

Nine Siblings Reunited After 20 Years Apart

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer
Nine siblings who were separated over 20 years ago met for a family reunion in Hereford last weekend, lacking only one brother they hoped would be able to attend to mark the first time all 10 had ever been together.
Mrs. Joyce Walker, 147 Hickory, hosted her family in a home much larger than the one she had when she cared for the five younger ones. The two-room house near the Jumbo community held her and her husband, the five youngsters and Joyce's baby-on-the-way.

"We were fortunate that we had older brothers and sisters to take care of us," said Ruby Gallagher, also of Hereford.

A parents' separation split up the children and they took turns staying with the older kids, some of whom had left home before the younger ones were born. (Both parents died in 1968.)
The little ones used to get in trouble for riding the wrong schoolbus when they got the whim to go home to a different brother or sister.

The courts decided the children needed to be settled and arranged for adoption.
In 1960 the younger four were adopted out. But, unusually so, Joyce was allowed to know where the children were to be and even talk to the prospective parents before the children left.
If it hadn't been for the court at Dimmitt to let us know where they were, Joyce said, they couldn't be together now.
"The adoptive parents would also keep in contact, except for Ruby's," Joyce said.

Ruby, adopted out at around 12-years-old, lost all contact with her family until about 10 years later.
"I got the idea to find her (Joyce) and I remembered her last name," Ruby said. "So I found her number and she was here."
Joyce got in touch with the other brothers and sisters. Then Ruby came home the Nine brothers and sisters who were separated over 20 years ago were reunited in Hereford last weekend. The younger Martin children were adopted out after their parents separated, but Joyce Walker, 147 Hickory, has kept tabs on the five siblings thanks to a lenient court in Dimmitt. Dimmitt Winner Of Achievement Award

WACO - Dimmitt was one of six cities in Texas named a winner of the 1982 Governor's Community Achievement Awards competition by Mrs. William P. Clements, Jr. This year's winners were announced by Texas' First Lady at a luncheon here during the fifteenth annual meeting of the Beautify Texas Council, sponsors of the annual community improvement program.

Other winning cities are Salado, Granbury, DeSoto, Lake Jackson and Houston. Each was recognized for campaigns undertaken this past year which made a noticeable difference in the improved appearance of their community and in an attitude of increased pride in keeping the community cleaner by its residents.
Delegations from each winning city were on hand to receive a large cast aluminum plaque signed by the Governor. The plaques are suitable for display either indoors or outdoors.

In Dimmitt, the following goals were pinpointed and achieved during the past year's "Clean Up, Fix Up, Pride Up" campaign: 1) removal of junk cars, 2) cleanup of vacant lots and

Hinckley Jurors Disillusioned By Insanity Defense Law

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - As John W. Hinckley Jr. begins his stay in a mental institution, some members of the jury that acquitted the presidential assailant on grounds he was insane joined the public clamor for a change in the law.
Juror Maryland T. Copelin, who said she argued for conviction until the final hours of deliberations, said Tuesday she felt "like an American sucker...because of the way the system was."
"He's just a spoiled brat that wanted his way," said Mrs. Copelin. "Now, he's the smart one there. You see how he manipulated the whole country?"
On Monday, Hinckley was found innocent by reason of insanity on all counts stemming from his March 30, 1981 shooting of President Reagan, White House Press Secretary James Brady, Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy and then-Washington policeman Thomas Delahanty.

hearing, he would remain at St. Elizabeths indefinitely but would have the right to request a rehearing every six months.
Meanwhile, some of the seven women and five men on the jury expressed uneasiness about the insanity defense.
"I think the law is confusing on that point," said jury foreman Lawrence H. Coffey, 22. "If it can be rewritten, I guess I would prefer he get his treatment and then be punished."
Mrs. Copelin, 50, complained the options for a verdict - guilty, innocent or innocent by reason of insanity - weren't broad enough to suit the circumstances.

"I wanted him guilty of everything he did. But I took into consideration his mental disorder," she said.
She said she backed down and voted with the other jurors when she could not longer take the strain of deliberations. "We were more prisoners than the prisoners...We had to get out for our own sanity."

"The system doesn't have it right," said juror Nathalia Brown, 30. "The man can

May Showers Bring June Dry Spell, Headaches

By SCOTT McCARTNEY Associated Press Writer
Just a month after heavy May rains spawned crop-killing floods, few Texas farmers expected to see the fruits of their labor withering in sun-baked fields.
But below-normal rainfall and above-normal temperatures this month in most of the Panhandle, Southeast, South Central and West Texas have left fields scorched and important crops stunted, state agricultural experts say.
"It has been a study of contrast from one extreme to the other. Certain areas had far too much rain plus hail in May... Now in some areas of the state the need for moisture is critical," said Mary Mahoney, spokeswoman for the Texas A&M University agriculture department.
"We didn't have all this turbulence last year," Ms. Mahoney said. "This year has been chaotic and hectic."
"But that isn't abnormal for Texas. We can have both flood problems and drought problems at the same time."
Ms. Mahoney said that in North Central Texas and much of East Texas, farmers have had adequate rains for their crops. But heavy thundershowers, hail and a few tornadoes also have taken their toll on farmlands.

After May storms washed out newly planted cotton crops, farmers replanted. Now, Ms. Mahoney said, cotton fields aren't getting the moisture they need and farmers face financial problems if the plantings fail.
Rain last month destroyed

1,250 acres of the 7 million acres of cotton planted in Texas annually, the Texas Department of Agriculture in Austin reported.
In the South Plains area around Lubbock, farmers lost at least another 300,000 acres of cotton last weekend in hail storms, Ms. Mahoney said.
That cotton, in one of the state's most productive farming areas, can't be replanted because it is too late in the season, she said.

Argentina Names New President

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - The army has taken control of the Argentine government, appointing retired army Gen. Reynaldo Bignone president over the objections of its junta partners. It will now face alone the growing public pressure for a return to democracy following the nation's humiliating loss in the Falklands war.
The navy and the air force reacted to the army's choice of Bignone Tuesday by announcing they would limit their future cooperation in government to military matters - in effect dropping out of the six-year-old military regime.

Plan Deficit-Laden Budget Near Approval
By CLIFF HAAS Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is on the verge of giving final approval to a Republican-drafted 1983 budget plan that includes the largest deficits ever to pass the House and Senate - shortfalls congressional economists say are underestimated by billions of dollars.
The Senate was set for a final vote today on the spending blueprint that calls for limiting federal spending to $769.8 billion and holding next year's deficit to $103.9 billion.
In a critical 51-45 test vote Tuesday, the GOP-controlled Senate cleared the way for today's final vote.
Earlier Tuesday, the Democratic-controlled House reluctantly approved the measure on a 210-208 tally that sent it to the Senate.

Royal Baby Sleeps Through Appearance
LONDON (AP) - Cradled in his father's arms, the heir presumptive to the British throne slept through his first public appearance when Prince Charles and Princess Diana took their new baby home, just 21 hours after his birth.
Wrapped in a white shawl with his blue eyes firmly shut, the little prince was unaware of the adoring crowds, waving Union Jacks, television cameras, photographers and a portable gramophone playing "Land of Hope and Glory" Tuesday night outside St. Mary's Hospital at Paddington in west London.
Diana, wearing a green polka-dot maternity dress, smiled and waved. When the crowd broke into applause she blushed.
The princess, who will be 21 on July 1, looked radiant but slightly tired after her 16-hour labor Monday. Her early departure from hospital was questioned by some in medical circles, but royal gynecologist George Pinner said she was "in very good health and this will not cause any problems."

Press reports said Diana was heard to joke to a doctor as she and Charles thanked hospital staff before leaving with their first-born child: "Will you be here next time?"
Then she hastily turned to her husband and said: "I'm only joking, dear."
Charles, 33, showing every sign of a proud new father, constantly peered at his son's blondish head just visible inside the shawl. He still declined to announce the name of his baby, second in line to the British throne.
"You'll just have to wait," Charles told reporters. London bookmakers favored George as a first name at 6-4 odds.
The normal hospital stay British doctors recommend for new mothers is five to eight days to let them rest and learn about baby care.

the legislation. It merely sets instructions and targets for congressional committees to meet in drafting bills to increase unspecified taxes by $20.9 billion next year and cut domestic spending by billions of dollars.
Supporters say those targets and goals will keep the government's red ink to $103.9 billion next year, $83.9 billion in 1984 and $60 billion in 1985. But the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office pegs the deficits at $116.4 billion in 1983, $104.6 billion in 1984 and $92.7 billion in 1985.
On Tuesday, Sen Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., the ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, decried the compromise budget - which keeps faith with the president's economic program and has his support - saying its goals cannot be met.

"The president of the United States has forbidden us to touch his revenues, forbidden us to touch his defense, forbidden us to touch Social Security," Hollings said. "What are we? Magicians?"
In addition, Hollings said, "The president has invaded, ransacked and ravaged this budget process."
Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Budget Committee, while defending the package, had less-than-enthusiastic praise for the compromise, calling it "the best we could produce under the circumstances."

