Arizona Man Guilty On $15,000 Dope Charge Gets 10 Years In Pen

By MARSHALL DAY
Staff Writer

A 10-man, 2-woman jury Friday convicted a 38-year-old Phoenix, Ariz., man on charges of possession of opium and sentenced him to 10 years in the state penitentiary.

Abraham Rodriguez was arrested last Dec. 4 with a former Hereford woman, Margie Elevario, on a traffic violation, but a search of their motel room turned up slightly over one-fourth pound of uncut heroin, which would have been worth about $15,000 after processing.

The jury heard testimony from seven state witnesses, then retired to the jury room for 33 minutes before they returned their guilty verdict. They were out of the courtroom another 50 minutes deciding what punishment to assess.

Rodriguez and Mrs. Elevario were arrested five months ago by city police officers after an alleged informant told them Mrs. Elevario and Rodriguez were trying to sell heroin here.

Officer Paul Ramirez stopped the couple on South Main, told them they were driving in an unsafe manner, and took them to the county jail where they were booked and charged with drunkenness.

A search of the car the duo was in revealed no narcotics, but when Mrs. Elevario was checked into the jail and searched, a key to a local motel was found hidden in her brassiere. Members of the sheriff's department and city police force searched the motel room and discovered a plastic bag which contained two prophylactics filled with what was believed to be heroin.

Called as the state's first witness in the Friday trial was Mrs. Elevario, who testified against Rodriguez. Charges were dropped against Mrs. Elevario when she agreed to testify against Rodriguez.

She told the court that she and Rodriguez had taken a trip to Mexico in December of last year to "go out on the town" at San Luis. She testified that Carlos asked the defendant to get him some marijuana but when Abraham told Carlos he had gotten some "white load" instead, Carlos did not want anything to do with the stuff.

Mrs. Elevario testified that the trio came back to the American side of the border and a wetback named "Chino" met them in Summerton, Ariz. with the heroin. She said they then went to Phoenix, where Carlos remained and she and Abraham returned to Hereford.

When the couple arrived in Hereford they got a motel room, she said, and Abraham left to try and sell the heroin.

"We were stopped by police," Mrs. Elevario testified, "and arrested for drunk."

She said that they were taken to the city hall, then taken to the county jail where the matron told her to strip so that her clothing could be checked.

"I had the motel key in my bra and tried to hide it from the matron, but she got it anyway," she said.

Under defense questioning, Mrs. Elevario admitted she was to receive $300 as her part from the sale of the heroin. She also testified that she never actually saw Abraham in possession of the heroin, though he did tell her it was in the motel room.

Travis McPherson, sheriff, testified that the sheriff's department had had the vehicle and subjects under surveillance because of information received from an informant.

"A reliable informant told me the defendant tried to sell some heroin to various people here in Deaf Smith County," McPherson told the court.

McPherson said the couple was put under surveillance shortly after 10 p. m. and their actions were observed until around 11:30 p. m., when Rodriguez was observed driving over the center line of a street, which allowed officer Ramirez to stop them for unsafe driving.

"After the couple was taken to the jail," McPherson said, "the car was taken to a filling station and put on a rack and searched, but nothing was found."

"We went to the motel room after the key was found on Margie, and officer Burke found See CHARGE, Page 2

Hereford, Deaf Smith County Show Big Population Gains

By BETTY KOELZER
Staff Writer

Hereford is one of the few cities in this area to increase in population over the past 10 years, according to the district manager of the Bureau of Census.

R. L. Butler, the census official, said Hereford rose to a population of 13,092, a 71 per cent gain over the 7,652 shown at the time of the last count in 1960. Deaf Smith County totals 18,533 population this year, showing a gain 5,346 over 1960's count of 13,187. The figures are subject to revision after receipt of late census forms.

Officials in neighboring cities showing decrease in population are questioning the accuracy of the preliminary 1970 census. However, a check with local utility companies reveals agreement with Hereford's totals.

Dale Young, manager of Pioneer Natural Gas Company, said his estimate, according to utility connections and percentages of persons per connection, were "no more than 14,000 for the county, and more like 13,300."

The City of Hereford water superintendent, Onias Carroll, said an average of 3.2 persons per meter would show approximately 13,000 population for the city's 4,124 connections, as of May 1.

Mrs. Jo Bailey, bookkeeper for Southwestern Public Service Company, reports a projection of 13,200 population from the total number of connections January 1, 1970. Residential connections show 3,984, commercial 847, and industrial 91.

Mrs. Bailey searched past records and found the company had 3,059 residential connections in 1960, 570 commercial, and 109 industrial. She explained the reduction in the number of industrial connections by 1970 due to the change from multi-meters for various firms to more efficient single meters, now available.

The Hereford Independent School District total enrollment on Oct. 7, 1960 was 2,872 and October 10, 1969 was 5,471, an almost 100 per cent increase.

Mayor Jim Sears said the preliminary figures are about what he expected except "I was surprised that the rural areas in the county had lost in population. There are a bunch of new homes out around the county, and I thought the population there would be higher too."

Hereford's gain was 5,440 persons over the 10-year period and the county's gain was 5,346 — which means that Deaf Smith County exclusive of Hereford has 94 fewer residents than in 1960.

Area cities, disappointed to find their preliminary counts showing decreases in population include Amarillo with 123,973 compared to 137,969 in 1960; Pampa showing 21,239 from 24,664; and Borger dropping to 43,928 from 20,911. Officials in these cities are double checking for citizens who were missed in the primary enumeration.

Lubbock showed an increase in number but still feels the count is too low according to officials' expectations. Lubbock's 1970 total stands at 146,379 over 1960's 128,661.

County totals released by the census bureau show: Castro 10,292, compared to 1960's 8,923; Parmer 10,374 compared to 1960's 9,583; Oldham rising to 2,240 from 1,928; Randall gains, ed to 52,891 from 33,913; Potter County's 1970 preliminary count of 87,985 is less than 1960's 115,580; and Hale County shows 33,374 for 1970 and 36,798 for 1960.

Grand Jury Indicts 4 Here Thursday

The Deaf Smith County grand jury Thursday returned four indictments — three for possession of marijuana and one for possession of narcotic paraphenalia.

Indicted were William Harold Young and May Kathryn Benson, both 19, for possession of marijuana. The two were arrested April 20 on suspicion of being drunk and when they were searched, small amounts of marijuana were found on their person.

Young and Miss Benson are both Amarillo residents.

Also indicted on charges of possession of marijuana was Jose Angel Carbajal, 25, of Hereford.

Arturo De-La Cerda, 21, of 321 Ave. J, was indicted on a charge of possession of narcotic paraphenalia.

All four persons have been released on bond.

WT, Tech Offer Summer Training For Kindergarten

A training program for kindergarten teachers will be conducted at Texas Tech and West Texas State from July 13 to Aug. 14. Anyone interested in entering the training program, for which each participant will receive six semester hours credit, $75 a week and a legal permit to teach in the state-supported kindergarten program should pick up an application blank at the Hereford Schools administration office. By taking three semester hours additional in the summer of 1971, those who earn the legal permit to teach in the kindergarten program can get a regular certification. The program is restricted to 25 persons in each class. Only those who hold a baccalaureate degree and have promise of employment in the 1970-71 long term may take the course. The course is further restricted to persons who have not taught in a state-accredited program for the six months prior to July 13, 1970. Participants may be substitute teachers if they did not teach more than half of the 1969-70 school year. a plastic bag with two prophylactics filled with a substance," he said.

William G. Dunn, a chemist with Amarillo Laboratory of Pathology, who examined the substance shortly after the seizure, said he ran general screening tests for opiates and they indicated a presence of several opiate substances.

"In my ledger," Dunn said, "I have written that the tests indicated the sample contained 4.9 per cent heroin, 1.54 per cent codeine and 0.5 per cent papaverine."

Dunn explained that all of these substances constitute an opiate.

He said he conducted about 13 tests on the substance to determine whether it was an opiate and all of the tests showed positive results.

Throughout the trial and the questioning of the witnesses, the defense attorney, Charles Fairweather of Amarillo, repeatedly questioned the credibility of Mrs. Elevario as a witness because of her past record and the number of times she lied to the sheriff's department immediately after her arrest.

Fairweather asked all of the officers if they would believe Mrs. Elevario under oath and they all answered they would, despite her past record. She had been arrested for bootlegging and a traffic violation and had been used by the sheriff's de-

MISSION FIELD

LONDON — A plan for dividing the Church of England diocese of London into four virtually autonomous areas under suffragan bishops has been approved in principle on the proposition of Bishop Robert Stopford of London. "The diocese of London must be seen as a mission field," says Dr. Stopford. "Out of our total population (in the diocese) of nearly four million people, 110,500 are sufficiently committed as members of the church of England to be on the electoral rolls of parishes. That is the measure of our missionary task." South London is covered by the separate diocese of Southwark.

While Hereford remains "high and dry", the cities in South-Central Texas are having their problems with an over-supply of water.

The little college town of San Marcos, where our eldest attends Southwest Texas State along with a number of other Hereford students was flooded Friday afternoon as the San Marcos River, Purgatory Creek and the Blanco River overflowed. Most of the town, and practically all in the lower area was under water. The lower floor of one college apartment house was flooded and flood waters apparently were as near as across the street from a couple of the college dorms.

However, most of Southwest Texas State University is built on the hill and was not endangered. Reports from a San Antonio radio station indicated that the Blanco River would crest at 32 feet sometime during the night Friday which would add to the problems. A reported 12 inch rain in about 4 or 5 hours caused the problems.

Meanwhile, the people of Lubbock are still digging out from the Monday night tornado, that hit their city and are still encouraging outsiders to stay away from the city, the disaster area in particular, unless they have business there. The problem of what to do with the hordes of sightseers is apparently becoming worse each day.

By the way, the preliminary census figures have been released and Lubbock is showing a healthy lead over its rival city, Amarillo. Lubbock's preliminary report indicates 146,000 people while Amarillo could come up slightly less than 124,000. Hereford however can now boast of 13,000 plus. That's a few more than we had anticipated, although we're certainly happy to have them all.

Worth Covington, who is always coming up with something — mostly useless information — has suggested that we come to the aid of Amarillo and help them increase their population figures. Worth thinks we should give them our Mafia members, just part of them, not all. After all, if we lost them all we wouldn't have anything to talk about down here.

The census figures will probably increase slightly when the official count is released later this summer. There are always a few missed during the preliminary tally and we can probably expect to have a couple hundred more than has been reported. However, we're pretty happy with the first reports. We suppose that it's inevitable, and certainly according to the national trends, but the figures for rural Deaf Smith County dropped almost 100 people. All the county increase is in the city.

