British Frigate Sunk, 4 Others Damaged

By The Associated Press

Argentine warplanes sank a British frigate off the Falklands, leaving about 20 men missing and 30 wounded, and severely damaged another British vessel, leaving an unexploded bomb in its engine room, Britain announced today.

It said three other British warships, obtained minor damage in Friday's fierce battle off the Falkland Islands. Argentina said its jets hit eight British ships, damaging four severely, but it had no comment on the sinking of the frigate.

Defense Secretary John Nott said at a news conference in London the frigate Ardent, with a complement of 175 men, was sunk. It was the second British ship sunk since the crisis began. On May 4 a missile from an Argentine jet hit the destroyer Sheffield, leaving 20 dead.

Just before the British assault on the Falklands Friday, a helicopter ferrying troops between ships ditched in the South Atlantic, killing 21. Britain reported two killed, three missing and 27 wounded in the Falklands assault.

Nott said the most dangerous operation—putting an estimated 2,500 British troops on the islands—was over.

Intelligence sources quoted by Britain's domestic news agency, Press Association, said British troops bolstered their beachhead on the Falklands today and braced for a major counterattack from the Argentines at Stanley.

Press Association said Argentine troops, tanks and armored personnel carriers from the Falkland capital of Stanley were expected to try to push through to the British lines at San Carlos "within 30 hours."

In Buenos Aires, the official Argentine news agency Telam said about 400 British troops are in the San Carlos Bay area on East Falkland Island and they "are completely controlled."

"No ships have been seen in the zone and the British troops are being cleaned up," the news agency said, quoting a "qualified military spokesman." There were no communiques today from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The British said commandos landed on East Falkland on Friday, securing a base at Port San Carlos, about 50 miles west of Stanley, where the bulk of Argentina's 9,000 troops are stationed.

The British also said 16 Argentine warplanes and four helicopters were destroyed. The British

Only Four Voting Boxes To Be Used In Runoff

Deaf Smith County Democratic Party Chairman Robert Strain has announced that only four voting boxes will be used for the June 5 runoff due to the short list of races on the ballot, a reduction in funds to conduct the election, and an expected low voter turnout.

Strain said that the main reason for the move is because former Secretary of State George Strake had requested a reduction in funds in the budget for conducting runoffs. As a result, the county-level organization is having to bear the brunt of the cost of the runoff.

"We'll probably save about $2,000 by having voting done at only four boxes," Strain said. "I didn't feel I could be successful walking down the street and asking for donations to hold the election."

The four voting boxes to be used are box 1 at the Bull Barn, box 2 at the county courthouse and box 12 at La Plata Jr. High, and box 5 at the community center.

"We're going to have one box for each County Commissioner Precinct," Strain explained. If voters know which commissioner precinct they live in they'll know where to vote.

A check with County Clerk B.F. Cain's office revealed where each voter will vote. Marjorie Thomas said the plan calls for voters to vote according to the following list.

(Voters should again check which voting precinct they are in by looking at their registration card).

Box 1-Bull Barn: Including voting precincts 1 and 7.

Box 2-Courthouse: Including voting precinct 2.

Box 12-La Plata: Including voting precincts 3, 8, 11 and 12.

Box 5-Community Center: Including voting precincts 4, 5, 6, 9, and 10.

Strain said another way of putting it is that voters living in Commissioner Pct. 1 vote at the Bull Barn, those in Pct. 2 vote at the courthouse, those in Pct. 3 vote at La Plata, and those in Pct. 4 vote at the community center.

There are only four races on the runoff ballot, including no local or district races. Those on the ballot will be attorney general candidates Jim Mattox and John Hannah, land commissioner hopefuls Pete Snelson and Gary Mauro, and two court of criminal appeals races.

DOE, Utah Citizens Clash Over Data

MONTICELLO, Utah (AP) — The U.S. Department of Energy and Utah officials clashed Friday over access to data collected on a proposed nuclear waste dump site in southern Utah.

In a meeting here of the state's Nuclear Waste Repository Task Force, Department of Energy officials were asked to provide some scientific research collected on two possible sites east of Canyonlands National Park.

State officials often are unaware of DOE studies and are uncertain whether research summaries the agency provides are accurate, said task force coordinator Juline Christofferson.

The department is attempting to make the information available as soon as possible, DOE representative Leslie Casey said.

"We will not make preliminary data available unless we think it's important," she said.

Asked by task force members whether any of the department's scientific information on the site was classified, she said, "to the extent we get publicly harangued for not providing public information, the more we'll pull back."

"That's just childish," said task force member Frances Farley, a Democratic state senator from Salt Lake City.

Earlier in the meeting, Ms. Casey reacted angrily to reports that an environmental activist got a copy of a report involving a proposed nuclear waste dumpsite before the federal agency reviewed it.

Spain Has Busy Year In Store

As newly elected president of the Panhandle Firemen and Fire Marshall Association, Hereford fire marshal Jay Spain will lead the organization's delegation at the state convention in June in Abilene.

Spain said about 150 firemen from the Panhandle will be attending.

Installed last Saturday at the Panhandle convention, Spain will preside at the yearly meeting and attend meetings in the four zones. The organization covers an area from the state line to Childress and from south of Lubbock to the northern border.

Spain said he will be visiting other fire departments, attending firemen's activities and speaking at schools during his year in office. Spain is already an instructor at the fire schools in Canyon and Lubbock.

He has been the fire marshal at Hereford for 11 years. He joined the Hereford crew in 1966 after five years previous experience.

A number of gardeners around town are bragging about the prospects of their work and toil. Fresh vegetables and fruits are great, but we learned many years ago that we didn't have a "green thumb."

For those of you who are not "garden people," we offer tips on how to plant a "Garden of Life." We found this item in another newspaper but don't know the author:

First, plant five rows of P's—presence, promptness, preparation, perseverance, purity.

Next, plant three rows of squash—squash gossip, squash indifference, squash unjust criticism.

Then plant five rows of lettuce—let us be unselfish and loyal, let us be faithful to duty, let us obey the rules and regulations, let us be true to our obligations, let us love one another.

No garden is complete without turnips—turn up for meetings, turn up with a smile, turn up with new ideas, turn up with determination to make everything count for something good and worthwhile.

How Long Is Tornado Season?

New Doctor, Wife Watch Weather

By SANDY PANKEY
Staff Writer

"HOW LONG does the tornado season last in this part of the country?"

Dr. David Baddour, who just moved here from Albuquerque, N.M. and has opened his office at Deaf Smith General Hospital last week, is a little amazed at the unpredictable weather the Texas Panhandle experiences.

"My wife will be watching television and hear that we are under a tornado watch and it's a little disconcerting because we have never lived in an area where there was the threat of tornadoes," explains Dr. Baddour.

Aside from the climatic changes here, Dr. Baddour who specializes in urology, is excited at the prospect of living in a smaller community.

"I had several options but I chose Hereford because I felt that the area here is in need of a urologist and this would give me a chance to provide quality care in urology and my work would be appreciated by the friendly people of this community," states the amicable physician.

"Another appealing aspect to residing in Hereford," explains the doctor, "is raising my children in a community where people care for each other."

He continued by saying, "Big cities are always rather isolated and a smaller town offers a sense of close family ties and the true value of friendship is not lost."

Randy Quick, a member of the Brand's advertising sales staff, and his wife Judy, as well as Judy's father, Jim McMorries, and Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, were instrumental in bringing Dr. Baddour here.

"Randy and Judy were our neighbors in Albuquerque.

DR. DAVID BADDOUR, M.D.

The Quicks moved to Hereford and as I was interested in relocating, I looked into the possibilities of Hereford needing a urologist urologist," explains Dr. Baddour.

"Not to forget Mr. Jim Bullard who made it possible for me to be here," continued Dr. Baddour. "Mr. Bullard has a dynamic personality and with visions toward improvement and expansion of Deaf Smith General Hospital. The medical staff, as well as the paramedical staff at the hospital have been outstanding in their friendliness and assistance to make my relocation into Hereford and the practice of urology at the hospital as smooth as possible."

Dr. Baddour practiced for three years at the University of New Mexico's Medical Center before coming to Hereford. He also practiced medicine for two years in New Haven, Ct. and two years in Pittsfield, Mass.

He obtained his medical degree from the American University of Beirut, Lebanon. He also met his wife Maha at the university where she received her bachelor degree in mass communications.

Mrs. Baddour is a native of Ramallah, located approximately eight miles north of Jerusalem. The couple have two children, a four year-old son, Bishara and a nine month-old daughter, Lina.

State Agency Wants To Relieve Prison Overcrowding

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An agency that claims it can save the state prison system money has voted to ask the special legislative session for $4.25 million to divert criminal offenders to probation.

The Adult Probation Commission agreed Friday to use $500,000 it already has to relieve overcrowded state prisons.

The nine-member commission estimated the total of $4.75 million could be used to divert 1,480 possible inmates to probation over the next 15 months.

In March, according to the commission, the inmate population of the Texas Department of Corrections was 33,297, while 84,369 felony offenders were on probation and under the supervision of local adult probation departments.

The commission noted that the TDC has estimated it costs approximately $9.80 a day to house an inmate, while probation costs 92 cents a day for each probationer.

Of that 92 cents, the state's share is 58 cents, and the probationer pays the remaining 34 cents.

The commission also voted Friday to seek $2.2 million from the special session to cover inflation.

Lobbyist Wins Cooking Contest

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ruby Cuble of Clear Lake City, who developed "quick easy dishes" so she would also have time to lobby the Legislature, won first place Friday in the annual Texas Chicken Cooking Contest.

Mrs. Cuble, who has been cooking for nearly 20 years, will represent Texas in the national contest in Dallas, Aug. 17-19, for a $10,000 first prize.

At the state contest, she prepared Summer Garden Chicken, a combination of chicken pieces with fresh vegetables and a sour cream sauce.

"I was a registered lobbyist in Austin during the last legislative session," said Mrs. Cuble, 41, the mother of sons 15 and 11. "I spent a lot of time here in Austin so I had to find quick easy dishes for my family. I do cook a few casseroles but I like the combination dishes better."

According to the Texas Department of Agriculture, Mrs. Cuble lobbied in 1981 to get Houston to disannex Clear Lake City.

The second-place winner in the chicken cookoff was Joel Allard of San Marcos.

Abilene's Only Female Police Officer Quitting To Get Married

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Abilene's only female police officer for more than two years says she's put up with enough skepticism, suspicion and sexism.

Joy Ivey is turning in her badge for a marriage license and a new life in Dallas.

"The stress already after two years has taken its toll," she said Friday. "You just become more aggressive. You learn to look at people twice ... looking for negative points. I don't like feeling that way."

Miss Ivey, a woman among more than 140 men, said she began as a 20-year-old rookie out of the local police academy and has enjoyed her tenure as an Abilene cop.

"But after a while the wear and tear on your mind and body build up," she said. "You keep arresting the same people over and over. Then they get out on bond. Then you arrest them again."

The first two weeks of her 18 weeks at the police academy were the toughest, she said, particularly the boxing, where she had to fight a 6-foot-3-inch man.

"I ended up with two black eyes and a concussion," she said. "But we boxed two more days after that, and I made it through."

"At first, when I was sent as a backup on a call, another backup man was sent to back me up," she said. She said she assumed the men feared she would get "gun-happy."

Senate Passes Reagan-Backed Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate has passed a 1983 budget blueprint, supported by President Reagan, calling for $107 billion in increased taxes over three years and projecting $273 billion in deficits over the period.

The final 49-43 party-line vote came Friday night after a week of consideration during which the Senate's GOP majority turned aside virtually all Democratic attempts to restore money for domestic programs ranging from unemployment benefits to environmental cleanup.

In a bit of a turnaround before final passage, conservative Democrats offered an amendment which projected a balanced budget in 1985 — a plan hinging on tax increases of $146 billion and reductions in planned Social Security cost-of-living increases.

With obvious reluctance, the Republican leadership led the move to table, and thus kill, the plan 70-21.

Republican leaders, faced with defections, were forced earlier in the week to drop an unpopular plan for $40 billion in unspecified Social Security savings.

Meanwhile, the House began preliminary consideration of more than a half-dozen competing budget plans as leaders of both parties lobbied to build a majority.

Votes on the plans and amendments will begin Monday.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., predicted the president would be less of a factor in this year's House budget battle than a year ago. "I don't think he could be successful" appealing directly to the public again, O'Neill said.

O'Neill and other Democratic leaders also formally threw their support behind the budget plan approved by the House Budget Committee. It calls for tax hikes of $147 billion over three years, cuts the defense buildup by $39 billion over three years and cuts less from spending than the Senate plan.

Its main contenders for votes are a plan drawn up by House Republican leaders and a proposal by a small coalition of Democratic and Republican moderates that many members describe as a "fallback."

In the Senate, Republicans chided Democrats for offering "budget-busting" amendments "designed for the November elections."

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., denounced the GOP spending plan as "yet another installment on the high and unfair sacrifice demanded of the American people because of the failing economic policy foisted on the country by the Reagan administration."

Democrats scored their only breakthrough on a 57-40 vote that overturned a proposed one-year freeze in benefits for railroad retirees and calls for a full 7.4 percent hike on July 1, and increases at the rate of inflation the following three years for nearly 1 million retirees.

Appeals Court Rejects Charges Against Oilman

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The U.S. District Court trial of Robert Sutton apparently will resume Tuesday after a week of appeals court maneuvering that leaves the Tulsa oilman facing two charges.

The full 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a three-judge panel's decision Friday and again threw out 15 federal oil misclassification charges against Sutton.

The court's decision means Sutton's month-old trial will resume on two obstruction of justice counts — barring additional appeals.

In the decision reached Friday evening, the appeals court said if the 15 counts were left standing against Sutton, it would place him in double jeopardy.

The Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution prohibits a person from being tried twice on the same charge.

Assassin 'Drained'
After Parole Revoked

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A "despondent" Sirhan Sirhan withdrew in silence to his prison cell after a parole board revoked his 1984 release date and ordered the assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to undergo a psychiatric study.

Ray Brown, chairman of the California Board of Prison Terms, which on Friday canceled Sirhan's parole date, said the board wanted more information on reports that he remains the same "loner" he was before shooting Kennedy on June 5, 1968.

The decision followed two weeks of hearings earlier this month.

Prisoner's pattern of withdrawal appears self-imposed to suit his own purposes," the board said, asking prison psychiatrists to analyze Sirhan before he comes back for another parole hearing in six months.

Los Angeles District Attorney John Van de Kamp, a candidate for state attorney general who launched the drive to keep Sirhan behind bars, hailed the decision.

"People in this country and around the world can breathe a sigh of relief that Sirhan will remain in prison," he said. "The message has to be sent out that political assassination is not going to be tolerated in this society."

Jim Esten, a spokesman for the Correctional Training Facility at Soledad, where Sirhan is imprisoned, said the convict "was not overly agitated and...did not appear angry" after learning of the board's decision in a phone call from his attorney, Luke McKissack.

Esten said Sirhan, 38, appeared to expect the negative ruling, but refused requests by reporters for interviews and "sort of waved me away. He was lying down in his cell. He appeared tired and drained."

McKissack, who was in the state capital for the announcement of the board's decision, told reporters Sirhan "seemed merely despondent...He didn't even use a curse word, which surprised me."

McKissack, who commended the board for "an exemplary job" in running the hearings, said he felt the board acted under public pressure to keep Sirhan in prison.

The board said it decided to keep Sirhan behind bars because of new facts pointing to his continued propensity for violence.

The members of the panel — Brown, board member Loretta Collier and hearing officer Wayne Estelle — said they believed board members who set Sirhan's 1984 parole date in 1975 would have acted differently if they knew about "significant information" not shown to them.

Commissioners To Conduct
Public Hearings

Deaf Smith County Commissioners will conduct public hearings on several budgets when the court meets in regular session at 10 a.m. Monday at the courthouse.

Discussion on the proposed use of Revenue Sharing money for 1982-83 and for additional Revenue Sharing funds received for 1981-82 will be held.

In other business the court will discuss operation of the justice of the peace's office, discuss a change in library policy regarding use of the facility, and discuss a proposed change in tax statements with Tax District Chief Appraiser Fred Fox.

The court will also enter into closed session to discuss pending litigation and personnel.

While the fighting escalated, diplomats searched for a way to settle the conflict. The dispute, which dates back to 1833, became a crisis on April 2, when Argentina occupied the islands and interrupted 149 years of British rule.

At the United Nations, Ireland urged the Security Council to give Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar a new mandate to try to mediate the dispute. Perez de Cuellar negotiated with both countries for 12 days, but his effort came to a fruitless conclusion on Thursday.

Restructured Long Distance Rates Are Now In Effect

Restructured long distance rates to Mexico went into effect Monday, May 17, following Federal Communications Commission approval, according to Gary Stevens of Southwestern Bell.

Changes in the mileage bands for short haul calls result in significant rate increases on long-distance calls to points in Mexico within 430 miles of the U.S. border.

Stevens explains charges for calls to Mexico based, in part, on the distance traveled from the U.S. border to the city called. "Distance bands have been restructured to bring the more in line with the charges associated with distances called in the U.S.," he said. For example, Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, falls within the one-to-10 mile band because the city is just across the border. Likewise, a call to the most distant point in Mexico is in the 1,911 to 3,000 mile band.

Restructuring reduced the number of bands from 14 to nine, resulting in an increase in calls within a 430 mile range of the U.S. border, while calls outside of the border would decrease. "The changes more closely reflect the cost of handling a call," Stevens said.

Under the restructured distance band schedule, rates for calls to Mexico cities more than 430 miles from the border would decline.

An off-peak 60 percent discount also is part of the restructuring, offering callers an opportunity to save money on calls by planning ahead.

The initial three-minute charge will not change. That charge will apply 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Discounts may apply to each additional minute, depending on the time and day the call is placed.

For example, additional minutes on calls placed to Mexico on a weekday between 7-11 p.m., receive a 40 percent discount. The new 60 percent discount applies to calls placed between 11 p.m. - 7 a.m. Standard day rates applies on calls placed between 7 a.m. - 7 p.m.

On Saturday, a 40 percent discount applies between 7 a.m. - 11 p.m. A 60 percent discount applies from 11 p.m., Saturday until 5 p.m., Sunday.

Director Analyzes Actors

DALLAS (AP) — Come lie down on Frank Perry's couch.

