Pollution . . .

Continued From Page One of desilting is dredging, which is very expensive. An article in the April, 1967, issue of Field and Stream magazine dealt solely with the problem of pollution by silt. "An idea of the sheer size of the problem can be gleaned from two appalling statistics: the U. S. Soil Conservation Service estimates that 737 million acres of land in rural America are susceptible to erosion. And studies in the Potomac Basin watershed have proved that as little as one square mile of misused land can dump 2,400 tons of silt in waterways per year."

Area farmers today practice methods which not only prevent erosion, but retain much of the rain water which falls. Heavy runoffs, and there have been many since 1951, flick aside the conservation methods with little trouble to carry the soil into the creek. The article explains the result. "As long as the water runs swiftly the soil remains in suspension, but when the stream's pace slows, the sediment it carries silt to the bottom. There it slowly accumulates. Among the first casualties are the micro organisms that are the bottom rung in the marvellously complex economy of nature. Denied sunlight by the murky, silt-stained water, the creatures perish, and ultimately another stream is lost to fishermen."

"The Yearbook of Agriculture 1955" also explains the result of silt. "Silty waters require treatment before they can be used for domestic consumption and for most industrial purposes. The suspended matter cuts down the penetration of light on which plants depend for photosynthesis and the stimulation of growth and release of oxygen. The entire ecological balance — the natural beneficial inter-relationship — is upset for the plant and animal life that live in or on the silty waters."

All of the materials causing pollution slowly build up the chemicals in the reservoir. Increased numbers of algae and bacteria use up the oxygen of the water, finally killing the fish. Rough fish, such as carp and goldfish, require less oxygen than the game fish, and any factor which is detrimental to the game fish is a blessing to the carp.

Jack Crabtree, biologist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, and his crew took gill net seine samples from the lake on Oct. 27, 1966. Of the per cent by weight, 90.17 per cent were undesirable fish and 9.83 per cent were desirable. By count, only 17 1/2 per cent were desirable and 82 1/2 per cent were undesirable and 9.13 per cent were undesirable.

On May 10 of this year, samples again were taken. By weight, 95.17 per cent of the fish were undesirable and 4.83 per cent were desirable. By count, 90.87 per cent were undesirable. Could it be that Buffalo Lake will be used as a precedent for HEREFORD WEEKEND — Exchange students from throughout the Southwest were guests last weekend in Hereford as their American Field Service trip throughout the United States made a stop here en route to Washington D.C. before departing for their homelands. The students stayed in Hereford homes Saturday evening, attended "Texas" at Palo Duro Canyon Sunday night and then left by bus on Monday.

Drouth . . .

Continued From Page One Carthel, watched a tornado come 13 miles south and west as it made a futile attempt to reach ground Sunday night. Mrs. McBroom said the moisture benefited the row crops in that area, but delayed those still harvesting wheat. A total of 1.30 was measured during the thundershowers on the Leo Witkowski farm southeast of Hereford. Over seven inches fell there during June. Mrs. Witkowski said her husband had been unable to farm since Monday.

Program, Picnic Are Observance At Westway

Westway residents, gathered at the Baptist church in that community, had a picnic along with a patriotic program in conjunction with Fourth of July festivities throughout the area Tuesday. Main speaker on the program, attended by about 40 area residents, was Tom Harkey, business manager for the Hereford school system. Harkey told the group that one of the most important components of patriotism and Americanism is activism in furthering this spirit in the youth of the nation.

Others on the afternoon program were the Rev. James Martin, invocation; Danette Reed, Olenda Baird and Tammy Martin, pledge of allegiance. The Star Spangled Banner, Let There Be Peace, Battle Hymn, God Bless America, America, God of Our Fathers and This Is My Country were musical selections presented by the Kneeknockers.

The distinction of being the world's southernmost municipality is debated between Argentina's Ushuaia (Population 3,900) and Chile's Puerto Williams (population 350), eight miles farther south. Argentinians concede Puerto Williams the title "southernmost town," and claim that Ushuaia is the "southernmost city."

Reports . . .

Continued From Page One Hansen said the latest runoff hit the lake about 3 p. m. Monday, coming from both creeks. Hansen stated that the survey indicated many possible sources of the pollution. "We're not pinpointing the feedlots, and the City of Hereford is not being blamed for all of the pollution either. There are a lot of problems and it will be quite a while before they are worked out." Hansen also said water just below the dam, located on the northeast end of the lake, shows some sign of clearing. The lake remains posted — off limits for bathing, swimming and skiing.

Lawn Research Offers Advances For Texas Yards

COLLEGE STATION — A Texas A&M University turfgrass research and education program

Reel . . .

Continued From Page One partment made comments. Jap Dickerson, chief of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, commented on the growth of volunteer fire service throughout the country and how it has sustained fire departments otherwise unable to hire professionals. Over 90 per cent of the fire departments throughout the country are volunteer, he said. Earl Phillips, former chief of the Hereford department and former president of the State Firemen's and Firemarshals' association, said that the Hereford department had a combined total of 465 years of fire service to the city.

City commissioner D. C. Kinsey told the small group gathered for the ceremony of the gratitude the city felt for "the sacrificial services to our city" that the volunteer fire department has borne; County Judge H. D. "Hank" Williams pointed out the cooperation of city and county governments in past years in saving property.

Only one thing (besides a hose) is lacking on the reel; it once had lanterns. Members of the committee hope to have that oversight corrected soon.

is assisting the already "big business" of turf. "And this big business is becoming recognized," Dr. George G. McBee, assistant professor of soil and crop sciences at Texas A&M University, says. "Maintenance costs alone exceed $211 million a year in the industry."

A look at home lawns, schools, athletic fields, parks, golf courses, and other recreation areas will give some indication of why the industry is growing. Highway rights-of-way offer an area of expansion as new programs of beautification are undertaken. Recreation facilities alone are an ever-expanding area of development, McBee points out.

Americans each year are discovering new vistas of recreation at local, county, state, and national park areas. With recreational interests and demands on the rise, the turfgrass industry is rapidly growing in this one area. With the rise of this industry, Texas A&M has initiated a three point program of research student instruction, and adult education, McBee says.

Modern laboratories and field research plots have been acquired in order to conduct both basic and applied research. A strain of bermudagrass suitable for use under certain conditions has been discovered to be more tolerant of lowlight. Research in herbicides, new varieties, and turf management is conducted to aid the turf grower in solving problems he may encounter.

Texas A&M offers three degrees, ranging from a B. S. to Ph. D. to its students. For the graduates who plan a professional career in the turf industry, job openings exceed the available manpower.

The adult education program includes a field day and conference held annually on the Texas A&M University campus. The Turf Field Day will be conducted July 11 with the Texas Turfgrass Conference scheduled for December. Extension Service specialists aid the program by reaching out into the state with programs on turf management.

The objective of this research and education program, says McBee, is to help growers produce a beautiful turf with a minimum of time and money. McBee says.

KARATE WITH A RULER. AUCKLAND — Following a trail of splintered rulers and pencils, the headmasters of two Invercargill schools found a startling cause. Their tough little 5 and 6-year-old tots were practicing karate, the Japanese form of self-defense.

The children's interest had been sparked by a television program. After practicing karate chops on their pencils and rulers, some had started on their schoolmates. Although they did not cause any injuries, there were plenty of tears.

Employers Pleased With Initial Results Of NYC

By LARRY FUHRMANN
Staff Writer

Neighborhood Youth Corps, a federal project instigated this past year in Hereford, has scored initial successes in its utilization in various government and non-profit agencies.

Youths have been employed by Deaf Smith County, the City of Hereford, Hereford Independent Schools, and King's Manor. Reports from these agencies show that in most cases, youngsters have responded well to their employment opportunity.

"The program is going real fine — much better than I had anticipated," said Tom Harkey, business manager for the school system. Harkey pointed out that more youngsters are available than positions, thus giving employers greater selectivity. There are some 20-30 youngsters now on a waiting list for enrollment in the program, which has a capacity of 25.

Harkey's positive report was from the county and King's Manor.

Few have left; those who have were able to obtain jobs elsewhere, Harkey said.

Work done by the NYC enrollees has been above par — "They've made real good hands," Harkey said. He has received positive reports from all his custodians at the eight different schools where NYC'ers are employed. Jobs done by the youngsters would either have to go ignored completely or would have to be done on a "hit and miss" basis, Harkey said, explaining that school budget funds were not enough to employ help to do all work that exists on the campuses in Hereford.

