DSGH to pursue roof bids

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith General Hospital should soon have a badly-needed new roof after action taken Tuesday night by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors.

The board agreed to look for an architect, who will inspect the roof and draw up bid specifications. Bids could be accepted at the board's February meeting.

The board will also solicit bids for a nuclear medicine gamma camera, a fresh frozen plasma freezer and an anesthesia machine.

Don Miller of North Line Construction of Amarillo, who made a bid proposal in December 1986 on the roof when the board first considered the capital needs, said the roof "is in bad shape, and it's not just the roof. This is not a job that can be done by just a roofer." Miller said there was a need for caulking, insulation replacement, a new deck in many areas and possibly a completely new gable over some parts of the building.

"You need to get an architect to do a thorough inspection, and then have everyone bid the same document," Miller said. "You're looking at $75,000-85,000, plus the architect's fee of about 6 percent."

"It definitely needs to be done right. You've probably spent that much in the last 10 years on patching."

The board will pay for those capital improvements with bond money from a $1.5 million bond issue approved by voters last year.

Some of the bond money will also go to pay off bank notes at

Roof plans

Don Miller of North Line Construction of Amarillo goes over plans Tuesday that he drew up more than a year ago to re-roof Deaf Smith General Hospital.

First National and Hereford State banks, but only about $25,000 of a $250,000 loan from Ed Barrett may be repaid with the bond proceeds.

That's because most of Barrett's loan was actually a lease agreement to buy new emergency room equipment. Legally, Barrett holds title to the new ER equipment, and restrictions on the bonds prevent repaying the Barrett loan from the bond funds.

Instead, the board will probably seek a loan from another source to repay the Barrett note.

"The only real answer is to make a profit in the hospital," said new DSGH Administrator

Gary Moore. "That's the only way I know... make it profitable."

The board also agreed to discount the co-insurance amount DSGH employees would pay for hospitalization at DSGH, and allow employees to pay out the $500 deductible over as much as six months' time.

Walcott rehires McLaughlin

By ANDREA LAMB
Staff Writer

Appropriately, the Walcott school board met in the school's basketball gym Tuesday night, for there was obviously competition, and the opposing sides at times didn't seem all that friendly.

The motion to renew Superintendent Bill McLaughlin's two-year contract with a pay increase of five percent passed 4-3, but the line was clearly drawn with board members Ernest Brown, his son Dennis Brown, and Jack White voting against the renewal.

"The past superintendent was great; everything was by the book," stated Ernest Brown. "I voted against him (McLaughlin) because things right now don't go by the book as I see it and we could lose our accreditation."

Ernest is referring to the board's handling of the adoption of a revised discipline management plan last Dec. 15. He alleges that the board never conducted the required public hearings on the plan.

However, McLaughlin says that he investigated the requirement of a public hearing, and the attorneys with the Texas Association of School Boards and the Texas Education Association told him there was no such requirement.

Ernest also claims the minutes from the last school board meeting were skeletal.

"The minutes have no substance. We had a committee in to study our kitchen equipment, and they weren't even placed in the minutes. So what happened to them? If I write in a diary, I want to be able to read exactly what happened down the road," said Ernest.

McLaughlin, on the other hand, claims all that is necessary to report in the minutes is action taken.

"Every word stated doesn't have to be put down," said McLaughlin. "In the future, we'll just start taping our meetings, but Ernest can't say that everything was fine when the last superintendent was here. I looked through the minutes from that administration, and one meeting lasted from 7:30 p.m. until 2:30 a.m., and it had only one to two pages of minutes."

School board member Dan Hall, who voted to renew McLaughlin's contract, said he doesn't agree with Ernest's opinion that the former superintendent "did everything by the book."

"Our former superintendent failed to get the required signatures on the updated discipline management plan, so it was up to McLaughlin to correct it," said Hall. "Since McLaughlin has been here, our tax rate has decreased, he's cut our spending, and the reserves have increased from $67,290 to $110,319. Plus, our TEAMS test scores have increased."

Amarillo prison in doubt

AUSTIN (AP) - Although bonds for only one maximum-security prison have been approved by the Texas Bond Review Board, Gov. Bill Clements said he may call a special legislative session to build another one.

"I certainly have that as an option, and I'm thinking about it," Clements said Tuesday, after the bond board approved $153.6 million in bonds for prisons.

The bonds include one 2,250-bed maximum-security prison unit. A legal roadblock put a halt to earlier plans to build two such prisons, one in Amarillo and one in Gatesville.

Gatesville now seems the most likely site for the facility because site preparation has been done there, said Texas prisons director Jim Lynaugh. Under the state's original plan, the Gatesville prison was to be built before the Amarillo prison, he said.

Clements, bond board chairman, added that he would prefer not to call a special session on the matter. He said he and Attorney General Jim Mattox are reviewing other options, including a section of the appropriations bill giving the governor emergency prison authority.

"I fully intend to have that second Michael unit built... We have now 50 percent of our inmates that are hardened, violent criminals and we need that additional capacity of the maximum-security unit," Clements said.

Prison board Chairman Charles Terrell said his panel will make a decision on the prison unit's location at a meeting that probably will be scheduled within two weeks.

Terrell and Clements said they will work to see that two maximum-security prisons eventually are built in addition to the Mark Michael maximum-security unit built last year at Palestine.

Amarillo or Gatesville also could get a facility that is different from maximum security, Terrell said.

"We have a commitment to those two cities... we will fulfill our commitment to them. We told them they'd have prisons, and they will. It's a matter of time, or a matter of the type of unit," he said.

The bonds only include one maximum-security prison because Mattox said the Legislature only authorized one. Lawmakers authorized bonds for prison construction in one bill and authorized specific projects in another bill, said Tom Pollard, bond board executive director.

Clements said it was unfortunate that there was a conflict in the legislative package that authorized the 10,400 beds but didn't specify a second Michael unit.

The governor said although he believes the state has the authority to build a lesser-security prison, such units are not needed as much as another maximum-security unit.

Terrell, who appealed to the board to find a way for the Texas Department of Corrections to build another maximum-security unit, said the prison board construes the appropriations bill as permissive, disagreeing with Mattox's opinion.

Although the board acknowledges the opinion, action must be taken to supply the state with badly needed maximum-security facilities, Terrell told the bond board.

"Due to mistakes made many years ago on priorities in Texas, our state is mired in a crime rate that is simply not acceptable. We have more criminals on our streets than any state in America, 300,000 on probation and over 50,000 on parole," he said.

Terrell recounted the stories of several crime victims, including his wife, who was robbed at gunpoint in their Dallas driveway last spring while their grandson was in the car.

"We need all of the prison capacity possible to protect our citizens from the repeat, violent offender and to keep even with our crime rate," Terrell said.

Amarillo was tapped as the site for the prison No. 9, and Gatesville was awarded the other site for a 2,250-bed unit. Four 1,000-bed units also are scheduled to be constructed.

