

Plot Owners Look to SBA for Help

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

A group of property owners at Hereford's Rest Lawn Memorial Park were hoping to receive help from the Small Business Administration today when a SBA loan officer from Lubbock visited the cemetery north of town.

According to Marian Kreig, chairman of a committee of property owners at the cemetery, SBA representative Barbara Hurt of Lubbock was to visit the site at 11 a.m. today. The committee is hoping to show the SBA that an $18,000 loan secured by cemetery owner H. O'Dell LaGrone of Canyon to repair and maintain the cemetery has not been used for that purpose.

"It is our contention that Mr. LaGrone did not spend the money on the cemetery," Dwaine Walker, another member of the committee said.

"According to our research the SBA loan agreement calls for the collateral put up, which includes the grounds and a tractor, to be kept in good condition," Mrs. Kreig added. "We've asked them (SBA) to come and see if that's been done."

And, the committee is contending that LaGrone has failed to live up to a perpetual care contract with property owners at the cemetery, and has let the grounds become run down.

The action by the committee follows an incident at the cemetery last week, when about a dozen of the graves at the site settled, some as much as two feet, due to local rainfall. Several markers at gravesites had either fallen into the graves, or were on the verge of doing so.

But, problems at the cemetery are not new, and the committee admits that the woes go back even farther than 1977, when LaGrone pur-

Conferees Begin Work on Budget

By CLIFF HAAS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next step in creating a 1983 federal budget is getting under way with House and Senate negotiators bargaining over the size of the projected deficit, tax increases, spending cuts and other differences in their respective spending plans.

Conferees were expected to start work this afternoon on a compromise between the $784.3 billion outline adopted by the Senate last month and the $765.2 billion package endorsed by the House last week. Both plans were drafted by Republican leaders in each house.

Earlier in the day, President Reagan was meeting at the White House with a bipar-chased the cemetery.

Earlier this year the committee became concerned with the growth of the undeveloped 10.75 acres at the 15-acre site, which they felt was creating a fire hazard for the 4.25 developed acres.

That concern prompted a meeting with LaGrone on Feb. 18 at the county commissioner's courtroom. Deaf Smith County District Attorney Roland Saul set up the meeting.

"It was at that meeting that we found out that Mr. LaGrone wanted to sell the property," Mrs. Kreig said. "That apparently was his only reason for being there, and he said that he'd sell it for $43,000."

"We told him that we weren't interested in being in the cemetery business," Walker added.

Now, LaGrone claims to have turned the cemetery over to the committee. According to Mrs. Kreig the real problems at the cemetery began in late 1980 when LaGrone allegedly told Mr. and Mrs. E.M. Green, cemetery caretakers, to "not turn the water on anymore" at the cemetery. "He told them not to do any more than they had to because he couldn't afford it anymore," Mrs. Kreig said.

"I first became aware of the problems at the cemetery in 1981," she continued. "And, that's when I began working on it. The cemetery is now the disgrace of Hereford."

According to figures provided by Mrs. Kreig, the perpetual care fund of the cemetery provides LaGrone with some $1,500 per year for maintenance and upkeep of the cemetery.

As of December 31, 1981 the trust fund had $19,564.06 in it according to an audit performed by the Texas Department of Banking's Director of Special Audits, James E. Masterson. Masterson has frozen the interest payments on the perpetual care fund, and a letter dated June 7, 1982 informed the committee that disbursements from the fund have been restricted. "That's the most positive thing we've received," Mrs. Kreig said. The next step is apparently up to Ms. Hurt of the SBA. Meanwhile, fill-in dirt has been added to those graves at the cemetery which settled due to the recent rain.

Rainfall Total Now 3.43 Inches

While much of the Panhandle has had to contend with severe weather already this spring, the Hereford area has been spared the violence. And, while the severe weather has passed the area by, the measurable rainfall has been next to nothing as well, with only 3.43 inches of rain falling here for the year.

A total of .40 of an inch fell last Thursday and Friday, while .26 of an inch more fell early Sunday morning, bringing the yearly total to just under three-and-a-half inches.

Meanwhile, thunderstorms which spawned a tornado that flipped over mobile homes and injured 10 people Monday night moved out of the state today leaving a cleanup task behind for the residents of Spearman.

"Neighbor will be helping neighbor," said a Hansford County sheriff's dispatcher. "And the power company employees are coming up to help. It got dark so quickly after it hit that we don't know how much needs to be done." Winds from the twister broke out windows in the county jail, damaged some homes and downed power lines east of the city. Hansford Hospital spokeswoman Carol Fletcher said those injured had been treated and released.

"They just had cuts and abrasions from the hail and the glass that broke," she said.

Remaining scattered thunderstorms dissipated as a cold front moved through the northern Panhandle, pushing southeast. Cooler temperatures and partly cloudy skies were expected for the Panhandle behind the front.

Hail accompanying the twister smashed the windshield of the car belonging to Hansford County Sheriff R.L. McFarlin, said the dispatcher, who asked not to be identified.

"We have at least four trailers over," McFarlin said. "The damaged homes we have been able to check on have roof damage and windows knocked out. The people we have visited out there said they were down in the cellar when the damage happened."

Reject Two Pleas for Funds

County Holds Line On Spending

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

Deaf Smith County commissioners continued to hold a hard line on spending Monday as the court heard pleas for expenditures above those of the 1981-82 budget and rejected them. The court decided during a budget hearing last week to stick as close to the 1981-82 spending figures as possible due to a drastically reduced tax base.

Monday, the court held another hearing on the budget and the planned use of the 1982-83 Revenue Sharing Funds, and heard pleas from an individual and a group concerning the county's help.

Herb Vogel presented a suggestion to the court concerning a pay increase for County Extension Agent Justin McBride, who comes up for retirement this year. Vogel said that McBride has consented to remain in his post for two more years, providing the county up his current $8,454 salary to $10,908, the same the Moore County agent receives.

"Justin has been very beneficial to Deaf Smith County, and he is one of the lower-paid agents in this area," Vogel said. "He'll be very hard to replace."

The court agreed with Vogel that McBride has been a valued asset to the county, but also agreed to stick by its previous decision to hold down expenses as well.

"I think it's very proper for us to acknowledge that Justin has been very good," Pct. 3 Commissioner Bruce Coleman said. "He has been informative, knowledgeable, and helpful, but we can't freeze salaries and budgets in one area and not another."