Fun Breakfast Opens Crazy Days

Crazy Days in Hereford will get a rip-roaring beginning at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Chamber of Commerce Fun Breakfast, and chamber exec. Mike Carr promises something for everyone at the event.
Carr said that the chamber is extending the reservation deadline for the breakfast until 6 p.m. tonight. Persons wishing to attend need to call the chamber at 364-3333 by that time. Cost of the meal is $3.75 per person.
Regular co-emcee Doug Manning will be joined by a secret "guest emcee" in coordinating the Fun Breakfast, which will feature the introduction of the 1982 Miss Hereford candidates.
Carr also promised the "ultimate in entertainment," with a nearly-professional dance troupe slated to perform.
Hereford merchants will get into the swing of things with special sales and discounts during the three-day Crazy Days period. And, the merchants will have teams competing for town bragging rights in the tug-of-war to be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Dameron Park.
Prizes will be awarded to those judged as the Craziest by an independent team of impartial judges at the breakfast, and the business having the most employees at the affair will also receive special recognition.

Brothers Sue Bell For Wrong Number

DALLAS (AP) — Two brothers who say the incorrect listing of their company's telephone number in the Yellow Pages forced them out of business are suing Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The incorrect listing forced them to sell their five-year-old chemical company, Chem-Strip, Feb. 1 for half what they were offered two years ago, according to the suit Tommy and Ken Helms filed in state District Court Monday.

Their Mesquite-based company's business "declined precipitously" soon after the October 1981 home edition of the Yellow Pages erred in one digit of the phone number.

Phone company spokesman Joe McNamara said that while the Dallas phone book's Yellow Pages listed the number incorrectly, the number was listed correctly in the Yellow Pages of the Mesquite phone book.

He also said the phone company believes there was no intentional negligence involved in the error.

The brothers, who since have opened a glass-repair business, say Bell refused their request for installation of an automated operator service to intercept their calls and redirect callers to the correct number. McNamara said such a setup was not possible technically.

The brothers' attorney, Lawrence Mealer, said his clients could get damages equal to their loss plus $3,000 if they can prove the phone company was negligent. And if they can prove the phone company was intentionally negligent, they will be entitled to three times the amount of their loss, he said.

Farabee Calls For Overhaul of Defense

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. Ray Farabee says the Legislature should review the insanity defense used by lawyers for John Hinckley Jr. because it undermines public confidence in the criminal justice system.

Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said he would ask the 1983 Legislature to change state laws that allow the defense, but he said he was not yet ready to offer a specific revision.

Jurors in Washington, D.C., found Hinckley innocent by reason of insanity Monday on charges he shot President Reagan and three other men in March of 1981.

"The public reaction to the Hinckley case illustrates how the defense, as it is sometimes used, undermines public confidence in our criminal justice system," Farabee said.

Farabee also cited another case involving a Wichita Falls woman found innocent by reason of insanity in the February 1980 death of her daughter, whose heart was cut out with a knife.

"The mother was found to be insane and committed to Rusk and Wichita Falls State Hospitals. Almost two years to the day after her child's death, the woman was released because the hospital felt she was no longer dangerous," said Farabee.

"The average citizen has difficulty believing that if such a person was really insane, that she could be 'cured' so quickly," said Farabee. "Mental health care is not yet a precise science."

Farabee said he would ask the Mental Health Code Task Force to study the insanity defense.

Minority Groups Say Mayor Excluded Them

HOUSTON (AP) — Leaders of a police minority group say Mayor Kathy Whitmire excluded them from secret negotiations that led to a proposed compromise on Houston's civil service system.

Officials of the 200-member Afro-American Police Officers League and the 140-member Organization of Spanish-Speaking Officers Tuesday called for the mayor to reopen the talks.

"We are outraged and we have taken a position of not being loyal to the mayor again," said Sgt. Anthony Comeaux, president of the black officers group.

Leaders of the 3,000-member Houston Professional Firefighters Association, the 2,400-member Houston Police Officer's Association and the 1,700-member Houston Police Patrolmen's Union reached a tentative agreement with the mayor last weekend.

Under that accord, state civil service laws covering police and firefighters would be changed but not abolished, as the mayor had proposed.

Mrs. Whitmire said she has met frequently with members of Comeaux's group and that they "have had substantial input" in the civil service discussions and plans.

She said she and her staff had also talked with the Hispanic group, but that its leaders "unfortunately decided about a week ago that they were unwilling to work with us."

Firefighters voted on the compromise Monday and Tuesday, but results of the balloting were to be kept secret until the police groups voted Wednesday.

Recession Bottomed Out Says Firm

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A national firm that specializes in finding jobs for discharged workers says its survey indicates the recession has bottomed out and an economic upturn has begun.

Challenger, Gray & Christmas, the nation's oldest outplacement consulting firm, issued an optimistic quarterly report Tuesday at the opening of the Society for Personnel Administration's national convention.

"Despite the last reported U.S. unemployment figure of 9.5 percent, more current information from the marketplace ... is a clear indication that the recession is ending," the report said.

The analysis was reported in connection with the firm's quarterly Challenger Outplacement Index, which measures the relationship between age, former salary and length of job search of its unemployed clients.

Outplacement is a benefit provided by employers to help dismissed employees obtain other work.

The index showed that average job search time for managers receiving outplacement counseling has declined 13.6 percent in the second quarter of 1982 to 3.2 months, compared with 3.7 months during the same period a year ago.

During the first six months of 1982, job search time averaged 3.3 months, a decline of 14 percent from the average of 3.83 months for the entire year of 1981, the report said.

At the same time, the average age of managers who relocated decreased to 42 years from 45 years a year before.

The company said its statistics could be a positive sign about the economy.

Colloquial Truths

Over my shoulder a backward glance.

Nowhere on earth are the Harveys more at ease than on their modest hideaway hilltop rock farm in the Missouri Ozarks.

Last week there I let my self-winding watch run down — awakened each dawn to birdsong — and spent each day playing farmer.

I'm pretty good at machinery maintenance and I'm learning the rest — about discing and harrowing and planting — soybeans this year.

have some mental disorder. You treat him for that illness and after that let him serve the time. I still want to see him punished."

"I felt the verdict should have been guilty," she said, adding: "I just couldn't take any more. I just could not come back another day and argue this case and argue this case. But what was I going to do? How could I stay and persuade these 10 people to come across with me?"

The outcry over the verdict fueled moves to change the laws on pleading insanity.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, who has responsibility for the Secret Service, the protective unit for the president, said he was "outraged" at the jury's decision. "I think it's wrong," he said in an interview on NBC's Today Show.

"I think that when a person stalks a leading citizen of this country, shoots him (and) three of the people surrounding him and then goes scot-free, I think that's absolutely atrocious," Regan said.

"Just think what we are saying to the so-called crazies of the world regarding what they can do or not do as far as public figures are concerned," he said.

Attorney General William French Smith joined Senate Judiciary Committee chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., in proposing that a new standard be set for judging criminal defendants who use the rarely successful defense that they are insane.

"There must be an end to the doctrine that allows so many persons to commit crimes of violence, to use confusing procedures to their own advantage and then to have the door open to them to return to the society which they victimized," Smith said.

Other members of the Senate and House expressed anger at the verdict in speeches to their colleagues.

Rep. John T. Myers, R-Ind., introduced legislation which would abolish the insanity plea, which he called "a loophole for some of the most dangerous criminals."

Mississippi Teen Wins Junior Miss

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The 1982 America's Junior Miss, 18-year-old Susan Lea Hammett, of Hattiesburg, Miss., said it was the "joy of the Lord" that helped her through two hectic weeks leading up to the pageant.

Miss Hammett, who won the crown Tuesday after performing a song she wrote, titled "First Love," told reporters she was looking forward to some sleep.

"Right now, I'm thankful and stunned and kind of tired," she said.

One of 52 contestants in the 25th annual pageant, Miss Hammett won a $25,000 scholarship along with the crown. She plans to attend Louisiana State University in the fall.

First runner-up was Mary Jamie Hendrix, 19, of Rainsville, Ala., followed by Elizabeth Ann Walker, 19, of Omaha, Neb. Both received $5,000 scholarships.

Other finalists were Lisa Annette Kleypas of Carlisle, Mass., and Lorna Irene Revere of Dayton, Ohio.

Miss Hammett, a graduate of Hattiesburg High School, said her religious beliefs helped her through the pressure of the pageant which awards teen-aged girls who have achieved academic excellence.

"The joy of the Lord was definitely my strength," she said. "People don't realize how rough it has been the last two weeks."

The 1982 Junior Miss pageant was hosted by actor Michael Landon and televised nationally on CBS.

Police Continue Investigation

Hereford police are continuing investigation in a burglary which occurred Monday night at The Golden Comb, 801 Brevard, in which over $400 in goods was taken.

An AM-FM cassette player valued at $300 was the major item missing. About $60 in headbands were stolen, a curling iron pair of scissors and about $5 in change were also gone.

Several blow dryers were put in sinks and water turned on them.

A woman involved in an accident alleges she was cursed out by the other accident victim and may press disorderly conduct charges against the man.

A dispute over the loss of a rod and tackle box which led to verbal threats was investigated.

