

Block Meeting Provides Little Hope

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

LUBBOCK — "The big answer we received was that we're not going to get any help from Washington," was the feeling of Robert Diller of Hereford following a "Town Hall" meeting between U.S. Ag Secretary John Block and area farmers here Thursday evening.

Diller, along with other Hereford representatives John Metcalf and Miles Caudle, said that the meeting with the agriculture department head did little to provide any hope for assistance with the straits the ag community currently finds itself in.

"The feeling I got was that he felt he was at a high school FFA meeting, and that everything was rosy," Caudle, himself a former USDA employee said. "I got the feeling that he is not going to do anything. It was a real nice meeting, but a real nice meeting isn't what we need right now."

Metcalf also thought the meeting was "nice" but that answers to serious questions posed by the capacity crowd were not provided.

"He (Block) did a real good job...he fended off the questions very well without really answering them," Metcalf said. "He didn't offer any hopes for help from the government, however, saying that the present programs are working, and that we don't need anything else."

Diller, Caudle, and Metcalf were just part of some 50 area citizens who made the trip to Lubbock, a group which should have been much larger Diller felt.

"We should have had a group of 500 there," he said. I personally think that the apathy is going to let us lose a nation."

"The politicians only give the people what they want, and most of us want the easy way out, even if it's going to hurt us later," he continued. "What the people want right now is a cheap food policy, and that's the going thing."

Caudle, who worked for the ASCS in Washington state and with the Federal Crop Insurance program in Kansas before retiring to his farm, said that Block did not give any hope for increased farm prices. "Most of the farmers expressed the opinion that they were on the verge of bankruptcy, with no way out except to get prices up," Caudle said. "He (Block) made several statements that sounded like he hopes a miracle is going to happen, and that we'll come out of it...I'm not so sure many of us have that kind of faith anymore."

Caudle said that he got the impression that Block was content to "let whatever happens happen," but the local farmer said that he is afraid that that attitude may lead to trouble in the near future.

"I'm just afraid that it may lead to violence," Caudle said. "There may be a bunch of people on the road to starvation, and they may have no other choice in getting their point across."

"Block means well, but the situation is serious, and he just believes that the best action to take is no action at all."

Metcalf was impressed with Block as a politician and a speaker. "He was very courteous and had an excellent delivery, but he never really did answer any of the questions," Metcalf said. "He was very good at fending them off, and insisted that the present programs are working and that we don't need anything else."

Caudle said that perhaps one good thing did come out of the meeting last night. "He (Block) seemed to realize that the people do have a problem and aren't happy," Caudle said. "He was going to meet with leaders of various commodity groups this morning to get their views, and that is a positive step."

Still, all three men felt that the meeting was basically fruitless.

"I don't know what the next step is," Diller said. "We've had three meetings on the local level to get rolling, and there has been less attendance at each one. We can't do it for them, and we can't tell them what needs to be done."

Russian Embargo Rumor Discounted

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block Thursday dispelled the rumor of a possible embargo on the Soviet Union, saying that "aggressive buying by the Soviet Union in the U.S. grain market should dispel the myth of a possible embargo."

Block made the statement at a press conference at the Lubbock airport prior to a town hall meeting with area farmers Thursday evening.

"President Reagan has said that he will impose broad base economic sanctions only under extreme conditions," Block said. "And agriculture will not be singled out."

Block said the 650,000 tons of corn reportedly sold to the Soviet Union by U.S. exporters this week pointed to aggressive buying by the U.S.S.R., and he put down previous embargoes by the U.S.

"The three or four embargoes imposed by the U.S.

during the last 10 years have seriously hurt Americans," Block said. "I wish we were selling more to the Soviet Union. I don't know how long it will take us to live down those past embargoes."

While insisting that the Reagan Administration and the Department of Agriculture plan to work with producers to help ease the economic crisis facing the industry, many of the farmers in attendance at the meeting

Thursday evening, got an opposite impression.

Change of Course Pled For

Pressure On to Abandon Budget

By CLIFF HAAS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure is building on President Reagan to abandon his budget as congressional economists conclude it will produce annual deficits of $100 billion for the foreseeable future and business leaders plead for a change of course to avoid economic disaster. Leaders of the troubled financial and housing industries told Reagan in a letter Thursday that he has "no alternative" but to seek higher taxes, reduced military spending and cuts in government benefit programs such as Social Security in order to trim deficits. House Republican leader

Robert H. Michel of Illinois told reporters Thursday that a bill the administration will need passed by May to raise the national debt ceiling will fail unless it is linked to budget resolution that indicates we are narrowing the deficit."

Michel said he thinks the way to do that is to tone down planned defense spending increases, reduce cost-of-living increases in various government benefit programs and defer an income tax cut scheduled for 1983. The Congressional Budget Office predicted that even if Congress enacts all the budget savings proposed by the president, deficits will rise from $111 billion this year to $121 billion next year, $129 billion in 1984, and $140 billion in 1985.

That runs counter to the administration prediction that Reagan's budget will produce a steady downward trend of deficits — $98.6 billion this year; $91.5 billion in 1983; $83 billion in 1984; and $72 billion in 1985.

The differences are due to less optimistic assumptions of the economy and higher interest costs as well as higher estimated spending for the programs in Reagan's budget, principally the Pentagon and farm price supports.

Most analysts say it is the prospect of high deficits that has kept interest rates high because of fears by lenders that huge government borrowings in later years either will fuel a new surge in inflation or create a credit shortage.

"More than anything else, it is the spectre of an overwhelming volume of deficit financing which haunts housing and financial markets and poses the threat of economic and financial conditions not seen since the 1930s," the financial and housing leaders wrote in their letter to Reagan.

"Prolonged high interest rates are creating an economic and financial crisis in this country. In order to bring interest rates down, immediate action must be taken to reduce massive federal budget deficits," they said.

The letter was signed by the heads of American Bankers Association, Mortgage Bankers Association, National Association of Home Builders, Mutual Savings Banks, National Association of Realtors and U.S. League of Savings Associations.

Farmers and businessmen who went to Lubbock Thursday night weren't expecting a miracle to result from the appearance of Ag Secretary John Block, and they were right.

Probably the best that can be expected is that the message Block got from the farmers will help him make the decision to release $600 million in new loans to American farmers. Under the emergency program, Block is authorized to make and guarantee loans to farmers who are unable to obtain sufficient credit elsewhere due to economic stresses.

News sources have indicated Block is ready to make that decision but has run into resistance from David Stockman, director of Office of Management and Budget. Needless to report, some farmers were very discouraged with the meeting Thursday night.

James Roberts, publisher of The Andrews County News, is worried about the government's give-away of cheese.

In a recent column, Roberts said the government's timing is terrible. "Spring is the time for a general, all-purpose, all-consuming housecleaning...and the government, with its cheese program, is going to get things stopped before they start."

Roberts explains that he thinks it is only fitting that the government get rid of the cheese before it spoils, "but we can't help but wonder about the overall effect on the health of the people receiving 70 million pounds of cheese. As most people know, cheese has an overall binding effect."

Roberts says his concern is prompted by an experience he had with cheese, and grapes, in Italy during World War II.

"Our infantry unit was pulled out of the line, hauled in trucks about 30 miles to another site in order to launch an all-out attack against the Germans. They hid our outfit in a grape vineyard during the night so we could be in position for the surprise attack the next morning.

"But the grapes were ripe, juicy, and overhead...and throughout the night, the dogfaces were reaching up, grabbing big clusters of grapes, and wolfing them down. They were delicious but deadly.

"By morning, the vast majority of the soldiers were suffering from severe diarrhea—and attack had to be cancelled.

"At mid-morning, huge quantities of cheese arrived at the grape vineyard with appropriate orders to eat or else—and the soldiers spent the rest of the day munching on slabs of cheese. If the grapes were as volatile as go, the cheese was just as effective as stop.