That's what actors like Faye Dunaway, Christopher Reeve and Burt Lancaster have been asked to do when they have appeared in various of the director's dozen movies.

Perry's films — from his first, "David and Lisa," to his latest, "Mommie Dearest" — are a human respite from the space gizmos, super-human barbarians and special effects wizardry that seem to have invaded all cinema in recent years.

"If George Lucas came to me and said, 'I want you to do 'Star Wars IV,' I wouldn't do it,'" Perry said in an interview at his hotel, shortly after arriving in Dallas for the USA Film Festival. "I would be very flattered, but I wouldn't be comfortable — machines, you know. Machines and big size. I'm strongest with people."

Perry says he works like an analyst with his actors, quizzing them, gently, about the motives behind their characters' actions.

Christopher Reeve portrays a priest in Perry's next picture, "Monsignor," scheduled for release around Christmas. Reeve's character, a Vatican priest, juggles the high morals of the church with financial deals with the Mafia, and, of course, has a love affair.

"I went further into Christopher than he knew. It's analysis in a way. It's very intimate and very private," Perry said. "I've always been very gentle about it. My strongest suit is to be like an analyst who is able to help the patient to believe that every step that they have accomplished on the journey was achieved by them."

The only actor he was reluctant to subject to his "psychoanalysis" was Burt Lancaster, who starred in the 1968 film, "The Swimmer."

"You don't do it with Burt Lancaster," Perry said. "I asked him questions. Never tell him. Never say, 'I want you to chain smoke,' or 'I want you to cry,' or 'I want you to feel abandonment when you leave this room.' None of that. 'How do you feel? What do you want here?' And you examine it that way. That's directing."

Perry willingly subjects himself to self-analysis, though.

"My parents felt it very difficult to express any kind of affection," he said. "My mother, who I'm sure adored me, never said, 'I love you.'"

"There's an intimacy that I don't think you can get in 'Raiders of the Lost Ark,' and that's something I've got to do. Maybe it's because that's what I wanted and never got, either from a parent or an analyst."

Many of his earlier pictures were written by his first wife, Eleanor Perry. The 52-year-old director now is married to Barbara Goldsmith, author of "Little Gloria, Happy at Last."

All Perry's pictures — "David and Lisa," "Diary of a Mad Housewife," "Rancho Deluxe" — even "Mommie Dearest" — have had one thing in common, Perry says. All are about "people trying to reach each other."

Some people, he admits, were not reached by "Mommie Dearest," based on Christina Crawford's bitter account of her life with her adoptive mother, Joan Crawford. (Festival organizers teasingly pointed out they had arranged the retrospective of Perry's work so "Mommie Dearest" screened Mother's Day.)

Faye Dunaway would have been nominated for an Academy Award "if it had been about Margaret Sanger or a great publisher — anyone but a movie star," Perry said.

"In Hollywood, the negative feelings against it were particularly strong — the feeling of grave-robbing and all that. In fact, the film was much more sympathetic to Joan, certainly than the book was."

"But Hollywood is very parochial. They want to let sleeping dogs lie, or whatever cliché. That's why I've always been happier living in New York. I'm considered a maverick. I'm an outsider, but that was my choice."

"Monsignor" may irk another interest group, Perry said.

"It's a hard look at the morals and the kind of financial goings-on in the Vatican," Perry said, "but, curiously, it ends up being quite pro-church. I would think that a lot of people who are rigid about Catholicism and the church will be distressed by it. My guess is that the church will be too smart to acknowledge it."

Raised in New York, Perry was the son of "a sort of crazy Californian who came from Portuguese whalers." His father reversed the common advice of the day and went east to make his fortune as a stockbroker.

"My mother came from a very wealthy family that looked down on him," Perry said. "It was a mess. They were both very bright and really unhappy and both died quite young."

As a teen-ager, Perry worked in summer theater. His love affair with film was sparked by the "personal, intimate" films he began to see coming from European directors like Truffaut and Bergman.

"There was no equivalent in the theater and no equivalent in American film, and I thought, I want to try to do that," he said.

The result was "David and Lisa," for which Perry received an Academy Award nomination in 1962.

"That was 20 years ago this spring," Perry said. "It's nice to be here 20 years later."

Power Of Human Will Makes For Good Movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Savage plays a young American whose stay in the Soviet Union turns into a Kafkaesque nightmare that lasts for 38 years in the CBS movie, "Coming Out of the Ice."

Savage plays Victor Herman, who survived imprisonment and brutality in Siberia only because of his dream that he one day would return to the United States.

"Coming Out of the Ice" will be telecast Sunday on CBS.

In 1931, Herman accompanied his parents and sister to the Soviet Union, where his father was to work in an automobile plant. He was then 16.

Young Herman excelled in sports and broke the world's parachute jump record in 1934. After setting the parachute record, he refused to sign a form identifying him as a Soviet citizen. He insisted he was an American.

He was arrested in 1938 for alleged "counterrevolutionary activities." He spent a year in the Gorky prison and the next 10 years in a hard labor camp in Siberia. After his release he married and had a daughter, but was arrested again in 1952.

Herman was exonerated of all charges in 1955. But it was not until 1976 that he was able to leave the Soviet Union.

His epic struggle to survive is told with brutal realism, and is an inspiring story. Savage is excellent as the young man caught in a bewildering dilemma, but struggling to preserve his humanity, his sanity and his will to live. Country singer Willie Nelson also stars as Red Loon, another American in the camp.

The movie also stars Ben Cross ("Chariots of Fire") as a Soviet general, and Francesca Annis as Herman's wife, Galina.

"We went to Finland last October," Savage said. "It was cold but some areas that were supposed to be snowy were oddly not covered with snow for the first time in years. So we had to wait, and the schedules and locations were constantly shifted. Then the snow came and it lasted for months."

"We worked under very difficult conditions because of the cold," he said. "And we were so close to the North Pole that we only had three hours of daylight each day. It made it very difficult to work."

Savage said that despite the stress, it was an excellent experience.

"There were times when I didn't think we'd get through it," he said. "The problems were just overwhelming. But the company always came through."

Savage, who starred in the Academy Award-winning "The Deer Hunter," said that "Coming Out of the Ice" was his first television role since he starred with Patricia Neal and Claude Akins about eight years ago in the Hall of Fame presentation, "Eric."

Takeover Of Gulf Resources Delayed

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has said he will delay action that will make official a holding company's takeover of Gulf Resources & Chemical Corp.

Gulf Resources spokeswoman Jan Gurley said Friday U.S. District Judge George Cire notified her firm that he will order a 30-day delay Monday in certifying the votes pending an appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

But Cire refused to void the shareholders' vote which gave control of the Houston-based natural resources firm to Zopress Commercial S.A., which is headquartered in Geneva, Switzerland.

Zopress attorneys have said a preliminary vote count showed that their firm's 12 candidates for the board of directors had carried 54.96 percent of the ballots, indicating a successful takeover.

Gulf Resources & Chemical Corp. adjourned its annual meeting for the second time Friday without announcing a count of shareholder ballots.

A suit pending in federal court charges that British investor Alan Clore and his firm, Zopress, violated Securities and Exchange Commission regulations by covertly acting as a group in buying Gulf Resources stock.

Let's Punish

Horse stealing wasn't very prevalent in this country around the turn of the century because local citizens had a habit of hangin' hoss thieves.

When they caught an old boy ridin' the wrong horse, they simply hauled him out of the saddle, threw a noose around his neck, and hung him to the nearest tree or barn rafter.

Justice was swift, sure, certain, and final.

Of course, around the turn of the century, we weren't graduating 49,000 lawyers a year from law school. We hadn't begun intimidating law officers to the point they were handling suspects with kid gloves, on tip-toe, with more concern with the criminal's civil rights than the victim's sorrow. And above all, we weren't putting judges in office that were more concerned with commas and periods in indictments than in swift, sure, punishment.

A dead man swinging from a tree with a noose around his neck made a mighty poor client for a lawyer.

Somewhere back down the road, the bleeding hearts in this country sold us a bill of goods about prisoners. The general public became confused over rehabilitation and punishment.

We were told that every wrong-doer can be rehabilitated and should be. Punishment was regarded as cruel and barbaric.

And because of no punishment and our 40-year rehabilitation kick, our prisons are overcrowded, our courts are hopelessly clogged with endless appeals, only five percent of the wrongdoers are ever caught, and of that five percent, less than one percent is ever sent to jail to serve time.

Clearly, rehabilitation is no substitute for punishment.

A few wrong-doers perhaps can be rehabilitated and brought back into society as average citizens.

But we should face up to the fact that we've got a lot of people roaming the streets who were no-good yesterday, are no-good today, and will be no-good tomorrow-and no amount of mollycoddling, soft-pedaling, commahunging by lawyers, judges, civil-righters, dogooders and the plain stupid will ever change the situation.

For the second, third, and endless criminal who has shown that he prefers the life of crime, rehabilitation ought to be thrown out the window and swift, sure, punishment administered.

We think it is utterly ridiculous that the state of Texas has 179 men and women on death row - and many of them have been there for years. If a Texas jury found them guilty and assessed capital punishment, then the punishment ought to be swift, sure and certain.

Here in Andrews, thieves are ripping off the oil path and stealing local building contractors blind. Vandals are destroying houses about as fast as they can be built - and neighbors are blind or reluctant to call the police.

We can't do much about the state or national situation but we could do something locally. Officers, judges, juries, and citizens could become so hard-nosed about dishing out punishment rather than rehabilitation, that we might develop a reputation that put a damper on crime.

It's about time to quit looking for mis-placed commas and periods in indictments, and crack down hard on drunk drivers, thieves, vandals, and killers.

It's swift sure punishment we need - not rehabilitation.

State Capital Highlights

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas prisons are overcrowded and facing costly court-ordered improvements, but Gov. Bill Clements says he will see to it that the state's criminal justice system continues to function.

Clements has ordered prison officials to reverse a recent decision to close the doors of the Texas Department of Corrections to any new incoming prisoners, and has ordered TDC to come up with some other alternatives to solving the crowding problems.

Prison officials had decided to stop accepting new prisoners from county jails in order to comply with a federal court order to provide at least 40 square feet of space for each inmate.

Several counties that also face crowding problems were preparing to challenge that decision when Clements reversed the order.

Clements says TDC's decision "was a mistake from the first instance."

TDC and the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles now plan to release some 450 prisoners immediately to ease the crowded conditions, with another 1,200 prisoners to be released within the next two months. Those inmates would have been automatically released on mandatory supervision within six months anyway, the TDC officials say.

The release of those prisoners should keep Texas in compliance with the court order until new prison units come on line later this summer.

Bridge Repairs

And while state officials were worrying about prison conditions, a group representing highway-related industries was reporting that Texas has more than 17,000 bridges that need to be repaired or replaced.

The Road Information Program (TRIP) released the results of a survey requested by the Texas Good Roads and Transportation Association that shows 17,276 Texas bridges do not meet state and federal engineering criteria.

PHONE-AHOLICS ANONYMOUS

I have finally come to the end of my rope. I must face the fact and confess: I am a phone-aholic. I have two of the things in my private "hide-away from the world" secret office. I have five in my home, two in one office downtown, and seven in the church offices. I am single handedly trying to reach out and touch the whole world.

The worse form of torture I could experience would consist of being bound and gagged next to a ringing phone I could not answer. I would die knowing the call was of the greatest importance. I jump out of the shower and drip water all over the house to answer the thing. I think it is worth it even if it is a wrong number.

My number is similar to the number of a free medical clinic. Every time someone calls my number by mistake, I feel responsible. I fight myself to keep from offering to call the clinic for the person and then go get them to be sure they arrive at the appointed time.

We need an organization like the alcoholics anonymous for us phone freaks. It could be called phone-aholics anonymous. We could meet and confess our problems, have programs on how the phone rules our lives and maybe even hear testimonies from former phone freaks who have been cured. (If there are any who have been cured).

We could set goals for ourselves to try to control our phobias. The ultimate goal would be to be able to talk the thing ring if we did not happen to want to talk. I have a friend who can do this. I was at his place one day when he ignored a ringing phone. He seemed unconcerned. I could not take it I panicked and reached for the phone.

He said "let it ring I don't feel like talking." I said "but it might be important." He said "No friend of mine would call me while I am eating fried catfish." I ran screaming from his apartment. I could not stand it but I must admit that guy has become my standard for success.

The phone company says "reach out and touch someone." I want to reach out and touch Alexander Graham Bell and say, "Your first words should have been, "Watson come here I've got a snake I want you to help me kill."

Farmers Being Punished

The most productive workers in America, instead of being rewarded, are being punished.

High interest, high production costs, low produce prices.

America's farmers are on the ropes; many are going broke or giving up and selling out.

Across breadbasket states, grain elevators are in bankruptcy.

And the law says that when a storage facility goes bust, the grain stored therein is impounded—subsequently to be sold to satisfy creditors.

The grain stored therein does not belong to the farmer who stored it hoping for a better price later.

But the federal bankruptcy law says "impound the grain".

One Missouri farmer refused to accept that. Farmer Wayne Cryts of Puxico drove his truck down to the elevator and stole his own beans.

And went to jail for it.

Farmer Cryts was desperate. Thirty-five and father of two, he was counting on the sale of his soybean crop to repay borrowed money. The only alternative was to sell off the family farm.

That land has been in the Cryts family for six generations; he refused to give it up without asserting his rightful claim to his own beans.

When word got out that he intended to "steal his own beans," farmers converged by the thousands. FBI agents and federal marshals—stepped aside.

Farmer Cryts got his grain back but he went to jail.

From a distance, one can understand the reason assets are impounded once bankruptcy proceedings begin; otherwise every creditor would converge and strip the place.

But this happened at a critical time for Farmer Cryts and for the grossly discriminated-against minority he represents.

Area tractors immediately sprouted yellow ribbons for their "hero hostage".

Bumper stickers and roadside signs read: FREE WAYNE: JAIL THE JUDGE.

Somebody has written a song about "...the farmers want their rights and they believe in Mr. Cryts."

Rocketing IRAs

By Richard L. Lesh
WASHINGTON - Having worked for NASA, I have witnessed some pretty spectacular blast-offs in my time, but what has happened to Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) since new eligibility rules took effect on Jan. 1 rivals the best of them.

By the end of January, just one month after all American workers became eligible to deposit up to $2,000 per year in tax-deferred IRAs ($4,000 for a two-income married couple; $2,250 for a taxpayer with a non-working spouse) new IRA deposits totalling at least $3.6 billion were registered. By the end of February, those deposits grew to $5.9 billion. By the end of March, the total reached $8.7 billion.

For sake of comparison, consider that in 1978, the last year for which complete figures are available, IRA deposits for the entire year checked in at just under $3 billion. Thus, in January we had already surpassed the amount of deposits for all of 1978. And remember, 1978 was a growth year for our economy, whereas in January the current recession hit rock bottom.

Actually, these preliminary figures for the first quarter of 1982 don't tell the whole story.

Mountains of supportive mail are pouring into the jail.

A local radio station raised thousands of dollars for defense and attorney F. Lee Bailey was hired.

State senators seek a presidential "pardon".

Let me explain that Wayne Cryts is a longtime national leader of the militant American Agriculture Movement. That organization led protest marches on Washington in 1978 and 1979.

Some of us are saddened to see America's traditionally independent farmers driven to gang-militancy.

But doggonit—farmers for too long have been taken for granted by the rest of us.

Amend the bankruptcy laws to re-validate warehouse receipt.

If that is not the most we can do, it is the least we can do. And now!

While the $8.7 billion in new IRA deposits includes accounts set up with commercial banks, mutual savings banks, savings and loans, credit unions and mutual funds, they do not include IRAs set up with insurance companies and securities firms, as well as direct stock and bond investments that are a feature of many self-directed IRAs. Yet just one major insurance company estimates that it has already opened 200,000 new IRAs this year. Obviously, complete data; which are not currently available, would reveal an even more dramatic explosion of IRAs.

When the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 was signed into law last August, I said then that the provision that opens IRAs to all workers was the unheralded "sleeper" of that tax reform package—that it would change the saving pattern of the nation, significantly enlarge the capital pool that can be used for business investment and expansion, and give Americans the opportunity to better provide for their retirement. But I believe that the spectacular growth of IRAs now under way cannot be explained by the new tax law alone.

The fact is that even before the law changed on Jan. 1, about 50 percent of the American work force was already eligible to open IRAs. It is clear that the IRA success story now in the making is not only a product of liberalized eligibility, but a desire on the part of Americans to seize the opportunity for greater self-reliance. Individual retirement accounts coupled with staged reductions in personal tax rates, offer workers at all income levels the incentive and the opportunity to provide a secure future for themselves and their families.

Fear about the future of Social Security has likely added to the impetus. The handling of Social Security's financial problems in Washington—the shameless demagoguery, political exploitation and continued evasion of needed reforms to make the system solvent—has convinced many Americans that they had better get serious about providing for themselves.

But whatever the reasons, the impressive beginning of a huge new capital fund for economic growth and personal security is one of the most positive stories of the decade. Just remember you read it here first!

AGENT ORANGE HELP

AUSTIN - The Texas Department of Health recently began a screening program to find Vietnam veterans who may be suffering long-term effects from exposure to herbicide Agent Orange.

We passed the law authorizing this screening program during the last session of the Legislature. Texas is one of the few states to have such a program, but we Texans always have tried to do our part during wars and help our veterans when they got back home.

Many Vietnam veterans may have been exposed to the defoliant, which was widely used in the Southeast Asian conflict to clear jungles. We think about 23,000 Texans might have been exposed to some of the 50 million tons dropped on the jungle between 1961 and 1970.

If you are a veteran of Vietnam and you think you may be suffering ill effects from Agent Orange exposure, first go to your family doctor. He will list your symptoms and send them to the Texas State Department of Health.

The Health Department will send you a list of questions about your military service and tours of duty as well as your civilian exposure to agricultural and industrial chemicals and your family's cancer history.

When appropriate, one of the University of Texas medical schools then will conduct tests on small sections of fat from the veteran's body (fat biopsies), will conduct tests of sperm samples and offer genetic counseling.

Agent Orange is a strong solution of 2,3,5-T and 2,4-T. Similar compounds are used in domestic applications, but Agent Orange is much stronger, and of course more dangerous.

Symptoms of Agent Orange problems include skin rash, sleeplessness, loss of desire, miscarriages, birth defects, cancer, liver damage, blood disorders or nerve damage. If you suffer any of these symptoms, and you or your spouse is a veteran of Vietnam, ask your doctor about this program.