Thus, the court rejected the suggestion. McBride also receives salary from the state in his position, but Vogel was unable to provide a

And, the court decided not to participate in the Panhandle Regional Non-Medical Detoxification Center in another move to curtail expenses.

County Judge Glen Nelson made a plea on behalf of the Panhandle County Judges Association for the county's participation in the center, which would provide help for alcoholics who don't need medical rehabilitation.

Judge Nelson said that 10 cents per capita had been suggested for each county which decides to participate in the center.

Again, the court rejected the plea, citing the decision to freeze the budget as much as possible.

The county fathers approved a proposed 1982-93 Revenue Sharing Budget as submitted by County Auditor Alex Schroeter. The budget covers an expected income of $183,016 from Revenue Sharing, a slight drop from the (See COUNTY, Page 2)

British Claiming Falklands Victory

By The Associated Press Argentina's armed forces throughout the Falklands surrendered after British troops shattered the defenses of the Argentine garrison at Stanley, the capital, the British government announced today.

Argentina announced shortly afterwards that the military commanders of the two forces had drawn up a document "establishing the conditions for a cease-fire and the withdrawal of the (Argentine) troops." The junta's communique made no mention of surrender, but said the document would be made public when the text is available.

"Great Britain is great again," Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said outside her Downing Street office just before midnight Monday as a crowd of about 100 sang "Rule Britannia" and "God Save the Queen" when she returned from addressing Parliament.

A few hours later, her office announced Argentina had formally surrendered Monday at 9 p.m. Falklands time (8 p.m. EDT).

The communique from 10 Downing Street quoted a message from marines Maj. Gen. Jeremy Moore, commander of British land forces on the Falklands, as saying that arrangements were being made to assemble the Argentines for return to Argentina, together with their arms and equipment.

"Falkland Islands once more under the government desired by their inhabitants

— God save the Queen," Moore's message read. Britains rejoiced and Argentines chanted, jeered and wept over the British vic-

Reagan Repaying Debt; Appearing for Clements

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is repaying a political debt by serving as the drawing card at a huge fund-raising dinner that may reap upwards of $3 million tonight for Texas Gov. William P. Clements' costly re-election battle.

Reagan was flying more than half way across the country to sit at the head table with Clements and former President Gerald Ford at Houston's convention center and make a 15-minute speech.

Before leaving Washington, Reagan planned to meet with congressional leaders about the budget and preside over a Cabinet meeting.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the administration "had some difficulty" with the different Republican budget bills approved by the Senate and House. While Reagan would sign either bill, Speakes said, he hopes the package will be improved in House-Senate negotiations.

Even by Texas standards, sponsors expected to raise a lot of money at tonight's

$1,000-a-plate event. Clements, who squeaked to victory in 1978 as the only Republican ever elected governor of Texas, pulled in $2.9 million at a dinner last June. Tonight's goal was to beat that mark, and perhaps exceed the $3.5 million raised at a Washington dinner last year by the House-Senate congressional campaign committees.

"The dinner looks like it could be a record-setter," said George Bayou, finance chairman for Clements' campaign. "I think we have a good shot at it."

Reagan and Clements have a warm personal and political friendship.

Amtrak Train Derails In Southwest Iowa

EMERSON, Iowa (AP) — An Amtrak train headed west from Chicago to Denver derailed today on tracks washed out by heavy rains, injuring at least 150 people and killing a girl, officials said.

An Amtrak spokesman in Washington, D.C., said the two engines of the train, carrying 275 passengers, overturned and all the cars jumped the tracks near this town in southwest Iowa.

"As far as I know, there was only one fatality," said W.D. "Bill" Baer, a member of the Malvern rescue squad. "It was a young girl, probably in her teens. I think she probably fractured her back or neck."

Baer said rescue units and law enforcement officers were called in from towns in a 50-mile radius.

The Iowa Office of Disaster Services in Des Moines said helicopters were dispatched to the scene from both Omaha and Des Moines to rescue some of the more seriously injured.

School buses were sent to take the passengers to the Nishna Valley School, located between Emerson and Hastings.

Houston Chosen

For Amusement Park

CINCINNATI (AP) — Houston was chosen over more than 20 major market areas for a Hanna-BarberaLand park, which features entertainment that can be shared by both children and adults, the Taft Broadcasting Co. says.

"Greater Houston was selected as the first site because it is one of the fastest growing metropolitan areas in the country," said Nelson Schwab III, executive vice president of Taft's attractions group.

"It has a vibrant community spirit, more than a half-million children in the 2-13 age category, is an attractive Sunbelt location and is aggressive in attracting visitors to the area."

The $15 million Houston park, on a 30-acre site 20 miles north of downtown, is targeted to open in early 1984.

Taft has several broadcast stations and movie production companies, theme amusement parks in Ohio, Virginia, North Carolina and Canada, and is a major owner of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Pruett Pleads Innocent In Fort Smith Murder

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Mississippi death row inmate Marion Albert Pruet is to be tried Aug. 30 in Sebastian County Circuit Court for the shooting death of a convenience store clerk.

Pruett, a self-described "mad-dog killer," pleaded innocent Monday before Circuit Judge Robert Boyer. He is charged with capital murder for the Oct. 12 death of Bobbie Jean Robertson, 30, of Fort Smith.

Mrs. Robertson's body was found in a wooded area in Fort Smith several hours after her disappearance. Authorities said she had been shot three times.

Court administrator John Stauffer said by telephone Monday that Boyer appointed public defender John Settle to act as Pruet's legal adviser. Pruet has asked to represent himself.

The murder charge for Mrs. Robertson's death is the fourth Pruet has faced in three states. He has been sentenced to death in Mississippi for the slaying of Peggy Lowe, a Jackson savings and loan clerk. Pruet pleaded guilty Wednesday in Fort Collins, Colo., to the deaths of convenience store clerks Anthony Taitt, 21, and James Balderson, 23.

Texas-Oklahoma Border Will Be South Bank, Court Says

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Sooner state and the Lone Star state — rivals in everything from football to chili — have reached a Supreme Court-backed agreement on where Texas ends and Oklahoma begins.