No charges have been filed by a man who was beaten by three others Tuesday night. He told police the assailants said they didn't like how he was looking at them.

Officers issued nine citations and made 11 police calls. There was one minor accident in the city.

alleys, 3) general litter and maintenance in four specific areas of town, 4) removal or repair of dilapidated houses and buildings, 5) residential area; and 6) improvement of parks and recreational areas. Chairmen were appointed for each of these five goals, and their subcommittees worked vigorously to see them achieved.

The campaign was publicized throughout the community, and many breakfasts and other events were held to win needed broad-based support. Poster and essay contests were held in the schools. Gardening advice was also run in the newspaper, in addition to coverage of the actual cleanup events and the planning meetings of the cleanup committee. The campaign was concentrated throughout the month of March with visits of Woody the Owl and a Little People's Litter Party.

In a town of 5,019 population, campaign workers solicited more than 2,500 signatures to their "pledges", which were circulated widely throughout the community to everyone who would pledge to "support the 1981-82 Cleanup Campaign in Dimmitt — to Clean Up, Fix Up, Pride Up our community. Though this will be a group effort, it is an individual responsibility. I will start at home and encourage family, friends and neighbors to follow MY example."

These pledges (along with campaign bumper stickers, a list of city services and hints on mosquito control) were circulated both in English and Spanish.

The Chamber of Commerce appealed to the city and county governments and succeeded in getting large aggregate trash containers purchased and placed in the downtown and other high traffic areas.

The Rotary Club and other civic clubs devoted their resources to establishing a new park. The police department started actively enforcing the junk car ordinance. And each month, April through October, a residential and a commercial beauty spot was selected and publicized in the newspaper.

Many vacant lots and buildings were targeted as a part of the campaign, and as a result, they are now attractive spots in Dimmitt. Chamber board members brought rakes, hoes and other needed tools and equipment to clean up around the "Welcome to Dimmitt" signs.

Although the weather did not cooperate on the climactic Saturday Clean Up Day in March, the volunteers stayed with their tasks. They hauled tons of trash and old appliances, clumps of cement, tree stumps and debris out of the community and to the city dump.

Chamber manager, Delores Heller, said that perhaps "the most valid outcome of the campaign is community pride. We have a new awareness about the appearance of Dimmitt. We are gearing up now for the coming year's campaign, which is called 'Clean Up Fix Up Pride Up (CUFUPU) Phase II.' This push will be aimed at clean up, but will emphasize beautification for our town. We want to keep it ongoing, and we know that we can because we have citizens who really care."

Dimmitt won for cities in the 5,000 - 10,000 population category.

That bit of information sparked a memory of a Christmas in the tiny house in Jumbo. Years were lean and that particular holiday the family was iced in on Christmas Day with two other couples. The younger ones said they never had any more fun than spending the holiday burning candles,

As the memories were recalled, Joyce told of a time she had never been so mad.

"The kids busted all the windows in Jumbo School," she told. The police came and everything, shaking up the young surrogate mother.

"We bought glass and made the kids put them in," she said.

Mary Edwards, who came from Abilene to see her kin, said the reunion was neat because "this is the town where we all started drifting, and now we're all getting back together here."

Billy Martin, the oldest of the clan at 47, came from Dimmitt for the reunion. The youngest, Gerald Johnson, 27, of Dallas was unable to attend.

Joining those mentioned were Betty Donovan, Norman, OK; Shirley Flynn, Las Vegas, NV; Leon Martin, Clovis, NM; Jane Cocanougher, Big Spring;

Ann Landers

Be Supportive, Silent

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter will soon be signing the legal papers for a separation from her husband. She did not want the separation, but he pressured her into it.

We are aware of the emotional pain this girl has suffered, and perhaps we have already said too much in an effort to help.

These days, when divorce is almost as common as marriage, it would be very useful if you would print some do's and don'ts for parents whose children are experiencing the agony of ending a marriage. Thank you, Ann.

DEAR PARENTS: The most important thing parents can do at such a time is remain supportive and silent. The worst thing you can do is give unsolicited advice.

If the departing spouse was not liked, it's easy to say too much. So remember, whatever words are uttered should be tender and sweet because you might have to eat them one day. The following letter might be of interest.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 32-year-old mother of two. This past summer I remarried my husband after a 10-year separation. My question: when do we celebrate our anniversary? Also, how many years have we been married?

Our first marriage was on June 9, 1970. We were married again Aug. 18, 1981. Thank you for helping point the way out of this dilemma.

DEAR TRYING AGAIN: Since you are making a fresh start, I suggest you celebrate your anniversary on Aug. 18. As for the number of years: In all honesty, you should deduct the years you were not married. I see no reason to celebrate time spent apart.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I loved your answer to the woman who was critical of her "dear friend" who used beer glasses for wine and salad forks for the fish. You said, "A much greater disaster is to become trapped by socially correct bores."

That letter reminded me of a lecture I attended recently. On the way home my friend who had accompanied me said, "Did you notice the speaker mispronounced harassment?" I replied, "Is THAT all you got out of her brilliant presentation?"

Barbecue Planned In July

The Blue Grass Band of Dimmitt will provide musical entertainment during King's Manor Founders Association's fourth annual barbecue planned from 5-9 p.m. July 10.

R.A. Armitage will be in charge of preparing the barbecue and Jim Halliburton and Ken May will cook the beef on the King's Manor campus.

Admission to the all you-can-eat affair will be $10 per person or $25 for a family of four.

A look back at 1981 reveals that meat prices did not increase as was expected. In fact, some '81 meat prices were actually lower than the previous year, points the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

A snake was sighted in our front yard two days ago by a sober person who has no wish to make a name for himself nor a reason to lie.

He described the snake as "harmless, non-aggressive, and good to have around." He believed that.

He is fooling no one. The snake is 13 feet long, has fangs that drip human blood, is pregnant, and has the capacity to open doors with a pass key.

The trick is not to overreact to news of this sort, which is why I put some distance (15 minutes) between the time I was told about the snake and when I actually contacted my realtor with orders to "Sell!"

It must be apparent that I am terrified of snakes. There is possibly only one thing that strikes more fear in my heart and that is being in a room alone with a person who defends them.

You just know they are people with one ear out of the water when they say things like, "Snakes are good to have around. They get rid of the unwanted animals."

Think about that for a moment. That's like asking the Boston strangler to come sit with you because you're afraid to be alone at night.

"Snakes make good pets" is another indication you've got a real wacko on your hands. A pet indeed. Pets bark and chase sticks. Pets sit on the TV set and lick their feet. Pets lick your hand when a piece of meat drops from your sandwich onto the floor. When the day comes when Barbara Woodhouse slips a chain around a snake's neck and shouts, "Walkies!" I'll consider it a pet.

The person who really sends me out the door is the serpent lover who says, "They fear you more than you fear them."

Did you ever see a snake spot a human being and run on water to get away from him? Did you ever see a snake hearing the words, "Is that a person in the grass?" hyperventilate and sink into a coma?

The last person who said to me, "You can overcome your fear if you touch them," is still standing there, holding a snake ... in the home where he belongs.

Halfway Dance Set Saturday

Scott Turner of Hereford, along with several area guest callers, will be calling tips for the Country Singles Square Dance Club's Halfway Dance Saturday night.

The dance begins at 8 p.m. in the Community Center Ballroom.

Visitors are expected from nearby towns including Dimmitt, Muleshoe, Canyon, and Amarillo, and several dancers are coming from as far away as Albuquerque.

The dance is the halfway point for those taking lessons with the Country Singles.

Booth Space Available

Booth space for the Saints' Roost Celebration on the courthouse square in Clarendon can be reserved until the June 30 deadline through the Donley County 4-H Club.

The celebration will be Saturday, July 3, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Booth rental fee is $10. Contact Ronald Gooch or Cheri Brown at 874-2141 or go by the Donley County Extension office for more information.

Evening Lions Club Officers Installed

New 1982-83 officers were installed by Noland Grady at the regular meeting of the Hereford Evening Lions Club Monday night.

Dabney Tolson will be serving as Boss Lion; John Brownlow, first vice-president; Lewis Lea, second vice-president; J.D. Cummings, secretary-treasurer; and Dean Hacker, Lion Tamer.

Grady outlined the duties of these men in carrying out Lions Club efforts within the local area and throughout the district.

Outgoing President John Metcalf received a plaque and a box of golf balls from the club. Sweetheart Cynthia Streun was presented a miniature lion and a calculator for her college days at West Texas State University this fall.