If you want further information about Agent Orange, you may call or write Dr. George Anderson, Texas Veterans Agent Orange Assistance Program, 1100 W. 49th St., Austin, Texas 78756 (512) 458-7251; or the Brotherhood of Vietnam Veterans, 7212 Sir Gawain St., Austin, Texas 78745.

The Texas Veterans Affairs Commission (VAC) also has information. If you live in a county that has a VAC service officer, you may get information from him. Many other veterans' groups, such as the American Legion or the Veterans of Foreign Wars, also know about the program.

Of course, if you want more information you are welcome to call or write our office: Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711, (512) 475-3222.

Bootleg Philosopher

Schedule Wars

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek comes up with an idea for the United Nations, he claims.

Dear editor: Up to now the United Nations hasn't had any luck preventing wars. It passes resolutions against them but nobody pays any attention.

There's an area however where it might function better. Instead of trying to prevent wars it could try scheduling them.

Like it is, Iran and Iraq were doing very well on TV with their war until the Mideast flared up and took away their ratings. Then the Falkland Islands came along and took away the Mideast's ratings.

Have you considered what a predicament there'd be if a fourth war broke out and here we are with only three networks? A war without TV coverage is hardly worth fighting, yet networks can cover just so many at one time. Here's where the UN comes in. It should schedule wars. Assign numbers to countries mad at each other and make them wait their turn. Start a war out of turn and you get no TV coverage.

Also, you've got to remember a network's evening news program lasts only 30 minutes. It's impossible to cover three wars in that span of time and leave room for wrecks, floods, tornadoes, Congress, State Legislatures and other disasters.

Therefore ABC, CBS and NBC ought to get together and divide up the wars. One take Iran-Iraq, another take the Mideast, and another the Falkland Islands.

Like it is, with all three trying to cover these wars at once, no telling how much domestic news they have to leave out. Congress could vote itself another raise and you'd never see it on your TV screen.

Yours faithfully
J.A.

Museum Has $1 Billion Problem

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — The J. Paul Getty Museum has a problem that most other art museums would love to have — how to use best the $1 billion endowment it received from the estate of the late oil financier. What its trustees decide could have a profound effect on the international art scene.

Getty, who died in 1976 without ever seeing the museum, turned it into the richest in the nation and probably the world with a bequest of 4 million shares of Getty Oil Co. stock and other securities worth well over $1 billion.

The windfall has stirred concern in the art world because it immediately put the Getty ahead of any other museum in the country in terms of money it must — not just can — spend.

Federal tax laws require that the Getty distribute 4.5 percent of the bequest in three out of every four years. That means at least $50 million and probably more will be spent almost every year. By contrast, New York's much larger Metropolitan Museum of Art operates on about $27 million annually.

"They have a tremendous ability to dominate the market," said Los Angeles gallery owner Michael Schwartz. "With the kind of funds they have, there really isn't much competition. If they decide to go after a particular piece, there's really nothing to stop them from getting it and if they were to concentrate on any particular area, they could drastically affect the marketplace."

Getty was primarily interested in classical antiquities, French decorative arts and Baroque and Renaissance paintings. And while his interests will continue to be reflected, Getty Museum President Harold Williams says funds will be directed into other areas.

"We will be expanding the collection and probably expanding the scope of the collection beyond what it is today. Second, we are now exploring various ways apart from building the museum (collection) where we can make a contribution to the field of the arts locally and nationally," said Williams, who was chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission before joining the museum.

"Third, a very substantial part of the endowment will be reinvested to maintain the value of the endowment so that we will be able over time to continue to fund the collection." There are some indications that the Getty may share its wealth. The museum purchased Poussin's "Holy Family" jointly with the Norton Simon Museum in Pasadena last year and the two institutions will take turns displaying it. Schwartz and others say more collaborative efforts are in the works, although Williams declined to confirm this.

"We've all been aware of the Getty's situation for some years," said John Ross of the Metropolitan in New York. "And I don't know what (comment) we could add."

Philippe de Montebello, the Met's director, told the Los Angeles Times earlier this year, "I think they (the Getty) will be very prudent and not want to be the ones running up the art market, but obviously if they want something bad enough they have the resources to buy it."

Ian Kennedy, a spokesman in the New York office of Christie's, the art auction house, said he doubted if the Getty would flex its new financial muscles publicly.

"I think it will affect prices, but only for the best things because that's all they'll be buying," Kennedy said. "I don't know what effect it will have on the auction market. Getty won't want to be seen buying publicly, and of course, they're very aware that if they pour money into the market, it will push up prices and be self-defeating."

If the Getty does begin to acquire new works in any volume, it will probably need another facility for storage and display because space at its Malibu site is limited.

Built at a cost of about $17 million near Getty's ranch house on a bluff overlooking the Pacific, the museum is a stunning recreation of the classical Villa del Papi, a Roman villa found at Herculaneum.

About 2.5 million people have toured the museum since its 1974 opening. Parking is limited but admission is free, and the precise Getty once figured its operating expenses were costing him about $3, after-tax, per visitor.

Some of the new funds may go for expanded fellowships. The Getty already has interns from several colleges and has sent questionnaires to about 80 Southern California colleges inquiring about their fine arts programs and facilities. The staff is expanding, with Getty director Stephen Garrett estimating that another 20 people will be hired this year for a total of 130 employees.

The Getty may also expand into new areas technologically. The museum has acquired a Massachusetts archival company called RILA which puts out abstracts of art and architectural publications.

Williams said earlier this year that RILA may ultimately become "an art data base of literature and pictures that will probably be unique in the world and ultimately accessible from any location in the world," a hint that the Getty may have its eye on cable and satellite delivery of art.

The Roman naturalist Pliny the Elder believed that earthquakes were protests from Mother Earth against wicked miners who stole her gold and silver.

DSC Historical Society Sets Dedication Ceremony

The Deaf Smith County Historical Society is inviting the public to help celebrate the dedication of the northwest room of the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum to Bess Turrentine Werner with a reception on Sunday, May 30 from 3 to 4:30 p.m. at the museum.

Mrs. Werner is recognized as the founder of the Deaf Smith County Museum because of her immense contribution to the project. She kept collected artifacts in her barn west of Hereford, and visitors from every state and five countries visited the "Barn Museum" before it was moved to its present location in 1966.

Several other exhibits which have been added, rearranged, or added to will also be highlighted at the reception. Refreshments will be served by members of the Historical Society.

The annual meeting for the membership of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society will begin at 2 p.m. the same day at the museum. All members are urged to attend.

For the 70-year-old Menotti, who has written 17 operas, composing is a chore.

Indeed he hasn't. In addition to the two new children's operas, he's also composed a new work of piano variations with orchestra for the New World Festival of the Arts. It will be performed in Miami next month. He's also doing a concerto for double bass, which The New York Philharmonic will premiere next year.

That's quite a lot of work for an artist who finds composing rigorous. But Menotti says he needs the money.

Andersen Of The Opera

NEW YORK (AP) — Composer Gian Carlo Menotti calls himself the Hans Christian Andersen of opera, because he's written so many musical works for children.

His latest are "A Bride From Pluto," which was performed for the National Children's Arts Festival at Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., last month, and "The Boy Who Grew Too Fast."

But his favorite opera is still the celebrated story of the crippled boy and the Three Wise Men — "Amahl and the Night Visitors" — which Menotti wrote for NBC television in 1951.

"It has brought me the greatest joy of all my operas," he said. "I hear from so many children about it. . . . And it makes me miserable sometimes (when) all of a sudden I get a man with a big beard and two children coming over and saying, 'Hello, Gian Carlo, do you remember me? I was your third Amahl.' I am the same and these people grow up."

SUPPOSE SOMEONE OFFERED YOU THIS BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

I'd like you to let me have $250,000, but don't give it to me now. Just guarantee it to my family - income tax free - when I die. And when that happens, don't expect repayment.

Although I'm only 35, I'm also concerned about having enough money when I retire. I worry about inflation and know I'll need more than Social Security and my company pension. So, when I retire, I want the $250,000 you promised me. I want you to pay it in the form of $25,000 a year for 10 years.

I don't expect this money - for me or for my family - for nothing. Beginning now, I'll pay you 1% of $250,000 each year until I reach age 65. I want to build this into my budget, so I would like my payment each year to remain level and also have the choice to skip a payment if I need to and make it up later.

Between now and the time I retire, you must build up a fund to assure my benefits. You will do this with tax-deferred interest. And, by the way, as the fund grows, you must allow me to withdraw from it anytime I wish; although I understand that withdrawal from the fund will reduce the benefits due to me and my beneficiaries.

After 9 years, if I decide to cancel this arrangement, you have to give back all the money I paid you. However, there is no way you can cancel this arrangement.

Now, there's just one more thing. After I have retired and received $25,000 per year for ten years I still want you to pass an income tax free estate to my heirs when I die of at least $100,000. I expect all of this without making any payments to you after age 65.

If you are ready to accept this deal, I'm ready to make my first payment.

WOULD YOU ACCEPT? WOULD ANYONE?

The proposition offered on the opposite page is a Southland Life Universal Life policy - contract similar to one offered by many life insurance companies.

"The figures cited on the opposite page are for a male age 35, non-smoker and are based on projected cost of insurance rates and on an assumed annual interest rate of 9% credited on cash values. These rates are used as estimates for illustrative purposes only; they are not guaranteed. Southland does guarantee that it will always credit cash values with an annual interest rate of at least 4½% and the contract also contains guaranteed cost of insurance rates. Currently the annual interest rate being paid on cash values is 12.4%, and this rate is subject to change monthly."

There is truly no substitute for the miracle of life insurance.

Speaking Fees Provide Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — One Republican member of the Senate and possibly a second earned more from speaking fees than from their congressional salaries last year, financial disclosure forms show.

Sens. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, were among 19 Republicans and six Democrats who took advantage of a new rule that eliminated the old Senate ban on earning more than $25,000 a year in speaking fees or similar activities.

Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, collected $66,650 from speaking engagements before various trade associations — and $200 for two newspaper articles. He reported that he kept $36,350 of those proceeds and donated the rest to charities, netting a charitable deduction in the process.

The speaking total not only exceeded his congressional salary of $60,662 a year but easily eclipsed the approximately $36,000 to $48,000 Dole reported earning on his investments.

Hatch, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, said he kept $29,700 earned from speaking to various groups. He also said he donated an undisclosed amount in speaking fees to charities. That undisclosed amount, combined with other undisclosed charitable contributions by the senator, totalled $33,900, Hatch revealed.

The two were among 25 senators who reported they earned more than $25,000 from speaking fees. Those most in demand as speakers were Republicans, hardly surprising since Republicans now control the Senate.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, reported earning $48,000 from 30 speeches. Garn, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, took in $13,000 from speeches before banking industry organizations.

Others high on the lecture fee circuit in 1981 were Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who earned $56,250 — all given to charity; Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who earned $40,200 and gave $15,200 to charity; Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., who earned $39,200; and Steve Symms, R-Idaho, who earned $40,700 and gave $3,500 to charity.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nevada, considered President Reagan's best friend in the Senate, picked up $33,500 from speaking, while Sen. Mark Hatfield, the Oregon Republican who chairs the Senate Appropriations Committee, pulled in $31,691 from speeches.

In contrast, 10 senators reported giving no speeches for money.

They are Democrats Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, John Stennis of Mississippi, Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Russell Long of Louisiana, Carl Levin of Michigan, John Glenn of Ohio, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas; and Republican John Warner of Virginia and Independent Harry Byrd of Virginia.

It's hard to identify the richest member of the Senate since the reporting forms require only general estimates of holdings.

But at least 20 senators certainly have over $1 million in assets and several are multimillionaires.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., would appear among the richest, if not the most wealthy, member of the Senate.

He reported assets of $5.1 million to $11.7 million or more and said his investments pulled in income ranging from $1.2 million to $2.8 million.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., an heir to the Ralston Purina Co., reported assets of $3.7 million to $7.3 million and up. He estimated his income from investments to be at least $349,635 and possibly more than $451,222. He had no liabilities.

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., whose family built a fortune in ketchup and pickles, reported assets of $2.89 million to $4 million and up. Nine of his holdings were identified only as worth $250,000 and up — the highest category on the form and one that allows true wealth to be easily hidden. Heinz said income on his investments was $451,749 to $509,838 or more.

Other certifiable millionaires include Kennedy, who earned more than $250,000 in family trusts worth millions; DeConcini, who reported holdings of $5.9 million to $7.5 million and up; and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, with assets of $2.1 million to $4.9 million and up.

Others weren't as fortunate. Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, reported losing $9,615 on his investments and said his assets totalled $68,000. Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., reported earnings of $2,723 and investments of $1,000 to $5,000.

Some reported some unusual sources of income. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., listed $104,571 in deferred compensation from his basketball playing days with the New York Knicks.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the best-known fiddler in the Senate, reported he earned $744 in royalties from his bluegrass record album.

Democratic Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., earned $32,000 from royalties on his book "The Road From Here," a call to liberals to find new ways to solve the country's economic problems.

And at least one senator reported an unusual outlay. Robert Kasten, R-Wisc., said he paid the Internal Revenue Service between $15,000 and $50,000 in back taxes.

OIL FROM OPEC AND OTHERS

U.S. Imports 1973-81

SOURCE: Department of Energy
NEA/Mark Gabronya

After peaking in the late '70s, U.S. oil imports from all sources are now less than at the time of the 1973 oil embargo and are still going down. Imports from OPEC sources are still higher — an average 3.3 million barrels daily last year compared with 2.9 million in 1973 — but show the steepest decline from 1977, the peak import year — 8.7 million barrels daily from all sources, 6.1 million from OPEC. Comparable import figures from Arab producers only are 915,000 barrels daily in 1973, 3.1 million in 1977 and 1.8 million in 1981.

Sociologist Debunks Fears Of Early Inmate Parole

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A prison sociology expert says an emotional wellspring of fear has prompted charges that early inmate parole for Texas prisoners would lead to a jump in the state's rape and murder rates.

Dr. Ben Crouch of Texas A&M University said that most state prisoners have been incarcerated for property offenses or drugs. He said violent and dangerous inmates represent a minority of the prison population and are not likely to be paroled.

of overcrowding, but this crisis didn't happen overnight," Crouch said.

"We're assuming our problem is a prison problem, but we all ought to take some responsibility for it," he said, "including communities that haven't been too anxious to open any kind of corrections services and state officials who haven't been paroling people too fast."

Crouch said a federal judge's mandate to ease overcrowding merely brought the problem to a head.

"It's important to keep in mind when you look at this business in the newspapers — all the rhetoric, the anger — you'll be seeing emotional responses," he said. "Altogether, these responses are symptomatic of a crisis that has been developing over a period of time."

He suggested more communities develop alternative correctional services, such as probation offices, to help reduce the number of people being sent to TDC each year.

"I have encountered people in prison who don't belong there," he said. "Some were no more dangerous than the kitten I have at home."

Some law enforcement officials have charged that the state's plan to issue early paroles to reduce prison overcrowding would result in more violent crimes.

"All of a sudden everybody is mad at the Texas Department of Corrections because

Bishop Found Innocent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Denver bishop accused of violating church law by contending that homosexuality is not a sin has been cleared by a United Methodist committee.

"I share their (the committee's) hope that the process of going through the accusations and the assessing of them will nudge us in the direction of more creative dialogue, rather than vindictive remarks," 67-year-old Bishop Melvin Wheatley said after the verdict was announced Friday.

But he said he doubted if his experience would cause him to shrink from speaking out in the future.

"There's a high risk in pursuing this direction. But I think there is a high risk of sticking to the stereotypes, myths, put-down and rejection of the past," Wheatley said.

The controversy was sparked six months ago when Wheatley wrote to his clergy, "I clearly do not believe that homosexuality is a sin."

Three churches in Georgia and one in Dallas had brought the charges against Wheatley, accusing him of disseminating "doctrines contrary to the established standards of doctrine of the church."

They charged Wheatley with malfeasance of office, maladministration and gross misconduct.

In addition, the First United Methodist Church of Boulder, Colo., in Wheatley's own jurisdiction, accused him of violating the Discipline (law) of the church by appointing a homosexual minister as an associate pastor in Boulder.

However, the seven-member committee, appointed by the Western Division Conference of Bishops of the United Methodist Church, found many of the accusations were based on erroneous information, and it rejected all of them.

"It is clear that references to homosexuality are found in the church's Statement on Social Principles and in a footnote related to candidacy for ministry," the committee said in its verdict.

But the verdict added, "It is less clear whether these Social Principles provide a basis for chargeable offenses

... It is clear there are biblical statements condemning homosexual activity. It is debatable what perspective on homosexuality and homosexual activity emerges when the biblical witness as a whole is brought into interaction with tradition, experience and reason."

"This committee is fully satisfied that there is not reasonable ground for such accusations," the verdict said.

During its deliberations, Wheatley told the committee that his statements do not contradict church doctrine because that doctrine doesn't state that homosexuality is a sin. "It doesn't even say that homosexuality is contrary to Christian teaching," he said.

"It says 'we consider...'"

But the Rev. David Hendrix, 29, of Waverly Hall, Ga., who represented his church as well as United Methodists in Ellerslie and Shiloh, Ga., asked Wheatley, "Are we to throw out 5,000 years of tradition?"

The committee, however, made no pretense that its verdict was the final word on the controversial topic.

"The question of how the United Methodist Church and other Christian groups propose to deal with the reality of homosexuality will continue to be debated. The issue will not be settled by a single vote or the resolution of a single case," the committee said.

The state of Vermont got its name from the two French words, vert mont, meaning "green mountain."

Texas Sports Hall of Fame Dazzling

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer of Fames dedicated to chronicling the deeds of their sports heroes. None is as dazzling as the one at 401 East Safari Parkway, Grand Prairie, Texas. Modeled after the National Football League Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, it currently holds the mementoes of 127 athletes who have brought sports fame to the state of Texas. Golfer Ben Hogan is the only inductee without a display in the building. Hogan's trophies and plaques, by his wish, rest on display at Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth.

On June 4, five more athletes will be join the honor rolls. They include Johnny Rutherford, the three-time Indianapolis 500 champion from Fort Worth; LPGA record holder Kathy Whitworth, with 83 tour victories; Heisman Trophy winner John David Crow of Texas A&M; All-America and All-Pro E.J. Holub of Texas Tech; and two-time American League batting champion Pete Runnels of Lufkin and the Boston Red Sox.