"And thanks to the strict cheese diet, the attack was launched the next morning. With that experience in mind, we can't help but wonder if the government shouldn't dispense an equal amount of grapes."

U.S. Imposing Boycott on Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is stepping up its campaign against Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan leader, by imposing a boycott of oil imports from the militant Arab country and halting sales of American oil and gas equipment to the Libyans, informed sources say.

The decision was taken by the National Security Council Thursday and is expected to take effect in two weeks, after consultation with the West European allies, Congress and oil company executives.

While the United States has long accused Khadafy of promoting terrorism, there was no apparent specific provocation for the move, which was under consideration for several months. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. is understood to have played a leading role within administration councils in urging a boycott of Libya.

First word of the decision came from Middle East Policy Survey, a newsletter published here. Informed sources confirmed the action, but insisted that they not be identified.

The export controls would place Libya in the same category as the Soviet Union, the Survey reported today. In addition to a ban on U.S. oil and gas equipment, Libya would be unable to buy computers, air traffic control gear or other items having a potential military use.

Despite official U.S. disapproval of the Libyan government, documents obtained last month by The Associated Press showed American firms had supplied Libya with $53 million in weapons and material.

The equipment, exported to Libya since Khadafy seized power in 1969, ranged from military cargo planes to weapon-sighting devices and guided missile components.

Tensions built up last August when two U.S. warplanes shot down two Libyan fighters over the Gulf of Sidra during a U.S. navy exercise. Khadafy charged violation of his territorial waters. The administration

Feds Apparently Giving Up On Gas Decontrol

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, facing angry consumer groups and an election-year Congress, apparently has given up seeking faster decontrol of natural gas prices in Congress this year.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker and House Republican Leader Robert Michel said they told President Reagan Thursday that Congress was in no mood to face a divisive debate on natural gas.

"We've got enough problems at the moment without dealing with that one," Michel, R-Ill., told reporters after the meeting.

After hearing the objections of Baker, R-Tenn., and Michel, Reagan met late Thursday with his Cabinet on the natural gas issue.

Energy Secretary James Edwards made an impassioned plea for the administration to go forward with its deconrol bill, according to DOE spokeswoman Constance Stuart, but the president announced no decision.

However, an administration source who asked not to be identified, said it was "highly unlikely" that Reagan would push for decontrol this year. This assessment was confirmed by sources at the Energy Department, who said official announcement of that decision could come as early as today.

The action would represent a victory for consumer groups, which have charged that Reagan's accelerated decontrol plan would cost homeowners $40 billion more a year and double the average residential bill.

But major oil companies, which produce 50 percent of natural gas supplies, had been exerting their own pressure on Reagan to honor his campaign pledge to seek accelerated decontrol.

The Cabinet Council on Natural Resources unanimously recommended a decontrol package to the president last July. Reagan delayed introducing it until the fall budget battle was resolved. He made a second postponement when Republican leaders said they did not want the measure introduced in 1981.

NCA Rep Says Changes Will Benefit Feeders

By JERI CURTIS Staff Writer

Despite heavy controversy and seemingly great opposition, a National Cattlemen Association representative said he believes the proposed meat grading changes will be to the NCA's favor.

Mike Bowles told about 75 members of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association here

Thursday night that the National Restaurant Association is purporting that the change in meat grading standards is "the beginning of a giant rip-off of consumers and restaurants."

Bowles attended the last hearing on the proposed changes Thursday and said that "in pure numbers, we are outnumbered."

Marbling, according to Bowles, represents 10 percent of the palatability of meat, yet is 90 percent of the grading standard.

Both the proposed USDA standards and the NCA alternative offer a wider range of beef to be graded as "Prime." Both proposals widen the "choice" grade to overlap a small percentage into the "good" category. What is now considered "standard" on the current grading scale would become part of the "good" on the NCA proposal and both good and utility grades on the USDA proposal.

With the widening of grades, the NRA claims that what is called prime meat would not actually be prime meat.

Burton Cheller, vice president of NCA in charge of legal affairs backed Bowles' vote of confidence by telling of 147 research papers submitted to the USDA which supports the NCA rule. He said the restaurant field has submitted approximately 10 papers.

Cattlemen also heard from John Troelstrup, vice president in charge of compliance for Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Troelstrup explained what happens when accounts go over the speculation limit.

The beef industry will be spending $7.8 million starting April 12 in a massive nationwide promotion. Texans are sending $100,000 a month to the Beef Council from a voluntary 25 cents per head checkoff to support the campaign.

"Somehow, Nothing Satisfies Like Beef" is the theme for the promotion which will be on national network television and in major magazines.

Doug Murfield, cattle and feed representative, told the feeders that placement of cattle was up 27 percent in Texas from this time last year with 1.7 million on feed. Murfield is in charge of a cattle feeders report which goes out monthly in seven states and quarterly in 23 states.

Ape Affair Less Than Torrid

HOUSTON (AP) — Those who know say Abe's on the rebound from a humiliating affair in San Diego in which his girlfriend had him thoroughly intimidated. So the handsome, 350-pounder may have been less than encouraged when Vanilla, a strapping 16-year-old, responded to his advances with a few smacks to the head.

Still, Hermann Park Zoo officials hold out hope that love will blossom between the two lowland gorillas. The animals are listed as a highly endangered species and international law bars importing them to the United States.

"We're very optimistic," said Victor Camp, curator of mammals. Camp said despite Abe's relatively advanced age of 26, "he has produced viable sperm."

Zoo manager John Werler said he is keeping one thing from the couple — they only have a year to produce offspring.

"We didn't want to tell them," he said. "It would put too much pressure on them."

The couple doesn't make the deadline, spokesman Joe Howard said. Abe will be returned to his home zoo in Colorado Springs. Vanilla will be sent to a "group breeding program" in Cincinnati, in which Howard said different kinds of apes are put together in hopes of promoting a case of monkey see, monkey do.

Abe, whom Camp said was last on breeding loan in San Diego, came to Houston in November. Zoo officials kept the two separated by bars for the first month and a half. They could touch, but not embrace.

Vanilla was less than a gracious hostess at the couple's first appearance before the press Wednesday, heaving dung at her visitors.

Howard said zoo officials hope time will heat the romance.

"The plans are to allow them ample time to get the romance going and, hopefully, actually copulate," Howard said.

But so far the two have done nothing more romantic than hold hands.

Camp said there is really no mystery about the gorillas' mating game.

"Female gorillas will mate," he said, "when they are ready to mate."

Shuttle Countdown Simulation Begins

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — By giving the space shuttle a long, cold drink of a half-million gallons of liquid fuel today, technicians hope to ensure that Columbia's parts will work well under extremely low temperatures, space agency officials say.

As part of a dress rehearsal for the reusable spacecraft's third mission March 22, workers planned to begin loading liquid hydrogen and oxygen into the shuttle's 154-foot-tall external tank.

The oxygen is kept at minus 297 degrees Fahrenheit and hydrogen at minus 423 degrees to maintain them in a liquid state, Kennedy Space Center spokesman Mark Hess said.

During a countdown hold about two hours before the simulated "launch," a NASA ice inspection team was to go over the entire exterior of the massive fuel tank looking for frost and ice that could fall off during liftoff and damage the spacecraft.

While the tanking test is going on, technicians will be putting the shuttle through an imaginary countdown and blastoff. The countdown for the mock mission began at 1 p.m. Thursday, with a make-believe launch and simulated firing of Columbia's three main engines.

While technicians are testing the shuttle's hardware at Cape Canaveral, astronauts Jack Lousma and Gordon Fullerton were scheduled to speak to reporters in Houston in the last news conference before their flight.

