Eichner outlines WDIC plans to city

By ANDREA LAMB Staff Writer

Waste Deposit Impact Committee executive director Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner described Hereford's proposed economic development plan as a "sophisticated sales job" at the Hereford City Commission's meeting Monday.

"We need to have a smooth presentation, being able to develop confidence in the product (Hereford) and have a clearly established direction for the product," said Eichner.

In involving the city with the plan, Eichner said "The city will be high up there in this economic development. Not only can the city help with the funding or help in negotiating with prospective business, but it can serve as leaders. We want the city to agreed that the city must help in taking the bull by the horns.

"The public will have to accept the plan, but it's gonna take the public entities to step up to the lick log and say 'here's what we can do,"' said LeGate.

This economic development plan is part of WDIC's study of the impact the Department of Energy's exit will have on the community. Eichner said a plan will be completed by May 31 with independent funding up to

Eichner added that WDIC will use the funds to continue WDIC's office and the economic development plan and won't be used for directly bring-community," said Eichner. Larry Malamen, president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, said the economic plan seemed promising, but, "I've seen plans developed, and they've all been put on a shelf and have died. Hopefully we can get this plan off the ground."

Eichner said WDIC is planning an economic development work session for Feb. 23 at the Deaf Smith County Library.

In other business, the commissioners awarded a bid for four police cars to Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile which bid $13,020.35 per car. Whiteface Ford-Lincoln-Mercury, Inc., bid $8.65 higher with $13,029, and John Chandler Ford bid $13,180. Plains Chevrolet's bid only a net price of $52,002 and was exclud-

City Manager Darwin McGill said he hoped the city could defray up to $6,000 of the cost by trading in three revamped vehicles.

In the city's preparation to adopt the Standard Building Code, the commissioners voted to appoint Raynold Herr, Raul Pesina, Tom Lange, Fred Ruland and Kenneth Hagar to study the code. Mayor Wes Fisher said these five will probably form the Building Code Board of Adjustments once the code is approved.

Society may help Mills

By ANDREA LAMB Staff Writer

Karen Green, the woman who filed charges against Audrey Mills last month because of her living conditions with 25 dogs, is putting the "human" into Humane Society by rounding together help to clean Mills' house Saturday.

Mills was sent to Northwest Texas Hospital's psychiatric pavillion after Green and county officials discovered Mills living with 25 dogs in filth-ridden conditions at her home south of

"I've just taken it upon myself to better her living conditions. After all, the Humane Society does include people as well as animals," said Green, a board member with the Amarillo Humane Society. "If we hadn't gone out there in the first place, she would have lived happily ever after. We took away her dogs and sent her to the pavillion, so I think we had better follow through on

Green said she will need at least 10 hands to help with the cleaning process Saturday which will include hanging curtains, painting and scrubbing.

improving her life."

"We plan on cleaning only the back half of the house where it wasn't quite so (messy)," said Green. "She has a stove, a refrigerator and an old-timey washing machine. If we could just get some electricity, plumbing or heat out there, that would help." Thelma Damron, Mills' landlord who charges $135 monthly rent on the house, said she didn't know if Mills had any plumbing, electricity or heating. "I've asked her if she wanted it in the past, and she always stated that she didn't want it," said Damron. "If she did want it, I'd put the plumbing and heating in. I don't meddle with her affairs, and my suggestion is that people should leave her alone."

But Green says she doesn't want to meddle, she just wants to "get Audrey in a good situation. Once we do that, she can live how she wants."

Green said she has not contacted Mills about the cleanup because she hasn't organized the project vet.

"I heard Audrey say on TV that she would like to clean up her house, but the doctor told her to rest and take it easy. So that's what I'm basing this whole thing on," said Green.

But Green said organizing the project has been frustrating.

"We still need a lot more volunteers from Hereford with pickups who can haul a lot of that stuff out of her house. We could also use money because we'll have to pay to put some electricity and plumbing in there if the landlord doesn't provide it," said

Currently, Green has received an $87 donation, some paint and volunteering hands from Amarillo people, but Edith Coffman, the woman organizing Hereford volunteers, said the response in Hereford has been virtually nil.