Energy as well as environmental concerns have increased the interest in alternatives to home construction in recent years. Earth sheltered or underground housing is one such alternative. Earth sheltered housing describes a wide range of home designs which use natural terrain and earth to provide partial cover of the structure, explains Dr. Bill R. Stewart, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The amount of cover may range from as little as 50 percent to as much as 80 or 90 percent of the wall and roof envelope. Homes may be constructed below natural grade, above natural grade, in a hillside or partially below grade. Some homes have walls partially earth covered while others have walls and roofs covered. Design are usually adapted to the site and are as innovative and varied as the designer's imagination. A major reason for this housing alternative is to reduce energy use, notes Stewart. Some proponents have indicated the potential for substantial savings in heating and cooling energy costs. However, little published data from controlled tests is available to indicate the energy performance of underground homes. Underground homes that are well designed, constructed and maintained will show substantial savings when compared to poorly constructed conventional homes, contends the engineer. Earth is not a good insulator, but if thick enough it can moderate rapid temperature fluctuations. This principle was recognized in the use of thick adobe or rock walls in homes of the desert southwest. Superinsulated homes above ground with a minimum of window space also show excellent energy performance. Perhaps the major advantage of underground homes is the soundproofing provided by the earth cover. This may be important in noisy urban areas. Another advantage is the dual use of land area. Lawn and green areas can be developed over the home to enhance the overall landscape with minimum intrusion of surface structure, says Stewart. The engineer cautions against viewing underground home construction as a cost-saving technique. Most cost reports indicate that proper construction to prevent water problems and to provide adequate strength and good maintainability will be significantly higher than conventional above-ground construction. Many 1980 costs are indicated to be more than $55 per square foot, not including land prices or other fees. Cost escalations since 1980 may put the figure around $65 to $70 per square foot today. Earth pressures on walls and roof require careful consideration in selection of materials and construction technique, emphasizes Stewart. Concrete, either case-in-place or precast, has been used in underground home construction. Timber or wood construction is suitable when properly protected against deterioration from moisture or insects. Concrete block or other masonry must be adequately reinforced. Metals, if used in contact with the earth, must be protected against corrosion. Earth sheltered housing construction and design require certain special skills and knowledge, says the engineer. Most individuals contemplating this type of housing should plan to engage an architectural or engineering firm experienced in residential and commercial construction. Lending agency policies, building code requirements and insurance costs should all be considered before making a final decision on earth sheltered housing. County Extension agents can assist in locating additional information, notes Stewart.

Today In History

Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, June 23, the 174th day of 1982. There are 191 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On June 23, 1967, President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin held a summit meeting in Glassboro, N.J.
On this date:
In 1722, England's Queen Anne ordered French people in Nova Scotia to take oaths of allegiance to her government within one year or leave.
In 1931, aviators Wiley Post and Harold Gatty took off from New York for a flight around the world.
In 1952, the U.S. Air Force bombed hydro-electric plants in North Korea.

And in 1976, the United States vetoed Angola's application for U.N. membership.
Ten years ago: Hurricane Agnes caused the worst floods in New York and Pennsylvania in years, forcing the evacuation of thousands of residents.
Five years ago: The House passed a $6.7 billion foreign aid bill, with a ban on assistance to Cuba, Angola and Mozambique.
One year ago: In a compromise with the Communist Party, French President Francois Mitterrand appointed four Communists to his cabinet.
Today's birthdays: Former Secretary of State William Rogers is 69 years old. Choreographer-director Bob Fosse is 55.
Thought For Today: Better to wear out than rust out. — Richard Cumberland, English philosopher (1631-1718).

FARM NEWS

Protecting Windbreakers From Infestation, Weeds

During the past five years, 30,000 trees have been planted as windbreaks in Deaf Smith County through the Soil Conservation Service.

According to Jim Bolinger of the SCS, the trees require critical care until fully mature.

Summer not only brings the need for watering, but the caution of weed and insect infestation.

On the evergreens one of the major bug problems are red spider mites. The tiny bugs "just almost require a magnifying glass to see them," Bolinger says.

The easiest way to detect the mites are to notice at the center of the tree for a white web-like material. The mites leave the web as they sap the needles. The inside of the tree may have begun to die and have a brown cast on the inside branches.

Another way to determine an infestation earlier is to break a small limb from the interior of the tree and beat it on white paper. Bolinger said the mites will be still for a minute, then "they'll come alive and start crawling everywhere." The mites are about the size of a dot made by a sharp pencil.

Bolinger suggests Diazon, Malathion and Kelthane, which is strictly a spider mite killer, as the pesticides to use. "A lot of times one spray will do it," Bolinger said, adding that one should keep checking trees for infestation. He said sometimes another buildup can occur within a week. Bugs also will migrate from sprayed crops to a windbreak.

White grub worms are not posing a big problem this year, Bolinger said. Grasshoppers will not be the problem this year as they have been in the past, he added. Greenbugs and aphids haven't been too much of a problem either. Weeds can smother out young seedlings and sap moisture from older plants. "It takes about 10 years until weeds don't pose a problem," Bolinger said.

Best weed protection comes from a combination of herbicide and hoeing, Bolinger advised. Treflan is the safest herbicide around trees (it can be used on coniferous and deciduous), but tillage is necessary to do any good. Other herbicides are available and can be recommended through the SCS or chemical dealer.

Most of the time a herbicide can't be used close to seedlings, thus the weeds need to be hand thinned.

Watering is vital to the health of trees, also. Bolinger said once seedlings are established they will need watered with two to three inches of water every two weeks.

COLLEGE STATION — Many farmers in Texas and other states are "selling out" because they see no way to survive financially. Of course, some farmers also sell their operation when they retire. Whatever the reason for selling, certain considerations can reduce tax dollars.

"A major factor in selling a farm or ranch is timing," says Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Since selling the farming business will likely produce a large amount of taxable income, it's best to spread the income. One way to do this is to sell livestock in the fall, sell machinery the next spring, and perhaps wait another year to sell the land."

Delaying certain sales until specific time periods have elapsed can also reduce the tax burden, notes Hayenga. For instance, breeding animals acquired after Dec. 31, 1969, must be held for at least two years. Delaying the sale of such animals can qualify the income for capital gains treatment.

"Another factor to consider is the allocation of costs to different assets," notes the economist. "An allocation of the sale price for land, buildings, growing crops, livestock and machinery should be agreed upon by both the selling and buying parties so that this will appear on the purchase contract. This will reduce many potential tax problems."

Also, on a farm held less than 10 years, part of the soil and water conservation expenses that have been claimed will have to be recaptured as ordinary income.

Investment credit is another thing to consider when liquidating a farm business, says Hayenga. Investment credit has to be useful life for which credit was computed.

Regarding the method of sale, a farmer generally has three choices: sell for cash, sell on the installment method or a combination. The seller needs to determine his tax liability regarding each method before making a final decision. A large capital gain can mean additional taxes, notes the economist.

"When sale of a farm or some of its components thrusts a farmer into a considerably higher income bracket than over the past four years, income averaging can come to the rescue," says Hayenga. "This allows part of an unusually large amount of taxable income to be taxed in a lower bracket."

A farmer who sells his operation, which also includes his home located on the land, must allocate part of the selling price of the farm to the home, adds the economist. Special tax rules apply to the sale of a residence. If the farmer buys a new residence two years before or after selling the farm and home, only the gain from the sale of the old residence compared to the cost of the new residence is taxable.

Any sale of capital assets does not affect Social Security taxes or retirement benefits, notes Hayenga. However, sale of inventory items and growing crops does. Any item reported on Schedule F in the income tax return may affect Social Security benefits or taxes.

When preparing to sell a farm, the operator needs to determine whether he still receives two-thirds of his gross income from the business of farming as required for tax purposes," Hayenga points out. "Gains from sales of farmland and depreciable farm equipment are not considered farm income. So a farmer who sells his business may find he no longer qualifies as a farmer and thus must file a Declaration of Estimated Tax."

Hayenga advises any farmer preparing to sell real property to visit with his tax consultant or accountant. Also, the Economic Recovery Act of 1981 provides numerous changes in tax laws, including depreciation and investment credit. A farmer should be familiar with these changes before selling his business.

Texas Farmers Are 'Selling Out'

After May Showers

Farmers Facing Dry Spell

By SCOTT McCARTNEY Associated Press Writer

Texas farmers have been hit with a one-two punch of heavy rain showers and some flooding in May followed by a June dry spell that has stunted growth and burned some crops, state agricultural experts say.

Most of Southeast, South Central and West Texas including the Panhandle is in danger of losing large crops because of a lack of rain, said Mary Mahoney, spokesman in the Texas A&M University agriculture department.

Farmers who replaced cotton crops washed out in May face financial difficulties if they do not get the rain necessary for a successful harvest, Ms. Mahoney said.

"It has been a study of contrast from one extreme to the other," she said. "Certain areas had far too much rain plus hail in May ... Now in some areas of the state the need for moisture is critical."

"But that isn't abnormal for Texas. We can have both flood problems and drought problems at the same time."

The Texas Department of Agriculture in Austin reported that 1,250 acres of cotton were destroyed in May in flooded fields. Texans plant more than 7 million acres of cotton annually.

Harvests of wheat, the state's No. 2 crop, were delayed because of the water, and two weeks of heavy rain in the Rio Grande Valley and nearby counties destroyed 30 percent of the cantaloupes and watermelons planted as well as numerous other vegetable crops.

The agriculture department estimates that the state's peach harvest will be 354,000 bushels, down 11 percent from the May 1 prediction and down 50 percent from last year's harvest, said spokesman Celia Baker.

This year's wheat harvest will be about 11 percent behind last year's record harvest, the agriculture department said, and the delay in harvesting damaged some of the quality of the wheat.