Plans also called for a test today of the reusable spacecraft's three electricity-producing fuel cells. The cells were to be turned on during a built-in "hold," or delay in the countdown, about two hours before the simulated liftoff. And the No. 1 auxiliary power unit will also be activated during the simulated ignition of the main engines.

The failure of one of the fuel cells during Columbia's second flight last November forced a cutback of the mission from five days to two.

Moderate Earthquake Rocks Anchorage

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — A moderate earthquake that rocked southern Alaska was felt as far north as the Anchorage area, but caused no injury or damage, officials said.

The temblor, which occurred at 9:28 p.m. Thursday (1:28 a.m. EST today), was assigned a magnitude of 5.5 on the Richter scale of ground motion, said John Sindorf, seismologist with the Alaska Tsunami Warning Center here.

It was centered 180 miles southwest of Anchorage, he said.

There were no reports of damage, although many people called to say they felt the quake, Sindorf said.

Letting Washington Monitor Automobile Safety Totally

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Reagan tries to shift many federal programs to the states, his administration also is telling states to stop enforcing dozens of auto safety standards — and leave the job to Washington.

For a decade the federal government has allowed states to enforce safety standards on items from windshields and headlights to brake fluid and motorcycle helmets, as long as the state standards are identical to federal requirements.

But the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reversed its position recently and told the states to get out of the business of approving such equipment prior to sale. The new policy contends the job of monitoring the standards rests solely with the federal agency.

Furthermore, the agency claims that the state programs, handled through a central clearinghouse, frustrate compliance since they require a $250 fee to get each product line approved, adding to the manufacturer's costs. Supporters of the states' program say the fees are nominal.

State enforcement of the standards has rested with the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, which represents 48 states and approves each product line so it can be sold in all member states.

The association claims federal pre-emption will reduce safety because the federal government relies almost exclusively on the manufacturer certifying that its own product meets the standards, while the state programs require testing of each item by an approved laboratory.

"We feel self-certification is no certification," said Don Bardell, executive director of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

George E. Walton, who oversees the state program, added in an interview: "What this (new federal policy) means is that American equipment manufacturers and the motor vehicle manufacturers can do pretty much as they please."

In a recent letter to NHTSA administrator Raymond Peck, association's president Frank A. Mansheim also complained about the timing of the new NHTSA ruling, since it came only eight days after two manufacturing groups asked the agency to expedite a rule pre-empting the state programs.

Mansheim, who is director of the Colorado Motor Vehicle Division, said the quick ruling was "somewhat capricious" and "raises questions about what other factors influenced the decision."

The dispute over the states' enforcement programs has been simmering since Congress enacted a law in 1966 requiring federal standards on vehicle equipment sold over the counter. The standards cover scores of items, including tires, headlights, signal flashers, mirrors, motorcycle helmets — even brake fluid and antifreeze.

Noting that a Louisiana law requiring state approval of all motorcycle helmets sold in that state was about to go into effect, the manufacturers in a Dec. 23 letter to Peck said, "We ask for an expedited response to this request."

Although the state enforcement program is expected to continue, manufacturers are sure to challenge it in court, citing the new NHTSA policy, state officials said.

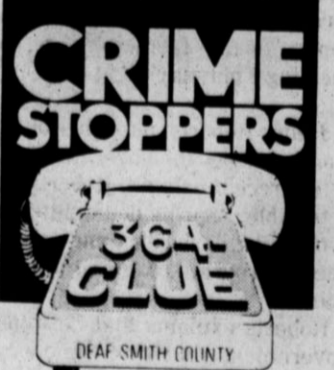

The Truck Safety Equipment Institute, whose members sell automotive lights, reflectors and mirrors, for years has led the fight, and won a court case two years ago that threw out an enforcement program in Pennsylvania.

Steven Wood, a lawyer for NHTSA, said the agency's decision to review its stand on the pre-emption position came out of the Pennsylvania case and had long been a subject of discussion. He said it was not prompted directly by the manufacturers' Dec. 23 request, but acknowledged "there was an effort to respond..."

The equipment manufacturers contend the state enforcement programs only duplicate federal efforts, do not add to safety and are continued only because they provide the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators with a major source of revenue.

Lawrence Hennenberger, a lawyer for the two groups that asked Peck to act, said the administrators' association is "battling to retain that source of income."

The association charges a $250 application fee for each product line a manufacturer wants approved. If a product is approved it may be marketed in any of the 48 member states.

Anti-Busing Forces Ready For Victory In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate conservatives are poised to claim victory in a congressional drive to eliminate busing as a tool to desegregate schools, but the proposal has a long way to go before becoming law.

A small group of Senate liberals abruptly surrendered Thursday after a 9-month uphill battle against a strong anti-busing majority.

A fatigued Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., leader of a filibuster that had been blocking a final vote on the anti-busing measure, said he had run out of time, help and parliamentary tactics.

As a result, the Senate will vote Tuesday on a Justice Department authorization bill that includes an anti-busing rider sponsored by Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Bennett Johnston, D-La. Approval in the Senate is a foregone conclusion, but another big fight is likely in the House and there still could be further discussion later in the Senate.

Johnston said that while he is optimistic the legislation finally will be approved by Congress this year, he conceded, "It is not a foregone conclusion."

Weicker said flatly, "This will not become law."

The measure would direct federal judges not to order public school students transported more than 10 miles or 30 minutes round trip from home to their classrooms.

It also would prohibit the Justice Department from asking federal courts to issue busing orders, a policy already adopted by the Reagan administration.

Although Weicker had help from a half dozen liberal Democrats, the fight was mainly his. For hours, he remained on the Senate floor, using a variety of procedural tactics to postpone the inevitable.

The Senate was in session late Wednesday and into the early morning hours Thursday. When Majority Leader Howard Baker reconvened the Senate Thursday morning, tempers were on edge.

Weicker accused Baker and his opponents of unfairly using Senate rules to squash the filibuster prematurely.

In reply, Baker approached Weicker angrily and the Republican leader was overheard saying, "You have gone too far."

Afterwards, Weicker said he quit because Baker had limited his ability to maneuver and because of the uncertainty of continued support from liberal Democratic allies on the floor.

He questioned Baker's ability to be fair since the majority leader supported the anti-busing bills.

"Next time I'd like to see him doff his referee's clothes and come over to my side," said Weicker. "I know we'll win. I know he has the votes."

Of the legislation, Weicker said, "I think it is wrong, I think it is unconstitutional and I think it is dangerous."

Busing is the first of a series of social issues which conservatives hope to bring to Senate floor sometime this winter and spring.

Weicker said if liberals are to head off many changes in national policy on busing, school prayer, abortion and other issues, they will have to have more help than he did.

Libyan

denied it. Once the third largest source of U.S. oil imports, Libya now provides only about 100,000 a day, less than 3 percent of U.S. imports. Coupled with the current glut in world oil supply, the decision is likely to have a minor impact, at most, on prices to American consumers.

Some of the European allies, particularly France and Italy, are major importers of Libyan oil. Evidently they will not be asked to participate in the boycott.

President Reagan instructed an estimated 1,500 American oil workers in Libya to return home last December. He said their safety was imperiled because of increasing hostility toward the United States. Some heeded his call, but others remain there.

The order coincided with reports that Khadafy had dispatched a "hit squad" to the United States with orders to assassinate Reagan and other top officials. Khadafy denied the reports and they have since subsided.

Gas

their highest gas bills ever, Reagan came under renewed pressure not to force Congress into action on the issue in an election year.

Nicholas J. Bush, president of the Natural Gas Producers Association, said he was disappointed congressional leaders would not feel the need to correct the "seriously flawed" 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act.

That law is gradually removing price controls on the 60 percent of gas supplies discovered after April 1977.

So-called "old gas" discovered before that date would remain controlled.

Reagan's decontrol measure would raise prices faster on new gas and remove all controls on both old and new gas by Jan. 1, 1985.