Biggest example of this would be Whiteface Stadium, where a massive scraping and painting job would have to be done by custodians taken off regular duties at their own schools. The athletic field itself is now in good shape, thanks to the extra help available, saving the schools on repainting and extensive maintenance costs later. Other projects have included pouring a badly-needed sidewalk at Aikman Elementary, landscaping, and small paint jobs at the various campuses. The students work a maximum of 28 hours during the week in summer months, a maximum of 8-10 during the school term.

The teens enrolled, employers say, have had positive working attitudes and apparently enjoy their jobs. Harkey points out the fact that custodial experience done by the youngsters now could land them better job-part-time jobs, to go ahead and put them through school. The need for such labor is great, Harkey said, claiming that "we can hire them" when they have obtained sufficient experience.

Other programs of the schools which involve scholastic-work cooperation are also available to students. Enrollment predictions at this stage of the game indicate that vocational classes should be filled to near capacity but nothing definite can be ascertained until the school term begins. Distributive education and industrial cooperative training will be available to those students desiring to combine work-study schedules. The size of these programs will probably depend on the number of employers available, a check with the schools indicated.

Reports from Washington claim the Neighborhood Youth Corps to be a success; statistical studies indicate that 59 per cent of ex-enrollees in NYC were working or in school or training when contacted 5 to 15 months after they left the corps' out-of-school projects. These youngsters, according to the Secretary of Labor, W. Willard Wirtz, were from the ranks of high-school dropouts and the "hard-core" unemployed. The report to the labor department indicated that the longer an enrollee stayed in NYC, the more likely he was to have a full-time job when interviewed, and the less likely he was to be in trouble with the law.

Youngsters in NYC, although benefitting directly the agencies where they are employed, are paid $1.25 an hour by the federal government. Cost to participating agencies is in administration.

Argen Draper Attends Copfab In Dallas

Mrs. Argen Draper, home demonstration agent, represented Deaf Smith County June 26-30 at the 58th annual meeting of the American Home Economics Association in Dallas.

The home economist was among 5,000 AHEA members, who worked under the conference theme, "Focus on Interaction." Sessions were held at Dallas' Memorial Auditorium and Statler Hilton Hotel. They gave participants the opportunity to exchange information, discuss new findings and plan constructive programs in research extension, the teaching profession, legislation, consumer interest and careers.

A dinner meeting of approximately 400 Extension home economists from over the nation highlighted the week's activities June 26 at the Baker Hotel. There the group studied participation in Memorial Auditorium addressed the group.

A special session Tuesday brought Extension home economists together again. At this time the group studied particular problems and needs of young families and considered contributions Extension home economists could make at this stage of the family life cycle.

An added convention attraction in Memoria Auditorium featured hundreds of exhibits, displaying new products, special features and samples of products of interest to home economists.

Representing the Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, as delegates were Margaret Bracher, District 9 home demonstration agent;

Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, specialist in consumer marketing; Mrs. Aubrey W. Russell, District 2 home demonstration agent; and Mrs. Florence W. Low, head of Texas' home economics program and past president of the national organization.

Mrs. Draper was a voting delegate to the convention.

SECRETARY OF THE MONTH — Jean Kennedy, vice in the courthouse, spends her off hours with daughter Kathy, almost three.

Secretary of the Month

Jean Kennedy's Job Is One With Three Bosses

Extension Service secretary Jean Kennedy's enthusiasm in a busy county office has won her the title "Secretary of the Month" for July. The contest is sponsored by the Hereford Brand.

Jean works in the courthouse office along with the home demonstration agent and assistant agent and county agricultural agent. She has been employed in the office for almost two years.

Her two years have brought her the earnest approval of her employers, who voice comments that she is really "the" secretary.

Jean is a native Hereford girl, graduating from Hereford High School in 1960. She then attended Draughon's Business College in Amarillo before returning to Hereford two years ago.

Although work takes the biggest part of her time, Jean gets to spend her relaxing hours with her three-year-old daughter, Kathy, who Jean calls a "hobby." She enjoys cooking out and sewing, and she also likes to bowl. Most important of her outside interests, Jean says, is an active participation in the National Secretaries Association.

"DIRTY FORTNIGHT"
AUCKLAND, N. Z. (AP) — Kawerau had an anti-litter campaign which misfired. Kawerau, population 5768, is a proud little town in the timber milling and pulp and paper-making country in the center of New Zealand's North Island. To impress upon shoppers just how much rubbish they were scattering along the streets the borough council decided to hold a "dirty fortnight". In that time the council staff would empty the litter baskets but would not sweep the streets. Mayor Roy Stoneham expected that by the end of the two weeks the streets would be knee deep in rubbish and shoppers would have learned their lesson. But it did NOT work out that way. When the fortnight ended the streets were cleaner than at the beginning. Right from the start people made a point of using the litter baskets. And if the odd person sometimes forgot, there always seemed to be someone else right behind who did the job for him. By the time the big cleanup day planned as the climax to the fortnight came around there was hardly a thing to clean up. But a ceremonial hosing and sweeping of the streets went ahead just the same. Although Kawerau admits its "dirty fortnight" was a clean flop, there is no doubt that its people got the message.

FAMILY REUNION — Easter Community House was the meeting place for members of the A. J. Self family over the Fourth of July. A covered dish dinner and a day of visiting brought together several of the children, grandchildren and other relatives. Coming the farthest was Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Self and Children of Maricopa, Ariz. Shown are random shots of the families and friends.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS — The new vocational building of Hereford High School is rapidly shaping up as work is being done inside. The project is expected to be completed by the start of the next school term.

Championships In State Don't Run In Cycles

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Time was that a school failing to repeat as state football champion was considered something of a fluke in the first place.

How things change. Now a school that could win two in a row would be an absolute sensation.

Two years in succession, all four champions in the Texas schoolboy football race have been new compared with the preceding year.

Winning streaks are getting shorter, too. Sweeny and Sonora, winners of the Class AA and Class A titled respectively, each has a 14-0 record and that's tops in the state. Sonora has won 25 of its last 26.

San Angelo, the Class AAAA king, has only a five-game skein working. The Bobcats got beat by Odessa Permian inside the district and managed to make the playoffs by the margin of only a half-game.

Bridge City, the Class AA champion, did better. It can boast a 12-game streak.

All this points to the conclusion that Texas schoolboy football is the most competitive it ever has been. The growth in numbers and advances in coaching are the reasons for the overall strength.

But if you think competition has been tough consider the season that comes up next fall. There will be more than 1,000 teams, including better than 30 Negro schools that enter the University Interscholastic League race under the integration program.

It would not be surprising to see a Negro school grab off one of the championships sometime soon, maybe this year.

Texas once was the locale of the nation's greatest winners. From 1954 to 1957 Abilene took 49 in a row to set a national record.

From 1958 to 1962 Pflugerville captured 55 in succession to replace Abilene as the national record-setter.

Built Pflugerville's mark was wiped out two years ago and the record now is held by a Missouri team, Jefferson City. It had won 71 in a row when it met defeat in October of 1966.

So the upturn in competition will work against Texas from a national standpoint because it now appears it'll be a cold day in August before a school of this state can expect to run its winning streak to 72 games.

But on the other hand it will give the state prestige from the standpoint of strength of its football. Two years in a row now Texas has claimed to be the nation's best through victories in the Big 33 and Oil Bowl all-star game.

The Texans now appear to be greatly superior to Pennsylvania, as Big 33 results will indicate, and ahead of Oklahoma if only slightly, as the Oil Bowl game will show.

Dynasties though seem to be a thing of the past. Fourteen-game streaks lack much of indicating a dynasty.

It has been three years since any team repeated with the title in Class AAAA, five since a team turned the trick in AAA, 10 since this came about in AA and five since it happened in Class A.

Prospects are only fair that anybody can do it this fall with Sonora probably the best pros-

J.L. Riders Hold 1st Competition

The J. L. Riders Motorcycle Club of Hereford held their first competitive event Sunday afternoon at Veterans Park with 9 persons participating.

The contest was a time run race, the object of the race being to be able to follow a trail which is marked with lime. There were 5 boxes and in each one was a card in an envelope, which could not be opened until the end of the race.

Topping the contestants in the big motors class was Ronald Ott. Kenny Rogers took home the first place trophy in the smaller motors class and Clay Lindsey was awarded a $5 prize for the best poker hand.

Trophies to the winners were presented by Mrs. Mabel Walters of Plainview.