A 32-month-old dispute over part of the border ended Monday when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the boundary will continue to be the south bank of the Red River, even where it is submerged under Lake Texoma.

The new decision is the first high-court ruling on the border since the construction in the early 1940s of Lake Texoma, which straddles the state line.

Texas filed a suit against Oklahoma, not because it disagreed with the river boundary but because a federal energy agency had suggested that the border be shifted southward along the lake.

Such a move would have given Oklahoma more land, along with the Denison Dam and its hydroelectric power plant.

The change was opposed by Texas, the only state in the union whose power companies are not under federal regulation because they operate only in the state. The move would have put Texas power companies, which buy energy from the dam's power plant, under regulation by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for the first time.

$185,939 received in 1981-82.

The court agreed to the following assignments for the Revenue Sharing funds: MHMR, $2,000; Satellite Program, $1,500; Museum, $5,000; County Library, $5,000; Law Library, $2,000; Transportation, $125,000; and General Government, $42,516.

The "frozen" budget issue also forced George Loudder of Talentmax, Inc. of Amarillo to postpone his presentation of a Personnel Contract to the court Monday. Loudder said that a freeze on salaries would necessitate some adjustments in his figures, and that he would like to present his figures to the court in September.

The county fathers agreed to that suggestion.

Loudder will present other data his company has tabulated at the July 12 commission meeting.

The court formally approved a new policy regarding use of the county library as submitted by Librarian Diane Pierson; and agreed to pay $6,980 to the city of Hereford for the recent installation of two tornado warning sirens.

Although the county had authorized only $5,000 for its part of the sirens' installation, the court agreed to pay the difference, with a rider on the motion that the city reimburse the extra $1,980 to the county if it wins pending litigation concerning the installation of the siren system.

The court also implemented a fee of $100 for firms wishing to begin seismographic activity in the county. The 90-day permit and resolution was modeled after one currently being used by Randall County. That county charges a fee of $1,000 for each permit, however.

The permit also calls for those firms conducting seismographic activities to have least $500,000 liability insurance to cover any possible damages.

The county fathers also discussed the county's possible role in the distribution of surplus government cheese.

The county has been asked by the Community Action Corp. to pay transportation and storage charges for cheese to be distributed here. The county would face storage charges of up to 92 cents per 30-pound carton of cheese if it decides to participate, and would also pay the transportation costs from Lubbock, where the dairy product is now being stored.

The court agreed to let county welfare worker Earlene Cook investigate the need for local distribution, and make a recommendation concerning it at the next court meeting.

In other action, the court authorized the payment of travel expenses of Sheriff Travis McPherson or his representative and one of the county court members to investigate suggestion for renovation to the county jail, and passed a resolution opposing the Public Employee Retirement Income Security Act, a move by the federal government to regulate public pension plans.

All four commissioners were present at Monday's meeting.

Victory

tory, which frustrated Argentina's 149-year-old dream of sovereignty over the wind-swept South Atlantic archipelago.

The Argentine junta reported Monday that the commander of its 7,000 soldiers around Stanley, the Falklands capital, agreed to a cease-fire in the 74-day undeclared war as British forces surged forward in a three-pronged attack on the port town.

"The Argentine soldiers just started to run when we advanced earlier today and our troops chased them. Everyone has stopped fighting now," a British Defense Ministry source said Monday.

A jubilant Mrs. Thatcher told a cheering House of Commons Monday night talks had been set in progress on terms for an Argentine surrender to end the war after British troops fought their way to the outskirts of the capital.

"White flags are flying over Port Stanley," she said of the last stronghold of the estimated 8,000 Argentine troops occupying the Falklands.

Mrs. Thatcher said talks were being held between Argentine commander, Brig. Gen. Mario Benjamin Menendez, and Britain's deputy field commander, Brig. Charles John Waters, "about the surrender of Argentine forces on East and West Falklands" — the archipelago's two major islands.

Defense Secretary John Nott, asked if the war was over, said, "It looks like it." He predicted Monday night that the British Union Jack would fly again over Port Stanley within a few hours.

The Argentine Joint Chiefs of Staff said in an earlier communique that the cease-fire was "de-facto," meaning that it had in fact occurred, but added that the truce "has not been agreed to officially by either of the parties."

The cease-fire was arranged when Menendez and Moore, commander of the 9,000-man offensive force, met face to face, the communique said.

Talks on surrender terms were being held at the Moddy Brook barracks just outside Stanley and probably would continue through the night, Nott said late Monday.

Britain was expected to demand the withdrawal of all Argentine troops, including some 1,500 on various parts of the islands outside Stanley. Many of these are dug in around Fox Bay on the eastern coast of West Falkland Island.

Argentina sent troops ashore April 2 and defeated a contingent of 80 British marines, leading Britain to send out a naval task force that eventually numbered 100 ships. Argentina claims Britain took the islands by force in 1833, expelling the Argentine administration.

Official casualty reports through Saturday said at least 228 British soldiers had died in land, sea and air battles for control of the Falklands, with at least another 244 wounded. Argentine losses were estimated at 775 dead or missing and more than a thousand captured.

Argentina's jets sank five British ships. Argentina's major naval loss was the sinking of its only cruiser, the General Belgrano, by a British submarine. Both countries claimed they shot down scores of enemy aircraft.

Argentina had massed its troops for a show-down fight at Stanley, a small town of frame houses on the eastern edge of East Falkland. The British began tightening the noose around the Argentine garrison last week when they seized ridges and hills 15 miles west of the capital. British troops then pushed down from the high ground in a series of assaults, punching holes through Argentina's defense lines.

Almost 6,000 British troops reportedly made the final assault, pouring over trenches and machine-gun nests as they seized Tumbledown Mountain and Wireless Ridge about a mile from Stanley.

The Argentine troops were "routed and fleeing through the deserted streets," Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, quoted government sources as saying.

Meanwhile, since their first sputnik, the Soviets have been content to explore the airless ocean above our own planet.

While we have been gathering moonbeams, the Rusksies have been preparing for star wars.

The Soviets are now ahead of us in space-based laser weapons.

As we become increasingly dependent on satellite communication and ballistic missiles, the Soviets are increasing their capability to shoot down our satellites and intercept our missiles.

Tardily, our government is awakening to what's up. The General Accounting Office just this last month urged the Pentagon to get busier on directed-energy technology; laser, particle and microwave beams.