Gas producers contend that decontrolling all gas would spur production — thus cutting imports — and also eliminate severe regional price discrepancies they say will exist in 1985 under the current decontrol law.

Trial

the case.

The State of Texas, plaintiffs challenging the house redistricting plan, plaintiffs against the senate plan, the Texas Secretary of State, the Justice Department and the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund all were represented at Thursday's pretrial hearing.

The judges warned the attorneys they expect a businesslike proceeding Monday.

"We need hard-core facts and figures from people who know, not a lot of opinion from people who don't know. That's the bottom line," said

Randall during a discussion of potential witnesses.

Sanders then asked Assistant Attorney General Rick Gray, "How much lead time will it (changing plans) require until the primary can be conducted?"

"I honestly don't know," Gray replied.

"That's the kind of information we need to find out," Sanders said, with emphasis.

The judges urged each party submitting a redistricting plan to present only one witness in support of its program.

The panel agreed "with great reluctance" last month to redraw the boundaries for Texas' legislative elections, after the Justice Department invoked the Voting Rights Act to reject plans prepared by the Legislative Redistricting Board.

At that hearing Buchmeyer said redistricting is a "legislative function which the federal courts should make every effort not to preempt."

The LRB — a special committee composed entirely of Democratic state officials — wrote the plans after the legislature failed to do so during its 1981 session.

Clements, a Republican, blasted the result as a partisan effort.

MALDEF and both original plaintiffs have submitted alternate redistricting plans for the court's consideration. However, the judges said they would make "only such modifications... as would be necessary" to bring the LRB plans into compliance with federal law.

The court's new maps will be only interim plans to carry Texas through 1982 elections, with the Legislature expected to devise an acceptable permanent plan.

Pressure

have been especially hard hit by persistently high interest rates and some have said their business problems are hurting much more than they do during a typical recession.

Alice M. Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, told the Senate Appropriations Committee on Thursday that "large and rising budget deficits could seriously impair the overall performance of the economy over the longer run."

She said her forecast assumed that Congress would enact $56 billion in budget cuts and other savings proposed by Reagan for the 1983 fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

A number of Republicans, Democrats and private economists already had assailed Reagan's figures as too optimistic.

Unlike the Reagan administration, Ms. Rivlin said the long-term deficit prospect is not the result of the current recession.

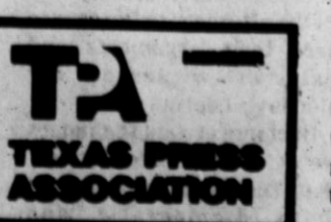

She said it results in part from enactment of last year's 3-year tax cut legislation, which has produced a permanently widening gap between government spending and income.

In all, she said congressional economists estimate a combined deficit for 1983-1985 of $390 billion — $144 billion above Reagan's record forecast of $246 billion.

David R. Gergen, President Reagan's assistant for communications, said Thursday the White House staff needed more time to study the budget office report before commenting.

But, he said, the congressional agency was "anticipating less economic growth than the president is," and that the president's savings and economic growth figures could be achieved if Congress cooperates with the Reagan program.

Nerve Gas No Match For Squid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deadly chemical nerve gas apparently is no match for the squid, scientists say.

Researchers reported today that they have discovered a method using an enzyme from squids to destroy chemical warfare nerve gases in a cleaner way than previously possible.

The method may provide a way to neutralize unwanted stockpiles, said Illinois Institute of Technology scientists in a report published in Science magazine.

The scientists said they have succeeded in binding the squid substance to resin beads and making a system that will detoxify principal nerve gases when passed through the beads.

But the researchers said the laboratory-scale system they developed would only be practical if a way were found to produce large quantities of the squid chemical.

They speculated this might be possible through chemical synthesis or genetic engineering techniques that possibly could develop microbes to produce the substance.

Drs. Francis C. G. Hoskin and Allan H. Roush said their test results "suggest a means for detoxifying unwanted chemical warfare agents."

Hoskin said in a telephone interview that he earlier discovered an enzyme in the nerve cells of squid that broke down organophosphorus compounds used as nerve gas.

Piano Festival Entry Forms Due Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the deadline for turning in entry forms to participate in the West Texas State Piano and Organ Festival. Entry forms were sent out to area teachers in January.

The two previous festivals included only piano performances, but this year organ has been added in order to benefit all keyboard students. Categories will include Class I, II, and III piano performances with a six minute time limit; and Intermediate and Advance organ performances with an eight minute time limit. Adjudicators will assign each contestant a rating designating the degree of excellence of their performance. Students making a Superior (I) rating in any class will be awarded a medal.

Completed entry forms, along with an entry fee of $3.50, should be submitted to Mary Helen Demus, Chairperson, WTSU Piano and Organ Festival, P.O. Box 879, WT Station, Canyon, Tex. 79106 by Saturday, Feb. 27.

Students Invited To Participate In 1982 Regional History Fair

Trade and Industry in History is the theme for the 1982 Regional History Fair to be held on April 17 at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, Canyon, in celebration of National History Day. This year's second annual Regional History Fair will represent 27 counties in the Panhandle region, according to Suzanne Hewitt, Director of Education at the Museum and regional chairman of the Fair. Assisting her is co-chairman Nag Arthur, education department volunteer.

Students in grades six through eight, the junior division, and grades nine through twelve, the senior division, may enter. There are six contest categories, including individual projects; group projects with a limit of five students; and individual historical papers. Other categories consist of individual performance; group performance; and media presentations (group or individual).

More specifically, projects such as charts, displays, reliefs, or historical papers can be entered. Other projects that may be entered include fictional accounts and poetry, reconstructions, models, explanatory texts with photographic displays, and live presentations. Media entries may consist of slide-tape, motion picture, or video tape. Each student may enter in one category.

Out-of-town guests will evaluate projects on the basis of historical quality, quality of presentation, and adherence to theme and rules. Trophies, ribbons, and school plaques for winners are awards to be presented. Projects will be placed on display for public viewing April 18 through April 23 at the Museum. Winners in the Regional Fair will compete in San Antonio in the State History Fair on May 1 against winners from twenty other Regional Fairs conducted state-wide. The state competition will be held at the Institute for Texan Cultures. Winners of the State Fair will go on to compete in the National finals at the University of Maryland-College Park in June.

Four hundred area students participated in the 1981 Regional History Fair, Hewitt said. It was one of the largest history fairs in the state. The competition is made possible through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, which provides funds to purchase awards and certificates.

"Because of the success of last year's History Fair, the NEH increased the amount of grant money for this particular Regional Fair," Hewitt said. She expects about the same number of students to participate in this year's Fair as last year's.

There is no registration fee to enter. Registration forms, student and teacher guide manuals, and other information may be obtained by contacting Suzanne Hewitt at the Museum in Canyon.

Ann Landers Saying It Like It Is

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you seem to be a favorite dumping ground for petty complaints and major gripes, may I be next?

Why don't people come right out and say what they mean? For example, yesterday my sister-in-law said, "We are going to Cincinnati for a funeral tomorrow. My closest friend lost her husband." To me the word "lost" means disappeared or misplaced-like a person can lose a dog or a wallet. When I hear a woman say she has lost her husband it sounds as if they were shopping together, became separated and she lost him. But when a person dies, he is not LOST-he is dead.

I wish you would print my letter and initiate a campaign to do away with phony words. People need to be encouraged to tell it like it is.-Boo To Euphemisms (Boston)

DEAR BOSTON: I, too, like you, dislike euphemisms, but it's understandable that people avoid the word "died." It sounds so cold and final.

Another euphemism for "died" that makes even less sense is "passed away"-or just plain "passed." (The latter sounds like he went from the eighth grade to the ninth.)