Annual vegetable meeting

Controversy, technology at conference

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Vegetable producers learned Tuesday what could be some bad news for them about new pesticide-information regulations at the annual West Texas Vegetable Conference at the Hereford Community Center.

Producers and shippers from throughout the region also heard new information about traditional crops and prospects for some non-traditional produce at the day-long meeting.

The most controversial aspect of the meeting was the discussion of the Texas Agricultural Hazard Communication Law, better known as the "Right-To-Know Law."

The law, which went into effect Jan. 1 and is in full swing in the Winter Garden area in the Rio Grande Valley, and will be implemented here when the growing season begins later this year.

The law, in a nutshell, requires practically all farmers to adequately inform all of their employees of the chemicals being used on crops, various restrictions on working in those fields, and potential damage that could happen to them if they enter a field too early after a chemical has been sprayed in a field.

At first glance, the law may not seem too complex, but it could lead to widespread difficulty for vegetable growers.

Producers will be required to provide workers with "crop sheets" developed by the Texas Dept. of Agriculture and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The crop sheets will provide relevant information about each crop, from cabbage to corn, chemicals commonly used on those crops, known health effects, restricted entry times, and what symptoms are if a worker enters the field before the entry time has expired.

Growers must read the information on the crop sheets in English and Spanish, and must read the information each time a new person begins work for him.

Producers at Tuesday's meeting groaned when they heard this from pesticide specialist Jimmy Bush of the TDA. According to several growers, they could potentially have different crews provided by a contractor every day of planting, weeding and harvesting times, and different people during those labor-intensive periods each day.

"You could have a crew out there in the morning, another crew after lunch, and then their kids after school is out," said Plainview producer Charles Noel. "Does this mean we have to stop and read them this stuff every time?"

The answer from Bush was a qualified "yes." He said the final rules and regulations are still being written, but, as they now stand, they would have to be read anew.

Farmers will also be required to maintain Workplace Chemical Lists and Material Safety Data Sheets for 30 years.

The chemical list will include the employer's name and address; the crop; date of each pesticide application and the product name; the Environmental Protection Agency registration

Texas tops in SSC race

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas has a good chance to beat out six other states in the race for the lucrative "super collider," says Sen. Phil Gramm.

The finalists - Texas, Illinois, North Carolina, Tennessee, Arizona, Michigan and Colorado were previously chosen by a scientific panel as being the best overall sites for the atom smasher.

"So we have now come down to seven," Gramm, R-Texas, said Tuesday. "We're expecting official site visits probably in the early spring. I will be setting up a meeting with the entire Texas delegation to propose a visit with DOE Secretary (John) Herrington to reconfirm our commitment to the project."

"Each of the seven are being considered at an equal footing from a technological standpoint," Gramm said. "But we are down to consideration based on economics rather than technical factors."

"I feel we have some clear advantages," he said. "No. 1, a cost advantage. No. 2, the people of Texas and the Legislature... have agreed to put up a billion dollars in seed money. No other state has matched that."

And then there is the political factor, the Texas senator said.

"The DOE wants this project built and one of the strong points of putting it in Texas is we are unified behind it," he said, implying the political clout of Texans in Washington will serve the state well.

New York, which also was recommended as a candidate state by the National Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering last month, was not on the list announced Tuesday.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo earlier this month asked the DOE to drop consideration of the site as a location for the $4.4 billion atom smasher because of opposition from local residents.

Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, whose district encompasses the North Texas site, said agreed Texas has a good chance.

"I think that Texas has the best geology, the best geography and the best public support team," Barton said in a telephone call from College Station. "We're also the low-cost site. If given a level playing field we should do very well."

The Energy Department announced it will hold public hearings at each site next month focusing on the environmental effects the project would have on the areas. The agency also plans to revisit each site in March or April to validate information contained in the proposals submitted by each state.

Musical instruments stolen Tuesday

Two guitars worth $1,624 were reported stolen from 701 S. Texas Ave. Tuesday around 9:35 p.m. A witness of the burglary said he saw two men running from the rear of the residence carrying the guitars. Entry to the house was not determined.

Hereford police arrested only one person Tuesday, a 20-year-old woman for no driver's license and expired registration.

Other incidents included theft of a necklace in the 200 block of Sixth St., theft of merchandise in the 500 block of 25 Mile Ave., criminal trespassing in the 200 block of Harrah St., welfare concern in the 500 block of Fifth St., theft of a dog in the 100 block of Douglas St., criminal mischief in the 700 block of Ave. H, disorderly conduct and criminal trespassing in the 400 block of N. 25 Mile Ave., civil matter in the 100 block of Park Ave., and criminal mischief in the 1300 block of Park Ave.

Firefighters were called to three fires including a gasoline washdown, a structure fire and a vehicle fire.

One minor accident was also reported.

Slow warm-up

Tonight will be mostly clear and cold, with a low between 5 and 10 above. North-northwest wind will be 5-15 mph.

Thursday will be fair and not so cold, with a high of 38. West-southwest wind will be 10-20 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 16 after a high Tuesday of 35.

number; location of the treated field; an estimate of the amount of pesticide used; and location of the pesticide storage area.

The MSDS, to be provided by the manufacturer, will specifically identify the chemical's ingredients and list safety, emergency and health information.

All workers and their appointed representatives are entitled to receive copies of crop sheets and to have this information read to them by their employers; have access to MSDS and WCLs; be informed of the last and future dates of chemical applications and applicable reentry periods; get other applicable basic health and safety information; and contact TDA to report violations of the law without fear of retaliation or any disciplinary action and request anonymity, when necessary.

Growers will be provided training on the law by the Extension Service when materials for Deaf Smith County are made available, which should be within the next two months.

The new law is being eyed by major national farm and environmental groups, because the new Texas law is the first adopted by a state and is much stricter than regulations recently adopted by the Environmental Protection Agency. The Texas law was written and endorsed by several farm organizations and labor groups, according to Bush.

One of the bright spots of the meeting came from Robert Campbell of Plant Genetics, Inc., of Davis, Calif., who is working with the latest in genetic engineering to develop bigger, better, disease resistant potatoes for planting throughout potato growing areas in the U.S.

Campbell described how the company takes microscopic cutting of potatoes (they take them from anywhere on the potato, not just the "eye") and, using in-vitro fertilization in test tubes, is able to replicate thousands of "minitubers" for planting.

The tiny plantlets, after begining in a petrie dish, are grown in a sterile, controlled atmosphere with controls over the amount of light and water received.

Several steps are taken to prevent pathogens from causing disease, and any diseased plants are destroyed. Measures include a series of tunnels, insect netting and sterilization of greenhouses with steam.

The plants are grown in a non-soil "host media" that is used once and discarded. Each plant is planted at the same exact depth with surgical tools—35,000 at a time, or three acres worth of seedlings.

After about three weeks of overhead watering, the plantlets are drip-irrigated as another disease-control measure, then placed in warm storage for two weeks, checked again for disease and damage, then placed in cold storage until they're needed for planting.