It is not easy to re educate military officers steeped in generations of tactical weaponry. There is yet Pentagon brass which measures military strength in numbers of marching men.

Gradually, however, we are increasing our funding of space research for military purposes. Half a billion plus has recently transferred from NASA's budget to the Defense Department.

'Lebanon's Problem'

Invasion Not Pushing Into Capital

By The Associated Press

Palestinian guerrilla leaders in devastated Beirut, outgunned and trapped, are daring Israeli forces to hunt them down though Israel says it will not push its 10-day-old invasion of Lebanon into the capital.

"I think this is Lebanon's problem, not ours," Israeli Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan said Monday. He spoke to reporters in Tel Aviv after Israeli tanks, warplanes and gunships sealed off every exit from Beirut, ruling out escape for embattled chieftains of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Eytan also claimed PLO chief Yasser Arafat, who said earlier he would never surrender, had taken refuge in a foreign embassy and "we know which one." Israeli newspapers said Arafat was believed hiding in the Soviet Embassy.

Israel radio said Prime Minister Menachem Begin briefed his Cabinet today on the invasion before flying to the United States for a visit that includes talks with President Reagan next Monday.

Begin is scheduled to address the U.N. conference on disarmament Friday, but Israeli officials have not released details of his itinerary before that.

Israel radio quoted Begin as telling the Cabinet that Israel's encirclement of Beirut has given the Jewish state an "important bargaining card" in negotiations on a Lebanese settlement.

Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, speaking to Israel Television after touring his forces camped outside Beirut, said Israel has no intention of establishing Lebanon's new government. But he said Israel's invasion, which began June 6, has given the Lebanese a chance to expel guerrilla and Syrian forces, and install a strong central authority in the war-shattered Middle East nation. Sporadic gunfire subsided at dusk around the PLO's 10-square-mile zone on Beirut's southern flank. But earlier, guerrillas raced through streets on half-tracks bristling with anti-aircraft guns to set up new defense positions.

They issued communiqués vowing they will never surrender, although Israel blocks the city from the south and west and virtually controls the international airport and vital Beirut-Damascus

Highway following days of repeated bombings and shellings.

Israeli-backed Lebanese Christian militias, who also oppose the PLO, control escape routes to the north and east of Beirut.

An estimated 100,000 Palestinians have been trapped in the capital, many of them refugees who fled north as Israeli tanks overran southern Lebanese cities and Palestinian strongholds vative House measure projects the flow of red ink at $99.3 billion — a figure that congressional economists say is underestimated by $10.5 billion.

Both plans would meet the projected deficits through a combination of tax increases and spending cuts.

The deficit figure agreed to by the negotiators will be crucial to the future of any compromise budget outline in the House, where out-numbered Republicans acknowledged that last week's victory was due, in part, to keeping the deficit in their plan below $100 billion. Aside from the deficit, the negotiators face tough election-year decisions on tax increases and spending reductions.

While it is likely that Republicans in the Senate will be able to use their majority strength to pass the compromise and enforce its targets, there are signs that achieving the savings will be difficult in the House, even if it ratifies the compromise.

Several committee chairmen in the Democratic-controlled House already have served notice that their panels cannot or will not meet some of the domestic spending savings outlined in the House measure.

Jaime Neeper, soil conservationist with the Hereford Field Office of the Soil Conservation Service, is a native Texan, but has lived much of her life in Arizona. She transferred here in March from Austin, where she had worked with S.C.S. for almost two years.

Jaime's first impression of Hereford are favorable. "From what I have seen," she comments, "the people in Hereford are well-educated, active in community affairs, and progressive. They take a lot of pride in their town and keep it clean."

"There are many different organizations to meet different needs and interests of the citizens-something I feel is important for a community. And from hearing about national test results, it is obvious that the students do well and that there is a good school system here."

More specifically, in her line of work, Jaime feels that the farmers and ranchers are progressive and open to new ideas, and are friendly and courteous.

"I didn't find it difficult to adjust to Hereford, since I had lived in small towns before, and I've had no problem meeting people or making friends here," she says.

Jaime is a native of Sweetwater, where she lived with her family on a farm eight miles north of town. Her father was a cotton farmer and raised cattle. When she was nine years old, her family moved to Parker, Ariz., a small town on the Arizona-California state line which is pretty much "carved out of an Indian reservation," she says.

They also lived in Poston, which is 15 miles south of Parker and is on the reservation itself, for several years. Her father works as a custom farmer, harvesting cotton and alfalfa in Parker Valley, a fertile farming area bordered by the Colorado River, which provides water for irrigation, and surrounded by desert.

"Four Indian tribes live on the reservation," says Jaime, "the Hopi, Navajo, Mohave, and Chemehuevi." A variety of crops are raised, including wheat, onions, garlic, tomatoes, lettuce, cabbage, cantaloupe, watermelon, muskmelon, and roses, in addition to cotton and alfalfa.

Jaime went to school on the reservation in old barracks which made up Japanese prisoner of war camps during World War II. In grade school, the class ratio was about 95 percent Indians, and at Parker High School, where Jaime graduated, her class was about 35 percent Indians.

Jaime feels that it was a very educational experience growing up on and around the reservation. "Many of the old ways and customs remain on the reservation, but quite a few of the younger people go on to college and are very progressive in their attitudes."

After graduating from high school, Jaime went on to the University of Arizona at Tucson, where she earned a B.S. in agronomy, with a minor in plant protection.

Jaime was named to the Dean's List and won several agricultural scholarships while at the University of Arizona. She was a little sister to Alpha Gamma Rho, an agriculture fraternity, and was chosen sweetheart of that organization.

She was also a member of Alpha Zeta, an agricultural honorary, and was active in various capacities of the college of agriculture. She worked in the insect lab and also with cross-pollinating barley for a barley research project.

Jaime spent one summer working with one of her professors in a crew of five students doing an insect pest management project. Another summer she worked as a flagger for a crop dusting firm in Parker Valley, and another summer she spent outdoors picking honeydews, and tomatoes.

Just after graduating from college, Jaime was employed by an ag chemical company in Blythe, Calif. (just south of Parker) doing research and testing of the parasitic wasp, working with the USDA Ag

Research Service from Texas A&M.