More and more, psychologists, psychiatrists and grief therapists are encouraging people to use words such as "died," "dead" and "death" as part of facing reality. I believe it is emotionally healthy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was a child (perhaps five years old) I remember the doctor saying Dad had heart trouble. Mother told us we must all be very quiet when he was at home, and never do anything to anger or distress him because he might get a heart attack and die. That would mean, of course, that we killed him.

When I was 16 I began to have heart-pounding spells and was sure I had inherited my dad's illness. Mother took me to three clinics and not one doctor could find a thing wrong with my heart. (Nerves was the diagnosis.) I am now 34 years of age, and have never had sex with a woman because I've always been afraid I would die in her bed. I know this is crazy, but I couldn't help it. I have been in therapy for nearly a year and am beginning to get it all together. I hope you feel this letter is worth writing. The moral: How Not to Raise Children.-Wasted Years in Paducah

DEAR PAD: A great many experts believe that almost as many children imitate the illnesses of their parents as inherit them. I buy it. At any rate, that's exactly what happened to you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I remember President John F. Kennedy's definition of class. It was "grace under pressure." Since I first heard it, I have tried to make that my goal.

Last night about 3 a.m. I was awakened out of a sound sleep. Some drunk was looking for "Ginny." I was very unpleasant and hung up.

Within two minutes the phone rang again-same guy. he insisted I put "Ginny" on. I used a string of words I didn't know I knew and hung up. Two minutes later he phoned a third time. He called me by name. I nearly died. It was a guy I worked with. He had been looking on the wrong page of his little black book. I feel like a heel. Should I say anything?--Out Of Character in St. Jo

DEAR ST. JO: The guy called YOU - and 3 a.m. isn't exactly everyone's finest hour. In the future make an effort to eliminate certain words from your vocabulary, no matter what the circumstances.

FAITH REVEALS THE UNLIMITED FACETS OF LOVE

o many of us, the word "love" usually signifies romantic adventure, happy marriage or the care and anxiety of a parent; but while all of these are good examples of it, they by no means tell the whole story. Love is an act of kindness for one's neighbor; an anonymous donation to a worthy cause; food and supplies sent to starving native children or the victims of a disaster; a regular visit to the sick, the elderly or the lonely of any age; and so on indefinitely. Whatever form it takes, the main ingredients of love are thoughtfulness and unselfishness, and you will find the recipe for it at the Church of your choice. It will be served with a generous portion of happiness for you as well as for the recipients of it.

Respect is what we owe; love, what we give.

Free's Jumper Propels Warriors Over Dallas

By The Associated Press

When the Golden State Warriors need a crucial basket, they look for the free man — World Free. He was there Thursday night, sinking an 18-foot jump shot at the buzzer that beat the tenacious Mavericks in Dallas. In two other National Basketball Association games, San Antonio rallied to beat Detroit 119-116 and Los Angeles trimmed Seattle 104-98.

With the score tied, and about 30 seconds to play, the Warriors ran the clock down to the final legal tick — the Mavericks claimed it was one tick too many — before Mike Gale took a hurried turnaround jumper. "I looked at the shot clock and there were two seconds left," said Gale, "so I got it up as fast as I could."

It rimmed the basket and landed in Free's hands. The Golden State guard dribbled, then launched the ball. Before it came down, the horn sounded. And when it came down, it touched only net.

"We're lucky World was there for the rebound," said Gale. "He ran the clock out and made a heck of a shot."

"We would have liked to have the ball out of Free's hands," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "We would like to have let somebody else beat us. It's too bad we couldn't have a man run at him and put a hand in his face."

With forward Bernard King, averaging 23.1 points, out with a bruised knee, Free carried the Warriors' scoring load with 31 points. Jay Vincent had 23 for Dallas.

Spurs 119, Pistons 116
Forty points by the Iceman, George Gervin, and Mark Olberding's 18 — including his jumper and two foul shots that gave the Spurs a four-point lead in the final minute — paced San Antonio past the Pistons.

San Antonio trailed 100-91 with 10 minutes left before turning it on. John Long led the Pistons with 31 points. Kelly Tripucka added 30.

Lakers 104, Sonics 98
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 23 of his 31 points in the second half as the Lakers chalked up their fifth consecutive victory and opened a 2½-game lead over Seattle in the Pacific Division.

The SuperSonics led 92-85 with 4½ minutes to play before Los Angeles outscored them 14-4.

Fidrych Making Comeback Bid

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Pitcher Mark Fidrych says it will be a challenge trying to make his comeback with the Boston Red Sox, the team closest to his Northboro, Mass., home.

"I had some offers from two teams and letters from two others," the 27-year-old Fidrych said Thursday in his first appearance with the Red Sox. "But I began thinking about it, and I said, if it's going to be your last 'whatever,' why not in your hometown."

"Usually, I would leave home each spring, and I would be a little sad because I knew it would be a long time before I got back. This way, I'm coming back right away. Right now, I'm just happy I have a chance to pitch."

The Red Sox signed the former Detroit Tiger right-hander to a contract with their AAA Pawtucket club of the International League. That has kept alive hopes he will regain the form that made him a 19-game winner and American League Rookie of the Year for Detroit in 1976.

Fidrych is switching clubs after seven years with the Tigers, who released him last fall after he posted a 6-3 record and a 5.75 earned run average for Evansville of the American Association. He had offers from the Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates, and received letters from Milwaukee and Seattle.

"I'm not coming here as a star," he said. "I'm coming here as a pitcher with a history of a bad arm. It's a challenge, particularly when it means pitching in your hometown. I'm satisfied with the work I got at Evansville. I can't get better unless I get a chance to pitch."

The Red Sox signed Fidrych to a contract that will pay him $4,000 a month. That's a far cry from what he could be making had the box-office and mound theatrics of "The Bird" not been short-circuited by injury.

"I know there are reports that he can no longer pitch effectively," said Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan. "But we had scouting reports that said Tommy John couldn't pitch anymore, and all he did was lead his team to two penants."

Hurricane Peaking at Right Time

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sport Writer

Nolan Richardson says his Tulsa University basketball team is "peaking at the right time" with the NCAA tournament a couple of weeks down the road. "There's no telling how far they can go," Oral Roberts Coach Ken Hayes said Thursday night after watching Tulsa, the nation's eighth-ranked college team, rout his Titans 91-70.

The Hurricane won this year's bragging rights to the city of Tulsa with the help of a fine all-around performance by Paul Pressey. He had a school-record eight steals and scored a team-high 19 points.

"He does everything but sell tickets," Richardson said of Pressey. "And he'd probably do that if we asked him to."

"It was the best brand of defense we've played this year," Richardson said in assessing his team's overall performance. "When it's tourney time, that's when we need to play like that. We're getting ready for the tournament and peaking at the right time. Everyone is contributing."

Pressey's total steals broke his own record of seven set earlier this season. Pressey and Bruce Vanley keyed a surge that had Tulsa up by as many as 24 points in the final minute.

Vanley finished with 14 points while center Greg Stewart added 13 points and 12 rebounds. Herbert Johnson came off the bench to add 12 points while Mike Anderson had 10.

Oral Roberts' Chris Cantrell led all scorers with 22 points.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 10 Memphis State beat Tulane 64-62, No. 11 Iowa routed Wisconsin 79-55, No. 13 Minnesota turned back Michigan 61-50 and No. 14 Fresno State tripped the University of Pacific 51-43.

The Top Twenty

Keith Lee and Derrick Phillips combined for 34 points as Memphis State beat Tulane to claim the regular season Metro Conference championship.

The victory avenged a 58-54 overtime loss to Tulane earlier this season in New Orleans. A victory Thursday night would have given the second-place Green Wave a tie with the Tigers for the conference title.

Otis Jackson, the Tigers' senior guard and playmaker, almost personally held off a Tulane rally at the end. First, he made two clutch baskets to give the Tigers a 64-60 lead. On the defensive end of the court, Lee had a key block and a rebound in the final seconds to preserve the victory.