Fortunately, as a rural town, we're still growing. Most of the smaller towns with agricultural oriented economies are going the other way and the trend is disturbing. The big cities are getting bigger — with more problems — and the little rural communities are drying up.

Made a wager with former Mayor Ray Cowser some months ago concerning the census count, but have forgotten the details. Cowser however, says he remembers well and naturally he won, so it appears that we're going to be forced to pay off... reluctantly. Unfortunately, we didn't engage the services of a "bookie" so there's nothing in writing.

Oh well, that's what a guy gets for wagering with a lawyer. You just can't win.

How can you tell a boy's nationality by introducing him to a girl? Easy. An English boy shakes her hand; a French boy kisses her hand; an American boy asks her for a date and a Russian boy wires Moscow for instructions.

4th SWC Star To Sign Mckay Joins West For A-A Grid Game

LUBBOCK — Another top name has been added to the roster of the Coaches All-America game with the signing of Bob McKay, an offensive tackle on the 1969 National Championship Texas Longhorn team.

One of the finest blockers ever to wear the Texas colors, McKay was a consensus All-America game without the signing of Coach Dan Devine's West squad in the All-Star contest slated for June 27 in Texas Tech's Jones Stadium.

At 6-6 and 250 pounds, McKay made the Texas ground game so potent. His crunching blocks helped the Longhorns to post a new Southwest Conference rushing and total offensive marks. The Longhorns averaged 363 yards rushing per game — second highest ever in NCAA history.

Coach Darrell Royal has this to say about the big tackle:

"Bob is exceptionally fast and quick for a big man. He's a strong blocker at the point of attack, also he has thrown many downfield blocks and is a fine pass-protection blocker."

A native of Crane, McKay is an education major. He is the fourth Southwest Conference star to sign for the All-Star contest. Already announced are Denton Fox of Texas Tech and Rodney Brand and Cliff Powell of Arkansas.

Eighteen players are now on the West roster and 16 have accepted invitations to play for the East.

Already signing in addition to McKay, Fox, Brand and Powell, are Jim Reilly, Notre Dame; Buddy McClinton, Auburn; Jim McFarland and Ken Geddes, Nebraska; Terry McMillan, Missouri; Mel Easley, Oregon State; Billy Bridges, Houston; John Ward, Oklahoma State; Butch Davis, Missouri; John Small The Citadel; Ron Gardin, University of Arizona; Godfrey Zaunbrecher, Eddie Ray, and George Bevan, all of LSU.

Also, Warren Muir, University of South Carolina; Steve Tannen, University of Florida; Walker Gillette, University of Richmond; John Isenbarger, Indiana; Robert Asher, Vanderbilt; Bob Reinhard, Stanford; Ron McBride, Missouri; Bill Pierson, San Diego State; Jim Otis, Ohio State; Bob Parker, Memphis State; Bruce Taylor, Boston University; Dennis Leuthauer, Air Force; Billy Parks, California State at Long Beach; Jim O'Brien, Cincinnati; Tom Banks, Auburn; and Eric Harris, Colorado.

HHS Gridders Near End Of Spring Drills

The Hereford Whitefaces are at the two-thirds mark in their spring football drills, and what they have shown is enough to keep head Football Coach Larry Wartes and his staff smiling.

The team, preparing for its season in Class AAAA after marking up an 8-2 record last year in class AAA, clashed in an intrasquad scrimmage Friday. Coaches picked the players for the two teams in an effort to get two equal groups.

"Good job. You all did a good job," Wartes told his players after the scrimmage, which lasted just over an hour. "We had some trouble with offensive blocking in some places, but that's understandable, since we've been working against only one defense and today they were jumping around a lot."

He dismissed them for the weekend, instead of holding them over for a Saturday practice, as he had planned at one time. Some of them were scheduled to play in Hereford's final baseball game of the season Saturday.

The team will have one more week of spring training. Under University Interscholastic League rules, AAAA teams are allowed 21 days to get in 18

ENMU Signs 3 To Grid Letters

PORTALES — Three more West Texas high school football players have signed pre-enrollment agreements to play for the Eastern New Mexico University Greyhounds next season, according to Don Birmingham, assistant football coach at Eastern.

Don Carthel of Friona, Darrel Johnson of Amarillo, and Greg Martin of El Paso are the newest members of the Greyhound team.

Carthel, 6-1 205 linebacker and center was named to the All-South Plains Team at the conclusion of the 1969 season. He also has thrown the disc for the Friona track team this year and has the best toss of the year by any schoolboy in the state in his classification.

Johnson, a member of Palo Duro High School's 1969 Class AAAA District champs, is a 5-10, 170 tallback and wingback, while Martin is a 6-0, 195 High School with what Birmingham called excellent potential.

Ted Williams Says:

Cock Your Hands And Hips If You Want To Hit Well

By TED WILLIAMS
Manager of Washington Senators
Written for AP Newsfeatures

As I look at a lot of young hitters, there are two things they fail to do as far as the mechanics of the swing are concerned.

The first is that they fail to get ready by cocking themselves for the pitched ball with their hands and hips so that when you really got something going I'll give you an example of what I mean.

You know, in basketball the official is going to throw the ball up in the air to start play. As he gets ready to flip the ball into the air he gets a little extra crouch so that he's ready to toss the ball. This same principle applies to baseball. You have to be ready to swing.

The second failure ties into the first. As a youngster starts swinging he fails to get his hips into the ball. He must get his hips into the ball on the swing if he hopes to swing with any authority.

These are the two things young hitters must improve on. They must be ready and they must put their hips into the swing.

Youngsters must also learn to keep their head still when facing the pitcher. The easiest way to do this is that they should think in terms of hitting every ball through the pitcher's box.

This keeps your head from flying into an open position toward the right field or left field fence, depending on which side of the plate you hit from. If you look at that pitcher and concentrate on hitting back through the box, your chances of keeping your head still are better than any other way of hitting.

Just look at the physics of it. It's a simple mechanical thing. Look at the position of the bat when you hit the ball back through the box. The bat is at a 90-degree angle in relation to the direction of the pitch. You must remember you only have four or five inches of hitting space on the fat part of the bat. Now if you pull the ball, your bat has increased that angle to a point where you don't have as much hitting space. Naturally, that makes it harder to consistently hit the ball than if you tried to hit the ball through the middle.

Another thing, the more you pull the ball the faster you have to get started. Your bat has traveled further so you have to get it started sooner. If this is true, and I know it is, you have less time.

The longer you can wait on the pitch the better off you will be. This applies to the little shavers in the sandlots right to some of the youngsters in the major leagues.

CYANAMID

267

UNIQUE ACTION

CYGNON 267 is an outstanding insecticide because it can control insects by a three-way method. It is a contact killer, a residual insecticide on foliage, and a systemic protector inside the plant.

EFFECTIVE INSECT CONTROL

Because of its unique three-way mode of action, CYGNON 267 controls a variety of insects on crops. As a systemic material, CYGNON is taken into the foliage and protects plants when insects start to feed. It will even control the hard-to-kill insects such as leaf miners.

VERSATILE

Extensive field trials and grower use have proven that CYGNON 267 will effectively control insects on many crops without injury to the crop. The United States Department of Agriculture has accepted label registration for use of CYGNON 267 as indicated under Directions for Use.

RESIDUAL CONTROL

Residual control with CYGNON protects up to 14 days or longer. And when applied according to directions CYGNON does not pose a residue problem.

LOW HAZARD

CYGNON is low in hazard to man and animals. Its use does not require special precautions, other than those normally taken when handling any insecticide. CYGNON 267 is available from your local supplier in 1-gallon and 5-gallon sizes.

TOUGH INSECTS CONTROLLED

The chart in this leaflet lists the insects controlled by CYGNON 267 and the crops protected. Research in the laboratory and field will continue to broaden the usefulness of this new insecticide.

H.D. CHATTER Safe Method For Stump Removal

By Mrs. Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

Removing tree stumps is a very difficult task and there have been several requests for an easy and effective method. The use of heavy equipment, and explosives cannot be used except in open rural areas. Burning cannot be done in the city limits, so some other methods must be used.

(1) The easiest, cheapest and safest method of stump removal is to cut the tree trunk off as near the ground line as practicable, cover it with soil and/or sod and keep the area slightly moist. Keeping the area moist helps wood-destroying organisms such as Fungi and in-composition or stop it entire of the stump and also helps to keep the grass alive during dry period.

Wood decomposition is caused by living organisms which have exact requirements for oxygen, food, moisture, and temperature. Fungi break down the wood tissue in order to use the residual material for food. Changes in the fungi requirements will slow down the de-cals, or mixtures of them, have ly. For this reason, the area over the stump covered with soil or sod needs to be kept moist.

Before the stump is covered, several large holes, at least 1 inch in diameter can be bored vertically into the stump, about 6 to 8 inches deep. This helps to hasten slightly the decaying activity, but is not recommended unless a portable power drill and large wood bit can be used for drilling. The decaying process is a slow one, requiring several years for nearly complete stump decomposition.

(2) Several hundred chemicals, or mixtures of them, have been tested throughout the United States to remove stumps. Only one has promise and this is a chloride in the powder form of the technical grade. It is marketed under the name "Stumpfire." Apply it to the stump in a water solution in 1 to 1 1/2 inch vertically drilled holes, on 5 to 6 inch centers, in the stump. Allow this chemical mixture to diffuse through the stump for 2 or 3 months; then burn the stump.

Of these chemicals recommended, we have found only one is on the market and that is lead acetate. However, the chemical companies will probably order chemicals for us.

A homemaker selecting curtains or draperies for the house has two aspects to consider. She wants to make sure the curtains or draperies look good from the outside, and she wants to be sure they are attractive when seen from inside the house.

The window wardrobe problems can be solved easily with these suggestions from Bonny Olson, Extension housing and home furnishings specialist. Start with the best quality fabrics available. Good quality curtains will hang better and launder or dry clean much more safely.

Eliminate the possibility of draperies hanging unevenly by placing them on the rod, unhemmed, and pinning the hemline into position, as with a dress.

Sheer undercurtains should be still-length at kitchen, nursery and bathroom windows: Floor-length sheers should be used for more formal settings of living and dining rooms.

Mrs. Olson suggests the French custom of extra-deep hems on draperies. Floor-length styles can use a six to ten inch hem. The tighter the fabric, the deeper the hem. A heavy velvet will look elegant with a six to seven inch hem. A printed linen or cotton chintz could take ten inches.

Careful installation is another detail that pays off. Drapery rods must hang at the same height on both sides of the window and be parallel with the ceiling line. Extra rod supports may be needed to prevent sagging draperies on wide windows. Heavyweight drapery treatment dictates the use of heavy duty brackets with related hardware.