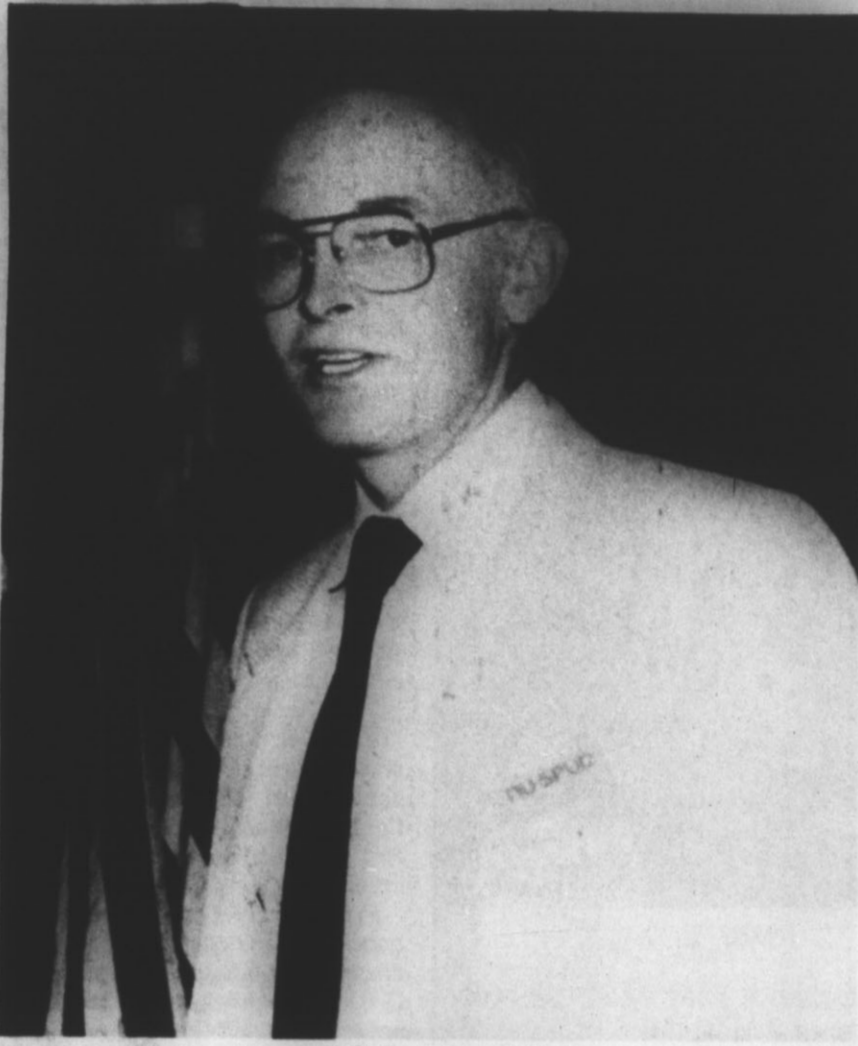

The results, according to Campbell, are amazing.

"The vigor of the seed and vine is amazing," he said. "The vigor is so tremendous that one of the biggest problems we have is trying to kill the vine," he said while showing a slide of a vine held overhead by a man well over 6 feet tall. The vine stretched out several inches onto the ground, measuring well over seven feet long.

"We look for three things in our research—the elimination of inferior lines, the replication of successful lines, and see which varieties do better in some areas compared to others."

To help growers "reduce risk, get higher yields, have better quality, improve storability and have greater profits, we're trying to get earlier generation seed to the growers. By conventional methods, it would take 7-8 years to get seed to producers. Growers want early generation seed, and we are now getting seed to them in three years from the original generation of the seedling."

Campbell said the company, which markets its seed under the "Nu-Spud" label, is working on genetically combining varieties.

"48 Hours" views hospital on opener

NEW YORK (AP) — Viewers turned voyeurs as CBS took them inside a big-city hospital for two days and two nights in the premiere of the weekly news show "48 Hours."

The show will offer the same right-there look at a different story each week, unsanitized, without analysis nor pronouncements from on high. The broadcast was inspired by the network's documentary "48 Hours on Crack Street."

Tuesday's premiere spent 48 hours in Parkland Hospital, famous as the place where President John F. Kennedy was pronounced dead.

The fast-paced hour was a rush of images and snatches of dialogue:

A 15-month-old baby who has quit breathing recovers. A 77-year-old woman dies of cardiac arrest. A man comes in complaining of an overdose of an over-the-counter pain reliever. Another faces brain surgery to save his life.

Woman in delivery room: "Hurry! It's coming!"

Doctor: "OK, four births in the last five minutes. This is more typical of the Parkland we know and love."

Reporter interviewing nurse in the intensive care unit: "I'm listening to this lady wail and it's affecting me."

Nurse: "We're terrible people, aren't we?"

Reporter: "Are you afraid you're going to sound cold?"

Nurse: "Yeah."

Another nurse: "To tell you the truth, if I had it to do over I wouldn't have gone into nursing. AIDS alone is enough to scare you away from it."

Relative of patient facing brain surgery, leading the family in prayer: "Father, we know you are the great physician, for we look up to you ..."

Reporter to neurosurgeon: "Are you in awe of what you do?"

Surgeon: "You're more in awe that people trust you enough to let you do this kind of work."

Orderly: "I likes to smile. I likes to make people happy. It makes my day go by. ... Life is gonna be what it's gonna be, and that's it."

Critical care liaison to family of car wreck victim in a coma: "We can't promise you that she's going to get any better."

Family member: "Well, the good Lord's gonna take care of that."

Liaison to reporter: "One thing we never, ever question is faith."

Reporter: "It's hard every time?"

Liaison: "Yeah, it's hard every time."

Newsman Dan Rather, as tiny, premature baby clutches his finger: "I think I like him a lot."

Neonatal care nurse: "I have to pray to the Lord that we did everything we can. And in this hospital, we do everything we can."

Bill collector after unsuccessful call to debtor: "We can't actually say if you don't pay your baby bill we're going to come pick up your baby."

Future subjects might not be as dramatic as the hospital, but CBS News hopes the show will lend itself to breaking news stories when appropriate. CBS News already has shot 48 hours at Denver's Stapleton International Airport, and 48 hours in Miami.

It has a tough time period, opposite ABC's hit comedies. But viewers with a thirst for realism might find themselves addicted to "48 Hours."

Jackson strikes it big with fundraisers

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer

Vice President George Bush, under renewed attack from GOP rival Bob Dole, sought to downplay public interest in the Iran-Contra affair, while Jesse Jackson parlayed a series of glitzy California fundraisers into the biggest payday of his Democratic presidential campaign.

Meanwhile, a Gallup poll pointed to strong support for Bush in the South, giving him a better than 2-1 lead over Dole in 13 Super Tuesday states. The same poll put Gary Hart and Jackson at the head of the Democratic pack.

