

Vets, others grieve over flag ruling

DALLAS (AP) - A man who was spared a prison term when the U.S. Supreme Court issued a ruling that limited the power of states to outlaw desecration of the American flag predicted that the ruling would spark celebrations.

"We want to turn up the heat on the flag and on the system of imperialism it symbolizes," Gregory "Joey" Johnson, of New York City, a member of the Revolutionary Communist Youth Brigade, said following Wednesday's controversial ruling.

He predicted the ruling would spark celebrations Friday.

The ruling brought swift, but varied reaction from those who praised and criticized the ruling.

Disappointment was expressed by a Korean War veteran who recovered the remains of an American flag spat upon and burned by protesters during the Republican National Convention in 1984.

"A lot of people who served their country are grieving just like I am," said Dan Walker, who came upon the burning flag in front of Dallas City Hall. "Some do not respect the country and the flag, its symbol."

Stan Weinberg, a Dallas lawyer who defended Johnson, said veterans should be encouraged by the ruling because it shows that values fought for in the Bill of Rights are still intact.

Justice William J. Brennan said a Texas law that bans conduct leading to breaches of the peace is unaffected by Wednesday's ruling.

But Brennan said it violates constitutional free-speech guarantees to ban flag burning at political rallies or protests merely because the destruction of the flag offends some people or because the state wishes to preserve the flag as a symbol of national unity.

But Walker said the ruling hasn't changed his opinion.

"I haven't mellowed any," said Walker, a 61-year-old retired engineer from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. "But I am convinced now that they can burn the material, but not burn the spirit. So it is just the body they may kill, but they will not kill the soul."

Walker says he holds no animosity for Johnson, whose sentence of one year in jail and $2,000 fine was thrown out by the justices in a 5-4 vote.

But he described Johnson as "a sick guy."

"He doesn't want my sympathy," he added.

Johnson said the ruling means that the "Supreme Court was forced to back off. I think they got in a situation where it was too exposing of their whole professed belief in freedom of expression."

"I've talked to thousands about the issues involved in this case," he said. "Many of them don't think burning the flag is the most effective form of protest, but they were disgusted that the very government that wrapped Ollie North in the flag to commit all sorts of horrendous crime is now going to slap his wrist and was attempting to jail an anti-patriot revolutionary."

"I don't consider myself an American," Johnson said. "I'm not. I'm an internationalist, a proletarian internationalist."

The ruling left Weinberg jubilant. "The reaction is an exultant feeling that, even in a 5-4 vote, you are proven right," said Weinberg, a Dallas lawyer. "Secondly, it is a great sense of gratitude that what is so fundamental in our form of living is still viable, still strong, still sound, still well."

The ruling is not a slap in the face as some patriots have claimed, Weinberg said.

"The flag is important and if that is what people believe, then they should fly it," said Weinberg. "That is the way that they affirm their belief in it."

Walker said he was in the City Hall area the day of the flag burning when the protesters began chanting, "America, the red, white and blue, we spit on you."

The veteran gathered the burning fragments of the flag, much of which had been consumed, and buried them because he remembered the procedure from Army manuals. The West Point graduate later received a letter of thanks from President Reagan.

"It (the flag burning) was uncalled for, and I still do not know what they were protesting," Walker said. "If they were interested in exercising their freedom of speech, they should jolly be well be able to talk and identify what it is that they protesting."

"They were protesting against what? The government's actions?" the veteran asked. "They can say it is exercise of free speech. Their free speech is worth exactly what they paid for it: exactly nothing."

City wins initial victory

Ed and Bonnie Wuerflein stand in their building project at the rear of their home at 136 Oak in a photo taken in June 1987. In the initial phase of a trial on the addition, jurors found that the Wuerfleins had not adhered to the terms of their building permit. City Attorney Earnest Langley will likely request a judgement that changes be made or the addition be razed.

Further motions are pending after a jury decided that Ed and Bonnie Wuerflein failed to conform to specifications in a building permit for an "accessory building" in the rear of their home at 136 Oak.

In the first phase of the trial, a jury heard several days worth of testimony before receiving a charge from 22nd District Judge Wes Gulley in which the jurors had to answer questions on seven issues.

On six of the questions, the jury found negligence on the part of the Wuerfleins.

The jury found that the Wuerfleins had:

--Begun or continued construction after a building permit was issued on Oct. 6, 1986;

--Knowingly and willfully deviated from the plans and measurements allowed by their building permit by building improvements of a size, and in areas of their lot, which did not conform to their building permit.

--Failed to carry out the intentions expressed by them in their building permit application, by deviating from the application and permit on their construction.

--Failed and refused to cause the work to conform to the permit.

--Carried on with the work after they were told by city officials that the construction would be in violation of the city zoning ordinances.

The jury did not find that the improvements were constructed in intentional violation of city zoning ordinances.

The "accessory building" was to cover much of the oddly-shaped back yard which is cut off by an angling alleyway. Because of the limited space, the Wuerfleins, in essence, built an addition onto their house.

For almost a year, debate raged over the addition before the Board of Adjustments, which usually deals with garages and other projects that exceed boundaries established in zoning ordinances.

The Wuerfleins asked the board for a variance to build the accessory building from the rear of the house to the alley. The request was denied.

"It's up to us now to convince the judge to enter a certain kind of judgement," said City Attorney Earnest Langley. "It will probably be a mandatory injunction to 'get their house in order,' literally and figuratively."

"I have not written the motion we will present to the court yet, but we would hope they would be ordered to make certain changes to bring the building into compliance or tear it down."

"I thought we had it worked out to do that once before."

Attempts to contact the Wuerfleins were not successful.

State court to hear case on school funds

AUSTIN (AP) - House education leaders had guarded reaction to the Texas Supreme Court's decision to hear arguments in a lawsuit challenging the state's method of public school funding.

"I would certainly hope the court would not involve itself in the direct operation of the schools," House Public Education Committee Chairman Ernestine Glossbrenner said.

On Wednesday, the civil appeals court said it will hear oral arguments July 5 in the five-year-old lawsuit brought by poor school districts.

Plaintiffs said they look forward to presenting their case before the Texas Supreme Court.

"The Supreme Court has an opportunity to enforce the guarantees of the majestic Texas Constitution. This is certainly one of the most crucial issues that will ever come before them," said Al Kaufman, the plaintiffs' lead attorney in the case.

But Ms. Glossbrenner, D-Alice, and a former schoolteacher, said, "I'm terrified," of that occurring.

She and Senate Education Committee Chairman Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said Tuesday they will ask the governor to allow lawmakers to consider during the special session a tax increase for public education. They planned a news conference today to make a formal request.

Poor school districts say they cannot raise enough local property tax revenues to enrich education funding to the same extent that wealthy districts can. School financing in Texas is funded through a mixture of state and local funds.