Decorative wooden poles need lacquering, not painting, to provide a slick surface over which the curtain rings ride smoothly.

Good curtain construction includes straight seams and hems, with patterns carefully matched. It also includes clipped off selvage edges, if the curtains are unlined, with narrow, handsewn side hems.

Making pleated Daw Draperies is very helpful in making draperies. There are a few copies in the office. We'll let you have one or lend you one or your use in making draperies.

The Texas Home Demonstration Association Board met in Galveston May 5 and 6. The final plans were made for the State meeting which will be in Galveston. Also, the state committees presented their recommendations to be voted on by the delegates at the State convention. All the recommendations deal with the economic and social problems of the day. Many of them lend themselves to community or county-wide meetings.

Also, the program suggestions will have ideas for roll call, methods of presenting the program, and resource people who might help with the programs. It seems to me this will be a great help in making more interesting programs for groups.

DPS Investigates 10 County Wrecks During April

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 10 accidents on rural highways in Deaf Smith County during the month of April, according to Sergeant W.

E. Wells, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area. These crashes resulted in three persons injured and an estimated property damage of $6,300.00.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first four months of 1970 shows a total of 41 accidents resulting in one persons killed, 11 persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $29,030.00. "The final school bell will soon be ringing. This will be the signal for summer vacations to begin with hundreds of thousands of people heading for the open highways," Wells said. To help insure a safe vacation and summer driving, Wells suggested that the following items be safety checked:

1. Check the tires for worn and cut spots.
2. Check the steering and wheel alignment.
3. Check all lights and mirrors.
4. Check springs and shock absorbers.

"As a final reminder, 1,028 persons were killed last summer. Don't be a repeater this summer," Wells said.

4-H Horse Club Meets Tuesday

Plans for the coming spring and summer Deaf Smith County 4-H Horse Club program will be made in the Bull Barn Tuesday night, at 8 p. m. in a meeting of the local 4-Hers and their parents.

"We would like to invite all 4-H members and their parents to attend," Juston McBride, county agent said, "and especially new or prospective boys and girls from ages 9-19 who think they might like to participate in this program."

New officers and leaders will be elected at the meeting along with a film presentation, "Mr. Decathlon" from the American Quarterhorse Association.

This year's District 4-H Horse Show will be held in Amarillo on July 23 and 24, according to McBride. The State 4-H Horse Show will also be held in Amarillo at the Tri-State Fair Grounds August 6-7.

NEW YORK — Sesame Street, the highly-acclaimed new television program for preschoolers will return to the air in a new daily series next fall and may be joined the following year by a second series designed to teach reading to older children.

The Children's Television Workshop, creators of Sesame Street, made these announcements and also revealed that the Workshop has incorporated as an independent production company so that it can continue to research and produce other programs that are both entertaining and educational on a wide range of subjects for children and young people.

Mrs. Joan Ganz Cooney, executive director of the Workshop, has been elected president of the Children's Television Workshop, Inc.

She was joined in a news conference by principals of the Workshop's major funding sources who have pledged to meet a $6 million budget to cover production and broadcasting of 150 new hour-long segments of Sesame Street.

News conference participants included McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation; Alan Pifer, president of Carnegie Corporation; John Macy, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, and Dr. James Gallagher, deputy assistant secretary of HEW. U. S. Commissioner of Education James Allen also appeared in a brief videotaped statement.

Lloyd N. Morrisett, president of the Markle Foundation and Chairman of the newly-formed workshop board of trustees, announced formation of the new corporation.

Mrs. Cooney said the second season for Sesame Street would begin Monday, Oct. 19 and continue for 30 weeks of daily programming. She said a number of new stations will probably be added to the lineup of 200 now carrying the program each day.

New Curriculum Goals

The format will remain the same next year as will the target audience, the country's 12 million three-to-five-year-olds.

particularly the so-called disadvantaged child.

She said the curriculum would be expanded, however, with new production features aimed at —preparation for reading, including specific emphasis on letter sounds and carefully selected sight vocabulary;

—more advanced numerical skills, including teaching of sets and simple addition and subtraction;

—a more comprehensive approach to teaching reasoning and problem-solving; and —new material designed to better reach key ethnic groups, specifically teaching of English vocabulary to Spanish-speaking children.

The Workshop will also increase its efforts to reach inner city children, Mrs. Cooney said.

"Major promotion and utilization efforts in 15 to 20 larger cities will attempt to expand our viewing audience in areas where it can be most useful."

Mrs. Cooney said the Workshop has already begun a study of the feasibility of a program for the fall of 1971 that may take the form of a daily, half hour serial which will focus on the subject of reading, and perhaps other skills, and be aimed at the seven-to-ten age range.

Noting that the administration has urged Congress to support U. S. Commissioner of Education Allen's Right to Read program as a major national goal for 1970's she said, "We believe television has a significant role to play in realizing Commissioner Allen's goals." A Workshop task force headed by Samuel Y. Gibbon, a senior producer of Sesame Street, has already begun the research phase of the study.

Dr. Allen hailed the announcement of the new series and Sesame's expanded goals in the preparation for reading area in his prepared statement. "If these fresh attempts are as successful as Sesame Street in capturing the attention and enthusiasm of the young people of America our national campaign to assure by the end of the 1970s that no boy or girl will leave school without the skill and the desire to read to the utmost of his capability, will be off to a great start."

The Workshop said initial costs of the new program will be borne in the 1970-71 budget, but a proposal for production and broadcast phases would be made to potential funding sources when the feasibility study is concluded later this year.

New Production Center

Morrisett said the Workshop's trustees include in addition to himself and Mrs. Cooney, James Day, president of NET; Dr. Gerald Lesser, Harvard graduate school of education and chairman of the Workshop's original board of advisers; Mrs. Emmett Rice of Washington D. C., associate director of the College Entrance Examination Board; Ralph Rogers, president of Texas Industries, Dallas, Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and president of Duke University, and Eddie Williams, public affairs vice president of the University of Chicago.

Morrisett said that other officers will be announced in a few days.

CTW has been a semi-autonomous division of National Educational Television. The move to independence, Morrisett said, is being made "because the Workshop is more than a broadcast organization, and its major commitment to educational research puts it needs and concerns in a broad context, which cannot be adequately met by anything other than an administrative organization devoted solely to these issues."

He emphasized that the move did not mean the Workshop are (l. to r.) Kathy Jagels, Lyle Taggart, Jimmy Clark and Patricia Cooper. They will next compete at College Station June 3-4 in the State 4-H horse judging contest. —Staff Photo

McGeorge Bundy of the Ford Foundation observed that Sesame Street "which was pinpointed to youngsters in the ghetto has overflowed to enrich the lives of children everywhere and, in an even broader sense, to benefit the society at large."

He remarked that the Workshop "has set a standard for broadcasters in and out of public television."

Carnegie Corporation's Alan Pifer remarked that "We may all look back on Sesame Street one day as the beginning of a new age in television... as the point in the history of a powerful medium when it was proved for the first time that mass audiences would respond to imaginative programming with serious goals."

John W. Macy, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, and an "artistic as well as an educational success. The Workshop has demonstrated how to effectively organize resources to provide television programs that can deal imaginatively with difficult subjects."

Heavy Mail Response Noted

James J. Gallagher, deputy assistant secretary for HEW and deputy assistant commissioner of education for planning, research and evaluation, pointed out that the government was particularly concerned with research aspects of the project and commended the series as "probably as thoroughly researched a program as has ever gone on the air."

He noted what he described as "cartons of mail we have received from parents across the country telling us about the favorable responses of their children to the program." Other funders also remarked on the volume of mail from parents, teachers and children asking that the series continue on the air.

Researchers Study Drought, And Its Influence On Life

LUBBOCK — To the man living through it, drought is only something to be survived, but to two Australian researchers using the Southwest Collection at Texas Tech University it is a matter of social significance.

Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Heathcote have gone to Utah locations to continue their drought research, after spending almost a week at the Southwest Collection surveying historical resources.

Dr. Heathcote is a geographer and senior lecturer on the faculty of the School of Social Sciences in a five-year-old institution, Flinders University, Bedford Park, South Australia. Mrs. Heathcote serves as his research assistant.

Prior to coming to Texas Tech, the Heathcotes visited in Worcester, Mass., and Toronto for discussions with a group of geographers studying natural hazards. Universities in those cities and the University of Chicago are engaged in the formal study, and Heathcote's primary interest is in the hazard of drought.

"We are looking," he explained, "at the whole range of attitudes — what people thought about their condition in times of drought, how they influenced decisions and what they did with the problem."

"Out of past records, including the official views, we hope to get a better understanding of attitudes toward pastoral resources, and a comparison of attitudes here in the Southwest and elsewhere in the world with those of arid and semi-arid areas in Australia."

The official views and actions taken in time of severe drought sometimes varied to a great extent with the views and requested actions of the people living in the stricken area.

"Officials sometimes have helped, and sometimes their actions have not," he said.

One question that arises, according to the geographer, is whether money should be poured into a drought area to improve conditions or whether it would be better for man to withdraw from drought-stricken areas.

"We expect to get ideas out of past records," he said. "Perhaps we have gone into arid lands with preconceived ideas about what should be and should not be done and have had to revise these views later. And revision may be a good thing."

Dr. Heathcote is looking for the answers in his long range study. At the Southwest Collection, a regional archive, he made a survey of materials of materials and a partial bibliography and sampling of the records — including legal, financial and weather records available there.

The International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies at Texas Tech was host to the Heathcotes, making arrangements for their visit.

Dr. Allen hailed the announcement of the new series and Sesame's expanded goals in the preparation for reading area in his prepared statement. "If these fresh attempts are as successful as Sesame Street in capturing the attention and enthusiasm of the young people of America our national campaign to assure by the end of the 1970s that no boy or girl will leave school without the skill and the desire to read to the utmost of his capability, will be off to a great start."

would be abandoning public television. "We will use the facilities of the newly-formed Public Broadcasting Service to distribute our programs to non-commercial stations," he said, although he added that the Workshop will continue to use commercial stations from time to time in cities where either no public TV outlet exists or where particular schedule or signal problems prevent us from reaching the largest possible audience of children."

"One season, no matter how successful, is only a beginning in harnessing the power of television to the purpose of education. We believe that this new structure will better enable the Workshop to fulfill its commitment to provide programs that are entertaining and education," Morrisett said.

Those funding sources who pledged to meet the Workshop's budget next year, commented on their regard for the project and their reasons for renewing their grants.