Hart, making his first Southern campaign swing since re-entering the race last month, said voters are interested in issues, not "peeking in people's windows."

"The people in this country are fair and understanding. They understand that people aren't perfect," said Hart, who dropped out of the race last May after reports on his relationship with a Miami model.

Questions about Hart's campaign finances were raised in a story in today's editions of The Miami Herald, which first wrote of Hart's relationship with Donna Rice. The newspaper said a Southern California video producer paid a monthly salary to a Hart campaign aide during parts of the last two years and helped cover a variety of expenses for Hart's 1984 presidential bid.

The spending by video producer Stuart Karl exceeded federal limits on contributions to candidates, the newspaper said. Hart campaign manager Susan Casey said the candidate had no knowledge of Karl's spending on behalf of his 1984 bid or in support of aide Dennis Walto in the current campaign.

Peace talks of a sort were being held in Michigan, where Bush backers have been embroiled in a bitter delegate dispute with a coalition of Jack Kemp and Pat Robertson supporters. All three campaigns said they were trying to sort out their differences and stave off the threat of separate state conventions.

Bush, Robertson and Kemp spokesmen in Michigan said earlier Tuesday that every delegate picked in last week's GOP county conventions was being challenged by one camp or another. Bush's Michigan director said he was "cautiously optimistic" that the talks would lead to an agreement, but Lori Packer, state director for Robertson, said a settlement would be "miraculous."

Dole, in Iowa City, made some of his harshest remarks to date about the Iran-Contra affair, an issue that has been haunting Bush.

"There is just no excuse for the disastrous arms sales to the Ayatollah — or to anyone else in Iran," said Dole. "Those sales knocked into a cocked hat the credibility of the formal U.S. policy of no concessions to terrorists."

Bush, saying that "everybody makes mistakes," maintained Americans have heard all they want to about the affair.

"I think the voters see that this has been looked into. ... They want to move on, solve other problems that exist," he told reporters in Columbia, S.C.

Jackson raised an estimated $100,000 in a 10-hour blitz of posh events in Sacramento and San Francisco, in what he said was his record for one-day fund raising.

The $500-a-plate lunch, $100-a-head reception and $1,000-a-plate dinner were a far cry from Jackson's usual pass-the-hat style. The events were orchestrated by California Assembly Speaker Willie Brown, Jackson's national campaign chairman, who has a long history of big-time fund raising for Democrats in the state.

Three of the Democrats tangled

Tuesday over economics, with former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt saying Sen. Paul Simon's income surtax plan is "not a serious attempt to deal with the issue."

Simon, in turn, took aim at Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri. The Illinois senator, in Amherst, N.H., criticized the 1986 tax overhaul, which Gephardt helped get through Congress. Simon said taxpayers who are now wrestling with their tax forms are finding that "tax simplification" isn't so simple after all.

And Hart, in Fayetteville, N.C., touted his budget plan, urging his rivals to reveal more details of their own deficit-reduction proposals.

creased substantially."

TEAMS test scores for 1987 increased by 10 percent in science; 9 percent in study skills; 6 percent increases in math, language and social sciences; and 2 percent increase in math.

The source of the board's dissent stems from the school's attempt to purchase a clear title to the 15.39 acres on which the school stands. More than six of the acres was deeded to the school by Mrs. N.A. Brown & Sons (Ernest and Dennis Brown's family) in 1980.

The remaining acreage was originally deeded by the Porter Johnson family. Their land was later obtained by the Browns.

Included in the Brown deed was an aversory clause stating that if the school were ever abandoned, the Browns had full right to seize the land on which the building stands.

McLaughlin said the community and board members approached the Browns in November 1987 about obtaining clear title to the land.

"Ernest said, when all of this was just being talked about, that 'If there is a problem, just ask me and we'll handle it,'" said McLaughlin. "And later when we said there was some definite interest in it, he said it was none of my business and to drop the subject. So, I had no alternative but to put it on the agenda, and we had to have a lawyer advise us on handling it properly."

On Dec. 19, 1987, the school board offered Mrs. N.A. Brown & Sons $4,216 for the 15.39 acres. But Ernest says the school already owns the land because of the previous deed.

"He's speaking with a forked tongue," said McLaughlin. "He's saying the school owns the land when he actually does. If the school district is ever abolished, he could go in and do with the school building whatever he wanted just because of the aversory clause in the original deed. This school has been appraised at over $1 million, and the Browns shouldn't have it if ever the district were abolished."

Despite the fact that McLaughlin says the abandoned building will be consumed by a neighboring school district if ever the district is abolished, Ernest says the building will have no controlling owner.

"When this school closes, and it will, the school land will grow weeds and will lose value," said Ernest. "We don't want the land, or this school, now. It's not our concern to get it. But somebody needs to be in control when the school is abandoned."

Press aide claims columnists unfair

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Jim Wright is distancing himself from a series of angry letters a newly hired press aide sent to news organizations that included charges of possible plagiarism and a reference to the Mormon religion of a team of columnists.

Wright said he was sorry the letters were sent and that he did not see or pass judgment on the content before they were sent out.

"I regret very much any intemperate or unjustified remarks the letters may have contained," the Texas Democrat said in a statement Monday.

The letters, complaining of the treatment Wright had received in the news media, were written by George Mair, who was hired in December to help improve the speaker's image.

Mair is a former Washington columnist for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate and former editor and publisher of the Alexandria Gazette in suburban Virginia.

One letter sent last week to syndicated columnists Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta was critical of a recent column and ended with the comment that: "The Church of the Latter Day Saints must be particularly pleased."

Anderson and Van Atta are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, or the Mormon Church, and have written extensively about Wright's involvement with the shaky Texas savings and loan industry.

"We both kind of looked at each other and asked, was it anti-Mormon the same way an anti-Semitic comment is anti-Semitic," Van Atta said Tuesday.

The letter attacked a Jan. 4 column, saying Anderson and Van Atta "had been suckered," that it was "a poor cut and paste job" and that they had stolen the information from un reputable sources in desperation.

"There is a view that the Mormon Church is conservative, and I wonder whether he was trying to say were part of a Mormon plot to get Jim Wright, which is insane," Van Atta said. He also suggested it could have

"The initial thought of both of us was that this must be a fraud. We thought somebody must be pulling a joke on us," he said. "Of course, our statements are extremely accurate on Jim Wright."

Earlier reports of Mair's strongly worded letters to the Los Angeles Times, Wall Street Journal, Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report prompted Wright to issue his statement Monday about the letters.

"The letters written by George reflected the anger and frustration which, as an experienced newspaperman, he felt over some of the inaccurate and unfair news coverage I have received as speaker," Wright said.

"While I am as concerned as George over lack of balance in some of this coverage, angry letters obviously do little to correct it."

Mair defended the letters in an interview with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, saying: "It's my feeling that we've got to correct any inaccuracies about the boss because they get set in stone...and wind up in somebody's clip file."