In 1987, the poor school districts won a round in the battle when a state district judge held the state's funding system as unconstitutional, saying it denied equal access to education funds, which he termed a fundamental right.

But on Dec. 14, 1988, the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin reversed that ruling. The poor school districts then appealed to the state Supreme Court.

Since then, Gov. Bill Clements signed into law a $450 million school finance bill for the 1990-91 budget period designed to help close the gap between poor and wealthy schools.

State Rep. Gregory Luna, D-San Antonio, whose district encompasses about half of the Edgewood school district, the lead plaintiff in the case, said the $450 million is not adequate.

He noted that the State Board of Education had recommended a $5 billion increase to equalize funding.

"The evidence is clear that we shall not address equity unless we're forced to. The court must have to be blind to decide that we can handle it," Luna said.

But Gov. Bill Clements said the appropriation won't affect the court's decision.

"The Legislature in its wisdom and consideration did what they should have done. I think the court will recognize that," he said.

Clements said he was pleased the court was considering the case. "I think they will give it a very fair hearing," he said.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, whose office will defend the state in the case, thinks the court will side with the state.

Area group faces tough road

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The director of the Panhandle Area Alliance told the Hereford Lions Club on Wednesday that the Alliance may be facing a tougher job in the next two years.

Dave McReynolds told the Lions that the redistricting of state and federal representative districts and the state senate districts will likely leave the Panhandle area even less represented than it is now.

"Only six of the 26 counties in the Panhandle have gained population since the 1980 census," McReynolds said. "We are going to lose representation, and who knows what the state senate district will look like."

"The PAA is designed to help us together. We are interested in politics, in working with elected officials on local, regional, state and federal levels."

McReynolds recounted the history of the PAA, which was formed in 1988 to give joint assistance in several areas in the Panhandle.

"If we don't work together, we will hang separately," McReynolds said. "We are making it possible for cities, counties and chambers of commerce to work together. I know individual cities, counties and chamber do a lot, but sometimes they need help to get over the hump, and we are there to help."

McReynolds said many area towns are interested in obtaining a prison with the next round of expansion by the Texas Department of Corrections.

"Childress wants one and Dalhart wants one and Pampa might want one," McReynolds said. "Hereford may be looking at the possibility of trying to get one here. The PAA will cooperate and give aid to every town that wants to pursue those projects."

"Then we will figure out which one is in front and give our total support to the one which is best."

McReynolds said the PAA will occasionally ask for the support of area citizens, and the recent survey on the possible merger of West Texas State University with another University's system was one such case.

"We didn't ask a question about which university WT should merge with, but being Panhandle people you told us anyway," McReynolds said. "It was about 7-to-1 in favor of Texas A&M."

McReynolds said other studies must be done by committees appointed by the WTSU Board of Regents before the study is completed.

"If we don't work together, we will hang separately. We are making it possible for cities, counties and chambers of commerce to work together ... where they need help to get over the hump."
--Dave McReynolds

plete. If all of those studies are to be performed they likely won't be ready before the special session, which began Wednesday, is completed.

Chamber to host seminar

The Retail Business Committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will host a seminar, "Dynamics of Personal Development," at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center.

The seminar is the second in a series of seminars to assist and benefit local business employees and employers.

Conducting the seminar will be Jim Million of Amarillo. Million is associated with Salestraining, Inc., which does a wide range of business development seminars nationwide. His background and fast-paced presentation should provide a very rewarding opportunity.

Ken McLain, chairman of the retail business committee, said the seminars are designed for any local or area residents and businesses.

"Our goal is to offer the opportunity to evaluate their own needs and to utilize these seminars to better the local business efforts," McLain said. "Local employers and their employees are urged to attend the seminar."

the cost of the seminar will be $10 per person with a maximum of $50 for a firm with five or more employees, making the seminar very affordable for a business wishing to bring several, or all, of its employees.

Reservations should be made in advance by calling the chamber office at 364-3333.

Baker faces questions

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State James A. Baker III is facing tough questions from Capitol Hill on the low-keyed U.S. response to executions in China as he struggles to keep relations with the world's most populous nation close to normal.

Baker was going before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today with questions also remaining on whether the Bush administration would try to compete with the Soviet Union in seeking improved relations with Tehran 2 weeks after the death of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev heartily welcomed the speaker of the Iranian Parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, to Moscow on Tuesday in an effort to reverse the hostility of Khomeini's nine-year rule.

Since Khomeini's death, President Bush has repeated his insistence that Iran end its support for terrorism and free the nine Americans held hostage in Lebanon as a sign that Tehran wants to renew ties with the United States.

Baker said Wednesday the administration did not plan further sanctions against China for executing three of the 11 persons condemned to death in Beijing and Shanghai. Bush had appealed to the Chinese government to show clemency toward the 11 and to pardon the more than 1,200 individuals arrested after pro-democracy forces were attacked by troops June 3-4 in Tiananmen Square.

Thanks, Tommie

Hereford Lions Club Secretary Tommie Weemes, left, was presented with a plaque thanking him for his efforts with the club during 1988-89. Presenting him with the plaque at Wednesday's club meeting was Boss Lion David Ruland.

Pols feel Wright should stay home, out of race

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Jack Brooks says Jim Wright should go back to Fort Worth and live a "good life," rather than attempt to recapture his House seat in a special election.

Wright, forced out as House speaker amid an ethics investigation, has suggested he would consider running for his 12th District seat in a special election if there is a bipartisan groundswell of support.

But Brooks, the dean of the Texas delegation, says Wright should abandon any thought of running in that race.

Instead, Wright should return to Fort Worth, where he could "give a couple of speeches, serve on a couple of boards, write a couple of books, make a lot of money. It'd be a good life," Brooks commented after a closed-door luncheon of Texas Democrats, where strategy and fund-raising for the race to fill Wright's seat were discussed.

While stepping down as House speaker amid allegations of financial impropriety, Wright announced on May 31 that he plans to resign his House seat before the end of June.

But in a statement issued Tuesday, Wright said he would consider a comeback if there were "an absolutely genuine draft of a bipartisan nature."

Wright told The Dallas Morning News his statement said precisely what he wanted to say. "I made my statement and I rest on that statement for the moment," Wright said. "When I get ready for another one, I'll do it at my own time, and I'll have to make the choice in time," he told the newspaper.

Some Democrats suggested Wright was enjoying the attention of constituents who are urging him to seek the seat he has held since 1955.

"It's got to feel good to be stroked by the people who have sent him here for 34 years, after the tremendous beating he has taken up here," said Rep. Jim Chapman, a Sulphur Springs Democrat.

Chapman suggested the attention of Wright's constituents "has got to be a tremendous boost to his ego. It's probably something he needs to hear."