Rutherford recently visited the building and said, "It is a very classy place ... this is the greatest thing that ever happened to me in my life."

Jim Hall, builder of the champion Chaparral race cars, will make the presentation to Rutherford on Saturday morning after an evening banquet open to the public. Patty Berg, co-founder of the LPGA, will honor Whitworth.

Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, will do the honors for Holub, his former linebacker.

Elmer Smith, who recruited Crow for the Texas Aggies, will make the presentation on behalf of the great halfback of Bear Bryant's days at A&M.

Watty Myers who coached Runnels in Lufkin will induct the line drive hitter supreme.

The Texas Sports Hall of Fame has been open a year and the news is both good and bad.

Fred Graham, who handles publicity plus a hundred other duties for the TSHF, helps pay hospital/surgical bills. For person to person health insurance call Jerry Shipman 801 N. Main 364-3161 says the good news is that "in our first year of existence we will equal or surpass the response to the NFL Hall of Fame in its first 12 months."

However, the bad news is that attendance is still under projections, particularly for April and May of this year.

"Sooner or later we will catch hold," said Graham. "The response has always been positive from the people who come here." Graham said all kinds of activities are planned for the hall. "We even have a baseball card collectors show here in June," Graham said. "You'd be surprised at the trivia buffs and baseball card collectors that we have tour our building."

He added, "There are still a lot of sports fans who don't know we are here ..."

Defending Champ to Stay in Pits

Unser Out of 500

By STEVE HERMAN AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Defending champion Bobby Unser is staying in the pits this year in the Indianapolis 500, thanks to young Josele Garza.

"Josele has a tremendous amount of talent, but he's very young and lacking in experience," said Unser, who said Friday that his commitment as team manager for the 23-year-old Garza will keep him from defending his Indy title this year.

That makes Unser the first driver in 25 years not to defend his championship in the Indy 500.

Unser, whose 19 previous Indy starts ranks second only to A.J. Foyt's 24, ended speculation that he might step into another team's backup car to make a qualification attempt this weekend for the May 30 race. He said Garza offered to release him from his commitment, but that he felt obligated to finish what he started with the driver, who was last year's Indy Rookie of the Year.

"I could have quit," said Unser, 48. "But I took on a job last year with the Garza family and agreed to do the best that I could trying to further Josele's racing."

Unser, a three-time Indy winner, might have accepted an offer to drive had Garza qualified last week. But the young Mexican driver crashed his primary car in practice, then had a lot of trouble, building speed in his backup machine.

Garza's best effort in practice this past week came Friday, when he recorded a lap at 194.510 and gave a lot of credit to Unser.

Unser would become the 17th defending Indy champion to pass up the race the following year. The last to do it was Sam Hanks, who announced his retirement from Victory Lane after the 1957 race.

Unser indicated he will drive in other champ car races this season after the Garza team is running smoothly.

Led by pole-position winner Rick Mears' track record four-lap average of 207.004 mph, 22 of the 33 starting spots were filled during the first two days of time trials last weekend. Except for Unser, all of the 500's former winners who are still active in racing have already qualified.

Besides Mears, the 1979 winner, four-time champion

A.J. Foyt qualified last week on the outside of the front row; Mario Andretti and Gordon Johncock earned second-row starts; three-time winner Johnny Rutherford qualified in the fourth row; and three-time champ Al Unser, Bobby's younger brother, qualified in the sixth row.

Guthrie Giving Wilson No Chance

By HANK LOWENKRON AP Sports Writer

Janet Guthrie, the female pioneer at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, gives the second woman to drive at the 2 1/2-mile oval no chance for victory in the 1982 race.

"Desire (Wilson) is a very good driver but there's not a prayer she's going to win this race this year," said Guthrie after the car she drove in becoming the first woman to try and qualify here was presented to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Hall of Fame.

"Desire doesn't have the equipment to win at Indianapolis," said Guthrie, who failed to qualify for the race in 1976 and then made the field the next three years. "It's difficult to convey to the public the importance of equipment in this race. The public seems to think the driver is the only thing that matters."

Guthrie, 44, still hopes to return to Indy as a driver.

"I have someone working to put together a package for next year and that person is optimistic, so I'm optimistic of returning," she said.

The turbo-charged Vollstedt Guthrie drove was presented to the Museum Friday.

"I had not planned to come back during the period of the race but when Bryant Heating (her sponsor in 1976) called about donating the car, I was delighted," she said. "The car brings back a lot of memories."

Guthrie, whose best finish at Indianapolis was ninth in 1978, has mixed emotions about her debut at the track.

"It was a very trying period of time because of all the emotion, hostility and scepticism," she said.

Zimmer's Nightmare Continues, Rangers Fall

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer
 Manager Don Zimmer was thinking that maybe — just maybe — he had seen, heard or even imagined everything that could possibly go wrong as his Texas Rangers were losing 19 of 23 games.
 Boy, was he wrong.
 Friday night, the Rangers made it 20 of 24, while being shut out by the Kansas City Royals 3-0. Dennis Leonard started the shutout for the Royals, but Dan Quisenberry had to finish up. The Royals relief ace entered the game when Leonard's right hand was broken by a line drive-turned-double play in the seventh inning.

 "For the last five days, I've laid in bed thinking that I've seen everything happen...I really couldn't come up with a new one. Tonight, I saw a new one," Zimmer said.

 "Break a pitcher's hand and come up with a double play. That's a new one. That's one I hadn't thought of," the Texas Manager said. "Instead of being down 2-1 with the four, five and six hitters coming up, it's a double play and a broken hand."

 Leonard had given up just one hit and led 2-0 when Mike Richardt opened the Rangers seventh with a double. Buddy Bell followed with a smash up the middle that ricocheted off Leonard's right hand — his pitching hand — to second baseman Frank White.
 Not knowing whether the ball had hit the ground, White threw to first baseman Willie Aikens.

 "I thought the ball hit the top of the mound and floated out to me at second," White said. Then, White said he heard teammates George Brett and John Wathan holler that the ball hadn't touched the ground, "and I yelled at Willie to throw it back to second."

Aikens fired back to White, and the Royals had doubled off Richardt, who was standing on third.
 Later, X-rays showed that Leonard, now 5-3, had broken the first two fingers on his right hand and would be lost to the team from six to eight weeks. It was the 18th incapacitating injury sustained by the Royals this season.
 In earning his 10th save, Quisenberry allowed another two hits, polishing off a four-hitter. Amos Otis drove in two of Kansas City's three runs with double and a sacrifice fly.

fourth in a row. Rick Langford, 3-6, gave up 14 of Boston's hits in 51-3 innings. Tom Burgmeier, 2-0, was the winner in relief.
Orioles 3, Blue Jays 0
 Left-hander Mike Flanagan and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter, and John Lowenstein drove in a pair of runs as Baltimore won three in a row for the first time this season. One of Lowenstein's RBI came on a solo homer.
 Flanagan gave up just five hits over seven innings, despite getting hit in his left bicep in the third inning with a line drive by Barry Bonnell. The arm did not stiffen until the seventh inning, when Tim Stoddard came on. Tippy Martinez worked the final inning.

with relief help from Doug Corbett.
White Sox 3, Indians 2
 The White Sox won in 62-3 innings when a heavy downpour at Chicago forced umpire Bill Haller to call the game. Bill Almon had just snapped a 2-2 tie with an RBI double when the rains came. Haller waited an hour for the rain to stop and another hour, while the grounds crew worked on the field before declaring it unplayable.
 Britt Burns went all the way for the White Sox, recording a seven-inning, six-hitter.

Lea Flexes Muscles, Beats Cincinnati

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer
 Since pitching a no-hitter last year, Montreal's Charlie Lea has struggled with elbow problems.

But his performance Friday night certainly gave him a shot in the arm.
 "I don't want to have to sit and watch the team play like I did last year," said Lea after pitching the Expos to a 2-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds with Woodie Fryman's relief help in the ninth.

Lea had a no-hitter going until giving up a single to Dan Driessen with one out in the sixth. He was lifted after giving up another single to Driessen leading off the ninth.

Pitching virtually pain-free, Lea struck out four and walked six for his second victory against two losses. He saw similarities between Friday night's victory and his 4-0 no-hitter against San Francisco on May 10, 1981.

Driessen's first hit, by the way, loaded the bases for the Reds, who had put runners on by a walk and second baseman Tim Lincecum's throwing error on a grounder. But Lea got the next two batters to take third strikes.

Lea also helped his cause with a pair of hits, including an RBI single in the second inning.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was St. Louis 6, Los Angeles 3; Houston 5, New York 1; Atlanta 7, Philadelphia 6; San Diego 7, Pittsburgh 5 and Chicago 6, San Francisco 4.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 3
 Ken Oberkell drove in three runs with three singles and Steve Mura scattered five hits in 81-3 innings as St. Louis beat Los Angeles.

The Cardinals overcame a three-run Dodger first inning, knocking out Los Angeles starter Jerry Reuss in the sixth, when they scored three times. The loss was the third straight for Reuss, 4-4.

The Cardinals scored twice in the fourth inning on Oberkell's two-out, two run single. St. Louis tied it in the fifth when Ozzie Smith doubled with one out, took third on a groundout and scored on a wild pitch.

St. Louis broke the tie in the sixth when Reuss walked Lonnie Smith with one out, then gave up successive singles to Tito Landrum, Oberkell and Glenn Brummer.

Mura, 4-3, walked three and struck out two before needing relief help in the ninth from Bruce Sutter, who gained his 12th save.

Astros 5, Mets 1
 Don Sutton scattered six hits in eight innings and became the first NL pitcher to win seven games this year in Houston's victory over New York.

Sutton, 7-1, struck out seven and walked three in posting his fifth straight victory against New York. Frank LaCorte pitched the ninth inning for the Astros.

Alan Ashby drove in two runs for the Astros, one with a single in the fourth and another with a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Mike Scott, 3-3, was the losing pitcher.

Braves 7, Phillies 6
 Chris Chambliss drove in the tying run, then scored the game-winner on third baseman Mike Schmidt's error in the seventh inning as Atlanta beat Philadelphia.

After trailing early by five runs, the Braves rallied for four runs in the fifth inning and another in the sixth before Claudell Washington led off the seventh with a single. He was sacrificed to second and scored on Chambliss' single to tie the game 6-6.

Chambliss took second on Dale Murphy's single, reached third when Bob Horner fled to center and came home when Schmidt bobbled Bruce Benedict's grounder.

Padres 7, Pirates 5

Ruppert Jones hit a pair of run-scoring singles and San Diego used some shoddy Pittsburgh fielding to beat the Pirates. The Pirates made two errors, leading to three unearned San Diego runs.

John Montefusco, 2-4, hurled the first six innings and got his first win since April 21 with relief help. Pittsburgh starter Eddie Solomon, 1-5, gave up nine hits and three runs in the five innings he worked.

Celtics Force Showdown

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Boston Celtics, who made Philadelphia's offense and its once-formidable series lead disappear on the same day, are one victory away from completing their second straight miracle playoff comeback against the 76ers.

The Celtics held Philadelphia to a record-low 27 points in the second half Friday night and posted an 88-75 victory to even the National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series at 3-3.

The 76ers, who blew a 3-1 lead in the Eastern Conference finals against Boston a year ago, will suffer the same fate again unless they can beat the Celtics at the Boston Garden in Game 7 Sunday.

"We can't overlook the fact that this is still a seven-game series," Boston Coach Bill Fitch said. "We still have to go home and play hard."

Fitch said he felt no sense of deja vu regarding this series and last year, saying: "I have enough trouble with English without trying French."

Some of the Celtics players said they didn't believe last year's comeback would help them Sunday.

"This game (the sixth) and what happened in the past is history," said center Robert Parish, who scored 14 points and pulled down 13 rebounds for the Celtics. "The only thing that matters is Sunday."

But forward Cedric Maxwell added, "It's not over, but if the 76ers said what they really feel inside, they would say they had lost a golden opportunity to end the series at home."

"I'm so tired of hearing about last year," 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham said. "We're down, but we'll get a good night's sleep, practice some tomorrow and then go up to Boston and try to win."

The 76ers shot only 35 percent for the game, but their offense was especially ineffective in the second half, when they hit only seven of 34 shots for 20 percent.

The 27 second-half points was an NBA playoff low since the league adopted the 24-second clock in 1954. The previous record was 28 points by Los Angeles against Milwaukee on April 7, 1974.

The 11 points scored by the 76ers in the fourth quarter tied the playoff record low held by three other teams. In the final 18 minutes of the game, the 76ers had four field goals, and two of those were on goaltending calls.

Philadelphia guard Andrew Toney, who scored 39 points in one 76ers' victory and 30 in another during the series, scored three points and was a nightmarish 1-for-11 from the field.

"Offensively, we couldn't generate anything in the second half," Cunningham said. "When we had good shots, we didn't make them, and the Celtics were very effective at blocking shots inside."

"It hurts. It would have been great to end it tonight," said Julius Erving, who led all scorers with 24 points although he was only eight of 20 from the field. "We had the nice crowd. Now we have to win one on the road at Boston Garden. It will be tough. We know it's all uphill."

The 76ers appeared to be ready to silence talk about last year in the first period as they took a 25-10 lead with 3:42 left on a basket by Toney, but that was to be his only field goal of the game.

The Celtics, who have won an unprecedented 14 NBA titles and are seeking to become the first team to successfully defend their championship since 1969, cut the deficit to 26-20 by the end of the first period.

Boston tied the score four times — at 51-51, 53-53, 57-57 and 67-67 — but didn't take the lead until Parish scored with 7:58 left in the game for a 69-67 edge.

That basket was the eighth of 12 straight points for the Celtics. Larry Bird, who had 14 points and 17 rebounds for Boston, completed that run of points with a basket that gave the Celtics a 73-67 advantage.

Stabler Cool About Camp

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers quarterback Ken Stabler is philosophical about coming into training camp number two behind his former understudy Gifford Neilsen.

"Any way you say it, the job belongs to Gifford," Stabler said after being the first player to show up for the team's mini-camp this weekend. "But the chase isn't over yet. I've still got plenty of confidence in my ability. All I'm asking for is a fair shot."

Stabler emerged from his customary low off-season profile and wonders why there should be any curiosity about his activity or if he'll return to the team.

"I've just been taking care of business and listening to what people say about me," said Stabler, who religiously avoided working out in off-season training at the Oilers' new facilities.

"Just because I haven't been working out here doesn't mean I'm not in shape," Stabler said. "I've been lifting some weights. I jog around the lake close to my home. I've kept my weight down. I feel great."

Stabler not only has to take a back seat to Neilsen, he must contend with speculation that he will be waived because the Oilers chose West Virginia quarterback Oliver Luck in the second round of last month's draft.

"There's no reason to think that anyone who's involved in the mini-camp won't be with us in San Angelo," the team's training spot, Oiler coach Ed Biles said. "The purpose of this weekend isn't to make personnel decisions, and no team's going to be talking trade right now."

Stabler says he's heard the rumors too. "If they don't want me, then they should just call me in and tell me," Stabler said. "Nobody's told me anything. I want to be as productive as I can for everybody on the team. I'm ready to play any role they want me to play."

Stabler has thrown 27 touchdowns and 46 interceptions in his two seasons with the Oilers and would prefer to end his career on a positive note. "I know I'm nearing the end of the line," Stabler said. "I'm not saying this season will be my last, though. When I go out, I want it to be with a good taste in my mouth."

Philadelphia guard Andrew Toney, who scored 39 points in one 76ers' victory and 30 in another during the series,

WHO AM I?

Off the field, I like to fish and hunt. Don't be fooled by my career batting average of .167. There's more to what I can do. I was an All-American at West Liberty (W.Va.) College. Even now, I live under a family shadow.

Mustangs Clip AHS, Advance to Regional

The Coronado Mustangs completed a two-game sweep of Amarillo High Friday with a 3-2 win at the Texas Tech University diamond. The bidistrict win puts the Ponies, District 4-5A champs, into the Regional next week against El Paso Burgess, which defeated crosstown rival El Paso Hanks 8-1 and 4-1 to advance in the playoffs.

Coronado, which unseated defending state champion Monterey in a loop playoff, had beaten the Sandies 10-7 Tuesday in Amarillo, and used the strong arms of Richard Smith and Brett Marshall to stifle the Sandstorm on three hits Friday to cap the sweep. Smith hurled 4 and one-third innings, limiting the Sandies to one hit, but was pulled in favor of Marshall in the fourth after he issued his seventh and eighth walks of the game.

Marshall shut out AHS the rest of the way, allowing two hits.

Coronado grabbed a 2-0 lead in the second inning on consecutive triples by Gary Beard and Jerry Foster and an infield out by Kent Meador. The Sandies came back with a run in the third after an errant pick off attempt by Smith sent AHS' Tony Ellis to third and he scored on an infield out by Roger Busboom.

Ellis narrowed the score 3-2 in the fourth with a single to right, scoring Vance Ivie, who had reached on a base on balls and cruised to second on a wild pitch.

The Mustangs scored the game-winning run in the third after Donald Cristan tripled to right field and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mark Gillham.

Nelson On Track With 11-Under Total

By ED SHEARER AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Larry Nelson had his goal in mind, and was pretty much on target halfway through the $300,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I told Jeff Thomsen what I had in mind was 24-under," Nelson said Friday after firing a 67 for an 11-under-par 133 total and a 1 shot edge over Scott Hoch.

"It would be a new tournament record," Nelson said, "and I figured it would win."

Nelson, the reigning PGA champion, said he feels good about his chances.

"It's kind of like you're waiting for something to happen," he said. "I didn't play very well today and shot 67. I hope that's an indication of things to come the next two days."

Hoch, currently No. 6 on the PGA money list for this season, had posted his 67-134 before Nelson began his round on the 7,007-yard, par-72 Atlanta Country Club course.

Nelson said that being 4 down when he started could have a negative effect on a player "if you try to get it back in four holes."

"But I felt if I shot even par I'd be only 4 shots back," he said. "It was kind of a relaxing day." Nelson moved into a house adjacent to the 18th fairway on this course three weeks ago.

"I'm a member, but I don't have a handicap yet," he said.

Nelson said one of the reasons he bought a home at ACC was because of this tournament. He said, however, he had been able to play only two rounds here before the start of the tournament.