They were donated by Cardinal House of Kawasaki of Hereford.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Love gave a dinner after the race in their home for the club members, families and girl friends. The dinner served as a farewell event as the club's president, Gary McPherson, leaves today for the Army.

Mrs. Love, an active member of the club, is head of the membership committee. She and her husband have let it be known that their home is open at any time for these boys and their families.

Local Postal Tab Is Up 10 Percent

The Hereford Post Office had an increase in gross income of 10 per cent during the past fiscal year, figures compiled by Postmaster Grady Nolan show.

For the fiscal year 1966, the department had a total income of $215,935.70, as compared to a total of $237,549.05 for 1967. The difference was $21,613.35. Stamp sales, the biggest income taker for the post office, jumped from $124,428 in 1966, to $127,394 in 1967 — a difference of $2,966.

Other figures for the 1967 fiscal year include Patron Postage Meters, $41,662, an increase of $3,468; Post Office Postage Me-

Sermon Sunday Morning
July 9, 1967 at 10:25

GENE FOOKS For an outline for the sermon this Lord's Day a statement will be employed that has been used by Christians since the beginning of the last century.

The statement is:

"In Matters of Faith, (Unity) Obedience;
In Matters of Opinion, (Liberty) Tolerance;
In Matters of Method, Judgment;
In All Things, Love."

For the Sunday Evening Lesson at 6 o'clock a "Sermon in Song" is planned.

Miss Beach, Formerly Of Hereford, Married

Mr. and Mrs. Timmie Scott Parker are at home at 1876 S. Pennsylvania, Denver, after a honeymoon weekend in the Rocky Mountains following their recent marriage at the Church of Christ in Englewood, Colo.

The bride was Miss Patricia Ann Beach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Beach of Englewood, former Hereford residents. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parker of Rapid City, S. D.

Keith Mitchell, minister, conducted the double ring ceremony in a setting of white and lilac flowers and ribbon bows with candelabra. A vocal sextet sang pre-nuptial selections, the marches and, as the ceremony ended, Whither Thou Goest.

Miss Sheryl Beach was her sister's maid of honor, Miss Donna Headley the bridesmaid. They were dressed alike in lilac brocade, empire style in street length, with matching eye-length veils. Their bouquets were pendants of lavender gladiolas.

Another sister of the bride, Miss Dorothy Beach, wore deep purple linen with matching veil as she and Bobby Norris lighted the candles. Darla Majors, flower girl, had a dress of the same material with lavender lace yoke, and a headband of matching carnations.

Richard Parker of Rapid City, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, John Rich of Walden, Colo., the groomsmen, Dean Beach of Pueblo and Elmo Majors of Rock Springs, Wyo., the ushers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white brocade, train, and wore a shoulder veil of illusion held by a pearl-encrusted tulle flower.

As an heirloom piece she carried a handkerchief made by her great-grandmother. Her flowers were lavender orchids surrounded by white sweetheart roses.

Church Meet Is Planned By Rainbows

Attendance of Hereford Rainbow Girls, in a body, at First Methodist Church Sunday will be an observance of the birthday of the order's founder, Mark Sexson, members decided at their meeting Monday evening at Masonic Hall.

All members of the order here are asked to meet at 10:45 a. m. at the church to sit together for the morning service. Rainbow Girls customarily hold a special observance of Sexson's birthday, which falls on July 8.

Other plans made at the Monday session were for serving homemade ice cream and cake to Masonic Lodge members after a meeting July 10, as a gesture of appreciation for help given by the Masons in arranging a recent trip for local Rainbow Girls to the Texas Grand Assembly in San Antonio.

Nitrogen Gains As Fertilizer

COLLEGE STATION — Nitrogen solutions, as sources of plant nutrients, are being used in larger amounts each year in Texas. Solutions, explains C. D. Welch, Extension soil chemist at Texas A&M University, can be quickly applied with a minimum of labor because they are moved by pumps or by gravity.

Nitrogen solutions, adds Welch are grouped into high, low and non-pressure categories. The high and low pressure solutions contain free ammonia and should be applied below the soil surface to reduce ammonia losses.

Non-pressure solutions contain no free ammonia but are usually mixtures of urea and ammonium nitrate, says the chemist. They are not subject to vaporization losses as are pressurized solutions. However, these materials will undergo chemical changes when applied to the soil, forming ammonia compounds that may result in losses when applied to the surface. Soil temperature and moisture conditions at the time of application largely determine these losses, says Welch.

Minimum ammonia losses can be expected when non-pressure solutions are applied to soils of low temperature and high moisture. This accounts for the fact that topdressing of winter pastures with solutions is dressing with solid materials, says Welch. But topdressing summer pastures with solutions is usually less effective than results from the use of solid materials, he adds. Therefore, Welch suggests that non-pressure solutions be applied below the soil surface application of non-pressure materials would be highest during these periods.

Suggestions For Safe Vacation Fun Are Given

As many residents of Deaf Smith County overhaul fishing tackle and prepare camping equipment for a vacation outdoors, the American Red Cross points out some ways to have safe fun on camping trips.

"The hazards are numerous and varied," declares Curtis Trawick, First Aid Chairman of the local Red Cross Chapter. "But if proper precautions are taken, they can be avoided. Vacation safety precautions fall into three categories — on the road, in camp, and in, on, and around the water."

For safety on the road, Red Cross experts suggest these precautions:

Make sure your car is in good condition — that its brakes, lights, signal devices, windshield wipers, exhaust systems, and steering mechanism are working properly and that all tires, including the spare are in good condition.

Keep a complete first aid kit in your car, and know how to use it.

Carry flares so that in case of a flat or your car breaks down you can use them to warn oncoming drivers.

Pack the trunk so that the jack, its handle, and the spare tire are readily accessible. Pack the interior of the car so that the driver has a clear view from rear and sides as well as the front.

Have seat belts for all passengers and keep them fastened while traveling.

If you are the only driver, take a break from the road every two hours or so to keep alert. Do not stay behind the wheel for hours and become overtired.

Drive defensively. Make allowances for the unpredictable acts of drivers less careful than you.

After traveling over bumpy and rocky roads, check all tires for damage before returning to turnpike speeds.

These suggestions are offered to campers:

Select a campsite away from steep embankments and cliffs that could prove a temptation and danger to small children.

Choose a place that offers some protection from high winds in the event of a severe storm. Do not pitch tents near old trees that might blow down in a storm.

Check the campsite for deep holes that might prove dangerous to children.

Show your children how to identify poisonous plants and point out their dangers.

Make sure the drinking water is safe. Tap water in state and national parks is safe and is usually so marked. Lakes and streams in many areas are polluted.

Caution your children against eating unidentified berries and mushrooms or toadstools that look edible but may be poisonous.

Wear clothing suitable for the locale, both land and water. Wear trousers or sturdy leg covering for hiking in the brush. Adjust slowly to the sun and avoid overexposure.

Carry a good insect repellent. Learn from someone native to the area what dangers there are from animals and venomous snakes.

Keep garbage in a tight-lidded container as a deterrent against animal prowlers and stinging insects.

When you leave a campfire, douse it thoroughly with water, cover it with earth, and make sure it is out.

Use charcoal grills only in well ventilated places. When charcoal is burned in a closed tent or cave, there is danger of asphyxiation from carbon monoxide.

Keep knives and axes sheathed and in a safe place when they are not in use. For efficiency they should be sharp. For safety's sake, they should never be left lying around unguarded. When using a sharp tool, always cut away from you.

Nonperishable foods are best for a camping trip, even if you carry your own refrigeration. Some perishable foods will spoil a few hours after their removal from a cooler.

Here are Red Cross Water safety tips given by Mrs. Clyde Rush, water safety chairman for Deaf Smith County:

Always swim with at least one other person, never alone.

Swim only in a safe area, marked for swimming. Every member of a camping family should know how to swim if the camp is pitched near water.

Whenever children swim, they should be supervised by an able adult swimmer.

Before diving, check for depth and rocks and other obstruction. Wait at least an hour after eating before swimming.

Never swim when overtired — and stop swimming before you become overtired.

Weak swimmers should never rely on toys, inner tubes, and other inflated devices. They can slip away easily.

If a swimmer is in trouble, try to reach him with a buoy, line, pole or boat. Enter the water yourself only as a last resort and only if you have the training and ability to effect a rescue.

On the water, as in driving a car, there are many "Rules of the Road." They are based on common sense and good manners, like keeping to the right of an approaching boat, and giving the right of way to a boat approaching from the right or one you are overtaking.