Brooks, a Beaumont Democrat, said he talked to Wright on Wednesday morning and that the former speaker must enjoy hearing that people back home "would re-elect him tomorrow. It'd make anybody feel better. But personally, I think he won't run."

Said Chapman: "The general feeling of the Texas delegation is that Jim Wright is about to retire from Congress. Jim Wright is not going to run in an election for a job he already has."

Rep. Michael Andrews of Houston said his fellow Texas Democrats agree with Brooks, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, that Wright should not run.

"I would be startled if Jim Wright ran for Congress," Andrews said. "I am confident he will retire from the House."

A date for the special election would be set after Wright resigns.

Texas Democrats planned strategy for the special election at their weekly luncheon Wednesday, meeting with Rep. Beryl Anthony Jr., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, to discuss fund-raising for the party's candidate.

Chapman said Pete Geren, a Fort Worth attorney and former aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, would be the party's strongest candidate, "our most attractive candidate."

Seven executed in China

BEIJING (AP) - Seven more "rioters" were executed today, bringing to 27 the number reported put to death in two days for their roles in protests against the violent suppression of the pro-democracy movement.

The official Xinhua News Agency said the seven people executed in Beijing today were convicted of setting army trucks on fire, stealing army goods or assaulting soldiers when the military invaded the capital on June 3-4.

The executions, ignoring international pleas for clemency, came a day after three men were executed in Shanghai for setting fire to a train June 6 after it ran through a barricade, striking and killing six protesters.

Also Wednesday, 17 people were executed in the northeastern provincial city of Jinan, a reporter for a local newspaper said by telephone.

Xinhua gave no details of today's executions other than to say a court had rejected appeals of the seven, who were convicted Saturday and included workers but not students.

Most executions in China are with a bullet to the back of the head.

The Shanghai executions were the first announced for crimes allegedly committed during nationwide protests after the army killed hundreds of unarmed civilians in Beijing in June 4.

None of the 27 people reported executed have been identified as students, who inspired the pro-democracy movement.

Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Li Jinhua said today that it was "futile" for foreign countries to try to exert pressure on China. She said suppression of the nationwide "rebellion" was an internal affair and other nations should not interfere.

Foreign leaders have urged China to be lenient with people arrested their roles in the pro-democracy movement and for taking part in protests once the crackdown began.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker III, referring to the execution of the three workers in Shanghai on Wednesday, said, "We deeply regret the fact that these executions have gone forward."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain said she was "utterly appalled" by the executions while Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke called the death sentences "intolerable."

New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange said today that his country would lodge a formal diplomatic complaint to demonstrate its "revulsion" at the executions.

In Japan, the Kyodo News Service quoted Prime Minister Soudsuke Uno as saying, "That this kind of thing should happen amid rising international criticism is extremely regrettable."

Premier Li Peng on Wednesday said countries that try to exert diplomatic and economic pressures on China, the world's most populous country, are "short-sighted and unwise."

The Foreign Ministry's Li said China hopes to maintain good relations with the United States but, "We firmly oppose the American government interfering in China's internal affairs and exerting pressure on China."

Washington has curtailed military sales and contacts and suspended high-level meetings to protest the harsh suppression of dissent.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My family loves fresh mushrooms, so when they're on sale I buy a couple of pounds at a time. I have one problem with them: After they've been in the refrigerator for a while, they become slimy.

I keep them in a sealed plastic bag. Am I doing something wrong? — Mrs. J. Braddock, Amarillo, Texas

Yep. The culprit is the plastic bag. Before you put the mushrooms away, make sure they're dry and store them in a brown paper bag, which will confine the moisture and allow them to breathe. This keeps them fresh longer and saves you food dollars.

FRESH ASPARAGUS

Dear Heloise: Asparagus is so expensive that only once in a rare while will I cook it for my family. I found that if I didn't cook it immediately, though, it would become limp.

Now if that happens, I put the uncooked asparagus stalks in a deep pot, put some ice water in it and cover it with a plastic bag. I keep the pot in the refrigerator until I'm ready to cook the asparagus. It stays as firm as the day I bought it. — Sara Donnely, Garden City, N.J.

CLEAN PASTRY BRUSH

Dear Heloise: I do a lot of baking and use my pastry brush quite often. Even though I wash it every time I use it, it still remains oily. I'm getting to the point of giving up using it. Any suggestions? — Polly Duran, Miami, Fla.

We've received many letters from readers saying they don't wash pastry brushes. After they've used one, they wrap it in foil and put it in the freezer. When it's time to use it again, just remove it from the freezer a few minutes ahead of time.

Lacy Driver, June 24 bride-elect of Walter Mueggenborg, was honored recently with a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Harley Daniel, 213 Ranger.

Special guests were the bridegroom's grandmother, Thersa Litzke of Kingfisher, Okla. and his sister, Janet Mueggenborg of Okarche.

The honoree greeted guests with her mother, Betty Driver, and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Thersa Mueggenborg of Okarche, Okla.

Kristina Kerr invited guests to register. Refreshments of fresh fruit, sausage balls and pinwheels were served by the hostess. A China Doll plant with silk flowers of the bride's chosen color of dusty rose centered the table.

A gift of stainless cookware was presented by the hostesses. Hostesses included Linda Daniel, Sherry Kerr, Betty Wilcox, Joyce Ward, Linda Minchew, Jo Lee, Sue Hollingsworth, Carolyn Fry, Peggie Fox, Eris Pulliam, Joyce Davis, and Cindy Sublett.

Healthy groups exhibit flexibility

McALLEN--Healthy families have the ability to solve problems, Mirta Cardona said here recently.

"A healthy family doesn't mean that the members do not have problems," Cardona said in her presentation at the "Strengthening Our Families" Seminar in McAllen. She is administrator of programs for children and adolescents at Charter Palms Hospital of McAllen.

"Healthy families have the ability to solve problems," Cardona said.

The seminar was conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Expanded Nutrition Program and the McAllen Independent School District.

Cardona said healthy families define the limits and boundaries of the family. There is respect for members and each member has his or her own "space."

Healthy families also take responsibility for their actions, especially the parents, she said.

The educator said families are in constant change and the family must grow and adjust with the children. "Families are not static, they must have some flexibility," she said.

"When families are rigid, nobody grows," Cardona added.

Families should try to transfer their heritage and culture. Children today know very little of their extended family and very little of its history and struggles, she said.

Cardona said healthy families also have two-way communications. "All members should have the freedom to communicate."

The sharing of power also is another trait of a healthy family. Authorities and dictatorships stifle families, Cardona said.

She said that healthy families should have clear and defined roles and rules.

