well, anyway, so we rule out Mars as a serious pros-pect for sub-dividing and tackle another one. As I understand it, there are literally billions of planets out there and the hunt could go on forever. Eventually, way out on the other side of the universe, if the universe has any sides, we might find a planet with life on it.

Well, what would we do with it? We've already got a planet with life on it and we ain't doing too much w

IT DOESN'T HURT — Bryce Hunter, WSI aide, trys to convince one beginner that it doesn't really take all that effort to float on his back.

To Volunteers

To any casual observer, one of the most noticeable examples of volunteer work and service in the City of Hereford is the Red Cross swimming program which has just come to an end for the summer.

Under the direction of Mrs. Bruce Miller, water safety chairman for the local chapter of the American Red Cross ... about 35 water safety instructors and aides work with 175 persons at the city swimming pool every day in different phases of the Red Cross program.

Children wanting to learn how to swim have been able to participate in the program for $2.25 for a two-week period. The fee goes to the eity as a charge for use of the pool; all instructors and instructors' aides donate their time to the pro-

Water Safety Instructors, .. known as WSI's to Red Cross personnel, not only have to have passed their senior lifesaving courses, but also must have spent some 30 hours in classroom work before they are qualified to teach.

Another requirement for a WSI is that he be active in the swimming instruction program at least every other year. Inactivity for two years in succession cancels his title; class-room work must be done again if he wishes to regain his position as WSI.

Instructors have passed 221 persons enrolled in the classes in the first two sessions conducted this summer. Another 100 are expected to pass when the third session comes to and end early this week, Mrs. Miller