New Standards for TV

McGeorge Bundy of the Ford Foundation observed that Sesame Street "which was pinpointed to youngsters in the ghetto has overflowed to enrich the lives of children everywhere and, in an even broader sense, to benefit the society at large."

He remarked that the Workshop "has set a standard for broadcasters in and out of public television."

Carnegie Corporation's Alan Pifer remarked that "We may all look back on Sesame Street one day as the beginning of a new age in television... as the point in the history of a powerful medium when it was proved for the first time that mass audiences would respond to imaginative programming with serious goals."

John W. Macy, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, and an "artistic as well as an educational success. The Workshop has demonstrated how to effectively organize resources to provide television programs that can deal imaginatively with difficult subjects."

Heavy Mail Response Noted

James J. Gallagher, deputy assistant secretary for HEW and deputy assistant commissioner of education for planning, research and evaluation, pointed out that the government was particularly concerned with research aspects of the project and commended the series as "probably as thoroughly researched a program as has ever gone on the air."

He noted what he described as "cartons of mail we have received from parents across the country telling us about the favorable responses of their children to the program." Other funders also remarked on the volume of mail from parents, teachers and children asking that the series continue on the air.

In Changing Education Pattern 'Middle Schools' Gain Favor

Most people over the age of 45 today can recall that when they attended the Texas public schools, it was an 11-year progression: seven years of "grammar school" and four years of high school.

With the advent of junior high schools in the 1940s, another year was added to make the normal span of public school attendance 12 years.

The 12 years were broken into different patterns, depending usually on size of communities and best use of available buildings. The most frequent pattern had grades 1 through 6 for elementary school, 7 through 9 for junior high, and 10 through 12 for high school.

The name and philosophy of "junior high schools" are now undergoing changes in a few Texas school districts, and in many more school systems throughout the country.

The new name is "the Middle School." The change in philosophy involves a different grouping for students of ages 10 through 14.

Scores of Middle Schools now operating in at least 21 Texas school districts usually follow a 1-5, 6-8, 9-12 grade pattern, compared to the 1-6, 7-9, 10-12 pattern generally found in the junior high schools.

Primarily affected are 11-year-old students, who move up to the Middle School, and the 14-year-olds, who move up to the four-year High School group.

Advocates of the new Middle Schools, however, feel that they benefit students at the three levels (elementary, middle, and high) in ways both academic and social.

Some school officials feel that the Middle Schools offer greater flexibility of scheduling classes; and allow 11-year-old students (six graders) to move earlier to departmentalized courses and more elective subjects.

The Fort Worth school district has now made an almost complete transition to Middle Schools, after trying the new system on a limited scale in 1968-69. Other Texas school districts which have begun to use Middle School organization all patterns to varying degrees include those of Aldine, Austin, Bloomington, Brownfield, Brownsville, Clear Creek, Cypress-Fairbanks, Deer Park, Dickinson, Duncanville, Eagle Mountain-Saginaw, Friendswood, Goose Creek, Grapevine, Lewis-ville, Nacogdoches, Midway, Pasadena, Spring Branch, and Victoria.

WOMEN ADMITTED

LONDON — Women are to be admitted to Lincoln Theological College to train alongside men for joint pastoral work in the Church of England. A first experiment in training the sexes together began at Cranmer Hall, Durham, three years ago. Before that women were trained in small colleges recognized by THE Council for Women's Ministry. Women cannot yet be ordained as priests in the Church of England, though they may serve as lay preachers, deaconesses or in religious orders.

New Bill Aids Education Plans Of Servicemen

More than 777,000 veterans, servicemen, wives, widows and children will receive increased educational allowances under a bill signed by the President.

All trainees under the GI Bill and other VA educational programs were assured by Donald E. Johnson, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, that they will receive the increases automatically and retroactive to February 1. He stressed that it is not necessary to contact the VA to receive them.

Johnson said most of those studying under the GI Bill in institutions of higher learning are scheduled to receive one check this week, which will reflect the new regular monthly rate, and include retroactive increases from February through April.

Veterans studying below college level, including apprentice, on-the-job and cooperative trainees, must certify their attendance to the VA every month to be eligible for education allowance payments.

The VA Administrator said this group also is to receive one check this week, at the new rates, including the retroactive increases, providing their attendance has been certified through April.

However, the VA official explained that some trainees below college level will receive pay adjustments in two checks, because the VA will not receive their monthly attendance certifications in time to include the increase in the first check.

The VA chief said that veterans training under the vocational rehabilitation program will receive their increased educational allowances in early June. Information on this group is not computerized and all processing will have to be done individually, requiring more time, he explained.

It increases from $130 to $175 a month the rate for single GI Bill veterans studying in an institutional full-time program.

A veteran with one dependent will receive $205 a month, two dependents $230, and $13 for each additional dependent. Rates are scaled down for less than full-time students.

Single GI Bill students going three-quarter time will receive $128 a month, $152 with one dependent, $177 with two dependents, and an additional $10 a month for each additional dependent.

Half-time GI students will receive $81 if they have no dependents, $100 with one dependent, $14 with two dependents and an extra $7 for each additional dependent.

The rate for a single veteran under the vocational rehabilitation program was increased from $110 to $135 a month for full-time students. A veteran with one dependent will receive $181 a month, two dependents $210, and $6 more for each additional dependent. These rates are also scaled downward for less than full-time students.

For wives, widows and children receiving allowances under the dependents educational assistance program, the new monthly rates for full-time students are $175, three-quarter time students $128, and half-time students $81.

Special arrangements are being made to pay those who were in training on February 1, but who are no longer in training. There is no need to contact the VA to receive checks.

Administrator Johnson also said the new law sets up special programs for servicemen with educational handicaps. One, the pre-discharge education program, pays for schooling of educationally disadvantaged servicemen before discharge without charge to their earned basic entitlement.

In addition, the law provides for an intensification of VA's "outreach" program to contact and counsel veterans, widows, and children of certain disabled veterans about government educational and training opportunities.

Administrator Johnson urged veterans interested in applying for education or training benefits to contact their nearest VA office now for a certificate of eligibility.

HEW Approves $7,784 Grant For WTSU

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has approved a $7,784 grant for the West Texas State University Library.

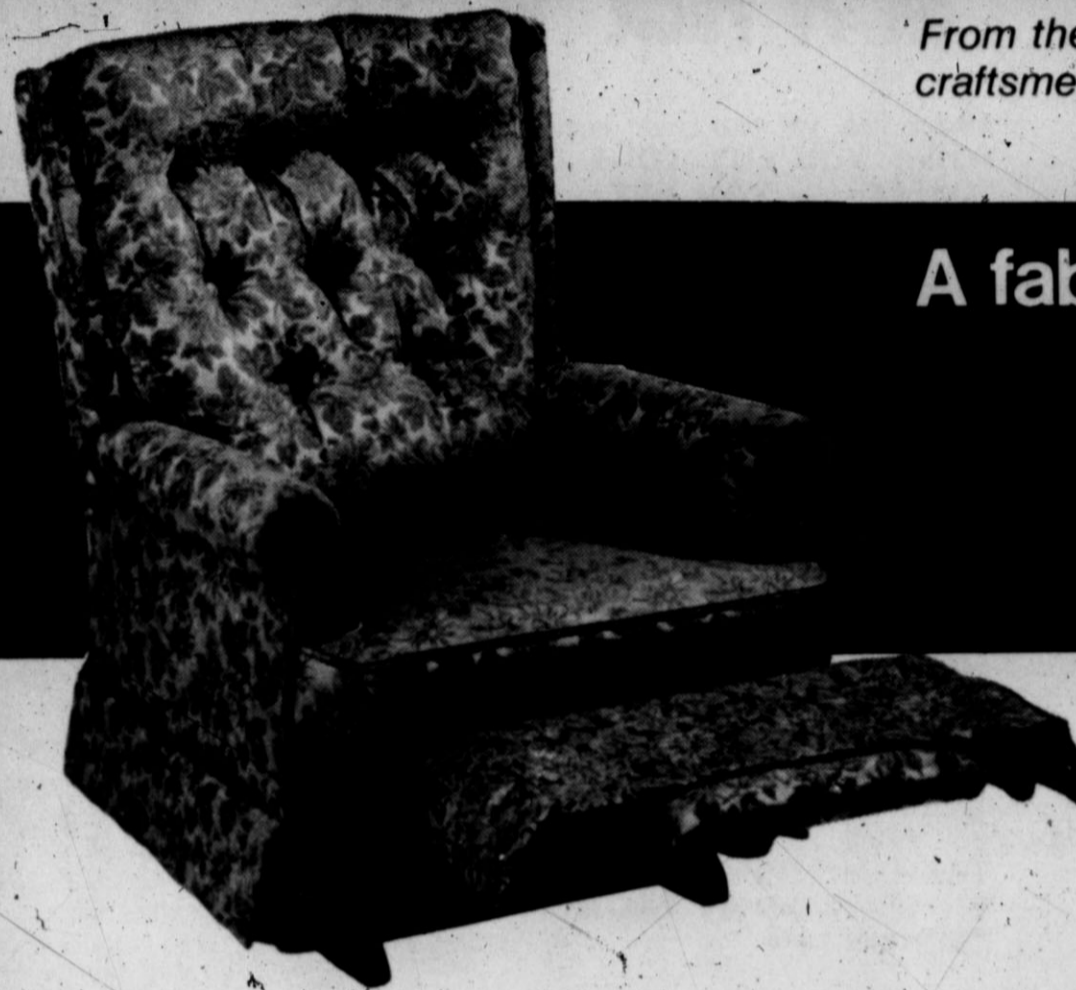

It was the fourth consecutive year the university has received a HEW grant to increase its library materials. The grant was made under the College Library Resources Program of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Frank M. Blackburn, university librarian, said "the funds must be used to strengthen and supplement the library's collection." He said books, micro-materials and research materials will be purchased.

The HEW allocation included a $2,500 basic grant and a $5,284 supplemental grant. This compares to $15,374 received in 1969 and $5,000 awarded in each of the previous two years.

Blackburn said the larger amount last year included $8,167 from the Southwest Academic Library Consortium. He said funds from the consortium were not available for fiscal 1970 because none was granted it by HEW.

SPRING MUSIC FESTIVAL

Thursday 8 p.m.

La Plata Junior High School Gymnasium

"April in Paris" is a number efficiently performed by the high school band under the direction of Ben Gollehon, shown in the background.

Stanton's tuba players, who always earn back row seats with their large instruments, offer their participation to each of the band's number.

More than 500 music students of the Hereford Public School system will participate in the Spring Music Festival Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in La Plata Junior High School Gymnasium. This program will give citizens of Hereford a chance to hear some of each group's accomplishments during the past school year.