Michael Payne, Bob Hansen and Kenny Arnold combined for 41 points as conference-leading Iowa routed last-place Wisconsin in Big Ten action. Iowa dominated the second half, outscoring the Badgers 15-0 during a five-minute stretch before Coach Lute Olson cleared the bench.

Darryl Mitchell scored 23 points and Trent Tucker added 18 to lead Minnesota over Michigan. The victory snapped a 19-year losing streak for the Gophers at Michigan's Crisler Arena.

A three-point play by Thad Garner pulled the Wolverines even at 26 four minutes into the second half and the teams stayed close until a Mitchell layup pulled the Gophers ahead for good. Minnesota led by as many as 10 points, 48-38, with four minutes remaining.

Donald Mason's 12 points led Fresno State over Pacific.

The victory nailed down the Pacific Coast Athletic Association title for the Bulldogs.

Pacific's Matt Waldron had a game-high 20 points and seven rebounds.

Unranked Teams

Clark Kellogg's season-high 24 points paced Ohio State over Indiana. Both coaches, Ohio State's Eldon Miller and Indiana's Bobby Knight, were models of decorum. In their first meeting, they exchanged heated words after Ohio State freshman guard Troy Taylor was charged with a flagrant foul against Indiana's Jimmy Thomas in the closing minutes.

"Kellogg played very well," said Knight. "He put a lot of pressure on us, particularly in the first half. He may be the best forward in the country."

Derek Smith scored 22 points to lead four Louisville players in double figures in the Cardinals' 95-74 victory over Cleveland State; Jim Stack scored 20 points to pace Northwestern to a 67-50 victory over Purdue; Dwight "Jelly" Jones and Bobby Austin sent Cincinnati on a streak early in the final half, propelling the Bearcats to a 76-61 victory over St. Louis, and Roosevelt Chapman scored 25 points to lead Dayton to a 71-61 victory over Duquesne.

Also, Lester Wright hit a key rebound layup late in the game to lead Indiana State over Drake 69-61.

Bolden Wants More Respect

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeanette Bolden doesn't think that women's track and field gets enough recognition — and she has taken big steps to remedy that situation this year.

The 5-foot-8½ Bolden, the tallest sprinter on the women's indoor circuit, has done it by consistently beating Evelyn Ashford, named the outstanding women's track and field athlete in the world last year — the first American woman to receive the honor.

The two will clash again tonight over 60 yards in the USA-Mobil Indoor Championships at Madison Square Garden.

"We still need more respect," said Bolden, referring to women's track, which has made major strides in recent years, especially this season because the women have broken more indoor records than the men. "But we are definitely making headway. We're moving up."

Bolden's success over Ashford, who was virtually invincible in 1981, has played a big part in that movement.

In head-to-head meetings, she has beaten Ashford over 55 meters at East Rutherford, N.J., over 50 yards at Toronto and over 60 yards at Dallas, where she set a world indoor best of 6.60 seconds.

Still, recognition has been slow in coming for the UCLA junior.

"After the Dallas meet, all that happened was people coming by and saying, 'Congratulations, Evelyn.' I mean, that kind of gets to you."

"I have two strikes against me," said Jeanette. "One, I'm running in the shadow of Evelyn Ashford, and two, women's track has been in the shadow of men's track."

Bolden and Ashford have met on two other occasions this season. At New York, Bolden finished second and Ashford third, behind Chandra Cheeseborough, over 60 yards. And at San Diego last Friday night, Ashford won a "non-race" over 60 yards in 6.48 seconds, which would break Bolden's indoor best if it counts.

Neither Bolden nor Alice Brown, the former record holder, ran, believing the race would be recalled because of a fast start by Brown. But the recall gun wasn't fired, and meet officials ruled that the race would stand.

In addition, it was announced shortly after the race that the electronic timing mechanism had malfunctioned and the record would be void. Later, however, officials said there was nothing wrong with the timing device and it was all a misunderstanding.

Meanwhile, the women's campaign suffered a serious setback when distance star Mary Decker Tabb was forced to withdraw from tonight's two-mile because of a leg injury.

Pitcher Sees Gap As Philosophic

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The Los Angeles Dodgers and their star pitcher Fernando Valenzuela are 3,000 miles apart geographically but, philosophically, the separation is 300 times as wide.

The chubby Mexican who dominated 1981 baseball headlines is alone by the telephone in Los Angeles, waiting for the Dodgers to recognize him for what he is — a rare jewel instead of just another young pitcher coming off a fine rookie season.

At the other end of the continent, in Vero Beach, Fla., Al Campanis, Dodger vice president in charge of player personnel, is unpacking his suitcase for the start of spring training with his mind on the nugget he left behind.

It could be a long wait.

"We're very far apart," said Antonio DeMarco, Valenzuela's manager-adviser, by telephone from the West Coast, "not just in the realm of money but in philosophy."

"Fernando never talks of money. He is not hungry. He is not a selfish man. He just wants to be appreciated for what he is, what he has done, what he is certain he can do."

"The Dodgers insist on adhering to tradition, to precedent, to rules. They don't take into account that Fernando is a unique human being who in 1½ years achieved more than some ballplayers achieve in a lifetime."

"From Vero Beach, Campanis acknowledged that there was a huge gap in the two stances — the star performer and his employer."

"We are offering him 2½ times as much as any second year player has received in the entire history of the game," the Dodger executive insisted. "We appreciate what Fernando did for us last year but we feel his demands are unrealistic."

Neither DeMarco nor Campanis was willing to indulge in the "numbers game" but unofficial estimates are that Fernando is asking a cool $1 million while the Dodgers are offering in the neighborhood of $350,000 to $400,000 — not exactly a slum neighborhood.

Valenzuela played last season for $40,000.

No other baseball personality — not Pete Rose, not Reggie Jackson, not Mike Schmidt — last season created the same electric excitement or loaded so many ballparks.

Most baseball traditionalists have lined up with the Dodgers, saying it is outlandish for a raw kid to demand such a windfall on such a short performance record. Realists contend Valenzuela should be measured on merit rather than a time or age scale. We agree with the latter.

"This is what they don't take into consideration," says DeMarco. "I don't think the Dodgers should look at Fernando as a second year player. They should view him in the light of his value to the team — as a producer and a drawing card — and pay him proportionate to what players of similar, even lesser stature, are receiving."

"I've played well all year," said the man called "The Walrus" by his fellow tourists. "It's just that sometimes I haven't scored as well as other times."

Stadler, winner of more than $200,000 in both the 1980 and 1981 seasons, is off to his best start ever.

"I'm off to a very good start," said Stadler, who has won more than $97,000 already this year. "I'm more consistent than I've ever been. And I see no reason why it shouldn't continue."

There is, however, at least one major problem Stadler must contend with as he seeks to become the first two-time winner of the season.

That's Nicklaus. Obviously playing well — Nicklaus hasn't finished lower than third this season — the holder of a record 17 major professional titles missed only one green on his way to a 5-under-par effort that left him a single shot back.

His driving, however, left something to be desired, Nicklaus said. "My game, in general, is pretty good. But I'm not driving as well as I expected to," he said.

He went into the deep rough on the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club on five occasions and, on the 18th, he mis-hit his tee shot and failed to carry the water, setting up a double bogey 6 that deprived him of sole control of the lead.

"I enjoy playing here," Nicklaus said. "Through the years, I've played pretty well here."

Two strokes off the pace at 68 were Andy Bean, Jim Booros, Cal Peete, Mike Nicolette, club pro Steve Benson and two members of the European Ryder Cup team, Nick Faldo and Mark James.

Ray Floyd, who has won this title the last two years, could do no better than a 71. Lee Trevino, who has not made a cut this season, had a 75 the left him well back in the pack and in danger of failing to qualify for the final two rounds.