She worked with her uncle in pest control before being hired by the Soil Conservation Service in Lockhart, Texas in 1979. "That area is so different from where I grew up," she comments. "The average rainfall is about 35 inches per year compared to about five inches per year in the Arizona desert."

In April of 1980, Jaime was transferred to Austin, where she worked with farm and ranch planning and was involved with all levels of government including federal, state, county, and city. "I was on television there a lot," she explains, "Talking about soil and water conservation."

In Hereford, Jaime is working with both dryland and irrigation farmers and ranchers on the local level, helping plan conservation systems, laying out terrace systems, conservation tillage, cropping systems, irrigation water management, and working with pumping plant efficiencies, sprinkler evaluation, and soil, water, and wind erosion problems.

"Basically, we help farmers apply today's technology in planning and utilizing soil and water resources," explains Jaime.

Jaime holds memberships in the Soil Conservation Society of America, the National Association of Conservation Districts, and the American Association of University Women.

She is also a charter member of a brand new organization-Professional Women in Agriculture-which has just gotten off the ground in the last three months. Its purpose is to enhance the professional capabilities of women employed in agriculture.

"A group of us had been talking about forming the organization for about two years," says Jaime. "We sent letters to women all over Texas and held our first meeting in Dallas in March."

Earlier this month, the group met in Dallas for the second time, and drew up a constitution and by-laws, as well as electing officers. Jaime was elected vice-president in charge of programs, and will work closely with the membership vice-president to develop programs for the next year based on what the women want out of the organization.

"I have developed a questionnaire to determine needs and interest of the membership," she comments. "I really like developing programs and getting out and talking with people. It's exciting to me getting this opportunity to meet women from a variety of agricultural occupations through the organization."

"We plan to hold meetings at least once a quarter and will have a national meeting next March. We also want to work with universities, in their colleges of agriculture, to help inform students about careers in agriculture."

"The women involved are enthusiastic and hardworking and we're receiving a lot of support from various ag industries."

Jaime enjoys reading, and says that she feels Hereford has a good public library for a small town. She attends St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

Her hobbies include rock collecting, hiking, collecting old pieces of farm equipment, corresponding with people from other places, and handwriting analysis, in which she took a beginning course "just for the fun of it" while living in Austin. "It was so interesting to me that I plan to take an advanced course sometime," she says.

Jaime has two younger brothers, Jarral, 24, who also graduated from the University of Arizona and is currently working for Westex on a drilling rig south of Sweetwater; and Tee, 21, who attends TSTI in Sweetwater and works part-time. Her mother teaches eighth grade English and will be a speech therapist in the schools next year.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

A Southern newspaper has, as one of its features, a column devoted to exposing the sanitation or the lack of it in local restaurants.

- The list of improprieties consisted of the following:
- Food not covered in refrigerator.
- Improper dishwashing practices.
- Hot dogs soaking in water in refrigerator.
- Tank top broken in women's restroom.
- Restrooms not labeled.
- Cutting board not smooth.
- Thermometers needed in refrigerator.
- Back door open to flies.
- Employees working without proper hair restraint.
- Carbon build-up on pans.
- Corroded vent fan.
- No soap or towels at sink.
- Outdated buttermilk...possibly unwholesome.
- I had to stop reading. The list has just described my kitchen.

Keeping a kitchen clean is like trying to tidy up after a sandstorm. Besides, I employ cheap labor. My own kids. Somehow, you don't get the pride from them that you'd get from, say, a transient Mexican alien.

- The other night, I walked into the kitchen with a clipboard and made out my own list of health violations.
- Dog drinking water out of Old Fashioned glass.
- Wet finger running around rim of mashed potatoes pan.
- Hair dryer on countertop.
- Ice cream in carton at room temperature.
- Melted ice cubes on floor creating safety hazard.
- Fight among kitchen help using cold, hard peas as ammunition...possible danger to cook.
- Loading dishwasher while diner is still eating off plate.
- Emptying raw garbage into wastebasket with no plan of removing it from kitchen.

As I was writing down the violation, my mother came in, her eyes spanning the kitchen area slowly. "This place is a dump!" she said.

My face brightened. "Thank you! I thought you were going to be sarcastic."

Children Set In Ways

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have stated in your column repeatedly that "parents do not owe their children an inheritance," and suggested there are many worthy organizations and foundations that can use help.

We accept responsibility for giving our children too much, too soon. As a result, they (and their children) are rude, inconsiderate, selfish and have no respect for the religion we tried to bring them up in.

Should these expectant heirs be told NOW how we feel, so they are left a healthy sum? Your opinion is wanted.—Don't Want To Be Fooled In Michigan

DEAR MICHIGAN: What you are suggesting is not-so-subtle blackmail. The behavioral patterns of your children and grandchildren are set in concrete by this time. If you want to use a promised inheritance as a sledgehammer to get them to shape up, go ahead, but they will hate you for it and revert to their old ways before you are cold in your grave.

DEAR ANN: My 50th birthday is coming up. I'm depressed and terrified. You've been there. What's it like—Needing A Lifeline

DEAR NEEDING: Buy the lifeline for $12.95. Bill Atwood's "Making It Through Middle Age" (publisher Athenium) is a book you'll adore. I did.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to comment on your statement, "To err is human, but only a computer can do a thorough job of lous-ing things up."

(1) A human being had to read that letter first. Technology is improving but it hasn't yet reached the point where a machine can read anyone's handwriting.

(2) A human being had to act on the instructions before it was placed in the computer. In fact, every bit of information that is fed into a computer is prepared by a human being.

The problems described by "Irate" in his letter were created by the same old brand of bureaucratic inefficiency and ineptness. In other words, HUMAN ERROR. A machine is only as good as the individual who feeds it the instructions.—A Programmer In Lexington

DEAR LEX: Everything you have written is true—but I stand by my position, which I will restate. All computers, regardless of how sophisticated, are only pieces of machinery. No one can guarantee that a piece of machinery will perform perfectly 100 percent of the time. Wheels fall off cars, TV sets go dark in the middle of a favorite program, garbage disposals grind to a halt without a warning, typewriters konk out at the worst possible moment.

Now do you get it, Buster? I've been there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: One morning I was awakened by a kiss planted on my lips. When I opened my eyes, I saw my wife (of one year) standing by the bed dressed in her wedding gown and veil, wearing her white satin shoes and holding the Bible she carried when we were wed. Tears came to my eyes and I embraced her.