Community-wide worship service slated

"Love Casts Out Fear" from I John 4:18 is the theme of this year's observance of The Week of Prayer For Christian Unity which will be high-lighted by a community-wide worship service at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Community Church.

Dorman Duggan, host pastor from Community Church, and Jim Hickman, pastor of Dawn Baptist Church and president of the Hereford Ministerial Alliance, urge local residents to attend this special service which is composed of lay leadership from churches of all denomina-

Films to be shown here Friday

Two films, "Eclipse of Reason" and "No Alibis", will be presented free to the public at 7 p.m. Friday in the banquet room of the Hereford Community Center.

"The Eclipse of Reason" concerns fetal development and abortion and includes interviews with doctors and others experiencing abortion firsthand.

"No Alibis" is especially designed for teenage audiences. This presentation will be made available to church youth organizations, parent-teacher groups and other clubs and agencies in Hereford.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS, IT'S NEWSPAPERS IN EDUCATION WEEK

There's more to your local newspaper than just news. It can also be one of the best learning tools your children can have. Besides gaining an understanding about current events and the world around them, the newspaper can also provide a wealth of information, ideas and visual images to help them read, speak and think better.

N.I.E. Week is an ideal time to introduce children of all ages to the newspaper and all it has to offer. Here are just a few suggestions of what you can do:

TEACHERS:

Assign current events projects requiring your class to find and clip certain types of pictures or stories from the newspaper.

Have your class identify and clip different types of advertisements to show the difference between regular ads and sale ads.

Demonstrate in class how to use the classified sections.

PARENTS:

Set aside a half hour (before television time) to go through the newspaper with your children. Point out and explain current events and items of interest.

You look forward to reading the Sunday papers, why not turn it into a family time? Start with the comics, and then go through and discuss articles appearing in other sections.

Ask you children questions about the news. When they start to learn and understand what they read in the newspaper, let them know that their views are important to you.

By defeating frontrunner Levelland, 58-55

Whitefaces tighten up District 1-4A

The Hereford Whitefaces tightened up the District 1-4A standings Tuesday night when they defeated frontrunner Levelland 58-55 at Levelland.

The Herd varsity boys are now 4-4 in the district and are tied with Frenship and Borger for fourth place.

Levelland is now 7-1, and Pampa and Canyon are tied for second place with 5-3 records. Borger beat Pampa on Tuesday, and Canyon beat Dumas. Lubbock Estacado beat Frenship on Monday.

The Whitefaces, 9-12 overall, play at home Friday at 8 p.m. against Levelland.

Excitement also prevailed for the Hereford High School junior varsity boys' team on Tuesday night. The score was tied 60-60 when Jason Scott shot the ball from half court - and made it to give Hereford a 63-60 victory.

The Whiteface junior varsity, who will play Frenship at 6:30 p.m. Friday, are 11-4 for the season.

Tuesday's varsity battle saw Levelland hold a lead through most of the first period, until Bobby Robbins scored a basket with 1:40 left to give Hereford its first lead at 15-14.

The Whitefaces led 19-16 when the first quarter ended, but the Lobos moved into the lead by seven points at one time, 30-23. At halftime, Levelland had a 30-27 lead.

Levelland then had an eight-point lead in the third quarter, 39-31, before Hereford began to rally back. A field goal by Robbins with 25 seconds left in that quarter put Hereford ahead 43-42.

In the rest of the third quarter and for the first five minutes of the fourth quarter, the teams traded baskets, resulting in the lead changing hands eight times.

With just under three minutes left, a Levelland starter fouled out and Kevin Hansen made a pair of free throws for a 53-50 Hereford lead. Levelland tied up the game, 53-53, with a three-point goal with 2:10 left.

One half a minute later, the Whitefaces called a timeout, and Rodney McCracken scored a bucket right away when the game resumed.

Moments later, Pat Mercer stole the ball from Pampa.

Kevin Hansen was fouled and made one of his two free throw attempts with 1:09 left, and Hereford had a 56-53 lead. Then with 25 seconds left, Hansen made two foul shots to give Hereford a five-point lead, 58-53.

Levelland was not through, scoring with 19 seconds left. Hereford missed a free throw with 17 seconds left, and Levelland was unable to capitalize on that miss.

"I thought we played real hard. We played well on defense for the second game in a row, and we kept our poise at the end of the game probably better than we have all season," Hereford Coach Mike Fields said.

"Levelland's got a real good team. We played one of our best games and barely got by them. I can see why they were 7-0 going into the game," he continues.

"We had just two turnovers in the game. You have to be concentrating to do that.

"We've got ourselves back into the race. We control our own destiny. We can't forget how we got here, because we have a lot of tough games to go. The next two teams we play are teams that have beaten us.

"We appreciate the support of our fans who went to Levelland and watched us. We look forward to having a big crown for Friday's game with Frenship," Fields adds.

Hansen, Mercer and Robbins all scored in double figures. Hansen had 13 points, Mercer 12 points, and Robbins 10 points. Clint Cotten scored eight points.

The leading rebounders were Mercer with nine, Eobbins with eight, and Cotten with six. Hansen led in assists with six.

In the junior varsity game, Jason Scott's game-winning three-pointer was his second of the game and the fourth for Hereford in the 63-60 win over Levelland.

Scott had 10 points in the game. Kyle Andrews was the leading scorer with 18 points, including a three-point goal, and Roger McCracken scored 12 points.

Whiteface offensive guard named a candidate by Fina

Parker is academic all-state grid finalist

A senior at Hereford High School and member of the Hereford Whiteface varsity football team has been named one of the 60 finalists for the Fina Academic All-State Football Team.

James R. "Jim Bob" Parker, son of Gerald and Mary Parker of Dawn, is a 195-pound senior who played at the offensive guard position for the Whitefaces.

The Hereford High School student is a candidate for the 11-member academic all-state team, selected annually by a committee in association with Fina. Each team member will receive a $2,000 college scholarship, and one will be the honorary team captain.

Parker is the third Hereford High School student in the last three years to be named a finalist for the academic all-state football team. Two years ago, Stefan Hacker and Brett Clements were finalists, with Hacker being named to the 11-member team.

Parker is an Eagle Scout and a district president of the Order of the Arrow. He participated five years in National Federated Music Club piano contests, and was a guest pianist at two district conventions.

Parker is a chairman of several HHS student council committees and serves as vice president of his class.

Parker, who has received the DAR Good Citizen Award, has won local and regional oratory contests sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was a speaker at the state Key Club convention, president of the National Forensic League, and won first place in several UIL district oratory competitions.

An academic leader in his class, Parker has completed several honors courses.

Applications from more than 1,500 candidates were received by Fina and considered by the first panel of judges. An applicant, to be eligible for consideration, had to be a senior football letterman ranked scholastically in the top 25 percent of his class, with a grade-point average of 85 or higher.

"All of the applicants are outstanding, so to be selected as a finalist is a distinct honor," said Paul D. Meek, chairman of the board of Fina Oil and Chemical Company.