Stadler missed only two fairways in the ideal playing conditions "and that's exceptional for me."

One of those missed fairways was on the 18th, which

This Is Stadler's Week

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Craig Stadler sees a pattern in his play this year.

"Every other week I've scored well. And," he added with a smile peeking from beneath his bushy moustache, "this is one of those weeks."

Stadler, who has established himself over the last two seasons as one of golf's more proficient performers, had just completed a 6-under-par 66 that gave him a one-shot lead over Jack Nicklaus, Bob by Wadkins and longshot Eric Batten in Thursday's first round of the $300,000 Doral-Eastern Open.

The record supports his view of the pattern. On alternate weeks he's finished first (at Tucson), 13th and second (in the Crosby). On the off weeks, he's missed the cut, finished 31st and 21st.

"I've played well all year," said the man called "The Walrus" by his fellow tourists. "It's just that sometimes I haven't scored as well as other times."

Stadler, winner of more than $200,000 in both the 1980 and 1981 seasons, is off to his best start ever.

"I'm off to a very good start," said Stadler, who has won more than $97,000 already this year. "I'm more consistent than I've ever been. And I see no reason why it shouldn't continue."

set up his only bogey of the day.

He dropped a pair of 40 foot birdie putts, one on the 15th which touched off a string of three consecutive birdies that gave him the lead.

Three Pros Hit Identical Rounds

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Janet Coles battled her nerves. Lynn Stroney was leery of the greens and Ayako Okamoto was confused with the whole course.

But all three pro women golfers somehow managed for fire identical 2-under-par rounds of 70 Thursday to share the first-round lead in the $125,000 LPGA Arizona Copper Classic.

"I was quite nervous at the first tee," said Coles, a Carmel, Calif., native who was making her first start of the year. "I didn't settle down until about the 10th hole."

"You can hit it to the pin in Florida," said Stroney of Gerard, Ohio. "Here, you have to lay it up quite a bit. My caddy helped me know which greens to go for."

Okamoto, a Tokyo resident, said it took her a while to get accustomed to the par-72, 6,206-yard Randolph North municipal course.

Beth Daniel, winner of last week's LPGA event at Sarasota, Fla., also overcame an erratic start and died three of the last four holes to finish at 71 — one stroke off the pace.

Daniel was joined by Amy Alcott, tour rookie Patti Rizzo, Barbara Moyness and amateur Nancy Tomich — a junior at the University of Arizona — plus Japanese golfers Tatsuko Ohsako and Yuko Moriguchi.

Leading money winner Hollis Stacy was tied with seven other golfers at even par, two strokes off the lead. Meanwhile, defending champion Nancy Lopez-Melton fired a 2-over-par 74 after being 4-over after 15 holes.

HEALTH Embarrassed by acne

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Can you please tell me why teenagers get pimples? I am a 19-year-old male with pimples. I am trying to get rid of them but they will not go away. The doctor gave me some cream. It did not help. I am very disgusted with pimples and oily skin. I've had this problem since I was 17. That is two years of embarrassing acne.

DEAR READER - About 90 percent of males and almost as many females develop acne when they enter the teen years, or before. It coincides with sexual maturation. The sex hormones literally make the skin more juicy. The sebaceous glands in your skin are oil glands. They produce sebum, which is nature's own skin moisturizer. There may be nearly 6,000 of these small sebaceous glands per square inch of skin.

The sebum may form a plug in the opening of the gland which you call black heads or white heads, depending upon whether they are pigmented or not. These are beneath the surface and cannot simply be washed off with soap and water. Soaking the skin helps soften them so they will be extruded easily but the black heads are not dirt as some people erroneously think and do not mean a person is not washing adequately.

In some instances the sebum is broken down by bacteria living beneath the surface of the skin within the opening to the glands. The broken down fatty material is irritating to the skin and causes the reddened inflammation that you may have experienced.

The approach to treating acne then is to help cut down or eliminate the excess oily sebum formation. Washing or soaking the skin with a warm cloth twice a day helps - more often if oil accumulates. Antibiotics may be given to kill the bacteria, preventing the breakdown of sebum and the subsequent red pustules. And peeling agents may be used on the surface of the skin to peel off the outer layers and permit the sebum to escape naturally. These are vitamin A acid (not vitamin A pills) which is tretinoin marketed as Retin-A. The creamy salve is not so good as it adds to the greasy problem but there is a gel product that works better.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like to know what platelets in the blood are. I always have blood counts taken. What causes them? Is it what I eat? What should I eat and what can I do? Is it serious? I'm 86 years old.

DEAR READER - Sometimes we doctors forget that our patients don't always speak our language. Be glad you have platelets. All healthy people do. They are formed by your bone marrow just as other blood cells are. The tiny cells are essential to your blood clotting mechanism.

When the wall of a blood vessel is injured the platelets clump together to form a vascular plug to prevent bleeding. Some medicines used to prevent blood clotting as in heart attacks and strokes have their effect by preventing this clumping or stickiness of the platelets.

Without platelets you cannot form a normal blood clot and there is an increased tendency to bleed. You should have from 150,000 to 350,000 in each ml of blood or about three to four times that number per teaspoon of blood.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Creosote from chimney
By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - My wood furnace leaves a creosote buildup on the top of my chimney. The creosote runs onto the vinyl siding and leaves a bad stain that cannot be removed. I have tried oven cleaner, gas, soapy water, laundry detergent, etc. Do you know of anything that will remove this stain? - DAVID

DEAR DAVID - Unfortunately, if the stain is an old one, it may be almost impossible to remove. You certainly seem to have tried a number of cleaners. Have you tried turpentine? It's fairly effective in removing fresh creosote stains and should be safe for use on your vinyl siding. Frequent cleaning of the chimney before the creosote builds up to such a point may be your only answer.

Also, the formation of creosote can be minimized by keeping your furnace working as efficiently as possible. Smoldering fires, the burning of unseasoned or soft wood and incompletely burned wood all contribute to an excess production of creosote. I'd suggest having a furnace expert check out your system to make sure it's not compounding your problem with inefficient operation. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - To remove wrinkles from a foam-backed plastic tablecloth, I wet the cloth thoroughly with a sponge, then put it in the clothes dryer for a few minutes. It came out completely wrinkle-free!

To clean hair brushes and combs, I soak them in a mixture of water and ammonia.

I keep brown sugar soft for months in a large plastic margarine container. - MRS. B.M.W.

DEAR POLLY - Here's a Pointer for those who take milk for lunch to work or school. Mix dry milk double-strength in a covered container or jar, then add several ice cubes. Also add a little fresh milk for good flavor. By lunchtime the ice cubes will have melted, diluting the milk to normal strength while keeping it nice and cold. - RUTH

DEAR POLLY - Here's an easy way to change the color of white or light-colored fresh flowers. Mix food coloring in warm water and put the cut stems of flowers in this solution overnight. By morning, you should have nicely variegated colored flowers. - ETHEL

Nylon, that test tube combination of coal, air and water, was the first synthetic to achieve commercial success. It was first produced in 1928 and introduced to the public in 1940 in the form of hosiery.

Can you imagine your favorite brand dressed up in a food club or topco?