Oklahoma settles Switzer's contract for $225,000

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Barry Switzer is no longer football coach at Oklahoma, but he will continue to draw his regular $7,250 monthly salary until next June and then will pocket $145,000 as part of a "farewell" settlement.

Interim university president David Swank discussed terms of the $225,000 settlement on Wednesday after it was approved by the university's board of regents.

The regents also voted unanimously to hire former defensive coordinator Gary Gibbs as Switzer's successor. Swank called the settlement with Switzer "abundantly fair considering the contributions he has made to the university and the state."

Switzer announced Monday he was stepping down as coach of the Sooners after 16 seasons, during which his teams won three national titles and 12 Big Eight Conference championships. He was the fourth-winningest coach in college football history.

In addition to hiring Gibbs and approving a salary of $88,000 a year for him, the regents also approved the settlement with Switzer and gave basketball coach Billy Tubbs a yearly salary of $88,000. The $88,000 for Gibbs is $1,000 more than Switzer made.

The Switzer settlement included a $145,000 lump payment to the former coach on June 1, 1990. It also provided that Switzer would be paid a salary of $7,250 a month until that time. Until Feb. 1, Switzer is to be on "special assignment" with the school, but his duties were not outlined.

Switzer resigned Monday after six months of turmoil which saw the Oklahoma program wounded by a three-year NCAA probation and five players charged in incidents involving guns, drugs and sexual assault. Switzer had four years left on his rollover contract.

There were no dissenting votes on the settlement with Switzer, although regent Sarah Hogan had earlier questioned the propriety of the agreement. Hogan said the regents were not legally bound to provide the compensation.

Swank said it was a negotiated settlement that was fair to all concerned. He said allowing Switzer to remain on the university payroll until Feb. 1 would permit him to take advantage of all of his retirement benefits.

Swank said the regents received legal advice before making the settlement.

On the day the regents formally accepted Switzer's resignation, a Dallas newspaper published a story saying that a pending lie-detector test and a drug investigation involving a former coach may have played a part in Switzer's departure.

"I can assure you there has been no request made of him (Switzer) to take a polygraph test," Swank said.

Andy Coats, a lawyer hired to help the school on NCAA matters, said he also knew nothing about polygraph tests.

"I'm sure I would know about it if it was connected with the NCAA investigation," Coats said. "I can't imagine a context in which that would happen."

The Times Herald said the drug investigation involves Scott Hill, who resigned under pressure in March. Hill had been responsible for coaching running backs and recruiting high school players since 1977.

Oklahoma athletic director Donnie Duncan told The Associated Press he was unaware of a drug investigation involving Hill.

Duncan said that, as far as he knew, Switzer's resignation was based on the reasons given during Monday's news conference. Switzer said he felt it was time for new leadership for the Sooners and that he was drained.

"My conversation with Barry was that he had made a decision that he was going to resign. I really didn't consider it appropriate to delve into all the reasons," Duncan said. Duncan said his discussions with Switzer did not include references to any new negative events affecting the Sooners football program, such as a drug investigation.

The Oklahoma football program was placed on NCAA probation in December. In a span of about five weeks in January and February, five football players were arrested on a variety of criminal charges.

Starting quarterback Charles Thompson pleaded guilty to conspiracy to distribute cocaine. Three former Sooners are to be tried in September on rape charges. Another player pleaded no contest to shooting with intent to injure in the wounding of a teammate.

Handwriting expert says Rose's signature on sheets

CINCINNATI (AP) - Baseball's evidence against Pete Rose includes an expert's determination that his handwriting is on betting sheets involving Cincinnati Reds' games, sources familiar with baseball's investigation have told The Associated Press.

A handwriting expert who examined the betting sheets for major league baseball concluded the handwriting on the sheets is Rose's, several sources have confirmed for the AP.

The New York Times also reported today that the FBI has determined the slips of paper bear Rose's fingerprints as well as his handwriting. Baseball's investigators are trying to obtain the FBI's evidence on the fingerprints, the AP has learned.

The betting sheets, if judged authentic by Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti, would give baseball tangible evidence that the Reds' manager bet on his own team, putting him in jeopardy of a lifetime ban. Rose's lawyers tried to discredit the betting sheets in a lawsuit filed Monday against Giamatti.

A state judge scheduled a hearing today on Rose's request for a temporary restraining order as part of the lawsuit. Rose wants Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Norbert A. Nadel to prevent Giamatti from holding a hearing on the gambling allegations Monday in New York - the last step before the commissioner would impose any penalty on Rose.

Rose's lawyers and John M. Dowd, who investigated the allegations for Giamatti, were expected to be called as witnesses at the hearing today.

Dowd's 225-page report on the allegations includes three "Pete Rose Betting Sheets" supplied to investigators by Paul G. Janszen, who claimed to have run bets for Rose to bookmaker Ronald Peters. Janszen later became an FBI informant.

Rose's lawyers revealed the sheets' existence Monday in their lawsuit, and released correspondence that confirms Rose supplied handwriting samples at baseball's request to help an analyst examine them. The lawsuit said nothing about the analyst's conclusions.

Janszen, who last week completed a six-month sentence in a halfway house for failing to report income from the sale of steroids, gave the betting sheets to federal authorities while he was investigated, a source told the AP. He kept a copy, and later supplied that to baseball's investigators when they started looking into Rose's gambling, the source said.

"Rose is claiming the sheets are forgeries," The Times source was quoted as saying. "He says he didn't write them, but we're as confident as we could be that he did."

Rose, speaking Wednesday night after the Reds lost a doubleheader to the Braves at Atlanta, was informed of the reports on the handwriting and fingerprints.

"That's not true," he said. "I'm not commenting on anything like that. Any other baseball questions? I thought it was in the courts right now. I'll say it again, I'm not going to talk about it."

Baseball officials don't have the fingerprint report, and are trying to get it from the FBI, a lawyer familiar with the commissioner's investigation told the AP.

"John (Dowd) has been trying to obtain information from the FBI about fingerprints on any documents they may have and have asked Rose's lawyers to join them in making that request," said the lawyer, who spoke on the condition of anonymity. "They have not done that as of yet."

Rose also is being investigated by a federal grand jury in Cincinnati that is examining his taxes.

Reuven J. Katz, one of Rose's five lawyers, declined to comment when asked about the betting slips. Rich Levin, a spokesman for Giamatti, also declined to comment.

In the suit, Rose's lawyers allege that Janszen stole three pieces of paper from the home of the Reds manager.

In a letter May 18 from Dowd to Rose lawyer Roger J. Makley, Dowd confirmed that a handwriting expert "was permitted to examine the handwriting of Pete Rose on the three original pages of betting sheets in the possession of the FBI which were furnished by Paul Janszen."

Rose's lawyers indicate in their filing that they wanted an expert of their own to examine the sheets.