Equip your boat with the basic safety items — anchor, cars, boathook, extra line, a pump or bailer, fire extinguisher, first aid kit, and tool kit. Charts of the area, a compass, and a small transistor radio for receiving weather reports are other essentials.

Have a Coast Guard-approved life jacket on board for every passenger. Wear jackets at all times on or around the water.

Don't overload your boat. Keep the number of passengers within safe limits for the boat. Don't overpower your boat.

If your boat capsizes, don't swim away from it unless it is drifting into danger or the water is extremely cold. Most boats will float even when filled with water.

"If you will follow these rules this summer," Mrs. Rush concluded, "you'll have a fine time, and look forward to years of pleasant camping in the future. And remember that Red Cross courses in first aid, small craft, and water safety are available to you. Take the time and learn how to avoid accidents and what to do should accidents occur."

Washington Report

From Congressman
BOB PRICE 18TH DISTRICT, TEXAS
1323 LONGWORTH OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C. • 225-5766

This week's Report from Washington is the joint effort of two young men student interns in my office. One of them, Ken Starr of San Antonio, is a student here at George Washington University and worked part-time during the spring semester.

The other, Lyn McClellan of Gruver, is a student at Texas Tech and a full-time summer intern.

Ken has enrolled for a summer course at Harvard University but before he left, I suggested that he and Lyn write their impressions of a Congressional office. Following is their unedited report:

FROM THE BOTTOM UP
Working in a Congressman's office for a short time has already proved to be an interesting and worthwhile experience. Our view of a Congressman and his work has been greatly changed due to this experience.

A first impression looking from the bottom of the office totem pole is the different sense of responsibility that exists in a Congressional office. Rather than a spirit of clock-watching until 6 p. m. rolls around, there prevails a feeling of working for a cause — working for a man because of what he is and what he stands for and believes in. Then, there is the sense that your job is to serve over 400,000 people by helping them in ways such as working through the maze of red tape when dealing with the bureaucracy. Many of the tasks aren't earth-shaking and never find their way into the headlines, but each one contributes to serving the needs of the folks at home. Attempting to get mail to a captured pilot in North Viet Nam; working with Panhandle boys serving in the armed forces to make their tours of duty away from home a little brighter; securing a wheel-chair for a wounded veteran or a "Population Clock" from the Census Bureau for a fair — all these are parts of the overall responsibility to serve people as best you can.

Another impression concerns the job of U. S. Representative itself. Like all tasks carrying huge amounts of responsibility, it demands a special sort of person. Even from the vantage point of student assistant, it doesn't take long to discover how much a Congressman must give up of the small things we all take for granted. The Representative serves as a living example to people in the way he acts and speaks — he and his family live in a glass house where all can see. Also, the job demands great effort and sheer endurance. Congressional sessions that last until late evening or on into the early morning hours are not infrequent.

It seems to us that one of the biggest problems that faces a Congressman is determining the criteria for making his decisions. There may arise an issue that means he has to choose between what is best for the district and what is best for the country, and the choice is not an easy one to make. And then there are those times when a Congressman cannot conscientiously vote a particular way even though he knows that this is what is expected of him, for like all men, he is at some time called on to make an unpopular decision that he knows he must make if he is not to violate his conscience. To paraphrase Abraham Lincoln, one cannot do what he knows within himself to be right if his only concern is to flatter and please those around him. In short, the position of U. S. Representative is complex, exhausting, but always fascinating.

In the end, what the situation amounts to is a small, closely-knit group of people sharing a commitment. There is in the Congressional offices, as there is in all men, a need to find meaning in life — to feel that what you are working for will be of value. Not every person is able to discover a cure for disease or invent a system to make automobile driving safer, but everyone can make a contribution.

The office of a Congressman is a unique one and therefore has unique responsibilities. As an Oklahoma Congressman remarked recently, "There is not one day that passes that I do not have opportunities to do something for the good of mankind." Thus, the man in the halls of Congress has a unique responsibility to the people who elected him. Those who succeed in their jobs succeed in truly becoming "public servants."

18th Century Spanish City Found On Ranch

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Texas Christian University anthropologist, who stumbled on his own city — his own for historical study — is toiling in Baja California, happy at his treasure.

The anthropologist is Dr. William C. Massey, who has been a leading figure for some time in research about Indian life in Lower California both before and after the conquest by the Spaniards.

During his research, said Dr. Massey, he read documents about a city called Santa Ana. It no longer existed as a place where people resided.

"I kept asking about any old remains of a city. No one seemed to know about it," said the researcher.

"Finally a rancher pointed toward the site of some ruins on his ranch, I went over a hill and there it was," Dr. Massey related. This was in 1964.

"No one has excavated an 18th Century Spanish town in America before," he said before leaving for his summer work. "Here is one that no one has tampered with. It is a rare site of its kind."

Santa Ana was a mining town, documents show, and seemed to be the principal headquarters for many activities, although a town named Loreto was designated the capital for the entire territory of the western coast of the New World.

It was from Santa Ana that missionaries were sent out to such places now known as San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco in the United States.

But then it was found that the gold in Santa Ana wasn't as extensive as first thought, and it was abandoned about 1770 a quarter of a century after its founding.

The walls of most of the buildings are still there. Apparently there was housing for about 2,000 persons. Dr. Massey said, which is a large town even compared to settlements today in the lightly-populated peninsula.

A limited investigation in 1964 gave Dr. Massey a hint that Santa Ana may have roots deeper than documents suggest. The majority of the town was constructed at about the same time, but different, more primitive techniques showed up in the walls of the mission church.

This year's work will center largely on studying a small Baja California town established at about the same time but which continues to live. The residents still follow traditions and customs of colonial times.

"In other towns," he said, "even in those that have kept the customs of the past, there is difficulty separating what happened long ago from what happened more recently."

"But there's nothing mixed up in Santa Ana," he added. "It should be an excellent laboratory in which to learn about life in an old Spanish mining town set down in the New World."

Texas Cattlemen Take Initiative In Pollution

"Texas' fastest growing livestock industry has taken positive steps toward the control of run-off and other wastes," stated Dudley T. Campbell, Director of the Cattle Feeders Services of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association. Campbell appeared before the President's Federal Water Pollution Advisory Board, holding hearings in Houston last week.

"Cattle feeding is and will continue to be an important economic asset to Texas because of the available supplies of feed stuffs, cattle and growing demand, and preference for finished beef by consumers in Texas and across the nation," Campbell informed the Advisory Board.

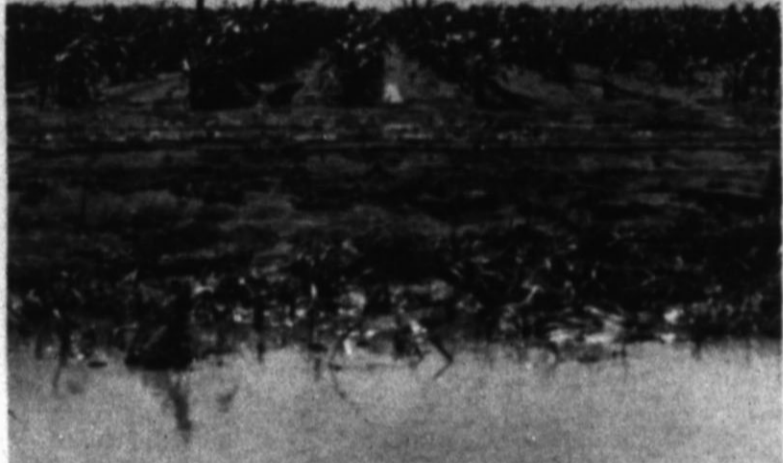

Since cattle feeding is a comparatively new industry for Texas, the industry is preparing guide lines of waste handling through a joint research project being carried out by Texas Technological College in Lubbock. Campbell pointed out the unique requirements in waste control peculiar to the arid and semiarid conditions of the high plains where the majority of the cattle are fed.

"The research now under way will give the cattle feeders in Texas a better insight in the necessary engineering and other requirements of a waste disposal system," Campbell said in submitting a detailed report to the special Pollution Committee. This report is also being sent to the industry for their study and review.

Accompanying Campbell to the Houston hearing was Don C. King, Fort Worth, secretary-general Manager of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, and Grady Shepard, Hale Center, chairman of the TSCRA Cattle Feeders Committee.

SECTION TWO

HEREFORD, TEXAS, 79045, THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1967

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

Praise, and lots of it, has been heaped on the Palo Duro Amphitheater musical, Texas, and maybe it isn't fitting that a dissenting voice should come from me, a loyal native of the Panhandle.