Carpenter Promoted To TAE Director

COLLEGE STATION — Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, who was raised in a rural community and rose to become head of the Texas A&M University Department of Animal Science, has been promoted to the position of director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The promotion was approved last week by the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents which oversees the agency. Carpenter, 46, assumes his post Sept. 1 and succeeds Dr. Daniel Pfannstiel who has accepted a new position in the College of Agriculture.

Carpenter, a specialist in meat and muscle biology, joined the Texas A&M faculty in 1962 and rose to become department head in 1978. Born in Custer County, Okla., he earned a bachelor's degree from Oklahoma State University in 1957 and earned master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Wisconsin.

USDA Reports Farmers Aren't Getting Full Share Of Retail

WASHINGTON (AP) — What does a pair of denim jeans have in common with a loaf of bread? Farmers proportionally get about the same share from each retail sale, says the Agriculture Department. A 52-cent loaf of white bread weighing one pound last year contained five cents worth of wheat sold at the farm. In other words, wheat farmers got the equivalent of 9.6 percent of what consumers paid for bread. Meanwhile, denim jeans costing $18.95 a pair contained an average of $1.63 worth of cotton, based on farm prices. That was the equivalent of 8.6 percent of the retail price.

For years, the department's Economic Research Service has looked at the farmer's share of the consumer food dollar, noting that items which require the most handling and processing return the lowest share to producers.

Bread is a favorite example since it goes through many handling and processing steps before being wrapped and ready for grocers' shelves.

Butter and eggs, on the other hand, cost relatively much less to process and prepare for retail sale. Last year, according to the agency, producers received an equivalent of 67 and 62 percent of the retail prices, respectively.

The new cotton analysis shows a wide variation in how much growers get out of finished products. It depends on the item, the report said.

For example, a man's dress shirt costing an average of $15.95 each in 1980 contained only 56 cents worth of cotton, as priced at the farm. Thus, cotton farmers got the equivalent of 3.5 percent of what someone paid for the shirt.

A cotton bath towel, meanwhile, sold for $4.98 and contained 57 cents worth of cotton. That meant cotton farmers got a return of 11.4 percent from the retail price of the towel.

"The shirt requires more processing than the towel," the report said. "On the average, turning cotton into a finished item involves about a half-dozen stages — and each adds to costs."

Looking again at denim jeans, the analysis said one pound of raw cotton used to make denim has a farm value of 65 cents before ginning, based on 1980 prices. Ginning adds 11 cents, and marketing another 8 cents — a total of 84 cents at the mill.

After textile processing, one pound of cotton is worth $2.50. Manufacturing the fabric into the finished products adds another $2.40, while wholesaling and retail add $3.95. At this point, the retail value of one pound of cotton is $8.85.

"Considering that it takes more than two pounds of cotton to make one pair of jeans, the retail price of a basic pair is more than $18," the report said. "The farm price of the cotton used is about $1.63, or less than 9 percent of the value."

Brucellosis Program Will Be Appealed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A judge's order invalidating the rules governing Texas' brucellosis control program will be appealed, say officials at the Texas Animal Health Commission.

Brucellosis is an infectious livestock disease that causes cows to abort or results in weak calves and sterility. It causes a fever in humans and can be fatal if untreated.

State District Judge Harley Clark last week granted Uvalde rancher R.J. Nunley's motion that the rules be voided as unconstitutional. Clark said the commission overstepped its legal authority in requiring inspection of livestock and quarantining of animals.

The ruling was the result of a lawsuit by other livestock raisers who feared a federal quarantine of Texas cattle and wanted the commission compelled to enforce its rules on Nunley, a business partner of former Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Nunley had won an earlier court order blocking the commission's rules as applied to his herd. Among other things, Nunley argued it was impossible to inspect cattle on his sprawling ranch.

The commission rules have no basis in state law, Clark ruled. The rules conform instead with a more stringent federal brucellosis control program.

John B. Armstrong of Kingsville, chairman of the Texas Animal Health Commission, said in a release issued here that the commission will ask the state Legislature to pass a new law conforming to federal regulations.

The state's brucellosis program will continue, meanwhile, Armstrong said.

He said U.S. Department of Agriculture officials would not enforce a quarantine on Texas as long as the current state program is in effect.

Six Board Members Highlight Meeting

Highlighting the 3rd National Junior Angus Association annual meeting set for July 11 in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, will be the election of six junior board members.

The new directors will replace six of the retiring 12-member board, and will be elected for two-year terms.

After the banquet, a workshop service by Wisconsin Junior Angus Association and Father Xavier Dieter of New Melleray Abbey, Dubuque, Iowa, will be conducted.

The annual meeting is held in conjunction with the National Junior Angus Show and 16th National Angus Showmanship Contest.

Charging Rose Aiming At Ty Cobb's Record

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — As long as he's still able to swing a bat, Pete Rose says he fully intends to make the immortal Ty Cobb's most formidable record his target.

The hustling Philadelphia Phillies first baseman made that much abundantly clear Tuesday night. His 3,772nd career hit, he said following a 3-2 defeat to the St. Louis Cardinals, was only a milestone en route to Cobb's 4,191.

"If you're a home run hitter, you still try to hit 40 homers a year," said Rose in explaining his relentless chase.

"For me to try to get 4,000 hits is one of those things I need to keep me going. I think this is the difference in ballplayers today. They have multiyear contracts and nothing to prod them."

Rose, while facing St. Louis rookie John Stuper, lined the hit establishing him as No. 2 on baseball's all-time list to center field in the third inning, driving in a Philadelphia run.

It looked like a mere single as Rose moved past Hall of Famer Hank Aaron on the list, but the 41-year-old player had other notions. Never letting up while rounding first base, he beat the throw to second with a belly slide for his 685th lifetime double.

"It was just a fastball," Rose said of the 3-0 delivery from Stuper he drilled hard for his historic hit.

"Probably the reason I saw it was because of the count. Otherwise he (Stuper) did a real good job," said Rose. "He pitched a good ballgame."

Rose was asked if he was disappointed because Aaron was not among the 19,672 on hand at Busch Stadium to watch the feat.

"I was more disappointed my little boy was not here," he said. "Hank and I are good friends. He has other places to be and many things to do. There will be other games."

Rose also made it clear that the Philadelphia defeat rubbed glitter from his achievement.

"In the last 11 years, I've been on five World Series teams and in six playoffs. It's important to me that it doesn't get ahead of the team. If I get a hit the first time up tomorrow," he said in respect to his pursuit of Cobb's record, "I won't be saying 418 more."

Looking ahead at the standard set by Cobb in 24 seasons, once considered unreachable, Rose said conditionally and his level of enthusiasm will represent the keys.

"I think it would be hard on my part if I didn't give it my best shot," he said. "It's important for me to take care of myself so that I have a chance."

Ahead of his double, Rose grounded out in the first inning. Afterward, he fled to left field in the sixth and popped to shortstop Ozzie Smith to end the Phillies' eighth.

"You never know; I might go blind tomorrow," Rose said in looking ahead. "I don't worry about that. That's why I've missed only nine games since 1970."

Why Fergie loves fans

By Harvey Greene

If Ferguson Jenkins (and the rest of baseball) remembers 1981 as the "Year of the Strike," perhaps he'll think of 1982 as the "Year of the Strikeout" — his 3,000th career K, that is.

When the 38-year-old Chicago right-hander fanned Garry Templeton in the Cubs' 2-1 loss to the Padres on May 25th, he became only the seventh pitcher in baseball history to reach the 3,000-strikeout plateau.

Jenkins has joined Walter Johnson (3,508), Gaylord Perry (3,385 and counting), Nolan Ryan (3,300 and counting), Steve Carlton (3,222 and counting), Bob Gibson (3,117), and Tom Seaver (3,096 and counting) in that exclusive K club.

Yet Jenkins very well may be baseball's equivalent of comedian Rodney Dangerfield, who always claims that he never gets any respect. Jenkins, too, never seems to have gotten the kudos due him throughout his 17-year major league career. He has played for the Phillies (1965-66), the Cubs (1966-73 and 1982), Rangers (1974-75 and 1978-81) and Red Sox (1976-77).

"I've been written off a few times," claims Jenkins. "I've won 20 games seven times and all everyone talks about is Palmer, Seaver, and Carlton. That's the way it goes."

Jenkins seems to have a point. Palmer, Seaver, and Carlton each are three-time Cy Young Award winners, but Jenkins has won that award just once (1971). In addition, while that trio has been named to a combined total of 27 All-Star teams, Jenkins has been selected to participate in the mid-season classic only three times in his career.

Says Jenkins, "If you don't play in a city that has a front-running team, a big city, or one that wins pennants or a World Series, they can bypass things like this. Striking out 3,000 batters means I'm durable, but I'm not sure it means I'm going to get any notoriety."

Ironically, part of Jenkins' relative lack of recognition may stem from one of his greatest strengths as a pitcher: his remarkable consistency. Jenkins' career marks are impressive, but he has rarely assembled eye-catching stats over the course of a single season.

For example, Jim Palmer, with eight 20-win seasons, is the only active pitcher surpassing Jenkins in that category. But despite his seven 20-win seasons, Jenkins has been the league leader in victories only twice: in 1971 with the Cubs (24 wins), and in 1974 with the Rangers (25).