"We've had two people volunteer from Hereford, and that's pretty sad," said Edith, citing that Green made a plea for Hereford's help at noon Friday in a television interview. "We just need the help."

To volunteer for cleaning Mills' home Saturday, Edith said to call 364-0503 or call Green's home in Amarillo at 358-2123.

Audrey Mills' 23 dogs which were confiscated last month will have to be adopted by Wednesday or they will be put to sleep, said Hereford Animal Control Officer Butch Trevino.

Mills, who is keeping two German shepherds, decided to let the city animal shelter keep the other 23 dogs found in her home.

Trevino said the 23 dogs are severely cramping the space at the shelter and something must be done to vacate that space.

"Two dogs got into a fight yesterday because the shelter is so crowded, and we had to put one to sleep because he was hurt pretty badly in the fight," said

Trevino said that if a person wants to adopt a dog, one must pay for the $15 rabies shot.

Hereford enjoyed a slightly better retail sales month in December 1987 compared to Dember 1986, according to sales tax figures released Friday by State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Pickens may move

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) -Oilman T. Boone Pickens is considering moving Mesa Limited Partnership from Amarillo to Fort Worth, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

Quoting sources close to Pickens, the newspaper said the company might relocate here to establish a more promiennt corporate base near a major airport and because it would be easier to recruit executives to live in the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex.

Pickens, nationally known for his controversial attempted takeovers of of major oil companies such as Phillips Petroleum and Gulf Oil,

"All I can give you tonight is a no comment," Batchelder said.

"It is a little too hot to talk about," Wayne Sterling, group vice president for economic development for the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, Sterling said he could not discuss 'anything relating to a possible relocation to the area."

Sources at Amarillo told the newspaper the subject was "sensitive" and they feared they would anger Pickens if they were quoted by Hereford police arrested two Hereford men at their home Sunday morning on charges of possession of marijuana under two ounces and delivery of marijuana to a minor.

Felipe Barragan, 26, and Armando Durete, 32, both of 319 Lake St., were arrested after Hereford police executed a search warrant and found a small amount of marijuana at the residence, said police.

According to police reports, police Lt. Pat Michael obtained the search warrant after a juvenile claimed the two men had furnished the juvenile with a marijuana joint.

As you read this, the voters of New compehire are hampshiring through the snow to the polls to determine the fate of several political candidates in the hopes that many of them will drop out of the race before we put up with their falderal in Texas between now and Super Tuesday, March 8.

What does Super Tuesday mean? In a nutshell, this is going to be the biggest thing south of the Mason-Dixon line since about 1860,

I'm not the biggest fan the Confederacy ever had, but this could be the biggest day of the Confederacy since Jeff Davis was elected president of the CSA.

Is it not ironic that the majority of the states that seceded from the union 125 years ago will more than likely determine the leadership of the country as we enter the 1990s? The South may have lost The War Between The States, but it may well rise up and smite the pretenders and establish the true contenders for this country's highest office.

It just makes our vote this year that much more important. Over one-fourth of the states in this nation that, for the most part, share the same thoughts, ideals and philosophies, have much of the same ethnic mix and economical dependence on what we can produce from the earth, will more than likely determine this nation's future

Sure, there's a heckuva long time between now and November, when the next President is elected, but this Super Tuesday thing may very well be the turning point in who stands up on the dais with Chief Justice William Rehnquist and takes the Railey to be tried for trying to kill his wife now in coma at hospital

DALLAS (AP) - Former Methodist minister Walker Railey has been served with papers in a lawsuit accusing him of attempting to murder his wife, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

In a copyright story, the newspaper reported that a San Francisco process server placed a copy of the lawsuit under the windshield wipers of a car as Railey and Lucy Papillon, a Dallas psychologist romantically linked to the former minister, tried to flee from a Northern California resort Monday.

The lawsuit was filed earlier this month by the parents of his wife, Margaret "Peggy" Railey, who is in a coma in a Tyler nursing home. She was left for dead on the floor of thegarage in their Dallas home by an assailant who attacked her and attempted to choke her to death April 22. The suit alleges Railey was responsible for the attack.