Ben Gollehon, supervisor of music for the entire school system, says plans to make this an annual event depend upon the response and interest of parents and friends of the students.

Participating in the festival will be 124 members of the high school band under the direction of Gollehon; the 85 members of the La Plata Junior High School band, directed by Jim Priest; the 80 members of the Stanton Junior High School band, directed by Randy Vaughn; and the approximately 100 members of an orchestra composed of members of the various elementary schools throughout the city.

Mixed choirs from high school and the two junior high schools, with about 60 members each, will also perform. Bill Devers directs the high school choirs, Mrs. Jane Gilley directs the La Plata choirs and Doug Morris directs the Stanton choirs.

The finale of the evening's performance will be a patriotic number involving all of these 500-some public school music students.

Earnest Langley will be narrator for the program. Admission will be $1 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Proceeds from the festival will be used to improve the lighting and sound systems in the high school auditorium. Gollehon says there are presently no facilities for dimming the stage lights, and this is one of the goals of the students.

The sound system in the auditorium is also deficient, having been installed when the school was built in 1954, Gollehon said. A new amplification set-up will be purchased for those who use the auditorium, if proceeds are adequate.

These boys' deep voices are a necessary part of any number performed by the La Plata mixed choir directed by Mrs. Jane Gilley.

Stanton choir members Tracy Hopson and Georgette Malouf will be part of a Calypso number in the music festival.

Nancy Brink, a member of the La Plata band, with her xylophone, adds a touch of variety to the group's presentation of "Cherish".

Mom Of Every Year

By BARBARA SWIMMER
Women's Editor

Mrs. Lynn Pittard was honored by fellow members of Young Mothers Study Club Tuesday evening by the presentation of the coveted award of Young Mother of the Year, which was a thrilling experience for her, but in the eyes of her family, Barbara Pittard has held this distinction for years.

Barbara's duties as wife, mother and homemaker are varied, ranging from car pool to baseball games, in which her sons participate, and many church activities, but she still finds time to be active in school functions and club work, and be a top-notch mother.

The Pittard children, Joel, 14, attends La Plata Junior High School; Michael, 11 and Laurie, 9, students at Northwest Elementary, and 5-year old James, who is the live-wire of the family, think their mother is tops in everything.

Barbara is always taking the boys to and from baseball practice as well as watching each game in which they participate. All four children have been members of choirs during the past year, which also keeps her busy with her taxi service.

The entire family is active in the First United Methodist Church. Barbara teaches an elementary group Sunday School class and is choir mother for the Carol Choir. She is also a member of the Ladies Hand Bell Choir. Lynn is an avid worker with the youth in the church.

Barbara is closing her term as vice-president for Young Mothers Study Club during the past year and is president of the Sweet and Fancy Decorating Club. Her talents are many in all respects which she uses in everyday life as chief, cook and bottle washer.

She enjoys sewing, which she does in her spare time. She makes all of daughter's clothing and most of hers.

An old love and hobby, which she hopes to be able to take up again now that she has one less office to hold in her club work, is oil painting, charcoals and pastels.

Barbara was reared in several different towns in Central Texas and graduated from high school at Brady, followed by business school. She and Lynn met on a blind date when he was attending A&M. They lived at College Station for several years before coming to Hereford six years ago. Lynn does research work for land products, which he also did at College Station.

Watermelons Are On Food Counters In Deaf Smith

Watermelons are showing up in retail stores but the prices remain relatively high. Price wise, grapefruit, oranges, pineapples, apples, strawberries and avocados are good fruit choices.

Carrots and head lettuce are economical vegetable choices. Cabbage, cooking greens, dry yellow onions, radishes and green onions also are good.

Veleda Club Closes Season

Veleda Study Club members met for installation of officers for the coming year Tuesday evening at the First National Bank with Mrs. G. E. Brown assisting Mrs. Hugh Clearman as hostess.

Many markets are featuring fryers this week. Turkey prices are generally steady though some specials are available on 10-14 pound birds.

Typical of spring, large grade A eggs are better value by weight. Prices on both the medium and large sizes have edged up a couple pennies this week, but eggs remain an excellent protein value.

Mrs. George Ritter, outgoing president, acted as installing officer using the tools of an artist to explain how each officer works to complete a club, just as an artist uses all his tools to complete a painting.

Beef prices are about the same as the past few weeks. Beef chuck roasts, round and sirloin steaks, short ribs, ground beef and beef brisket are among the best values.

Officers installed were Mrs. Don Baugois, president; Mrs. W. G. Owens, vice president; Mrs. Jerry Weldon, recording secretary; Mrs. Howard Birdwell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Richard Otteson, treasurer; Mrs. James Trail, historian; and Mrs. George Ritter, parliamentarian.

Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians (279), Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers (271) and Andy Messersmith of the California Angels (211) were the three top strikeout pitchers in the American League last season.

Tables were laid with yellow cloths and decorated with fresh spring flowers.

Museum Plans Preview At May 25 Annual Meet

A preview of the new museum on the campus of Texas Tech University will be presented May 25 when the West Texas Museum Association holds its forty-first annual meeting in the newly-constructed building.

see Phase I of its construction completed shortly, and final arrangements for moving will be made by the museum staff in the fall. The remaining remodeled into offices and classrooms, for use of the University in the fall. The remaining months before school resumes will be devoted to designing and constructing exhibits in the new building, to be ready for a formal dedication and opening to the public in the fall, Kingman said.

Summer youth classes will again be sponsored by the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association, according to Mrs. Elmer McKinney, chairman of the youth classes committee. Tentative dates are July 13-24, utilizing classrooms in the new building. The public is invited to make reservations for the dinner, Holder said.

Tickets for the dinner, which is set for 7:30 p. m., are available for $3.75 each at the Museum's old offices in the heart of the Tech campus, Association president F. William Holder, Jr. announced.

Infant Born To Dennis Hodges

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hodges of Tacoma, Washington are the parents of a son born April 20. The infant weighed 7 lbs. 12 oz and was named Allen Wayne.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hodges Jr. of Hereford and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sumner of Tacoma, formerly of Hereford.

Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hodges Sr., also of Hereford. Mr. and Mrs. Hodges are both former Hereford residents.

Seed of a hybrid giant begonia sells for $3,500 an ounce, National Geographic says. It takes a million of the powdery granules to make an ounce; a single sneeze could scatter hundreds of dollars worth of seed.

Deadline for reservations for the dinner is May 21.

Dr. Frank B. Conselman, director of the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies will be the featured speaker, and Action Awards for contributions to the enrichment of the culture of the Great Plains will be presented for the second year, according to Eugene Kingman, director of exhibits and programs for The Museum.

The new Museum building, part of a multi-million dollar complex on a 76-acre tract at 4th St. and Indiana Ave., will structure set up by Porfirio Diaz. We also sense the growing militancy of the peon which erupted later in the Mexican revolution.

Murder-Mystery Told In New Author's Style

A new author and a new style of writing are available at the Deaf Smith County Library this week for your reading enjoyment. Check into it today.

DEATH IN WILLOW PATTERN

By W. J. Burley

It was a gray, wet, foggy day in December when Dr. Henry Pym, zoologist and criminologist, with Susan his attractive secretary, descended on Peel Place, a Queen Anne country house, in the south of England. They had been invited by Sir Francis Leigh to check family manuscripts and books, 1760-1870. Both realized almost immediately that they had been asked for other than antiquarian reasons.

Two hundred years before there had been evidence that the then baronet had abducted and killed several girls of the village. Now poison-pen letters were accusing Sir Francis of the same crime because two girls had recently vanished. Would Dr. Pym please find the girls and the writer of the letters? But in spite of a family of tainted lineage (which now included a dim-witted lad, an irresponsible artist, and a bitterly disappointed woman), intimate tensions and hatreds, ghoulish games in the dark and ancient diaries, clues are nonexistent.

The eighteenth-century baronet had been an avid collector of Chinese objects of art. For his own pleasure he had built on a lake on the estate a pavilion, a mandarin's house, a bridge, all to match the willowware pattern of blue Canton china. The complex (admission three shillings, tea three shillings in the summer), startling, bizarre, and now strangely ominous in the snow, adds another element of mystery - and murder, with every member of the family a possible suspect.

The traditional ingredients of English mysteries are here combined into a well-plotted tale by a new author.

THE CARRETA

By B. Traven

The Carreta's lunch, the yoked oxen pant onward, and their drivers curse as they wind up the precipitous sierra roads, cross the bandit-ridden pass, and finally enter the plains and valleys of Chiapas to deliver freight to the villages.

In somewhat the same way as the drivers of these wood carts yoke in the oxen, work them and fodder them, the rivers themselves are yoked to their employers, who feed them, work them, and hold them in debt. In telling the story of Carreta driver Andres Ugald, B. Traven draws us into the lives of all Mexican peons at the turn of the century. We see the results of the Spanish conquest and the effects of the political

Time To Restore Houses

There is no better time than the present to restore old houses in any town. Every day is vital, and if people aren't watchful, their architectural heritage may be swept away.

Desmond Guinness of Celbridge, Kildare, Ireland, is president of the Irish Georgian Society, a group dedicated to restoring Ireland's fine old houses. It organized in 1958.

In addition to acquiring title to an old house which may not be easy — architectural research must be done, artisans may need training, there must be fund-raising, and a book written perhaps to promote interest in the project, he points out. It takes time.

The most important thing in getting the idea "off the ground" is to organize a group of dynamic people who are interested in their neighborhood, he advises.

An 8-block square of fine old Georgian houses (1780-1790) in the Mountjoy section of Dublin is a prime example of what can happen when preservation plans are postponed, he says.

"We suddenly became aware that a developer was buying the houses, one by one, with the idea of demolishing them. These were some of the finest examples of Georgian architecture in Ireland. Fortunately, we managed to buy 22 houses from the developer, but we had to pay the fellow quite a bit more than the 500-or-so pounds ($1,200) that he had paid for the houses.

Houses may be deteriorating even though people are living in them, Guinness points out.

"One house in this Dublin group was lived in and used for business by a farrier, who kept his horses and blacksmith shop in a stable at the rear of the house."

The society does lend small amounts to poor people who need help in keeping roofs and other areas of their homes in repair, he says, and this discourages a certain amount of deteriorating.

Adam-style plaster decoration, brass work and wall paintings were the spectacular assets of these old houses. The plaster work in relief was magnificent, and the plaster molds were used over and over again by plasters. Plaster work was done in halls and on the walls of the great staircases that were much trafficked by party-goers. In living areas, the major decoration was on the ceilings.

"The important thing in a restoration program is to train artisans. In Ireland, many artistic-minded workers love the challenge, and newer techniques must be mastered, such as using the new fibrous plaster cornice that are much higher than the old-fashioned plaster work, but produce the same results," says Guinness.