"Fina's intent in sponsoring this team is to recognize and direct attention to football players who are also good students and good citizens," Meek adds.

Members of the screening committee that selected the finalists were: Johnny E. Cates, Quitman, county extension agent of Wood County and past president of the Texas Association of County Agents; Dr. Walter W. Hoy, Dallas, a statistician and manager with LTV Aerospace and Defense Co.;

Harold Jones, C.L.U., Lubbock, insurance agent and former president of the Texas Association of Life Underwriters; Dr. Dennis McIntosh, San Antonio, owner and operator of a San Antonio veterinary hospital and a member of the Texas Board of Health; and Dennis Sheehan, Fort Worth, an attorney with the firm Haynes and Boone.

Members of the selection committee, which will meet next month to select the 11 members of the academic all-state team, are: Roy J. Eaton, Decatur, publisher of the Wise County Messenger and president of the Texas Press Association; W. James Host, chairman of the board of Host Communications, Inc., Lexington, Kentucky; Fred Jacoby,

Dallas, commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference;

William N. "Bill" Kirby, state commissioner of education; Harvey Martin, Dallas, sports director of radio station KHYI and a former professional football player; Paul D. Meek, Dallas, chairman of the board of Fina Oil and Chemical Company; and Douglas A. Stalker, Jr., Wichita Falls, general manager of radio stations KNIN and KGTM, and president of the Texas Association of Broadcasters.

For Super Bowl XXII

Elway, Schroeder have highest salaries

DALLAS (AP) — Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway and Washington Redskins backup quarterback will be the highest paid players for their teams when they take the field in San Diego for Super Bowl XXII, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

Elway makes more than twice as much as the combined salaries of Denver's "Three Amigos" receiving corps. And Schroeder makes more than $325,000 than Doug Williams, who will be the starting quarterback for Washington.

The 1987 salary list compiled by the National Football League Players Association and obtained by the Dallas Newspaper shows that Elway and Schroeder, with vastly different roles in the Jan. 31 title game in San Diego, are by far their team's highest paid players.

Elway had a 1987 total compensation of $1 million, $300,000 more than backup wide receiver Steve Watson.

Schroeder, in the first year of a three-year $2.7 million contract signed before this season, had a 1987 base of $800,000, which was $200,000 more than wide receiver Art Monk.

The 1987 compensation figures are base salary plus reporting and roster bonuses. The figures do not reflect the salary lost during the strike.

Rogers Hornsby, usually considered the greatest right-handed hitter in the history of baseball, was primarily a second baseman. But during his career he also played first base, third base and shortstop.

Hall of Fame second baseman Charlie Gehringer always took the first pitch when batting. He said he did it so the pitcher could start even with him.

which for players who did not cross the picket line equaled 25 percent of their base salary.

None of the Redskins crossed, but a handful of Broncos, including Watson, did.

For Elway, who would have earned $1 million in 1987, his strike contribution for staying out the 24 days was $250,000. He lost more to the strike than all but 13 of his teammates would have made if there was not a strike.

The Denver receivers are Vance Johnson, who made $236,000, Ricky Nattiel with a $175,000 salary and Mark Jackson with $85,000.

Jackson is Denver's second lowest-paid starter behind center Mike Freeman at $82,000. Jackson was a No. 6 draft choice in 1986 who is in the second year of a three-year contract. He caught the tying touchdown at the end of The Drive last year in Cleveland and had an 86-yard score in Denver's 38-33 victory over the Browns in Sunday's AFC Championship Game.

Williams, who started and played the whole way in the playoff victories over Chicago and Minnesota, had a $475,000 base with $150,000 deferred until 1989-90.

He is not the only underpaid Redskin. Defensive end Charles Mann, with a $250,000 base, is the Redskins fifth highest paid defensive lineman and 10th highest paid defensive player.

Elway, meanwhile, completed the final year of his five-year $5 million contract he signed as a rookie in 1983. His new deal, negotiated by Marvin Demoff, who also did Schroeder's contract, was signed before the start of the 1987 season and is the richest in NFL history — six years, $12.85 million.

Elway will receive a $3 million signing bonus, which is deferred from 1989-95. His base salary next year is $1.4 million and it escalates to $2 million in 1993. The contract is fully guaranteed.

An NFLPA survey, which ranked teams according to base salary, has the Raiders listed first with an average of $259,769. The Redskins were ninth at $197,969. Denver was 12th at $191,008. The Dallas Cowboys were listed at No. 20 with an average base of $168,940.

Lady Whitefaces fall to No. 1 ranked Levelland

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces played a near-even ball game for almost two quarters Tuesday at Levelland but the top-ranked Loboettes prevailed, 50-28.

Levelland held only a two-point lead at the end of the first quarter, 13-11, and took advantage of some Hereford turnovers late in the first half for a 29-17 halftime lead.

"I just feel like our kids went into Levelland and played as well defensively as they can. We didn't shoot the ball real well, but we had only 10 or 12 turnovers in the game," Hereford Coach Frank Belcher said.

"They got six easy points just before halftime when we committed three turnovers. We had good shots on offense, but the shots just didn't fall for us."

"I'm proud of the way the kids played Levelland, the No. 1 team in the state," Belcher adds.

Hereford scorers included Cande Robbins with 11 points, Stacy White with seven points, and Carmen Brockman with six points. Brockman led in rebounds with nine, and Robbins grabbed five rebounds.

Susan Bell was the assists leader with five.

Levelland also won the junior varsity game, 48-38. Levelland held a 26-19 halftime lead and then led 38-32 going into the final quarter.

Jessica Dearing led Hereford with 11 points, and Poppy Richardson scored nine points. Dearing was also the leading rebounder with eight. Chandra Brown had six points ar-and Richardson and Jill West both had three assists.

On Friday, Hereford hosts Friendship. Game times are 6:30 p.m. for the varsity and 8 p.m. for the junior varsity. The HHS varsity is 2-7 in the district and 8-15 overall, and the Hereford junior varsity has a 6-10 season record.

Officers elected by Pioneer Club

The Pioneer Study Club met recently for their regular monthly meeting at Something Special. Hostesses were Fern Ford and Rosemary Thomas. President Mary Panciera presided over the meeting. Leatrus Clark led the club in the pledge of allegiance and Etolie Manning led the salute to the Texas flag. Manning presented the program on concerns of the elderly entitled "Protect the Elderly and Disabled." She urged members to become more informed and aware about the different situations that loved ones and friends could find themselves involved in during older years. She also pointed out the need for family members to communicate more and try to understand each other's needs so families can work together. Manning noted that everyone should better equip themselves to know the needs and recognize the neglect of the elderly and handicapped. "Our wills should be made so that our possessions are given to people or organizations of our choosing by way of a will," she said.

"My Turn" was given by Bea Hutson as she gave an account of her move to Deaf Smith county in the 1920s as a young bride out of college. She noted the mistakes she made as a town girl introduced to farm life.