Nelson appeared to be in position to turn it into a route when, while playing the back side first, he went to the 18th hole with a 10-under-par total.

But, he duckhooked his tee shot and took a bogey 6 and regained that shot on the first hole when he birdied from 20 feet. He took the lead by sinking a 7-footer on No. 7.

Nelson's front side was an experience. He had two 1-foot birdies and also scored from 12, 35 and 10 feet. He bogeyed the 13th when he 3-putted from 45 feet and saved par from a bunker at No. 10.

Lanny Wadkins had a torrid 64 despite bogeying his first hole and was alone in third place at 136.

Three players were tied at 137 — Peter Jacobsen 69, Wayne Levi 68 and Roger Maltbie, who capped a 67 with an eagle 3 on the final hole.

Defending champion Tom Watson had a 70 and headed a quartet at 70 that also included first round co-leader Keith Fergus, who had a 72. Gibby Gilbert was in the group with a 69 and 1981 Canadian Open champion Peter Oosterhuis of Britain got there with a 71.

It took a 1-over-par total of 145 to make the cut for the final two rounds, and 81 players made it.

The major casualties were Ben Crenshaw, who had a 71-148, and Wayne Player, the son of Gary Player and the only amateur in the field, who missed it by 1 shot at 74-146.

Caponi Pulling Out of Slump

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Donna Caponi, winless after 10 events following a banner season last year, may be out of her slump.

Caponi shot a 2-under-par 70 and is two strokes behind leader Sally Little after Friday's opening round of the $150,000 Chrysler Plymouth Classic on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Caponi, who was tied with Kathy Morse, gives much of the credit for her better play to a month off she recently took to "clean the cobwebs out."

"After 18 years on the circuit, it's tough to be ready every time out," said Caponi, who last year earned $192,916 but managed just $35,841 this season. "And for me to take a month off is really something. Last year, I skipped two tournaments in a row, and before that I never missed more than one week."

Little, this season's leading money winner with $125,084, was a stroke ahead of Amy Alcott after her 68. Vicki Tabor and Kathy Hite are tied for fifth at 71.

Kathy Whitworth, the defending champion, was at 1-over-par 73. The Hall of Famer surpassed Mickey Wright on the LPGA list for most tournament victories last week by winning her 83rd title in Atlanta.

A pro since 1965, Caponi last season won five tournaments and became one of the LPGA's three millionaires, joining Whitworth and JoAnne Carner. This year, Caponi has not finished higher than fifth place.

"I started the year with a bad attitude and couldn't get self-motivated," said Caponi, who claims her attitude changed after taking time off following the Dinah Shore Invitational in April.

"Things were getting so bad, that even before I would get to the course I had a bad shot. When I finally decided to take a vacation I played only six days of golf in four weeks," she said.

Caponi said the layoff helped.

"My mental attitude is better," she said. "This is my third tournament since returning, and I was eighth in the previous two. Today, I had a dumb bogey on the 10th hole. Still, I played a solid round."

"I'm enjoying golf more," Caponi added. "I have my own private plan — aim to be in the top 10 every week and you can usually finish fifth. And if you do that, then you'll win a few," she said.

Switzer in Hot Water Over Postage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — University of Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer says he paid for the OU stationery and postage he used to promote a country singer, an Oklahoma City newspaper has reported.

On Friday, Austin radio station KVET reporter Jim McNabb said the station received a letter signed by Switzer, who urged the station to listen to and play a record by singer John Kelly. The letter said Switzer had signed Kelly to a nine-year contract.

McNabb said the postage meter imprint on the letter reads, "State of Oklahoma, Official mail, Private use illegal."

Switzer, though, was quoted in the Oklahoma City Times as saying he had paid for the materials. Switzer could not be reached for further comment Friday night.

OU attorney Kurt Ockerhauser told McNabb he would begin investigating the matter next week.

"We'll probably ... talk with coach Switzer and find out what the situation is and get some kind of clarification on the matter probably by midweek," said Ockerhauser.

District Attorney Kay Huff in Norman, Okla., said she would investigate the matter if a complaint were filed.

"It just concerned me as to whether or not he is using university funds and university stationery to do what appears to be — at least from what you've said — a promotional letter," Ms. Huff told McNabb.

The record's co-producer, Fred Vail of Mariner Records in Nashville, said he was aware of the letter, but not the manner in which it was sent.

"I knew that there was a letter going out, but from my understanding I thought it was something Barry was doing on his own," he told the reporter.

Switzer said he hopes to do for Kelly what former Texas Coach Darrell Royal did for Willie Nelson.

McNabb said the letter, dated May 18 and postmarked the 20th, said in part:

"This was an exciting and interesting experience for an old football coach. I think you will find this young man a good talent and I would appreciate your listening to John and if you like him as I do, how about allowing your listeners to hear him, also?"

"I have signed John to a nine-year contract so I have a vested interest in his career. I hope John can do for me what Willie (Nelson) did for (former Texas) Coach (Darrell) Royal.

"If I can return the favor I will be more than happy to do so — would suggest possibly your sports department giving me a call for an interview if you like."

Financial Health Remains Shaky

NEW YORK (AP) — The financial health of corporate America remains shaky, as two recessions since 1980 have sapped profits and an unprecedented period of high interest rates has made it increasingly costly to borrow money to weather the economic storms.
 Already this year, several major companies have failed. And economists say more shocks are expected.
 Edward Yardeni, chief economist at the investment firm of E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc., points to a surge in business borrowing in a sluggish economy, saying that if the trend continues, "we think the risks of a financial crisis will increase significantly."

California-based retailer. Dun & Bradstreet Corp., a private financial information service, reports 8,599 business failures this year through May 13, up 45.4 percent from the same 1981 period.
 The Commerce Department reported this past week that corporate profits dropped 17.5 percent in the first three months of this year from the final quarter of last year. The decline was the third largest recorded.
 The government also revised earlier estimates and reported inflation-adjusted economic activity, as measured by the gross national product, fell at an annual rate of 4.3 percent in the first quarter after falling 4.5 percent in the last three months of 1981.

Killer Bees Escaping From Laboratory

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — It's the stuff of a second-rate horror movie — killer bees escaping from a Brazilian laboratory to the surrounding countryside where they sting people and animals to death.

The swarming horde reproduces rapidly in the wild and heads steadily north to Texas.

The above scenario comes from real life.

And although scientists disagree over how dangerous the bees are, they expect them to reach the southern tip of Texas by 1990 or earlier. Some fear the invaders will disrupt vegetable cultivation in the fertile Lower Rio Grande Valley.

"It's really going to be a problem. The situation with livestock and people being hurt is a definite problem," said Larry Chandler, an entomologist with the U.S. Agriculture Department lab in Weslaco.

An international expert on the menace cautioned against panic.

"This is not going to be a public health problem," Orley Taylor, professor of entomology at the University of Kansas, said in a telephone interview. "This should not be anything that should cause anyone to move out of South Texas. Fire ants should be a worse problem."

The culprit is the Africanized honey bee, a subspecies of the European honey bee common in the Western Hemisphere. The African bees are slightly smaller and their sting is no more venomous. However, they tend to sting in large numbers and chase an intruder over a wide area.

A group of the African bees were imported to Brazil in a breeding experiment to see if they would improve honey production.

When the bees swarmed and divided into new colonies, some escaped the apiary in 1956 and bred with European-type bees in the wild.

The African bees earned their nasty reputation from their often extreme sensitivity to outside disturbance.

The garden variety of honey bee will sting if provoked but, generally, a hive of them will not bother people who stay six feet away. African bees, Taylor said, can attack animals or people who come within 100 yards of their hive.

In Venezuela, 70 people have died in the last 3½ years from African bee stings. Thousands of animals — horses, cows, pigs, ducks, chickens, dogs and birds — have wandered too close to a hive and been killed.

"Usually the fatalities are cases where people could not get away fast enough," said Taylor. "A man riding a tractor came up on a colony and could not get off his tractor fast enough. Slow-moving boats going under a bridge populated by several colonies have been attacked."

The fatal attacks involve several hundreds of stings within 30 seconds, he said.

The bees have spread south from Brazil to Argentina and as far north as Panama. Taylor fears many problems will develop in Mexico, with its large agricultural central valleys.

"Mexico has a very excellent habitat for the African bees and that country's beekeeping industry is going to be devastated," he said.

Even if Mexican beekeepers can keep their hives pure from Africans, they will have decreased honey production, Taylor said. The wilder bees tend to be better food gatherers and out-compete with domestic bees in the same area.

The other problem is that African bees will take over domestic hives and make it difficult or impossible for most amateurs and many professional beekeepers to manage colonies.

Beekeepers generally are either primarily honey producers or those who lease their hives for commercial pollination.

In South Texas, certain vine plants require honey bee pollination for a large, high quality crop. Cucumbers, squash, honey dew, cantaloupe and other members of the cucurbit family fall into this category, which accounts for $50 million in annual revenue locally.

Citrus trees are self-pollinating but produce a high-grade honey.

Some beekeepers fear they will not be able to handle hives of hybrid bees should African varieties breed with their colonies.

"My guess is that if it comes here, that's going to be the end of beekeeping and the end of certain vegetable growing," said Joe Mercer of Monte Alto, a commercial beekeeper for the past four years.

"But there's another school of thought that something will happen and we won't get it as bad here," he said.

Mercer moves his 3,000 bee colonies to other parts of Texas and other states when pollination season is over.

"It would be very, very bad," agreed Waylon Chandler of Weslaco, another beekeeper. "Pickers couldn't get in there and pick certain crops if the bees are near the field."

Wayne Showers of Griffin and Brand of McAllen, one of the nation's largest vegetable producers and shippers, said the industry is aware of the problem and need for research but no one is pushing the panic button.

Taylor says the problem will not be that severe.

"The hybridized bees are hard to handle but any good, experienced beekeeper can handle them," the scientist said. "He just has to be dressed up head to toe and has to keep the bees away from people."

The situation in South Texas will be less drastic than in Central and South America, he added, because the open country here will make it easier to spot the swarms. The tropical bees

Grain Stocks Are Up

AUSTIN—A slowdown in export and cattle feeding has led to a 31 percent increase in Texas stocks of wheat, corn, sorghum, and other grains, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

The April 1 report of stored grain issued by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service indicates that grain sorghum stocks were up 53 percent over last year. The supply of sorghum was estimated at 70.4 million hundredweight (cwt.).

Brown said that Texas corn stocks were 10 percent above the first quarter of 1981 with 106.7 million bushels in commercial warehouses and on-farm storage facilities.

Wheat stocks remain high at 95.1 million bushels, a 14 percent increase over the 1981 first-quarter total. The forecast for this year's wheat crop before farmers began signing up for the Federal acreage reduction program was 205 million bushels, a record for Texas.

Pioneering in the '80s: Boiling water for instant coffee when the microwave is out of order.

Another nice thing about the horse: You never have to empty the ashrays.

are not expected to fly north of a climatic line running roughly through Dallas.

Beekeepers have successfully replaced African queen bees with European queens to breed out the undesirable traits, he said.

Another theory being pursued in U.S. Department of Agriculture labs in Baton Rouge, La., is to breed European-type bees to be less susceptible to the more dominant genes of African bees.

Funding has been inadequate for the research, Taylor said.

"It's like any kind of problem like this. The government approaches it on a crisis management basis. It's still too far away for them to get serious," he added.

No one, including Taylor, will predict what will happen when the bees arrive in Texas.

"There's nothing that anybody can do except stimulate interest in research," said Charles Allen, area entomologist with the Texas A&M University extension service. "I don't know what the loss will be, but it's certainly worth trying to stop them."

Ranch Scouts Organized For Girls

EOLA, Texas (AP) — Ranch Scouts live in sparsely populated areas, but that didn't keep the Eola troop from selling more than 400 boxes of Girl Scout cookies in a town with barely 200 people.

The girls meet once a month instead of every week. Some of the troop members, ages 6 to 17, help out on their parents' farms. Troop leader Debbie Krieg has two small sons, but no daughters.

Mrs. Krieg, who organized the group last fall, said, "At first it was kind of rough, really different from just your straight Girl Scouts."

One third grader travels 10 miles to meetings, held every first Saturday of the month in the home economics room at Eola High School.

Eola had not previously had a troop, said Kathy Hassell, staff member at El Camino Girl Scout Council. Students ride the bus home and cannot stay after school, when Girl Scouts traditionally meet.

Ms. Hassell developed the ranch scout program last fall and has begun troops in Eola, Rocksprings and Paint Rock.

The 16 girls in the Eola troop have participated in a campout, earned a skating badge and worked on several nature projects.

"Most of the time we choose things the younger girls can work on. We try to incorporate everyone into the whole activity," Mrs. Krieg said.

Normally Girl Scout troops are divided into separate age groups, from primary grade Brownies to Senior Scouts in high school.

"I noticed especially on the campout the older girls took care of the younger ones," Mrs. Krieg said. "They all had to do chores. There was never a scramble, knock on wood." She said scouting is especially important in rural areas, where girls are isolated from their peers.

"In town you can go to the store or the movie. Things are right at your fingertips. Out here you travel 30 miles to go to the show...Some of the kids have to help mom and dad in the field," Mrs. Krieg said.

Erlinda Torres, 13, said she joined Scouts because "you get to meet more girls." Her twin sister Ermalinda added, "We get to have fun, and be away from parents."

Mrs. Krieg, who lives on a ranch three miles east of Eola, said she volunteered to be a leader because she grew up as a Girl Scout in San Angelo.

"I just feel I got so many values out of Scouting, a feeling of discovering your own talents... getting along with people and holding responsibilities."

"Out here you have school and church and that's it. You do have these values taught at home. Scouting gives that little extra umph you don't get at home," she said.

Mrs. Krieg took the Scouts on their first campout in April, and despite rainy weather and soggy firewood, she said the girls are anxious for another trip.

"Before I ever left Sunday they were asking when the next campout was. I said let me get home from this one and rest," Mrs. Krieg said.

Betty Keele, 13, joined the troop in April. She lives on a farm three miles from Eola, where she helps feed her parents' livestock.

She said she likes Scouts because "you get away from the house, and what they do is fun." At home, she said she "watches TV and eats."

Another member of the troop, 8-year-old Erica Payne, said, "We all get along. We like to be nice."

"They have a lot of enthusiasm. They're real proud they're ranch scouts," Ms. Hassell said of the Eola group.

Mrs. Hassell said several previous attempts to start troops in rural areas had failed. She heard about Ranch Scouts from another Girl Scout council.

"One of the main things in Girl Scouts is learning to work as a team with not only girls but adults, having a part in the decision making and carrying out of their decisions, not coming to where someone's doing everything for them."

Rent-a-Wife Business Successful

ROUND ROCK, Texas (AP) — Susan Stanton will leave a love note under your pillow or listen to you gripe about work. And, for $60 an hour, she'll even argue with you about sex.

Her new business is called rent-a-wife, and her services are anything legal you desire.

She's running a fledgling business selling a fantasy to lonely bachelors, she says, who "need somebody to talk to, to be with, another person who cares."

"What I do best," says Ms. Stanton, "is take care of a man." This is not, Ms. Stanton says emphatically "out-call service."

The 39-year-old Round Rock mother was a full-time wife for 15 years, before separating last year, and wants to get back in the business, on a part-time, no-commitment basis.

The first day her "rent-a-wife" ad ran in the newspaper, Stanton talked to 20 men.

She was booked for most of the first weekend with three customers, and was negotiating with a couple more.

There are two basic categories of work, and the fee is higher if you're underfoot.

For $12 an hour, Ms. Stanton will do all the things a maid would, but add a facsimile of romance.

"I'll leave little love notes under the pillow or cute stuffed dolls that say 'you're special,' and call at work to see how the day is going."

The less-expensive services include housecleaning, paying bills, picking up your clothes from the cleaners or your children from school.

In-person pampering costs more. A welcome-home kiss, sympathetic listening about the rotten boss, or enthusiasm for the super idea to make a million bucks run $20 an hour. She'll go out to dinner or a party for the same price, and you'll pay all expenses.

Ms. Stanton's telephone voice turns stern when the subject turns to sex. Hand-holding or pats on the back are her limit.

"Whenever passion enters in," she says, "business goes out the window."

Ms. Stanton wants to work part-time. You can get a bargain rate, though, if you hire her by the week. She'll charge $320 for four eight-hour days.

Nagging is available, too. Arguments about money, for example, will cost you $30 an hour.

"Nobody's asked about those yet," she said, with a sigh of relief. "I'd really rather not."

According To Professor: Life In Space Will Be Spartan

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — If man ever colonizes space, life up there won't be as free and easy as some science fiction writers predict, says a researcher at the University of Texas at El Paso.

Ellwyn Stoddard, a professor of sociology and anthropology at UTEP since 1965, has been studying the possible social structures of space communities and he thinks space pioneers will have to answer to a strong central authority and give up many of their individual freedoms.

"Most of the people in this field have the mistaken idea that the farther we get away from Earth, the further we will be from Earth institutions," Stoddard said. "That's the last thing that will happen in space."

Although Stoddard is sure of his theories, he admits that studying the social life of space colonists is primarily speculation. His most recent paper on the subject is a blend of what is known and what is anticipated, drawing from both sociological sources and science fiction.

"I'm an avid science fiction reader," he said. "That's not easy. I have my heroes, like (author) Isaac Asimov, that I have to take to task on this."

Stoddard said most science fiction writers express the "liberal ideology" of space pioneers being rugged individualists with a freedom of choice that he believes won't exist.

The liberal view is shared by many people in the space sciences, he said.

"I first presented this paper to the American Astronomical Society, which is dominated by space engineers and, well, idealists who say we have to learn to live in space so that we'll be able to escape when we blow up the world," he said. "This was not really the thing they wanted to hear."

Stoddard believes, first of all, that while colonizing space is an attractive idea, it will be a long time coming if it happens at all. The reason is money. He said economic resources will not be turned to taming the wilds of space until after problems here on Earth — particularly energy — are solved.

But if Earth can afford the ventures into space, the pioneers will need a structure for their social interaction and that's where Stoddard's theories come in.

There's little hard information to work from, he said, because there have been no projects where fairly large numbers of people worked together in space with some autonomy from Earth.

"The Skylab kind of thing does not tell us what a non-Earth colony will be like," he said. "It only tells us what a group of scientists in space will be like. . . It's very dependent on Earth. It's always going to be a messenger boy."