Railey, former minister of the First United Methodist Church of Dallas, and Papillon, who told a Dallas County grand jury that she and Railey traveled together and once discussed marraige, were spotted at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Albion River Inn at Mendocino, Calif. by process server Steve Adams and a Dallas Times Herald reporter.

The newspaper reported that they were drinking beer outside their $140-a-night cabin when they spotted the process server and reporter.

Railey and Ms. Papillon ran into the cabin and remained there for 22 hours, the newspaper reported. They did not turn on any lights and had food delivered by room service and instructed inn employees to put through telephone calls only from certain individuals, the newspaper reported.

On Monday, the newspaper reported, a resort employee carried their luggage to their rented car. Ms. Papillon walked out of the cabin, got into the car and Railey darted from the cabin with a coat over his head, the newspaper reported.

Railey slumped down in the front seat as the car sped out of the driveway. Smith ran along beside the car, identified himself to Railey as a process server and placed the papers under the windshield wipers, the newspaper reported.

Railey told The Dallas Morning News in an interview late last week that he was not attempting to avoid the legal papers and was "keeping a low profile" to avoid the press.

But Railey and Ms. Papillon declined to answer the door at the cabin when Smith knocked and identified himself as a process server.

"I am not an expert on civil process, but I'm sure this constitutes good service," Dallas County Assistant District Attorney Norm Kinne told the Dallas Times Herald. "I'm sure it does."

Dukakis hoping to win primary

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) - New Hampshire primary voters put their often unpredictable mark on the 1988 presidential campaign today, with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis hoping for a neighborly boost from the Democrats. On the Republican side, Bob Dole hoped to make it two victories in a row while George Bush banked on a comeback.

In keeping with longstanding tradition, the 34 voters of Dixville Notch cast their ballots shortly after midnight at the Balsams, a resort hotel, and gave the edge to Bush and Democrat Richard Gephardt.

As it has since 1960, the mountain hamlet of Dixville Notch was the first to report results. On the Republican side, Bush received 11 votes, Dole had six, Kemp five, du Pont two, Alexander Haig two, and Pat Robertson one.

The town's seven Democratic' voters gave Gephardt four votes and Simon three Gephardt was the Democratic winner in Iowa, and Simon finished second and Dukakis third in the caucuses there. But statewide results in New Hampshire were likely to be different.

Dukakis was the overwhelming favorite with Simon and Gephardt battling for second.

Opinion polls consistently gave Dukakis the support of between 36 and 40 percent of Democrats.

Polls of New Hampshire Republicans showed a dramatic impact of the Iowa results. Bush, once the choice of 52 percent of the state's Republicans, entered primary day in a virtual dead heat with Dole.

U.S. has not come close to winning medals

AP Sports Writer

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) - U.S. athletes say it's too early to count them out of the quest for Olympic gold, as one of their top officials suggests, but trouble's brewing after three days without even coming close to a bronze.

Instead of medals and celebrations, there's bickering, excuses and promises.

So far, the hills and rinks of the Winter Games belong to European athletes. Swiss downhill racer Pirmin Zurbriggen carved a giant Z into the twisting slope of Mount Allan on Monday, and the sturdy Soviet crosscountry skiers pushed their team's medal total to a high of five.

The East Germans, showing a passion for speed, added Jens Mueller's luge gold to a speed skating world record and gold the day before and tied Switzerland, Finland and Czechoslovakia with two medals

U.S. fortunes seemed about to change in the evening, in stunning fashion, when the seventh-seeded American hockey team riddled No. 3 Czechoslovakia for a 3-0 lead early in the first period.

When it reached 4-1 in the second period, the first chants of "U-S-A" rumbled through the Saddledome, only to be answered a moment later by a Czech goal, the first of a barrage capped by a short-handed goal and a rink-length slapshot into an empty net for a 7-5 Czech victory.

"Heartbreaking, no. Disappointing, yes," said U.S. Coach Dave Peterson. "We're big boys. We're not going to fold our tents and go home. It's not crushing. It's a defeat. The world won't end because we lost a hockey game."

The chances of a U.S. hockey medal, however, certainly dimmed. The Americans, 1-1, next play the No. 2 Soviets, who crushed Austria 8-1, and will be hard-pressed to survive into the six-team medal round.