Similarly, Jenkins has never captured an ERA crown. And although he is now one of the elite few with 3,000 career strikeouts, only once in his career has he led his league in strikeouts: as a Cub in 1969 he fanned 273 batters.

In addition to his strikeouts, Jenkins is quietly piling up wins as well. He has 267 career victories, placing him 21st on the all-time list, and he is one of but four pitchers (along with Cy Young, Jim Bunning, and Gaylord Perry) to have won 100 games in each league.

Despite his age, Jenkins doesn't believe that the 300-win milestone is beyond his reach.

"I'm going to be around to set some records," Jenkins said. "All I want to do is play until my ability is gone. I think I'll know when it happens. But right now I think I can play."

Now, if only somebody will just notice.

QUICK QUIZ — Fergie Jenkins was born in Ontario. What other three active major-leaguers are native Canadians?

ON STRIKE — It took Jenkins 607 games to notch his 3,000th strikeout. Johnson didn't reach that mark until his 664th game, while it took 625 games for Perry to record his 3,000th K. On the other hand, Ryan struck out his 3,000th batter in his 448th game, Gibson in his 492nd, Seaver in his 494th, and Carlton in his 530th contest.

FAN CLUB — Three pitchers who just missed joining the 3,000 strikeout club before retiring are Jim Bunning, with 2,855 K's; Mickey Lolich, with 2,832 strikeouts; and Cy Young, who fanned 2,819 batters. The two active pitchers with the best shot at reaching that milestone are Don Sutton of the Astros (2,800-plus K's) and the Braves' Phil Niekro (2,650-plus).

QUIZ ANSWER — The three Canadian-born players in the major leagues besides Jenkins are: Dave McKay (British Columbia) of the A's, and Terry Puhl (Saskatchewan) and Gordie Pladson (British Columbia) of the Astros.

Wimbledon: When Will Time Bomb Explode?

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP
Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A time bomb is ticking away over Wimbledon. Everybody is asking: When will it explode?

With two volatile sticks of TNT such as John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors roaring over the green courts of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, an air of tension grips the place.

"What's with your McEnroe?" an English cab driver asked an American visitor he was transporting to the scene of the tennis championships. "Can the kid hold his tongue this year?"

"What will happen when these two blokes get together?" is a question often heard in the gallery. "You can bet there's going to be some fireworks," they say.

The committee of the staid club where the world's most prestigious tournament was born 105 years ago has got so edgy it has hired a special peace emissary to act as liaison between the committee and the players.

He is towering Ted Tinling, virtually a piece of the Wimbledon fabric who was given the same responsibility 55 years ago when a rebellion threatened after France's fiery Suzanne Lenglen petulantly defaulted in all her three divisions.

Umpires and linesmen are edgy. Targets of Connors' and McEnroe's tirades over the last few years, they are certain to be gun-shy and perhaps overreact every time one of the two takes the court.

So far, McEnroe, whose series of tantrums last year cost him heavy fines and deprived him of a champion's complimentary membership in the select All-England Club, and Connors, who has largely throttled his extraneous outbursts, have been Little Lord Fauntleroy.

But Ladbroke's, the legal betting establishment down the street, won't quote you any odds.

Tinling, the man in the middle, is keeping his fingers crossed.

"I haven't talked with young McEnroe but I've had long conversations with his father," the 72-year-old Tinling said Tuesday. "He is eager that all the past problems be resolved."

"Connors came to the hospital to see me last week when I was having trouble with my leg. We had a long, constructive chat. He had a couple of minor complaints. They were settled."

Sir Brian Burnett, the chairman of the All-England Club, met with the players last Sunday, at which time he stressed Wimbledon's intention to let bygones be bygones.

"We would like to start fresh again," he said.

Yet McEnroe, whose on-court behavior was faultless in his first-round victory over Van Winitsky, continued to show some petulance in his postmatch press conference.

In effect, he said: If Wimbledon sincerely wants peace, where are the medals which they've kept from me?

McEnroe was informed that his medals (three medals and a replica of the permanent men's championship plaque) are engraved and ready to be picked up.

They were never withheld, Wimbledon insisted.

GENERAL

DETROIT (AP) — Funeral services will be in Fort Wayne, Ind., for Fred Zollner, the industrialist who founded the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association.

Zollner, 81, who died Monday in North Miami, Fla., formed the NBA club in 1941-42 in Fort Wayne, Ind. He was the owner of the Zollner Piston Corp., which had supplied more than 70 percent of the pistons made for the automobile and related industries.

The Pistons joined the Basketball Association of America in 1948-49 and the following season joined the NBA, of which Zollner was a founding member.

To Help With Dispute

Garvey Wants Rozelle

NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association, thinks the key to solving the current contract dispute between the players and the club owners is to get Commissioner Pete Rozelle involved.

Rozelle doesn't. After both Garvey and Rozelle had testified at a National Labor Relations Board hearing Tuesday, Garvey said Rozelle's presence at negotiations could possibly persuade the owners to reach an agreement.

"Our concern is that if the lawyers reach agreement, they won't be able to deliver the three-quarters vote that is needed to approve the collective bargaining agreement," Garvey said.

"Pete Rozelle is the only one who could deliver that vote. The problem for us is that he is on the sidelines and not in the ring."

Rozelle, though, said only that he was going "to stay close" to the negotiations, which are scheduled to resume July 7 in Washington. He said he was hopeful that an agreement on a new contract can be reached before the regular season begins Sept. 12. The current pact expires July 15.

Asked if he had read the players' proposal, which included the controversial demand for 55 percent of the gross receipts for salaries and benefits, Rozelle said, "I think a copy is in my office but...I haven't read it."

Rozelle was a witness at a hearing centered on the union's demand that the club owners turn over data on wages and the non-monetary aspects of network television contracts — information the union says it needs in order to negotiate effectively.

Rozelle's testimony dealt mainly with the television contracts. He said the networks were not part of the decision-making process on such matters as scheduling, although they are consulted on occasion when it relates to the "league-package rights." Asked if there was a strike clause in the current TV contract, Rozelle replied, "Indirectly. I don't believe there is language regarding a strike specifically. I believe it refers to games not played."

NFLPA counsel Dick Berthelsen said information on the non-monetary aspects of the contracts was needed to intelligently negotiate with the NFL Management Council, the club owners' bargaining arm. He said at issue were hours of work and playing conditions.

The union also seeks copies of player contracts, saying the information provided by the council is not sufficient.

But, Sargent Karch, counsel for the management council, said that the contract documents were basically between the player and club, although a player was free to give the union a copy of his contract.

The hearing was expected to conclude today, but administrative law judge Julius Cohn said his ruling to determine if the council must turn over the material to the union could take two months.

NBA Asks Courts For Help in Case

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The National Basketball Association, finding itself surrounded by threats from two sides, is asking the federal courts to help it avoid lawsuits concerning a proposed move of the San Diego Clippers to Los Angeles.

"If we allow the move, we're going to be sued, and if we don't allow the move, we're going to be sued," said NBA lawyer Michael Cardozo. "We want to do what's in the best interests of the NBA without getting sued."

As a result, the NBA filed a lawsuit in federal court in San Diego asking for "a declaration of rights."

Cardozo said the money damages claimed in the suit are $10 million from the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission, owner of the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien said the claim was made because of the commission's "actions in trying to persuade the San Diego team to move from San Diego without NBA approval."

Hooper Steals McEnroe's Wimbledon Spotlight

By JAMES LITKE AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—While John McEnroe, the defending champion and top-seed, again was the star attraction at Wimbledon, another American, Chip Hooper was getting plenty of notice.

As the crowd awaited McEnroe's second round match with Eddie Edwards of South Africa, the talk was of Hooper's latest triumph.

The 6-foot-6 serve-and-volley specialist whose game is tailor-made for grass, upset eighth-seeded Peter McNamara of Australia 7-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 Tuesday.

"Good player on this stuff," Fred Perry, the former Wimbledon champion said of Hooper's grass-court skills.

"We've been well aware of his potential on this type of surface," Neale Fraser, the Australian Davis Cup captain, said of Hooper's potential. "That serve is something we're going to have to contend with."

Hooper, able to hammer the serve from a frightening angle of attack, pounded serve after serve off his oversized racquet, rattling the curtains and an occasional linesman at the opposite end of the court.

McNamara, who became the second ranked player to exit the event, left immediately after the match without talking to reporters. He ran out of steam in the third set, seemingly disheartened as Hooper's service, clocked at 135 mph, appeared to get even stronger.

The setting, the historic All-England Tennis and Croquet Club, obviously had something to do with his performance.

"At other places," said Hooper, who climbed from 235th to 23rd in the rankings over a six-month stretch, "it is like playing in a tennis tournament. But this is like playing on a different planet — and not just because it is grass."

"McNamara played good tennis for while. But when you begin losing your serve and have to come back so much, you get tired mentally."

Former champion Virginia Wade and defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd were among the standout women winners Tuesday.