"A lot of people have talked about establishing a colony on Mars because it is probably the least harsh of the other environments in the Solar System. But Mars isn't exactly next door. You go a further distance from Earth and you have to be autonomous."

Stoddard worked with two models in writing his paper, which will appear in the fall edition of Space Journal. One is for colonizing space relatively close to Earth and the other is a "doomsday mode."

"I say doomsday mode because I don't know of any other reason for throwing a man out of the galaxy," he said. "There are two ways of thinking about how we would select people to carry on our civilization after we blow up the world. One version would be an Earth microcosm, like a little United Nations. If you put, say, 10,000 people on the colony, you would put some of every kind of person to broaden the genetic pool."

The other possibility is placing the "best and the brightest," the experts in various fields, aboard the colony.

In both cases, a dictatorial central authority would be needed to run the operation, he said. In the first example, it would be necessary because "these people aren't any more apt to get along with each other than in the UN." It would be needed in the second model because of the "prima donna" nature of those chosen.

In colonies set up by an Earth that did not destroy itself, a strong authority still will be needed because the precarious existence in space will require it, Stoddard said.

"Space is inhospitable and unforgiving," he said. "The more critical the survival is, the more centralized your social system is going to be."

He compares the system to the wagon trains that took settlers West. To stay with the group, the settlers had to give total control to the wagonmaster, even if it meant giving up their personal freedoms.

"The frontier society, not modern society, approximates the model of space societies," he said. "The survival of the total society has to be secure. Only when survival of the society is safe enough will there be individual freedoms."

Stoddard predicts some specific systems for particular types of colonies. Again, science fiction comes into play. Stoddard even gives the types whimsical names like Factory Town, Space Prison and Ore-ville.

Three of the types, an orbiting prison, a hospital and a military base, would be run much like they are on Earth, with one "boss" that everyone answers to and a range of understructures.

But life in a space factory or mining operation would be much different from working in their Earth counterparts, he said. For example, there would be little or no recreational or family life.

"We're not going to have families sent up, too," he predicted. "We're not going to have normal family life. In space, it's too costly."

At Ore-ville, his imaginary mining operation, "the structure would be very, very rigid, like a military base. It would be like a prison with a sort of voluntary membership."

The only chance for freedom of choice in such Earth-connected colonies would be when the worker's tour of duty was completed, Stoddard predicts, when he could decide whether to come back to Earth or stay in the strict space system.

If living in space doesn't sound like much fun anymore, Stoddard has one more theory that should brighten the prospects.

After a space colony has established itself beyond the barest of survival levels, personal freedoms should start to re-appear, he said.

Once all of the space colonists' time isn't taken up by producing energy, food and a proper living environment, choice about work schedules, living arrangements and personal relationships could be made by the inhabitants themselves. There might even be time to sit back and enjoy the view.

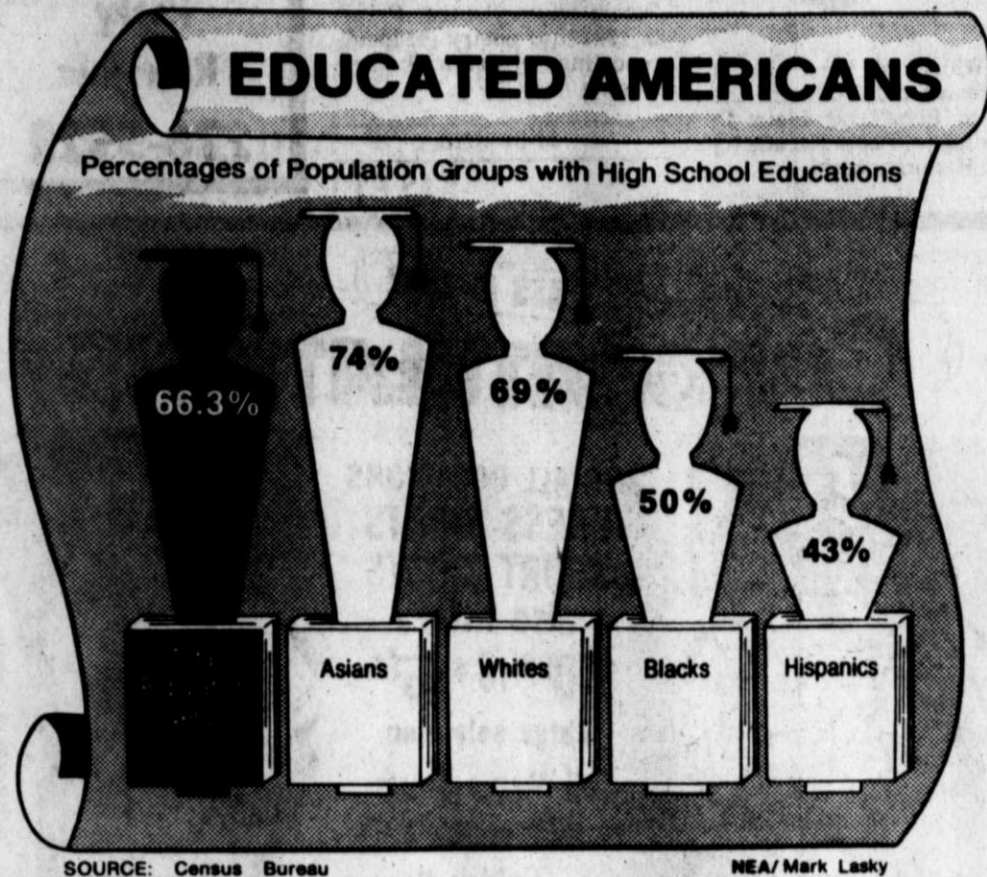

INSUR-MATION

Don Tardy
Farmers Union Insurance

I own a farm and realize the necessity of estate planning. Why is insurance a better solution than other methods?

To conserve your farm and its assets for your family, there must be enough cash on hand to pay estate costs . . . taxes, fees and administration costs. If your assets: checking and savings accounts, personal effects, real estate (farm and residence), farm machinery and growing crops are not sufficient or cannot be readily converted into cash, they might have to be sold . . . often at a loss. The key to a sound estate is having the cash available. With life insurance the cash will be there when it is needed, acquired through small installments . . . you have used fewer dollars to acquire a larger sum.

Americans are better educated than ever. The 1980 Census recorded that for the first time more than half the population over 25 had at least a high school-level education. Seventeen percent had four years of college or more. Within the population's major ethnic groups, high school education rates were highest for Asians and lowest for Hispanics. The education data is included in a preliminary report on detailed social and economic information obtained from 20 percent of the nation's households that completed special long forms in the last census.

The Sky Is the Limit

Visitors are invited to a "Sky is the Limit" balloon launching affair Tuesday at 3 p.m. on the lawn in front of King's Manor Methodist Home. This first-time event is being sponsored by the Craft Department at the Home, which coordinates sales of handmade crafts made by volunteers at the Manor.

Proceeds from the Craft Department have always been used to provide things for Kings Manor, such as chairs for the Lamar Room, an ice maker, and help with recarpeting. Proceeds from the balloon fair will be used to buy blinds for the windows in the Lamar Room.

Merchants and individuals may donate $5 for each resident to launch a balloon with their name attached on a post-paid return postcard. Residents are looking forward to hearing from the people who find their balloons.

Anyone making a donation is eligible for a prize to be given away the day of the launching. Donations should be turned in at the Manor by 5 p.m. Monday for those wishing to sponsor a resident at King's Manor or Westgate.

All residents will be participating, and publicity, ticket sales and other areas are being taken care of by King's Manor residents under the direction of Bea Noland, activities director at the Manor.

Big Balloon Launch

Residents at King's Manor work on a lemonade and popcorn stand for "Sky is the Limit day." Highlighting the event will be a balloon launching, with countdown set to begin at 3 p.m. on Tuesday. A postcard with return address of one of the King's Manor or Westgate residents will be attached to each balloon with a message to return when found. Donations are being accepted to sponsor a balloon for each resident. Visitors are invited to come out and participate in the event.

Making Signs

Jessie Mae Dodson has been helping to make signs for the popcorn and lemonade stand, where residents will sell refreshments at the Tuesday afternoon event.

"Sky is the Limit Day"

The Rev. Wallace Kirby, chaplain at King's Manor and Westgate, looks on as Mayor Bartley Dowell signs a proclamation declaring Tuesday as "Sky Is the Limit Day" in Hereford in recognition of the balloon launching affair.

Handmade Afghan

Ina Hastings, age 90, crocheted the afghan which she will donate as a prize Tuesday afternoon. Everyone is invited to come out and join in the fun and fellowship as balloons are launched for each resident.

Accepting Donations

Mrs. Alma Cross, treasurer of the Arts and Crafts Division at King's Manor, is accepting donations for the balloon launching and keeping records of craft sales and donations.

Leonard, Olson Exchange Vows

Married in a candlelight wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon at First United Methodist Church in Childress were Miss Julia Ann Leonard of Childress and Richard Craig Olson of Hereford. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Leonard of Childress. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs.

Lloyd Olson of Hereford. The Rev. Bill Wright and the Rev. R.H. Knight, both of Childress, officiated.

Arranged at the front altar of the church were two spiral candlebras with volitive cups and two brass vases of white gladiolas. Candles were also arranged above the main altar.

Karen Leonard served her sister as maid of honor and Greg Dement was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bridegroom's sister, Penny Olson, the bride's cousin, Kay Kinney, Laura Henley, and Lisa Prescott.

Groomsmen were the bridegroom's brother, Daniel Olson, and Mike Bean, Paul Bell, and Bud Hughes.

Guests were escorted by the bridegroom's brothers, Alan and Walter Olson, his brother-in-law, Alan Hardin, and the bride's cousin, Chuck Kinney.

The Pat Steeds' daughter, Cynthia, served as flower girl and Landon Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Johnson, was ring bearer.

Lighting candles were the bride's cousin, Andy Kinney, and the bridegroom's nephew, Bobby Hardin.

Wedding selections included "Ice Castles", "The Wedding Song" and "That's The Way". Vocalists were Mrs. Leigh Crane and the Bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Sheila Hardin. Accompanying them was Gene Currie.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Celeste sheer white crepe gown designed with Venice lace. The ruffled Victorian neckline was fashioned with a sheer round yoke of point-despirit English net. The front bodice of the gown was also fashioned with silk Venice lace and the gown's back had a point-despirit yoke which dropped below the shoulder with Venice lace motifs and continued around the back.

The ruffled cap sleeves were designed from point-despirit English net and the gown's skirt gathered slightly, forming a chapel length train which was bordered with matching net and lace.

The chapel-length veil of bridal illusion was attached to a lace caplet trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses and white daisies.

She wore a pair of pearl earrings which were given to her by the bridegroom.

Bridal attendants wore orchid voile gowns fashioned with an off-the-shoulder flounce. The bottom ruffle of the gowns formed a bustle at the back. Each carried a single white rose.

The bridegroom's niece, Alana Hardin, registered guests at the reception held at the church.

Barbara Brumley served the three-tiered white bridal cake decorated with orchid clusters and topped by miniature figurines of a bride and bridegroom standing beneath a heart and bells.

The bridegroom's sister-in-law, Jacque Olson, served from the bridegroom's table. Serving punch and coffee were Susan Chalcraft and Suzannah Ruland.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Arlington, the bride wore an orchid tailored linen suit with a floral blouse trimmed in lace. Beige accessories and an orchid corsage completed the ensemble.

The bride is a junior accounting major at McMurry College and is a member of Theta Chi Lambda and Indian Insight, MSG. She is employed at Homestead Real Estate.

The bridegroom, a senior physical education major at McMurry, is a member of I.H.R., Pemm and is employed at Abilene Boys' Club of America.

Preceding the wedding ceremony, a rehearsal dinner was held at K-Bob's Steak House at which time gifts were exchanged between the couple and their attendants. Serving as host couple were the bridegroom's parents.

One of the prenuptial courtesies was a shower for the bride held recently in Childress.

The clinic will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Louise Walker, County Extension Agent, will be on hand to advise as to the accuracy of your cooker gauge.

It is important to have your gauge checked annually or anytime the lid has been dropped. If your gauge isn't accurate it could result in food spoilage. It takes only a few minutes to have your gauge tested. All you need to bring is your canner lid.

Two bouquets of yellow gladiolas were arranged at the main altar of the church and the side altars were decorated with yellow potted mum plants.

Miss Lynda Roberson of Dumas served as maid of honor and the bridegroom's brother, Tommy Barnett of Dallas, was best man.

Escorting guests were the bride's nephew, Douglas Silver of Fairfax, Va., and the bridegroom's nephew, Kenny Barnett of Dallas.

Final Preparations Made For Poppy Day

Members of the Hereford American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 192 are making final preparations for the annual Memorial Poppy distribution planned Wednesday.

Poppy headquarters will be set up at the Hereford State Bank. Pet Ott, chairman for the event, is asking members to come by and pick up supplies from her at the headquarters.

Workers will be stationed at various locations throughout the day beginning early that morning at eating places and at the bank.

This will mark the 52nd year for the poppies to be offered to area citizens. The auxiliary unit was organized in 1929 and the poppies were available the following May, the Saturday before Memorial Day.

The poppy was declared the national memorial flower of the American Legion in 1920 and all money is dedicated to the welfare of the veteran and his family. This is still true today. All donations are kept separately and used for this purpose.

The poppy was chosen as the memorial flower after the American soldiers saw the fields of flowers growing in the devastations in France during World War I.

Members of the Hereford unit ask persons to please wear a memorial poppy in honor of those who did not return from war and for all of the American servicemen who fought for freedom that we not have.

Couple Is Wed Saturday

Angela Hartman and Dennis Glascock, both of Liberal, Kan., exchanged wedding vows Saturday morning at the home of the bride's parents in Liberal. The Rev. Bruce Sexton, Church of Christ minister from Liberal, officiated at the ceremony.

The fireplace was decorated with hanging baskets of fresh spring flowers in the bride's colors of pink and white.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hartman and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glascock of Wichita, Kan. Nancy Hawkins of Johnson, Kan. was maid of honor and Kevin Parker of Liberal was best man.

Wedding music was provided by Monte Hall of Liberal. Genell Hartman, sister of the bride, and Jim Head, of Liberal, sang "I Love You Truly" and "I Pledge My Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight corded chantilly lace over deluster satin featuring long fitted sleeves and a flared skirt with satin cummerbund. She wore a headpiece of baby's breath and carried a bouquet of pink roses accented with baby's breath.

The bride's attendant wore a pink gown of sheer fabric with a neckline flounce and carried a daisy nosegay.

A brunch was held at the Liberal Country Club. Nosegays of silk flowers in the bride's chosen flowers, pink roses and daisies, adorned the table where Mrs. David Glascock served cake. The three-tiered white wedding cake was decorated with pale pink sugar roses.

The bride chose a brown linen sundress with lace jacket for her traveling costume. After a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will be at home at 204 Academy in Liberal.

The bride is a graduate of Grapevine (Texas) High School and Panhandle State University. She is currently employed by AMOCO Production Co. in Liberal.

The groom graduated from Bountiful (Utah) High School and Abilene Christian University. He is employed by Nixon and Seaman Civil Engineers as an inspector.

Typists Needed For Final County History Preparation

Volunteer typists are needed for final work on the Deaf Smith County history, now underway in Project County History, according to Sue Coleman, office secretary.

No special typing skill is needed, but the typist must be careful in copying names correctly for the index which will list all names appearing in the book, Mrs. Coleman said. Students who would like to get some typing practice during vacation might find this work interesting, she suggested.

Any amount of time may be volunteered and hours will be arranged to suit the workers' convenience. Two persons may schedule working hours together.

All material for the book has been sent to the publisher, Mrs. Coleman said. The deadline for family stories passed early this year, and time for general history and special pages ended the first week in May.

"We are receiving inquiries now from people who put off submitting material, and now want it included," Mrs. Coleman said. "We simply must tell them that it's too late, with no exceptions. Now we hope the same thing will not happen for people who want to order books, as that deadline must be imposed soon and no more orders accepted."

"The publisher has told us we may accept orders as long as he is doing the preliminary work on our book. Since we do not know how long that will be, we cannot set an order deadline just now but we urge those who expect to buy the books to get their orders in as soon as possible."

Book orders must be accompanied by payment of $36.75 per book. They may be taken to the project office in the E.B. Black House which is open weekdays from 1 to 5 p.m., or mailed to P.O. Drawer 2297. Inquiries about book orders or volunteer work may be made by telephone to 364-8371.

If you hold all the cards, the odds are the game is solitaire.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I have just figured out if insurance companies keep circulating forms at their present rate, by 1990, they will need the Grand Canyon for a filing cabinet.

The average family carries insurance on every conceivable risk known to man including their car, health, major disasters of nature, appliances, TV, defamation, malpractice, and the kindest one of all, life.

People are protected from everything except death by forms. (When that comes it will include one original, six illegible carbons, sign at the X and mail one copy to your doctor, one to your accountant, four to the insurance company, and retain the last copy which no one can read for your files with the number of your canceled check in the lower right hand corner and please put I.D. number on the outside of the envelope before mailing.)

I bleed for the average American who had the misfortune to smash the bone in his little finger when it became wedged in the restroom towel machine where the towel was to come down automatically and didn't.

There is a form from the employer, bank, hospital, doctor, radiologist, worker's compensation and insurance company. To get everyone's money into motion is like getting music out of a basketful of snakes.

By the time it's resolved, you could grow a new finger. And what about the poor fish who is driving to work one day, stops for a traffic light, and the guy behind him drives into his trunk?

As a victim he can look forward to eight months of correspondence, legalese, no personal checks, for business office only and please fill out and return.

I have a solution to these fender-benders that would save a lot of paperwork. It's called "No Sweat" insurance. The victim gets out of his car and trades on the spot with the guy who rear-ended him. (Those cars never have any more damage than a white smudge on the bumper.) He leaves the guilty one with a car that won't run, a towing bill and instructions to "get three estimates, and return my car to me when it looks and runs like it did before or my attorney will find you and hurt you!"

It would take three months to write all that down in triplicate.