Peterson blamed the loss, in part, on officiating, saying it "was just lousy." But that excuse hardly explained why the American squad seemed worn out in the second period and suddenly shy about going for the puck.

The poor start of the American delegation overall was "not unanticipated," said Baaron Pittenger, the second-highest ranking U.S. Olympic official. Indeed, he added pessimistically, "I think it is possible, although I hope it doesn't occur, that we won't win a gold medal."

Don't tell that to the U.S. athletes. They're not buying Pittenger's early write-off.

Figure skater Brian Boitano, for one, is ready to go for the gold with a newfound purpose since arriving in the Olympic Village.

"I used to feel I was skating just for myself," the four-time U.S. champ from Sunnyvale, Calif., said. "It was just for Brian Boitano. But since coming here, I feel like going out there to skate for the Americans, There are no quitters here.

"We're gonna go out and kill them," said pairs skater Todd Waggoner, who could team with Gillian Wachsman to give the United States its first medal tonight. They're fourth after the short program, behind Americans Jill Watson and Peter Oppegard in third and two Soviet teams, but Waggoner isn't conceding anything.

Neither are figure skater Debi Thomas and speed skaters Bonnie Blair and Nick Thometz, all of whom have good shots at a gold.

But the losing is taking its toll with ill feelings that began brewing before it came here.

Dissension destroyed much of the team spirit among the men's speed skaters, and now the coach says it's hurting performances. The death of Dan Jansen's sister and his poignant defeat helped bring the squad together and briefly assuage some of the problems, but they're far from

Coach Mike Crowe acknowledged that his team may have lost confidence in him after bitter disputes over selection of skaters.

"It seems that way right now," Crowe said. "It disturbs me. ... It definitely has affected performances of people involved."

There are never problems, though, for winners.

The turns and drops and jarring ruts of 7,447-foot Mount Allan, a runt in the Rockies dwarfed by taller peaks nearby, proved too tough for most of the cocky downhillers but not Zurbriggen.

The 25-year-old Swiss with the ever-sunny smile tamed that pernicious slope with a time of 1 minute, 59.63 seconds, the only one under 2 minutes, and listened politely as his fans talked of him winning an unprecedented five gold medals in Alpine events.

"Now I have won a gold, I am more relaxed," he said. "The others will be a little more nervous than me."

Winning five golds, though, would be "very difficult," he said. "The conditions would have to be just right every time."

And beyond conditions, there stands Italy's Alberto Tomba, the hard-charging, almost reckless favorite in the slalom, giant slalom and new super giant slalom.

Only two other Alpine skiers, Toni Sailer of Austria in 1956 and Jean-Claude Killy of France in 1968, won even three golds - the downhill, slalom and giant slalom. Zurbriggen has a shot at those, plus two new events - the super giant slalom and the combined slalom and downhill starting today.

Peter Mueller, the old man of Swiss skiing at the otherwise youthful age of 30, sought a gold to top off his fine career. He put the first tracks of the day on the course and sped through in 2:00.14.

Twelve skiers followed, trying to beat him, and all failed. Then came Zurbriggen.

Franck Piccard of France came down immediately after Zurbriggen to claim the bronze in 2:01.24.

Q. What's the method for cooking ham in the microwave oven? G.M., Grainite, Ok.

A. Place a fully-cooked ham, fat side up, in a glass baking dish. Shield top edge with foil and loosely cover ham with plastic wrap. Microwave on medium for 12 to 14 minutes per pound. After two-thirds of the cooking time, invert ham, placing foil again on top edge, re-covering with plastic wrap for the last third of cooking time.

Use a meat thermometer designed for the microwave oven or an oven probe and cook ham to 160 degrees. Let meat stand for 5 to 10 minutes before carving.

Q. What can I substitute when a recipe calls for liquor? Mrs. C.J., Old Washington, OH

A. Use an equal substitution of fruit juice, soda pop or water. Add an extract, such as rum, to gain the flavor of a liquor you choose not to

Q. Which fat is best for preparing pans for baking? R.C., Parma, OH A. A solid shortening gives best results. Cakes may stick when oils, spray-on preparations, butter or margarine are used. Also butter and margarine burn or scorch more easi-

Q. Please tell me how to use selfrising flour in cookies and cakes. R.B., Dixon, Mo.

A. Self-rising flour is ideal for high, light biscuits and tender, finetextured cakes. There isn't one rule for substituting self-rising flour in place of all-purpose flour. Each recipe needs to be individually adjusted. For best results, use recipes already tested with self-rising flour.