Giving away 15 years to fellow Briton Jo Durie, the 36-year-old Wade seemingly made them vanish in the midst of a harrowing tiebreaker — winning 15-13 in the longest ever in Wimbledon women's play — as she pounded out a 3-6, 7-6, 6-2 victory.

"Haven't we all put our foot in our mouths and said that we don't want to go on playing when we're old and decrepit," said Wade, the 1977 Wimbledon champion who wore thick woolen socks over her shoes to gain a better foothold on the rain-slickened grass. "When you are 18, that means about 23."

Wade's match highlighted the first day of women's play, which also saw Lloyd dispatch 17-year-old Barbara Sue Gerken of Thousand Oaks, Calif., 6-0, 6-4 on the rain-slicked Center Court.

"Now I know how Billie Jean (King) and Margaret Court felt against me," said Lloyd, who bounded into the third round with the victory. She was given a first-round bye, as was Gerken, but played Tuesday because Wimbledon calls for its champions to open play on Center Court.

"Now I know how Billie Jean (King) and Margaret Court felt against me," said Lloyd, who bounded into the third round with the victory. She was given a first-round bye, as was Gerken, but played Tuesday because Wimbledon calls for its champions to open play on Center Court.

"I don't have the luxury of time on my side," said Lloyd, who squeezed her match in between showers that wiped out much of Tuesday's card.

"I'm not playing like when I was 17 or 18, playing loosely and with no pressure."

Meanwhile, sixth-seeded Gene Mayer came from a set and a service break down to overtake Tim Gullikson 5-7, 6-4, 6-1, 7-5, becoming the 10th of the 16 seeds to reach the second round. Yannick Noah of France pulled out Monday with a strained thigh ligament.

In other women's matches, 15-year old Kathy Rinaldi defeated fellow American Stacy Margolin 6-2, 7-6; Lucia Romanov of Romania toppled Britain's Anne Croft 1-6, 6-3, 6-1; South Korea's Duk Hee Lee stopped Glynis Coles of Britain 4-6, 6-4, 6-1; American Wendy White defeated Brenda Remilton of Australia 6-3, 6-4 and American Sharon Walsh downed Britain's Sue Barker 6-0, 6-4.

What a difference six years makes.

On June 22, 1976, Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres tied Hall of Famer Christy Mathewson's National League record of pitching 68 consecutive innings without issuing a base on balls.

On June 22, 1982, Jones, now with New York, walked the first four Montreal batters, the only ones he faced before getting the hook from Manager George Bamberger. Three of them scored and the Expos went on to beat the Mets 4-3 for their fifth consecutive victory and the fourth loss in a row for Jones. He hasn't won since shutting out Houston May 23.

"Some other managers might have gone five batters," said Bamberger, who was at a loss to explain Jones' recent failures (it was the second time in the last four starts he failed to retire a batter). "Jones doesn't know what's wrong. I don't either."

In other National League action Tuesday night, St. Louis edged Philadelphia 3-2 despite Pete Rose's 3,772nd career hit, breaking a tie with Hank Aaron for second place on the all-time hit list; Los Angeles downed Atlanta 4-1, Cincinnati beat San Diego 7-5, Houston blanked San Francisco 2-0 and Pittsburgh trounced Chicago 9-2.

Winner David Palmer pitched six innings, giving up eight hits, before Jeff Reardon came on to record his 12th save.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 2

Mike Ramsey drew a bases-loaded walk from Ed Farmer with two out in the eighth inning, forcing home Willie McGee with the winning run. St. Louis rookie John Stuper scattered eight hits. Rose's double with two out in the third inning tied the score 2-2 and left him 418 hits behind Ty Cobb, who had 4,191.

Dodgers 4, Braves 1

Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker homered, while Vicente Romo, Dave Stewart and Steve Howe held Atlanta to three hits and one unearned run. It was the third-place Dodgers' ninth victory in the last 11 games and left them just 5½ games behind Atlanta in the NL West. The Braves lead San Diego by 3½ games.

Romo retired the side in order in the first inning, but twisted his left knee running out a single in the second and had to leave the game. Stewart yielded three hits in five innings and Howe pitched hitless ball over the final three.

Reds 7, Padres 5

Eddie Milner scored the winning run on San Diego third baseman Luis Salazar's throwing error and Mike Vail capped a three-run seventh-inning rally with an RBI single, his second of the game. Alex Trevino singled to start the rally against Gary Lucas, 0-5, was sacrificed to second and scored the tying run on Milner's single. Dan Driessen walked with two out and Salazar then threw wildly to first on Cesar Cedeno's grounder, allowing Milner to score. Vail singled home an insurance run.

Astros 2, Giants 0

Vern Ruhle, who has split time between spot starting and relief work, fired a three-hitter, retiring 23 consecutive batters over one stretch. Ruhle gave up singles to Joe Morgan and Chili Davis with one out in the first inning, but catcher Alan Ashby picked Davis off first and Ruhle fanned Jack Clark. He didn't allow another baserunner until pinch hitter Dave Bergman singled with one out in the ninth.

"I made some good pitches," said Ruhle, who struck out five and faced only 28 batters, one over the minimum. "I can't say I've had any better games."

Pirates 9, Cubs 2

Winning pitcher John Candelaria, Dave Parker and Jim Morrison drove in two runs apiece, while second baseman Johnny Ray rapped three hits and scored twice. Candelaria worked six innings before his back stiffened and Enrique Romo earned his first save.

WHO AM I?

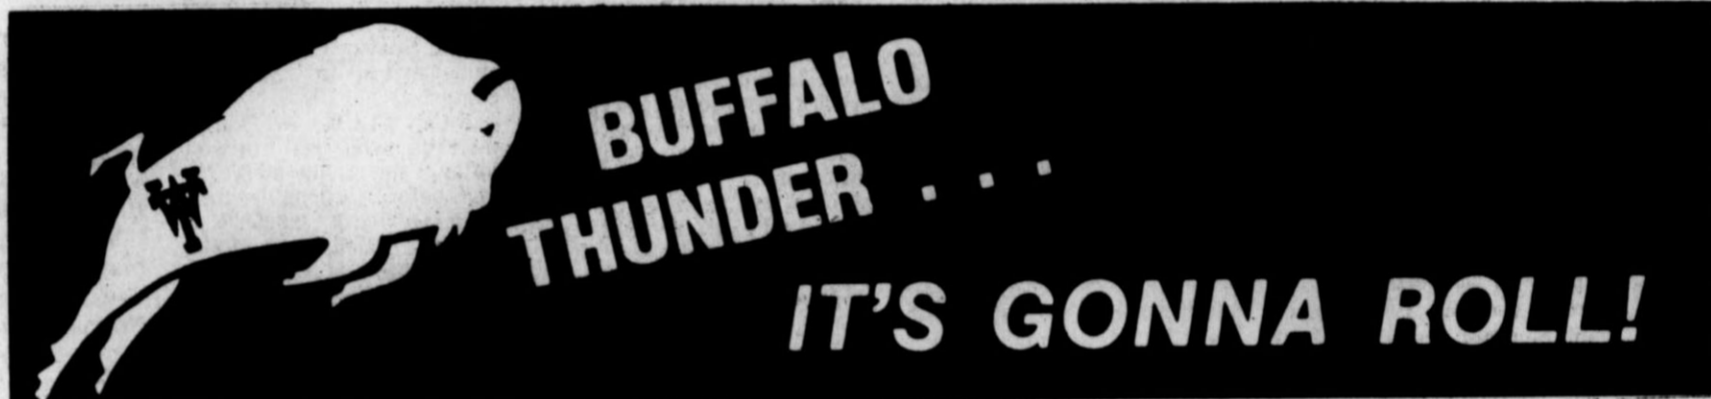

I've been in uniform since 1960. A long time, I guess. Yet that includes just two seasons as a major-league player. I had bad knees. They ended my playing career at the age of 30. Even so, I'm still in the dugout.

ANSWER: Bobby Cox, manager of the Toronto Blue Jays. He also managed the Braves (1978-81) and the third base for the Yankees (1969-70). (c) 1982 NEA, Inc.

Brewers Win 7th-in-Row, NY Falls, 3-2

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

The Milwaukee Brewers and Pete Vuckovich are red hot under interim Manager Harvey Kuenn. New York Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner is just as hot, under the collar that is.

Vuckovich, 9-2, won his eighth consecutive game Tuesday night, combining with Rollie Fingers on a five-hitter as the Brewers won their seventh straight game with a 3-2 decision over the Yankees.

Against the Yankees Vuckovich gave up a home run to Roy Smalley in the second inning to tie the score 2-2 and held New York in check the rest of the way until Fingers relieved in the ninth inning.

Steinbrenner was upset with two calls, claiming Brewer catcher Ted Simmons trapped a ball against the foul screen in the eighth inning and that the umpires blew an out call at first on Willie Randolph in the third.

In other AL action, Boston edged Detroit 5-4 in 11 innings, Cleveland beat Baltimore 8-6, Chicago downed Minnesota 6-5, Texas shut out California 4-0, Kansas City nipped Oakland 2-1 and Seattle outlasted Toronto 6-5.

The Brewers took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the first when Robin Yount tripled and Cecil Cooper slammed his 12th home run of the season off Roger Erickson, 4-6.