Former Pastor Conducts Sunday Services At Frio Baptist Church

BY MRS. OWEN ANDREWS

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Howard of Plainview were visiting at Frio Baptist Church on Sunday, where he brought both Sunday sermons. He is the chairman of Christian Studies at Wayland Baptist University. The pastor, Rev. Gene Tone, Mrs. Tone, and Tim were in Odessa to attend graduation at the University of the Permian Basin, where daughter, Melody, was a graduating senior.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol D'Amato of Oklahoma City are announcing the birth of a daughter, born May 18. She has been named Kendall Nocole. They also have a three and a half year old daughter, Kaci. Mrs. D'Amato is the former Cheryl Cole, daughter of Mrs. Marguerite Cole. Her sister, Mrs. John Paetzold, was there with them this past week and Marguerite expects to visit also.

Mrs. Mattie King of Amarillo was here the first of the week visiting her sisters, Miss Alma Andrews, Mrs. T.L. Sparkman, and Mrs. Elmer Jones. On Monday, she and Alma went to Texico, picked up their aunt, Mrs. Allie Burris, and went on to Melrose, where they visited their uncle, Fred Andrews and his family. The sisters also visited several other relatives here in town.

Sammy Ogan was among those receiving degrees from the Texas Tech School of Law Saturday. He is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Sam Ogan of Amarillo, former pastor of Frio Baptist Church.

Dr. John Darling, Vice-President of Academic Affairs, addressed the graduates and a ceremonial hooding was directed by Professors J. Hadley Edgar and Karyn J. Driessen as a part of the graduation exercise. A reception for graduates and their guests followed in the University Center.

Among those going from here were Mmes. Virginia Yandell, Olin Parris, and Harlan Barber. Also Sammy's sisters' families, Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Andrews and Holly, and Mrs. Marsh Pitman of Chicago.

Sammy has been in the Tech Law School since graduating from WTSU three years ago. He and his wife expect to continue living in Lubbock for the foreseeable future and Sammy plans to take the State Bar Exam this summer.

3 PART PLAN INCLUDES

Two Day Manual! - Tells you everything you need to know about weight loss and nutrition. It presents an entirely new approach to shedding pounds and keeping them off. Includes:
• A self scoring questionnaire that allows you to design the right system for you. People overeat for many different reasons. Learn which of the 25 most common ones apply to you.
• You will learn to easily modify your individual eating behaviors - how to short circuit the snacking impulse - how to eat less and still enjoy that full feeling & much, much more.
• A journal, workbook and motivator that lets you see and experience your progressive weight loss week by week -

Self Hypnosis Tapes - Many overweight people have a tendency to eat from emotional cues, excitement, or anxiety producing situations. Any weight loss program that does not take this into account is doomed to failure, listening to these tapes two days per week will relax you and ignite your subconscious powers of positive thinking and self hypnosis into action for you.

Two Day Tabs - One basic cause of overeating is a disordered mechanism in the brain known as the appetat, which controls our feelings of hunger. Two Day tabs taken as directed, effectively slow down the appetat - and your hunger. They are 100% natural and safe - contain no drugs or medicine. 30 day supply included.

FREE BONUS

Order the Two Day Weight Loss System by May 27 and receive as our gift your very own Ketosis meter. As the body turns fat into energy, a substance is produced called Ketones. With the Ketosis meter you can actually see how fast your fat is turning into energy.

Officers Installed At Salad Supper

La Plata Study Club met Tuesday evening for a salad supper in the home of Lucy Rogers. During the business meeting, conducted by President Ms. Rogers, Sherry Hoover presented her with a gift of appreciation for service to the club.

It was announced that La Plata Study Club presented the Viola Chisholm Art Award to Jessie Pesina at the high school awards assembly.

Mrs. Bessie Hill, of the Pioneer Study Club installed the 1982-83 officers, reminding members that Pioneer Study Club is the mother club of La Plata because of their sponsorship of the Junior Pioneer Study Club, which later became La Plata Study Club.

Mrs. Hill's installation theme was "Building a Club House." She portrayed the incoming and outgoing presidents and vice-presidents as the four cornerstones, other officers as the walls and roof, and members as the residents.

She stressed that officers have an obligation to meet these goals: maintaining harmony in the club, improvement of the club, and establishing a good relationship to the community.

Those installed were Virginia Woodford, president; Sarah Hazelrigg, vice-president; Betty Quillen, recording secretary; Sue Sims, corresponding secretary; Betty Taylor, treasurer; Mozelle Neill, historian; Lavon Nieman, reporter; and Lucy Rogers, parliamentarian.

The new president announced that there will be a special meeting in July to finalize plans for the Town and Country Jubilee.

Guests present were Mabel Hunt, Sadie Rogers, Mendy Rogers, and Mrs. Hill.

Members attending included Donna Vanderzee, Mary Bartlett, Jean Kelley, Rosemary Shook, Ms. Neill, Ruby Boston, Audine Dettman, Dorothea Prowell, Ms. Hazelrigg, Ms. Taylor, Margaret Schroeter, Carolyn Johnson, Clara Brown, Ms. Hoover, Sunny Brush, Ms. Quillen, Ms. Rogers, and Avis White.

It's Strawberry Time

By LOUISE WALKER
 County Extension Agent
 Desserts are no problem around our house when strawberries are in season. One son describes them with one word-delicious. The first strawberries are eaten right off the top of the crate. You always pick the biggest, reddest, and juiciest one. Then rinse it with water and attack it with one large bite, leaving only a green stem.

If you're like many people, you admire them in pastry shops and glossy magazine pages but shy away from attempting them at home! My family never gives me a chance to save enough strawberries to make a fancy dish. Once I stem, slice, and sugar down the fruit, it's immediately piled on a pile of ice cream or cake and consumed instantaneously.

The secret to gorgeous desserts is dessert convenience products. Handy staples like fruit flavored gelatin, pudding and pie filling mix and frozen whipped topping simplify or eliminate time-consuming, complicated recipe steps to help you easily create delicious professional-looking cakes, pies, and more. Try one today...and treat your family to a treat tonight.

STRAWBERRY ICEBOX CAKE
 2 pints strawberries, hulled
 1/2 cup confectioners sugar
 1 small (16 oz.) pound cake, cut into 20 slices
 1/4 cup orange liqueur.
 1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
 1 cup boiling water

1 container (8 oz.) non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
 Crush 1 pint of the strawberries; sprinkle with confectioners sugar and set aside. Line bottom and sides of 8x5-inch loaf pan with pound cake slices; sprinkle cake with 2 tablespoons of the liqueur.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add the crushed strawberries and remaining liqueur. Chill until thickened. Fold in 2 cups of the whipped topping. Spoon into caked-lined pan and top with remaining cake slices.

Chill until firm, about 4 hours. Invert onto serving plate and garnish with remaining whipped topping and the whole strawberries. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

STRAWBERRY SLUSH
 1 pint strawberries, hulled
 1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
 One-third cup sugar
 1 cup boiling water
 2 cups cold water
 1/4 cup lemon juice

Puree strawberries; set aside. Dissolve gelatin and sugar in boiling water. Stir in cold water, lemon juice and pureed strawberries. Pour into shallow pan and freeze 1 hour or until mixture begins to freeze around edges.

Break up frozen mixture with a fork and stir well. Freeze until firm. Let stand at room temperature for about 10 minutes before serving and stir with fork. Makes about 5 cups or 10 servings.

STRAWBERRY PISTACHIO TART

1 package (17-1/4 oz.) frozen puff pastry, thawed
 1 egg, beaten
 1 tablespoon water
 1 cup cold milk
 1/2 cup sour cream
 1/2 tsp. almond extract
 1 package (4-serving size) pistachio flavor instant pudding and pie filling
 2 pints strawberries, washed and hulled
 1/4 cup-strawberry jelly

Roll one sheet of the pastry into a 12-inch square on lightly floured board; then cut into a 12-inch circle. Place circle on ungreased baking sheet.

Roll second sheet into a 12x9-inch rectangle and cut lengthwise into 9 strips. Combine egg and water and brush over the pastry circle. Place 3 of the strips around edge of circle, brush with egg mixture and place 3 additional strips on top to form a rim. Cut each remaining strip into 12 small squares.

Brush rim with egg mixture and place squares on an angle on the rim, overlapping slightly. Brush with egg mixture and freeze 20 minutes. Prick base of circle well with a fork.

Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes or until golden brown. (Prick again with fork, if necessary.) Cool completely.

Combine milk, sour cream, extract and pudding mix in bowl. Beat slowly with rotary beater for 1 minute. Pour at once into pastry shell and chill at least 1 hour.

Just before serving, arrange strawberries on pudding mixture. Heat jelly just to melt and brush over the berries. Store any leftover tart in refrigerator. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Country Music Road Show Scheduled Here Saturday

South Plains College's "Raisin A Ruckus!", the country music road show which played to more than 15,000 people last summer, is bringing an all-new show to Hereford on Saturday.

Showtime is 8 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium. The show is being sponsored by Hereford Lions Club.

Featuring a 12-member cast and more than 50 classic and contemporary country music hits, "Raisin A Ruckus!" is a spectacle of music, lighting, costumes, stunts and dance which runs the gamut of country music tastes.

This year's "Ruckus!" is South Plains College's sixth country music road show to tour West Texas and Eastern New Mexico. Last summer, the show toured 26 cities and played before more than 15,000 people. Special performances were also made in Miami and Pensacola, Florida, and at the Panhandle South Plains Fair in Lubbock.

Where last season's show saluted country music greats, this year's points out the broad influence country music has had on other music forms.

"One of the biggest production numbers, Ruckus Through the Decades, touches on those tunes which have made country music great," says John Hartin, the show's music director and director of SPC's Country and Bluegrass Music Department.

The number features the ragtime music of the 20s, the western swing of the 30s, the big band era of the 40s including such favorites as "Stardust" and "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy of Company B," the 1950s rock and roll of Chuck Berry and Bill Haley, and finally melodies inspired by the Beatles in the 60s.

"People who have an appreciation for music over the years will hear in this number something which has been meaningful at some point in their life," Hartin adds.

Ed Marsh, the show's vocal director who has also worked with Hartin in arranging the music for "Ruckus!", thinks the music will also demonstrate country music's broadening over the years.

"The rock and roll of the 50s was just progressive country," Marsh says. "The Beatles' influence on country music was even greater. A number of their songs have been recorded by country music artists and have made the top ten."

Hartin and the entire cast will be featured in a Beatles medley which will include "Yesterday," "Hold Your Hand" and "She Loves You."

But "Ruckus!" also contains a healthy dose of bluegrass music, including "How Mountain Girls Can Love," "Rock Salt and Nails" and "Foggy Mountain Breakdown." And also included are gospel favorites like "I'll Fly Away," "Somebody Touched Me," and "I Saw The Light."

The music of Bob Nolan, founder of the fabled "Sons of the Pioneers," is presented in Cowboys Raisin' a Ruckus with "On the Rhythm Range."

And the show would not be complete without a tribute to this year's top country music performers. Crystal Gayle's "You Never Gave Up on Me," Eddie Rabbit's "Someone Could Lose a Heart Tonight," and Anne Murray's "Another Sleepless Night," are some of the current hits which will be featured in the show.

Perhaps the biggest change in "Ruckus!" is the addition of a number of solo numbers which will feature the talents of SPC students in the cast.

"We cast eight highly talented young people who give the show a lot of energy and vitality," says Helen Roberts, the show's script writer, director, choreographer and also professor of speech and drama at SPC. "From the very start of rehearsals, these students have been ready to put on a great show."

Three of the SPC students return to "Ruckus!" as veterans of the college's country music road shows. Scott Barton, who has logged more than 10,000 miles with the show in the past four years, is back as a singer and dancer who presents solo numbers of "Tennessee River" and John Conlee's "Busted." Barton is a sophomore from Levelland.

Tahoka sophomore Ira White also returns to dazzle the audience with "Who's Cheating Who?" and "The Sweetest Thing." Kay Stephens, the third veteran, from Plains, will be featured in "I'm the Singer, You're the Song," and "The Drifter."

Five other students join the "Ruckus!" cast as newcomers. They include Kathy Tutt, a freshman from Muleshoe; Doyle Marvin, a sophomore from Lewiston, Idaho; Darrell Thrash, a sophomore from Ropesville; Bunk Lawson, a freshman from Levelland; and Carol Howell, a sophomore from Levelland.

Randy Ellis, director of SPC's sound technology program and a veteran of the 1979 tour of "The Golden Years of Country Music," returns as a performer, playing bass and singing back-up vocals.

"Those in the audience who really aren't strong country music fans will still find melodies in the show which they will enjoy and relate to," Roberts adds. "You just can't beat the quality of music which goes into this show."

So what you will see from the 30-foot showmobile stage is a little bit of nostalgia, a little bit of the contemporary and buckets of nostalgia and fun.

Film Shown To Members Thursday

Books View Family Life, Singleness

By DIANNE PIERSON
Several new books on various aspects of family life will be available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. "The Not-So-Empty Nest" by Phyllis Feuerstein and Carol Roberts tells how to live with your kids after they've lived someplace else. In the past several years sons and daughters have flocked back to their parents' homes after having lived elsewhere. "Home-ing pigeons," the tag given these young adults by the authors, offer many rationales for their return. Two hundred fifty families bared their emotions, their problems, and their attempted solutions to these problems in "The Not-So-Empty Nest". This is the first book to deal with this newly emerging social phenomenon. This book is a storehouse of valuable insights. Over the past three decades, the family has undergone a radical metamorphosis as societal institutions took over many of its functions and put them in the hands of "experts" who made the job of raising a family look too complex and too overwhelming for a mere parent. Joseph and Lois Bird, who have raised nine children, in "To Live As A Family", presents an in-depth look at this most important part of society and offers comprehensive suggestions on how to establish and strengthen the family bond. It is the third book of a trilogy on marriage and the family and as easily important as "Marriage Is For Grownups" and "Power To Parents". More than 50 million Americans are single. In "Singles" by Jacqueline Simenauer we examine this contradictory lifestyle—a lifestyle in which the greatest advantage is freedom; the greatest problem is loneliness. "Singles" is based on a representative sampling of singles from the ages 20 to 55. Scientifically selected to reflect the demographic composition of the entire country, their survey reveals what singles feel about their lifestyle, probes their innermost concerns and desires, and rebuts the images both of a "Club Med" and of a lonely and hermitlike existence.

Other new books available this week at the library are "Caring: A Daughter's Story" by Diane Rubin, "All In The First Family: The President's Kinfolk" by Bill Adler, "George Meany And His Times" by Robinson and "Our Next Frontier" by Robert Rodale. Library Events: Thursday morning story hour-10 a.m.-Heritage Room. The library will be closed May 29 and 31 for Memorial Day.

Criteria for selection include a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit and dependability. Seven Summer Camps Set by Association

Seven different sessions will be held as part of this summer's Ranchmen's Camp Meetings in the Southwest, including two in the immediate area. Total attendance at the six camps held during 1981 was 16,407, including 1,357 at the largest camp at Nogal Mesa four miles east of Carrizozo, N.M.

The addition to the camp list this year is the Cowboy Camp Meeting to be held near Canadian, Tx. June 24-27. The other camps are the Colorado Cowboy Camp Meeting near Kiowa, Co. June 30-July 4; the Sierra Grande Rancher's

Camp Meeting near Des Moines, NM July 8-11; the Nogal Mesa Camp July 14-18; the Mesa Redondo camp near Tucumcari, NM July 22-25; the Four Corners camp near Mancos, CO July 29-Aug. 1; and the Chiricahua Rancher's Camp Meeting near Wilcox, Az Aug. 5-8.

The camps are billed as "a Christian camping experience for all ages," according to Rick Steele, director. Those wishing additional information concerning the camps may contact Steele at Rural Route 2, Box 148, Aledo, IL 61231.

For a lower price tag on that new home — and to qualify for mortgage loans, home buyers may have to give up luxury frills, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Eliminating such things as fireplace, patio, sunken tub and a bar will help lower the price, she notes.

Some builders are offering stripped-down-model homes for less, too. The buyer can finish out or add onto these homes as money becomes available.

Don't waste water—close the tub drain BEFORE turning on the bath water, instead of letting the first cold amounts go down the drain while you wait for hot water.

Public Invited To Hear Speaker

Gwen Shaw, founder and president of End-time Handmaidens, will be the guest speaker at 11 a.m. Sunday at Christian Assembly Church located on South Main.

The public is invited to attend. Ms. Shaw's ministry started in 1970 after a lifetime of service on the missionary fields of the orient and other nations throughout the world.

Block Ends 'Philosophic' Checks of Panel Scientists

By DON KENDALL, AP Farm Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — If Agriculture Secretary John R. Block hadn't halted a practice of checking the "philosophical views" of scientists before they are named to Agriculture Department review panels, the whole matter probably would have been given a congressional airing.

 But Block on Thursday ordered an immediate end to the checks after a staff meeting in which it was decided a wrong interpretation had been put on a federal rule governing advisory committees.

 Gene Hemphill, an aide, said that the Office of Management and Budget had issued "some kind of communication" last year which related to review panels and how nominees should be checked out.
 "Our people here, admittedly, I guess, interpreted this to mean that besides security checks, the political background checks would be taken, too," he said.

 But Hemphill added that of the scientists named to review panels so far "you can't find any correlation at all between party lines.

There's a significant number from both parties."
 Block, he said, asked whether the political background checks had any bearing on the scientists' qualifications to serve on the panels, and if not, why are the checks being performed.

ment's new policy of trying to make certain that appointees to its scientific grant review panels were only people whose "philosophical views" are compatible with those of the Reagan administration.

 De la Garza said scientific expertise "is neither Republican nor Democratic" and that the House — and particularly his committee — for many years has supported and handled legislation dealing with agricultural research on a completely non-partisan basis.

applications were being judged on their potential for important progress, or on whether a party-dominated review committee might discount proposals from a scientist who did not belong to the party in power," he said.
 The department's Science and Education Administration awards about $16 million a year in research grants. There are around 800 applications annually, which are reviewed by about 80 university scientists who serve on the panels.

Irrigation Foreseen To Be Good

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western irrigation water supplies should be "good to excellent" this summer, says the Agriculture Department.

Surveys made on May 1 indicate "generally good snowpack conditions at high elevations" and that streamflow should equal or exceed normal in almost all areas of the West.

Peter C. Myers, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, said many reservoirs will be filled during the runoff and that "almost the entire region will have ample stored water to supplement late season streamflow."

Widespread Rainfall Received, But Some Crop Losses Noted

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Most of Texas now has good soil moisture to boost young crops and forages following widespread rains the past week.