Braves beat Reds, 4-3

By The Associated Press

Today is Jeff Treadway Day in his hometown of Griffin, Ga., so he decided to do some early celebrating.

Treadway's two-run single off Cincinnati relief ace John Franco gave Atlanta a 4-3 victory over the Reds in the opener of Wednesday's two-night double-header. Treadway doubled and scored the only run in the Braves' 1-0 triumph in the nightcap.

"I was hoping against the Reds I might have one good game out of this thing," said the second baseman who the Braves bought from the Reds for $50,000 near the end of spring training. "Sweet. That was a lot of fun for me. It's an old team that let me go."

In other National League games, it was Chicago 1, Pittsburgh 0 in 11 innings; New York 2, Montreal 0; San Francisco 2, Houston 0, and Los Angeles 6, San Diego 2. The St. Louis-Philadelphia game was rained out.

Treadway's game-winning hit in the opener marked only the second failure in 20 save opportunities for Franco. Dale Murphy and Andres Thomas singled to start the ninth, Tommy Gregg sacrificed and Jody Davis was walked intentionally to load the bases before Treadway poked his two-run single into center field.

After being shut out on two hits in six innings by Tom Browning, who extended his string of scoreless innings to 23, the Braves began their comeback from a 3-0 deficit against Rob Dibble with one out in the eighth when pinch hitter Jeff Wetherby doubled and Lonnie Smith hit his eighth home run.

Cincinnati manager Pete Rose said the Braves "beat the best set-up man and the best short man in the world."

In the nightcap, John Smoltz and three relievers combined on a nine-hitter with 13 strikeouts.

Cubs 1, Pirates 0

Greg Maddux held Pittsburgh to six hits in 10 innings and got the victory when Lloyd McClendon hit a sacrifice fly in the 11th. Maddux walked four and struck out five before Mitch Williams pitched a perfect 11th for his 18th save. Pirates starter Doug Drabek allowed five hits in nine innings.

Gary Varsho, inserted as a pinch-runner in the ninth inning, doubled off Doug Bair to start the 11th, took third on Damon Berryhill's fly ball and scored on McClendon's sacrifice fly as the Cubs won their fourth straight. Mets 2, Expos 0

David Cone, 4-5, allowed five hits in seven innings for his first victory since May 6 and Howard Johnson hit his 19th home run.

Randy Myers pitched two hitless innings for his ninth save.

Loser Bryn Smith allowed three hits in seven innings and the Mets' first run was unearned. Smith hit Gregg Jefferies with a pitch leading off the fifth and right fielder Hubie Brooks dropped Mookie Wilson's drive for a two-base error. Barry Lyons followed with a sacrifice fly.

Giants 2, Astros 0

Rick Reuschel scattered four hits in 7 1-3 innings for his major league-leading 12th victory and Will Clark homered.

Steve Bedrosian got the last five outs for his eighth save.

Reuschel, 12-2, won his ninth straight decision, striking out two and walking one. He threw first-pitch strikes to all but two of the 28 batters he faced. Clark gave the Giants a 1-0 lead in the first inning with a 425-foot homer off Jim Clancy.

Dodgers 6, Padres 2

Mike Davis, Jeff Hamilton and Eddie Murray homered and Tim Lary scattered 10 hits in eight innings. The Dodgers took a 4-0 lead in the first off Ed Whitson on two-run homers by Davis, his fourth, and Hamilton, his seventh.

The Padres scored their first run in the bottom of the first on Tony Gwynn's RBI double. But Murray's solo homer in the fifth made it 5-1 and Willie Randolph added a run-scoring double off Pat Clements in the seventh.

The Padres got their second run in the seventh on Mark Parent's fourth homer.

Saberhagen returns to old form

By The Associated Press

Bret Saberhagen is dominating American League hitters again.

He pitched a three-hitter for his league-leading seventh complete game and the Royals scored four times in the first inning Wednesday night, beating the Milwaukee Brewers 6-0.

Saberhagen, 7-4, has won four consecutive decisions and has lowered his earned-run average to 2.17. He said complete games aren't his goal.

"It's something that doesn't really mean as much as ERA or wins or stuff like that to me," he said. "I've got three in losing efforts. It would mean more if I was going out giving one run or shutting them out. All shutouts would be better. But you shut them down as long as you can."

Saberhagen retired the first nine batters before Paul Molitor singled leading off the fourth. Gary Sheffield singled in the seventh and Molitor singled in the ninth.

In other games, Toronto beat California 6-1 in 14 innings, Chicago beat New York 7-3, Texas beat Boston 10-3, Oakland beat Detroit 6-3, Baltimore beat Seattle 8-6 and Minnesota beat Cleveland 5-1.

Tony Fernandez led off the 14th with an infield single against Greg Minton, 1-2, went to second when Kelly Gruber was hit by a pitch and scored when Bell doubled into the left-field corner.

White Sox 7, Yankees 3

Carlton Fisk set an American League home run record for catchers with his 307th.

Fisk's homer off Andy Hawkins, 7-8, broke a scoreless tie, and he tied the score 2-2 in the fourth with an RBI single. Harold Baines' leadoff homer in the eighth snapped the tie.

Rangers 10, Red Sox 3

Geno Petralli had a double and four singles in a 19-hit attack as Texas routed Roger Clemens. Rafael Palmeiro and Julio Franco each had three hits and Sammy Sosa added his first major league homer.

Staked to a 3-0 lead in the first inning, Clemens, 8-5, allowed 12 hits and four runs in 5 2-3 innings.

Athletics 6, Tigers 3

Dave Parker hit a pair of two-run homers and Mike Moore, 9-5, and Rick Honeycutt combined on a six-hitter. Honeycutt pitched a one-hit ninth for his seventh save.

Orioles 8, Mariners 6

Jay Tibbs won his fourth consecutive decision as the Baltimore took an 8-0 lead and hung on to extend its winning streak to six.

Tibbs, 4-0, allowed eight hits and two runs in eight innings. Gregg Olson got the final out for his 10th save and second in two nights.

Twins 5, Indians 1

Kirby Puckett had three singles in his 32nd multi-hit game of the season and Shane Rawley won for the first time in six starts since May 13.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is about sportsmanship. I hope you will publish it. Parents whose children compete might learn something, I did.

My 9-year-old son loves sports. "Bill" is a good soccer player and does well on the football field. Recently he became interested in wrestling. I attended his first match yesterday and it was a disaster. I nearly broke down and cried as I sat there and watched Bill's arms and legs get twisted every which way. It

Rebekah Lodge meets Tuesday

Noble Grand Marie Harris presided as Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met Tuesday evening at I.O.O.F. Temple. Numerous sick and distressed members and friends were reported. Thirteen visits and 13 cheer cards were recorded.