That dear woman has done this for the last 30 years, and it has kept our marriage fresh and exciting. Sign me—Happy In A Perfect Marriage

New Dust Bowl Blues To Repeat

SuperStation WTBS will air NEW DUST BOWL BLUES, a one-hour TBS documentary about the serious problems of soil erosion and the loss of American farmland to non-agricultural uses, at 7:35 PM (ET) tonight, June 20 at 1:05 PM (ET), June 23 at 4:35 AM (ET) and June 24 at 11:05 PM (ET). The program made its debut on WTBS on May 30.

Actor Eddie Albert, a longtime conservationist, hosts the documentary and comments on the developments which have led to the current U.S. erosion crises. He is joined by a number of agriculture experts from government and private organizations, including Secretary of Agriculture John Block and representatives of the National Association of Conservation Districts, the Soil Conservation Service and other groups.

The experts point out that six and a half billion tons of soil are vanishing from American farms every year as a result of erosion, and that we are losing about three million acres of cropland a year to non-farm uses, such as urbanization.

NEW DUST BOWL BLUES not only spells out the issue and the threat to domestic and international food supplies, but also offers tangible solutions to the problem. Farmers talk about conservation methods and ways that everyone, in both rural and urban areas, can promote conservation and work to keep endangered, prime U.S. farmland in agriculture.

Amateur Scientists Want To Revive Plant Life

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) —

In the devastated lands around Mount St. Helens, amateur scientists are trapping seeds with greasy cheesecloth and artificial animal tracks to help plant life make a comeback on the northern side of the volcano.

A sheriff's deputy, a computer programmer and an 18-year-old student are among the summer scientists who are helping botanist A.B. Adams and his ecologist wife, Virginia.

The Adams say about half of the area's 250 plant species have returned in the two years since the mountain's cataclysmic first eruption May 18, 1980. The eruption left 59 people dead or missing and leveled 150 square miles of timberland.

"This is where life began," said Adams, 33, belly-down in the mud to examine seeds. "If I were a seed, this is where I'd want to land."

Adams, a spokesman for the University of Washington's geophysics department, and his wife have been monitoring the return of life to the devastated area since the first eruption. Now, through a project supported by Earthwatch, a Massachusetts non-profit organization, they have six helpers who paid $835 each to participate.

The group is setting up seed traps along drainage slopes and along most of the Toutle River debris flow. The traps consist of simple wood frames with pieces of grease-and-oil soaked cheesecloth stapled to them. Any windborne seeds that hit the cloth will stick.

Nearby, Mrs. Adams and other volunteers dig small holes to simulate animal tracks that trap seeds naturally because the tracks retain more moisture than the surface and allow the seeds to grow.

They also are keeping track of the plants that are bouncing back from the eruption. Of the plants already returning to the area, the most abundant is fireweed, which Adams called "the hero of the devastation flow."

Other species that have made a comeback are thimbleberry, ragwort, miner's lettuce, rushes, willows and alpine lupine. The lupine, generally found at higher elevations, apparently was moved down by the mudflow.

"It's amazing," Adams said. "We could have the only alpine meadow in the world at 3,000 feet."

Adams found a willow seed and predicted hundreds of others are "just waiting for a good rain."

The area could be a "virtual oasis" by the end of the summer, he said.

Fans Already Want Rematch

By ED SCHUYLER Jr. AP Sports Writer

The postfight pain hadn't yet fully invaded Larry Holmes' tense and trim body; Gerry Cooney hadn't had his wounds stitched ... but the word was already in the air — "rematch."

And, the morning after Holmes battered Cooney into defeat in the 13th round to keep his World Boxing Council heavyweight title, Victor Valle, Cooney's trainer, said, "I hope Larry Holmes retires, but I hope he doesn't retire until he gives us a rematch."

A lot of people side with Valle, not exactly for the same reason. Holmes-Cooney One was a box office smash, and it's just smart business to bring a smash back.

Before last Friday night's battle of unbeaten fighters at Las Vegas, Nev., Cooney had said, "I believe the pressure is on him, not on me. He is the champion, he has everything to lose."

Now the pressure will be on Larry Holmes again.

He'll be told that he can make as much or more in a second fight — each fighter might realize about $10 million from their Las Vegas match — and that this time he will be respected as champion, that he will not have to give the challenger a pride-bruising 50-50 split.

And it is a sure bet that Holmes will be told he should prove that his win over Cooney was no fluke.

Larry Holmes has to prove nothing to anybody, and especially, he has nothing to prove to himself.

Holmes has climbed into the professional prize ring 40 times, and 40 times he walked out a winner. He has defended the title 12 times against anybody promoter Don King and the WBC politicians put in against him.

Time after time, Holmes has risen to the occasion. He won the title from Ken Norton while fighting with a pulled muscle in his left bicep; he overcame in own overconfidence and beat Mike Weaver; he got up from smashing knockdowns to stop Earnie Shavers and Renaldo Snipes, and he handled his victory over Muhammad Ali in a no-win situation with grace.

And, he handled the pressure of the Cooney's fight racial overtones — Cooney entered the ring with a big ovation from the predominantly white crowd; it was boos for Holmes.

If he fought Gerry again, who would it be for, what would it be for? Holmes will be 33 on Nov. 3, and it is conceivable he could be almost 34 by the time of a rematch.

The champion could fight a fringe opponent in Scranton, Pa., where he turned pro in 1973, or in Easton. That would enable him to end his career in a fight in which he would be the star and not be treated as second banana as he generally was against Cooney.

estimated crowd of 40,000 in London's Crystal Palace. Mays had run a 1:46.48 near Los Angeles in April, which was the nation's fourth-fastest time this year.

Mays, Tech's only three-time All-American, said the time switch bothered him. "When you go over to Europe for a short period of time, the time change is real hard to get used to. We ran two days after flying over. It might have been better if we'd had three or four days to get ready."

Mays is scheduled to run at the Sports Festival in July in Indianapolis, and has tentatively accepted invitations this summer in Japan and Italy.

Mays Frustrated In London Race

Hereford's James Mays, disappointed with his performance in a London 800-meter race, hopes to redeem himself in several special track meets this summer.