Seminars will instruct paint restorers and volunteers will be asked to assist with brass work. Some of the brass uprights of the balustrades of the old houses are signed.

The society has set up a scholarship (about $1,500) in America — where they have more than 2,000 members — to send a young American to Ireland to do research in arts and architecture. In addition, they may have student volunteers this summer.

They are restoring some of the houses, but they hope to sell others to be restored by interested owners. Restoration is less costly in Ireland than in the United States, he points out. A house may be restored with central heat, new plumbing and wiring, at 10 to 15 thousand pounds ($24,000 to $35,000) including the cost of the house.

The facades of the houses are handmade brick, and there are entranceways of Ionic columns with doors of Medusa. Fanlights over doorways are lead outlined. Some of the houses were designed by a New Orleans architect, James Gallier, says Guinness. But the plaster work and interior arts were achieved largely by a man named Michael Stapleton, a well-known 18th century craftsman.

Guinness raises funds for restoration by conducting tours through homes of private owners in Ireland. In America, he conducts lectures to inspire tourism and as a money-raising venture for the many restoration projects they are engaged in, he says. Overflow crowd greeted his recent lectures at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

About 10 years ago, the Society purchased Castletown outside of Dublin, and it makes its headquarters there. The 100-room Palladian-style house is the finest Georgian home in Ireland. The society managed to get 120 acres of the 600 acre estate when they purchased the house from a developer. Guinness and his family live in the restored Leixlip Castle just outside of Dublin.

SHARE WORK
EDINBURGH, Scotland — Members of the (Presbyterian) Church of Scotland and the Episcopal Church in Scotland have agreed to share in the work of their churches by becoming associate members of each other's church committees. The decision was reached after a meeting of panels appointed to seek a way forward to unity. The plan is that the two churches would work together at the local level and at the planning stage before decisions are taken.

A book "Irish Houses and Castles" written by Guinness and William Ryan will be published soon. It traces the development of Irish architecture from the embattled castle in the Gothic period to the great homes of the classical period.

Another money raiser will be the inclusion of a list of pre-publication subscribers in the book. This was a custom used in the 18th century, he says, when authors needed money to publish.

Picnics, overnight camp-outs, ceremonials, and visits to Palo Duro Park marked the past two weeks for the Tawanka Camp Fire group, as the girls concluded another year of work in the program.

On May 2nd the girls who are junior high age enjoyed an all-day outing to Palo Duro, with five girls participating. They carried hobo-burgers for a cook-out, and all took part in fire building and cooking as part of the day's activities.

The Blue Bird division of the group held a picnic in Dameron Park on Thursday afternoon, May 7th, when 20 girls carried sack lunches to enjoy their final meeting. At the conclusion of the afternoon, the girls took home the Mother's Day cards they had made in recent meetings.

Fifth and sixth graders of the Camp Fire division went to Palo Duro Friday afternoon of last week for an overnight stay, carrying typical cook-out food for their outing. Ten girls spent the night, and were joined the next day by 11 4th grade Camp Fire girls, who also came prepared to cook their noon meal. At the conclusion of the afternoon, a flag ceremonial was held and certificates of rank awarded. Classified as wood gatherers were: Linda Mendez, Lupe Flores, Rena Flores, Hilda Garza, Cynthia Barrett, Grace Abalos and Aurelia Elizondo. Trial seeker certificates went to Concepcion Perez, Viviana Perez and Lucilla Santana.

Assisting in the various events were Mrs. Judy Crowley, Miss Hope Mendez, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Crume, Misses Terry and Ramona Swindell and Prissy Crume.

LOCKED IN
HEIDELBERG, South Africa — Farmer Theunis Duminy was not satisfied with the lock on the trunk of his new car, so he climbed into the trunk to investigate. The lid fell down and the lock, for once worked perfectly. Duminy smashed the tail-light to get air but had to wait until his wife brought him some tea to be released.

FAITH IN RUSSIA
PARIS — More young people are attending church in Russia today than in many years, and more men are applying to enter the priesthood, Bishop Jerre L'Huillier, western European representative of the Moscow Orthodox Patriarchate, told a gathering here. He says 40 to 60 million Russians are practicing their faith regularly.

Condition Needs Correcting

The idea of creating a new judicial district, probably encompassing a three-county area around Deaf Smith, is not a new one and certainly not without merit. The workload for the 69th Judicial District has been astronomical for several years and as the population increases, the problems can only multiply. The six counties now included in the 69th District also necessitate an unusual amount of driving for all the district officials, even though two counties, Deaf Smith and Moore, make up a bulk of the case load. The fact that the two counties are 100 miles apart makes it extremely difficult.

However, two plans have been advanced by the district officials, and although both have good points, there are also drawbacks to each.

The first plan would be to form a new district which would include Deaf Smith, Oldham, Castro and possibly Parmer Counties, or a combination of at least three of these counties. There would be a new district attorney and district judge to represent the district, taking the heaviest case load county (Deaf Smith) from the 69th Judicial District, and also picking up Castro and possibly Parmer County from the district below us. We understand that Castro County is having difficulty getting cases tried due to the heavy case load at Plainview which is in its judicial district. Certainly, the Where's The Bucket?

A farm writer the other day bemoaned the passing of the bucket as one of the tools of the trade down on the farm. They are not as prevalent as they used to be, he said.

The city slicker might also inquire as to what has happened to the bucket around the city house?

Time was that every home had several, each one for a designated purpose, and that was just not confined to the rural home either. We'll bet a Johnson nickel that there isn't a really good bucket in the average home right today, and if there is one we'll bet another Johnson nickel it's a plastic job.

The bucket, usually a galvanized one, used to be one of the most essential items on the farm and in the home. Modern methods have sort of eliminated the portable container.

The housewife used it for watering the flowers in the yard, and on wash-day, well, she just couldn't do without a couple of them. She used one to carry the wet clothes to the clothesline in the yard. Another she used for transferring clothes from one washtub to another.

On the farm who can forget the bucket that sat beside the well, and who can forget how, in the early morning hours a fellow broke the ice that had formed to pour out fresh water to dash over the face before breakfast?

The hogs had to be slopped and that called for another bucket, generally referred to as the "slop bucket." It caught the scraps from the kitchen table.

When it came to milking the cows, the buckets used were special things, and seldom, if ever used for anything else. Today there's not much of a need for them, especially on farms that produce milk for dairies. The automatic milkers have replaced them.

The general purpose galvanized bucket came in mighty handy when it came time to gather eggs. Today, egg baskets are used.

In the house, modern washing machines drain the water via pipes to the outside and no longer does the Little Woman take her clothes to the line to dry, for she has a mechanical dryer that tosses them dry.

three (or four) county area would be sufficient load for the district officials, and taking Deaf Smith out of the 69th District would lessen the load for the present district attorney and district judge.

The second plan calls for the creation of a new position of criminal district attorney, who would work full time on the investigation and prosecution of crime in Deaf Smith County. With the establishment of that job, the current position of county attorney would be abolished and the criminal district attorney would do the work of both officials. This man would work full time in this county.

The fact that the second plan eliminates the need for a county attorney, a position that has been kicked from pillow-to-post for the past 15 years, makes it extremely desirable. The office has never commanded enough salary to interest an attorney in devoting full time to its duties, yet is vitally important to the people of Deaf Smith County and should not be treated as a "moonlight" job.

However, the second plan has one drawback. Under this plan, the district judge would still be called upon to handle the work load in the entire six county area as he has in the past, and like the district attorney, his problems will continue to multiply as the area increases in population. Yet, we feel that the advantages allowed by the alternate plan outweigh the disadvantages and feel that the idea should be pursued.

Either plan will require action by the legislature following an official request by the Deaf Smith County Commissioners court, and action should be taken on one plan or the other. As a matter of fact, action should have been taken two years ago when it was recommended by former District Attorney Bill Hunter as he was leaving office. We would hope that the county officials will move before another two years rolls by.

Spring

Spring is a nice season. Nothing is expected of it except to usher out winter and get you in the mood for summer. In the process it has become quite popular among the set that always has some complaint about weather. What ever it is — it might have been worse, or could be better. — Concrete (Wash.) Herald

All zealots, we suppose, have their ridiculous moments. The late Carry A. Nation was both funny and terrible as she wielded her hatchet against the Demon Rum.

One feminist of an earlier day carried her partisanship to the point of insisting that God was feminine, a belief which, while not impossible, has little in the scriptures to support it.

Members of the Flat Earth Society of both sexes do great violence to logic and the who body of scientific knowledge in the name of their theories. But nothing sillier has come along lately than the stance of the Lexington, Ky., Women's Liberation Group, which is advocating massive civil disobedience.

The ladies are upset because the 1970 census form implies a supposition on the part of the federal government that the man of the family is head of the house. If the government really believes that it would be easy to disprove in many (if not most) cases, but it seems like a small thing to get upset about.

There's been no word from the Census Bureau in proving what stern stuff it's made of. Despite a noisy protest by the National Organization of Women, the Bureau is going to go right on calling this season's hurricanes by feminine names, beginning with Alma. — Wichita Eagle

Just Call Them Poor

Well, the poor folks around the country can relax. They are still poor people as far as the U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity is concerned.

An OEO memo went out recently informing employes that poverty stricken people in this country would no longer be designated as "poor". The assignment was to find a better term. Now the bureaucrats admit defeat. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld says the use of the term "poor" is accurate and entirely appropriate.

That is somewhat reassuring. But how many man hours were spent in determining that "poor" is the best and most specific word to use to describe the country's poor people? — Tallahassee Democrat

It's Still Too Early To Tell How Well Nixon Is Faring

By BERT MILLS

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Nixon's popularity has hit a new low this spring as events at home and abroad have dealt him blow after blow to a point where even he has speculated in public about becoming a one-term President.

But it is far too early to draw any conclusions, after only 16 months of his administration because he is only one-third of the way down the road. Come what may, he will still be occupying the White House for another 32 months, by which time the current situation may be forgotten by all except historians.

Consider the economy, which was super heated when Nixon became President. He had no choice except to cool things off in the business world and to attempt to harness inflation. He has not succeeded in doing so, but he has to be given credit for trying and for sticking to the job despite the consequences, including new lows in the stock market while the cost of living continues to rise.

Consider the Congress, which has refused to enact key parts of the Nixon legislative program, plus the refusal of the Senate to confirm two Southern conservatives appointed to the Supreme Court. The President had to find a Northerner before he could satisfy the Democratic Senate.

Then Came Cambodia
President Nixon succeeded in cooling off the Vietnam war by his troop withdrawal policy only to have the issue heated again when he found it necessary to send Americans to cross into Cambodia. This decision put the peace-at-any-price critics back in business.