A joint school of instruction will be conducted today at Dimmitt Rebekah Lodge #54. All lodges of District V are invited to attend. District Deputy President Ruby Green of Muleshoe will be in charge.

Jo Irbeck and Anna Conklin were co-hostesses during the fellowship hour. Attending were Susie Cursinger, Leona Sowell, Harris, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Ada Hollabaugh, Merle Boozer, Ben Conklin, Peggy Lemons, Lydia Hopson, Verma Sowell and Ursalee Jacobsen.

was an easy victory for his young opponent.

After the match was over--it was the longest three minutes of my life--"Adam," the victor, grabbed my son's hand and said, "You did a good job, Bill. That was a great match." Adam's father rubbed my son's head, offered a few compliments and encouraged him to keep doing his best.

When Bill went into the ring for his second match, Adam's father noticed that he didn't have a coach. He took my son under his wing and coached him throughout the match. A good-looking high school wrestler, who saw my son's lack of experience, shouted suggestions throughout the match.

God love them--total strangers, sensing that the boy needed a hand in defeat, they extended theirs.

You can be sure in the future, Ann, when my son is the winner, he will remember what it was like to be the loser and how much it helped to get a kind word from his opponent.--S.Z. in Alden, N.Y.

DEAR S.Z.: Thank you for giving us an example of what true sportsmanship is all about.

I hope this column goes up on hundreds of bulletin boards in locker rooms all over the world. This lesson is one that cannot be repeated too often, especially in a society that believes winning is everything.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been living with a time bomb. Although I've been married for six years to my third husband, I have not been able to tell him that husband No. 2 is not the father of my grown daughter. This child was born when I was barely 18. My second husband adopted her when she was two years old. My husband and I have no contact with either of my former spouses, but we live near my family and near my daughter and her husband. It's miraculous that after all this time the truth has not come out.

I have read in your column that a person is not obligated to tell a lover or spouse every detail about the past, but I realized that I should tell my husband about this before someone else does. I've been silent because I'm ashamed that I didn't tell him before we married. Also very few people know that I have had three husbands.

How do I break this sound barrier? I'm counting on you to tell me what to do about this problem that is haunting me.--Hopeful in Bethesda

DEAR BETH: Your absolute deadline is the day you read this in the paper. Hand your husband the column and say, "I wrote this letter."

Believe me when I tell you that the truth will set you free. You will feel as if a 10-ton weight has been lifted from your shoulders.

Please write and tell me that you took my advice and how much better you feel.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

Trekkies and non-Trekkies alike will be pleased with...

"STAR TREK V: THE FINAL FRONTIER": Starring William Shatner and Company. It's not a great movie; not even a great Star Trek adventure - but who cares? If you are a Trekkie, (And who isn't? After all we're supposed to have some fun in this and the other worlds.) you'll just be happy that there is another expedition.

You will not get that sense of "Hold on to your hats, we're off again." that you got in Indiana Jones' Last Crusade. You'll get more of the "Here's another chapter of the well-known escapades of the crew of the Enterprise." By now the whole world (except those without TV sets) knows that William Shatner is the co-developer, director and star of this outer-space vehicle. And like the first four Star Trek movies, it's a man's world out there. The comradeship among Captain Kirk, Dr. Spock, "Bones", and Scotty has gotten comfortable to say the least. But, ah ha!, one wonderful new element this time around is Laurence Luckenbill as a misguided idealist, a zealous Vulcan named Sybok. It is his evil doings that give this chapter its zip. You are going to love his exotic make-up just as much as you will get caught up in his plan to capture the Enterprise and take the starship to another place it "has never gone before."

Basically that's it: a lot of starship lore, a little mysticism and some special effects that we've seen before. If you've never seen a Star Trek movie you will have no trouble in catching up or understanding the starship crew and their history and, like all of us Trekkies, you'll have fun. Rated PG. Three Boxes.

RENTAL MOVIES

Trivia time. Name the first four Star Trek films.

"STAR TREK - THE MOTION PICTURE": (1979) The crew of the Enterprise is reunited to combat a lethal force field headed toward Earth. This first film outing of everyone's favorite television out-of-space adventurers is slow, talky and derivative. It is, however, somewhat redeemed by outstanding special effects and a majestic Jerry Goldsmith score. Rated G. Two Boxes.

"STAR TREK II: THE WRATH OF KHAN": (1982) The Enterprise crew must do battle with the nefarious villain of 1967's TV Space Seed episode. A bit hokey and pretentious at times, but a likable adventure overall. This Star Trek has the first, and really nice, touches of warmth and humor.

As Khan, Ricardo Montalban reprises his super villain role from the TV chapter in which this movie was based. Rated PG. Three Boxes.

"STAR TREK III: THE SEARCH FOR SPOCK": (1984) In this thrill-packed release, the crew goes looking for the lost shipmate, Spock (Leonard Nimoy), who appeared to give his life to save his friends at the end of Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. But is he dead? Finding out may be one of the most entertaining things you do in front of a TV set. Rated PG. Four Boxes.

"STAR TREK IV: THE VOYAGE HOME": (1986) Our stalwart heroes journey back to Earth in their "borrowed" enemy spacecraft just in time to witness a new tragedy in the making: an alien deep-space probe is disrupting our planet's atmosphere by broadcasting a message that nobody understands. When Spock identifies the "language" as that of the humpback whale, extinct in the twenty-third century, Kirk leads his crew back to the twentieth century in an attempt to locate two of the great mammals and utilize them for translation duty. This film version is charming and thoroughly lighthearted. Rated PG. Four Boxes.

There is, of course, the Star Trek television series available from the years 1966-1969. Each is 50 minutes in length and all are good entertainment.

If you like space travel you will also enjoy...

"2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY": (1968) Starring Keir Dullea and Gary Lockwood. This is a milestone film in which space travel is placed into the context of man's history.

In the beginning the earth heated then cooled; the apes gave way to man, man to superman and then beyond to a space voyage manned by astronauts Bowman (Dullea) and Poole (Lockwood) with a computer named HAL in control. The film is a visual feast with an excellent score and Oscar-winning special effects. Rated G. Four Boxes.

"2010": (1984) Starring Roy Scheider, John Lithgow and Keir Dullea. This exciting sequel has the cast as participants in a joint American-Russian space mission to solve the mystery of what went wrong on the original Discovery flight in 2001: A Space Odyssey. The film is more concrete, and therefore less mystical than 2001, and has an ending that is much too literal. It is still, however, an entertaining journey with state-of-the-art visual effects. Rated PG. Three Boxes.

Manoff almost missed 'Nest'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Dinah Manoff's earlier work for the producers of "Empty Nest" almost prevented her from getting a role in the new NBC comedy.