BUT THERE ARE phases of the canyon-bed extravaganza which are less than perfect, and it should do no harm to the well established show, now that its second season has opened with proper fanfare, to mention some of them.

This is no complaint of a dissatisfied customer; on the contrary, I plan to see Texas again this summer — and enjoy it thoroughly. Also, I strongly recommend it to kin and friends from other sections and urge visitors to see it.

It was late in the season before I was able to get to the amphitheater last year, and by that time so many rave reviews had appeared that I was probably expecting too much.

AFTER BEING GREATLY impressed by its forerunner of the 1965 season, Thundering Sounds of the West, and further impressed by the prestige of Paul Green's name, it's true my expectations were high. Trouble was, I found the best things about Texas were the same things that gave Thundering Sounds its impact — lighting and sound in a unique setting, stage effects on a stage that surely is like no other in the world, bouncy young singers and dancers who make time-tried western tunes sound fresh, the canyon itself at night.

That entirely leaves out the dramatization written by Green, whose reputation for fictionalized historical epics is bright all over the nation.

HIS STORY OF THE conflict between ranchers and "nesters" in pioneer West Texas is based on solid fact, but it does smack of that tired TV script on the same subject. From someone of Green's literary stature, you expect originality in the plot, and more than stock characters.

But the latter are all there — the bluff, rich old rancher, the poor but optimistic young homesteader, the pretty girl from the east, the shady lady with a heart of gold — the ones you find in any B-western movie. And they follow the same plot line.

Some actual persons are introduced. I'm not familiar enough with the history of Col. Goodnight to know whether or not the incident involving him is authentic.

HOWEVER, WHEN COMAN-CHE Chief Quannah Parker comes in with his aged father, Chief Nocona, no matter how moving the scene is, Texans in the audience are likely to notice a discrepancy.

Most of them are aware that Nocona was killed when Quannah was still a stripling, in the skirmish with Capt. Sul Ross' Ranger company in which Nocona's white wife, Cynthia Ann Parker, was recaptured from the Comanches who had taken her as a small child. That is too well-known a bit of Texas history to take liberties with.

It would have been more effective to me if, for this fictional scene, some fictional Comanche chiefs had been invented.

USE OF THE FAMILIAR names is sort of jarring, and for a time I lost track of the plot while my memory got in gear to put the real Comanche chiefs into their real slots in history, then adjust to the imaginary scene before me.

Maybe there is no such thing as an original turn in a western story; maybe Green did the best that could be done with the script, but it was disappointing and letting himself relax and enjoy the show to the hilt!

Students In Area Get Circuit T V

LUBBOCK — College and universities in West Texas shortly will be able to reach out to any point in the territory to bring the best brains available scholastic practicing in industry, to teach their students.

In turn, the students, sitting in the classroom in, for instance, Texas Tech, can pick the brains of ideas and facts that the instructor may not have covered as he spoke in Wichita Falls, or Plainview or any other city.

The plan already is called the Western Information Network. And it will be useful for many other things, too.

The center of the television network will be at Texas Tech here. The plan has been approved by the legislature and could have been picked up verbatim from Bonanza.

Nevertheless, I'm going back, and anyone who hasn't been is foolish to let this summer go by without sitting down in the canyon in the cool of the evening and letting himself relax and enjoy the show to the hilt!

governor.

A distinct feature will be its two-way operation. Students will do more than watch a lecture on a television screen. They can stand up and question the speaker.

Dr. John R. Bradford, dean of Tech's School of Engineering, fathered the concept.

The network is expected to be partly self-supporting through funds from industry and private foundations. Some will come from the legislature and other money from the federal government.

The idea sprang from requests from some industries for graduate-level teaching of their employees, many of them far from the experts in their field. From that, it grew with many arms.

The network will permit discussions from professors, allow use of a computer at one school which a second school cannot afford, and put its finger on any facts or books that a student may need anywhere in the region.

Bradford said the university hopes to launch the pilot program next year by linking Tech with Amarillo College.

Initial planning came from 12 schools: Frank Phillips at Borger; Clarendon Junior College; South Plains College, Levelland; Midwestern University, Wichita Falls; Lubbock Christian; Odessa College, Howard County; Abilene Christian; Hardin-Simmons Abilene; McMurry, Abilene; and Howard Payne, Brownwood; in addition to Tech.

The circuit will be closed, meaning it will use existing telephone lines, although in the future there could be a private microwave relay system, Bradford said.

The system will enable a distinguished professor in a special field to teach any other school via the hookup. Industrial firms will use professors from hundreds of miles away to keep their employees informed of latest developments in their profession.

The Hereford Brand, Hereford, Texas, Thurs., July 6, 1967

The professor will be able to teach in several schools simultaneously.

Usage will be limited only by the number of channels leased. Cameras would require only one technician at each sending and receiving classroom or industrial lecture hall.

Bradford said a student needing information will be able to question the network about what is available in any library in any of the schools.

If he should need only a few pages, they could be copied and sent by machine to him in a matter of minutes. If he needs a complete volume, it could be mailed to him.

Even the computers are expected to talk to each other. If a small computer finds itself too ignorant to supply an answer, it can ask a larger or smarter computer in another college and get a reply, coming out of its quandy with a bright new luster.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, was founded by the Spanish in the 16th century. Now it has 22 million people, many of whom immigrated there from England, France, Germany, Yugoslavia, Poland and Lebanon.

Frank Nobles Visits Atomic Plant At Rocky Flats, Colo.

Forty high school students representing 17 states were guests of The Dow Chemical Company and the Atomic Energy Commission at the Rocky Flats plant northwest of Denver on Wednesday, June 28. The students are attending a six-week seminar on radioisotope technology and electronics at the Colorado School of Mines in Golden.

The tour was conducted through the Health Physics and Nuclear Safety departments as an extension of the classroom activities at Mines.

Frank Nobles 111 Sunset Drive Hereford, is one of the students participating.

involve protection of the plant and surrounding area from the possibility of contamination from radioactive materials. In addition to providing safeguards, such as filtering systems, and settling ponds, the Health Physics group also continuously monitors air, water and vegetation in an area covering 600 square miles, to ensure against release of contamination in the surrounding area. The data compiled from the monitoring program is then compared to normal background atmospheric radiation in order to determine the effectiveness of the preventive measures in use. During the 16 years of operations at Rocky Flats, tests have indicated that air and water released from the plant site contain less radioactive materials than are normally contained in the atmosphere, attesting to the effectiveness of the safeguards.

As the students progressed to the Nuclear Safety department, they were told of the importance of such a group in an operation dealing with uranium, plutonium and other fissile materials. This department is charged with the responsibility of providing acceptable criteria for process equipment and plant design.

It was pointed out that every manufacturing plant involved in the handling of fissile materials, and all its processing equipment must be carefully analyzed by a criticality specialist to assure that no inadvertent chain reaction can occur. At Rocky Flats this criticality function is handled by highly trained personnel in the field of nuclear safety. The students visited the facility, including the laboratory which contains some of the most advanced modern equipment used in the field of nuclear safety.

There were 14 Colorado students involved in the tour at Rocky Flats.

Siberia spans nine time zones. It is half again larger than the contiguous United States, yet holds fewer residents than New York and New England combined, the National Geographic says.

Washington Report

From Congressman
BOB PRICE 10TH DISTRICT, TEXAS
1322 LONGWORTH OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C. • 725-3706

"Wheat prices are unrealistically low and recent Department of Agriculture announcements do not hold much promise for any substantial improvement," Congressman Bob Price charged Friday.

"The decision by the Secretary of Agriculture to reduce wheat acreage allotments by 13 percent next year will not cause market prices to advance, as long as CCC holds millions of bushels of wheat over the market. These large inventories of government owned wheat hang like a black cloud over the market and as long as these inventories are available for domestic sales at low prices, the market for wheat is unable to advance as it should," Price said.

"Wheat prices in the Panhandle are now below $1.50 a bushel and have declined by more than 15 cents since last December," Price added.

The Panhandle Congressman, also said the Department of Agriculture had compounded its forecast errors by misjudgment last year of the world wheat situation and by more recent predictions of the 1967 crop which, Price said, will fall considerably short of actual harvest in the Panhandle, Oklahoma and Kansas.

"On top of this," Price said,

"preliminary indications are that U. S. exports during the year 1966-67 now ending were only about 735,000 bushels compared with 867,000 bushels in 1965-66. But the indicated carry-over of wheat into the new crop-year is not much above the low level of a year earlier."