Q. What's the method for canning grapefruit? Mrs. E.S., Mission Tx.

A. Prepare peeled grapefruit by removing seeds and membrane between each section. Pack fruit into hot jars and cover with a boiling hot light syrup, leaving 2/2 inch head space. Put lids in place and process 20 minutes in a boiling water bath.

Q. How can I measure correctly when recipes call for cup measurements in eights such as 5% cup flour? D.L. Logan, OH

A. There are nested measuring cup sets that have a 1/8 cup measure. Without that size cup, use measuirng spoons. Keep the following in mind: 1/8 equals 2 tablespoons, 1/4 cup equals 4 tablespoons, 1/2 cup equals 8 tablespoons and 1 cup equals 16 tablespoons. If the recipe calls for % cup, it is five 1/8 measures or 10 tablespoons. To measure quickly, first use a 1/2 cup measure, then add two tablespoons. Always level the measure-

Q. What is the shelf life of flour and what storage method do you recommend? Mrs.N.B. Burbank, Il.

From the time it's milled, allpurpose flour will keep for 12 months. Whole wheat flour stores well for eight months. Store either flour at home in a cool, dry place. To extend shelf life, freeze flour in double wrapped containers. Just be sure to bring flour to room temperature before us-

TIP OF THE WEEK. The best way to warm breads in the microwave oven is to wrap them in microwaveable paper toweling and heat on medium.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips Rehearsals for drama Texas' set Feb. 21

Auditions for 140 salaried positions with the internationally acclaimed musical drama, "TEXAS", are scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 21, at West Texas State University in Ca-

Directors will be looking for 32 singers, 14 actors, 25 dancers, six instrumentalists, 16 technicians and 40 for hospitality.

Cast members play to average audiences of 1,600 persons (90 percent capacity) who came from all 50 states and 84 foreign countries in Set beneath the towering cliffs of Palo Duro Canyon near Amarillo, the 23rd season of "TEXAS" is scheduled to begin June 15, and play nightly except Sundays at 8:30 p.m. through Aug. 27. Rehearsals begin May 22.

This last audition of the season will be held in Canyon, Feb. 21 from 1 p.m. through 5 p.m. with dancers at 4 p.m. in the Art Department Lecture Hall, Room No. 189, in Northen Hall at West Texas State University.

Other auditions were held in: Austin; Dallas; Albuquerque, New Mexico; Lubbock; and Norman, Oklahoma.

Anyone, 18 years or older, may audition for "TEXAS." However, men and women must bring a picture, and dancers should wear appropriate workout clothing.

All voice ranges are required, and singers should bring one prepared number of their choice. An accompanist will be furnished or a singer may bring his own.

Since singers also fill minor speaking roles, each should also prepare a one to two minute memorized scene or monologue.

Actors and actresses are required to memorize any scene, not to exceed three minutes, that will accentuate outdoor voice and presence and also perform a short vocal number. Men and women with ballet or modern dance training are desired. Musicians are needed that are experienced in string bass, standard guitar, banjo, accordian and with concert training in violin. "TEXAS" is a combination of historical romance, spectacular sound and light, and colorful music and dance. It is the story of the settling of the Panhandle and the coming of the railroad. Indians perch on rocks, a real train rumbles across the prairie, cowboys ride the range and a realistic storm sends shivers through the audience as thunder roars and lightning strikes.

Nearly two million people have enjoyed the production, written by Pulitzer Prize winning author, Paul Directed by Neil Hess, company members not only have an opportunity to play to near full houses every night but also to receive expert instruction and valuable exposure. For an audition brochure, reservations or more information on 'TEXAS", call 806-655-2181 or write P.O. Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015-0268

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - Until at least the mid-19th century, bed and window curtains were designed to be both functional and decorative.