The jury is still out on the Cambodia venture but a verdict should be rendered within a month or so. The average citizen is in no position to judge whether Nixon acted correctly, and neither are many of the President's most vehement critics.

A Commander-in-Chief has to make the crucial decision on military questions, based on all the information available from experts. Unquestionably, Nixon made the unpopular decision, without regard to the political consequences. The nation can only hope his judgment was as correct as it was courageous.

Meanwhile the peace negotiations drag along in Paris, getting nowhere because the Communists are not interested in peace. One reason is that the enemy still expects American resolve to fade because of the hue and cry raised in the U. S. by opponents of the war. The Cambodia decision may not affect the attitude of our adversaries but it could not go unnoticed.

Campus Riots Add Crisis
The Nixon Administration had hoped for a relatively peaceful year on the college campuses but it was not to be. Finally the President lost his patience and referred to the protestors as "bums," thereby further inflaming the young. Then came the deaths at Kent State.

There is not much the Federal government can do about the revolutionary students, often aided by sympathetic administrators and professors. Other nations have been troubled for decades by student uprisings but it is a relatively recent development in this country. Nobody seems to have the answer, including the President.

Summer vacation will come in a few weeks and apparently all the government can do is wait and hope that the deaths in Ohio will have a sobering effect on all concerned. Violence begets violence and it is hoped that no more students need to be gunned down to get across that message.

President Nixon may look back in later years on the spring of 1970 as another of those crisis periods that have punctuated his career. The next 32 months will surely be eventful but the President may be forgiven if he hopes that things will turn out a bit better.

Talk of Texas

BY JACK MAGUIRE

IT WON'T HOLD WATER — There is no such thing as a 10-gallon hat. Or a five-gallon one, either, for the matter.

The fact that ranchmen describe the size of their head-gear in gallons has no relation to the amount of liquid the crown of the hat will hold. Actually, they're using the Spanish word, "galon" — and it's spelled with only one l. It's the name of the decorative braid (often in gold or silver) that Spanish vaqueros have worn on the brims of their sombreros for centuries.

A five galon hat means that it has five rows of galons or braid around the brim and a 10 galon hat has ten rows. Some even have 15.

TRAVELING TEXAS — By all odds, the most expensive lodging in the Lone Star State is the penthouse suite at Houston's Astroworld Hotel.

The multi-bedroom suite costs a whopping $2,500 a day, but it includes some extras not found in any other hotel in the world. For example, its Minidome Room is a small night club where the resident can entertain up to 200 guests plus a band. And the contents of a superb wine cellar are available at no extra charge.

THE SIGNS OF TEXAS — In a San Antonio yard: "Sick lawn. Absolutely no visitors."

MODERN MIRAGE — Travelers along U. S. Highway 59 a dozen miles south of Marshall often think they've come onto a movie set when they see 18 log forts scattered through a grove of oak and pines.

The buildings, which look exactly like the old log forts that early settlers built as protection against Indian raids, actually are nothing but water towers. They were put up in the early 1930's by the old Civilian Conservation Corps to provide for the storage of water and crops by farm cooperatives in the area.

Only six of the 18 buildings are in use today.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? — Rosharon, in Brazoria County, got its name from The Song of Songs in the Old Testament.

The town was known as Masterson's Switch when George Colles, rose fancier and Bible student, became a resident. He renamed the town from Chapter 2, Verse 1, of Solomon's joyous lyric to spring, which reads: "I am the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valleys."

PROMOTION NOTIONS — In 1944, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt was looking for a likely place from which to launch the "March of Dimes" campaign for that year, he picked the Lee County town of Dime Box.

The place came by its unique name many years before. Early settlers used to impose on the postman to pick up supplies for them at the nearest settlement. In appreciation, they began leaving a dime in the mailbox for his trouble. When a post office was opened, it was called Dime Box.

Wildflowers Abound In Panhandle ... Pink, Purple, White And Yellow

BY SUE COLEMAN

This spring's crop of wildflowers is an especially good one; in any direction there is a fine display of color along roadsides while pastures are paved with the gold of Johnny-jump-ups, the yellow blooms which are the commonest of early flowers in this part of the state. A wildflower tour right around home is a happy experience now.

up here on the High Plains. The exact date when a certain species will bloom can't be predicted; it depends on things like the amount of winter snow, the timing of spring showers, the date of the last freeze and the present temperature — soil temperature, the experts who study those things would say.

But it is safe to say, barring a terrible drought, that some of our weeds will be in flower at any time during the month. Right now is about the peak for the early burst of blooms. Spatters of pink, purple, white and yellow catch the eye of a motorist and less speed will reveal the shape of individual flowers in barrow-ditch patches.

Stopping the car to get out and look will bring even more detail, and the reward of discovering dozens of lovely, tiny flowers hidden by the more showy ones.

It isn't necessary for a Plains dweller to go hundreds of miles downstate where bluebonnets grow wild, in order to see beauty to be long remembered. There is even one authentic area wildflower tour, over at Canadian, at its best about now.

Uncultivated blossoms seem to be more plentiful in the Canadian River valley than in any other part of the Panhandle. Just a drive north on Highway 386 to the river crossing at Boys' Ranch will show carpets of color now, and a little later is the best route to see literally acres of yucca and cactus in bloom.

An annual wildflower tour with a marked route is staged each spring by residents of the town of Canadian, in the Eastern Panhandle. It goes out along the river, through the Howe Wildlife Refuge and on around Lake Marvin. That road in any season makes a pleasant minivacation and a change from level Plains country, but in wildflower time it is embellished for the visitor.

On one of our excursions to find the unusual things to see around this area, Atha McIver and I were accompanied by her granddaughters, Tommie and Pam, to Canadian. The girls, 11 and 8 years old, were as excited by the flowers as we were, and the former took along a book on Texas Wildflowers to identify a sampling for her Camp Fire girl project.

Rolling sandhills near the river are so in bloom that they take your attention from new green on big cottonwoods which shade the road and the valley, making that one of the most beautiful drives in West Texas.

The route goes past the old Anvil Park Ranch recreation area which many Panhandle residents of 30 and more years ago remember as a popular picnic spot before Lake Marvin was built. It was on private property, as I remember from some expeditions there during my salad days, but was open to picnickers.

At the time I knew it, in the 1930s, the small lake was no longer useful for swimming as it had become choked with water plants, but their greenness only added charm to the spot. The impression I had then of the lovely valley hasn't been dimmed by recent visits.

When we go to Canadian it is usually on Highway 60, the most direct way, and after passing the wheatfields and oilfields around Pampa we begin to look for glimpses of the river as we descent to its valley near Miami. From there on, spots of scenic interest grow more numerous. Miami itself, an old ranching town built on the hills and hollows by the river, is worth more than just a glance as you drive through.

On our return trip, we don't believe in doubling back over the same road, so we may go south from Canadian to Shamrock, come to Amarillo on Highway 66 and on home by any of a half-dozen routes we have found on farm-to-market roads.

Or else we can take one of our "short cuts" and go up to Perryton and home by way of Spearman and the Lake Meredith Dam. If the waste of miles in this route appalls you, you wouldn't like one of our weekend excursions anyway.

Along toward the end of this month we will head north to see the yuccas with their waxy greenish-white cups open along another stretch of the Canadian. We like best the view on the Amarillo-Tascosa road, turning right off Highway 385 just before reaching the bridge at Boys Ranch, and driving on the pavement which follows the river for a number of miles. River country on the Amarillo-Dumas highway is another good place for yucca.

Someone smarter than I in botanical could write of our wildflowers in more specific names, but I've found that nearly everyone has his own names for the commoner varieties and sometimes none agree with the names found in books. Even the names I've used I'm not sure of, except for yucca. That, I think, is always yucca unless it's beargrass, as the old-timers called it.

Flower names, in fact, are much better when used in the fashion of one family of old-timers. During my residence in Vernon I treasured the acquaintance of Bertha Doan Ross, a member of the family which lived at famous Doan's Crossing on Red River where one of the 19th-century cattletails crossed that stream.

She told me that she was a baby when her parents came to their home there from Ohio. Strangers to the Southwest, the Doans found many plants strange also, and were not sure of the flowers their small daughters liked to gather on the prairie. So they chose their own names, and each had a favorite blossom named for herself.

Their system of enjoying every spring the Bertha-flowers, Mabel flowers and Mabel flowers, is at least as good as any, and appeals to me most of all. You have my permission to name a flower for yourself on the Friona highway, if you'd like!

WILDFLOWER CARPET — Extent and variety of the flowers blooming along the road which leads from Canadian to Lake Marvin are shown in these snapshots, taken from the edge of the pavement. The girls are Tammie and Pam McIver, daughters of the J. H. McIvers of Hereford.

SEED X CITERS OF TEXAS ENERGIZED SEEDS...

Another step forward in Agricultural development... from earlier emergence to bountiful harvest, energized Seeds make a difference!

Results from over 100 on-farm plantings of energized seed have amazed most farmers who have tried SeedXciter. Earlier emergence, faster growth, healthier looking crops, increased yields are factors which appear in enthusiastic reports of growers who have planted energized seeds.

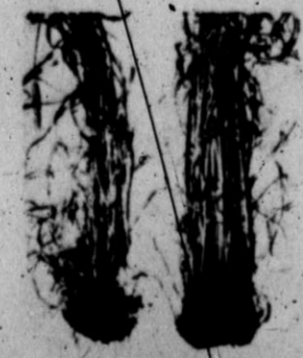

More vigorous roots... larger ears
 Differences are very pronounced in this comparison. Energized plants show much more vigorous growth and better root structure. Stalks are heavier. Ears are larger.

To date, all seeds have responded favorably to SeedXciter's energizing treatment. Benefits have been reported from treated seeds of major farm crops including corn, wheat, oats, sorghum and soybeans. Positive results have been obtained when planting is done within 14 days of processing.

Healthier roots, sturdier stalks
 The heavier root structure and larger plants on the left were from energized seed, and show more branches and more pods than the control plants on the right.

LABORATORY ANALYSIS*
10 Corn Samples:
 6 showed increased Protein.
 4 showed increased Carbohydrates.
 All showed plus nutritional values.
5 Soybean Samples:
 1 showed increased Protein.
 4 showed increased Carbohydrates.
 All showed plus nutritional values.

Better standing crop... yield improved over 15%
 Again, the more vigorous root structure is clearly apparent. Stooling is heavier. During growing season, energized plants withstood high winds much better.

Glady's Garden

By Gladys Howton Manjeot

Do you really love America? What would you be willing to do to preserve some of the rights, and fundamentals which she embraces?