A short business meeting was conducted by President Panciera and Christmas cards from former members, Lavina Gilliland and Belle Hromas, were read.

The following officers were elected for 1988-89; Panciera, president; Lucy Faye Cocanougher, vice-president; Bessie Hill, recording secretary; Mabel Herad, historian; Billee Johnson, yearbook chairman; Willie Wimberley, federation counselor; and parliamentarian, Gladys Miller.

Members present included Ford, Panciera, Helen Bishop, Hill, Hutson, Manning, Miller, Eunice Petersen, Thomas, and Clark.

Panciera closed the meeting by urging everyone to remember the 1988 club project of choosing an elderly or handicapped person to befriend.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday, Feb. 9, at Something Special.

Abundant Life

THE SIMPLE THINGS
By Bob Wear

We are thinking of 'simple things' in contrast to the complex and complicated things and situations. It is best for us, if we learn to value the simple things and the simple ways, and help ourselves to become fully appreciative of them. The complex, complicated and ostentatious situations and conditions may have some appeal sometimes, but they do not contribute to human happiness or general well-being.

In the individual life, the important things are the simple things. They are the things which can contribute most to a desirable life situation, and they are, generally, the recognized essentials in the best structure for the most rewarding life style. If we permit the life situation to become complex and complicated, we are likely to lose sight of some of the 'simple things' which are essential to a worthwhile life experience. This is a loss that we cannot afford, and must guard against.

The time-honored life elements such as sincerity, honesty, humility, genuineness along with emotional stability can thrive best in a climate that is favorable to full appreciation of the 'simple things'. If we permit happenings and circumstances to manage us, it is just a matter of time until we are caught up in complexities and complications of all kinds. Obviously, we must learn to manage ourselves wisely; and we can do this. Simplicity must be our goal, and we must make deliberate effort to attain this goal. "It will take courage to cut away from the thousand and one hindrances that make life complex, but it can be done!" - R. Lachar.

In the family, and in all family associations, the simple things are the important things and the things to be nurtured and protected. They are the things which are essential to the strength and happiness of family life. It is the same with enduring and meaningful friendships.

Let us never discount the worth of the 'simple things.'

Bronco receiver remembers Green

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Broncos wide receiver Mark Jackson has a vivid memory of an incident during the most recent Washington-Denver game, late in the 1986 season.

Jackson, not exactly a slouch in the speed department, recalls dashing after a long John Elway pass, straining to get to the slightly overthrown ball — and seeing Redskins cornerback Darrell Green overtake him.

"I peeked over my right shoulder, and Green ran right by me," Jackson said. "I thought, 'Holy smokes, he's not human.' It was pretty awesome. "We have a lot of respect for their defensive backs. They're all very fast."

To listen to Broncos Coach Dan Reeves, you'd have to think there is an abundance of awesomeness on the Redskins' roster.

At midweek, Reeves and his staff still were preparing their game plan against the Redskins in Super Bowl XXII, but Reeves was able to make some observations about Washington based on that 1986 game — won by Denver 31-30 — and some recent film.

"The one thing that stands out about the Redskins is they're very well coached," Reeves said. "If I could vote year in and year out for a guy doing a great job, it would be (Washington Coach) Joe Gibbs. He's won over 70 percent of his games playing in a tough division. Richie Petitbon does a great job with their defense, too."

"They're pretty much the same team we faced last year. The main difference is they've gone with Doug Williams at quarterback instead of (Jay) Schroeder. Williams doesn't move around as much. He stays in the pocket and waits until the last minute to throw.

"They have a huge offensive line, some big strong runners, and Kelvin Bryant out of the backfield is a good receiver. (Injured wide receiver) Art Monk should be ready, and that will help them. To get into the championship game without him is a tribute to (Ricky) Sanders and (Gary) Clark."

Like Denver, the Redskins will use a multitude of offensive formations. "And with two weeks to prepare, they'll probably come out with a few more we haven't seen before," Reeves said.

The Redskins' defense poses one particular problem for the Broncos, according to Reeves.

"We don't play that many four-man line teams, and we'll have to be ready for that," he said.

In Washington's 17-10 NFC championship game victory Sunday over Minnesota, the Redskins concentrated on first containing and then pressuring Vikings quarterback Wade Wilson — a scrambler much like Elway. The tactic produced eight sacks, and Reeves wouldn't be surprised to see the same defensive scheme on Jan. 31 in San Diego.

Although Denver has been installed as a three-point favorite, Reeves sees the game as a tossup and feels it will be much like the hotly contested 1986 meeting.

"Championship games are won by great defenses," he said. "Washington played great defense on Sunday. Our defense didn't play well in the second half (in a 38-33 AFC championship game victory over Cleveland)."

Redskins lost by 29 in last Super Bowl appearance

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP Sports Writer

HERNDON, Va. (AP) — After watching the Redskins lose by 29 points in their last Super Bowl appearance, Washington Coach Joe Gibbs is planning to do things a bit differently this time around.

It is with unfond memories that Gibbs looks back on the 38-9 thrashing the Los Angeles Raiders inflicted upon the Redskins in the 1984 Super Bowl. It was, at the time, the biggest rout in the history of the event and tarnished what had been a spectacular 14-2 regular-season.

Gibbs said he will wait a bit before getting his players primed for the Denver Broncos and restrict them from becoming engulfed by the media hoopla that precedes the title contest.

"Last time, we started a little early in getting ready," Gibbs said. "We took our rest early (before this year's NFC semifinal game against the Chicago Bears), then picked up the pace, and that's what we're going to do this time."

"When we get there, it's important for the players to enjoy it and have a good time, but they have to be careful at night with the activities they get caught up in," Gibbs said. "I'd prefer they spend a normal evening, with friends or relatives. Last time there was no curfew, but this time it will be around 12 o'clock."

Will all this help save the Redskins against the Broncos?

"Who knows?" Gibbs said. "We'd have probably lost (the last Super Bowl) 52-0 if we had a curfew. But it makes it sound better, as a coach, to change things around this time around."

The squad Gibbs is taking to San Diego boasts a mixture of youth and experience.

"Really, the advantage we have here is that we have 16 guys who have been to the Super Bowl and knew what it took to get there," Gibbs said. "And yet we had a majority of young guys who had never been there, were hungry, and decided they were going to do whatever it takes. And they fed off the older players' experience."

Players such as rookie running back Timmy Smith, who rushed for a combined 138 yards in the Redskins' two playoff games, and first-year players Ravin Caldwell, Brian Davis, Clarence Vaughn and Kurt Gouvéta played major roles in Washington's 17-10 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in the NFC title game.

"We've got a lot of youthful guys who have really contributed to this team, and we have a good blend of veterans," center Jeff Bostic said. "When you've got that combination, you're going to go places."

THE HEREFORD BRAND SINCE 1901 WANT ADS DO IT ALL!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read your column very often, but I have never been motivated to write until now. When I saw that letter about the 976 phone numbers, I knew I had to speak up.