According to Country Home Magazine, studies made at Old Sturbridge Village, a living-history museum in Sturbridge, Mass., indicate that fewer than half the people in any rural New England town would have had curtains prior to the mid-1800s. However, anyone who was able to afford curtains cherished the warmth, color and design they could provide for a room. Throughout the 18th and early 19th centuries, curtains were usually made in simple ways that required cutting the fabric in as frugal a manner as possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I will be going on an extended vacation soon and I am very worried about my many houseplants.

I know of no one I would think of burdening with the task of watering them twice a week. Do you have any suggestions for keeping them alive while I am gone? - Louise Silvas, Kirby, Texas

Don't fret or cancel those vacation plans. I have a sure and easy way to keep your plants happy until you get back.

Place them in the bathtub, but be sure to put a towel down first to protect the bathtub finish. Put one large pail of water or several small ones in the middle of the plants in the bathtub. Cut some string in several pieces long enough to reach from the bottom of the water pail to the soil of each plant. "Plant" the string end into the soil of each plant and put the other end of the string into the pail of water. It helps if the water pail is higher than the plants.

This method of watering is called the wick method and is commonly used in watering African violets.

Your plants should be able to draw enough water through the string to survive during your vacation. Happy trails! - Heloise

COUPON CLIPPER Dear Heloise: I'm the mother of a 15-month-old boy and I'm an avid coupon clipper. I have a great little "extra" to add to the next baby shower gift I give.

As soon as I learn of a friend or relative's pregnancy, I will start collecting baby coupons for diapers, baby food and bath products (I always make sure to check the expiration dates) from my newspapers and magazines.

A coupon organizer is very inexpensive and can be used to file the coupons saved. I wrap the "baby savings" separately and add it with another shower gift.

Prices being what they are these days, that extra help will be appreciated. - A. McKinnon, Anchorage, Alaska

ASK DR. LAMB

BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My 18-year-old son is very serious about bodybuilding. He is on a low-fat, low-salt, no sugar diet, which I think is fine. However, he wants to take amino acids to take in more protein to enable him to to have bigger muscles. frequent kidney stones. I am not sure about an 18-year-old supplementing his diet this way.

of aerobic exercise to strengthen his cardiovascular system. He does not run, ride a bicycle or do any form of aerobics. Is there a danger in bodybuilding without this type of regular exercise?

DEAR READER: At 18, your son may not have mature bones yet and needs to be careful not to overdo I gain weight. I do snack at night with bone age evaluated before doing too much. You can do bodybuilding without risking damage to the growth plates and the vertebrae.

If your son uses weights in a circuit training procedure, he can also condition his heart. This involves using weights for different muscle groups, one after another, as opposed to a few near-maximum muscle contractions of a few muscles. The circuit weight training will require a lot of oxygen for the body, and that will work the heart. There is no reason why he cannot do both bodybuilding and a reasonable amount of aerobic exercises.

Too much exercise, particularly without enough calorie intake, may make it difficult to develop large strong muscles.

The amino acids idea will not help. There is nothing in these that he can't get from good protein foods, such as lean meats (red meat, fish, poultry) and protein-fortified skim milk. Protein supplements are usually not needed for bodybuilding if one follows the right diet program.

I have discussed the diet he should follow in my new Special Report 92, Strength Training for Health. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to THE HEALTH LETTER/92, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. It is wise not to overdo sweets, but it is a mistake to avoid sweets entirely if you really want to develop muscles. Insulin is necessary to promote the movement of certain amino acids into the muscles so that these amino acids can be used to build new muscle. The release of insulin is stimulated by sweets or foods that raise the blood glucose level. I have explained this in more detail in the report I'm sending you. Foods to trigger insulin release are probably more important than taking amino acids or additional protein supplements that the body does not need and will not use to build additional muscle. It is a good idea to limit the fat intake, particularly the lose weight when they really don't naturated fat intake.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband has been plagued with calcium, phosphorus and oxalate kidney stones for four years now. They have been only on the left side but recently they have been on the right side, too. We don't want to go on vacation for fear he will get one of these while we are away. He goes to extremes of not eating any dairy products, but to no avail. Is there any medication available to help alleviate this formation can be prevented by taking hydrochlorothiazide (HydroDIURIL), 50 mg twice a day. This diuretic prevents the loss of calcium in the urine. The stones form as a result of calcium salts in the urine. Different medicines are used according to the chemical type of stone a person has, but medical treatment to prevent stones is quite important for the person who continues to have Limiting calcium intake usually doesn't help except in people with a I'm also concerned about his lack significant excess intake of calcium. Drinking water is important. He should drink enough to pass 2 to 3 quarts or liters of urine a day.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to know how to lose weight. My husband and I eat the same foods. In fact, he eats double portions of bread and never gains weight. I eat less and cheese bits, but why do I gain so fast? I admit to eating a cookie after a meal, but I did this before I gained so much weight. Please, if you can help me, let me know