Price said the Secretary of Agriculture could and should take steps to bolster wheat prices and had the authority to do so. "Commodity Credit Corporation resale prices should be raised. There is no legal barrier against Secretary Freeman taking immediate action to increase the price at which government-owned wheat is made available to domestic wheat processors. Better wheat prices would benefit all wheat farmers who truly need and deserve price increases if they are to keep up with the inflationary pressures in our economy," Price stated.

"Wheat sold in 1946 for $2.00 a bushel when a farmer could plant from fence to fence but is now down to $1.42 in the Panhandle where drought and freeze cut yields drastically. In view of steep increases in all other production costs, it certainly isn't fair to encourage participation in a program that seems deliberately designed to hold wheat prices at loss levels," Price concludes.

Mother Buried Hereford Man's

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Suit, 84, mother of Ray Suit of Hereford, were conducted Wednesday afternoon in First Baptist Church of Stratford, Okla. and burial followed in Ada Memorial Gardens at Ada, Okla.

Her death occurred in Stratford Sunday morning. In addition to the son here, Mrs. Suit is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Rhoda Duke and Mrs. Marie Fulton, and a son, R. H. Suit, all of Stratford, and a third son, James Suit of Tulsa. Her husband died in 1961.

Glad's Garden

HEMEROCALLIS

WHAT IS THE MOST COLORFUL FLOWER IN YOUR GARDEN? Some of our answers could be a bit prejudiced, as we have our favorites. For color and stateliness one cannot overlook the beautiful day-lily (Hemerocallis) which are blooming profusely in many of the gardens. To see these and to really appreciate their beauty and contributions to the garden, it will probably be necessary to look over some garden gates, or enter into the gardens which are at the rear of the homes. I did this, and was rewarded, by elegant plantings of day lilies. They are in full bloom, in yellows, pinks, reds, orange hues, browns.

Are you growing some of the Hemerocallis? If not, I would recommend them to you. They perform so well, and ask very little, for care and maintenance. If you haven't seen a day-lily catalogue recently, you will find it a revelation. The color range is marvelous and the new introductions in colors are fantastic.

The day-lily offers the boon of unstinting bloom from May to late September or until frost, if properly selected and planted. They flower profusely, and like flags on daily display appear with dawn and fade their colors at sunset.

Given a minimum of care, they reward the gardener with good response. They are a tuberous rooted perennial. Propagation is either by seed clones or plant divisions. They can be planted in the spring, summer or fall, after blooming season. I find August and September a very good time for the early bloomers to be divided and transplanted. However many gardeners like to plant in the spring when plants are provided by dividing.

In planting they should be spaced 1 to 2 feet apart. Most varieties multiply rapidly and require division every four to five years.

Do not plant deep. Do spade soil deep and the soil should be well prepared. There should be no more than 1 inch of soil above the crown and none above the white stem section of the plant, which indicates the previous level of soil. Press soil firmly over the well spread roots this eliminates air cells.

To do their best, they should have at least 4 to 6 hours of indirect sunshine. However they also do well in full sun as few of their colors are effected by the sun. When planting do not add fertilizer to the plant, but in the fall, rake in bone-meal. Do this carefully so that the 'finger roots' will not be damaged. Water thoroughly after planting, and continue water until growth shows. This is important. In the spring when the young growth starts to show it is recommended that a sprinkling of superphosphate be used, in the same method as the bone-meal. One author I read feeds her plants fish emulsion fertilizer every two weeks, as soon as the buds begin to appear. To put them to bed in the fall, leave the faded tops and add a light covering of a recommended mulch.

This will prevent alternate freezing and thawing, and add humus to the soil for the next season growth. The day-lily is a sturdy plant as they seem to have no diseases and are seldom bothered by any insects.

The Hemerocallis is not a new plant, as they were grown as early as 1570 in their native country, which was Asia. They were introduced to Europe in the early part of 1600. The greatest development of the Hemerocallis, has been in the last thirty years. Great strides have been made in America and it is one of the most popular flowers grown. Many growers list several thousand varieties and each year newer and better ones are added to the list.

Some of those which do well are Party Gown, Vespers, Hesperus, Spice, Orange Beauty. These are the older varieties. The newer ones which are good are Park Avenue, Bess Ross, Green Eyed Giant, Moonlight Vespers, Cartwheels, Dawn's Creation, Windfall, and Triumphant Lady. These are all beautiful and certainly do prove that the name Hemerocallis which means "beauty for a day" was well placed. It is true that the flower bloom lasts only one day, but the bloom scapes each have so many buds that an established clump will bloom for several weeks and produce up to three or four hundred blooms. Some of the newer varieties are proving to be repeat bloomers.

The Hemerocallis or day-lily, make good companion plants for daffodils, iris, yarrow, daisies, and delphiniums. Mrs. J. A. Kendall, a teacher of Horticulture, and a former resident of our area, calls the day-lily (Hemerocallis) the perennial SUPREME. It is indeed a most satisfying plant to grow and will fill its place in your garden supremely.

HINTS: A storage bench constructed much like a window seat, with a hinged lid, makes a good storage area for bags of charcoal, sun mats, croquet sets balls, and such other items, that are wanted when using the patio.

CLEAN HOUSE plants, such as rubber plants, avocado, ivies, etc. with sweet milk. Dip a sponge in the milk and wipe the leaves with it. This will clean the plant and leave a nice gloss on the leaves. It also enriches the color of the plant.

There are many lovely things to see in Hereford these days. One that was most attractive is the Wayne Newsom home on 218 Ranger Drive. The white petunias, and the white iron shutters add beauty to the home.

The annual yard at the Wheeler Sears home, on Ranger & Plains is nice. It has been interesting to follow its growth and beauty.

Many lovely geraniums are now in bloom. Where have you seen the prettiest?

FOR GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD

Comfort

Daily we drag about us every physical comfort of this age. Even our architecture reflects comfort. Yet, how many of us indulge in the Supreme Comfort... the comfort of religion? Folded hands reflect a soul in fellowship with the Almighty. See what aids he has summoned in his hour of need! When your nerves are worn from daily routine, when crisis tear at your soul, when tragedy overwhelms you... do you ever stop to experience the Comfort of Divine Presence? Compare the harried, cross, impatient faces you meet on the street with the crowd you see going to church each Sunday... that should be enough. The strain of modern life is too much. Psychiatrists are stampeded and mental institutions are overflowing. Our nerves simply can't take it. Why not try this man's remedy? Light a candle, open The Book, fold your hands and get in company with noble souls.

YOU IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN YOU
Christianity is a by-product of the church. It is here that the spirit and will are observed with benevolent thought and reflection for a better citizenship and a nobler religion. In the church the individual and the church share the same. Experience under the shelter of the church in these precious days. There are no other places where you can find the church in you. You are the church and the church is you. There is a communion in the church and the church is you. God and a daily Bible reading.

LET'S COOK SOMETHING

Meals Afloat Are Fun

By SUE COLEMAN Women's Editor

A house boat with all the comforts of home is a place where you can prepare a four-course company meal, but Mrs. T. L. Bryant had rather not.

WHEN WE SPEND A weekend or more on the boat, I want to relax and enjoy the change from living on land, so I don't want to spend time cooking," Mrs. Bryant says. "We cook the fish we catch, and that's about all."

The Hereford housewife prefers to take food to the boat already cooked, picnic-type things like fried chicken, deviled eggs, potato salad and cakes. Frozen and ready-cooked food from the store also help out, she says.

Owned by four families, the Conchas Queen has a well equipped kitchen, or to use the nautical term, galley, along with a living room with couches all around the walls and a section of the floor which can be dropped there in bad weather; a bunk room with four bunks; the pilot house which holds bunks for two more, and deck space both roofed and open.

The Bryants sometimes enjoy it for just a family outing, and sometimes entertain guests on the boat. Mrs. Bryant and her daughter Connie, who will be a high school senior next term, both like to swim and fish while they are on the lake.

The boat has been on Conchas Lake about eight years. Formerly it was brought to the dock to take on supplies, but now the food and other supplies are taken out by small boat. They almost always catch fish enough to provide the main dish for their meals, but take meat along just in case.

Residents of Hereford about 14 years, the Bryants came here from Dimmitt and live now in a ranch style brick on Austin Road. Mrs. Bryant, a fragile blonde, was Joyce Nichols before she married.

She was born in Burkburnett and finished high school studies there, then attended Texas Women's University and North Texas State, both at Denton, before her marriage.