Mays, a former Southwest Conference 800-meter champ from Texas Tech, is finishing his college degree in one summer class at Lubbock.

He and a host of U.S. track athletes were invited to compete in London last week against top runners from England, Australia and Sweden. May finished fifth in the 800 meters with a time of 1:48.2.

"I felt good the first lap," said Mays, "but at the start of the second, I just didn't have it."

Australia's John Bourke, who has the world's fastest time this year (1:44.35), won the event in 1:46.4 before an

Four Hereford Riders Cop Tri-State Rodeo Honors

Four Hereford riders scooped up saddles and belt buckles as the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association concluded its season with the 11th Annual Finals in Amarillo last weekend. Rita Ward nabbed wins in all three of the go-rounds in pole bending and insured a first place average Saturday night with a time of 18.022 seconds. Her rides netted the first place finals belt buckle and the year-end championship saddle from the association.

Miss Ward also placed sixth in the barrel races with a time of 14.836 in the last go-round.

Steve McConnell downed a steer in 6.009 seconds Saturday night to chalk up a second consecutive go-round win. McConnell received a first place buckle and year-end championship saddle.

Scott Wilcox won the association's year-end champion bull rider saddle and the third place average belt buckle in barebacks. Wilcox scored a 56 in the final go-round of barebacks and a 68 in the bull riding earlier in the finals.

Robert Esqueda, who roped the season with Canyon's Vance Molesworth, received the second place average belt buckle in team roping.

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Brazil scored twice in the last 15 minutes to defeat the Soviet Union 2-1 in Seville in their opening match of the 1982 World Cup soccer finals.

Major Titles Take Toll On Play of Graham, Rogers

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The holders of the two most important national open golf titles in the world — David Graham and Bill Rogers — come into the 82nd American national championship with little more than hopes and wishes going for them.

Their games, at this stage, are far from the lofty levels that enabled Rogers to take the British national title and Graham the U.S. Open last year.

Neither has won this season. Neither has really been close.

Both, said Graham, are paying the price for the frantically-busy, globe-trotting schedules they devised to capitalize on their important 1981 triumphs.

"What are you going to do?" Graham asked before a practice round on the Pebble Beach Golf Links, where he will defend his title in the 1982

U.S. Open that begins Thursday.

"I'm not Jack Nicklaus or Tom Watson. I'm not going to win all that many majors. You have to take advantage of it when you can. When somebody comes to you and offers you all that money — a lot of money — to play in a tournament, what are you going to tell him — 'Get lost?' You have to capitalize on it when you can."

Graham, as the U.S. Open titleholder, last winter embarked on a three-month around-the-world jaunt that brought him "an awful lot of money" on a schedule that included tournaments in England, France, Hong Kong, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and Panama, among others.

"It takes its toll," said Graham, an Australian native who now makes his home in Dallas. "I was exhausted when it was over."

NEW YORK (AP) — Forward Bobby Jones and center Caldwell Jones, who helped the Philadelphia 76ers get to the final round of the National Basketball Association playoffs, were among those selected by the league's 23 coaches for the NBA's All-

Also chosen were forward Dan Roundfield of the Atlanta Hawks and guards Michael Cooper of the world champion Los Angeles Lakers and Dennis Johnson of the Phoenix Suns.

Orioles Win, Texas Bows

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer
Dan Ford was getting sick of watching the Baltimore Orioles. Having a seat on the bench does that to him.

Ford capped a five-run, seventh-inning outburst with a pinch-hit grand slam homer Monday night as the streaking Orioles downed the Milwaukee Brewers 9-4 for the eighth victory in their last nine games.

"I'm always itching to get back in," Ford said after hitting the first pinch-hit homer in his seven-year career. "I'm not a guy to sit around and watch. I'm not a fan yet."

Ford, whom the Orioles acquired from California in the off-season, had been sidelined since Thursday with a pulled hamstring muscle. He didn't have to test it much after he connected on a 1-2 pitch from reliever Jaime Easterly.

The pinch hit homer was the sixth this season for the Orioles, who were mired in the basement of the American League East for a few weeks after getting off to a poor start.

Ford's performance was one of the reasons for the poor start.

"I think I was trying too hard in Baltimore because I wanted to get off to a good start," said Ford, whose average dropped as low as .197 this season.

In other AL action Monday, New York defeated Boston 5-1, Cleveland swept a two-night doubleheader from Detroit 5-0 and 2-1, Kansas City blanked Minnesota 3-0; Seattle shutout Texas 4-0 and Oakland beat Toronto 4-2.

Joe Nolan also homered for the Orioles, who have blasted 18 homers during their recent streak.

With the score tied 4-4, Lenn Sakata reached first on third baseman Paul Molitor's error to open the seventh. Al Bumbry then beat out a bunt, and both runners advanced on Rich Dauer's hit-and-run groundout. Ken Singleton was walked intentionally to load the bases, but Milwaukee starter Moose Haas, 3-4, walked Eddie Murray on five pitches to put Baltimore ahead 5-4.

Ford then batted for John Lowenstein and delivered.

Jim Gantner knocked in three runs for the Brewers with a pair of singles, while Charlie Moore also had an RBI single.

Scott McGregor, with two innings of relief help from Tim Stoddard, earned his eighth victory against four losses.

Yankees 5, Red Sox 1
Dave Collins, mentioned in several trade rumors, with the deadline set at midnight

PST, may have had his last hurrah as a New York Yankee.

Collins, acquired as free agent last winter, smacked his first homer since August 30, 1981, a two-run shot, to back Ron Guidry's five-hit pitching as New York downed Boston.

Guidry, off to his best start since 1978 when he won his first eight decisions, notched his eighth win of the year against one loss. He struck out seven and walked three.

The victory was only the Yankees second in their last nine games.

Mariners 4, Rangers 0
Jim Beattie and Mike Stanton combined on a three-hitter and Bruce Bochte, Dave Henderson and Al Cowens posted solo homers as the Seattle posted its fifth victory in six games by blanking Texas.

Beattie, who worked the first six innings and allowed three singles, and Stanton, who collected his fourth save, retired the final 14 Texas batters.

Astros Top Braves

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The way they've been playing for the last few weeks, the Chicago Cubs knew they were due for a good game one of these days.

They finally got one Monday.