DEAR READER: A small excess of calories every day will eventually accumulate into a significant increase in body fat. You don't mention your actual weight, height or age, but you must know that people are particularly apt to increase their body fat when they reach middle age.

It is easier for most men to lose excess body fat than for women. Most men have much more muscle mass. Muscles use a significant number of calories even at rest. That is why a 150-pound muscular person can eat more and not gain weight, while a 150-pound person with less muscle and more fat may gain weight on the same diet.

There has been so much emphasis on calories consumed and fad diets that the other very important part of the equation has been largely ignored how the body loses calories. Your husband probably loses quite a few more calories than you do, and that means he can eat more without gaining weight.

The calories consumed and the calories lost are largely under the control of the brain. The brain stimulates your appetite to consume calories and it controls blood flow through your skin to lose calories. Almost all the calories most people lose are as heat through the skin. Exercise helps to stimulate the loss of calories through the skin. A good example is sweating, which occurs because the brain turns on the heat-loss mechanism --- and heat loss is calories.

You need a sensible diet and exercise program. I have included a menu plan you can use in my new Special Report 91, Making Weight Control Work. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to THE HEALTH LETTER/91, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

I must add that some people try to need to, and when it is actually detrimental to their health. A little extra body fat on a woman helps protect her from osteoporosis. Nature did not plan for most women to st response to the person suffering an awful lot of problems.

The painful jaw condition called Two things can help:

TMJ prompted me to write. Her doctor said he would try a couple of things, and if they didn't work he would have to break her jaw. You advocated more common sense. My question is, how many doctors use common sense?

For example, the reason so many women suffer from lower back pain is obvious, but the doctors don't have a clue.

If they would ask these women to bring in their husbands they would know the reason for those backaches. You guessed it: potbellies. Making love with an out-of-shape,

Two things can help: Old Lardo can do both himself and his wife a favor by dropping some weight. Se-cond, there are positions other than the traditional ones that will take the strain off the women. A little experimentation can do wonders to add zest to the bedroom activity, and it could help her back.

DEAR GOSH: My editor said the letter was perfectly OK. So here it is with grateful thanks for all those women who are married to out-ofshape, overweight guys.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Would you believe that my wife teaches a course in Ann Landers? It's true. That is what the course is called.

She has a class of young Japanese women who were taught English in Japan. They read and write the language well, but they have had limited experience in speaking.

These young women usually remain in the United States for only a few years. Their husbands are graduate students or they are enrolled in medical school. The wives get few opportunities to speak English at home because they tend to socialize with members of their own nationality and speak Japanese with their husbands and children.

These women are eager to learn as much colloquial English as possible and that's where Ann Landers comes in. My wife clips selected letters and pastes them on 3-by-5 cards. Your answers appear on the back.

Each letter is discussed and the women attempt to answer. When the card is turned over and your answer is read, the dialogue becomes lively and exciting. The descriptive words and expressions, uniquely yours, are wonderful. They speak directly to our culture and sound strange when translated.

Such phrases as "M.Y.O.B." and "You're not playing with a full deck, Buster" aare not found in the customary primers. You taught the world, "If it ain't broke don't fix it." "Wake up and smell the coffee' is now part of the langauge. The women comes to our home each Tuesday morning and the class ends with a tea party. (They bring the pastries). We hae two rules: Only English is spoken here and everyone must have a good time. Incidentally, there is no tuition .- L.W.W.