The Brewers scored the game-winner in the second on a single by Roy Howell, a double by Ed Romero and Marshall Edwards' infield single.

Rangers 4, Angels 0
Rick Honeycutt scattered seven hits and stopped Rod Carew's 25-game hitting streak and Jim Sundberg delivered a two-run single as Texas blanked California and broke a two-game losing streak.

Honeycutt, 3-7, struck out four and walked two in gaining his first shutout and the Rangers' second of the year. The left-hander got Carew to ground out in the first, fly out in the third, bounce to the mound in the fifth and fly out again in the eighth.

Mariners 6, Blue Jays 5
Seattle's Julio Cruz stole third base and scored the winning run on a throwing error by Toronto catcher Buck Martinez in the seventh inning as the Mariners defeated the Blue Jays.

The Blue Jays had tied the game at 5-5 with three runs in the fifth highlighted by Willie Upshaw's two-run homer, his ninth of the year.

Seattle rapped three home runs in the fourth inning when it scored four times. Richie Zisk opened the inning with a solo homer, Dave Henderson, who also knocked in a run earlier with single, added a two-run shot and Bud Bulling added a solo blast.

Royals 2, A's 1
Reliever Dan Quisenberry earned his 20th save of the season, combining with rookie Bud Black on a six-hitter as the Kansas City handed Oakland its seventh loss in its last eight games.

Black gave up four hits in 5-1/3 innings, while Quisenberry, who leads the AL in saves and games finished with 29, gave up a run in the eighth when Rickey Henderson led off with a single, stole second and third, and scored on Cliff Johnson's grounder.

Amos Otis got his 12th game-winning RBI, tops in the league, with a sacrifice fly in the first inning off Matt Keough, 6-9. The Royals scored again in the sixth on Jerry Martin's RBI double. Henderson now has 68 stolen bases in 70 games.

White Sox 6, Twins 5
Ron LeFlore snapped a 5-5 tie with a leadoff home run in the bottom of the eighth inning as Chicago won for the sixth time in eight games and handed Minnesota its 27th loss in its last 31 games.

LeFlore's fourth of the season came off Terry Felton, 0-7, and made a winner of Eddie Solomon, 1-0.

Run-scoring doubles by Greg Luzinski in the first and third innings had given Chicago a 3-1 lead. But Tim Laudner wiped it out with a three-run homer, his first, in the fourth inning.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 4
Dwight Evans tied the score with a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning and rookie Wade Boggs drilled his first major league home run in the 11th as Boston sent Detroit to its ninth straight loss.

"Dwight told me to go with the pitch, to take aim on the wall," said Boggs, a left-handed batter. "I was trying to hit to left field because I defeat myself when I try to pull in this ball park."

Rick Leach had given the Tigers a 4-2 lead with a two-run bases-loaded double with two out in the eighth.

Indians 8, Orioles 6
Rookie Von Hayes knocked in three runs and highlighted Cleveland's six-run fifth inning with a triple and a two-run single as Baltimore lost for only the fourth time in its last 15 games.

Cleveland starter Larry Sorensen, 6-6, got the victory, allowing 10 hits, one walk and striking out three in 71-3 innings.

Eddie Murray clubbed his ninth home run of the year for Baltimore.

Tom Watson Still Walking On Air

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Watson, still riding an emotional high from his dramatic victory in the United States Open championship, is the principal attraction this week in the $400,000 Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Golf Classic.

"I'm still up there somewhere," Watson said, glancing toward the sky, shortly after he'd checked in Tuesday at the Westchester Country Club, site of the 72-hole event that begins Thursday.

And, he anticipates no major letdown this week. "Obviously, I'm playing well," he said. "When you're playing well you continue to play well. Success breeds success."

The triumph last weekend in California, possibly the most significant of Watson's career, was his first in the American national championship and pushed to six the number of his major titles. He's also won two Masters and three British Opens.

The American Open, however, had been Watson's No. 1 career goal. He nailed it down with a spectacular chip-in birdie on the 17th hole at Pebble Beach, a dramatic turnaround that ended Jack Nicklaus' dream of a record fifth U.S. Open title.

"This augments my other accomplishments," Watson said.

"It puts my career one plateau higher."

And, it reconfirmed his position as the outstanding player in the game today.

While Watson made only a brief appearance at the suburban New York Club Tuesday, then went away to happily consider his latest accomplishment, some of his contenders talked wistfully of what might have been.

"I got back to a share of the lead on Sunday, but when you haven't been there in so long, it's hard to hold onto it," said 44-year-old veteran Bruce Devlin, the leader through two rounds, who made one last-round challenge before dropping back.

"I was in it up until No. 16," said British Open champion Bill Rogers, who last season broke Watson's four-year reign as Player of the Year and last week fought his way out of a year-long slump.

They are among Watson's major challengers for the $72,000 first prize this week, along with David Graham and Lanny Wadkins, both of whom also had strong U.S. Open performances.

Other standouts in the 156-man field include defending champ Ray Floyd, a two-time winner this season, Johnny Miller, Tom Kite, Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Pate, and Masters champ Craig Stadler, who is attempting to defend his money-winning lead against the hot-handed Watson.

Stadler, like Watson a three-time winner this year, tops the money standings at $315,461. Watson now is second at $288,796.

Nicklaus is not competing. Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

POLLY'S POINTERS Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - Help! Our car had an oil leak and now we have a problem. How can we remove the oil that has dripped out on the driveway and on the garage floor. Sure hope someone has the answer. - DIANNA

DEAR DIANNA - Fresh oil spills should be immediately covered with a thick layer of absorbent cat-box filler, sawdust or corastarch. After the cat litter or sawdust has thoroughly soaked up the oil, it can usually be easily cleaned up and the concrete washed clean. For concrete that is already stained, many readers have recommended pouring on a heavy coating of a laundry pre-spot product, letting it stand for about an hour, then scrubbing with a stiff brush. Others suggest scrubbing with kerosene (use carefully only in a well-ventilated area; then rinse the area thoroughly with water). In any case, removing old oil stains is not a fun job, but these methods are fairly effective. On an open driveway, time and weather usually do the job when all else fails. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Since iron-on patches don't "take" on a soft ironing-board pad, I use a wooden cutting board under fabric to be patched. My husband even made me a narrow one to use when patching sleeves.

One of my pet peeves is hearing complaints from people who don't like to iron. I just set my board up in front of the TV and enjoy doing two things at once! - HELEN

DEAR POLLY - When baking a cake, sprinkle the greased pan with plain bread crumbs instead of flour. This gives the cake a nice crust and is delicious. - M.D.T.

DEAR POLLY - After several calls from my children saying they had forgotten their house keys that morning, I finally found a new hiding place for an extra key. I put the key in a small plastic bag, dig a hole in the garden or lawn, put the bag in the hole, and cover it back up. No one knows it's there but my family and me. No more keys "hidden" under door mats and in flower pots for burglars to find. - BEVERLY

DEAR POLLY - My preschooler recently received a 100 percent vinyl slicker. By the time he'd worn it two or three times, he had managed to tear one sleeve halfway out. The seams are the kind that are heat sealed. Is there an effective way to mend this, either by heat sealing again or by sewing? - MRS. H.D.L.

DEAR MRS. H.D.L. - Go to a hardware store and ask for tape or patches for mending vinyl. This will be by far the easiest method of repair for your son's slicker. An added benefit of the tape is that you can use it to reinforce the unripped seams as well. If you can't find the vinyl mending tape, any strong plastic or fabric tape could be used as a substitute. I would avoid trying to sew vinyl. Too often, the holes made by the needle act as a perforation along which the seam tears readily. - POLLY HEALTH Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - What is fibrillation of the heart? Is this a condition that occurs suddenly and goes away suddenly, or is it a chronic condition?

I am 27, and several times in my life I have had spells with my heart beating irregular and then beating real fast afterwards. The last one I had I went to the hospital and they did an electrocardiogram, but by then it had stopped, or returned to normal. They didn't detect anything.

Is this something I should be concerned about? My heart has been checked many times and nothing shows up. This is the reason I want to know if fibrillation of the heart could be my problem.

DEAR READER - To answer your question directly, fibrillation refers to a rapid twitching of the heart muscle. When the atria are fibrillating it is called atrial fibrillation and they may be "twitching" at a rate of 500 per minute. Only a few of these 500 impulses are transmitted to the bottom part of the heart, the ventricles that are the heavy pumping chambers that pump blood through your arteries.

If the number of impulses that get through are less than 100 a minute the person may not even notice what has happened. But if a lot of impulses get through causing a fast heartbeat then he will usually notice it. The impulses that get through are irregular and the pulse is irregular.

Atrial fibrillation can occur in episodes, starting suddenly and stopping suddenly. Or it can be chronic with persistent fibrillation.

Most attacks of sudden fast heartbeats that stop suddenly are paroxysmal tachycardias. And they can occur in people who have no underlying heart disease. It is annoying that the episodes are often gone by the time you get an electrocardiogram. That is why long-term monitoring for several days is sometimes done. But if you only have such attacks once or twice a year this may not be practical either.