Work for a college degree was at West Texas State College. She is a teacher in Hereford schools, Sewing, for herself and her daughter, is a hobby, and she finds time for church activities.

A favorite dessert of the Bryants and their guests on house-boat weekends is one that is easily portable and stays fresh several days. Here is the recipe:

SHEATH CHOCOLATE CAKE 1/2 cup shortening 1 stick margarine (can use 2 sticks margarine, no shortening 4 lb. cocoa 1 cup water Bring to a boil and pour over: 2 cups flour 2 cups sugar, Beating slowly in the mixer. Then add: 1/2 cup buttermilk 2 eggs 1/2 tsp. salt 1 tsp. vanilla Beat thoroughly. Bake in greased cookie sheet or loaf pan in 350-degree oven. Top with powdered sugar icing. Should be about 1 1/2 inches thick when cooked.

COCOA FROSTING

2 1/2 cups sifted confectioners sugar 1/4 cocoa 1/4 tsp. salt 1/4 cup butter 1/4 cup hot milk 1/2 tsp. vanilla

Sift sugar, cocoa and salt together. Cream butter until soft, add part of sugar mixture gradually, beating thoroughly. Add remaining sugar mixture alternately with hot milk, beating well after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla.

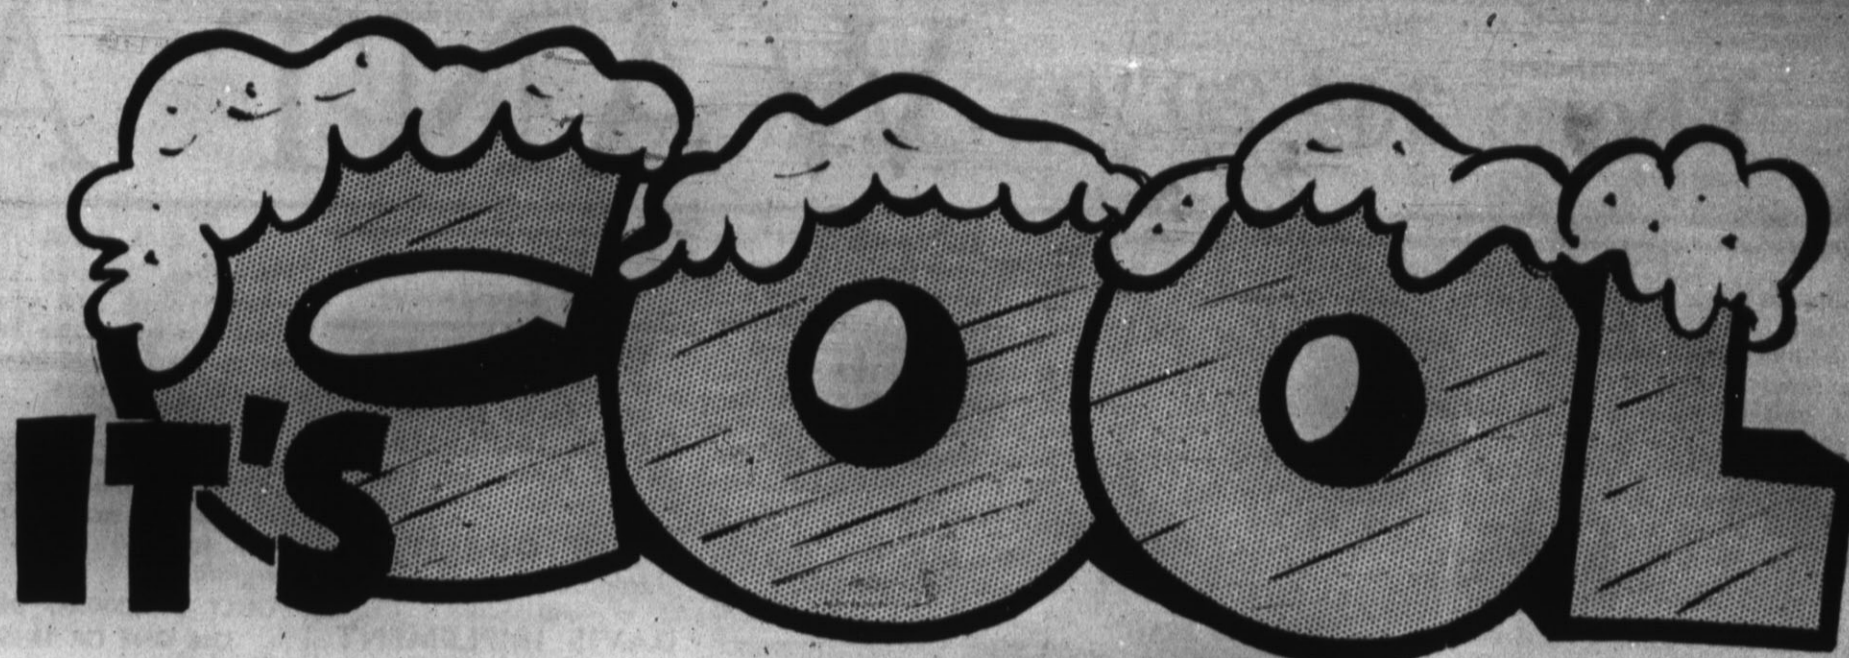

Drager Arrives In Da Nang

DA NANG, VIETNAM — Construction Mechanic Third Class Earl R. Drager, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Drager of Route 3, Hereford, Tex., arrived in Da Nang, Vietnam with Naval Mobile Construction Battalion Seventy-Four, for the battalion's first overseas deployment since recommissioning in December of 1966.

The battalion, which is home-based in Gulfport, Miss., will work on many construction projects in support of the Navy, Marine Corps and allied forces during their deployment.

In addition each man will have the opportunity to participate in the battalion's Civic Action Program, helping the Vietnamese people improve their standard of living through the use of equipment and knowledge provided by "seabees" of the battalion.

Discolored Leaf Is Not Disease

COLLEGE STATION — Discolored leaf conditions in young cotton, it's widespread in Texas, apparently are not due to disease or herbicide drift or air pollution. But, says Fred C. Elliott, Texas A&M University Extension cotton specialist, the cause is the unusually cool daytime temperatures that have persisted over the past several weeks, and some of it is "sun scald" from the showers.

This condition, explains the specialist, is similar to one he has observed for many years on the High Plains and the Pecos and El Paso valleys in the fall months of September and October when the nights are cool and the days are warm or hot.

With the return of warm nights and normal growing weather in June, this condition should rapidly improve in two to three weeks, predicts Elliott.

This is not to say, he adds, that some isolated cases of slight herbicide effects do not exist. But he concludes, these are not related to the abnormally cool weather the state has been experiencing.

AUSTIN HIGHLIGHTS

State Capitol Involved With Air Pollution

By VERN SANFORD
AUSTIN — Air pollution is the prime topic of conservation in the Capitol at the moment.

After taking a look at the air pollution law just put on the books this year, members of the new Texas Air Control Board say the Texas law permits 80 times as much air pollution as do similar laws in some of the other states.

Elbert Hooper of Austin, the Board's attorney, told the directors that an exemption from control supposed to apply only to cotton gins (limiting air emissions to a maximum of eight per cent of the process weight of a any agricultural product) may exempt many industries.

He named the following as possibilities: lumber mills, rice mills, grain elevators, paper mills, cotton oil mills, produce plants, food processing plants, citrus processing plants, cotton seed delinting plants, flour mills, soybean oil mills, corn syrup plants, slaughter houses, wool scouring plants, nut processing plants and, possibly, rendering plants.

"We might as well fold up and go home," said Board Member Henry LeBlanc of Port Arthur. "Maybe it would be easier for you to tell us what's left that we can control," he told Hooper.

Some members observed that cotton gins would have to produce 50,000 to 60,000 micrograms of particulate matter to get to eight per cent concentration — and gins at best are not likely to exceed 40,000 to 50,000 micrograms.

Rep. Don Cavness of Austin and Sen. Criss Cole of Houston, co-authors of the 1967 Clean Air Act, say that the legislative intent was to exclude only cotton gins from State control. However, it may be necessary to amend the Clean Air Act in the 1968 special session to make this fact clear to industries which might want to be exempt.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES
Any applicant for a water well driller's license in Texas must have resided in the state for 90 consecutive days prior to his application. Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has held.

In other opinions, Martin determined that:

Department of Corrections may require return of a parole violator from New Jersey to serve the remainder of his sentence.

New law didn't change requirements relating to specific affidavits on certain sworn accounts regarding claims, and the state comptroller can continue to issue warrants for properly submitted claims when such claims are submitted under affidavit.