While the rains brought much-needed moisture to western areas, they also caused some flooding and crop losses in some locations.
 Heavy rains and hail destroyed some 1,200 acres of corn, cotton and vegetables in Southwest Texas and damaged another 1500 acres, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Heavy rains in some central and coastal areas along with recent cool weather also have damaged cotton and grain sorghum, and a considerable amount will be replanted.

The rains also delayed the wheat harvest in Southwest Texas and the Coastal Bend and caused a slowdown in hay harvesting in eastern areas and in alfalfa harvesting in western sections.

In addition, some fruit was lost due to heavy rains and high winds in North Central Texas.

Some early peaches are now being harvested in eastern areas and in Gillespie County in the Texas Hill Country, said Pfannstiel. This year's peach crop generally looks good although it is lighter than expected in some locations.

Cotton planting is active in the South Plains, where more than half the state's cotton is grown, and in Far West Texas and the Trans-Pecos area. Planting will start May 20 in the Rolling Plains and about May 24 in West Central Texas, according to uniform planting dates that are part of a coordinated effort to control boll weevils.

While some young crops and pastures are off to a good start, most need warm weather and sunshine, noted Pfannstiel.

Livestock conditions generally are good although ranchers in South Texas are concerned about the first case of screwworms in about a year. The case was reported May 18 near the boundary of Starr and Hidalgo counties.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Rains over much of the area should boost ranges and young crops. However, most dryland wheat needs more moisture. Some hail caused scattered damage to wheat. Cotton planting has started and should increase as field conditions permit. Corn and sugar beets look good but have been slowed by cool weather. Ranges are responding rapidly to improved moisture conditions.

SOUTH PLAINS: Planting moisture is still short over parts of the region, but cotton planting is in full swing in many counties. Irrigated corn and wheat are making good progress but dryland wheat is still in poor shape. Sugar beets look fair. Ranges are improving rapidly where rains have fallen.

ROLLING PLAINS: Rains have generally provided good moisture for cotton planting which will start May 20 — the uniform planting date — as part of a coordinated effort to control boll weevils. Wheat is ripening and harvesting will start about June 1. Cattle on graze-out wheat are in excellent shape and stock tanks are full.

NORTH CENTRAL: Rust continues to be a problem in both wheat and oats, and insects are increasing in young cotton and grain sorghum. Recent heavy rains and high winds damaged some fruit and vegetable crops. Livestock and grazing conditions are good to excellent.

USDA Wants Opinions On Wheat Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has asked for public opinions on how to set up the government's 1983 wheat program, details of which must be announced by Aug. 15.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Friday the comments should include views on what methods the department should use to determine crop acreage bases, not only for wheat but also for feed grains, cotton and rice.

Comments also are sought on the price support loan rate, target price and other features of the program.

The comments can be sent by June 24 to: Director, Analysis - Division, USDA-ASCS, Room 3741-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Peanut, Catfish Reports Continue Temporarily

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will continue publishing peanut and catfish reports, at least temporarily.
 William E. Kibler, administrator of the department's Statistical Reporting Service, said Thursday that the National Peanut Council will pay for monthly reports about peanut stocks and processing through September. The reports will be available free of charge.

But after Sept. 24, he said, publication of the peanut reports "will depend on additional funding."

On March 10 the department announced a series of cutbacks and changes in its report publishing program, including the elimination of some and reductions in others. Also, the budget-inspired plan called for user fees to pay for the reports instead of them being free to all comers.

The monthly catfish surveys and reports were among those canceled. But Kibler said department funds for aquaculture programs have been juggled so that the catfish reports can continue through September.

However, after the May catfish report, which will be available free of charge, a charge will be made for the monthly publication.

Order forms are available from the Crop Reporting Board, Room 5829-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, or phone 202 447-4021.

Farmers Face Unlucky 13th, Exports To Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to exports, 13 is turning out to be an unlucky number for the nation's farmers. At least that's what a new analysis by the Agriculture Department suggests.

After rising annually for 12 consecutive years, the value of U.S. commodity exports is expected to drop 4 percent in 1981-82 to about $42 billion, the department said Wednesday.

Last fall, the department forecast that exports would rise to another record of $45.5 billion in the year which began on Oct. 1 from $43.8 billion in 1980-81.

But lower commodity prices and sagging demand forced officials to revise their estimates during the winter. By mid-February it appeared the value would be about $42.5 billion.

In a related report, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said that Argentina's secretary of agriculture has exhorted Argentine farmers to boost wheat plantings this year by about 25 percent.

According to the report, the larger acreage is needed to help expand exports so Argentina can "obtain the foreign exchange it needs to finance military operations in the Falkland Islands."

The cable street car was invented by Andrew S. Hallidie and first used in San Francisco in 1873.

Argentina is a major competitor of the United States in the international grain market.

The latest U.S. export estimate, which was trimmed another $500 million from the February forecast, reflects a number of factors, the department's outlook board said in its report.

"Record U.S. crops and large livestock product supplies, facing weak demand, caused lower export prices," it said. "The substantial rise in the value of the U.S. dollar, however, prevented some foreign customers from realizing these lower prices."

"The economic recession has reduced the demand for imported foods, feed and fiber in developed and developing countries. In Eastern Europe and many developing countries, hard currency shortages and credit constraints have reduced imports. Finally, harvests were larger in most regions in 1981-82."

Officials said the strong dollar and sluggish world economy "will continue to hurt the volume and value of U.S. exports for the rest of the year," although price improvements for grain and oilseeds could mean some increase in value later on.

Even so, exports during the second half of the fiscal year — April through September — "are expected to exceed the disappointing level" of a year earlier, the report said.

But that will depend greatly on domestic and foreign crop developments, and on the Soviet Union's trade relations with the United States and Argentina, it said.

The actual volume of U.S. farm commodity exports this year is expected to be a record high at 168.5 million metric tons, up 3.6 percent from 162.6 million tons in 1980-81.

Another bit of good news, the report said, is that U.S. imports of foreign agricultural products are expected to decline also to about $15 billion from $17.2 billion last year.

Thus, it said, the U.S. farm trade balance may increase slightly to a record $27 billion from $26.6 billion in 1980-81.

Wheat exports were forecast to be record large this fiscal year but their value will be down about 4 percent because of the lower prices. Soviet wheat purchases are up from last year, and India and Turkey have made large purchases. Exports to China, the largest foreign market for U.S. wheat, may be about the same as last year.

Shipments of coarse grain — primarily corn — dropped sharply in the first six months of the current year and then "strengthened in April," the report said. "Heavy second-half shipments are forecast, with additional corn sales" to the Soviet Union.

"Coarse grain crops in Southern Hemisphere exporting countries were down substantially this spring from last year's record high output, so U.S. exports will face less competition," the report said.

Delano Says Farm Bureau Would Support Retaliations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national farm leader says that his organization would support U.S. trade retaliations if the European Common Market fails to end export subsidies which undercut American sales abroad.

Robert B. Delano, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said Thursday he will lead a team of 20 state Farm Bureau presidents to Europe this weekend to discuss farm trade matters.

One talking point will be the Common Market's consideration of a proposal to eliminate a "duty-free binding" on U.S. corn gluten which lets the high-protein feed ingredient enter the European market without import duties. Soybeans also enter free of duties.

"Farmers are dead serious — the U.S. government is dead serious — that if duty-free bindings are interfered with, and if export subsidies don't cease, the EC (Common Market) will likely face retaliatory action against European products, either against agricultural products like cheese and wine, or against industrial items," Delano said.

The recent action by the Common Market to boost farm prices by 10.7 percent also was challenged by Delano, who said the action "no doubt will be followed by an increase in EC export subsidies."

But when higher prices trigger greater production, that means more surpluses which then are dumped on the international market at subsidized prices, he said.

The Farm Bureau team was scheduled to leave on May 22 and return May 28 after visits to London, Brussels, The Hague, Rotterdam and Hamburg.

Good Ranch Managers Will Be Survivors

COLLEGE STATION — Ranchers who will most likely survive the next 10 years will probably be those with the best ranch management and organization, a rancher and former superintendent of the Southern Great Plains Field Station said here recently.

E.H. "Pat" McIlvain of Woodward, Okla., discussed ranching in the '80s at the Texas Animal Agriculture Conference at Texas A&M University.

"Ranches that have the best chance to survive will be those that have little or no need for large capital expenditures, a high equity in land and cattle, useful income from minerals or off-ranch work, and a highly skilled management team that can adapt to changing needs," McIlvain said.

He also emphasized that marketing expertise will become more important than management know-how.

One efficient and competitive way to organize a ranch is called by some economists an "extraction enterprise," McIlvain said, because it has practically no input costs.

Operating efficiency is a real key to survival in ranching. Ranchers need to face the fact that people are turning away from beef because the poultry and pork industries produce and market faster and more efficiently, he said.

"Beef producers need a more uniform product in a shorter time to be able to compete," McIlvain explained. "There is nothing wrong with a 700-pound calf at weaning time," he said, "and it can be done."

"A man called me from Oregon about five years ago and told me he was weaning 900-pound calves at 10 months, flushing his cows and repeating each 12 months," McIlvain told the group.

"The first rule when dealing with range management is that the practice must be cost-effective on a short-term basis," McIlvain noted. "This means proper stocking rates for moderate use of plants and soil."

Also important when managing a range are removing old growth, letting leaf growth get a good start and preventing spot grazing, he added.

"And remember the lifeboat to get into when the ship starts sinking is hay, sacked feed, rented or tame pastures or selling part of the cattle just to get them off the land," he added.

The second important criterion for range management is a keen appreciation and economical concept of the value of gain per head. "Basically, this boils down to the fact that each animal must show a profit," the rancher said.

Top-notch management will not ensure survival, McIlvain said, so brush control and animal management are two factors that every rancher should also consider.

"Basically, ranch survival depends on using cheap practices and on not spending one cent unless you can guarantee yourself more than one in return," he noted.

TEXAS STOCKS of wheat, sorghum and corn have increased 31 percent from last month, according to a Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service report. This increase in stock may be partially blamed on a slowdown in export and an increase in cattle feeding, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown reports.

U.S. Showed Positive Trade Balance in 1981

AUSTIN—For the first time since 1977 the United States experienced a positive trade balance in livestock, meat and livestock products, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown reports.

"This is good news for the Texas ranchers who produce the largest amount of cattle, sheep and goats in the nation," Brown said.

Frozen and fresh beef and veal exports from the United States increased roughly $45 million in 1981. During the same year, U.S. beef exports to Japan, the nation's largest beef market, reached nearly $160 million in fresh and frozen beef. Also in 1981, Texas meat exports totaled roughly $74 million or nine percent of the nation's total meat export. While total red meat trade in the U.S. remained negative, there was a marked narrowing of the deficit.

Texas also contributes a large percentage annually to total U.S. live animal exports which increased in both quantity and value during 1981. There were 17,906 head of cattle shipped from Texas exporting facilities during 1981 along with 48,525 head of goats, 128,359 head of sheep, 3,899 swine and 739 horses. The total value of animals exported from Texas during 1981 totaled about $33.4 million. Overall, U.S. live animal exports increased in value by approximately $40 million.

The import of live animals and their meat products to the United States showed a decline in 1981. Beef and veal imports declined about $373 million and almost 100,000 tons on a product weight basis from previous years. Live cattle imports declined in both number and value during 1981 with feeder cattle imports dropping approximately 12,000 head for a decline in value of roughly $24 million.

Based on preliminary figures, U.S. exports of livestock, meat and livestock products exceeded imports in 1981 by about $307 million. While imports declined by nearly $325 million from the 1980 value, exports grew approximately $105 million.

"An increase in exports of our nation's raw and processed foods should alleviate several economic problems that we are now facing by helping to eliminate surpluses, which are costly to maintain," Brown said.

In a five point proposal outlined by Brown, he points to the importance of exporting processed foods in stimulating the nation's economy.

"An increase in exports of processed foods from the United States would result in an increase in jobs here as well as present some tariff advantages for American exporters," Brown said.

Timber Exports May Double

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he thinks that U.S. exports of timber and wood products will more than double by the end of the decade.

"The indications are that the markets are there, if we can just resolve access problems and secure more ready acceptance of U.S. wood products by the foreign wood-using industries," he said.

Corn Planting Ahead of '81

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn planting in the major producing states by mid-May was 69 percent completed, 5 percentage points ahead of progress a year ago, says the government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility.

"Progress was ahead of normal in all states except Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska and South Dakota," the facility said Tuesday in its weekly report. "Rain on the Great Plains delayed planting and pushed progress behind schedule."

More Than Million Attempted 'Call-In Program' Is Termed Big Success

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Council of America says its recent call-in project on the state of the nation's farm economy attracted more than 1.9 million attempted calls, according to telephone company counting devices.

An estimated 2,000 calls were actually handled during the one-day "national hearing on the farm economy" on May 11, the council said Friday.

The project was co-sponsored by Farmland Industries, Kansas City, Mo., and attracted participation by a wide range of federal policy makers and members of Congress.

"As if the intensity of the conversations weren't proof enough, the fact that so many farmers tried to call is clear evidence that agriculture has severe difficulties," said Lawrence V. Gray, a Nampa, Idaho, farmer, who is chairman of the council. "The dimensions of the problem rival those of the Depression."

Gray said he hoped that "now, perhaps, a broader range of public officials will start paying attention to the statistics" which show three consecutive years of declining net farm income, the first drop in farmland values in 28 years, and a record farm debt levels.

Some 1,017 calls produced information for survey questionnaires for tabulation by the council. Those came in from 38 states, led by Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Texas and Wisconsin.

The council — a private non-profit, non-lobbying organization — said the questionnaires indicated:

— "About 40 percent of those callers had been in farming or a farm-related business for more than 30 years, and another 31 percent had been in farming for 15 to 30 years."

— "Three-fourths rate their economic futures negatively; 32 percent called this period the 'worst ever'; 30 percent 'bad'; and 14 percent said they did not expect to survive in farming or ranching."

— "A full one-third of these experienced farmers and ranchers pointed to high interest rates as the single greatest cause of agriculture's economic slump, and 93 percent endorsed action by Congress and/or the Federal Reserve Board to significantly reduce those rates.

— "More than half of the tallied surveys were from livestock and grain farmers, another one fourth from row-crop producers."

The tabulation also showed that after high interest rates, callers complained most about low commodity prices, the effects of the 1980 embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union, surplus production of some commodities, the federal budget deficit, and inadequate price supports.

Surplus Grain Storage In Old Ships Is Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possibility of storing some wheat and corn in mothballed ships if government surpluses rise sharply was discussed this week at a meeting of Agriculture Department officials, a source says.

Department spokesman declined to comment Friday on the report that the option was raised at a meeting of the agency's Commodity Credit Corp. The source who gave details of the meeting asked to remain anonymous.

Twenty years ago, when huge surpluses of grain and other commodities were held by the government, millions of bushels were stored on unused ships, as well as in federally owned grain bins scattered around the country.

But as the surpluses faded with the burgeoning world demand for grain in the late 1960s and early 1970s, the federal grain bins were dismantled or sold to farmers and other buyers.

The CCC meeting on Wednesday was convened under unusual secrecy circumstances, including no prior notice or agenda of what the discussions would be about.

It was all legal, however, according to USDA's general counsel, because the regulations permit such arrangements if the situation warrants.

In this case, according to CCC officials, the secrecy and abandonment of the usual practice of publishing an agenda was merited in order to prevent "frustration of CCC board action" and because of market sensitivity.

Amazing Diet Breakthrough: CUT CALORIES BUT NOT CONSUMPTION

At last, medical science has discovered a way to lose weight without reducing caloric intake. No more strict regimentation, fad diets, or gnawing hunger pains! Eat regular, nutritious, well-balanced meals and still lose weight.

Eleven years of scientific research
A noted Biochemist directed twenty-five other scientists in an eleven-year research study that discovered an incredibly effective diet aid.

The scientific team noted that when laboratory animals were fed uncooked kidney beans, undigested starch was found in their digestive systems. Evidence suggested that some substance in the raw beans prevented the digestion of starch. After years of painstaking research, the scientists isolated the substance and named it Special Legume Protein Concentrate (SLPC).

Caloric absorption blocked
SLPC performs its magic by prohibiting the carbohydrate-digesting enzyme, alpha-amylase, from digesting carbohydrates in the digestive tract. When SLPC is ingested prior to eating a meal containing starchy foods such as potatoes, rice, breads and pasta the SLPC inhibits the alpha-amylase from working. Undigested starch passes through the digestive tract and is eliminated—calories and all.

Convenient tablet formulation
Until now, SLPC has been restricted to use by physicians. But because SLPC is not a drug and is harmless when taken in combination with a variety of healthy foods, Nutrion Corporation has made this miraculous dietary breakthrough available to the public in tablet form, STARCH-LITE.

One STARCH-LITE tablet, taken at the beginning of each meal or snack, inhibits the ingestion of 400 starch calories—the amount of starch found in four baked potatoes, four slices of bread, two cups of rice, or two cups of pasta. While it is unlikely to consume such quantities of any one food in one meal, many fruits and vegetables also contain large amounts of starch, and thus each STARCH-LITE tablet is formulated to block the average starch content of one meal.

Food	Total calories	Starch calories blocked by STARCH-LITE	Calories remaining
Bread, one slice	110	100	10
Rice, 1 cup cooked	200	180	20
Macaroni, 1 cup cooked	210	168	42
Corn, 1 cup	174	160	14
Potato, 1 medium baked	120	100	20
Banana	120	104	16

The STARCH-LITE difference

Unlike most starch blockers on the market, STARCH-LITE is more than just granulated beans. The STARCH-LITE formulation includes a highly concentrated portion of the effective SLPC ingredient. In addition to inhibiting carbohydrate absorption, STARCH-LITE tablets have been formulated with a bulking agent which serves as an appetite suppressant. In the stomach, each STARCH-LITE tablet expands to fifty times its original size, creating a full, satisfied feeling which naturally reduces your desire for food.

Safe and stable weight loss
One STARCH-LITE tablet taken with every meal results in pound after pound of excessive weight loss. You'll realize losses of five to ten pounds almost immediately. But most importantly, your weight will come off and stay off. With the continued use of STARCH-LITE, you'll never again have to suffer the frustrations of dieting.

A time to begin
NUTRION CORPORATION introduces STARCH-LITE to the market with a limited TWO WEEK INTRODUCTORY OFFER. Order today to take advantage of this special price and to join the thousands of other customers who are now enjoying this simple, effective diet breakthrough.