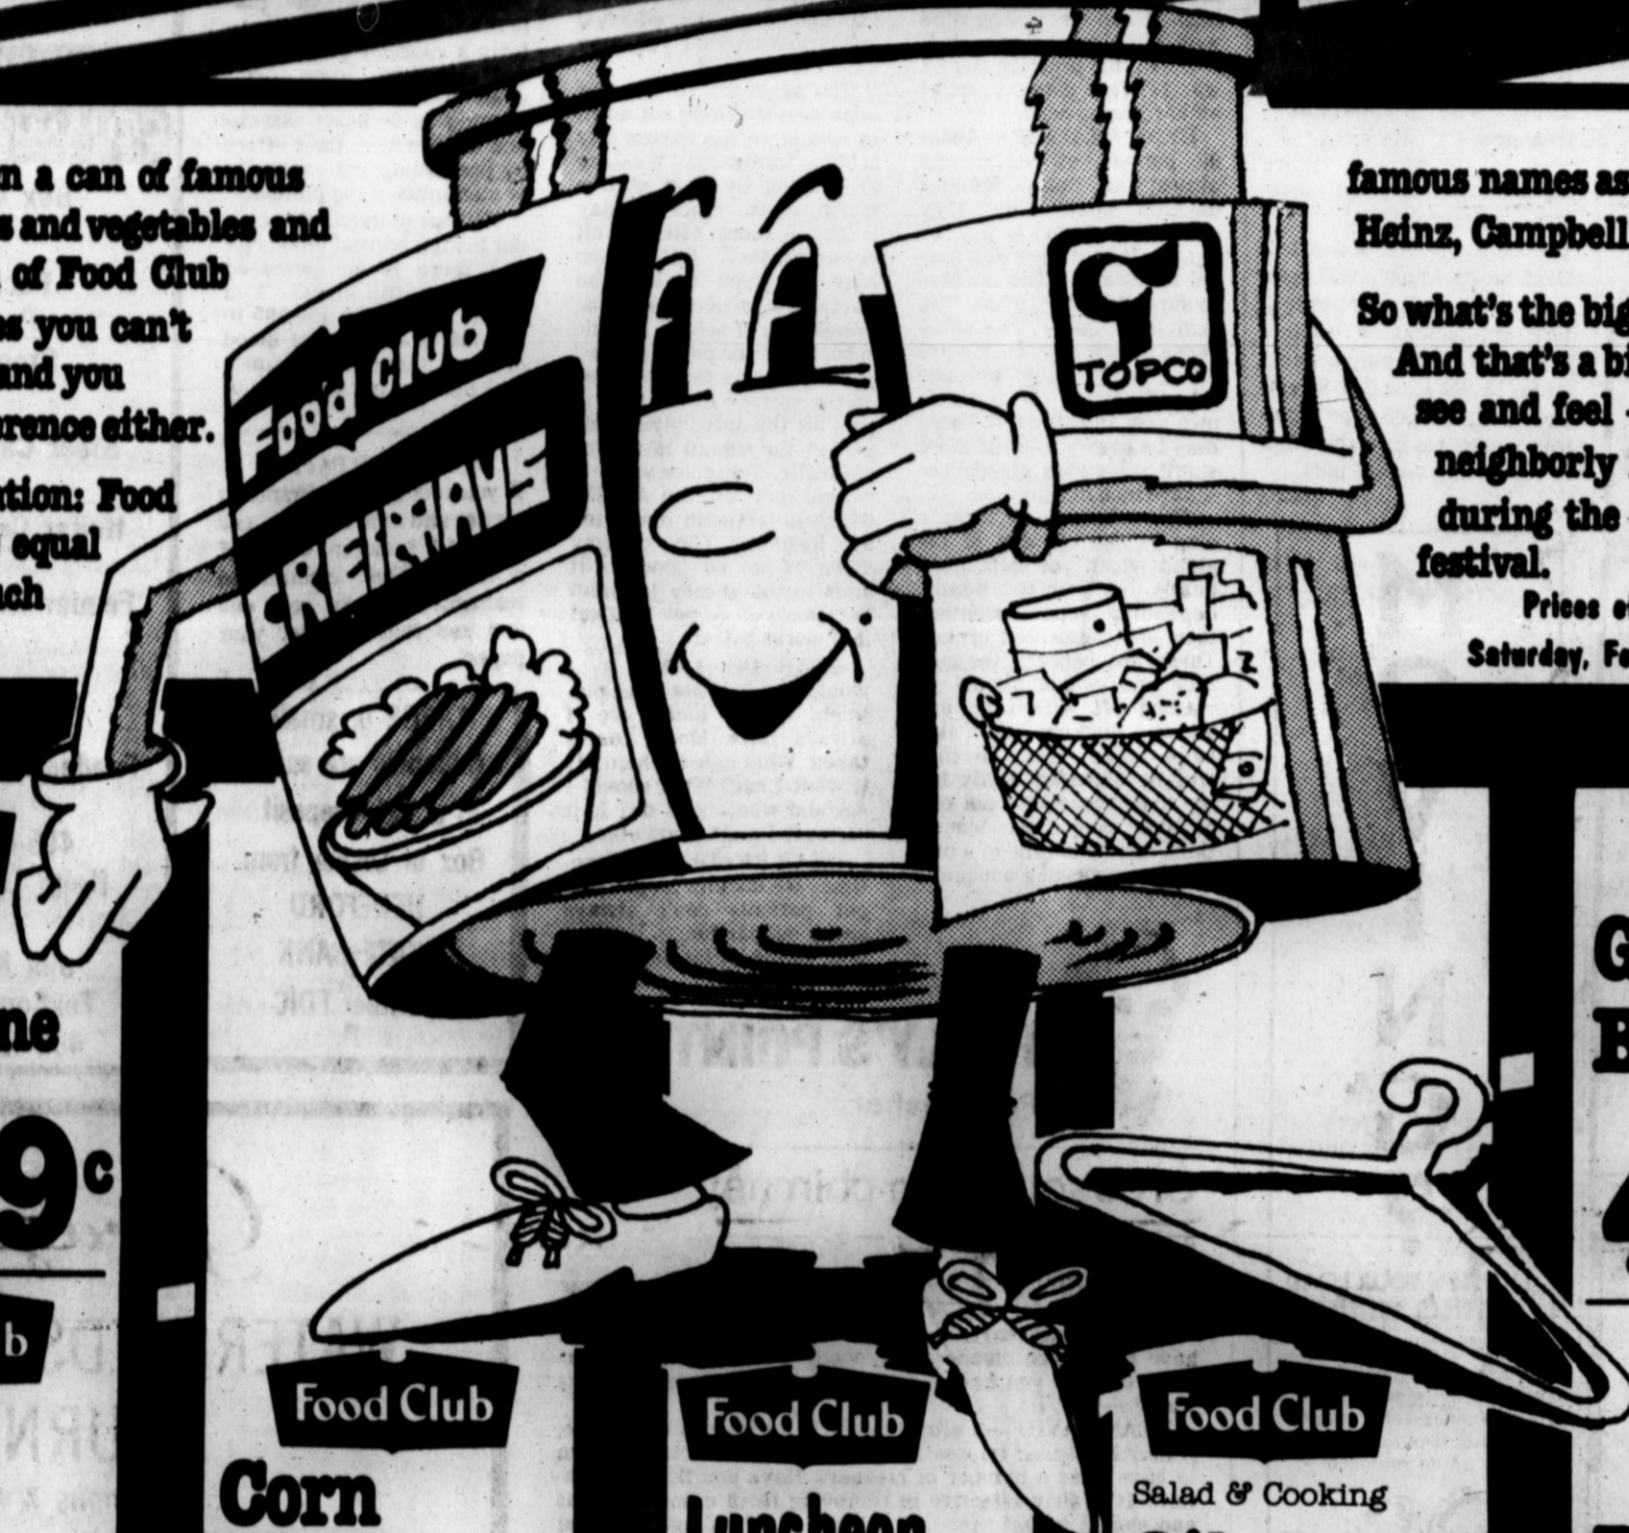

When you open a can of famous name brand fruits and vegetables and compare it to a can of Food Club fruits and vegetables you can't see any difference - and you won't taste any difference either.

The simple explanation: Food Club and Topco are equal in quality to such famous names as Libby, Del Monte, Heinz, Campbell, etc.

So what's the big difference? The price! And that's a big difference you can see and feel - especially now at your neighborly Furr's Super Markets during the Food Club low price festival.