The show, about a recently widowed pediatrician who suddenly finds himself living alone, was created by Susan Harris, who also created "Soap" and "The Golden Girls."

Manoff plays Carol Weston, the self-absorbed daughter of the pediatrician, played by Richard Mulligan, and sister of a policewoman, played by Kristy McNichol.

"They auditioned hundreds of actresses," she says. "Everybody I knew went in for that role. They couldn't find what they were looking for."

It would seem that Manoff would have had an edge because she had played Elaine Lefkowitz in "Soap" for the producers, Witt-Thomas-Harris.

But, she says, "They didn't think I was right for the part at first because of the work I'd done in 'Soap.' The characters were different. They didn't want the New York, Jewish, fast-talking, tough Mafia princess I played in 'Soap.' I'd played the same kind of character in the movie 'I Ought To Be In Pictures.'"

"So I asked to read. When I read I made sure that none of that was showing. And they saw it and cast me."

Manoff says she has "a real affinity" for the writing of Susan Harris.

"I understand her rhythm," she says. "I understand her language."

She disagrees with descriptions of Carol as neurotic. "She's just terribly self-involved," she says. "Everything has to revolve around her. If there's a disaster somewhere, her only thought is how does it affect her. She regularly takes her emotional temperature."

Manoff grew up in a show business family. Her mother is actress-director Lee Grant and her stepfather is producer Joe Feury. Last summer she worked in "Boy's Life," a movie made on location in South Carolina directed by her mother and produced by her stepfather.

"It was very interesting," she says. "It was kind of like being 14 and told to clean up your room. That's the downside. The upside is that she and I are very close friends and very admiring of each other as actresses and artists."

She'd worked for her mother once before, on a TV movie called "A Matter of Sex." The movie, which also starred Jean Stapleton, was about sexual discrimination in the workplace.

She didn't begin acting until she was 19 because her mother didn't want her to be a child actor. She was a college film student briefly, then quit to pursue her acting career.

Manoff studied at the Actor's Studio and made her professional debut in a production for PBS called "The Great Cherub Knitwear Strike."

Next, she did a small role on the TV series "Welcome Back, Kotter."

Manoff won a Tony in 1980 for her Broadway role in "I Ought To Be In Pictures." She reprised her role in the movie version.

Her only other series was "Soap," on which she played the daughter of a gangster and the wife of Danny Dallas (Ted Wass).

Her film "Child's Play" is just out and "Bloodhounds of Broadway" is due in September. Another movie, a thriller called "Backfire," is coming up on Showtime.

She is starting a new movie called "Welcome Home, Roxie Carmichael," which also stars Winona Ryder and Jeff Daniels.

The comic strip "Little Orphan Annie" by Harold Gray made its debut in 1924.

Networks plan new campaign

NEW YORK (AP) - After years of sitting back and waiting for 90 percent of the television audience to automatically tune in to their new fall shows, the networks have had a rude awakening.

The audiences, faced with an ever-increasing number of entertainment choices, aren't automatically tuning in. The networks now have to work to win them over, and that has spawned an unprecedented burst of promotional innovation for the 1989-90 season.

Come fall, folks stopping in for a pizza will also receive an ABC promo tape. Shoppers can buy a blank Scotch videotape and get an NBC featurette, visit K mart and be greeted by CBS displays, go to a movie and see a commercial for ABC. Demonstrator television sets in Sears stores will be tuned to NBC, and Maxell tape packages will include pitches for CBS.

Last season, the three-network share of the television audience dropped to 67 percent, from 71 percent the previous season. Those A.C. Nielsen Co. figures reflect inroads by cable, independent channels and videocassette rentals in the last decade that have eroded the networks' traditional combined share that ranged up to 90 percent in the 1970s.

This summer and fall, the networks' promotional ploys range from look-alike "news" reports on upcoming shows to marketing tie-ins with retail outlets and videotape manufacturers - on the assumption that viewers will buy the tapes to record the network's shows.

Mark Zakarin, vice president for marketing for ABC Entertainment, calls the new network strategy "guerrilla marketing."

"These used to be easy jobs," he said. "Used to be all you had to do was do your own on-air advertising and plunk an ad in TV Guide a couple of times."

"As our audience fragments," said Zakarin, "we gotta go out and find them wherever they are."

ABC plans to take out ads in TV Guide again this fall - with a difference. During the month of November - when important local affiliate ratings are measured - ABC's ads will include bar codes, similar to product price codes. The codes can be read by programming "wands" included with some Panasonic videocassette recorders. Run the wand over the bar code in the ad for, say, "thirtysomething," and the machine is programmed to record it. ABC figures there are 800,000 such VCRs in viewers' homes.

CBS previously announced a promotional partnership with K mart Corp., and NBC followed suit with Sears, Roebuck and Co. ABC is still looking for a retail partner, but has other promotional plans, including the first-ever network commercial in movie theaters - a 60-second promo for its fall lineup that will begin running in 5,000 theaters in August.

CBS plans to run on its own airwaves "CBS Spotlites," advertisements designed to resemble news breaks, that feature reports on stars of upcoming CBS shows.

All three networks have cross-promotions involving videotapes.

CBS has joined Maxell in a marketing strategy that will include a

Now You're Cooking

By GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

When Ann Meyer returned to Hereford several years ago, she brought new telephone technology with her.

"I was a long-distance operator with Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Little Rock, Ark. and I transferred to Hereford in 1957. I helped train local operators with a new dialing system," she said.

"When I got here, they still had the primitive operation where a caller asked an operator to connect them the number they were trying to call, and the operator would plug in the number manually. I loved it—I felt like I was working in a museum, the equipment was so old."

Meyer admits that it was an interesting transition for her to come from a larger, formal office to a small, casual atmosphere. "When I was in Little Rock, I was one of 415 long distance operators and we had a dress in a business-like fashion. In Hereford, there were only about 30 operators and dress restrictions were much more relaxed."

She worked the graveyard shift but that allowed her to attend social gatherings in the evening before going to work. It was at a wedding dance in Umbarger that she met Donald Meyer, a Kansas native serving in the U.S. Navy. She later married him and they began farming between Berger and Dumas in the Morse area before settling in Deaf Smith County.

The Meyers now live 14 miles north of Hereford in the home they built in 1976. The distance from town poses no problems for the active woman, however, as she has lived in the country for most of her life.

"We left Hereford when I was two or three years old and I was raised in Idaho, Washington, and Arkansas," the brown-eyed, brunette said. "When we first moved to Arkansas, I did my lessons in front of an oil lamp—we had no electricity, running water, or a telephone. My father helped wire many places with electricity and it was an exciting era because so many new inventions were coming out."

As one of six children, Meyer became a "pretty fair cook" by the time she was 10 years old. "We all had chores and an older sister taught me to cook. I watched my mother and grandmother cook and learned from them too." Meyer's siblings include Hope Loerwald, Judy Detten, and Dick, Gene, and Frank Zinser, Jr.