I have a 15-year-old boy who uses the 976 number all too often. When I approached him about it he said it was for sports updates, etc. I called one of the numbers to check and I was horrified at what I heard. The call lasted about three minutes. I was sick to my stomach after 30 seconds.

I talked to my son calmly about the calls and asked if he could explain his feelings. I wanted to know what he got out of such filth. He was reluctant to respond even though he has always been quite open with me. His only comment was that he had been having trouble getting a girlfriend. (I should tell you that he is tall and good-looking but somewhat shy.)

To add to my troubles (or his, I don't know which) I found three-ring binders filled with photos of bikini-clad models and ads for porno videos. He has not ordered anything to my knowledge, but I am afraid that may be the next step. I want to nip this in the bud if I can. Please suggest something.--Worried Mom in North Hollywood, Calif.

DEAR MOM: It sounds to me as if your son is quite normal. Moreover, the communication between you two appears to be very good.

Inform your son that if he wants to call those 976 numbers in the future, he will have to pay for them. (I'll bet he'll soon decide that he's had enough.) Also tell him if he orders any porno films you'd like to take a look at them with him. This should dampen his enthusiasm considerably.

The important thing is for your son to know that he can talk to you about anything. As he becomes more mature, his fascination with the sleazy stuff will diminish, and eventually it will die a natural death brought on by boredom.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since I was 13, I've had a problem that has been getting worse. I'm 19 now and it is taking over my life. It's called OCD--obsessive-compulsive disorder.

I managed to keep it a secret from everyone until six months ago when I told my finance. He has been very supportive and wants me to see a doctor, but I refuse because I don't believe this is a medical problem.

I frequently feel dirty even though I wash my hands several times a day (maybe three dozen). If hand-washing doesn't make me feel clean, I will take a shower and put all my clothes in the wash. Washing my clothes is very time-consuming because I must go through at least 12 steps. Sometimes I have no clothes to wear because they are all in the wash.

I hate the way I am, but I don't know how to stop. This compulsion has taken over my life and made me miserable. Some days I feel like committing suicide.

There must be others out there like me and we all need help. What can we do?--Unclean in Canada

DEAR CANADA: I have dealt with the problem of obsessive-compulsive behavior in this space many times. Sorry you missed it. It is well known that we all have little rituals we perform, but when they take over our lives, they cease to be normal.

Some new drugs have been developed that have been found to be effective. They are not FDA approved yet, but with several drugs approval is imminent. Contact the Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder Foundation, Inc. (P.O. Box 60, Vernon, Conn. 06066) for names and locations of clinics around the country that have been authorized to distribute these drugs under FDA guidelines.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have gout in my feet. It has been so bad I could not bear to have a sheet touch my feet. I had 3 ml of fluid drawn from a bunion on the one foot. My bunions have increased considerably in size and I must have surgery to wear shoes. What causes gout? If it is food, what foods should I avoid?

DEAR READER: Your problem may be somewhat complicated. There may be a question about how much of your problem is from a bunion and how much is from gout.

Gout typically attacks the great toe. Your letter is interesting, as the original medical description of gout also commented that the pain was so bad you couldn't bear to have a sheet touch your toe.

It used to be thought that gout was caused by overindulgence. The typical gout victim was an overweight middle-aged man who ate rich food and drank fine wines. It was even related to a healthy sexual appetite.

But sexual activity has little or nothing to do with gout, although men are more prone to the problem. And diet is not the main factor in causing gout. Gout is caused either by your cells producing too much uric acid or your kidneys not being able to eliminate enough uric acid. Either mechanism may be inherited.

Even though gout is not caused by your diet, you can benefit from following a low purine diet. Uric acid is formed from purines. The main items to avoid are: organ meats, canned salmon, scallops, smelts, anchovies, herring, fish roe, beer, wine, gravies and broths. Most people will have no problem in avoiding these foods.

To help you follow a good low purine diet, I have included a complete list of foods that are high, medium and low in purine content in my new Special Report 86, Gout: The Disease of Kings, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope with 39 cents postage to THE HEALTH LETTER/86, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Often a diet alone will not lower the uric acid level enough to prevent gout. I have included a discussion of the medicines used to prevent acute attacks and relieve those that occur.

DEAR DR. LAMB: A pharmacist recommended dissolving 20 5-grain aspirin tablets and one ounce of camphor in one pint of rubbing alcohol to apply to the skin for the relief of muscular and arthritic pain. For alcohol we use 70 percent ethyl alcohol containing methyl salicylate. This is an excellent analgesic and provides quick relief of pain. It is more effective than oral aspirin and more economical. Are there any possible hazards?

DEAR READER: I would prefer that you use 70 percent isopropyl rubbing alcohol without the methyl salicylate. Methyl salicylate can be toxic if too much is absorbed through the skin, and should not be used in this way for children. Applying salicylates to the skin may be much better for some people than taking aspirin or other salicylates by mouth. It does avoid the problem of irritation of the stomach that affects so many people.

Doctors from the PharmaKinetic Centers for Clinical Studies have suggested a cream to be applied over the area. It consists of 10 percent triethanolamine salicylate (TEAS) in a neutral cream base. They used this in 90 patients with rheumatoid or osteoarthritis. The salicylates in the cream acted quicker and lasted longer than taking aspirin by mouth.

DEFINITION OF HOPE "The true definition of hope is, the expectation of future good; or it is the desire of good, heightened by the expectation of enjoyment. It is a compound of desire and expectation. For when we hope for anything, we have a desire for it, and entertain an expectation that it will be granted unto us. We may, however, desire a thing, and yet have no expectation of it. ...

"Hope springs directly from the fount of God's love. It overflows the soul and bursts forth with praise and thanksgiving. ...

"Hope enables us to love all men with a pure heart fervently. It teaches universal brotherhood. If we love our entire race as we ought, then we shall desire their best good, and pray for their happiness."

--N.C. Hodgdon, Evangelical Magazine and Gospel Advocate, Utica, New York, April 3, 1948.

Film of naturalist viewed by Bud to Blossom members

A video, "The Man Who Talks To The Birds", was viewed by members of Bud to Blossom Garden Club at a recent meeting. The film concerned the life and travels of John Bax, an avid bird watcher and naturalist.
 Roll call was answered with "a New Year's resolution for my garden" and "naming a bird which nests in my garden or yard."
 Members were given suggestions to help birds survive and how to stimulate interest in them by Patricia Robinson. The conversation series was given about feeders and pictures were shown of how to build a bluebird bungalow.
 Thank you notes were read from the Hereford Day Care Center where the club furnished cookies for 120 children during the Christmas holidays. Also, Westgate Nursing Home residents thanked members for decorating the hallways in the building.

 It was announced that the District I Convention will be held in Hereford March 14-15. Robinson gave a summary of the various committees, and members discussed door prizes and various entertainment that would be provided during the event.
 Tracey Duncan was welcomed back into the club as a member.
 Before the close of the meeting, the group potted 100 tulip bulbs which will be planted at the Community Center.