Terms of two former aeronautics commissioners expired last December 31. Terms of two more end next December 31. One is deceased, and a sixth will serve through 1970.

FOR MENTALLY RETARDED
Deputy Commissioner Charles D. Barnett says the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has been allocated $18,400,000 in federal funds for the mental retardation program with another $1,000,000 likely to be allocated.

Funds include grants-in-aid for care programs and grants for construction of new facilities.

THE COURT SPEAKS
Socony Mobile Oil Co., Inc. of Midland will have to bear the burden of a $167,789 judgment for damages to equipment owned by two New Mexico firms because the State Supreme Court has affirmed an appeals court decision. Damages resulted from an oil field fire which started while a Mobil well near Semole, in Gaines County, was being acidized.

High court also rules that an applicant who is denied a beer license may appeal in district court, but someone who protested granting of the license has no right to appeal.

A motorist's failure to appear in court when convictions for traffic violations are rendered him does not protect him from Department of Public Safety suspension of his driver's license. Supreme Court rules in a Midland County case.

A divorced mother temporarily committed to a mental hospital does not necessarily lose custody of her minor children, to the father, on her release. So says the high court in an Austin case.

Later two verdicts both reversed lower court findings.

AMENDMENTS DRAWN
On November 11, Texans will vote on six proposed constitutional amendments placed on the ballot in this order:

No. 1 — Allowing counties to put all tax money in a single general fund.

No. 2 — Permitting cities and other governmental units within hospital districts to levy taxes for participation in mental health and mental retardation community centers.

No. 3 — Reviving the veterans' land program and authorizing $400,000,000 in bonds.

No. 4 — Authorizing counties to pay medical, doctor and hospital bills for law enforcement officers injured in line of duty.

No. 5 — Providing for a $75,000,000 state parks revenue bond issue.

No. 6 — Allowing state officers and employees to hold non-elective positions where there is no conflict of interest or where the state might benefit.

APPOINTMENTS
Three Texas fliers were named by Gov. John Connally to the State Aeronautics Commission: Hugh A. Fitzsimons Jr. of Carrizo Springs, William N. Allan of San Antonio and Rex Caudle of Denton.

Other appointments include: Texas State Board of Public Accountancy: L. William Long, Brownville; Bernard Longbotham, Snyder; L. Ludwell Jones, Houston; and Lloyd Weaver, Fort Worth.

Southern Regional Education Board: Dr. John A. Guinn of Denton.

Upper Neches River Municipal Water Authority: Lester Hamilton of Palestine.

Fannin State Park Advisory Commission: Mrs. Hatty Swickmeier of Goliad.

Runnels County Water Authority: John Bradley, Ballinger; A. L. Mitchell, Winters; and Eugene Kasberg, Miles.

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith named to the Texas Legislative Council Sens. Jack Hightower of Vernon, Barbara Jordan of Houston, David Ratliff of Stamford, Murray Watson Jr. of Waco and J. P. Word of Meridian.

Smith appointed to the Legislative Budget Board Senators Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells and Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi.

House Speaker Ben Barnes re-appointed Representatives. Maurice Pipkin of Brownville and Gus Mutscher of Brenham to the budget-writing board.

OIL ALLOWABLE RAISED
Texas oil allowable has been raised to 42.9 per cent of potential in the wake of the Middle East Oil emergency.

At the same time, Texas Railroad Commission asked federal assurances that big oil production figure in January, 1967, states won't be left holding the bag of surplus inventories as they were in the 1957 Suez Canal crisis.

July allowable will be 3,412,042 barrels per day or 399,861 above the current level. Product was 51.8 per cent of potential.

WATER
Texas Water Rights Commission is studying the City of San Antonio's application for a permit to build a new lake to store 63,200 acre feet of water on Calavaras Creek.

Reservoir will contain a blend of run-off from the Calavaras river and sewage effluent to be pumped out of the San Antonio River into the lake. Water would be used to cool a new electric generating plant slated to go into operation in 1972.

EDUCATION
About 400 experts, Texans and otherwise, are at work on 80 studies that will help piece together a master plan for education beyond high school in Texas.

Plans will be laid out in preliminary form next summer for a series of public hearings before finally adopted by the 13-member Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University system. Plan will chart the road ahead to 1985 for the public system of higher education.

SHORT SNORTS
Fear of scabies infections has resulted in massive visual inspection of cattle in the Panhandle and clearance of herds by the Texas Animal Health Commission and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Armed with a $225,000 Federal grant, the State Health Department is promoting a statewide immunization program — primarily directed at preschoolers — against polio, measles, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

A second conference to assist local officials on the Gulf Coast in their hurricane preparedness planning has been scheduled by the Department of Public Safety for July 13 in Galveston.

A public hearing on rules changes in the State's grants-in-aid program relative to Mental Health-Mental Retardation is set for 9 a. m., July 18, in the House of Representatives.

Texas' total retail sales of $1,553,000 in May were 10 per cent above the total for April and seven per cent above the May total a year ago, reports UT's Bureau of Business Research.

Texas Highway Commission has approved the 10 mile, $6,000,000, Interstate 10 project in Kimble County.

Col. Morris S. Schwartz, State Selective Service Director, says Texas' draft boards will be called on to provide 1,521 men for induction in August, an increase of 547 over the July quota.

Requiem Mass Is Said For Priests

GARRISON, N. Y. — June 28 — Sixty Friars of the Atonement and other priests at Graymoor, Garrison, N. Y., offered a concelebrated Mass of requiem today for Very Rev. Alexander Beaton, S. A. and Rev. DeSales Standerwick, S. A., who were fatally injured in a plane crash near Blossburg, Pa., on June 23.

Very Rev. Camillus Daniels, S. A., vicar general of the Graymoor Friars, was the principal celebrant, assisted by Rev. Leon Kotsko, S. A., and Rev. Ralph Thomas, S. A.

The Most Rev. Terence Cooke D. D., representing Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York gave the absolution after Mass. Very Rev. Samuel Cummings, S. A., delivered the eulogy in which he paid tribute to the devoted lives of both priests. "Father Alexander was our father general for only a short time, but what he did for the Society of the Atonement will never be forgotten. Together with the fathers meeting in Washington he gave our community a new direction, a new dimension, especially in the field of Christian Unity."

Fr. Samuel paid tribute to the years of dedicated service of Fr. DeSales who spent the 18 years of his priesthood at the minor seminary at Montour Falls, N. Y. "He gave of himself, he was completely dedicated to the apostolate of training young men for the priesthood of Christ. In this work he succeeded admirably."

Fr. Alexander was elected Father General just last June 3. He was from New Glasgow, N. S., Canada, and is survived by four brothers and one sister. Fr. DeSales was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. and is survived by his parents and two sisters, Mrs. Dolores Toolan and Mrs. Marie Morrison.

Both priests had attended graduation exercises at St. John's Seminary and were returning to Washington, D. C., where they had taken part in the general chapter of the Graymoor Friars.

August Deadline Set For Barrows

Nearly 10,000 copies of the Premium List for the 1967 National Barrow Show, September 11-13, in Austin, Minnesota, are now in the mail.

The 76-page booklet is being mailed again this year to purebred and commercial hog producers, farm school personnel, county agents and extension directors, vocational agricultural instructors, and a host of other interested persons in the United States.

The Premium List describes in detail the $40,000 in prize monies awarded to exhibitors. Rules and regulations governing the several divisions of the three-day show — purebred, cross-bred, truckload, carcass contest and judging contests — are also included in the book.

The final deadline for board, gilt, and single barrow entries is August 14, 1967. Absolutely no entries will be accepted if postmarked later than this date. Saturday, September 2, is the deadline for entry of truckloads of market hogs. All entries must be postmarked on or before this date.

Opening day activities will commence on Monday, September 11, and conclude on Wednesday September 13. This is the first time that the National Barrow Show will be a three-day event; and this important change, along with many others, is described in the Premium List.

A copy of this booklet and entry blank for the 1967 National Barrow Show may be obtained by mailing a card to the National Barrow Show, Austin, Minnesota.

BEAR GETS RIDE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. — A 200-pound bear that wandered into the Albuquerque south valley got a tramway ride into the mountains recently after a two-night stayover in the Albuquerque zoo.

The bear was tranquilized and roped when found in a residential area of the valley.

Strapped into a box under the tramway used by tourists for the ride up the west side of the Sandias, the bear was carried to about the 8,500-foot level and released in a canyon.