Farm life has always appealed to Meyer, who enjoys watching crops grow as well as her orchard. She relishes working in the yard that she claims is her "pride and joy." "When we lived in the Northwest states, we lived off of farm produce, had cattle, and did some hunting. I thought that milking a cow was a sign of growing up, so I begged to learn how when I was six years old."

Such practical experience with family and farming has helped the Meyers to raise four children: Robert, John, Donna Goodwin, and Paula. Both sons are married and farm locally while Donna lives in Channing and is married to the Hartley Co. Extension Agent. Paula is currently a student at Texas Tech University.

While a granddaughter and three grandsons keep the Meyers busy, Mrs. Meyer has become more active in civic affairs to relieve the void in her home since all the children have gone. "I promised myself that I wouldn't be one of those mothers that cry when the kids leave, so I stay busy."

A member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church and their women's organization, Meyer has found avenues of developing her great love of music. "I sang in a choir in the Catholic school I graduated from in Morrilton, Ark. and was always interested in music. But we lived too far out in the country and raising children took time, so I've only recently returned to music."

Meyer sings with the Hereford Chamber Singers and serves on their board of directors. She and her husband sing in their church's choir and she is a member of Hereford Music Study Club. She has studied voice under Kathlee Palmer and loves classical and operatic music. She has just completed her fourth year of fundraising and serving as membership chairman for Hereford Community Concert Association. She also serves on the board of directors and has helped with the Concerteers in that organization.

Among Meyer's other interests are reading, knitting, gardening, creating stained glass items, home decorating, and collecting antiques. She tries to walk two miles six times a week, often taking turns with her husband of 31 years in exercising on a treadmill and exercise bicycle in their basement. "I've decided to try swimming this summer so I don't get too bored with the other exercise," she said.

Meyer has taught religion classes at St. Anthony's and serves as a cantor in the church. Her husband serves on various boards, including First National Bank, Hereford Grain Corp., and ASCS while overseeing his farming operation. Despite their busy lifestyle, she finds time to enjoy cooking.

"I've done a lot of freezing and canning out of my garden," she said. "We participated in the Farmers' Market in Amarillo last year and it was fun—we sold sweet corn and other vegetables."

Meyer has incorporated various foreign types of cooking into her everyday cooking routine. She learned to prepare German dishes from the German roommates she had before she married.

"Mother did a lot of French-type cooking with gravies and sauces and I enjoy making sweets. I've learned to make various Mexican dishes and Texas-influenced food."

Summertime usually calls for simple recipes and Meyer notes that her Fajitas recipe can be made ahead of time with grilling done outside. "I've served 58-59 relatives these fajitas by quadrupling the recipe."

Her family members request Red Devil's Food Cake for birthdays and her unusual German Fruit Cake is a must at Christmas. "This is not a 'normal' fruit cake because it has no chopped fruit; rather, it has preserves. I've been told it keeps indefinitely—I know it keeps more than a month."

These recipes follow, as do Meyer's recipes for Prize Winner Lemon Pie and Hope's Sweet Pickles:

FAJITA MARINADE

2 - 10 oz. bottles soy sauce
1 - 10 oz. bottles Worcestershire sauce
1/4 Tbsp. garlic salt
1/2 Tbsp. season-all salt
1/4 scant Tbsp. ground black pepper
1/8 c. vodka
1/8 scant cup lemon juice
Mix all ingredients together. Marinate skirt meat for three hours or more. Grill to desired doneness and slice into strips that are 1/4-1/2" wide.

RED DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

2 c. sugar
2/3 c. shortening
2 eggs
2 tsp. vanilla
2 1/2 c. flour
6 Tbsp. cocoa
1 c. milk plus 1 Tbsp. vinegar (mix together and let stand about 5 minutes)
1 c. boiling water plus 1 3/4 tsp. soda
Cream sugar and shortening. Add eggs and beat, then add vanilla and beat.

Beat in soured milk and flour. Add hot water and soda mixture and beat.

Bake at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes. Makes 2 large layers or 1 flat 9x13" cake.

GERMAN FRUIT CAKE

3/4 c. butter or oleo
2 c. sugar
4 eggs (whole)
Cream butter and sugar and then add eggs. Sift together:
3 c. sifted flour
1/2 tsp. allspice
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
Add to first mixture, alternating with 1 c. buttermilk with 1 teaspoon soda added to the buttermilk. Fold in:
2/3 c. cherry preserves
2/3 c. apricot preserves
2/3 c. pineapple preserves
1 c. pecans, chopped
1/2 tsp. vanilla

Bake 1 1/2 hours at 325 degrees. Use 2 small loaf pans or an angel food cake pan. Let cool in pans for about 15 minutes before removing.

Note: Be sure to bake at the correct temperature because if the temperature varies a little, the cake will fall in the middle.

PRIZE WINNER LEMON PIE

7 Tbsp. cornstarch
1 1/2 c. hot water
1 1/2 c. sugar
3 egg yolks
1/2 c. fresh lemon juice
2 Tbsp. butter
1/4 tsp. salt

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt thoroughly in saucepan. Add hot water and cook over high heat, stirring constantly, until thick and clear.

Remove from stove and add beaten egg yolks. Return to stove and cook at low heat, stirring constantly, for six minutes. Take off stove and add lemon juice and butter. Cool. Pour into cooled baked pastry shell. Top with meringue.

MERINGUE

3 egg whites
1/4 tsp. cream of tartar
6 Tbsp. sugar
Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until stiff, gradually adding sugar. Spread on pie. Bake at 400 degrees F. until golden brown.

Note: Be sure to cook the lemon filling long enough, or even overcook it, or else the filling may be watery and runny.

HOPE'S SWEET PICKLES

Split pickles, put in a jar, and cover with brine (composed of 1 c. salt, 1 gal. water) for 5 days.

Take pickles out and wash in cold water; replace in jar and cover with boiling water and alum (the size of a walnut) and let stand for 24 hours.

Take out and wash in cold water; place in jars and cover with hot syrup made of 1 c. sugar, 1 c. vinegar, and pickling spice to taste.

Let stand for 3 days; each morning, pour off and reheat mixture. On the final morning, add 1 c. sugar to each qt. of vinegar and seal.

MACON, Ga. (AP) - When rock 'n' rollers the A.C. Black Band decided to get back to their roots for the cover of their debut album, they didn't have to go far.

The cover photo will show the group, dressed in antebellum garb, posed at Macon's 129-year-old Hay House.

George Lakes, the group's Los Angeles manager, came up with the idea for the Old South image and said the band's record label, Motown, embraced the idea. "It blew them away," he said.