Do you appreciate her lands, and the beauty thereof? The natural resources?

Did we as one big family in Hereford... her people... do our part to make our town clean and more attractive?

From sea to shining sea, America is truly a proud land. Then what is all of this talk about the problem of pollution and the abuse of this beautiful land? Problem? Yes, a Big one — and one that must be reckoned with to assure that this proud land will be preserved for our future generation. Funny, everyone is just now getting concerned with our environment and the problems of ecology. The Garden Clubs of America, (and other lands) have been working on preserving America's beauty for a long, long time. Isn't it going to be nice and much easier having everyone's help? But after all, it is everyone's America. (Bright of America)

Ours is indeed a proud land, and every day that I live I breathe a prayer of thanks for our Nation, and for its many benefits. I am glad it has been my privilege to share in a small way to conserve, and to practice conservation.

For years, I have been a member of National Conservation organization, and have tried to keep abreast with the proceedings of the efforts to preserve the beauties of nature. Every American should be conservation minded, and do his bit to carry their share in this national program, and in our own vicinity.

The time has come when we are starting the fight against plant diseases, and insect controls. Of the numerous methods for controlling insects that attack our plants, which is the best method? This is an often asked question.

While in Kansas, I read an article by one of the Garden Columnist, and his theory is that one of the controlling methods would be to plant and grow insect-resistant plants.

When purchasing your bedding plants, and other plants for the garden, ask questions about them. Ascertain if they have been grown disease and insect resistant? Also when purchasing seed to plant, either for the flower garden, the vegetable garden or the fields, make inquiry as to their resistance. What is an insect-resistant plant? A plant has a degree of resistance to insect attack if it sustains less damage at a given level of infestation than the average of other plants grown in the same environment.

By natural selection this aspect of insect and disease resistance is exhibited by plants in the wild. Horticulturists and scientists have sought out these plants, studied their natural habit, and then transplanted them to testing gardens and grown them to find out what is within them that makes them resistant.

For example, a number of years ago in Peru, scientists were studying plants and found a wild tomato growing in a sugarcane field. This plant was nearly immune to two common tomato diseases, which were fusarium and alternaria. The factor of resistance in this wild plant has been bred into desirable tomato types and now more than 30 commercial varieties of resistant tomatoes have been developed.

I grew some tomatoes last year, that had been in-bred, and they did not have the wilt disease, which has been so prevalent in this area.

(Note: in growing tomatoes, if you smoke cigarettes, do not smoke around the tomato plants. The nicotine from the tobacco will kill the plants. I know of instances here where this has happened. Remember nicotine is a deadly poison, and is used in some of the insect and disease sprays. Care should be exercised in its use.)

Regarding field crops, an alfalfa-spotted aphid was discovered in New Mexico interspread rapidly the next two years into 30 states, causing damage estimated at $1 million. A crash program was immediately initiated to develop a resistant variety of alfalfa. This was done, and released in about three years.

This was a remarkable project and the timing was much above average. The savings to the growers was estimated at $35 million annually. The cost of this research was low. Which was in great favor to the scientists, and the growers. The resistant variety was Moapa.

Scientists, and Horticulturists are making great strides in this program, and it would be to the growers' advantage to read on new varieties or improved varieties, which would be most helpful.

Studies are now being pursued on the spider mite which infests the snap bean. Also, studies are being conducted to find or develop a carrot which will be resistant to soil insects.

New plants are being introduced in the flower world. For instance I had never been able to grow asters. Something would always happen to them. They would have insect damages, wilt, etc. So a few years ago, I made a careful study and when I purchased seed for the asters, I read all the descriptions on the packets, and found one that said the plants would be resistant to disease and insects.

The result? I grew some beautiful asters, which created a beauty spot in the garden, and they were very good for flower arranging also. I have tried to be very careful to keep some of this variety, and this morning while working in the garden I found some plants.

This week has been a most enjoyable one, as I have made new friends, both people and flowers. I visited with Mrs. John A. Jones, and saw some iris-The Rocco. It is a beautiful iris.

Our house has been made very attractive with the arrangements created with the beautiful iris blossoms Mrs. McGilvary brought—many beautiful colors, forms, and different varieties. I also shared some of the lovely blossoms with others.

I saw a very lovely snow-ball shrub at the home of Mrs. Danforth's, a flaming lovely red plum tree at Helen McCauley's, charming old-fashioned yellow roses in full bloom at the J. K. Fore home; the iris garden at Audrey Thompson's home, and Mr. McGilvary's enchanting as always; tiny minute Johnny-jump-ups at Mrs. George Brumley's.

There is a promise of bright colorful geraniums at the S. L. Walsler home; and pretty, pretty iris at Mrs. R. L. Wilson, Mrs. R. W. Mitchell's, and at the home of Boyd Collins, on Miles. The beautiful Achia tree at the Carlos Anderson home on West Haven, is colorful and different.

The landscape plan for The Garden Club Center has started and work will soon begin.

All and all Hereford is putting her best foot forward, as there is much beauty. I drove many miles, looking at clean and unclean alleys and watched some of the youth organizations as they partook in the clean-up program. This good work should continue throughout the entire season. There is nothing quite so appealing as cleanliness.

Friends, and flowers are much alike, they both need to be cultivated.

BRYAN KNOX TO WORK IN HAWAII

Bryan Knox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Knox, has made plans to live in Hawaii during the summer.

He will be accompanied by two Tech classmates, Rick Lunsford and David Meeks. They hope to find employment in Hawaii.

The young men are pledges in Saddle Tramps.

United States space experts advocate nuclear rockets as a major source of propulsion in future missions, the National Geographic Society says. A nuclear rocket could reach Mars in 270 days, spend 80 days circling the planet, then return the crew to a smaller Earth-orbiting vehicle for the descent to a home base.

Cast Slows Her Down

BY BARBARA SWIMMER
Women's Editor

An automobile accident, resulting in surgery for a broken knee and an extended stay in an Amarillo hospital has slowed Mrs. James Connelly down for the present, but in a period of two or three months, when her hip cast will be removed, she hopes to get her home back to normal and get back into the swing of things.

The Connellys moved to Hereford in January from Austin and fell in love with this area. Mrs. Connelly says the climate has been nicer than she had expected and she thinks the plains country is beautiful.

Mr. Connelly came to Hereford ahead of the rest of the family in November. He is a loan officer at the First National Bank and has become active in the Lions Club and Knights of Columbus.

Mrs. Connelly worked as a dental assistant for Dr. Ronald Zimmerman prior to the accident, and kept busy with activities at school in which her children participated.

Their three children, Steven, 16, Deborah, 14, and Karen 12, have adjusted to the move from Austin and are all active in school affairs. Steven works at Furr Food Store after school and the girls are active in 4-H and art.

Mrs. Connelly's hobbies include sewing for her family, antiquing and her favorite, gardening. She was an active member in garden clubs before moving to Hereford and is the winner of several blue ribbons from flower shows. She hopes to join a club here when she is on her feet again.

The Connelly family loves sports and are avid football fans. Mr. Connelly is helping with the baseball program and is umpire for two games each week.

TIPSY WASPS

LONDON — Topsy wasps have been on an orgy of child stinging in Britain, a beekeeper revealed.

"Wasps," said beekeeper Nicholas Simmons, "get drunk" and drowsy by crawling into fallen fruit to feed on.

"It is when they are tipsy that they are at their most menacing," he said. "They are attracted by flashes of light reflected in the eye and will go for a child's face in a second."

One hospital, dealing with scores of wasp stings each week, termed 1969, "the year of the big sting."

Miss Mary Bradley opened the meeting with a poem reading and presided over the business session.

A program on Individual Coloring and Intensity was given by Argen Draper, county agent. The best time to try new colors she said, is spring or summer. Persons with strong intensity of colors can wear bright colors. Blue-green is the best color for the majority of people, she added.

The council report was given by Mrs. Jimmie Bradley.

Jerry Don George, Hereford High School principal, was awarded the honorary chapter farmer plaque recently at the annual parent-son FFA Banquet in the high school cafeteria.

"Our boys elected one adult in the community that showed outstanding leadership in our chapter all year and they chose Mr. George," Richard Robinson, local FFA sponsor said.

Three boys in the local chapter also received special awards. Joe Paetzold received the leadership award, Steven Olson was granted a scholarship, and Jimmy Christie was recipient of the Dekalb award.

The chapter also presented a gift to the sweetheart, Terie Beth Line, who in turn presented the chapter with the chapter scrapbook.

Murray Edwards, president of the 40,000 member Texas FFA, was the guest speaker.

"We had a real good year in our chapter," Robinson said, "probably our most outstanding year ever. One of the reasons is that we were selected as a gold emblem chapter, which is the highest honor received in the chapter's history. There are only 50 gold emblem chapters in the nation and five in Texas and we were lucky enough to be one of them," he said.

Robinson said the banquet almost concludes Hereford's FFA activities except for the State FFA convention in July.

"This will wrap up the year," Robinson said. "At this time we will recognize the state winners in certain categories. Local boys participating will be Dan Hall for production credit manager and Jimmy Christie for outstanding livestock farmer and the Texas and Southwest cattle raisers award," Robinson added.

Essential Services Are Cheaper Here

Deaf Smith County residents get essential local services such as fire and police protection, sewage and better roads for $21 cheaper each than is paid in the average Texas town and a whopping $70 cheaper each than the national average.

A recent nationwide survey put the average per capita cost at $156.22 spent by local governments for the services and at $107.22 among local communities in Texas.

For Deaf Smith County, the amount spent for these general services, excluding schools, figures out to $86.08 per resident.

The data is based upon a recent survey by the Department of Commerce. The results of the survey are contained in a voluminous report, the first of its kind since 1962. It gives a breakdown of expenditures by local government in all parts of the country.

The survey also included such services as hospital costs and welfare.

The amount of money spent for each type of service varies considerably from community to community. Hospital services is one of them. In Deaf Smith County the cost was $21.40 per capita.

In most local budgets, a big item is the cost of highway facilities — including roads, city streets, bridges and the like. In Deaf Smith County it amounted to $21.03 per capita in the year. The average, in other localities across the country, was $23.05.

In the smaller counties, 10,000 or less in population, the average was $40.11 per capita. The cost was lower in the larger counties, dropping to $21.35 in those over 250,000.

Police and fire protection in the local area involved an expenditure of $9.78 per person. The administration of government cost another $9.10.

The rest of the $86.08 per capita in operating costs was allocated to the various other services provided for local residents.

Last sight of, in the general concentration on mounting school expenditures, has been the rising cost of the other public services. Nationally, in the five-year period, they have climbed 28 per cent.