"We needed that," said Bump Wills after the Cubs broke a 13-game losing streak by pounding 19 hits in a wild, wind-blown 12-11 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Cubs' streak had tied their all-time record for futility, set in 1944, and was the longest in the National League this season. The last Chicago victory this season was a 3-2 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers May 29.

Aided by a 20-mph wind blowing out to the walls at Wrigley Field, the Cubs got a three-run homer from Wills and a two-run shot from Leon Durham, each of whom drove in four runs.

"No lead is secure in this park with the wind blowing out," said Durham, whose eighth inning blast gave the Cubs a 12-7 lead and helped them withstand a Phillies' four-run ninth.

"Maybe this will turn us around," said Wills. "In the last five games you can tell the guys were starting to press."

It was a typical day for the inconsistent Cubs. While roughing up Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton, 7-7, for six runs in just over three innings, they also committed six errors to help the Phillies get back into the game.

The Cubs nearly squandered leads of 6-0 and 9-3 earlier, then almost blew their 12-7 advantage in the ninth. Gary Matthews made it 12-10 with a three-run homer off reliever Bill Campbell. The Phillies added another run when Gary Maddox hit an RBI grounder, and they had the tying run on first, when Luis Aguayo grounded into a forceout to end the game.

In other National League action, it was Houston 9, Atlanta 0; New York 2, Pittsburgh 1; St. Louis 2, Montreal 1 and Los Angeles 4, San Diego 3 in 11 innings.

Astros 9, Braves 0
Joe Niekro pitched a six-hitter and Denny Walling knocked in three runs, two with a homer, as Houston beat Atlanta. Niekro, 6-4, struck out six and walked two, retiring 18 of 19 batters over one stretch, including 11 in a row.

Walling knocked in the first Houston run with a sacrifice fly in the third inning off loser

Rick Mahler, 6-5, then capped a three-run eighth with his two-run homer.

"A lot of things went right tonight," said Phil Garner, one of three Astros to collect three hits.

Mets 2, Pirates 1

Ellis Valentine hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and New York overcame 10 strikeouts by Don Robinson to nip Pittsburgh.

Winner Pete Falcone, 4-2, allowed only five hits in eight innings before Neil Allen pitched the ninth and posted his 15th save to cool the Pirates, who had won eight of their 10 previous games.

Robinson, 6-2, meanwhile, kept the Mets guessing with fastballs and breaking pitches. He struck out six Mets swinging and allowed only six hits and two walks.

The Pirates scored in the first on Bill Madlock's sixth homer of the year.

Grand Old Game May Take On New Look, In Governing Structure

CHICAGO (AP) — The grand old game is on its way to taking on brand new look that, while it won't be noticeable on the field, could have a significant impact on how organized baseball is governed.

Major league baseball's 26 owners endorsed a restructuring proposal Monday that would remodel the sport's hierarchy structure.

"It was the most constructive day baseball has had in my 13 years as commissioner," said Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who took over baseball's top job in 1969 with the promise to revamp its structure.

"The administrative structure was good until we got to the modern era, where telecasts, marketing and other factors begin to have a more profound impact on the game," Kuhn said.

Also Monday, the owners filed suit to shut players out of money from televised baseball. Ray Grebey, director of the owners' player relations committee, said the suit seeks a permanent injunction to recognize the clubs as sole owners of all baseball television rights.

Marvin Miller, president of the Major League Baseball Players Association, vowed to fight the owners' suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago. "I'm confident that we'll win on the merits of the issues involved," Miller said. The restructuring proposal calls for merging the two league offices into the commissioner's office and a more centralized business operation "from the auditor up to the owners," according to restructuring committee co-chairman Roy Eisenhardt, president of the Oakland A's.

Under the plan, the 26 owners would operate "like a board of directors and the commissioner would be like the chief executive officer," he said.

Other proposed changes include:

—Shortening the commissioner's term to five years from the present seven.

—Increasing the number of owners' meetings to four each year from the current two.

—Giving an eight-member owners' executive committee broader powers to oversee the operation of baseball between owners' meetings.

—Building closer relations between the promotion and player relations departments of the commissioner's office.

In another move, National League owners voted to abolish their unanimous voting rule, under which any owner can veto a request for expansion, inter-league play, a team's change of division or expulsion of an owner. Such actions will now require approval of only nine of the 12 National League owners.

Raiders May Open '82 Season at L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge's injunction may enable the Oakland Raiders to move to the Los Angeles Coliseum in time for the 1982 National Football League season.

The injunction Monday by U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson invalidated an NFL rule that had prohibited the Raiders' move. But after issuing the injunction, Pregerson temporarily stayed it to allow an appeal by the league.

Pregerson said such an application to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals must be served and filed on or before June 21, and the temporary stay would be dissolved July 2.

TRACK AND FIELD
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Rob Muzzio, competing in only his second decathlon, took the lead after five events as The Athletics Congress U.S. Junior track and field meet began at Indiana University's Billy Hayes Track.

Muzzio, 17, of Fairfax, Va., and representing the D.C. Striders track club, won the shot put and tied for first in the 100-meter dash, building a first-day total of 3,776 points.

FOOTBALL
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chet Simmons, head of the ESPN, the all-sports cable television network, has been named commissioner of the fledgling United States Football League.

At the courthouse following Pregerson's ruling, NFL Attorney Patrick Lynch said, "We will probably make our appeal immediately against the injunction and ask for a stay."

Although Los Angeles Coliseum Commission President Mike Frankovich said, he didn't see how the Raiders "can be down here this fall," another spokesman, Bill Robertson, disagreed.

"I talked by phone with Al Davis (managing general partner of the Raiders) and he told me there would be no problems," Robertson said.

Davis wasn't present when Pregerson issued his ruling, nor was NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"The overwhelming jury verdicts for the Raiders were upheld by the federal court today," said Davis from his San Francisco office. "Aside from the National Football League's anti-trust violation, the ruling reaffirms that the actions and conduct of the league were in bad faith and unfair dealing."

On May 7, a jury of six women found the NFL in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Law and a second law applying to fair dealing in the league's refusal to grant the Raiders permission to move.

The decision came in a retrial. A first trial in the matter ended in a hung jury last August.

The Raiders challenged an NFL rule requiring that team moves be approved by three-fourths of the league's 28 owners.
